WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today scientists tell him they believe they can produce an absolutely clean hydrogen bomb after four or five more years of tests.

Further, Eisenhower talked of at least limited aerial inspection and reduction of manpower as other facets of the disarmament package he has in mind.

He said that in some cases the court's dissenting opinions turn out to have more influence than the majority opinions. He also said he disagreed with a reporter's suggestion that the Supreme Court has no way of defending itself against criticism of its opinions.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Hurricane Audrey, a storm with winds of 100 miles per hour, today continued its slow drive toward the Louisiana coast.

Fired SBI Chief Denies Morale Of Bureau Is Low

RALEIGH (AP)—James W. Powell, fired as head of the State Bureau of Investigation by Atty. Gen. George B. Patton, disagreed today with Patton that morale in the bureau is low.

Patton's office said this morning he was en route back to Raleigh and expected in his office this afternoon when he may issue a statement as to Powell's successor.

Gov. Hodges made clear he is leaving the matter up to the attorney general whom he appointed. Contacted in Williamsburg, Va., where he is attending the national governors conference, Hodges said "Judge Patton had kept me informed. I knew that he was keeping an eye on it."

An investigation of SBI morale, which Powell said was conducted for Patton by SBI supervisor Guy Scott of Winston-Salem, was cited by Powell as a factor in his dismissal.

Cites Challenge To Southern Tobacco

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—A government marketing expert says the South's historical position as the world leader in cigarette-type tobacco production is being challenged by foreign countries with more flexible production methods.

Foreign producers are adjusting rapidly to changed market demands, Robert A. Owen, chief of the Foreign Agriculture Service's tobacco division, told some 300 delegates attending the Bright Belt Warehouse Assn.'s annual meeting.

Owen spoke yesterday, after the association had adopted regulations setting in motion the vast auction system to market the South's 1957 crop July 23, starting with the Georgia-Florida belt.

There is such a thing as short-sighted profits," he said, adding that while growers and warehousemen have made sacrifices to find solutions, manufacturers have made larger profits.

North Korea Asks Talks To Plan Troop Withdrawals

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Communist North Korea today called for a broad international conference to arrange the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea and bring about a peaceful solution to the problem of the divided peninsula.

The demand, made at a meeting of the Joint Military Armistice Commission, was promptly rejected by the U.N. Command as not a proper subject to be taken up at a military conference.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Chung Kook Rook presented the Communist demand and repeated the charge he made last Friday that the U.N. Allies were preparing for a new war by "wrecking" the armistice.

Gains Support As Candidate For Judgeship

GREENSBORO (AP)—The Greensboro Bar Assn. has endorsed U.S. Dist. Atty. Edwin M. Stanley to succeed retired Judge Johnson J. Hayes in Middle District Court.

The bar unanimously adopted a resolution of endorsement yesterday. In so doing, it joined groups in Alamance, Davidson, Durham, Randolph, Rockingham and Scotland counties and High Point.

Judge Hayes, 71, retired last week after serving the court since its creation 30 years ago.

Stanley is one of six candidates prominently mentioned for the $25,000-a-year post. Others are Kyle Hayes of Wilkesboro, Hoke F. Henderson of Elkin, Lewis P. Hamlin of Salisbury, J. E. Holsinger of Boone and Horace S. Haworth of High Point.

Republican leaders of the 28 counties served by the court will meet in Winston-Salem Saturday to recommend a successor to Judge Hayes.

Association Post For Pitt Auditor

H. Reginald Gray, Pitt County Auditor since August, 1952, is the new Second Vice-President of the North Carolina Association of County Accountants.

Gray is a native of the Stokes section of Pitt County and graduated from the University of North Carolina after World War II duty as a bomber pilot. He was employed in Goldsboro before being named Pitt County Auditor in 1952.

At the convention, held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the State Association of County Commissioners, Gray also presented an outline of the Social Security program being conducted in Pitt County. He discussed the program and progress made thus far, and received requests for further information from representatives of county governments in Guilford, Wake, Caldwell, Vance, Rutherford, Cleveland, Lincoln and Caswell counties.

H. REGINALD GRAY

Highlights of the joint convention which opened Sunday night were discussions of rural fire protection in Forsyth and Nash counties, a review of 1957 General Assembly action affecting county governments and an address last night by Representatives Harold D. Cooley.

The review of General Assembly action was conducted by Alex McMahan and Henry Lewis of the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill. Representative Cooley's address was centered on Congressional action and national trends in civil rights, taxation and the farm program.

Shower Supplements Irrigation

RAIN HELPS—Irrigation systems were helping tobacco on many farms yesterday as dry weather caused lush to wilt about the county. A general rain last night was expected to prove helpful, however. Some .67 of an inch rainfall was reported in Greenville. High yesterday was 90 degrees and low was 72. (Reflector Photo).

Midwestern GOP Governors 'Like' Nixon As 1960 Candidate

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Vice President Nixon showed up today with some solid support from Midwestern Republicans who may have a great deal to say about the 1960 Republican presidential nominee.

Although he won't say so publicly at this time, GOP Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois is reported to look upon Nixon favorably.

While conference members talked politics in asides, they spent a great deal of time trying to make themselves look as if they were supporting Eisenhower's proposal to reverse the trend of centralization of government authority in Washington and return to the states some of the programs the federal government now operates.

Five other states which collect less than 7 per cent of income from their citizens to run state and local governments are Delaware, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Other states where the tax take was more than 10 per cent included Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nevada, North Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

On the other hand, Indiana led five other states with the lowest bracket of state and local taxes per capita income. Indiana's 6.51 per cent was the lowest in the nation.

Smith-Nelson Reunion

One of the groups attending this reunion was the Dawson family. Miss Lena Dawson of Ayden is seated and standing by her little Miss Mary Shufford Davis of Rocky Mount.

The Rt. Rev. Thomas H. Wright, D. D., Bishop of the Diocese of East Carolina, delivered the sermon in St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Winterville to the 65 members of the Smith-Nelson family reunion Sunday morning, and the Rev. Mr. Drake of Greenville assisted in the service.

Following the luncheon, which was served in the Winterville Community Center, W. I. Bisette of Grifton, president, presided over the business session. These reunions, which began when Mrs. William H. Smith, better known as Mrs. Mary Nelson Smith, was living, are primarily an outgrowth of the members of her family. Mrs. Smith immediately following the War Between the States organized and ran the only school in the county at that time and acquired the name of Educator.

Her family, wishing to contribute to her accomplishments, have built up a Mary Smith Memorial Fund which has been placed in the care of the Diocese of East Carolina.

Dr. Fuller is chairman of the Education Committee of Pitt County Mental Health Association. His subject was "Mental Illness." He stated that Mental Health has to do with everybody's everyday life, and it means the overall way that people get along in everyday living.

"Mental illness," he said, "is the number one health problem in Pitt County. Almost everyone has at sometime had an association with a person suffering from

The new see-and-hear glasses are made for both men and women, and frames come in many designs and colors. For those who need only partial sound amplification, an aid can be built into one side of the temple pieces only.

The new glasses look like ordinary modern eyeglasses, fit perfectly, may be worn comfortably with hats and provide new clarity and convenience for the hard-of-hearing.

Help Junior Learn To Drive Correctly

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D. The last and by far the most difficult lesson is that of responsibility. One step in this direction is that of insurance. The insurance on the car will go up when a teenager is among those permitted to drive. This increased cost may well be something the child himself can pay out of his allowance or his earnings.

The youth who can take pride in being a good driver, one who never takes a chance, who stays within the speed limit is the mature driver we all want in our children.

Our attitude of trust and confidence in the youngster in this area as well as in all others is what builds his responsibility. Prohibitions won't work — our children are going to drive cars almost as surely as they learned to walk. It's our job to build them up, teach them and set them a good example so they have the qualities we are after.

So, almost, is the case of driving in our American society. Every boy and girl wants to drive and the vast majority do. It gives them power and mobility and the sense of being grown up.

Safety First

But driving a car involves a lot more hazards than walking. We adults who stand on the side lines must see to it that our children take this step in maturity well equipped with all the attributes of a good driver. The bad drivers whether they be young, or old enough to know better, are those who lack the responsibility and judgment necessary to have the power of a modern automobile in their hands.

A child who looks forward to the time when the law says he is old enough to drive with the sure knowledge that he will be given the opportunity is not too likely to jump the gun and experiment with the family's car or someone else's.

In some areas schools have taken over the job of teaching driving. They teach not only how to handle a car, but what is under the hood and how it works. The American Automobile Assn. has classes for young drivers.

If you can get your soon-to-be 16 child enrolled in one of these classes, be sure to do so. Once a child has learned how to manipulate a car comes the real job of making him a good safe driver.

Sound Training

He must get his reflexes to the point where they are absolutely automatic, so he acts without having to stop and think which foot or hand he uses in which way to make the car do what he wants. This means hours and hours of practice.

Near our house is a big parking lot that empties out at 5 p.m. I have spent a great many hours with each of my three children as they approached 16—in that lot, safely off the highway. The youngsters took the car around the turns, backed it, parked it, stopped and started until their reflexes were quick on the trigger.

Once this stage is reached the youngster is ready for a license. Most states are very strict with the first license for a teen-ager as well they should be. But owning a license is not the

States Didn't Ask Centralization

We get the distinct impression that President Eisenhower was talking out both sides of his mouth when he addressed the 49th annual Governors' Conference.

First, President Eisenhower made a lengthy appeal for governors of the states to join with him in an effort to return to states more of their states rights, to return to the states a greater share of government responsibility and to give to the states sufficient areas of taxation to take some of the financial load off the federal government.

He called for a reversal of the trend toward centralized government.

In the same address, President Eisenhower called on the governors to support his proposal for federal aid for school construction in the individual states.

The Reflector is heartily in favor of state governments' exercising greater autonomy in determining their own affairs. We have long endorsed the idea of less dictation from Washington bureaucrats to state and local officials in the administration of many programs which should be left entirely in the hands of lower levels of government.

From the annual conference of governors have come repeated resolutions that the federal government leave to the states the matter of carrying out state programs, that the federal government reverse its dictatorial policies in many programs which have been taken out of the hands of the states. Yet these appeals from the governors have year after year fallen on deaf ears in Washington.

Little wonder that President Eisenhower drew a cool response when he made his appeal before the Governors' Conference this week.

For years the conference has gone on record asking the federal government to turn back the highway construction program to the states. Just four years ago President Eisenhower advocated and brought into being the largest federal highway construction program in history.

For years the states have vehemently protested against continued infringements by the federal government on their rights and responsibilities. But at the behest of Washington more and more of the rights and responsibilities of states have been taken out of the hands of state government and concentrated in Washington.

President Eisenhower's statement before the Governors' Conference was the first suggestion that there might be a changing of official thought in Washington. It is only natural that the governors and average citizens look with skepticism upon the President's proposal for a reversal of the trend. It will take more than words to convince the governors that official Washington now wants to repudiate its years of determined effort to reduce the states to mere puppets of federal bureaucracy.

The governors of the states should be willing to work with the President to return to the states their rightful role in government. But at the outset the President should understand that it is Washington which has pushed government centralization; not the states.

Varied Reaction To Commission

By LYNN NISBET

REACTION — Reaction of the public to the highway commission appointed by Governor Hodges has been varied. There is the common denominator of surprise in nearly all the comments. No question has been raised about the caliber or personal integrity of any of the members. The fact that some of them are not well known throughout the state is not unusual. That has been true of nearly every board or commission appointed by other Governors. The serious questions involve propriety of the selections for a policy-making board dealing with highways.

No man in North Carolina is more respected for ability and integrity than Col. William T. Joyner, chairman of the new highway board. He is an outstanding corporation attorney, whose primary interest is the Southern Railroad. Railroads are fighting almost for their lives against competition of highway user trucks and buses. Not many weeks ago by without hearing before the Utilities Commission involving this continuing fight. The location and type construction of highways is an important element in the controversy, and the most vital feature of highway policy.

Newspaper folks at the Nag's Head press convention when the appointments were announced commented on the political coloring of the new commission. Despite protestations that politics would be eliminated, three of the seven members have been in politics up to their ears throughout their adult lives — Cutler Moore of Lumberton, Elvey White of Wilmington and Lee White of Concord. Fletcher Gregory of Halifax and Ralph Howard of Elkin, in banking and newspaper-public relations work, have been only incidentally concerned with politics, and Robert Bunnelle of Asheville has not been in the state long enough to become involved in political controversies.

COMMISSIONERS — County commissioners in Raleigh this week for their annual convention generally are not very happy. The new highway plan puts more responsibility upon them without giving them any more real authority than they had under the old law. Their main concern is with secondary rural roads. They are pleased that Lee White, a county commissioner for three decades, is on the state body. They are a bit disturbed that the Governor's nominee heard the secondary road program (he cannot be officially appointed until the new commission has been organized and the new Director of Highways sworn in) is Harold Makepeace — the outstanding political appointment in the whole lot. A former mayor of Sanford and campaign manager for Governor Hodges in last year's primary, his experience with public roads has been with city streets. With a railroad man as head of the policy-making group; another member of it the long-time city official of Wilmington (E. L. White); the Director of Highways (Bill Babcock) an engineer whose practice has been mainly with city traffic, and the head of secondary roads also a former mayor, the county commissioners are wondering how they will fare under the new set up.

ILLUSORY — These tentative fears may be as illusory as the hopes expressed by people in the communities where highway commissioners reside they will derive special benefits from such proximity. A prominent Elkin man was happy that Ralph Howard has been appointed. "Maybe we can get something now," he said. "We have never had a highway commissioner before who gave any attention to our community."

A Wilmington man referred to Elvey White as an appropriate "successor to Heide Trask" and voiced the hope and belief he would see to it that several projects started by Trask would be pushed to completion.

IT'S DIFFERENT NOW — These expressed fears and hopes fail to take into account the new approach to highway problems. Governor Hodges said at his latest news conference he would be inclined to ask for the resignation of any highway commissioner who sought to promote a project for the particular benefit of any community. It is very unlikely any such request will be necessary. The fact that the Commissioners accepted appointment after the Governor had already announced why they would name as director of highways indicates their willingness to go along with his ideas on other matters. (In that connection it is interesting to note that Babcock asked that his selection as Director of Highways not be announced until the highway commission which was supposed to name him had been appointed.)

For 20 years the people have been accustomed to a highway commission made up of representatives of particular divisions. People in those divisions felt they had a friend at court. Through the years there had developed a system which made these separate divisions almost autonomous and which largely exempted the highway activities from control of the budget bureau. That trend toward autonomy is being reversed. The new plan of a central commission of seven members and the Governor taking a much larger personal hand in highway affairs will be given a two to four year trial run. If it proves better it will be continued. If not, the next or any succeeding General Assembly can reorganize it — as most Legislatures have to some degree.

A Former Governor With Us No Longer

The orphaned farm-boy who rose to governor of North Carolina has left behind him contributions which will long be remembered by citizens of this state.

R. Gregg Cherry's administration of North Carolina's affairs from 1945 to 1949 is best remembered as an administration of moderation; an administration which saw the state make significant progress in its program of rural roads, veterans service and labor relations. Though he was less controversial than other governors of North Carolina in the past decade, the late Gov. Cherry stamped out four years of achievement for North Carolina during his tenure in the Mansion.

Like his life before becoming governor, his term as chief executive was marked by dogged, routine work toward the goals which he had set for the state. At the end of his four-year term, North Carolina had risen to another plateau of accomplishment; not through spectacular or radical policies, but through sound, gradual progress.

To the Governor's Mansion Gregg Cherry brought an understanding of the people in all walks of life in North Carolina. He knew and understood from his own experience the life of an orphaned farm-boy. He knew the satisfaction of achievement through sheer labor; the hardships of a young man who worked his way through college by laboring in tobacco factories and peddling books. This knowledge stood him in good stead as he sat for seven terms in the General Assembly of North Carolina. It tempered his administration of affairs of the state when he was its chief executive.

In the death of Gov. Gregg Cherry North Carolina has lost one of its vigorous and personable political leaders. It has lost a man who contributed significantly to the well being of the people of this state.

Pole Lamps In Heated Dispute

By ELMER ROESSNER

There's a lively battle raging over pole lamps, with more threats of law suits than you'd hear at the scene of a four-car auto crash.

Pole lamps are one of the hottest items in the home-furnishings field today. They consist of a metal pole that can be set up to run from floor to ceiling. After a single connection is made to the house electric circuit, lamps may be attached at any place along an internal wiring system.

The predecessor of the pole lamp was introduced in 1950. Since then manufacturers have been improving and fancying the device. Lamps are available in almost every shape, resembling bullets, glass chimneys, spoolights, horns, globes and torches. Plasters and trays can be attached to some poles.

FUN FOR DECORATORS

One of the reasons for the great interest in these poles is that they have become one of the few new things for decorators—both amateur and professional—to play with in recent years. A single pole can brighten up a dark corner. Two or three of them, along with a few plain metal poles, can serve as a modernistic room divider. One or two poles can be used to illuminate a painting or rare piece of furniture. The movability of the lamps permits decorators to place a desired amount of light at almost all levels and by mixing colored lamp globes, almost any color effect can be obtained.

Things were running along at the usual home-furnishings level of madness when the Stiffel Company of Chicago announced that it had obtained patents covering the mechanical and design features of the Lampole and pole lighting variations covered by the claims of the patent. Furthermore, it announced in Home Furnishings Daily that it will "TAKE ALL LEGAL STEPS"—the caps are Stiffel's—to prosecute infringers.

This provoked replies from the score of other manufacturers producing pole lamps. One, Mobile, of New York, advertises to the trade that "the floor-to-ceiling lamp pole is in the public domain" and quote mention of it back to 1950. Lightolier is advertising that its "Lytesspan" is a basic new idea and that patents have been applied for. Furthermore it offers to guarantee to indemnify all customers from all legal costs and damages resulting from any patent suits. Other manufacturers have made similar guarantees.

Meanwhile, Home Furnishings Daily, which has been covering the fight the way other newspapers would cover a fair-sized war, reports that a move is under way by 20 manufacturers to oppose the Stiffel claims in court. However, it is probable that by the time the matter was finally settled in court, the pole lamp frenzy would have passed into history.

Meanwhile, pole lamps are attracting major attention at the Chicago Home Furnishings Show, and they will probably draw at the New York and Los Angeles Lamp shows next month. Retailers are stocking lamps in depth, sure that public demand will keep on rising. They are placing orders with both Stiffel and competitors, counting on manufacturers to protect them if they are sued.

In general, the retailer attitude is to give the customer what she wants and let the attorneys take care of any disputes over who gets the profits.

ODDITIES AND ENDMENTS IN BUSINESS NEWS

The Dupont Tarleton Hotel, opening in Miami in December, will have a 12-foot, round bed in its soundproof honeymoon suite.

Department stores' biggest gains during the first four months of this year were in the fur and the record-sheet music-instrument departments, each up 14 per cent over sales in the same months last year. Test tubes, 25 cents a dozen in 1907, have increased to only 30 cents in 50 years, Chicago Apparatus Co. found in checking old catalogs. July will be "o mes nacional por os hot dog" in Brazil, meaning that country will have a Hot Dog Month, too. During the first four months of this year, radio sales were above those in the same months last year, but television set sales were down, according to Radio-Electronics-Television Manufacturers Association figures.

White House Breakfast

By BILLY ARNOLD

That Daily Self-Torture

Every day at dinnertime (lunch to you Yankees), I am forced to watch the one or two soap operas that occupy the local television screen.

I say forced because, try as I will, I cannot tear myself away from the screen. I sit, scrooched up uncomfortably in a chair or wringing nervously on the floor or on the couch, taking in all this drama with exultating pain.

It isn't that I enjoy the little episodes. I hate them. I hate the commercials, too. It all hammers at my nerves in somber greys and blacks and whites; it gnaws at my sensitivity with loud aggravating voice tones and heart-searing organ groans. It attacks my sense of reality with nausea-rendering monotony. And all this on a full stomach.

Yet, I sit there, enveloped in the thing, this pictorial account of the troubles of everybody from Jim's other wife to John's brother's daughter.

I think my biggest attraction to these soap operas, I believe, these particular programs are detergent operas) is of a sadistic nature. It is as if I enjoy torturing myself. I get an intense joy out of sitting there like a hawk, picking out the millions of flaws in the show, the impossible, irrational and simple idiotic tricks used to capture the American housewife.

Certain things are true of each and every one of these type shows. For instance, there is always somebody in each episode that is in deep, deep thought over some problem. Always. And they invariably must take up several minutes of show time sitting along, hearing themselves think and making faces at the camera to accompany their thoughts.

And, too, there must always be some point in the episode when each character must do one of those monotonous repeat lines. Usually something like this:

CHRIS: (in deep thought) I just can't figure it out, Gwendolyn. (pause, count five beats, close eyes) I just can't figure it out.

Then, there's always this thing about age. Every show has to have a cast that is representative of every age group. It has to touch people of all ages; it has to try to appeal to grandmas as well as the snot-nosed little kid out in the sandpile.

The thing that bugs me is that it's so obvious. Every show will have an array of characters sitting around on the screen whose ages run from the cradle to the retirement pension. Half the time all they do is sit. Sometimes they walk around, they grunt, they nod their heads, they look at the camera. They don't have a thing to do with the story. They're just hanging around to irritate me.

It especially tickles me the way each show tries to be the poor man's philosopher. Everybody on the stage is a genius. Of course, it is the Good Old American Native Intelligence Kant or Bacon or Franklin. It's Old Sniffly may be the garbage man and the town straight from (Continued On Page 12)

Other Editors Saying-- Hodges' Fair Wager

(Greensboro Daily News)

Governor Hodges strongly defended his corporate tax reform program in his Report to the People Friday night and at the same time chastised those critics who label it "give-aways" at the expense of small taxpayers.

In factual grounds His Excellency corrected the impression widely spread that no groups except large corporations benefit directly from tax changes:

The 3 per cent sales tax has been removed from farm machinery parts; farmers and other nonhighway users of gasoline will receive an additional 1 cent per gallon refund; small farmers, small business proprietors and wage earners who supplement their incomes from other sources—totaling more than 111,000 persons—will enjoy a $650,000 tax reduction as a result of an extension of the standard deduction privilege. In addition to these changes there are many revisions in the rules which govern filing and taking of deductions which will benefit individual income taxpayers.

But the largest direct beneficiary of the tax reform program will definitely be those corporations which do business in many states and have, in the Governor's words, been harshly taxed by North Carolina's old allocation formula.

Cone Mills Corporation of Greensboro, one beneficiary, illustrates the type of hardship involved and offers a good example of the kind of tax pattern which has been driving industry away from North Carolina instead of bringing it in.

Before the tax change North Carolina taxed Cone's income no matter where it was earned and gave credit for taxes paid in other states not on a basis of the tax formula of those states but rather on North Carolina's high formula.

Thus if Cone Mills made $1,000,000 on its operations in Alabama, that amount would be subject to taxation (at 3 per cent) in that state, but also for the difference in North Carolina between Alabama's 3 per cent rate and North Carolina's 6 per cent rate. By moving its charter to Delaware, as several Tar Heel corporations have done, Cone could avoid such added taxation, but because of old ties with this state the corporation has been reluctant to do this.

This aspect of Tar Heel corporate taxation has been detrimental to the growth of industry. The State Tax Study Commission and Governor Hodges were forced to weigh the comparative merits and demerits of losing an estimated $14,000,000 in corporate income over the next two years and the prospect of attracting more industrial taxpayers over that period and the years beyond.

In view of North Carolina's serious economic crisis, they took a calculated risk. Already it has returned several major dividends and critics of the program are certainly not justified when they label it outright "give-away."

The Governor laid that point on the line when he declared: "Let those who criticize our efforts along these lines prove their sincerity by suggesting some better way of promoting the welfare of North Carolina. If they have any such suggestions, I shall be among the first to give them enthusiastic support."

When gubernatorial critics expound on a love of North Carolina's "little man," they should give their sentiment more than lip service. Otherwise such criticism degenerates into a dangerous kind of rousement to class warfare, which North Carolina has fortunately avoided through the neighborliness and cohesiveness of all its people—white and black, rich and poor, rural and urban, industrial and agricultural.

Found A New Career

By HAL BOYLE
WESTHAMPTON, N. Y. (AP) — Is a man crazy if he gives up a successful career as a lawyer to run a summer resort?

"He has to be—there's no doubt of it," said Hyman Chesler, who did just that nine years ago.

His excuse is that he really didn't do it deliberately. It just kind of happened. But today the crinkly faced little former attorney, "mine host" at the Dune Deck, a fabulous gathering place for social notables and entertainment celebrities, wouldn't give a strawberry tart for all the torts in the world.

"It's a risky thing to switch careers in midlife," he admitted. "And in the beginning I did miss the courtroom. But not now. I haven't the time."

There are two things the average man feels he can run better than those who have the job—the government and a summer resort. "Hy" is no exception.

Back in 1948, when the place was put on sale, Chesler, who liked to summer there, decided to get 10 other guests who liked the place to buy it with him.

"The 10 said 'No' real fast," recalled Hy, "so I bought it myself. Then the manager died suddenly, just before the season opened, and I found I had to run the place myself."

He soon found that a liking for people and a love of good food aren't enough to make a successful resort operator.

"The biggest weakness of this business," said Hy, "is that you are at the mercy of things beyond your control. A fresh waiter, three days of bad weather in a row—these things can undo all your efforts."

"One of the first things you learn is that you have to worry more about pleasing your help than you do pleasing the guests. Keeping your help happy is the real trick. If they feel wrong, you're dead. If they're happy, they'll keep the guests happy."

The resort or hotel business isn't really a business. No really smart man would risk money in it. You simply have to take it as a way of life.

Hy and his wife Serena, a former schoolteacher, follow the sun. After the 10-week season here, they spend the winter in Andros Island in the Bahamas, where they operate another resort.

When one of his guests looks unhappy, Chesler, who could have been a fine psychiatrist, suffers with him.

Years of listening to other people's vacation woes have made Chesler into a philosopher. He has his own theory of why so many people in a world of plenty manage to make themselves feel thoroughly miserable.

"They become too concerned with themselves," he said. "Most troubles really start from within. 'All a man has to do to feel better is to brood more about how he can help the other fellow—then do something about it.'"

And from the mails we learn that a trout doesn't begin to look for outside food until four weeks after it is hatched. . . meanwhile, a lot of less sentimental fish are willing to swallow it and its problems.

"That someone wrote me this cryptic thought: 'Inflation means everything is valuable except money.'"

That one language reference book lists 52 synonyms for "love" but only 22 for "hate."

That some physicians believe a middle-aged person—if he has no acute heart condition—can add to his years by daily warning a somersault when there is no one by to remark it ill becomes his years.

That it was Abraham Lincoln who observed, "There is no grievance that is a fit object of redress by mob law."

Eisenhower Strategy And Dixie

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has ordered National Chairman Meade Alcorn to make a special effort to rebuild and reorganize the Grand Old Party in the South. But Ike's major policies appear to be designed deliberately to drive Dixie back into its historic Democratic homestead.

In both the foreign and domestic realms, Eisenhower has alienated a wide field of Southern interests. Resentful leaders on Capitol Hill range from plantation aristocrats like Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia to Senator Herman Talmadge of Georgia, the lusty champion of the so-called "hillybilly vote."

Whether deliberately or mistakenly, the White House seems willing to sacrifice the South for the mass urban votes in the metropolitan centers in other sections of the country—intellectuals, liberals, labor, internationalists, racial minorities and other political groups of the electorate.

SOUTH'S ADMIRATION FOR IKE GONE WITH THE WIND In view of these social, economic and educational thrusts at the South's society and economy, powerful Southerners in Congress have lost the personal and romantic admiration they once felt for the military hero.

It is no accident that his principal opponents are Byrd on inflation; Russell of Georgia (agriculture); Talmadge and Eastland of Mississippi (Civil Rights and communism); Gore of Tennessee (TVA and public power); and Ellender of Louisiana (foreign aid).

Senator Russell expressed the South's scorn of the Civil Rights movement when he declared, using rough language he rarely employs, that it was a mere vote-getting measure rather than a Constitutional safeguard. He does not agree with Ike's statement that the school segregation and guard-the-vote program represents a "moderate approach" to this problem.

VIOLENT SECTIONAL STRIFE EXPECTED Southern jurists and legislators have served notice by their decrees and declarations that they will fight integration to the angriest end. And any Federal attempt to enforce a stiff Civil Rights Act, if it passes, will provoke more violent sectional strife than at any time since the carpetbagging, reconstruction days and nights.

The "tight money" policy, as Byrd insists, has expressed the South more heavily than any other section, for there are more small farmers and industries to be hurt. They subsist from crop to crop, from stocking to selling goods, on seasonal bank borrowings. High interest rates squeeze them.

Textiles, a Southern mainstay in many sections, suffer from the Administration's tenderness toward foreign competitors. Secretary Ezra Benson sells his cotton surplus abroad at lower prices than the domestic industry must pay.

With their lower wage scales, and with modern plants built with American funds, Japanese, British and German mills can undersell the South's finished products in the United States market. Other Dixie industries are languishing from overseas competition. And foreign markets for their commodities—tobacco, fruits, vegetables, etc.—have fallen off.

NOW AN ISOLATIONIST BLOC It is this economic pressure which has transformed Southerners from enthusiastic internationalists into a strong isolationist bloc. Once they voted almost unanimously for foreign loans and grants, accepting Administration arguments that a reviving Europe would provide a richer market. But the billions sent abroad have had a contrary effect.

Nowhere are communism and Communists more detested than below the Mason and Dixon Line. No Southerners turned up in the Hiss-Chambers-Bentley conspiracy. As a result, nowhere has there been such an indignant recoil against recent Supreme Court decisions making it more difficult for Congress and the Courts to expose and punish these rulings was Justice Tom Clark of Texas.

Thus, for the second time in a generation, a Republican President has shown that he does not understand the South or Southern politics. The other was Herbert Hoover. Neither man is regarded as a practical or intuitive politician.

Small-Town Girl Weds Diplomat

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Any girl can see the world, meet fascinating men on every continent and make her life a fairy tale come true—if she just wants it enough.

The authority for this happy statement is a small town girl who started life as Florence Teets of Milledgeville, Ill., and now is the wife of E. F. Drumright of Drumright, Okla., U.S. consul general in Hong Kong.

Even now, when she is an international hostess entertaining ambassadors, princes and potentates practically every night at dinner, Florence has the scrubbed pink cheeks, slicked-back blonde hair and excited blue eyes that always will mark her as a wide-eyed American tourist. She loves to go places. Her goal since childhood has been to see every corner of the earth. And as now, she has just about done it.

I first met Florence about 10 years ago, when both of us were making our first trip to Europe. It was a weekend flight to England, inaugurating Pan American's two-decker Stratocruisers. Florence worked for Boeing Aircraft, who made the planes. During our two days in London, Florence never had time to go to bed, she was so busy seeing the sights, and as soon as she got back to New York she quit her job and became a travel writer.

Writing travel books and doing tourist pamphlets for Pan American, she managed to hit most of the far corners of the earth. In 1955 she was halfway through a round-the-world trip, doing a book on marriages in all countries, when she met a tall, gangling career diplomat from Oklahoma, at a chief-of-missions conference in the Philippines.

"We met in the Philippines, courted in Hong Kong and were married in Tokyo," says Florence. "It all took about two weeks. After all, I was doing a book on international marriage, and I took my work seriously. After the Philippine meeting I went to Hong Kong and stopped at the American consulate to collect my mail. I also got my mail."

Major New Church Emerges As Two Historic U. S. Denominations Unite

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 CLEVELAND (AP)—A major new church—molded of the diverse elements of two historic old denominations—emerged on the American scene today.

President Eisenhower sent his commendations, saying: "Now, together, your services to God and neighbor will gain new strength and inspiration."

Merged into a single communion were the national bodies of the Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

Affected are about 1,400,000 Congregationalists and 800,000 E. & R. Church members in 8,311 congregations across the country.

Their new denomination: The United Church of Christ.

It was ushered into being last night with pomp and worship and solemn vows.

Standing before the assemblage, the Rev. Dr. Douglas Horton, a long-time leader in the unification move and now president of Harvard Divinity School, spread his hands and prayed: "O Lord... speak peace and ever deeper mutual understanding to us in the years to come... Seal our covenant and bless our communion as we yield ourselves to Thee..."

The consolidation is the first to breach the wall between the two broad wings of U.S. Protestantism with their differing approaches to church government.

The sun still shone brightly in the west, but there was a cooling breeze as a colorful procession, 10 blocks long and 1,000 strong, threaded slowly through downtown Cleveland to Public Music Hall, where some 3,000 gathered for the merger ceremonies.

Flags of missionary lands and other banners flew along the long line of laymen and clergymen, many of them clad in academic robes with scarlet hoods or stoles. Led by a band of trumpeters, the representatives of the two churches filed side by side into the city's music hall, hymnbooks in hand, singing spiritedly "Faith of Our Fathers" and "Onward Christian Soldiers."

At the moment of formal unification, they intoned in unison: "We do now... declare ourselves to be one body and our union consummated... in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit."

Leaders of the two churches, standing on the stage before a tall, candle-lit cross, clasped hands firmly.

"Best be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love," said the Rev. Dr. Fred Hoskins, executive minister of the Congregational Christian General Council.

Responded the Rev. Dr. James E. Wagner, president of the E. & R. Church: "The fellowship of kindred minds is like to that above."

The delegates then rose, and joining hands throughout the auditorium, echoed the words of the hymn in hearty song.

The occasion climaxed 17 painstaking, sometimes troublous years of negotiations, delayed for one four-year period by a lawsuit.

The Congregational Christians, whose spiritual ancestors were the Pilgrims who came to this country on the Mayflower 350 years ago, developed their churches from British Protestantism. They emphasize the freedom of each individual congregation.

The Evangelical and Reformed Church, whose progenitors came to this country in the early 1700s, arose from the Swiss and German Reformation movements. Their church governing structure is more regularized.

To effect the bond between these two forms of government—known generally in Protestantism as "free church" and "presbyterian" polity—the union agreement allows each church to determine its own "voluntary relationship" to denominational agencies.

It is the bringing together of groups from these two general classifications that makes the merger a milestone in the annals of Protestant unity efforts.

Representatives of 30 other denominations, some of whom have indicated they eventually seek to join the newly united church, attended the ceremonies.

An agreement, called a "basis of union," is to regulate the affairs of the new denomination until a full constitution is written and approved by two thirds of the Congregational Christian Churches and of the 34 E. and R. regional synods.

A minority of Congregational Christian Churches still is opposing the merger. Four of them have a new legal challenge pending in federal court in New York.

Israel Bolsters Village Guards

TIBERIAS, Israel (AP)—Guard reinforcements today manned trenches ringing Israeli border villages as word spread that fresh Syrian troops had converted on the frontier from the east and north.

Families concealed their children in underground bunkers for fear new violence might follow Monday night's half-hour shooting exchange near Gadot and Mishmar Hayarden settlements.

U.N. observers arrived in Gadot to investigate the killing of a woman settler during the skirmish. Israeli sources said the village was sprayed by machine-gun fire from the Syrian shore of the River Jordan.

Russia's Czar Peter I (1682-1725) imposed a tax on beards.

NAACP Advised It Can Achieve Goals By 1963

DETROIT (AP)—Dr. Channing H. Tobias says he believes the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People can achieve its goal of full civil rights for Negroes in this country by 1963, the centennial of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation.

But the association's 75-year-old board chairman, keynoting the NAACP convention last night, said more members and more money would be needed.

Dr. Tobias said the organization faced a grave crisis because of attempts to "harass, cripple and run the NAACP out of business throughout the South."

A crowd that packed the 3,000-seat Henry and Edsel Ford Auditorium on the Detroit riverfront cheered Dr. Tobias' statement that "we cannot remain half integrated and half segregated."

Dr. Tobias said he set the 1963 goal at the 1953 convention when he proposed raising one million dollars a year for 10 years. "Well, I don't take that back yet," he said.

"We have not quite reached the million-dollar mark any year," he said, "but we have approached it and increased our financial resources considerably since 1953."

"It is now evident," he added, "that a million dollars a year is not ammunition enough to fight those who apparently have unlimited tax and private funds to carry on their campaigning of hate and violence. We have the resources within our own race and among our white friends to raise adequate funds to match our foes, dollar for dollar."

Dr. Tobias said former Brooklyn baseball player Jackie Robinson, who heads the NAACP fund drive, "has expressed great confidence that we will exceed our goal this year."

An all-out attack was launched on the NAACP in the South, Dr. Tobias said, because "the politicians of these states became alarmed by the success of our program and the almost universal approbation" of the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in public schools.

He told the convention, "The Negro vote cannot be tied to any political party."

The convention mildly applauded the reading of a telegram of greetings from President Eisenhower. The President's message said, "Our country is founded upon the principle that all men are created equal and all men should take an equal share in the responsibilities of government. As you have helped by word and deed to bring substance to this fundamental American objective, you have contributed to the strength of the national community."

No Lifejackets, Will Go On Trial

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Elmer L. Carter, 38, and Robert Varner, 18, both of High Point, are docketed for trial in Davidson County Court here Friday on charges of riding in a boat without life jackets.

The two were arrested Sunday near Joe's Beach on High Rock Lake, a short distance from a point where a Winston-Salem youth drowned last Thursday. Officers who had stationed themselves at a bridge near the beach said word of their presence spread rapidly and that other boaters on the busy lake promptly equipped themselves with life jackets as required by law.

The Dodgers collected only four hits themselves, two by Duke Snider, who walloped his 15th home run in the first inning before Lew Burdette closed the door and retired 17 in a row. Snider also scored an unearned run in the ninth.

GUNLOCK WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER

CHAPTER 22

The Mathers cabin was far from shed. A range took up one corner with the wall on the other side the stove covered by shelves on the floor to the ceiling. The nature, I judged, had been night from Missouri.

"A lot of work still to be done the cabin," Mathers said apologetically, "but we're putting it until winter when the weather's too bad to work outside."

"You've done wonderfully well," Sarah Pardee said.

"I'm satisfied," Mathers admitted, "but I do want to put up a room for Nela so she'll have her own room. She's sleeping in the tent back of the cabin and I'm sleeping in the wagon."

Nela Mathers was wearing a white dress with a ruffled collar that gave a tone of primness to her, a deceiving touch, I thought. Now that I had an opportunity really to look at her, I took full advantage of it. She tried to be lady-like, but her snub nose and square chin gave me the impression she was a tomboy at heart. Even when the conversation was serious, her gray eyes held a twinkle of laughter.

She was prettier than I had first thought. Her face had lost the peeled look and was smoothly tanned; and I liked the speed with which she put a good meal on the table.

She caught me staring at her and winked boldly at me. I lowered my head, my face hot with embarrassment. She looked down, too, laughing silently, and I wished I had her outside alone where I could deal with her properly.

The colony probably had some single men who were interested in her, and I could name at least six eligible cowboys who would be camping in front of Mathers' cabin from now on until one of them got her roped and tied. As far as I was concerned, I'd go after her so hard my tracks would be smoking if she hadn't been John Mathers' daughter.

Nela rose the instant we finished her three-layer cake. "Dad, will you help Maria do the dishes?" I'm going to ask Mr. Beeson to take me for a ride."

"It strikes me you're a little presumptuous," Mathers said. "You don't know Mr. Beeson will take you for a ride, and asking a guest to do the dishes—"

"Of course Maria will do the dishes," Sarah broke in. "I can dry. You won't have to help, John." She nodded at me. "Will, you go ahead?"

"Sure," I said, and, getting up, whirled my chair around like a showoff. "Come on, Miss Mathers. You want a ride. You'll get one."

By the time I brought the rig to the front door of the cabin, she was waiting. Clouds boiling up over the Sanare de Cristos had turned the day cool. Nela had put on her coat and a wool cap. She jumped into the seat beside me, saying, "Don't get any wrong ideas in your head; I want to go to the ranch, but being subtle isn't one of my talents."

"The ranch?"

"Anchor," she said impatiently. "You heard we bought it, didn't you?"

I drove up the road, staring

Propose Limit On Powers Of Supreme Court

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP)—Definite restrictions on the power of the U.S. Supreme Court were suggested today in a committee report to the National Assn. of Attorneys General.

"We propose," said Atty. Gen. George F. Guy of Wyoming, chairman of the association's committee, "that Congress enact legislation that would say in effect to the Supreme Court: 'You cannot exert exclusive jurisdiction over a state law unless Congress specifically authorizes you to do so.'"

Guy reported during the final day of the association's annual convention, a adjournment was scheduled for tonight, after an address by John Ben Shepperd, former attorney general of Texas.

"I feel," Guy said, "that this matter of federal-state relations could be solved quickly if we would go back to the basic fundamentals of our government; that the powers not delegated to the central government are reserved to the states. It's that simple."

The controversy over federal-state relations has been threaded through much of the discussions during the three-day convention here.

It has touched on the Supreme Court ruling affecting administration of the Smith Act and on states' control of subversion.

Thurston Arnold, a former assistant United States attorney general and onetime judge of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington, D. C., said yesterday he felt the "danger" is in the Supreme Court's actions in the economic field.

"The principal role of the Supreme Court once was to see that government did not interfere in business activities," he said. "Now that role has been turned inside out."

"The due process law now is devoted almost exclusively to the protection of civil rights. It no longer is a protection for business."

Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., Pulitzer Prize winner in American history, was an infantry corporal in the U.S. Army overseas in World War II.

Seven Injured As Bus Torn Open

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. (AP)—Seven persons were injured last night when a bus ripped itself open on the rear end of a steel-truck.

The accident occurred on heavily-traveled U.S. 40.

The truck was turning left through a cross-over of the dual-lane highway when the Philadelphia-bound Trailways bus came over a small hill and struck the trailing edge of the flat bed trailer.

Lt. Arthur W. Lilley of the Perryville Volunteer Fire Department, said a four-foot wide hole was gouged in the left side of the bus just below the windows at seat level.

Six ambulances sped to the scene. Injured were turned away from a hospital here, about one mile south of the accident scene, because there were no beds available. Five were then taken 12 miles north to Elkton and two made the 30-mile trip southward to Baltimore.

The injured included: Union Hospital in Elkton — James Franklin Currie, Raleigh, N.C., sent to surgery for serious leg injuries; Mrs. Goldie Smith, 47, Rocky Mount, N.C., possible leg fracture; Mrs. Laura Anders, 30, Galax, Va., undetermined injuries.

There were about 12 people aboard the bus, witnesses said.

Chou En-Lai Says U.S. Losing Badly

HONG KONG (AP)—Premier Chou En-lai told Red China's Parliament today the Communist bloc is riding high and stronger than ever, but the United States is taking a beating all over the map.

In a 30,000-word speech at the opening session of Parliament, Chou declared that the unity of the communist bloc is stronger now than before the Hungarian revolt.

He warned that world peace is constantly threatened by "war preparations under United States leadership." But he said the international situation was generally favorable to peace.

Peiping radio broadcast Chou's address to the session attended by Chairman Mao Tze-tung, other top Red officials and more than 1,000 deputies.

Chou singled out the "remarkable development of the Japanese people's struggle against the U.S. armed occupation" as one peace-making factor.

Another, he declared, was a movement towards neutrality in "practically all U.S.-controlled countries" and an anti-American movement on Formosa after the United States stationed guided missiles there.

Chou spoke of a "centrifugal tendency" developing among America's allies as a result of American "seizure of colonial interests in the Middle and Near East, North Africa and other parts of the world."

The speech was broadcast by Peiping radio.

The Red Premier went out of his way to deny suggestions that differences existed in the Communist bloc as a result of the Soviet repression of the Hungarian revolution.

"The unity of the camp of socialism (communism)," he declared, "was strengthened, not weakened, after the Hungarian incident."

The facts have proved that international Socialist unity, based on proletarian internationalism and equality, cannot be destroyed by provocation."

Chou credited Russia with helping ease international tension in the past year and praised the "series of reasonable proposals put forward by the Soviet Union on arms reduction, banning of weapons of mass destruction and nuclear weapon tests, abolition of military bases and withdrawal of armed forces from foreign lands."

Other factors which helped ease tension, Chou said, were (1) the Soviet Union's call for a big-power conference on the Middle East (which the West rejected), (2) the increasingly important role in safeguarding world peace being played by such Asian and African nations as India, Burma, Ceylon, Egypt and Syria, and (3) the "victory of the Egyptian people over British and French aggression which marked a new upsurge in the struggle against colonialism."

Nickerson Court Martial Reduced To Talk On Policy

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The court-martial of Col. John C. Nickerson Jr. has been reduced to a sort of round robin chat on Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson's order limiting the Army to 200-mile missiles.

For all practical purposes, as a result of a deal with the government, the trial of the bespectacled 41-year-old missile expert is all over except for his sentencing.

Nickerson is the man who engaged in a one-man fight to have Wilson modify his order and let the army develop and use a 1,500-mile Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile.

As a result of the deal, Nickerson yesterday pleaded guilty to 15 charges that he permitted sensitive defense information to reach unauthorized persons and was lax in handling secret data. He was promptly convicted.

Before the 10-man court-martial board gets around to fixing Nickerson's punishment, which could amount to dismissal and 30 years in jail, it plans to hear 14 witnesses, including some of the nation's top missile scientists. This probably will take about five days.

Presumably these witnesses will discuss the Wilson order and its effect on the nation's missile program, Nickerson as a person and a scientist, and how the Army's IRBM, the Jupiter, stacks up with the Air Force's rival missile, the Thor.

Their testimony is expected to be mostly for the purpose of obtaining leniency for Nickerson, described by the defense as a highly patriotic man who has put his country before his career.

Events piled up so rapidly in the stuffy courtroom yesterday—the opening day of the trial—that even the court-martial panel called for a brief recess.

First off, the prosecutor, Lt. Col. William G. Barry, announced the government was dropping the charges of espionage and false swearing against the 1938 West Point graduate.

A few minutes later Nickerson pleaded guilty to 15 charges that he disobeyed orders in handling classified material.

At this point the 71 news and cameramen covering the trial began to sense a deal. The Army later admitted it had accepted a pre-trial offer by Nickerson to plead guilty on the lesser charges if the espionage charge was dropped.

The whole business started last November when Wilson assigned development of the IRBM to the Air Force and limited the Army to missiles of 200-mile range.

To the scientists here, 120 of whom are former German rocket experts, handling such a limited range missile would be like returning to kindergarten. They helped develop the 200-mile V2 Rocket which dropped on London during World War II.

Nickerson, a brilliant mathematician, admittedly decided to fight the Wilson order by seeking to enlist influential newspapermen, congressmen and industrial sources on his side to preserve the IRBM for the Army.

The Army charged originally that he obtained top secret information and distributed it to those he wanted to help him. This led to his court-martial.

There was one witness for the defense yesterday, Dr. Ernst Stuhlinger, a nuclear physicist and chief of the research projects office at the Army Ballistic Missile Agency here.

Stuhlinger, who is one of the world's foremost missile men, told the court that without Nickerson the Army "would not now have the Jupiter."

Stuhlinger, who was wounded seven times during World War II on the German-Russian front, observed that he believed the Jupiter was a more advanced missile than the Air Force's Thor.

He testified, too, that like Nickerson he was "surprised and shocked" by Wilson's order and that if it hadn't been for Nickerson the scientific team here would have fallen apart with most of them joining private industry.

English Actress 'Loves' That Presley Vocalizing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's hard to imagine, but Claire Bloom, English beauty of "Romeo and Juliet" and other classics, is a fan of Elvis Presley.

"I love his singing; he has real rhythm," enthused the dark-haired actress. Since she was working at MGM in "The Brothers Karamazov" while he was in "Jailhouse Rock" (now there's a study in contrasts), a meeting was arranged.

The meeting was a classic in itself. Elvis came forward eagerly, grasped Miss Bloom's hand in both of his and murmured, "Hello, honey, how old are you?"

The actress said she was so taken aback, she blurted, "oh, oh older than you."

"Why, honey, you don't look much older than you," pondered a moment and added: "but then, you never can tell. Some of the crew on this picture look like young men, but they're 75 and 80 years old."

"That spoiled it," Miss Bloom laughed as she told the story later. Her status as a Presley fan was shaken somewhat, but she confessed she still likes him—on records. And she added that she is 3½ years older than his 22.

"The Brothers etc." is her first film for a major Hollywood studio, but not her first in Hollywood. She made her debut here a few years ago as Charlie Chaplin's leading lady in his last Hollywood film, "Limelight."

Now she's back to play the fiancée of Yul Brynner. She destroys him in "The Brothers" after she is spurned for Grushenka (Maria Schell).

Her first big break was playing Ophelia in a Stratford-on-Avon production of "Hamlet." She became one of England's finest young actresses, performing in many classics for the Old Vic company. She started with the Old Vic in New York last season. Her biggest exposure before American audiences was repeating her "Romeo and Juliet" performance on NBC-TV.

Homes Changed Color Overnight

RUTHERFORD, N. J. — The State Board of Health was making tests today to find out just how and why some 200 homes in nearby Lyndhurst had changed color overnight.

Some 30 white houses turned to dark brown. The discoloration could not be removed with water. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marvis said they first noted the change in their home at 5:30 a.m.

Mrs. Marvis said she looked out a window and saw that the house next door had turned a deep brown. Walking outside, she found her house too had changed color.

She recalled that a "fog" had descended on the area Monday night. She said the fog appeared to be laden with dirt particles.

Mrs. Miriam Sachs, head of the state's Bureau of Adult and Occupational Health Division, said a chemical reaction may have caused the discoloration.

Police said one theory advanced was that sulphur fumes released from stagnant water, combined with heat, reacted with certain lead properties in the paint, causing the discoloration.

Conference Planning Ambitious Venture

NEW BERN, N. C. — The North Carolina Methodist Conference was expected to lay plans today for raising the money to support ambitious ventures in the field of higher education.

A plea for "liberal" aid for proposed senior colleges at Fayetteville and Rocky Mount was made last night as officials of the two colleges spoke to conference delegates.

The report of the Board of Education, including financial plans, had been set for last night but was delayed. Instead, the Board of Higher Education held its annual meeting.

The 122nd annual meeting will close tomorrow night with the reading of the pastoral appointments for the new year.

Luther W. Hill, chairman of the board of trustees for the Rocky Mount College, reminded that the schools must strive to be accredited. "We hope the conference will be liberal when asked to contribute funds for both schools," he said.

Some 10 million dollars is estimated to be required to get the schools built and in operation.

Bishop Donald Pippitt of the San Francisco area praised the conference efforts to expand Christian higher education. "State-supported schools are teaching how to make a living," he said.

Czechs Arrest Priests And Nuns

BERLIN — Czechoslovakia's Communist government has arrested a number of Roman Catholic priests and nuns on charges of underground work and espionage for foreign agencies and the Vatican.

ADN, Communist East Germany's official news agency, reported the arrests but did not say how many were rounded up.

ADN quoted the Czech Communist party organ Rude Pravo as saying priests and nuns of the Order of the Salesians in Moravia were arrested because they received instructions from the headquarters of the order in Turin, Italy, the atican and certain U.S. espionage agencies.

Rude Pravo also said nuns of a monastery at Liptal, a small village in Moravia, had anti-Communist leaflets and illegal newspapers printed by using funds the government gave the monastery. The Liptal nuns also were accused of sheltering spies and enemies of the state.

The customer, Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield, had won the $5 first prize in a milking contest to promote June Dairy Month last week. He was told to give the money to the first waitress who asked him to have milk.

Nancy Schwerdtfeger and Wanda Turpin didn't know about the promotion. They were just trying to sell milk.

Radar Plan For Waterway Drawn

ANTWERP, Belgium (AP)—Experts of the Dutch radar station of Noordwijk have drawn up a plan for the establishment of a complete radar network on the Scheldt river in order to ensure complete security of navigation on the Dutch-Belgian waterway from Antwerp to the North Sea.

The plan was studied at the request of the Belgian ministry of communications and the Belgian marine administration. The plan was handed to Belgian and Dutch authorities for later approval and application.

It calls for the creation on Dutch and Belgian territory of a certain number of radar stations.

WALL STREET — An initial stock market rise faded early this afternoon, leaving prices mixed in slow trading.

Leading issues showed plus or minus signs ranging from fractions to around a point.

The market was generally higher at the start in a slight follow-through from yesterday's good technical rebound. But prices fell away gradually in later dealings.

A feature was the drop in American Telephone by well over a point, equalling its low for the year. Wall Street analysts said this was a reflection of the current situation where falling bond prices have enabled investors to obtain high yields on bonds, prompting them to switch from utility stocks which bring smaller returns at current prices.

U.S. Steel erased a fractional loss and Bethlehem, which had been easy, moved a bit to the upside as the steels had a brief flurry.

New York Central dropped a fraction following news its net income for May was off 73 per cent from a year ago. Atlantic Coast Line, Illinois Central and Southern Railway were ahead a little.

International Nickel was down more than a point and Anaconda dropped a fraction in a mixed nonferrous metals group. Kennecott and American Smelting made small gains.

Chrysler dropped a major fraction, Ford eased and General Motors was firm.

Du Pont picked-up more than a point and Air Reduction a fraction while other chemicals showed little change. The oils were mainly higher with Gulf Oil ahead a point. Sinclair, Standard Oil (New Jersey) and Texas Co. made smaller gains, Royal Dutch was off.

Zenith scampered ahead more than 3, apparently on better prospects for pay-as-you-see television. Radio Corp. gained a fraction, Eastman Kodak dropped more than 3 on profit-taking. Boeing, Montgomery Ward, Eastern Airlines, United Airlines and Goodyear were other gainers.

Merchant Boycott Action Is Proposed

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — A boycott of unfriendly white merchants was called last night for Negro residents who are in the majority in this famed education center.

The president of the Negro Tuskegee Civic Assn. told an overflow church crowd that members of their race should retaliate economically against a legislative act to exclude Negroes from the city.

Negroes should "not feed those who would devour us," Charles G. Gomillion told an estimated 2,000 persons to the fervent reply of "amen."

Final Meeting For Old Highway Commissioners

RALEIGH — A four-year-old Highway Commission holds its final session tomorrow, with $8,158,424.24 in road projects a big item on its agenda.

The total was run up yesterday in low bids on 30 road jobs involving 311 miles of work in 32 counties. The big letting ran the total value of contracts for the first half of this year past 54 million dollars, a new record.

The meeting tomorrow will be the final official gathering of the present 15-member commission.

In its place, a 7-member commission will take over on July 1, with an executive director of highways who will not serve as a commission member.

The new body was set up by the recent Legislature and its members named by Gov. Hodges. The expiring commission was appointed four years ago by the late Gov. William B. Umstead.

Highway Chairman A. H. Graham will end his second term as boss of road forces. He served under former Gov. Gregg Cherry and was called back into harness by Umstead.

For the director of highways post which replaces the job Graham has held, Gov. Hodges has recommended W. P. Babcock, a career engineer. His appointment is subject to the formality of approval by the Legislature.

The loss was estimated at $8,000. Firemen were also called to West Third St. around 3:30 yesterday when wiring in an auto shorted.

Given Chance To Avoid Serving New Sentence

William Frank Carr, a 16-year-old inmate of the Maury Prison Camp where he is serving a six-months sentence for breaking and entering, picked up some more time yesterday.

However, the youthful prisoner got a chance to avoid serving the new sentences which are for 8-to-10 years and 3-to-5 years.

Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, who passed the sentences, suspended them for five years if Carr would pay court costs by Friday, and remain of good behavior and gainful employment after he is released from the Maury Prison Camp.

Carr was in yesterday's session of Superior Court on charges of breaking, entering and larceny, and breaking and entering. The breaking, entering and larceny charge was based on an indictment against Carr for entering the dwelling of Lacy Mourning on February 4, 1957, and stealing a ladies watch, three sets of cuff links, a pair of gloves and $9 in cash. The breaking and entering charge involved Carr's entrance into the dwelling of James Ebron on March 3, 1957, and smashing a window.

The sentence Carr is now serving was imposed after he was convicted of breaking into a store in North Greenville. He was given a six-months jail term but the sentence was suspended until he got in trouble again when commitment papers were issued. He is scheduled to be released from the prison camp on or about July 28.

Other judgments returned yesterday included: William Edgar Walston, 111 N. Woodlawn Ave., Greenville, failure to yield right-of-way, 12 months suspended upon payment of costs and $50 for use of Mrs. Mary Dixon, Hudson; John D. Harris, Negro, 1711 S. Pitt St., Greenville, assault on a female, nol pros with leave.

Shodie Lee Smith, Route 2, Greenville, driving under the influence and failure to stop for a stop sign, defendant entered a plea of guilty to driving under the influence, 12 months.

Ollie Gray Jr., Negro, 209 S. Reade St., Greenville, breaking and entering, and larceny, three years for breaking and entering, two years for larceny, sentences to run concurrently; T. G. Bass, 402 Rotary Ave., Greenville, worthless check, hur withdrawal and mistrial ordered after a jury failed to agree on a verdict after a half-day of deliberation.

Tom Anderson, Negro, no address listed, larceny of an automobile, dismissed at close of presentation of all evidence; Shelton Dupree, Negro, no address listed, breaking, entering and larceny, two-to-three years.

J. A. Perkins, Negro, Route 2, Robersonville, worthless check, nol pros with leave; Marvin E. Cases against two Kinston youths, charged with breaking, entering and larceny, were referred to Juvenile Court because both defendants are under 16 years of age.

Will Ask Hodges Retain Present Prisons Chief

CHARLOTTE — The chairman of the newly-appointed State Prisons Commission said today he will ask Gov. Hodges to retain Col. William F. Bailey as executive head of state prisons.

The announcement of his request came from Linn D. Garibaldi of Matthews, who was named by Hodges this week to head the new commission.

Bailey presently is director of prisons under the combined Prisons Department - Highway Commission setup. But effective July 1 the Prisons Department will be separated and operate independently of the Highway Commission.

Political observers said they expect Gov. Hodges to approve Garibaldi's recommendation to keep Bailey.

Judge Frizzelle Dismisses Suit

A suit brought by Folger Bulk Company against Paul Carmon was dismissed yesterday by Judge J. Paul Frizzelle after parties to the action reported it had been "fully compromised and settled."

Judge Frizzelle allowed a motion for dismissal by attorneys for the automobile company after receiving the report of compromise. Folger had sought to recover $603.85 from Carmon, alleging that the defendant owed that much on the purchase price of an automobile.
