Meet The Deb

Who Will Use Lace

(Reflector Photo by Anne Singleton) Nelson Blount and her mother, Mrs. M. K. Blount study Mrs. Katherine Blount's debutante book.

By ANNE SINGLETON Reflector Woman's Editor

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of glimpses into the lives of Pitt County debutantes.)

Three years ago when Nelson Blount, a deb of the season, was in Europe she bought the Brussels lace which will accent her white pique-dieu ball dress that is now being made for her in New York.

Except for her second night evening dress, she explains, "I have just about everything I will need." While in New York she purchased the black chantilly lace dress which she will wear when she receives at the Governor's tea.

Another highlight of the forthcoming weekend for this radiant deb will be the presence of her good-looking brother, Marvin, Jr., as her chief marshal. He will enter the University of North Carolina in September.

Others that will assist Nelson as her marshals when she makes her formal bow into North Carolina society will be Sellers Crisp of Greenville and Johnny Whitaker of Winston-Salem.

"I'm glad I am making my debut this year because several of my friends in Raleigh are also debutantes this season, and I'm delighted with the group of girls from Greenville who will be making their debuts with me," she mentioned in her charming manner.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin K. Blount, Miss Lou Cheat-ham, former deb of Greenville, several aunts, uncles and cousins will be with her at the Sir Walter Hotel where they have made reservations.

This nineteen-year old debutante, with chestnut brown hair, has blue-green eyes that are a light blue at one time and a dark green at another time . . . it all depends upon the color outfit she is wearing.

In Alpha Delta Pi

With a history major and an English minor at Duke University she still finds time for her biggest "love"—Alpha Delta Pi, a social sorority. At the present time she is serving as Efficiency Chairman for the sorority.

This energetic college sophomore is an active participant in the Y. W. C. A. and on the staff of the college newspaper, "The Chronicle."

When she graduates, she may take post-graduate work in Boston, Massachusetts, and then enter the business world. Or, she may pursue a wholesale buyer's career and attend a buyer's training school in Atlanta, Georgia.

Her summer has been a busy, fun-packed one. In June she vacationed in New York and at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Since then she has been visiting Duke friends in Washington, D. C., and staying at the family's summer home at Ocean Ridge.

Recently she returned from Roaring Gap where she was on a houseparty. "While there we kept cool, had a fire, and slept under blankets," she exclaimed.

Golf, Water Sports

Golf is a hobby she shares with her brother, seven years ago they began taking lessons from a golf pro at Virginia Beach and this past year Nelson took a golf course at college.

"Swimming in the surf, boating, skiing . . . I love all water sports and I play bridge too much," she said in her cute way. Other hobbies of this versatile deb are sewing and collecting records. One of her biggest thrills was seeing the Four Freshmen at the Spring Germans—her favorites.

Confessing a weakness, she admits, "I can't resist fattening foods that I ought to stay away from." Evening dresses tempt her, too. Her mother said, "Nelson goes to buy a dress and always comes home with an evening dress."

Paris Fashion Makers Offer Two Hemlines, Whistle-Bait Necklines 30 Years Ago Today

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP) — Whistle-bait necklines, hardly any waistlines and a choice of two hemlines—short or medium—that's what the fer for the coming winter.

One American buyer happily remarked, "These clothes will sell." The sheath is undisputed queen of fashion. But for cocktail and evening there are puffed bell shapes as well.

It is a predominantly black season, with blue in second place, followed by bright red, coral pinks and green.

As usual, Dior's opening climaxed the week of openings. His "Spindle Line," with loose waist and tapered-in hem, was spiced up with some of the lowest necklines that have ever raised fashion writers' eyebrows.

About half the dress houses plumped for very short skirts, barely covering the knee. Among them were Patou, Heim, Lenvin, Castillo, Cardin and — according to buyers who saw them — Balenciaga and Givenchy. In the mid-calf or conservative school were Dior, Balmain, Desses, Griffe and Laroche, plus Chanel, or course.

While sheaths were sometimes completely unwaisted, gripping the hip and hugging the legs, more often they were tacked in on the tummy and loose or paneled behind.

Details that turned up all over included bows, dark discreet plaids, scarf necklines for coats and sackets, extremely long or quite short suit jackets, big fur collars, spotted furs, wiglike hats covering all the hair, wool fringe trim, and lampshade skirts for cocktail time.

Opening the season, Patou showed short - skirted, busy sheaths, and a favored daytime ensemble of woolen dress with short hip-high jacket, bundled over with a fur-lined coat to match. Bows abounded.

Lanvin headlined hips in a panier or basket-skirted collection, with yet more bows. Pierre Cardin's "Lasso Line," with loopy drapery and low kangaroo pouches, featured chiffon dresses draped between the knees. His skirts were the shortest and lightest of the season.

Mom Draws Novel Greeting Cards

ADMIRING AUDIENCE . . . Greeting card artist Lee Adorney has a built-in cheering section: (l. to r.): Mark, 8, Tommy, 1, Kathy, 5, and Johnny, 3, all ardent fans of Mom's sketches.

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP)—graduated to the sponsorship of Pert, blonde Lee Adorney runs a good-sized country home, takes care of four small children, pampers her New York adman husband—and in her spare time turns out a line of greeting cards which have caught on like wildfire among the modern-minded off-beat customers.

A former fashion illustrator, Lee met her husband, Charles, while both were students at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn. She wanted a home and children, and acquired them with no delay. But was that any reason to sink into a rut of unrelieved domesticity? Not for Lee.

When she was approached by the owners of a bookstore in nearby Darien to work up some sketches for a new line of greeting cards, Lee got out her sketch pad and went to work. The result was a gremlin-like little character who promptly was christened Ad-Lib, looks like nothing human, but seems to have a strange appeal for the more sophisticated sector of the general public.

After an enthusiastic initial response from the public, Ad-Lib

The first batch of 36 cards, done in black and white, covered every- out a line of greeting cards which have caught on like wildfire among the modern-minded off-beat customers.

The theme of each is a song title: "I'll Never Smile Again," "You Go To My Head," "Side By Side" and similar sentiments.

And how does young Mrs. Adorney manage an artistic career while holding down a full-time job as wife and mother? It's simple, says she—the children like to watch her draw. Keeps them amused. The Adorney small fry are: Mark, 8, Kathy, 5, Johnny, 3, and Tommy, 1.

A new washer-dryer unit is so petite it can even fit into your broom and mop closet. It is 27 inches wide, 36 inches high. This easy combination unit has a selection of delicate or regular fabric cycles, and the unit adjusts itself to the needs of the fabric.

Waynick 'Issue' Is Still Overrated

Governor Hodges' choice of Capus Waynick as North Carolina's new adjutant general continues to stir enough fuss and feathers to become a midsummer "issue".

Everybody's getting into the act, and at long last the Governor decided to defend his selection.

"I chose him," he said, "because I had decided on a basic concept . . . to get a civilian approach." The Governor also suggested the appointment has been "played up more than justified" and will come out all right.

In this we agree. The post of adjutant general is largely an administrative job within the National Guard, and while it may sound like a heresy, the prospect to us is that an able civilian administrator might do the job fully as well as a man with a military background. And if one were to whittle it all down to a fine point, it's conceivable that a woman could hold down that desk too; but this, we don't expect to see very soon.

Aside from having only a minimum amount of military background, North Carolina's new adjutant general has certainly proven himself in the fields of private enterprise, politics and diplomacy. On the face of it, he could hold down a wide variety of administrative duties.

In his new position, however, he should not be called on to handle so wide a variety of duties for Gov. Hodges, that his primary function as head of the state's National Guard is neglected. The National Guard is an important arm of the state government. It should not be given an inferior status by having its administrative head called upon to do so many other things that he cannot properly carry out his primary administrative duties.

YDC Rally Will Develop Gossip

By LYNN NISBET

Y.D.C. — The state rally of Young Democrat Clubs scheduled for Lumberton Saturday is expected to develop a good deal of political gossip outside the YDC ranks. There will be the usual maneuvering for position on part of candidates for YDC president and the national committee posts. If the rotation practice is followed the presidency goes to the West this year. Bob Davis of Salisbury apparently has the lead to succeed Steve Nimocks of Fayetteville.

Internal politics will not attract as much interest as the big time game involving high officials of the state, but it is natural to assume that more people will come from nearby counties. That is the area where political strategists are especially busy. Terry Sanford lives at Fayetteville, which is in the same congressional and senatorial district with Lumberton, and until two years ago in the same judicial district. Sanford has been often mentioned as a certain candidate for Governor in 1960, and he has been making contacts around about the state.

Rumors are current that Judge Quincy K. Nimocks, resident judge of the 12th district embracing Cumberland and Hoke, will retire within a very short time. Half a dozen or more Fayetteville lawyers are entirely willing to take over that job if they can sell Governor Hodges on the idea. The Governor has accepted an invitation to attend the rally and chances are the Cumberland folks will be unusually attentive to him.

MOTOR POOL — The State motor pool being organized by the Division of General Services under a 1957 act will not get into operation for three or four weeks. Main cause for the delay is that a hundred new cars bought for the pool have not arrived. The nearly 200 cars owned by the State and presently assigned to the various agencies and departments are not enough for an adequate pool and cannot be released from current assignments until the new cars arrive. The new cars are expected sometime between the 15th and 20th of August, and it will take several days after their arrival to paint the State insignia and otherwise condition them for the pool.

The car pool, even weeks before it is operative, is giving George Cherry, director of General Services, more headaches than any other phase of his official duties. There have been a dozen or more conferences with Paul Johnston, director of administration, and agency department heads seeking to devise a workable formula. Cherry ruefully observed the other day that apparently nobody wanted the motor pool except Governor Hodges, who is not affected by it; Paul Johnston and Cherry himself—neither of whom are required to do much travel.

Rules and regulations governing the motor pool operation have been revised, re-revised and re-re-revised several times. The big headache comes from suggestions that some motor pool cars may be "permanently assigned" to individuals who have a lot of odd-hour travel to do, and that department heads may be permitted to continue using their private cars—a privilege denied the rank and file employee. Complications arising under those rules are almost innumerable.

SPECIALS — Much of the difficulty stems from the fact that almost every traveling State employee has peculiar individual conditions. Some leave early and get back late and cannot make traveling time conform to the regular 8:30-5:30 Monday to Friday work day for State office workers. Many of the traveling employees have to be on the job Saturday and Sunday, before and after regular work day hours.

A major cause of criticism on part of many employees is that the pool idea precludes any special gadgets to aid physically handicapped drivers. Among the most valuable employees are many men and women who have suffered heart attacks, have been victims of accidents or because of other reasons find it very difficult to adapt themselves to a different car for every trip. The mileage allowance for use of privately owned cars is the same, whether the vehicle is an old model Chevy or a modern air-conditioned Imperial; whether it has power steering and brakes or standard gear shift and old-fashioned hand-lever for emergency braking.

"If the mileage allowance is too high, why don't they cut it down," said one specially equipped car driver, "instead of forcing me to stay at my desk when I ought to be out in the field, because I just can't drive a car without some extra equipment."

The accountants can demonstrate by statistics that the motor pool will save money on per mile driving of State employees. It will take several months operation to prove whether or not it can save anything in real service to the taxpayers.

The Governor protested there were no politics involved in his appointment—an assertion which should stir a chord of memories.

Difficult as it is to delineate between government and politics, we are in no position to contradict the chief executive. Even so, we can't put out of our mind the fact that Waynick headed an election campaign for Kerr Scott. We can't completely ignore the persistent talk that Gov. Hodges may have his eye on Kerr Scott's senatorial seat next time 'round. All of which reminds us there is more than one way to skin a cat.

A Suggestion Of An 'O. Henry Ending'

Accounts of the German documents (Hitlerian era) that reveal a "plot" to use the Duke of Windsor and influence the Democratic National Convention make for fascinating reading.

British and American authorities who unveiled the melodramatic record, say that Edward was to urge Britain's surrender and stir up an element of disunity; and at the same time, $250,000 was assigned to ending the reign of FDR and keeping America neutral.

We are reminded the documents are "necessarily a much-tainted source"; a fact to which all who remember those years will agree.

But if for a moment we should conceive the plot to have some basis in fact, it is easy to understand how and why it fell through.

The Nazis miscalculated in thinking everyone lived by the same standards of deceit and double cross as they themselves.

The former king never entertained the idea of turning against his brother and countrymen; and the quarter of a million dollars intended to keep America neutral apparently "went up in smoke".

That $250,000 captures our imagination.

It was supposed to have gone to the Democrats but the money never showed up on the National Committee's books.

Of that amount, $160,000 was supposed to have gone to the Pennsylvania state Democratic organization to withhold its votes from the Roosevelt band wagon.

And that didn't work, either.

Then we're told the man in charge of the German Embassy in Washington kept writing home for propaganda money and destroyed all records on how it was used.

Today, nobody knows "how" . . . or "if" . . . that money got into circulation.

It all suggests the doublecrossers of abroad just might have been taken for a ride by some of their boys on this side of the ocean.

We'll never know, but there's a suggestion of a story with an "O. Henry ending" floating around in the ether.

Construction Is Still Increasing

By ELMER ROESSNER

The decline in home building is considerable, but it appears less serious when viewed as part of the larger construction picture.

In the first six months of this year, 506,800 dwelling units were started. A dwelling unit is the living space for one family; a one-family house is one unit; a 40-apartment building is 40 units.

That number of starts, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, was 77,800 fewer than in the first half of last year. That is a drop of 13 per cent.

Shifting to F.W. Dodge Corp. figures, residential building contracts for the first six months of this year were valued at $6,483,314,000 which was only 5 per cent below the figure for the first half of 1956.

A contract is not exactly the same as a start, but they are close enough for fair comparison.

Therefore, while the number of units was declining 13 per cent, the value was dropping only 5 per cent. The difference appears to result from the fact that more expensive houses are being built.

TOTAL CONSTRUCTION RISING

While home building is declining 5 or 13 per cent, depending on the yardstick, total construction has been going ahead. Total construction contracts in the first half of the year, according to Dodge figures, were $16,958,065,000, or 5 per cent higher than in the first half of 1956. The record to date leaves little room for doubt that the dollar volume of construction activity for the year will exceed last year's all-time high," commented Thomas S. Holden, Dodge vice president.

A new record has been anticipated since last year. A government report estimated that total outlays for plants and equipment would be $37.4 billion this year. A McGraw-Hill estimate was $40.9 billion.

Again the yardstick has been changed on you.

Plant and equipment expenditures are not the same as construction expenditure. The plants and equipment consist of industrial buildings and other structures, together with the machinery and equipment installed.

Total construction includes the plants but not the machinery; it also includes housing and other construction, such as churches, schools, government buildings, stores and office buildings and many other types of building.

BUT STILL COMPARABLE

However, plant and equipment figures and total construction figures are also comparable. For one thing, they include many of the same items. For another, they move together. It is doubtful that one ever moved up while the other moved down; in fact, they usually move in the same direction at about the same rate.

Therefore, on all counts, we can expect considerable construction boom, outside of housing, for the rest of the year. Spending for all construction will probably reach $34 billion at present rates; spending for plants and equipment will probably exceed $37 billion. A.W. Zelomek, economist, reported to the National Association of Purchasing Agents that it seems likely that the government figure of $37.4 billion for plants and equipment will be more nearly accurate than the McGraw-Hill figure of $40.9 billion.

At that, $37.4 billion means a lot of jobs—more work in construction than there is at this moment—a lot of orders for steel, cement and other construction materials, and perhaps some juicy profits here and about.

It is proper to mourn the decline in home building. But we should not let our tears blind us to opportunities and prosperity in the rest of the construction field.

Strength For Today

BLESSING OF FORGETFULNESS

The question is often asked, "Do you have a good memory?" But very often people do not realize that the capacity to forget is just as necessary to mental health and achievement as the capacity to remember.

This is especially true in the moral field. Some people never forget anything—especially an injury. Two hundred years ago the royal governor of Georgia said to the Rev. John Wesley, "I never forget an injury," to which Wesley replied, "Then you certainly cannot expect God to remember you in his mercy."

Some people in the general walks of life really have difficulty about not being able to forget anything they have once heard of learned. People who have this capacity never to forget anything find that they continually suffer from mental strain. Their brain is overworked. The capacity to forget is as essential to mental health as the capacity to remember.

One of the greatest things that could happen to the world would be a widespread forgetting—nations forgetting their hatred of other nations, races forgetting their animosity against other races. Best of all, we need to forget the injustices that have been done to us, the lies that have been told about us, the slights we have experienced. Try, under the grace of God, to develop a divine forgetfulness.

Too Many Lifeguards

Plight Of The Farmer

By no means do I profess to be an authority on things that go on around me.

There is one subject, however, in which I am extremely interested; the plight of the eastern North Carolina farmer today.

It seems to me some people are just plain lucky and don't know it.

By this I mean the salaried man who is assured of a specific amount of money and can gauge his standard of living to fit his income each day, week and year of his life.

A farmer can at no time, until his crops are harvested and depend on a specific income. The market prices govern precisely what he will make. He could sell his crop early or late and lose money if the market "is not right."

I repeat, I do not profess to be an authority on the subject of national economy and farming.

This much I do think, as the farmer goes . . . so goes the nation.

A salaried man will look at the farmer and say, "Look how lucky he is."

"Why he can take off any time he wants to and doesn't have the problems of business that I do."

Farming today has become a 12 month business where it used to be only about nine months all told.

There are many aspects to farm tending in this day and time. For instance a farmer has to be a scientist, a mechanic and a business man in addition to having a good general knowledge of agriculture.

Rising cost of operation makes it virtually impossible to raise a crop now for what it cost not more than three years ago, a farmer told me recently.

The cost is increasing while the profit remains more or less the same.

With agricultural curbs being instigated right and left, the primary money crops of this area no longer provide the farmer with an ample income. The gross profit is still there but the net profit is way, way down.

Even labor is now at an all time high.

Cotton, peanuts, and several other money crops are being cut. These cuts come as sure as "death and taxes." In most cases it is necessary, the farmer or farm owner will agree.

Farming just ain't what it used to be.

For example you could take the present "711 situation" concerning a number of farmers in this and adjoining counties planting the "forbidden fruit." This, I say, because the government does not sanction the planting of tobacco such as Coker 139, Coker 140 and 244.

It has turned out many farmers planting the Bissette 711 have gotten "something else." This has caused a stir within the ranks of the ASC. Very little has been done however to alleviate the situation.

Again the farmer will have to bear the burden of someone else's error.

At the present time there is a surplus of nearly every farm commodity. The farmer no doubt is wondering how long the government will be able to support him before the seemingly bottomless pocketbook runs bone dry.

It looks like tillers of the soil in eastern North Carolina are going to have to diversify to keep their heads above the rapidly rising waters of inflation.

As I see it the farmer does have a problem. A problem that could get worse.

Other Editors Saying--- Industry Requires---

(The Atlanta Constitution)

Chamber of Commerce literature and pretty promotion pamphlets to the contrary, an industry has a way of making up its own mind what site it will choose for location or relocation.

That's the word the commercial manager of a large corporation gave 200 civic leaders assembled recently in another state to study ways to entice industrial payrolls. Before industry makes up its mind, the man said, it considers these factors:

1. A realistic and progressive attitude on the part of the city toward its own growth, and sensible planning to accommodate such growth.

2. Honest and efficient city government and an intelligent and well-informed citizenry.

3. A healthy relationship between employees and management.

4. An adequate supply of skilled, unskilled, technical and clerical workers.

5. Fair wages and working conditions both from labor and management's side of the fence.

6. Ample community services such as schools, hospitals, hotels and recreational facilities.

7. Enough social and cultural institutions and activities to attract and hold high-level personnel.

8. A healthy business citizenship with local business and industrial leaders participating unselfishly in civic and political affairs.

Those eight points make up a useful guide for communities interested in self-analysis and willing to put out the effort to make the changes vital to a high standing on the industrial scoreboard.

TELEVISION WATCHDOG

(Marietta (Ga.) Daily Journal)

It is a good thing that the Federal Trade Commission has begun to monitor television to detect false advertising claims. Such fraudulent claims are harmful not only because they balk the public, but because, once the public catches on, the effectiveness of all advertising is crippled to some extent.

Charles A. Sweeney, an attorney in the FTC's Bureau of Investigation, told delegates to a recent Nat. Association meeting about the monitoring system and the philosophy behind it. He noted that the nation's bill for advertising last year was nine billion dollars, and suggested that the FTC is a much-needed umpire for this complex business of urging people to buy.

Sweeney said that advertising was "indispensable to maintenance and continued expansion of our American standard of living." He added that false advertising, by lessening public confidence, might seriously cut the value of the advertising dollar.

The argument is sound. Advertising is one of the foundation stones of our rapidly expanding economy. Whenever there is a lapse in integrity, this foundation stone begins to crumble. The FTC's efforts to prevent that are clearly in the public interest.

A Miscalculation And Its Effect

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON American scientists' serious miscalculation of the devastating strength of our first atom bomb was probably the Allies' most fatal blunder of World War II. Our current difficulties with Russia and China, as well as the Communists' post-war possession of Central Europe, the Balkans and the Far East, may be traced directly to this laboratory error.

This is the strongly supported theory advanced by Dr. Herbert Feis in a recently published volume, entitled "Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin—the War They Waged and the Peace They Sought." Dr. Feis was the State Department's Economic Adviser during World War II and afterward.

Besides his personal participation in top-level conferences, Dr. Feis has had access to documents hitherto withheld or unknown to the public of the Allied countries. Only Russia's secret papers on Stalin's actions and attitudes were unavailable to him. But the late dictator's disagreements and defiance of Churchill and Roosevelt have been disclosed in many memoirs and in documents filed away at Washington and London.

MISCALCULATED NOT DATE. LESLIE R. GROVES, who headed the Manhattan Project that developed the first A-bomb, told F.D.R. as early as February, 1945, that the deadly missile would be ready for military use by August of that year.

But Groves made a miscalculation of more than 400 per cent. He informed Roosevelt that the bomb would have an explosive effect equivalent to only 500 tons of TNT. This destructive power hardly equalled the bomb load carried by planes then bombarding Germany and Japan.

Actually, the first A-bomb had a blast force equivalent to between 10,000 and 20,000 tons of TNT, or enough to level Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Its pulverizing effect forced Japan to sue for peace almost immediately, and brought a sudden end to the conflict in the Far East.

ENVISIONED INVASION. OF JAPAN Because of this miscalculation, General Marshall, Admiral King and their British opposites persisted in the belief that it would require at least 18 months to defeat Japan after Germany's surrender. They envisaged a physical invasion of Japan with a million men, accompanied by fearful losses.

It was for this reason that Roosevelt and Churchill thought it necessary to give so many concessions to Stalin at Yalta, and for Truman and Atee to confirm these "giveaways" at Potsdam. In return for Russian control of Manchuria, the Baltic nations, Central Europe and the Balkans, Stalin agreed to repudiate his peace treaty with Tokyo, and to enter the war against Japan one month after Hitler's downfall.

RUSSIANS: FOUGHT. LITTLE. However, the Tokyo war lords, under pressure from the Emperor, surrendered so quickly and completely after the Hiroshima-Nagasaki disasters that Russian troops fought only an 8-day skirmish against the disheartened Japanese forces.

But Marshal Zhukov seized the Yalta opportunity to turn over Japanese arms and ammunition to the Chinese Communists, and subsequently Stalin stripped Manchuria of minerals and machinery to rebuild Russia. Had it not been for these contributions to Soviet economy, Russia might still be a second-rate power.

Again, had it not been for this laboratory blunder, Russia might not now be such a threat to world peace, and the Chinese Communists might not have been in a position to overthrow Chiang Kai-shek and drive him to Formosa as a virtual exile. The war, it appears, was won by the soldiers on the battlefield, but the peace was lost or jeopardized by the scientists!

Choice Of Two Careers

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Would you rather be a successful businessman or a movie star?

At 27, Robert Evans, who looks like a boyish Tyrone Power, has decided to try to be both—a career executive in the women's sportswear field and a matinee idol.

"After all, why not live a diversified life?" he asked, leaning back in a beige leather chair in his skyscraper office in Manhattan's seamy garment center. "It makes for a more-rounded person."

A year ago Bob, who is tall, dark and spectacularly handsome, was happy and successful as a partner in Evan-Picone, a multimillion-dollar women's sportswear firm. Then Hollywood beckoned—and it won't let him alone.

He has appeared in two films and Darryl Zanuck, gambling on him as a future star, signed him to an exclusive contract. He is the first new talent Zanuck, who manufactured many a celluloid celebrity in the past, has put under contract since leaving Twentieth Century-Fox to become an independent producer.

The possibility of one of its junior magnates replacing Clark Gable has stirred the imagination of clothing industry workers along Seventh Avenue here as nothing since, perhaps, the invention of the elastic brassiere.

It all happened—or so the script goes—as the result of two unbelievably lucky breaks.

The first break: some eight months ago Norma Shearer saw Evans relaxing in the Beverly Hills hotel swimming pool. Struck by his resemblance to her late husband, producer Irving Thalberg, she asked if he'd like to play the role of Thalberg in "The Man of a Thousand Faces." Evans did.

The second break: A few months later Zanuck saw Evans in a New York night club, had no idea who he was, but tracked him down and asked if he'd like to play the role of the bullfighter in the film adaptation of Ernest Hemingway's novel, "The Sun Also Rises." Evans did.

As a matter of fact, Bob had appeared on more than 300 radio programs as a child actor but a youthful illness forced his retirement. When he recovered a year later, he found theatrical jobs hard to find, so he entered the textile field.

In a few years he and his partners—his older brother, Charles, and designer Joseph Picone—achieved a success that can be termed mildly colossal. Their North Bergen, N.J., factory has 500 employees.

Bob looks on his film future with a sense of happy adventure tempered by caution.

"Frankly, the first two pictures cost me money—considering the time I was away from my job here," he said. "But my partners have been very understanding about my absences."

Bob figures he can make two pictures a year for Zanuck and still be away from his clothing firm office no more than 12 to 20 weeks during the slack season in ladies' slacks.

"I enjoy the business world and I get a thrill out of acting," he said. "But if I find after a couple of years I haven't made a real dent as a film personality, I'll quit."

"If I can't be important in the field, I'd rather drop it and concentrate on my own business. Some people seem to think it odd that a businessman should double as an actor. Why? The training you get in business—meeting and dealing with all kinds of people in the crises of buying and selling—should make you a better performer."

"The average businessman," he grinned—"sees as many roles, and perhaps plays as many, as the ordinary actor."

Bob, who is a bachelor, likes to swim, box, play tennis and ride horseback. He isn't at all worried that as a serious, both-feet-on-the-ground young businessman he will fall victim to Hollywood's after dark temptations.

"Why, I even cook most of my own meals because of my aversion to going out," he said. "I like to stay home in the evenings."

Ruth, a Foreigner, Won Her Way ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Ruth 1:22; 2:2-6, 8-13; 4:13, 17.

Naomi, a Hebrew woman, bereft of husband and two sons in Moab, decided to go home. Her daughter-in-law, Ruth, insisted upon going with her, and the two came to Bethlehem.

It was harvest time in Bethlehem, and Ruth said she would go into the field and glean ears of barley after a man who would be kind to her. Naomi said, "Go my daughter."

So Ruth gleaned in a field belonging to Boaz, Naomi's kinsman. Boaz asked his men who she was, and was told she was a Moabitess girl who came to Bethlehem with Naomi.

Boaz was very kind to Ruth when he learned that she had left her own family to come, a foreigner, into Israel. Later he married her.

Ruth, a Foreigner, Won Her Way

LOVE AND LOYALTY GAINED FRIENDS FOR HER IN A STRANGE LAND

Scripture—Ruth 1:22; 2:2-6, 8-13; 4:13, 17.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL FROM the fighting and slaughter in our last lesson, we turn today to one of the loveliest stories in the Old Testament. We can learn many lessons of love, loyalty and right conduct from it.

Because of a famine in Israel a man named Elimelech took his wife Naomi and his two sons to live in Moab. Elimelech died there and the two sons married Moabitess women, the name of one Orpah, and the other Ruth. Then the sons died, and Naomi, heartbroken, decided to go back to her own people.

The two young widows must have been very fond of their husbands' mother, so they said they would go with her. She advised them to return to their own people, and Orpah agreed to take when he saw Ruth he asked his men who she was. They said she was a Moabitess woman, the daughter-in-law of Naomi.

Ruth asked Boaz if he would let her glean in his fields, and he told her not to glean in any other field, and to stay close to his maidens. He also told her that he had told his young men not to interfere with her. When she was hungry, he said, she was welcome to eat with him.

Ruth fell on her face before Boaz and asked: "Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldst take knowledge of me, seeing I am a stranger?" Boaz answered that he knew of her goodness to her mother-in-law after the death of her husband; how she had left her family and her country and come to her advice. Ruth, however, clung to her mother-in-law, declaring that where Naomi went she would go; she would worship Naomi's God, and Naomi's people would be her people.

The two women traveled the 50 miles to Bethlehem, where former friends asked Naomi if it was indeed she returned. She told them to call her Mara (meaning bitter) for "the Almighty hath afflicted me." This incident was not included in our lesson assignment.

Probably realizing that she and Naomi needed food, Ruth said: "Let me now go to the field and glean ears of corn after him in whose sight I shall find grace." Naomi said, "Go, my daughter," to Ruth went and gleaned in the field after the reapers.

The field belonged to a wealthy tinsman of Naomi's, Boaz, and based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and used by permission. Distributed by King Features Syndicate a foreign land for love of Naomi. Later Boaz married Ruth and they had a son, which made Naomi very happy.

"And the women her neighbors gave it (the baby) a name, saying 'There is a son born to Naomi; and they called his name Obed; he is the father of Jesse, the father of David.'"

Do any of you who study the lesson refer to people from foreign lands as "foreigners," with a slightly patronizing air? They are strangers in a land with which they are unfamiliar, with its inhabitants speaking a language many of them do not understand.

Memorize the Golden Text of our lesson and practice its precepts, and you will doubtless find new friends who are as sweet and lovable as the Ruth of our lesson.

Royal Family Acts As Top Sales Team

By EDDY GILMORE LONDON (AP)—Britain's royal family is one of the greatest sales teams in the world.

Its garden party this week for 5,000 Americans—3,000 members of the American Bar Assn. and their relatives—was a demonstration of compelling advertising for Britain.

Two hours' exposure to Queen Elizabeth II, the Queen Mother, Prince Philip, the princess royal and the Duchess of Kent made some of the Americans ecstatic. Cecil E. Burney, of Corpus Christi, Tex., called the Queen "a honey."

Said Charles N. Rhyne, District of Columbia, new president of the Bar Assn.: "She's just like a Dresden doll. The Queen Mother is the most regal person I've ever seen in my life."

"And the prince," broke in Mrs. Rhyne. "He's just so handsome." Said Mrs. Herbert Brownell, wife of the U.S. attorney general: "She's (the Queen) magnificent. She's heavenly. And he—she's so handsome."

John Rank, of Lancaster, Pa., smiled broadly. "She's a real doll," he said, "and the prince is a charmer." Mrs. Nora Snyder, of Kansas City, took a deep breath. "I was just thrilled. Absolutely thrilled to meet the prince."

The Americans who spilled over the Buckingham Palace lawn made no secret of the fact that they came to see, meet and if possible, talk to members of the royal family.

NEW YORK (AP)—Marilyn Monroe lost her baby by an operation, a medical source close to the case said today.

The 31-year-old blonde movie star was rushed to Doctors Hospital yesterday for treatment of a threatened miscarriage. She was brought by ambulance 100 miles from her Long Island summer home at Amagansett.

With her was her husband, playwright Arthur Miller. After she was admitted to the hospital, one of Miss Monroe's doctors said she was "five or six weeks pregnant and is expecting her child at the end of March."

The medical source, who refused to be identified, told a reporter an hourlong operation was performed on the actress last night. "The baby was unsaveable" and it was urgent to "protect the life of the mother," the source added.

The source said later, however, that "no difficulties" were anticipated as a result of the operation and that Miss Monroe was "doing as well as can be expected."

The operation, it was learned, was performed by two gynecologists, Dr. Hilliard Dubrow and Dr. Bernard Berglas.

Little Vermont Town To Celebrate The Swearing-In Of Calvin Coolidge

Editor's Note — A small but solemn group watched as father swore in son as president of the United States. The only newsman among them was covering for The Associated Press. Today he recalls the simple ceremony, and tells how the town is commemorating what happened 34 years ago.

By JOE FOUNTAIN
PLYMOUTH, Vt. (AP)—This tiny hamlet, almost lost in the green Vermont hills, tomorrow will relive its golden moment in American history.

It was 2:47 on a sultry summer morning, Aug. 3, 1923, that Calvin Coolidge, vice president of the United States, stood in the lamp-lit parlor of his family's homestead while his father, a notary public, swore him in as president. Only a few hours before, President Warren G. Harding had died in San Francisco.

In tomorrow's ceremony, John Coolidge, son of the 30th President, will hand to Gov. Joseph B. Johnson a deed giving the state title to the house for a museum. 348 residents, has become a tourist attraction. Visitors from all states are flocking in. They have averaged 1,000 a month this summer.

The townsfolk never cashed in before on the fact that one of the most unique events in the nation's political history occurred here. But years, like distance, seem to lend enchantment.

A decade ago, Vermont state officials thought something should be done to perpetuate the memory of one of its most famous sons. A move was started to create a Coolidge memorial at Plymouth. The deed of the homestead is the result.

Mrs. Grace Coolidge, the Presdent's widow, agreed last year to give the little white house on a Plymouth side street to the state, and the Legislature appropriated $12,000 to renovate and restore it to its 1923 appearance.

But Mrs. Coolidge did not live to see the presentation. She died July 8.

Only three persons are still alive who saw Col. John C. Coolidge administer the oath of office. They are Herbert P. Thompson of Pittsfield, Mass., Joseph McInerney of Washington, and this writer.

McInerney was the Coolidge chauffeur, since retired from government service.

Thompson, a post office worker in Pittsfield, was a member of the small group which heard of Harding's death and motored from Springfield, Vt., with Porter Dale, then a congressman, later to become senator from Vermont, and this writer, who was then editor of the weekly Springfield Reporter and a correspondent for The Associated Press.

Other reporters — assigned to Coolidge for several days — had been at the scene earlier. But there was only one telephone in Plymouth, and the government had commandeered that, so they had headed elsewhere with their stories of how the household was awakened by a messenger bearing a telegram with news of Harding's death.

When Dale convinced the vice president that he should take the oath immediately, I had an exclusive story and a beat for The AP.

Several days later, I interviewed the President's father, and asked him how he knew he had the necessary constitutional authority to swear in his son—a ceremony usually reserved for the chief justice of the United States. He was as sparing of speech as his son, and replied: "I didn't know that I couldn't."

And he didn't know, because the Constitution outlines the form of the oath, but does not specify who will administer it.

The "Oath Room" has been restored just as it was on that historic morning. There is the table on which Aurora Pierce, the housekeeper, had placed a spotless oil lamp, the only illumination in the room. Also on the table was the open Coolidge family Bible, which was used in the ceremony, and a farm tool catalogue.

In one corner of the room is the old secretary desk on which the President, as a student, had written a prize-winning essay on the causes of the American Revolution.

In the years since, Calvin Coolidge has become a somewhat legendary character. Popular opinion links him to economy, sly wit, shrewdness, and above all, honesty.

His eyes could sparkle brightly on occasion, as on the night he became president and maneuvered this 24-year-old newspaperman into paying for a soft drink for Congressman Dale.

We had all gone to the village store to quench our thirst. As we put the empty bottles down on the counter, the man who in a few minutes would be president carefully reached in his pocket, brought out a purse, dug deep in the change compartment. His eyes twinkling, he laid a single nickel beside the bottles.

Congressman Dale and I were both surprised, but I recovered first and managed to get my dime down to cover the other two drinks.

In the intervening years, many facts of Coolidge's decision to have his father administer the oath have come to light. As a reporter, I think it may have been because he liked to do the unusual, liked to surprise people, and did it with the proverbial tongue in cheek.

Unite To Catch A Wayward Bus

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)— Massachusetts and Rhode Island police joined forces last night to catch a wayward Greyhound bus which missed a stop and left 29 would-be passengers stranded in Brockton, Mass.

When the bus failed to show up in Brockton, state police at Rehoboth, Mass., were notified, but the bus had already passed there. Police at Seekonk ran out on the highway as the bus whizzed by—too late to halt it. Finally a police cruiser caught up with it.

The driver turned around and went 34 miles back to Brockton. A company official said he was a new man.

Communization Progress Cited

HONG KONG (AP)—Private ownership has virtually disappeared in Red China, Peiping Radio claimed yesterday in reporting completion last year of a "Socialist transformation plan."

The report said that by the end of 1956, "a year of tremendous change in China's national economy," 92 per cent of all peasant households were in agricultural cooperatives and 90 per cent of all cultivated land was worked collectively.

The broadcast added that 98.7 per cent of all industrial output came from state-controlled companies and only 3 per cent of all commercial undertakings were privately owned.

Business Profits Running Ahead Of Last Year

By SAM DAWON

NEW YORK (AP)—American business profits are running ahead of last year by 4.5 per cent—thanks in large part to a profitable six months in the oil industry.

So far 588 corporations—covering all fields except financial and accounting for roughly half of total corporate profits in the nation—have reported net income after taxes for the first six months of 1957.

Of these 308 show an increase over the first half of 1956, while 280 are behind. This year 21 operated at a net loss, compared with 19 the previous year.

Of 503 industrials, 266 gained and 237 declined from year-ago figures. Combined, the 503 have net income of $4,741,464,757, which is 5 per cent above a year ago.

The 28 oil companies in the list have the largest combined earnings of any group—$1,400,615,206, up 17.2 per cent. Subtract the oil group from the industrial list and the combined profits of the remaining 475 are only 0.7 per cent ahead of 1956's first half.

A price rise last January in crude oil and various price hikes in oil products since helped the oil industry's profits. But oilmen say the biggest boost came from supplying the Western European market while the Suez Canal was blocked. And some add that the second half of the year may show no such gain over 1956.

The 24 utilities reporting show the usual steady gain in profits, up 5.9 per cent this time. The 50 rails, with 36 reporting declines, reveal a combined profit decline of 10.3 per cent.

Among the industrial groups the best gains over a year ago are reported by aircraft equipment, coal, auto equipment, oil, food, aircraft, autos and trucks, business machines, drugs, tobacco and machinery.

Nonferrous mining companies report sharply lower profits this year, due largely to the weakness in metal prices. Also declining are textiles, entertainment, mea-packing, paper and its products, building materials and appliances. The airlines are down and surface shipping up.

Altogether the 588 corporations show profits of $5,702,835,632, compared with $5,453,040,348 for the first half of 1956.

This gain of 4.5 per cent compares with a 5.5 per cent advance last year over the first half of 1955, an increase of 34.7 per cent that year over the first half of 1954, and the 2 per cent gain of 1954 over the 1953 first half.

The percentage of gain has been slipping fairly steadily in almost every reporting period since the first three months of 1956, which was 12 per cent ahead of the first quarter of 1955.

Mexico Expands Radio 'School'

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico is expanding a program to teach its Indians, especially in wild mountain areas, by radio.

Forty-one schools are being scattered through the Mixteca Mountains in southern Oaxaca. They will be equipped with radio receivers, notebooks and pencils, blackboards and chalk, and some books.

Among other things, practical advice will be given on farming, cattle raising and cooking. The broadcasts will be made from Tlaxiaco, in the center of the region, by teachers familiar with the dialect.

Freed On Bond In Liquor Arrest

Three Negroes, arrested yesterday morning on charges of possessing non-tax-paid whiskey, have been released on bond pending trial in county court next Tuesday.

George Douglas Williams is free under $400 bond, and Beatrice Mooring and Zola Walker are free under $200 bond each. They were arrested by ABC Officer Jack Russell and Deputy Sheriff Cecil Crandell on the Pactolus highway.

The officers seized the trio's car and a case of bootleg whiskey. The Union Terminal in Washington, D.C., services seven railroads. It was built in 1907 at a cost of 21½ million dollars.

IN TOURNAMENT PLAY—Bob Bateman of the Tri-County All Stars scores one knee in the Junior League Tournament held at Kinston yesterday. The All-Stars met Kinston and were defeated 4-3 in an extra-inning contest, which eliminated them from the series. An error in the bottom of the eighth inning lost the game for the Tri-County club. Ben Monk, who came on in the fourth, was the losing pitcher. (Photos: Tommy Oglesby).

SCORE—Tri-County's Mack Tripp skids into home with another score in yesterday's Junior League Tourney at Kinston. Babe Hardison, Kinston Catcher, waves wildly for the ball, but late. Kinston won, however, 4-3, in extra innings.

Commissioner Bell To Do Business With Grid Union

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Football League players union, hardly out of infancy, enjoyed unexpected recognition today. But it still faced uncertainties in getting along with pro football management.

Officials of nine clubs voiced approval when NFL Commissioner Bert Bell announced yesterday he would recognize and negotiate with the recently created NFL Players Assn.

Spokesman for three others didn't condemn Bell's action—but neither did they do handsprings as a result of it.

Bell chose a House Antitrust subcommittee hearing as the scene of his announcement.

Failure to recognize and bargain collectively with the players organization would be "against the best interest of the National Football League and the public," he said.

The subcommittee is investigating football and other professional team sports to determine whether they should be immune from federal antitrust laws. Past refusal of NFL club owners to accept the players' association had nettled several lawmakers, including Subcommittee Chairman Celler (D-NY), Rep. Keating (R-NY) and Rep. Rodino (D-NJ). They commended Bell's decision.

Creighton Miller, the ex-Notre Dame backfield star who is now attorney for the association, said he was "most gratified" as long as Bell was empowered to speak for the league.

Bell told the subcommittee the NFL constitution gave him full authority to bestow recognition. He said he had not sought prior assent from the club owners, who had refused recognition at their annual meeting last winter. George Preston Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins, with concurrence of President George Halas of the Chicago Bears, argued Bell had no right to complete a contract or working agreement with any outside party without approval of 10 of the 12 NFL clubs. Marshall cited the league constitution and bylaws.

Paul Brown, coach and general manager of the Cleveland Browns, likewise suggested Bell's authority was a subject for "legal interpretation."

Boyd Favored Over Vaughn

NEW YORK (AP)—Chicago's Bob Boyd, making the comeback climb in the busy middleweight division, was favored to stretch his latest victory streak to five tonight at the expense of Californian Willie Vaughn.

It's their second meeting within three months. Boyd, a hard-hitting 23-year-old, gained a disputed split decision over ransy Willie in Chicago. The return 10-rounder will be held at St. Nicholas Arena with the usual Friday night broadcast and telecast NBC, 9 p. m., EST.

The verdict over Vaughn was belting Bobby's third on the comeback. He scored his fourth over Rocky Castellani June 26.

Boyd had won nine straight and was in line for a title shot until he ran into Joey Giardello, who was then making a comeback himself. Giardello shot right back to the top ranks by knocking out Boyd in the fifth round. Boyd's jaw was broken and he was sidelined for eight months.

Now back in the ranking 10, Boyd will have to be in peak form to stay there. Vaughn, burned up at the narrow loss in Boyd's hometown, has been going strong since. He outpointed Tiger Al Williams and then stopped Chebo Hernandez in seven. The last fight was in Chicago, July 17.

West Footballers Are Favored Team Tonight

Greenville And High Point In Playoff Today

Greenville and High Point tangled here this afternoon to decide which of the two clubs shall represent this district of the state in the North Carolina Little League Tourney at Fayetteville next week.

High Point defeated Concord Wednesday afternoon in its own separate tournament, while Greenville's Tar Heels were winning out in the local tourney.

The Easterners, rated by some as slight underdogs, will be out to avenge last year's 2-19 loss.

Kickoff is set for 8 p. m. in the ninth annual grid classic. Each team has won four games in the series which started in 1949.

Both clubs will employ a split-T offense and the two-platoon system will be used.

West coaches Shu Carlton of Gastonia and Burton Barger of Valdese yesterday named Dewayne Milner of Canton as starting offensive quarterback.

With Milner in the backfield will be halfbacks Claude Gobson of Asheville and David Burch of Canton, and 190-pound fullback Bill Godfrey of Charlotte Harding.

In the West offensive line, which will average 195 pounds, will be Ed Carroll of Wilmington and Jimmy Tapp of Roxboro, tackles Charles Cook of Wilmington and Graham Singleton of Washington, guards Johnny Crute of Wilson and David Cooper of Cary and center Jim Lanier of Arsay.

Greenville earned this afternoon by making a clean sweep of the Little League Area series here this week. They trimmed the North Staters 15-2 in the opening round and dumped Havelock 11-0 Wednesday in the championship tilt.

Coaches Charlie Bland and Billy Dunn of the Tar Heels did not disclose the starting lineup of today's contest before game time, 4:00.

Listed below are the Greenville players:
Elwood Goodson, Joe Harper, Frank Harper (Pepsi-Cola); Kenneth Joyner, Dixie Coltraine, Jimmy Smith (Moose); Robby Ange, Bernie Morris, Johnnie Reynolds, Richard Taft (Exchange); Joe McKay, J. G. Proctor, Denny Hardee, Bill Green (Elks).

Farley Nominee For East Slot
GREENSBORO—Coach Boley Farley, head basketball mentor at Greenville high school, has been chosen as a nominee for the basketball coach of the East All-Stars for 1958.

Farley and two others, Bill Sweet of Washington and Hugh Bowman of Aberdeen, were chosen by vote of the large number of North Carolina coaches attending the clinic here this week.

The coaches voted on the measure this week, however, the selection will not be announced until early next year.

Old Guard Still Rapping Kids In Carolinas Play

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The "Old Guard" in Carolinas tennis continued its assault on the younger element here today as third round play opened in the Carolinas championships.

Such "old-timers" as top seeded Allen Morris, Sam Daniel, Bill Umstead, Herb Browne, and Pete Green, all former college players who have continued among the best, waded through first round opposition yesterday without too much trouble.

Morris, former Presbyterian College ace, used his wealth of experience in moving past Bobby Daniel of Belton, S.C., 6-1, 6-2, and then won over Greenville's Ben Ger Keyes, 6-3, 6-3. Keyes was the 1956 South Carolina junior champ.

Daniel, now of Lakeville but formerly of Columbia, S.C., belted out Charlotte's Finley Lee, a rising youngster, 6-2, 6-2, while Herb Browne, a former University of North Carolina star, blistered Bobby Burns of Columbia, 6-1, 7-5.

In a second round match, Daniel whipped Buddy Florence of Charlotte, 6-2, 6-3.

Umstead, of Abbeville, S.C., won by default over Eion Faclton of Kinston, Faclton decided to play in the junior division.

Green, also a former UNC ace, dropped highly-regarded Buzzy Cowart of Atlanta, 1-6, 6-2, 6-2.

In the junior singles division, first seeded Paul Scarpa of Charleston waded past two opponents, defeating Charlie Connelly of Charlotte 6-0, 6-4 in a second round match, then routing Ken McCullough of Charlotte, 6-1, 6-4.

Cowart had better luck in the juniors, defeating Stuart Levi of Greenville, S.C., 6-0, 6-3, in the second round, then winning his quarterfinal match from Bill Shirley of Belton, S.C., 8-6, 6-2.

Musial, Jones Push Cards Back Into National Lead

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press
Stan (The Man) Musial and Sad Sam Jones, an example of the old standbys and new faces who have made the St. Louis Cardinals hum, have the Redbirds perched atop the National League standings again.

Musial, 4-for-4 with a pair of two-run homers, and Jones, pitching a six-hit shutout, were all the Cards needed to move two percentage points past idle Milwaukee last night. But the Redbirds won it big, banging 16 hits for an 8-0 job and their sixth straight success.

Brooklyn is third, 1 1/2 games behind, after rapping the Chicago Cubs 12-3. Gil Hodges set a NL record with the 13th bases-loaded home run of his 12-year career.

Cincinnati reclaimed fourth place from Philadelphia, rallying to beat the Phils 4-3.

In the American League, it's New York for four games after Washington bumped the second-place Chicago White Sox 5-4 while the Yankees were idle. Detroit gained a share of fourth place with Cleveland by defeating Boston 7-5 in the only other game scheduled.

Musial, who retired after six innings, passed Ty Cobb and took third place behind Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig with 1,140 extra-base hits in his 16-year career.

Stan, who also singled twice, put it away fast, tagging a first-inning pitch from southpaw Johnny Antonelli, now 19-11, for his first homer, then giving the Cards a 6-0 lead in the sixth with the second, off lefty reliever Jim Constance, after Jones had doubled.

Jones, a 31-year-old righthander who has gained control since joining the Cards in a December deal with the Cubs, walked only one, struck out four and had a four-hitter for eight innings while gaining a 9-4 record.

The Dodgers, matching St. Louis' 21-10 record in the last 31 games, rapped 18 hits off loser Tom Foholsky and three relievers as the Cubs chipped in six errors. Sandy Koufax won his fifth with a four-hitter and 11 strikeouts.

Hodges drove in five runs and locked it up with his big smash off southpaw Dick Littlefield in the fifth after Ernie Banks' three-run homer had whittled the Brook lead.

Curt Simmons, backed up by homers from Stan Lopaia and Rip Repulski, had a four-hitter and a 3-1 lead until the Redlegs cut loose for three runs in the eighth. Ed Bailey's sacrifice fly scored the clincher. Johnny Klippstein won in relief.

Roy Sievers hit his fourth home run in four games to trigger a three-run sixth that beat the White Sox, who first built a 4-0 lead on Larry Doby's first grand slammer since 1953.

The Tigers scored three in the ninth for a 7-1 lead, but Duke Maas needed relief from Harry Byrd and Frank Lary to win his eighth. Frank Malzone's two-on home made it a four-run ninth for the Sox and Lary came on with two on and none out to get Norm Zaucha on a double play ball and fan Ted Lepcio. Mike Fornieles was the loser.

Unknown Fighter Upsets National Amateur Champ
SEATTLE (AP)—The upset of national champion Ruban Pizarro of New York City by a novice whose name wasn't even in the program highlighted the opening of the International Amateur boxing tournament last night.

Quincy Daniels, a skinny hometown 125-pounder, who has been fighting only a year, pounced on Pizarro and earned a split decision from the judges. Influencing the outcome was a knockdown in which few of the ringiders saw a blow land and thought Pizarro had been wrestled to the floor.

Two other national champions survived their opening tests in this first night of action, which was limited to elimination bouts to decide the official U.S. entries in the tournament.

Alex Ford of Youngstown, Ohio, whipped Rufus Mitchell of Ft. Lewis, Wash., on a technical knockout in 2:05 of the second round. The 165-pound AAU champion must meet Willy Young, Seattle, today to clinch a berth on the 10-man team.

Patterson Chosen Fighter Of Month
NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson's 10th round technical knockout of Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson won "Fighter of the Month" honors for the heavyweight champion and dropped the Hurricane from the top contender's position.

Eddie Machen, undefeated Redding, Calif., puncher, was promoted to the No. 1 spot in the latest Ring Magazine ratings released today. In another change, lightweight champion Archie Moore, preparing for a title defense against Tony Anthony, was dropped from the heavyweight list and replaced by Alex Miteff, undefeated Argentine. Miteff was given the 10th position as he made the elite list for the first time.

There were wholesale changes in the welterweight division where former champion Kid Gavilan of Cuba and veteran Gil Turner of Philadelphia moved back into the rankings. Gavilan, by upsetting Mexico's Gaspar Ortega, took 10th place. Turner gained the ninth peg by whipping Del Flanagan of St. Paul. Flanagan was demoted from fifth to eighth.

Another Rise For FHA Interest Rates Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Another increase in FHA home loan interest rates is imminent, congressional sources said today.

They said they expect a boost from 5 to 5 1/2 per cent in the interest rate to be announced soon along with approval of lower down payments and new controls on the amount of discount — or premium—which may be charged borrowers on mortgage loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

No time was mentioned in connection with the rate increase, but reports were current that an announcement might be made before September. Firm loan commitments already made presumably would not be affected.

There was no immediate comment from housing officials.

A reduction in FHA down payment requirements for prospective home buyers was authorized and imposition of sharply lower ceilings on discounts was ordered by Congress in new housing legislation signed July 12 by President Eisenhower.

The discounting practice, which has spread rapidly during the

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSBERG

We wonder why questions as vital to our whole civilization as the disposition of atomic energy have to be aired in such reputable but relatively small-circulation magazines as The Saturday Review. This week Congressman Chet Holifield of California, Chairman of the Special Radiation Subcommittee of the House Committee on Atomic Energy, attempts to answer the question, "Who Should Judge the Atom?"—and his article is in The Saturday Review, which will be read by comparatively few people, despite the universal significance of what he has to say.

Anyway, we read it, and we advise you to, if you want to get an expert's view on something that might well affect the future not only of all of us but our children as well.

And for an even grimmer, if imaginable, so far—view of the possibilities of atomic destruction, take a look at Nevil Shute's new novel, "On the Beach," about such events in the year 1963, when the reasons—and we might add that it would violate the whole conception of a "free" public library. The lady from Baltimore suggests that libraries might be required to pay more for their copies, though, so that the author could pick up a little extra revenue that way. Reactions, anyone? . . .

Fame Comes to N. C.

All young, all famous, all Tarheels—two authors and a new TV commentator have been hitting the jackpot recently. Lettie H. Rogers of Chapel Hill has made quite a splash with her "Birthright," reviewed here as a Literary Guild book. One of her former students, Jackson Burgess, has just written "Pillar of Cloud," which is the August Literary Guild selection. . . .

And, in another medium, we find that John Wingate, who was raised in Chapel Hill and worked on several N. C. newspapers, has just succeeded Mike Wallace as the big man on the highly recommended TV program, "Night Beat"—and we don't highly recommend TV programs unless they're pretty good, which this one is. . . .

Today's Review

Mrs. Madge Allen contributes her comments on a recently published historical novel. . . .

QUEEN OF FRANCE: A BIOGRAPHY OF MARIE ANTOINETTE, by Andre Castelot. Translated by Denise Foliot. New York: Harper's, 1957. Literary Guild Edition.

This is a highly colored account of the unbelievable intrigue, waste of life and money, and the constant spying into strictly personal matters that went on around the court of Marie Antoinette, Queen of France. Nothing was sacred nor hidden from the eyes of some interested snooper—not even her first night of marriage.

Marie Antoinette's complete abandon in large parties, her gambling, and her illicit love affairs, was a way out from a marriage that never could be consummated. She dressed very lavishly, having as many as 170 dresses in one year. She had three children about whom there were many whispered accusations. But she was protected by the king.

Oppose Giving Caribbean Base

CHAGUARAMAS BAY, Trinidad (AP)—U.S. Navy officials say the Western Hemisphere defense chain would be weakened seriously if the Chaguaramas naval base is handed over to the emerging West Indies federation.

Capt. John D. Shea, the base commander, declared its continued operation is "vital for the defense of the United States, all of the Caribbean and South America."

He added in an interview the base was part of a system and if surrendered as a site for the capital of the new West Indies nation, "it would be like knocking the bottom out of the chain of defenses protecting the Western Hemisphere."

Shea said that if first-line defenses in Europe ever collapsed and Chaguaramas had been abandoned, then the way for an enemy's access to the Caribbean would be easier "and we might find ourselves fighting on the beaches."

Leaders of the 13 British-held Caribbean islands have been insisting the base is the most logical site for the capital of the West Indies commonwealth nation.

The United States at a recent London conference rejected a British-backed request by the West Indies that the 150-million-dollar base, described as one of the best in the world and encircled by a string of islands, be surrendered as a good will gesture.

West Indies leaders have suggested the United States could establish another base elsewhere in this area. Shea said no other natural site is available and the creation of a new base would entail "staggering and prohibitive costs."

The London conference agreed to form a committee representing the United States, Britain, the West Indies and Trinidad to discuss all aspects of the issue and try to work out some compromise.

Student Center Construction Now Under Way

Foundations have been excavated and construction work begun on the new Methodist Student Center on a site adjacent to the campus of East Carolina College here.

The new facility for the Methodist Student Center is located at the corner of East Fifth and Holly Streets, across from the West campus of the college, and will cost approximately $125,000 when completed. The structure will be modern throughout, including furnishings, with adequate lounges, a chapel, a commodious all-purpose hall with well-lighted stage, dressing and costume wardrobe, recreation room, and kitchen.

The new Methodist Student Center project was initiated by the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church, in which the North Carolina Conference of the denomination is also co-operating.

Hollywood 'Child Star' Director Knows Ropes

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the best directors of children in the business today is a onetime child star—Sidney Miller.

Sidney, now directing for Walt Disney on both movies and TV (he directs the Mousketeers), appeared in better than 300 movies from the first talkies onward.

Before that, he had worked on the children's Hour, a famous radio program, in New York City. "My mother and I used to take the train every Sunday from our home town of Shenandoah, Pa., to New York. One day a Warner's talent scout said Hollywood was looking for young boys for 'Penrod and Sam.'"

"So mother and I came out on the train to Hollywood. I carried my guitar all the way. We arrived here and I went to the casting office myself. I can remember the casting director asking me what my name was.

"Instead of answering, I whipped out the guitar and started singing. For some strange reason, she said she had a part for me. It was as a Catholic altar boy in a religious procession scene.

"I carried the crucifix at the head of the procession and kept thinking how I had just had my Bar Mitzvah a few weeks previously."

He got the part in "Penrod and Sam" too, and from there went into many notable pictures, such as the "Mickey McGuire" series with Mickey Rooney and later

Discuss Successor For Sec. Wilson

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charles E. Wilson has been talking with his boss about a successor in the job of secretary of defense.

But, says the 67-year-old defense chief, no date has been decided yet for his resignation. In office for 4½ years, he already has held the post more than twice as long as any predecessor.

Obviously, Wilson indicated that he certainly expects to be on the job for at least another month. And in a news conference yesterday he talked about this fall's budget-making business in a way which suggested he might participate.

He was asked if he had talked with President Eisenhower about a successor. His answer was that "of course, the matter has been discussed from time to time, but I have no particular person to recommend."

Wilson's answer to inquiries about new rumors of his resignation came at a meeting with news-men devoted primarily to the military budget and the economy cuts demanded by Congress.

The secretary said the Pentagon is now engaged in economies designed to keep spending within the $8-billion-dollar military fund available.

He estimated that actions already taken have brought about roughly half the planned economies. These actions include such things as the cutback in manpower, a reduction in expenditures for maintenance and operation, and elimination of the Navaho long-range guided missile program.

But, he said, "the bad news is not all out yet."

As he had said on previous occasions, Wilson reported that the effort is to level off annual military spending at 38 billion dollars. Later, the program for obsolescence and disposal of mater-ial or service also should be stabilized at 38 billion dollars, he added.

During the first half of this year, he said, spending was at annual rate of $40,200,000,000 and "still on the uptrend."

Wilson's comment that he has proffered no firm suggestions about a successor may be related to reports that the administration is finding difficulty in inducing another top business executive to take the comparatively low-paying, criticism-fraught job.

This revived speculation that President Eisenhower and Wilson might turn to some of the present secretaries. Those officials, like Deputy Secretary Donald Quarles and Asst. Secretary Wilfred J. McNeil, veteran comptroller, have severed connections with their business activities.

Men Have It Easier On TV Says Georgia Gibbs

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Men performers have it much easier than women on television, says Georgia Gibbs, the girl who has launched a delightful new program of songs on NBC-TV Monday evenings.

"A man just puts on a tux or a dark suit and goes before the cameras," she said. "But a woman has so many problems. What clothes will she wear? How will she fix her hair? Is her makeup right? It seems to me I spend three days a week fussing over my clothes for a 15-minute show."

Because of the care with which she selects her clothing ("I strive for simplicity"), viewers don't realize she is only five feet. But the home audience has discovered she can sing anything: ballads or blues, beguines or rock 'n' roll, and she can belt them or sing them sweet.

Georgia began singing in a Worcester, Mass., movie house when she was 11 years old, the youngest of four children of a widowed mother. Two years later she lied about her age and began touring with small bands, sometimes traveling 400 miles between one-night stands.

"Those were the important years, when a kid wants to be wanted," she recalls. "On the road it was lonelier than it can ever be again. Those years are lost. But singing the way I did then—sometimes 50 or 60 songs a night—that's real solid training."

When she felt she was ready for the big plunge, she came to New York and competed with 150 other singers for a vocal spot on the Jimmy Durante radio show, landing the job. After that she appeared with such stars as Danny Kaye, Eddie Cantor, Bob Hope and Milton Berle. Her big break came with her 13th recording, "Kiss of Fire," which sold over a million.

After that hit the offers for singing engagements poured in from clubs in both this country and Europe.

Fragrant Inks For Newspapers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—In the not-too-distant future your favorite newspaper may not only read well but smell good too.

The Printing Industries Assn. of Los Angeles says it is now possible to print food ads that smell like fried chicken and wedding announcements that have the scent of orange blossoms.

The PIA said more than 120 distinct aromas can now be incorporated into modern printing procedures.

Electronic Mail Service Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Fulton (R-Pa.) suggested today that 5-cent stamps be required on all first-class letters to help finance an electronic postal service.

He would eliminate the air mail stamp, saying the post office should send letters "by the fastest means under the circumstances," whether by air or otherwise.

Fulton outlined his idea this way:

"Let the stamp buyer route his letter." The whole country would be zoned, so would the cities. A stamp buyer would punch buttons according to zones to perforate the stamp and mail his letter, a machine would route it down the right chute, and it would be on its way.

Fulton said in an interview this electronic system would virtually eliminate hand sorting of mail and that "the savings would be astronomical."

Fulton started a parliamentary maneuver intended to bring before the House a bill to raise postal rates. The measure would bring in about 57½ million dollars a year in additional revenue. It includes a penny raise on the 3-cent first-class stamp and the 6-cent air mail stamp.

If the bill gets to the floor, Fulton said, then he will try then to present his ideas.

Fulton estimated the proposed 5-cent stamp, plus some graduated raises on second and third class mail, would add about 700 to 800 million dollars a year to postal revenues.

He said he figures the Post Office Department would just about break even under his plan. It is operating now under an annual deficit estimated at some 650 million dollars.

YOU CAN DIE LAUGHING

By A.A. FAIR (ERLE STANLEY GARDNER)

CHAPTER 17

"You're going to talk with Corning?" Bertha asked me.

"If he's at his hotel, I am. I'm going to try and get a written statement out of him if I can."

"Donald, he'll pulverize you."

I said, "He'll really pulverize us if he makes a statement to Wells' attorney before I can get to him."

Bertha's eyes narrowed. "That would make it look bad, wouldn't it?"

"What?"

"You insisting on notifying the police that a murder had been committed, Corning not wanting the police brought in, trying to keep you from telephoning in the information, you insisting . . ."

I said, "That part of it's all right. Just so he tells the truth."

Bertha said, "You told him you had a murder to report."

"I didn't tell him anything about what Wells had done. I told him what Mrs. Raleigh said he had done."

"The process server was looking for you yesterday, Donald. Can they serve me instead of you?"

"No, they have to serve me personally."

"But they served me with two copies. One of them must have been for you."

"No," I told her, "he served you once as an individual and then gave you one copy as a member of the partnership. That means they have service on you as an individual and they also have service on the partnership. They'll probably manage to serve me today."

"Then what do we do?"

"Then we see a lawyer. One of the first things we do is take a deposition of Drury Wells. I don't think he's going to like that. In the meantime, I'm going to see Corning."

Bertha pushed back the chair and came around the desk. "Look, Donald," she said, "I want you to know that Bertha realizes it's been your brains and your daring that have picked this agency up from a cheap shoe-string, process-serving, second-rate agency and made it amount to something."

"I'll still kick about your expense accounts and your easy-come, easy-go attitude toward money, but Donald Lam, when the going gets tough, Bertha stands by you, shoulder to shoulder! You won't hear a yip out of me — win, lose or draw."

Her beady little eyes were all matted up with tears.

"Now," she said, "go out and see Corning and see if we can get something on the dotted line. I sure messed things up with that Raleigh woman yesterday, which is something I'd never admit if I wasn't so scared."

The Dartmouth Hotel was a small apartment hotel that tried to be swanky. The clerk told me he would see if Mr. Corning was in, and asked me for my name.

I told him to say that Mr. Wells was calling. The clerk put through the call to Corning, then suddenly became cordiality itself. "Go right up, Mr. Wells," he said "Mr. Corning said he'd be very glad to see you. It's apartment 302-A."

I pressed the mother-of-pearl button on 302-A. The door was flung open. Corning had a cordial smile wreathed all over his face and then, when he saw me, his expression turned a somer-sault.

"I want to talk a little turkey with you," I told him.

He had his coat off, his shirt was open at the neck, and the rawboned higness of the man stuck out all over him as he stood there looking down at me.

I said, "I have some more information which might be of value to you."

"What the hell did you mean by telling the clerk your name was Wells?"

"I thought I might have less difficulty seeing you as Drury Wells than I would as Donald Lam."

He stood there blocking the doorway, trying to think.

I stepped forward with the quiet confidence of a person who is absolutely certain of himself. "You'll like this information," I told him.

He moved to one side, let me pass him, kicked the door shut, and indicated a chair. "All right," he growled. "What is it?"

I said, "If you'll tell me exactly what it is, I may be able to help you."

"I told you what I want," he said. "I want to find Mrs. Wells."

"Well," I said, "of course it makes a difference whether you're looking for her for money, marbles, or chalk. That girl certainly is a dish! I'd been prepared to approve of her from her photographs, but no photograph can do that girl justice. She radiates vitality, personality and—"

He was forward on the edge of his chair. "What do you mean! Have you seen her?"

"Sure," I said.

"You mean you've found her?"

"Of course."

"Why the devil didn't you let me know?"

"That's what I am doing. I'm letting you know."

"Where is she?"

I said, "I'd like to get a couple of matters cleaned up first."

"Such as what?"

"You remember when you were in the office, that last time, when I called up my friend on the Homicide Squad?"

"Yes."

"I told him that a Mrs. Raleigh who lived next door to Drury Wells had heard a fight late at night, had heard the sound of a blow, then had seen Wells go out to the garage with something over his shoulder, that she thought it could have been a body wrapped in a blanket. You remember that?"

"I remember the conversation."

"You will remember that at no time did I state that in my opinion Wells had murdered his wife. I merely made a report as to a conversation I had had with Mrs. Raleigh."

He started to say something, then his eyes narrowed slightly. "You seem to be damned anxious about this."

Exorcised?

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Six times in the past month the C. A. Wilkinson's clock jumped off its perch.

Electrical plugs popped from the sockets as soon as they were inserted. An electric hand sweeper took off on zig-zaw forays through the house. The motor in the refrigerator blew out twice. The new electric organ rumbled deep in its innards, even when it wasn't plugged in.

Wilkinson isn't certain yet but he believes a nearby transformer is leaking and has set up a magnetic field around the house.

He tore down a section of heavy wire fence around the yard and dug up some water pipes.

That seems to have stopped the trouble.

Recording Star Will Be Guest

Recording star and television personality George Hamilton, IV, will be a special guest on WNCT's "Danzonara" Saturday at noon.

Hamilton will be a guest of host Bill Norwood on the hour-long musical program. Hamilton's records will be played during the show, and the young Winston-Salem native will be interviewed by Norwood.

Tomorrow's show will mark the first visit to Greenville by Hamilton. He is currently appearing on CBS television's Jimmy Dean Show and has appeared at the Paramount Theater in New York City and at the Steel Pier in Atlantic City, N. J.

Among Hamilton's songs which will be played on the program will be "A Rose And A Baby Ruth" which sold more than a million copies.

"I just wanted to be sure that your recollection of the conversation was accurate."

He thought that over for a while, then said, "Where's Mrs. Wells?"

"1638 Frostmere Road."

"Sure, I know. That's the address."

"Well, that's where she was day before yesterday, and she's really quite a dish."

"You mean, she's back?" Corning asked.

"She's back cleaning up the place, getting the dishes done, the beds made, the ash trays cleaned out."

"And you say she was there day before yesterday?"

"That's right."

"Then why in blazes didn't you notify me day before yesterday?"

"You'd fired me. I was busy on another matter."

He got up, buttoned his shirt, put on his necktie, picked up a coat that was draped over the back of the chair, pushed his arms in it, said, "Come on. Let's go. You can make the identification. You've talked with her?"

"I've talked with her, of course."

"All right. Let's go."

I said, "I'd like a memo from you about that phone conversation so that I could show it to my friend on the Homicide Squad, so he won't be getting any ideas about—"

"Sure, sure!" Corning said. "I'll fix that up all right. I'll be glad to take care of you, Lam. Only you should have let me know day before yesterday. I've been going to all sorts of trouble trying to locate that woman. I just can't understand her coming back to the house. That's the last place in the world I'd have looked for her . . ."

Elusive is the word for Mrs. Wells again, as the story continues here tomorrow.

Bees Cost Him His Straw Hat

BIG RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Farmer Frank Green of nearby Morley went out to the pasture to bring in his cow.

As Green neared, the cow kicked over a nest of bees. The bees attacked Green, who began batting them out of the way with his straw hat. The hat slipped out of his hand and fell to the ground.

Price changes among pivotal issues were very narrow for the most part. It was mainly a mixture of small plus and minus signs. A few key stocks moved beyond the range of a point.

High-priced International Business Machines rose around 4 points—a modest gain for a stock selling at more than 300—on a published interview with Thomas J. Watson, president, that he would not be surprised if the firm's gross income reached a billion dollars this year.

Raytheon, the most active stock in the last couple of days as it rose on reports of its missile production, was up a fraction.

Du Pont posted a gain of more than a point. Eastman Kodak dropped a major fraction.

As the metal stocks wilted, American Smelting, Kennecott and Anaconda all lost good fractions. Phelps Dodge was firm.

Steels and rails were very narrowly mixed. Aircrafts showed practically no change, although United Aircraft rose a fraction. Motors were practically stationary.

Utilities showed a slight downside drift with Standard Oil (New Jersey) off a bit.

Utilities were steady on average with American Telephone holding firm but small losses showing for Consolidated Natural Gas and Commonwealth Edison.

Zenith picked up a point. Johnson-Manville was off around a point.

A standard practice, McNiff said, even among "the more respected industrial unions in New York." Is to refuse to give workers copies of the contracts that are put in writing. Thus, he said, the workers seldom know even the minimum benefits to which they are entitled.

McNiff said he has taken this up with the International Ladies Garment Workers, for one, and obtained some success in having more contracts made available to ILGWU members.

He said he thought depriving members of contract copies was without the knowledge of ILGWU President Dave Dubinsky, but that he has been unable to see Dubinsky about it.

Hear Testimony Of Conspiracies To Exploit Labor

WASHINGTON (U. S.)—The Senate rackets investigating committee developed testimony today that hoodlum-controlled labor unions and employers have conspired to exploit nearly one million Puerto Rican and Negro workers in New York City.

John McNiff, executive secretary of the Assn. of Catholic Trade Unionists, said "the worst evil of all in the trade-union picture today is collusion between crooked management and crooked unionism."

McNiff named 22 New York local unions which he said cooperate with companies to "exploit Puerto Rican workers and other unskilled or semiskilled workers in the metropolitan New York area."

He said the unions in cooperation with firms enter into contracts which are often only verbal agreements and often fix wages at the $40-per-week legal federal minimum wage for a 40-hour week, or rates only slightly above that figure.

A standard practice, McNiff said, even among "the more respected industrial unions in New York." Is to refuse to give workers copies of the contracts that are put in writing. Thus, he said, the workers seldom know even the minimum benefits to which they are entitled.

McNiff said he has taken this up with the International Ladies Garment Workers, for one, and obtained some success in having more contracts made available to ILGWU members.

Postal Workers Pray For Pay Hike Measure

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Postal workers honor bound not to strike—held prayer meetings throughout the nation yesterday, seeking "divine guidance" for a bill pending in Congress which would raise their pay.

The House has passed a bill to add $46 a year to the $4,340 average salary of the nation's 516,000 postal workers. The bill is awaiting action in the Senate.

President Eisenhower strongly opposes the bill in its present form.

In Minneapolis, more than 1,000 workers held an early morning "prayer" meeting. Dr. John B. Oman of Wesley Methodist Church urged the government to "lift the level of living for these public servants who serve so faithfully."

Also leading prayers at the Minneapolis meeting was Rabbi Lewis N. Ginsburg.

In New York City, 200 off-duty postmen attended an outdoor meeting to pray that the President would not veto the bill. Prayers were led by the Rev. William Hohenschield, a guest preacher at Holy Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church in Manhattan.

In Mobile, Ala., some 200 postmen paused during their mail deliveries for prayer. Postmaster Taylor Henry, son of a Methodist minister, said he favors the wage increase but he refused to set aside a definite time during working hours for prayer.

Some 50 postal workers gathered in Springfield, Ill., for a "prayer" meeting. Commented the Rev. John Brockmeier of Sacred Heart Church: "We're going over Ike's head to God."

Other meetings were held in Denver and Milwaukee.

The prayer meetings were suggested by President William C. Daugherty of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, which claims 110,000 members.

Hoffa Advocates No Joy At Rutgers, Lucy Has Struck Out

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (U. S.)—There is no joy at Rutgers—Lucy has struck out.

Lucy is the hen that startled the feathered set last week by laying 17 eggs in a five-day period.

Well, you can imagine what happened thereafter.

From an unnamed hen in a flock of several hundred owned by John Delaporte of Reville, she leaped to fame. She got her name, Delaporte grew proud of her, and the scientific world took over.

The 2-year-old Leghorn was brought to the Rutgers University agriculture experiment station Monday for Dr. Paul D. Sturkie, poultry physiologist, to study.

Sturkie wanted to see what made Lucy lay such a wonderful shell game. She had laid three eggs on two days, four on two days and, with Delaporte keeping watch to make certain no pranks were spoofing him, three on the fifth day.

Well, higher education didn't agree with Lucy. And Rutgers of up and not "slump down" the attendance in every area of our church life. Last August was a great month in the life of the church. May we make this August better than any previous one.
