Hodges Defends Waynick Choice; Denies Politics Played Any Part

Governor Strikes Back At Critics; Says He Wanted 'Civilian Approach'

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Hodges struck back today at critics of his appointment of Capus Waynick as North Carolina's adjutant general by saying politics never crossed his mind in making the appointment.

Hodges, who returned Tuesday from a 17-day vacation, told reporters at his news conference he thought the criticism over the Waynick appointment "has been played up more than justified and will come out all right."

Waynick, a civilian with some military experience, was named July 12 by Hodges to replace Maj. Gen. John Hall Manning effective Aug. 18.

"I chose him," Hodges said, "because I had decided on a basic concept for the National Guard. That concept, he added, "was to get a civilian approach."

Hodges said the job of adjutant general is primarily an administrative job. The governor refused to be drawn into making further comment on the recent developments in the school segregation issue.

During his vacation last week, Hodges' office issued a statement in which he was quoted as saying, in effect, he neither approved nor disapproved of the actions of the Charlotte, Greensboro and Winston-Salem school boards in reassigning a few Negro students to white schools.

A newsman asked the governor if he thought the actions of the school boards strengthened the state's stand in event the pupil assignment law is tested in the courts.

Hodges replied by saying he thought that opinion should come from the attorney general. He added that he has "repeatedly expressed myself" on the segregation problem. "That position," he said, "has not changed."

The governor made brief comment on the controversy over action by the State Board of Medical Examiners in deciding to delicense about 30 foreign doctors employed at state institutions.

"I am extremely hopeful," he said, that the Board of Medical Examiners and the Hospitals Board of Control "will resolve their problem. I am hopeful they will not have to bring it up to me."

The governor said he wanted to "voluntarily" comment on the Waynick appointment. He told newsmen it was understandable "about the misconception" that could arise over the appointment.

Hodges said he announced the appointment on the day before he left to go on his vacation July 12 because the news "had leaked."

New Rule On Discounted Leaf Varieties Awaited

Pitt County tobacco farmers who have part of their 1957 crop in discounted varieties may have to wait until tomorrow to get some relief promised yesterday by State ASC headquarters in Raleigh.

A letter giving county ASC groups permission to issue, at their own discretion, marketing cards for both discounted and regular types of tobacco at the same time was not received this morning by the Pitt County office.

A spokesman for the local office said however, that the letter "may come in this afternoon."

Herace Godfrey, State ASC Administrative Officer, said yesterday the letter would change a regulation passed in January which requires farmers to dispose of their discounted leaf before they can obtain a marketing card for regular varieties. He added, however, that the new rule will hold good only if the two types of tobacco are on separate farms.

Godfrey also said that the new rule would be implemented only by choice of county committees throughout the state. If it is used, he stated, the new regulation would prevent farmers from having to wait to sell their regular varieties of tobacco.

The new regulation came in the wake of loud protests from farmers who have been found to have discounted varieties of tobacco in their 1957 crops. Farmers who have protested the "wait-to-sell" rule passed in January say that the regulation is tying up their entire profits for the year, and working hardships on both landowners and tenants.

Godfrey also said yesterday that all marketing card regulations have been made "in order to protect the best interests of the grower" in the light of government penalties. He explained that farmers who sell unauthorized tobacco on regular marketing cards face reduction of acreage allotments for the 1958 growing season.

Thus far, all county committees have been issuing blue marketing cards to farmers with discounted varieties. Farmers who receive such cards could not, under the January regulation, obtain white (regular) marketing cards until they dispose of their discounted types.

Because the letter has not yet been received in the Pitt County office, no action has been taken by local ASC officials on the new directive.

The county has been without a full ASC committee since last week when the regularly elected three-man group resigned following a dispute over authority.

ASC county community delegates have set August 6 as the date to choose a third member of the new county committee. J. Lyman Edwards, first alternate on the old committee, became chairman of the new group when Jamie Wilson, Carl Scott and Rufus Hardee handed in their resignations to Godfrey last week. Hardee Johnson, another alternate, moved into the vice-chairmanship after the three men resigned.

Washburn said that in 1954 when he was seeking to oust Dio from the UAW-AFL, he went to David Dubinsky, president of the ILGWU, to ask his aid but got no help from Dubinsky. The latter is an AFL-CIO vice president and a member of the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee.

Washburn said Dubinsky "got very excited" when Washburn told Dubinsky that the ILGWU once itself had retained Dio to do an organizing job at a Roanoke, Va., plant.

Racketeer Said Used By Union

Former Official Says Johnny Dio Employed To Help Organize Plant

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former union official testified today New York racketeer Johnny Dio once was employed by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union to help organize a Roanoke, Va., plant.

Lester Washburn, former president on the old-AFL United Auto Workers—now named the Allied Industrial Workers in the AFL-CIO—gave the testimony to the Senate Rackets Committee.

The date of Dio's alleged employment for the Roanoke job was not brought out specifically, but it was indicated it was around 1950.

Washburn said that in 1954 when he was seeking to oust Dio from the UAW-AFL, he went to David Dubinsky, president of the ILGWU, to ask his aid but got no help from Dubinsky. The latter is an AFL-CIO vice president and a member of the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee.

Washburn said Dubinsky "got very excited" when Washburn told Dubinsky that the ILGWU once itself had retained Dio to do an organizing job at a Roanoke, Va., plant.

Washburn said he was misled when he let Dio into the UAW-AFL.

Washburn told the Senate Rackets Committee he granted a charter to the union's Local 102 in New York in 1950 without ever knowing Dio was financing it. He said he was told the charter was wanted by a group which was quitting a rival CIO union in belief it was Communist dominated.

In 1954, Washburn fired Dio out of the union and suspended seven locals Dio allegedly controlled, but his executive board promptly reversed those orders and cleared Dio. Washburn then resigned.

Washburn, who said he now operates a summer resort near Rhinelander, Wis., was called as the committee prepared to quiz Dio's former bodyguard 240-pound Teddy Rii, who pronounces his name, and spells it, as "Ray."

RALEIGH (AP)—Representatives of the State Hospitals Board of Control and the State Board of Medical Examiners met today seeking a compromise on the employment of foreign doctors in the state's mental hospitals.

The two groups met in what J. M. Broughton Jr., a member of the Hospital Board, described as "a sort of round table type of affair to see if we can reach any common ground in this matter."

Both Broughton and John W. Umstead, chairman of the Hospitals Board, expressed hope the controversy could be settled before Gov. Hodges meets with principals in the case tomorrow.

Broader Civil Right Amendment Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said today a new addition to the jury trial amendment proposed as part of the civil rights bill would "confer an important new civil right" on American citizens.

The Senate Democratic leader told newsmen, however, that he has no idea whether it would influence the touch-and-go battle over the jury trial issue.

Senator Knowland of California, the Republican leader, said he is confident that supporters of the administration bill still have enough votes to defeat the amendment.

The amendment would require jury trials in criminal contempt cases arising from federal court injunctions against interference with voting rights.

Johnson said a new civil right would be granted by a section added to the amendment last night. That new language would permit Negroes or others to serve as federal court jurors regardless of whether they were qualified under state laws. Federal jurors now must meet state jury standards.

Johnson read to the Senate a letter sent to all senators from the presidents of the 12 railroad brotherhoods urging adoption of a jury trial amendment.

"The right to trial by jury has been recognized as an essential safeguard of liberty since the birth of Western democracy," the letter said. "We therefore favor the enactment of an amendment to the civil rights bill that would preserve or extend the right to trial by jury."

Knowland promptly reread a statement issued earlier in the week by the AFL-CIO executive committee saying that any meaningful right-to-vote bill "must not be burdened with a crippling jury trial amendment."

Johnson said all except two of the railroad brotherhood presidents are members of the AFL-CIO. He listed the two as B. O. Hughes, president of the Order of Railroad Conductors and Brakemen, and W. P. Kennedy, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

The United Mine Workers president, John L. Lewis, had urged approval of a jury trial amendment at the same time the AFL-CIO executive committee opposed it.

In its present form, the jury trial amendment to the civil rights bill would apply to contempt cases arising under all federal laws—including injunctions issued in labor disputes.

Johnson told the Senate a session would be held tonight if senators wished to speak and that a Saturday session also would be held. He said a vote on the jury trial issue could perhaps be reached in the next few days.

Knowland, however, told newsmen he couldn't say that agreement is any closer on a time for voting on the amendment. He said he thinks the amendment will be defeated despite the new language on juror qualifications.

Prison Courtyard Slaying Is Probed

RALEIGH (AP)—A Central Prison courtyard slaying was probed today by State Bureau of Investigation agents and prison officials.

Martin Chavis, a 28-year-old Indian serving life for murder, died yesterday in the prison hospital. He was stabbed Tuesday evening while convicts took their after-supper hour of courtyard freedom before being locked up for the night.

Wake County Coroner Marshall Bennett said the stabbing apparently came during a fight. Prisons Director W. F. Bailey said first reports had indicated the killing had been planned.

The death weapon has not been found. Other participants in the fight, including Chavis' assailant, have not been identified.

"We have a suspect in mind, but have not yet been able to obtain sufficient proof that he is the one that did the killing," said Bailey. Two SBI agents were called in to assist Central Prison Warden K. B. Bailey in the investigation.

Some 200 to 300 prisoners milled about in the courtyard at the time of the attack.

Coroner Bennett said he was told the crowd closed around the group of about four prisoners who began fighting. Guards pushed into the crowd and found Chavis wounded. When he had been removed to the hospital, the other prisoners had moved away, Bennett added.

Chavis was stabbed twice in the front of his body and once in the back and had been struck twice on the head, the coroner said. Surgery Tuesday night and again yesterday failed to save his life.

He was 17 years old when he entered prison in 1948 to serve a life sentence imposed in Robeson County Superior Court for first degree murder.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—No early parole appeared likely today for Roger (The Terrible) Touhy, whose 199-year sentence for escaping from prison was run to three years by Gov. William G. Stratton yesterday.

Touhy, 59-year-old prohibition era Chicago gangster who also is serving a 99-year sentence in Stateville Penitentiary for kidnaping now is eligible for parole in 1960.

Touhy started serving the 99-year sentence in 1934 after he was convicted of kidnaping John (Jake the Barber) Factor. He escaped from Stateville Oct. 9, 1942, and was returned Dec. 31, 1942. The 199-year sentence he received in 1943 was to be served after 99 years.

By Stratton's commutation, his new sentence is 99 and 3 years and he will be eligible for parole after serving one-third of the sentence. He had applied for executive clemency only on the 199-year sentence.

Guides Brakeless Runaway Truck Down Steep Descent

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP)—A truck driver who skillfully drove his brakeless vehicle at an 85 miles an hour down a curving mountain road without denting a fender said today he's mighty lucky to be alive.

State Trooper Reu Silbaugh, a man with nerves to match those of Glenn Switzer of Fairmont, Neb., agreed with Switzer. So did nearly a score of motorists who scattered out of the path of the truck, carrying 40,000 pounds of sugar from Baltimore to Chicago, last night.

Switzer, 28, had just started to descend the three-mile Summit Mountain hill on Route 40 when his clutch failed. Then his brakes failed. By this time, he said, he was "really rollin'."

Just then, Trooper Silbaugh came along on routine patrol—in the opposite lane of traffic. He quickly swung his car around, sped past Switzer's rolling truck and kept his siren roaring. Motorists scattered.

"I was thinking about jumping a couple of times but then I looked at the speedometer," Switzer related. "The last time I looked it was rocking along about 85 miles an hour and I just said to myself: 'Man, you're crazy if you jump.' So I decided to ride her out."

Trooper Silbaugh breezed into the little community of Hopwood at the bottom of the hill and had everyone out of the way when the tractor-trailer roared into town.

"I had braked my truck against the hillside a couple of times and slowed her down to about 70 miles an hour," Switzer said. "When I got into Hopwood there was a little grade and that slowed me up. Then I saw a muddy path alongside of the road and I just pulled over and stopped."

Switzer, father of five children, collapsed and was treated for shock.

"Hell, I was scared, but I'll be driving my truck again," he said. "Nothing like this ever happened before. The trooper told me I was damn lucky and I agree. That guy did a wonderful job in clearing the path for me."

May Set Hearing Over Complaints

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress may investigate complaints—described as disturbing—concerning the marketing treatment of certain flue-cured tobacco varieties.

Rep. Abbt (D-Va.), chairman of a House tobacco subcommittee, said today complaints have been received recently from South Carolina growers.

"We are considering holding a hearing to hear from growers and Department of Agriculture officials," he said.

Two Tar Heels Among Escapees In Jail Break

BRISTOL, Va. (AP)—Two North Carolinians were among six prisoners—all considered dangerous—who escaped from Bristol City Jail last night.

The men sawed a hole through their cell and then climbed over the top of the cell block, Police Chief John Stover said.

Three hid while the others called the turkey into the area, he related. A woman in the jail heard the jailer cry out and aroused officers, who sawed off the lock on the cell block to release the jailer.

The escapees included Robert L. Swann, 35, of Weaverville, N.C., serving 3-10 years for burglary, and Thomas B. Holder, 23, of Burlington, N.C., 12 months for forgery, Stover said.

He said John Swift, 48, of Martinsville, serving 25-30 years for murder, had previously escaped from North Carolina authorities.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress may investigate complaints—described as disturbing—concerning the marketing treatment of certain flue-cured tobacco varieties.

Rep. Abbt (D-Va.), chairman of a House tobacco subcommittee, said today complaints have been received recently from South Carolina growers.

"We are considering holding a hearing to hear from growers and Department of Agriculture officials," he said.

The complaints, he added, are related to certain "outlaw" varieties. These varieties have a high yield, but in the opinion of some tobacco men are lacking in aroma and other desired qualities.

The varieties are supported at one-half the regular price under the price support program.

Rep. McMillan (D-SC) said he had received "disturbing" complaints.

Some of the farmers seem to think, McMillan said, that "there is collusion between the Department of Agriculture and some of the big company buyers."

He said he was informed that "a good many buyers bid in the outlawed tobacco at 60 and 65 cents a pound" only to have the tobacco later designated as outlawed and then rejected.

Sales, Prices On Tobacco Market Down Yesterday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Total sales and price averages were down yesterday from opening day on flue-cured tobacco markets of the Carolinas Border Belt.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported today that sales on the belt yesterday totaled 4,165,773 pounds and growers received an average of $52.86 per 100 pounds for their leaf.

The belt's South Carolina markets sold 2,143,542 pounds yesterday at an average of $53.82 while the North Carolina markets sold 2,022,231 pounds at a $51.85 average.

The news service reported that although sales were light, prices by grades yesterday were about the same as on opening day Tuesday.

Yesterday's average prices were reported unchanged to $1 under opening day levels, and some fair and low quality primings were down $2 and $4.

It was the opening day prices that angered many tobacco farmers, and one leaf official said there had been talk of hauling tobacco to Georgia-Florida markets.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported 8,930,470 pounds of leaf sold Tuesday on the belt's 19 markets for an average $54.10. Tuesday's Georgia-Florida average was $56.36.

Border belt tobacco traditionally sells higher than Georgia-Florida leaf because it is tied into small bundles for sale while tobacco is sold loose on Georgia-Florida markets.

Yesterday's quality was lower because of a smaller percentage of good primings and lugs, but primings still made up about half the marketings.

Gross sales and averages by states for Tuesday's opening: South Carolina—4,643,376 pounds averaging $55.24; North Carolina—4,297,094 pounds for an average $52.87.

Governor Names New Assistant

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges today announced the appointment of Robert E. Giles of Raleigh as his new administrative assistant.

Giles, who has served as assistant attorney general since August, 1955, succeeds Paul A. Johnston of Chapel Hill who recently was named director of the new Department of Administration.

Giles was graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1949 and the university's law school in 1952. He was in private practice in Charlotte for two years and then joined the Institute of Government at the university where he was employed until he joined the attorney general's staff.

At his news conference, Gov. Hodges said Giles "is a young lawyer of exceptional ability whose knowledge of the law and our government operations will prove to be a valuable asset."

Giles was born in South Carolina but was reared in Rutherford County, North Carolina. He served as a bomber pilot in the European theater during World War II.

In the attorney general's office, Giles has specialized in the handling of school segregation matters, including the preparation of cases and legislation on the subject.

Ready Sympathy Over Amputation

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A dog was scheduled for amputation of his left foreleg today with the sympathy and proffered aid of a policeman who accidentally shot the animal while helping subdue its master.

Detective George Spell's shotgun blast injured Puddles, a black poodle. The dog was with Edwin Starchk, 31, who was captured with the aid of tear gas after exchanging shots with officers.

Spell said he'd pay part of the veterinary bill for the dog. Starchk had threatened to kill himself. He was placed under psychiatric observation.

Defeat Measure To End Supports

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal by Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore) to withdraw government price supports from tobacco was killed yesterday by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Neuberger said he made the proposal because some scientists believe there is a link between cigarette smoking and cancer.

Sen. Talmadge (D-Ga.), a member of the committee, said action was postponed indefinitely on the proposal at a closed door meeting. He said he made the motion.

Tobacco now is classed as one of the six price-supported basic crops. The others are cotton, wheat, corn, rice and peanuts.

Churchill Would Like UN To Trim Power Of Small Nations

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill called last night for revision of the U.N. Charter to trim the power of small nations in the world organization.

Britain's elder statesman told the closing banquet of the American Bar Assn. convention: "It is anomalous that the vote or preference of any small country should affect events involving populations many times its own numbers and affect them as momentary self-advantage may direct."

Churchill said new members have swollen the General Assembly to 81 members at the same time great power disputes have thrown increasing responsibility on the Assembly.

Churchill said the United Nations has failed in many cases, citing Hungary particularly. He agreed with Prime Minister Robert Menzies of Australia that justice is not being achieved in the United Nations.

"It is certain that if the Assembly continues to take its decisions on grounds of enmity, opportunism or mere jealousy and petulance, the whole structure may be brought to nothing," he declared.

With three U.S. Supreme Court justices present, Sir Winston said the "Supreme Court in America has often been the guardian and upholder of American liberty. Long may it continue to thrive."

Final Salute To ACL President

WILMINGTON (AP)—Atlantic Coast Line Railroad employees, 1,000 strong, said goodbye to retiring President "Champ" Davys yesterday in a spontaneous demonstration.

They flanked him as he walked to the train that was to take him to Battle Creek, Mich. For the last 33 years he has spent the month of August at Battle Creek Sanitarium.

Davys said he was "very much touched" by the demonstration. He will return to Wilmington at the end of the month.

Ficklen Scholarship Winners Named; Both Plan To Attend Shaw University

Beulah Weeks and Esther Sneed, members of the Class of 1957 at C. M. Eppes High School, have been named as winners of two 800 scholarship established by members of Greenville's Ficklen family.

Both girls will enter Shaw University in September. In addition to their Ficklen awards, both will be assisted by scholarships from the University.

The Ficklen Scholarships were established in May in memory of the late James S. Ficklen of Greenville. One of the scholarships is provided by the Ficklen Fund, Inc., founded by the late Mr. Ficklen, and the other is being provided by Mrs. Ficklen and James S. Ficklen Jr.

Each of the scholarships will provide $200 a year for four years of attendance at a North Carolina college, according to terms of the awards.

Miss Weeks is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weeks, 612 Hudson Street. During her four years in high school she was a member of the French Circle, secretary of her class, and a member of the Student Council. She was ranked in the upper fourth of her class scholastically at graduation.

Miss Sneed is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Sneed, 108 Tyson Street. She, too, ranked in the upper fourth of her class and was a member of the Dramatic Club, Future Business Leaders of America, French Circle, Student Council, and Tri-Hi-Y Club.

Preliminary selection of the two winners was by a faculty committee at Eppes High School. Final selections were made by Eppes Principal W. H. Davenport and City Superintendent of Schools J. H. Rose.

Meet The Deb Who Enjoys Records

By PEGGY SMITH (Reflector Staff Writer)

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of glimpses into the lives of Pitt County debutantes.)

Mrs. C. M. Jones, grandmother of a local deb, Sarah Adams, has seen four granddaughters make their debut to North Carolina Society. Miss Adams will make the fifth member of her family to receive this honor.

After Sarah received the invitation, in her soft-spoken voice she replied, "I had hoped to be one because I was the last in the family and the word to fit the feeling was thrilled!"

Favorite Hobby
Dancing stands out as her favorite hobby. Ballet which was started in her life at an early age has stayed among her favorite ways of dancing. Collecting records of all styles is another pastime, but like other girls she likes to swim, ski, and go to parties.

Debutante Plans
John Adams, III, will escort his sister into the social spotlight as her chief marshal. She will be wearing a ball gown of satin and lace with iridescent sequins and rhinestones which will give luster to her long billowy brown hair. Mrs. Mattie Parker of Rocky Mount will put all her weekend attire into form which will be designed by Sarah herself. Debs of the past, Miss Noel Vossler, a roommate of Salem, and Miss Jane Westbrook, a cousin, will attend the gay affairs that weekend with Miss Adams. Joe Best of Clinton and Walter Perkins of Greenville will assist the debutante as marshals.

Summer Activities
In quite a humming pace the summer is filled with many things for Sarah to do. Besides attending summer school at East Carolina College, she goes to the beach on weekends. Destination—New York City, for this summer which will complete her summer's dream.

Primary education is her major in college and plans to teach in the future, but what she truly wants is "to get married and have a family," she said with a smile.

Bridge Party, Kitchen Shower Fete Bride-Elect

Last night Miss Janet Watson entertained at a bridge party-kitchen shower honoring Miss Denyse McLawhorn, bride of Saturday.

Massive arrangements of mixed summer flowers were placed throughout the Watson home on East Fourth Street.

Greeting the 16 guests were the hostess and honoree. For the occasion Miss McLawhorn wore a summer print dress.

Upon arrival guests were served limeade by the hostess. In addition to her shower gifts, Miss McLawhorn was presented a white carnation corsage by the hostess.

At the completion of the progressions, Miss Mary Dunn Beatty won high and Miss JoAnn McLawhorn low.

A white and green frozen salad was served to the guests by Mrs. T. M. Watson. Goodbyes were said to Miss Watson and Miss McLawhorn.

Testing Is Now Being Held For Greenville Cooperative School

Testing of prospective children for the Greenville Cooperative First Grade is being held this week according to Mrs. Robert Forney, secretary-treasurer of the school.

Any child who will be six years old after October 16 is eligible for testing and subsequent entry into the school which will be located in a room in the junior high school building.

Mrs. Forney explains that, "Any child eligible to enter the school must be tested before August 15. At the present time we have only three vacancies left."

Parents interested in obtaining further information are requested to call either Dr. Frank Longino, president of the group, or Mrs. Forney.

Meet With Success

"The school has met with much enthusiasm and we are very gratified," said Mrs. Forney. She continued, "Mr. Rose feels that holding a child back who is ready for school is a disadvantage to the child."

Last year the Cooperative school was not held. "The children who participated the year before have all ranked in the top 25% of their class in school," mentioned Mrs. Forney.

Testing for each applicant includes an individual I. Q. test, a reading readiness test, a vision and hearing test and a dominance test.

In 1955 Bill Watson, Dr. Malene Irons, Mrs. J. E. Waltz, Dr. Woodrow Flanary, Mrs. Michael Luskin and Dr. Leo Jenkins gathered to study the need for such a school in this community. The Greenville Cooperative First Grade resulted from this meeting.

30 Years Ago Today

August 1, 1927

A lovely surprise marriage of much interest to friends in Greenville and throughout the state was solemnized in the parlor of the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh Wednesday morning at nine o'clock when Miss Mary Moye Carper, only daughter of the late John L. Carper and Mrs. Carper of Greenville, became the bride of Mr. Leslie H. Bowling of High Point.

Laborers began breaking ground yesterday for the 10 room brick home of L. A. Stroud on W. Fifth Street.

Grace Church Will Celebrate 4th Anniversary

Grace Free Will Baptist Church, organized August 3, 1953, will celebrate its fourth anniversary Sunday, August 4.

Growth has been seen during the four years from a group of 17 people to 350 as the record attendance. It is hoped that a new record of 400 will be set on this day.

A special program has been planned which includes a combined service of the Sunday school and worship service. Chester Fussell, Chairman of the Official Board, will give a brief history of the church and its activities.

Special music, both vocal and instrumental, will be presented throughout the day. The speaker of the day will be the Rev. Herman Hersey, vice president of the N. C. State Sunday School Convention and pastor of First Free Will Baptist Church in Raleigh.

At 11:30 the service will be dismissed and the group will assemble at Elm Street Park to enjoy together a picnic dinner.

An invitation is extended to all who are friends of the church and who have had any part in helping it to be what it is today.

WOMEN WIN

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Research by a Michigan State University professor suggests that women generally do better than men in long, monotonous tasks.

Dr. Paul Bakan, assistant professor of psychology at M.S.U., bases his preliminary findings on 1 1/2-hour tests given to 20 subjects. He found that both sexes scored better in the first 15 minutes than in the remaining hour and 15 minutes, but that women did better in the long run.

In the tests, 10 men and 10 women between the ages of 16 and 35 were asked to watch a light and note changes in its brightness.

The President Misses A Point

President Eisenhower seems to be missing the biggest point objectors to federal school aid money are making, the inevitable control of all public schools by Washington.

Yesterday, in reviewing the recently defeated school aid measure, the President opined his own objections to the bill were primarily that money would be going to all states with little or no arrangement for giving a larger share to the needier states.

Further, he doubted the flow of federal money could be shut off at the end of the five-year period covered in the aid bill. The President didn't want to "fasten an albatross around the neck of the taxpayers".

The point is well taken. Once that "emergency" money began to pour forth, it would take a gutty lawmaker to say "no" to pleadings for "just a little bit more".

Then there have been a number of spokesmen who have cast considerable doubt on the so-called emergency status of America's schools. The original estimates of need have been subsequently riddled by objectors and the mushroom-growth of schools in the individual states.

There is little doubt in our own minds that when the "people back home" want schools, they'll provide them. That has been the situation ever since the close of World War II. But back to Mr. Eisenhower.

His statements on the subject clearly let it be known he doesn't believe federal aid is "something for nothing" . . . which is all to the good. Federal aid is "something for something", inevitably with the Washington end of the line getting more "something" than giving.

It isn't so much of an albatross around the neck that people have been worrying about, but the legions which lurk in the background.

It Couldn't Happen Here? - - - It Has

Assassination of Guatemala's President, Carlos Castillo Armas, by a palace guardsman, subtly underscores importance of security measures practiced in our own country.

It's difficult to conceive a Communist being assigned to protect a strongly anti-Communist president of a democratic government; but it happened, however unwittingly.

More than ever, one is reminded that no precautions are too great in dealing with fanatics.

Back in 1954 Armas led a ragtag revolt and overthrew a Communist-dominated regime. That revolution brought to light all the horrors of torture, secret executions, secret imprisonment and fearful oppression we North Americans commonly ascribe to being only behind the Iron Curtain.

They were all imported with the new creed. It can't happen here? It did.

Concentrated, But No 'Bogey'

By ELMER ROESSNER

Americans traditionally have been afraid of "great concentrations of wealth," yet today concentrations are greater than ever before and almost everyone seems content with the situation.

Those so feared in the past were personal concentrations. Sixty families, one authority believed, controlled the wealth — and the destiny — of the nation.

Concentrations today are impersonal. They are directed by boards of insurance companies, banks, mutual funds, foundations and pension and profit-sharing funds.

The largest group are the life insurance companies. They held on May 31 almost $98 billion. Commercial banks hold around $50 billion; savings and loan associations around $35 billion; mutual funds, around $10 billion, and pension and profit-sharing funds, around $5 billion.

These concentrations are so great that, theoretically, almost any one group could boom or depress the stock market or any group of industries — or affect the entire economy. However, most of these funds are nailed down in long-term investments. Life insurance companies, for instance, have almost a third of their reserves in mortgages and more than half in government, railroad and utility bonds.

High percentages of savings and loan and savings bank funds are also in mortgages. Commercial bank holdings are more fluid, largely in business loans, although some funds are in mortgages. Thus these concentrations have largely financed the postwar housing boom.

However, there is still plenty invested in stocks and other fluctuating securities. Insurance companies have $21 billion in stocks, although most of it in steady, stable, preferred issues. Mutual funds have almost all their accumulations in stocks, along with a few bonds.

The pattern of foundation investment varies, although many have sizable common stock holdings. Commerce Clearing House reports, after a survey, that trustees of pension and profit-sharing funds are tending to get out of government bonds and put more of their wealth in stocks and industrial bonds.

STABILIZES MARKETS

A by-product of these concentrations is a great stability in the stock and bond market. The funds have been invested for returns and long-term increases in value.

A stock may be under a bear attack, but the funds and foundations will not be tempted to sell — or buy more to average their investment. Their sole interest is the basic equity of the security. In the same way, they may view a bullish movement with satisfaction, but have no desire to realize their gain.

If they find it necessary to increase their holdings — and that's an almost continuous process — they are inclined to buy on recessions. If they plan to sell, they can wait for rises. Thus, their conduct is at variance from the speculator or small investor.

Some authorities believe that if there were similar huge holdings by funds, institutions and the like, prices would never have fallen so fast so far in 1929. These funds might have imparted a stability that the great Wall Street houses could not.

THERE'LL BE AN ENORMOUS MARKET FOR FOOD

Americans may some day be a race of seven-foot men and women, weighing well over 300 pounds. Well . . .

Don R. Grimes, president of the Independent Grocers Association, told a National Macaroni Manufacturers Association meeting that in 1870 American men averaged 137 pounds in weight. By 1920 the average had increased to 148 pounds. During the same period, the average weight of women increased from 116 to 127 pounds. If this rate of gain continues, Mr. Grimes said, in a thousand years men will average 370 pounds and women 346 pounds.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
REMYTE SOURCES

A group of men were discussing together the damage to a large building which had come about through a leaking roof. For months they were not able to find the leak. At last they discovered it far from the place where most of the damage occurred.

A physician, who was one of the men discussing the damage, said: "You know disease is often the result of a very remote cause. Some thing happens in one part of the body and after months and sometimes years of searching, specialists find that there is a very remote cause of the trouble; and if the remote cause can be removed, the disease is cured."

It was once said by a wise philosopher that nothing ever happens to a man that is not of the nature of himself. Something happens in our lives and we begin immediately pointing out certain things or certain persons as the cause. But wait. Look more deeply into the situation. The cause of the trouble may be much more remote than you suspect. Your problem may have its origin in circumstances long since past. It may not be something else who has caused your trouble but some perversity or evil within yourself.

If you can't find an immediate cause for troublesome situations, start exploring. The cause may be very remote. It may be hidden far away, far back, far within.

Five Writes of Man

By BILLY ARNOLD

Met On Common Ground

SCENE: A small service station-General Store about eight miles West of Greenville. The owner, a thin, raw-faced young man who is troubled with arthritis, limps painfully behind the counter to wait on a colored man who has just entered with an armful of empty drink bottle cartons.

The owner grins and extends a trembling hand to receive the cardboard cartons.

"How many you want this time, Alfred?"

"Got it wrote down."

The colored man is short, heavy and good-natured. He is wearing sweat-drenched work clothes. He works for a construction crew that is putting up a new school building close by.

The owner reads off the list and begins to pile the drinks on the counter.

"You never did bring me them other bottles," he says, cutting his eyes at the Negro.

"Yassuh. What bottles?"

"Ummmmmm," says the white man, thoughtfully. "You ain't got enough cartons for this many drinks, neither."

"Yassah. I don't reckon so." He is grinning widely.

The white man holds up a faded and warped carton. "Look what you brought me. What happen to this? Every time you come in you get new cartons."

"Yassuh. Well, dey don't last long." He's laughing now.

"What?"

"You get 'em wet one time and dey about gone."

The white man grins slightly.

"What you doing getting them wet anyhow?"

"Rain. It rain on 'em."

"Rain? Ain't you got no roof on your house, Alfred?"

"Nosh. Not but on one side."

They laugh quietly. Two more colored boys who have entered and stand waiting their turn, listening and laughing to themselves.

The colored man digs into his ragged trousers and brings up a crumpled dollar bill and some change. He places the change on the counter and looks at the bill. Then he hands it to the white man. "This one of them I made las' night. It's good money, though."

The white man takes it, looks at it, grinning. He puts it in the cash register. "Thank you, Alfred. Come back to see us."

"Yassuh. Got some change coming." They are both grinning.

The white man gives him two quarters. "Ahhh, could I have nickels?" asks the colored man. The owner shakes his head wearily and counts him out ten nickels.

"Yassuh," he laughs.

"What you doing with all them nickels, Alfred?" asks the owner, moving painfully toward a wicker chair.

"Yassuh," Alfred grins, leaving.

Other Editors Saying--- A Disturbing Survey

(The Dallas Times Herald)

Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth does not stand alone in being shocked by the revelations of a new book, "The American Teenager." The volume gives results of 15 years of questioning 25,000 high school students by Purdue University researchers.

It shows the following eye-openers: That 60 per cent of the youngsters polled think books, magazines and newspapers should be censored . . . That 58 per cent of the boys and girls see nothing wrong with employment of third-degree methods by police.

A third of those questioned believe it would be all right for the government to prohibit some people from making speeches . . . More than one-fourth of the 25,000 high schoolers would sanction the search of homes and private persons without a warrant.

Fifteen per cent of them would deny certain criminals the right to legal counsel, and 13 per cent believe that religious belief and worship should be subject to legal restrictions.

It is obvious, as Representative Wright commented, that an appalling number of American teenagers "simply haven't been shown what America is all about." It would be comforting if it could be assumed that the youngsters who show this dangerous ignorance of American rights and their value were merely immature and could be expected to become defenders of these rights when they grow older.

But unfortunately this assumption cannot be made, for a poll of 25,000 adults in this country would show that many of them would likewise be willing to destroy America's safeguards against tyranny.

Opinions In Brief

FLAGPOLES ARE FOR USE (Nashville Banner)

A friend just back from a visit in Connecticut reports that the thing that impressed him most about the Nutmeg State was the custom of flagpoles on residential premises. Not all yards, but a great portion of them, are so equipped, and he announced that his first project is to add that distinguishing feature to his own home. He put it this way:

"America, of course, belongs to all of us; but the share of it we OWN is the home, large or small. The flag protecting these homes belongs to us, too. We can show awareness of the fact, and pride in it, by flying the flag on appropriate occasions. Besides, we are rearing children and want them to grow up with a proper regard for it."

To all of that, Amen! . . . Old Glory belongs!

"The military do have great virtues, but thrift is not one," Senator Douglas.

"Either the motor car will drive us all out of our cities, or the cities will have to drive out the motor car—not by absolute prohibition, of course, but by restrictions of size and access, favoring small cars, and penalizing such monstrosities as those fantastic and insolent chariots with which American motor car manufacturers now burden our streets and parking lots."—Lewis Mumford.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That one out of every four American women changed the color of her hair within the last year . . . and milady now can tint her tresses keely green if she chooses.

That (here's something to cool you off!) sales of electric blankets are expected to reach a record high in 1957.

That Cuba's plush new Havana Riviera Club is giving psychiatric exams to all its chorus dancers and cigarette girls . . . but it will still hire the ones with the prettiest legs.

That Robert Q. Lewis says the trouble with a bathing suit is that it either shows you off — or shows you up.

That a firefly is not really a fly at all . . . it's a beetle. But don't tell your kid; it might break his heart.

That the wry-billed plover of New Zealand is the only bird with a bill that is bent sideways.

That men of a native tribe in New Guinea wear a cone-shaped hat glued to their head as a symbol of manhood . . . They don't have to worry about losing their hats — just their heads.

That a chorine in "Li'l Abner" said this about her date: "With him there isn't a dull moment. It lasts all evening."

That 1,506 U.S. cities and towns with a total population of more than 31,500,000 now fluoridate their water supply to fight tooth decay . . . But this program still affects fewer than 20 per cent of the American people.

Politics Is Being Put Above All

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON Rarely have Democrats and Republicans on Capitol Hill indulged in such sharp and sometimes shabby politics with regard to grave national issues and needs as at the current session of Congress. The result may be the death of legislation essential to national welfare and progress, with blame attaching to both parties.

The Republicans are deliberately wooing the Negro vote with the Administration's extreme Civil Rights Bill. But while President Eisenhower is willing to accept a compromise measure restricted to protection of voting rights, Northern Democrats have unsuccessfully insisted on applying Federal enforcement methods to areas other than the ballot box. In this way, they aim to outbid the GOP for the colored vote quite shamelessly.

Moreover, the Harriman-Wagner-Roosevelt faction in New York outdo the Democrats at Washington. They sponsor a municipal ordinance that would fine and jail property owners who discriminate against tenants because of race, color and creed. And minorities equally as influential as colored people are involved in this racial controversy.

Thus, this important problem, which has worldwide implications and repercussions, is being considered on the basis of politics rather than on its merits or national needs.

DEM'S FRAMING MEASURE TO DISCREDIT IKE The Democrats seek to discredit President Eisenhower in their handling of the Public Works Bill, which provides $1.5 billion for flood control, electric power, irrigation, post offices and other public buildings. They are framing a measure which he will veto for the very reason that led him to disapprove a similar scheme last year.

The Democrats have larded the measure with "pork barrel projects" which have not been approved by the Army Engineers or Budget Bureau, as required by law. They have eliminated the lease-purchase plan for construction of public buildings, although more than 300 of these are ready for a start in as many communities.

The Democrats have paid no heed to official warnings of a veto. They have overruled Republican protests by railroading the measure through committee by the questionable use of proxies, and without benefit of hearings or explanatory reports. Members must vote without knowing what the bill contains.

Their calculated purpose is to force another veto, thereby arousing anger against the Administration in cities and states deprived of needed improvements.

Even Chairman Charles A. Buckley, Tammany Democrat, protested against these deceptive practices. When his committee friends inserted during his absence a $500,000 swamp clearing project for Long Island, which had not been approved by the Army Engineers, he sent word to strike it from the bill.

POSTAL POLITICS—Like the communities which will suffer from this politicking, 500,000 postal workers may be victimized.

Here again, the objective is to turn this influential bloc against Ike and the GOP.

The Democrats forced through the House by an overwhelming vote—379 to 36—a pay increase estimated to cost $300,000,000 annually. Every Administration leader voted against it, but they could not hold their own ranks against such a vote-getting measure.

Whereas Ike might have approved a smaller increase, he will undoubtedly disapprove this bill on the ground that it is inflationary. If his veto is upheld, which is unlikely, he will be blamed for blocking a raise. If passed over his veto, the Democratic sponsors will claim the credit for their Party.

Although the annual accumulation of surpluses will hurt the farmer in the long run, boost prices to consumers and burden the Treasury, the Democrats oppose every attempt to reduce production incentive subsidies. They are angling for the farm vote that turned against Ike last year.

Senate Business Tangled In Big Civil Rights Debate

By JOHN CHADWICK
 WASHINGTON (AP)—How can the Senate untangle itself temporarily from the civil rights fight so that it can act on other urgent legislation?
 One way would be for all the senators to agree to do so. But it takes only the objection of one senator to block this course, as Sen. Morse (D-Ore) has demonstrated.
 In the absence of a unanimous consent agreement, the Senate is bound by its rules of procedure and these offer all sorts of complications.

 The problem is how to keep the civil rights bill from being displaced as the pending business in the Senate and yet clear the way to act on other matters.
 The bill's supporters, who had trouble getting the bill off the calendar and up for action in the first place, don't want to risk having it go back on the calendar again.
 One hitch is that the Senate is still in the legislative day of July 8. That was the day the Senate started on the civil rights debate that still is going strong.
 No matter how many calendar days go by, the Senate remains in the same legislative day until it adjourns, rather than recesses, at the conclusion of a day's business.
 Under Senate rules, a bill reported to the calendar has to lie over one legislative day before a motion to take it up for action is in order.
 This has a direct bearing on the problem of trying to act on a bill to extend the life of the Small Business Administration, which expired last midnight.
 The bill was reported to the Senate July 9 and, obviously, it has not been possible for it to lie over one legislative day since the Senate still is in the legislative day of July 8.

 In the same fix is a resolution passed by the House earlier in the week to provide stop-gap spending authority for federal agencies whose regular appropriations bills have not been passed by Congress.
 This resolution was reported to the Senate by its Appropriations Committee and placed on the Senate Calendar Tuesday—July 30 by the calendar but still in the July 8 legislative day as far as the Senate is concerned.
 Parliamentarian Charles Watkins said one possible escape from this impasse would be for the Senate to adjourn for 10 minutes, say. After this, the Senate would start a new legislative day.
 But any action on bills other than the civil rights measure would have to be taken within two hours of the start of the new legislative day—or during the period called the "morning hour."
 The morning hour, despite its name, is a period of a maximum of two hours in which senators may introduce bills and insert material in the Congressional Record.
 But after one hour of this period, or earlier if there is no further "morning business," a motion is in order to take up bills on the calendar.
 If a bill is taken up in the morning hour—and a motion to do so is subject to debate—it must be disposed of before the two-hour morning hour period ends, because at that time the Senate reverts to the business that was pending before the start of the new legislative day.
 In this case, the Senate would automatically revert to the civil rights bill but by this procedure it might be possible to sandwich the passage of some bills into a morning hour.
 If the Senate should vote to take up a bill at any time other than during a morning hour, the civil rights bill would be displaced and

AN URGE TO SUBMERGE:—Here's a couple of kids on the verge of an urge to submerge. Jon Greer, 11, and the girl next door, Sherry Haas, 8, give each other a fishy look through the view panes of their "snorkels" during a dip in the pool owned jointly by their families. The masks which provide breathing devices for underwater swimming give the scene a "boy meets girl on Mars" look. (AP Wirephoto).

Prison Term For Talkative Man

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A talkative man who couldn't resist calling his girl in Denver was sentenced to a year in prison.
 Eugene Williams, 21, received the sentence in Criminal Court after pleading guilty to storehouse breaking. He said while he was in an automobile repair shop, he called his girl friend and talked for 71 minutes.
 When the owner of the shop received a bill for $32, he informed police, who investigated and arrested Williams.

go back on the calendar.
 Then, the Senate would be back where it started July 8 when a motion was made to take up the civil rights bill. The motion was subject to a Southern filibuster, but the Dixie forces let the motion come to a vote and it carried on July 16 by a 71-18 vote.
 However, the bill's supporters don't know what might happen if the bill should get back on the calendar now.

Target Date

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Plans for a nuclear powered electric plant were announced yesterday by Carolina-Virginia Nuclear Power Associates, Inc.
 Target date for placing the plant in operation is 1962.
 Directors of the organization started preparing an application to the Atomic Energy Commission to build a type of nuclear power plant reactor which has not so far been constructed for commercial use.
 The board met at Duke Power Co., headquarters here. It conferred with representatives of three firms, all of which will assist in the design and construction of the plant.
 N. A. Cooke, Duke president and president of CVNPA, said no site has been selected for the plant.
 CVNPA members are Carolina Power & Light Co., Duke Power Co., South Carolina Electric & Gas Co. and Virginia Electric & Power Co.

Bear's Downfall Is Watermelons

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—There's a watermelon eatin' bear plaguing folks in Guilford County. That's what wildlife protector Bob Wiles said today after inspecting the watermelon patch on the farm of Zach Whittaker, in the Stocksdale - Oak Ridge area. Wiles said the bear is fair game now because of its taste for watermelon. It couldn't be shot if it weren't destroying crops.

Local Firm Boasts Having 'Complete Curing Service'

VENTILATORS—A Greenville Tobacco Curing Company worker is shown putting the finishing touches on a newly-installed Cameron Ventilator. The Cameron is regarded by most as the top product in its field and is a major seller with the Greenville company. The local firm does work all over Eastern North Carolina.

(Another in a series of articles dealing with industries already functioning in Pitt County.)
The Greenville Tobacco Curing Company, which originated 11 years ago as a seasonal aid to the farmers of this area, has skyrocketed into a major enterprise that now serves 10 North Carolina counties 12 full months a year and turns over $175,000 worth of business a year.
Travis Flanagan, general manager and a partner of the firm, tells the whole story of the local curing outfit in one sentence: "We have complete curing service."
Flanagan points out that his firm is the only one in Eastern North Carolina that can make that statement. "Other businesses handle curing as a sideline or on a part-time basis," Greenville Tobacco Curing Company, however, lives up to the "Complete Service" motto.
Their services include the sale of all curers, coal stokers, control ventilation operations. They handle the curing sales from start to finish, which means transportation, installation, and service work of all kinds.

They also deal with used curers in large volume.
What's more, they even sell bug lights.
The biggest item in the Tobacco Curing Company's operation at present is the control ventilator. "It is called the Cameron Ventilator by some," Flanagan says. It controls the flow of air through the barn, can open and close whenever the air is needed. "It takes less fuel, less time and the tobacco usually weighs more," Flanagan says.
A big operation, the Greenville Tobacco Curing Company employs about 15 workers at the peak of the tobacco season. That number does not even include the salesmen, dealers, service men and transportation men. The number of salesmen alone totals about 25.
A branch of the Company is located in Stanfordsburg, which also handles a full line of business. During a good year, according to Flanagan's figures, the Company will move close to 4,500 sets of new curers, 200-300 used curers, over 1,000 ventilators. Also some flue work is done, although "that is just about a thing of the past."

Flanagan says that "When we first started the business, flues were the biggest item. At the present time, however, that part of our work is less than 25 per cent of our total."
Another aspect of the business is transportation. Four or five trucks are kept busy constantly at the peak of the season.
Flanagan also pointed out that the Greenville business carries "All types of oil curers, too. And stoker coal for barns that use stoker service."
In short, the Greenville Tobacco Curing Company lives up to its motto that "Complete Curing Service" is its chief concern.
The firm is now located in Floyd McGowan's Number One warehouse, on Dickinson Avenue. It has formerly been located in Morton's Warehouse before the first of this year.

INSTALLING CURERS—Members of the Greenville Tobacco Curing Company installation and service crew can install and service any kind of curer. Motto for the company is "Complete Curing Service."

Frustrating

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It was a frustrating double holdup that befell market owner Paul Gertz. A robber stole $1,500 while a blonde stole the show.
The intruder pulled a gun on Gertz and told him: "I want all the bills. Hurry up. I'm nervous."
While Gertz was getting the money together, he tried desperately to attract the attention of several other customers in the store.
No luck. Their gaze was locked on a beautiful blonde customer. Gertz said the robber was tall, about 28, and had sandy hair.
The only description the customers could furnish was: "Blonde . . . lovely eyes . . . beautiful figure."

Greenville Club Snares Little League Area Crown

Hardee, Proctor Pace Tar Heels To 11-0 Victory

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor
With the efforts of Denny Hardee, J. G. Proctor and the rest of the Tar Heels, Greenville sewed up an Area Little League championship yesterday.

They walloped Havelock 11-0 in a battle which saw Hardee hurl one-hit ball and Proctor blast two home runs.

The Greenville club will next play host to High Point here at Elm Street Park Friday afternoon to determine which club will represent this district in the State Tourney at Fayetteville. Game time Friday is set for 4:00.

Close Pitching
Hardee, the blonde righthander who did his pitching for the Elks during regular season, had a no-hitter going until the last inning. The next-to-the-last man at bat—and there were two outs—spoiled the day with a dinky single.

He fanned eight batters, walked none in chalking up the victory.

Proctor, a regular catcher who played leftfield yesterday, unloaded a grand slam home run in the second inning and another with one man on base in the fifth.

The Tar Heel team backed up Hardee's hurling effort with eight hits. Ken Joyner, Johnny Reynolds, Dixie Coltraine, Dick Taft, and Frank Harper picked up the other baseknocks.

Dees was the losing hurler. He fanned seven and walked four. He issued five wild pitches to aid the Tar Heel cause.

Scoring
Greenville opened up their scoring early. Dixie Coltraine singled in Reynolds after the latter had gone to first on a single of his own. In the second frame, Joyner, Hardee and Coltraine loaded up the bases in time for Proctor's first big blast. Harper, Taft and Smith scored before the inning was over, to make it 8-0.

The next Tar Heel runs came across in the third when Ken Joyner walked and went all the way around on a trio of errors.

In the fourth, Proctor homered again with Coltraine on base, to make the score 11-0.

Coaches Charles Bland and Billy Dunn praised their club for outstanding play and have already begun to plan them for the coming High Point contest Friday.

Danville Whips Patriots, 7-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Danville frustrated Greensboro's efforts to gain ground in the Carolina League race by slapping a 7-3 defeat on the Patriots last night.

It could have been a night for Greensboro to gain, since a revived herd of Durham Bulls were busy stomping High Point-Thomasville, 6-2. Despite the loss, the Hi-Toms continued in the lead by a two-game margin.

Winston-Salem brought a shift in the lower standings by thumping Wilson, 8-0. The win moved the Red Birds to the fourth spot and dropped the Tobs down to the cellar.

Greensboro had a 3-1 lead until Danville packed six runs into the top of the eighth inning. Frank Reveira started the rally with a two-run homer and a Greensboro error and a flock of singles paved the way to Danville's victory.

Lefthander Joe Grzenda provided the pitching skill for Durham's win over High Point-Thomasville. After the Hi-Toms collected their two runs in the first inning, Grzenda held them scoreless the rest of the way.

July Spree Has Placed St. Louis Only 1/2 Game Out

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press
The St. Louis Cardinals, usually dead ducks by Aug. 1, are camped on the threshold of first place in the National League today after an explosive July run.

And they've done it the hard way, coming from behind in half their 20 July victories and winning four of five extra-inning battles.

In third place, 2 1/2 games back on June 30, the Cards were 20-10 in July for a .667 percentage—and except for a suspended game at Pittsburgh (which they led 11-2 in the ninth) would be 21-10 and in first place instead of second, two percentage points behind Milwaukee.

The Cards were at it again last night, coming from behind to whip the New York Giants 5-1 for their fifth straight while Milwaukee clung to the top spot with a 4-2 job on Pittsburgh for four in a row.

Third-place Brooklyn, matching the Cards' 20-10 record for July, swept a double-header at Chicago. Reliever Ed Roebuck was credited with both victories as ninth-inning rallies beat the Cubs 3-2 and 2-1 to leave the Dodgers two games behind.

Fifth-place Cincinnati, four games back, junked its losing string at three games with a 6-8, 11-inning decision over fourth-place Philadelphia.

In the American League, first-place New York scored a 2-0, 5-4 double-header sweep against Kansas City. The second-place Chicago White Sox nailed Washington 6-5.

Detroit rapped Boston 5-3 and Cleveland beat Baltimore 4-0 behind relief ace Ray Narleski.

The Cards bagged it after Hank Sauer, who had three of the seven hits off Herm Wehmeier, homered the Giants into a fifth-inning lead.

Al Dark, who was 4-for-4 and drove in two runs, and Wehmeier then hit RBI singles in the bottom of the fifth and the Cards were off.

Milwaukee rolled on solo homers by Red Schoendienst and Johnny Logan against loser Bob Purkey, then locked it up with two in the sixth on four singles, Bob Mazie's double and an error. Bob Buhl won his 13th.

After Duke Snider's 25th and 26th home runs had drawn the Dodgers even in the opener, they tagged Bob Rush with a 12th defeat on singles by Roy Campanella, Elmer Valo and Junior Gilliam with two out in the ninth. The Cubs led 1-0, on Ernie Banks' home run, going into the nightcap ninth, when two walks, an error by losing reliever Don Elston and singles by Charlie Neal and pinch hitter Rube Walker won it.

No Favorite At Tam O'Shanter

CHICAGO (AP)—The first section of golf's greatest money-pressure tourney starts today at Tam O'Shanter and there's no definite pre-meet favorite.

The first step in the treasure hunt is the All American, with a purse distribution of $25,000 and men pros, $7,500 for women pros, and trophies and merchandise for men amateurs and women amateurs.

In all, 237 players tee off in the dawn-to-dusk first round, including 162 men pros, shooting for a $8,500 top prize to be awarded at Sunday's finish of the 72 holes.

Next week, however, comes the big one—the "World Championship."

Gavilan Wants A Shot At Basilio

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Kid Gavilan, king of the welterweights from 1951 to 1954, hankered today for another shot at the title now worn by Carmen Basilio—and apparently has earned it.

Gavilan put one of the greatest exhibitions of his career before a nationwide television audience and 3,621 ringside spectators last night to gain a unanimous decision over Gaspar (Indian) Ortega, a game battler from Mexicali, Mexico, in 10 bruising rounds.

"Gavilan was terrific," said Api Rodriguez, manager of Ortega, who conceded, "Most certainly we lost the fight."

Rodriguez said Gavilan "never hurt Ortega" but the 31-year-old Cuban tossed a ton of leather at the bobbing, weaving Mexican and won at least seven rounds on every scorecard. There were no knockdowns.

Yami Chade, Havana banker and manager of Gavilan, said it was the greatest fight of the Keed's career and added Gavilan is ready now to meet Basilio either in Havana or Miami Beach.

More important, he said he has the money to put on the fight.

Gavilan used a savage body attack on the 21-year-old Ortega and kept boring in all the time, carrying the fight to his foe through ever round. Gavilan weighed 153 and Ortega 146 1/2.

Gavilan's punches to the head appeared to lack authority but he took Ortega's best punches and kept moving in to pound the youngster in the ribs and in the midsection.

It was a furious fight all the way and the ringside crowd roared approval. A Gavilan, veteran of 137 previous engagements, proved that he still can dish it out.

Wants To Knock Robinson 'Off His High Horse'

NEW YORK (AP)—Welterweight champion Carmen Basilio has a triple incentive in his middleweight title fight with Ray Robinson at Yankee Stadium Sept. 23—the middleweight crown, $200,000 and a desire to knock Robinson "off his high horse."

The 30-year-old ex-Marine from Chateaugay, N.Y., is a swash-buckling fighter with a real zest for his trade. He dislikes Robinson and never has disguised his feelings. Sugar Ray added coals to the fire yesterday when he kept Carmen waiting more than an hour for the official signing while he studied the return bout clause in the contract.

When Robinson finally affixed his signature, Basilio heaved a sigh and said, "At last." "This is what I've been waiting for," he said. "In my book, he's greedy, arrogant, and I despise him. I can't wait to get in the ring with him."

Then he said, "I'll take him off his high horse in the ring." Robinson will collect 45 per cent of the gate and the theater-television receipts. Basilio will get 20 per cent. Promoter James D. Norris of the International Boxing Club said he expects the gate to hit between $750,000 and a million dollars. Theater-television will add at least another $250,000, he predicted.

There will be no home television. One reason Basilio is peeved against Robinson is that Carmen yielded 5 per cent—from 25 to 20—to get Sugar Ray to defend his 160-pound crown. Basilio originally had agreed to 25. The IBC had expected to get Robinson to sign for 40. But Robinson insisted he wanted 45 per cent. Norris wouldn't yield so Basilio kicked back 5 to seal the bout.

Robinson said what he signed for was his own business.

Bragan Has Another Run-In With Umpires

By CHUCK CAPALDO
MILWAUKEE (AP)—Manager Bobby Bragan of Pittsburgh, apparently bent on bringing to a head his running feud with an umpiring team headed by Frank Dascoli, sauntered onto the field during last night's Pirates-Braves game sipping orange soda through a straw.

The stumpy, gum-chewing skipper of the seventh-place Buccos took his unscheduled stroll in the fifth inning minutes after being banished by Umpire Stan Landes for holding his nose to show how he felt about one of Landes' calls.

A County Stadium crowd of 24,522, at first stunned by Bragan's antics, guffawed as he offered each of the four men in blue a sip from a pint carton of orange drink.

"It was my major league debut as a clown," Bragan said afterwards in the clubhouse. "I'm fed up with these guys. They won't even listen to a legitimate complaint."

"He's a busher, a clown and a comedian," Dascoli said heatedly while trying without much success to keep his emotions in check.

By pulling that stunt he vindicated anything that ever happened to him."

It was Bragan's second brush with Dascoli. Landes, Frank Secory and Bill Baker in as many nights. His first, which occurred Tuesday night when he wired National League President Warren Giles a request that Dascoli's team be "broken up" and absorbed by three other crews, hadn't even run its course.

Before last night's game Bragan, who pulled some many stunts during his minor league managerial career such as taking a nap at home plate, said he hadn't received Giles' reply to his telegram.

Plans Completed For 'Mission To Britain'

GOLDSBORO—The Circuit Rider is going to Europe. The Rev. J. Malloy Owen, known through his Sunday telecast "The Circuit Rider," sails August 14 for the British Isles.

Paris, the only non-British stop, is first on the circuit rider schedule. Mr. Owen will preach at the European Bible Institute there. August 24 the group begins a week-long series of services in Glasgow, Scotland. Historic Tent Hall, called "The Moody Church of Scotland" and Bethany Hall are sites of the Glasgow meetings. Longest series of the tour will be in Ballymena, Northern Ireland, a city of some 20,000 souls. With interdenominal sponsorship, the Ballymena Crusade was scheduled by the Rev. Douglas Dunlop, Chaplain of Methodist College in Belfast, cousin of team member Merrill Dunlop. Beginning August 31, the series ends September 8 in the large Tower Theatre.

After a swing through Ireland and the English Midlands, the Tarheel circuit riders go to London for a Sunday Morning Church service on September 7. Closing series of the tour is in Edinburgh, Scotland, at old Carrubbers Close Mission, September 18 and 19. Fly-back from Glasgow via New York, the group is scheduled to be in North Carolina again Sept. 22.

Food Stores Ready With Wide Variety

By The Associated Press
Food stores will tempt consumer appetites and pocketbooks with a wide variety of bargains this weekend. Here are some of the better buys you're likely to find at the meat department: turkeys, hams, swordfish, crabmeat, flounder fillets, frankfurters, frying chickens.

You'll find few bargains in beef. If anything, prices are a few cents higher on most cuts although supermarkets in some cities are offering "specials" in hamburger and boneless chuck.

Market specialists say beef prices should head lower in the early fall, as they do every year, but this time the downturn may be smaller. The reason: more beef-eaters than a year ago, and fewer cattle.

Pork prices may soon go down a bit as more hogs come to market. Reductions of a few cents a pound are reported in several cities on center cut pork chops this week. Prices of lamb and veal are steady.

Turkeys are once again a stand-out buy. The larger birds—from 16 to 22 pounds—are being offered at rockbottom prices, and there are specials in smaller turkeys here and there. Chickens ready for frying or broiling are plentiful and cheap.

On the produce counter you'll see the usual summer favorites—tomatoes, sweet corn, squash, cucumbers, beets, carrots and cabbage—prominently displayed at attractive prices in most parts of the country. There are exceptions—in drought-stricken areas of New York and New England, vegetable crops have been severely damaged.

Potatoes from California, Oregon and Washington State are reaching big city markets in increasing volume.

Blueberries are considered one of the best buys in the fresh fruit category. Canteloupes from the West Coast are attractively priced. So are Thompson seedless grapes and Bartlett pears from California, and watermelons from South Carolina and Maryland. Peaches are available at moderate prices in most parts of the country.

Constitution For Prison System

RALEIGH (AP)—A "constitution" for operation of the North Carolina prison system under a separate state agency has been adopted by the State Prisons Commission.

The rules and regulations which the commission endorsed yesterday also set out provisions for administering a new "work release" law, under which selected prisoners may serve their time while continuing outside employment.

They will be used as "a sort of constitution" which will be "my guide in the development of policies," explained Prisons Director W. F. Bailey.

The first section deals with administration of the prison system, the second covers the conduct and handling of prisoners, while the third concerns operation of the new work release law.

It provides that only misdemeanor prisoners who have not previously served a sentence totaling more than six months may be eligible for the program. They also must be recommended by the sentencing judge, have suitable employment or an offer of employment in an area where the program is operating and sign an agreement to abide by regulations.

Earnings of prisoners under the program, less standard payroll deductions, will be surrendered to the Prisons Department. It will deduct sums for the prisoner's keep and make payments to county welfare departments for support of dependents. Any money left over will be returned to the prisoner on his release from prison.

Whistling Swan Has New Swain
ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Cornell's whistling swan has a swain and perhaps the stork will visit next season.

The swan's happy romantic interlude follows a tragic incident. Last fall, Cornell University arranged for a mating visit from another whistling swan in the Philadelphia Zoo. The prospective mate escaped from a baggage car in Bethlehem, Pa., and was killed by a taxi.

The new arrival is a gift from William Smith of Lyndonville, N.Y., who raises swans.

Eagles are not particular in building their aeries (nests). Sometimes, in these highly placed nests have been found gold balls, light-bulbs and fish plugs.

Speeding Cases Are Sent Superior Court

A pair of speeding charges were ordered transferred to Superior Court after this week's session of County Recorder's Court.

William Lucas Ford, 401 Manhattan Avenue, Greenville, gave notice of appeal to Superior Court after being convicted of speeding 70-miles-per-hour. Ford entered the appeal notice after Judge Dink James ordered him to pay costs and surrender his driver's license for 30 days.

A Scotland Neck man, Henry Lee Leggett, did not enter a plea in a case charging him with speeding 65-miles-per-hour. He requested that the case be transferred to Superior Court for jury trial and the request was granted.

A 28-year-old Ayden, Route 2, Negro came out of the session with the day's stiffest sentences, but he gave no notice of appeal. Louis Milton Green, up on charges of assaulting Cullie Green and Willie David Green with a razor, drawn two years on the roads for each assault. The sentences were ordered to be served consecutively.

The three cases were part of a 14-case docket cleared in county court Tuesday by Judge James and Solicitor James C. Lanier, Jr. Other cases and judgments included:

Johannie Simmons, 1111 North Pitt Street, Greenville, driving drunk, $100 and costs, driver's license revoked for 12 months;

Lennie Tyson, Negro, Bell Arthur, drunk and disorderly, using vulgar and profane language, 30 days suspended upon condition Tyson remains of good behavior for one year, does not go on the premises of Danford Baker, and pays costs.

Erwin Henry Merrill, Cherry Point, speeding, not guilty; Arthur Lee Cooper, Negro, Greenville, no operator's license; continued to; Wardell Johnson, Jr., Negro, Zebulon, speeding with a truck, $25, costs deducted.

Reuben Irvin Taylor, Jr., Route 1, Tarboro, speeding, $25, costs deducted, driver's license suspended for ten days; Robert Lee, Negro, Route 6, Greenville, assault with a deadly weapon, nol pros; Emma Lee Broome, Macon, Ga., speeding, $25, costs deducted, driver's license suspended for ten days.

Three defendants who entered pleas of guilty to charges of speeding had prayer for judgment continued and suspended upon payment of costs and surrender of their driver's license for ten days each. The three were John Ervin Collins, Route 3, Louisville; George Carroll Whitfield, Wilson; and William Thomas Owens, Cherry Point. Whitfield was also charged with improper passing and Owens had a charge of no operator's license continued until September 10.

By A.A. FAIR (ERLE STANLEY GARDNER)

CHAPTER 16

We kept the office open on Saturday mornings, closed the doors at noon. Saturday afternoon Bertha and I usually had an hour's conference and programmed work for the following week. Bertha liked to check over the books and the bank account every week and see how things were coming.

I walked into the office right on the dot of nine o'clock Saturday morning. Bertha wasn't in as yet. I told Elsie to let me know the minute Bertha came in.

She came in about ten minutes past nine, and as soon as she entered her office, Elsie tipped me off. I walked into Bertha's private office and said, "We open up at nine o'clock. Where have you been?"

Bertha looked up at me, opened her mouth, tried to say something and couldn't. Her face gradually got the color of liver. Finally she found her tongue.

"Where have I been? Why Donald Lam, you pint-size, you've got a nerve to ask me where I've been. Where do you think you've been? What's the idea of not letting anybody know where you are? I put in all day yesterday calling every baby-faced siren who had ever made a pass at you, trying to find out where the hell you were. You've got a nerve, ducking out and not letting anybody know where you are. What do you think I am? A hired hand or something? And then you have the unmitigated crust, the absolute utter gall to come barging in here and want to know where I've been?"

"The office opens at nine o'clock," I said. "I was here waiting for you."

She got so mad she started spitting.

"Oh, well," I said magnanimously. "Forget it. I understand that when you own a business, you're not supposed to be a slave to it. After all, Bertha, we both have to take a little time off once in a while. Just let it go."

Bertha said, "You little squirt! You're just doing that to irritate me. You're trying to take the wind out of my sails. And you've done it! You know me well enough to use those brains of yours to tie me all up in a knot before I can get started. I'm so damned mad at you and yet, underneath it all, I'm sort of half-way proud of you."

"All right," I said to Bertha. "Now tell me what happened yesterday that was so important."

Bertha's lips came together in a thin, tight line. "Donald, it so happens that I'm frightened."

"What are you frightened about?"

She opened a drawer in the desk and took out two legal-looking documents and passed them over. "Take a look at these."

I took one look at the titles. That was enough. In the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Los Angeles, Drury Wells, Plaintiff, versus Bertha Cool and Donald Lam as co-partners transacting business under the firm name and style of Cool and Lam.

I didn't need to turn back the summons and look at the complaint, but I glanced through it. Drury Wells had done a good job. He alleged that he was living at 1638 Frostmere Road, that the defendants had intruded upon his privacy, had interviewed the neighbors in a way calculated to plant in the minds of said neighbors the belief that plaintiff was a murderer, to undermine his good name in the neighborhood, that defendants had thereafter notified the police that the plaintiff had murdered the woman who was living with him as his wife, that as a result of this information, the police had placed a guard upon his house, had subjected him to notoriety, had forced him to go into retirement, had subjected him to annoyance and inconvenience, had caused him great mental suffering, had damaged his health and reputation in the community, etc., etc.

He wanted fifty thousand dollars' actual damages, and one hundred thousand dollars' punitive damages. I tossed the complaint and summons back on Bertha's desk.

"Well," I told her, "you know the facts."

"I'm not certain I do," Bertha said.

"What do you mean?"

"Well, you notice this allegation in there about you planting the insinuation in the minds of his neighbors that he had committed a murder."

"Go on," I said.

"Well, of course, as soon as this thing was served on me, I tried to get hold of you. I couldn't find you. I felt the proper thing to do was to go out and get a written statement from this Mrs. Raleigh in which she would say that the woman who told you about his having murdered his wife."

"What happened?" I asked.

She said, "I took a friend of mine along for a witness. We went out there. Mrs. Raleigh said she never told you any such thing. Mrs. Raleigh said that you came around over there and asked her what she knew about her next-door neighbor having killed his wife. The neighbor on the other side said that you had asked the same questions, that while you hadn't made any statements, your questions insinuated that Mrs. Wells might have disappeared as the result of foul play. This is a hell of a mess! Mrs. Raleigh is scared stiff!"

"What do you mean, scared stiff?"

"I mean she was scared out of a year's growth. She couldn't even hiccup she was so scared."

I said, "Did you tell her why she wanted to know what she had told me?"

"Of course. Why else would I have gone to see her?"

"You told her that we were being sued?"

"That's right."

"Before you asked for the information?"

"Well, I wanted to be fair with the woman. I put the cards on the table."

"That," I said, "was one hell of a way to go about it, Bertha. She's scared to death of her husband, and the minute she realized a lawsuit had been filed, she wouldn't give you the time of day."

"Well," Bertha snapped, "she talked with Frank Sellers all right, and she can't get out of it that way."

I settled back to do a little thinking. "You'll notice," I said, "that he doesn't state that the woman who was living with him was his wife. He states that the woman who was living with him as his wife . . . He was never divorced from his wife. . . You know, Bertha, the question of that telephone conversation with Frank Sellers is going to be damned important. Will Frank stay with us on this thing?"

"Frank isn't going out on a limb," she said. "He'll testify that you told him a murder had been committed. He's in a jam the way it is and he isn't going to lose his job sticking up for us."

"Well," I said, "this makes Corning an important witness. He was here at the time of that telephone conversation."

"Donald, have they got a case?" she asked.

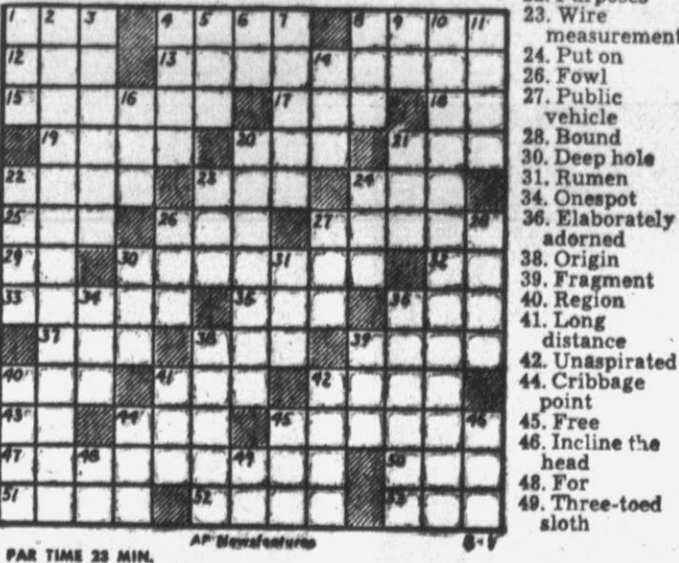

"Not if we can get anybody to tell the truth," I said. "But with Mrs. Raleigh running for cover—What was the address Corning gave us?"

"I'm on my way," I told her.

"Donald, he'll pulverize you," the little detective is warned. Continue this actionful tale of mystery here tomorrow.

Bricker Gains Ground In Another Direction

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) — repeatedly failing to limit the President's treaty-making powers—is now making progress in another direction.

This time he wants to limit the President's freedom to hand over American nuclear materials to the newly created International Atomic Energy Agency. President Eisenhower proposed such an agency Dec. 8, 1953.

Eisenhower's idea was to develop atomic energy on an international scale for peaceful uses. Nations with nuclear materials, like the United States and Russia, would put some of them into an IAEA pool on which the have-nots could draw.

Eighty nations on both sides of the Iron Curtain, after three years of debate on Eisenhower's proposal, agreed last fall on the form of a treaty to create the IAEA.

The Senate approved this treaty June 18 after Bricker failed to get the Senate to say Eisenhower could provide IAEA with no materials without prior consent of Congress.

He called the Senate decision not to go along with him "suicidal folly." Two Rhode Island Democrats — Senators Green and Pastore—swung hard at him.

Green said Bricker's idea would "play into Russia's hands." Pastore said it would destroy "the very thing the President is trying to do." But this, as will be seen, didn't discourage Bricker.

The IAEA would work like this: Before a have-not nation could get nuclear materials it would have to show how and why it would use them; it would need a power plant, or reactor, for using them; it might need to get its own scientists and specialists trained; and an inspection system would have to be in operation to be sure the materials given the have-not were used for peace and not for weapons-making.

This might, for some nations, take years. Just getting a power plant built to use the materials would take three to four years. And the United States would not have to hand over materials until the have-not was ready to use them and the inspectors were on the job.

Since the treaty doesn't say a nation has to hand over materials—but only "may" do so—it would seem this country could refuse in any given situation.

Although the Senate-approved treaty made this country a member of IAEA, this has no practical meaning until both houses of Congress approve what is called participating legislation. That is: a bill authorizing Eisenhower to appoint American representatives in the IAEA and so on.

Drawing up the bill for this is the job of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee. Bricker is a member of it. On June 19, one day after the Senate approved the treaty but turned down Bricker's proposal, the committee met.

It voted 14-2 to accept Bricker's idea and wrote into the bill this provision:

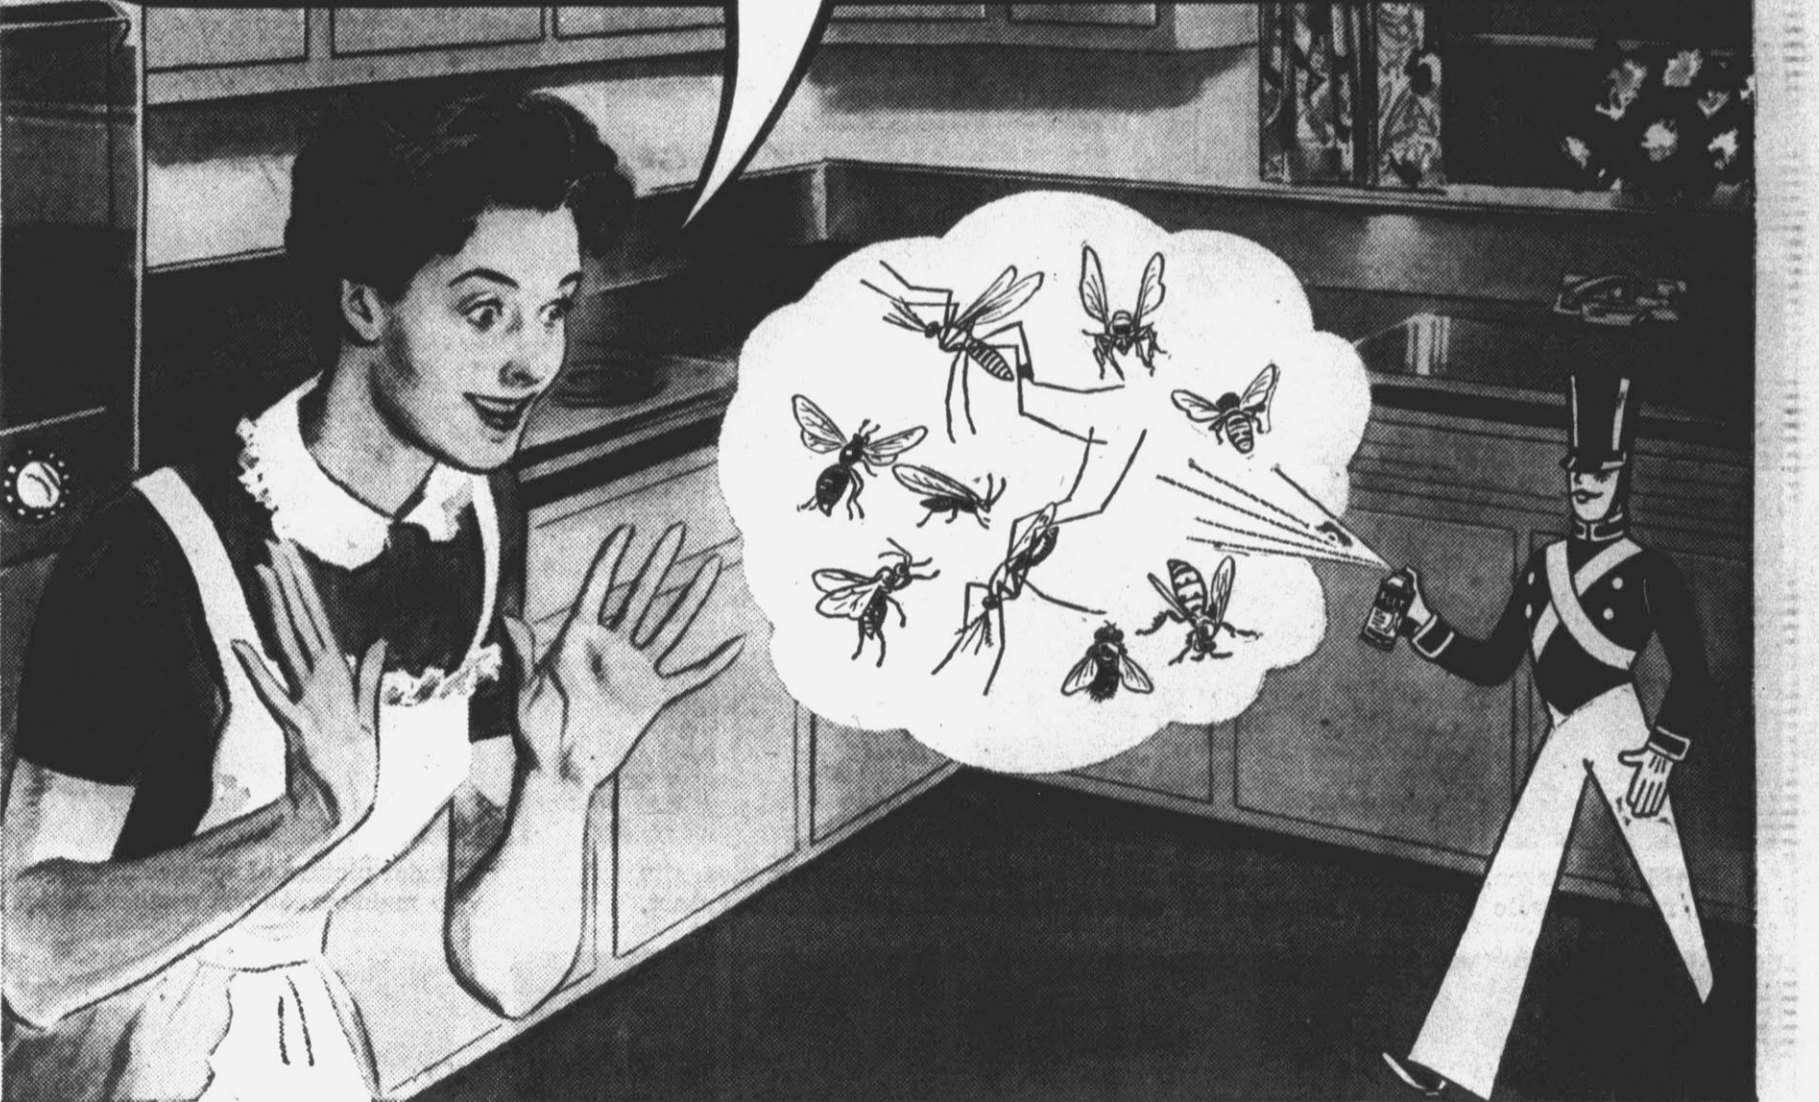

Aside from 5,000 kilograms of uranium 235 which Eisenhower already has promised IAEA, any other materials he wants to turn over to the agency must first be approved by Congress.

At first the Eisenhower administration protested, but it soft-pedaled its opposition later. Yesterday he committee met again, kept the Bricker proposal in the bill, and now sends it up to both houses of Congress for approval.

HURRICANE VIGIL

This hurricane season, the Weather Bureau is better prepared than ever to predict the tropical storms. It has expanded its detection system stretching from the Caribbean to New England. It is issuing for the first time 30-day hurricane forecasts.

In the last year the bureau has added four radar tracking stations to the network of 20 it has had in the United States and the Caribbean.

At four of the stations, those in Burrwood, La., Nantucket, Mass., Hatteras, N. C., and Silver Hill, Md., facsimile systems have been installed for transmission of radar pictures of approaching storms to central stations.

New mobile hurricane teams have been set up to keep the bureau from "losing track" of hurricanes once they head inland.

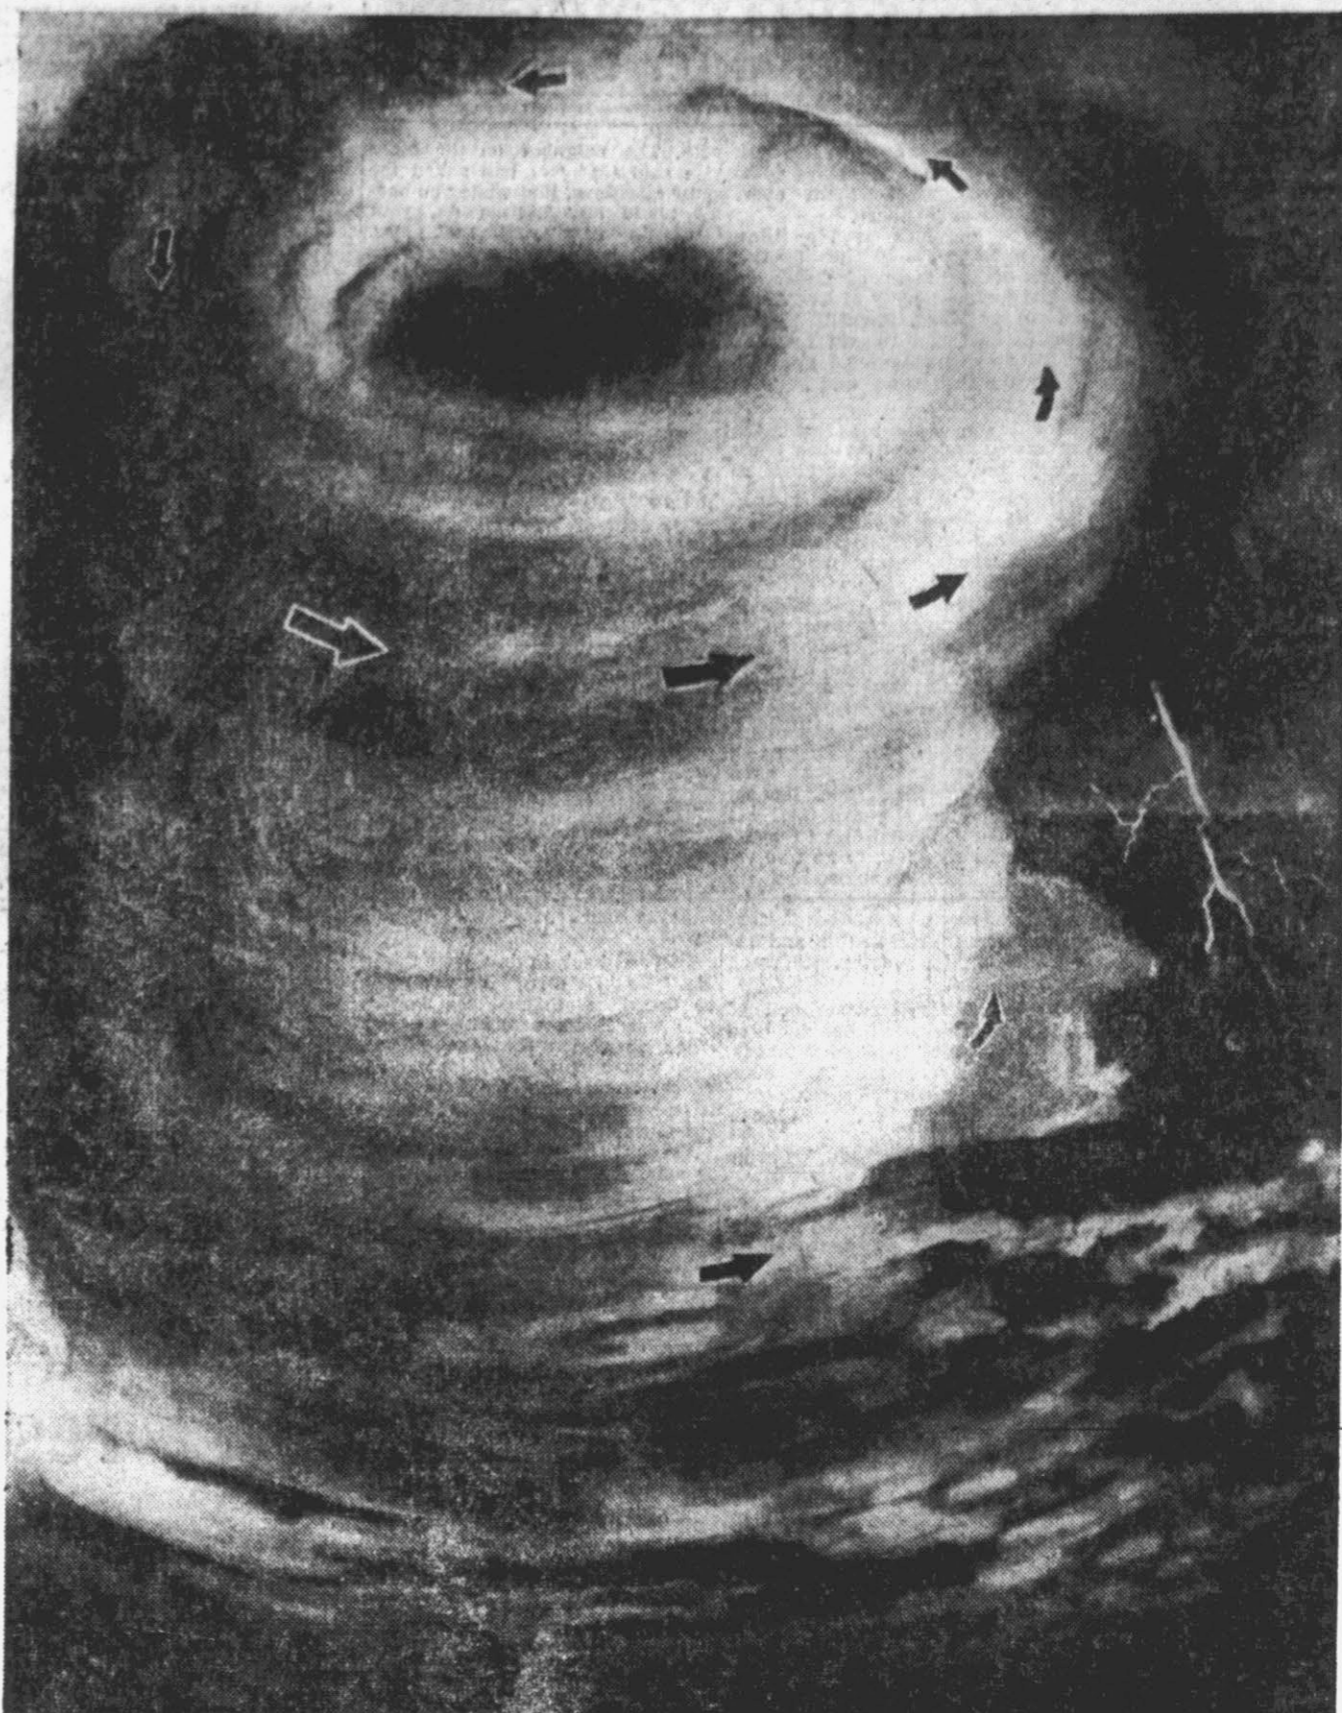

A large new electronic computer has been installed at Suitland, Md., to promote cross-checking of upper air movements.

The Air Force has made available to the Weather Bureau's National Hurricane Research project three bombers to make on-the-scene observation of hurricanes. For the first time the bureau hopes to have three planes flying through a hurricane at different levels at the same time.

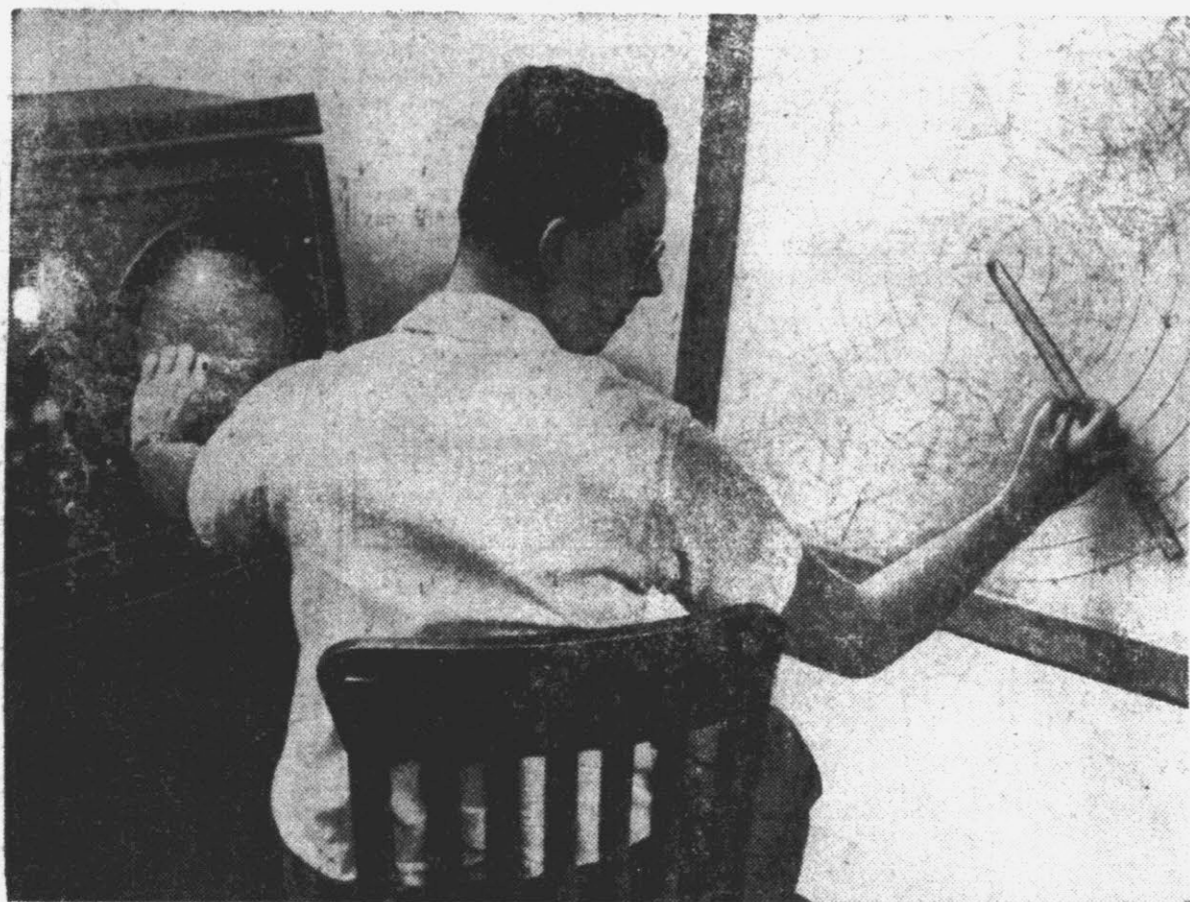

Teams of weather men are being placed on ships plying the Caribbean to get nearly continuous reports on the weather conditions in the hurricane-spawning ground.

Swirling hurricane winds are depicted in Weather Bureau's new storm detector. Operator can detect and track hurricanes and tornadoes up to 250 miles away. Image on screen shows storm's circular motion.

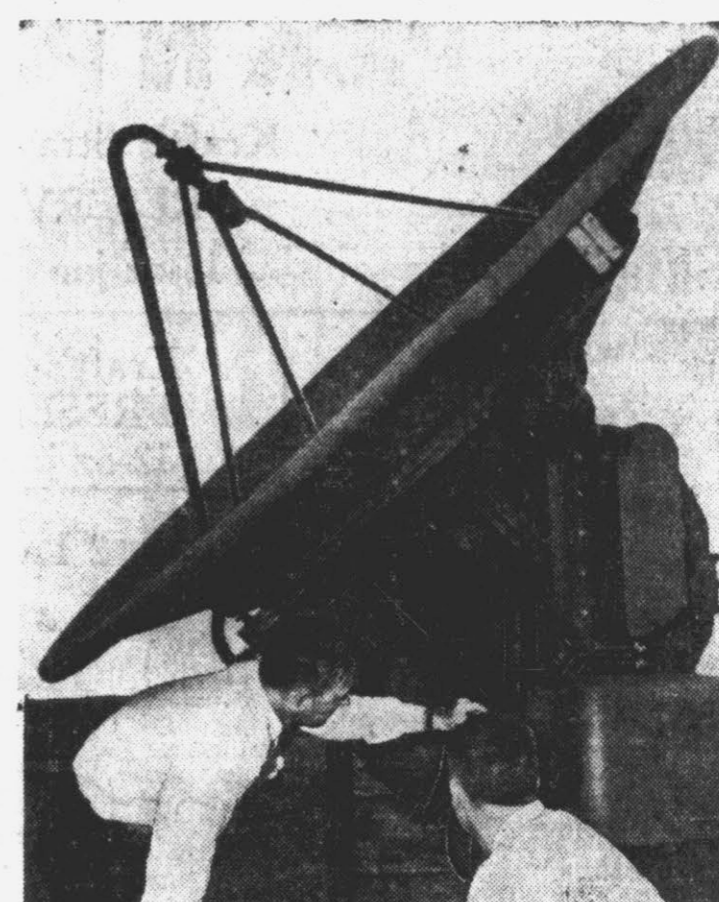

Hurricane area sweeps on with relentless force, averages 100 to 200 miles in diameter. Winds, indicated by arrows, blow from 75 to 150 miles per hour. Storm center, or "eye," is shown at top.

David S. Johnson, meteorologist in charge at Silver Hill, Md., weather station, sits at radar console and plots progress of approaching storms on illuminated chart.

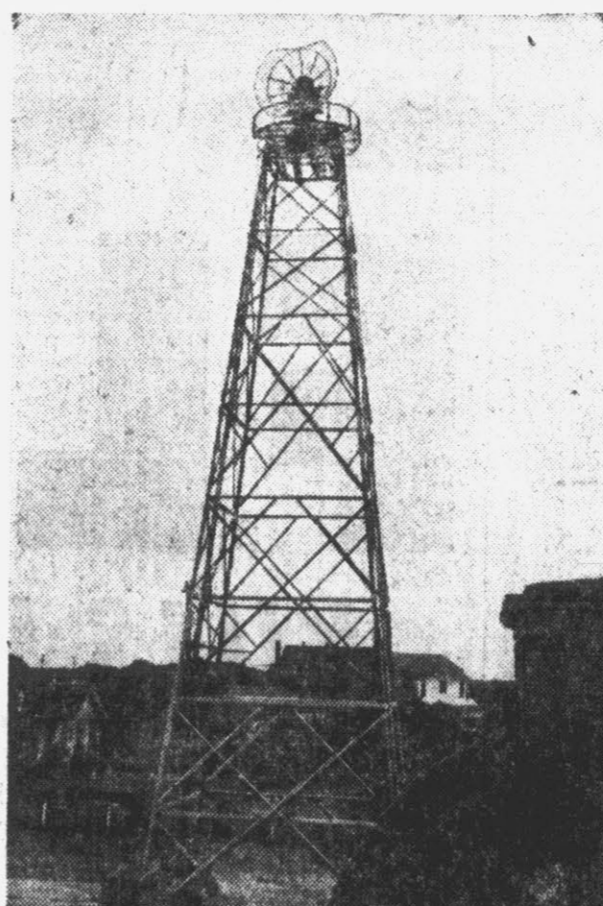

Radar picture of approaching storm is transmitted to main bureau and weather station in Washington.

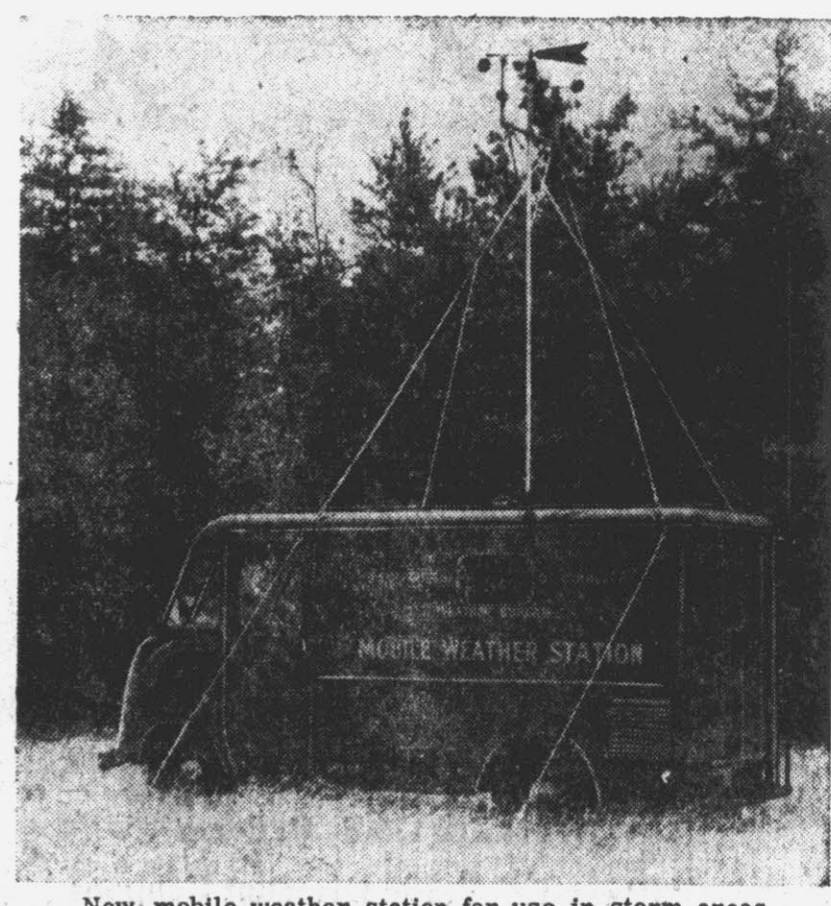

Radar pulses from this huge antenna help detect and track hurricanes. Engineers inspect mechanism.

Army air force weather officer briefs fliers in Florida as to where they may expect to run into hurricane weather. Daily flights are aimed at danger points spotted on map.

Antenna for storm detection and tracking radar is mounted on tower at Hatteras, N. C.

New mobile weather station for use in storm areas. Truck has weather-recording equipment, radio receiver and transmitter, and can be tied down during storm.

WALL STREET
NEW YORK (U)—The stock market continued in a vacation mood early this afternoon. Trading was dull and prices were mixed. Key stocks showed scant change. Fluctuations of fractions to a point were the usual thing. Oil shares were slightly higher today, paced by Cities Service which added about 2 points to its gain of 2½ yesterday. Cities Service rose on news that a subsidiary had brought in a second oil discovery well in the structure Middle East sulfanate of Muscat and Oman. Richfield Oil, which has a 50 per cent participating interest in the concession, was up around a point. Sobering and Revlon, two specialties which have run pretty fast upon occasion, each added around 2 points today then cut their gains about in half. Raytheon, yesterday's most active stock when it rose a point on news of its guided missile production, gained a major fraction today. Rubber shares did little as higher prices were announced for tires and other products by Goodyear. The latter was off more than a point at the start but cut the loss. U.S. Rubber was off slightly while Goodrich and General Tire were about unchanged. U.S. Steel was off a fraction following its gain of 1½ yesterday on record earnings. Bethlehem dropped around a point, but Youngstown Sheet was up fractionally. Du Pont, Johns-Manville, U.S. Gypsum and Zenith were down around a point each. Sinclair rose more than a point. Texas Co. rose slightly while Gulf Oil erased a fractional gain and fell more than a point.

NEW MOOSE SECRETARY AND MANAGER
... took over this morning.

New Secretary And Manager Of Lodge

Ed H. Lewis Jr., a man with the reputation of getting the job done, officially began his duties as secretary and manager of the Greenville Moose Lodge this morning.

The Tarboro native, better known as "Duck," comes to Greenville after having established a name for himself in the field of Chamber of Commerce work throughout the state of North Carolina.

For the past four years Lewis has been manager of the Roanoke Rapids Chamber of Commerce, Merchants Division and Credit Bureau. Presently he is Vice President of the North Carolina Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives.

Upon assuming his new job this morning he said, "It is my sincere desire to serve the Lodge and its members to my fullest capacity."

Lewis added, "Certainly to give credit where credit is due I've found everything in excellent condition. The manager serving before me did a fine job of keeping the records and office in perfect shape."

"Before coming here I knew a few of the Greenville Lodge members by name or face. Since coming here I have met quite a few more and hope to meet every member either here or at their

Tobacco Barn Is Lost To Flames

Members of the Greenville Fire Department could do nothing to save a tobacco barn at Galloway's Cross Roads yesterday afternoon. The barn, owned by Vance Harrington, was engulfed in flames when the local firemen arrived at the scene. Cause of fire was not determined.

Another call was answered early last night when a lighted cigarette ignited a fire in the porch of S. T. Hicks' residence at 409 E. Ninth St.

Hicks told firemen the fire started when a lit cigarette fell on his porch. The flames were brought under control before spreading to other parts of the house. Damage was relatively light, a fireman said.

The call was answered at 8:52 p.m.

Larry B. Willoughby Rites Set Saturday

AYDEN—Larry Bruce Willoughby, 45, died at his home here at 10 a.m. Thursday after several weeks of critical illness.

Funeral services will be held at Ayden Christian Church Saturday at 3 p.m. Rev. J. Blackwelder, Pres. Will Baptist minister, and Rev. John Goff, Christian minister, will officiate. Burial will be in Ayden Cemetery.

The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel in Greenville to the church in Ayden one hour prior to the funeral service.

Mr. Willoughby was a son of Mrs. Bessie Willoughby and the late Joseph E. Willoughby of near Bell Arthur. He lived in the Ormondville community of Greenville seven years prior to moving to Ayden. He was a member of Bell Arthur Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Thelma Braxton Willoughby; one daughter, Annette; and one son, J. D. Willoughby of the home; his mother; three brothers, Joseph W. and Louis W. Willoughby of Farnville and Hallet Willoughby of Venezuela; four sisters, Mrs. Seth Meadows of Ormondville, Mrs. Sidney O'Neal of Bell Arthur, Mrs. Ed Alley of Dallas, Texas, and Mrs. Ed Keeter of Richmond.

Rush Action On Military Money

WASHINGTON (U)—The Senate voted 89-0 today to take up for final action a bill carrying money to run the armed services in the 12 months which started July 1.

It did so shortly after the White House said the Defense Department and other agencies might not be able to meet their August payrolls unless the Senate acted on pending money bills stymied by the civil rights debate.

Approval of the motion to take up the defense appropriation bill temporarily displaced the civil rights bill. But it will automatically become the pending business again when the Senate completes action on the Defense money bill.

The plan was to adopt a similar procedure for the Agriculture Department money bill. Both are compromise versions already passed by the House and needing only a final Senate okay to send them to the White House. Neither faced major opposition.

A White House statement said President Eisenhower was hopeful that the Senate "will act as rapidly as it can."

Press secretary James C. Haggerty described the statement as one simply setting out the situation that exists.

But the practical effect appeared to be to put White House influence behind moves in the Senate to place the civil rights bill aside temporarily in order to act on money measures.

At the Capitol, Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said the supporters of the bill are willing to lay it aside to provide urgently needed cash for the Defense and Agriculture departments.

"I think we can pass both of them promptly," Knowland said. Action on these two compromise annual money bills would permit a prompt return to the civil rights dispute as soon as they are passed. Today, there would be no limit upon debate on the money bills.

Democratic Leader Johnson of Texas said he would ask the Senate to act on the money bills during the day but was uncertain just when he would make that move.

"We have some speeches and other things to get out of the way first," he said.

While willing to act on the two compromise money bills, Knowland said civil rights supporters "probably must resist" efforts to consider other legislative matters. These include stopgap authority to pay government workers in numerous other agencies that still lack funds for the new fiscal year that began July 1, or restoration of authority for the Small Business Administration, which expired last midnight.

"Consideration of these matters would push aside the civil rights bill unless we get a unanimous consent agreement," Knowland explained.

The White House statement took note that the Small Business Administration is officially out of business as a result of the Senate's failure to authorize its continuance after last midnight. It added: "The President has asked the 1,200 employees of the agency to stay on the job because he believes that the Senate will vote the necessary authorization to the Small Business Administration as soon as possible."

Brings $60,000 Assault Suit Against Dep. Sheriff

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (U)—A 15-year-old Negro girl has filed a $60,000 damage suit against Currituck County Dep. Sheriff Linsey L. Dowdy, alleging that he "maliciously committed assault with a pistol." The girl, Mary Magdeline Williams of Rt. 3, Elizabeth City, asks $50,000 personal damages and $10,000 punitive damages.

She also asked that bail be placed at $1,000 so Dowdy would "render himself amenable to the process of the court." However, Pasquotank County Superior Court Judge Chester R. Morris set the bail at $500, which Dowdy posted.

The action grew out of a shooting June 23 in a potato field at Harbinger, near Grayton in Currituck County.

The girl alleged that while she and others "were assembled to be paid and taken home after a day's work in the fields... (Dowdy) was the field boss and in charge of the workers, unlawfully and maliciously committed assault with a pistol by pointing the same at the plaintiff and causing it to discharge and the bullet to strike the plaintiff, to her great hurt and injury."

The girl suffered a broken bone in the hand and a wound in the thigh. She was taken to Albemarle Hospital here for treatment, but, due to the nature of the injury, later was transferred to a Norfolk, Va., hospital.

Sheriff L. L. Dozier served a warrant on Dowdy charging assault with a deadly weapon shortly after the incident. However, a preliminary hearing has not been held because the girl was still in the hospital.

Sheriff Dozier said he knew nothing about the incident. Dowdy, too, made no public statement.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Tary E. Williams, filed the suit through their Negro attorney, Romallus Murphy of Elizabeth City.

$385,268 Budget Gets Final Okay In Farmville

FARMVILLE—Farmville Town Commissioners have given final approval to a $385,268.07 budget which will require a municipal tax rate of $1.50.

The tax rate is the same as the 1956 rate except for adjustments in percentage contributions to the General Fund and the Debt Service Fund. The General Fund will get $1.13 of the total rate and the Debt Service Fund, which was increased because of the town's sewerage disposal plant and sewerage extension bonds, will get the remaining 37 cents.

Largest single item in the budget is the town's water and light department which will have a self-supporting $271,500 budget. Included in the department's budget is $131,392.99 for labor, insurance and improvements; $61,000 for power purchased from other sources; $13,000 for debt service bond maturities; $21,457.50 for debt service bond interest; and $44,649.91 to be turned over to the General Fund.

General Fund expenditures will total $128,541.52. A break-down of the fund's various categories includes $12,814.42 for administrative salaries and expenses; $50,651.21 for Street Department salaries and expenses; $13,000 for Powell Bill street construction; $32,991.59 for the Police Department; $4,804.30 for Fire Department salaries and expenses; $6,000 for special construction in the Fire Department; $2,500 for maintenance of cemeteries; $3,000 for the Town Hall; $250 for the National Guard; $600 for insect and rodent control; and $1,930 for general expenses.

The Health Department will receive $2,700; the Recreation Department will get $3,300; and the Farmville Public Library will get $6,633.56.

General Debt Service Fund appropriations include $16,000 for bond maturities and $1,242.50 for bond interest.

The Water and Light Department revenue budget anticipates $270,000 from water and light receipts, and $1,800 from other receipts to meet its entire budget. The department will also contribute $2,700 to meet the Health Department budget; $3,300 to meet the Recreation budget; and $6,633.56 to meet the Library budget.

Revenue for the General Fund will also include a substantial donation from the Water and Light Department, but the bulk of the funds' revenue will come from other sources.

The General Fund will get $32,015.95 from the Water and Light Department; $52,658.61 from the 1957-1958 tax levy; $30,866.95 from other income sources; and $13,000 from Powell Bill refunds on gasoline taxes.

General Debt Service revenue will be completely derived from the 1957-1958 tax levy.

Baby Arrived Outside Hospital

LUMBERTON, N.C. (U) — A young mother and the child that was born on a walk outside Robeson Memorial Hospital are both doing fine today and are none the worse for the experience.

Mrs. Retha Stewart of Rt. 2, Lumberton, was brought to the hospital by her husband. They parked in the parking lot, and the baby was born as they walked to the emergency room.

A doctor took the mother inside.
