Khrushchev Turns On Three Ousted Kremlin Leaders

LONDON (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev today publicly denounced three ousted Kremlin leaders as "cunning" plotters who planned to seize control of the Soviet Communist party and government. The Soviet Communist boss further accused Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich, former first deputy premiers, of opposing all government measures "for easing world tension and strengthening peace throughout the world." He called Dmitri T. Shepilov, fourth member of the ousted anti-party group "the most shameless double-dealing individual." Khrushchev made his accusations in a speech in Leningrad, the first time he has publicly condemned the ousted trio since they were expelled from party and government posts earlier this week. London monitors who heard a report of the speech broadcast by Moscow radio first reported that Khrushchev had singled out Malenkov as "the worst" of the group. Later, however, the monitors said Khrushchev had not in fact made such a statement. They attributed their error to "a mishearing." The mistake was caught, the monitors said, when their recording of the speech was being replayed for a final check on translation details. The original Moscow broadcast was in the Russian language. Earlier in the day, the Soviet Union informed the West the Kremlin shakeup would cause no changes in its "peace-loving foreign policy."

Nation's Highway Deaths Climb During Long Holiday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Death on the nation's highways climbed with grim regularity today, but at a pace well below that predicted for the long holiday week-end by safety officials. As Americans took to the road in the second half of the Independence Day Holiday the National Safety Council said death figures were "encouragingly low" and "well below" its estimate that 533 persons would die during the four-day period. Since 6 p. m. (local time) Wednesday at least 236 traffic deaths were counted. Drawings totaled 132, and 53 persons died in miscellaneous accidents. The over-all toll was 421. The count 4th grad. The count ends midnight Sunday. Although traffic deaths swerved sharply upward at times yesterday, the overall trend was about five an hour, a little higher during evening hours. One accident alone in Michigan yesterday claimed seven lives, the highest number so far during the holiday. The National Safety Council in its statement said that despite spurts, "traffic deaths are still running on a level with a non holiday toll. Drivers and law enforcement officers are doing a good job." The Associated Press in a non-holiday test period counted 378 deaths on the highway, 146 drownings and 110 miscellaneous deaths. The test period was from 6 p. m. Wednesday June 19 to midnight Sunday June 23. The test was made for comparative purposes. The record traffic toll for any Independence Day holiday is 491 set in a four day observance in 1950. The present pace would be below that figure, but fatalities usually jump sharply on the last day of a holiday when motorists begin streaming back to their homes. The overall Fourth of July record toll is 805 set in 1955 in a three-day observance. The state by state totals listing traffic, drownings and miscellaneous in that order: Alabama 2 2 3; Arizona 5 1 1; Arkansas 3 3 3; California 14 5 5; Colorado 3 4 0; Connecticut 1 0 0; Delaware 0 1 0; Florida 5 6 1; Georgia 3 1 1; Idaho 2 1 1; Illinois 8 1 0; Indiana 7 2 0; Iowa 4 2 2; Kansas 4 0 1; Kentucky 3 3 0; Louisiana 1 12 2; Maine 1 3 0; Maryland 0 0 2; Massachusetts 1 1 1; Michigan 14 7 0; Minnesota 3 3 1; Mississippi 5 1 3; Missouri 2 2 3; Montana 1 3 1; Nebraska 3 2 1; Nevada 0 1 0; New Hampshire 2 0 0; New Jersey 5 5 1; New Mexico 5 5 0; New York 16 6 5; North Carolina 7 3 0; North Dakota 2 0 0; Ohio 16 3 3; Oklahoma 12 2 1; Oregon 1 7 0; Pennsylvania 18 4 2; South Carolina 5 4 0; South Dakota 1 2 1; Tennessee 5 2 1; Texas 18 7 4; Utah 0 1 0; Vermont 1 0 0; Virginia 4 6 1; Washington 2 3 0; West Virginia 3 0 1; Wisconsin 3 3 1; Wyoming 1 1 0.

Searchers Recover Bodies Of Trainmen From Sound

EDENTON, N.C. (AP) — Searchers early today recovered the bodies of the conductor and engineer of a Norfolk Southern Railway freight train which crashed through a trestle into Albemarle Sound yesterday. Dragging operations, begun about 7 a. m., first turned up the body of Shelly R. Bray of Raleigh, the conductor, and then the body of W. M. Munden of Norfolk, Va., the engineer. Three other crewmen were rescued in the early morning hours after the accident yesterday. A sixth crewman, a signalman riding a rear car, was uninjured. At Raleigh, R. P. Baucum, railroad's assistant chief dispatcher, said several pieces of heavy equipment were en route to the scene from Norfolk and New York. He said these would attempt to salvage the two diesel engines and boxcar in the water. Helicopters which helped in the search yesterday did not take part today. The Coast Guard station at Elizabeth City said the 'copters would wait until tomorrow to give the remaining body a chance to rise to the surface. The northbound train, pulling 77 cars, was about halfway across the 5.1-mile trestle when the pilings of one section collapsed, plunging the front of the train into about 20 feet of water. The two diesel engines pulling train 64 from the Morrison switching yards near Washington, N.C., to Norfolk were submerged with a boxcar resting on top of them. One car was saved from plunging over the trestle by its coupling with the car behind it. The two cars were left on the trestle after the others were removed. Norfolk Southern General Supt. J. C. Poe of Raleigh said the cause of the accident had not been determined. The three survivors said the trestle pilings apparently cracked and collapsed. Poe said he did not know when the engines, worth $175,000 each, and the boxcar, will be raised from the water. The trestle, believed the longest in the United States over a navigable body of water, spans the sound from Mackey to Edenton, about 75 miles south of Norfolk. The accident occurred about two miles from the Edenton side. The first survivor rescued was E. C. Jones, 41, of Pantego, N.C., a brakeman. He was found clinging to a piling 20 minutes after the accident. Fast relaying of information Jones provided led to a helicopter pickup of John Lowery, 51, of Norfolk. Lt. Budridge said a search plane dropped flares lighting the way for the helicopter rescue of Lowery at 2:15 a. m. He was clinging to a drifting piling, smashed loose in the wreck. Budridge called the night-time rescue "a real feat." Burton Rankin, 58, of Norfolk, a fireman, washed ashore at 4:15 a. m. about a mile from the bridge. He, too, had clung to a piling and drifted ashore. Supt. Poe said railroad traffic was rerouted over a shorter trestle belonging to the Atlantic Coast Line Railway.

Truman Library Turn-Over Set This Afternoon

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — A chipper Harry Truman prepared to turn over to the government today a 21 million dollar monument to his two terms in the White House. It's a crescent-shaped building of Indiana limestone containing 2 1/2 million official documents and uncounted personal mementoes of his nearly eight years as President. The 73-year-old former chief executive obviously looked forward with keenest anticipation to the ceremony this afternoon when the Harry S. Truman Library and Museum will be dedicated as a national monument. And he made no attempt to hide the relief with which he took part in preliminary events. Twice yesterday, laughing and joking with the donors, he accepted gifts for the museum. One was a piano—a duplicate of one made for the White House by the Baldwin Piano Co. He recalled that a local newsman had mistakenly identified one of his favorite songs as the "Mohawk Waltz." "It was the Blackhawk Waltz," he laughed. "It was a song written during the Blackhawk War in which Abraham Lincoln served as a captain. Here, I'll show you what it's like." He did — playing the tune through the following it with a minuet. Like the piano, the Truman library building itself is a gift. Its cost, 1 1/2 million dollars, was raised by public subscription. The value placed on the grounds and the building's contents run the total to 21 million. Flying over the building at today's ceremony will be the flag that flew over the inauguration stand in Washington when Truman took the oath of office in 1949. Yesterday, as he has many times before, Truman recalled it was "an inauguration a lot of folks said would never take place." "I'm joining him for the ceremony will be the only other living ex-President, Herbert Hoover; the widow of President Franklin D. Roosevelt; the chief justice and an associate justice of the United States; six U.S. senators; four congressmen; eight governors; and two men who were members of Truman's cabinet. The invited guests number 2,000 and Truman shook the hands of more than 500 of them at a reception last night. For today's ceremony, it's anticipated, there will be, in addition, from 10 to 15 thousand spectators. Standing room for them has been provided on as yet unlandscaped grounds between the front entrance of the library and U.S. Highway 24, where stands the structure. Earl Warren, chief justice of the United States, will be the principal speaker. Truman will present his official papers and mementoes. Basil O'Connor, president of the Harry S. Truman Library Corp., will make the presentation of the building. Franklin G. Floete, chief of the General Services Administration, and Wayne C. Grover, architect of the United States, will accept the library on behalf of the government. Floete is President Eisenhower's personal representative for the occasion.

Rejects Copying N.C. Pupil Plan

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Atty. Gen. J. Lindsay Almond Jr., today clearly rejected a pupil assignment plan, such as North Carolina's, as a means of preserving "separate schools." Thus he accepted, even as Republicans in Roanoke were preparing to nominate State Sen. Ted Dalton for governor, Dalton's challenge to do battle on this issue. "The assignment plan will not and cannot preserve the public school system from the destructive effects of integration," Almond said in a statement here. It was the most positive position on the assignment plan yet taken by the attorney general, certain to be nominated next Tuesday in the Democratic primary for governor. "The statement, which has been repeatedly made that the North Carolina plan has been tried and tested in the courts, is utterly misleading," Almond said. "The court went on further," he said, "than to say that the applicant for admission to a public school in North Carolina would at first be required to exhaust the administrative remedies provided by the state. "When any child is refused admission to a public school on the basis of race under an assignment plan, the plan is at an end. To say therefore that one favors an assignment plan in order to preserve separate schools, he must realize assignment will not accomplish that purpose."

Soviets Pledge Close Study Of Counter Offer

LONDON (AP) — Russia has promised to give careful study to the U.S. offer to meet the Soviets more than half way in dismantling nuclear weapons. Soviet Delegate V. I. Zorin declined immediate comment, however, on Harold E. Stassen's latest proposals as the five-nation U.N. disarmament subcommittee recessed yesterday until Monday. Winding up his presentation of the new U.S. plan for ending the atomic race, Stassen suggested the nuclear powers begin breaking down some of their H-bombs for peaceful use as soon as agreement is reached to halt the building of new atomic weapons. The U.S. delegate made clear, however, his government wants to keep a strong atomic weapons potential. Stassen said the United States would agree to a 53-47 ratio with the Russians in turning fissionable H-bomb material over to international agency, the United States would provide 53 pounds, the Russians 47. Stassen made his offer conditional upon four points: 1. The process would not begin until Russia and the West have halted nuclear weapons production under strict inspection and enforcement. 2. The United States would be prevented from making or present nuclear weapons into new types. 3. The United States would be free to train the forces of other nations in the methods of using and delivering nuclear weapons as a safeguard against nuclear attack. 4. The United States would be free to store nuclear weapons in other states with their consent.

Three-Year-Old Is Family's Sole Survivor In Crash

COPEMISH, Mich. (AP) — Three-year-old Dennis Collins was the sole survivor of a family of eight, killed in a car-truck collision yesterday near this northwestern lower Michigan community. Bynum Collins, 55, a migrant fruit picker from Paragould, Ark.; his wife, Florence, 45; and five of their children, Linda, 14, Gary, 13, Harold, 10, Thomas, 9, and Terry, 5, were dead when state police reached the scene at an intersection of State Highway 115 and a county road. Dennis, a 13-year-old cousin, Clara Collins, and the truck driver, Warfield Laws, 52, of Lake City, Mich., were taken to a Frankfort, Mich., hospital. The boy and the girl were in critical condition. It was the worst single traffic accident reported anywhere in the nation thus far over the long Independence Day holiday.

Anson Countian Is Miss Universe Entry From N. C.

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — A brown-haired Anson County girl who dazzled the judges with a stunning 36-22-36 figure is North Carolina's representative in the Miss Universe contest. Lovely Peggy Dennis, a 19-year-old former student at Appalachian Teachers College last year, won the Tar Heel title here last night over eight contestants from across the state. Miss Dennis, who lives at Lillesville near Wadesboro, won the eye of the judges in an outdoor setting near the Nags Head surf. She performed equally well in evening dress and bathing suit. Tall and slender at 5-8, Miss Dennis weighs 125. She first will compete in the United States contest to select this country's entry in the Miss Universe pageant at Long Beach, Calif., later this summer.

Windstorm For Elizabeth City

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A severe windstorm, with peak winds of 40 miles an hour, did considerable damage to power lines here last night. Supt. Bob Luther of the Public Utilities Department said the winds blew four big trees across main power lines and that falling limbs damaged numerous feeder lines. He said the storm caused more trouble than big hurricanes of recent years. The windstorm brought some relief from yesterday's 96-degree temperatures but only 0.4 of an inch of rain fell, not enough to break a drought which started the first of June. Less than one inch of rain has fallen since the drought began.

One Day In Jail For Each Ticket

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman serving 49 days in jail for 49 overdue parking tickets has pleaded for leniency on 14 other overdue tickets. Mrs. Helen Guild told Municipal Judge David W. Williams yesterday that if she got an additional sentence she wouldn't be out of jail "in time to make my little girl some school dresses." He sentenced her to one day in jail for each of the 14 tickets, the time to run concurrently with that she is already serving. She has two children, Opal, 6, and Renard, 14.

Pitt Continues Quiet Holidays

With less than 35 hours remaining, crime and the Grim Reaper have taken a backseat in Pitt County over the long Fourth of July weekend. Law enforcement officers throughout the county have described the holiday thus far as "the quietest in years." Members of the State Highway Patrol report traffic to be "relatively light" on the highways. Patrolman Dick Taylor said this morning, "Traffic was rather heavy on Wednesday but settled back to normal on the Fourth and Friday." "We expect it to pick up this afternoon and tomorrow," he added. In Farmville, Police Chief L. T. Lucas told a reporter today, "Everything here has been unusually quiet thus far. This has been the quietest Fourth of July I have ever experienced." Police Chief Walter Gray of Bethel and H. V. Chandler Jr. of Ayden also reported a quiet holiday. S. G. Gibbs, Greenville Police Chief, states that very little trouble has been encountered in the Pitt County seat to date.

Five Injured As Porch Collapses

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A second floor porch collapsed under eight persons last night, injuring five of them seriously. Police reported some of the porch supports had rotted. Reported in serious condition from the 15-foot plunge were Mrs. Angeline Mitchell, 84, Miss Annie Mosby, 53, William Mosby, 53, Mrs. Hattie Valle, 52, and Alonzo Grover, 55. Three others were released after treatment at a hospital.

Cites Possible Tax Loss Due New Law

RALEIGH (AP) — A compulsory auto liability insurance law enacted by the 1957 Legislature may take a bite from highway tax collections. Chief Highway Engineer W. H. Rogers Jr. made this prediction yesterday at a news conference attended by Director of Highways, W. F. Babcock and other highway officials. Rogers cited the possible effect of the compulsory insurance law in estimating that actions of the Legislature will result in a loss of 3 million dollars in highway tax collections over the next two years. The Budget Bureau has estimated highway fund losses of $80,000 per year due to legislative action. But Rogers said he believes the figure will be nearer 1 1/2 million per year. Many motorists may decide to park their cars rather than pay for insurance coverage which will be required before purchase of license plates, Rogers asserted. If so, the state would lose both from registration fees and gasoline taxes, he pointed out. In the overall highway budget of 413 million dollars, the highway officials agreed that the anticipated revenue loss will be minor, whether it totals 3 million or $1,760,000. A reduction of $130,000 is estimated from a cut from 6 to 3 percent in franchise taxes paid by inter-city bus companies. A loss of $350,000 is predicted from refunds to counties and municipalities of the six cents per gallon gasoline tax, and another $350,000 from increasing from five to six cents per gallon to gasoline tax returns to non highway users, chiefly farmers. At Gibsonville, 43-year-old carpenter Thorton Jarrett was struck and killed by a Southern Railway passenger train as he started to cross the tracks. Ernest Leah McDuffie, 32, of Rt. 2, St. Paul's was killed on Sadie Tree Road near Renect in Robeson County. The Highway Patrol blamed high speed for the accident. Two other victims died yesterday in traffic accidents. Mrs. Nellie M. McLennan, 62, of Greensboro, was struck and killed by an automobile while she was crossing a Greensboro street. A car bearing a father and his 11-year-old son overturned near Roxboro. The boy, Robert Eddie Bunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman R. Bunn of Mount Pleasant, was burned to death. His father received critical burns.

Took Dim View Of Nondelivery

CLEMENTON, N. J. (AP) — Jimmy Boyle, 19, Clementon, was a substitute mail carrier for the Clementon Post Office from April 1 until recently. Postal inspectors took a dim view of the fact that more than 600 circulars mailed by a supermarket just didn't get delivered. The presumption was that Jimmy threw them away. Yesterday, he waived a hearing and was held in $500 bail for the federal grand jury. DID IT FOR HIM FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — After firemen battled a blaze in a Fresno cafe yesterday, a burglar stole 14 bottles of liquor, a box of cigars, and $10 he entered through a hole the firemen had chopped.

Russia Seen Becoming Mediterranean Power

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia may well be started on the way to becoming a limited naval power in the eastern Mediterranean. The suspicion is growing in official quarters here that this is the real meaning behind Russia's recently disclosed sale to Egypt of three submarines. One of Egypt's purposes in obtaining the undersea craft may be in using them to try to prevent passage of ships through the Gulf of Aqaba to the Israeli port of Eilat. Egypt and other Arab states contend that the gulf is Arab territorial water and that shipping to Israel can be legitimately stopped. Two of the submarines, which arrived some time ago at the port of Alexandria, are described by authorities here as capable of laying mines. The ultimate Egyptian intention may be to try to mine the waters at the entrance to the gulf, which opens off the Red Sea. But what intrigues and worries American experts even more is what may be behind Russia's sale of the undersea craft. In the view of responsible authorities who have analyzed the deal, possession and operation of the submarines by Egypt will mean that Egypt will have to build up a submarine operating base possibly at Alexandria. With President Nasser's Egyptian government already closely linked with the Soviet Union, such a base would be Russian equipped. It could easily be supplied with a large store of repair parts and with other materials and the fuel suitable for submarine operations. Once such a base is established it could readily be used by the Soviets' own submarines as well as those under the Egyptian flag. Russia's technicians could be available there to service visiting Soviet underwater vessels. In such case Washington officials would expect that such visits would be carried out with considerable frequency. The presence of the Soviet submarines in Mediterranean waters would then become a factor which strategic planners of the Western powers would have to take constantly into consideration. The possibility of Russia's scoring such a strategic gain is considered especially interesting at this time in the light of speculation over the possible effect on Soviet policies of the shakeup in Communist leadership in Moscow. In a statement yesterday the State Department took note of hopeful expressions, particularly in Europe, that the greater power now apparently possessed by Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev will mean a further development of "soft" policies on the part of the Soviet Union. Press Officer Lincoln White commented skeptically that "the proof of the pudding will be to see whether or not the Soviet Union will now proceed with practical measures" for achieving agreements with Western powers on such major international problems as disarmament and the reunification of Germany. While pinpointed the Middle East as an "obvious area" in which Russia can prove its professed interest in promoting peace and stability where tensions presently exist. Some experts believe that if the Soviets are seriously interested in carrying their coexistence line beyond the stage of talk and propaganda, the Middle East offers them the best opportunity. At the same time these authorities say it is difficult to see how Russia can be promoting stability and the lowering of tensions in an area where it has provided such weapons as submarines to a country which did not previously possess them and has the opportunity thereby of enlarging its own power operations.

WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER

CHAPTER 30

Eric Brahm's cattle tally had been short this fall. Naturally, he blamed the settlers. Irv Costello had fanned his temper until it was ready to burst into flame. As for Costello, he had been in a haughty mood for weeks. If trouble did start, it might not stop until Mathers and Scott and all of them on the West Fork were dead or driven from the country. And my wife, Nela, was with Mathers, her father.

By the time I reached Canon City, I was in a torment of worry. But there comes a time when flesh reaches the end of its endurance, even under the quaking of the spirit. I weighed the possibilities and decided I had some time. Costello would not move by himself. The others, including Brahm, would hesitate before attacking the colonists. Though my decision was forced upon me by compelling weakness, I hoped I was right.

I left my horse at a livery stable and then wearily climbed the stairs to Ben Sawhill's office. He said, "How are you, Will?" and shook hands with me, but I sensed at once that he was not his usual cordial self.

I was too tired to be tactful. I asked, point-blank, "What's wrong, Ben?"

"I was going to ask you that," he motioned to a chair. "Sit down."

I gave him the money I had brought from Leadville and sprawled into the chair. "Sarah told me to turn this over to you. You're to figure the profit, I guess."

"And divide it. That's what I was going to ask about, I thought you and Sarah would never have a falling out, but she writes that she's dissolving the partnership."

"You want to know the trouble?"

"That's what I'm asking."

"Nela and I told her we got married the day before we started roundup."

Sawhill leaned back in his chair, puzzled. "What's that got to do with it? I mean, Sarah shouldn't object to your getting married."

"No, but she does," I motioned to the desk. "Go ahead. Do your figuring. I guess Sarah doesn't trust me."

I slept in my chair until he woke me. He had put the money into several canvas sacks. One he would deposit in the bank for Sarah, another was my share, and a third held the $500 I was to take to Sarah.

I got to my feet, a little groggy. I said, "Ben, Sarah gave me half the Box P. I'm going to hang onto that."

"Better think that over, Will," he said. "You came to the Box P empty-handed. You've had a home for eight years, a job that paid well, and now you've just been given half of the Box P's profit for the past year, and you've already received your regular wages. That's more than fair."

"You've been reading Sarah's letter," I said, "but you don't add it up right. I aim to hang onto what's mine and fight for it. If I don't, she won't have anything."

As I walked to the door, he called out, "What in Heaven's name is happening, Will?"

I leaned wearily against the door casing. "Ben, Sarah Pardee is not the unselfish woman we have always thought she was. She's small and self-centered."

"Stop it!" He started toward me, his hands flisted. "Have you gone daft, Will?"

"You'll love her, no matter what you find out about her?" I asked.

"Of course! I'll never change, but—"

"Maybe you should pay a visit to the Box P," I said. "She's not going to marry John Mathers. And while you're there, give her some advice. She'll have to get along with me as a partner or sell out to me. I think she'd better sell. She hates the Box P, but it's different with me."

From Sawhill's office I went to the bank, barely reaching it before closing time, and deposited my money. Then I asked to see the president, and argued for the backing I would need to buy Sarah's share of the ranch.

I didn't know whether Sarah would sell, but I had a hunch that Sawhill would go to the Box P and that Sarah would turn to him just as she had turned to John Mathers a year ago. Because he had no great objection, except his love for Sarah, Ben would be the right man for her.

At The Churches

I had a meal in the hotel dining room, took a room, and went to sleep at once, sprawling across the bed with my clothes on. I was in the saddle on my way out of town before dawn, not even taking time for breakfast.

I was home hours earlier than either Curly or Red could have expected me, but they had been watching, and they were saddled up by the time I rode into the yard. As I swung down, Curly said, "That animal about finished. Want me to saddle Roanie for you?"

"What's up?"

"Four of 'em colonists," Red said. "Crossed the line three days ago. Tore down your sign. Starting to put up cabins."

"Funny, the way I felt inside, here it was, the thing I had known would happen. I had told myself what I would do. I had told Sarah and Mathers and my crew. Yet now I wanted no part of it. There would be women and kids down there, and somebody would get hurt."

"They won't be expecting you for another five, six hours," Red said. "I told 'em you'd be gone to Canon City but that they'd better look out when you got back."

His words irritated me. He had not business saying anything to them. That was my job, I said. "You boys don't have to go."

Red flared back. "We don't want to hear no more of that crazy talk."

"All right," I said. "Saddle Roanie. Just be sure you don't start the trouble. I'll start it."

I walked to the house. Sarah was sewing near the window. She looked at me warily, as if not certain what I would say or do. She asked, "Did you see Ben?"

"I saw him," I tossed the money on the couch. "There's your $500."

"Thank you, Will. You can pack up—"

"Sarah," I said, "I'm not packing up. Either we go on being partners, or I'll buy you out. I can raise the money if you don't set an unreasonable price on your half of the ranch and stock. I turned toward the door.

"Where are you going?" she asked.

"I've got a chore to attend to."

She guessed then, and cried out, "No, Will, no! I don't want you killed!"

But I went out of the house and crossed the muddy yard to where Roanie stood saddled and waiting. I asked, "Who are they?"

"The first wagon belongs to Merle Turner," Red said. "The other three belong to Secore and Troy and Runyan."

The Anchor crew that had been with Turner and Dingham all summer, I asked, "How about Gene Dillingham?"

"He ain't around," Curly said. "The devil he's not," I said, and swung into the saddle, my Winchester in the boot.

We left in a gallop, mud splattering behind us. Sarah, standing in the doorway, screamed, "Will! Come back! Will!"

I pretended not to hear her.

Will Beeson has set out to shoot some settlers. But he is riding toward hired killers who have him as their target. Continue "Gunlock" here Monday.

Sees Scarcity In Reading Tools

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — An expert on the subject says newspapers should be available in classrooms, offices, libraries and lounges of schools to encourage reading.

Dr. Roma Gans, Columbia University reading specialist, suggested newspapers as "reading tools" at a conference of Michigan school teachers and principals. "Too often," Dr. Gans said, "teachers are ordered to teach without proper tools."

Loans Opened To Future Teachers

Plans for recruiting and training more teachers for North Carolina public schools were announced today by D.H. Conley, superintendent of Pitt County Schools. Scholarship loans not to exceed $350 annually are now available to high school graduates entering college for the purpose of preparing to become teachers.

Conley said. Funds for the loans were provided by the 1957 General Assembly.

Individuals are eligible to receive scholarship loans for four years or until they qualify for a teacher's certificate based on the bachelor's degree. Scholarship loans, together with interest on them, may be cancelled by teaching one full year for each annual scholarship received.

The Scholarship Loan Fund is administered by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. High school graduates and other prospective teachers desiring further information concerning the program are advised to contact local school superintendents or the State Superintendent of Public Instruction in Raleigh.

Squirrel Died In King-Size Cage

GLASGOW, Ky. (AP) — A wandering squirrel tried to convert E. P. Ebert's home into a king-size cage while he was away. Returning from vacation, Ebert found the squirrel had entered the house and caused considerable damage trying to get out again. Fact is, he died trying.

His body was found while Ebert totaled the damage — a broken lamp, chewed-up Venetian blinds, and 14 window pane frames, bitten off right down to the glass.

FLOUR OFFERING

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — The Rev. Arthur Smith, pastor of the Rock Pentecostal Holiness Church, offered a sack of flour as a prize for the largest family attending Sunday school.

It went to a mother who appeared with all nine of her children.

LOOKING FOR GOD

Some say you find God just as well in a garden, in the woods, or on a golf course as in a church—that God is everywhere. But be honest about it.

Are you not more apt to think of weeds, or mosquitoes, or a poor shot than you are of God? And after all, you have made this outing to seek pleasure.

But when you go to church, it is with the specific intention of worshipping. Here you engage in prayer, praise and thanksgiving. Here you mingle with people who are seeking God and have come to feel His presence. In the quiet beauty of a church you find few outside distractions, and you know that this place is dedicated to the service of God.

For peace and happiness which comes from really feeling God's presence, worship in the house of the Lord this Sunday—make it a regular practice.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Camp Has Varied Activities

Receiving instruction . . . the girls learn how to prepare firewood.

Cleaning up . . . a daily vigil for the girl campers.

Swimming . . . one of the primary activities at Camp Hardee.

The idea for a girl's camp originated and became a reality in the early 1940's.

Two new buildings, costing $10,000, were donated by the late Henry Hardee in memory of his father and mother.

Today there are 22 buildings including two concrete bathhouses. Actually the only difference now is the number of new buildings since girls from seven through 17 have been having a whooping good time at the camp named after its donor since it first opened.

Camp Hardee, located on the Pamlico River near Blount's Creek, is presently being sponsored by the Pitt County Girl Scout Council.

The camp is primarily for girl scouts and Brownies from this county but a number of girls from surrounding counties and towns have attended.

When first opened, Camp Hardee could accommodate only 36 girls. Now 58 girls can attend each two-week period and be able to take advantage of each activity available.

Girls attending the camp may receive instruction in swimming, boating, tennis, softball, volleyball, badminton, archery, arts and crafts and various phases of scouting and scoutcraft.

It is also possible for the scouts to work on their Proficiency Badges while at camp.

The youngsters also are taken on hikes during which time they may cook out and study nature lore. In addition, at the end of each day camp fire groups are formed for various types of recreation and fellowship.

On Sunday a Scouts-On, an inspiration service supplementing regular religious services, is staged.

Cold Drinks Too
All this and cold drinks too. Miss Janie Smith, faculty member of the ECC Physical Education Department who is serving as Camp Director, says, "Practically all the girls look forward to the time they can buy their one cold drink a day."

"You ought to see their faces," she said.

The site contains 27 acres of land with the campers having access to surrounding land tracts. Camp Hardee has a sandy beach and a considerable amount of water frontage especially advantageous for boating.

This summer, as in the past, three two week camping phases have been scheduled. Opening during the month of June the camp is now in its second phase.

Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Pitt Girl Scout Supervisor, reports, "I feel that we are having one of the most successful camping years in the history of Camp Hardee."

Congressman Lindsay Warren of Washington was the principal speaker at a supper given at Bayview last night by W. H. Woolard, vice president of the Greenville Banking & Trust Company of this city to employees of that institution, their wives and several guests.

Mr. Warren lauded the progress that has been made in Pitt County the past several years. Immediately after supper, numbers of the bankers and their wives repaired to the dance pavilion at the end of the pier and took part in the regular Friday evening dance.

Hon. E. G. Flanagan acted as toastmaster. Those making talks were Carl Goerch and Frank Bowers of Washington, Herbert Waldrop, W. H. Woolard, Miss Martha Lee Cowell and H. B. Utley.

Miss Zeta Fallon, regional director from Scout Headquarters, Atlanta, Ga., was introduced as a guest. Miss Fallon, camp director, commented on camp activities and the willingness and potentialities of all her camp counselors and assistant counselors.

Extra Mileage Out Of Tax Dollars

In this era of rising taxes and costlier government, taxpayers of Greenville and Pitt County are fortunate that they will be spared higher local tax rates this year in spite of higher over-all budgets of the two local governments.

Members of the City Council of Greenville, and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners are to be commended for their efforts which have enabled them to hold the tax line in the face of rising government costs. So too, are the department heads and employees of the county and city governments who will find their jobs more difficult under the tight budget conditions which will prevail during the current fiscal year.

It is true that tax collections for both these local governments will be higher this year than last because of the increased property valuations on which ad valorem taxes are based. Yet, this increased revenue did not nearly match the initial budget requests from department heads. To keep the tax rates of both governments down required careful study and trimming by department heads and governing boards.

It is the considered opinion of The Reflector that both the city and county governments can operate within the budgets tentatively adopted for the current fiscal year without adversely affecting services offered to their citizens. It must be remembered by the citizenry, however, that the governing boards were forced to squeeze every ounce of fat out of the budgets to hold the tax rates to their present levels. It follows that the people of Greenville and Pitt County, while they have every right to expect a high level of service from these governments, must not make unreasonable requests for additional services upon the governments during the current fiscal year.

Every additional government service costs money. Funds to provide the services must come from taxpayers. Rather than add new services at the expense of a higher tax rate, Greenville and Pitt County officials have elected to afford what new services can be provided without a tax increase.

With the proper effort by government officials and employes as well as local citizens, the philosophy evidenced in holding the line on tax increases this year should in no way impair the progress the city or the county can make.

The end result should be more progress for Greenville and Pitt County by getting more mileage from each tax dollar paid these divisions of local government.

Those Leopard Spots Don't Change Easily

We're inclined to believe importance of deposing four Kremlin chieftains has been vastly overrated.

The fates of Kaganovich, Molotov, Malenkov and Shepilov . . . in the United States or the free world in general means little.

Why?

Because the downgrading of KMM&S doesn't change the over-all goal of world communism, namely, world domination. Any changes within the Kremlin are purely designed to further that aspiration by adapting of policies to fit changing needs or to present new faces to carry out old policies under a new guise.

Individuals, as such, mean nothing to the gangsters of Communism. Believing neither in God nor in the importance of the individual, they are free to resort to any means that might further their end.

Gleeful optimism over the reshuffle of Kremlin spokesmen is wishful thinking. This has been proved time and again. We are faced by a force unrestrained by any moral code such as is known on this side of the Iron Curtain.

The gangsters, racketeers and their henchmen we are familiar with . . . all have some inborn element of consciousness as to what is right and what is wrong. But the rulers of Communism know only that whatever it further their creed is "right," regardless of whether it runs counter to the nature of humanity or God. It is a quality foreign to our way of thinking, and among many people the distrust of long standing can be lulled.

Americans have always known "the leopard can't change its spots"; but sometimes they forget.

Sales Grow In Contract Field

By ELMER ROESSNEK
While sales of furniture for the home have been lagging in many areas, sales in the so-called contract field have been pushing ahead.

Many furniture retailers have been casting wistful eyes at the field and some are invading it. If the job is a large one, the decorating company frequently sublets part. There have been instances in which celebrated decorators have been brought in from various parts of the world, some commissioned to design only a single suite, or to handle one phase, such as the carpeting. However, a one-guy decorating business would have to have a lot of talent or pull to get an important slice of a big job.

In turn, the designers specify furniture and accessories from the big companies experienced in the field. These companies are limited in number, but their experience and resources are large. Many have staffs of designers which are loaned to top decorators to help them in their work—and to insure orders.

Thus, the small decorator, the small retailer and small manufacturer get very little of the big plums in this growing market. But today even a lawyer starting his own practice, a dentist opening a new office, or a modest corporation trying to prevent its manager from jumping to a job with a giant is interested in well-furnished offices.

They may not want free-form statuary on ankle-deep carpeting in offices lined with mahogany flecked with platinum. But they would be interested in furnishings in good taste, reflecting an projecting the personality of the occupant. And in these modest commissions is a wealth of opportunity for individual decorators, moderate-size retailers and small manufacturers.

ODDITIES AND GEE-WHIZZES IN THE BUSINESS NEWS
The Internal Revenue Service has ruled that a skating rink is not a cabaret.

When a new hotel, an ocean liner or a one-company office building is planned, the usual procedure is to award the interior decorating contract to a large company specializing in the field. When the White House was done over, a New York department store won the contract.

I am about to do what most married men that I have talked to term "the biggest mistake you will ever make."

The "mistake" or whatever one wishes to call it, is getting married.

As of today I have 114 days left before the final day arrives and truthfully I am already so nervous I cannot sleep at night.

Most of the time I can get by this in my mind by saying that the weather is too hot and I cannot sleep in hot weather. But deep down . . . it's that date, October 19.

First I tried to go to bed early at night while my future was living in Richmond and I couldn't sleep. All I could do was roll and tumble in the sack. This was a very short time after we announced our engagement.

Why I was so shook up the night we announced our future plans at the beach that I gave out of gas after I took her home and had to spend the night in my automobile. Since that time my nerves have never stopped giving me trouble.

Well when plan number one didn't work I decided to stay up later at night, reading, looking at television, etc.

This idea didn't work either . . . it just meant less time to roll and tumble in the bed.

Alas what to do!

Finally she came home last weekend for good. I thought this would be wonderful. Now I could see her more often and maybe after a while could get used to the idea.

Her coming home has not helped me any either. My nerves have not calmed down in the least.

For the past two months (that's how long I have been engaged) my taste for food has not been what it used to be. Now I am smoking about two and one-half packs of cigarettes a day.

I find myself unconsciously looking in the Want Ad column for a suitable apartment, checking the cost of furniture and scanning magazines and travel folders for the best place to go on a honeymoon. My little bubble has finally burst EVERYTHING COSTS MONEY. Now my problem mounts as does the nervous tension.

At least I have one consolation everyone has kind words for me and my plight.

"Boy what a big mistake you are making!"

"Haven't you got any sense?"

"How can you possibly do a thing like that?"

"Forget it man, you ain't ever had it so good."

Not knowing much about this "new kind of life" I replied to one of the men who had nothing land areas of Louisiana, is now obvious.

Familiarly, they say, often breeds contempt. The citizens living along the Gulf Coast, mostly fishermen, have lived their lives in a section where violent weather conditions are not uncommon. They have seen many big storms along the coasts in past years. Naturally, they have developed a certain indifference to these weather conditions. Audrey, to them was a hurricane that could be handled just as many in the past have been handled.

When the weather bureau issued its routine warnings concerning the course of the hurricane its intensity and range, along with appeals for evacuation, the citizens who live on the small, low islands in the gulf area chose to stay put. They believed they could ride this one out, as they had many times in the past. But the tidal wave brought on by the terrific winds of hurricane Audrey proved them wrong. As a result hundreds of people lost their lives and many others are missing.

With proper evacuation procedure, it is certain that many persons might be alive today who became victims of the elements. Although it is too late to repair the damage or bring back the dead, the tragedy may serve as a lesson for the future. Because there will be other hurricanes. but kind words for me. "Well two can live as cheaply as one."

He laughed at me, not with me, and said, "My boy they can if one is a horse and the other is a sparrow."

I am sitting here at the typewriter now so nervous that I have started writing this column or should I say nerve report four or five times. Cold sweat is

Death Came In Night

By ARTHUR EVERETT
CAMERON, La. (AP) — In the sparsely settled bayou and marsh country of southwestern Louisiana live a hardy breed of trappers and fishermen known as Cajuns.

They are descendants of French Acadians banished from Canada in 1755 to a deceptively pleasant area of Louisiana. They live out their lives amid a wild vastness more suited to birds and beasts than to humans. They still cling to the old customs, French, or a patois thereof, still is a common tongue.

One night last week Cajun ears caught the ascending whine of a great wind. But Cajun minds catalogued the sound as just another phase of rugged marshland life.

The wind they heard, and the wind that many of them ignored, heralded Hurricane Audrey, first of the season.

She was a premature baby, born the forenoon of June 24 near the junction of Mexico and the Yucatan Peninsula. She never grew to be a really big girl. The U.S. Weather Bureau calls her about average among 50 Gulf hurricanes of the past 57 years. But not since 1934 has a hurricane arrived this early in the year.

Tuesday morning, June 25, the first Weather Bureau advisory on Audrey warned: "A hurricane watch is advised for the Texas and Louisiana coasts."

At 8 p.m. Thursday — 48 hours after the first urgent advisory — Hurricane Audrey hit Cameron almost head on. She brought 105-mile-per-hour winds and a 20-foot tidal wave. Cameron took the impact. Then silence.

The village was a mile-long settlement with a Gulf Coast beach, a two-story brick and steel courthouse, a grocery store, a hotel, a bank, gas stations, groceries and a barber shop. Most of the area was below sea level.

While 20,000 refugees streamed toward Lake Charles 30 miles north of the coast, an ominous sign escaped notice in the tumult. Few of the refugees were from Cameron, although it was assumed that her 3,000 townspeople had fled like others in advance of the hurricane.

Shortly before the lightning Thursday, a Coast Guard plane flew over Cameron. The pilot noted widespread destruction and said the town was under water.

On Friday, Deputy Sheriff D.P. Vincent reached Lake Charles, 250 miles west of New Orleans, with the startling report that its citizens had not fled the storm. On the contrary, many of them had elected to ride it out. His estimate of a possible death toll of thousands came as a hideous shock.

"But as helicopters and surface craft converged on little Cameron, the tentative death toll rapidly soared above 100.

Stories of Cameron survivors for the first time pinpointed the magnitude of Louisiana's worst catastrophe of the century. Death estimates now reach 700 and property damage uncounted tens of millions of dollars.

At a Lake Charles refugee center, a mother espied her only child, a 5-year-old daughter she had given up for dead. Beside herself with rapture and shock, she could only cling to the tot and murmur, "Baby, baby."

Others made their way to high ground, there to share it with panicky beasts of the field and wild creatures of the marshlands.

When the storm passed on, Cameron was a ghost town. Ninety per cent of its buildings were in ruins and the ruins were given over to snakes and rats.

Once the living were brought to safety by helicopters and boats, the somber task of marshaling the dead began. President Eisenhower designated the entire storm-stricken area of western Louisiana and eastern Texas a disaster area, eligible for federal aid. He sent in as his personal representative, Val Peterson, former head of the nation's civil defense.

Said special Deputy David G. Connor of his strong-minded Cajun neighbors: "They gambled with the storm and lost. They should have gotten out earlier. I've heard them say a million times in the past when storms threatened, 'It won't get too bad here.'"

"They were wrong this time."

Other Editors Saying-- Ignoring Warnings

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Many thousands of words have been written about the tragedy caused along the Texas-Louisiana coast by the first hurricane of the season. Tales of pathos and heroism have made up a large part of each day's news for the past week. And while the search still goes on for victims of the tidal waves caused by Audrey, speculation naturally has arisen as to whether many of the casualties could have been avoided.

The weather bureau regularly gives warning when hurricanes are building up, when they begin moving and where they will likely strike next. These warnings, as mentioned here several days ago, should not be taken lightly. The weather forecasters have had many years of experience in plotting weather conditions, especially in the movements of unusual phenomena, such as tornadoes, hurricanes, cold and warm fronts.

In recent years, with the co-operation of the military services, much data has been collected on the characteristics of hurricanes. As a result of this research, their course can be plotted with amazing accuracy. As a result of this research, their course can be plotted with amazing accuracy. Because of this knowledge, citizens in a given area can be forewarned in plenty of time to make preparations to move out of threatened areas. That this was not done in the case of Audrey by the people who live in the low marshland areas of Louisiana, is now obvious.

Familiarly, they say, often breeds contempt. The citizens living along the Gulf Coast, mostly fishermen, have lived their lives in a section where violent weather conditions are not uncommon. They have seen many big storms along the coasts in past years. Naturally, they have developed a certain indifference to these weather conditions. # Farm Bloc Influence Is Fading

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — A popular World War I ballad explains why the once dominant farm bloc has lost the power which it used to possess on Capitol Hill and in American politics. It ran: "How ya gonna keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen Poree?"

Since the days of that relatively polite conflict, the farm boys who served in World War II and Korea have seen many more bizarre and exciting places than the Bois de Bologne and Montmartre. And they have flocked by the millions to the cities and factories as displaced and disenfranchised voters.

As a result, the so-called "farm vote," which was once the feared and favored of both major parties, has declined until it is almost negligible. It is doubtful if it can swing a single state, even in the historic agricultural areas from the Appalachian to the Rocky Mountains, FARM POPULATION Iowa, for instance, is classed as the nation's greatest farm state, with its state anthem a paean to waving corn. It was the region which Russian agricultural experts most wanted to visit when they came to this country a year or so ago. But only 25 per cent of the population now reside and work "on the land."

Since 1920, a couple of years after the ballad mentioned was written, the nation's total farm population has dropped from 39 per cent to less than 13 per cent now. And many people listed by the census takers as farmers get their income from other sources than the soil.

The decline in farm population is even more significant, politically and economically, when measured geographically. The following table, which shows the percentage fall-off, indicates that none of the four great geographic sections are primarily interested in agriculture.

North Central 29.7 15.2

South 51.3 22.2

West 24.7 9.1

Thus, the farmers seem to be losing friends everywhere.

BALLOT BOX REVOLUTION
What are the present and prospective consequences of the farmers' steady loss of political power?

For one thing, there will be less legislation beneficial to them at this session than at any time in the last quarter of a century. When politicians and candidates grasp the meaning of this ballot-box revolution, they will be less inclined to curry favor with promises of special subsidies, soil bank benefits and high party payments. President Eisenhower and Secretary Ezra Taft Benson have taken a small step in this direction.

A major party, fixing its eye on the sections where the votes grow, will disregard the farm vote states, with their smaller electoral college totals. They can afford to, and they probably will, appeal specifically to the factory workers and city consumers.

BLOC SPLIT
Another farm bloc weakness is that it has split wide apart. The old Farmer-Labor Coalition has collapsed because the farmers blame high prices for what they buy on the unions' wage policies, while labor complains over high food costs. They stare daggers at each other, and labor has the votes.

The alliance of Southern and Western farmers — cotton and corn — has vanished. Dixie growers charge that, in distributing soil bank payments before the 1956 Presidential election, Benson favored Western Republicans over the producers of cotton, tobacco and peanuts. The record substantiates this accusation.

But in the long run it is changing conditions — population shifts, economic pressure and improved production techniques — rather than partisanship that accounts for the farm bloc's downfall. And, lastly, a better break for city consumers.

Mizell's Win Gives St. Louis National Lead Again

VFW Outlasts Kiwanis To Get 10-8 Victory

The VFW Club rapped the Kiwanis Little Leaguers for eight hits and 10 runs yesterday afternoon, to capture a 10-8 decision at Elm Street Park.

Dan Johnson and Kenneth Allen joined forces on the hill to limit the Kiwanians to four baseknocks. Johnson started and went five innings before being relieved.

For the losers, Van Harris started, and was relieved in the first inning by Victor Henderson. It was the latter's loss.

The VFW scored four runs in the first inning, five in the fourth and one in the fifth.

Kiwanis runs came in the third and fourth frames.

Donald Calloway, Tommy Daniels, Ken Williams and Dan Owens were several of the top hitters for the winners. It was Harris of the Kiwanis Club who took hitting honors, however, with two smashing doubles. Daniels and Harris got the only extra-base knocks.

Althea Is First Negro To Win Wimbledon Title

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Althea Gibson of New York became the first Negro to win a Wimbledon tennis championship today. She beat Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., 6-3, 6-2, in the women's final before a crowd of 17,000, including Queen Elizabeth.

The 29-year-old Harlem girl dominated the match from the beginning with her powerful service and volley game. It marked the 14th straight time the title had gone to an American woman since 1937 when the championship was won by Dorothy Round of Britain.

The Queen's visit to Wimbledon was her first since she became monarch. She wore a rose and white printed silk dress and straw hat.

She entered the royal box a few minutes before the match began. Miss Gibson, who learned her tennis with crude paddles on the sidewalks of New York, raced to a 4-0 lead before the 21-year-old Miss Hard could get into the fight.

The Montebello girl, a blonde waitress, broke Miss Gibson's service in the fifth game and then held her own to make the score 4-2. The set followed service the rest of the way, with Miss Gibson winning her last two deliveries with the loss of only one point in each.

Miss Gibson was in command of the second set all the way.

Feller Expresses Baseball Beliefs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Bob Feller wants baseball law changed so the players will have something to say about selecting the commissioner of baseball.

The former Cleveland fireballer also wants the major league owners to ease off on talk of shifting major league franchises.

And he's for revising the reserve clause under which a player is bound to the club that originally signs him.

Feller, in his first year of retirement after 18 years with the Indians, used plain language yesterday at a news conference.

Why should the players choose the commissioner?
"The club owners will take care of themselves as they always have," he said. "The players, many of whom are afraid to speak up, need someone to front for them." The least that should be done, he said, is to give the players an equal say with the owners in choosing the commissioner.

On talk of major league shifts: "Loud-mouthed magnates who talk about shifting their major league franchises are hurting their attendance at home and hurting the minor league cities where they may not even land."

He mentioned names, but the shift talk obviously was a reference to the much-discussed proposal for moving the Brooklyn Dodgers to Los Angeles and the New York Giants to San Francisco.

On the reserve clause: "It is ridiculous that an owner is obligated to a player for only 90 days but a player is obligated to an owner for his entire career."

He said he favors a proposal to make ball players free agents after five years with one club.

All-Star Lineup Announced By Carolina Prexy

ROJBORO, N.C. (AP)—The lineup of All-Stars who will face the Durham Bulls in the Carolina League's ninth annual All-Star game at Durham Monday night, July 15, was announced here today by President Bill Jessup.

Jack Swift, veteran Winston-Salem right-hander, was the No. 1 vote getter on the 16-man squad chosen by the players themselves. He polled 91 votes, according to a compilation in the league office.

Two Danville players ran second in the voting with 76 apiece. They are pitcher Reggie Lee and first sacker Al Milley.

Swift and Lee head up the five-man mound staff. It includes Jack Taylor of the Hi-Toms, Chuck Smith of Greensboro and Art Hist of the Hi-Toms, who polled 68, 49 and 43 votes, respectively.

First base out Greensboro's relief ace, Bill Lore, by three votes, 43 to 40.

Dick Harris of Hi-Toms and Frank Riviera of Danville will handle the catching chores. Harris got 62 votes and Reveira 54. Greensboro's Don Gile, despite injuries which have kept him sidelined several weeks, finished with 51 votes.

Besides Milley at first base, the infield comprises Billy Joe Ford of Hi-Toms at second base, 61 votes; and Leroy Bradley of Greensboro at third base, 51 votes.

Fred Harrington, Hi-Tom shortstop, beat out teammate John Kennedy, a third baseman, 54 votes to 41 for utility infielder.

Fred an Dusen of Hi-Toms paced the outfielders with 73 votes, only four more than Danville's Bob Perry. Gene Oliver, Winston-Salem's home run king, rounds out the outfield with 59 votes. Ino Rodriguez of Danville will be the utility outfielder as he garnered 51 votes.

Venturi, Harney Leading Tourney
MONTREAL (AP)—Ken Venturi and Paul Harney, two long-hitting youngsters who have been making life difficult for the veterans of golf's tournament trail, shared the lead today going into the third round of the annual $29,000 Open. Venturi, a 26-year-old newcomer to the pro circuit, posted a 70 yesterday and Harney, 27, of Bolton, Mass., fired a 69 for 36-hole totals of 138, six under par for two rounds over the 6,645-yard Islesmere Course.

Campy, In Current Slump, Says Batting Average Is Secondary

By ED CORRIGAN
BROOKLYN (AP)—Happy-go-lucky Roy Campanella, who has maintained his good spirits despite an anemic batting average all season, said today the BA wasn't really the important thing.

"Sure, I like to be up there with the leaders," said the burly Brooklyn catcher, a two-time most valuable player. "But you know what makes the big difference between having a good year and a bad year? It's hitting them when it counts."

Campy was referring to his three-run homer in the eighth inning of last night's game which gave the Brooks a 6-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The triumph also enabled the Brooks to pull a game and a half in front of the Phillies in the tight National League race.

"I slept good last night," laughed Campy. "It makes me good to hit one like that once in a while. I haven't been hitting many this year."

He wasn't surprised that the homer came off Robin Roberts, who has been having his troubles this year. It was Campy's 17th career homer off Roberts.

College Viewers Win Again, 9-4

College View Cleaners and Laundry's Teen-er Leaguers, currently on a hot streak, polished off Guaranty Bank last night, 9-4, at Guy Smith Stadium.

The victory was their third straight during the second half of Teen-er play and ran their half record to 3-1. The College View nine have defeated every team in the loop thus far in the second half, including the league-leading State Bankers.

In fact, last night's triumph put the College Viewers right up in first place with the State Bankers. Both clubs have 3-1 marks. State Bank won the first half title with a 7-1 slate.

Batts was the winning hurler for CV, striking out three, walking one and giving up seven hits. He went the full distance. Guaranty Bank used David Boyd, Joe Moye and Clark Brewer on the mound, but was unable to stop the College View scoring attack.

Boyd started and was relieved quickly by Moye. Boyd fanned five and walked seven. Moye struck out three and walked seven. Brewer came on in the sixth. Most of the College View scores came on walks and errors. They tallied in the first, second, fourth, and sixth innings.

Guaranty Bank runs came in the fourth and sixth frames. Leading hitter for both teams was Moye, who got three hits for four trips to the plate. All three were singles. Malcolm Griffith got a pair of singles for the winners. Ricky Saue and Batts collected College View's only other hits. Guaranty Bank 000 103 0-4 7 6 College View . 110 502 x-9 4 1

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Cary Middlecoff, vanquished challenger for the 1957 British Open golf championship won by South Africa's Bobby Locke, sends word back to future candidates for the ancient title: Stay home unless you have 10 days of practice time in Britain.

"The people at home who want to have a shot at the British Open should also get themselves a nice, big, hard, bumpy green," said Middlecoff after finishing 14th with a 289, 10 strokes more than Locke's 279.

"Long before they come over here, they should get on the edge of that green and pitch the little British ball to it a few thousand times."

"Then they should get on that bumpy green and put till they drop. About every thousand puts they should water the green just to change the speed."

"Because, that is the way British greens—at least these at St. Andrews—react. Sometimes they are so slow, sometimes fast, but usually slow."

Only three men ever won the British Open championship on their first try, which means Middlecoff is in with the vast majority since he lost on his first try.

Ben Hogan in 1953 at Carnoustie and Sam Snead in 1946 at St. Andrews were first time winners. The other was Willie Park of Musselburgh, who won at Prestwick in 1860.

But of course that was the first British open.

Five places below Middlecoff was the United States' only other player who survived qualifying and the 36-hole field cut. He was Frank Stranahan of Toledo with a 291.

The U.S. Corps of Engineers said that 11 million visits were made in 1956 to the nine lakes it operates in Texas. The lakes are open for camping, swimming, fishing and picnicking.

Vinegar Bend Taps His "Cousins" For 4-3 Win

By DON WEISS
This nerve-numbing National League pennant race, closest first-to-fifth scramble in the modern era, is back to normal in one respect. Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell is beating Cincinnati again.

After two early losses to his favorite NL "cousins" and bogged down in the worst start in his major league life, the St. Louis left-hander came through with his first good game in nearly a month last night — just when the Cards needed it.

Their 43 victory in 11 innings pushed St. Louis back into first place in the flip-flop race after a week's absence, dumping the Redlegs into second, a half game behind.

Mizell, winning only his second in eight decisions, did it with a nine-hit, seven strikeout performance. Of his 39 major league victories, Mizell owns 12 over the Redlegs, five last year.

Joe Cunningham's double drove home the winner for the Cards. Milwaukee, in third place a game behind, lost ground when beaten by Chicago 7-4, but fourth-place Brooklyn stepped up to within two of the top on Roy Campanella's three-run homer that beat Robin Roberts 6-5 and dropped fifth place Philadelphia 3 1/2 off the pace. New York's Giants routed Pittsburgh, 11-6 in the other NL game.

New York's American League leaders maintained their three-game edge over the Chicago White Sox rallying to nip Washington 5-3 in 10 innings while the White Sox routed Cleveland, 14-4. Boston regained third place from the Indians, downing Baltimore 7-5 and snapping Billy Loeb's seven-game win streak, and Detroit's Jim Bunning ran his record to 10-2 with an eight-hit, 8-4 decision over Kansas City.

Mizell had a 3-1 lead over Cincinnati for seven innings. George Crowe doubled home two runs in the eighth to tie it and Vinegar Bend had to throw three more blanks before Cunningham doubled off reliever Don Gross to score Ken Boyer, who singled and moved up on a sacrifice.

Hank Aaron blasted his 27th homer and seventh in eight games and Johnny Logan hit his fourth home run, but that was about all the Braves could manage against the Cubs' Don Eiston. The Brooklyn castoff, 2-0 with both victories over Milwaukee, needed help from Turk Lown in the ninth. Jerry Kindall's home run, his

'Heaven Protects The Working Girl'

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Staff Writer

In a country that has more working girls than any other on earth, thousands of young women work independently, achieve success, and form a very essential part of United States culture and way of life.

These young women contribute enormously to this nation's social, economic and political achievement, holding down jobs with efficiency and adeptness that was not believed possible of them 50 years ago.

Every state, every community throughout the USA is enriched by these young women who work, play and accomplish.

Lois Jones and Margaret Stevens, fresh graduates of Women's College of the University of North Carolina, and now Assistant Home Demonstration Agents of Pitt County, are perfect examples of America's working girls.

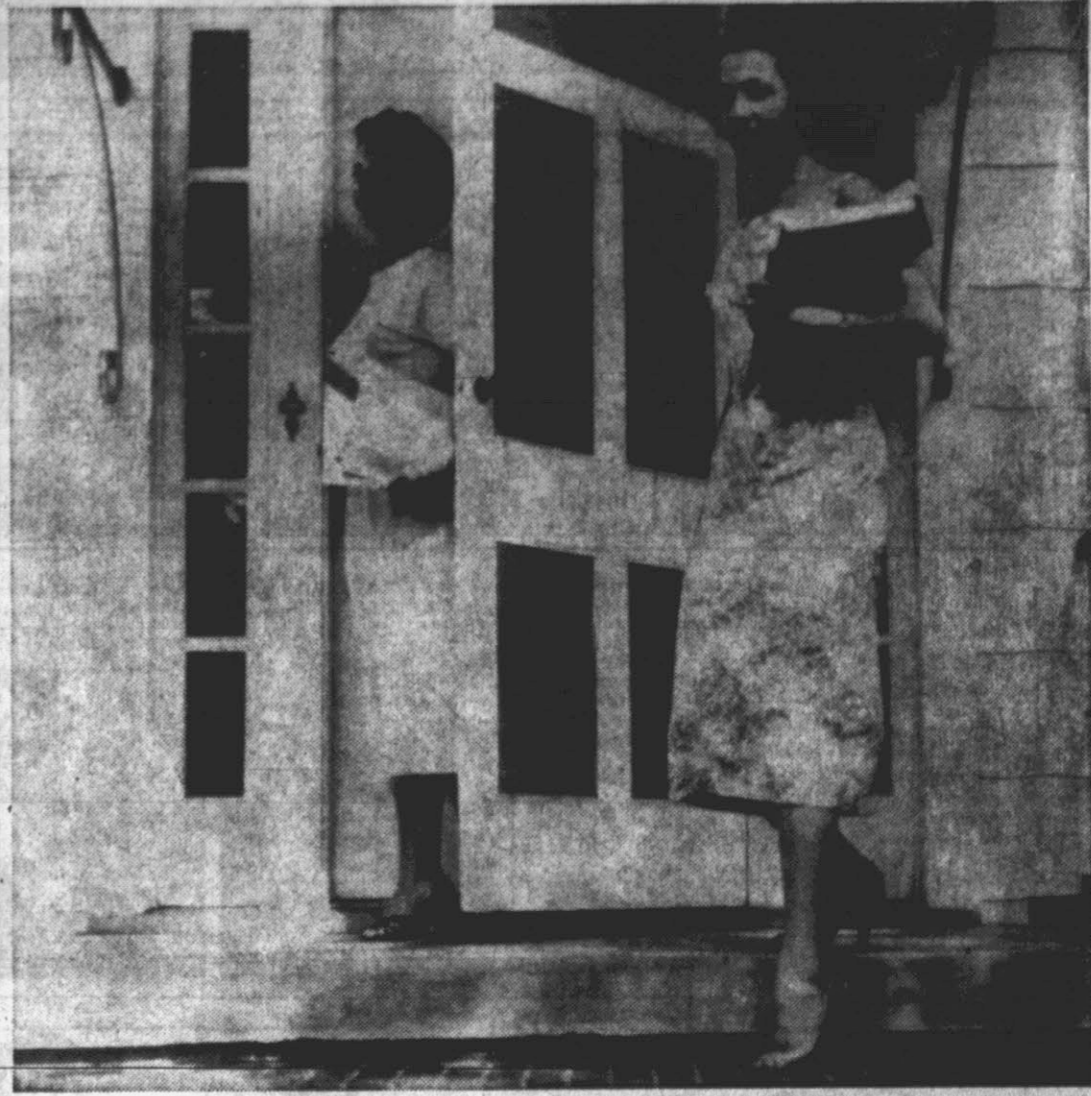

Both 24, both 1955 graduates of WCUNC, they now do tremendous work for the Home Demonstration Agency of Pitt County. Among their duties are office work, travel to all the towns and villages in the county, home visits, demonstrations of practical sorts, and Four-H work with young people.

They handle such chores as writing letters, making calls, and also do two radio shows a week. Frequently, they take their work to thousands via television.

But there is also time for play and fun. Theirs is a well-rounded life—and a most useful one.

ROOMMATES—Early morning primping is usually done in the above fashion. They share one room (and one dressing table) at the Haskett residence on Elm Street.

READY FOR NEW DAY at the Home Demonstration Office, located in the Old Hospital building, Lois and Margaret leave the house, their materials in their arms.

AT WORK—the girls outline a project. They also do work in radio and television as well as personal interview and club speaking.

OFFICE HOURS are taken up with writing letters, making calls, heavy writing and planning, occasional personal talks with individuals who want to learn aspects of Home Demonstration work.

THEY TRAVEL a lot in connection with their work. Both girls make home visits and demonstration talks throughout Pitt County. They journey to 17 Four-H club meetings each month in Pitt.

SOMETIMES there is a chance for the girls to enjoy a sun bath in the Haskett garden. Both are graduates of Women's College, UNC.

WASHING THE CARS is a task that Lois and Margaret tackle each Saturday during their off hours. Both girls own a car, which is a must in their profession. They also find time for sewing, washing and ironing, and other household chores after office hours.

DATING is also an important part of the working girl's activities. Above, Lois, Margaret and their escorts prepare for a movie date.

Supreme Court Will Probably Throw Out A 'Remedial' Law

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—There's a good chance the Supreme Court—judging from what it has already said—will throw out any law Congress passes now to keep a defendant on trial from seeing FBI files pertaining to his case.

The court—ruling in the case of Clinton E. Jencks in June—said "Justice requires no less than that a defendant be given the information bearing on the testimony of a witness against him."

The FBI and the Justice Department were so upset by this decision that Congress is rushing through a bill to tone down the effect of what the court did.

But if this bill becomes law some future defendant—denied a look at the FBI files—is bound to test its validity by appealing to the Supreme Court. This is what happened:

Jencks, on trial for falsely swearing he was not a Communist, was confronted by two government witnesses who were not only Communists but paid undercover agents of the FBI.

They said they had given the FBI information about Jencks verbally and in writing. Their written information was in the FBI files.

A defendant has a right to try to impeach the testimony of a witness against him by trying to show he lied or had a bad memory. One way to try in this case was to compare the witnesses' testimony with what they wrote to the FBI.

It was traditional, but not a law, that a defendant himself couldn't see the FBI files. It was also traditional, but not a law, that he could ask the trial judge to look at them.

The reason: If the judge found anything in the files that might help the defendant, or discredit the witness, he could let that part of the FBI file become part of the evidence and therefore open to the defendant.

Jencks was found guilty and appealed to do that. He refused. Jencks was found guilty and appealed to the Supreme Court. The court threw out his conviction. The ruling it gave is what upset the FBI and Justice Department.

The court said a defendant—not the judge—had a right to the first look at the FBI files. The court didn't say the defendant had a hunting license to roam at will through the files.

It said a defendant has a right to see the FBI file information supplied by witnesses used against him when it touches on "the subject matter of their testimony at his trial."

The FBI wanted no part of that. And there was the possibility in the future that lower court judges, interpreting the Supreme Court's decision in varying ways, might give defendants wide latitude in searching the files.

To undo what the court did—and for the first time to say it in law instead of depending on tradition—Congress is considering a bill which says:

"Any looking through FBI files will be done by the trial judge, not by the defendant. If the judge finds anything that will help the defendant, he can let the defendant see it."

If the government refuses to let

Survey Reveals Religion's Hold On Young Folk

By RENE CAPPON
NEW YORK (AP)—How firm is religion's hold on the minds and hearts of America's young people?

Well, listen to this:

The typical teen-ager "today retains a favorable attitude toward the church, attends services about once a week, and says prayers once or twice a day."

"He feels that his prayers are sometimes answered."

"The average teen-ager thinks of God not as a person but as an omnipotent and omnipresent bodiless spirit who exists everywhere. On the average, he believes faith is a better than logic in solving life's important problems."

"He believes in the hereafter... and that God guided and inspired the writing of the Bible, and that a good human society could not be built without such supernatural help."

Behind these statements is the weight of 15 years of research by social scientists at Purdue University. They plumbed the minds of thousands of youngsters through polls and psychological tests.

Their findings are presented in a book just published, "The American Teen-ager" by Dr. H. H. Remmel and Dr. S. H. Radler (Bobbs-Merrill Co.). Dr. Remmel heads the division of educational reference at Purdue.

If today's youth has suffered any significant alienation from religious attachments, the authors' chapter on the subject shows no evidence of it.

But it does contain some surprises.

For example, the Purdue study found that high school seniors "are somewhat less willing to accept their religion unquestioned than freshmen—61 per cent as compared with 48 per cent." But nevertheless they show a somewhat greater tendency toward religious orthodoxy.

And the authors suggest:

"It may be that pondering religious questions leads teen-agers toward orthodoxy, rather than heterodoxy as many adults fear."

Union Cleanup Drive Fizzles In Summer Heat

By NORMAN WALKER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Union labor's corruption cleanup seems to have fizzled in the summer's hot weather, although leaders promise to pick it up again in a month or so.

The avowed cleanup—keyed to disclosures of the Senate Rackets Committee—was kicked off with Teamsters boss Dave Beck's quick ouster three months ago as a federation officer. Little has happened since then.

The federation's Ethical Practices Committee launched probes of the Teamsters Union itself and the Bakery Workers Union, based on charges they were corruptly dominated. But although initial hearings were held, others planned later were canceled to await action within the individual unions.

For has the AFL-CIO yet followed up another Senate committee's charges that Maurice Hutcheson, president of the big Carpenters Union and an AFL-CIO vice president, profited from right-of-way sales in Indiana on a federally financed highway project. Like Beck, Hutcheson invoked the Fifth Amendment.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said the Hutcheson situation will be considered by the AFL-CIO Executive Council, which meets in Chicago in mid-August.

Nowhere among the labor organizations does there appear a sense of urgency in cleaning up the situations revealed this spring and early summer.

Al Hayes, chairman of the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee, has been vacationing in the Wisconsin woods. The committee's counsel Arthur Goldberg has been lecturing in Europe on American labor.

Meany's call on other Teamsters leaders some weeks ago to fire Beck "forthwith" as president of the nation's largest labor union has lain dormant. Beck has announced he will not seek another term as president and some union officials have expressed doubt any action can be taken to oust him in advance of the union's convention in late September.

First Female In School Faculty

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—St. Augustine High School, which had an all-male faculty for its all-male student body since it was founded 35 years ago, now has a woman teacher.
 Mrs. Ann Petlewski received the appointment just by being on the scene and available when the emergency arose. One of the instructors was transferred.
 Mrs. Petlewski was doing volunteer filing for the school. She was willing, she was qualified, and she was hired.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

A MAIN FLOOR recreation room with a barbecue fireplace is a headline feature of this spacious ranch style house. Table space in front of a bay window in the kitchen is another glamorous detail. All rooms are large, yet this house covers 1,621 square feet, with out garage and porches, which figure separately at lower building costs. This is plan 7483AP by Herman H. York, architect, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 32, N. Y.

Televised Course On History Of Theatre Planned

East Carolina College has announced that it will begin August 26 a new televised course of study entitled "History of the Theatre". The course will extend over a period of three months and will be telecast Monday through Friday of each week at 1 p. m. over the facilities of Station WNCT of Greenville.
 "History of the Theatre" will be offered as a free elective on the junior level sponsored by the department of English. Those completing requirements will receive three quarter hours of college credit. A textbook "The Living Stage" by McGowan and Melnitz and various reference works will be used, and tests and a paper will make up part of the work of the course.
 Dr. James D. Allison of the department of English will act as instructor. At various times he has worked with the Cleveland, Ohio, Playhouse and Opera Guild and with the Morningside Players in New York City. He has studied in the field of the theatre at Teachers College, Columbia University; the State University of Iowa; and the University of Denver, Colo.
 The course will deal with the development of the theatre from its beginning in ritual, magic, and play to the present day, he has announced. Plays will be discussed from time to time, he stated, but the major emphasis will be on the theatre as a social and human force; the physical theatre as a product of its time; the audience and the nature of theatre-going; and the people who have added to man's experience through theatre.
 Presentation will include lectures, demonstrations, models, artifacts, pictures, drawings, slides, and guests who will participate in the programs.
 Those who wish to enroll or who wish further information are asked to write to Dr. Orval L. Phillips, Registrar, East Carolina College, Greenville, N. C.

Happy Taxpayer Isn't A Citizen

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Allen V. Jay, called for jury duty, was asked if he had been a citizen of Virginia for 12 months.
 He replied that he wasn't even a citizen of the United States, but a Briton.
 Jay said he had received poll tax bills for several years and paid them rather than quibble.

H-Bomb CD Test For North Carolina Slated

RALEIGH — A simulated H-Bomb strike on at least one North Carolina "target" area is highly probable during Operation Alert 1957, State Civil Defense Director Edward F. Griffin disclosed today.
 The exercise, scheduled July 8-10, is a nation-wide test of Civil Defense readiness to withstand enemy attack by nuclear weapons.
 "This fourth annual training exercise—to be more realistic and extensive than those held previously—offers an unprecedented opportunity to test and evaluate our planning," General Griffin stated. "We intend to take advantage of it."
 Full participation is scheduled for State Civil Defense headquarters. A four-day period of strategic alert to start July 8 will continue until 11:00 a. m. July 12, the hour of "attack," when the state enters the "survival action" phase of the exercise.
 At 10:00 a. m. July 12, General Griffin will conduct a briefing on the exercise for members of the State Civil Defense Council, Service heads and heads of all federal and state agencies involved in the Civil Defense of the state.
 "Command Post Exercise," a 7-hour training session, will follow at 11:00 a. m., for the benefit of liaison officers of all state and federal agencies integrated into the State Civil Defense Program.
 "There will be local participation in the test by Civil Defense organizations in counties, cities and towns to varying degrees," the State Director said. "Local Directors indicate they expect to take part to the extent that their respective plans permit."
 No target city director will know what target has been selected, what installation is chosen for "ground zero," or the type and weight weapon to be used until he opens a sealed envelope containing that information at the hour of the "strike."
 "Secrecy pertaining to details of the operation is essential to effective testing," Griffin explained. "Lack of specific information as to where the bombs are to be dropped should inject a realistic note which is necessary for frank evaluation of plans."
 Problems of evacuee reception and the hazards of radioactive fallout are also emphasized during the training exercise.

Anniversary For Civil Aviation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Commercial aviation passes a major anniversary today but plans no formal observance. It is the 20th anniversary of the maiden survey flights of the Atlantic which proved that regular air service between the United States and Europe was possible.
 A 32-passenger Sikorsky flying boat of Pan American World Airways took off from the waters of Botwood, Newfoundland, and flew to Southampton, England.
 In mid-Atlantic it exchanged radio messages with a flying boat of British Imperial Airways, which had taken off from Foynes, Eire, for Botwood.
 Two decades later the Atlantic is being crossed 60 times a day by commercial airlines of 15 nations.
 While it took the Pan American boat 23 hours to fly from Port Washington, Long Island, to Southampton in 1937, the airline's DCTCs, flying 350 miles an hour, now cover the distance in about 12 hours.
