Navy Minimizes Red Guns Firing At 'Stray' Craft

WASHINGTON (AP)—Navy officials described as an isolated incident today the shots fired by a Communist-Chinese shore battery at an American plane which they said apparently strayed off course and was damaged slightly.

They expressed the opinion, based on early dispatches, that the incident is not likely to produce any significant military repercussions.

The Navy announced yesterday that the plane, flying from the carrier Hornet, was "fired on and slightly damaged by Communist Chinese anti-aircraft" in the area of the Formosa Strait.

"It appears that the aircraft concerned was to the westward of its plotted position, being about eight miles off the coast when it was fired on," the Navy announcement added. It said the plane, otherwise unidentified, was on a routine training flight at the time, and returned quickly to the carrier.

First word of the incident came from Peiping radio, which said in a broadcast heard in London that the Hornet and four destroyers, sailing from Hong Kong, "invaded part of the South China Sea within the territorial waters of China."

planes taking off from the carrier "intruded into the Swatow area." Without saying where they came from, the Communists said four Nationalist Chinese planes joined the American planes, and two of them were shot down. The U.S. Navy announcement made no mention of Nationalist Chinese planes.

The Nationalist air force on Formosa termed the Peiping claim groundless. It said Nationalist planes on a routine patrol over the Formosa Strait encountered "ineffectual" ground fire off Swatow, and all planes returned to base safely.

Navy officials here said that the incident could result in diplomatic representations — the Chinese charging a violation of their air space and the United States countering with a protest against an unprovoked attack on an American aircraft.

The messages from the 7th Fleet which had operational control of the force including the carrier Hornet, referred to yesterday's happenings as an "incident." The Hornet also reported that after the slightly damaged American plane returned to its mother carrier, the training exercises under way at the time of the incident were resumed.

Girard Declares Pressure On Him

OTTAWA, Ill. (AP)—William S. Girard has told his older brother in two separate transpacific telephone talks that the Army Far East Command "is putting pressure" on him.

William, 21-year-old Army specialist third class scheduled to be tried in Japanese courts in the shooting of a Japanese woman, conferred last night and early today with his brother Louis, 28, an Ottawa garage mechanic.

In both conversations, tape-recorded at Ottawa radio station WCMY, William spoke of Army "pressures" in response to questions asked by Louis. The first talk last night was marred by poor reception, so Louis called again early today.

The second conversation went like this:

"Who is putting pressure on you?" Louis asked.

"The whole place," was William's reply.

"Who is it—the Army?"

"Yes."

"Who in the Army?"

"The whole Far East Command."

"What are they trying to get you to do?"

"I don't know."

"Did anybody tell you that you'd get a stiffer sentence from the Army than the Japanese?"

"Yes."

"Did Maj. Levin (Maj. Stanley Levin, military-legal adviser to Girard appointed by the Far East Command)?"

"Yes."

"Who in the Far East Command is putting pressure on you?"

"It isn't any particular individual, it's all of them."

"Did you lure that woman (Mrs. Naka Sakai, 46) onto the firing range?"

"No."

"Did you throw those shells out there (to lure her onto the range)?"

"No."

"What is Levin telling you?"

"He's keeping me informed." In the transcription of the conversations, several of the same questions about "pressures" were repeated by Louis. Each time he got an affirmative reply. At no time did William cite specific "pressures."

Louis also informed his brother that he "has the family's blessing" for his planned marriage with his Japanese fiancée Haru Sueyama. Louis told William a letter from their mother Mrs. Dorothy Girard, 45, was on its way to Japan with necessary legal papers for the marriage.

William has said he will marry Miss Sueyama as "soon as possible," Louis said.

Former Senator Walter George Seriously Ailing

ATLANTA (AP)—The condition of Walter F. George, veteran former Democratic senator and President Eisenhower's special ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, was officially listed today as one stage short of critical.

His physician at Emory University Hospital said that he had spent a fairly comfortable night, felt somewhat stronger but his condition remained serious.

The 79-year-old statesman is suffering from coronary atherosclerosis, or hardening of the coronary artery which nourishes the heart.

The physician, who asked that his name not be used, said George was receiving anticoagulants, drugs used to prevent the blood from forming clots.

George arrived in Atlanta by train from Washington yesterday and entered the hospital for a series of diagnostic tests.

Before entering the hospital, the statesman said his future as an ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would depend on the results of the examinations.

George served in the Senate for 34 years. He did not seek re-election in 1956.

Demobilizing Of Elizabeth City Base To Begin

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. (AP)—Demobilization of the Naval Air Facility here was set to begin late today or tomorrow and should be virtually complete by Saturday, officials of the station said last night.

The government's decision to close down the base was disclosed two weeks ago.

Final orders to move the lighter-than-air squadron were issued yesterday. More than 500 officers and enlisted men are to be transferred by the end of June, along with a helicopter squadron attached to the facility.

The facility has been operating here about 15 years and did extensive patrolling over the Atlantic in search of subs during World War II.

Part of the squadron will go to Glencoe Naval Facility at Brunswick, Ga. and the remainder to Lakehurst, N.J.

Educational TV Plans Crystalize

Ten To Fifteen N.C. Cities Involved; Project Is Largest On Nat'l Scene

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Educational television on a big experimental basis will begin Sept. 1 in public school classrooms in 10 to 15 North Carolina cities.

The North Carolina undertaking is the largest experiment being attempted in a national program to find out the effectiveness of classroom teaching by means of television.

Plans for the experiment, which will cost $200,000 to $250,000, were approved here yesterday by the Ford Foundation's Fund for Adult Education and the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

The instruction will emanate from the studios of WUNC-TV. By the use of micro-wave it will be relayed from the mountains to the coast. It was pointed out that teachers will be able to instruct classroom assemblies of 200 to 300 students in hundreds of classrooms at a time in elementary and high schools.

City school systems within range of WUNC-TV will be primary participants in the program. City school superintendents from Charlotte, Gastonia, Winston-Salem, High Point, Durham, Raleigh, Fayetteville and Wilmington met here yesterday and approved the plans subject to confirmation by their school boards. Other cities indicating an interest are Greensboro, Asheville, Salisbury, Burlington and Leaksville.

Half of the cost of the experiment will be paid by the Fund for Adult Education, with the participating school systems paying the other half.

Dr. Alexander Stoddard of the Fund said "We hope we can establish a precedent for more elaborate experimentation in the future."

Under tentative plans, the experiment will take place all of the school year, and will probably be renewed each year for three years. Only a small part of each school system will be involved in the experiment.

The program, it was explained, is an additional resource to classroom instruction and is not to be considered in lieu of classroom teaching.

Hodges' Friends Leave; Assembly Kind To Program

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges may have the feeling today that a host of friends have left town.

He would be right. Members of the 1957 General Assembly, who yesterday ended a four-month stay in Raleigh, dealt kindly with the governor's legislative program.

With few exceptions — a minimum wage law gave the glaring example — the lawmakers followed the course charted by the governor in his message early in the session.

They laid a foundation for industrial development, a pet Hodges project, by revising corporation income tax laws despite an estimated loss of 14 million dollars in revenue.

The Highway Commission, a giant state agency spending some 200 million dollars each year, was reorganized to fit the governor's recommendations. He said it would give a "statewide approach" to road building.

With some reluctance, the Legislature cut the strings of authority tying the Prisons Department to the Highway body. Hodges sweetened the pill by agreeing to allow the prisons to continue under financial support of the Highway Fund.

A new Department of Administration, urged by the governor as an aid to efficient state operation, was created to bring together fiscal agencies. It also will serve to relieve the chief executive of many routine duties.

Although Hodges generally had his way in charting state spending for the next two fiscal years, a pay raise for school teachers threatened an early split with the Legislature.

A 9.1 per cent increase, recommended by the governor and the Advisory Budget Commission, received a total hike of 19.31 per cent, including a basic 16.09 per cent raise and an extra week's pay.

Hodges trimmed his sails to the legislative reaction and placed the figure at 15 per cent. At the same time, he heaped a pay raise recommended for other state workers from about 8 to 11 per cent. He also pointed out budget shifts to supply the money, including a 10 million dollar bond issue for some permanent improvements at state institutions.

The final result could be called a modified victory for the governor. It will give teachers a 15 per cent pay boost, plus a contingent 1.09 per cent if state revenues prove sufficient to meet state obligations and retire the bond issue.

A clear-cut defeat was the fate of the minimum wage bill. Hodges had called it a necessary tool in his drive to raise the state's per capita income.

The Senate passed the bill to fix a 75 cents hourly wage minimum, but the House Manufacturing and Labor Committee balked. It tabled the measure, a parliamentary maneuver which effectively blocked the bill from reaching the House floor.

The Senate rejected two other bills sponsored by the governor when it killed measures aimed at restricting North Carolina activities of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

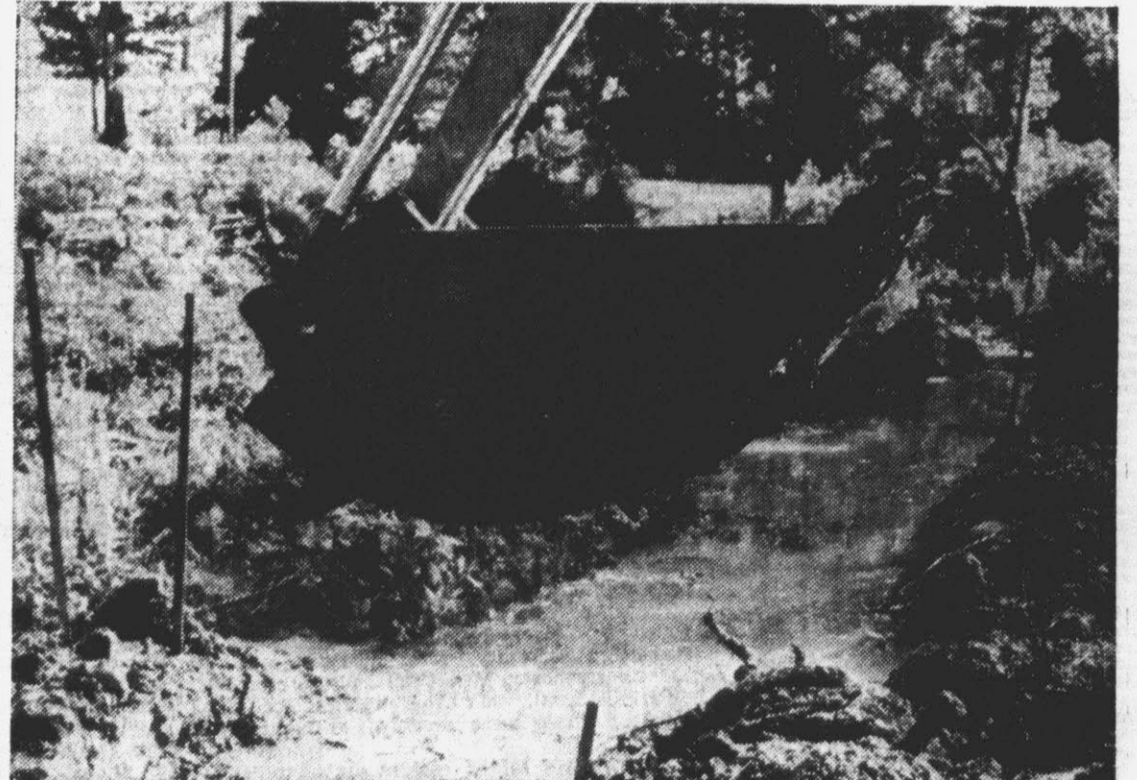

Bankers won out in a struggle to amend the law on deposits of surplus state funds. The new law will give the governor and Council of State authority to place the money with state banks even when federal securities offer an interest rate no more than one half of 1 per cent higher.

Hodges said often he did not consider the bill necessary, but apparently made no major issue of the matter.

As with governors in the past, Hodges urged the Legislature to consider seriously a statewide liquor referendum and reapportionment of General Assembly membership. The Legislature also followed past custom in turning down both items, after several rounds of Senate debate on the reapportionment issue.

Two study commissions requested by the governor were authorized by the Legislature. An important one will study the state's constitution for possible revisions. The other will go into the field of school finance. Both will report in time for the 1959 Legislature to consider their recommendations.

Tobacco Heavily Damaged By High Winds And Hail

High winds and heavy hail took its toll on tobacco crops in the Ayden Township early this morning.

A number of farmers have reported damage up to 50 percent as a result of last night's flash storm. Farms located between Ayden and Grifton and in the Gum Swamp section sustained most of the hail and wind damage, a spokesman reported this morning.

Extensive damage seemed to be located within a two mile radius of Ayden to the south, southeast, north and northeast.

Mack Harrington of Ayden Rt 2 said this morning that between 75 and 80 percent of his tobacco crop was lost. The Ayden farmer seemed to think that his farm was "right in the middle of the worst part of the storm. To date his losses have been the heaviest reported.

Harrington said wind as well as hail damaged his crop due to the fact that his tobacco was about shoulder high. He added that he was planning to pull lugs on some of his crop next week.

"What's left in my fields will not do me much good this year," he stated.

A number of farmers in the same general area suffered between 15 and 30 percent tobacco damage. It was generally reported that other crops escaped extensive damage. The storm struck between 3:00 and 4:00 o'clock this morning.

Mayor's Wife Has Varied Interests

ADMIRE DESK . . . gift of the Mayor.

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of interviews with the wives of the members of the Greenville City Council.

BY ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector's Woman Editor

The home of Mayor and Mrs. Eugene West on Tenth Street reflects the charm and warmth of Mrs. West's personality.

This active woman is keenly interested and takes pride in her spacious home which is furnished with a traditional influence.

A few antique pieces are placed throughout the home. Mrs. West mentioned that, "I never have liked too many antiques, but I do think a few add charm to a home."

Directly beside their home, the Wests are planning a sunken garden. "I plan to have azaleas and plants throughout the garden with a pond as the center interest," explained Mrs. West.

Cooking is another "love" of the Mayor's wife and she adds that steaks are her husband's favorite. Often during the summer months they cook on a grill in the yard.

Originally from Greenville, Mrs. West attended East Carolina College.

Both Mr. and Mrs. West are members of the Eighth Street Christian Church where she is also a member of a circle.

Other civic activities of hers include membership in the Greenville Service League and in the Home Department of the Woman's Club.

In the summers Mrs. West spends a part of her time at their beach cottage at Ocean Ridge.

Along with her many activities, Mrs. West also finds time to play bridge and make cutwork bridge cloths and pillow cases. "I am now making a cutwork table cloth which I enjoy because I can put it aside and come back to it later," she noted.

When asked how she enjoyed being the wife of the mayor, she reflected, "I haven't been the wife of a mayor long enough to tell, although I do know that Gene has a hard place to fill and I hope he can serve the people of Greenville well."

Red Banks Club Elects Officers, Hears Mrs. Egan

Mrs. Elsie Egan was guest speaker when the Red Banks Home Demonstration Club met for its regular June meeting. Her subject was "What Is Mental Health?" She stressed the fact that people would have to recognize the fact that mental health is a sickness before much can be done to cure it. Mrs. Hugh Hardee Jr. called the meeting to order and the song "Puffer Billies" was sung. Devotion was given by Mrs. E. H. Boyd and her thought was "We must really put our trust in God." She ended with a prayer. The Nominating Committee submitted names for new officers and the following were elected: president, Mrs. Preston Harrington Jr.; vice-president, Mrs. E. H. Boyd; secretary, Mrs. Karl Hardee; and treasurer, Mrs. S. B. Tucker. Mrs. Noah L. Hardee, food conservation leader, gave a report on how to make jams and jellies easier. The music workshop that will be held at the college was announced. The club collect was repeated after which Mrs. R. B. Starling, recreation leader, entertained the group with her drawings. Fountain Club Picks Nursery, Master Bedroom

The Fountain Home Demonstration Club participated in the Window Display contest sponsored by Bostic-Sugg Furniture Company by dressing their window this week. The club chose for their theme the Master Bedroom and Nursery. A solid cherry bedroom suite consisting of a four poster bed with canopy, chest, double dresser, and night table was selected. This suite was chosen for its style, durability, and beauty. A wingback chair in a print of brown, beige, and a touch of red was added. The chair was chosen for color and comfort. Also for comfort and beauty a solid cherry Windsor rocker was used. The accessories consist of three beautiful lamps, a white canopy, white bedspread, draperies of beige and green. A few personal pieces complete the bedroom. Adjoining the bedroom in the window display is the nursery. A crib of gray wood with a non-scar plastic finish was chosen. This crib was selected for its durability and safety features. It is full paneled with a double drop teething rail. The chest selected is of the same finish as the crib with five spacious drawers. The Tremble Kiddle-Bath, with a vinyl-plastic cover pad, head cushions, safety strap and fully equipped with the foot pedal is used. To this arrangement a much needed combination Jumper-Walker and the ever necessary Baby Butler were added. To complete the nursery a comfortable Priscilla rocker with mahogany finish and rush seat was added. The Fountain club wishes to extend to everyone an invitation to visit the Bostic-Sugg Furniture Co. and view this display.

Record Of Legislature Was Good

Legislators returning to their respective counties from Raleigh should come home with a feeling of accomplishment and a feeling of satisfaction for the major progressive moves North Carolina has taken in the past four months.

The 1957 General Assembly chalked up records for the most expensive in the history of the state and for ratifying the greatest number of bills. But these are not the things for which the 1957 General Assembly will be remembered.

This year more decisions of greater import were made by the General Assembly than in any session in recent years. More than any legislature in recent history this was one which set its cap toward modernizing and streamlining operations of the state government.

The legislature revised the state's corporate income tax law to pave the way for greater industrial development and resulting economic progress in North Carolina. It resolved a long and bitter dispute by separating the Prisons Department from the Highway Commission to make for more efficient operations. It reorganized the State Highway Commission in an effort to create a commission with more of a state-wide character, rather than one built on the individual division system which has held sway for years.

It granted appreciable, yet realistic, pay increases for teachers and other state employes while approving the largest budget in the history of North Carolina.

It proved itself farsighted in providing for driver training in all the high schools of North Carolina and in requiring compulsory automobile liability insurance. It took steps to curb highway racing, and released highway law enforcement agencies from fetters which were imposed by the legislature two years ago. It rejected repeated attempts to weaken laws pertaining to highway safety.

While the 1957 General Assembly chalked up important accomplishments, it also had its shortcomings.

It declined to take the progressive step of adopting a minimum wage needed by thousands of workers in North Carolina. It failed to face up to the problem of reapportioning representation in the legislature or take any step to provide for resolving the problem which has loomed on the state scene for the past seven years.

Although the 1957 General Assembly was the most costly in history, and although it failed to approve a number of measures which would have benefited the people of North Carolina, the people of the state got their money's worth.

Overall, the 1957 legislature was one of impressive accomplishment.

Tax Valuation Picture Shows Pitt Growth

Pitt County's sharp increase in tax valuations for 1957 over 1956 is indicative of continued growth in material wealth in the county.

It is also indicative of a rate of construction of homes and commercial buildings in the county last year which exceeded the expectations of many observers.

Significant in the new valuation figures is the fact that for the first time tax valuation on property in the county has reached above the $70 million mark. Significant also is the fact that the increase in tax valuation of property during the past year was second only to 1954 when complete revaluation program was undertaken in Pitt.

The new valuation figure means that at the present tax rate of $1, the county can expect some $37,000 more in revenues from property taxes during the coming year. This figure will be boosted by the additional taxes of the various school districts in the county. The situation offers the prospect that even in the face of increased operation costs and increased budget requests from departments, the County Commissioners may be able to come up with a balanced budget without increasing the county's tax rate.

The new figures also suggest that the county may have reached a new plateau in the annual rate of tax valuation increase it may expect from year to year. If that proves to be the case it may follow that the county can stabilize its tax rate near the present level with additional revenues at the existing tax rate offsetting increased costs of county government.

From the standpoint of the overall economic picture of the county, the increased tax valuation for 1957 is most encouraging.

At The Root Is Unstable Dollar

Because money is relative, sellers can raise prices and workers can raise rates without much resistance. And by "worker" don't think only of the man who handles molten steel. The average middle-management executive's pay went up 6 per cent last year, according to an American Management Association survey.

And probably not one middle-manager was organized. Did Meany or Reuther do as much for all their men? Or did Dave Beck?

The constant up, up, up in wages, prices and living costs is more the fault of our fair currency than anything else. But if labor is to blame at all, how about Congressmen who insist upon government support for farm prices, thereby keeping food prices up or at least, preventing them from falling under the law of supply and demand?

And how about industries who demand that the government keep raising tariffs to sustain or increase their prices?

And how about the government, which keeps constantly increasing its payments to employees, and which willingly pays constantly higher prices for munitions and other things it buys?

And — this is the most important question of all — how about the housewife who pays $1 for 50 cents worth of chopped meat? Is she any less to blame than her husband who demands 9 cents an hour more pay?

We have two choices. We can put a firm value on our money, making a dollar really worth 1-35th of an ounce of gold, 1,500th of a cow, or almost anything else real. Or we can have endless inflation, going on and on, until the housewife pays $100 or more for 50 cents worth of hamburger.

INCONVENIENCE — But PROGRESS

Few things are more discouraging than to encounter on the highway a sign which reads "Road Under Construction."

But recently I encountered a sign which read, "Road Under Construction — Sign of Progress."

It did little to take the bumps out of the ride or the unpleasantness out of the whole situation. But there could be no doubt that when roads are under construction, inconvenient as this makes it for the traveler, it is nevertheless a sign of progress.

We have to break up the old to get the new. Our beautiful transcontinental highways have meant plunging through fields, forests, and sometimes underneath

An Old Story, Tomorrow

Late Tuesday afternoon we had a sonic boom over Greenville as a jet pilot power-dove his craft out of the high blue yonder. It came as a solid crashing sound, followed by rolling thunder. Quite a racket.

Such sounds should surprise no one these days. As a matter of fact, for a long time I've had my good ear cocked for a sonic boom in these parts, and vaguely wondered how long this small experience would evade me.

Quite a number of jet planes are based in eastern North Carolina, Virginia and South Carolina. . . so it boiled down to just a matter of time.

Anyway, there I was, minding my own business with some grass shears. Youngsters across the street were shooting each other up with an assortment of disintegrator rays, burp guns, Colt .45s and carbines, when the jet jockey and his boom interrupted my reveries.

There followed an audible exclamation or two from adults within my hearing range, and a couple screen doors slammed as people emerged to peer skyward.

And what of the youngsters engaged in mock carnage? They didn't give it a second glance; just carried on with their play as though a sonic boom was as commonplace as a passing automobile.

It struck me then — and the thought lingers — that novelties for today's adults will be "old hat" for these children twenty years from now.

This was passed on to me, the least I can do is pass it on to you.

Planning a vacation stay in Florida, the retired railroad didn't know what to do with his dog. He decided to write the hotel and ask if dogs were allowed.

Promptly, the hotel manager wrote back:

"I've been in this business for 30 years. Never have I called on police to eject a disorderly dog. Never has a dog set fire to a bed with a cigaret. I have never found a hotel towel or blanket in a dog's suitcase. Nor a whiskey ring on a dresser. Sure, the dog is welcome!"

And manager added a postscript: "If the dog will vouch for you, come along, too."

According to the Carolina Carbonators, a publication of the National Carbon Company, it happened in Greenville: the lady had an appointment, and after driving around the block for about twenty times and unable to find a parking place, she parked in a "no parking" zone. She left a note of the windshield, it read: "Dear Cop, I've circled the block twenty times and couldn't find a parking place. Forgive us for our trespassing." When she got back to the car, she had this reply: "Dear Lady, I've ridden around this block for twenty years and I have a job to do. Lead us not into temptation!"

They look to the water only when confronted with big chunks of unfinished highway and when the going by land was otherwise impossible.

Servicemen, acquainted with combat limitations of the amphibious jeep, had been prophets of gloom. Many other persons told them the trip "couldn't be made." But Helen's bright oil and water color paintings that now fill their home and Frank's journals are the evidence of their success.

Frank has been elected to membership in the Explorers Club and, in November, the couple will lecture before the National Geographic Society. Other lectures will keep them occupied until at least March of next year.

It was April 9, 1956 that the Schreiders returned to Los Angeles by boat. La Tortuga was unloaded and driven with an escort to the Civic Center where Los Angeles Mayor Norris Poulson extended an official "welcome home."

"We realized we were back in civilization a short while later," Helen related.

It was this prolonged, tedious and costly search which resulted in the development of nylon, dacron, orlon and other synthetic materials of everyday wear. In fact, further restrictions on Du Pont-General Motors trade may lead to the invention of new synthetics in the laboratories.

So, when Milady puts on her afternoon finery, and sits on the soft and beautifully patterned cushions of a shining automobile, she owes her envied estate to the fact that a "strong President" put the government into manufacture of munitions before she was born, or slightly thereafter.

It can be duplicated in many other industries, which are now worrying over the effect of the decision on them. But the Brennan fantasy justifies the statement of another builder of new industries:

Second Jeep Junket

By DICK BIESER
VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP) — Helen and Frank Schreider, the husband and wife travel team, are planning another junket, this time in the Far East.

The young Van Nuys couple has been back little more than a year from a 20,000-mile journey from the Arctic Circle to Tierra del Fuego by auto and an amphibious jeep christened whimsically "La Tortuga" (the turtle).

The 18-month-long journey — they were the first to travel the length of the Pan American Highway — was crammed with the adventure of new places, new people and, particularly, new and challenging situations.

Relaxing in the living room of the comfortable guest house they rent in Van Nuys, they confided that in the not-too-distant future they hope to go island-hopping by jeep in Indonesia.

And they won't leave Dinah behind. Dinah, acknowledged by her masters to be the best explorer of the three, is their 9-year-old German Shepherd dog. She came back from Tierra del Fuego amazingly healthy and apparently possessed with an unquenchable thirst for travel.

The Schreiders were students at UCLA — Frank was studying engineering and Helen art — when they married. It was after returning to college from a honeymoon-by-jeep to Southern Mexico in 1947 that the plans for the lengthy Pan American jaunt began to take form.

After some difficulty, Frank located a surplus amphibious jeep, a battered relic of World War II, and they began to "haunt" surplus stores for equipment.

To raise funds, they went to Alaska where Frank signed on as a contract engineer for the Army and Helen worked as a draftsman.

While living with Dinah in one room of a converted Army barracks, spending money sparingly yet enjoying the beauty of Alaska to full measure, the Californians conceived a bigger plan for their projected odyssey: a trip all the way from the Arctic Circle to Tierra del Fuego, southernmost part of South America.

On June 22, 1954, their seventh wedding anniversary, the great adventure began. As Frank related, "Helen was 28, I was 30, and Dinah was 7 years old." They drove to Southern California in a station wagon purchased in Alaska, stopping long enough to overhaul and outfit La Tortuga.

In the trusty jeep they crawled at 16,000 feet in the Peruvian Andes, followed oxcart paths down treacherous gulleys and 20-foot-high breakers of the Pacific.

They look to the water only when confronted with big chunks of unfinished highway and when the going by land was otherwise impossible.

Servicemen, acquainted with combat limitations of the amphibious jeep, had been prophets of gloom. Many other persons told them the trip "couldn't be made." But Helen's bright oil and water color paintings that now fill their home and Frank's journals are the evidence of their success.

Other Editors Saying-- Shucks, They Like Us

The people up there say they think our Southern males are not as aggressive as Nawthners men. Well, we just don't know about that, now. Depends on what you're talking about being aggressive about. If you mean that Southern men don't buck as much to make that dollar, well, some of them probably don't beat the bushes quite as much as those razor-edged communit' Long Islanders and such. But that's changing, too. Today, in most Southern communities we can point out a heck of a lot of "go-getters."

All in all, we seem to rate pretty well. For which we are grateful. Only a few Yankees think we're lazy, shiftless and ignorant. To be right honest about it, we do have some folks like that. We call 'em trash, and everybody knows who they are. The Yankees like to think of Southern plantations. Come to think of it, so do we. 'Course, there aren't very many plantations left. But we have the memories, at least, even while they're putting up the new factories and changing much of the face of the land.

Dixie is and will be, and the Yankees seem to recognize it. Folks, we have apparently made progress. Fetch the mint, son. It's time.

EVER ENTERPRISING In that year, the Du Ponts' principal product was commercial and military explosives—dynamite and smokeless powder. Cotton and chemicals were the main ingredients for these commodities.

When T.R. decided that the Army and Navy should manufacture their own weapons in order to insure a wartime supply, the du Ponts saw a loss of business to the government monopoly. They immediately looked around for new products and new markets instead of throwing up their hands. They hit upon such new use for cotton and chemicals as lacquers, celluloid, artificial leather and artificial silk.

Japanese silk had become extremely expensive, and estranged relations with Tokyo might cut off the supply altogether. One a few years before, Roosevelt had sent the famous "white fleet" around the world as a warning to the threatening Japanese.

Writing in a breezy style rarely found in Supreme Court literature, Justice William J. Brennan, Jr. has given us a generally unknown chapter of industrial progress that reads like best-selling fiction. The story begins when Theodore Roosevelt was rattling sabers in the face of the Kaiser and an earlier generation of Japanese war lords.

WASHINGTON—In its important Du Pont-General Motors decision, the Supreme Court paid a remarkable tribute to the enterprise, initiative and imagination which has bestowed industrial and economic supremacy upon the United States. The fantastic story has as great an interest for housewives and stylized dressers as it has for industrialists, economists, politicians—and Nikita Khrushchev.

It explains why the United States was powerful enough to save the Free World in history's two worst wars. It shows why we are able to keep Russia at bay today. But it also reveals why American women live so comfortably and conveniently, and why they can dress so smartly at relatively low cost. Even Dior could draw lessons from the opinion.

Art, Music And Literature Sway Captive Audience

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine a place with a population of say 4,500, where every single person reads an average of over five books a month, where there are two permanent orchestras and a band, where art classes are held daily.

And that isn't all: Music comes with the meals. Potted plants, sometimes cut flowers, decorate every available niche. Original oils, watercolors and sketches are spread out in all the rooms, halls and corridors on the walls.

Walls they are, too — that's the hitch. It may sound too good to be true, but there is such a place. It is Stateville, at Joliet, where Illinois holds tight to its toughest criminals.

Warden Joseph E. Ragen is the subject of a book, "Warden Ragen of Joliet," (Dutton), out on Monday, by Gladys A. Erickson, with forewords by Ragen and Harry Reutlinger and containing, incidentally, some frank, dissenting and uncensored opinions of a couple of the hardest-boiled inmates, like Roger Touhy who cannot be persuaded to like his prison even with all the books, music and pretty flowers.

Suppose this is a "captive" audience — is that where the word originated? Even so, the people don't have to read, but they do read; they don't have to play in the orchestra or paint pictures, but they do play and paint.

What does it do for them? Warden Ragen, a tall, husky, quiet man who looks as though he could take anything in his stride, told me on a New York visit:

"It takes their minds off their troubles. It supplants the unlawful, improper concerns that bother them."

It was the warden who started the flower gardening. Prisoners now set out 500,000 plants a year, and many of them, once returned to civilian life, earn good money in greenhouses.

"They throw themselves into these activities," the warden said. "They act as though they owned the little plot of ground they tend. I've seen men who were bad mess ups, who simply could not get along with their fellows, but changed their ways remarkably when they had flowers to grow."

"The library has about 22,000 volumes. All but about 1,000 of the men read regularly. The branches in the cellhouses distribute catalogs every week, the men indicate what books they want, and they get them."

Law books are popular here, as in most prisons, for the men think they may figure out a way to win freedom. They also like popular novels, historical and romantic. Crime fiction is barred.

Every prisoner has a set of earphones and is allowed to take his pick from three radio programs, again with crime topics barred. There are numerous requests for such programs as the Metropolitan Opera, the New York Philharmonic and the music festivals in Chicago.

"An Italian bandmaster comes in every day," the warden continued, "and works with the band which consists of several scores of instruments, and the orchestras, of about 10 men apiece."

Art classes result in the display of pictures all over the place, in recreation and dining halls, and in the quarters of the warden and his assistants.

"I have myself," he said, "a very fine 'Blue Boy,' or so I'm told by people who should know, that was copied for me by one of our art students and that I think is beautiful."

The men do some writing, but they are not allowed to send anything out to publishers during their terms. However, they have their own magazine, named for the one everlasting preoccupation of them all, "Time," which prints news and also short stories and poems. Did he ever have any writers there?

"Novelists, no. But writers, yes" — he gave me a smile — "newspapermen, yes. People in every field get into trouble."

Woman Dies Of Parrot Fever

BLOOMSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Medical authorities here say an autopsy on a 62-year-old retired schoolteacher who died yesterday "indicates she was the victim of parrot fever."

Mrs. Helen Kreamer and her husband Ralph, who is reported in "very weak condition" at Bloomsburg Hospital, were stricken 11 days ago.

Dr. C. L. Johnston, state medical officer for Columbia County, said they bought a parakeet from a department store here several weeks ago.

Hospital authorities said the couple had the normal symptoms of the disease but an analysis of blood serum would have to be completed before a positive diagnosis could be made.

Law Enforcers Theft Victims

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Police are checking for clues in the theft of three items which disappeared during the annual meeting of the Mississippi Law Enforcement Assn.

Two police sirens and a parking meter were stolen yesterday from the convention's exhibition hall.

Sterility, Malformations, Deformed Children Claimed Results Of Tests

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — A lawyer claimed today that at least a dozen soldiers who worked on a top-secret wartime experiment are either sterile or have fathered deformed children as a result.

Atty. Raymond Lyddy represents four Connecticut soldiers. One of them is sterile, Lyddy says. Wives of the others have had six miscarriages, three deformed children and two apparently normal children.

He said the 100 or so members of the tank ordnance company which worked on the project were warned that exposure to rays from the equipment could make them sterile. He said he only had information on about 30 of the soldiers, but about half of those reported some trouble.

He said "the instances of sterility, malformations and deformed children were just tremendous."

The New York Daily News, which first reported the story in a copyrighted dispatch from Washington, said Army Secretary Wilber Brucker has been asked to make a full investigation. The request came from the former company commander, Marshal White of Chicago.

The News said the experiment consisted of mounting brilliant arc lights on tanks to blind gunners. The operation was carried out in the 9th Armored Division, which was fighting along the Rhine.

About 456 of the tanks were sent into action, the News said, but they had only limited success in combat and the idea was dropped.

The News added that the lights were 13-million-candlepower carbon arc lamps, and "there is strong reason to believe that something more than carbon arc was involved."

In Washington, the Army said no complaints of this type "officially have been brought to the attention of the Army. If any are received they will naturally be investigated."

Lyddy gave these facts about the four men he represents:

John J. Zawesz, 42, Fairfield, a carpenter; His wife had three miscarriages, then delivered a child with a cleft palate. They have no other children.

Peter Decerbo, 35, Milford, a bottling firm worker; One miscarriage, and one child, a girl of seven, with a club foot.

Harold Saunders, 38, Bridgeport, a plastics firm executive; Two miscarriages, then a child with a cleft palate and a hare lip, then two apparently normal children.

Joseph Vanacore, 42, Hamden, a postal worker, who says he found out from a doctor in 1950 he is sterile. He said he twice applied to the Veterans Administration for compensation, and was turned down. He and his wife adopted a son two years ago.

Lyddy said the men of the 9th Armored Division's 538th Ordnance Heavy Maintenance Tank Company "were assigned to this

They had no choice in the matter. They were told by the Army that overexposure to the rays from the equipment could produce sterility."

He said the four men got together about a year ago and started comparing notes. Then they got in touch with some of the other men, in different parts of the country, and swapped information about 30 members of the company.

Said Lyddy: "Pretty close to 50 per cent of them reported miscarriages, sterility or deformed children."

More Bicycles Than People

BOSTON (AP) — There are more bicycles than people on Nantucket Island.

That information was given the Legislature yesterday by Rep. Robert F. Mooney (D-Nantucket) who is seeking legislation for construction of bicycle paths on the island.

Mooney said Nantucket, 30 miles off Cape Cod, has 4,100 bicycles and about 3,500 residents.

THE REV. W. M. HOWARD, JR. . . . views church progress

Church Addition Is Huge Project

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church's sanctuary is being more than doubled in size but, except for length, the building exterior will appear as before when workmen complete the rebuilding job.

For builders have carefully reclaimed thousands of the brown brick of which the structure was originally constructed to be used on the outside of the new addition.

Perhaps the largest alteration job ever undertaken locally, the addition to the sanctuary will increase seating capacity from around 300 to 500.

With additional portable chairs some 125 more persons could be seated in the sanctuary. A chapel being built in the old Sunday School section will seat around 150 more. If needed services could be heard in the chapel by means of a public address system.

Thus more than 1,100 worshippers can be accommodated when the church additions are completed.

That compares with the 650 that could be seated in the church sanctuary and the Sunday School section before the expansion.

Church members, who are attending Sunday morning services at Austin Auditorium while the work is underway, will find other change when they return to the new structure.

Both the main sanctuary and the smaller chapel will be completely air-conditioned. There will be new pews and new organs have been purchased for both the sanctuary and the chapel.

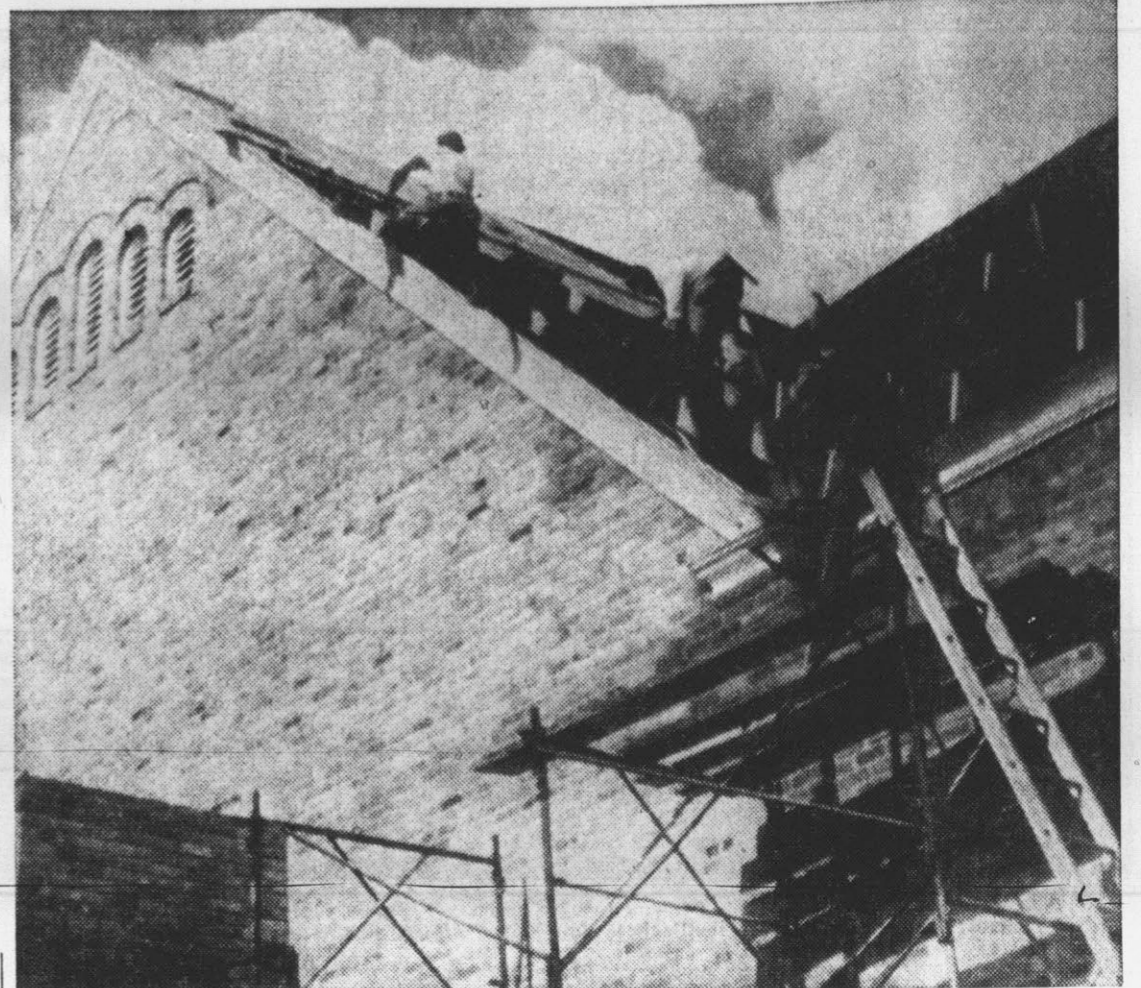

Wall-to-wall carpet is to cover the floors and new Cathedral type lighting is to be installed.

At the same time much of the appearance of the old sanctuary is being retained.

Heavy wood tusses being built in the extension will match those of the old portion and stain glass windows of the new section are to be similar to those of the old.

Along with the building program the church acquired dwellings on Greene St. They are being demolished to make room for a 65-car parking lot to serve the church.

The alterations and expansion of the church property is expected to cost around $350,000.

Nixon Moving Into Civil Rights Fight

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Amid indications he may play a leading role in Senate maneuvering over civil rights, Vice President Nixon discusses racial problems today with a Montgomery, Ala., Negro pastor.

Nixon, as the Senate's presiding officer ought to be in a strategic position to help or hinder a reported effort to bypass the Senate Judiciary Committee with a civil rights bill the House may pass tomorrow. The Senate's own bill now is tied up in that committee.

The House, meantime, resumes debate on its bill after a one-day layoff, with a states rights fight in prospect. House leaders were working toward a final vote by tomorrow, but were said to be prepared for a Saturday session if necessary to finish action this week.

The Rev. Martin Luther King, a leader in Montgomery Negroes' long boycott of buses in that city, reports to Nixon on conditions in the South as he sees them.

King's conference with Nixon grew out of conversations they held in Ghana on the vice president's African trip last March. King had invited Nixon to visit the South to study what the Negro pastor called "the extent of violence" there so that Nixon might report to President Eisenhower.

Southern senators planned a caucus on what they can do in case a Nixon ruling is called for on routing the House civil rights bill.

They accepted Nixon's meeting with King as further evidence that he would side against them if the parliamentary situation arises.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP leader, said that when the House bill reaches the Senate, supporters of President Eisenhower's civil rights program are considering raising a technical point that it should go directly to the calendar.

This would have the effect of bypassing the Judiciary Committee.

If a point of order is raised, Nixon either could rule on it or could submit the question to the Senate. If he ruled the House bill should go before the Senate without committee consideration, this decision undoubtedly would be appealed to the Senate itself.

Any Nixon ruling to put the bill on the Senate calendar could touch off a Southern filibuster.

Patrolman Takes Own Medicine

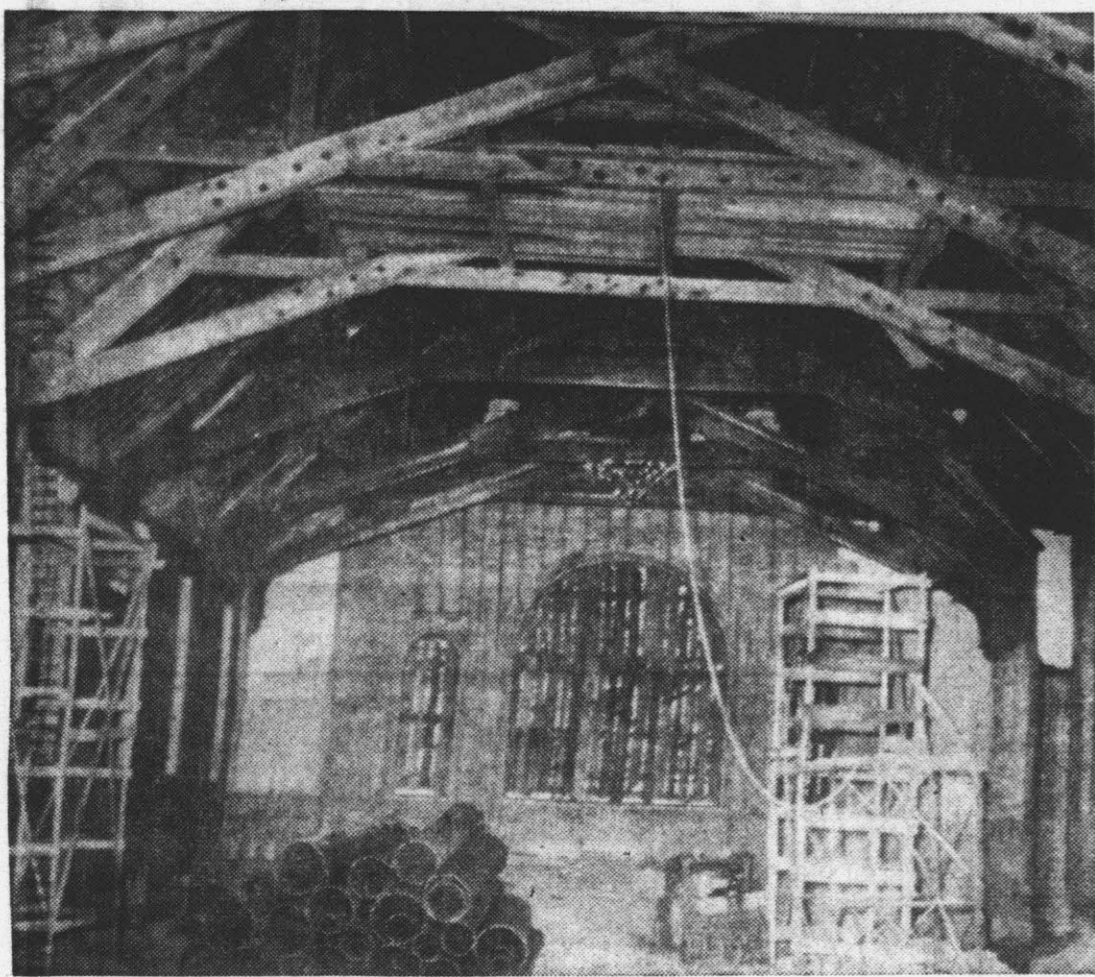

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)—Ted Slothower parked his car and went into a store here to get change to feed the parking meter.

There was a delay while the storekeeper waited on others. When Slothower returned to his car, there was a parking "ticket" on it.

Slothower, who had driven downtown on his day off, is the city's other parking meter patrolman. He went to city hall and paid up.

One More Item For Space Trip

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— There won't be any space travel until scientists perfect auxiliary power systems to keep occupants of the craft alive, healthy and happy, three rocket experts said today.

Development of these systems will require about as much effort as the main engine of a rocket ship, D. G. Burdick, P. I. Wood and J.S. D'Abusco told the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Simple auxiliary power systems already are in use in rockets for steering, pumping fuel, sending radio signals and receiving instructions from control points.

However, the big space ships additionally will need independent power sources to supply heat, cabin pressure and even a substitute for gravity, said the three, from Aerojet-General Corp. Aerojet is a producer of large rockets.

Once outside the gravitational pull of the earth, space travelers won't know which way is up unless they have some force to keep the feet on the deck, the dishes on the table and a means of making food and drink go down their throats.

Saved Her Life, Lost His Own

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Thomas Bennett, 45, saved the life of his daughter, Deborah, 3, yesterday—then fell to his death.

Police said Bennett rushed to a second-floor porch as he saw Deborah tottering on the railing. He pulled her backward but lost his balance and plunged through the railing to the ground.

Bennett's daughter, Marie, 9, had followed her father to the porch. She grabbed Deborah's feet to prevent her from falling through the broken railing.

Replied the Scout spokesman: "We want to see the hammer you use after you close a case like they do on 'Dragnet'."

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newfeatures

Small boating, a pastime shared by millions of Americans, offers exceptional opportunities for good pictures as it swings into its most active cycle.

The fun, romance and adventure of varied boating activities combined with the pictorial ingredients of sky and water add up to endless subject matter for the boater-camera fan. At the same time, the elements that contribute to off-beat pictures present some special problems in protecting equipment, preventing spoiled or over-exposed film and out-foxing the motion of wind and wave in marine photos.

Being a seasick-green landlubber myself in these matters, I steered a course to George Grunkmeyer, photo consultant for the Scott-Awater Boating Research Center, for advice.

The first thing he stressed was that aboard any boat, film and cameras must be protected from both spray and heat. Spray will gum up cameras and working parts and may even corrode a lens surface if it's salty and if given time to do its worst.

A hot sun beating down on a boat may affect or fog even factory sealed film if it's not protected and kept in a cool or shaded spot.

Extra film should be wrapped in a tightly tied oil-skin or plastic bag, then packed in an air-tight container like an empty coffee can which is sealed with masking tape. On a wooden-hulled boat, find a shady, dry place for the film and equipment. If you're planning more than a same-day trip on a metal-hulled boat, you can keep the film in an icebox if there is one aboard.

When removing film from an icebox, however, don't open the container immediately or condensation will form on the film. Give the film a chance to reach the same temperature as the outside air. As a guide, it's been estimated that it takes about an hour for two rolls or a 4x5 film pack to rise 25 degrees.

Never try to take marine pictures with the camera aimed into a stiff breeze for the spray is likely to hit the camera and coat the lens. Of course you'll wipe your camera dry as soon as you notice it's wet, but if you take any shots while there's a bit of moisture on the lens, you'll get some unexpected soft focus picture.

The ability of water to reflect light is well known so exposures are generally a bit shorter, but a light meter is still the best bet for scientific accuracy as against human guesswork. A lens shade is recommended for all pictures. Back lighting is just as effective and dramatic in water photography as on land but it must be watched more closely. Light coming from the rear-front of the camera can produce enough glare reflection to cause a washed-out effect.

Because of the absence of trees, grass and other nearby color-absorbing surfaces, there is a great deal more ultra-violet in the light around water surfaces. To eliminate its effects, a haze filter is recommended for distance shots on smaller bodies of water or for pictures taken on larger lakes or coastal waters.

Large boats don't present the motion problems of small cruisers or open boats. A good nautical picture taking stance must allow for wave action, rolls of the boat and an unexpected lurch so that a camera held close to the face or body doesn't result in a skinned nose, a black eye or a bruised chest.

Stand with your feet wide apart on a firm foundation with your knees slightly flexed, your arms and shoulders relaxed, not tensed.

LOTS OF ACTION in this marine view, but watch out for that spray! It's headed for no good if it reaches lens.

This should give you good balance and permit you to "give" with the movement of the boat.

When the boat is moving, don't lean on its side or motor support to steady yourself. Wave impact produces a series of sharp, jarring bounces that sabotage image sharpness.

For still pictures, shutter speeds should be 1-100th or 1-200th of a second. Subjects close to the camera should be shot at the faster speed; those further than 75 feet away, at the slower speed. Motion pictures, shot at 24 or 32 frames instead of the normal 16 frames per second, will help eliminate the effects of boat motion.

But you know what, George, this continual boat motion is beginning to affect me too! The sun, the sky and the water are fine . . . but excuse me . . . I've got to get to dry land. It's not that I'm sick . . . it's just that I want to develop the beautiful seascapes in a hurry.

Another Soldier Said 'Involved'

TOKYO (AP)—The U. S. Army placed today a GI who was with William S. Girard when Mrs. Naka Sakai was killed has been restricted to his camp at his own request to avoid newsmen.

The soldier is Specialist 3.C. Victor N. Nickel of Inkster, Mich., whose mother said he wrote her: "Now I am an associate to the fact and am facing a court-martial."

An Army spokesman said, however, that no charges have been placed against Nickel.

Nickel and Girard were together on an Army firing range Jan. 30 when Mrs. Sakai, who was collecting scrap metal, was killed by an empty cartridge case fired from a grenade launcher.

A Japanese indictment accuses Girard of enticing the woman onto the range and then shooting her. Attorneys for Girard are waging a legal battle in Washington to prevent his trial for manslaughter in a Japanese court, despite a U. S. government decision giving jurisdiction to Japan.

Nickel's mother Mrs. Oscar A. Edwards said in Michigan her son had written asking for $50 for attorney's fees to defend himself against possible charges in the Girard case.

"I didn't shoot the woman," he wrote. "I am innocent but it's got to be proven. I need $50 for a civilian attorney as I don't want an Army lawyer."

"The extent of Nickel's involvement in the Girard case has not yet been determined," an Army spokesman said.

Evangelist Warns Of Future Judgment

"Can America Escape the Judgment of God For Her Sins?" was the sermon subject used by Dr. Jimmie Johnson last night at the big tent in the Crusade For Christ, now in its final week.

"So appalling is the record showing the increase of crime, delinquency, liquor consumption and highway deaths and injuries directly attributable to it, that one cannot help but wonder how long it will be before America crosses God's deadline that could bring His unrelenting judgment and destruction," declared the evangelist.

"Civilization after civilization has fallen when it has mocked God and turned to its lusts and idolatry. Obscene literature and periodicals parading under the cover of 'art' are filling the newsstands and are poisoning the minds and very souls of American youth, to say nothing of their elders," he stated.

"Although the Bible shows that God is long suffering, yet the record is clear that He always brought fierce and final judgment upon an unrepenting people. It shows that He spared not the angels who sinned, but cast them out of heaven. He spared not the world in Noah's time, for suddenly the waters rose in judgment. He spared not Sodom and Gomorrah, for He rained fire and brimstone upon the cities. He spared neither sacred symbols nor sacred cities, for Jerusalem was utterly destroyed and Judah taken into captivity. The Bible says 'they mocked the messengers of God and despised His words, and misused His prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, till there was no remedy.' What about America today?" Johnson asked.

He cited recently released statistics showing that America spends 10 billion dollars a year for whisky and other strong drink while 10,000 highway deaths were attributable to alcohol. "Last year 576,000 juveniles were arrested—an increase of 11 percent over the previous year. Crime costs each family in the United States $500 per year, according to the figures released by J. Edgar Hoover," said Johnson. "It is high time that we as individuals recognize these alarming signs, repent of our sins and turn to God—lest it be too late for America," was Johnson's closing warning.

Services continue nightly at 8 o'clock through Sunday, the closing day. A musical presentation "The Storm" will be heard at tonight's service.

Dave Beck Is Outwardly Cool Over Controversy; Calls It 'Hysteria'

By E. Q. ANDERSON
 SEATTLE (AP)—"I go to bed at night and I never wake up until morning. . . I've been in this for 40 years and whatever happens doesn't bother me."

It was Dave Beck, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, speaking.

He had called newsmen in to present his side of a controversy over investment of union funds.

But after that had been disposed of, the discussion came around to more personal things.

Such as his decision to retire as union boss, after unfavorable testimony at hearings held by the Senate Rackets Committee and charges of income tax evasion filed against him in federal court in nearby Tacoma.

Beck said he had wanted to retire a year ago but other Teamster officials had persuaded him to stay on.

He said 95 per cent of his decision to not seek re-election is the ill health of Mrs. Beck.

"My wife reads this stuff and it bothers her. I don't want to go through a continuous dogfight. I've reached the time when I'm entitled to say to hell with it." He pointed out he would be 63 next Sunday.

Bellarmine High School in Tacoma ($19,000) or a lot of other groups?" he asked.

As to anyone buying property in his behalf, Beck declared, "Nobody fronts for me."

But he said if a friend or a relative had a chance to make a good investment he saw no reason why he shouldn't loan them the money for it. He said, "It's a lie that money comes back to me."

Perinatal Mortality Is Still A Medical Problem

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Perinatal mortality — the death of infants before or soon after birth — continues to be a major medical problem, according to a recent study by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. In recent years perinatal deaths have averaged more than 135,000 a year in the United States. Approximately half of these are still births, and the remaining half are babies dying within one week of birth.

Some progress has been made in reducing the perinatal mortality rate — it fell about one-third between 1940 and 1954 — but the improvement has lagged far behind that for childbirth mortality among mothers, which decreased 86 percent in the same period.

The major factors contributing to the death toll in the perinatal period, the study shows, are lack of early and adequate prenatal care; twin and other plural births; puerperal toxemia; chronic and infectious diseases in the mother; and the use of inadequately trained midwives, a practice which is still fairly common in some sections of the country. Cesarean births, while quite safe for the mother, are still attended with high risk to the infant.

"The high death toll both before and soon after birth can be reduced through the wider application of present knowledge and the development of new knowledge regarding the factors affecting the ability to survive in this critical period of life," according to the company's health authorities.

"It is of prime importance that women be educated to seek prenatal care early and to remain under continuous medical supervision throughout pregnancy. In the course of prenatal instruction, women should be alerted to signs and symptoms that may indicate impending complications.

"Such measures will help bring closer the goal of reducing perinatal mortality by about one-third — the proportion considered preventable even with our present knowledge. Inasmuch as understanding of many of the causes and factors in perinatal mortality is still rudimentary, there is great need for research in this field."

He predicted "this hysteria" would die down. "You can see what the Supreme Court is doing every time it meets," Beck said, apparently referring to a decision Monday involving use of the Fifth Amendment by a Teamster official.

The high court upheld the refusal of a Teamsters local official — Joseph Curcio of New York — to disclose the whereabouts of certain records. To require such testimony, the court declared, might compel the official "to convict himself out of his own mouth" contrary to the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination.

A newsman asked Beck if he "felt hurt" over "this ruckus."

The husky labor leader paused, took a deep breath, and said: "I don't feel hurt over what happened in Washington but I feel hurt over what happened in my own community."

"I feel hurt because of all the people I helped finance their projects not a — one said, 'We never had that experience with Dave Beck.'"

Beck seemed resentful that benefactors of his charities have not come publicly to defend him.

"Why don't you check with the American Legion who I helped get $15,000 or the YWCA ($15,000), the YMCA ($17,000), the Children's Orthopedic Hospital ($15,000), or

Satellite Over Africa 20 Minutes After Its Firing

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Twenty minutes after being fired into space from Florida, the earth's first artificial satellite will move across the African skies.

And within minutes from the time the small globe roars into the heavens, an 80-man Moon Watch team will be on the job in this area.

The equipment to be used for precision optical tracking will be a Schmidt camera on loan from the U. S. National Committee for Year. The international radio station midway between Johannesburg and Pretoria, at Olfantsfontein, has been selected as the site for the Schmidt camera.

Once the orbit has been established in America by electronic computers on information supplied by Moon Watch teams, the Schmidt camera will swing into position.

Observation—by the teams and the camera—will only be possible at dawn and dusk, when the satellite can be viewed through darkness while the sun's rays are still on the small sphere.

Although the satellite will be equipped with a tiny radio transmitter, Minitrack, with a life-span of two weeks, scientists are dubious of Minitrack's chances of surviving the launching blast.

This is where Operation Moon Watch comes into the picture in South Africa.

To permit precision cameras to record the transit of the man-made moon, a definite orbit must be supplied to astronomers manning the cameras.

Observations necessary to calculate this orbit will be supplied by teams at Cape Town, Bloemfontein, Pretoria and Johannesburg—and by Minitrack, if it survives the takeoff.

Blame Dead Man
 FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—A coroner's jury held last night that the driver of a migrant farm workers' truck was to blame for last Thursday's collision, which claimed the lives of 20 of the workers.

The driver blamed for the accident, which occurred at a "Y" intersection of U. S. 301 and N. C. 102 eight miles north of here, was Tom Junior Mackey, 19, of Pahokey, Fla.

Mackey was one of those killed. The jury, empaneled by Cumberland County Coroner Alph Clark, deliberated 23 minutes.

The jury said Mackey was negligent in pulling his truck in which 41 workers were riding, into the path of a heavy truck loaded with potatoes.

The other truck was driven by Gilbert Robert Peters, 25, of Wapwallopen, Pa. He was only slightly hurt.

Peters appeared at the inquest but didn't testify.

CHAPTER 11

I hadn't touched Mathers. He was a dreamer, and a stupid one at that, with no notion whatever of what life in Easter Valley would be for a bunch of greenhorn farmers.

I rode back to Alton's Trading Post, thinking hard. Mathers had been warned. If he came again in the spring, the death of his people would be on his head. I knew what I had to do. I'd stop him. No matter what Sarah said, I'd stop him.

I tied my horse at the rail in front of the trading post and stood there a moment, thinking about what Alec Dodson had said that morning: "I won't fight for the Box F and you won't fight for Anchor."

But we couldn't wait to see who had to fight. Once those fifty families were in the valley, they'd stay; but if we could stop them in the canyon...

I went into Alton's place and closed the door behind me. In the summertime he could stand it because the door was always open, but now, in the cold weather, the smell was so bad I wouldn't have come in if I could have helped it.

Alton was about sixty, a stringy man with all his front teeth gone and long hair that he continually brushed back from his forehead. He never took a bath, seldom shaved, and as far as I knew he was wearing the same suit of buckskin he'd worn when I'd come to the country seven years ago.

Alton was not entirely to blame for the smell. The big room was filthy. He bought furs and hides, and often stored them at one end of the room. He kept supplies there, and sometimes his meat spoiled long before he got around to throwing it out.

He lived alone except for a Mexican kid who did the chores and slept in the barn. He had no family, but he was the greediest man I had ever met. He was a coward, and crafty, and his word meant nothing, but I thought I could get him to do what I wanted if I handled him right.

When Alton saw me, he got up from where he had been sitting by a window patching a pair of pants.

"Coley," I said, "you know the two greenhorns who just drove downriver?"

"Why, I wouldn't say I know them, Mr. Beeson," he said cautiously. "They stopped on their way into the valley, and stopped again just now."

"They tell you they'd be back in the spring?"

A crafty expression worked into his faded eyes. He wasn't sure what I was getting at, but the possibility of making a dollar was never absent from his mind.

"Well, now, Mr. Beeson, I don't just recollect."

"All right, Coley," I said. "This is worth $100 to me if you do what I want you to."

He didn't say anything until he cut off a chew of tobacco from a worn plug and stuffed it into his mouth. He worked on it, eyeing me; then he said: "It'd like to help out, Mr. Beeson. I truly would. But if it ain't legal..."

I was angry then. The formality of being legal had never bothered him. "I figure a shoot a few settlers," I said, "but if you don't have the stomach for it you're not my man."

I had started to turn, when he said hastily: "Now don't get your tail up, Mr. Beeson. It's just that I have to be careful."

I laid five gold eagles on the bar. "Coley, if you agree to my proposition, you get this now and the rest in the spring." I waited while he studied the money. Then I took my knife out of my pocket. "I've cut a lot of calves with this knife, Coley. If you double-cross me, I'll do the same with you."

He jumped back, his gaze on the knife, then on me, and finally on the money. He whispered: "Mr. Beeson, I wouldn't sell you out. I'm deeply hurt by—"

"Then it's a deal?"

He nodded, and pocketed the money.

"When will Mathers and his bunch be back?"

"The middle of April."

"It's a good day's pull to the valley from here," I said, "so they'll camp on the river. As soon as you see them roll in, you saddle up and get word to me. Not Mrs. Pardee or Dillingham. Me! Savvy?"

"I can't ride that far," he said unhappily.

"Send Pablo then."

He nodded, relieved. "I'll do that."

I figured the blade of my knife. "If you tell Mathers or any of his outfit that you sent word to me..."

"I won't tell them," he said. "I truly promise that I won't."

I closed my knife slowly and slipped it into my pocket, looking at Alton all the while. I turned and walked out into the cold, sweet air and mounted and rode up the creek.

It was long after dark when I got home. Curly King heard me and came out of the bunkhouse, carrying a lantern. A few snowflakes whirled between us as he approached.

"Say, you made a day of it, Will," he said. "Mrs. Pardee is some worried."

"I'll go see her."

"I'll put your horse up. You best get into the house. She's sure fretful."

"Curly," I said, "suppose a lot of settlers hit the valley next spring. Not just a half dozen like we've had, but say fifty or more. What will your dad and your neighbors do?"

In the thin light that came through the smoke-blackened chimney of the lantern, I saw the worry that tightened his boyish face. Finally he said: "I'll help you fight, Will. You can count on me."

I grabbed his arm. "What about your dad and the others?"

He shook his head. "They won't fight. They know they won't have no trouble in their end of the valley. The trouble will be here where there's enough water for irrigation. You know how it is where Dad lives. Not even enough stock water sometimes."

I let him go, then, and turned toward the house. I told myself I'd know all the time I couldn't count on much help.

When I went into the house, Sarah looked up from her sewing, relief a sudden light in her face. "Will, what have you been doing? I've been worried."

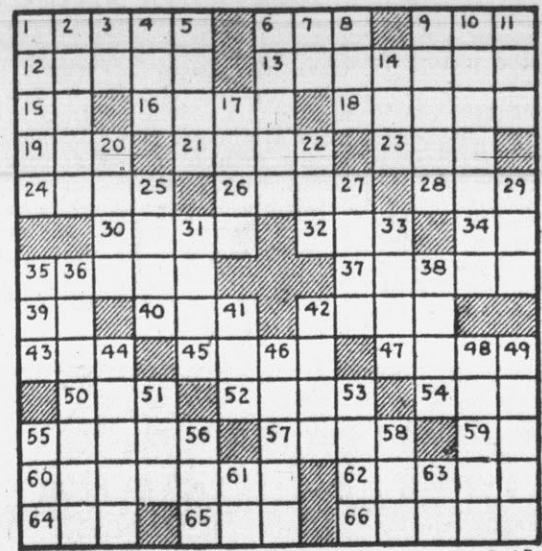

"What could happen to me?" I asked. "Worrying is a bad habit."

"I know," she said. "I'm selfish, I guess. I just don't want to think of what would happen to me if you —" She stopped, biting her lips; then she called, "Maria,

Wall Street Sensitive To President's Health

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Lives there a man who has never had an upset stomach?

But when one particular man eats the wrong delicacy for dinner a flash flood of selling hits the stock market. And businessmen here and abroad ponder what President Eisenhower's indisposition, if it had proved serious, could do to business prospects.

Fortunately the hysteria was quickly over and calmer judgments took over the rule of the stocks and other markets. What caused the flash flood? The answer appears to lie in that fragile thing—confidence. And in the dread of any period of uncertainty. And in the underlying and still current puzzlement as to which way business is really going. At the moment it is in delicate balance which confidence is maintaining and uncertainty could tilt.

The way a piece of blueberry pie shook up the stock market brings up the basic question of how strongly are business trends tied to any uncertainty in Washington—even when that momentary uncertainty involved the most powerful man in the world. Many businessmen hold that the health of industry and trade in this country is strong enough to survive any joggle to confidence caused by the indisposition of a popular president.

But the weight of the presidency is great in these troublous times. The battle of the budget is nearing the crucial stage in Congress. Hanging fire are many international negotiations—all the way from disarmament to specific tariff questions affecting a handful of firms.

So the stock market reacted first and reflected later. Observers of the stock market scene report that this time most of the selling appeared to be by the professionals—the in-and-out traders trying to cash in paper profits that uncertainty might threaten.

The great mass of stockholders, the people all over the nation who have a few or many shares tucked away in strong boxes, sat tight. Businessmen mostly waited to see and took the long-term view.

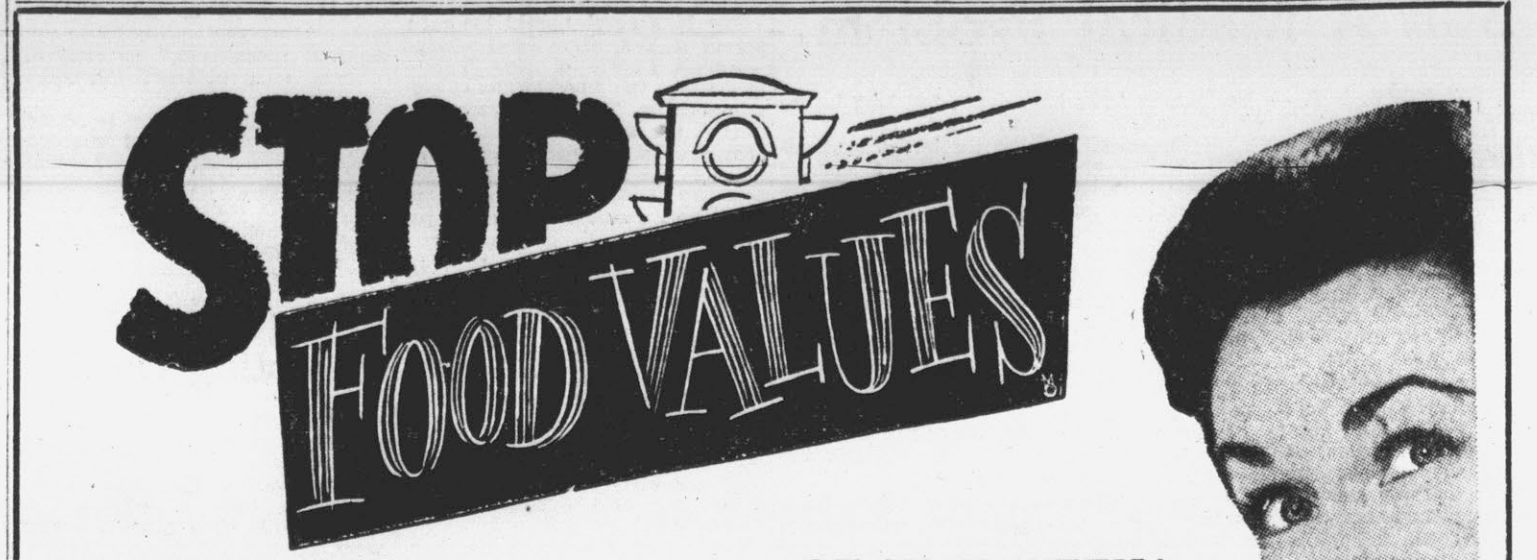

Austrian Males No 'Homemakers'

VIENNA (AP)—Austrian men are not too keen doing dishes or any other household work, according to a nation-wide check.

No less than 62 per cent of the housewives, asked by a public opinion poll whether they are getting any help from their husbands, said: "none whatever."

The remaining 38 per cent admitted that their men lend them a hand in doing the rooms, cleaning boots, carrying coals upstairs and in shopping. However, only 3 per cent of Austria's men got the classification: "good for all household jobs."

A total of 66 per cent of the women questioned, expressed themselves in favor of male assistance, 24 per cent flatly rejected it and 10 per cent said that they did not care whether they get any aid or not.

Charles Vincent Collects A Base Hit

HIS JAYCEES WON... yesterday, the Jaycees dropped the VFW 4-2 in a North State Little League contest at Elm Street Park, (Reflector Sports Photo).

Jaycees, Kiwanis, Pepsi Are Triumphant In LL Contest

In Wednesday's Little League action, Pepsi-Cola defeated the Exchange Club 8-4 and the Jaycees topped the VFW by a 4-2 score.

P. Bloxam was the VFW hurler who received the loss. He was tapped for hits in every inning except the third.

between the Lions and the Kiwanis, Conway pitched his Kiwanis to a 4-2 victory. He was aided by some sharp hitting from his teammates.

Tuesday's only game resulted in a 4-2 victory for the Kiwanis outfit over the defending North State champions, the Lions.

Yesterday, the Pepsi-Cola team scored twice in the second, and six times in the third innings to wallop their Tar Heel foes, the Exchange Club, 8-4. Cannon was the starting pitcher for the winners and went for five innings before being relieved by Little F. Harper. Harper finished the game and wrapped up the victory.

In the Tuesday afternoon bout between the Lions and the Kiwanis, Conway pitched his Kiwanis to a 4-2 victory.

Miller was the losing hurler.

Honeybear Closer To Title After Byars Win

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Virgil (Honeybear) Akins of St. Louis was a step closer to a shot at the welterweight title today following a close but unanimous decision over Walter Byars of Boston.

Byars was disappointed and thought he'd won. He said Akins didn't hurt him, not even when the winner opened a cut over his eye in the fifth round.

Reynolds started on the mound for the Exchangers but came out in the third. Summerlin went in to finish. It was Reynolds' loss.

Scoring for the Pepsi club were Allen, Harper, Gidley (twice), Cannon (twice), Frewett and West. Van Dyke, Reynolds, Morris and Johnson tallied the runs for the losers.

The Jaycees smacked out eight hits to down the VFW club in yesterday's North State tilt. Lined up behind the five-hit pitching of Roger Hardee, they won out 4-2.

Hardee scattered the VFW hitting over a period of three innings and never allowed enough hits to accumulate to offer a dangerous threat to his club's victory.

After that, the Jaycees began to hit. Three hits and an error scored two more runs for the Jaycees and brought in the victory.

Sox Pace American Loop By Five Games

By ED WILKS The Associated Press The St. Louis Cardinals, rocketing along while the rest of the hotshots fizzled, finally have themselves a spot in the National League's first division—a fourth-place berth that's only a game removed from the lead.

In a week's time, the Cards have won eight in a row, making up 5 1/2 games on the leaders in a rush that's been carried by three pitchers and a couple of old pros named Stan Musial and Del Ennis.

Last night they defeated Philadelphia 4-0 to gain a share of fourth with the falling Phils. First-place Cincinnati was slugged a third time in succession by seventh-place Pittsburgh, this time in a 4-3, 10-inning decision.

The New York Giants, with all their runs unearned, defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in the other NL game.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox regained a five-game lead, defeating the second-place New York Yankees 7-6 despite a four-RBI, two-home-run show by Mickey Mantle. Cleveland retained third, beating Boston 6-1.

Fourth-place Detroit stopped Baltimore 4-2. Kansas City and Washington split a two-night pair, the A's winning 5-3, then losing 3-2. Musial and Ennis have batted in 18 of the Cards' 37 runs. Last night Musial singled and doubled, scoring a run, while breaking the league record for consecutive game played set at 822 by Pittsburgh's Gus Suhr from 1931 to 1937.

Ennis, batting .353 in the Card surge, walloped his fourth home run in the streak, a three-run job that bagged it for good against Robin Roberts.

Larry Jackson, a relief pitcher gone square, won his eighth of the season with a nine-hitter. The right-hander has won two in the eight-game string, as have veteran Murry Dickson and bonus kid Lindy McDaniel.

The Dodgers had a 9-1 lead after two innings as winless Gene Conley took his fourth defeat. Charlie Neal drove in the final run in the ninth. The right-hander has won two in the eight-game string, as have veteran Murry Dickson and bonus kid Lindy McDaniel.

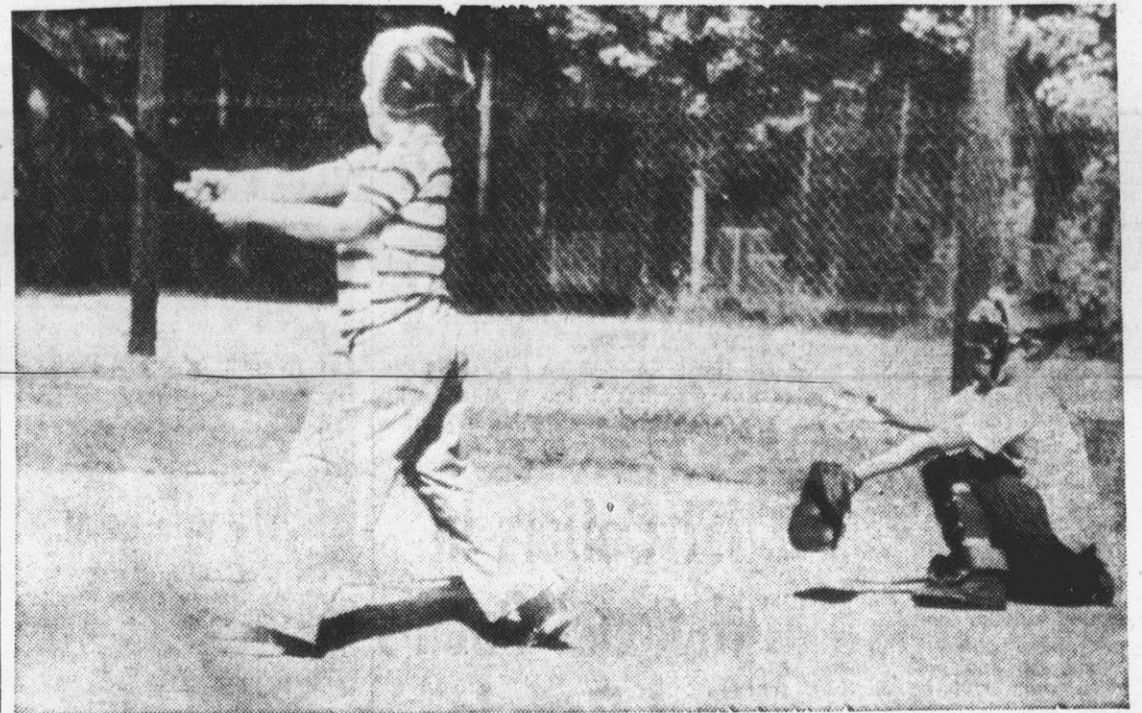

The Redlegs blew a 3-1 lead. A single by Gene Freese beat reliever Ted Acker. Roy Face won it in relief. Ted Kluszewski, just off the disabled list, hit into a forceout in a pinch-hit try—his first appearance with the Redlegs since April 25.

Mantle, who now has 18 home runs after hitting seven in eight games and four in his last three, was 4-for-5, throwing a late scare into the Sox with a two-run, 425-foot homer in the ninth.

Walt Dropo batted in three for Chicago, with a two-run homer that tied it in the second and a single that brought across the first of two fourth-inning markers that gave the Sox the lead for keeps. Yanks Hank Bauer and Bill Skowron and Jim Rivera of Chicago also homered.

Jack Harshman failed to finish, but won his second in 10 decisions with the Yankees, Johnny Kucks lost it. Cleveland scored five runs in the second, four of them unearned as loser Bob Porterfield uncoiled an error and also balked. Al Smith singled home a pair in the big frame, which brought Don Mossi a fourth victory.

Small Fry Loop Being Prepared

A Small-Fry League of baseball, for boys between the ages of eight and 12, is in the planning stages, it was announced by Recreation Department Supervisor Gordon Goodman today.

Goodman stated that the league would be separate from any now in practice at Elm Street Park and would be held at Guy Smith Stadium, "for the benefit of the youngsters in the West Greenville-Village Grove-Hillsdale area, who cannot travel to Little League park every day."

All boys interested in joining the Small-Fry League should report to Guy Smith Stadium at 9:00 Monday morning.

Tom Guerrieri, a North Carolina State athlete who is doing recreation work here this summer, will be in charge. Boys are asked to bring their own gloves, if possible. The Recreation Department will furnish the bats and balls needed.

A large turnout is expected to attend the Monday morning workout. Goodman told reporters that "there are many kids in the South-West Greenville area whose parents will not allow them to go all the way across town in the afternoons to Elm Street Park. We don't feel that they should be deprived of the chance to play baseball because of this."

Greensboro Pats Kicking Up Dust

CAROLINA LEAGUE By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The rampaging Greensboro Patriots are kicking up the dust in the Carolina League, threatening to overtake the second place Winston-Salem Red Birds.

Greensboro posted its fifth win in a row by defeating Winston-Salem 9-7 last night at Winston-Salem. The Patriots sent 11 men to the plate in the fourth and scored seven runs. Leroy Bradley and Hal Buckwalter, each with three hits, led Greensboro's 15-hit attack.

The win enabled Greensboro to move within two games of Winston-Salem. The league leading Durham Bulls were handed an 18-2 drubbing by High Point-Thomasville at Thomasville before a turnout of 1,413 fans. Jack Taylor scattered seven Durham hits while his mates were collecting 17.

The Danville Leafs cracked out 13 hits in defeating Wilson 7-1 at Danville behind the six-hit pitching of lefty Larry Devita, who struck out nine and did not walk a batter. Devita retired the first 14 batters in order before giving up his first hit.

Tonight's schedule: Durham at Hi-Toms, Wilson at Danville and Greensboro at Winston-Salem.

Ben Withdraws

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Ben Hogan withdrew from the 57th National Open golf championship today after being stricken with severe back and chest pains.

After receiving a 54-minute delay in his starting time to permit diathermy treatment, the four-time champion from Fort Worth, Tex., returned to the Inverness course, dressed and took some practice shots.

Baseball Champ Again

OMAHA (AP)—California, winner of the first NCAA college baseball world series in 1947, is once again the champion.

The Bears marched into the throne room last night when they blanked Penn State, 1 to 0, for their fifth straight win of the 1957 series and their third shutout of their five games.

As cheering as the win was for the West it was just as bitter for the East. This because Penn State won 22 of 24 games this season with the fates ruling the losses should be two shutouts—9-0 and 1-0—at the hands of California in the double elimination series.

They got the run that won in the fifth inning when Emery's control slipped and he walked Bernie Kelly. Kelly proceeded to steal second and third but he could have left out the larceny because he scored on pitcher George Sterling's triple.

State Bankers Get Fourth Victory, Top CV Team

State Bank wrapped up its fourth victory of the Teen-er League season Tuesday night, walloping the College View Cleaners, 16-4, in one of the most lopsided games to date.

Randy Bass went the complete game's outstanding hitter. He contributed three hits in all, and scored three times.

The Bankers' record now stands at 4-1. College View has lost all five of its games.

Griffith was the losing pitcher. He was slugged for 10 big hits, including a homerun by first baseman Jeff Fountain. It was a big night for Fountain who was the

Ercell Webb Sets New Greenville Golf Record

By JACK EDWARDS

Ercell Webb, 46-year-old dairy manager, fired a five under par 66 yesterday to set a new Greenville Country Club scoring record. The previous record, 68, was shared by six golfers: W. L. Allen Sr., Reynolds May, Simon Moye, Harold Thomas, Ben Harrison and Webb. Greenville's second nine holes was opened 15 months ago. The scoring record for tournament play, 69, is held by Reynolds May.

Belmont Stakes Featuring Duel Between 2 Horses

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—A field of seven colts, smallest since the great Native Dancer beat five rivals in 1953, appeared to be about the size of it for the 89th running of the $100,000-added Belmont Stakes Saturday.

Narrowing it down further, it looks like a two-horse duel between the Wheatley Stable's Bold Ruler and Ralph Lowe's Gallant Man, plus a battle of skill matching a veteran Belmont combination against a trainer and jockey taking their first stab at the famed classic.

Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, 82, and jockey Eddie Arcaro each will be shooting for their seventh Belmont with Bold Ruler. Johnny Nerud, who trains Gallant Man, and his rider Willie Shoemaker have never had a colt in the mile and one-half race.

This final number in the Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple crown is to be televised and broadcast nationally from 3:30-4 p. m., EST.

It probably will determine the 3-year-old championship, as it has done in 10 of the last 11 years.

Nerud said he planned to enter Bold Nero, another colt owned by Lowe, so actually there will be only six betting interests. Bold Nero and Gallant Man both were bred overseas by the Aga Khan.

Others expected to be entered officially tomorrow morning are the Greentree Stable's Cohoes, the Cain Hoy Stable's Lucky Dip, a French-bred colt, the D. & M. Stable's Inside Tract, and Mrs. Jules Schwartz's Nah Hiss.

With several facing the starter, the Belmont will have a gross

162 Golfers In National Open's First Rounds

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Amid some murmuring among the athletes about closely cropped greens and uncropped rough, a field of 162 started today in quest of the 57th National Open Golf Championship at historic Inverness Club.

Eight champions were on hand. The others ranged in age from 17-year-old amateur Jackie Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, to 62-year-old wee Bobby Cruickshank of Pittsburgh, who tied for the title 34 years ago but lost the playoff to Bobby Jones.

The Inverness course measures 6,919 yards of treacherous terrain windswept as a rule, and studded with 117 traps and hundreds of trees. A small stream meanders across seven fairways.

"Old Man Par" is 70. But the experts are picking him to whip the field.

Everyone seems to think the new champ, at the end of the 72-hole medal play test which winds up with Saturday's 36-hole marathon, will come from a talented bracket including four-time champion Ben Hogan, four-time runner-up Sam Snead, Masters champion Doug Ford, PGA champion Jack Burke whose dad tied for second here 37 years ago, and Peter Thomson of Australia, three time winner of the British Open.

The big hazard is the small and slick putting surfaces. In yesterday's last free fling around the course, most of the field failed to find the answers.

Medalist champion is Bob Masten, who qualified for the championship tournament with the club's lowest score, 76.

In breaking the record Webb bogied two holes, number three and five, and birdied one, six, eight, 10, 11, 15, and 18. He was in trouble on number nine. His drive came within a few inches of going out of bounds. His second shot was a chip into the clear which was made with one foot on a ditchbank and his third shot was a spectacular nine iron from 110 yards out, leaving him a three-foot putt.

Fifteen of the 18 greens were under repair, which adds to the brilliance of Webb's play. The greens have been top soiled and fertilized. Most of Webb's putts were six to eight feet. On 15 he sunk a 25 footer for a birdie two.

"It was just one of those days when everything worked right," he said. "I didn't have a putt break bad on me all day. On five I missed a short putt but it was not the green. It was a thrill; I was playing better than I know how."

Police Coverup Is Just Courtesy

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP)—A truck driver's plea for help ended in a police coverup. A policeman was called to the truck and the driver displayed his dilemma. He had ripped the seat from his pants climbing into the cab. With $5 from the trucker, the policeman went to a store and bought a new pair of pants. They were badly needed. The trucker wasn't wearing shorts.

CUDAHY, Wis. (AP)—If Elmer J. Henry has mother-in-law trouble, he sure asked for it. He spotted his mother-in-law, Mrs. Clement Seiy, among the hundreds of persons inspecting Cudahy's new jail. When she walked into a cell in the women's ward to look it over, Elmer swung the door shut behind her and the door locked automatically.

Mrs. Seiy, seething with indignation, huddled in the back of the cell and covered her face with a newspaper as curious visitors filed past. Fifteen minutes later, Elmer finally located Police Chief Tony Wise who released Mrs. Seiy with apologies.

Elmer's in real trouble. Mark Twain is the most popular of all American authors, according to a national survey by Columbia University.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

THE DICTIONARY defines a patio as "a house or building area open to the sky."

Presumably, then, if you put a roof on it, the patio becomes something else. . . just what, we don't know. But whatever it becomes, the transformation occurs thousands of times over every year as more and more Americans move along with the trend toward increased outdoor living.

A patio roof is something you can build yourself. In some areas you may have to obtain a building permit to make even this small addition to your house, but this would have to be done even if a professional were hired.

Many Types There are several different types of framework that can be constructed to support the roof, with even more variations in the kinds of materials that can be used as the covering. The framework we are going to discuss now will support any kind of roof material. In addition, it will do for a carport or a storage area or even as the first step in the eventual construction of an enclosed porch.

So that we can be a little specific about dimensions, let's assume that the patio you wish to cover is 12 feet long by 8 feet wide, a fairly average size, and that the floor is made of concrete or some other form of masonry.

Three posts will be necessary to support the front end of the roof that is, the part of the roof that will be farthest from the house. These posts should be 4x4s and should be placed in the ground just outside the paved part of the patio. The posts should be sunk in concrete, being sure that, at the very least, the part that is in the ground is soaked with a wood preservative. You will be even wiser to coat every bit of wood that goes into the frame with a preservative, using the colorless type if you desire to maintain the natural appearance of the wood. 7-Foot Clearance The front end of the roof should be at least 7 feet from the patio floor. In buying the 4x4s, remember to allow for the distance the posts will go into the ground plus the thickness of the floor. The posts must be set into the ground at least 2 feet, and more in areas where there is much frost. Your lumber yard or building supply dealer can advise you about this. Let's say the thickness of the masonry floor is 4 inches and you are going to set the posts into the ground to a depth of 2 1/2 feet. That's a total of 2 feet, 10 inches which, added to 7 feet, makes a total of 9 feet, 10 inches. The 4x4s, therefore, must be at least that long. If you buy 10-footers, set them into the ground to a depth of 2 feet, 8 inches instead of the originally-planned 2 feet, 6 inches. You then will not have to cut the posts, and you'll still have a roof with a front end 7 feet from the paved floor.

Allow for Slope A long 2x4, in this case, 12 feet long, must be attached horizontally to the house to support the back end of the roof. Since allowance must be made for a slope that will permit drainage, this attachment is made at a point on the house at least 8 feet from the ground. A 2x6 is run across the three vertical posts which are set into the ground—and more 2x6s are placed at right angles to it and the house, forming the rafter section of the framework. In measuring how long these rafters should be, a couple of inches should be allowed for an overhang. Some cross braces—small pieces of 2x4s—are used between the rafters for added strength.

This is the simplest kind of framework construction, yet it will be fully satisfactory no matter what kind of roof material is put on over it. . . no precaution must be observed. First, make a sketch of what the completed framework will look like, ignoring its artistic merit as long as you can understand it. This will enable you to see ahead of time whether and where any notches have to be cut in the lumber for secure joints. And secondly, use the strongest fasteners that will do the job. . . not the kind that are easiest to use.

An Old Problem Of Antagonism

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The city traffic department has started an educational program via radio and television in an effort to cut down on traffic deaths. The principal cause, officials say, is "the antagonism between drivers and pedestrians." Pedestrians are the victims in a large percentage of the accidents here.

Officials hope the programs will help drivers and pedestrians have mutual respect.

No Law Against A Peeping Pup

JACKSONVILLE Fla. (AP)—The

woman complained to police that a dog kept jumping up in the air and looking in her front room window.

Patrolman J.R. Moddy, who investigated, said if it had been a cat he might have booked him as a peeping tom but he couldn't find any law covering peeping dogs.

Build Replica Of Old Oil Derrick

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—It took a lot of hunting for pieces and parts, but a faithful reproduction of an old wooden oil drilling rig has been erected here.

It stands at one end of Boomtown at the Semicentennial Exposition opening here Friday, while at the other end towers a modern steel rig.

Boomtown is an early-day frame city in the heart of the exposition, and sponsors decided it should be topped off by the symbol of Oklahoma's wealth—petroleum.

All the early-day fields in Oklahoma were scouted for two old pieces. In most fields, timbers from the wooden wells had rotted. Most of the pieces were taken from rigs in the Drumright and Oilton areas but two parts still could not be found and had to be constructed.

Biggest problem was the big wooden bull wheel that goes inside the derrick. A Parkersburg, W. Va., rig building firm dug back in its files and found a pattern. The second hitch was the main sill, a wooden beam 16 to 18 inches and 32 feet long. Timbers that size couldn't be found so two beams were spliced together.

Rains Brought Small Alligator

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—After the rainy weather in Texas this spring, there's no telling what you'll find in your backyard.

But Mrs. R. D. Boykin wasn't prepared for the 2 1/2 foot alligator she spotted when she took her baby outside to soak up some rare sunshine.

Her screams brought her husband and a neighbor, who trussed up the reptile and called police. The alligator was an escapee from a nearby zoo.

Popular Place For Accidents

PISCATAWAY TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP)—Mrs. William Liebeck were rudely awakened recently when a car shot off the road, ripped up their front steps and damaged part of their porch.

The couple was shocked but hardly surprised. It was the 16th time since Sept. 1, 1953 that a car has gone out of control and landed on the Liebeck property.

Stassen Put Under Wraps In His Disarmament Talks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Harold E. Stassen, chief U. S. disarmament negotiator, leaves for London today to resume talks with Russia on initial moves for ending the atomic arms race.

He was reported to be under instruction from Secretary of State Dulles to limit carefully his private talks with Soviet Delegate Valerian Zorin. The instructions are a result of Allied complaints and State Department fear that Stassen was going too far in his direct discussions with the Russian representative.

Other members of the five-power United Nations Disarmament subcommittee are Britain, France and Canada. Stassen has also been conferring with representatives of the other North Atlantic Treaty powers.

Prison Authors Write For Kids

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—Behind the bleak walls of Southern Michigan Prison, a convicted slayer and a forger are writing tales of the outdoors and children's stories.

They're getting about 40 per cent of their stories accepted for publication. Right now the team is working on an illustrated book for children, "Timothy, the Timid Tiger."

The inmate authors are William Morey, 22, serving life for murder, and Robert Dale, serving 5 to 14 years for Forgery. They write under the pen name of Dale Morey. The two said most of their earnings go into art supplies to illustrate the new book.

The object of the conferences has been to reach an understanding on new disarmament proposals which the United States intends to present to Russia for a "first-step" agreement.

In general, the plan proposes to reduce the size of conventional forces, set up at least one aerial inspection zone in the arctic and possibly put a halt to the manufacture of atomic weapons.

If Russia would accept a policed agreement to end the manufacture of fissionable material for weapons and begin diverting all production to peaceful uses of atomic energy, the United States, it is reported, would be prepared to limit the testing of atomic weapons as an initial move toward eventually ending tests. Dulles told a news conference yesterday that the disarmament talks with the Allies had developed "procedural complications" in relations to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

This appeared to be a diplomatic way of saying that some of the European Allies were not happy about a private talk which Stassen had with Zorin May 31 and had complained to the State Department about it.

At that time Stassen is reported to have given Zorin a general preview of new U. S. decisions on disarmament policy even though he still had not reached full agreement with the Allies on how and in what order these should be presented to Russia.

The Season To Trim Evergreens

KENT, Ohio — June and early July are good times for shearing decorative evergreens, but the week-end gardener should avoid giving some kinds that crew-cut look.

Fine growing ones often take severe cutbacks, although over-zealous use of pruning shears may invite withering sun scald, B.D. Stamp, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co. warns. With coarse-growing evergreens like pine, spruce and fir, the haircuts should be adroit and conservative, if needed at all. This means trimming only about half to two-thirds current growth.

The lush, lacy-like foliage of yews, arborvitae, falsecypresses, junipers and hemlocks can more easily be shaped to desired form and size. That's because new shoots are formed freely from last year's wood and sometimes from two-year old wood.

Even in the case of the finer, indeterminate growing evergreens, sheared plants should be allowed to expand slightly with some new growth from year to year. All pines, spruces and firs are determinate in growth. Most kinds will respond nicely if they are allowed to develop naturally. Some few exceptions, such as Mugo pine and a few varieties of dwarf spruce, will lend more beauty to the home landscape with annual shearings.

To preserve the pyramidal shape of Christmas tree types, the general trimming rules for coarse growing evergreens should be observed.

Found $440 Buy At A $2 Auction

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — For $2 at an auction sale, a Lincoln woman got a dresser, a box containing a doll and other items — and a stock certificate worth $440.

Lancaster County Judge Herbert Romin ruled, after a trial, that the buyer, Mrs. Robert Martin, was the rightful owner of the certificate, found in the box after Mrs. Martin had brought her purchases home.

The auction was held to dispose of household effects of an estate whose executor contended inclusion of the stock certificate in Mrs. Martin's purchase was an "unconscious mistake."

Junior Teachers Not Overlooked

MEADOW BRIDGE, W. Va. (AP) — "Don't correct his grammar, he might be your father." Members of the Meadow Bridge PTA agreed in a panel discussion that too often junior was slapped down when he corrected his father's grammar.

Better, they agreed, that the parent should accept such criticism from his children gracefully, and try to perfect his own speech.

Billy Graham Might Go Into Television

NEW YORK (AP)—Reports circulate that the Rev. Billy Graham may continue regular television appearances after his two remaining Saturday night programs scheduled from New York's Madison Square Garden over the ABC-TV network.

On the basis of his two televised programs from the Garden, one is struck by the extraordinary facility he and his advisers have displayed in bringing an hour's revival service to the medium of television. Technically, it is a smooth production.

The lighting is theatrical in effect, carefully contrasting black and white. The principal camera coverage for the home audience is from a theater box angle, with carefully timed fades into audience and platform closeups. Long shots of the Garden are interspersed dramatically.

The opening music emphasizes the themes of reverence and power; it has none of the syncopation that marked the revivals of such past evangelists as Billy Sunday. Graham's prayer is notably brief. As a clergyman once told this viewer, "I sometimes think that no one but God listens to a long, rambling prayer—and sometimes I think that even His attention wanders."

Graham's sermon is simply constructed. Saturday he said in effect, "You have sinned... You must repent... You must believe... You can be saved." Compared to the noted evangelists of the past his manner and delivery are restrained. Graham has said that his restraint is purposeful because he does not wish his personality to divert attention from his message.

Since Graham has consciously selected television as a medium to carry his message, he is in the position of having his religious service judged as a program and himself as a personality. In these respects one can objectively judge his TV appearances from Madison Square Garden as marked by great technical proficiency and he personally as conveying great sincerity.

Religious experience is highly subjective, however. There are viewers, including this one, who are made vaguely uneasy at watching others' religious experiences on the massive communication of the television screen.

We should remember, however, that the adaptation of mass communication techniques to a spiritual cause is not something new in 1957. Spiritual revivalists in all ages have made use of the most recent methods available to them.

To The Victor Went The Spoils

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — When Gov. Cecil H. Underwood called for the resignations of all state appointive officials, Roy Lee Harmon took him literally. West Virginia's first Republican governor in 24 years, Underwood asked the resignations to give him a free hand in reorganizing. Harmon, a Democrat, gave up a title he had held 17 years. He resigned as the state's unpaid poet laureate.

BIG ADDITION POWELL RIVER, B.C. (AP)—A new machine to produce 300 tons of newsprint daily has been installed by the Powell River Paper Co. It boosts the mill's capacity by 25 per cent, or 90,000 tons a year.

NAMED — Robert B. Anderson, a former deputy secretary of defense, has been chosen by President Eisenhower to succeed George Humphrey as Secretary of the Treasury.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Glamor Girl Of 1920's, Dies In Night

NEW YORK (AP)—Peggy Hopkins Joyce, glamor girl of the 1920's whose marital ventures and scandalous fame and fortune, died last night of throat cancer. She was about 64.

Miss Joyce entered Memorial Center for Cancer and Allied Diseases June 1 and fell into a coma a few days ago. At her bedside was her sixth husband Andrew C. Meyer, retired banker of New York and Woodbury, Conn.

Born near Norfolk, Va., as Margaret Upson, Miss Joyce was first married at the age of 16, and soon after shone on Broadway as a blonde beauty in the "Ziegfeld Follies" and Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

Wide publicity attended her marriages and subsequent divorces, especially when she broke up with her third husband Stanley Joyce of Chicago, a multimillionaire lumberman. Details of her divorce suit against Joyce disclosed that, during their marriage, he had given her jewelry valued at $1,400,000, a Florida home with a marble swimming pool, and a villa on the French Riviera.

During the course of journalistic ventures—she wrote a novel, and an autobiography, covered the Ruth Snyder-Henry Judd Gray murder trial as a reporter and conducted a newspaper column. Miss Joyce penned: "The modern woman is a domestic pet which can be nourished with checks, which can be tamed with jewels, and of which one can be rid of with alimony."

Dead-End Street Is Being Opened

Elm St., which has dead-ended at S. Overlook Dr. in Elmhurst, is being extended to the U. S. 264 bypass. City Manager Leonard Bloxam said today.

The city's recently-purchased tractor-shovel has been at work on the new street location, the city manager declared. Drain pipe is on hand for a storm sewer which will carry a stream under the road.

The new section of road will eventually be paved, Bloxam said, but the fill must settle for several months.

Dirt will be dumped into the low area as it is available. "We are always looking for places to put excess dirt," the city manager added.

He said the city hopes to have the street opened to Greenville Blvd. within 30 days.

The city has a 100-foot right-of-way through the new area as it does on the remainder of Elm St. to Greene Mill Run.

The new street will tie-in to the bypass directly opposite the entrance to Drexelbrook, a subdivision which has been opened on the south side of the bypass.

A fill is also being made to extend First St. from Cotanche St. to Woodlawn Ave.

The First St. job is being done with funds voted in a bond issue last fall.

The tractor-shovel, also purchased with bond issue funds, is being used on both jobs.

Worriers Are Easily Infected

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP)—A psychiatrist reports that bacteria and other minute organisms find it easier to infect people who worry and fret.

"All organic diseases are influenced by psychological factors," said Dr. Leo Rangell, clinical professor of psychiatry at UCLA, at a recent postgraduate seminar on psychiatric problems in general practice. "Resistance to infection is influenced by the psychic state."

The psychiatrist said emotional irritations may be reflected in irritations of the lining of the colon or skin surface, which in turn invite bacterial invasion.

New Citizenship Law Of Vietnam Causing Rift

SAIGON (AP)—A law giving Vietnamese citizenship to Chinese born in this country threatens a serious rupture in the anti-Communist front in Asia.

President Ngo Dinh Diem, apparently intent on breaking the tight Chinese grip on this newly independent nation's economy, insists there will be no compromise. The Nationalist Chinese regime on Formosa says the law is arbitrary and plays directly into the hands of Red China.

The law, enacted last August without prior warning, says: "An infant born of Chinese parents in Viet Nam is Vietnamese. Children born in Viet Nam of Chinese parentage previous to the promulgation of this ordinance are equal to the Vietnamese nationality, with the exclusion of criminals and those arrested for expulsion."

The law affects anywhere from 100,000 persons, the government estimate, to 500,000 persons, the Nationalist Chinese consulate's estimate. Nobody knows for sure because no census figures are available.

For a century under French occupation Chinese had special privileges in Indochina. They were exempt from military service and seldom had to pay taxes. Many amassed fortunes.

But the "overseas" Chinese, no matter where he lives, usually considers himself Chinese to the end, hanging on to his identity even though he lacks Chinese papers. He does not wish to leave this country for either Formosa or Red China.

By making these people Vietnamese, President Diem hopes to make them share this country's economic burdens, pay taxes for military defense and take part in solution of the country's problems.

Nationalist China considers the backing and resources of the overseas Chinese vital to the continued existence of Formosa. Without the aid of overseas Chinese, Formosa would lose much financial support.

In addition, the regime on Formosa appears to feel that loss of its claim on the Chinese youth of Viet Nam would deny it a great potential source of support in its dream of regaining the Chinese mainland.

The United States already may have been drawn into the quarrel. The Nationalist Chinese are known to have asked the United States to intervene. Washington backs both the Saigon and Formosa governments.

The Seminoles of Florida are the only Indian nation that never has officially made peace with the United States. Now they sell handicrafts to "enemy" tourists.

French Assembly Okays New Premier; Unenthused

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP) — A resigned, reluctant National Assembly early today confirmed Maurice Bourges-Maunoury as France's 22nd post-war premier by a majority of less than 50 votes. The action ended a three-week Cabinet crisis.

Both the preballot debate and the 240-194 vote itself reflected the Assembly's lack of enthusiasm. Seventy-three deputies abstained.

Bourges-Maunoury fell 58 votes short of an absolute majority of the Assembly's 595 members. But only a majority of those voting was needed to install him.

Bourges-Maunoury's program on which he took office virtually duplicates that of his predecessor, Socialist Guy Mollet. The new Cabinet chief, who was Mollet's defense minister, promised the Assembly continued vigorous military action against the Algerian rebels, limited political reforms in the rebellious North African territory, new taxes and fewer imports to rebuild France's almost-gone stock of foreign exchange.

The new premier got the support of all but eight members of his own Radical Socialist party, a middle road group. He also was backed by the Socialists and most of the conservative Independent Republicans.

Opposing him were the Communists, the extreme right-wing Poujadists and the Assembly's lone wolf, former Premier Pierre Mendes-France. The other parties abstained.

Bourges-Maunoury, 42, becomes the country's youngest premier since 1883. The average age of his 14-man Cabinet is less than 50 and includes 37-year-old Felix Gaillard in the key spot of finance minister.

The selection of Gaillard was an important factor in gaining the support of the conservatives, who acknowledged publicly their faith in his economic background and policies. But the real test will come when they find out on what sections of the business community new taxes will fall.

Bourges-Maunoury warned the Assembly that the government will soon be forced to dip into the Bank of France's billion-dollar gold reserves to make ends meet through the summer. He also said nonmilitary expenditures must be cut by about 700 million dollars while new taxes must be levied to raise an additional 420 million dollars to help pay for the war in Algeria.

Bourges-Maunoury's first big test will come when the new tax program is presented. That was the issue on which the conservatives toppled the Mollet government because it wanted to put new taxes on big business.

Two Deer Bagged At Identical Site

NEWBERRY, S. C. (AP) — Deer it seems, can be hit in the same place twice.

A father and son — both natives of this region — proved it by killing deer three years almost to the day apart.

To mark the spot of their accomplishment, they notched their initials in an old holly tree in a swamp area near here. One inscription reads W. F. B., 11-11-53, and the other H. S. B., 11-12-56.

Water Supply Is Little Affected By Rains In May

RALEIGH — The unusually heavy rains that occurred in some areas of North Carolina during the past month caused some local inconveniences but had little effect on the general condition of the state's water resources.

The monthly report, prepared by the State Board of Water Commissioners and based on information supplied by the U.S. Geological Survey, showed relatively normal water conditions throughout the state at the end of May. Rainfall totals exceeding six inches were recorded in some localities, but in most instances the downpours were concentrated in a period of only a few hours. This resulted in rapid runoff with little of the water being retained for beneficial use.

Heaviest rains were recorded in the western Piedmont where the total for the month, registered in Charlotte, amounted to 5.29 inches or 2.31 inches above average. In the Mountain section an average of PUFF IN TIME — Relaxed informality appears to be the keynote of the rehearsals of the Hobbs, N. M., Civic Orchestra as Ralph Hutsell smokes his pipe while playing the violin.

3.65 inches was recorded and in the eastern Piedmont and Coastal Plain the reports ranged from 2.5 to 6 inches, averaging 3.5 for the month.

The Bridgewater, High Rock and Narrows reservoirs in the Piedmont showed slight losses and stood at 88.7 per cent of capacity. This represents a 3 per cent increase over the figure for May 31, 1956. Also in the Piedmont, some damage was reported at Raleigh and Wadesboro as a result of flash floods occurring on May 11 and 12.

In the western Piedmont the heavy rains had little effect on streamflow recordings which remained slightly below normal throughout the month.

Streamflow in the Tennessee River Basin of western North Carolina was deficient throughout the month averaging about 20 per cent below normal. Ground water levels varied at the index wells, located at Blantyre and Murphy. The Baldwin Well at Blantyre continued its seasonal recovery and stood 1.6 feet above the level of May 31, 1956. Elliot Well at Murphy dropped slightly less than half a foot during the month and the water level was recorded at 1.16 feet below the level for last year.

Water Parade Plans Readied

MOREHEAD CITY — The water parade, long a unique attraction for Morehead City's Summer visitors, will find itself presented in especially glorified form as part of Morehead City's Centennial celebration August 4-10. Prizes and awards totalling over $1,000 will be presented to winners in six divisions of competition on the day of the parade, Wednesday, August 7th. Qualified judges will select 2 winners from each of the groupings entered, privately owned boats, party boats, and floats. The first of the winning selections will be based on the beauty of decoration. Special certificates will be awarded to all honorable mentions as well as the winners.

Boats and floats will rendezvous at Fort Macon and will leave the fort in order of the parade. From the fort they will sail to a point just east of the Atlantic Beach Bridge where the parade along Morehead City's waterfront will actually begin.

Chairman of the water parade, Mr. Thurlow Wheaton, announced this week that it is anticipated that over a hundred units of watercraft will take part in this parade. Mr. Wheaton also announced the probable participation of a nationally known water troupe as a special attraction.

Highlighting the event will be a thirty minute fireworks display prior to the beginning of the parade and an hour and a half display at this conclusion. Arrangements for the fireworks display have been made by the firework committee under the direction of Mr. Mac Edwards, of the Morehead City Fire Department.

LOOK, NO TAXES!

"the sweetest sugar ever sold"

Precocious Pair Behind Those Raucous Records

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Two guys responsible for many of the raucous rhythms coming out of the nation's juke boxes are Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller, both 23.

Their rock 'n' rollers have helped propel Elvis Presley and others to a national craze. "Houn' Dog," "Black Denim Trousers and Motorcycle Boots," "Love Me" — these are a few of their hits. And there are more to come.

Leiber and Stoller contributed tunes to Presley's film "Loving You." Now they've got four ditties in the wiggly one's latest film, "Jailhouse Rock."

The Presley songs from the flickers are guaranteed to sell at least a million records and can go from three to five. "Houn' Dog" sold five. "Love Me" totaled 2 1/2 million—and it was never put out as a single record! It was included as the lead song in an album.

Jerry and Mike are local boys transplanted from Baltimore and New York respectively. Jerry, red-haired, nervous and single, writes the words. Mike, who has a high forehead, seems more calm and is married, writes the music and plays piano well enough to land a role in "Jailhouse Rock." How did they meet?

"I was going to Fairfax High (in Los Angeles) and writing some songs," Jerry recalled. "I was working with a drummer who put the notes down for me. He was kind of a slow worker, so he told me about a guy he knew at City College who could write music faster. He gave me the guy's address and I went and knocked on his door."

Their meeting may not have been as momentous as that of Gilbert and Sullivan, but it proved just as happy a blend of talents.

"We worked well together," Mike reported. "We'd sit around, me at the piano knocking out some riffs and Jerry pacing up and down tossing out phrases. We'd improvise the song as we went along."

First they invaded the blues field. Among their blues hits: "Hard Times," "K. C. Loving," "Bazoom," "Houn' Dog."

When the blues field moved into the general market as rhythm and blues or rock 'n' roll, the boys got their big break. It came when Elvis heard a combo sing "Houn' Dog" in Las Vegas.

Bird Photographer's Field Day

1. Loaded down with bird blind, camera, case, and tripod, young Torrey Jackson is on his way to photograph a black-crowned night heron in its native habitat.

2. On location, Torrey sets up his camera inside the framework of his blind, and then studies distance for shooting his picture.

3. Cover is placed over blind to conceal camera and photographer.

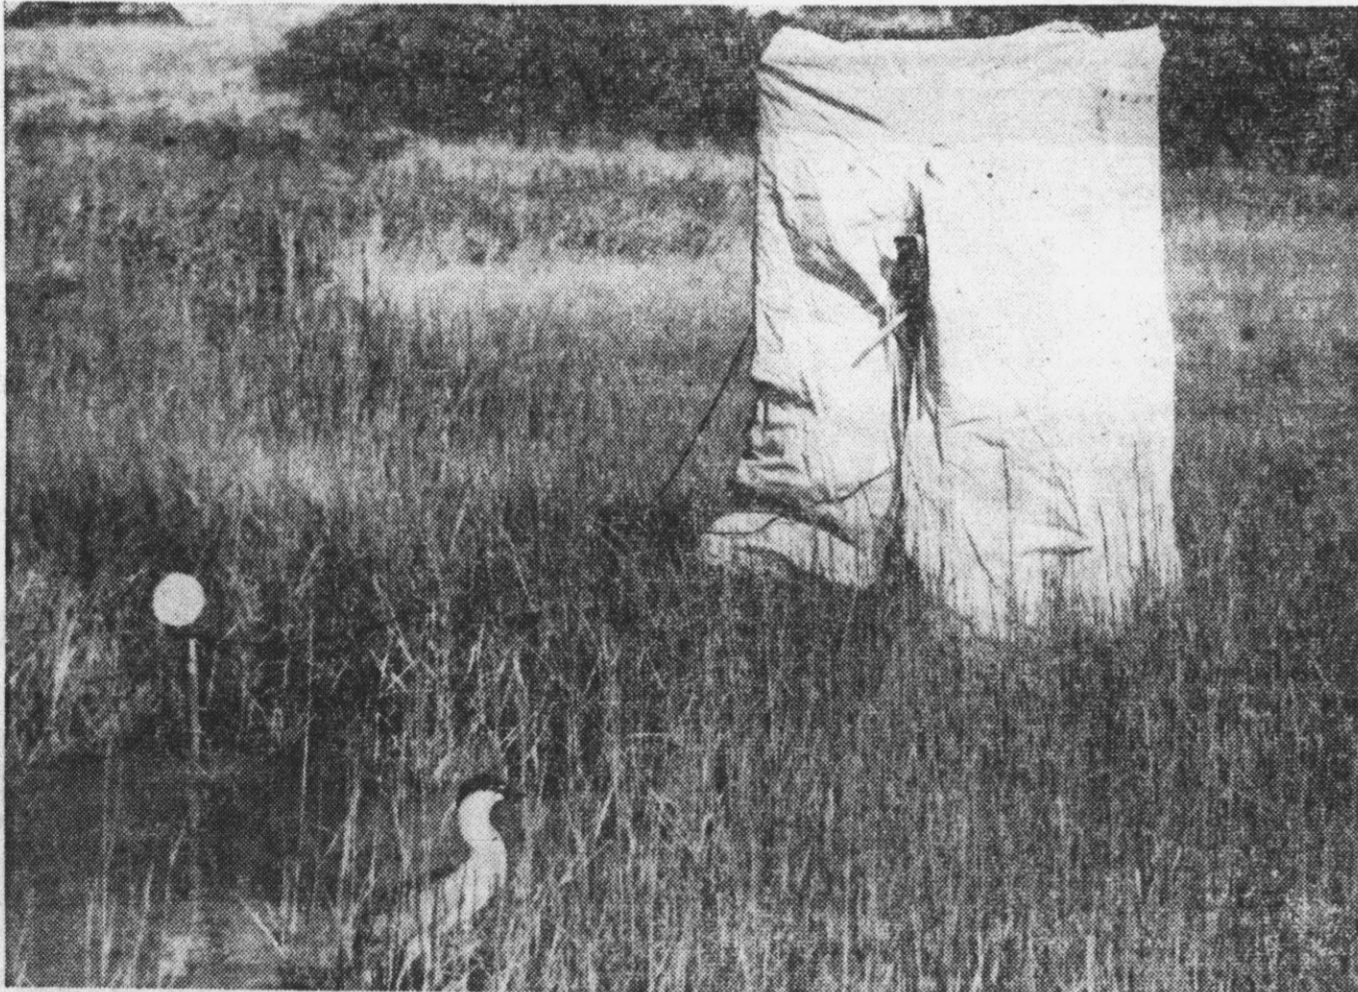

Bird pictures are hard to take, that is, the kind that Torrey Jackson takes. Torrey is only 20, but his bird pictures have already made him famous.

The Marblehead, Mass., youth has been shooting pictures since he was eight. At 15 he started lecturing on wild bird pictures. He has exhibited his work in a dozen salons, and has won many prizes.

Torrey shows here how he does it. Some of his prize pictures are also shown.

Torrey says you need to make a long study of bird habits and the characteristics of different species before you can start "shooting." Also a lot of preliminary scouting and observation. Once you spot the birds in their nests or at the feeding stations, you must employ ingenious devices to get them on your film.

Torrey rigs up blinds or shelters, uses lengthy cables so he can control the camera from remote spots, and other devices to get those wonderful closeup shots of his. He has even had to don masks and chest protectors to keep from being clawed by angered owls.

4. Torrey is now all set to "shoot" the unwary heron. Note remote flash, connected by wire to camera.

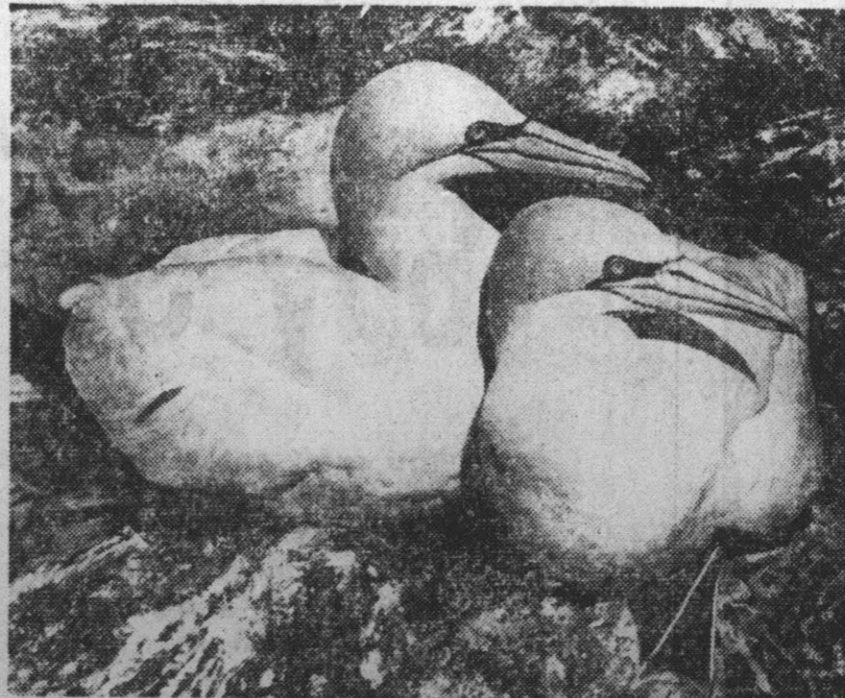

5. This is Torrey's picture of the heron—a fine study of a beautiful bird.

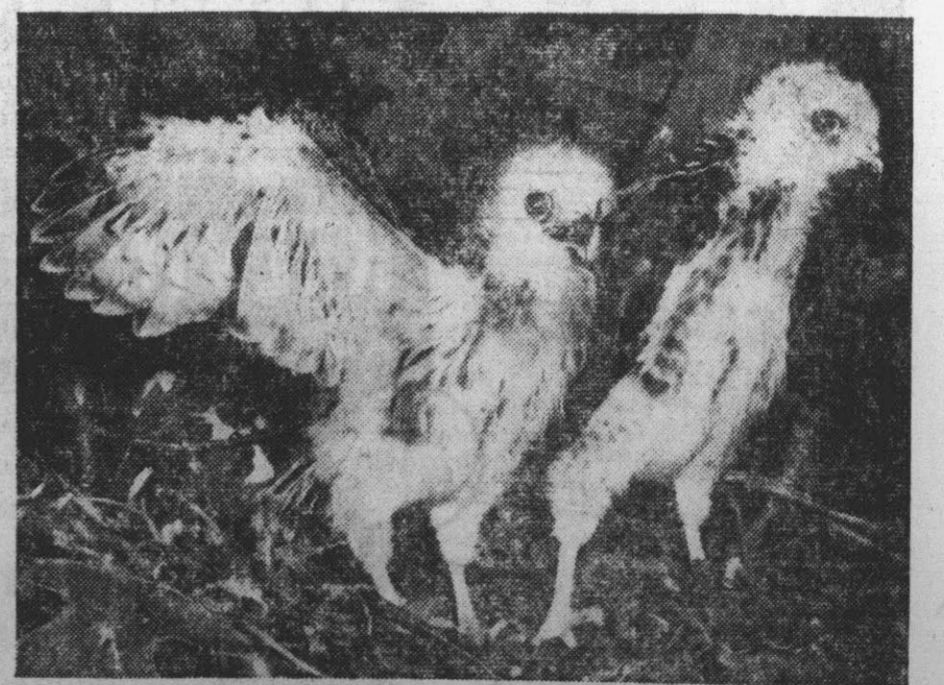

OTHER BIRDS TORREY GOT

Arrest Woman Operating Still

HICKORY, N.C. — A woman federal agents found dressed in men's Army clothing and working near the site of a liquor still was at liberty today under $400 bond on a charge of manufacturing whiskey.

Agents of the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Unit who raided the 40-gallon still in eastern Burke County Tuesday said Mrs. Edna Triplett Hildebran, 35-year-old brunette, told them she was able to carry on by herself after two male helpers got drunk.

Agents said that Mrs. Hildebran is the mother of several children and that her husband is unable to work because of head trouble.

When arraigned yesterday before U.S. Commissioner Clarence Clapp at Newton, Mrs. Hildebran, who is deeply sunburned, said only:

"I think it would be best if I waived the examination." She posted bond for her appearance at the September term of Federal District Court in Statesville.

Agents said that when they arrived Mrs. Hildebran was bringing in fruit jars along a path leading to the still, which occupied a secluded swampy area beside a small branch. Nearby were two 200-gallon fermenter boxes. The agents destroyed three gallons of non-tax paid whiskey, 80 gallons of mash and two cases of fruit jars.

Mrs. Hildebran, who lives about a mile from the still site, made no effort to escape, the agents asserted.

Arrested along with her and charged also with manufacturing were Thomas Norman Lutz, 56, of Rt. 1, Connelly Springs, and Lee Roy Brittain, 41, of Rt. 3, Hickory. Their bonds were set at $500.

Correct Procedure For Folding Flag Is Shown

Tomorrow is Flag Day and two National Guardsmen volunteered to demonstrate proper handling of the United States flag.

In these photos WO Mayor Allen of Service Battery and Capt. Norman Harris of "C" Battery, 250th FA Bn., demonstrate the proper manner of lowering the flag and folding it.

In the first picture the two National Guardsmen have lowered the flag and they are preparing to remove it from the halyard. Photo two shows the pair folding the flag. It has been folded once and will be a second time with the field of stars outward.

Next Capt. Harris begins the triangular folds as WO Allen holds the opposite end.

Completely folded, Capt. Harris hands the flag to WO Allen in the last photo. Only the field of stars is visible when the job is completed.

Walter Jones Will Be Flag Day Speaker

State Representative Walter Jones of Farmville will be guest speaker at National Flag Day exercises at Greenville Elks Lodge No. 1645 Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Exalted Ruler Harry M. Brown, who will preside, has asked Mayor S. Eugene West of Greenville to assist in bringing this occasion to the notice of the people.

"Whereas, the flag is an emblem of our country's liberty which was so hardly won on the field of battle from Bunker Hill to Korea and a symbol of the unity that now exists in our nation, and

"Whereas, Friday, June 14, 1957 has been designated and set apart as Flag Day;

"Now therefore, I do hereby

"1. Call upon the citizens of Greenville to observe this Flag Day with reverence and solemnity,

"2. Ask the merchants and business men to display the flag in front of their places of business from the time of opening until sunset, and

"3. Request the other civic and fraternal organizations to join with the Elks in celebrating this day so closely associated with our glorious past and our present well-being as a nation.

"Done at the City Hall in Greenville, N. C. this 12th day of June, 1957.

"S. EUGENE WEST, Mayor"

Blaze Destroys Furniture Plant

MEBANE, N.C. — Flames roared through the Craftique Inc. furniture plant last night, leveling the big structure.

The fire broke out about 6 p.m. and little was left an hour and a half later. The plant is located a mile and a half west of here.

Firemen did save some mahogany boards stacked around the building. Also undamaged were a machine room, cabinet room, kiln room and the offices, all separate from the main plant.

L. P. Vest, president of the firm, declined to estimate the damage immediately, but said he was sure insurance wouldn't cover all of it.

D. K. Meuse, Alamance County tax collector, who was at the scene, estimated the probably loss at $200,000 to $250,000, including equipment and the building.

Vest said the furniture inventory in the plant was "probably as large as it has ever been."

Hallifax, Va., and Burlington, G. R. A. M., Hillsboro, Roxboro, Rockingham and Mebane, fought the blaze.

Two firemen were overcome by heat and smoke. The smoke and flame could be seen five miles away.

R. F. Payne, a watchman at the plant, said there were two explosions, "like two big barrels exploding," in the finishing room.

He said the flames "spread in a minute."

Limousine, the fancy automobile, is named for Limousin, a French province south of Paris.

Will Dedicate New 4-H Camp Friday

The first 4-H camp for Negroes in North Carolina, near Swansboro, in Onslow county, will be dedicated Friday morning.

J. H. Wheeler, president of the 4-H Club Foundation of North Carolina, Inc., will preside.

Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction, and Dr. W. T. Gibbs, president of A. and T. College, Greensboro, and other North Carolina leaders will speak. D. S. Weaver, Raleigh director of N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, will deliver the dedicatory address.

Bishop H. B. Shaw, presiding bishop of the Sixth Episcopal District, AME Zion Church, will say the dedicatory prayer. Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Pitt County Negro Home Demonstration agent, said "more than $100,000 was raised through the 4-H Foundation of North Carolina and approximately 50 per cent of the total contributed by 4-H members with their nickels, dimes and pennies.

The Negro 4-H Camp contains about 31 acres of wooded and cleared land on Queen's Creek, on the Hammock's Beach property, within sight of the ocean.

Over 1,300 boys and girls attended the camp in 1956 and 2,000 are expected to participate in the program this year from 52 North Carolina Counties.

A large delegation of Pitt counties will leave the agricultural building in Greenville Friday morning at 8 o'clock for the camp.

"Approximately $4,000 was contributed to the 4-H Camp fund by 4-H members, Home Demonstration people, community leaders and business and professional men and women and extension agents in Pitt County," Mrs. Capehart stated.

Tear Gas Routes Berserk Father

DUNN, N.C. — Officers had to use tear gas last night to rout a 42-year-old man from his barricaded home after he wounded his wife, attempted to kill his son and slashed his own wrists, Sheriff Claude Moore reported.

Otis Jackson was given treatment at a hospital and placed in jail without privilege of bond. Sheriff Moore said. His 35-year-old wife, shot three times, was in critical condition at Betsy Johnson Memorial Hospital here. The shooting occurred at the Jackson home about a mile from Dunn off the Erwin Highway.

The 16-year-old son, Waycose, was quoted as saying his unemployed father had repeatedly threatened the life of his mother. The shooting followed an argument, he said.

Sheriff Moore said that after Jackson fired three bullets into his wife, he barricaded the house and refused to surrender. For more than an hour, he held off the half dozen officers at pistol point, warning them not to enter the house. On orders of Sheriff Moore, a rural policeman fired four loads of gas through four separate windows. Moore said he heard Jackson's body fall to the floor after the fourth tear gas blast. The officer rushed in and dragged the bleeding man into the backyard. The sheriff said Jackson's knife lay on the floor.

Officers and a funeral home attendant had to strap the enraged man on a stretcher to take him to the hospital, Sheriff Moore said. He added that Jackson, presently unemployed, was under a two-year suspended sentence for liquor violations.

The sheriff said Jackson shot his wife as she ran through the house, then fired two more bullets into her body as she lay on the porch. Neighbors summoned an ambulance.

Divorcee Plans Help Ex-Spouse

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman who divorced her architect husband on grounds of extreme cruelty is going to give him $1,200 a month for the next 10 years to help him in his career.

"He has a great talent and should have the opportunity to develop it," said Mrs. Julianna Kemper Beckett yesterday in court. She said the support payments for William Sutherland Beckett would come from a trust fund established for her by her family.

Mrs. Beckett was awarded the contested divorce after testifying that Beckett had "an unmanageable temper" and struck her on several occasions. They were married in 1948 and have three children.

Spent $5,000, Burned The Rest

LOS ANGELES — A woman bookkeeper who had a taste for "nice things" told detectives who arrested her on suspicion of embezzling $20,000 that she spent about $5,000 of it on clothes and a car — and burned the rest.

Miss Paige Marjorie Wright, 31, an employe of a transfer company, was quoted by officers as saying she burned the money, fearing additional spending might make her friends suspicious.

Store Robbed During Night

Bartlett's Grocery Store on Sheppard St. was broken into last night.

Owner M. L. Bartlett told investigating officers from the Greenville Police Department that between $20 and $25 was taken from a cash register. Nothing else was missing, Bartlett reported this morning.

The robber or robbers gained entrance to the building by breaking through a panel to the back door and lifting guard bar.

U.S. National Guard units took part in eleven campaigns and 34 assault landings in World War 2.
