WASHINGTON (AP) — Sentiment among senators willing to state their position at this time is running heavily in favor of some form of jury trial amendment to the administration's civil rights bill.

Although action on the Anderson-Alken amendment might cause some of them to change their views, 32 Democrats and nine Republicans indicated affirmative answers to the question: "Do you favor a jury trial amendment to the civil rights bill?"

Confident the Senate will defeat any jury trial amendment, Sen. Ellender (D-La.), an opponent of the measure, said in a weekend broadcast he fears some such result.

The two horseless carriages parked on Five Points got quizzical stares from passersby Saturday. They looked somewhat out of place with sleeker-later model autos parked behind them.

Secretary Of Year Gives Advice

By DOROTHY ROE AP Women's Editor

If you figure it from the bustle man's point of view, you might say that Miss Sadie Perlin, of Sacramento, Calif., is the most important woman in America today.

Besides looking like a glamor girl, complete with big brown eyes, dimples and the approved kind of figure, Sadie is that long-sought, often-dreamed-of phenomenon, the perfect secretary. This isn't merely an opinion—it's official. She even has a resolution passed by the California legislature congratulating her on this fact.

Sadie, you see, has been chosen secretary of the year—the girl with the halo—on the basis of a national competition involving letters from 5,000 bosses, each telling why his secretary should be awarded the title.

Sadie's boss is Gov. Goodwin J. Knight of California, who wrote that Sadie combines all requisites of the perfect secretary "to a superlative degree." He named among these requisites "loyalty, integrity and an appreciation of privacy; tact, charm and ability to act promptly with discretion."

Sadie started her secretarial career immediately after completing high school in her home town of Los Angeles. She held various jobs in a business office, a movie studio and state government offices. It was while she was working for the California State Highway Commission that she was recommended for the post of private secretary to Gov. Knight—an event now considered highly fortunate by both the governor and Sadie.

For girls starting secretarial careers, Sadie has this advice: "When you are interviewed for a job, dress simply, go easy on the makeup, wear hat and gloves, and don't talk too much. Don't start out by inquiring about pensions, vacations and overtime. If you lack experience, take the first job you can get — just to get experience.

"After you get the job, remember that it's important to get along with the other people in the office. Don't gossip. Don't broadcast office business outside the office. Don't expect the office to be the center of your social life. Don't flirt with the boss—any successful executive is too busy to be bothered with social diversions during office hours.

"Don't boss the boss. If you have to remind him of something, be diplomatic."

Havana Vies With Miami On Fashion

HAVANA (AP)—The vivid color and flamboyance of Latin-American fashions may soon be more evident in the United States.

Cuban dress designers are out to capture a big share of the American market and are building up an impressive export line.

That's the word from Murray Corwin, vice president of a top Cuban fashion producing concern who expects to have a big export sale in the United States next season.

"Havana," Corwin said, "could become a more important fashion center than Miami if we have the proper cooperation from the government and the manufacturers." He said it was "too expensive" for Cuban dress manufacturers to import suitable dress material for dress-making and then re-export it in finished dress form. Corwin exported dresses until last December and since then has had them made under contract by a Miami dressmaking concern. He firmly believes that Havana could have a fashion mart building where dress manufacturers and allied garment makers (shoes, hats, hosiery, bathing suits) could display their production for the benefit of buyers from all over the Western Hemisphere.

"Such a project would require the combined aid and cooperation of the government and the dress manufacturers, but principally that of the former," Corwin asserted.

Vacation Projects Offer Fun, Profit

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D. AP Newsfeatures

Long months of idleness are not good for an active robust teenager. Sometimes it is very difficult in the narrow confines of home for a youngster to find enough to do to keep his energies well directed.

And yet there is so much to do in the world—so many projects that just cry out for the help of active dynamic youngsters. We need to get the projects and the young people together.

Service opportunities for high school and college students have been organized all over the United States. There are hundreds of work camps where a group of young people work under the direction of leaders on community betterment.

Work Camps Work campers live together cooperatively, work hard six to eight hours a day on a project of social significance and learn about the problems of the surrounding community through lectures, discussions, field trips and talking with the people of the community. The combination of work, play, worship and study brings to each member of the group a rich experience of fellowship and spiritual growth and leaves a lasting contribution to the community which is more than the physical aspects of the job done.

The American Friends Service Committee directs projects on Indian reservations, in migrant workers' communities, in underprivileged urban neighborhoods. It also has projects in Mexico, in Europe, in northern Africa. The domestic programs involve home building, recreational planning, establishment of community centers. The foreign programs vary tremendously according to the local need.

The Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. has over a score of summer projects located all over the United States. It has several projects in Alaska.

In French Equatorial Africa women beat the water with herd-shaped baskets to "herd" fish, like cattle, into net traps.

The American Baptist Convention, the American Jewish Society and many other organizations plan and direct projects. All of them are anxious to have the help of young people.

Learn and Earn A youngster learns by doing. A young boy or girl who can spend a summer in a new community comes to understand problems vividly because he lives them—actively different experience than just reading or talking about them. He knows because he feels what racial discrimination may mean, what the refugee faces, what it means to live in rural isolation or in a city slum. In the small intimate intense fellowship of the group the young person is accepted for what he is, pretense and barriers fall away. In accepting himself the youngster learns to accept others of different background, different race, different opinions.

Young people serve on these community projects for many reasons, to meet new friends, to visit new places, to find a meaning for life. Because of the many purposes which bring these people together, each often finds his own objective sharpened and gains insight into how he wishes to spend his life.

The community projects on which young people may work have almost endless variety. For some the youngster pays his own way; costs, however, are always at a minimum. For others he is paid for his work and may even end the summer with a small balance in his pocket. Even for those where the youngster is expected to contribute financially there are usually scholarships available.

A list of service opportunities may be obtained from the National Council of Churches of Christ in U. S. A., 120 East 23rd Street, New York 10, N. Y.

Mrs. Humphrey Plans Return To Cleveland

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Mrs. George Humphrey, wife of the retiring secretary of the Treasury, isn't concerned about the problems of moving their Washington household belongings back to their home near Cleveland, Ohio.

"It's not too difficult when you're moving back to a place you've lived in some 25 or 30 years," she explained. "I haven't even started packing."

Gentle-voiced, friendly and unassuming, Mrs. Humphrey, one of the most popular of the Cabinet wives, says their stay here has been a "very rewarding experience."

"But I can't honestly say I'm sorry to be going back to my family," she admitted, "and it certainly will be easier than living half in one place and half in another."

Mrs. Humphrey says they will remain in Washington until Congress adjourns, making only occasional weekend visits to Holiday Hill, their farm near Cleveland. Their three children and eight grandchildren all live nearby.

"It's lovely in Cleveland in the summer," she said wistfully, "but, except for brief visits, we've spent most of our summers here. As you know my husband has been kept very busy."

During the recent hectic weeks of the secretary's many appearances before the Senate Finance Committee, where he has withstood the probing and needling of senatorial adversaries, his wife has given him staunch support.

"I went to every one of the hearings," she said. "I didn't worry one bit about the attacks they launched against him or the things they said. That's part of the job." She hopes, though, the secretary will take life easy for awhile when he leaves the Cabinet post for good.

"I guess we'll settle and relax before we plan anything," she went on. "As for myself, I expect to go right back to the same interests I had before coming here."

These interests include work in medical education, activity on behalf of crippled children, working for the Republican party and

Took Doctor's Advice--Now Struts, Twirls

By MARTHA PIERCE Reflector Teen Writer

Who else but Frankie Williamson can say that a compound fractured wrist started her on her twirling and strutting career as a majorette?

When her doctor suggested baton lessons in the second grade to strengthen her wrist, her six years of baton instruction had their start.

She is attending Princess Anne High School in Norfolk and is co-chief majorette there.

"It's a marvelous place," declares Frankie about the majorette camp at East Carolina College. "We have a majorette camp at William and Mary College Extension in Norfolk, but I knew that the instructors here were as good as those anywhere. And by coming here I can meet more people."

"I have never seen more friendly people than those in North Carolina," says this Virginia lass. This is her second year at the East Carolina majorette camp. She has participated in the last three Cherry Blossom Festivals in Washington, D. C. and the last two Apple Blossom Festivals in Winchester, Va.

Describing the vigorous pace set for the prancers at the college, Frankie pointed out, "It's work, but it's the kind you don't mind doing. Getting up at 6:45 is the worst part."

"We have an hour of chorus from 8 to 9, and the rest of the morning is spent in baton class except for a 10-minute break," Frankie explains. "After mail call, lunch, rest period and another hour of class, we have the afternoon free for swimming, playing bridge, or anything we want to do."

Night-time activities for the campers include dancing, movies and concerts. Watermelon cuttings are also special treats.

keeping up her activities with St. Hubert's Episcopal Church where, she said proudly, "five of my young grandchildren sing in the choir."

Angel Smock, Ruffled Pants Makes Little Girl An Angel

AP Newsfeatures
An angel smock and ruffled pants make any little girl look like an angel, even if some cynics insist most children are angels only when asleep.
Perfect for playtime or party time is this charming little set. Local sewing center experts suggest that the gathering and cording attachments on your sewing machine will make quick work of both. They can be made in a few hours from a printed pattern that features inch-rules on the pattern pieces for simplified alterations.
The smock, sleeveless and cool, flares out from a gathered yoke underlined with eyelet-embroidered beading, through which a ribbon has been run, and terminates in deep scallops. The scooped neckline, loose sleeves and scalloped hem are piped in contrasting bias tape, and embroidered above one scallop is the head of an angel, complete with wings and a halo, and the phrase "I'm an angel." An iron-on transfer is included with the pattern, so that embroidery is merely a matter of stitching over the transferred design.

The pants, made in only four pieces, have elastic run through the waist for a snug fit. Ruffles are made from two straight strips of fabric, gathered and hemmed by machine, then added to the pants. The piped pant-legs are easily gathered by using elastic sewing thread in the bobbin of the machine, and regular mercerized sewing thread on top.
In making children's clothes, it is important to remember to use only durable and washable fabrics and trimmings in clear colors, most becoming to the fair coloring of a small child. Clothes should fit loosely and comfortably to provide for the ease and freedom of movement needed by active youngsters.
Here are a couple of hints to use in making children's clothes: back buttons with a small piece of tape, or an extra piece of fabric, to keep the fabric from ripping when stress is given to fastenings during rambunctious activity. And, if you believe that "a stitch in time saves nine," restitch all seams for added strength.
Another suggestion is to purchase an extra half yard of fabric, beyond that suggested on the pattern envelope. Little girls love to have their dolls dressed in the same fabric, and little boys enjoy stuffed animals to match their clothes. A quick glance through the needlework and transfer catalog at the pattern counter will reveal dozens of suggestions for toys that can be made from leftover fabrics.

Woman Airs Packaging

"WOMEN ARE LAZY. They look for convenience, and they have a lot of ideas about improving packages."
So said Dorothy Diamond, who writes "The Woman's Viewpoint" for a business magazine, addressing a recent symposium of the Package Designers Council, for which she acts as a judge in annual packaging awards. Here, she told the packagers, are the things women look for:
1. Ease of storage. (She feels the long aluminum foil package is difficult to store.)
2. Ease of opening. (She commends the new zip-off cereal packages and the new flip-off lids.)
3. Effectiveness after opening. (Packages for brown-and-serve rolls, she says, are hard to re-close.)
4. Packages attractive enough to be used on the table. (She applauds the apothecary jars for vitamin pills, decorative spice containers and foods packaged in serving dishes.)
Miss Diamond listed among pet gripes lipstick cases which tarnish before the lipstick is used and sealed cookie bags which are hard to re-seal.

Uniform Regulation Best For All

Decision of the Pitt County Commissioners to establish a uniform regulation governing annual vacation and sick leave for all employees of the county will eliminate inequities which too long have existed among county employees.

The action of the legislature granting Boards of County Commissioners authority to establish vacation time and sick leave for their employees is another step in the right direction toward restoring to county boards the autonomy they should have in running the business of their respective counties.

Prior to the legislative act this year the commissioners of Pitt and other counties had no authority to set vacation and sick leave regulations for all employees. County employees who are under the state merit system (generally those in Health and Welfare Departments) were governed by regulations established by the state Merit System Council. County employees in the offices of the Farm and Home agents had their vacation established by the state Extension Service.

Local County Commissioners had no choice but to follow the dictates of these two outside bodies for the county employees in those categories.

As a result these two groups of county employees—numbering approximately 57 in Pitt County—have had vacation and sick leave benefits much more liberal than those established by commissioners for some 46 other so-called local employees of the county. This latter group has been getting 10 days, the equivalent of two work weeks, vacation each year. County employees under the merit system and extension service have been getting 15 days, the equivalent of three work weeks, vacation each year is county expense. Moreover, this group has been allowed to accumulate up to 30 days vacation time. They have also had sick leave benefits not accorded other county employees.

Quite obviously the inequities among these groups of county employees should have been abolished long ago. Now that the Board of Commissioners has authority to abolish the inequities between various departments, it is gratifying to see them taking steps to do so.

The Commissioners have not yet said how much vacation will be given county employees in the future. They have, in effect said, however, that a uniform policy will be applicable to all employees of the county regardless of the department in which they are employed.

Black Ink Welcome Could Use Some More

After such a long period of federal government operations going into the red year after year, it is comforting to the average citizen to know that at least Uncle Sam has been able to get by one more year without increasing the already staggering national debt.

For the second consecutive year the federal government has come to the end of its fiscal year in the black. For the 12 month period which ended June 30 the federal government not only paid its current bills, but also had over one and one-half billion dollars left in the kitty. From taxpayers the federal government collected almost $71 billion and managed to spend 69.3 billion during the 12 months period.

Gratifying as the black-ink operation is, the fact remains that federal tax collections and federal expenditures both could be appreciably reduced if more economy were practiced in Uncle Sam's operation. Taxpayers of the country are looking to the day when some relief from the heavy tax burden will be afforded them. They had hoped it would be this year, but the administration said "No", and Congress apparently was willing to go along.

Next year? Or the year after, maybe? It's difficult to tell just when some tax relief will be granted. One thing is certain, however. There is little hope of reducing the tax burden on American citizens unless and until greater emphasis is placed on economy in government operations. There seems to be no limit to the amount the federal government is able to spend during any given period if it sets its mind to do it. There is definitely a limit to what the nation's taxpayers can afford to pay. And in our opinion has been reached and surpassed.

With sufficient emphasis on economy in government, Congress and the administration would find little difficulty in making the government operate in the black and still give citizens much needed tax relief.

Charge Account Pressure Seen

Your favorite store is likely to ask you—politely, of course, but firmly—to pay your charge accounts within 30 days after you receive the bill. If you find that inconvenient—shall we say?—perhaps you would like to shift to revolving account with a little matter of 1 per cent per month on the unpaid balance. And if you don't warm up to that, you may simply be charged interest on all charges after 30 days.

The plan fact is that most department and other stores offering charge-account credit are in a vise. They are paying up to 18 per cent for money to finance credit operations—10 per cent might be the average. Department store net profits before taxes in the first quarter of the year were 2.4 per cent of sales and simple arithmetic will show that that can be sharply reduced by paying 10 per cent to finance credit.

From the foregoing it will be noted that Scott and Hodges have a lot in common. Both are iconoclasts who delight in smashing political traditions. Both are more custom and each makes his own rules as he goes along. A major contest between them would be delightfully refreshing and different from anything North Carolina has seen.

There are fish in your life. And here are more predictions, based on similar analyses of developing trends, plus a few inside advisers. You'll hear about fish in the fall. The National Fish Week Committee is launching a week-end "Fish Parade" promotion in September to get you to eat more fish and like it. The Shrimp Association is joining in. Sardines will be cheaper. The Maine run is heavy and canners are not waiting for the Fish Parade. Many are shaving prices now and urging retailers to use the savings for advertising. Don't count on excise tax relief. There's a bill in Congress to repeal the manufacturers' excise on appliances, radios, television sets, phonographs and records. But, according to our

Not That Stupid, Khrushy

By HAL BOYLE

Enriched By Giveaways

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernard Spero is a man who became rich by giving money away.

"I may be a crazy idealist," said Spero, a 63-year-old Chicago business executive, "but I've had the privilege of living a life I believe in—and most people don't get that privilege."

Spero is head of House of Vision, Inc., a Midwest optical firm with 23 branches in five states. His "crazy idealism" has consisted of a profit sharing plan under which he has given away 49 per cent of his firm to his employees.

The firm was small and debt ridden and doing only about $90,000 worth of business a year in 1924 when Spero, a young engineer, took it over. It had doubled its volume by 1938 when Spero decided to distribute 24 per cent of the stock to key employees as a bonus, and to donate another 25 per cent into a trust fund to benefit all employees.

"I had several reasons for doing this," he recalled. "One was selfish. I wanted to build a good organization, and I decided that a human being, since he is a flexible organism, would work really getting what was coming to him—and not just a living wage."

"Another reason was my feeling that a man who puts a lifetime into helping build a business really deserves something more than a gold watch after 25 years."

Spero's employees contribute 2 per cent of their salary to the fund. The fund itself, in addition to its share of the dividends, gets 20 per cent of the firm's net earnings before taxes. The firm grossed nearly four million dollars in 1956.

Business has mushroomed the value of the employees' fund with these typical results: A paraplegic worker who joined the firm in 1944 and gets $90 a week has paid into the fund only $800, but his share is now $12,600.

A $500 a month bookkeeper has contributed $645 to the fund since 1950 but her share now amounts to $7,932.

An $8 a week messenger boy who rose to become a branch manager has paid $2,474 into the fund since 1939 but now has a stake of $41,411. If the firm continues its present growth, in another 10 years his stake will amount to $150,000 or more.

Spero rewards key employees with annual bonuses, but to keep executives "from hogging the fund" limits their share in it by restricting their contributions to 2 per cent of their first $10,000 in salary.

He applies the same rule to himself. While he has the largest share in the fund, it comes to only $68,000.

Spero is hopeful that other firms will adopt similar profit-sharing plans because "they would help to make all business sound and healthy."

"This system is an answer to many of our economic problems. It is one way small business can prosper, compete with big business, and keep peace between labor and management."

Although Spero still owns 51 per cent of his firm, he has pledged that in the event of his death or retirement his survivors will retain only 12 1/2 per cent of the stock, leaving his employees the opportunity to buy actual control.

This, he feels, is a good thing, too.

"I don't think you do people a favor by leaving them too much money," observed the slender, wiry-haired executive, who has two grown children. "I've seen too many kids spoiled by inherited money."

"I've also seen lots of fine firms ruined by family control of the business after the founder died. It's better to leave a small part of a sound business to your family than control of a big business turning sour. In the end the employees who helped build a business ought to have the chance to take it over."

Then Spero, a business philosopher who rarely likes to get sentimental, observed:

"One of the best things about this whole idea is the feeling I have that the employees regard me as a friend. You know, over the years, that counts for a lot."

Cheap Stock Study

By ROGER BABSON

Toronto, Canada, July 18. I am getting so many inquiries regarding cheap stocks listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange that I have come up to Toronto to make some inquiries. There certainly is great interest in these cheap stocks. So much money is being sent to Canada by American investors that the Canadian dollar is now worth a premium of 5 per cent over the American dollar.

Different Kinds Of Canadian Investments

The safest is probably an investment in the producing oils which are more or less controlled by the larger American companies. These are selling on a fair basis and should have even greater growth; but they should be bought for income rather than for speculation. There is no question but that there is a lot of oil in Western Canada; but most wells are waiting for transportation to good markets. To build pipe lines takes time and money. The wells will not be allowed to produce much until these pipe lines have been constructed. There are also large fields of natural gas; but these also are waiting pipe lines. Oil can be put in barrels and transported by truck; but natural gas is absolutely dependent on pipe lines or else upon very expensive compression.

The most popular investments are in metal-mining companies, including gold, copper, zinc, lead, uranium, and even the rare metals. Most of these stocks do not now represent producing properties, although some of the non-producers are building mills or refineries. There are probably many that are now selling for less than a dollar a share which will some day sell for many times this. But only experts can pick them at this time. For the ordinary investor to buy them at random is a good deal like betting on a horse race. Some horses will surely win; but which one is another matter.

Relation Between Price And Reserves

Even if a mining stock is selling cheap, that is, below a dollar per share, yet one should first find out how many shares are outstanding. The brokers here tell me the most of the buyers look only at the price and do not consider the number of shares outstanding. Of course, the number of shares should be multiplied by the price to see what the mine or the prospect is selling for. Certain stocks which now pay no dividends are probably the best buys.

The most important thing for the investor to know is the amount of real ore reserves, whether iron, copper, lead, zinc, uranium, nickel, or whatever the metal may be. These ore reserves can be determined pretty well by diamond drilling. An honest broker will tell you approximately the amount of the reserves. In addition to knowing the quantity of the reserves, one should know the percentage of ore to a ton of earth. With this information the investor can divide the price at which the mine is selling by the reserves and secure a rough estimate of the price that he is paying per ton for the ore.

Other Factors To Consider

There are other factors to consider, such as distance from a railroad, a navigable river, or even highways. Before a metal can be marketed, the ore must be brought to the surface and refined and the metal transported to market. Each step is expensive, but very important. Then, of course, the amount of "overburden" is important; that is, how much earth must be removed before the ore can be taken out. The diamond drilling will give the figures on this. The main thing to keep in mind is: Buy reserves of ore and study the price you are paying for these reserves. Forget the stock market and imagine that you are merely a metal merchant buying copper or one of the other metals. For instance, if you are studying a coal company, instead of figuring too much on the price of the stock, (Continued on page five)

Hodges' Future Is Still Secret

By LYNN NISBET

SENATORS — The next scheduled election of a United States Senator in North Carolina will be in 1960. Senator Kerr Scott has already announced his candidacy for re-election. Many people who last year were certain Governor Luther Hodges would also be in the race are not so sure about it now. The Governor's invariable response to news conference questions about his intentions is that he has a full-time job as Governor and is not presently thinking about anything else.

Despite this negative attitude on his part most political observers have regarded him a likely — at times an active — candidate for the Senate. The fact that he set up a full scale headquarters with a state manager in his primary campaign for Governor, although his opposition was negligible, lent credence to the belief he had something further in mind. The way he got about over the state, making four or five major speeches a week, supported the idea. His ardent advocacy of Adlai Stevenson for the Democratic presidential nomination, in view of the fact that Kerr Scott had been a lead for Stevenson in 1952, strengthened belief that Hodges was seeking friends among that group.

Later incidents have tended to discount his prospects as a Senatorial candidate. His emphasis on "no-politics", leading to a run in with county Democratic organizations—which involved State Chairman John Larkins—Kand later with potent legislative leaders, did not fit the popular concept of a candidate. (Especially in face of the fact that as a several times candidate, as Governor and as Senator, Kerr Scott took delight in thumbing his nose at those same organization stalwarts.)

POLICY — The way in which the administration legislative program and appointment policy was handled displeased a lot more folks than did the program itself. There was basic opposition to some of the reorganization proposals, centralizing more control of government in Raleigh and giving the Governor's office a great deal more power. Destruction of the divisional administration in the highway system was not popular, although there was admitted merit in the idea of a central statewide policy-making board which would employ personnel to carry out the policies adopted.

When Governor Hodges announced his own selections for the two top highway administrative posts before the board which was required by statute to select them had been constituted, doubt was raised about the degree of independence that would be permitted the board in policy making and other statutory functions.

Although school teachers got a 15 per cent raise in pay and other State workers got 11 per cent increase (which was about what they had expected before the General Assembly convened) the way these matters were handled incurred the enmity of some 65,000 State employees and an undetermined number of their families and friends.

Appointment of a civilian with a record of activity in factional and partisan politics and outstanding service in world statesmanship, but with very limited military experience, as Adjutant General brought immediate protest from spokesmen for 11,000 members of the National Guard. The fact that the new Adjutant General had managed Kerr Scott's campaign for Governor in 1948 occasioned a suggestion that this might be another purely political effort to entice Scott supporters into the Hodges camp. Reaction of guardsmen and politicians indicates it will not have that result, and if the appointment was politically intended it was not "smart" politics.

STRATEGY — Those who interpret these incidents to mean that Luther Hodges has thrown away any chance to be United States Senator fail to consider the characteristics and the record of the man. He had never conformed to established practice. And he is a superb salesman, for his ideas and for himself. He has unbounded confidence in himself and sublime faith in the future of North Carolina.

Hodges' most loyal friends cannot deny that he is less popular now than he was a year ago. His severest critics must admit that preponderant majority of the business men in and outside of North Carolina have confidence in him and in his program for state development. If an election were held now he might not fare too well. He knows the election is three years off—and he has overturned many political carts in less than three years.

Kerr Scott, who made many political boners during his tenure as Governor, has played his cards skillfully since going to the Senate. His public support of Senator Sam Ervin, announced months before the primary campaign was to begin, virtually assured Ervin's re-election without contest in the Democratic primary. Scott's veto of plans among some of his group to bring out real opposition against Hodges for Gov. nor last year was a master stroke. While it disappointed some aspirants for Governor, it prevented Hodges from building a real strong and efficient organization.

From the foregoing it will be noted that Scott and Hodges have a lot in common. Both are iconoclasts who delight in smashing political traditions. Both are more custom and each makes his own rules as he goes along. A major contest between them would be delightfully refreshing and different from anything North Carolina has seen.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
IT COMES DOWN TO US

No group of men can be trusted to run a nation. One hundred and fifty years ago, kings and nobles were running the world, and the American Revolution and the French Revolution resulted. One hundred years ago, the nation was in the hands of powerful leaders who fought one another over the subject of slavery and its extension. Fifty years ago business interests were in control of the country and Theodore Roosevelt used the big stick effectively. Today, we are suffering from the selfishness and malice of pressure groups. Special interests which can control money and voting power are wielding entirely too powerful an influence in our national life. The power of these groups will have to be broken if the country is to achieve and maintain a healthy national life. Every evil condition in the country at large affects every individual therein. The domination of special interests not only involves the loss of money but casts a sinister and immoral shadow over the whole life of the nation. Every evil doer in the country has about him a group of helpers who put his evil plans into action. Your moral health and mine largely depend upon the atmosphere in which we live. Evil environment produces evil men. No thing happens nationally that does not affect the life of every man and woman in the land.

To the Editor:

The action of the State Board of Medical Examiners in attempting to drive foreign-born doctors out of North Carolina is not new. As a member of the North Carolina Hospitals Board of Control since 1949, I have seen numerous similar efforts in individual instances.

The Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center at Butler is the brainchild of one of these foreign-born doctors. It is now nationally recognized as outstanding, and various other states have patterned their after it. This particular doctor could speak five languages fluently and his ability to speak English was considerably above average. We loaned him to Yale University to assist in their program of summer studies and they offered him an improved position there. Out of loyalty he stayed with the North Carolina Program. He passed the State Board examinations and was admitted to practice medicine in Ohio and Florida, and North Carolina has reciprocity with Ohio. The North Carolina Board of Medical Examiners insisted that he attend a Medical School here before he could take the State Board examinations and be licensed in North Carolina. He now heads the State Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program in Florida at a higher salary than his superiors in North Carolina are paid. When Dr. Doffermyre says that these foreign-born doctors are substandard he impugns that judgment and ability of every member of the governing boards and staffs of the institutions using them. If Dr. Doffermyre is right, then these persons whose judgment he impugns should be replaced by others who agree with him. And how does Dr. Doffermyre justify the position of his Board in permitting these doctors to practice here for the past ten years if "substandard care is worse than no care at all," as he now says.

The record speaks for itself. The successful treatment program in the North Carolina institutions is now better than it has ever been, and by actual records compares very favorably with other states on a National level. The statements and action of Dr. Doffermyre and his board are based on Personal opinions and prejudices which cannot be justified by facts and records.

John S. Ruggles, Chairman N.C. Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program Southern Pines, N.C.

Balk At Aid To Foreign Airlines

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON, July 21. — Prominent aviation experts in House and Senate are backing legislation to prevent the Administration from granting concealed "giveaways" to foreign airlines for political and diplomatic rather than economic reasons. Unless checked, they charge that this policy will throw our great international carriers back on subsidy at tremendous expense to taxpayers. In granting licenses to foreign lines to crisscross this country, President Eisenhower has frequently overruled adverse reports from the Civil Aeronautics Board. He takes his advice from Secretary Dulles, who insists that these favors are necessary to retain the friendship of these competing nations. A Dulles spokesman recently said that the policy would be expanded. When CAB turns down one of these requests—foreign governments appeal to Dulles, threatening retaliation. Queen Juliana of Holland got permission for KLM to fly to Houston, Tex., simply by writing a letter to Ike, although CAB had voted unanimously against the Dutch firm's application. FREE FOREIGN GIFTS DAMAGE U.S. AIRLINES These grants constitute a generally unknown free gift which damage numerous American industries. They do not show up in Foreign Aid Appropriation Bills, nor are they included in estimates of overseas bounty.

Trans World Airlines lost $700,000 on 1956 overseas operations because of foreign discrimination against it by three nations—Britain, West Germany and Switzerland—although they have received rich favors from us. Pan American World Airways is also suffering. Although now off subsidy, both may be forced back on the Federal payroll because of this one-sided generosity. AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY HURT Another serious threat lies in the fact that these foreign lines use planes built in their own countries, which hurts our aircraft industry, both stockholders and workers. And American taxpayers' money finances the construction of planes for these nationalized companies. Almost 10 foreign lines now are permitted to fly throughout the United States, picking up passengers who would otherwise be served by domestic carriers. Eleven more have asked CAB for similar rights. It is a lopsided arrangement, for there is almost no westward travel from Europe. For one person flying to this country, it is estimated that overseas airlines haul 70 on the return trip.

For one thing, European governments do not permit their nationals to take enough money abroad for extensive or expensive visits. ONE-WAY BARGAIN Two examples suffice to reveal the inequity of this procedure. An Australian line will soon be granted a license to fly to San Francisco and New York, and thence to Europe. In return, an American firm will be permitted to fly to Australia, the South Pole, Tasmania and South Africa, a route traveled only by hardy birds. That is, of course, a one-way bargain. TWA, under this supposedly reciprocal arrangement, can now fly through London to Frankfurt in Germany. It sought permission to fly on to Zurich, a distance of 178 miles, where its regular route continues to Athens, Cairo, India and Ceylon. But British BOAC blocked the request for fear of TWA competition. TWA lost $700,000 on this leg alone, although BOAC has been given lucrative routes in this country. ENDEAVORS TO CURB GRANTS. The Senate has sought to curb these grants by passing the Smathers Bill for the second straight year. It requires the President to give Congress a full justification for overriding CAB in these matters. It also provides that a representative of the aviation industry sit in with Dulles' diplomats in negotiations on international air agreements. Representatives Oren H. Harris of Arkansas, Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee Chairman, has a bill on the same subject. It would force foreign lines to furnish CAB with data on their traffic operations, which they refuse to do now. The publicity would show whether they fly empty planes to this country, and return with full pay loads. The purpose is to reveal that these are "sucker agreements."

Press Agent Inspired His Woman-Hating Act

By JAMES BACON
 HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After all these years, George Sanders now admits that his woman-hating reputation was the creation of a press agent.

"It was all George Glass' idea for 'The Moon and Sixpence' and I just went along with it," he told a reporter.

Glass, now a producer, had a hand in some of such Hollywood publicity ideas as the search for Scarlett O'Hara and the five year build-up of Jane Russell before she ever was seen on the screen.

In "The Moon and Sixpence" a Somerset Maugham story based on the artist Gauguin, Sanders treated women like a dirty old

American Movies Return To Prague

CZECH FIRST—Cigarette salesman partly obscures poster advertising first American film shown at small theater in Prague's Venceslav Square.

By HANNS NEUBERBOURG
 PRAGUE (AP) — American films have returned to the screens of Communist Czechoslovakia along with a record number of other Western movies.

The American movie "The Little Fugitive" has just made its debut in two Prague cinemas. Czech national film import officials said they are hopeful it will be followed by about eight others this year.

U. S. productions already approved by the film import commission and now subject to purchase negotiations include "Marty," "Trapeze," "Roman Holiday," "Picnic," "East of Eden" and "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

Officials here predict Czech fans will soon have a new film idol after the first showing of "Trapeze. Up to now, they haven't known Gina Lollobrigida, bosomy Italian star of the film.

'Draft' Dodger' Is In Airborne

FT. CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)—Pvt. Skult Jensen's draft board in Denmark will just have to go right on waiting.

Jensen, 25, a Dane stationed with the 101st Airborne Division here, is about to become a draft dodger in his old home town.

His Danish draft board has ordered him to report to the 5th Danish Regiment at Vordingburg, near Copenhagen, Sept. 6.

Jensen has gone through similar experiences before.

He was drafted into service with the Danish army in 1952 and served 12 months. Then Denmark joined the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and Jensen, along with thousands of others, served an extra six months.

When his tour was up, he decided to see America. He arrived in New York in May 1956 and planned to make a tour of the country, working his way from state to state.

That's when Uncle Sam drafted him into the U. S. Army.

By November, Jensen was going through basic training. In due time, he was serving with the 101st Airborne.

He said he had to decline the Danish draft notice and sent the an apologetic letter explaining situation.

When he finishes his present hitch, he plans to complete his tour of the country.

The management quickly renamed it good heavens.

Investors who take the trouble to get this information should really be able to make a lot of money. Sometime in the next 30 years most metals will be selling at several times their present prices. There are only so many tons under ground of every metal, and the amount is being reduced every day. I really believe that $12,000 invested properly in Canadian Oils and Metals, will, at some period during the next 30 years, be worth a million dollars! Such an investment, however, requires much care in the selection and supervision of the companies.

Liberace Home Is Under Guard

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The San Fernando Valley homes of pianist Liberace and his two brothers are being watched by armed guards.

The guards have been posted as a result of the attack made last Thursday night on the pianist's mother Mrs. Frances Liberace Casadonte. She said two big men jumped on her and beat her unconscious on the service porch of Liberace's home. She is in a hospital.

Liberace's attorney John R. Jacobs Jr. said the guards were posted at the home of the pianist and his brothers George and Rudy because "we can't take a chance." He added: "You don't know how to combat something you don't understand. What else can we do?"

Pairings Completed For State Teen-er Tourney Here

Play Begins Wednesday At ECC, Guy Smith Park

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Pairings for the forthcoming Teen-er League State Tournament have been completed and play will get underway Wednesday afternoon.

Eight North Carolina Districts are expected to send representatives to the tourney. Plans, according to Teen-er officials, are sketchy at present, due to the fact that all the Districts have not completed their local playoffs.

Greenville, for the first time, will have a team entered in the State tourney. This is the first year that Teen-er ball has been played in Greenville.

Gastonia, last year's State Champions, will also be back this year, having won their District Six title.

- (9:00) Gastonia vs Whiteville, at Guy Smith Stadium.
 - (11:00) Hamlet or High Point vs. Lenior at Guy Smith Stadium.
 - (2:00) Losers of the two 9:00 games will battle at Guy Smith Stadium.
 - (4:00) Winners of the two 9:00 games will battle at East Carolina Field.
- Also, at 4:00 at Guy Smith Stadium, the winner of the (Hamlet-High Point) vs Lenior game will face Greenville. Goodman stated however, that if both teams will agree to a night contest, the game will be played at 8:00 at the Stadium.
- "We'd like to play as much night ball as possible," Goodman stated. "But we'll have to get the consent of all the teams involved of course."
- Pairings for the second round of play will be carried in the Reflector later.
- The tourney will last through Friday. Winner of the State tourney will then serve as host for the District playoff, which will include teams from Georgia, Tennessee and North Carolina. It will be played during the first week of August.

Kiwanians Take Title On Homers By Harris, Hemby

A couple of homers at the right times clinched the North State Little League baseball title for the Kiwanis Club, Saturday afternoon.

Van Harris and Gene Hemby, a pair of powerful swingers, clubbed Leon Hurier Ernest Larkin for second and third-inning homers to take a 4-1 triumph.

The game was the third of a three-game series which was played to determine the league's season champions. The Kiwanis won the first, lost the second, and wrapped it up Saturday.

The playoff was forced when the Lions won the first-half crown and the Kiwanis outfit took the second-half title.

Beck Winner Of Junior Title, After Another

WASHINGTON (AP)—Larry Beck, a 17-year-old North Carolinian who learned his lessons well, moves on to the Eastern Open at Baltimore this week after winning the U.S. Junior golf championship.

He will be the younger member of a family pair in the Eastern. Avery Beck, Larry's father and tutor, also plans to compete.

The elder Beck, pro at Kingston, N.C. Country Club and a former National Public Links runner-up, will run for some of the $20,000 prize money. His lanky son will seek new amateur honors.

Larry, a slim six footer, made clear he's a lad to watch in coming years by his mastery of the field of 128 in the U.S. Golf Assn. Junior championships here last week. Playing sub-par golf, he overwhelmed Dave Leon, Tucson, Ariz., junior title, 6 and 5 in the final Saturday.

Avery Beck was unable to make the trip to watch his pet pupil win the national crown for boys under 18. Larry said his dad "chokes up when I'm under pressure, anyway."

There wasn't much pressure to stand. In his Saturday morning semifinal, Larry trounced M. C. (Sonny) Methvin Jr. of Little Rock, Ark., by the same 6 and 5 score. He needed only an hour and 48 minutes to dispose of Leon.

Over the 107 holes it took to win his seven tournament matches, Larry wound up even with par at Manor Country Club's 6,465-yard, 35-35-70 course.

Young Beck has won the Carolinas' Junior championship three times. He also has captured the North Carolina Jaycee and Greensboro Junior titles. His triumph at Manor automatically gained him a place in the National Amateur at Boston in September. He expects to enroll at Wake Forest this fall.

League Leaders

The pitching of Brooks Lawrence and the hitting of George Crowe, has the hot-and-cold Cincinnati Redlegs sizzling again, spelling bad news for the other four National League contenders.

They said Lawrence, acquired by the Reds in a trade with St. Louis the winter before last, was lucky last year when he won 19 games. They said Crowe, obtained from Milwaukee last year for a third stringer named Bob Hazle, was too old, too slow and too weak with the stick.

Today the Redlegs, after a 4-2 and 6-4 double-header sweep over Philadelphia, are only two games behind the pace-setting Milwaukee Braves, largely because Brooks turned in his 11th triumph of the season and Crowe walloped his 22nd home run.

In other National League games Milwaukee split with New York, winning the second game 7-4 after the Giants had won the opener 5-4. Brooklyn gained a split with Chicago, winning 7-2 after a 5-4 defeat. St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh 7-3 in 10 innings of the opener and led 11-2 with one out in the top of the ninth when the second game was halted by Pennsylvania's curfew law.

Chicago's White Sox pulled within ½ game of the American League-leading New York Yankees, shutting out the Boston Red Sox 3-0. The Cleveland Indians came from behind to down the Yankees 7-4 after losing the opener 4-3.

Detroit nipped Washington 6-5 in 10 innings when rookie pitcher Jim Heise of the Senators walked across the winning run with the bases loaded. Kansas City beat Baltimore 3-2 after the Orioles had won the opener 7-2.

Lawrence gave up five hits to the Phillies before he was relieved by Raul Sanchez in the eighth of the opener. Crowe's two-run homer and a four-bagger by Gus Bell was enough to hand Robin Roberts his seventh straight defeat and 13th of the season. A 16-hit attack, including three hits each by Ted Kluszewski, Wally Post and Roy McMillan, moved the Reds up into fourth place past the Phillies.

Lawrence, 32, has been the workhorse of the Redlegs, relieving in 10 games. Crowe, 34, hit four home runs in the last five days.

Yesterday Was A Pitcher's Day In Carolina Loop

CAROLINA LEAGUE

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Yesterday was a pitcher's day in the Carolina League.

Alex Gordy held the league-leading Hi-Toms to five hits as the Wilson Toms, won 5-0.

At Greensboro, Jim Raugh subdued the Patriots on six hits as the Durham Bulls continued their rejuvenated ways and won, 7-2.

In the league's other contest, Winston-Salem downed Danville, 8-7.

Gordy was aided by his teammates who slugged two home runs, one by Bill Enders in the second inning and the other by Dan Porter in the fourth.

Three homers accounted for the Bulls' scores against Greensboro. The round trippers were hit by Jack Feller, Bubba Morton and Tom Futch.

Umpire Jerry Trudell was injured slightly when he was struck on the right elbow by a broken bat that slipped off the hands of Shep Frazier in the fourth inning of the Durham-Greensboro game. Games today are Greensboro at Winston-Salem, Wilson at Danville and Durham at Hi-Toms.

At Least Five Stock Races This Weekend In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was another busy weekend for stock car drivers in the Carolinas with at least five races being run.

Action reached a climax yesterday at the Tar Heel Speedway in Randleman, N.C., as Bobby Waddell of North Wilkesboro, N.C., throttled home first in a 30-lap sportsman feature. Carl Burris of Leaksville, N.C., was in second place a half lap back and Bill Myers of Gorman, N.C., third in the 15-car field.

With over 8,000 fans looking on at Hickory Saturday night Jack Smith, behind the wheel of a 1957 Chevrolet, rolled home first in a 250-lap Grand National Stock Car race at the Hickory Speedway. Lee Petty finished second as only 15 cars in a starting field of 25 finished.

Hometown Tom Webster won a 35-lap Saturday Sportsman Feature at Winston-Salem. Pee Wee Jones, another Winston-Salem driver, was second on the quarter-mile asphalt track.

In a 100-lap sportsman and modified stock car race at Charlotte Friday night Doug Cox of Greenville, S.C., won first place money in the feature at the Fairgrounds oval. Cox, piloting a 1952 Chrysler-powered Plymouth, was followed across the finish line by Johnny Miller of Kannapolis.

Curtis Turner of Roanoke, Va., won a NASCAR sanctioned race at Columbia Friday night. Joe Weatherly, of Norfolk, Va., came home second in the race. Both drove Fords. Turner earned $800 for first place.

Farmville, Ayden To Playoff For Junior Crown

FARMVILLE—Both Farmville and Grifton won their final Junior League ballgames of the season this weekend, to throw the loop into a down-to-the-wire deadlock.

Farmville whipped Ayden Number One, Friday, 8-0, to wind up its season. Grifton topped Winterville the next day to finish.

Farmville breezed to the 8-0 win behind the pitching of Bob Avery. K. Allen, punched out a homerun and a single to pace the winners at the plate. Teammate D. Turner also contributed a double and two singles.

Faulkner, Norris and Jolly were the batters for the losing team. The deadlock will be played off at Ayden, Wednesday night at 7:45.

Both teams finished the season with 10-5 records.

McCarthy & Sam Crawford Enter Hall Of Fame

COPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—Marse Joe McCarthy and Wahoo Sam Crawford formally enter Baseball's Hall of Fame today.

Although McCarthy never made the majors as a player, he left his mark as a manager with nine pennants, eight of them with the New York Yankees. Under McCarthy's rule, the Yanks won seven World Series.

Crawford, 77, has been out of baseball since 1917. He collected 2,964 hits in 19 big league seasons at Cincinnati and Detroit.

Both McCarthy, 70, and Crawford were able to be present to accept the honors piled on them last February by the special 11-man Veterans Committee.

Under the new system of Hall of Fame voting, adopted last year, new members are selected on alternate years by the Veterans Committee and the 10-year members of the Baseball Writers' Assn.

In recent years, McCarthy has been a regular visitor to this historic community on Osego Lake where Abner Doubleday is supposed to have scratched out the first diamond with a stick.

If they had known the standings in advance, the directors couldn't have picked a better pairing than the 1957 game. St. Louis Cardinals and the Chicago White Sox.

Attendance Up At League Games

ROXBORO, N.C. (AP)—Attendance is up at Carolina League games this year, according to league president Bill Jessup.

Jessup said a comparison of reports from the six clubs in the loop this season with attendance figures for the clubs last year shows an increase of 7,389 through June 30.

The loop had eight clubs last year but only the figures of the six still in the league this year were used.

Jessup said the split season is expected to bolster attendance in the league for July and August.

He observed, "I feel we are experiencing a very successful year in baseball in the Carolina League and that the figures through July 31 will show an even greater increase."

Lionel Doesn't Need Big Brother Any More

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Lionel Hebert, a chunky, keev-eyed product of Louisiana's Evangeline land, emerged from under his brother's protective wings during the 39th PGA championship and now now stands by himself as a golfer of first magnitude.

Up to a few days ago, Lionel was best known as the younger brother of Jay Hebert, one of the leading golf pros. He was pretty well satisfied and complained only because Jay didn't have the killer instinct to win more often.

Then, in a dramatic finale, the kid brother came through with a 2 and 1 triumph over Dow Finsterwald, the young moneybags of the golf tour, and the tables were turned.

Jay never has won a national title; Loney now has one. Lionel is almost certain of the place on the Ryder Cup team, which will play Britain's top pros in October; Jay probably won't make it.

From 49th place on the PGA money winning list, Lionel moved up to 15th. His $8,000 first prize gave him a year's total of $10,968. Jay, earning only $1,500 for seventh place, still is seventh, about $4,000 ahead.

The younger Hebert, a surprise finalist in a tournament where such stars as Sam Snead, Jackie Burke, Doug Ford, Gene Littler and Ed Furgol couldn't even make the quarter-finals, came out boldly at the finish to win.

For the first 18 holes under the steaming sun on the baked Miami Valley Golf Club course, they sparred through some defensive maneuvers. Only four holes in the morning were won or lost; the others were halved in par figures.

Then, at the start of the afternoon, the 5-8, 185-pound Hebert moved like a heavyweight who has seen his opponent's guard drop. He fired three straight birdies—a long second shot for one, a 10-foot putt for another and a perfect approach for a third.

Finsterwald, a calm young shot-maker who doesn't panic, got two

Boxing Scene Dominated By Heavyweights

By JACK HAND

The Associated Press

Almost dwarfed in a week when heavyweights dominate the boxing scene, two little men clash tonight at St. Nicholas Arena in New York. Bobby Courchesne of Holyoke, Mass., and Bobby Bell of Youngstown, Ohio, figure to get the week off to a fast start although the outcome will have little to do with any title rankings.

The 10-round lightweight match will be seen on Du Mont TV in some sections.

Roland LaStarza, the New Yorker who once fought Rocky Marciano for the title after losing a split decision to him in his pre-championship days, continues his comeback tonight at Muzzy Field in Bristol, Conn. His opponent will be Al Anderson, also of New York.

Floyd Patterson swings into the final week of training for his heavyweight title defense, Monday, July 29, against Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson at New York's Polo Grounds. The champ is drilling at Greenwood Lake, N.Y., while Jackson is working on the shores of the Delaware River at Columbia, N.J.

Nine Records Set In AAU Open

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—Nine records were written into the books at Carolinas AAU Open swimming meet which ended here yesterday, including three by a 14-year-old Gardner, Mass., girl.

Team honors went to the Greensboro women's team and the North Carolina Athletic Club men's team.

Susan Rogers of Gardner, Mass., who came here to compete in the national women's 200-meter backstroke event—which she won, rolled up 28 team points herself while setting the three records.

Miss Rogers' new records were in the following events: 200-meter breaststroke, 3:17.4; 100-meter backstroke, 1:20; and 100-meter breaststroke, 1:31. Although her records will be recognized as meet marks, they will not count as Carolina AAU records since she is from out of state.

Other records set included: Dick Faden of the North Carolina Athletic Club (NCAC), 100-meter backstroke, 1:27.8.
Charles Krepp, NCAC, 100-meter backstroke, 1:06.4.

British Armed Units Alerted To Help Sultan Facing Revolt

LONDON (AP) — British forces from Kenya to Cyprus were prepared today for possible aid to an ally hard pressed by rebellion in the potentially oil-rich eastern tip of the Arabian Peninsula.

Reports from Oman, an even-hot, rugged country of sandy plains and towering mountains, indicated the rebellion against the Sultan of Muscat and Oman was unchecked in some 5,000 square miles of remote land.

British officials in the region conferred with the Sultan, Said bin Taimur, but said no forces had yet been sent into the region. The traditional symbol of British support, two Royal Navy frigates, were reported standing off the town of Muscat on the Gulf of Oman to help protect British residents if necessary.

British Middle East army headquarters on Cyprus said three infantry companies now in Kenya will fly back to their Persian Gulf base at Bahrain and can be moved to Muscat if needed.

400-man private army, retired British Col. Pat Waterfield, flew to Muscat from leave here. The temperature at Muscat was reported at 130 degrees.

The rebellion by about 1,500 tribesmen broke out in the interior three days ago. The religious leader of Oman, Imam Ghaleb bin Ali, was reported heading the revolt.

The imam was driven out of the area in 1955 by the Sultan. He has since been reported in Saudi Arabia, which has no clearly defined border with Oman. Unofficial reports say he returned to Oman to lead the rebellion.

The imam's representative in Cairo, Mohamed el Hary, claimed that his forces had gained control of Nizwa, Oman's ancient capital. It lies in a mountainous area about 100 miles southwest of Muscat that is almost inaccessible to modern ground forces.

Britain has both a treaty with the Sultan and oil rights in the territory, which is believed to be potentially productive in oil. The treaty does not automatically commit Britain to provide military support but diplomatic sources in London felt that forces would be offered if necessary to prevent the Sultan's overthrow.

Some British newspapers have claimed the rebellion is backed by Saudi Arabia in order to gain control of oil concessions in the area. American interests handle Saudi oil concessions.

Author Kenneth Roberts Is Dead

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — Author Kenneth Roberts, whose best-selling novels brought the drama of the nation's history to millions of readers, died yesterday in this seacoast village of his birth. He was 71.

Roberts, who had been in bed for a week, fell victim to coronary thrombosis. He recently had completed proof-reading "Water Unlimited," a book for October publication.

Roberts first hit the best seller list in 1937 with his "Northwest Passage," a story of French and Indian War days.

Prior to this he had produced a series of romantic novels dealing with the Revolution and the War of 1812. These started with "Arundel" and were followed by "The Lovely Lady," "Rabble in Arms" and "Captain Caution."

Recently a special Pulitzer citation went to Roberts for creating "a greater interest in early American history."

Death came to the novelist at his seaside farm which he called Rocky Pastures. Here in a book-crammed studio, Roberts did much of the painstaking research and writing for his novels, the latest of which was "Boon Island." Here too he dabbled in what he called "off-beat agriculture," specializing in vegetables.

Roberts was a hard, eager worker and a stickler for accuracy and detail. "Northwest Passage," he said, required three years of the hardest kind of research "for the reader to understand in two days."

Roberts was born Dec. 8, 1885. He was graduated from Cornell in 1906 and three years later married Anna S. Mosser, who survived him. He was a staff member of the defunct Boston Post for eight years.

Funerary services will be held Tuesday at Cambridge, Mass. Burial will be in the Arlington National Cemetery.

A 'Boyfriend' For Girl Gorilla

DALLAS (AP) — Boy met girl in the zoo gorilla cage Saturday, but it didn't have much effect until yesterday when the girl tried the direct approach — a good right hand to the chops.

Zoo officials hope it will result, eventually, in a family, something that doesn't happen often.

Jenny, a 3-year-old fresh from the Canary Islands, moved in on 2-year-old Jimmy Saturday. But he ignored her until, to the delight of a Sunday zoo crowd, she slapped him this way and that.

Now Jimmy pays attention, but zoo director Pierre Fontaine said they had plenty of time anyway because gorillas don't mature until about 18.

Tar Heel Beauty Is Chosen 'Miss Virginia' At Contest

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Miss Virginia of 1957 is a North Carolinian—but pause, Tar Heel, before you make that snide remark. The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce has the answer for you.

It's perfectly obvious, says the chamber, that Rebecca Ann (Becky) Lee just naturally got a lot prettier when she quite sensibly decided last fall to adopt Roanoke, Virginia's "Star City," as her home.

Becky, a native of Dunn, N.C., was runner-up for the title of Miss North Carolina in 1954 and 1956. For her, the third time was the charm.

Five knowledgeable judges — one of them from North Carolina — Saturday night chose the brown-haired stenographer from a field of 20 beauties to represent the Old Dominion in the Miss America pageant in September.

How did a North Carolina girl manage to outdo all those gorgeous creatures born and bred in Virginia?

"Easy," said W. H. W. Anderson, director of public relations for the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce in Richmond. "North Carolina girls get prettier when they come to live in Virginia."

"I know. I married one myself." Anderson's wife is the former (and now prettier) Mary Elizabeth Ferguson of Greenville, N.C.

He said the "lovely climate of the 'Star City' also certainly was a determining factor" in Miss Lee's success in the battle of pulchritude.

Rather irrelevantly, Anderson added that a fellow named John S. Battle also had to leave North Carolina to make his mark. Battle came to Virginia, like Miss Lee. He never won anybody's beauty contest, and never will, but he did become governor of the state.

Miss Lee, cheered on by a crowd that included about 30 of her admirers and friends from down Dunn way in eastern North Carolina, took her victory calmly and dry-eyed, like the contest veteran she is.

She had vowed that if she didn't win this time, she'd never enter another beauty contest. She hadn't really intended entering the Miss

Virginia competition, she said, but "my friends back home encouraged me."

The 22-year-old Becky has measurements of 37-23-37. She got off to a dazzling start Friday night by winning the bathing suit competition. Saturday, her talent bit was a dramatic reading in which she took the part of a teenaged slum girl talking to her dying boy friend.

Second place went to Miss Tricities, Patricia Jean Ferguson of Hampton, and third place to Barbara Bruce Turner of Williamsburg.

Other finalists were Genie Marie Spencer of Martinsville and Sara Janie Cuthrie of Portsmouth.

Another Friend Is Shipping Out

LONDON (AP) — The current favorite of Princess Margaret is being transferred to Cyprus within two weeks.

The War Office labeled the charge a routine assignment but friends called it a surprise.

Lord Patrick Beresford, 23, a lieutenant in the Royal Horse Guards for four years, has completed his tour of duty in Britain and is now due for overseas service, the War Office said.

Rumors last week had his engagement to the 26-year-old princess in the offing. The Daily Express said, "The constant association of his name with the princess has caused the (palace) officials acute embarrassment."

The paper commented that "being a friend of the princess seems to be becoming a qualification for a ticket to far-off places."

A palace aide, Group Capt. Peter Townsend, was transferred to the British Embassy in Brussels when his name was romantically linked with Margaret's.

Officers at the London barracks of Lord Beresford's regiment said they were surprised at the transfer. He originally wasn't supposed to leave until October, they said.

Girl Trapped 40 Hours In Wreck, Recovering

ALLIANCE, Neb. (AP) — Complete recovery was predicted today for 17-year-old Judy Diehl, who endured 40 agonizing hours trapped in a crashed airplane with the bodies of her parents and a friend.

Dr. O. L. Seng said the Cozad, Neb., girl was in "fair condition" and "we expect complete recovery."

Judy suffered a fracture of the upper left leg, possible fractures of the lower legs, lacerations and abrasions when a light plane crashed 25 miles south of Bingham, Neb., Friday night.

The girl's foot was caught under a seat and she was forced to remain in the plane until she sighted a search plane overhead and waved a white scarf yesterday.

"We were amazed to find someone alive," said Don Christiansen, photographer of the Alliance (Neb.) Times-Herald, one of the first at the scene.

Christiansen said the bodies of Judy's father Merritt Diehl, 45, and of the pilot, Milo German, 55, Cozad plastics plant operator, were in the front seat. Judy's mother Carolyn, 45, was beside the girl in the rear of the plane.

Judy, in "surprisingly good condition" when rescuers reached her, said she did not remember the plane crashing. She said that upon waking up "I knew the others were dead."

She had only a banana to eat during the long hours, but was able to use a belt buckle to open a canned beverage and to "catch some rain water" to drink.

"We flew over the site and spotted the plane near the top of a hill," Christiansen said. "We couldn't believe anyone was alive, but then we saw someone waving from it with a white scarf."

The girl said they had taken off from the Alliance Airport Friday night and had run into a storm. They were heading back to Alliance when the plane crashed into the top of a hill.

Hundreds Of Youths Head For Festival In Moscow

LONDON (AP) — Hundreds of youths from points around the world headed for a festival in Moscow today but some of those who stayed home attracted more attention.

The Communist party youth paper Komsomolskaya Pravda criticized some nations that it said had discouraged or even forbidden attendance at the youth festival.

The festival, one of a series in odd-numbered years, begins next Sunday and ends Aug. 11. The U.S. State Department has called it "an instrument of Communist propaganda."

A party of 400 French young people sailed from Le Havre yesterday on the Soviet steamer Baltika. A surprise late addition to the party was Maurice Thorez, the veteran Communist strongman and secretary general of the French Communist party.

A group of 15 students, teachers and musicians flew from New York after defection of another member, 16-year-old San Francisco pianist Maureen Lundroth.

Miss Lundroth said, "I made my decision when I found out all about the festival." Her mother had telephoned her not to go after reading the State Department's comment.

The secretary of the U.S. Youth Festival Committee, Barbara Perry, 22, said before departing that she was not a Communist. "If we want peace and understanding with the Russians, how are we going to understand them without meeting them?" she said.

The Communist youth paper was quoted by Radio Moscow as saying Pakistan, Japan, West Germany, Argentina, Thailand and the Sudan "are afraid" to send youths.

"Where is the danger?" the paper asked. "... We do not fear comparison."

"Our country, slandered by its enemies a hundred times, is boldly opening the doors and ready to show its way of life."

Pleasure Boat Hits Mayflower

NEW YORK (AP) — A pleasure boat bumped into the bow of the Mayflower II yesterday.

About 30 visitors were aboard the sailing ship at her Hudson River pier. None were hurt. The sturdy oak hull was undamaged.

Police said the 75-foot pleasure craft Big Pebble of Miami Beach, Fla., backed into the Mayflower to avoid colliding with a sightseeing boat. The aft railing of the Big Pebble was damaged.

The Mayflower, a replica of the original Pilgrim ship, is on exhibit here.

CHAPTER 7
Bertha was waiting for me the next morning when I came in. Butter wouldn't melt in her mouth. "Donald," she said, "would you mind coming in for a conference before you start working?"

"There's oil on that Yucca property," Bertha said. I shook my head. "Okay, smart guy, how do you know?"

Interest Rate Rise Has 'Push' From Treasury

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The treasury's bow to costly money is building up new pressure today for another general rise in interest rates.

because it thinks it must. Doubtless it would prefer to borrow at 2 per cent as it could in 1955. But it is competing in a money market where the demand for money and credit is huge and growing.

Heavy Property Losses In Weekend Accidents

Three traffic accidents, two on Saturday afternoon and one early this morning, took a relatively heavy property damage toll.

Noted N.C. Teacher Of Agriculture Dies

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C.—("Mister Mac" the dean of North Carolina's high school agriculture teachers) died today.

Widely known in North Carolina as a pioneer in his field, "Mister Mac" — born Kenneth Henry McIntyre — passed away while visiting at the home of a daughter in North Wales, Pa.

It was shortly after the 1911 Legislature passed the "farm life school law" that Guilford County decided to take the bold step of hiring a teacher of agriculture. The man selected was McIntyre, who had served as school principal at Farmer, near Asheboro, at Wendell and at Holly Springs. He was assigned to teach the new course of agriculture at two Guilford County schools—Jamestown and Pleasant Garden.

He drove in horse and buggy from school to school and from field to field giving instruction in practical farming.

The love of the land and the love of nature had been ingrained deeply in young McIntyre, a member of a big Montgomery County parsonage family. His father, the Rev. K. M. McIntyre, operated a farm near Troy. He had bought 600 acres of Moore County land for $1 an acre from which he sold off timber with which to educate his children as they became of college age. Earlier, he had built a frame school building on his own land, hired a tutor and invited neighbor's children to join his own in obtaining rudimentary education.

Since 1914 he had lived and taught at the rural community of Red Oak, 10 miles northwest of Rocky Mount. There he also farmed and served as community leader. He organized the Red Oak Ruritan Club, he was a member of the Nash County Board of Welfare and of the Nash County Library Commission.

The widow, nine children and countless well trained farmers mourn "Mister Mac's" passing.

A daughter, Mrs. Milton Clarke, lives in Greenville.

Find Two Bodies In Lovers Lane

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.—A lovers lane five miles from here has yielded the decomposed bodies of a Negro soldier and his sweetheart who died more than three weeks ago.

This story of the fatal tryst as reconstructed by police after the bodies were found Saturday:

A Ft. Bragg soldier, Joseph H. Lewis of Norfolk, Va., and Betty Ann McLaurin, 21, went to the wooded spot June 26th, with a wine bottle and a liquor bottle in Lewis' car.

Lewis apparently smothered her with his sport coat in the back seat. He wrote and signed a suicide note, which he left on the dashboard. It read in part: "June 26th, 3:30 p.m. To the unlucky person to find this: "I have killed Betty Ann McLaurin and just about to follow her. I killed her because she loved me and wanted to follow me wherever I go and I decided that this is where I wanted to go and here we are."

"We are happy now. Let me join Betty in her deep sleep."

Lewis hanged himself with a necktie on the limb of a tree.
