

Smith-Sugg Wedding Solemnized

PRINCETON—In a formal ceremony solemnized July 13 at Princeton Methodist Church, Miss Nancy Perry Sugg became the bride of Bob Tucker Smith. The vows were said at 3 o'clock before the Rev. Lawrence Bridges.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William Perry Sugg and the late Mr. Sugg and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. John Smith of Greenville and the late Mr. Smith.

Prior to the ceremony, a program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. B. P. Woodard, organist and sister of the bride, and Miss Jane Woodard of Raleigh, vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Raymond M. Sugg of Princeton. She wore a formal gown of white chantilly lace and tulle over satin fashioned with a torso lace bodice with sheer yoke, mandarin collar embroidered with seed pearls, long lace sleeves that ended in calla points over the hand. A sweeping bouffant skirt had a lace ruffle across the front that extended the full length of the train in back. Her double tiered veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a tiny lace hat embroidered in pearls.

Matron of honor was Mrs. R. M. Heyward of Louisville, Ky., sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Lee Taylor of Raleigh, Miss Dwight Eiling and Miss Betty Holt of Princeton, cousins of the bride, and Mrs. Raymond Sugg of Princeton, sister-in-law of the bride. All wore waltz length dresses of white embroidered eyelet over taffeta and carried cascade bouquets of American Beauty roses.

Rebecca Ann Sugg, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Michael Sugg, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Best man was John E. Smith of Lewiston, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Ben Earl Robinson of New Bern, Asa Van Moore of Chapel Hill, William O. Jordan and Alvin Taylor of Greenville. B. P. Woodard Jr. of Princeton was junior usher and escorted the bride's mother and maternal grandmother to their pews.

GENTLE SUDSINGS "TREAT" DRY SKIN

If you have dry skin, don't think you have to stop your daily soap-and-water facials—actually, women with dry skin are advised to wash well with a very wet wash-cloth and dense soap lather. This cleanses, massages, and even lubricates the skin, because the motions of washing will start the little oil glands functioning.

However, if you suffer from dry skin, don't dash cold water on your face after washing—because this makes the pores contract so much, the natural flow of oil will stop. Rinse with tepid water instead. Dry skin is believed to be caused by contraction of the oil glands under the skin, so treat them gently and they will respond. You can cream your face once a day, leaving it on twenty minutes at most before being sudsed off.

How To Avoid Going Broke On Vacation

AP Newsfeatures

Vacations would be wonderful if you didn't get back home broke. This is a common plight of the returning vacationer, but, say the nation's bankers, it needn't be so.

Bank statisticians note that 85 million Americans will spend more than 12 billion dollars on holidays this year. And those are figures big enough to arouse the keen interest of bankers, who have got together and issued the following tips on how to have a carefree but solvent vacation:

- 1. If you haven't enough money for the trip you want, you can get a vacation loan at your bank.
2. It's more foresighted to start saving for your vacation a year ahead, working out a vacation plan, which banks also will handle, just as they do Christmas savings clubs.
3. Don't carry large sums of cash while travelling. Travelers' checks are safer—if they're stolen or lost, you don't lose the money.
4. It's a comfortable feeling to carry a letter of credit from your bank, in case you run out of funds in a strange place. This certifies your credit up to a certain amount, and makes a great difference in the attitude of creditors.
5. Don't leave valuables lying around the house while you are away. You can store jewelry, furs and paintings in bank vaults.
6. Some banks will help you plan your trip and make reservations for you.
7. Before you leave, make a vacation checklist so you'll remember to stop milk deliveries, arrange for lawn care, leave a light burning and notify police to keep an eye on your home while you're away.

That Moderate Course Prevails

Anxious eyes in all parts of North Carolina are focused on Greensboro, Charlotte and Winston-Salem where the doors of seven all-white schools have been opened to a dozen Negro children.

Though action of the boards of education of the three cities lower the bars of racial segregation which have been a fundamental part of North Carolina's public school system, they have by no means opened the floodgates. They have by no means taken a step which will lead to mass integration in North Carolina. On the contrary, they have taken a careful, thoughtful step which may well set the pattern for the preservation of essentially the same system of public school segregation North Carolina has always known.

Action by the school boards in three of the state's largest cities by no means can be construed as an indication that mass integration will follow in those cities. It cannot be construed to mean that integration of school children on even so small a scale are has been approved in Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Charlotte will ever take place in many parts of North Carolina. The conditions in each locality must determine the action of local school boards which make pupil assignments.

Segregation of the races will remain a fundamental part of the public school system of North Carolina. As the years go by there will in all probability be exceptions to the rule as is now the case in these three North Carolina cities, but by those exceptions, the rule may be preserved; not cast out by some federal authority.

Since the decision of the Supreme Court in 1954 North Carolina has followed a moderate course in the thinking of its people and the actions of its officials. Neither pro-segregation nor pro-integration radicals have been able to acquire sufficient power to bring about in North Carolina the trouble which has been caused in other states.

So long as North Carolina continues to follow the moderate course, with local school boards cautiously and thoughtfully administering their authority over pupil assignment, the state, its people and its school system will continue to move forward to higher planes of achievement.

In areas of North Carolina where limited, selective integration such as that involved in action taken in Charlotte, Winston-Salem and Greensboro is feasible, action like that taken by the three boards, it will help preserve complete school segregation in sections of the state where integration even in the smallest degree is neither feasible nor possible.

Doctors Want A Good Way Out

DOCTORS OUT — A number of doctors have been looking for a good way out of the situation occasioned by announcement of the State Board of Medical Examiners that the policy will be discontinued of granting temporary or conditional licenses to foreign trained doctors. State medical and tuberculosis hospitals are protesting and the public has generally joined in condemnation of the board's new position. The board will be to take some 20 physicians out of practice in State hospitals, and to disrupt the training program at Chapel Hill.

A decent "out" has been found in the suggestion that the examining board stick by its position, but that the effective date of the ban be extended from July 1, 1958, to July 1, 1959. Postponement would afford the institutions more time to adjust to the new order if it stands, and also would give a regular session of the General Assembly a chance to enact laws governing the situation.

John Umstead, chairman of the State Hospitals Board of Control and a veteran legislator, charged that the medical board did not dare to make its action public until after the 1955 General Assembly had adjourned. He said early this week he had messages from 37 legislators supporting the idea for a special legislative session if the doctors did not recede.

Governor Hodges has set a conference with the medical examiners and the hospital boards soon after his return from the West Coast next week. Chances are that the compromise worked out will be deferment of the effective date of the de-licensing for one year. That would give those for all parties. And if the foreign-trained doctors are really substandard and their services detrimental to patients, as implied by the medical board, and if the Legislature authorizes revocation of the existing policy of responsibility will be on the General Assembly and not on the medical board.

INSURANCE — The law requiring every applicant to show ability to pay reasonable damages for personal injury or property damage before he can obtain a license plate for his automobile does not go into effect until January 1, 1958. Since vast majority of automobile operators use liability insurance rather than cash deposits or surety bonds to prove such capacity to pay the law is appropriately called the "compulsory insurance law."

Its application will add responsibilities to the Department of Insurance, and its enforcement will impose a heavy burden on the Department of Motor Vehicles. Other State agencies are indirectly affected. Present sentiments are that the general fund account will be enriched by additional revenue from insurance premium taxes and the highway fund will suffer loss by reason of reduction in number of vehicles licensed with resulting decline in both registration fees and gasoline taxes.

Commissioner of Insurance Charlie Gold and Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Ed Scheidt are devoting large part of their energy and that of their departmental staffs to details of the plan. Both have told your reporter within the past week that their strategy calls for a barrage of publicity during late November and throughout December. If we had the program worked out now, said Scheidt, the people would forget before January 1. It is hoped that the publicity campaign conducted during the six weeks period before 1958 license plates are available will relieve the congestion at license plate windows by motorists who do not bring along with them admissible evidence that they have adequate liability insurance. It has not yet been decided whether such evidence must consist of a receipt or an actual showing of an insurance policy effective for the period covered by the license plate.

GAY FUNERALS — Funerals generally are supposed to be sad affairs, with the star guest not conscious of what is going on around him. In recent weeks North Carolina has had a series of very gay "funerals" with the stars right in the middle of things. These were the testimonial dinners given or planned for retiring members of the Highway and Public Works Commission. Those who attended the affair held in Raleigh some weeks ago honoring Sandy Graham were conscious of the fact the retiring highway chairman was about the liveliest corpse they had seen in a long time. Similar testimonial dinners arranged for other division commissioners, notably Forrest Lockey at Durham and Donnie Sorrell at Durham, permitted them to enjoy their own funerals as highway builders.

The composite impression growing out of these several instances contradicts the suggestion in some quarters that the old highway organization failed to meet the desires of the needs of the people which it was supposed to serve.

Reference to these light-hearted funeral occasions reminds that a few years ago the two leading mortuaries in Rocky Mount were known by the names of their owners as the Gay Funeral Home and the Pleasant Funeral Parlor. And at the same time there was an automobile repair garage out on the Nashville road with a big sign advising that it was the Wheelless Motor Company.

Funerals Gay or Pleasant and Wheelless automobiles in Rocky Mount, which is neither rocky nor mountainous, afforded unique play on names for one community.

A Firm Reminder Of Polio Vaccine's Need

Report of Pitt County's first polio case of 1957 should serve as a firm reminder that youngsters who have not received their Salk vaccine should get the immunization shots as quickly as possible.

One case of polio in Pitt County this year is no cause for alarm. It does not mean that Pitt faces another epidemic of the disease such as it had last year. Indeed, the very fact that a large number of the children of the county have received their Salk immunization shots reduces the possibility of the disease reaching the epidemic stage this year.

The fact remains, however, there are a good many children in the county who have not received all three of the series of Salk shots. There are some too, who have not received any of the three shots which are necessary for immunization. For the protection of the children individually and in the interest of the overall health of the county, it is imperative that youngsters be immunized as quickly as possible.

Through the use of Salk vaccine polio can be virtually eliminated here and elsewhere. But the vaccine will not prevent the crippling disease unless it is used.

Administered Prices And You

By ELMER ROESSNER
You are going to hear a lot about "administered prices" from now on—through November at least.

There are three reasons:
1. It is a provocative expression. It contains suggestions of price rigging and price fixing. It is new to most people; it stirs them to say, "Tell us more!"
2. It packs political wallop. Voters will find it satisfying to hear a man who's against administered prices.

3. The use of administered prices may be bad for the country's economic health.

HOW THEY ARE "ADMINISTERED"
In an administered-price system, prices are set by producers and production adjusted to what the market will take at that price. Action in the steel industry is a present, dramatic example. The producers raised prices to maintain comfortable profit margins after the July 1 increase in wages.

Sales fell off. Some of the reasons appear temporary. Some users bought ahead to beat the expected raise. There is always a fall off during vacation seasons. Consumer sales of some end products, notably autos and appliances, are down.

In an ordinary free market, when demand falls sellers usually cut prices to stimulate sales. Example: The price of zinc recently followed demand far down the hill. Example: In many places you can now get rare bargains in fans and air conditioners because a large part of the demand has been satisfied earlier.

But it's not so with steel. Steel producers simply cut back production. Profit margins are being maintained.

PRICE CUTS UNTESTED
Of course, the industry cannot be expected to keep on turning out steel for buyers who aren't there. But some observers, in and out of Congress, think the industry might have tried lowering prices first. If the price is low enough, there are always buyers for steel.

Lower prices would have cut profits. On the other hand, price maintenance has cut the income of workers who have been laid off.

There is a more serious implication in the situation.

No steel company—on paper, at least—has a monopoly. No one has suggested the steel companies get together on prices. It is conceded that the biggest companies set the price and the others went along.

Here's another new expression you'll hear more of: quasi-monopoly.

Steel pricing could not be administered unless there was a quasi-monopoly—that is, a situation which, though not a true monopoly, has the effects of one. The big companies are so big that none of the little ones dares to cut prices to find out whether increased demand will offset a lower profit margin.

CONGRESS PROBING
A Senate antitrust subcommittee is conducting hearings on the problem. The hearings will continue up until election time. There is good campaign fuel in the subject.

One thing the committee can do is to recommend changes in the antitrust laws to make it more difficult to administer prices. The law cannot say that a company must cut prices as demand falls off. But Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors until his disagreement with then President Truman, suggested to the committee that the law could be changed to make it unnecessary to prove a conspiracy in order to establish restraint of trade. Charging identical prices could in itself be considered restraint. That would threaten price administrators with penalties because administered prices won't stick unless all producers charge the same ones.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
UNDERSTANDING OTHER PEOPLE

Every human being is so completely a unit in himself that we find it almost impossible to realize what other people are thinking about and, as Jacob Riis put it some decades ago, how the other half lives.

What do you know about the people who live along your street? Would you be amazed to discover poignant sorrow in some household? May there be a saint living near you or perhaps someone of demon nature and dimensions? What about the town three blocks over from your residence. What about people of other colors and races living in your community? What about the poor? And what is equally important, what about the rich? For taken by and large, they have even less happiness and peace than the people who have to squeeze every penny.

Once in a while we encounter a person who seems really to be understanding. He looks into the hearts of his fellows and sees there much good which the rest of the world has overlooked. He will tell you that there are capacities in certain people which are waiting and eager to be utilized. He will tell you about acres of diamonds right in your vicinity.

Who are the people who really know their fellows? Are they the cynical or the sympathetic? Almost always the sympathetic, the understanding. It is a great gift to be able to look into a human heart and understand.

The Travel Trash War

We took our annual trek last week into the mountains of northwestern Carolina, Southwestern Virginia and the border of Tennessee. It was a grueling ride, both ways.

As usual, the scenic stretches were glorious to us plains-bound people of eastern Carolina.

More than ever we were conscious of those signs about keeping the woodlands green—and clean; evidence was that those signs, and that publicity, is bringing results. Some results, anyway.

Particularly about keeping the roadsides clean seeing litter by the highway was comparatively rare thing. Of course, conditions will vary from one road to another; many factors are involved.

The litterbug plague has been pretty terrible in the past. I remember reading a few days ago that a Maryland highway crew cleaned ditches along one stretch and from a 200-foot section they picked up something like 15 beer bottles, 40 beer cans, 1 whiskey bottle, 1 hat. There were also about three emptied tin cans, dozens of paper handkerchiefs, a couple potato-chip bags, several dozen cigarette packages and almost thirty paper cups. Quite a motley haul.

Better Homes and Gardens claims litter clean-up costs thirty million dollars a year.

Individual states are pulling out all stops in trying to keep their highways clean. Penalties have been set up by twelve states for convicted litterers, and individual communities are getting into the act. There is even a "national headquarters" in New York.

The national movement is known as "Keep America Beautiful, Inc." Individual efforts worthy of note are "Litterbags" that are being given motorists of some areas; and in Dearborn, Michigan, it costs anyone $500 (or a jail stay) to place handbills on automobile windshields. Some paper cup and tin can producers are printing reminders on their products that they don't look so good on the side of a road.

Highway litter is an eyesore that hurts property values and has even caused highway accidents; making dumping grounds of scenic routes has been a sort of national scandal.

Nearly a year ago I commented about some picnic tables encountered on another trip . . . the trash containers provided, and how as a general rule people were using the containers for their designated purpose.

That observation still holds true. Most of the traveling public has the clean-up urge when so reminded and the means are at hand.

On the other hand, there are still a few who have their travel trash lying about.

It isn't something deliberate . . . just a small measure of thoughtlessness. But it all adds up to eyesores that irritate in a great big way.

Opinions In Brief

"It might not be advisable in the beginning to try to relate teaching talent to remuneration throughout the profession. But as a starter, we'd suggest bonus payments to those teachers who, over a period of years, have proved that they can cause young people to want to learn."

Tops In Acting Scenes

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Anyone who loves the theater can have a wonderful time in the average business office just watching how its inhabitants kill time.

This form of free entertainment holds more dramatic interest than a trip to the theater because at a theater you can see only one play at a time. In the average office, however, you watch anywhere from 10 to 100 actors putting on individual shows at the same time.

Nor is office acting in any sense on a lower level than that seen on Broadway. Actually, it's far more subtle. Almost any showoff can be caught to step up on a stage and mouth a few memorized lines or gestures. But the acting skill shown by an office actor who is pretending to work while really only killing time requires an ability to improvise under pressure, the real test of greatness in any field.

In this respect, it must be admitted, the American business world produces hundreds of thousands of unsung Barrymores every year.

They are "the great pretenders"—whose highly polished art consists in appearing to be vitally busy while actually doing nothing but keeping an eye on the clock until quitting time.

If you look around, maybe you'll find some of the following types of timekillers acting your own office:

1. The Efficient Housekeeper—Every morning he spends cleaning up his desk, every afternoon rearranging his files. But he is never quite ready tomorrow to attack the day before yesterday's work.

2. The Prowling Ferret—With brows knit in agonizing thought, hands locked behind his back, he stalks endlessly around the office as if in search of one single answer to all the firm's problems. His box score at nightfall: 20 trips to the water cooler, 7 to the men's room.

3. The Dubious Lover—This married Romeo, holding a business letter in his hand as a prop, goes from stenographer to stenographer, whispering, "Next year I'll take you to Havana but right now how about a weekend in Philadelphia?" But if one of the girls really took him up on his proposition, he'd melt away faster than the abominable snowman.

4. The Harried Debtor—He rolls up his sleeves and buries himself up to his armpits in a pile of important papers on his desk. He keeps a wary eye, however, so that no one can peek over his shoulders and see that the papers consist of personal bills, his household budget, his state and federal income tax returns, and a small pamphlet entitled, "Ten Easy Ways To Pay Off A Home Mortgage."

5. The Lonely Heart—Believing that two can act better than one, he goes over to the other fellow's desk and asks him nonsense questions such as, "Do you think the light in here is ruining our eyes?" or, "If you could retire right now, where would you want to live?"

6. The Dull Cowbird—This witless pest doesn't have enough originality to invent his own methods of shirking work, so he imitates the others. But he does it so poorly that he endangers the whole office, and everyone has a desire to poison him.

7. The Daredevil—Figuring that all life is merely a bold bluff, this wily gambler does no work at all. But after sitting for two hours with both feet on his desk, he strolls into the boss's office at 11 a.m., and says cheerfully, "All clear, chief, what can I do for you now?"

There they are—seven office characters in search of an audience. And in case his boss should suddenly choke to death on a martini olive during an important business luncheon, which of these seven career timekillers will get his job?

Naturally the best actor wins. Nine out of 10 times The Daredevil will become boss—if he isn't fired first.

Eisenhower's Gamble On Atom

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON President Eisenhower has taken one of the greatest gambles in all military history in placing almost complete reliance for national security and world peace on atomic arms rather than on a more flexible and conventional defense force. That is the awful meaning of his latest decisions in this field, in Pentagon and Congressional opinion.

Defense Secretary Wilson, for instance, has ordered a reduction of 100,000 men in Army-Navy-Air personnel. He will soon announce sharp cuts in the monthly draft allotments. He has cancelled a contract for the 5,000-mile intercontinental missile after spending $750,000,000 on its development. Secretary Dulles has promised that we will fortify NATO with a stockpile of nuclear weapons.

These seemingly unrelated moves mark a revolution in warfare that is almost impossible for the layman to grasp. They match the changeover from arrows and spears to gunpowder, which introduced democratic government by placing guns in the hands of the people to offset the nobility's horses and armor.

The shift far exceeds the importance of the development of vast air armadas in World War II. That was merely a change in weapons and their emphasis, for the GI's had to do the clean-up job. But the plan to rely almost exclusively on an atomic armory means an entirely new attitude and approach to war—and possibly permanent peace.

FINANCIAL CONSIDERATION? Military experts on Capitol Hill have already begun to express doubt and skepticism over the Eisenhower orders. They will undoubtedly undergo sharp and searching scrutiny before they meet with necessary Congressional sanction.

The suspicion grows that financial rather than military considerations motivate this radical departure. In announcing these plans, Secretary Wilson emphasized that they would save millions annually. But the skeptics will ask whether national and world security will not be sacrificed on the altar of economy. It is significant that the program has been raised by members of Senate House Appropriations Committees, but greeted with silence by spokesmen for the Armed Services Committees.

Another objection centers on the fact that drastic cuts in conventional forces (ground, air and water) will leave us helpless to fight local Communist-inspired "brush fires," as in Korea, Indo-China and the Middle East. Every diplomatic expert reports that another dropping of an American A-bomb on a non-Caucasian people would turn them against us forever. We would be isolated utterly.

MAY KILL CHANCE OF DISARMAMENT AGREEMENT It will even frighten our Western European Allies. It threatens to transform their cities and farms into an atomic battlefield, assuming that our threat does not scare Russia into abandoning any idea of war or local aggression. It may force Europe to engage in an atomic arms race, killing any chance of a disarmament agreement at the current London talks.

It could unite Western Europe against us. Irritated by their postwar dependence on the United States, they have already organized a Eurarmat and Euratom—a common market and common atomic pool. They may now resent even more bitterly our promise of an atomic shield that would leave their lands in hopeless ruin, no matter which side won another possible World War.

WOULD RUSSIA SACRIFICE MANPOWER? The Eisenhower gamble, of course, is one of hope—the hope that Russia, despite her vast superiority in land forces, will never order them to march into overwhelming nuclear fire powered by the industrial might of the United States. He apparently believes his old friend, Marshal Georgi Zhukov, Defense Minister and a rising figure in Kremlin circles. Nevertheless, this has shaken into the responsible members of Congress and every world chancellery, especially as they had not been forewarned. It could mean the end of war or a conflict far more horrible than H.G. or Orson Wells ever dared to depict in their wildest and most unbelievable speculations!

End Progressive Education Voice

NEW YORK (AP) — Progressive Education magazine, long a voice for the "learning by doing" method of educating children, has closed its pages for good.

The end of the 33-year-old magazine was announced yesterday by Dr. H. Gordon Hullfish.

"We tried to save the magazine for the last two years," said Hullfish, "but found the job too much for us. We are down to 2,000 subscribers from our original 10,000."

Interest in the progressive education movement dwindled after World War II. A swing began toward the conservative approach with more emphasis on the three R's—reading, writing and arithmetic.

aid to education since his first State of the Union message to Congress Feb. 2, 1953. In 1956 he sent Congress a special message calling for a program to be approved that year.

Shortly before the political conventions last summer, the House killed a federal aid bill. Eisenhower's own Republicans had a major share in its death. But a few weeks later the Republican platform called for an aid program this year.

In his State of the Union message to Congress Jan. 10, 1957, Eisenhower renewed his plea for money for school construction. He followed this up with a special message to Congress Jan. 28, detailing what he wanted.

Now comes the time to perform. The House, where the Democrats outnumber the Republicans, took up the school aid bill again Wednesday. This bill was exactly what Eisenhower requested. It was a compromise bill.

He wanted $1,300,000,000 spent over four years in grants to the states. The House bill calls for spending 1 1/2 billions over five years. And he wanted more money for poorer states than the House bill provides. There were some other differences.

But this was a school aid bill and the only one that had a chance of passing. How good were its chances before it reached the House floor? Not bright. House Republican Leader Martin (Mass.) expressed doubts it would pass. This bill comes up at a time when the Eisenhower administration is trying to economize, although 21 national organizations asked Eisenhower to give "unqualified and publicly stated support" for the measure.

Arguments by those opposing the bill include economy, objections to putting the government in a new spending field, danger of federal control, and segregation.

Eisenhower was not doing any two-fisted fighting for the bill. And then, just before the House began considering it, Martin came away from the White House saying the President wasn't "entirely satisfied" with the bill as it is.

This was something less than "unqualified" support. The statement by Martin could not help the bill or its supporters in the House.

Later that day, Eisenhower's press secretary, James Hagerty, issued a statement: He said Martin had correctly expressed Eisenhower's views but that the President would sign the bill if it passed.

Even if the House does pass it, the Senate is unlikely to act this year although it could do so in 1958.

There's no sign Eisenhower will make any special effort to get action this year, even from the House.

Earlier this year Eisenhower hemmed and hawed so much about his budget, and whether it could be cut, that Congress took his lack of fight for a signal to start chopping it to bits. It did such a chopping job that Eisenhower finally had to take a stand by appealing in a nationwide broadcast against the meat-tax spree.

All year he had spoken repeatedly and confidently about his civil rights program as being a "moderate and decent" thing. It might have seemed, from the repetition, he knew exactly what was in the bill and backed it wholeheartedly.

But when the Southern Democrats began their attack on it in the Senate, Eisenhower seemed to have second thoughts and even said he was puzzled by some of the features in the bill.

This weakened chances of his civil rights bill right there and encouraged the Southerners to attack it some more. And they did. In short, Eisenhower's puzzlement on the bill, when the showdown came, weakened the position of the bill's supporters.

Motor vehicle fatalities in the first quarter of 1957 in the U.S. brought 11,000 life insurance death claims for 26 million dollars.

Sad Observation No Gunplay For Of Anniversary

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—M. Sgt. Robert Tibbets, a veteran of the Pearl Harbor Attack, observed the 15th anniversary flat on his back.

However, he did not suffer his injury in the attack. He escaped untouched, but sprained his back when he bent over to pick up a hammer.

No Gunplay For Texas Sheriff

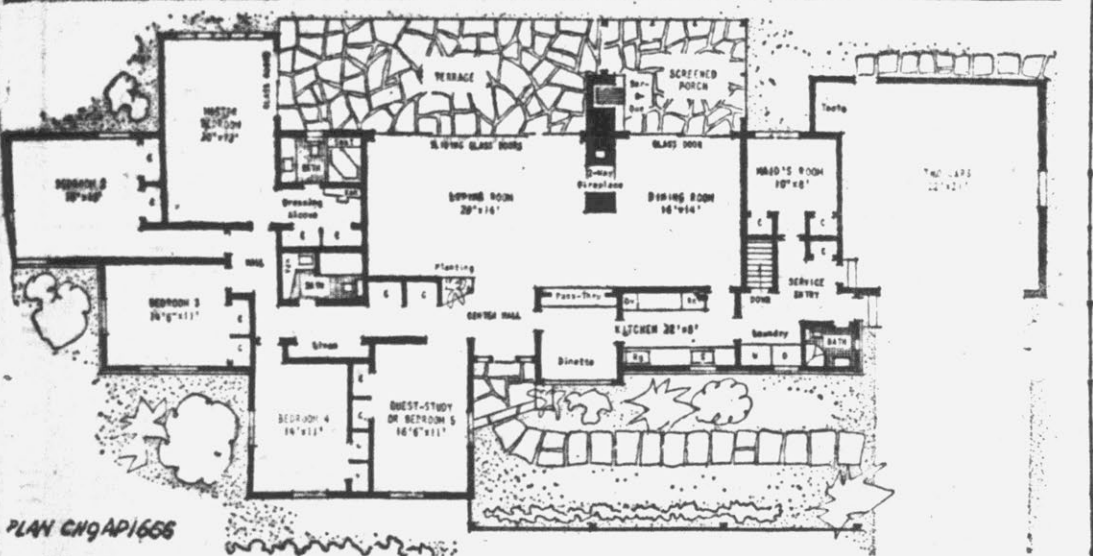

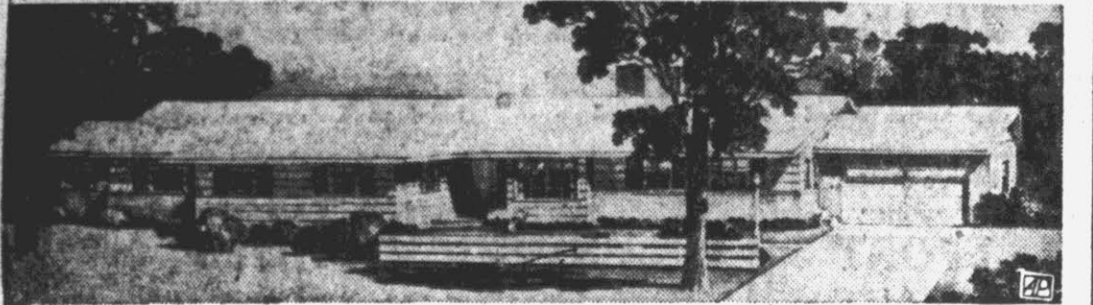

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Jim S. Scarborough is a real-life Texas sheriff who looks the part, but he probably never would make it on television. He doesn't carry a gun. Neither do his four deputies.

But in all other respects, the 62-year-old officer fits the bill. He's tall, taciturn, moves deliberately and for 22 years has been sheriff of Kleberg County, site of the fabulous King Ranch headquarters.

Explosive Catch

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)—Larry Yarach dipped his minnow net in the St. Clair River and came up with 26 sticks of dynamite, some with detonating caps attached.

Flowers' Income Tax Case In Home Stretch

RALEIGH (AP)—With an end in sight, lawyers today continued arguments to the federal district court jury hearing income tax evasion charges against J. Percy Flowers.

The slow-moving trial was speeded up yesterday when Judge Don Gilliam directed a verdict of not guilty for Mrs. Flowers and defense attorneys announced they would not present evidence.

Although Judge Gilliam cleared Mrs. Flowers, he refused to drop the charges against her husband, a Johnston County merchant and farmer. The judge said he had seen no evidence that Mrs. Flowers had "willfully" violated the law.

The couple is charged with evading taxes amounting to some $18,000 for the years 1948, 1949, and 1950.

District Atty. Julian Gaskill objected to dismissal of the charges against Mrs. Flowers. He contended she had acted as a notary public for her husband in actions involving "fictitious persons."

After the government completed its case, Turner Smith of Washington opened arguments to the jury for the four-man team of defense attorneys.

He said the government used the "back door way" in attempting to convict Flowers. Smith contended that sums of money spent by Flowers during the three-year period in dispute were accumulated prior to 1947.

Charles Green, another attorney for Flowers, described as a "miserable failure" the government's efforts to prove that Flowers evaded income tax payments.

Blunt Hurricane Warnings Ahead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Blunt hurricane warnings, to insure against "disaster by indifference," will be issued by the Miami Weather Bureau this season.

Chief Forecaster Gordon Dunn said that some public indifference to hurricane warnings remains and could cause a repeat of the disaster at Cameron, La., which took 500 lives.

"The warnings are going to be blunter than ever, and there'll be no reason for anybody to say our warnings were not sufficiently strong to make people respond to danger," Dunn said.

Dunn laid a potential disaster to:

1. Indifference by some persons to heed official warnings;
2. Topographical features of certain coastal areas which would be vulnerable to severe tidal action in a big hurricane.

"The Cameron episode has done a lot to shock people into realizing what could happen. We're hoping the feeling will last," said Dunn.

Hearing Set Today For 43 Union Men

SYLVA, N.C. (AP)—A hearing was scheduled here today for 43 members of the United Furniture Workers Union charged with violating an injunction issued in connection with a strike at Carolina Wood-Furning Co. of Bryson City.

Superior Court Judge Dan K. Moore named the 43 in a citation issued on affidavits of the company.

The firm has been struck since April 20; but the plant has continued operating.

The temporary injunction prohibited damage to company property and interfering with people entering or leaving the plant on company business. It also limited the number of pickets at any one time to four.

Meanwhile, Sheriff I. B. Jenkins said a striker was arrested yesterday in an alleged attempted dynamiting near a working union member's home.

The sheriff said Neil Proctor, 30, of Pigeon Creek, was charged with "attempting to destroy a building by use of explosives."

Proctor was arrested after the discovery of five sticks of dynamite, the cap exploded, about 150 feet from the home of Virgil Davis, four miles west of Sylva.

The sheriff said the dynamite did not explode, apparently because it was old.

In another development, an assault charge against a striking union member, Willard Dalrymple, was dropped by the prosecuting witness.

Company President Thurman Leatherwood said yesterday two box cars—loaded with furniture were left stranded at the plant and an empty car scheduled for loading was prevented from entering.

Letherwood said three or four men stood on the tracks as a locomotive pushed the empty toward the plant. One of them, he said, laid down on the tracks and didn't move, even when the car was within a few inches.

Letherwood said about 100 men are on the job.

Among union demands are a pay raise, more vacation time, more holidays, more rest periods and more hospital insurance.

Will Open Bids August 6 On N.C. Bond Issue

RALEIGH (AP)—Bids will be opened Aug. 6 on bond anticipation notes to make available 10 million dollars for new buildings and facilities at state institutions.

State Treasurer Edwin Gill was authorized yesterday by the Council of State to call for bids. The 1957 Legislature provided the bond issue to finance permanent improvements.

However, Gill said one-year bond anticipation notes will be issued rather than the bonds themselves. He explained the notes will carry a lower interest rate and can be exchanged for bonds when the bond market improves. At present, Gill added, interest rates are higher than they have been in some 20 years.

The bond issue includes some 2 1/2 million dollars for improvements on the University of North Carolina campus in Chapel Hill. The Legislature specified that if revenues are sufficient, five million would be paid off on the bonds at the end of the next two fiscal years.

Making Boat Trailers Is Big Business In Grifton

TRAILER BODY . . . A foreman uses the torch on the body of one of Cox's lighter trailers. The Grifton establishment makes boat trailers of every size, standard or larger.

WORKING THE DRILL . . . Workers at the Cox Boat Trailer firm do the entire assembling.

GRIFTON — Leon O. Cox and Sons, of Grifton, is North Carolina's largest manufacturer of boat trailers.

In business since 1900, Cox and Sons began working with boat trailers a little over six years ago and since that time has become a major concern in this area along the Southeastern Seaboard.

"Actually," says John Coward, the plant manager, "we're just getting started. We still do a little work on farm and utility trailers now, but just this year we have started working exclusively with boat trailers. Cox and Sons plans to turn out double the number of boat trailers we've made any other year."

Tremendous Market

The firm, located one mile North of Grifton on the Ayden Highway, manufactures a steady line of standard model boat trailers. It also turns out specially-built models that range as high as $1500 with electric brakes and all the trimmings. It is this steady production and ability to handle special orders that has created a vast market for Cox and Sons boats.

Coward says, "We ship our trailers to eight states along the Southeastern Seaboard: North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia (the three biggest markets), Georgia, Florida, Maryland, Delaware and Tennessee."

The establishment has supplied trailer rental agencies with farm and utility trailers in the past and and once even sold some special trailers to churches for evangelistic work: "They used them to carry their organs about on," Coward says.

Most of their boat trailers are sold to sporting goods dealers and boat and motor dealers.

Cox and Sons manufacture everything from the light fishing craft trailers to heavy inboard motor cruiser trailers. Weights range from 250 pounds to 3,000 pounds in standard models. And if called for, they can turn out monstrous jobs as heavy as 5,000 pounds. They manufacture trailers up to 24-feet in length.

The Plant

In the one-plant building, a long rectangular-shaped structure, the complete trailer is assembled. All the steel that goes into the model is bought directly from the steel companies in square tubing. "We are the only major boat builders who use the square tubing," Coward commented, pointing out the huge stacks of steel in the company yards.

Inside the building, men perform the cutting, punching and drilling necessary to getting the steel ready for assembling. The fabrication is carried on just a few feet from where the above processes are being performed. In one continuous action, the parts are welded carefully together. "We bore our own axles, here, too," Coward says.

From there, the frame-work is rolled into a paint room, where it receives a smooth double coat of bright yellow. The small separate parts of the trailer, green in color, are painted by the use of dips.

Several men are employed outside in the yard—during good weather—to fasten the rollers to the trailers. In bad weather, the trailers are rolled beneath a porch-like frame behind the main building, where the rollers are fastened.

They Deliver

"We deliver all of our orders," Coward says, "with our own trucks." The firm is in operation five full days a week and turns out as many as 60-75 complete units per week. "We have our slack months, of course, but we move trailers every month," Coward asserts.

The plant employs about 20 men most of the time, including five welders, one saw operator and drill press operators, one man on the punching shear, two painters, and one delivery man. Each fabricator also has an apprentice. The Cox trailers sell from $99.95 to $644.10 in the standard field.

Gastonia Leads As State Teen-er Tourney Progresses

Greenville Wins In First Round Action

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor
Gastonia, winner of last year's State VFW Teen-er League championship, has taken the lead in the 1957 tourney with two lopsided wins in first round action.

The defending champs whipped Whiteville 14-1 yesterday morning and trounced Elizabeth City 11-2 yesterday afternoon.

In the tourney's other contests, Elizabeth City downed Lincoln 3-1 in the other morning affair; Whiteville dumped Lincoln 3-2 in an afternoon game (thus putting Lincoln out of the double-elimination tourney); and Greenville whipped Lenoir 1-0.

Gastonia - Greenville
Gastonia's hard-hitting club ripped into Whiteville in one of the Wednesday morning games, combining nine hits and hustling play to earn an easy 14-1 win.

In their second game, Gastonia trimmed EC 11-2 behind pitcher Heffner. He gave up only five hits, but nine big errors by Elizabeth City helped his cause.

Greenville turned in an impressive victory over Lenoir in one of the 4:00 games, 1-0. Merrill Bynum pitched a two-hitter for the locals as his club played errorless ball behind him.

The locals tallied eight hits in the process.

Today's Games
Today's action found Elizabeth City against Lenoir at 9:30 and Whiteville against either High Point or Hamlet at the same time.

Greenville was slated to meet Gastonia at 3:30 at the EC field, while the winner of the Lenoir-EC game was to meet the winner of the Whiteville - Hamlet or High Point game at Guy Smith Stadium.

This being a double-elimination tourney, each team is allowed a loss and can still win the tourney without going undefeated. At this point, the only undefeated clubs are Gastonia, Greenville and Hamlet or High Point (neither of the latter two teams had not made their appearance as of early this morning).

Friday's Ball
Though the teams participating in the Friday ball games have not yet been ascertained, the times have.

One game is slated for 9:30 and one for 2:00. Gordon Goodman, in charge of the tourney, said this morning that there is a possibility of two games at 2:00.

All games will be played at Guy Smith Stadium on Friday and the 2:00 game is scheduled to be the championship match.

Here are how the games shaped up in the first round of the Teen-er League State Tourney, Wednesday:

Pitched For Greenville

Grifton Wins Junior Title

AYDEN - Grifton edged Farmville 5-4 to take a ball game and the Junior League Championship last night, wrapping up the season for 1957.

The winners picked up runs on one walk and a bases-loaded homer by Hart to tally their five runs in the second inning.

The Farmville runs came, two in the fourth and two in the fifth. The fifth-inning runs were tallied on home runs by Clarence Moore and K. Allen.

Allen was the outstanding hitter of the game, grabbing three for three. His hits were two singles and a home run.

Joel King, a hard-throwing left-hander, was the winning pitcher, going the full distance for Grifton.

Moore started for Farmville, was relieved in the second by Bob Avery.

The game was a championship playoff tilt which was brought about when both clubs wound up the season with identical 10-5 records.

Bob Baker Quitting Ring After Machen's Victory

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP)—Bob Baker, his face puffed from Eddie Machen's whiplash left jabs and sneak rights and his midsection puffed from eating high on the hog, says he's through with fighting.

In an unusual dressing room scene after the plodding Pittsburgh trial horse lost a lopsided 10 round nationally televised decision to Machen in the Chicago Stadium last night, Baker said:

"I've lost the will to fight. This is my last fight. I'm fed up. I couldn't faint, duck or anything against Machen. I just walked in and—bam!—got hit. I was a sucker in three. When a fighter lets himself get hit, he's no longer a fighter."

"I've lost interest in the game. But it's a good game and has treated me well for 11 years—you can just look at me and see I haven't missed any meals."

Then Machen, the No. 2 heavyweight contender who is waiting in the wings for a shot at champion Floyd Patterson, walked in to shake Baker's hand. Baker, who is 31, said:

"You're a good fighter, Eddie. I didn't give you much out there. But I can give you some advice. You won't ever win the title unless you learn to be a body puncher. You stand up straight and swing away at the head. Guys can go right up to you. If you had gone for my body some of the time, I probably couldn't have lasted."

Earlier, Machen told newsmen in his dressing room that "Baker may look like a sitting duck but he has a fast pair of hands and I was risking everything in this fight."

"I didn't want to walk into something. If I had been behind I would have gone all out, but I was in front all the way. I never felt him land a solid punch once."

"This fight was to get me ready for Patterson. I learn something in every fight I have. I've been working hard on a left jab and with more work on my right behind the left jab I'll have a good combination. Yes, I gained some more experience even though it was the easiest fight I've had."

The 25-year-old battler from San Francisco, managed by Sid Flaherty, who guided Bobo Olson to the middleweight crown, has 22 straight triumphs to his credit. He was outwitted by the hulking Baker 196 to 214 pounds.

Referee Walter Brightmore, who exhorted Baker to "make a fight of it" several times, voted for Machen, 50-40, the same as Judge Jim McMannus. Judge John Bray favored Machen, 49-36, and The Associated Press card had it 50-37 for Machen.

Attendance was 1,037 with a gross of $2,491 and a net of $1,937.

All-Stars To Be Ready To Punt

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—If the College All Stars have to do much punting against the New York Giants Aug. 9—and coaches hope it won't be necessary—they will be well provided with talent.

Head Coach Curly Lambeau has combed the ranks to determine which of his collegians can boot the stars out of trouble if the need arises in the midsummer football classic at Soldier Field.

He found plenty of ability in this group:

70 Lady Golfers Open Tourney

DETROIT (AP)—A field of nearly 70 lady golfers including 26 touring professionals headed into the $7,500 Wolverine Ladies' Open tournament today.

It will be a 72-hole medal play event with the winner grabbing off $1350.

The sentimental favorite in this one is Wiffi Smith, the long-hitting 20-year-old who has been a professional only since last December.

She has won $8,234 in her brief professional career and her long driving will be a major factor over the 6,406-yard layout at Lochmoor Club in nearby Grosse Pointe Woods.

Mariene Bauer Hagge, the leading money winner last year, will be trying for a repeat victory in Detroit. She won the LPGA title last year at Forest Lake Country Club, beating the veteran Patty Berg in a playoff.

Jackie Pung, the husky Hawaiian Pro who was disqualified as U.S. Women's Open champion earlier this summer when she signed for an incorrect score kept by one of her opponents, withdrew from the Wolverine event on doctors' orders.

Albert Looking For Some Nuggets

MORAGA, Calif. (AP)—Coach Frankie Albert of the San Francisco 49ers looks again for some big football nuggets when he opens his rookie camp at St. Mary's College here Saturday.

Thirty-one hopefuls and seven veterans report for the week of work preceding the start of regular drills.

The 49ers who rallied for a third place finish in the NFL Western Conference last season, need offensive strength in the center of the line.

Once again the search is on for defensive strength at halfback and linebacker. Plus, that, the team looks for offensive backs capable of spelling such stars as Hugh McElhenny and Joe Perry.

Three top draft choices, quarterback John Brodie of Stanford, halfback Jim Riddle of Syracuse and guard Mike Sandruksy of Maryland, are with the College All-Stars and won't report until later.

Vets Favored In Blind Golf Play

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Two men who were blinded in World War II combat are favorites in the national blind golf tournament Saturday and Sunday.

Eight-time champion Charley Boswell of Birmingham is rated No. 1 because of his familiarity with the Vestavia Country Club course where the tournament will be held.

The other front runner is Joe Lazaro, 39-year-old one-time caddy from Waltham, Mass. Lazaro was seven strokes back of Boswell when the Birmingham man won his eighth crown at Chicago last year.

Boswell figures that a 95-99-190 will win at Vestavia, where par for the 6,345-yard course is 72.

Lazaro was blinded by a land mine in Italy. Boswell lost his sight from German shell fire in the Battle of the Bulge.

The 17 players competing have coaches who guide them around the course and line them up for their shots.

The U.S. Blind Golfers Assn., which Boswell now heads will elect officers today.

Thirty-One Are Entered In Play

DURHAM (AP)—Thirty-one tennis players, boys and girls, are entered in the Eastern Carolina Junior Tennis Tournament which opened here today.

Billy Stone of Henderson is seeded first in the junior boys division, for 18-year-olds and under. Elton Faelton of Kingston is seeded second; Charlie Shaffer of Chapel Hill, No. 3 and Richard Helmes of Goldsboro, No. 4.

Stone and Shaffer are top-seeded in the junior boys' doubles. Earl Brian of Raleigh is top-seeded in boys' singles, for 15-year-olds and under; Brick Oettinger of Durham is No. 2, and Bob Chaiken of Durham, No. 3.

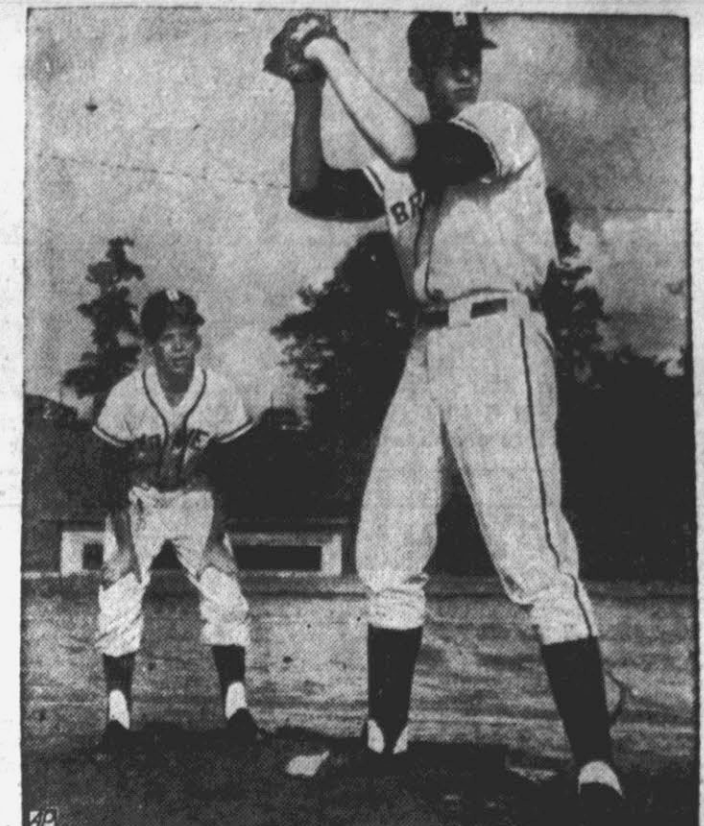

Pairings and seeding for girls was to be announced today. Finals matches are set for Saturday.

Perfect 300 Game

RICHMOND, Calif. (AP)—Lyle Elledge, 20, who took up bowling just six months ago, rolled a perfect 300 game last night.

The Richmond Bowl reported Elledge hit his 300 in the second game of a league match sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress.

The bowl gave him $50 and a gold belt buckle.

MOUND GIANT - The six-foot, six inches of Jimmy Tumlin is set off by one of his normal-sized teammates, Gordon Burnett, at East Point, Ga. The 14-year-old hurler has fanned 87 batters in 55 innings to date in Babe Ruth League play.

Greensboro Whips First-Ranked Club

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An aroused band of Patriots swept Greensboro within eight of the Carolina League lead last night with a 7-6 win over High Point-Thomasville.

The top-ranked Hi-Toms went ahead, 5-0, in the sixth, but the Pats matched the pace and took the game with a four-run burst in the eighth. The two teams slug it out again tonight on the Greensboro diamond.

There was equal excitement in Durham, where the Bulls beat Wilson, 2-1, to post their eighth straight triumph. The revival has brought Durham, first half-season champs, from the cellar to third place in the second stanza.

Scores were more liberal in Danville, with the host team taking a 12-0 decision over Winston-Salem. The free-swinging game racked up 33 hits, including four home runs, and included nine walks and seven errors.

Leroy Bradley brought in the winning Greensboro run with his fourth hit of the night. Bradley's double scored Dale Desilva with two out and two men on base in the bottom of the eighth.

Ino Rodriguez was Danville's batting leader. He contributed a solo homer and three singles. Frank Reveira knocked out a solo homer and a pair of singles. The big blow for Winston-Salem were a two-run homer by Pete Cardenal and a solo home run by Phil Jantze.

The games tonight repeat last night's stand: High Point-Thomasville at Greensboro, Wilson at Durham, and Winston-Salem at Danville.

North Carolina Construction In Slow-Down

RALEIGH (AP) — The gauge of building permits issued by Tar Heel municipalities indicates construction activity has slowed for the first six months of this year. Permits totaling $68,846,756 were issued in 30 cities of 10,000 and over population during the period, the State Labor Department reported yesterday. This was an 18 per cent decrease from the $83,856,850 total for the same time last year, the report added. For the month of June, building permits amounted to $10,401,641, a sharp drop from the $11,937,331 total for the same month in 1956. The figures cover estimated construction costs of new residential and non-residential buildings, and projects for additions, alterations and repairs on existing structures.

Warrants Face Four Strikers

ROCK HILL, S. C. (AP) — Four striking employees of the Boyle Construction Co. have been charged with breach of the peace and violating the state's right-to-work law. The four are Oliver Luthian Jr., Claude Dixon, Richard Robinson and Bill Droughton, all of Rock Hill. After charges were lodged yesterday the four were ordered to put up $700 bond each. The warrants were sworn out by Floyd Crosby and Thurman Jenkins, both of Kings Mountain, N. C. The pair, both non-striking workers at the Boyle plant, accused the four men of beating them up. About 90 operators of earth moving equipment walked out Saturday at the 1,200-acre site of the Bowaters plant near Catawba. The strikers, members of the Local 470, International Union of Operating Engineers, are seeking better pay and working conditions. The work activity at the plant has dropped about 20 per cent because of the lay-off.

cause of the lay-off. Police said that both Crosby and Jenkins suffered facial cuts and bruises. Officers said that a service station attendant told of Crosby and Jenkins driving up and picking up a hammer and tire tools and "holding off" the four men who were attacking them. The Bowaters site has been picketed ever since the strike started, but yesterday's disturbance was the first to be reported, police said. The number of students enrolled in higher education in the United States has increased from 50,000 in 1870 to more than 3 million in 1957.

Delays Decision On Padlocking

SANFORD, N. C. (AP) — Superior Court Judge Clawson L. Williams has continued until Aug. 3 a hearing on whether to make permanent an order padlocking a store owned by J. Percy Flowers. Judge Williams acted yesterday on the request of lawyers for the Johnston County man, who is on trial in Raleigh district federal court on income tax evasion charges. Under a temporary order obtained by Solicitor Jack Hooks of Smithfield, the store near Clayton was padlocked July 6 after a search turned up small quantities of tax - paid and non-tax-paid liquor. At the same time, another order signed by Judge Williams placed in the Johnston County sheriff's custody a safe removed from the store and said to contain "between $50,000 and $100,000." Hooks said the raid resulted from a determination "to break

Women's Branch Of Navy Gets New Boss Near Birthday-Time

By FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON (AP) — The women's branch of the Navy celebrates its 15th birthday this month and gets a new boss about the same time.

A birthday reunion this weekend in Boston will give a lot of Waves a first glimpse of attractive Capt. Winifred Redden Quick of San Francisco, their new director.

It's practically an anniversary for 45-year-old Capt. Quick too. The 5-foot-3 strawberry blonde was among the first officers commissioned after President Roosevelt signed a bill July 30, 1942, permitting women to join the Naval Reserve.

"The Waves were a novelty in that period of naval history," recalls Capt. Quick, then a personnel management expert. But, she added, "there's no question of the acceptance of women now."

The Waves now are getting top Navy jobs with more responsibility, Capt. Quick says.

She got full agreement from Capt. Louise K. Wilde, outgoing WAVE director, as the two sat in their small office in the Pentagon's Navy annex.

Capt. Quick and Capt. Wilde, of Concord, N. H., will trade jobs officially Aug. 9, with Capt. Wilde going to a new assignment at the Navy's postgraduate school in Monterey, Calif.

Meanwhile, Capt. Wilde was filling in her successor on the job of directing activities of the 5,000 repairs, asking "a check by return mail."

Officials declined comment.

active duty enlisted women and 723 officers—the Waves' peacetime standby quota.

The two four-stripers will participate in the Waves' reunion July 26-28 at Boston.

Capt. Quick, starting her four-year term, is the fifth WAVE director.

Born in Great Falls, Mont., daughter of a businessman-mining engineer, she studied business administration at the University of Southern California and took four years of graduate work in personnel management at Racine, Wis.

At 30, Winifred Redden Quick was on her first major career job, personnel coordinator for Pasadena (Calif.) Junior College, and the U.S. Employment Service there, when she decided to join the newly formed WAVE.

"I didn't know the difference between an ensign, J. G., or lieutenant," she said. She was commissioned a WAVE ensign and joined the first officer training class for Waves.

Her biggest job, which she considers the "highlight" of her Navy career, was assignment to Pearl Harbor in 1944 with another WAVE officer to arrange for 4,000 Waves to relieve Navy men for fleet duty.

Later, she was made director of personnel of the 14th Naval Dist. at Pearl Harbor. After the Japanese surrendered, she got the Waves back home. For her Pearl Harbor duty, Capt. Quick was awarded the Bronze Star medal for "exceptionally meritorious service."

Actor Puts Skids Under Story In Scandal Sheet

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Glenn Ford did go on a beach party with a young girl, as one of the scandal magazines recently reported. "But," adds Glenn, "the magazine made one serious error of omission. The incident described took place in 1935 when I was a student at Santa Monica High School and practically every student-in the school—or any other high school or college—has done the same thing."

The article, Glenn claims, clearly left the impression that the incident took place after he became a movie star and the husband of dancer Eleanor Powell. "I wasn't even known as Glenn Ford then and the movies in those days were something I only paid to see," he laughs.

Glenn, a scoutmaster, upstanding citizen of Beverly Hills and proud father, is one of the few stars who will talk about the scandal stories. Most feel that the best offense against the magazines is no defense. Glenn disagrees. "I think the public should learn how irresponsible and inaccurate these stories are."

were making "Teahouse Of The August Moon." Glenn said the story recounted how Marion and Glenn were riding separate jeeps in a Tokyo parade. Glenn's jeep is supposed to have pulled away from Marion's and the latter became incensed and threatened to pull Glenn off his jeep. "Every word of it is ridiculous," says Glenn. "In fact, I have never been in a parade with Marion in Tokyo, or any place else."

"My last movie magazine story was on the angle of what I liked and what I disliked about my wife and some of my leading ladies. I told the interviewer things I admired about Eleanor and the rest and also gave out some petty annoyances, strictly with tongue-in-cheek."

Glenn says the article played up the dislikes and came out under the title: "Why Glenn Ford Hates Women."

Alcohol Cargo Is Now For Fish

MAYSVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Fish in the Ohio River were treated to a king size highball recently. A barge loaded with 15,000 gallons of grain alcohol sank while it was being turned around to make towing easier. Owners of the barge said it was doubtful any of the cargo could be salvaged.

Explosion Burns Rescue Watchers

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Hundreds of curious spectators watched while rescuers tried to free an injured driver's helper from the battered cab of a trailer-truck last night. Then, at least 50 of them were burned as the truck's exploding gas tank showered them with flaming gasoline. The injured onlookers fled. So did the rescuers, leaving the truckman dangling helplessly head downward from the cab window. All but his legs had been freed prior to the blast. From a distance a fireman played a hose on the trucker, Wilfred Godfrey, 35, of Hartford. Witnesses said this action probably saved his life. The fire was extinguished in about a minute. Godfrey, who had been given an anesthetic earlier to ease his pain, was pulled from the wreckage suffering from extensive body burns. He was transported in critical condition at a hospital. Godfrey was trapped in the cab when the truck stopped short to avoid a dog. The truck's cargo, a smaller truck, snapped its bonds and rolled forward, bashing in the rear of the cab. The driver was pulled from the wreckage minutes after the crash with minor injuries. Police said the gasoline exploded with a hissing whoosh. A brief panic broke out among spectators nearest the truck. Some fled screaming. Others stumbled in their haste. YOU CAN DIE LAUGHING

By A.A. FAIR (ERLE STANLEY GARDNER)

CHAPTER 10
Yvonne Wells walked to the kitchen, her hips swaying in a slightly exaggerated motion. She turned hot water into the dishpan. "Want to stick around and dry the dishes for me?" she asked. Sellers walked over to lean against the doorjamb. "Where's your husband now?" he asked. She laughed and said, "According to Mrs. Noyes over in the next house, he took off abruptly. I guess he got tired waiting for me. I'll get the place cleaned up and be a dutiful little wife. If he comes back, we'll forgive each other and live happily until we have the next spat. If he doesn't come back, I'll find out when the rent's due and have the place all cleaned for the next tenant. My God! A man certainly can mess a place up! He's let this house run to seed." She was busily engaged in sliding dishes through the dishwasher, putting them in the draining pan and pouring hot water over them. "The dish towel's over there on the rack," she said. "Not for me!" Sellers told her. "They'd kick me out for conduct unbecoming an officer." "Well, at least get the towel and bring it over," she said. "My hands are all wet. I don't want to drip a trail over the kitchen." Sellers went over and got the dish towel. He dropped it over her shoulder. "Let me see that clipping," he said to her. "What's that?" Mrs. Wells asked, looking up from the dishpan. "Just checking," Sellers said. "Oh, I know. That's the San Bernardino picture." "How does it happen you never get in movies?" Sellers asked her. "They never invited me," she said. "I thought perhaps a few pictures in the newspaper would do it." "That why you left home?" Sellers asked. "Is that the real reason?" She laughed and turned toward him. "You boys can ask the damndest questions," she said. "Why don't you run along over and talk with Mrs. Noyes next door? I know you're dying to talk with her, and she's busting a blood vessel trying to find out what it's all about." Sellers sighed, handed me back the clipping, and started for the door without a word. "Come again sometime," Mrs. Wells invited. "Come again sometime," Mrs. Wells invited. We went out the door and down the steps. "Damn it!" Sellers said. "You got me into this, Lam." "Into what?" "This murder case. Then the corpse shows up alive and well!" "Mrs. Raleigh was the one that started it," I told him. "Not with me she wasn't," Sellers said. "However, we'll go have a talk with her." Mrs. Raleigh flung the door open as soon as we got on the porch. "Well, good morning, good morning!" she said. "Do come in. I'm dying to know what's happened over there." Sellers stood in the doorway. "Just one question," he said. "You've seen that woman over there?" "That's right." "Is that Mrs. Wells?" "Yes," she said. "That's the woman you thought had been killed?" "Why, how you talk, officer! I didn't say I thought she'd been killed. I said that I felt there were suspicious circumstances. I'd heard a quarrel, and then I heard her scream, and I'd seen the man carry something." "The way you were talking about Mrs. Sellers said, "It was a corpse wrapped in a rug. It was heavy and swayed." "Well, a person can't tell how heavy a thing is just by looking at someone carrying it." "You can tell by the way a man walks whether he's carrying something heavy," Sellers said. "Well, I— Of course, it was night. I only tried to tell you what had happened, officer. That's all. I was just doing my duty." "You told me, you heard the sound of a blow?" I asked. "What if I did?" "I just wanted to check." "That, of course, is neither here nor there. Any man can strike his wife, but I didn't say I had heard the sound of a blow. I said I heard a sound that might have been the sound of a blow." "Have you talked with Mrs. Wells about this?" Sellers asked. "No, I have not." "There's no question that that Mrs. Wells who is over there now?" I asked her. "That's the woman who—" "Do you think it possible to mistake that woman?" Mrs. Raleigh asked. "Well, I guess that does it," Sellers told her. "Come on, Lam. Let's go!" We started back to Sellers' car. Mrs. Raleigh stood in the doorway and said, "I certainly trust you'll keep my name out of it." Sellers didn't even bother to look back or to reply. "Okay, mastermind," he said, when we got in the car. "You got me into this, now get me out of it." "What is there to get out of?" I asked. "Oh, nothing. Nothing at all," he said. "Just reporting a murder that didn't happen. Getting all excited over a gossip story about a dead woman and then having the dead woman show up alive and well. I've had three shifts of men watching that house on a twenty-four-hour basis. I've kept it sewed up so when Wells showed up, we could question him. I've got to make a report on that. My face is going to be red." "You've gone this far," I said. "Why not keep it sewed up until Wells does enter the picture and then question him?" "About what?" Sellers asked me scornfully. "About having a quarrel with his wife? The question is, have you got any ideas for getting me off the hook?" "Maybe. We'll find out a little more about Corning before we close the case," I told him. "You stall things along as much as you can. He must have tipped Wells to take a powder." "Now look, bright eyes," Sellers said. "I'm from Homicide, remember? Don't think you're going to get me out on the end of a limb with a hot tip and then save me by turning up some bunko game. I'm Homicide." "You don't mean you have to have a corpse?" He said. "I want an out. Have you got one?" "Not yet." "Do you have any ideas?" "I have a sort of a half idea." "Well," he announced mournfully, "you've got a lot more than I have, and you'd better let this half-baked idea of yours grow up when it gets so it can stand up, call me." To Be Continued

His Dream House Is Now Hole In Ground

DETROIT (AP)—Where his dream house once stood, truck driver John Korenic now has a hole in the ground. He also has a mounting list of creditors. The 35-year-old trucker's troubles started last month shortly after he borrowed $4,000 to buy a small white bungalow. After 15 years of marriage, he was happy at the thought of moving his wife and two children into a home of their own. Before he moved, however, he decided to install a basement. He paid a contractor $600 down on the $2,550 job. One day he and his wife Ann, 34, sat on the porch of their rented flat watching workmen put a basement under their bungalow across the alley. The house slipped its supporting jacks, and crashed into the basement. Next he received a note from the city informing him that his capsized bungalow constituted a hazard and would have to be removed. For $350 a wrecking crew hauled away Korenic's dream house, leaving only the basement excavation. Then Korenic borrowed another $1,000 and bought a brick home, condemned for the route of a new expressway. For another $1,000 he contracted to have the house moved. He paid $500 for lifting utility wires on the route. The moving date is next week, but now he has hit another snag. His lot is 30 feet wide. The building code requires a house to be at least three feet from the lot line. The house's blueprints show it is 25 feet wide. "The ordinance is specific," he said dismally. "The house is 12 inches too wide." After listening sympathetically to Korenic, the suburban Hamtramck City Council last night said it would consider waiving the restriction if the neighbors don't object. Korenic said the neighbor on one side appeared "a little reluctant" and the other wants to consult an attorney before committing himself. "This seems to be the house that Jack didn't build," he said.

Highways Director W. F. Babcock reported yesterday. Texas is in second place with 94 miles. North Carolina moved forward with its interstate program, financed by increased federal aid voted by Congress last year, after delays encountered last summer and fall due to questions over authority to condemn property for "limited access" construction. The U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, which tabulated figures on construction contracts for January through May, last year refused to approve Tar Heel projects until the limited access matter was settled. The State Supreme Court ruled property could be condemned for limited access, and the 1957 Legislature spelled out the authority. Federal aid supplies 90 per cent of construction costs on the interstate system, which includes 677 miles within North Carolina. The state will get 94 million dollars in federal money for work on the system in the next two years. Some big projects now in progress include: The Winston-Salem Expressway—paving on the first link is near completion and grading and structures are under way on the second section. The dual-lane northside Charlotte bypass on U.S. 29, where paving will begin with the next few weeks. Dual-laning on relocated U.S. 421 between Kernersville and Greensboro, where paving is in progress. Relocation of U.S. 29 and 70 for 15 miles from China Grove north to bypass Salisbury and cross the Yadkin River into Davidson County. Dual-laning new location U.S. 301 for more than 40 miles from Fayetteville north to Kenly.

North Carolina Has Head Start In Road Program

RALEIGH (AP)—With 109 miles of work under contract, North Carolina has a head start on other states in the big interstate road improvement program. The amount of mileage under contract for the first five months of this year leads the nation.

'Frame-Up' Plea Quickly Changed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - A defendant in a burglary case stood in court here and vehemently denied any guilt, protesting that his confession was a frameup, given under coercion.

Then the victim of the theft, Walter L. Dodson, pointed to a belt with a large initial 'D' on its buckle which the defendant, Harold Smith, 42, was wearing. Assistant Dist. Atty. Charles Peruto asked Smith to explain the initial. Smith conferred with his attorney, Cecil B. Moore, for a few moments. Moore announced that his client was changing his plea to guilty.

WALL STREET
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market inched into higher ground early this afternoon with the rails steels and non-ferrous metals furnishing most of the momentum.

Trading was more active than yesterday but somewhat behind this morning's lively start.

Gains among key stocks were mostly limited to major fractions. Declines, with a few exceptions, did not stray outside the fractional range.

Non-ferrous metals showed decided improvement. Anaconda, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, International Nickel and American Smelting scored modest gains.

Baltimore and Ohio set the pace in rail division, with a gain of around 2 points. Atlantic Coast Line also moved higher.

U.S. Steel and Lukens were strong spots in the steels division. Motors, chemicals and oils were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 60 cents at $168.10 with the industrials up 70 cents, the rails up $1.20 and the utilities unchanged.

Washington School Board Reverses Contract Award

WASHINGTON — Trustees of Washington City Schools have changed their minds and will offer the job of building a new Negro elementary school here to a Greenville construction company.

The school board awarded a contract for the project to Griffon Builders, Inc. last Thursday. Reversal of their original decision came after Dunn Building Supply Company of Greenville threatened legal action to halt the move because the Greenville firm had entered the low bid on the project.

The threatened injunction was never served. Negotiations between architects for the project and W. G. Dunn, president of the Greenville firm, resulted in the contract change which was made Tuesday night at a meeting of the school board.

Dunn's low bid of $81,534 was by-passed last week, school board members said, because of time required for the Greenville company to complete the project. They gave the job to Griffon Builders for $86,100, board members said, because the Griffon company agreed to complete the work in 75 days.

Dunn had threatened legal action because he said he had never been consulted on a time factor. Board members, at their Tuesday meeting, admitted that he had not entered a confirmation letter on the time element but that the board was under the impression that architects had received written confirmation of a request for 104 days for the project.

The time element entered negotiations for the project after the job had already been advertised. Architects had been requested to include a time element in the advertising but failed to do so.

When bids were opened July 9, with nine firms participating, it was discovered that the time element had been omitted in the advertising. Architects were authorized to negotiate the time phase with the three lowest bidders.

Griffon Builders, Dunn, and DuBose Construction Company of Kinston.

The architectural firm, Thomas, Harles and Edwards of Rocky Mount, reported that telephone contact was made with the three firms. The architects said Griffon Builders asked for 75 days, DuBose offered to complete the work in 84 days and Dunn said it would require 104 days.

Letters were received from Griffon Builders and DuBose confirming the time element. No letter was received from Dunn, but school board members said they were under the impression that he had received the written confirmation. Griffon Builders had moved men and equipment onto the project site last Friday and had begun preliminary work. They have withdrawn from the project now although Dunn said this morning that a contract had not been signed between his firm and the school board.

The project involves building an elementary school to replace a building which burned last February, 1957. For the remainder of the 1956-1957 school year, Negro elementary students were housed in temporary quarters in the P. S. Jones High School gymnasium and in rented facilities. A similar plan was proposed for the 1957-1958 school year until the new building becomes available.

Segregationist Attacks Action

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A pro-segregationist had plenty to say and a Negro leader had no comment yesterday about Tuesday's action by three school boards in approving applications of 12 Negro children for reassignment to white schools.

Kelly Alexander, state chairman of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said he and other Negro parents whose applications for reassignment of their children to white schools were rejected would need "time to do some thinking" before saying anything about the board's position.

The Charlotte School Board admitted five Negroes to white schools out of 40 who applied.

Parents whose applications were turned down have five days after receipt of official notification to file for a hearing before the school board.

On the other side, Kenneth Whitsett, Mecklenburg head of the Patriots of North Carolina, said: "Tuesday, the Charlotte City School Board sacrificed five Negro students and a greater number of white students to the evils of He added, "It did so by acting in improper concert with the boards of other cities, but without allowing anyone to be heard before it took action and without even consulting the school board of Mecklenburg County."

The Greensboro School Board admitted six Negro children to white schools and the Winston-Salem School Board admitted one.

Set Quarantine To Avert Spread Soybean Plague

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has set up a quarantine, effective tomorrow, to prevent spread of the soybean cyst nematode from infested areas of Missouri, North Carolina and Tennessee.

The quarantine will cover infested areas in New Hanover and Pender Counties in North Carolina and Dyer, Lake, Lauderdale and Obion Counties in Tennessee.

Regulations provide that certain products and articles may move from infested areas only under certification or permit issued by the department.

The products include soil, nursery stock and other plants with roots attached, root crops, bulbs, soybeans, small grains, hay, straw, fodder, and plant litter of any kind.

Resume Probe Of Misusing Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rackets Committee resumes today its investigation of alleged misuse of funds of the United Textile Workers funds by union officials.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) called the union's President Anthony Valente for a first round of questioning and Lloyd Klener, its secretary-treasurer, for further quizzing about uses to which some $200,000 of UTW money was put.

has supervision of over-all operation of a bank. It doesn't handle each individual account. The county committee functions in the same way."

Godfrey said to his knowledge the Pitt county Committee "had never complained about notices going out or the fact that state men had been in there."

"We're administering the law," Godfrey said. "We have no alternative except to carry out instructions that are contained in the regulations issued by the secretary of agriculture."

"We tried to make it clear yesterday that the secretary's regulations and instructions are based upon recommendations made by the entire tobacco industry. They are for the good of all tobacco farmers. The secretary has granted every request by the tobacco industry to strengthen the program."

"One thing a lot of people misunderstand. The ASC or no other farm agency has in mind penalizing any farmer unjustly but we are required to carry out the laws passed by Congress and regulations passed by the secretary and these regulations are in the best interest of the farmers."

In view of recent bills introduced in Congress which would curtail the tobacco support program, Godfrey said, "Now is the time for tobacco farmers to stick together rather than pull apart."

The state administrative officer pointed out that "labeling of tobacco as discounted variety merely says the government doesn't want to invest more than 50 per cent of support price in that tobacco if they have to buy it."

It doesn't mean the farmer can't place it on warehouse floors for sale, he said.
