U.S. Agrees To Begin Pull Out Ground Troops Based In Japan

Movement To Begin In July; Schedule Further Reductions Within Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—About 30,000 U.S. ground combat troops will start pulling out of Japan next month in accordance with a decision reached by President Eisenhower and Japanese Prime Minister Kishi.

A joint communique issued last night at the end of three days of consultations between the two leaders announced the "prompt withdrawal of all U. S. ground combat forces from Japan."

The statement also said that within the next year there would be a substantial reduction in the total U. S. forces in Japan. Secretary of State Dulles told newsmen about 100,000 U. S. servicemen now are stationed in Japan.

The statement said the two men "discussed the early cessation of both the testing and the manufacture of nuclear weapons as part of a first step in a safeguarded disarmament program."

Japan's strong views against further nuclear tests, the communique added, are being taken into account in formulating the U. S. position at the current London disarmament talks.

Hodges Selects New Seven-Man Highway Body

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges named a new State Highway Commission yesterday and charged it with the responsibility of looking at the road-building needs of the state on a statewide basis.

In announcing the appointments, the governor pointed out that under the reorganization plan, approved by the General Assembly, the commission, reduced from 15 to 7 members, will represent the state and not the individual road districts.

Col William T. Joyner, prominent Raleigh attorney, was named chairman of the new commission. The governor also announced he was naming former Mayor Harold T. Makepeace of Sanford to a newly-created Highway Commission post as public contact man for secondary roads.

Other members appointed were Robert Bunnelle of Asheville, publisher of the Asheville Citizen-Times and former foreign correspondent and later general executive of The Associated Press.

Lee White of Concord, chairman of the Cabarrus Board of County Commissioners. Ralph Howland of Elkin, public relations director for Chatham Manufacturing Co. there and former newspaperman and correspondent for The Associated Press.

State Sen. Cular Moore of Lumberton, former chairman of the State ABC Board. E. L. White of Wilmington, retired businessman and former mayor of Wilmington. And Fletcher Gregory of We-don, vice president of the Bank of Halifax and chairman of the Weldon School Board. Joyner was a member of the Pearsall Committee which made plans under which North Carolina met the school segregation crisis.

Children Flee Before Tornado That Killed 10

Unidentified children run for their lives in front of the terrifying funnel of a tornado which killed ten persons and injured at least 85 at Fargo, N. D. Thursday night. The storm approached from plains west of the city and cut a path of destruction 20 blocks long and five blocks wide. The massive black cloud tower was more than 10 miles high. (AP Wirephoto).

Fargo Tornado Damage Placed At $10 Million

FARGO, N. D. (AP)—A survey shows more than 1,500 homes were destroyed or damaged in the tornado which killed 10 and injured more than 80 in its deadly sweep into a Fargo residential area Thursday night.

While the battered city still combed debris today for more possible victims, an American Red Cross study disclosed 329 houses were leveled and 1,135 others damaged, 202 of them to a major degree.

Unofficial estimates put losses at upwards of 10 million dollars. About 50 of the injured still were hospitalized. Among those in critical condition was Mrs. Don Tigen, who was found late yesterday in the rubble of their home where her husband's body had been recovered earlier.

The Red Cross reported three churches and three schools destroyed, with two other churches heavily damaged. Fifteen business places, mostly neighborhood shops were wiped out and 30 others had major damage. The tornado wrecked 200 autos and damaged another 300.

The Red Cross said it was feeding more than 1,500 storm victims from mobile kitchens. They were being housed in dormitories of N.-th Dakota Agricultural College.

"More terrible than anyone can imagine without seeing it," commented North Dakota Gov. John Davis after a tour of the stricken area yesterday.

Another One Praise And Some Disappointment In Hodges' Talk

NEW YORK (AP)—A new "mad bomber" is plaguing police. A home-made live bomb was found today in an unused stairwell of the Broadway-LaFayette Street Independent Subway station—the second in a week to be found there.

Beside the bomb was a note asking: "Is this still crude?" His apparently was a reference to reports from police that the first bomb, found last Sunday, was crudely constructed.

The original mad bomber, George Metesky, 54, of Waterbury, Conn., has been in custody since his arrest last Jan. 22. He was committed to an insane asylum April 18.

The governor also expressed his disappointment at the Legislature's failure to enact a legislative reapportionment and minimum wage law.

In a radio-TV talk in which he reviewed the work of the recent General Assembly, Gov. Hodges said the adoption of the change in the allocation formula by which the taxable income of business having operations in more than one state is measured for taxation by North Carolina was the major accomplishment of the 1957 General Assembly.

The governor said that in providing the teacher pay increases the Legislature demonstrated it represented the state in doing all it could in its power to provide the proper education to the children of the state.

Pitt Delegates Leave Tomorrow

Pitt County representatives to the fifty annual convention of the State Association of County Commissioners and tax supervisors will leave tomorrow for Raleigh, site of this year's convention.

Commissioners J. Vance Perkins, second vice-president of the State Association of County Commissioners will lead the official delegation. Accompanying him will be B. Alton Gardner, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, and H. Reginald Gray, county auditor. Other members of the board, Woodrow Wooten, Robert Little and R. L. Martin are expected to attend sessions during the three-day meeting.

Perkins is in line to step up to the state association's first vice-presidency in elections Wednesday morning. Elections will be held immediately prior to adjournment of the convention.

Among business sessions planned for the convention are an open meeting of the Board of Directors of the State Association of County Commissioners Monday morning; a panel on rural fire protection Tuesday morning; and discussion of 1957 legislation Tuesday afternoon. Commissioner Wally G. Dunham of Forsyth County will lead the discussion on rural fire protection and members of the Institute of Government will direct discussion of legislation enacted by the 1957 General Assembly.

Attending the joint session last night were commissioners B. Alton Gardner, Woodrow Wooten, Robert Little and R. L. Martin; and Welfare Board members Vernon Cox, Bob Young and K. T. Futrell, county superintendent of public welfare.

Commissioners will continue study of the budget next week and have tentatively planned to meet again Thursday night in the Court House. The session next week, as have been the four previous budget study meetings, will be devoted solely to consideration of the budget. Regular county business will not be discussed until the regularly scheduled meeting on July 1.

Embattled Hells Canyon Bill Now Faces House Test

WASHINGTON (AP)—The controversial Hells Canyon dam bill, passed by the Senate yesterday, was headed today for the House and an uncertain fate.

The Senate voted 45-38 to authorize a high federal dam which would flood the sites of three proposed private utility dams in the Hells Canyon area of the Snake River, bordering Idaho and Oregon.

It was a dramatic victory for public power advocates and a smarting defeat for the Eisenhower administration, which favors the three-dam plan of the Idaho Power Co.

If the bill should pass the House, it is considered likely President Eisenhower would veto it. His administration consistently has encouraged private construction of dams which are not too big for private industry to handle.

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), a leading opponent of the measure, said he would make no prediction but he had a "strong belief" Hells Canyon "would never become law."

White House pressure and the desertion of some Southern Democrats were blamed for Senate rejection of similar legislation last year, 51-41.

Yesterday, five Southern Democrats and two Republicans who had voted against last year's bill all swilled over to vote for legislation co-sponsored by 23 senators. Soon after the announcement of the vote, which evoked cheers and applause from crowded Senate galleries, Sen. Potter (R-Mich) accused Northern Democrats of having "sold out" the civil rights bill to win Southern Democratic votes for Hells Canyon.

Supreme Court Delays Vacation For Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has postponed vacation plans to hear arguments July 8 on whether Army Specialist 3. C. William S. Girard should be turned over to the Japanese to face trial for manslaughter.

The high court acted late yesterday on a plea by Aity. Gen. Brownell that fast action was needed because "further delay will seriously aggravate an already unfortunate strain on United States-Japanese relations."

Girard, of Ottawa, Ill., is accused in the firing range death last January of a Japanese woman who was scavenging for scrap metal. She was fatally wounded by an empty cartridge case fired from a grenade launcher. Girard has said the death was an accident.

Welfare Dept. Budget Studied

Pitt County Commissioners and the Welfare Board met in joint session last night for preliminary discussions of the Welfare Department's budget requests for the 1957-1958 fiscal year.

The commissioners also made a group study of requests from the Health Department, Mental Health Service, Dog Fund and Hospital Fund. No final figures for the departmental budgets were made last night.

Boy And Rescuer Die In Cistern

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—An 11-year-old boy and a man who tried to save him suffocated in an abandoned cistern here yesterday.

The boy, Ralph Lewis Williams, became trapped in the cistern while playing in his back yard. The would-be rescuer, Vernon Hogue, 52, was a neighbor. Both were Negroes.

Interpreted COLUMBUS, S. C. (AP)—The South Carolina Agriculture Commission has received a request for information on "an anguished cow." Commissioner Bill Harrison commented, "Meant an Angus."

Several County Funds Counting On Larger State And Federal Sums Next Year

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Staff Writer. Nearly all of the 14 funds in Pitt County's budget would have to take bigger bites out of county funds if the Board of County Commissioners gives them all the money the funds are seeking.

CHAPTER 19 Red Thurston was a good cowhand...

The only effort that had been made to keep John Mathers and the colonists out of the valley was...

Because we were busy with spring roundup until the last of May, I didn't hear much of the valley news...

I put up a sign east of Carlton: Box P Range. No Admittance Except on Business...

That was the body of the letter, and it said all I wanted to say I did not show it to Sarah...

Costello owned Skul, and Brahms the Rafter A, spreads about the size of the Box P that lay to the south of us...

"We're calling a meeting of the ranchers for tonight in the schoolhouse," Costello said...

"With-Ansner?" I asked. Costello swore. "No, you heard who's going to rod Anchor?"

I wasn't surprised. Mathers had said he trusted Turner. I looked at Red Thurston. He said, "Might as well turn a wolf loose in the valley."

Costello nodded. "That's a fact. I heard he was responsible for Mathers coming here. He ain't one to forget a grudge."

I didn't believe Mathers knew Turner's background or reason for returning to the valley, but whether he did or not, this looked like trouble...

Costello and Brahms were watchin' gme closely. Brahms said, "We want you at the meeting tonight, Beeson."

I shook my head. "Not me. We had a chance to work together. I talked to every cowman in the valley at least once during the winter, and I was after Dodson a dozen times to do something, but..."

Ronita Respass Is Style, Beauty, And Figure Conscious

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

What is "Miss Greenville's" beauty secret? Her quick answer is, "Being natural, both in looks and actions plus a friendly smile. Anyone can be pretty if they are pleasant."

Ronita has lovely, clear complexion which she accredits to good old soap and water.

This 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Respass has been on a merry-go-round since Friday night of last week when she was crowned at the local beauty pageant. She leaves July 10 for Burlington where she will represent Greenville at the "Miss North Carolina" contest.

Fashion Tips

During these hot, humid days nothing looks smarter than the crisp, cool blue sheath cotton dress with beige accessories that Ronita wears during the afternoons when she is a part-time secretary for a local attorney.

In the mornings she is an East Carolina coed majoring in business.

For the many social events that she will be attending, "Miss Greenville" chooses a gray silk shantung dress styled with a short jacket that is set off with a gray and white trim and a big saucy bow. Topping her dark brown hair is a white cocktail hat to complete her outfit.

When buying a dress, Ronita looks for simplicity of style and color which can be later dressed up or down with the correct accessories. She mentions that, "I always look at the labels, instead of taking the saleslady's word for the qualities of the garment."

Another important thought she brought out was, "When I buy a dress, I consider whether it will be good for next year as well as now."

The attractive powder blue linen sheath that she models above is an example of the style dress she prefers. Although the dress is simple, the white flower and white accessories that Ronita teams with it give it a fashionable air.

She warns, "When you buy clothes—look for those that complement your figure and complexion. I like to have clothes that are different, not like anyone else, for what looks good on some people may not look good on me."

Her white ruffled net evening dress which she poses in above complements her nice tan and dark striking features.

Basic Colors

Although Ronita does not have an elaborate wardrobe, her's does include basic colors of green and blue with a few neutral shades of black, white and gray which she complements with varying accessories.

Shoes are her favorite wardrobe item which she also buys with foresight.

For the state contest she will have a full suitcase as she plans to take a rose silk party dress with a sheer silk coat, a black and white linen sheath dress with a black coat, several basic cotton dresses, a white bathing suit, evening gown, the gray silk dress and jacket modeled above, shorts and tops, and varied accessories.

"Miss Greenville" stays active by participating in college physical education courses in order to keep her trim figure. "I have to cut out sweets—not completely—as sugar is needed for energy," she explains.

Incidentally, she is going steady with Gene Vann of Goldsboro, a sophomore at East Carolina College.

Frozen Foods Appeal To Modern Homemaker Today

By LILLIE B. LITTLE

Frozen foods have become a way of life. The homemaker today is freezing more foods, buying more frozen foods, and using more frozen foods than ever before. Everybody can enjoy a variety of foods both out of season and non-seasonal.

This method of food preservation has a special appeal to the modern homemaker because it is quick, convenient and easy. Less cooking is involved—and so the discomfort of working in a hot kitchen on a summer day is reduced.

Right now homemakers in Pitt County are in the midst of a busy freezing season. And since they are going to eat frozen foods they might as well eat good frozen foods. By following a few simple rules they can be of top quality.

Fruits and vegetables for freezing should be a good freezing variety. They should be picked at the stage they are just right for table use—neither under nor over-ripe. Don't make the mistake of eating the "best of the season" and trying to salvage what is left by freezing. Freezing will not improve the quality of food.

Most fruits and vegetables deteriorate rapidly after harvesting, losing their color, flavor and vitamins. Meats of course spoil quickly if not given proper attention. Fruits and vegetables should be frozen as quickly as possible to assure "garden fresh" flavor. If delay is unavoidable, keep food under refrigeration or cool in ice water.

Your foods will be easier to handle after thawing if a little care is used in preparation before they are frozen. All foods should be washed, trimmed and sorted; then sliced or cut just as desired for freezing. Package in units of a suitable size for the family's use.

All vegetables should be blanched according to recommendations for each variety. Immediately after blanching, plunge vegetables into cold water for at least 1 1/2 times the blanching period to allow thorough chilling. Always use cold water in washing, hulling or pitting of fruit prior to packaging. Ice water helps to firm delicate fruits and berries. To stop spoilage it is important to keep meats, poultry and seafoods cool during preparation and packaging.

Proper packaging is one of the most important steps in the successful freezing of foods. A good package must be made of moisture-vapor proof materials and tightly sealed to prevent loss of moisture and oxidation. Without the protection provided by proper packaging, frozen foods will dry out and oxidize, causing loss of color, flavor, texture and nutritive value.

For best results frozen foods should be stored at zero degrees. Keep a thermometer inside the freezer so a rise in temperature can be detected immediately.

If you hear someone say, "My frozen beans just are not good," it is a pretty safe bet that they have not observed some important factor that would have given a quality product.

American Legion Auxiliary Honored

At the State Convention of the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary held in Durham on June 13, 14, 15 and 16, the Greenville Auxiliary received citations, a certificate and an award.

Auxiliary delegates attending the convention from Greenville were Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, president; Mrs. Martha Forrest, poppy chairman; and Mrs. W. C. Eagles, first vice-president.

Mrs. Raymond Fuson of New Bern was elected State Department president of the Auxiliary, succeeding Mrs. Paul J. Johnson of Hendersonville.

Pitt County Unit 39 of the American Legion Auxiliary received a Department Citation for having met the requirements for the year 1957 and also a National Membership Citation. It received a Department Membership Certificate which entitles it to enrollment on the Honor Roll and a $5 award from the District Committee Woman Mrs. Evelyn G. Collins of Ayden, for being the first unit to meet all state requirements.

A parade highlighted the third day of the convention. The social part of the program included a luncheon for the past president, a dance, a tea, a banquet, and a square dance.

The four day convention closed with memorial services on Sunday morning.

At Your Service, The Very Best

North Carolinians can count themselves fortunate that they have at their service a Highway Patrol which is considered by the International Association of Chiefs of Police as the most efficient traffic control law enforcement agency in the nation.

The honor which has come to North Carolina's Highway Patrol is even more significant when one considers that the agency in this state must do its job with considerably less personnel and equipment than are provided state police in other states.

The "Outstanding Achievement Award of 1956" is a fitting tribute to the Patrolmen of this state. It is a tribute to the men who spend long hours every day traveling thousands of miles on the state's highways. It is also a tribute to the administrative officials who in recent years have steered North Carolina into the most ambitious traffic safety program ever undertaken in this state.

Announcement of the honor which has been accorded North Carolina's Highway Patrol should not give the people of this state a sense of false security when they venture upon the highways. Rather it should impress upon the citizenry of this state far greater strides in building a better Highway Patrol, affording it additional personnel which is needed and providing it with sufficient equipment to do an even better job of making the highways safe.

In spite of the advancements in highway safety made in North Carolina primarily through the efforts of the Highway Patrol, there has not been a biennial budget period when the Patrol was denied funds for many improvements it sought. There has not been a legislature which did not turn thumbs down on proposed laws which the Motor Vehicles Department strongly recommended as means of providing for safer highways in North Carolina.

In spite of, or maybe because of its handicaps, North Carolina's Highway Patrol has done an outstanding job of protecting the lives of the people of this state. That does not mean that each year we haven't had to count the number of highway injuries in the thousands.

It does mean, however, that a less efficient, a less progressive Highway Patrol in North Carolina would have resulted in an even greater traffic toll than this state has experienced. Tar Heels owe a debt of gratitude to every member of the Highway Patrol organization in this state.

UN Command Had No Choice In The Matter

If U. N. forces are to remain in Korea and keep a balance of power with the Communist in North Korea, the U. N. Command had no choice but to bring in new weapons to match those which have gone to the Communist forces since the signing of the truce agreement almost four years ago.

Almost since the agreement was signed, the U. N. Command has pointed repeatedly to violations by the Communists of the provision which prohibited the introduction of new weapons by either force in Korea. The Communists have disregarded altogether this provision and have been constantly reinforcing their troops in North Korea.

It would be folly for the U. N. Command to allow itself to become completely outgunned if it expects to continue to occupy South Korea. To accept Communist violations of the treaty without supplying the U. N. troops with adequate weapons with which to defend themselves would be to invite another unprovoked Communist attack to the south.

It is an invitation the U. N. Command cannot afford to issue.

By building up its forces in Korea to match those of the Communists, the U. N. Command will be re-establishing the balance of power which existed at the close of the fighting in 1953—the balance which in theory should have existed since that time.

It is true that the announcement by the U. N. Command of its intention to reinforce its troops in Korea will provide propaganda ammunition for the Communists. It is also true that the U. N. Command for the past four years has constantly pointed out repeated violations of the armistice ban on new weapons by the Communists. As a result, a good deal of the wind has already been taken out of the propaganda sails of the Reds.

By its action the U. N. Command will be placing itself in a position to defend South Korea from Communist attack, and at the same time it will not place itself in a vulnerable position for a propaganda attack by the Reds.

Selling Career Has 16 Reasons

By ELMER ROESSNER

Sixteen reasons why an ambitious man should want to become a salesman were gleaned from a class in marketing at Washington University by Dr. Charles L. Lapp.

Recruiting salesmen is a recurring problem in industry. Some who seem best fitted for selling shy away from such jobs and, as any sales manager can tell you, those without qualifications come charging in at the first sign of an opening.

So Chuck Lapp, as he is known on the campus, polled his class for the arguments they would use if they were attempting to convince someone to become a salesman.

WHY SELL

Here are the 16 answers most frequently given:

1. Selling is interesting work.
2. It offers opportunity to meet people.
3. It is more rewarding financially than most other occupations.
4. A salesman has more freedom and a greater chance to be his own boss than most other employees.
5. Salesmen have a feeling of accomplishment in giving needed services to the public.
6. Their earnings are less likely to be cut back in a business downturn.
7. They are paid more nearly according to their ability than in most other jobs.
8. Selling is interesting because every sale is different.
9. Salesmen have greater chances of becoming an executive or of owning their own business than others.

10. Selling continuously offers a challenge.
11. It offers opportunities to travel.
12. It offers better chances of advancement on merit.
13. It offers the highest form of security: security within oneself.
14. It offers full play to creative abilities.
15. It develops the power of being more observant of others.
16. It is the most essential job in any business.

And then there was the young fellow in the last row who said, "Salesmen have a lot of fat expense accounts."

Professor Lapp is making the results of his poll public in the hope that it will enable sales managers to convince more college graduates that selling is one of the most desirable fields.

HOW TO ASK QUESTIONS TO GET SOLID ANSWERS

Speaking of polling, the professional pollsters have learned one trick that may be useful to all businessmen. It consists of asking pertinent questions in the third person.

If a stranger asks a man, "What do you think of President Eisenhower?" the one questioned will hesitate. He may feel that he is on a spot; that an answer either way may embarrass him, or that he won't be saying what's expected of him. In many cases he will talk around the subject until he thinks he detects a clue in the questioner's facial expression, and then try to give an answer he thinks the questioner wants.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

VALUE OF PRAYER

Jesus praying in Gethsemane constitutes one of the high points in the Gospel narrative.

There was nothing unusual about his procedure on that occasion. Every time Jesus had something hard to do, and disconcerting to confront, he resorted to prayer. When he had a great choice to make, he struggled for hours in prayer. Sometimes his prayers seem to have been brief; at other times he prayed for long periods, and once through an entire night.

All these circumstances lead us to see that Jesus won the outstanding battles of his life on the field of prayer. He never tired urging men to be constant in prayer. He had tried it and found it worked. He commended it to everyone else.

If it meant so much to Him—the perfect One, the only Being ever in complete accord with the divine will—how much more can it mean, and should it mean, to us. Life's greatest battles can be won on no other field. Life's overwhelming problems are solved in no other light. Life's weaknesses are supplanted by no other power.

More and more people are coming to realize this. Churches are full to overflowing. Sunday school enrollment has reached new highs. Religious books are best sellers.

We are not experiencing a religious revival but hungry-hearted men and women are groping.

In these times remember the value of prayer.

Highway Shoulder-Skips

My family and I saw those recently-applied paint stripes on the outer edges of U. S. 264 about three weeks ago, and they recalled the first time we saw them on vacation last summer.

This column "flipped" over those outside stripes on one occasion, and for good reason. We had started our trip in the pre-dawn hours and it was raining. Sky was heavily overcast and visibility was next to nothing... a strain on driving, believe me. Then we encountered a stretch of highway near Raleigh (US 64) which had those shoulder stripes, and they contributed mightily toward easier driving under otherwise poor conditions.

By coincidence, a magazine shortly afterward carried an article on the man who conceived this safety measure... John V. Dorr, of Westport, Conn.

A demonstration on the Merritt Parkway "sold" the idea to his native state; New York, New Jersey, Utah and Mississippi quickly adopted the shoulder-skips, and 19 other states were then in the process of trying them.

North Carolina adopted them last year.

To make a long story short, I dropped in at the Highway Commission building to get the word on how much of this sort of thing we could expect, how much had been done, and anything else that might be turned up. The man to see was J. D. Parker, Sign Supervisor for Division 2. He was out at the time, but would be found early in the mornings at his shop and office. So I went there before going to work next day.

For maybe 15 minutes he let his own work idle to sate my curiosity.

All U. S. highways in the Second Division now have "shoulder skips" (the term he used), barring stretches under construction or repair. The state highways are not generally included in the plan. Parker said one rather heavily-travelled state road (leading to Morehead City) now had shoulder-skips, and he would like to see them on the Greenville - Vanceboro highway. The work has been completed only in the past few days in this eight-county area.

The other Highway Divisions have either already gone into the program or are in the process of doing so.

Economically, this safety measure seems relatively cheap. Those indispensable center-lines on the highway require on the average about six gallons of paint to the mile. Shoulder-skips work out to about two gallons per mile.

Whereas my own enthusiasms are likely to run away with me, the Sign Supervisor was relatively calm in assaying the work as a good measure. His attitude is easy to understand, because his working day is devoted to motoring aids; the shop turns out hundreds upon hundreds of highway signs of all kinds.

There are many other highway safety measures and conveniences probably more valuable than shoulder-skips, but these are the newest and they were introduced to me at a time when they were shown to their best advantage. I like them, and should you be driving on a rainy, overcast night, you'll like them too.

Irish Warm Hosts

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

DOUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — When the first big wave of American tourists sweeps into Ireland this summer, they are sure to be accorded a warmer reception than the mainstream of Irish tourists received at our shores 100 years ago.

No one will try to sell them O'Connell Bridge, Nelson's Pillar or a half interest in a Wicklow shillelagh factory. No one will return the old Tammany greeting of a century ago by asking them to join Flanna Fail or the I. R. A. or present a letter from Lord Mayor Blisoco to get a lodging for the night.

And, unless they go round recklessly humming "My Country 'Tis of Thee," which has the same tune as the British national anthem, "God Save Our Noble Queen," they can stay for days, months, even years without having their skulls creased by an aforementioned shillelagh, which weapon, sad to say, has become exceedingly rare.

So rare, in fact, it is now made only for the tourist trade, not for hand to hand combat.

The plain fact of the matter is that Americans are popular in Ireland, perhaps more genuinely popular than anywhere else in Europe or the rest of the world. They speak almost the same language, dress in a reasonably similar fashion—sports shirts, sun glasses and cameras excepted—and have a common interest in such twofold pastimes as hunting, fishing and horsing.

Because of our two successful donnybrooks with England in the early days of the Republic, the Irish tend to look upon us as brotherly in the same grand and glorious cause.

Geographical ties, in many cases, are even closer. The Irish can be pardoned if they sometimes look upon the United States as a thriving suburb of Dublin. Two centuries of emigration have resulted in our having more people of Irish descent than Ireland itself. You'll travel a good many miles before encountering someone who does not have a brother or a nephew or a cousin in New York, Boston, Philadelphia or any of dozens of other cities from Maine to California where the Irish settled in large numbers.

"Ah, so you're from Boston," you are liable to be asked. "Then you must know Tim Flaherty's boy, Cornelius. A grand lad. Left here 35 years ago. They say he's a big man out there. In the drayman's business, so I'm told."

If you should, by any chance, happen to know Cornelius, all Ireland will be at your feet, like a huge green carpet of welcome.

If not, you'll still be treated in a manner that may surprise but seldom embarrass you. The Irish are relatively new at this tourist business and as yet have not become tip happy. They are a backward nation to the extent that no one has got around to telling them that the main purpose of tourism is to see how quickly and how cleanly the American visitor can be separated from his coveted dollars.

You'll find the people for the most part scrupulously honest, fiercely proud and independent, amazingly adroit in speech and humor, conservative in dress, particularly where women are concerned, and deeply religious.

Contrary to popular opinion, drinking is not the main sport. Everywhere you go you'll encounter men and women of all ages wearing the little red and white button that proclaims them to be "pioneers," total abstainers from all alcoholic beverages. On the other hand, the thirsty tourist will be glad to know that the distilleries and breweries have not yet been put on a standby basis.

Prices on most items are rock bottom. A room in the best hotel or at the finest resort will cost you less than $5 a night, which includes breakfast. Green fees on a championship golf course will be under $1, so will a good meal at all but the fanciest restaurants.

Other Editors Saying-- After 45 What?

(Wilson Times)

Retirement is much in the news these days. What healthy men, well qualified and trained are to do with their time is becoming of national concern. It is recognized that much talent and know-how is going to waste because of automatic retirement. The situation is posing a problem to real proportions.

Now the New York state labor department is concerned over another turn of events along the same line. For those 45 years of age are finding it hard to obtain employment.

The reasons given for not hiring those of the tender age of 45 are many. But the most controversial are first, they are less productive.

Surveys, says the New York industrial bulletin, show that quality and quantity of work by older employees is equal or superior to that of the younger ones.

Second reason was absenteeism. Facts show older workers have a 20 per cent better attendance record than the younger ones according to a 1956 U. S. labor survey.

Accidents are another reason given. Surveys show workers 45 and over had a 2.5 per cent fewer disabling injuries, 25 per cent fewer non-disabling injuries than those under 45.

Still another reason is the cost of providing pension benefits. Here the record shows this to be true in the majority of pension plans, because age is a factor here.

The same reason is given for company employ group insurance. This depends on the type of policy carried.

The absence of needed job skills was another reason. The article points out that the older worker is likely to possess more skills, training and knowhow than younger men seeking employment.

Then it is said they are unimaginative and inflexible and have trouble getting along with younger members of the firm. This may be true in isolated cases. But it could be said that young workers are inclined to be unreliable, inexperienced and not as dependable. The above traits cannot be catalogued. They vary in the individual and should be taken into consideration in the case history.

But the results of all the surveys, and arguments to and from are to point up the terrific loss of talent brought about by clinging to arbitrary age limitations. The pendulum has swung too far the other way. The nation is losing potential and experience it can ill afford to do without.

The public should demand a reevaluation of retirement, and a more realistic approach to the subject. There are many productive years left to men of 45 and older in this age of increasing longevity.

Stassen And The London Parley

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON "What was so wrong," inquires Mrs. S.H. of Los Angeles, "in Harold Stassen's action in giving the Russian delegate to the London disarmament conference an advance explanation of our position on that question? Won't the Eisenhower-Dulles 'rebuke' minimize his importance and prestige with the other nations' representatives there?"

Answer: Stassen's action had its advantages as well as its disadvantages, in Washington's opinion. Although he insists that he was not "rebuked," saying that he returned to Washington for instructions on only "procedural" matters, he was told by Secretary Dulles to be less vocal, less optimistic in his public statements on disarmament possibilities, and more tactful in dealing with the sensitive British and French.

As a result of our disagreement with those Allies over the Egyptian invasion, relations with them have been none too cordial.

President Eisenhower has made every effort to disabuse the Russians of any thought that the dispute is serious, or that it has affected our attitude adversely.

STASSEN'S DISREGARD FOR ALLIES In presenting Vallerian Zorin, the Russian representative, with an abstract of our views on nuclear disarmament, Stassen offended the British, the French and the Germans. It looked to them as if he considered them of no account, and was transforming the London parley into a two-nation arrangement.

His apparent disregard of our three Allies hurt the ruling parties in a political way. Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservatives were being losing strength in recent by-elections. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer faces a hard fight for re-election. Politics in France is shaky, with more than 20 different ministries since the end of World War II. Thus, Stassen gave comfort to the opposition when he seemed to bypass the existing regimes in his offside talks with Zorin. The "ins" protested to Dulles!

And yet, the Minnesotan acted in accord with growing sentiment that we should be more amenable to the Russian and Chinese Communists, and try to break through the "Iron Curtain." He may have helped to inspire the Moscow offer for a two or three-year abandonment of nuclear tests, together with mutual inspection centers. It is the best proposal the Kremlin has made on this grave problem.

But even this outcome is held against Stassen. His premature tip to Zorin, according to this viewpoint, exposed our disarmament hand to Khrushchev and Bulganin, and permitted them to outbid us, thereby winning a propaganda victory.

"Is it possible under existing laws," asks W.P., of Cimmaron, N.M., "for there to be (more than) 531 members of Congress? Why has the number of Representatives always been 435?"

Answer: There can, of course, be a larger Congressional membership any time that it so pleases the Congress to increase its number. It would take a Constitutional amendment to enlarge the Senate, for the Constitution provides that each state shall have two Senators.

REAPPORTIONMENT OF CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS? Legally, there should be a reapportionment of Congressional districts every 10 years, after the decennial census-taking. Congress, however, has rarely lived up to this law because increasing the membership would make that body unwieldy. An even greater obstacle to decennial readjustment is the fact that changing district boundaries and population might result in the defeat of incumbent members. They dislike unknown political factors.

There should be a redistricting because of the discrepancy in the population of various Congressional districts. Speaker Sam Rayburn probably has the smallest number of residents—277,000—whereas the average population in New York is 370,000.

McDaniel's 2-0 Win Gives Cards 1 1/2 Game Loop Lead

18-Year-Old Hurler Going Well For Cards

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

That's a pip of a four-game series the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox are having in the American League, but who needs 'em? Even Casey Stengel probably took time out today to read about Von McDaniel, the St. Louis Cardinals' whiz kid who leaves 'em blanked and blinking.

The 18-year-old righthander is just four weeks out of high school but hasn't given up a run yet in the majors. He stretched his shut-out string to 17 innings last night, hanging the Dodgers up to dry with a two-hitter for a 2-0 victory in his first start as the Cards padded their National League lead to 1 1/2 games.

To top it off, the 6-3 bonus kid, lured to the Cards from Hollis, Okla., by a $50,000 pact as was his brother, Lindy, in 1955, hasn't faced anyone but contenders in that hot NL race. He debuted in a one-hit, four-inning relief job for no decision against Philadelphia last week. Then he won with a repeat four-inning, one-hit relief job at Brooklyn last Sunday.

Now he has a 2-0 record, giving up just four hits.

While the Cardinals were winning their fourth in a row last night, the second-place Milwaukee Braves were dumped to their fifth defeat in six games, losing to Philadelphia 6-1. The Phils moved into third place, two games back, as Cincinnati slipped to fourth with a 3-2, 11-inning loss to Pittsburgh. The Redlegs are 2 1/2 behind. Fifth-place Brooklyn is 3 1/2 back.

The New York Giants out-waloped the Chicago Cubs 12-10 in 10 innings for their eighth victory in 10 games in the other NL game.

In the AL, the Yankees made it eight in a row and whittled the White Sox' lead to a half game with a 4-2 victory. Chuck Stobbs, who had lost 16 in a row, beat Cleveland 6-3 as Washington backed him up with hitting and good luck charms. Boston beat Kansas City 4-3. Detroit lost its fourth in a row, 6-5, at Baltimore.

The Dodgers picked Danny McDevitt, who struck out 11 in winning his first major league start at Cincinnati last Monday, to oppose McDaniel and he limited the Cards to two hits (both by Eddie Kasko) for his seven frames. The rookie southpaw lost it, charged with a hitless run in the sixth on two walks, a sacrifice and an infield out. The Cards made it five hits (none by Stan Musial, whose streak was stopped at 20 games) when it was over, collecting three in the eighth off Don Bessent with Don Blasingame's triple and Al Dark's single scoring the other run.

Both Brook hits came in the sixth. When an error was charged by Junior Gilliam's infield hit and Duke Snider's bunt single to load the bases with none out, McDaniel then got Elmer Valo on a pitcher-to-home-to-first double-play and retired Gino Cimoli on a tap to the mound.

The Phillies slugged 12 hits while shelling Lee Burdette to his fourth defeat. Rookie Ed Bouchee drove in five runs as Curt Simmons won.

Hank Foiles drove in two Pirate runs, singling for the clincher off reliever Hal Jeffcoat. Bob Purkey won it, after the Bucs had tied it in the ninth.

The giants scrambled from behind with a five-run ninth, capped by rookie Andre Rodgers' first major league grand-slammer, only to see the Cubs score four in their half to tie it 10-10. Then Danny O'Connell and Bobby Thomson, the ex-Braves, put it away with homers in the 10th.

The Yankees took their opener of the showdown set with the White Sox as Johnny Kucks won his fourth with the help of a neat three-inning mop-up job by Bob Grim. Enos Slaughter, Bobby Richardson and Mickey Mantle each had two hits in an eight-hit attack against righthander Jim Wilson.

The Senators handed out rabbits' feet and lucky coins to the fans in the mass assault on Stobbs' slump. The veteran lefty struck out seven.

A two-run pinch single by Bob Hale chased Detroit's Jim Bunning a three-run ninth-inning Oriole rally climaxed by Billy Gardner's single off reliever Don Lee. Ken Lehman, late of Brooklyn, won it in relief.

Jackie Jensen drove in three runs with a homer and double as Willard Nixon won his fifth for the Red Sox.

State Bankers Take Seventh Teen-er Win

State Bank baseballers ran wild over winless College View Cleaners and Laundry last night at Guy Smith stadium, winding up the first half of Teen-er League play with a 14-4 victory.

The triumph placed the Bankers atop the league for the first half of play, with a 7-1 record. Following in the standings is the Home Builders team, with a 6-2 mark. Guaranty Bank is third. College View, not having won a single game in eight, is on bottom.

Last night, Randy Bass hurled five-hit ball for the Bankers, chopping down 10 CV batters via the strikeout route and walking only two. Bats started for the losers and was relieved soon by Griffith. It was Bats' loss.

Both College View hurlers were rapped for a total of 11 hits, including three doubles and home runs by shortstop Allen McArthur and catcher Aubrey Harrison.

State Bank unleashed nine big runs in the very first inning to secure the game. After that, they settled back and toyed with the CV pitchers when at the plate, and let Bass do most of the work while in the field. It was an easy victory.

Jimmy Gilbert of Bowling Green, Ky., has climbed 25 feet into a coconut tree to play his ball on the 17th hole in the Southern Amateur Golf tournament at Miami Beach, Fla. He found two other golf balls in the palm branches and hit the wrong ball at first. That cost him two strokes and a 2-1 loss in match play to Henry Russell of Miami. (AP Wirephoto).

Winston-Salem Defeats Wilson On Krol's Hit

CAROLINA LEAGUE

The Winston-Salem Red Birds gained a 3-7 victory over Wilson in a 13-inning affair last night that was broken up with a homerun by Jack Krol. The victory narrowed Durham's Carolina League lead to 2 1/2 games.

Greensboro took a double header from Danville, 9-1 and 5-4. The Hi-Toms defeated the Durham Bulls 8-5 count as they knocked out 17 hits.

There was one man out when Krol hit his homer to end a lengthy ball game and permit runnerup Winston-Salem to gain.

The lead will be at stake today and tomorrow when the clubs meet in a three-game series.

Jack Taylor, righthanded veteran, spaced Durham's six hits to garner his eighth win against seven losses this season for the Hi-Toms. The Hi-Toms scored three in the fourth of five hits and then added four more hits to two Durham errors for five runs in the fifth inning.

Greensboro banged out six hits around nine walks, scoring all their runs in the first four innings of the seven inning opener, and then staved off a late Danville rally.

The Pats also scored in each of the first five innings of the nightcap to complete the twin-killing. Southpaw Chuck Smith kept the Leafs under control. Solo homers for Greensboro were slugged by Hal Buckwalter in the third and Shep Frazier in the fifth.

Swimming Class To Begin Work In Farmville

FARMVILLE — Free swimming lessons at the Farmville swimming pool will begin Monday at 10:30 a.m.

Hour-long sessions will be conducted each Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning throughout the summer. Swimming pool director Elbert Moye will conduct the classes and will be assisted by Jane Russell.

Moye said today that instructors are able to handle about 50 children in each of the classes. There are some vacancies for children who desire to take the lessons, he added.

The director also said that although the lessons are free, children who participate in the program will be required to pay ten cents for admission to the pool for the classes.

The pool's regular morning swimming periods will not be interrupted by the classes. Morning swim periods are from 9:30 until 11:30. Other daily operating periods are from 2 o'clock until 5:30 in the afternoon and from 7 until 9 o'clock at night. The pool is open from 2 o'clock until 5:30 on Sunday afternoons.

Admission prices for the swimming periods are ten cents for children and 25 cents for adults.

The pool, which is the county's only public swimming pool, has been averaging about 350 customers per day since it opened early this month. Sunday's total of 588 is the record thus far this summer.

Moye said the pool which was placed in operation in 1934 can accommodate about 200 swimmers at one time and efforts are made to limit the total of swimmers to that number.

Unknowns Lead Flint Tourney

FLINT, Mich. — The so-called "unknowns" among the touring golf professionals were a step ahead of the big names today as the 1957 Flint Open entered the position round.

Bob Rosburg of San Francisco hiked his lead to four strokes at the halfway mark yesterday on the 72-hole event at the Flint Golf Club after firing his second straight sub-par round and a total of 65-69-134.

His most serious challengers were coming from the younger set. Bob Duden of Hermosa Beach, Calif., Bert Weaver of Beaumont, Tex., and Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Fla., along with the veteran Ted Kroll, were deadlocked for second place with 138.

Ken Venturi, the youngster from San Francisco; Paul Harney, a comparative newcomer from Bolton, Mass.; and young Don Whit of Alameda, Calif., were another stroke behind.

Par for the 6,625-yard course is 36-35-71.

The three former winners of the tournament who could take home $10,700 ($5,000 bonus plus $5,700 first place money) for a victory here were at least eight strokes off the pace. Defending champion Dow Finstwald, and the 1953 winner Doug Ford, the current Masters champion, and leader money winner for the year, were even with par at 142. Another former winner, Julius Boros, recovered nicely with a 69 after an opening 75 for a 144 total.

Scurlock Leading Carolina's Dave

DAYTON, Ohio — Dave Scurlock of the University of North Carolina was one of the leading qualifiers for today's finals in the half-mile run of the 69th National AAU Track and Field meet here.

Scurlock won one of last night's qualifying heats in 1:52.7. Tom Carroll of the New York Athletic Club won the other heat in 1:52.

Dave Sime of Duke, one of the co-holders of the world's 100-yard dash mark at :9.3, finished second to Leamon King of the University of California in last night's finals.

King won in the so-so time of :9.7, beating Sime by an inch.

The finals of the 120-yard low hurdles was won last night by Lee Calhoun of the North Carolina College in the time of 14.2. Elias Gilbert of Winston-Salem Teachers College was second.

Dallas Tourney In Second Round

DALLAS — The Trans-Mississippi golf tournament moved into its double round today with defending champion Charley Coe of Oklahoma City meeting a colleague, Z Northrup of Owatonna, Minn., in the quarterfinals.

Youth held six of the eight places and it will be the second straight test for Coe, the 33-year-old four-time winner of the Trans, against one of the "rah-rah" boys. Lean Charley, captain of the Walker Cup team, survived the first one yesterday when he whipped Jim Hickey, the crewcut from Potacello, Idaho, by way of the University of Houston, 2 and 1. Northrup is from Lamar Tech College.

'Converted' Into Becoming A Hobo

LOS ANGELES — The Rev. Frank Jennings of London, England, says that 35 years ago he took a bum into his house.

"I was so interested by the life he described that I became a tramp myself."

That was in 1922. Since then Jennings, called the Tramp Parson, has roamed the world, sleeping in hobo jungles and working sometimes as a day laborer "all the time striving to win souls to Christ."

He is in Los Angeles under the auspices of the Salvation Army.

Algeria, in North Africa, has a population of 9,800,000. Of these about 1,050,000 are of European origin, mostly from France.

Shoemaker Takes Lefthanded Title

DALLAS — Harry Shoemaker of Signal Mountain, Tenn., belted 'em long off the tee and survived a fumbling putter for a two over par 74 and his second straight National Lefthanded golf title yesterday.

Shoemaker fired 37s on both the front and back nines of the 7,000-yard, 36-36-72 Dallas Athletic Club course for a 72-hole total of 285, seven over par.

J. C. Tharp of Corpus Christi, Tex., birdied the final two holes for 74, second place in the National and the Texas southpaw championship. A separate state tournament was not held this year and it was decided the title would go to the low-scoring Texan in the National. Tharp was defending state champion.

Bobby Malone of Fort Worth, Tex., fired a horrible three-over par seven on the second hole, but shot 74 for 302 and third.

Three men tied at fourth, Jack Butler of Atlanta, Ga., who had a second-round 68 for the lowest round of the tourney, soared to an 81 yesterday and 304. He was joined by Bob Wilder of Baton Rouge, La., who fired a final 77, and Don Early of Toledo, Ohio, with 75.

Jimmy Dezern of Durham, N.C., and Norman James of Hickory, N.C., finished at 320. Both had 77s yesterday.

Dr. Charles Cloninger of Conover, N.C., who had 89 yesterday finished at 342 and Harry Stone of Hickory finished at 365 with a final round 92.

Return Bout Is Brewing For Middleweights

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — A return bout was in the making today between middleweight contenders Joey Giambra and Rory Calhoun following their bruising battle to draw at War Memorial Auditorium.

Both fighters were stunned but not floored in the televised 10-stanzaer.

A rally in the last round enabled the 25-year-old Giambra to protect both his unbeaten streak—he had won nine straight—and his fourth ranking spot among the contenders.

The three officials were split as many ways, Judge Nick Gamboli had Giambra, the 6-5 favorite ahead, 5-4-1. Referee Ruby Goldstein voted for Calhoun, 5-4-1. Judge Frank Forbes had it even, 4-4-2 in rounds and five points for each. The AP card had Calhoun in front, 6-4.

Immediately after the bout matchmaker Billy Brown of the International Boxing Club wanted to rematch them within a month for either here or New York. Both fighters were agreeable.

"Boy, he's sure rough and tough," said Giambra, a native of Buffalo who has shifted to San Francisco. "I think he's the strongest middleweight around."

Calhoun, who fights out of White Plains and New York, thought he won it by a big margin. "It was a rough decision," said the 22-year-old, sixth ranking contender.

Calhoun, who outweighed his rival 159 to 157 3-4, was the aggressor throughout. He got off fast while Giambra made his bid the third through sixth rounds. Calhoun came on strong again in the seventh through ninth rounds.

Yanks-Sox Game Was Fistic Flop

NEW YORK — The celebrated White Sox-Yankee rematch was a fistic flop. It couldn't have made the grade on TV. No punches, no fines. Not even a split decision.

Although Larry Napp, a New York State Athletic Commission referee, was the plate umpire, there was no new outbreak of hostilities. In Chicago, Napp was the man-in-the-middle June 13 when Larry Doby dropped Art Dittmar with a left hook.

Doby wasn't even in the lineup, sidelined by a groin injury. Dittmar was waiting for today's game as his regular starting turn.

Walk Droppo, who went 10 fast rounds with Enos Slaughter to win a newspaper decision last week, wasn't even in the lineup. Earl Torgerson, who reported too late to get in last week's bout, replaced Droppo at first.

The closest thing to a fight was a barrage of three towels tossed out of the Chicago dugout in the ninth after Napp called a strike on Earl Battey.

Minnie Minoso kicked up a brief storm when he was called out, trying to steal second in the sixth and Jim Rivera beefed with violent gestures when he was called out on a third strike by relief pitcher Bob Grim.

Play was over the par 71 Star-mont Forest Country Club course. Thomas was only three over and Harrison seven over.

Thomas scored an eagle 2 on the 13th hole, a 364-yard test, during the second round.

Convicts' Night Trips Backfire

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Five homesick prisoners from Stokes County Prison Camp and two outsiders charged with aiding in prison escapes are scheduled to go on trial July 1.

The five honor grade prisoners are accused of sneaking out of camp on various nights to visit their homes.

C. T. Christian, superintendent of the camp near Danbury, said the trial date in Stokes General County Court might be changed because it will depend on results of an investigation now under way.

The escape episodes have already resulted in the firing of one guard at the camp and the suspension of another.

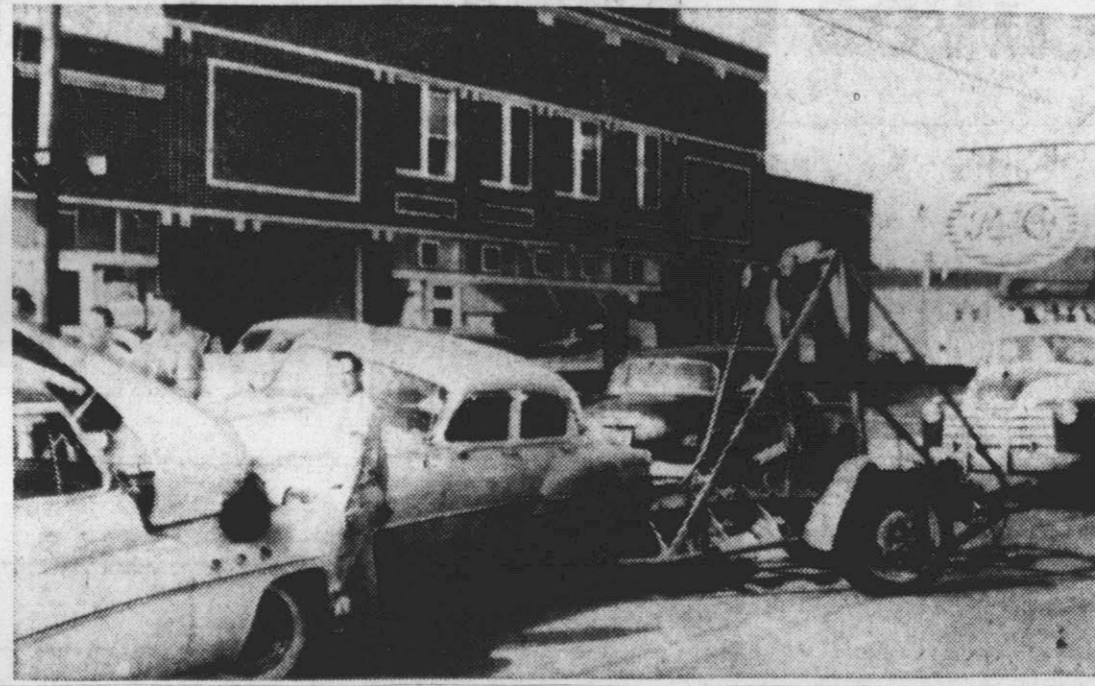

"We have asked the State Bureau of Investigation not only to make an investigation but also to go ahead and prosecute if there's any law that has been violated," said State Prisons director W. F. Bailey.

Bailey said the home-loving prisoners' night trips were discovered last week when Winston-Salem police and an anonymous tipster reported the prisoners had been seen in Winston-Salem.

Christian said the five, who work in the camp kitchen, had made one to a half dozen night trips away from camp between Jan 1 and Jan 7, disappearing between 9:30 p.m. and 2 a.m.

Runaway Trailer Hits 3 Parked Autos

Freak accident this morning on Dickinson... Considerable property damage.

A runaway trailer loaded with heavy machinery caused considerable property damage this morning, hitting three parked automobiles on Dickinson Ave.

The loaded trailer was being towed by a four-ton truck at the time it broke loose. City Police officers estimated total damages as a result of the freak accident at $1,265.

Damaged in the accident were the three automobiles, the trailer and a stop sign. The machinery was not damaged, officers said.

There were no personal injuries. All three damaged vehicles were parked and unoccupied at the time of the collision. The accident took place shortly after 8 a.m.

After breaking loose from the tow truck, the trailer collided into a 1953 automobile owned by Hinton Lenard Heath of Ayden Rd. 1. The Heath car then hit a 1952 automobile owned by Thomas Frank Whitaker of 10123 W. Fourth St.

The Whitaker vehicle collided with a 1954 vehicle owned by George Respass of 1601 S. Elm St. A stop sign was also broken in to.

Damage to the Heath vehicle was estimated at $700 by investigating officers, with $300 damage sustained by the Whitaker vehicle and $150 to the Respass automobile. Approximately $100 damage was done to the trailer.

Joseph Lee Tripp of 1310B Myrtle Ave. was the driver of the 1953 truck towing the trailer. The machinery belonged to the C. R. Sunrell Construction Co.

Traffic was held up for a short period of time following the accident before officers were able to clear away the wrecked automobiles.

No charges were made.

Division chaplains were sent personally to the Kannapolis homes of the two men who were killed, but radio and newspaper offices were swamped most of the night with calls from worried friends and relatives of other guardsmen at Ft. Bragg.

"We regret the anxiety caused your families who could not immediately determine the safety of their relatives at Ft. Bragg following the initial publicity given the accident by radio and newspapers.

"It is the policy of your division commander in case of death in our division to notify the next of kin before releasing names and units of the victims," he wrote.

"This is the Christian means of conveying news of tragic loss to those most directly affected."

Gen. Bowers said the 18th Airborne Corps Public Information Office "had no part in making the decisions to withhold names of victims."

Three men charged with raping a 16-year-old girl were to be transferred to the Wilkes County jail today.

The three were arrested Thursday for the second time this week and charged with aiding and abetting each other in committing a crime against nature involving the girl and Tommy Austin, 25, one of the trio.

Austin, Lank Lee Whisnant, 27, and Howard S. Penley, 24, all of the Patterson section of Caldwell County, were arrested earlier this week and charged with kidnaping the girl.

The three were ordered bound over to Superior Court Tuesday to face the kidnaping charge. Austin posted $5,000 bond on the kidnaping charge and $1,000 bond on a charge of assault on the girl through an unnatural act. Whisnant and Penley were released under $3,000 bond each.

Clarifies Policy As To Notifying Next-Of-Kin

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—"We cannot risk the possibility of a young mother, baby in arms, isolated miles in the country with no telephone or close neighbors, receiving first news of her husband's death from radio or newspapers."

With these words, the commanding general of the state's National Guard division yesterday defended the long delay in announcing names of soldiers killed and injured by lightning here Wednesday night.

The bolts struck between 5 and 6 p.m. when the troops were at supper. Names of the two dead and 48 injured were not released until the following morning.

Something For Everyone, Is Recreation Dept. Goal

Some Changes Made, More To Come, In Director's Planning

BY EVERETT PARKER
Reflector Staff Writer

"Our goal is better recreation and recreation facilities for the people of Greenville and to make our parks and playgrounds into a home away from home for adults and children alike."

This statement has been made by Greenville Recreation Director Gordon Goodman.

Goodman can be considered a man with an idea.

Thus far, in his brief tenure here, he has also been a man who likes action and usually gets it. After all his job is to make everybody happy . . . a job that requires a considerable amount of planning and doing.

The first major change in the Greenville Recreation program was to change from Pony League baseball to Teen-er League play. Since that time a church softball league has been formed, Guy Smith Stadium has been revamped, extensive improvements have been made to the summer recreation program and lights have been ordered for the Elm Street tennis courts.

In addition a Golden Age Club will be organized in the near future for retired residents in and around Greenville. A young couple's night is being considered in order that they might be able to take advantage of many of the park's facilities.

A Volleyball League in operation when Goodman came here was changed to an Industrial Basketball League. The change proved to be very successful this past season.

The Recreation director stated this morning that as soon as the lights arrive at Elm Street, facilities for Volleyball would be made available.

Goodman stated, "We are making changes in the program in order that more youngsters in the Greenville area will be able to participate in athletics and recreation with their own age group."

Money Helped

He was quick to emphasize that many of the improvements made have come about as a result of money allocated in last year's bond election. The future of the program, Goodman said, will of course depend on the money situation.

"Our program here is young but I feel that it will grow. Right now we have a long way to go but much help is going to be received from the people of Greenville who are in my opinion becoming more recreation minded," he added.

It was explained that the recreation movement in this city began with the Little League program in 1951. Since then, a considerable amount of improvement has been made under the guidance of Directors Warren Carrol and Goodman.

Many feel the Elm Street baseball park is the best in North Carolina and one of the better parks in this section of the country.

Balanced Program

When asked about facilities for both races the Recreation Director replied, "I feel that we have a well balanced program for the white and Negro."

He went on to say, "When the new recreation building at South Greenville is completed it is the general consensus that the Negro recreation program here will show a substantial increase with a year round activity schedule."

Extensive improvements were made in this year's summer park program.

Nine playgrounds opened Monday providing countless hundreds of youngsters with day and nighttime recreation. The children are afforded a vast series of projects and entertainment including athletic games, dual and single games, low organized games, social activities, mental games, music, arts and crafts, drama, nature study, collecting and special events.

Parks opened for the white children at Elm Street, Third Street, Guy Smith Stadium, Hillsdale, Meadowbrook and Woodlawn. The following playgrounds opened for Negro children: Eppes, Riverside and South Greenville.

A major change was made in the playground setup by Goodman this year. Parks opened last year and in past years on a part time basis will be opened each day affording the youngsters more facilities and closer supervision.

Goodman, speaking on the change, said, "We are striving for closer supervision. This closer supervision should help the boys and girls get more out of our programs."

Future of Recreation

Goodman thinks that the future of recreation will depend on the people of Greenville in years to come. Finally he said, "I think the people realize the need and will respond."

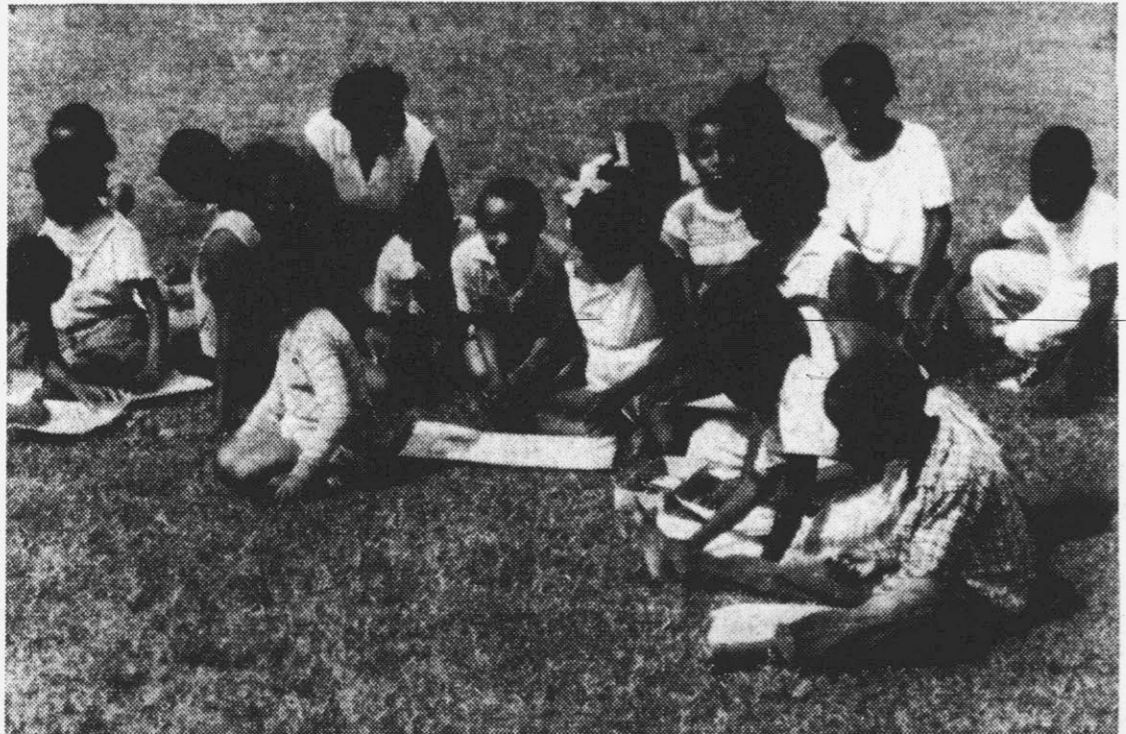

"You know," he added, "recreation is a predominate factor toward the curbing of juvenile delinquency. (This problem concerns everybody at one time or another."

What's this . . . looks like everybody wanted to get into the act.

Art Classes . . . who knows, there may be a future de Vinci in the crowd.

Beating the heat . . . a swing and a short pair of pants.

Close Suffleboard game . . . everybody watches.

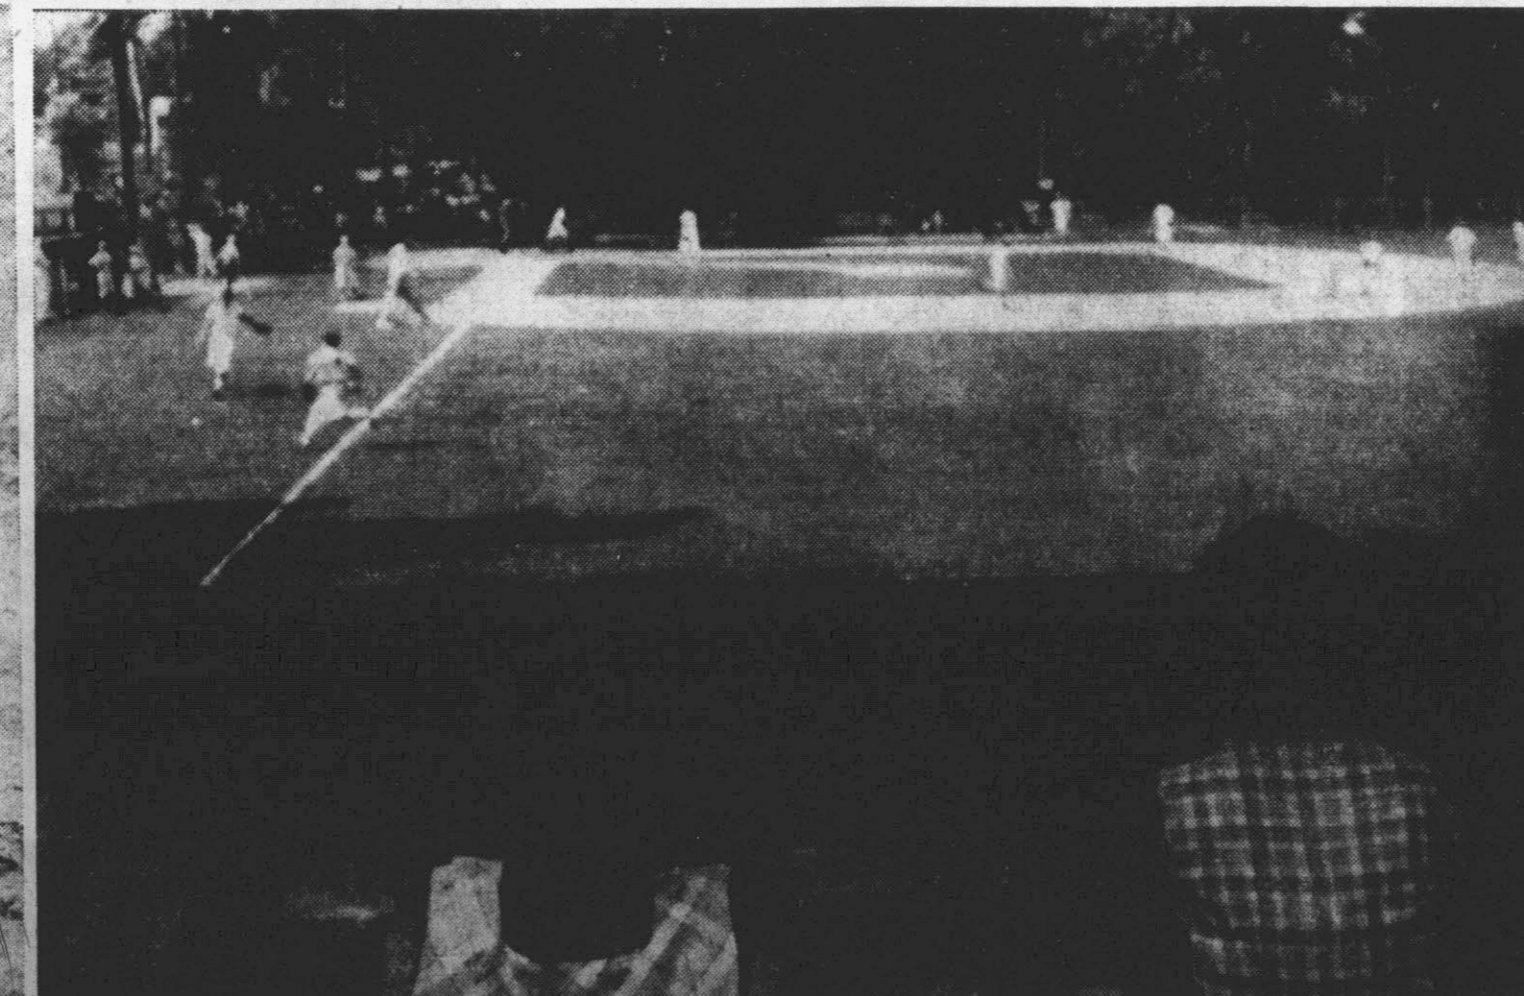

Arts and Crafts . . . the children pay attention to their teacher Betty Fleming.

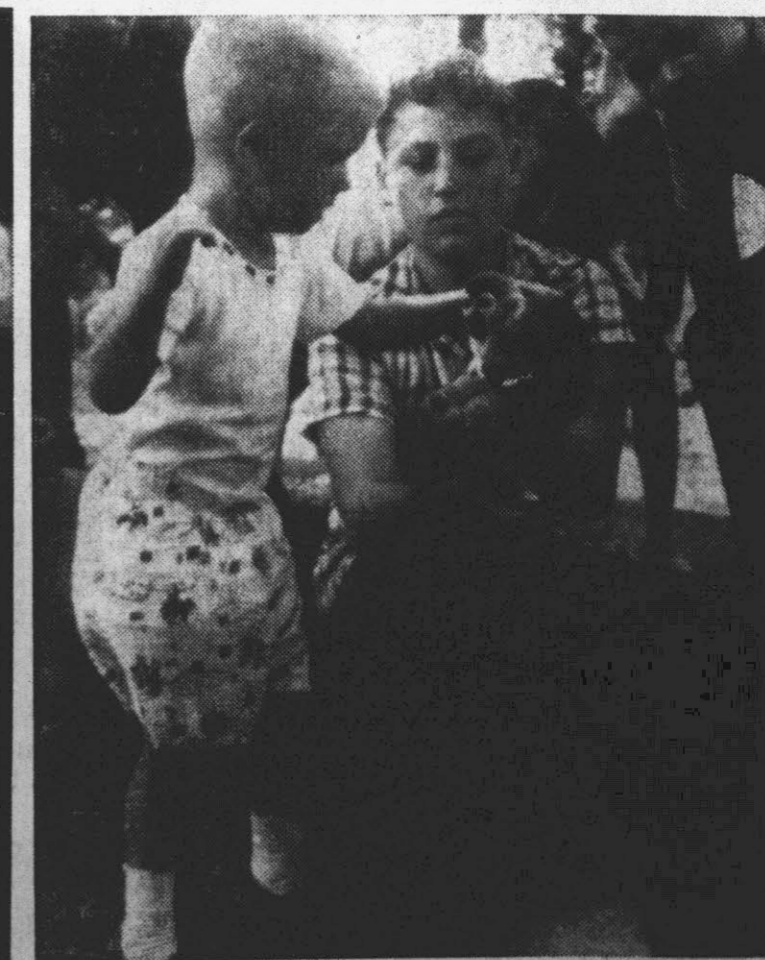

Who's winning . . . the little one seems to be engrossed in the game.

Little League Baseball at Elm Street . . . Mothers take time off to watch their young offspring play.

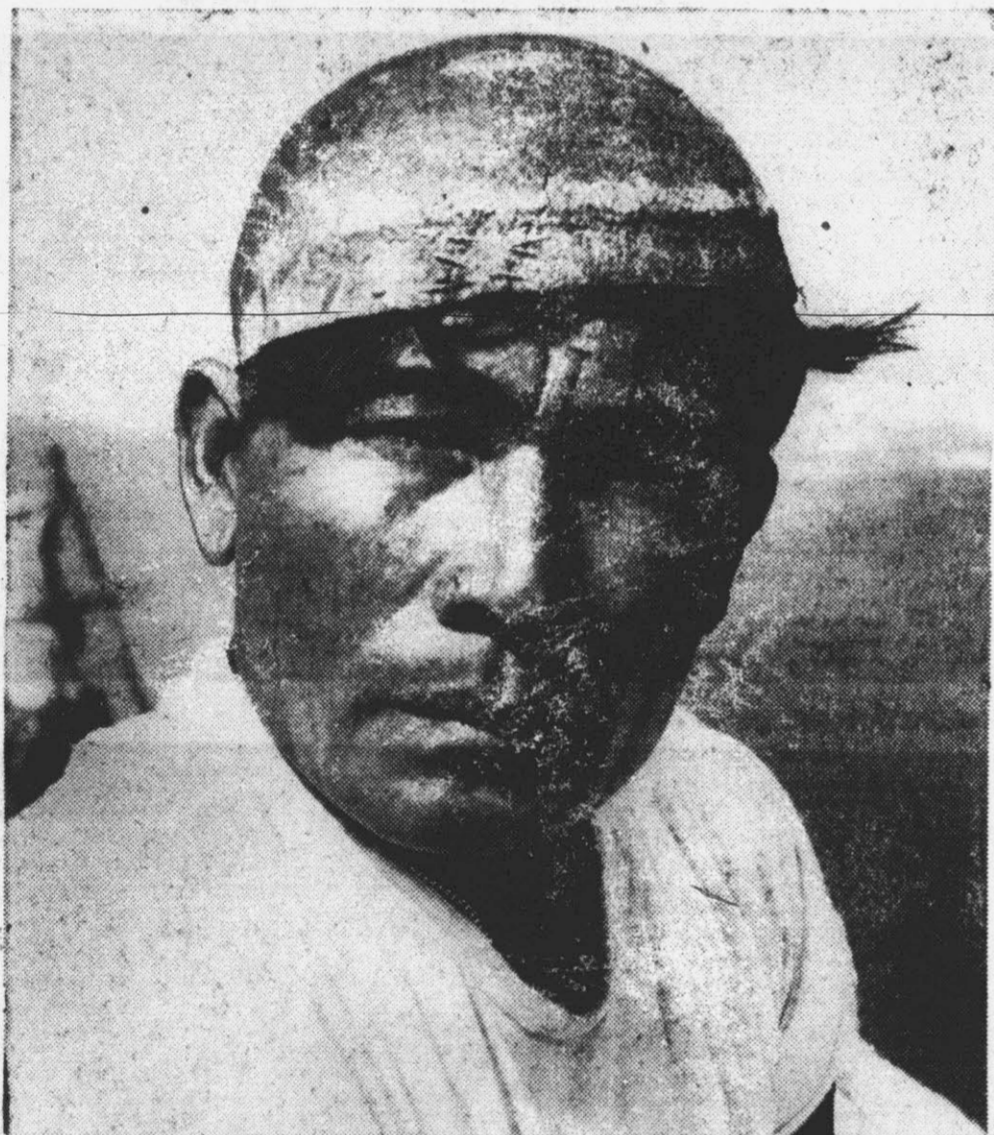

Howdy partner . . . getting to know a stranger is not as hard as it might seem.

Salting It Away

SALTY SEASCAPE. Mounds of salt, hundreds of them, appear like Eskimo igloos in the sea off Colombia, South America, as Guajira Indians carry sack-loads away during harvest time.

Salt harvester wears skull cap fashioned from old felt hat. It keeps hair in place against strong Caribbean trade winds.

Once each year, several thousand Guajira Indians on the northern coast of Colombia gather to harvest salt from the sea. It is a project in which all members of the family participate.

The harvesting of the salt is an impressive sight. For ten months of the year, water from the blue Caribbean lies undisturbed in huge man-made pounds. During that time a blazing tropical sun draws the water up into the clouds leaving a residue of snow-white salt. The salt is then piled up into thousands of little white mounds, stretching as far as the eye can see.

Each Indian family builds up a mound of salt, containing some 1,800 pounds. The harvesters carry it on their backs in 110-pound sacks to the shore where it is hardened further, then put into bags and trucked away. For each 100 bags of salt that a family piles up in the pounds they are paid $55 in Colombian pesos, the equivalent of 10 American dollars, plus four pounds of brown sugar and 22 pounds of corn.

This year's crop is the biggest in history—some 42,000 tons. In 1956 only 27,000 tons were harvested. Until now, the salt has been for Colombian consumption only. However, new evaporation pools are being built to export salt to Japan and the United States.

Indian woman uses sea-turtle shell to haul the salt away from the pound.

Indian women engage in real sewing bee as they lash down the sacks of salt.

Guajira women blacken their faces with pai-pai, a liquid made from tree bark to protect them from the sun.

Hydrometer test of water is taken to determine when harvesting of another salt pound can begin.

The sacks are then loaded into trucks which carry them to the warehouse.

If his father continues to live, the year 1967 will probably see this youth in one of our many colleges learning a profession or trade. Yet his father may be the one out of ten, who will die in the next ten years. No Injunction To Deter Spankings

DOUGLAS, Ariz. (AP) — A 10-year-old boy walked into attorney Ben F. Williams' office yesterday and asked for an injunction. The lad, a newspaper carrier, said he would pay the fees in free papers. The lad spilled out this tale: His father had caught him smoking and he feared troubles at home. He wanted an injunction against a spanking. Williams told his prospective client that it would "be unethical to affect an easement on your punishment." He turned down the case.

'Wolf Pack' Police Patrol Nearly Erased Wreck Toll

By LAWRENCE MALKIN
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—"Wolf pack" police patrols have almost wiped out auto deaths on a perfectly engineered road that once was called "El Camino de la Muerte"—the Highway of Death.

The 65-mile stretch from Tucson to the Mexican border claimed 30 lives in the 12 months before last June 21. Since the Arizona highway patrol began its "emphasis patrol" a year ago today, only three persons have been killed.

Accidents with injuries have been cut in half.

This experiment in traffic safety, which uses roadblocks and extra patrolmen, is the brainchild of Lt. B. D. Velasco, who has been assigned to the Tucson-Nogales highway since it was modernized in 1951.

At that time the old two-lane highway was replaced with a four-lane strip. There is not a sharp turn, a blind curve or a steep hill anywhere on it.

Traffic deaths immediately began to rise. From 5 in 1949 and 4 in 1950 on the old road, they went up to 15 in 1951, then 13 in 1952, 15 in 1953, 16 in 1954 and a record-breaking 22 in 1955. Most of the crashes occurred in the hours after midnight and before dawn.

"It was like this," Velasco recalled. "Some fellows would start boozing it up in Tucson, the bars would close and someone would say: 'Let's go finish the party in Nogales.' The bars never close on the Mexican side.

"On the way back they'd all go to sleep except the drivers, and pretty soon he would go to sleep and go off the road. Someone would get killed."

The figures back him up. In 1955 twelve of the 18 fatal crashes were one-car accidents in which a tired or drunk driver "just went off the road." Some killed more than just the driver.

Velasco set up three-man roadblocks at each end of the highway on weekends from 10 p. m. to 7 a. m. No matter what hour it is, three patrolmen are always driving back and forth along 20-mile sections. On holidays, Velasco starts roadblocks in the morning for psychological reasons, so they know what to expect coming back.

The State Highway Commission gave him the extra patrolmen. The Tucson newspapers, the afternoon Citizen and the morning Star, ran regular stories to explain the program.

In the first year 739 drunk drivers were hauled off the road. "To cool off," as Velasco says, about 6,700 citations were written and 2,477 warnings issued. More than 40,000 drivers were checked as they drove through the roadblocks.

Velasco said that many drivers tell the officers at the roadblocks that they have been stopped three or four times, "but I don't mind, keep it up."

As for the general application of his plan to the steadily mounting toll on the highways, Velasco is doubtful. It takes more than a dozen patrolmen around the clock for 65 miles, and he figures that is too much except in an emergency situation.

"But it proves that when it's the driver who's killing himself," he said, "patrols and public education will help keep him alive."

Girls Imitate Pilots For CAA Technical Study

INDIANAPOLIS, (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration employs an unusual group of 20 or more imitation airplane pilots as its Technical Development Center here.

The "pilots" operate blips on a radar screen, which represent airplanes flying in the area of a congested airport.

All the make-believe pilots are women. And they work at the moderate rate of $1.64 an hour.

The CAA recruits for this work the wives, sweethearts and acquaintances of the men employed at the center. With their help the CAA is able to simulate air traffic conditions at any airport, add just procedures, move airway aids and try out new methods to improve safety.

The women have charge of 18 projectors which throw blips of light on a screen. The moving dots of light represent airplanes approaching or leaving. Also on that screen is a map of the airport area being studied. Both the map and the moving light spots are televised into radar screens in an adjoining room which represents an airport "control tower," with its air traffic control experts.

CAA technicians have developed the projectors so that they can simulate the performance of any kind of airplane, from a Cub to a jet fighter. The system has built-in "wind drift," the climbing and descending rates, turning radius, speed and other performance characteristics of any plane can be pre-set.

The women pilots talk through headphones and microphones with the controllers in the make-believe control tower, exactly as though they were real pilots in airplanes approaching the control point.

"It would be tremendously expensive to study actual conditions around an operating airport, so the CAA does it in Indianapolis without ever flying a real plane," a CAA spokesman explained.

"It would also be expensive to have full time employees sitting around waiting to 'make like pilots' while the engineers cut and try new ideas in traffic control.

"So the CAA recruited the women. They spend a few or many hours at the center, as circumstances may require, and go home when their flying is done.

Like real-life pilots, the CAA airwomen have a ready room. They there, knitting up on their sock-darning, catching and reading when they are not "in the air."

Footloose Feline Returning Home

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cracker, a tan and white cat who is the sometime house pet of the Rep. Chamberlain (R-Mich) family, returns to Washington today.

The reunion of Cracker and the three Chamberlain children won't be the first one.

The family said the footloose feline left the Chamberlain home in nearby Arlington, Va. last January, and later turned up at Chamberlain's home in East Lansing, Mich.

Last week, Cracker was traveling in the Chamberlain station wagon on the way to Washington after a brief visit in Michigan.

The cat started roaming again leaving the car during a stopover on the Ohio Turnpike.

After arriving in Washington, Chamberlain wrote Ohio Turnpike authorities and gave Cracker's description. The errant car was located, and is being shipped back by air.

Lessons Learned In The TV Newsbeat

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—In the summer dog days a television reporter lives partially on his memories. Everybody—well, nearly everybody—has left town. Every program—well, nearly every program—has gone to film.

The star day a reporter took to remembering his interviews with numerous persons in television over the past year—the dazzling and dull, the delightful and dubious. He remembered: Everybody, absolutely everybody in television, likes to get his name in the newspaper—except Arthur Godfrey. The most eager are the least known persons; the least eager are the best known persons. But when a well-known person starts to slip, he's as eager for an interview as the least-known fledgling.

There seem to be about a million press agents with television accounts in New York. Some are extremely intelligent. Some are hopelessly incompetent.

Britons, as a nationality, are the most difficult to interview—except Noel Coward. Their reserve can be glacial.

Executives, as a working classification, are the easiest to interview. Their thoughts are well organized. Their greatest failing, when they trust a reporter, is that they like to go "off the record" and forget to come back on the record.

Writers, composers and similar creative minds do not live in ivory towers. Almost invariably they say something interesting. Musicians, on the other hand, usually live in a world of their own.

Nearly all beautiful television and gray-eyed actresses have a sharper sense of humor than dark-eyed actresses.

Producers are the biggest name-droppers in the business. They pretend never to be mad at anybody.

Directors, on the other hand, like to pretend to be mad at everybody. But when they start to talk they say only nice things.

There's not much point in talking to an actor before noon. He's usually too sleepy—except Robert Young.

In general the people who know most about the workings of television—what is good and what is bad and how the medium works—are the relatively obscure: the technicians and script editors, the assistants and arrangers. They make the stars.

BACK HOME—Baseball immortal Ty Cobb gazes on familiar scenes in Royston, Ga., his home town, upon his return there after an absence of more than 50 years.

Ease Trade Bars With Red China

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—West Germany, which does more business with Communist China than any other Western nation, has followed Britain's lead and abolished special restrictions on trade with Peiping. Italy did the same and government sources in Tokyo said Japan would fall in line next month.

Germany and Italy became the seventh and eighth nations to break away from the U. S. lead by relaxing curbs.

The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Norway and France acted earlier.
