

Demo Says School Bill Beaten By Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Augustine B. (D-Pa), author of the 1 1/2-billion-dollar school aid bill killed by the House, blamed President Eisenhower today for its defeat.

Earlier this week he was "not entirely satisfied" with the bill the House was considering, although he would sign the measure if Congress passed it.

After the House vote yesterday, press secretary James C. Hagerty said the White House would have no comment.

Russell Threatens Use All Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Russell (D-Ga) said today Southern senators will use "every weapon in our arsenal" to defeat the civil rights bill unless a jury trial amendment is adopted.

His unmistakable notice of a filibuster—although he didn't use the word—was sounded after President Eisenhower sent word to Republican senators he opposes this or any other major change in the bill's section on voting rights.

Local Man Wounds Wife, His Foreman; Kills Self

CROWD GATHERS . . . At Shooting Scene

By JIMMY ELLIS (Reflector Staff Writer) A 41-year-old cabinet maker killed himself this morning after wounding his wife and his job foreman.

John Edward Martin, Jr., died after shooting himself in the right temple. His wife, Louise, 37, was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of bullet wounds in the chest and chin, and Willie Cannon was admitted to the hospital for treatment of a bullet wound in the hand.

Seek Clues In Airliner 'Mystery'

VICTORVILLE, Calif. (AP)—Investigators searched the forbidding Mojave Desert today for clues to an aerial mystery: What ripped the jagged hole through which a heavily insured passenger vanished from an airliner?

Sight For Grandpa On Memory Lane

Local folk stepped into a world of yesteryear at the college stadium last night. For there were parked some 60 ancient horseless carriages, dating from a 1904 model to autos produced in the late twenties.

The vehicle, one of finest cars built, cost $18,500 new. He had picked it up for spare parts and later decided to rebuild it.

Number Of N.C. Farmers Selling Their Leaf Now

RALEIGH (AP)—A number of North Carolina farmers are selling their flue-cured tobacco on the Georgia-Florida markets now, but this is not unusual, W. F. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist for the State Dept. of Agriculture, said today.

"It happens every year," Hedrick said. "Not too many farmers go to Georgia, but a few who have tobacco ready take it because they say they need the money now."

Clubs Urged To Sponsor Mental Health

PRESIDENT INSTITUTE—Attending the Presidents Institute meeting held at the Woman's Club Building yesterday are the following officers of the 15th district of the North Carolina Federation of Womens Clubs: Miss Virginia Easley of Farmville, vice president, Mrs. R. P. Rogers, president, and J. B. Spilman, secretary.

Twenty-three clubs were represented at the Presidents Institute of the 15th District of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Club meeting held in Greenville yesterday at the Woman's Club. After registration and a coffee hour, the Rev. W. M. Howard Jr., pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, gave the invocation. Mrs. R. P. Rogers, district president and presiding officer, gave the keynote address using as her subject "Arise, let us go hence" (John 14:31). She urged the clubs "to move forward in: Unity, Democracy, Loyalty, and Service. The Woman's Club has been called the 'conscience of America,' so let us live up to this," said the speaker.

Miss Virginia Easley, vice president, explained fully Junior Club work and urged Junior members to include the Mental Health program as a new project this year.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman, district secretary and executive secretary of the North Carolina Mental Health Society, discussed Mental Health. She urged clubs to sponsor and support this program in every way possible. She gave many appalling statistics and facts and asked members to help organize Mental Health Associations in their respective counties.

Mrs. Howard Fuller, club hostess, served a three course luncheon.

Mrs. M. E. Stocks, Junior Club president, and her committee were in charge of the coffee hour and Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr., president of the Senior Club, and committee were in charge of registration and flowers.

MENDING TIP
When making dresses for little girls sew a small piece of the material in the side seams in a way that the garment can be ironed neatly. Then when she snags her dress and it needs to be mended you will have a piece of cloth that matches the garment exactly as it has been laundered just as many times as the dress.

 Today's need of the spiritual sense of truth will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.
 "The Lesson-Sermon on "Truth" will include the following from Psalms (145:18): "The Lord is high unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth."
 Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include the following (372:1-3): "The spiritual sense of truth must be gained before Truth can be understood. This sense is assimilated only as we are honest, unselfish, loving, and meek."
 The Golden Text is from Psalms (98:1,3): "O sing unto the Lord a new song; for he hath done marvellous things: . . . He hath remembered his mercy and his truth toward the house of Israel: all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God."

Fur Fashions Start At Top This Fall

By DOROTHY ROE
 Associated Press Women's Editor
 Fur fashions start at the top this fall, and the woman who faces winter without a fur hat is going to feel definitely underprivileged. This may be construed as a break for husbands and fathers who foot the bills, because the girls probably are going to be satisfied to ask for a fur hat instead of a fur coat this year. Plain cloth coats and winter suits with fur added in small doses in the form of accessories are going to be seen in many fashionable spots, come fall. They look new, exciting and flattering.
 Fur hats come in all shapes, sizes and pelts in the fall collection of Sally Victor, but the favorites of this pint-size designer are caps in infinite variety. She shows African caps with pointed backs, worn far back on the head in the manner of belles of the African Gold Coast, with white broadtail and dark mink the favored makings.
 Sometimes the caps grow to king-size berets, dramatic in leopard with giant handbags to match. These may be worn in any number of ways, to suit the taste and type of the wearer.
 Among the furs that will be seen on fashionable heads this fall are: silver fox, red fox, leopard, ermine, cheetah, broadtail and all mutations of mink.

AFRICAN CAPS . . . Done in luxury furs, they're the newest things on the fashion horizon. Sally Victor designed the white broadtail cap and ascot at left and the mink cap at right.

Pitt Demonstration Teams Win

RALPHIGH—Two Pitt County 4-H demonstration teams have won first place in their categories in the Farmville 4-H Club won.

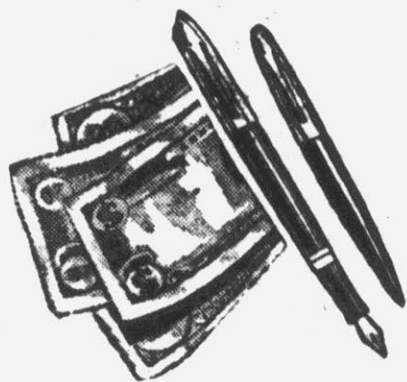

first place with their Scurf Funeral demonstration and Tommy Braxton and Irvin Allen came in first with their livestock conservation demonstration.
 Corbett and Dilda, both from Fountain, presented a demonstration which dealt with the prevention of Scurf, a sweet potato skin disease. As first place winners they won a trip to the National Junior Vegetable Growers Association meeting which will be held in Springfield, Ill. in December.
 The team was coached by Assistant County Agent Cecil Register.
 Braxton, a Winterville-Greenville Club member and Allen, a Farmville Club member, presented a demonstration entitled "Save That Baby Pig".
 The demonstration deals with management and saving of baby pigs during farrowing time. They won a trip to the national contest which will be held in Chicago in December. The contest is held in connection with the National 4-H Convention.
 Assistant County Agent C. J. Goodman coached the team.
 Another Pitt team won third place. Moya Waters and Ben White placed third with their tobacco demonstration.

Now Is The Time To Pull Together

Resignation of the three-member Pitt County ASC committee is cause for concern not only in Pitt, but in other tobacco-producing counties as well.

Against the backdrop of considerable discontent among farmers over development in the tobacco program during the past year and renewed efforts on the part of some members of Congress to throw out the federal tobacco program altogether, any disturbance which would indicate a rift on the local level is a new threat. On top of those conditions, twice within recent months the resigned ASC committee in Pitt County has locked horns with the state committee and its administrative officers. A short while ago the county committee and the state officials didn't see eye-to-eye when the state office issued an ultimatum to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners to provide them with more office space or have the local ASC offices moved to another community or even outside the county.

Now the resignations have come after a dispute between the county committee and the state committee over policies regarding farmers whose tobacco was declared an acceptable variety by the local officials and later declared a discounted variety by state officials.

The economic well being of the tobacco-producing region is in a large measure dependent upon the tobacco support program. In the face of adverse actions from outside sources, it is imperative that tobacco growers and other segments of the tobacco industry stand together in support of the program which has meant so much to such a broad area. It is also imperative that understanding and cooperation prevail between those whose crops are protected by the program and those who are charged with the responsibility of administering the program.

The Reflector agrees with State ASC officer H. D. Godfrey who has asserted, "Now is the time for tobacco farmers to stick together rather than pull apart." We submit, however, that it is also a time when the farmers governed by the program and those who administer the ASC program seek a better understanding of each others problems.

It is a mutual problem which confronts both farmers and the administrators of the tobacco program. It will take a mutual effort on the part of both parties to smoothe over the rifts which have become apparent between the parties in recent months.

Small 'Readjustment' For Our Auto Owners

Most Pitt County motorists missed out on the low-priced gasoline prevailing in a large part of North Carolina recently. Now, however, all of Pitt County will have the advantage of slightly lower prices for fuel for the family buggy.

Compared with what other motorists have been paying for gas in a large part of North Carolina in recent weeks, the six-tenths of a cent a gallon reduction will not appear a great bargain to most motorists. Particularly is this true when one realized that the price of a gallon of gas in Greenville last week was almost twice what it was in some areas where the price war had beaten prices of the fuel down to rock bottom.

But good or bad, depending on the individual viewpoint, Pitt County remained fairly well insulated from the gas price war which affected most areas of the state including counties around Pitt. Only in one community, Fountain, was there anything resembling a price war, and there the battle lasted only three days.

It is apparent now that Pitt County, along with the rest of the state, will be included in the readjustment of prices now that the gas price war has come to an end. The only difference is that in Pitt gas prices will be going down slightly, and in most other areas the price of gasoline has gone up sharply from the recent "war days".

No Respect For Money Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
A corporation executive, showing a prospective customer through his plant, saw a penny on the floor. "I can't afford to pick it up," he said. The prospect asked why not.

"I would take a second to pick it up and another second to put it in my pocket," he said. "Getting a cent ahead in that time is at a rate of $18 an hour. My time is worth more than that to the company."

"Besides," he went on, "it would probably take about $1 in paper work and accounting to report it on my tax return, and then the government would take most of the cent."

The executive may have been trying to do no more than make entertaining conversation but he was correct in saying that the time spent in picking up the penny was worth more than the cent.

A GROWING CONCEPT
Children today often decline pennies. "What good are they?" some ask. That's one phase of the growing lack of confidence in the American dollar.

Jokes about money have always been popular. A generation ago they were usually built around the "almighty dollar" theme. Dollars, the comics then pretended, could buy anything: love, power and the soul of the Devil himself. Now the jokes have that "it's only money" ring to them.

Thousands of dollars are jobbed out on quiz programs. Comedians on marathon television shows get pledges of thousands. Money is tossed around these days in ways that recall the splurges of 1929. That may be significant.

A BAD SIGN
When citizens show a contempt for a nation's money, there is trouble ahead. Every national financial debacle that I know about has been preceded by a rising disrespect of the country's currency.

There are even more tangible signs today.

"Every day more and more people are realizing the dangers of inflation. Many people are turning to certain types of common stocks," an influential market letter recently reminded clients.

"It has been hard to explain recent advances in stock market prices in terms of reasonable, foreseeable earnings," Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, the noted economist recently told Congress. But it can be explained, he said, by efforts to convert dollars into shares of physical wealth—plants, mines, real estate, inventory. If stocks are being used as a hedge against further inflation, he said, "It is the first step in a flight from the dollar."

TO LAND OF $1.05 DOLLARS
Meanwhile, a lot of American wealth is fleeing from the U.S. dollar across the Canadian border. Investors are willing to sacrifice 5 per cent of the face value of their holdings to transfer them into Canadian dollars and securities.

All these phenomena are not signs that the American dollar will follow the prewar German mark, the prewar French franc, the Chilean peso, the Taiwan dollar and scores of other currencies into the "play money" class.

But they are warnings that unless inflation is checked and unless there is a firmer value put behind the dollar—perhaps by a return to a gold standard—there may be trouble ahead.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THINKING LIFE OVER
Everyone keeps saying that the age in which we live moves at too fast a pace. But like Mark Twain's observation on the weather, nobody does much about it.

We keep pushing ahead in business endeavors, study, social life, and dissipation until we are literally worn out. Then when we lie down and pull the bed-clothing up over us and begin a long rest at doctor's orders, we know we have made fools of ourselves. There were some people, undoubtedly, in every age who pushed themselves beyond all limits. But we live in an age who pushed themselves beyond all limits. But we live in an age in which most people are encouraged in this disastrous project. We must go faster. We must learn more things. Some-one told me recently that within five years, one will be able to go from New York to Miami in two hours and across the continent in four.

Here is an ancient statement that it may be well for modern men to ponder: "Man is flying too fast for a world that is round. Soon he will catch up with himself, in a great rear-end collision, and man will never know that what hit man from behind was man."

We have often observed that man is the cause of practically all his troubles. Why can't we learn? Why can't we slow down and engage in a little reflection?

'Fallout' After Moscow Blast

by ALVIN TAYLOR

But We Had No Saddle

My brother, Bill Taylor, and I were walking along Evans St. minding our own business the other day when all of a sudden this wild bull comes charging down the street behind us.

The blood literally froze in my veins.

Without looking behind I knew it was a bull by the gosh awful bellow it gave. Then, too, I could hear the clippity-clippity-clop of its hoofs on the sidewalk.

Brother Bill and I tore up the steps of the post office. I could feel the bloodthirsty animal's hot breath singeing the very hairs on my neck.

Any instant I expected myself or my brother to go sailing through the air, victims of the animal's vicious horns.

It was not until I had shinned two-thirds the way up one of those concrete columns and my brother half way up that we saw it was not a vicious bull at all.

It was simply Jim Boykin, Jaycee president, riding by in one of those new fangled (1925) horseless carriages which, as everyone knows by now, were on display at the college stadium last night.

"Come on for a ride," Jim yelled at us as we descended from the columns.

We approached the thing cautiously.

My brother threw one leg over the side of the ancient vehicle preparing to mount the front seat.

"Why don't you use the door," he asked.

"There," said Jim and he pushed the inside lock that opened a tiny door which might pass for a ventilator window on modern autos.

My brother jumped in and I found the rear door lock and did likewise.

"Hang on," said Jim and I did just that as he manipulated floor pedals and steering column levers which threw the tiny engine into a strain and gradually moved the wonder of our forefathers in to motion.

The wind whistled under the canvass top as we gathered speed. Faster and faster moved the machine—five, ten, 15 miles per hour. Man, we were flying.

"You think automatic transmission is new," said Jim. "This car has it."

One pedal, he showed us, threw the thing in reverse, another put it in forward gear.

"That's all there is to it," he declared.

"This car has everything," he said as we sailed around a corner on two wheels. I was hanging out the high side watching the ground move away. But the car settled back on all fours and we picked up speed going down hill.

Eighteen miles per hour—I gasped for breath.

But all things—good or bad—must come to an end and finally Jim brought the vehicle to a halt.

Bill and I carefully opened the tiny doors, stepped on the running boards and to the ground. Jim casually jumped over the side of the car.

"Why didn't you use the door?" Bill asked.

"There's not one on the driver's side," replied the Jaycee president.

Carefully considering this strange quirk of the 1925 engineering mind I slowly returned to my sleek, late model (1938) auto.

Opinions In Brief

"If a producer or distributor of a service or commodity finds that he can sell it for less money than his competitors, and so attract more customers, he is at perfect liberty to do so. He isn't stopped by the fact that this may take business away from those competitors because, for some reason, they are unable to offer equal or superior inducements."—Industrial News Review.

Other Editors Saying-- Pay At Mental Hospitals

(Goldsboro News-Argus)
Dr. David J. Rose, retired surgeon and state senator from the eighth district, makes a point that needs noting by John Q. Public. It is in connection with the decision by the State Board of Medical Examiners that temporary licensing of the doctors who do not fully meet North Carolina standards shall be ended in a year.

As long as North Carolina has a pay scale of $7,000 to $9,000 a year for psychiatrists and doctors for its mental hospitals, while paying $15,000 a year for superior court judges, she will not be able to get the men she needs. That is the observation of Dr. Rose. He made the comment after questioning by this writer. He said he had no desire to rush into the current argument, but he thought it important that the public recognize that the state has been unwise in failing to provide a pay scale for mental hospital doctors that will attract men who can treat and cure nervously or mentally ill.

And never will North Carolinians gain tolerance conditions which pack the mentally ill like animals into buildings and neglect them adequate care and modern techniques. Dr. Rose does a good turn for the state in putting his finger on the real problem in this situation.

Henry Agard Wallace-Satisfied

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — The most controversial figure of the Roosevelt-Truman years—Henry Agard Wallace—feels happy over the fact that the Eisenhower Administration has adopted two of the policies for which he was severely condemned and for which he was eventually fired from the Truman Cabinet. In his opinion, Ike has embraced his viewpoint on relations with American farmers and Russian Communists.

Although still a farmer himself at Salem, N.Y., and a friend of the farmer as author of the pioneer acreage allotment and subsidy program, Wallace favors the Eisenhower-Benson attempt to reduce the huge costs of the agricultural support system. He never favored rigid 90 per cent parity payments, recalling that the maximum figure during his days as Secretary of Agriculture was only 52 per cent.

TOO GREEDY AT TREASURY
TROUGH Wallace has always argued—and still does—that the public and the politicians, especially the consumers and their Representatives at Washington, would turn against the farmers, if they fed too greedily at the Treasury trough. His warning has been borne out at the current session, for the farm bloc has split and lost its former influence on Capitol Hill because of the excesses he feared.

Farm support prices, he points out, were raised to 75 per cent after he left Agriculture to become Vice President in early 1941. They were increased for the sole purpose of inducing farmers to boost production to feed our Allies, and to provide a granary of food against the day when the United States would enter the war.

The high and rigid parity payments, and he was his father, were only a military measure, and were never intended to be permanent. But the Democrats, then controlling both the White House and Congress, did not dare to remove or lower them for political reasons, and they still plague President Eisenhower.

In view of this historical background, Wallace wishes Secretary Benson success in his effort to restore a relatively free market for major farm crops in the revolutionary bill which the Administration promises to present to the 1958 Congress.

OUSTED FOR VIEWS The Eisenhower Administration, in Wallace's belief, has also accepted his idea that the United States should try to reach a coexistence agreement or modus vivendi with Russia. For advancing this suggestion 10 or more years ago, Wallace was ousted from the Cabinet by Truman at the demand of the late Cordell Hull, then Secretary of State.

"Both the United States and Russia," says Wallace in a retrospect tinged with no regrets or bitterness, "were then carrying a ship—in fact, a rock—on their shoulders. We were heading straight for another war that would destroy humanity."

Cagney On The Farm

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — "I can think of nothing better for anybody than a busy life on a farm," said Jimmy Cagney, whose 75 movie roles enabled him to become a country gentleman.

"It's the most natural way to live. It's not so far removed from reality."

"I've been country-crazy myself since I was 5."

Gentleman Jim, the farmer, had to fight his way out from city streets to a place on the land.

Born in Manhattan's lower East Side, son of an Irish saloon-keeper who died young, Cagney went to work as a copy boy for the old New York Sun at 14. His first job in the theater was impersonating a chorus girl.

He knew many a lean year as a vaudeville hooper and Broadway actor before he won film immortality in 1930 by grinding a grapefruit in Mae Clark's face in "Public Enemy." Then came the golden deluge. But Jimmy, who was making $150,000 a picture as long ago as 1937, is glad that neither his son, James, Jr., 17, nor his daughter, Cathleen, shows any interest in show business.

"It's a rough life," said the little redhead who graduated years ago from the roughneck roles that first won him fame.

"My boy is interested in farm genetics and Cathleen all her life has wanted to be a veterinarian. That suits me fine."

Cagney, who still dances daily to keep in shape, has plenty of pavement-free land now to rest his feet on. He has a 600-acre horse ranch in California, a 700-acre dairy farm with 90 cows near Millbrook, N.Y., and a 200-acre estate on Martha's Vineyard, where he likes to spend the summer just watching the grass grow.

Jimmy takes his farming seriously. He's trying to cross-breed Scottish Highland cattle with conventional dairy cows to produce cattle "that need no barning and no winter feeding."

"The goal is a cow with a built-in thermometer," he said.

Cagney looked mildly offended when asked if he could milk a cow himself.

"I've done it," he said. "It's a darned good thing to know when the power goes out."

Jimmy has just completed "Man of a Thousand Faces," a Universal-International film that tells the life story of Lon Chaney, who, like Cagney himself, began his career as a hooper.

"In order to be a hooper," he remarked, "there has to be something the matter with you. Nobody else would be in a theater at 8 a.m., day after day, beating his brains out with his feet. But I see myself as a supernaturally strong and dance man, really."

One reason may be the fact that, although he has played a wide variety of dramatic roles, it was his portrayal of George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Lindy" that won him an Academy Award.

Like many veteran performers ruled by a real understanding of showmanship rather than egoism or vanity, Cagney now limits himself to no more than two films a year.

"It's a great mistake to show the face often," he said. "Let them see you too often, and I don't care who the individual is, he'll go by the boards."

"Show business has changed a lot. Going to a show in the old days was an event, and it meant more to be a headliner then."

"The illusion was greater, both for the performer and the audience. There was more glamor, or—his eyes twinkled—"is this merely age talking?"

"Perhaps it is. But although actors have more work now than when I was first knocking around, it also seems to me that they treat it more like work. They are more impersonal and businesslike. They don't seem to have the enthusiasm—the sense of personal illusion—the kids had in the old days."

"I guess this must be age talking."

Gideon, Foe of Paganism

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Judges 6:1-8:28.

Suffering from the oppression of the Midianite rule, Israel called upon God for help. He sent an angel to Gideon, telling him God has chosen him to liberate his people, and He would be with him.

Israel worshipped Baal. At night Gideon and his servants overthrew the idol. The people were furious and demanded Gideon's life. His father said if Baal was a god, he would have saved himself.

At night 300 men in groups of 100 stood about the enemies' camp. At Gideon's signal they blew their trumpets, smashed the pitchers they held, raised lights aloft and shouted, and the enemy fled.

So Gideon conquered the Midianites. His people wanted to make him their ruler, but Gideon refused. But "the country was in quiet 40 years in the days of Gideon."

MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 31:24.

Gideon, Foe of Paganism

HE OVERTHREW BAAL, WHOM HIS PEOPLE WORSHIPPED

Scripture—Judges 6:1-8:28.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

"AND the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord; and the Lord delivered them into the hand of Midian seven years." Among the evil Israelites did was to worship Baal, the golden calf, so God punished them. The Midianites oppressed their captives so that they were forced to make dens in the mountains and caves and strongholds, and the Midianites destroyed the growing crops until there was no food for man or beast.

Then the people remembered the Lord their God and all His goodness to them, and they asked Him to help them. Isn't that typical of many people, not only the Israelites in the long ago, but people today?

There are too many who ignore God in their daily lives, do not go to church to worship, never think to thank Him for all the blessings he has bestowed on them, but when illness or great grief comes to them, they drop to their knees and beg for His help.

MEMORY VERSE

"Be of good courage, and He shall strengthen your heart, all ye that hope in the Lord."—Psalm 31:24.

Why not keep in close touch with our God as we do with our mortal friends, thanking Him for goodness, and asking His help in our daily problems as well as in crises?

The Israelites certainly were in need of a strong man to rescue them from their dilemma, and the Lord chose Gideon to do the task. While Gideon, son of Joash, threshed wheat by a winepress, an angel of the Lord appeared to him, saying, "The Lord is with thee, thou mighty man of valor." Further the angel said, "Go in thy might, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites."

Gideon was a modest man and protested that his family was poor, and he was least of his father's sons, but the Lord answered, "Surely I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites as one man." The angel felt some doubt about the Gideon being sent from God, but was convinced when a miracle was performed before his eyes. Then he was told to cast down the idol Baal, so that same ants and they overthrew the golden calf, and broke it.

Next morning, when the people saw the broken idol, they were furious, asking who had done it, and when they were told it was Gideon, they wanted to kill him. His father defended him by saying that if Baal really was a god he could have saved himself.

Then all the Midianites and Amalekites came and pitched their tents in the valley of Jezreel. Gideon still doubted that he could overthrow the enemy, so he told the Lord that he would put a fleece of wool in the ground, and if in the morning it was wet with dew and the earth was dry, he would know that the Lord was indeed with him, and his people would be able to overcome their enemies. The fleece was soaked with dew by morning, the earth dry. So large an army was gathered by Gideon that the Lord said they were too many. At last all the men were sent home but 300, whom the Lord said would be sufficient to save His people.

These 300 men were divided into three groups, and each was "armed" not with swords and other like weapons, but with trumpets and pitchers with lamps inside them. After the Midianites and others were asleep in their tents, Gideon told his men to do as he did:

"When I blow with a trumpet, I and all that are with me, then blow ye the trumpets also on every side of all the camp, and say: 'The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon.'"

So as it done, the men blew their trumpets, broke the pitchers, and holding aloft the lights, they shouted as one man, "The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon." And they stood every man in his place round about the camps; and all the host ran, and cried, and fled.

So Gideon, with the Lord's help, liberated his people from the Midianites, and they asked him to rule over them, but he refused, but "the country was in quietness 40 years in the days of Gideon."

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
Though a little behind in letting you know about it, we still think Anthony West's article, "The Pleasures of Reading," in the July Woman's Day Magazine, is worth looking at. . . Mr. West says things about reading that have been said before, but he says them very well and simply. Here are some of his—to us—most telling remarks.

"Books allow us to share something of the flavor and excitement of thousands of lives lived of the human race; it is much richer in memories and knowledge than the brain of any one person can possibly hope to be." . . . "The in many centuries, and to profit from the experiences of generations of men." . . . "A good library is to some extent a collective brain."

is a very like a muscle. Its capabilities grow rapidly with use and the more we try to know and understand, the easier knowing and understanding becomes. . . There's an interesting and unusual reading list added to West's article, for those of you who still haven't found enough summer reading to do. . .

Thoreau Row
Henry David Thoreau, you remember, was the fellow who, as a young man in 1845, went off into the woods near his home in Concord, Mass. and lived for a year in a little hut on the banks of Walden Pond. His experiences there are immortalized in "Walden," which is required reading for anyone who pretends to any knowledge at all of American writing. Walden Pond, where we've often gone swimming, still is a comparatively unspoiled rustic retreat, but a threat to its peace has recently developed: the local County Commissioners are building a road through the virgin pines leading to the shores of The Pond, and the Thoreau Society of Concord is marshalling its forces to prevent any further desecration of this kind. We will keep you posted about any further developments. Meanwhile, Three Cheers for the Thoreau Society—Walden Pond already is too civilized, and we're all for keeping it as rustic as possible—or should we say rurally rustic?—as it's possible for it to be. . .

The Day
Hard on "The Day Lincoln Was Shot," about President Lincoln's last hours, and "The Day Christ Died," an intimate account of the final few hours of Jesus' life, comes "The Day They Killed The King," by Hugh R. Williamson, published this week by Macmillan. It tells the story of Charles I of England, who was beheaded on January 30, 1649, after a dramatic trial, and brings to his story the same kind of immediacy that the other two "Day" books have. These stories certainly give historical events a vivid twist, and are better than most novels as far as excitement is concerned. . .

Here and There
We note that local readers are patronizing the Sheppard Memorial Library more and more these days, judging from Miss Copeland's recent Annual Report, and we were happy to see that a good third of the readers are children—all to the good, we say, and hope they'll grow up reading instead of screaming. . . We don't know if this increased reading has anything to do with this, but we just learned that 1,500,000 more radios were sold last year than in 1955, while 600,000 fewer TV sets changed hands. . . And while on the subject of mysteries, one of our outstanding local authors, Dr. Martha Pingel Wolfe—the Wolfe is a recent addition—received a mysterious wedding gift of a toaster a few weeks ago, and doesn't know who sent it. Help, anyone?

Today's Review
THE WORLD OF SUZIE WONG. By Richard Mason. Cleveland: The World Publishing Co., 1957. $3.95.

If you want to learn all about houses of prostitution in Hong Kong and points east, with plenty of local color thrown in, this is the book for you. Also, if you like a good love story with a rather unusual twist, ditto.

The World of Suzie, who is a "yum-yum girl" who patronizes the bar—and the sailors—at the Hotel Nam Kok in Hong Kong, is seen through the eyes of Robert Lomax, a British planter turned artist. Lomax falls in love with Suzie and much of the book is devoted to proving that Suzie, despite the hazards of her occupation, is just as pure in spirit as the sweetest virgin out of love's purest dream. This is a theme that has been used before, many times, and here it is handled with frank overtones that make it real and believable.

Much of the book's charm lies in the author's descriptions of the sights, sounds and smells of Hong Kong and its environs. Obviously he has been there for a long time, and has observed everything with the careful eye of a real artist.

Fascinating and funny also are the minute details that Lomax—the hero—furnishes concerning his life at the Nam Kok hotel, where he has mistakenly hired a room on the assumption that it was a place to live and nothing more. He gives character and life to the girls who ply their trade nightly at the bar—Wednesday

Lulu, Minnie Ho, Jeannie Chen, Gwenny, Typhoon and, of course, Suzie. Their individual habits, methods, weaknesses and virtues all are given the kind of treatment that gets you well acquainted with them, whether you might want to get to know them better or not.

Richard Mason has written an interesting and fascinating—if not a great—novel, and we recommend it for summer reading, though not necessarily to keep you cool.

Grace F. W. B. Announcements

Junk Yard Was End Of Journey

NOGALES, Mexico (AP)—Robert C. Martindale, assigned to the U.S. Consulate in this border town, packed his furniture in Buenos Aires and loaded it on to a ship to Nogales and then was loaded on to a truck. After the furniture had traveled halfway round the world, the truck overturned a few miles from Martindale's new home and his belongings were carted to another destination instead — the junkyard.

Academy Waived Limit For Him

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—When Midshipman Roger H. Rotondi of Winchester, Mass. toted up the number of tickets he'd need for relatives to see him graduate he came up with 17. Usually the Naval Academy allows each graduate seven. But in Rotondi's case they waived the limit so his parents, 12 brothers and sisters, his fiancée and her parents could all attend as his personal rooting section.

YOU CAN DIE LAUGHING

By A.A. FAIR (ERLE STANLEY GARDNER)

CHAPTER II

Friday Morning dawned with promise of a fine Southern California day—clear blue sky, warm sunlight, crystal-clear snow-capped mountains, and the smell of greenery in the air.

I had breakfast at my usual restaurant: soft-boiled eggs, dry toast, coffee, marmalade.

I checked the vital statistics again. Drury Wells had married Estelle Ambler. There was no record of a divorce. Estelle Ambler had given her address as Sacramento, I made a note of the address, got a Sacramento telephone directory, and looked for the Amblers. There was a Mrs. Gordon Ambler, and the address was the same as the one Estelle had given.

I put through a station-to-station call at that address. "Estelle there?" I asked. "She's out at the moment. She'll be in, in about half an hour. Do you want to leave a message?" a woman's voice asked.

"No, I'll call her late," I said and hung up.

I wrote down the amount of the telephone call and started a special leaf in my notebook entitled "Suspense Expenses."

I telephoned the airlines. A non-stop Convair left for Sacramento in forty-seven minutes. I made a reservation, climbed in the agency heap, and made time to the airport. I hoped there would be time to telephone Bertha, but they were calling the plane by the time I had parked the car and picked up my ticket. I sprinted for the plane, and as I was fastening the seat belt, speculated which would be worse for Bertha's blood pressure: to put in a day without knowing where I was, or to have me notify her by long distance from Sacramento. It was six of one and half a dozen of the other, so I settled back in the seat and tried to read. Usually, the droning of the perfectly synchronized engines of an airliner relaxes me into almost instant sleep. This time I couldn't make it. I tilted my chair back, closed my eyes, and my mind simply started racing, so I propped the seat up straight and looked out the window.

The winding path of the old Ridge Route stretched out below. Then we left Frazier Mountain and Sawmill Mountain on our left and glided out over the San Joaquin Valley.

I could look far down below and see the tiny specks of automobiles inching their way along the thread of highway. Off to the right, the Sierra Nevada were a solemn procession of snow-capped peaks against the blue of the sky.

I sat there, my eyes glued to the window, my mind turning over as fast as the engines on the airplane. There had to be an answer to the thing somewhere. However, I had to confess that I was on a wild-goose chase, and to say that Bertha wouldn't approve of the expenditure of time and money, would be putting it very, very mildly. In fact, Bertha would have blown a gasket.

Then the stewardess served lunch and I relaxed.

We came down in Sacramento. I went over to a drive-yourself agency, showed my credit card, and picked up a rented car. I drove out to the address of the Ambler home.

It was a typical, old-time Sacramento house, reminiscent of a bygone day in California. It was a tall, two-story affair with great wooden ceilings, long windows with wooden ventilator-shutters on the inside, and a mass of shade trees on the outside, trees that had been planted long before the automobile had been invented. I climbed wooden stairs, which had begun to disintegrate, to a shaded front porch and pressed the button of a doorbell. A gray-haired woman with bird-bright eyes appeared in the doorway.

"Does Mrs. Drury Wells live here?" "Yes." "Are you Mrs. Ambler?" "Yes."

"I'd like to talk with Mrs. Wells for a while." "What about?" "I gave her my best smile, and said, 'It's personal. It has to do with her marriage, but I don't want to annoy her at all. I'd like to have you sit in on the conversation, if you would, Mrs. Ambler. Perhaps you could be of some help.'"

"What's your name?" "Donald Lam." "By any chance, are you the man who telephoned long distance this morning and asked for Estelle?"

"Yes." "Why did you do that?" "To see if she was home." "Why?" "I didn't want to waste a lot of airplane fare and a lot of time on a wild-goose chase."

"What's your business?" "I'm a detective—a private detective."

"What are you after?" "I'm trying to find out what has happened to the second Mrs. Wells."

"The second Mrs. Wells?" "Yes." "There isn't any second Mrs. Wells."

"I might have some information that you people would like to hear."

"Come in," she said. I followed her through a small reception hall into a large, high-ceilinged living room with tall windows that looked out on the shaded yard, giving the room an appearance of restful coolness, although it was still too early for the hot weather to have set in. "Sit down," she said. "I'll get my daughter."

She left the room and was back in a minute with a tired-eyed brunette who seemed to have been thrown in the sponge as far as life was concerned. There was a dispirited sag to her shoulders and a droop to her mouth. She evidently hadn't turned on her personality for so long she had forgotten how. (To Be Continued)

Dixie's Democrats Can Thank Ike And Brownell For 'Assist'

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern Democrats can thank the Eisenhower administration for a big assist in shooting the President's civil rights bill to pieces. Eisenhower and Atty. Gen. Brownell both contributed.

Eisenhower helped the Southerners' complaint that the bill was full of hidden gimmicks by saying, just before it came up in the Senate, there were some things in it he didn't understand himself.

That was on July 3, one day after a savage Southern attack on the bill as "cunning and devious." All year until then he had been calling it "moderate and decent."

By July 3 he had plenty of time to understand it. It was before Congress two years. In June, with his backing, the House passed it. In those two years it should not have taken one of his lawyers more than an hour to give him a full explanation.

Brownell helped the Southerners not by saying too much but by saying too little.

His Justice Department lawyers wrote the bill. But never, at repeated appearances before congressional committees, did he volunteer or give under hard questioning full information on all that Part 3 of the four-part bill would do.

The result: When the Southerners dug up a couple of features Brownell had never mentioned about Part 3—on the use of troops and compulsory informers — it came as a surprise, even to some of the bill's most ardent Senate supporters.

The Southerners made the troops and informer angles two of their major points of attack. If Brownell himself knew about these two angles, he could have deprived them at least of the element of surprise and the charge of cunning by frankly talking about them months ago.

Part 3 would strengthen the government's hand when civil rights are violated by amending an old law of 1871—under which only an injured individual could go into court—to let the attorney general go in for him.

That old law is called Section 1985. Two other old laws, passed to back up Section 1985, were still on the books.

One would empower the President to use troops to enforce court orders in civil rights violations under Section 1985; the other would penalize people who knew of a conspiracy to violate someone's civil rights but didn't tell the government.

Since those laws on troops and informers apply to Section 1985, they would also apply if the Eisenhower bill was passed to amend and strengthen the section.

There was no reason for surprise about this, for none of this was actually hidden from anyone who took the trouble to look up civil rights laws in a book called the U.S. Code, which is a compilation of laws.

Section 1985 and the laws on troops and informers are all there within three pages of one another, and they show, if anyone reads them, that the statutes on troops and informers are linked directly with Section 1985.

Since Eisenhower seems to have no desire to use troops in civil rights cases—he said as much—Brownell could have anticipated the Southerners' attack months ago and disarmed them by doing this:

By frankly telling Congress of the relation between the Eisenhower bill, Section 1985, and the laws on troops and informers, and saying, since the President wanted to use neither troops nor informers, both old laws could be repealed.

The government wouldn't have lost a shred of power, for there are other laws, not related directly to the Eisenhower bill, under which the President could use troops to back up a court order in civil rights cases.

But Brownell said nothing. The Southerners said plenty. To appease them, the rest of the Senate this week repealed the use-of-troops law which applies to Section 1985. This, of course, was an empty gesture in view of the fact that the other laws on the use of troops still stay on the books.

By midweek the Southerners had created so much misgiving in the Senate about Part 3 of the bill that finally the Senate knocked that out altogether. Now the administration has only pieces of its bill left.

Concert Will Close ECC Music Camp

Concerts by bands, orchestras and vocal groups highlight the two final days of the 1957 Music Camp at East Carolina College on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon.

Under the general direction of Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, chairman of the East Carolina College Music Department, the Music Camp has drawn 373 high school musicians from 35 states this year. A staff of 35 instructors has assisted in the daily period of music preparation.

Concerts in Wright Auditorium on Saturday afternoon at 4:30 will present all students in their respective areas of musical studies.

Opening with music by the White, Red and Blue Bands, the majorettes will also perform in this section of the program. During the musical portion presented by the White Band, conducted by W. T. Hearne of Henderson, the three majorette classes which have been conducted by Miss Doris Robbins of Roanoke Rapids, Irvin Duggan of Manning, S.C., and Robert Ellwanger of East Carolina College band and Rockingham, N.C., will perform their routines.

Name 'Advisors' On Peanut Law

RALEIGH (AP)—A five-member advisory group to help administer a new law requiring licensing of peanut buyers has been named by Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine.

The commissioner appointed the group yesterday. He announced the State Board of Agriculture will consider regulations to carry out the law at a meeting here Monday.

Committee members are J. F. Turner of Jackson, representing growers; R. Gilbert Whitley of Como, representing commission buyers; R. V. Knight of Tarboro, representing the Cooperative Marketing Assn. serving peanut growers; Rupert Cowan of Williamston, representing millers and shellers; and Joe S. Sugg of Rocky Mount, representing the North Carolina Peanut Growers Assn., Inc.

Other matters before the agriculture board will include a morning public hearing on proposals to define "whipped cream" and "table cream topping," to fix regulations for dispenser milk shake machines, and to clarify provisions governing farm bulk milk tanks. An afternoon hearing will deal with regulations under the voluntary meat inspection law passed by the last Legislature.

'No Segregation' Policy At Airport

GREENSBORO (AP)—The Greensboro-High Point Airport Authority and the airport restaurant operator say segregation of the races is not practiced at the airport.

The contention was made in answer to a suit filed last month by a New York City woman, Martha S. Brisbane.

She claimed she was denied service at the airport restaurant last Feb. 3.

However, in an answer to the suit filed in Middle District Court, the restaurant operator, Steve Bartis, said service has not been denied to Negroes or any other persons because of color.

Bartis said if the woman was denied service it was done without his knowledge or consent and was in violation of the restaurant's policy.

He said the policy was one of "serving the general public who are in the course of interstate travel or interstate commerce without distinction based on color."

The Airport Authority said Bartis operated the restaurant under a "bona fide" lease for his own benefit and that, for this reason, the Authority members are "not indispensable, necessary or proper parties" to the suit.

The members also said the airport itself was not being operated on a segregated basis on the date the woman said she was denied service.

Christian Church Announcements

"God's Business Is Good Business" will be the subject of the sermon Sunday morning at the 8th Street Christian Church. This will be the last message of the minister before leaving for a few weeks vacation in the western Carolina mountains. The male quartet composed of Ralph Sullivan, Cliff Sullivan, Tom Swain, and Robert Moyer will sing a number entitled, "Softly and Tenderly" by Thompson.

A steering committee for the proposed new Christian Church has been appointed. The committee met this past week and the chairman is issuing an invitation to all those who may be interested in uniting with the new church to meet Sunday morning at the Sunday school class period in the Married Couples Classroom to hear the first report of the steering committee.

A number of the intermediates of the church have been in Camp Caroline this past week including the following: Harry Williams, Nancy Forrest, Brenda Bowden, Bobby Williams, Janice Williams, Buddy Waters, Buddy Hellwig, Kay Berry, and Barbara Brooks. Rev. William O. Haney, pastor of the Northwest Christian Church, Kinston, N. C. will be the guest minister in our church on Sunday morning August 4 and August 11. The members of the church and our visiting worshippers are most cordially invited to hear him on those two Sunday days.

The following young people of the 8th Street Christian Church are sponsoring the attendance at church next Sunday morning and they solicit the cooperation of all the members of the church, Sunday school, and visitors to make this the best Sunday's attendance in the month of July: Joyce Sutton, Polly Batts, Judy Jolly, Bryce Cummings, Billy Boyd Cox, Billy Goodwin, Ray Smith, J. Roy Martin, Jr. and Walker Lee Allen.

MUNOKE, Ind. (AP)—Jesse Gilmer knew that the battery of his wife's car at their home in nearby Gaston was dead. He and a neighbor pushed the car for several miles without even a cough. The two men lifted the hood. No battery. Mrs. Gilmer had had it taken away to be charged.

Campaigning For Grandfather Day

LYNWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Why shouldn't Grandfather have his day? That's what Mrs. Mary M. Bannister of Lynwood wants to know. She's campaigning for establishment of an annual national observance of Grandfather's Day.

"We now have Mother's Day, Father's Day and Grandmother's Day," says Mrs. Bannister. "Why should Grandfathers be forgotten?"

Busy Agenda Today For N.C. 4-H Club Session

RALEIGH (AP)—Election of new state officers was the big item on the program today for delegates to the annual State 4-H Club week.

An address on citizenship by Asst. Secretary Edward Foss Wilson of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare also was scheduled as the week's events neared an end.

Coronation ceremonies for 4-H health king and queen, Jimmy Cherry, 16, of Wilmington and Linda Miriam Lee, 16, of Polkton last night climaxed the annual health pageant. Dr. Rachel Davis of Kinston, representing the State Medical Society, crowned the health royalty.

Rowan County clubmembers staged the pageant, titled "Wake up and Live" and authorized by Billy Ann Stanback.

Jane Hinson of Stanly County and Helen Lewis of Robeson were candidates for State 4-H Council president in today's runoff election. Bill Pennell of Caldwell is outgoing president.

Other candidates were: vice president, Jimmy Boles of Stokes and Floyd McCall of Transylvania; secretary - treasurer, Graham of Davidson and Charles Taylor of Transylvania.

Nancy Thompson of Mecklenburg won election as historian in the first vote yesterday.

A candlelighting ceremony tonight will end 4-H Club Week, which began Monday on the campus of North Carolina State College. Some 1,300 delegates attended.

Contest winners selected yesterday included: Poultry marketing, Lucille Mayes and Johnny Nantz, Iredell County; wildlife conservation, Carroll Parker, Transylvania; vegetable and fruit production, Larry Dilda and Horace Corbett, Pitt;

Escaped Killer Found Victim Of Snakebite

COLUMBIA (AP)—An escaped murderer was found dead today of snakebite in the dismal reaches of Wateree River Swamp.

Another prisoner, rapist Roy Thurmond of Pelser, was captured early today, leading to discovery of the body of L. J. Williams.

Both Negro men escaped a work detail at Boykin Prison Farm of the State Penitentiary during a downpour yesterday. They apparently separated after their escape.

Thurmond, 25, serving 21 years since last year, was spotted today about six miles from the point of escape.

Williams, sent to prison for life from Greenville, apparently was bitten by a rattlesnake when he sought to elude bloodhounds put on his trail, Supt. Wyndham Manning said.

Williams was sentenced in 1952. He was 37 years old.

SUMMER WAITRESS

Each summer, some five to seven thousand college students take to the national parks to spend their vacations waiting on tables, carrying suitcases, or cutting trails. A typical co-ed is Carolyn Lund of Fergus Falls, Minn., a senior at Gustavus Adolphus College majoring in chemistry and biology. She worked last summer as a waitress at the lodge in Wyoming's Grand Teton National Park. She is back there again this summer.

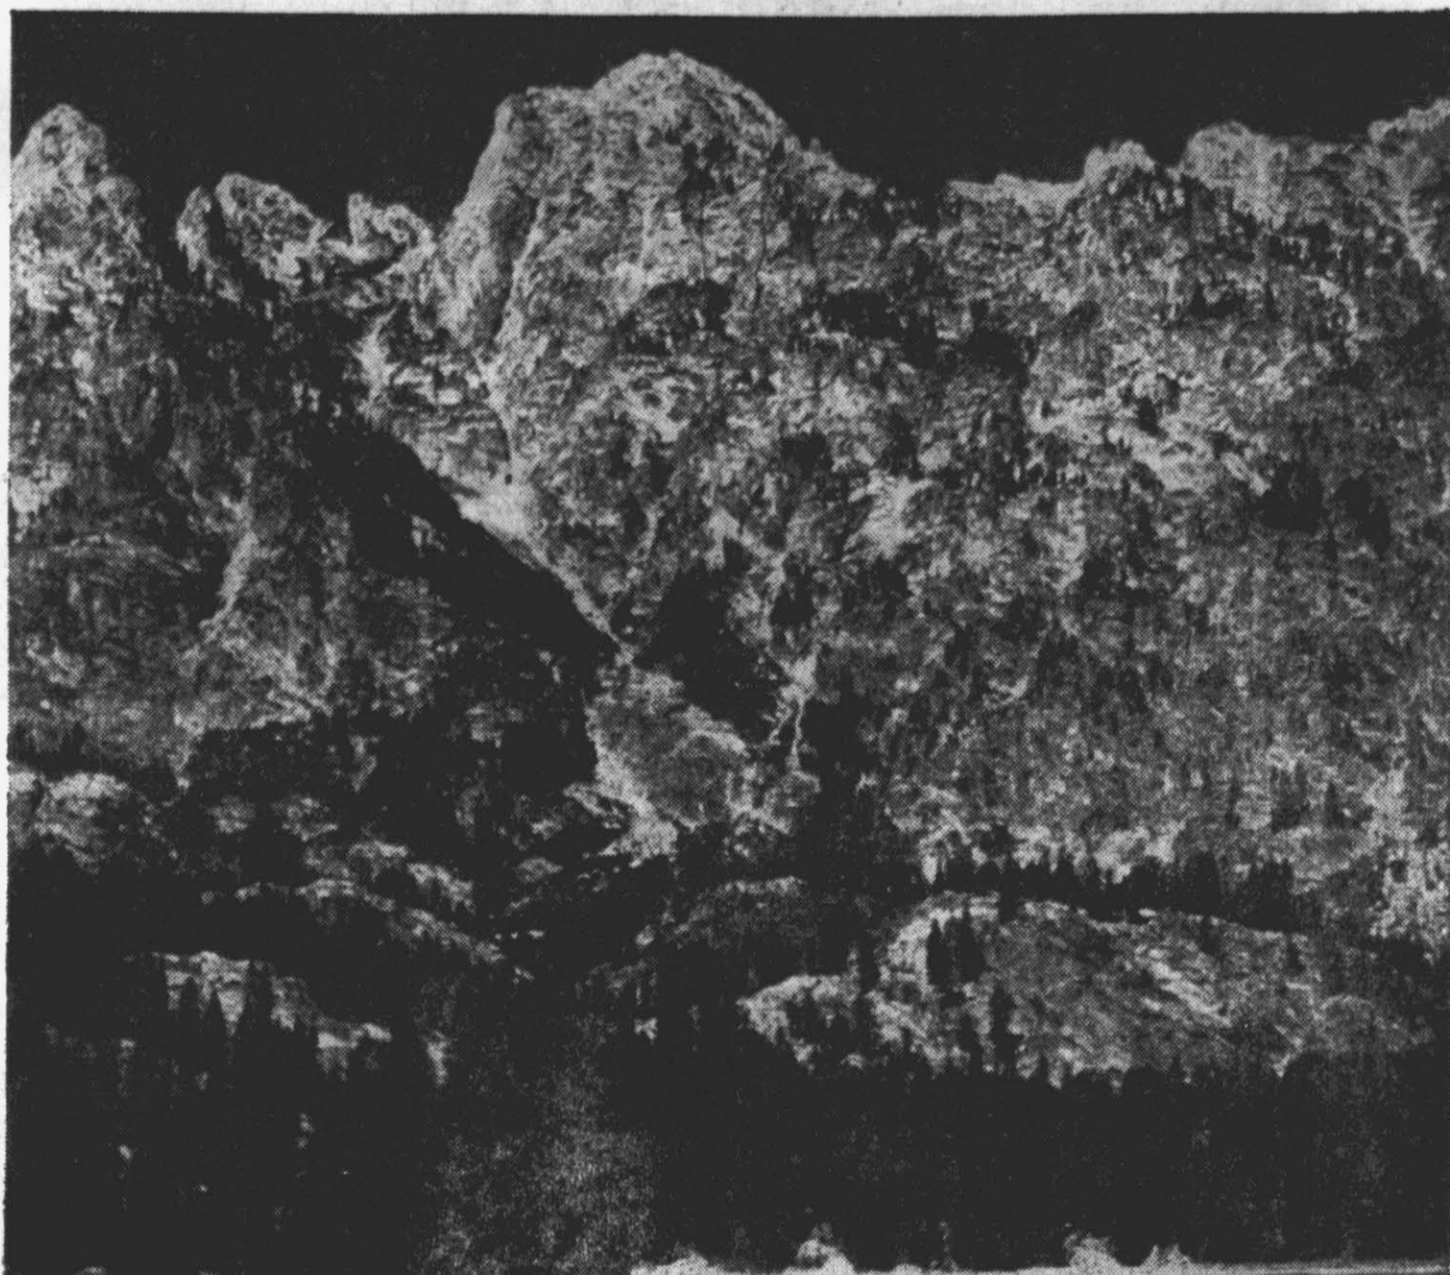

Between carrying trays, Carolyn finds time to ride, swim, fish, and go on moonlight picnics. She also likes to climb mountains. Last summer she got to the top of Grand Teton, 13,766 feet high. There are ten other major peaks waiting she'd like to scale. Carolyn's summer of work and play is pictured here.

Orders are taken by Carolyn in the picture-window dining-room of the lodge overlooking Jackson Lake. Like other student employees, she wears badge with name and school listed for benefit of guests.

Off on rock climbing expedition during her day off, Carolyn has her gear checked by Park Ranger when registering for climb. Alan Williamson, left, is student employed as seasonal ranger.

Carolyn stretches for foothold as Alan Williamson holds safety rope on practice climb. Mountain climbing is popular sport in Grand Teton National Park.

Speeding across Jenny Lake with friends, Carolyn finds aquatic thrills amid mountainous scenes.

Carolyn and friend, Virginia Paine, start off for ride along one of the many trails near the lodge.

News from home is shared in dormitory, just as it would be at college. Carolyn reads letter to chum.

WALL STREET — The stock market sold off for small losses early this afternoon with trading at a slow pace.

Key stocks mostly showed fractional losses although a few ran their declines to around 2 points. A smattering of minor gains dotted the list.

Steels, motors and rails, recent favorites, turned downward while metals and chemicals were mixed. Aircraft manufacturers mostly scored slight gains.

A feature of the market was selling in Chrysler and Bethlehem Steel, both of which had reported record-breaking earnings for the first half of the year after the market closed yesterday.

Chrysler dropped more than 2 points at the opening, rallied slightly and then fell back again. Selling apparently came from those who had anticipated the good earnings report and had instructed their brokers to sell after it came out.

Much the same pattern was followed by Bethlehem Steel, although on a more subdued scale. Its loss was limited to a major fraction. Among other steels declining were Republic and Youngs.

town, but Lukens traveled its own path to gain a fraction. News that General Dynamics and Liquid Carbonic were considering a possible merger on a share-for-share basis evidently inspired no enthusiasm among followers of either stock. They both declined, General Dynamics falling around a point.

In the motors, Ford and General Motors followed Chrysler lower, but limited losses to fractions. Goodyear and Goodrich declined in the rubber list. Radio-television shares also sank with Zenith off about 2 points.

After three days of advances, during which they had become quite active, the rails ran into trouble. The decline was paced by New York Central, which tumbled more than a point on a poor June and first half earnings report.

Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania also sank but Illinois Central gained about 1/2 point against the trend.

Loew's, involved in a management struggle for control, dropped to a new low for the year. Other motion picture shares showed little change.

Du Pont gained a point to lead chemical shares early, but reduced this advance in subsequent dealings. Air Reduction and Allied Chemical also moved up.

Meet 'The Falcon'
The air force's newest model of its deadly falcon air-to-air guided missile is displayed at a Pentagon news conference in Washington. Roy E. Wendahl, left, Vice President of the Hughes Aircraft Co., the manufacturer, and Maj. Gen. Ralph P. Swofford Jr., director of Air Force research and development, explain the operation of the weapon. The Falcon II has a built-in heat seeking device in its nose to guide it to its prey. The first Falcon used radar. The missile is about 6 1/2 feet long and weighs slightly more than 120 pounds. British Threaten Step Up Blows Against Rebels

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP)—The British threatened today to step up their air strikes against rebellious tribesmen in Muscat and Oman unless the rebels stop their fight against the British-allied Sultan.

"If the rebels don't give up," a responsible British source said, "the air attacks will be increased considerably."

The first strike against the dissident tribesmen was carried out Wednesday and followed up yesterday.

The RAF said its Venom fighter-bombers hit an apparently empty fort used by the rebels at Izk with cannon fire and rockets. Yesterday's raids struck rebel headquarters, barracks and other buildings in the Niwza area.

LONDON (AP)—Royal Air Force Venom fighter-bombers attacked rebel strongholds in Oman today for the third straight day, according to dispatches reaching British newspapers.

These reports said the planes fired rockets and cannon shells into a fort at Tanuf, seven miles from rebel headquarters at Niwza, after expiration of a 48-hour warning. The dispatches said the Tanuf fort was deserted when the planes hit it.

Earlier in the day, Britain angrily denied charges that RAF planes were attacking civilians—and bypassing military targets—in the raids against rebel strongholds.

A Foreign Office statement described as "pure invention" statements issued in Cairo by a representative of the rebel leader, Imam Ghalib bin Ali, alleging that there were civilian casualties in the RAF strikes against Niwza, capital of the remote Arabian Peninsula sultanate.

Britain says it sent planes against rebellious tribesmen at the request of the Sultan of Muscat and Oman.

Official statements in London have said RAF sorties were carried out against rebel-held forts yesterday, but only after the RAF gave the Imam's followers 48 hours to clear out. Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told Parliament yesterday no casualties were observed after the raids.

Today's statement was issued shortly after Lloyd conferred with U. S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney. The meeting was arranged at Lloyd's request. No details were disclosed but a foreign office spokesman said the Americans are being kept closely informed of developments in Oman and Muscat.

'Guilty' Plea Entered By Williamston Airman

SHAW AIR FORCE BASE, S.C.—Airman I.C. Bernie L. Ormand of Williamston, N.C., today pleaded guilty to eight counts of larceny in an Air Base payroll scandal.

A general court-martial composed of three lieutenant colonels, four majors and three captains heard testimony that the 37-year-old airman took $1,528 during a period from April 30 to Aug. 15, 1956.

The court retired to reach a sentence. Ormand faces a maximum of 40 years in prison (5 years on each count), dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

He was the first to go on trial of about 20 persons charged in connection with about $38,000 in shortages in this air base's finance office.

The only witness called was Albert C. Ducker of Sumter, a civilian cashier at the base finance office, who testified after Ormand entered his guilty plea.

A large crowd packed the courtroom for the trial, which started at 7:30 a.m.

Ormand, an Army veteran of World War II, joined the Air Force in 1951. He is married and has two sons, aged 8 and 12.

The court officers included Maj. John B. Higby, law officer (judge), of Donaldson Air Force Base, Greenville, a graduate of the University of North Carolina. The court board, military equivalent of a jury except that it has the power to determine sentence, included:

Lt. Col. Edward H. Taylor, Howard E. Short and Donald J. McClellan; Maj. Thomas J. Spraganc, James B. Wall, Louis R. Barnett and Timothy Flanagan; and Capt. Raymond P. Hamilton, John E. Masterson and J.C. McClure, all of Shaw AB.

Capt. William A. Crawford served as trial counsel (prosecutor), assisted by 1st Lt. Frank P. Della Posta, and 1st Lt. William Garcia served as defense counsel, assisted by 1st Lt. Robert Oster.

Flu Alert For Exposed Scouts

Pitt County Physicians, and other North Carolina doctors, have been alerted to keep an eye on Boy Scouts who have been exposed to an Asiatic strain of flu.

Several cases of the disease were reported among California Scouts who attended the National Jamboree last week at Valley Forge, Pa.

The alert was sent out by Dr. J. W. R. Norton, State Health Officer, in a message to county health departments. The message asked that North Carolina physicians contact their health departments if any cases are discovered. "I do not anticipate any real hazard," Dr. Norton said. He explained that exposure under close confinement would have been likely to produce cases, but that Scouts at the Jamboree lived in tents. The Jamboree was concluded last weekend.

Dr. Walter C. Humbert, director of the Pitt County Health Department, said this morning that no cases of the Asiatic strain had been reported in this county.
