By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today told the Post Office Department today to curtail some of its mail services and live within its reduced funds to avoid repetition of "the fiscal debacle of the spring of 1957."

It should have been ordered before now. It said it could see "no substantial reason why second-class publications and third-class bulk mailings should not be required to be zoned in the face of a stated savings to the government of five million dollars."

and cordial" conference with A. H. Graham who will step down June 30 as chairman of the State Highway Commission. Hodges said Graham recommended the three projects.

The allocation for U.S. 70-74, Hodges said, is subject to further study. He added that the highway now is very badly congested and the work probably will include four-laning the section.

The bridge across the French Broad, Hodges said, will serve a public school which is located on an island in the river.

In announcing the allocations, Hodges also told newsmen he hopes to be ready tomorrow to announce the appointment of a new seven member Highway Commission created by the Legislature to replace the present 15-member body. Hodges said that "in a major policy decision" he had decided not to reappoint any of the present members.

He said this was "no reflection" on Graham or the present commission members, but resulted from his determination to make the Highway Commission a state-wide policy-making body whose members would not concern themselves about road projects for their own areas or counties.

"It seems," he said, "to be more prevalent among the middle age group. The nation's mental health problem may include people in your community—children, adolescents and adults. Chances are that some day it will include any one of us. Experts agree that some drugs are good but not enough. It can be helped through educational channels, mental hospitals, child guidance, good counseling, and the daily family altar."

Corn-On-Cob Summer Dish

RALEIGH — Corn-on-the-cob is brightening lots of meals in southern homes this month. Supplies of sweet corn, according to reports from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, should be good, making it possible for the homemaker to include corn often in her meals.

Florida's early spring sweet corn was expected to reach 2,125,000 hundredweight. This is a little below last year's high yield of 2,730,000 hundredweight, but well above the seven year average of 1,600,000.

Before buying sweet corn, specialists say it's a good idea to examine the husks. They should be fresh and green. If not, the sugar in the corn may have already turned to starch, making the corn tough and less palatable.

To be sure of good eating, look at the kernels, too. They should be well-filled, plump and milky. Corn that's too ripe or that has been pulled too long has little or no milk in the kernels.

Corn will come out sweet and tender if it is simmered, not boiled. Spear the corn on the tines of a fork for tenderness, after it has simmered for about seven minutes. It may be ready then, but most corn usually needs to be simmered about 15 minutes and some as long as 15 minutes.

Girls' State Delegates Take Over State Capital

GREENSBORO (AP) — Some 300 Tar Heel girls left here today to take over the Capitol in Raleigh for a day.

The election last night climaxed two days of strenuous campaigning, complete with speeches, flag-waving, platforms and the other rigamarol—except, so far as could be determined, the smoke-filled rooms were missing.

Secretary of State (the real one) Thad Eure instructed the girls today for their scheduled legislative session. Also on the itinerary were visits to North Carolina State College, Duke University and the University of North Carolina.

Sports Lingo Aid To Bride

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
 Time was when a girl had to faint to prove she was a marriageable type. These days she's got to prove she knows her nines and eights as well as her garden peas and kitchen cues.

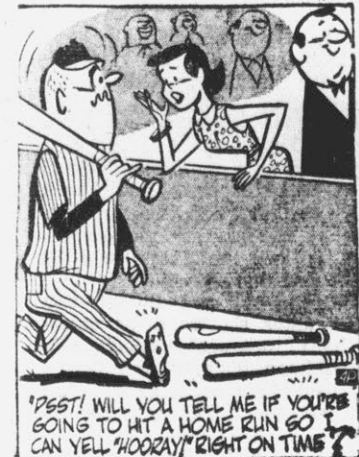

What are nines and eights? Baseball and football teams, of course, and any well-intentioned wife-to-be of an invertebrate baseball or football fan had just better get interested in box scores and score boards.

The summer bride, especially, better learn where Mickey Mantle and Ted Williams earn their pay, unless she wants to twiddle her thumbs while the groom goes off to the ball game or gets his baseball entertainment on TV, even before the honeymoon events have willed.

It's easier to learn baseball than knitting. By trying to learn, you'll be on your way to that all important ingredient to a happy marriage formula: companionship.

The first thing to study is the lingo. Baseball has a vocabulary of its own, which you can only pick up with time. Here are just a few definitions to get you off on the right foot:

POP FLY. You may as well learn at the start that this fly is a ball that pffts off the bat, making an easy catch for a fielder. If you are reminded of the tsetse fly at any point when your escort is discussing pop fly, save your erudition for the crossword puzzles. Baseball flies are different. (The grammar is slightly different to such as he "fled out.")

FOUL BALLS. These are no different from the slang conception. A baseball "foul ball" is a real dud too. It's a ball that has more-or-less backfired, mostly less. It goes outside marked-off foul lines and counts strikes up to two. After that the hitter may joyfully go on fouling for free.

HOME PLATE.—This is where the batter stands when he attempts to hit the ball. It is definitely not made of ceramic or plastic, not stamped Wedgwood or even Yankee. It's just a piece of rubber or sumpin'. (See how inconsistent everything is about this game.)

THE DIAMOND. That is the pattern made by the four bases on the field. (Caution for word-association types: If you don't get one for your engagement this is definitely not the time to bring it up.)

PINCH HITTER. This is a substitute batter who hits in a pinch (pinch hitter—get it?).

A pointer about exciting moments of the game: If you don't know whether the move is good or bad, rise with your mouth open, hand over your mouth, until you hear your escort shriek on joy. Then do the same. If he doesn't—change this expression to one of horror. Either way you've played it safe.

P. S. It's a good idea to find out which side your man is on before you go to the game.

'Plenty and Want' Circle Subjects

FOUNTAIN.—Mrs. Mattie Nichols was hostess to Circle one of the Fountain Presbyterian Church Monday afternoon. Mrs. Carter Smith, Circle leader, had the program and devotion. Her subject was "Plenty and Want".

At the conclusion, the hostess served refreshments to the seven members present and one visitor.

Mrs. C. L. Owens was hostess to Circle two of the Fountain Presbyterian Church Tuesday night with fourteen members present. Mrs. Carter Smith, Circle leader, had the program and devotion.

At the conclusion the hostess served refreshments.

A Young GI Is Still In Hot Water

Certainly any impact or reaction in the field of foreign relations should not, and could not, bear weight in deciding who should try GI William Girard for the death of a Japanese woman.

Constitutional rights of the individual citizen overshadow even matters of international policy. So that argument, if it has been raised, is invalid. Long before the furor over Girard arose, American servicemen have been tried in Japanese courts. These were based on their off-duty conduct. Servicemen who "step out of bounds" in performance of their official duty are regarded as America's problem children.

It is still not clear, to use, why and on what grounds Girard's case was shunted to the Japanese by American authorities. The District Court's reversal of that action is damaging not only to the persons involved but casts a shadow of doubt in the minds of Japanese and other allies who have status-of-force agreements permitting trial of Americans in foreign courts for offenses committed while off duty.

This country has found it difficult enough to deal on a friendly basis with governments who are allies and others whom we wish to be allies. Winning the esteem of these countries' population can be even more difficult. The Japanese public's reaction to this controversial case is not likely to be warm.

In earlier discussions of the Girard case and its implications, foreign correspondents seemed in general agreement that American servicemen who were tried in Japanese courts got off lightly, as compared with how they might have fared in American courts.

Thinking on these things, we fail to comprehend the reason for yesterday's report that "Girard's attorneys and supporters were jubilant at (Judge) McGarragh's decision."

Guilty or not, a certain young American soldier in Japan remains in hot water; and the troubles in which he finds himself involved are multiplied a hundredfold for the country he represents.

Hemispheric Unity Often Takes Back Seat

Geopoliticians look upon the Western Hemisphere as a single geographical entity... a point not yet fully appreciated by most of we North Americans.

Sure, we're quite some travellers. Our tourists and business men abroad total probably more than four or five other countries combined. At home our highways, railways and airplanes are filled with hordes of mobile Americana on the move.

Despite this, the concept remains we of the 48 States constitute the entity of America. The word "American" is not commonly applied to a Brazilian, Canadian, Mexican, Bolivian or Paraguayan.

Everyone agrees the United States cannot live alone in the modern world. We need to export certain products and there are gaps in our strategic and critical materials which must be imported. General acceptance of hemispheric unity might well further strengthen the United States position at home and abroad.

Strong friends in Europe, the Middle East and the Far East are quickly recognized as necessities. Too often, we think, the need for a prosperous and united Western Hemisphere takes a backseat in our global outlook.

Education Has A Favored Role

By LYNN NISBET

EDUCATION — The first love of North Carolinians is the education of youth, and the major problem of General Assemblies for many years has been the financing of reasonably adequate educational programs. Foundation of the whole program is the public school system, which takes almost two-thirds of all general fund tax money.

The largest amount appropriated by the recent Legislature for any single purpose, and the item which precipitated the hardest legislative fight, was the item of school teacher salaries. The State Board of Education and the United Forces for Education — made up of a group of public spirited organizations — had proposed an increase in teacher pay of 19.31 per cent above the previous scale.

The Senate was disposed to go along with that amount, but the House insisted on 16.09 per cent and abandoned the extra time pay. As enacted the bill calls for an assured 15 per cent pay raise, and 16.09 if general fund revenue collections exceed budget estimates in amount sufficient to provide it.

The Senate was disposed to go along with that amount, but the House insisted on 16.09 per cent and abandoned the extra time pay. As enacted the bill calls for an assured 15 per cent pay raise, and 16.09 if general fund revenue collections exceed budget estimates in amount sufficient to provide it.

AUXILIARY — There is temptation to think of "public education" only in connection with the public school system and the State supported colleges and universities. Fact is, there are about as many auxiliaries and fringes to the education item as to any other.

The recent Legislature increased support for libraries and museums, added several thousand dollars to invest in historic sites and memorials. It expanded services for school buses in transporting children on extra-curricular excursions.

Very significantly it broke the line on traditional State refusal to provide transportation for school children in side corporate limits of towns and cities by providing that when transportation is now furnished it may not be discontinued solely because certain areas come into the corporate limits of municipalities.

New laws give to county and city administrative unit boards the right to prescribe rules for use of school buses and other property — including buildings and grounds — for non-classroom instructional purposes.

Other bills enacted provide substantially increased assistance in auxiliary programs for retarded children — but make no provision for the exceptionally smart kids.

Batted around in debate in committees and on the floor were several proposals for year-round school terms, staggering classes so that teachers and buildings could be used twelve months in every year, instead of nine. This idea was channeled to one of the dozen or more study commissions authorized by this Legislature.

In the public school field also there are new provisions for local determination of school administrative units by popular vote. Expected result is that a number of counties will adopt one central control unit, rather than two to six separate city units — at a gross saving of many thousands of dollars.

NEW PROJECTS — The recent Assembly authorized several new projects in the educational field, in addition to the retarded children program. An appropriation of half a million dollars was made for the establishment of regional vocational schools. Designed to further the overall industrial program, this project requested two million dollars.

For the first time the State set up a uniform policy for the development of Community Colleges. The community colleges at Asheville, Charlotte and Wilmington were recognized by token appropriations in 1955. The recent session increased the appropriation and based it upon the hours of instructional service per pupil instead of a blanket allocation to each institution.

The regional vocational schools and the community colleges are set up on a local participation basis both as to capital investment and operating expenses.

Several special local bills were superseded by a general statewide act providing for tax supported colleges and universities to issue revenue bonds for the building of dormitories, to be paid for out of room rentals.

One of the most significant features of the 1957 educational legislation was complete absence of reference to segregation or pupil assignment. Apparently the laws enacted in the regular session of the 1955 and the special session of 1956 took care of that problem.

Some Business Oddities Arise

By ELMER ROESSNER

There are many strange and curious new things in the wonderful world of business. Here are a few popping up in the news:

U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists have found that one part of the sky is usually cooler than other parts. At El Centro, Calif., this spot is toward the north, 30 degrees above the horizon. The scientists suggest that shades and corrals used to shield livestock be constructed so they will bounce the sun's heat toward the cool "sink" in the sky.

Designing a house in the "sinks" in the sky, it may revolutionize housing design in America because architects will soon learn to shape homes so that they bounce summer heat toward local "sinks," and to take advantage of warm "sinks" in winter.

An employer trusted a girl applicant who said she was over 18. But he didn't notice that her birth date on her application showed she was under that age. The employer has been socked $2,200.

BRIDGE DRAWS TRAFFIC

A store in a Long Island shopping center has organized a Tuesday afternoon bridge club in its folding-furniture section. So far this hasn't increased the sale of bridge tables, but it has boosted store traffic.

The British Honduran Government spent two years helping an enterpriser establish a pasteurization plant. Now, after several months of operation, it has closed down. The government didn't know natives prefer canned milk.

A Connecticut bank accepts $3 and one book of trading stamps as credit for $6 in new savings accounts. If the idea clicks there, it may be adopted in your home town.

Nikita Khrushchev told American television viewers that Russia hopes to increase its food supply to the American level largely by increasing its hog production. If the Russians have a way to do that trick, they have kept it secret from the Chinese. Reports to the U. S. Government indicate that the hog population in China fell in 1955 and 1956, and shows signs of declining this year. Many farmers ate their hogs rather than turn them over to collectives.

FROM SHIPBOARD TO MARKET A new shipping method keeps meat refrigerated from packing house to butcher shop. The meat is packed in wheelless, refrigerated vans, which are moved by truck, train and truck to the retailer. Four vans fit on one flat-car. The system, developed by North American Car Corp., is said to be more efficient and to require less manpower than "piggy-back" shipment of truck vans.

Other Editors Saying--- Insects Back Again

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Judging from the number of mosquito bites we have been getting about town and also noting the fact that flies, which simply do not breed in the nicest surroundings, seem to be more plentiful than ever, there seems to us ample reason for our sanitation folks to have a very thorough look-see to determine whether we are doing our utmost to keep the city free of these pests.

There could very probably be some waterholes in and around the city which have been overlooked and which are sending those mosquitoes upon us. Also there may be some breeding places for flies which have not been noted to date. In a city kept clean and which does not lie in a swampy region the insect menace should not be as great as it is in Rocky Mount.

Bugs and insects, according to some science fiction writers, could conceivably take over the world. There is a classic hypothesis that if one pair of common house flies and their progeny were to propagate without dying, the earth would soon be covered by a layer of five feet of flies.

The main factor that keeps bugs from taking over is a clever interlocking system called "the balance of nature," in which every living thing has one or more enemies, and the fittest survive.

It is when this delicate balance is destroyed, or is jiggled out of place temporarily, that insect pests thrive, and entomologists warn of a considerable siege of grasshoppers and various beetles, aphids, etc., that do not wish mankind well. In this connection it is highly significant that William T. Thompson, president of a large chemical concern, has announced his company is withdrawing from the production and distribution of certain insecticides which will benefit bugs along with the bad ones.

Wide-scale use of the insecticides is upsetting the balance of predator-parasite insects, he says, and could easily cause heretofore unimportant insects to increase to the status of economic pests. He adds:

"I would say it's becoming economically very serious. I think both the insecticide companies and the government should devote research now to the selective control of insects." Insect pests build up immunity to known insecticides anyway, so the point is all the more pertinent.

Thus far the science of determining just what are the most harmful insects, and what is their relation to other insects, is in its infancy. It is an enormous and complex field.

Manufacturing poison that will kill all bugs and insects that come in contact with it could lead to catastrophe. One way of solving the problem would be to devise chemical mixtures that are repellent but not death-dealing.

There are ways in which science can help greatly to eliminate insect pests, without destroying the balance of nature. Therein lies a challenge to some of the youngsters now entering the world of science.

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON President Eisenhower has recently made several smart moves that may deprive belligerent Democrats, especially Speaker Sam Rayburn, of their most precious political issue—namely, the Administration's supposed favoritism toward "bigness" in business and industry.

The White House begins to exhibit a finesse that has been lacking hitherto.

Speaker Rayburn has been growing for months over the partiality which numerous independent, alphabetical agencies, in his opinion, have shown to certain favored elements. He suspects that these regulatory units, as reorganized by Ike, have not carried out the intent of the laws which created them. He thinks that they place private interests above and beyond the public good.

He is especially upset over the policies of the Federal Communications Commission (radio and television); of the Tennessee Valley Authority (power and allied activities); of the Interstate Commerce Commission (railroads, trucks, pipelines); of the Federal Power Commission (natural resources); and of the Federal Trade Commission (business and industry).

IRKING CHANGED MOVE Meanwhile, Ike has set out to befuddle and capture Harris. The Arkansasian is author of the bill to deprive the FCC of regulatory authority over producers of natural gas. Most Treacherous Of All

Most treacherous of all Nature's horrors is possibly the tornado. Man can generally predict hours or days ahead when a hurricane will strike. He can usually tell beforehand when mighty rivers will overflow their banks and flood surrounding lands.

But as yet our weather observers have been unable to devise a means of predicting when a tornado will strike. Those who stood in their homes, in buildings and in the open at Marlboro Tuesday evening can testify to the fact that tornadoes strike without warning.

Those who saw it said it lasted only a matter of seconds. Five seconds was the best estimate. And while it was upon the little cross roads community witnesses said it was very dark.

Within just a matter of seconds the vicious twisting air currents had torn the roof off a two-story building and carried it across power lines. It finally came to rest 100 yards away. It toppled a tree on a house and tore a portion of a roof off another. It collapsed a building and ripped a roof from a service station.

How do people feel who live through such a terrifying experience? One woman said she was "praying to the Lord" to look after her. "And He did, too," she said afterwards. She pointed to her house which, although a tree had fallen upon it, was not seriously damaged.

Twin boys who sat in front of a store which lost its roof said they were just plain scared when the storm hit.

An awning and sign fell about them along with portions of concrete block from the building. After the twister, passed the boys said, they made their way to the door of the store where those inside assisted.

Miraculously neither of the boys received a scratch. Another man stood at his back door as the storm passed over. He saw a huge side burst out of a nearby storage building and fly toward his house. He said later he thought the big wall was going to crash into his dwelling. It stopped just short of the house, however, and came to rest on the ground.

The twister which appeared from nowhere as far as observers could tell disappeared to the north, its short life apparently ended.

Opinions In Brief

"Have you ever tried to hypnotize yourself? It's simpler than you think if you do much driving on some of the country's newer thoroughways this summer.

"Driving mile after mile at sustained speeds with your eyes focused on a straight highway can waft you into a dream state. You can easily become 'speed-drugged.'"

"Some drivers are awakened from this 'hypnotic trance' only by the sound of screeching brakes followed by the crash of steel. Tragically, many never awaken at all.

"Their car has piled into another ahead, which has stopped or swerved suddenly. Sometimes a chain reaction may extend for several hundred feet along the turnpike.

"By acute overdoses of monotony, many drivers have been literally 'bored' to death." (Institute For Safer Living).

Rayburn's Strategy Is Undercut

WASHINGTON President Eisenhower has recently made several smart moves that may deprive belligerent Democrats, especially Speaker Sam Rayburn, of their most precious political issue—namely, the Administration's supposed favoritism toward "bigness" in business and industry.

The White House begins to exhibit a finesse that has been lacking hitherto.

Speaker Rayburn has been growing for months over the partiality which numerous independent, alphabetical agencies, in his opinion, have shown to certain favored elements. He suspects that these regulatory units, as reorganized by Ike, have not carried out the intent of the laws which created them. He thinks that they place private interests above and beyond the public good.

He is especially upset over the policies of the Federal Communications Commission (radio and television); of the Tennessee Valley Authority (power and allied activities); of the Interstate Commerce Commission (railroads, trucks, pipelines); of the Federal Power Commission (natural resources); and of the Federal Trade Commission (business and industry).

led activities); of the Interstate Commerce Commission (railroads, trucks, pipelines); of the Federal Power Commission (natural resources); and of the Federal Trade Commission (business and industry).

IRKING CHANGED MOVE Meanwhile, Ike has set out to befuddle and capture Harris. The Arkansasian is author of the bill to deprive the FCC of regulatory authority over producers of natural gas. The measure passed Congress last year, but, although Ike favored its general purpose, he vetoed it because of the "arrogance" of the natural gas lobby, which tried to bribe Senator Francis Case of South Dakota.

When Harris reintroduced his bill at this session, Ike proposed several amendments designed to permit FCC to protect consumers against excessive price increases. These suggested changes, especially as several Eisenhower Republicans insisted on them, created controversy and jeopardized the measure's enactment.

Now, to the amazement and dismay of Ike's Northern and Conservative champions of the consumers, Ike has notified Harris that he does not regard his proposed revision as essential or necessary. He has indicated that he will sign any bill that Harris is able to get through Congress.

WINDFALL OF MILLIONS Another Harris interest is Pan American World Airways. Harris is backing a bill that would give Pan Am a "windfall" of $51,000,000. It was defeated in the House last year by the very Republicans who oppose the natural gas bill.

An enthusiastic supporter of the "windfall" proposal is John F. Floberg, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Washington representative of 15 feeder airlines. Although "the small aviation firms would not benefit from the $51,000,000, Floberg has fought for its passage, and co-operated with Harris in many ways.

Ike recently named Floberg as a surprise nominee to the Atomic Energy Commission.

Wolf Has No Chance

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — A young mother here who will may be the world's highest paid model — she earned $35,000 last year — also is a leading authority on wolves — Manhattan wolves.

"I have a lot of trouble with wolves," sighed Lois Collins, a former Denver receptionist.

"I'm seeing an analyst about them now. He tells me I'm too naive about men. But I can't help it if I'm too trusting.

"I can't help liking men. I find them much less difficult to get along with than I do other women."

The blue-eyed, convent-reared brunette came here in 1952 to attend a merchandising school but began to pose for magazine illustrators after she went broke.

"I wouldn't go back home for my pride's sake," she said.

She soon turned to modeling, and found quick success in the field. Slender and unusually photogenic, her trade measurements — if we must give away trade secrets — are 36-22-33.

Lois gets from $40 an hour for fashion modeling, to $150 an hour for full figure studies for photographic magazines or ads showing her stepping out of a bathtub clad only in a towel.

"A few girls do better than I do in fashion modeling," said Lois, who has been featured in most of the leading magazines. "But no one makes more than I do in the figure field."

She married and divorced a young actor shortly after arriving here. Now she supports a 3-year-old son, Michael, and shares an East Side apartment with her younger brother, who attends Columbia University.

Like Jayne Mansfield, Marilyn Monroe and Marie Wilson, Lois hopes to graduate from modeling to film work. She is studying acting at night.

On the subject of wolves, she observed: "In the business I'm in I have to be very careful. The wolves in Manhattan come in all ages. Some are nicely treacherous — and some are just treacherous."

"First, there are the older wolves — 60 to 70 or more. They are usually married millionaires who try to recapture their youth by capturing a model," she said.

"Then there are the perennial playboys — actors and wealthy businessmen — who make a game out of trying to date every new girl who comes to town.

"Then there are the middle-aged wolves on expense accounts who use a girl as if she were a watch charm. They are insecure in themselves, and think being seen with a pretty girl will help them make a big impression."

"What about the poor but honest young wolf?"

"I hope to meet one sometime," said Lois, "but it wouldn't hurt if he had just a little bit of money. What I really want most in life is to marry and have a happy home."

The trouble is that most of the wolves she meets already have happy homes — so happy they can't stand the joy of staying in them at night.

Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open that old mailbox:

That when a New Orleans church installed airconditioning its attendance increased 44 per cent.

That judo, the Japanese art of using a competitor's strength against himself, is helpless against an aggressor with a pasteurized attack. "I'll explain this broken record later."

That Henry Castello, a machine gunner in World War II who now operates a popular restaurant in midtown Manhattan called "The Press Box" gives this tip: "Cabbage juice for ulcer sufferers."

That in the 1890s peanut butter was recommended for invalids.

That the average life of a dollar bill is from nine months to a year — without vitamins.

That Queen Anne was the only British lady sovereign who was so fat she had to be lifted to her throne.

That (it says right here) a 10-second kiss transfers twice as many germs as a two-second kiss... to really poison a girl takes time!

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

A GREAT DAY
Sometimes we hear people say that there are no longer any frontiers. One hundred years ago Horace Greeley could say, "Go west, young man," and this statement made a lot of sense. Today the geography of our country and of the world has been utterly changed by modern technology. The old frontiers have vanished.

But that does not mean that frontiers have vanished. Many geographical frontiers have vanished, but today we have scientific frontiers which did not exist in the past. Every spring representatives from great industrial concerns betake themselves to college campuses looking for promising young men to be trained for promising jobs. The leaders of the country today are pleading for more men to take up engineering. There are not nearly enough doctors to take care of our sick. Churches are filled to overflowing and the Church is desperately in need of ministers.

In other words, there has probably never been a time in human history when talent and the wise expenditure of energy were more in demand than right now. In spite of the atom and hydrogen bombs, regardless of universal military service, present-day youth confronts the most fascinating opportunities that have appeared in human history.

This is a great day in which to live and especially for youth.

Israel Warns Against Blockading Aqaba Gulf

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel warned Egypt last night against trying to blockade the Gulf of Aqaba with three submarines, newly acquired from the Soviet Union.

A government broadcast beamed to Egypt said use of the subs to cut off ships from the southern Israeli port of Eilat, at the head of the gulf, would be "lighting the fires" leading to Egyptian suicide.

Egypt confirmed Tuesday she had bought the submarines and they had joined her fleet in Egyptian waters. They are believed to be the first undersea craft acquired by any Middle Eastern country.

Israel feared they would be used to reimpose the blockade of Eilat, which Israeli troops ended last fall by destroying the Egyptian shore guns overlooking the Gulf of Aqaba. The gun positions are now occupied by troops of the U.N. Emergency Force.

Ships now operate through the gulf to and from Eilat without interference, despite protests from Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Jordan that the gulf is Arab territorial water. Saudi Arabia protested to the U.N. yesterday for the fifth time in less than 10 weeks that Israeli ships and planes had violated what it claims is its territory in the gulf.

"This peaceful navigation will continue," last night's Israeli broadcast said.

Without giving details, the director general of the Israeli Defense Ministry said in a speech at Haifa that Israel is taking measures against possible submarine action. The official, Simon Peres, added that Israel will defend the open seas and will not "sit on folded hands" when its enemies are being equipped with arms to destroy Israel.

The government broadcast said any blockading submarines would meet the same fate as the Egyptian frigate that Israeli forces damaged and captured in the only naval action of the October-November invasion.

The British, the French and the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean also showed concern that the Russians had again tampered with the armament status in the Middle East by supplying the submarines to Egypt. British and French spokesmen said Israel probably will ask the Western powers for antisubmarine equipment as a counterbalance.

Training for Trouble

FLOOD VICTIMS are rescued from the Napa River at Napa, Calif., by civil defense workers, units in natural disaster. Some 800 "Calamity Jane" rescue trucks such as this are now in use in the United States. (Photo by Bob McKenzie)

Rescue Units CD's Good Samaritans

A "white charger," complete with a team of white-clad "knights," may some day come to your rescue if you are trapped under debris after an attack or natural disaster. The "white charger" would be a Civil Defense "Calamity Jane" heavy rescue truck, or the recently announced light truck. Some 800 rescue trucks are now in use by local U. S. civil defense units. Approximately 60,000 trained volunteers—some of them perhaps neighbors—are serving on civil defense rescue teams. All are organized—akin to America's pioneer era—against the day when their community might have to take care of itself for hours, or even days in the event of enemy attack or natural disaster before outside help could be spared.

CASUALTY EVACUATION by helicopter, perfected in the Korean War, is demonstrated at the Federal Civil Defense Administration's up-to-date rescue school at Olney, Md. Here a street of carefully engineered "bombed out" buildings confront rescue course students with a variety of situations, including rescue from actually flaming structures of persons made up as "victims." Kissing A Wife Can Cost Money

ATLANTA (AP)—It costs money to kiss your wife in Judge F. E. Andrews' Domestic Relations Division of Fulton Superior Court. An unidentified Atlanta couple learned that the hard way. Andrews said he saw a soldier spectator on the front row of benches hugging and kissing his wife. "I saw him smack her one time and when I saw him smack her the second time, I smacked them $5," the judge said.

Unattractive Wife Suggested

TAIPEI (AP)—Choose yourself an unattractive wife if you want to live a long and healthy life, says ex-Premier Chang Chun. Himself a married man, Chang made the suggestion today in a talk to the Rotary Club. An unattractive wife, said the 68-year-old close associate of President Chiang Kai-shek, is the best guarantee against overindulgence in sex which, Chang contended, hastens the aging process. Mrs. Chang was not available for comment.

Harry Truman Says U. S. Is Losing Ground Abroad

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Harry S. Truman said last night that the Eisenhower administration had abdicated its international responsibilities and lost the confidence and respect of the rest of the free world. "We now seem to be slipping backward as the forces of communism advance in the Middle East and Far East and the alliance of free nations is beset by differences and doubts," the former President declared. He spoke at a $100-a-plate Democratic dinner in this state capital. The Eisenhower administration had abdicated its international responsibilities and lost the confidence and respect of the rest of the free world. "Our allies have come to the conclusion that they cannot trust our foreign policy, and our foes have decided that most of the time our leaders are bluffing and they need not fear them." Truman called for continued support of the United Nations, of the United States defense program and for expansion of economic aid to poorer countries. He said pressure must be put on President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles "to do their jobs right" and that "the only way we can do this is through the Democratic leaders in Congress." He added that the administration was "not satisfied with bungling our foreign policy" and had also "balled up our domestic finance." "If the country doesn't go bust after these Republicans 'put labor in its place,' ruin the farmer and put little business—real free enterprise—on ice, maybe the Democrats can bring the government back to the people in 1958 and 1960," he told an audience of nearly 5,000.

Drinks Ran Out, So Try Hold-Up

PHOENIX, ARIZ. (AP)—It was a hot day and the drinks ran out at a party in the Leo Coon household. Coon announced to his friends that he would go out and stage a holdup for more liquid refreshment.

The 45-year-old unemployed truckdriver selected Ralph R. Teems, a thirsty guest, to drive the getaway car yesterday. In an hour police had them.

This is the story they told police: Coon slipped into Jack Haney's service station down the block from his house, swiped a revolver and drove to the Costello Drug Store. He left the car idling and Teems in the front seat. But he neglected to notice there were two empty shells in the revolver. The owner had fired them at marauding cats.

Coon walked into the drug store, pointed the pistol at the clerk and collected $51. Owner Bill Beck grabbed him. But Coon got free and pulled the trigger twice. The hammer fell on the empty shells with two weak clicks.

Frustrated, Coon dropped the gun and offered to return the money. Beck said no and ordered him out.

Coon raced to the getaway car. There lay Teems, asleep in the back. Coon drove off as Beck jotted down his license number and "headed for home."

Coon passed Haney's service station. The neighboring garage-man, who was looking for his gun, started beating him up. Then the armed robbery charges would be filed against Coon and Teems. "I couldn't because my license doubled back, whereupon Haney Lt. Herschell Britton said 'I told him I wouldn't drive, was suspended.'"

Astronomers Agree Stress Mars Study

By RENNIE TAYLOR AP Science Reporter

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP)—Astronomers from more than a dozen nations today completed the first step of their cooperative effort to solve some of the mysteries of Mars and voted to tackle the problem again in 1958.

The International Mars Committee voted to continue its worldwide operations with an enlarged administrative setup and to formulate a new program for observation of the red planet when it again comes close to the earth next year.

They did this after a three day meeting in which they heard the first results of the observations made last year, when Mars came to within 40 million miles of the globe.

Summarizing these reports, Dr. E. C. Slipher, committee chairman, said the initial work produced evidence that Mars may have weather something like that on earth, but with greater extremes of temperature.

The Martian polar cap, which shows up on many of the thousands of pictures taken, apparently is shaped something like a three-decker sandwich, he added, with a foundation of surface material, a middle layer of ice and a white cloud in the atmosphere for a top.

The research also suggests, Dr.

Slipher said, that something happens on Mars which causes parts of its surface to darken suddenly but temporarily. This could be a moistening of the soil, he added. If so, it means some kind of precipitation which would produce life-giving water for visiting earthlings in the future.

The 1956 efforts also disclosed that the planet has brief periods during which things can be seen on parts of its surface through blue light.

This mysterious "blue clearing" at first was thought to be something that happened simultaneously over its entire surface. But observers last year found that from some points on earth they could see marian details through blue light when observers elsewhere could not.

Research on the kind of life on Mars yielded some new evidence of the existence of organic matter but produced a belief among some observers that the living organisms are unlike anything on earth.

Dr. Slipher said observers took 100,000 pictures of Mars during the 1956 approach and produced a huge mass of reports which remain to be analyzed.

The committee authorized its officers to seek funds from the National Science Foundation to support the future program.

The question of inviting Russian astronomers to take part was brought up but no action was taken.

Dr. Slipher said. He said it will be within the power of the committee officers to ask Russia or other countries to join.

Find Shortage In State Board

RALEIGH (AP)—Atty. Gen. George Patton will study the report on an audit which revealed shortages of $5,416.25 on the books of the North Carolina State Board of Cosmetic Art.

State Auditor Henry Bridges said yesterday a report of the audit by his office has been forwarded to the attorney general. In turn, Patton said he would make no statement until he has talked with Bridges.

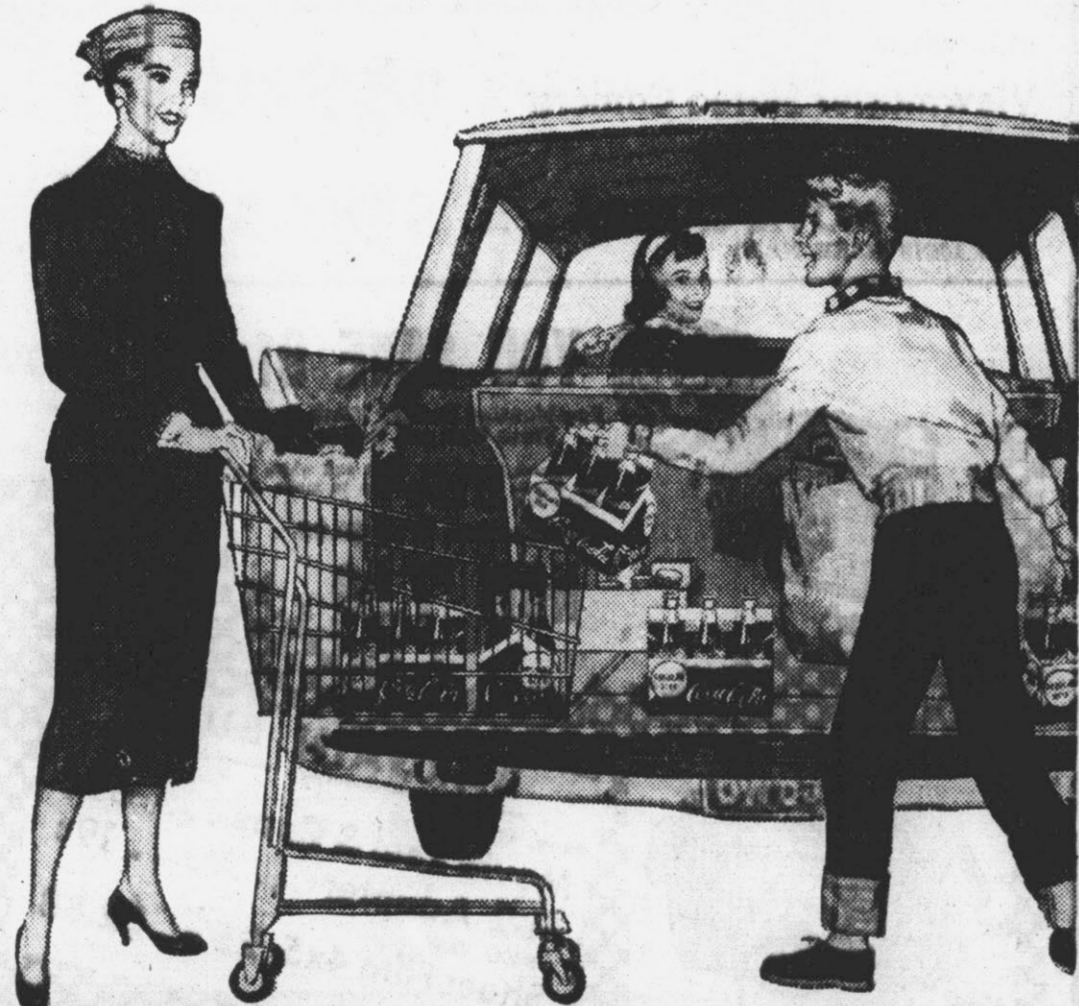

The check of the board's books was launched by Bridges' office after "certain irregularities appeared to exist."

Mrs. Dorothy L. Burchette of Raleigh, executive secretary of the board, resigned while the audit was in progress. The position now is held by Mrs. Catherine B. Munn.

Bridges said that Mrs. Burchette, as budget officer, was "primarily responsible" for the board's books.

The board licenses beauty shops and schools. It is one of some 30 such licensing agencies.

The audit covered the period beginning July 1, 1955, and ending Jan. 14, 1957. It required four months and was "a tremendous job because of the confusion" in the board's records, Bridges said.

UN Committee Says Hungray's Will For Freedom Bolstered By Russians

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—A U.N. committee said today that the people's will for independence in Hungary "has only been strengthened" by the Soviet army's unopposed suppression of the uprising in that country last October and November.

But the General Assembly's Special Committee on Hungary also declared that Soviet arms had dashed hopes of "the immense majority" for political rights and fundamental freedoms now.

It said that the Communist regime of Premier Janos Kadar, installed by the Russians, has no popular support and that rigid Communist controls momentarily removed by the uprising "are being reimposed step by step."

In a 391-page report to the Assembly, the five-nation investigating committee accused Soviet troops of indiscriminate slaughter of women and children, mass arrests, summary executions and thousands of deportations. It said estimates of Soviet forces in Hungary varied from 75,000 to 200,000 men with 1,600 to 4,000 tanks.

The committee reported that many of the soldiers apparently were Mongols and Tartars from Central Asia who had been told they were being sent to Egypt to throw back "Anglo-French imperialists" and therefore "mistook the Danube for the Suez Canal." It estimated that 2,500 to 3,000 people died in the fighting. The committee said they were "deeply shocked" at the "appalling" tortures used by the Hungarian secret police, which they described as "all-powerful, pitiless and unabashed by any shameful act."

The 81-nation Assembly created the small-power committee last Jan. 10 to investigate Russian suppression of the Hungarian revolt after the Communists refused to admit U.N. observers to the satellite country.

Barred by the Reds from Hungary, the five committee members took some 2,000 pages of testimony from 111 Hungarians—all recent refugees—at hearings in New York, Geneva, Rome, Vienna and London.

The Assembly must decide whether to meet and discuss the report now or wait until its 12th regular session, starting next Sept. 17.

The United States is understood to feel that the document is so important it should be taken up early in that session, when many foreign ministers will be on hand. The U.S. delegation expects to call together the 24 countries that sponsored the Jan. 10 resolution and propose that they make a recommendation to this effect.

The five committee members concluded in their report that:

1. The uprising last October and November was "caused by long-standing grievances," including "the inferior status of Hungary" with regard to the Soviet Union.

2. "It is untrue" to say, as do Soviet and Hungarian officials, "that the uprising was fomented by reactionary circles in Hungary or that it drew its strength from 'imperialist' circles in the West." The leaders, "many of them Communists," favored democratic socialism and wanted to safeguard "land reform and other social achievements."

3. "The uprising was not planned in advance, but actually took participants by surprise. Its timing was connected with Poland's successful move for greater independence from the U.S.S.R."

4. "It would appear" that as early as Oct. 20, three days before the first outbreak, Soviet authorities had taken steps to move troops into Hungary from the Soviet Union and Romania "to make armed intervention possible."

5. Demonstrators who went to the Budapest radio building Oct. 23—to ask that their demands for reforms be broadcast—did not intend to resort to force. They began fighting only because the secret police fired on them and because Russian soldiers then appeared "as enemies in combat."

6. Revolutionary Premier Imre Nagy "has established" that he did not invite Soviet forces to intervene. "The committee has no evidence . . . as to whether such an invitation was issued at all," even by pro-Soviet Premier Janos Kadar, who succeeded Nagy.

7. The rebels loosened the grip of the secret police. The Communist party structure collapsed. Power fell into the hands of new revolutionary and workers' councils. Nagy, a Communist, "became a symbolic figure in the uprising," though not its actual leader.

8. Before and since the uprising, basic human rights have been violated in Hungary. Some of those deported still "may not have been returned to their homes."

9. "Since the second Soviet intervention on Nov. 4 there has been no evidence of popular support for Mr. Kadar's government." Instead, 190,000 Hungarians have fled to the West. "Only a small fraction" have accepted Kadar's invitation to return.

"There is no doubt," said the report, "as to the aspirations of the immense majority of the Hungarian people . . . for the withdrawal of the Soviet armed forces . . .

"Their will for regaining full international independence is powerful and has only been strengthened by the role played by the Soviet military command in the postwar years by the establishment of a political regime patterned after that of the Soviet Union and more recently by the Soviet military intervention to guarantee that regime's continuance . . ."

The Elizabeth City Advance scheduled a reception for the visiting newspapermen after registration at 3 p.m. Association president Thomas L. Robinson, publisher of the Charlotte News, will preside at the general sessions.

Tomorrow, Dante J. Germino of the Durham newspapers and John T. Anderson of the Transylvania Times, Brevard, will direct separate sessions for daily and non-daily newspapers, respectively.

Also on Friday's agenda is a tour of the Outer Banks and a reception with members of "The Lost Colony," outdoor historical drama.

Delegates will attend a memorial service and a business session Saturday morning. Editor Holt McPherson of the High Point Enterprise will lead the memorial.

Declaring 'War' On Litterbugs

RALEIGH (AP)—A call for Tar Heels to enlist in a war on "litterbugs" who toss trash on roadsides of the state has been sounded by the Governor's Committee for Clean Highways.

Final plans for a 90-day educational campaign which will begin July 1 were mapped yesterday at a committee session here. Gov. Hodges told the group a successful drive could be "one of the greatest things that has ever happened to our state."

As an honorary vice chairman of the committee, Hodges named Willard F. Babcock, who is slated to take over as director of state highways on July 1.

Voit Gilmore of Southern Pines, committee chairman, urged civic clubs and other organizations to push programs on the community level. He said every Tar Heel should join in the effort "to make North Carolina more beautiful."

Dramatics Fail Influence Judge

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Despite a dramatic courtroom performance, actor Anthony Franciosa faces a 10-day jail sentence for kicking a photographer.

Franciosa turned on some impassioned oratory, punctuated with a great deal of arm waving and fist pounding, when the prosecution yesterday urged a jail sentence for his April 29 attack on a cameraman who tried to photograph him and actress Shelley Winters, now his wife.

Municipal Judge Mark Brandler remained unimpressed by the performance and fined the 29-year-old actor $250 in addition to sentencing him to jail. Franciosa's attorneys filed notice of appeal and he remained at liberty on $250 bond.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Officials of the U.N. Command declined to say what they would discuss at the meeting but said their statements would be made public immediately after the meeting ends.

The Korean armistice provided that the armies in North and South Korea could only replace existing equipment and could not bring in new types of equipment or additional amounts of arms.

U.S. and South Korean military officials have long accused the Reds of beginning an illegal military buildup in North Korea before the ink was dry on the armistice agreement.

Even as the armistice went into force, barring Allied fighters from the skies north of the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea, Allied radar screens picked up scores of Red fighters from Manchuria dropping onto makeshift strips in North Korea.

Korean military leaders have argued for months that the Communists were building up for an attack and would strike southward whenever they felt confident of success.

Allied leaders say by contrast the U.N. Command has observed the ban on new weapons to the letter. As a result, they say, Allied weapons have become obsolete, making it impossible for out-gunned U.N. and South Korean troops to defend themselves adequately in the event of renewed Communist aggression.

Will Ask Ruling On Regulation In Court Martial

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Attorneys for Col. John C. Nickerson Jr. said today they will ask a ruling on the legality of a U.S. Army court-martial regulation when the officer comes to trial June 25.

Nickerson is accused on 18 counts of allowing secret missile data to fall into the hands of unauthorized persons.

Atty. Robert Bell said he and Atty. Ray Jenkins would ask a ruling pertaining to a section of the Army court-martial manual which specifies that defense witnesses and evidence must be approved by the prosecuting agency before being brought before the court-martial.

In this instance, the prosecuting agency is the 3rd Army, which yesterday refused Bell and Jenkins permission to question four high-ranking officers. It also denied the defense certain documents because they were "irrelevant."

Bell said the Army regulation came into being as the result of an executive order signed Feb. 8, 1951, by former President Truman.

"This regulation certainly does not conform to the basic principals of American jurisprudence," Bell said.

"It is going to make it awfully easy to convict Nickerson."

The 3rd Army yesterday notified Bell that it would not permit a "broad and blind search" through various documents for evidence in the defense of Nickerson.

Bell told newsmen he had a "pretty good idea which documents we wanted to see, and specified them in the request to the 3rd Army."

Lell said he was told that the 3rd Army had determined the officers he asked as witnesses could add nothing to the defense.

Nickerson is charged with disclosing classified military matters on rocket research and development at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, where the Army ballistic missile agency is located.

The charges grew out of a memorandum in which Nickerson criticized Defense Secretary Wilson. The memorandum reportedly was critical of a Wilson order which assigned primary responsibility for intermediate range ballistic missiles to the Air Force.

UN Command May Move To Bring New Weapons To Korea

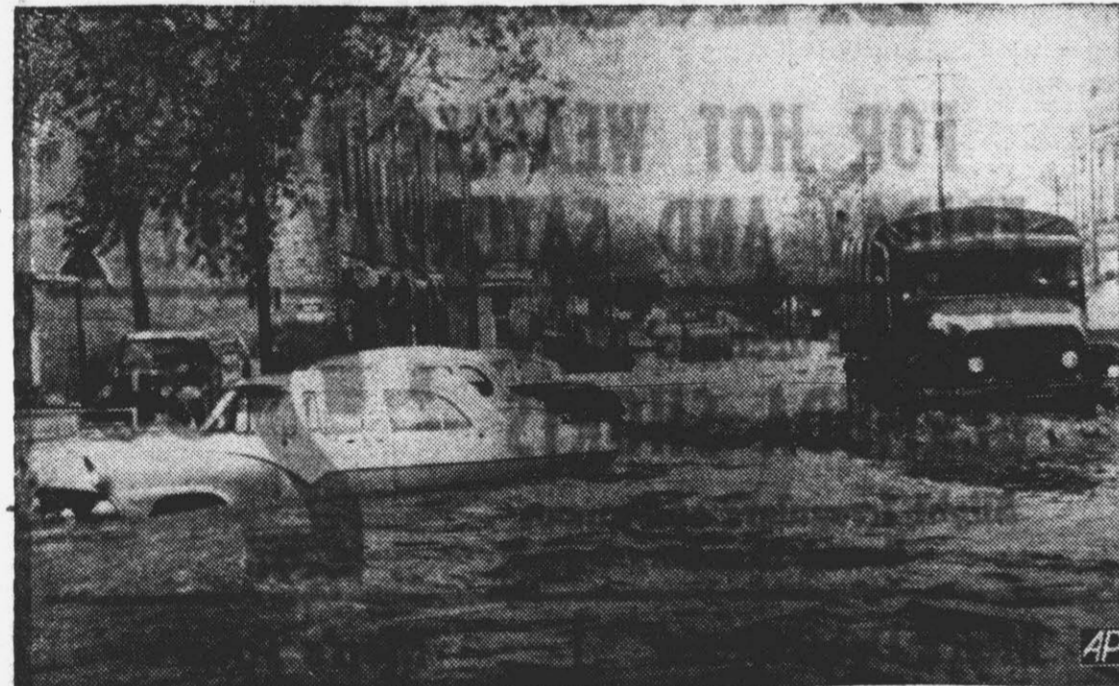

By CHARLES CHIN

SEOUL (AP)—United Nations and Communist armistice officials have scheduled a meeting tomorrow amid reports that the U.N. Allies will demand scrapping or revision of the armistice clause banning introduction of new weapons into Korea.

Well-placed sources in Seoul who would not be quoted by name said the expected Allied demand is based on "the known, proved facts that the North Korean and Chinese Communists have illegally introduced new weapons into North Korea since the armistice" was signed July 27, 1953.

The Allied demand could be the prelude to equipping the two U.S. divisions in South Korea with latest type weapons which could be fitted with atomic warheads in the event of a Communist attack. U.S. Secretary of Defense Wilson said a month ago such a move was being considered.

The U.N. Command had asked that the Joint Military Armistice Commission meet today but agreed to the Communists' request for a delay until tomorrow afternoon.

U. S. Holds Firm On Its Atomic Test Policy Despite Russian Proposition

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials said today the United States is prepared to accept suspension of atomic weapons tests only under a first-step disarmament agreement providing also for halting production of nuclear weapons.

President Eisenhower had created the impression at a news conference yesterday that the United States might have reversed its policy on banning tests and might be about to accept a Russian proposal for a test moratorium separated from other major disarmament proposals.

These are hopeful signs, as I see them, and they deserve the most earnest and sympathetic study," the President said. He added that the United States wanted to know all the details because "generalization is one thing, to see how it works is another."

Then, in response to a series of inquiries, Eisenhower made the point that with an adequate inspection system to guard against secret testing it might be possible to work out an arrangement for suspending the tests in advance of some other aspects of a disarmament agreement.

New Mexico Happy With Speed Trap Reputation

By SHAKY TRIMBLE LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP)—If southern New Mexico highways — which carry a healthy share of the nation's cross-continent travel — are getting reputations as speed traps, that's just fine with state police.

"We're in business to save lives," says New Mexico State Police Capt. Penn Winston. "And frankly, we don't care how we do it. The end justifies the means."

Winston, in charge of a five-county district covering the southern highway route to and from the West Coast, spoke up after a Denver newspaper said it had received complaints from motorists of speed traps in the area.

356 persons were injured and 50 killed. The difference? "We're making people speed conscious. At lesser speeds the number injured or killed is less," says Winston. "And we feel if we can make people speed conscious, they also will become sign-conscious. There will be fewer crossings of yellow stripes and more attention to slow and curve signs."

As for the trap accusations, officers point out the four radar sets in the entire district are in use an average of only two hours a day.

State Police Sgt. Ed Bell at Deming says "we could run up fantastic figures for speed violations if that was our main purpose. If radar were operated as much as eight hours daily, the arrests for speeding would go well over 1,500 a month right in this county alone."

Illicit Narcotic Traffic Slowly Being Erased

By G. K. HODENFIELD WASHINGTON (AP)—The illicit traffic in narcotics is being stamped out throughout the world despite the active noncooperation of Communist China, an expert in the field said today.

Harry J. Anslinger, U.S. commissioner of narcotics, told newsmen the Red Chinese are reaping an "enormous" harvest of foreign exchange from dope addicts the world over.

The China mainland, he said, is the source of about 65 per cent of the narcotics found in illicit channels. "Other countries are making an effort to stop the traffic," he said. "The Red Chinese government is doing nothing at all. The narcotics come down from Red China to Burma, Thailand and Laos. Some of it then finds its way to Hong Kong and Japan, thence to the United States."

Cardinals Edge To Within 1/2 Game Of National Lead

Red-Hot Cards Have Won 20 Of Last 27 Games

The Associated Press
Okay, so the St. Louis Cardinals look great, just half a game out of the National League lead. But you've got to split the credits between a long streak and a short memory.

They hustled to 20 victories in the last 27 games, winning 13 of the last 16, and jumped from sixth, 8 1/2 games behind, to within seven percentage points of the first-place Milwaukee Braves. Trouble is, they were only three points out of the lead at this stage a year ago—then went into a late-June swoon that dumped them out of the race for a fourth-place finish, 17 games behind.

The Redbirds moved in on the Braves last night, sweeping Pittsburgh 5-2 and 5-1 in a two-night double-header as Milwaukee's Bob Buhl cut the Braves' skid at three games with his third consecutive four-hitter in a 6-0 victory over the New York Giants.

Cincinnati ended its four-game slump, coming from behind on home runs to beat Brooklyn 4-3, leaving the Redlegs and Dodgers two games behind with the Brooks in third place by two percentage points. Philadelphia slipped to fifth, 2 1/2 behind, with a twin loss at Chicago 9-0 and 4-2.

In the American League, Chicago's White Sox held on to a 2 1/2-game lead with a 3-1 decision at Baltimore after the second-place New York Yankees had upped their winning streak to six games with a 10-2 breeze against Detroit. Third-place Cleveland lost 6-0 at Boston. Kansas City joined Baltimore in sixth place, rallying in the ninth to defeat Washington 6-3.

Sam Jones won his fourth in the Cardinal opener, striking out 10 and limiting the Bucs to only four hits after the first inning. The Cards broke a 2-all tie with three in the seventh. Hobie Landrith's double drove home the winner and Joe Cunningham then packed it away with a two-run pinch homer as Ron Kline lost his 10th.

Wally Moon swatted a two-run homer as the Redbirds scored three in the nightcap first against Bob Purkey. Stan Musial hit his 15th homer and stretched his hitting streak to 19 games as young Lindy McDaniel won his seventh.

Buhl got a quick lead as Henry Aaron matched Yankee Mickey Mantle for the major league homer lead with his 19th in the third inning. Wes Covington added a three-run homer in the fifth. Ruben Gomez, who has won nine, lost his fourth.

Both Redleg homers were two-run jobs in the seventh, with Bob Thurman delivering his fourth pinch-hit shot ahead of Don Hoak's clincher. Tom Acker won his seventh, shutting out the Brooks until they scored three in sixth, two on Elmer Vero's home run.

Ernie Banks and Walt Moryn, each belting two home runs for the day, connected for successive wallops in the nightcap eighth to win for young Moe Drabowsky. Rookie Dick Drott won his sixth with a three-hitter and eight strikeouts in the opener.

Two walks and RBI singles by Jim Rivera and Bubba Phillips produced two second-inning runs for the White Sox, who were out-hit 9-6. Bob Keegan won it. Art Ceccarelli was the loser.

The Yankees went on a 15-hit tear against seven-game winner Duk Maas, an ace Tiger reliever, with Yogi Berra hitting a three-run homer and Gil McDougald poking a two-run home run. Tom Sturdivant won his sixth.

Frank Sullivan blanked the Indians on five hits, beating Mike Garcia as the Red Sox, who had lost four in a row, scored four in the fourth, two on Frank Malzone's double. Jimmy Piersall and Sammy White homered for Boston.

Virgil Trucks won his sixth in relief for the A's, breaking a 3-all tie with an RBI single. Ex-Yankee Billy Martin then hit a two-run homer.

Fondy Out For Indefinite Time

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dee Fondy, the National League's No. 3 hitter and having his best season, is lost to the Pittsburgh Pirates for an indefinite period because of an eye injury in pre-game practice last night.

The 32-year-old first baseman, obtained from the Chicago Cubs in a trade, had been sparking the Pirates drive for sixth place with a .353 batting average.

A thrown ball in pre-game practice before a two-night doubleheader with the St. Louis Cardinals broke his nose and caused a hemorrhage in his left eye.

Little League Play Moves Into 2nd Half; Lions, Exchange Club Win

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Yesterday's Little League ball games, going into the second half of season play, featured the North State and Tar Heel League-leading teams.

In North State competition, the first-place Lions pulled a 5-1 victory out of the hat over the VFW. The Moose club, leaders in the Tar Heel loop, were not as fortunate: the Exchange team edged to a 4-3 triumph, paying no attention to the standings.

The Wednesday afternoon contests were recorded as the first game of the second half in the Tar Heel loop and the first games of the new half in the other league. Monday opened the half for the North State, as the Jaycees turned back the Kiwanians, 2-1. A Tar Heel tilt scheduled between the Elks and Pepsi-Cola on Tuesday was postponed.

On March Again

The Lions, defending North State 1956 champs and a power in that league ever since the Little League program has been established in Greenville, are marching toward another title.

They finished the first half in first place ahead of the VFW, Kiwanis Club and Jaycees. Their victory yesterday puts them ahead in the second half by one jump, now.

Little Ernest Larkin received credit for the victory, hurling a two-hitter against the VFW. He struck out nine in the 5-1 win, walked two and delivered two pass balls. Dan Johnson was the loser. He was slugged for three hits, he struck out four and walked two.

Collected the Lions' three hits were Badger Johnson, David Miller and Reed Kennedy. The two VFW players who got hits were Ken Allen and J. Nethercutt.

Exchangers Win

The Exchangers edged the league-leading Moose Club in the Tar Heel match, to pull a slight upset. They grabbed an early 3-0 lead in the second inning, and added another run in the fifth. It wasn't until the final inning of play that the Moose could score. They got three runs in the sixth, but couldn't muster up a tying tally.

Garland Johnson hurled three-hit ball for the Exchange Club. He had a one-hitter going until that final game of play.

Steve Partridge started on the mound for the losers and was relieved in the fifth by Mike Cavendish.

Farmville To Start Lessons In Swimming

FARMVILLE—Free swimming lessons at the Farmville swimming pool will begin Monday at 10:30 a.m.

Hour-long sessions will be conducted each Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning throughout the summer. Swimming pool director Elbert Moyer will conduct the classes and will be assisted by Jane Russell.

Moyer said today that instructors are able to handle about 50 children in each of the classes. There are some vacancies for children who desire to take the lessons, he added.

The director also said that although the lessons are free, children who participate in the program will be required to pay ten cents for admission to the pool for the classes.

The pool's regular morning swimming periods will not be interrupted by the classes. Morning swim periods are from 9:30 until 11:30. Other daily operating periods are from 2 o'clock until 5:30 in the afternoon and from 7 until 9 o'clock at night. The pool is open from 2 o'clock until 5:30 on Sunday afternoons.

Admission prices for the swimming periods are ten cents for children and 25 cents for adults.

The pool, which is the county's only public swimming pool, has been averaging about 350 customers per day since it opened early this month. Sunday's total of 588 is the record thus far this summer.

Moyer said the pool which was placed in operation in 1934 can accommodate about 200 swimmers at one time and efforts are made to limit the total of swimmers to that number.

Kid Pitcher May Lead Chicago Out

CHICAGO (AP)—If the Chicago Cubs somehow stumble out of the National League wilderness, a kid pitcher may lead them.

That would be 20-year-old Dick Drott, who yesterday hurled the season's first shutout by a Cub pitcher and raised his strikeout total to 72 to tie for first place in the league with Philadelphia's Jack Sanford.

Drott's three-hitter for a 9-0 victory which started a Cub sweep of a twin bill against the Phils gave the surprising right-hander a 6-6 record in his freshman big league season and his fourth in pro ball.

WEDNESDAY'S STARS

PITCHING
Bob Buhl, Braves; Dick Drott, Cubs — Buhl won his seventh, cracked Braves' losing string at three games with third consecutive four-hitter in 6-0 victory over Giants; Drott won his sixth, struck out eight with three-hit first game shutout in 9-0, 4-3 doubleheader sweep over Phillies.
HITTING
Ernie Banks, Walt Moryn, Cubs — Each connected for two home runs in 9-0, 4-3 doubleheader sweep over Phillies, belting back-to-back shots to bring Bruins from behind in nightcap eighth.

Womack Is Meeting Thomas In Tourney

GREENSBORO (AP)—Billy Womack of Florence, S. C., who cut down the defending champion yesterday, faced Ronnie Thomas of Burlington today in the semifinals of the Carolinas Junior golf tournament.

In the other bracket of the championship flight, Bobby Harrison of Fayetteville met John Isenhour of Salisbury.

Womack, 16-year-old South Carolina Jaycee champion of 1956, eliminated highly favored Larry Beck of Kingston, 3 and 1, in the second round of the tournament yesterday. Beck, defending champion in this 31st annual tournament, won the medal in qualifying play Monday.

Womack repeated yesterday afternoon in the quarterfinals with a 3 and 2 victory over John Rucker of Greensboro.

Isenhour also pulled the giant-killer trick yesterday, defeating last year's runnerup Odell Massey of Durham, 2 and 1, in the quarterfinals. Earlier, Isenhour eliminated Mickey Goodman of Salisbury, 4 and 2.

Harrison, runnerup in the recent Carolinas Open at Hendersonville, earned his semifinals berth by a 3 and 2 victory over Jeremy Dick of Durham and a 1-up victory over Ed Justa of Rocky Mount.

Thomas took a 3 and 2 victory over Marvin Blount of Greenville and a 1-up victory over Ken Folkes of Concord in rounds yesterday.

J.C. Net Tourney Unfolds Today

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—The North Carolina Jaycee tennis tournament opened here today with first and second rounds of both singles and doubles play scheduled.

Durham's Tommy Ricks drew the favored spot in singles competition and with his partner Joe Holloway, also of Durham, got the No. 1 nod in doubles also.

Winners of the three-day tournament will compete in the national Jaycee tournament in Santa Monica, Calif., Aug. 6-10.

Second seeded in singles play was Bill Moore of Goldsboro, followed by Finley Lee of Charlotte and Billy Stone of Henderson.

Lee and Skippy Kugler of Charlotte got the second-seeded spot in doubles competition.

Sox Slugging Only .250

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Chicago White Sox are leading the American League by 2 1/2 games with an unimpressive team batting average of .250.

"We are winning on defense and speed mostly," admits Manager Al Lopez. "I only hope we can keep on doing so until we start hitting."

This was after his team had made only six singles last night yet won 3-1 over the Baltimore Orioles, who had nine hits, including two doubles. Half the Chicago hits followed walks and produced runs.

The Orioles, by contrast, got three singles in a row in one inning and couldn't score. That provided the striking demonstration of Chicago's defense in the fifth inning.

Willie Miranda led off with a single. Ken Lehman followed suit and an Oriole rally appeared in the making. But Miranda made the mistake of running a few feet past second base and was thrown out by rightfielder Jim Rivera. Bill Gardner smacked another single to right, but not only did Rivera's quick return limit Lehman to second, it almost picked him off too.

The next two orioles flied out while the runners stuck to the bags.

The lack of over-all White Sox hitting finds only Nellie Fox over .300-by 29 points.

Strikeouts — Bunning, Detroit, 76.

Danville Dumps League-Leaders By Tight 3-2

CAROLINA LEAGUE
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Danville snatched a final hour victory from Durham last night to hang a 3-2 defeat on the Carolina League leaders.

Greensboro batsmen had a busy night as the Patriots chased Winston-Salem, 11-4.

The weatherman had the final say in the other loop contest, with rain forcing postponement of a Wilson at High Point-Thomasville encounter.

Dick Colone put Durham ahead with a two-run homer in the fourth inning. The scoring looked sufficient until the last of the sixth when Danville revived. A smash by Frank Reveira barely to the left of second took a bad hop by Frank Hostro for a hit, driving in the tying and winning runs. The Leafs had scored once in the seventh.

Home runs by Dale DeSilva, Bob Fidler and Bill Wilhelm sparked the nine-hit Greensboro attack against four Winston-Salem pitchers. DeSilva's two-run homer in the fifth climaxed a five-run uprising in the fifth which gave Greensboro the steam to overcome a 3-1 Winston-Salem lead and go on to win.

The games tonight are High Point-Thomasville at Durham, Danville at Greensboro, Wilson at Winston-Salem.

Lafayette Named To Carrousel

CHARLOTTE — Lafayette College of Easton, Pa., today was named as the seventh team to participate in Charlotte's eighth team Carrousel Basketball Tournament next Dec. 19-21.

The six entries previously announced were Clemson, Alabama, Bucknell, Davidson, Louisiana said they hoped soon to announce the eighth team for the third annual tournament.

Lafayette last season won the Richmond Invitational Tournament and reached the NCAA regionals at Philadelphia where it lost to Syracuse. Lafayette had a 21-3 season record.

Wake Forest, which won the first two tournaments, will not return because of schedule difficulties.

Buhl Explains His 7-2 Record

MILWAUKEE — Bobby Buhl, Milwaukee Braves' right-hander, has a disarming explanation for his 7-2 won-lost record and string of three straight four-hit victories.

"I just happen to be throwing what the hitters aren't looking for," he said last night after his latest four hitter, a 6-0 shutout over the New York Giants.

"There's a very fine line between success and failure in this business," he continued. "It's like cat and dog out there. If the hitters guess right, you don't last long. You can be coasting along real well and then all of a sudden the roof can fall in."

The victory, his third in a row and sixth in his last seven decisions, came at a fortuitous time for the National League-leading Braves. It ended a three-game losing streak and enabled the club to hold a half-game lead over the fast-closing Cardinals.

The grim-visaged man from Saginaw, Mich., who is running slightly ahead of his pace of a year ago when he won 18 games, has been bothered by poor control and poorer batting support.

Men's beards are tougher and heavier when whiskers are grey or white.

Shook And Phillips Paired In Tourney

ASHEVILLE — Medalist Norma Shook of Morganton paired with Nancy Phillips of Hickory today as the Billmore Forest Women's invitational golf tournament entered the second round.

Miss Shook eliminated Kay Eckfort of Starksville, Miss., 1-up, in the first round of the match play tournament yesterday.

Miss Phillips defeated Rose Boring of Knoxville, Tenn., 4 and 2. Other pairings today included Mary Ann Reynolds of Albany, Ga., vs. Mary Emma Manley of Asheville; Ann Middlemas of Panama City, Fla., vs. Marge Burns of Greensboro; Joyce Denson of Atlanta, Ga., vs. Joan Lindsey of Miami, Fla.

Yesterday's results: Shook defeated Eckfort, 1-up. Middlemas defeated Barbara Bordinger of Oak Ridge, Tenn., 1-up.

Lindsey defeated Martha Meyer of Kingsport, Tenn., 1-up. Burns defeated Minnie Dechamps of Sumter, S. C., 5 and 4. Phillips defeated Boring, 4 and 2. Reynolds defeated Mrs. Edward Beyer of Greenville, S. C., 5 and 4. Manley defeated Shirley Horne

Patton Has Won Position Again

NEW YORK — Lanky Billy Joe Patton, the Morganton, N.C., lumberman, again has won a place on the U.S. Walker Cup golf team.

Announcement of the team members, three veterans and seven newcomers, was made here yesterday. The team will meet Britain's squad Aug. 30-31 at the Minikahda Club, Minneapolis.

Patton is the only member on this year's team who played with the squad which stopped the British, 10-2, at St. Andrews, Scotland, in 1955.

Other veteran Walker Cuppers named with Patton are Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., the non-playing captain of the 1955 team, and Charles Kocsis of Royal Oak, Mich., who played in 1938 and 1949.

By FRANK PITMAN
DENVER — Lightweight champion Joe Brown, winner by a 15th-round technical knockout over Orlando Zulueta, shopped around today for pork chops and some overweight matches to cash in on his title.

Brown knocked the bobbing Cuban to the canvas in the 13th round for a nine count and finished him off with a flurry of rights a scant 21 seconds before the end of the nationally televised title fight last night.

Referee Ray Keech was roundly booed by the crowd of 3,686 in the Denver Coliseum for stopping the bout. Zulueta got up at the count of eight after his second knock-down.

"I asked Zulueta if he was all right when he got up," Keech said. "He only mumbled. His eyes were glassy and I thought there was no use in taking a chance that he might be seriously injured."

"That was the loudest decision I ever saw in my life," wailed Zulueta's manager Hymie Wallman.

"I felt fine," said the downcast 28-year-old challenger in his dressing room. "My head was clear. I wasn't a bit dizzy."

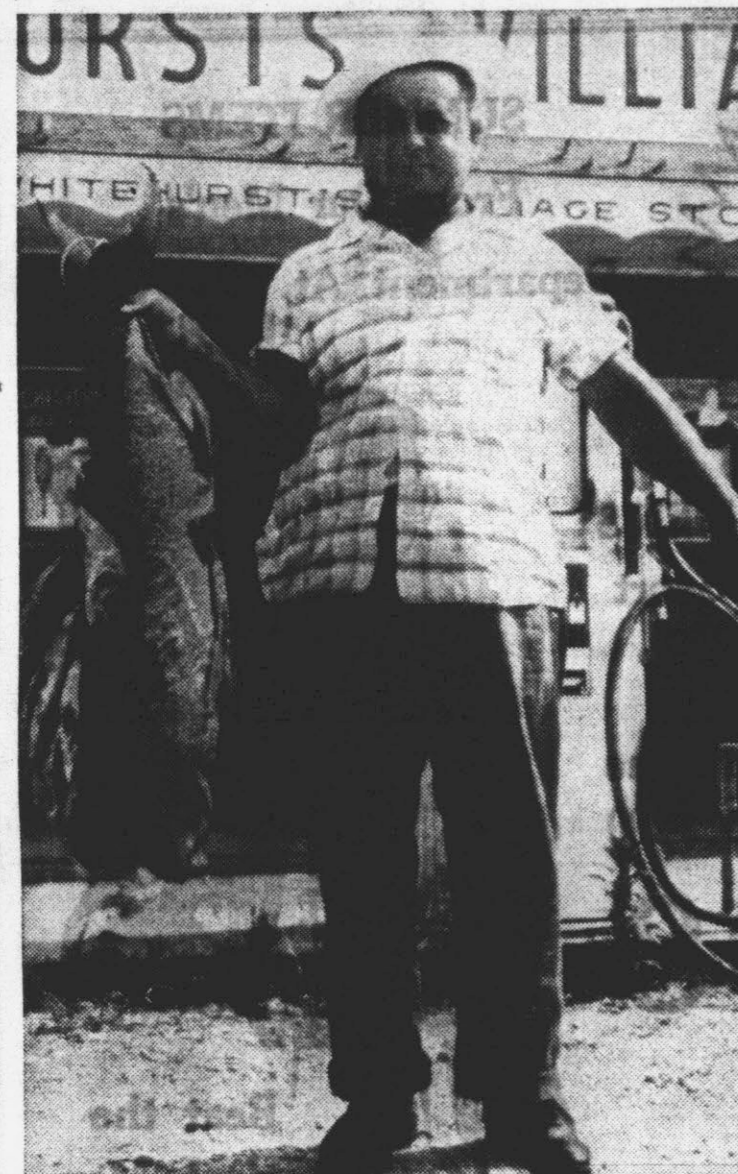

The three officials had Brown ahead on points when the fight was stopped.

Zulueta, who weighed 133½, said it was the first time he'd been knocked off his feet in 101 fights.

Effective Brake Is Applied To U.S. Prosecution Of Reds; Harder Job

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The government's decision Monday to drop its fight against the convictions of 14 Communists may have to drop its cases against another 45 already convicted, or attempt to try them again.

The court's decision Monday put a brake on the prosecution of Communists. They can still be prosecuted. But the government will have a tougher time. And one charge, used in almost all Communist trials, can't be used at all any more.

This is an explanation of what the court did and what the government faces:

In 1940 Congress passed the Smith Act, under which the government has obtained convictions against 103 Communists. For the purposes of this explanation, the Smith Act says three things:

1. It's a crime to conspire to organize a party or group whose purpose is forcible overthrow of the government.
2. It's a crime to teach or advocate the forcible overthrow of the government.
3. It's a crime to be a party member, knowing its purpose is forcible overthrow of the government.

Only 4 of the 103 convicted Communists were tried and found guilty under No. 3. They are appealing now to the high court. Their situation is not pertinent to this story and can be dismissed here.

But the remaining 99 were tried under Points No. 1 and No. 2; the combined charge of organizing and advocating. Of those 99, the Supreme Court has upheld the convictions of only 28. Five convictions it threw out because of the questionable testimony of a witness.

A total of 52—excluding the 14 whose convictions were thrown out Monday—are now in the process of appealing the guilty verdict against them to the Supreme Court. A breakdown of those figures will be given later.

The Communist party was actually created in 1919. It changed its name to the Political Action Assn. in 1944. In 1945 it resumed the name of Communist party.

It's a fact the party is continually recruiting new members while old ones drop out. But the court this week decided the party under the terms of the Smith Act was organized in 1945.

The court said the 14—whose convictions it overruled this week—should not have been convicted on the organizing charge. It gave this reason: There is a statute of limitations which says a man cannot be tried for a crime under certain laws—including the Smith Act—unless tried within three years after committing the offense.

But, the court says, the Communist party was organized in 1945. So unless a man was charged with organizing it within three years of 1945, he can't be charged or tried.

Thus the court ruled the conviction of the 14 Communists whose cases it ruled on Monday can't stand because they weren't indicted until 1951, which meant six years, instead of a limit of three years, after 1945.

This means the government henceforth can't charge or try a Communist on the organizing part of the Smith Act. But all of those 52 now appealing their convictions to the Supreme Court were charged with organizing as well as advocating.

Yet all were tried after the three-year limit. Does the government have to abandon its case against all 52? No. In the cases of 7 of them the trial judge threw out the organizing charge before the cases went to the jury.

But in the cases of the remaining 45 the trial judges did not tell the jury about the three-year limit, toss out the organizing charge and let the jury consider only the charge of advocating forcible overthrow of the government.

For that reason, the government—because the case of the 45 is similar to that of the 14 who won in the court Monday—may have to drop its fight against their appeal and, if it wants to, retry them on the advocacy charge alone.

But the court overturned the conviction of the 14 on other grounds also. It drew a line between merely talking about, or advocating forcible overthrow of the government, and inciting people to attempting overthrow, sooner or later.

The court said the trial judge, before letting the jury decide the guilt of the 14, should have instructed the jurors on the distinction between advocacy and inciting. Further, the court said, the evidence was pretty flimsy.

In the case of the 11 top Communist leaders convicted in New York in 1949—the first ones tried under the Smith Act—the trial judge in his instructions to the jury did make the distinction between advocacy and incitement.

Those 11 were also charged with organizing the party. In their case it was all right and the Supreme Court sustained it because, although not tried until 1949, they were indicted in 1948, or within the three-year limit after the party was organized in 1945.

The Supreme Court upheld their convictions and later the convictions of 17 others—a total of 28—who were also charged with organizing and advocacy of forcible overthrow. But in their case they did not make organizing an issue for the court to act on.

Park Museums Attract Tourists

MANTEO — More tourists and vacationists than ever before are visiting the Dare Coast and its National Park service units this summer. Greatest of the units is the new Cape Hatteras National Seashore Recreational Area, extending along the Outer Banks from Nags Head to Ocracoke Inlet.

In addition to the scenic sites, the access roads and the parking areas, the National Seashore has Coquina Beach, a day use area, Oregon Inlet Fishing Center, Cape Hatteras Lighthouse, tallest on the American coast and two museums.

A museum of Natural History is located at Bodie Island in the lower Nags Head region. At the base of famous Bodie Island Lighthouse there is a "Museum of the Sea." In Fort Raleigh National Historic Site on Roanoke Island there is an Elizabethan Era museum, the Lost Colony's waterside, theatre and nearby the new Elizabethan Garden. Replicas of the Wright Brothers original hangar living quarters and the workshop of the famous first flight brothers, have been established at Kill Devil Hills, where the famous first flight of 1903 was made on December 17th, that year.

All of these NPS museums and attractions are open to the public during the summer of 1957 and they are having record breaking attendance.

Record Broken As Chair Tipped

LA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Until Mrs. Ida Pierce of Yakima, Wash., came here to visit a daughter, she had never been hospitalized in her 68 years. Even her eight children were born at home.

The record ended when she sat on the arm of a chair to admire the view from her daughter's home. The chair tipped over. Mrs. Pierce went to the hospital with a broken wrist.

CONGRATS

CHESTER, Ill. (AP) — Gov. William G. Straton sent "best wishes" for success in this field of service to Menard Time on the 24th anniversary of nearby Menard Penitentiary's newspaper.

Song-Writing Buddies In Friendly Competition

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jerry Lieber and Mike Stoller, the song writers for Elvis Presley, have been in friendly competition ever since they met. Jerry, the eager, aggressive member of the team, is always reporting an unusual experience that has happened to him, only to have Mike top him.

When Mike went to Europe with his new bride, Jerry took a trip to Mexico for some deep-sea fishing. His boat ran out of gas and he was adrift for days under dangerous circumstances.

After the rescue, Jerry could hardly wait to tell Mike the story. "This time he can't top me," declared Jerry, and he went to New York to await Mike's return.

"I've got a sea story that'll curl your ears," Jerry told his partner eagerly.

"Wait a minute," Mike said, and he told of his own voyage—the last for the Andrea Doria.

"Now what was your story?" Mike asked.

"Oh, forget it!" Jerry snapped.

One of the ringsiders at Lena Horne's triumphant opening at the Coconut Grove was Sam Goldwyn. Since he and his wife seldom make the niteries, you can bet he has Lena in mind for "Porgy and Bess." And why not? She acts up a storm on the night club floor, putting more believability into each chorus than most younger singers can manage in a whole evening.

How's this for casting: Harry Belafonte, Porgy; Lena Horne, Bess; Sammy Davis Jr., Sporting Life?

Until recent years, it was the postal service that would persist through rain, hail, gloom of night, etc. Now that can be applied to

Freight Czars Are Hunting For New Efficiency

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Making fewer freight cars haul more goods faster—and keeping costs down as much as possible—is a major headache today for the railroads.

The public is also watching because it demands more service—and at the same time frets at the steady climb in freight rates since the war.

Railroad men are divided over how to meet the problem. And so are the car makers. They are trying automation in car building plants as well as in the freight yards. And they are turning to research laboratories to study design of cars best fitted to the most track and yards.

Growing competition from trucks and barge lines spurs the search by the railroads.

Some railroads and some car makers stick to the traditional method of custom tailoring the cars to the specifications of individual roads and their customers. Others tout the advantages of standardization.

Starting standardization of rolling stock in 1946, Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co., subsidiary of Pullman, Inc., has built and sold 110,000 freight cars of the new type which permits automation and mass production and cuts retooling to the minimum. It started with box cars—and in 10 years has produced 87,000—added gondolas or open top cars, and then covered hop-pets.

Today the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad gets delivery of the 10,000th standardized covered hopper car built in Pullman's Butler, Pa., plant. The road's president, A. W. Schroeder, favors standardized hoppers because "our four cencent factories on-line appreciate them." He adds that standardization lets the smaller roads place orders at the same price and get the same delivery date as a larger line placing a larger order—because production schedules are speeded since no special retooling is needed.

Last week, a burning building got out of hand on the Republic set of "State Trooper." The building burned to the ground, but that didn't stop the filmsters. While firemen were still spraying the ruins, the company set up a scene 100 feet away and continued shooting.

A peek at the new product, "Love In The Afternoon" is gay, saucy fun with more real laughs than a film has had in years.

"Island In The Sun" tries to cover too much ground. "A Face In The Crowd" goes too far overboard in showing the meanness of humans. It is overacted, over-directed and overdrawn. The Broadway characters of "Sweet Smell of Success" are also mean, but they don't go quite so far overboard.

Whatever happened to movies about nice people?

Exception To One-Armed Rule

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—Luther O. Craft, 50, a one-armed motorist, proved his point to Municipal Judge Clark M. Olmsted.

Craft demonstrated in court that he was unable to turn the steering wheel freely if he wore his wooden arm.

Judge Olmsted agreed that Craft should be exempt from the state law requiring a one-armed person to wear an artificial arm while driving.

Chimp Sidelined As 'Too Human'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Roy, long-time

star of the titillating chimpanzee show at the St. Louis Zoo, has been removed from the cast.

"He just became too human," explained Mike Kostial, trainer in charge of the show.

"He couldn't stand to see any other chimp in the limelight." Roy screams and rattles the bars on his cage when the show goes on now. He gets particularly excited when he hears the music used in his starring numbers.

He finally lost his role when he chucked an assistant trainer into the moat around the stage.

N. C. Girl Will Play Eleanor Dare Role

MANTEO — Dianne Rousseau, now of stage, TV and movie star 20-year-old brunette of North Wilkesboro, will play the role of Eleanor Dare, the female lead of The Lost Colony during its 17th season beginning at Waterside Theatre here on Saturday, June 29. She is the fourth native of North Carolina to play this important role in the Paul Green drama which has lived longer than all other outdoor productions.

Miss Rousseau is a student of drama at Woman's College, Greensboro, where next year she will be a junior.

Previously North Carolinians cast in the role was Barbara Edwards of Troy, who is the wife of stage, TV and movie star Andy Griffith, who once played the Lost Colony role of Sir Walter Raleigh; Anne Martin, Cherokee; and Jan Saxon of Charlotte.

Miss Rousseau is one of the almost 100 actors in The Lost Colony cast this year. Many of the actors double in more than one role. The heaviest female speaking role is that of Eleanor Dare, who in the show is the mother of Virginia Dare, first child of English-parentage born in The New World. She plays opposite William Walsh, native of Rhode Island, who comes to Lost Colony from New York where he has been playing in Director Burnet Hobgood, director of The Lost Colony this year, has selected many new faces for principal roles in the drama as it will be presented during the current summer here. Rehearsals are now underway each day and night at Waterside Theatre in Fort Raleigh, or at the local dance and music studio in downtown Manteo.

Dr. Elwood Kelster of East Carolina College directs the Lost Colony chorus this year. John Lehman of the Lehman Dance Studio in Raleigh, is the show's choreographer.

General Manager Richard E. Jordan has announced that there will be no advance in the price of admission to the Lost Colony this year and the tickets are tax-free.

The Lost Colony, which tells the story of one of the greatest history-mysteries, is presented on the actual site of the original happenings of the story it tells. More than 800,000 persons have seen the show.

Nuclear Speedup For Vulcanizing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tires could be vulcanized with steam produced by nuclear energy far more efficiently than by present methods, says a University of Michigan nuclear engineer.

Richard A. Balzhiser told the American Nuclear Society that a 75-million watt reactor could vulcanize 17,000 tires daily compared to the present 12,500-tire capacity of a conventional plant.

Thoes Old Movies Shown On TV Had A Lost Humor

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—Some of the old movies are a boon to inveterate TV viewers in this dull summer season.

To be perfectly fair about it, there are some dreadful old movies. They don't seem to have quibbled much over authenticity when making movies in Hollywood back in the 1930's.

But there was plenty of fun — and, thanks to TV, there's still fun.

Probably I'm getting old, or jaded, but it seems to me they don't make movies these days as uncritically comic as "Bringing Up Baby," starring Cary Grant and Katharine Hepburn (vintage 1938).

Broad, yes. Slapstick, definitely.

But very fast. They pulled out all the stops and let her roar. Implausible and even impossible, it doesn't especially matter. Hepburn and Grant and Charles Ruggles and Barry Fitzgerald and May Robson seemed to be having a good time. So I had a good time too.

Perhaps the best thing about an old movie on TV is that you don't anticipate much good in it. You suspend hope before you turn it on, and so you suspend your critical faculties. Thus, whatever good you find in an old movie comes as a pleasant surprise.

Whether or not you've seen the movie before doesn't much matter. In fact, I seldom can remember whether I've seen it.

Premier Kishi And Dulles Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan's Prime Minister Kishi and Secretary of State Dulles buckle down to intensive marathon talks today aimed at creating a "new era" in Japanese-American relations.

Kishi will also address the Senate and House today.

He told Japanese newsmen in an embassy news conference last night he was highly satisfied with his first meeting with President Eisenhower yesterday. The two leaders conferred, lunched and golfed together for almost six hours.

Kishi said the opening talks with the President laid down broad general principles. His meetings with Dulles would follow the framework of these principles in ironing out specific problems.

Neither U.S. nor Japanese officials would say what the talks dealt with specifically, but it was acknowledged that the wide range of policy issues was explored.

This meant more than a dozen topics from trade with Communist China to revision of the mutual security treaty between Japan and the United States had been touched upon.

Mighty Nimrod With 3 Mice

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — A "Who's Who in Hunting" among student and faculty families was posted in barracks at Southern Illinois University's Chautauqua housing project.

It showed 11 men with their total season's kill of ducks, geese, quail, rabbits, squirrels and other game.

The last line read: "Maurine Olson—3 mice."

Bird In The Hand Out Of Nowhere

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP) — Somebody gave Dr. M. H. Roszmann the bird the other day.

The doctor was walking out the door of his home when a pheasant fell at his feet. Apparently wounded elsewhere by hunters, the bird managed to reach the Roszmann home before falling.

PASTOR PAYS OFF:—The Rev. Oren H. Whitton, pastor of the First Christian Church at Largo, Fla., keeps a promise to climb a grapefruit tree and sing a solo if his team lost in a Bible school attendance contest. John H. Mullins, superintendent of the school, and students listen to the pastor's singing. Mullins would have had to sing from an orange tree if his team had lost. Last Sunday's attendance at the Bible school was 203, which is greater than the entire membership of the church, Whitton said. (AP Wirephoto)

Phone Trouble Is Laid To Dog

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The telephone company trouble shooter was puzzled after Mrs. J. R. Jones told him:

"We never leave the receiver off the hook. We never answer any ring on the party line but our own."

The telephone rang into the room bounded Lindy, the family's sheep dog. With a sweep of his paw, Lindy knocked the phone from its stand, the receiver flying to the end of the cord.

There's no more trouble — the phone is now out of Lindy's battering reach.

HOT TIME
 SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — His mother picked up George Wilkins, 9, to warm his seat for playing with matches and found it already was warm.

Matches in his hip pocket had set his pants on fire. A doctor treated his burns.

Hoffa's Lawyers Seek New Delay

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — James R. Hoffa's lawyers tried today to win at least a week's continuance in the bribery-conspiracy trial of the midwest Teamsters boss.

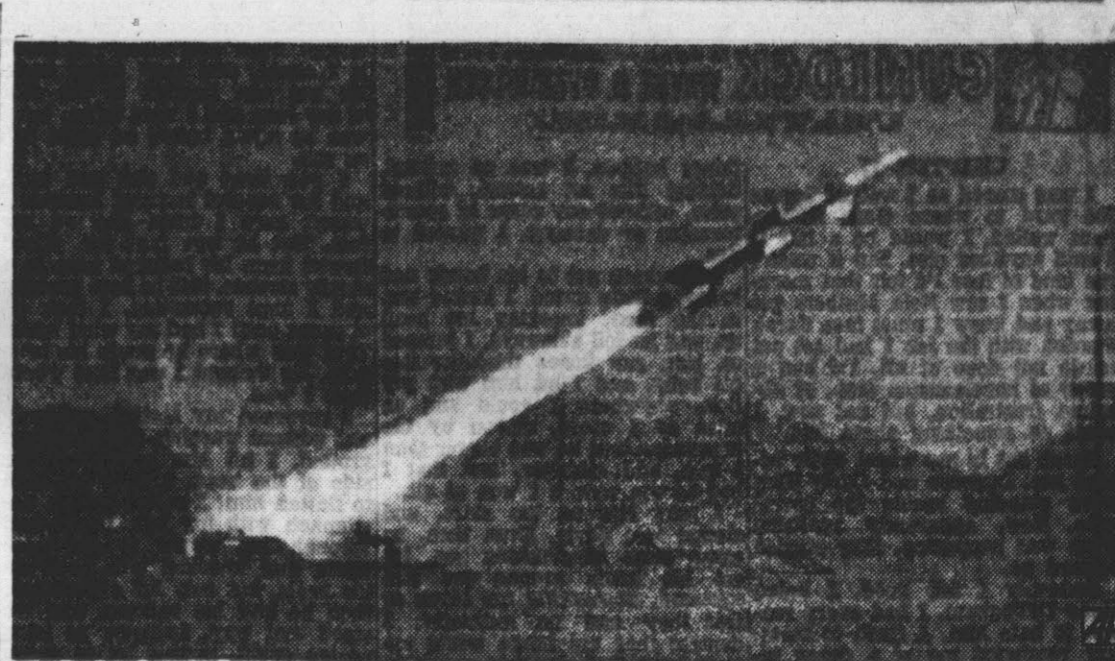

Both Hoffa and Fischbach also told the Appeals Court they were being deprived of their constitutional rights to a fair and impartial trial because of what they said was an "avalanche of publicity" accompanying the Senate rackets probe.

They asked for a delay in their trial until this allegedly hostile atmosphere was dissipated, or at least a one-week continuance.

Attorneys for Hoffa and Fischbach have made a series of attempts to get delays in the trial, but all they obtained up to now was a two-day postponement in the start of the trial from last Monday to yesterday.

CALM PILOT

GRAND PRAIRIE, Alta. (AP) — Norm Wyborn, 21-year-old student pilot with seven flying hours, landed perfectly without damaging his single-engine craft here after a wheel dropped off during the take-off. He skidded the plane to a stop on one wheel and an axle.

TALOS MISSILE TAKES OFF:—A Talos missile gathers speed in zooming from its launching platform on the proving ground at White Sands, N. M. The picture was released in Washington by the Department of Defense. The missile locks into its target after becoming airborne. It is capable of delivering a high explosive or nuclear warhead at the lowest and also the highest altitudes an airplane can fly, the Defense Department said. It also can be used against ship and shore targets. (U. S. Navy Photo via AP Wirephoto).

WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER

CHAPTER 17

I was scared as I walked across the yard to where Gene Dillingham waited. I would be a fair if I said anything else. But it wasn't the kind of fear I'd felt that morning when I saw Nela Mathers get away and knew I must face Sarah Pardee with the job I had set out to do not done at all. I'd had a sense of hopelessness then, of absolute frustration, but not now. I could do something about this.

Sarah sat in her wheel chair behind me. Dogbone and Curly King were standing beside the corral gate. Now, apparently realizing what was happening, they started toward us.

Suddenly I felt good. I hated Gene Dillingham. I had every reason to hate him. A flash of memory reminded me of a dozen incidents I had suffered at his hands.

Gene Dillingham had reason to hate me, too. He was probably jealous of everyone who had meant anything to Joe Pardee. But it must have been far worse after Joe's death when Sarah had made me foreman and half-owner of the ranch. He was not a man who could swallow his pride, so he had waited, hoping he would have the satisfaction of seeing me fail. But I hadn't, and now this was all that was left.

We were twenty feet apart when he ran toward me. I stopped, my fists cocked in front of my face. He started a blow from his knees, but missed and swung off balance. I caught him squarely on the point of his jaw and knocked him flat on his back.

After that I was a little crazy. Landing the first blow gave me an advantage, and I could not afford to let up. Dillingham would kill me if he could, or break an arm, or gouge my eyes out. Because I couldn't let any of those things happen, I was an animal, fighting like an animal, without rules, without any sense of sportsmanship or decency. I wanted to live.

Dillingham got to his hands and knees, a little dazed. I kicked him in the face, knocking his head up, and he fell sideways. I jumped on him, my knees thudding into his belly, and I hit him with my fists, anywhere I could and as often as I could, driven by the knowledge that he was bigger than I was, and stronger, and that I had to win now if I won at all.

I hurt him at the start, and slowed him down. Even then, he came close to finishing me. He got his arms around me and squeezed, smothering my blows so that they had no authority. I thought that my lungs would explode and that he was going to break every rib in my body.

From a long way off I heard Curly's yell: "Bust out of it, Will! Bust out of it!" I squirmed and twisted, using my elbows and fists and boots, but I accomplished nothing. We rolled over and over on the ground, dust rising around us in a thick cloud.

I couldn't break out of his grip. He was too strong, too heavy. He wasn't trying to hit me. He was willing to take any punishment I could give him, which wasn't much. We rolled over until I was on top. I slammed my head down as hard as I could. I got him on the nose and flattened it and brought a gush of blood. His grip went slack, just for a moment, but long enough for me to break loose.

I rose to my feet and backed away, trying to get my breath. He'd have had me if he'd held on another ten seconds, and I think he knew it. He was on his feet at once, spat out a mouthful of blood, and rushed me. I kept backing up, still laboring for breath, but it seemed a long time before I got it. During that time I did nothing except duck and block his blows if I could, and keep going back. He got one through to the side of my face and I went down, but I was up again before he could fall on me.

I was tired and sick and hurt, and for several tortured seconds I wasn't sure I could stay on my feet. But he was hurt too. Blood flowed from his battered nose in a steady stream. Still he kept pushing and I kept retreating. I took no chances until I had my wind back. That was where he made his mistake. He thought I was hurt worse than I was.

I reversed my tactics, suddenly and without warning, and stood my ground. I hit him solidly on the side of the head, a little too high to flatten him; I nailed him in the stomach with my left. I smashed through his guard to his face again and knocked him back on his heels, but only for a moment; then he had his balance, and we stood that way, swinging as hard as we could, getting hit in order to hit.

He slammed a right to my jaw that almost finished me. If he had landed it in the first of the fight, he'd have knocked me cold, but now much of the steam was gone from his punches. Still, it started the ground to spinning and I went back again, intent only on staying on my feet. Then my head cleared and we were at it again.

I was so tired that it was a great effort to swing a fist. Then my numb brain realized that he was as badly off as I was. We had fought ourselves into a state of exhaustion, our faces masses of cuts and bruises. My left eye was closed. Both of his were puffy.

Suddenly I stepped back. He held his fists in front of the face and shoved his head forward, peering as if trying to find me. I came in, as fast as I could, but I suppose I was actually slow; I cracked him on the jaw and he went down, slowly, sort of rocking forward, and fell on his face. I backed up and stood against a cottonwood, the sound of my breathing an ugly rasping noise to my own ears, so tired I could not have stood up by myself.

"Come here and get his gun, Dogbone," Sarah called. "Bring his horse, Curly. Lift him into the saddle. Don't ever come back, Gene! Do you hear?"

Only then did I realize he had not been knocked out. I just hadn't hit him hard enough. I was too far gone to have the strength. His hatred and desire to hammer me into blood pulp were not enough to keep him fighting. He'd quit.

He got to his hands and knees and stared at the house, trying to see Sarah. Dogbone came with the gun belt and wrapped it around the saddle horn. Together Curly and the Ute boy got him into the saddle.

He left, riding like a sack of wool, almost falling out of the saddle at times; and it came to me that it was not over and that it would no be over until Gene Dillingham was dead. That was the last thing I remembered clearly. My knees were rubber. Now they gave and I slid to the ground, the bark of the tree raking my back as I fought to hold myself upright, and falled.

When I came to, I was in bed in the house. My body was one great ache. I could not take a deep breath. One eye was still swollen shut. As I lay on my back and thought about it, I wasn't sure I had actually whipped Dillingham. Or if I had, it had been by a very small margin.

"Will!" I had not realized until then that Sarah was sitting beside me. Slowly and painfully I turned my head. She had been crying again.

"Is it bad, Will?" "No." "I should have fired him the day I made you foreman," she said sadly. "Ben Sawhill was right. I was afraid I'd make an outlaw out of him, but he's an outlaw now, isn't he?"

"Yes." I wondered what would happen to Gene Dillingham. I wished he were dead. He was not a man to forget he had been humiliated. He would strike back at me or at Sarah, or both of us. If he picked up his friendship with Merle Truener again, he might even throw in with the colonists.

Will feels the power of Kathy Morgan's fury: "Sarah has you wound around her little finger. Everybody in the valley knows it but you. She names the song and you sing it." Continue "Gunlock" here tomorrow.

Flea Troupe Is Killed By Heat

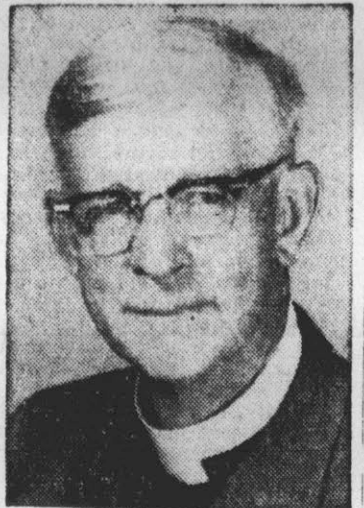

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Flea trainer Bob Matthews is looking for some new performers. His last troupe was wiped out by the current heat wave.

"They carried on right to the end," he said sadly. "I thought Freddy — he was the weight lifter — looked a little peaked after the afternoon show. And Hildregard couldn't finish her act. But I didn't know how bad it was." Matthews said all 24 of his fleas expired when the temperature hit 98 degrees in the amusement zone at the Long Beach Pike yesterday.

"But I'll get some more," he promised, casting an eye at a passing dog. "After all, the show must go on."

Rural Minister Of Year Named

RALEIGH — Dr. A. Rufus Morgan of Macon County, N. C. is named North Carolina "Rural Minister of the Year" in the July issue of the magazine.

A native of Macon County, Dr. Morgan served in a number of Episcopal pastorates in North and South Carolina before returning to his home county in 1940. He has

Khrushchev Says U. S. Fears Troop Withdrawal

TOKYO (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev says the United States bars the withdrawal of foreign troops from Western Europe because it fears the people of that area "might want something other than capitalism."

Asahi Shimbun, Japan's largest newspaper, today published a 3½-hour interview with the Soviet Communist party boss in which he declared U. S. reliance on military force to preserve peace in

"We would like to withdraw our troops from Germany, Poland, Hungary and other nations," Khrushchev said, "but America, Britain and France do not want to withdraw their troops."

Khrushchev called for a "united movement" on disarmament, nuclear weapons and peaceful co-existence. "I feel it would be a good idea for Russia to express its willingness to ban nuclear tests and for Japan, India, Red China and other Socialist and anticolonial countries to follow up with their declarations," he said.

The Russian Communist chief again asserted it is technically impossible to conceal nuclear test explosions, but said "Russia is ready to allow international inspection in Russia in return for inspections in the U. S., Britain, Canada and other points."

The Soviets announced last week at the U. N. Disarmament subcommittee talks in London that they would agree to a mutual inspection plan to help enforce a ban on nuclear tests.

Warning that "if war starts today, it will be a nuclear war," Khrushchev said Russia will make every effort to get talks going among the world's great powers.

Minimum Charge On Coffee Break

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — The high cost of living has hit the coffee break in Atlantic City. The manager of a mid-town restaurant has adopted a 25-cent minimum after 9 a. m. "to break up the two-hour conversations on one cup of coffee."

Signal Fire Was All-Consuming

FREDERICK, MD., (AP) — When Norman Stilley's truck broke down he placed a warning flare and went for help.

He returned to find the truck in charred ruins.

Made Her Angry

NORTH SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Thieves finally made Mrs. Grace Sebastian angry.

Police said she told them she didn't care enough to report the theft of a $100 watch, $80 in cash, $100 worth of liquor and some gas from the car over a period of six weeks.

"But when they took my seven books of trading stamps I got mad," she complained. "I licked every stamp myself."
