Proxmire, who became the first Democrat elected to the Senate by this state in 25 years, scored his victory over Republican three-time governor Walter J. Kohler, a staunch supporter of President Eisenhower and twice a victor over Proxmire in races for the governor's post.

The election is for the 16 months remaining of McCarthy's term. Proxmire will take office as soon as he is accredited by the State Canvass Board. That probably will be within 10 days.

Ervin Sees No Filibuster For New Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Ervin (D-NC) said today it would be "physically impossible for a small minority of Southern senators to filibuster long enough to prevent passage of the compromise civil rights bill."

While some of Ervin's constituents would like to see him filibuster Ervin told the Senate, "I am compelled to recognize the facts of legislative life."

Another signal that opponents of the measure may put a curb on their tongues came from Sen. Robertson (D-Va.).

defendant shall have a jury trial dependent on "the discretion and caprice" of man, rather than on law, and he does not believe that power should be granted to "any human being, even if he be a judge."

One Convict Killed, Four Wounded In Colorado Riot

BUENA VISTA, Colo. (AP) — An inmate of the Colorado State Reformatory was shot to death and four others were wounded last night in a wild, 45-minute riot by 125 prisoners.

They were locked inside a cell block with three guards but soon broke it up.

There are about 18 cells on each of the three tiers on each side. Allinger recalled later, "About 30 or 40 boys actually started it all."

They Have Traveling Vacations

MITCHELL JOHNSON . . . leaves for a trip.

JOYCE SUTTON, RACHEL STEINBECK . . . look over snapshots and souvenirs from their vacations.

Via airplane or car—for business or pleasure—traveling provides a great deal of fun for those who like people and places. Mitchell Johnson, Rachel Steinbeck, and Joyce Sutton are three of the Greenvillians who used part of their summer for travel.

As a pilot for Stancell Flying Service, Mitchell's traveling depends mostly on where the customer wants to go. "Business men make up the biggest part of our customers, but we sometimes fly vacationers to Ocracoke or other resort spots," Mitchell notes.

"After being cooped up in school all winter, it is a wonderful feeling to be able to get in a plane and fly to different places. You get a chance to let your wings loose and relax," he mentions.

"Different people like to do different things and can do them well. I guess you could associate it with the way some girls like to cook and some don't. I always wanted to fly and when I became sixteen I started taking lessons," was Mitchell's reply as to why he started flying.

Mitchell started soloing after only four hours, after five hours he took his first cross-country trip. Flying isn't only a summer occupation for Mitchell since he spends his winters studying the technical aspects of flying in aeronautical engineering at State College. He will be a junior there this fall.

"Flying, like anything else, can be dangerous if it is handled wrong. Otherwise it is as simple as fall off a log," he adds. "Once in a while I fly down to Cape Look Out and spend the day skin diving. I like it because I'm constantly moving from place to place and it never gets boring."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Johnson. Last week he flew some business men to Minneapolis, Ind.

Rachel Flies Too
Flying for another reason—pleasure—Rachel Steinbeck picked the fastest mode of travel to get her to California. The first three weeks she spent visiting Marjorie De Savigny, formerly of Greenville, who now lives in San Jose.

The last week was spent touring Los Angeles. On the sightseeing tour were Disneyland, Universal-International Studios and a visit to the Hollywood Bowl where David Rose and his orchestra were playing.

Rachel took time off on the west coast to see the controversial movie, "Island in the Sun." "It had a good plot but it wasn't developed as well as it might have been," she comments.

In answer to whether she liked California or not was an enthusiastic "Oh, yes!" "But the weather was so cold that I had to wear my winter coat," she adds.

California greeted this Tar Heel lass with two questions: "Do you live on a plantation?" "How do you feel about segregation?"

Rachel found out that pimento cheese sandwiches are unheard of in this state which touches the Mexican border. "When I asked them for a pimento cheese sandwich they gave me a blank stare and offered me a swiss cheese sandwich instead. I wonder what kind of sandwiches they take on picnics?" she notes.

The abundance of sports cars and foreign models and cooler weather were listed by Rachel as the things about California that differed from her home state.

"One of the most thrilling things about the whole trip was flying home in a commercial jet. It took us only 55 minutes to come from Washington, D. C. to the Raleigh-Durham Airport," she comments.

Rachel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Steinbeck and she will be a junior at East Carolina College this fall.

Drives to Florida
"Nature is at its best in Florida," says Joyce Sutton, a seasoned traveler around the United States.

By using her summers for traveling, she has been in nearly all of the 48 states.

"This trip was different since I was doing the driving," comments Joyce, who drove her mother and two relatives down the Atlantic Coast to Florida.

"The white highways contrasted with the healthy greenness of things really make an unusual setting," adds Joyce who took the scenic route through the everglades.

A trip through a bird forest and an alligator show were included in her Florida sights. "I even touched a snake," Joyce laughs.

Touring the oldest city in America, St. Augustine, Joyce discovered its early American charm. "I still can't get over the way palm trees look growing out of the ground and the way so many houses down there are painted in pastel colors," Joyce exclaims.

Joyce is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sutton. In September she will be a senior at Greenville High School.

Red, White Theme Used At Bethel Supper

BETHEL—The Hilma Country Club in Tarboro was the setting for a buffet supper Wednesday evening which was given for Miss Jenny Whitehurst, and also honored Miss Mary Ann Manning and Miss Mary Jo Wynne, debutantes.

Miss Whitehurst, a Bethel debutante and their escorts as they arrived to the hosts and hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst and Mr. and Mrs. F. Curtis Martin.

The guests were then directed to the porch by Mrs. W. H. Manning where Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clayton Whitehurst served tomato juice and hors d'oeuvres.

The honorees were presented corsages of Fuji chrysanthemums. Traditional debutante colors of red and white and soft candlelight were used throughout the club.

The buffet table was covered with a red cloth over which was an applied white organdy cloth. An arrangement of red carnations with gaidoli stock and chrysanthemums in a silver bowl centered the table that was flanked by silver candelabra, burning red tapers. The Debutante Doll placed on the piano carried a nosegay of red roses.

Individual tables had silver candleholders with an epergne of white flowers and red candles. Places were marked for the girls with miniature silver hat boxes containing fortunes.

Forty guests attended.

Baseball Theme In Party Decorations

GRIFTON—On Friday afternoon Tommy Sustek had as guests at his home, 417 Pitt Street, a number of his friends for an outdoor supper and dance in celebration of his twelfth birthday.

The guests were greeted by Tommy and his mother, Mrs. George Sustek, and invited to the back lawn where the party took place.

After supper the dessert of ice cream and cake was served. The birthday cake was used as the center decoration on the table which was covered with a white linen cloth. The white cake, with pink and green decorations, carried out a baseball theme.

Attending the party were Connie Jones, Anne McClaine, Mary Jo Quinerly, Kathy Price, Dean and Connie Lewis, Margaret Hudson, Arlene, Terry and Colon Doyle, Elton Goolsby, David Ingles, Kenneth Tyndall, Buster Kline, Warner Burch, Tommy Ward, Sherwood Alcox, Eddie Dixon, Robert Triplett, and Carroll Sugg. Out-of-town guests were D. P. Abernathy Jr. and "Butch" Baker of Kinston.

30 Years Ago Today

August 28, 1927

The Chinese situation should demonstrate, even to the government of the United States, the importance of the flying machine in war. Hand-to-hand fighting and long distance cannon fighting on the ground would be childish foolish in China. That wouldn't make much difference. But war from the air would make a difference. A few hundred flying machines, equipped with explosive bombs and poison gas, could bring to reason even a country as great in area and population as China. That's another reason why the United States should keep out of any Chinese war. We haven't any flying machines, and Russia, which could quickly fly to China's assistance, has plenty of flying machines. Japan has them also, knows how to use them, keeps on building them and hires the best European fliers and buys the finest European machines in addition to building her own. One of these days President Coolidge and his magnificent army and navy should make a note of it. Fliers from another country may change our program suddenly.—(Arthur Brisbane)

Miss Harrell, Mr. Baker Wed In Memorial Baptist Church

In a candlelight service Miss Fayette Wilson Harrell and J. Paul Baker, AEM3 of the United States Navy, were united in marriage on Sunday at four o'clock in the afternoon at the Memorial Baptist Church in Greenville with Elder R. B. Denson of Rocky Mount officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The church chancel was decorated with floor baskets of white mums, double white phlox and Oregon fern, interspersed with tall seven branched candelabra holding burning tapers.

Prior to the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Claude S. Kidd, the church organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz length dress of white embroidered taffeta made princess style with a full skirt. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a crown of lace edging, and she carried a white satin Bible topped with a purple orchid.

Miss Linda Perry of Selma was the maid of honor. She wore a sheath dress of aqua embossed taffeta, trimmed with a matching satin draped neckline which extended in back hemline streamer. Her headdress was a shirred bandeau and her other accessories were matching mitts and shoes. She carried a nosegay of white carnations.

Miss Addie Gwendolyn Harrell, sister of the bride, was a flower girl. She wore a white dress made with a full skirt and the wide collar was lace trimmed, and carried a white basket filled with mixed flowers.

Serving as ushers were Bennie Harrell of Greenville, brother of the bride, and Hugh Baker of Four Oaks, brother of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom had for his best man a brother, Joseph K. Baker, of Four Oaks.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie L. Harrell of Greenville, is a rising senior at East Carolina College of Greenville, where she will continue her studies this fall.

The bridegroom, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Baker of Four Oaks, is with the United States Navy now stationed in Bermuda.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Harrell chose a street length dress of navy lace with matching accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The bridegroom's mother was dressed in a navy silk outfit with matching accessories and a pink carnation corsage.

Mrs. R. E. Wooten of Fountain, maternal grandmother of the bride, was dressed in a black silk costume suit with white accessories and her corsage was of white carnations.

Following the ceremony the bridal couple and members of the wedding party received the guests

Hooker.

Mrs. Robert Hooker is now in Bethel visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Andrews.

Let's Not Be Panicked Into Action

Keeping up with the Joneses can be a strain; it's worse when nations become involved in the rat race. Unhappily, ever since sometime in 1947 this country and the Soviet Union have been trying to outdo each other in armaments and wooing the rest of the world. It has reached the stage where the "best" argument for promoting a project is that "the Russians are pressing us," or are at least competing.

It irks, it worries, it makes hackles rise, it inspires a dread of "what might happen if we lose" the race in question.

Now another bogey has been injected into the scene: Moscow claims a successful test for an intercontinental ballistic missile. The precise meaning of the announcement is well concealed by the words involved; it could mean one aspect of their over-all project has passed its testings, or it could mean the fulfillment of an entire program.

As The Reflector has previously commented, we are wont as a people to grasp for the darker implications in any speculation about our rivals. For the present, we must accept the evaluation of responsible figures in Washington who conclude there is some element of truth in the Moscow announcement.

Verbal reaction on the Washington scene has been prompt, but it is the thinking and actions of a level-headed leadership that will prove of far greater importance in the long run.

Our own target dates for the "ultimate weapon"

Fit Figure For Utilities Board

By LYNN NISBET
WHITMIRE — Appointment of Lee Whitmire of Hendersonville to the Utilities Commission brings to that quasi-judicial body a man with experience in the general practice of law, as a legislator and as a superior court judge. His law practice has been diversified, so that he cannot be specially classed as a corporation or a criminal trial lawyer, since he has been successful in both fields.

His appointment had been predicted in many quarters for reasons other than his recognized fitness for the post, and despite the handicap of geography. He lives in an adjoining county to Ed McManahan of Brevard, in the same congressional and State senatorial district. The other three commissioners all hail from the far east and the first congressional district. That leaves more than three fourths of the state without representation on the commission.

Governor Hodges has repeatedly shown disregard for sectional geography, declaring that he looks at the state as a whole. This appointment "takes care of" all the special judges appointed by the late Governor Umstead in 1953. Judge Howard Hubbard of Clinton expressed desire to return to private practice of the law. Judges Grover Martin of Smithfield and Peyton McSwain of Shelby have died. The 1955 Legislature created eleven new regular judgeships and authorized appointment of four special judges.

Of the Umstead special appointees Judges Clarence Hall of Durham and Malcolm Paul of Washington were named regular judges, and Judges George Fountain of Tarboro, Leland McKelthen of Pinehurst, George Patton of Franklin and Susie Sharp of Reidsville were reappointed as special judges. Judge Patton subsequently was appointed Attorney General and Judge J.B. Craven of Morganton named in his place on the bench.

CONTROVERSY — Commissioner Whitmire will step right in to the middle of a controversy over one telephone, but involving a basic principle of authority over public utilities by the courts and the Utilities Commission, and also involving the continuing feud between tax-exempt cooperatives and tax-paying privately managed utilities.

The case is too complex to discuss intelligently in one column. Very briefly summarized, the situation seems to be about like this: A telephone company under jurisdiction of the Utilities Commission and an REA telephone co-op both claimed exclusive right to serve an area in Randolph county. The Utilities Commission ordered the telephone company to provide service. The REA folks got a restraining order from Judge Walter Crissman stopping the company and authorizing the co-op to move in. Later the Utilities Commission ordered the company to serve one applicant, but not the people who were included in the court order.

A conference has been scheduled with the REA by Governor Hodges for the first week in September. The Governor told newsmen at his latest session with them that he thought grown up man like members of the Rural Electrification Authority and the Utilities Commission, ought to be able to resolve this kind of problem without recourse to the courts.

However, those who think that this issue is too little to affect overall and long range policy might remember that a U.S. Supreme Court decision about one-run-away slave named Dred Scott precipitated the Civil War, and another decision growing out of one sick chicken in a New York poultry plant outlawed the NRA, of early New Deal and Blue Eagle fame.

SOUTHERN — Although Abraham Lincoln was born, according to all accepted records, in Kentucky he was elected President from Illinois. Woodrow Wilson was born in Virginia, elected from New Jersey, Dwight Eisenhower was born in Texas, elected from the South was Zachary Taylor, born in Virginia and later resident of Louisiana and Kentucky, who served only 16 months—from March, 1849, to July 1850. Last Southern President to serve a full term was James Knox Polk, born in North Carolina and elected from Tennessee, in 1844. (Andrew Johnson, born in North Carolina and elected Vice President from Tennessee served almost four years after succeeding to the presidency upon the death of Lincoln in 1865.)

Since the Civil War no resident of a Southern State has been nominated for President by either major party. Senators John Sparkman of Alabama and Estes Kefauver of Tennessee were elected from the South, but not as a professional "Southerner." The old days when New England, New York and the South controlled the voting strength of the nation are gone. The votes now are west of the Mississippi—and only two Presidents have come from that area, Hoover and Truman.

have been postponed, and economy measures throughout the entire Department of Defense have resulted in cutbacks that presumably did not spare the ballistic missile program. This, despite general thinking that the ICBM will be the decisive instrument of tomorrow.

A "crash program" is basically wasteful, whether in the missile race or in any other field; nor can the factors involved which brought about the defense cutbacks be ignored. But in the light of the concern aroused by Russian claims as to success in the ICBM field, it is a sure bet that re-evaluation of American efforts in this field is in order.

In our own view, it seems a headlong rush toward missile-building would be in error at this stage of the game. The former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has termed the American program a "good one." He said he was satisfied with it.

It would be perhaps better to know more about the competition's entry in the field before we fly off the handle.

Paper Consumption As Prosperity Index

Large items are often pointed to as prime examples of the better living enjoyed by Americans as compared with the lot of their counterparts in other nations.

Though automobiles, television sets, washing machines, air conditioning and a host of other major items serve to illustrate the point, it is our contention that small items used in daily life more adequately point up the higher standard of living enjoyed by American families.

Take for example paper; any kind of paper; all kinds of paper. No one pays much attention to paper as such, and sooner or later most paper that finds its way into the American home also finds its way into the waste basket.

But the consumption of paper in the United States is a more accurate barometer to the nation's high standard of living than automobiles, appliances or other luxuries.

In the United States today, according to the trade magazine Pulp & Paper, the per capita consumption of papers of all kinds is 432 pounds; more than eight times the world's per capita consumption of paper and far greater than that of any other individual nation. Britain, by comparison, uses only 180 pounds of paper per capita a year while in Canada the rate is 280 pounds and in Sweden it is 308 pounds. In Red China per capita consumption of paper is only 3.3 pounds a year.

Not only in newspapers, magazines, and books, but also in shopping bags, food wrappers, book matches and hundreds of other items, American consumption of paper attests to the high standard of living enjoyed by its citizens.

Ulcer-Growing By Executives

By ELMER ROESSNER
Bosses have it far less cushy than most people suppose if a new survey by the American Management Association accurately reflects conditions in all executive suites.

The A.M.A. polled 96 executives selected at random. Of these, 46 reported they took less vacation time than their companies allowed last year. Four took no time off at all.

Of the rest, four took longer vacations than scheduled; 37 took precisely the time allowed and nine said the length of vacations was left to their discretion.

POINTS TO TROUBLE

Health of American business executives has long been a concern of doctors. Rates of breakdowns, alcoholism, suicide, ulcers, neuro-logical skin afflictions and other psychogenic disturbances is much higher than the average of other workers.

It may be that the A.M.A. survey has uncovered an important clue to this situation. If the typical executive gets less vacation than a typical union member with a moderate amount of security — and if four of 96 take none at all — the causes of executive disturbances may be easier to understand.

Lack of vacations may have some relation to executives' physical health, also a matter of medical concern.

Of the 96 polled, only eight reported that their companies required them to take their full vacations. All obeyed.

TO COMPEL VACATIONS

One company president reported that although his executives were not required to take vacations last year, they would be this year. "I am going to vacate that if a key man does not take his vacation, he will not be paid for it," he said. "I am a believer in full two- and three-week vacations and not piecemeal." The president confessed, however, that last year he took only one of the three weeks to which he was entitled "due to changing our organizational set-up."

Another executive, a resident of Florida, said his vacation consisted of taking every Friday off throughout the year to fish. "I usually got fish," he added. However, most executives like the idea of vacations. An analysis of the responses showed the typical executive would like four weeks off each year. One year it would be split, with two weeks in the summer and two in the winter for fishing and golfing in Florida. On alternate years he would take his family to Europe.

One executive, saying he favored four weeks a year, explained, "A week to let go, a week to relax, a week to pick up and a week to do things."

One question the A.M.A. did not ask those who skipped on vacations was, "Did you have any trips at company expense that were tantamount to vacations?" It's probably just as well. The answers would not have been very responsive.

STRANGE AND CURIOUS BITS OF BUSINESS NEWS

If you operate a pleasure motor boat you can get gas tax refunds in 36 states and the District of Columbia. Prentice-Hall reports... The East Liverpool (Ohio) Board of Education found it had something to learn after it ordered plastic compartment trays for school cafeterias. The town is the center of the pottery industry and local businessmen and workers are roaring indignantly.

Pine tree planting can be cut by using seeds doped with a bird and rodent repellent instead of using seedlings, the Department of Agriculture reports. The repellent is tetramethyl thuram disulphide... A study by the National Appliance and Radio-TV Dealers Association showed that the most successful salesmen's incentives are spiffs. A spiff is a payment over salary for each sale. Appliance-TV salesmen average $102.50 a week, NARDA found.

Opinions

In Brief

WASHINGTON The Russian coup in Syria may be an ill wind that will blow diplomatic and political advantage to the United States, in Administration opinion, even though it gives the Communists a long sought outlet on the Mediterranean. This prospect explains the calm with which President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles received the news from Damascus.

As has been demonstrated tragically in Poland, Hungary, China and even within Russia itself, totalitarian rule is not an especially attractive export commodity. Its appeal increases at a distance, but it decreases when it becomes an everyday affliction. It is undoubtedly true that no satellite is happy over its lopsided relationship with Russia.

Extra Payday, So What?

It came to me, as it must have to many weekly wage earners, this month of August is singularly blessed with five paydays. We'll see nothing like it again until November.

In the normal course of events one would presume that fixed payments and expenses of the wage-earner are budgeted to a four-week month; meaning, in effect, one extra pay envelop occasionally turns up as a sort of "self-bonus."

One couldn't be more wrong. Conducting a one-man poll of those within shouting distance it came out like this:

"An extra pay day? No, I hadn't noticed. Yes, I have plans for it. It's already spent."

The second party didn't even pause to evaluate the possibilities, only mumbled "pay bills."

The third party echoed the first, "It's already spent."

Obviously the polling business has gone to pot in a big way, and pressing the matter any further was a waste of time and effort. Opinions, plans, conclusions and ambitions — even in this gay mad whirl of newspapering — can get into a fruitless rut.

In bygone days there was something of a freshness in the pattern of living that varied considerably from the hard and fast rules of the Gregorian calendar. Seasons would come and go, but the months were as nothing.

Time was measured from one payday to the next. Thus it was that the week began with payday, followed by the day-after-payday, then two-days-after-payday, then three-days-after-payday, then three-days-until-payday, two-days-until-payday, etc.

The passage of time was marked by two periods: one of superfluence, one of anticipation. Three holidays comprised bright interludes that interrupted the routine: birthdays, Christmas and New Years. Vacations were gaps in the calendar.

All this is no more. And lest I give the impression mine own ways have kept their atmosphere of abandoned yesteryears, that question "and what are you going to do with this month's extra pay envelope?" meets the same dismal response: it's long gone.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
TRUE TOLERANCE

We read in the one hundred and third Psalm that God knows our frame and remembers that we are dust.

Do you ever lose patience with the world about you and wonder how God suffers the infamy of man to continue? This upsurge of resentment is natural. All of us have it at times. We have it, but very decidedly God does not have it. With his infinite love, with his full understanding, and with his mercy that is wide as the sea, "he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust."

And since this is true it should, when we think about it, fill us with a deep sense of gratitude to God for his mercy. Also it should make us tolerant of others and kinder and more understanding in our dealings with them. Since God remembers that we are dust, let us remember that those about us are weak and frail also. Let us not demand our pound of flesh. Let us not cry for vengeance on them, since God in his mercy so often refrains from taking vengeance on us.

Tolerance does not mean weakness, a kindly attitude toward those who have fallen as we so often have fallen. God in his mercy remembers us all in our low estate.

Happy Ever After

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — There were only two men at the bar — one very fat and one quite slender — and they were strangers.

However, the fat man introduced himself, bought a couple of rounds, and soon he and the slender man were having as much fun as two microbes in a bowl of pudding.

They were, that is, until the slender man took the fat man by both lapels and said:

"You know, Al, I know it's none of my business, and I hate to poke my nose in another man's life, but why don't you do something about all that extra weight you're carrying? Don't you realize that packing all that fat around will bring you to an early grave?"

The fat man's booming laugh died. A frown spread over his face as he reached into his pocket and handed his new found friend a letter addressed "To whom it may concern."

The slender man, a bit bewildered, opened the letter and read as follows:

"Dear friend: "Until now you have been a nice guy. But your last remark clearly shows you are one of those millions of unhappy people who try to reform their fellow man and make them a prisoner of their own particular brand of misery."

"You think that if I looked as badly fed as you do that I'd be happier. Please listen to my story:

"At birth I weighed 154 pounds.

"I came from a fat family. My father (God rest his soul) weighed 285 pounds when he died at 81 after outliving three bean-pole-shaped wives, each of whom assured him he was digging his grave with his teeth.

"As a boy I was too fat to fight, so, as a result, I never got my teeth knocked out and today I have all my own chompers. In college I was too fat to play football, so I never got any broken bones.

"After college I weighed 250 pounds and was so fat that no woman wanted to marry me. This enabled me to concentrate on my job — selling food sauces — and by the time I was 35 I had saved $50,000 in cash.

"Then my dear uncle, who weighed 315 pounds, died at 79 (God rest his soul) and left me another $50,000. That gave me $100,000 and I sank it all into a firm that manufactured a new antiflat pill. I was named president and the company prospered from the start.

"But the more money we made, the more I ate, so that my weight climbed to 312 pounds. Other members of the firm suggested I either go on a diet or sell out to them.

"I wouldn't change my eating habits, so I sold out — for $3,000,000. That was five years ago. By careful investment I doubled my nestegg. A few years ago I put my $6,000,000 into four per cent municipal bonds. They five me an income of $240,000 a year — tax free.

"I now eat from four to seven meals a day, depending on how I feel, and I weigh 345 pounds and feel fine. I carry $5,000 in my wallet at all times, just to be sure I won't ever have to go hungry. I sleep until noon every day, and can go anywhere or do anything I please.

"I have 40 pairs of shoes, 80 suits, 150 shirts and 800 neckties.

"Perhaps, of course, I have missed something in life by remaining fat. On the other hand I have a 10-room air conditioned penthouse on Park Avenue, 3 motor cars and 5 servants. If I want a date, all I have to do is pick up the phone and call anyone of a dozen beautiful choro girls. They may be true, but they like my chubby bankroll.

"Well, friend, that brings my story up to date. And now, skinny, I am quite willing to hear your tale of joy. Please go right ahead and tell me how much more you've gotten out of life by counting your calories."

The slender man folded up the letter, handed it back to the fat man, and silently walked out of the bar.

Russian Coup May Be Blessing

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON The Russian coup in Syria may be an ill wind that will blow diplomatic and political advantage to the United States, in Administration opinion, even though it gives the Communists a long sought outlet on the Mediterranean. This prospect explains the calm with which President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles received the news from Damascus.

As has been demonstrated tragically in Poland, Hungary, China and even within Russia itself, totalitarian rule is not an especially attractive export commodity. Its appeal increases at a distance, but it decreases when it becomes an everyday affliction. It is undoubtedly true that no satellite is happy over its lopsided relationship with Russia.

Moreover, the Arabs in Syria and throughout the Middle East are intense individualists, unlike the Muscovites. They are not accustomed to the harsh and unfeeling rule of centuries of czars or a generation of cruel commissars.

Thus, a close look at and an experience with communism may eventually swing the peoples of these strategic areas, including India, toward the West.

SOVIET... AGGRESSIVENESS

BOOMERANGS The Russian invasion of the Middle East has already strengthened and accelerated the shift of Syria's neighboring states to the anti-Communist coalition, which the United States heads and finances. Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Lebanon, Iraq, Iran, and perhaps Egypt, may feel the need of closer ties with the western and democratic powers.

In fact, this latest evidence of Russian aggressiveness furnishes Secretary Dulles with an excellent argument and opportunity for reviving his idea of an anti-Communist Arab League. He proposed it during his trip throughout the Middle East in 1953, but he found the rulers to be cold to his plan.

KREMLIN'S LACK OF SENSE OF TIMING It was then that he "leapfrogged," as he explains his diplomatic strategy, the antagonistic Arabian nations, and organized the Baghdad Pact. Luckily, this alliance, with Russia-hating Turkey as the military mainstay and most powerful unit, blockades Moscow from continuing physical contact with Syria. The same is true of its other Mediterranean satellite—Albania.

The Kremlin's Syrian adventure, too, betrays a lack of a sense of timing and world psychology matched only by Hitler's defects in these important fields. Fact.

It came when the apparently futile London disarmament talks were winding up, capping a five-month demonstration of Moscow's insincerity on this grave problem.

REPORT OF RUSSIAN SAVAGERY It was staged on the eve of a special (September 10) session of the United Nations for consideration of a report condemning Russian brutality in suppressing the Hungarian revolt. Moscow has tried without success to eliminate this subject from the U.N. agenda.

It came at a time when every satellite nation, including China, has indicated that it would like to break the chains which bind them to Moscow.

Finally, the Syrian coup came when President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles were begging Congress to restore the $800,000,000 which the legislators had cut from the program of foreign economic and military aid. If any of the money is put back, it will be a tip to the team of K and B.

In short, Khrushchev and Bulganin may have overreached and outsmarted themselves in this new Middle East excursion. They have convinced the world, including even "neutralist" nations like India, that they are no better than the man whom they have denounced and downgraded — Joe Stalin.

European Federation Possible In Light Of One Family's Ties

DURHAM, N.C. — The family of 48 foreign students currently attending Duke University's annual orientation program, is proof that people of different nationalities can live together harmoniously.

Jose Medem, the student, was one of seven children, four boys and three girls: On June 4 of this year in Madrid, Jose married a Belgian girl.

Of the other sons, one married a French girl and another a German. The fourth was engaged to an Italian at the time he was killed in an airplane crash last April.

One of Jose's sisters married an Englishman. The other two married Spaniards.

Jose and his wife, Frieda, an attractive blonde, expect a child sometime in March. Since Jose will be working on his master's degree in business administration at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, the child will be born in America.

In light of the international marriages in his family, it is not surprising that Jose personally regards favorably the prospect of a United States of Europe.

"My personal opinion is that if Europe wants to keep its leading position in the world, the various nations must unite in order to have more power," Jose said.

Despite his own feeling, however, Jose takes what he considers a realistic view of the chances of a united Europe which several leading European statesmen, including Winston Churchill, have advocated.

"In the future it may be possible," Jose said, "but the nationalities of the different European countries are too strong to allow for unification in the near future."

A politically united Europe, Jose feels, would contribute to international stability by serving as a "counterweight" to the might of Russia on one side and that of America on the other. "We're right in the middle," he said of Western Europe.

Where his native country is concerned, Jose was asked if he could explain the tremendous appeal Spain has had for Americans since World War II. Among those who have gone to Spain to make their homes are Actress Ava Gardner, Columnist-Author Robert Ruark and Musician Artie Shaw.

"The climate is always good," Jose said. "It's always sunny."

Americans often find their dollars stretch farther in Spain, Jose said. "Another reason may be the cost of living, which is very cheap," he opined. "With American dollars you can live very comfortably. You can live with a lot of luxuries you can't afford in the States."

He believes, too, that another reason why many tourists find Spain attractive "may be that the Spanish people are very kind and courteous to foreigners."

Spain's historical background would interest anyone with even a superficial curiosity about the past. "We have many museums and cathedrals. There are many things to see and many places to visit. There are the bullfights and flamenco dancing in the South. Every BUDAPEST, (AP) — Three giant oaks, believed to be a remnant of the great forests that once covered the Hungarian Plain, have been taken under official protection near Byulavari (on the Rumanian border) of Southeast Hungary.

The trees are estimated to be 500 to 600 years old and their shade covers over an acre of land.

AIB Chapter Membership Drive Planned

Members of the Greenville chapter of the American Institute of Banking are completing plans for the chapter's annual membership drive.

The drive will be completed prior to October when the chapter will begin another series of courses dealing with fundamentals of banking, commercial law, economics, and negotiable instruments. The courses are offered annually by chapters of the institute, which is the educational section of the American Bankers Association.

Eligibility for AIB membership is restricted to employees of banks and savings and loan institutions. Courses which are offered to members are 44-hour courses, which the Greenville chapter has been offering in once-a-week meetings which last for two hours.

As of January, 1957, AIB had 129,466 active members, with 55,402 of them enrolled in institute courses.

Senate-House Conferees Sit Down To Compromise Foreign Aid Items

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate and House conferees sit down today to seek a compromise on the foreign aid money bill. It appeared likely they might split a $500,000,000 difference.

The Senate last night passed the bill by a 65-25 roll call vote after beating back efforts to cut below the $3,692,710,000 recommended by its Appropriations Committee.

The House some time ago passed a bill totaling $3,191,810,000. Both Senate and House totals include new and reappropriated money for military and economic aid in the fiscal year that began July 1.

The Senate bill is $747,500,000 below President Eisenhower's original aid request, but Eisenhower made plain after the Senate vote that he would be happy to settle for that amount under the circumstances.

"I am greatly pleased by the Senate restoration of half a billion dollars of mutual security funds," he said in a statement. "I consider it to be a substantial step in the right direction."

"It is my earnest hope that the House of Representatives will quickly approve the Senate action."

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California teamed in the successful effort to preserve the Appropriations Committee's recommended total.

Senators seeking to trim the $3,692,710,000 total made their bid to hold new military aid funds to the House figure of 1 1/2 billion dollars. They lost 59-28 and then dropped plans to seek roll call votes on other reduction moves.

Thirty Democrats and 32 Republicans voted to pass the bill. Fourteen Democrats — 11 from the South—and 11 Republicans voted against it.

The Senate bill carries $3,025,680,000 in new appropriations and $667,050,000 in reappropriations of unspent money left over from previous years.

Since both houses approved the reappropriations, the only items in dispute involve Senate increases in new money for military assistance, defense supports, economic aid and technical assistance.

Conferees usually wind up splitting the difference just about down the middle.

These are the money items in dispute:

Military assistance: The House voted 1 1/4 billion dollars in new funds, the Senate $1,475,000,000—a difference of $225,000,000.

Defense supports: The House voted 585 million dollars in new money, the Senate 689 millions—a difference of 104 millions.

For the new economic development loan fund: The Senate voted 400 million dollars, the House 300 millions—a difference of 100 millions.

For technical assistance: The House voted $113,000,000, the Senate $114,900,000—a difference of $1,900,000.

Special assistance funds for the President: The House voted 175 million dollars, the Senate 225 millions—a difference of 50 millions.

Special assistance funds for Latin America: The House voted nothing, the Senate 20 million dollars.

Some Think Signs Of Deflation On Horizon

Editor's Note — Talk of deflation is spreading from Wall Street to Main Street. Sam Dawson, Associated Press business news analyst, discusses the talk and the business trends that gave birth to it in a two-part series starting today.

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The steam in the inflation boiler isn't thumping as loudly. More talk is heard today of the chance that deflation may be ahead.

slump while the inflation theory was rampant. Then the head of the federal reserve opined that interest rates might have hit their peak, and bonds looked better and buying rallied their prices.

The chiefs of the New York and Cleveland districts of the federal reserve later swung into line with the higher rates.

The federal reserve's top man in Washington told senators a trend is developing—toward more saving and less spending on the part of both consumers and business. More spending would feed inflationary fires. More saving will help quench them.

The outgoing undersecretary of the Treasury reported signs that the tight money policy was finally working.

The Treasury's top money manager added that some industries may find they were overconfident of demand when they expanded their capacity to produce.

Big city bankers joined the chorus. The First National City Bank of New York, the nation's second largest, reported businessmen guided in their ordering more by the chance of falling prices than of rising ones.

Chicago's Northern Trust Co. noted consumer spending being influenced adversely by reluctance to pay higher prices.

Small city bankers agree. A Boise, Idaho, banker tells the trade paper, the American Banker, that "the present cycle — at least, in its more violent phases — is about at an end."

Most bankers and most business men see a slowdown in the boom — but they don't see deflation as anything more than a possibility.

Tomorrow, the trends in business that are cited as deflation signals.

MURFREESBORO — Dr. Bruce E. Whitaker, president of Chowan College, has announced the appointment of Thomas Eugene Ruffin Jr. as Head of the department of Business Administration for the coming academic year.

The new department head, a native of Powellsville, holds the B.S. degree in Business Administration from East Carolina College and has done additional graduate study in the fields of Business Education and Education Administration. Mr. Ruffin brings to the college also a broad and comprehensive background of actual business experience.

Interesting For The Spectators

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It wasn't easy but the Rotarians managed to stage their parade.

The rains came and sent two bands and a drill team scurrying for cover.

Others splashed on, led by musicians from another high school band. Half of them got across the railroad tracks but the others had to wait — a train came along.

The stragglers finally caught up and all went well until two horses, frightened by the music, reared and broke their harness. Another delay.

Spectators said it was the most interesting parade ever seen.

Free Vaccine

RALEIGH (AP)—Free shots of Asian flu vaccine will be made available for North Carolina's prison inmates and patients and employees of the state's mental institutions and tubercular sanatoriums.

State Budget Officer D. S. Coltrane announced yesterday that the division of purchase and contract already has placed orders for the vaccine for the prison inmates and the tubercular institutions.

The state hospitals board of control has authorized that the flu vaccine be provided for the 12,000 patients and 1,500 employees in its mental hospitals. This will cost about $1,000, with the funds coming from the budgets of the institutions.

Meanwhile, Appalachian State Teachers College and the University of North Carolina plan to use a part of the students' medical fee to buy flu vaccine for students. They may take the shots at their convenience.

Thinks World Is Full Of Lost Park Vacationers

By HARRY JUPITER

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP)—The world, says a Yosemite Park ranger, is full of escapists who get lost. Sometimes, he confides, it seems as if most of them are among the 15,000 persons who visit Yosemite daily.

In fact, an average of six people a day get lost in the park's 1,200 square miles.

"All of these cases of lost people are the result of carelessness or thoughtlessness," said chief ranger Oscar Sedergren. "It's hard to put a finger on just what it is that motivates people in surroundings like these, but they do."

His troop of 21 rangers plus 60 additional in the summertime have their hands full keeping track of people who for the most part are more used to city traffic than to the paths of woodland and glen.

Many of the missing are children, usually found quickly. But several times a year searches run into days. Widespread and difficult, they become races against time to save a life.

Last June 4-year-old Shirley Ann Miller of Reseda, Calif., was lost for 62 hours. She was found unharmed.

"In the case of the Miller girl," Sedergren said, "park employes volunteered their services; many helped look for the kid for almost the entire 62 hours."

"There's a difference between missing children and missing adults. The adults usually have only themselves to blame, but you cannot blame a child. I never saw so many tears in the eyes of

Farley Chosen Coach Of East Cagers For '57 Tilt

Coaches Pick Greenville Head Mentor To Post

GREENSBORO — Greenville high school basketball coach Boley Farley has been chosen to coach the East case All-Stars in the 10th annual All-Star classic, here.

The classic, which include a football and basketball battle between the East and West high school All-Stars of the state, will be held here next August.

Sam Mohr, of Mount Airy, was chosen to coach the West All-Star case club.

For the first time since the games were started, members of the North Carolina Coaches Association picked the coaches during the recent games here. Previous practice was to pick the coaches by mail ballot.

The football coaches for the East are J. W. Honey Johnson of Elizabeth City and Bill Billings of Edenton. For the West, the winners were Lee Stone of Asheboro and Boyd Allen of Canton.

Farley has been a coach at GHS for over 16 years and has built some of the finest AA teams in the Eastern half of the state for the Phantoms. He has also coached football and baseball for the Greenville school.

He is presently serving as Athletic Director, basketball and baseball instructor.

Play Begins To Decide Southern Legion Outfit

SUMTER, S.C. — Three regional winners open play here today to decide the Deep South's representative in the national American Legion baseball tournament Sept. 5-9 at Billings, Mont.

The double elimination Section R playoffs were to get underway at 3 p.m. (EST) with Jackson, Miss., sporting an unbeaten 19-0 record, meeting Memphis, Tenn., 5-0, Region 4, titleholder.

The loser will play the Region 5 winner, Greer, S.C., at 8 p.m. Hereafter, one game will be played nightly until a champion is determined.

In addition to winning their regional titles, each team here had won its state championship. Each went through double elimination tournaments in both state and regional finals.

Gomes Seeks His 13th Against Martinez Tonight

BOSTON — Harold Gomes of Providence, R. I., undefeated in 12 bouts over the last three years, faces a rugged test against Willie Isidro Martinez of Panama tonight in a 12-round featherweight clash at the Arena.

New England featherweight title rules a slight favorite in the nationally televised ABC 10 p.m. (EST) bout because of his wide edge in experience over the Panamanian 126-pound champion.

Both boxers are 23, but Gomes has had in five years of battling, a closer boxer with a hefty punch in both hands. Gomes has won 40 of 43 bouts, including 21 by knockouts. His only losses were in 1954 to Tommy Tibbs of Boston, current New England lightweight champion.

Martinez, who has done most of his fighting in Panama, has 18 victories and a draw in 22 bouts. He has won seven by knockouts and has been stopped only once.

Coaches Holding Football Clinic

Coach Jack Boone and his East Carolina College football coaching staff will hold a football clinic Saturday morning for all boys interested in playing mid-level ball this year.

The clinic will be held at the E.C.C. football field between 10:00 and 12:00.

Mid-level requirements are that a boy cannot be 14 years of age before September 1. Others in this age group who do not plan to play mid-level this season, but who are interested, are also welcome.

Buddy Parker Chosen New Coach Of Steelers

PITTSBURGH — Raymond (Buddy) Parker, who tossed in the Steelers, succeeds Walt Kiesling, who is now head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Parker, whose appointment was announced late last night by the Steelers, succeeds Walt Kiesling.

The ex-Detroit coach said he is asking Kiesling and all Kiesling's aides to remain on the coaching staff.

The Steelers didn't reveal Parker's salary but a source close to President Art Rooney said Rooney agreed to give Parker "in excess of $20,000 annually."

Parker said at Detroit he will go to the Olean, N.Y., training camp of the Steelers tomorrow. His new club lost its only two exhibition starts to the Chicago Bears and Cleveland Browns.

"I've one thought only and that is to win," Parker said. He revealed that he talked to Rooney last week in Chicago about taking the coaching job next year, adding: "Rooney called me last night from Atlantic City and we decided I'd take the job right away. That's all there is to it."

In Olean, Kiesling said merely he was happy to be relieved from the head coaching responsibility.

Williams Smashes His 450th Homerun

DETROIT — Ted Williams, frisky as a colt despite his 37 years, has passed another hitting milestone in his white-hot struggle with Mickey Mantle for the American League batting title.

Williams cracked the 450th home run of his major league career last night as his Boston Red Sox ripped the Detroit Tigers 7-5 in 11 innings. So wrapped up is Williams in his duel with the New York Yankee slugger 13 years his junior that he did not realize his fifth inning smash into the upper right field stands of Briggs Stadium was No. 450.

"That's wonderful," said Williams when he learned of it. "I'd like to hit 495 of them."

Williams needs 4 more round-trippers to pass Lou Gehrig, who ranks fourth among baseball's all-time home run hitters.

"Right now I have to think of that batting title," said Williams. "I want it in the worst way."

Williams collected two hits in four official trips last night and gained a point to 380. Mantle was 1-for-4 against Chicago and slipped a point to 376.

The Boston slugger said three things are responsible for his tremendous batting this year: "A full spring training period, a fast start and no injuries."

Thomas A. Yawkey has been president of the Boston Red Sox since 1933.

Qualifying Opens Today For Labor Day 500 Race

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Qualifying started today for the Labor Day 500-mile strictly stock car race at Darlington International Raceway.

About a score of the nation's crack car drivers vied for the coveted pole position. Only the five fastest cars were to earn starting positions.

Experts figured four Ford and two Chevrolet drivers have the best chance for the pole spot.

Curtis Turner, last year's winner, Paul Goldsmith, Fireball Roberts and Marvin Panch piloted Fords while Buck Baker, 1953 victor, and Speedy Thompson drove Chevrolets.

Time trials for the $53,000 race continue daily through Saturday.

MILAN, Italy — A North Carolinian took third place in the 400-meter hurdle event of the Silent Olympics here yesterday.

He was Ted McBride of Mt. Airy, N.C., who finished the event in :56.7. Christian Hille of Germany won the race in :53.5.

Yankees, Milwaukee Triumphant

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN DU QUOIN, Ill. — The success of the Hambletonian harness race at this little coal mining community may mean that it will be held here for some time to come. The winner was Hickory Smoke, ridden by Johnny Simpson, who was born and raised in Chester, S.C.

Everyone seemed pleased with the new site at the Du Quoin Fairgrounds, an elaborate plant bedecked in bunting and attended by a Mardi Gras atmosphere.

Pleased most were the 25,000 fans who overflowed the grandstands, making up the largest Hambo crowd ever, and the Hayes brothers, Gene and Don, who sponsored the shift from Goshen, N.Y., to their sprawling 1,400 acres of reclaimed strip mines.

The Kentucky Derby of harness racing will be held at Du Quoin next year for sure. The Hambletonian Society was to meet today to discuss extending the contract further.

The big trotting stake had been a fixture at Goshen since 1930. But the Hambo Society met last year to consider the future of the race and voted unanimously to move to Du Quoin.

The action was taken as a show of feeling against the administration of the New York State Harness Racing Commission and there was indication at the time that the race eventually would return to Goshen.

But no one could complain of the elaborate Du Quoin setup and the thrilling divisional heats which produced the first two-horse race-off for the championship in Hambo history.

In the mile showdown, Simpson took Hickory Smoke to the front at the start, led all the way and beat Hoot Song by a half a length. Smoke, bought last year for $15,000 by L. B. Sheppard and A. C. Mudge, earned a total of $47,917.62 to boost his two-year winnings to $89,221.

Hoot Song, owned by Two Gait Farm of Carmel, Ind., and driven by Ralph Baldwin, took a $26,137.88 slice of the $111,126 gross purse, second largest ever offered in the event.

Smoke and Hoot Song won both heats of their respective divisions. Smoke trotted the first mile heat in 2:01 to win by a head. He scored by 3/4 of a length in the second in a blistering 2:00 1-5—only one-fifth of a second off the Hambo record set by Hoot Mon in 1947.

Hoot Song, in winning by a margin of one length and 2 1/4 lengths, was clocked in 2:02 1-5 and 2:02.

HITTING: Yogi Berra, Yankees — Drove in six runs with four hits in five at bats, cracking a three-run homer that broke up a 6-6 tie in 12-6 victory over White Sox.

PITCHING: Bob Friend, Pirates — gave up only five hits in 2-1 victory that joined the Cardinals 7 1/2 games behind in pennant race, after the Cards, whose run was unearned, had pocketed an 11-2 victory in the completion of a game suspended last month.

Enos Slaughter and Mickey Mantle, Reliever Bob Grim won his 11th, but needed Bob Turley's help in the eighth when the Sox loaded the bases with two out. Turley fanned Minnie Minoso.

The Yankees out-hit the Sox 16-9 with Mantle 1-for-4 and slipping to 376 in his bat battle with Boston's Ted Williams.

Williams was 2-for-4 for a .350 average, smacking his 450th career home run (32nd this year) as the Red Sox battled back from a 3-0 deficit. The Thumper walked to open the decisive 11th, riding in with the winning marker on Dick Gernert's two-run single. Jim Piersall's homer had given the Sox a 5-5 tie in the eighth. Dike Maas was the loser while Ike DeLoach won it.

Don McMahon's relief pitching — a perfect two-inning job — saved Lew Burdette's 14th victory as the Braves, out-hit 11-7, rode in on home runs by Red Schoendienst, Ed Mathews and Frank Torre that scored all the runs. Al Worthington was the loser.

Bob Friend's five-hitter joined the Cardinals. Singles by Bob Skinner and Bill Mazeroski plus a wild pitch and an infield out scored the clincher for the Bucs in the eighth off Von McDaniel, now 7-4.

Stan Musial extended his NL record for consecutive games played to 895 by getting into the lineup of the suspended game, which was resumed in the ninth. The string now officially extends from the first day of the 1952 season.

Berra Drives In 6 Runs To Pace Win

By ED WILKS The Associated Press Yogi Berra. That's all. No fancy gimmick. No line about old pros or how the New York Yankees always win the big ones.

Just Yogi Berra. The guy was tremendous. He drove in six runs, had four hits in five trips and stopped the nonsense with a three-run homer that cracked a 6-6 tie and hustled the Yankees to a 12-6 victory last night in the opener of that all-important three-game series with the Chicago White Sox.

It may have won the series and clinched the pennant.

The White Sox were after a sweep to stay alive. But when you spot 'em a 5-0 lead, scramble back for a tie and still lose, what's left?

While the Yankees were scrapping to stay on top in the AL, Milwaukee's Braves were lengthening their lead to 7 1/2 games in the National with a 4-3 victory against the New York Giants. Second-place St. Louis pocketed a victory in the completion of a game suspended July 21 at Pittsburgh, but then lost the regularly scheduled game 2-1.

Third-place Brooklyn skidded eight games back, losing to the Chicago Cubs 9-4. Cincinnati rallied and beat Philadelphia 5-2 for a fourth-place tie with the Phils.

In the other AL games, Boston defeated Detroit 7-5 in 11 innings, Cleveland took fifth from Baltimore by beating the Orioles 5-4, and Kansas City plunked Washington deeper into the cellar with a 3-1 decision.

Berra, who entered the game with a 242 average, got the job done with his 20th homer on the first pitch from reliever Paul LaPalme. The veteran southpaw had come on after relief loser Bill Fischer had given up singles to Enos Slaughter and Mickey Mantle. Reliever Bob Grim won his 11th, but needed Bob Turley's help in the eighth when the Sox loaded the bases with two out. Turley fanned Minnie Minoso.

The Yankees out-hit the Sox 16-9 with Mantle 1-for-4 and slipping to 376 in his bat battle with Boston's Ted Williams.

son to last Friday, when he was sidelined by a shoulder injury. The old mark of 822 was set by Pittsburgh's Gus Suhr.

Bob Thurman, recalled yesterday to fill in for the injured Gus Bell, rapped a two-run homer as the Redlegs scored four in the ninth at Philadelphia. The Reds have won only two of 15—and Joe Nuxhall was the winner in both.

Ernie Banks drove in five runs with his 30th home run and a double for the Cubs, who had won 10 of 14. Dick Drott won with relief help for a 12-10 rookie record. Don Newcombe lost for a 10-11 mark.

Veteran Early Wynn, who had lost five in a row, struck out six for an AL-leading total of 164—also his career high—for the Indians, who had a two-run homer from Bobby Avila and a two-run double by Joe Caffe.

Jack Urban three-hit the Senators while the A's slammed Camillo Pascual and two relievers for 10.

Assured By Field

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The 1958 Tournament of Champions already is assured of a big field. The $40,000 event set for next April at the Desert Inn course, will have Gene Littler seeing his fourth straight T. of C. win.

Others eligible include National Open champion Dick Mayer, PGA champion Lionel Hebert, Masters champion Doug Ford and such 1957 tournament winners as Jimmy Demaret, Ed Furgol, Bill Casper Jr., Dow Finsterwald, Jay Hebert, Arnold Palmer, Pete Coo-per, Stan Leonard, Al Besselink, Paul Harney, Roberto De Vincenzo and Tommy Bolt.

FIVE VETERANS—Veterans Dan Bateman, Leslie Stocks, Hal Worthington, Tommy Edwards, and Clarence Mills listen to pre-warmup instructions from Coach Tripp.

LINEMEN—These five boys who saw only defensive duty last season will go both ways for Ayden this year. They are Wayland McGlohon, John Hart, Jim Griffin, Kenneth Harris, and David Priddy (rear).

Ayden Expecting Hard Times In '57 Season

By BILLY ARNOLD Reflector Sports Editor

AYDEN — Coach Stuart Tripp sums it up this way: "If we can get through the season without injuries, we may have a fair year."

The outlook for Tripp's Ayden Bulldogs, the 1956 Coastal Conference champs, is a dim one, marred by graduation losses and a small 1957 turnout.

At present, only 20 boys have reported for practice. Of the 20, 15 are inexperienced and young.

Tripp's five returning veterans are well-scattered about the lineup and could offer a fine nucleus for a football team—if the newcomers can build around them sufficiently.

Five Veterans Back from last season are backs Tommy Edwards and Harold Worthington; guard Dan Bateman; center Joe Dunn; end Leslie Stocks.

Edwards, who reaped All-Coastal Conference honors last year as a triple-threat fullback, will be expected to carry the brunt of the offensive action this fall. From the T-formation, Edwards was one of the Bulldogs' top passers and did most of the punting for the club. His forte, however, was sheer power running. He stands 5-10 and weighs in the neighborhood of 185 pounds.

The T-formation's key position, quarterback, was left vacant this season by the graduation of star flier and field general Lindy Dunn. Coach Tripp still plans to use both the straight and the tight T, therefore making his quest for a quarterback most important.

"We have a couple of boys working out for that position now," Tripp comments, "but both of them are inexperienced and green. They both look fairly good in drill—both can throw and they're fair-sized boys—but they've had little or no action under fire. We just can't tell how they'll work in a game, yet."

Tripp had his boys working mainly on signal drills thus far. "With so many inexperienced boys," he maintains, "the most important thing is to get them to learn their plays."

Fundamentals and signals have been the policy for the linemen, mostly, while signal drills have occupied most of the backs' time.

Tripp is currently having trouble with his schedule. "We've got two open dates—Oct. 11 and Oct. 25—which we'd like to fill. If anybody is interested, they should contact me at the school."

Ayden opens its season with Benvenue. The Ayden Jayvees play host to Benvenue on September 4, then the varsity gridders travel to Benvenue Thursday week for the initial contest of 1957.

Tadlock Agency Has Seen Growth In Its 24 Years

In 1933, A.C. Tadlock, an enterprising 40-year-old businessman, opened an insurance office in the State Bank Building.

Tomorrow, 24 years later, the Tadlock Mutual Insurance Agency will stage grand opening ceremonies in the new First Federal Building.

During this interval of time much progress has been made by the Greenville Insurance Agency. From several hundred policy holders, the firm has grown until the number of policies it has in force numbers into the thousands.

Having started out with one office, the agency now has more than adequate space for transacting its business and maintaining office space for three women clerks, private office for C. Frank Dail, the General Manager and a conference room, located in back of the general working area.

Elaborating the aspects of the firm's business, Dail stated, "We write numerous types of insurance including regular fire and extended coverage insurance on dwellings, business property, and practically anything else that is considered a good risk."

"The agency writes all kinds of casualty insurance consisting of automobile liability, comprehensive, general liability, comprehensive personal liability, workmen's compensation, storekeepers liability, garage liability and numerous other casualty coverages plus inland marine insurance for the insurance of boats, motors, furs, diamonds, etc.

"In addition we carry package coverage, and in season write a considerable amount of hail and fire insurance on tobacco while it is being cured and stored", he went on to say.

At the present time Tadlock's represents 12 mutual companies in its extensive coverage of the insurance field. The firm has been in the mutual field since it was founded.

In the new offices a new filing system for policy holders has been set up. Dail stated, "We have installed the very latest thing in filing which has been approved by the Mutual Agents Association."

The agency has gone to considerable expense to purchase new bookkeeping equipment, having added several new machines. New furniture has been added along with much of the furniture from the old offices.

The tailor-made offices are air conditioned and afford the ultimate in modern lighting.

Construction began on the building, now housing the Tadlock Agency, approximately 16 months ago. Shortly before construction began the agency was moved to the old Skinner Building. The insurance firm moved its offices to the new building last Friday morning.

Tadlock, the founder of both the insurance agency and instigator of the founding of First Federal, came to Greenville about 35 years ago. At the time he was serving as Secretary and Treasurer for a chain of department stores.

C. FRANK DAIL

For a number of years he wrote insurance merely as a sideline and finally went into the business in 1933 when the department store chain dissolved ownership. His first offices were located in the State Bank Building.

Tadlock, who was owner of the business, died last year. Now the agency is managed by Dail who is a joint partner with Clarence Tugwell, Tadlock's step-son.

Malenkov Again Critical Target

MOSCOW (AP) — In the strongest indictment of Georgi Malenkov to date, Nikita Khrushchev has denounced the former Soviet Premier as a shadow and tool of ex-rector secret police chief Lavrenty Beria.

The Communist party boss, in an article published yesterday in the magazine Kommunist, charged that Malenkov and Beria goaded Stalin in his last years into acts which now warrant denunciation.

Khrushchev declared Malenkov was completely under Beria's influence, that he was the former police chief's "shadow and a tool in his hands."

Stalin made "gross and grave mistakes," he said, but he did much good for Russia and the Communist movement.

"Though Malenkov occupied a high position in the party and government," Khrushchev continued, "he did not restrain Stalin, but very skillfully took advantage of Stalin's weaknesses and habits in the last years of his life. In many cases he incited him to action which was deserving of stern condemnation."

Malenkov was purged from the top Kremlin command in late June for allegedly conspiring with V. M. Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich in a revolt against Khrushchev's policies. The Soviet government says the pudgy ex-premier now is director of a power station in Central Asia.

Beria was purged in June 1953 while Malenkov was premier. He died before a firing squad the following December.

Magazine's Libel Case Enters Home Stretch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The long trial of Confidential magazine on criminal libel charges starts down the home stretch today.

Defense Attorney Arthur J. Crowley said he will wind up his case today or Friday. The trial is in recess tomorrow.

Dept. Dist. Atty. William L. Ritt said his rebuttal testimony will be completed next week. The case will be in recess Monday for Labor Day.

Meanwhile, in Mexico City Interior Ministry officials said that actress Francesca de Scaffa, who figured in testimony in the Confidential trial, has been found in a suburban hideout. She was given 72 hours to leave Mexico.

Miss de Scaffa dropped from sight earlier this month. At first officials believed she had left the country.

The defense case moved toward an end yesterday with an attorney's testimony that he stopped a proposed war between Confidential and the movie industry.

Albert De Stefano, attorney for Confidential magazine, said he rejected an editorial written by former Confidential editor Howard Rushmore about a reported "movie industry war chest to fight Confidential."

De Stefano said the editorial was entitled "Hollywood Against Confidential."

"I told Robert Harrison (publisher of Confidential) and Rushmore I didn't think we should tackle the movie colony because it's too big," De Stefano testified.

"I said as big as you are in the publishing business, you are not big enough to fight Hollywood. They'll run you out of business."

The editorial was never published, he said.

He said he refused to give approval for stories Rushmore wanted to publish about Marilyn Monroe and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. He said neither of the stories was authenticated.

The balance of yesterday's defense testimony was aimed at refuting producer Paul Gregory's charge that Mrs. Marjorie Meade one of the defendants, tried to blackmail him.

Gregory, testifying for the prosecution earlier in the trial, said Mrs. Meade summoned him to a Hollywood bar the afternoon of Sept. 16, 1950, to discuss a "scandalously injurious" story about himself, Charles Laughton, Elsa Lanchester and Robert Mitchum.

Gregory said Mrs. Meade told him the story would not be published if he "bought off the writer's commitment for between $800 and $1,000." He said he did not pay her and the story was not published.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDREW C. LANG

AP Newsfeatures
THINKING ABOUT painting the outside of your house?

Here are 15 tips that will help you to get a professional result:

1. Paint when the temperature is above 50 degrees, preferably somewhere near 70. You can paint successfully when the temperature is considerably higher than 70 if the humidity is not too high. Avoid painting when there is heavy dew, immediately after a rain or when a storm is in prospect.

2. If at all possible, try to paint the side of the house that is shaded, then follow the sun around so that you are always painting where the sun already has been. This prevents the hot sun from drying the paint too rapidly, as well as making it more comfortable for you.

3. Use a wire brush or a scraper to remove any old paint that is blistering, peeling or flaking. Follow with steel wool or sandpaper to smooth rough edges. And carry an old, clean paint brush in your back pocket to remove any accumulated dust.

4. Mildew can be scrubbed off with a solution of trisodium phosphate and household ammonia or a special mildew remover. Where there is reason to believe the trouble may occur again, use a mildew-resistant paint. Mildew usually takes place on parts of the structure ordinarily not touched by the sun.

5. Calk thoroughly around window frames and doors and wherever one type of building material is joined to another. Replace "popped" nails and see whether any of the windows need repainting.

6. All screens, shutters and other attachments of that nature should be removed, cleaned and repainted separately.

7. Get rust off all metal surfaces, using steel wool and following with red lead, aluminum paint or a special metal primer.

8. For safety, the base of the ladder should be far enough from the house to equal one-fourth the height of the ladder. Thus, with a 20-foot ladder, the base of it would be five feet from the house.

9. Even though most stores now have agitators which mix the paint before you bring it home, the paint should be "boxed" by you. Boxing consists of pouring off most of the liquid into a second container and stirring the remaining pigment.

then gradually pouring back the liquid as you keep stirring. The final step is to pour the paint back and forth between the two containers several times.

10. The siding usually should be painted first, all the trim and sash second. But there are times, when working on high peaks, when it is more practical to paint both the siding and the trim while the ladder is in the correct position. Dip the brush about half way, pat off the excess on the inside of the can, use wide, firm strokes and always work in toward the wet paint.

11. If using a roller, the regular type is fine for the flat surfaces, but a special, small lap roller should be used for getting paint on the underedges of clapboard and similar sidings.

12. Probably the fastest of all methods of painting the outside of a house is by spraying, but extra precautions must be taken to protect surfaces which are not to be painted. Also, spraying outside should not be done on a windy day.

13. A good quality paint is a sound investment. Many house paints have a self-cleaning process, a controlled chalking which washes off when it rains, taking dust and dirt with it. Inferior-grade house paints chalk excessively, leaving unsightly streaks that do not always wash off with the rain.

14. Generally, a gallon of undercoater will cover about 600 square feet of house. A gallon of finish paint, over an undercoater, will cover about 700 square feet.

15. Light colors will make a small house appear larger, especially if there is not too much contrast between the body and the trim. To make a tall house seem shorter, keep the upper part a dark color, the lower part light. When a house appears to be "all windows," paint them the same color as the body of the house and they will not stand out.

House Races To Enact New Immigration Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House faced today to get enactment of immigration legislation before Congress adjourns.

Called up for House action under a short-cut procedure was a bill to ease some restrictions in the immigration laws.

Although the measure includes none of President Eisenhower's key recommendations for immigration law revision, leaders regarded it as the only immigration legislation likely to win congressional approval this year.

Passed by the Senate 65-4 last Wednesday, the bill is a companion measure to one approved two weeks ago by the House Judiciary Committee.

Leaders, however, sidetracked the House bill and called up instead the Senate-passed measure in a bid to complete congressional action before Congress goes home. Adjournment may come by this weekend.

Leaders expected the House to accept the Senate version with only minor amendments. This would send the bill back to the Senate for concurrence in House changes, and then route it to Eisenhower's desk.

Most of the House amendments were chiefly of a technical nature, or provided further easing of Senate provisions for naturalization of alien children.

The Senate bill would permit use of 18,656 nonquota immigration visas left over when the 1953 Refugee Relief Act expired last Dec. 31.

The bill also would waive existing requirements for fingerprinting foreign visitors to the United States at the discretion of the secretary of state and the attorney general.

Other major provisions would:

1. Admit an unlimited number of orphans under 14 for adoption during the next two years.

2. Wipe out mortgages imposed on future immigration quotas of many nations as result of admission of aliens under the Displaced Persons Act after World War II.

3. Grant permanent residence to some 15,000 resident aliens now subject to deportation because they misrepresented their place of birth to escape forced repatriation to Communist nations after World War II.

4. Expedite naturalization of alien children adopted by American citizens stationed abroad, and remove present barriers to the immigration of illegitimate children of American citizens.

5. Authorize the attorney general to grant permanent residence to certain highly skilled aliens now temporarily in the United States, and who sought permanent residence prior to July 1.

Singapore Faces An Uphill Campaign Against Opium

By MURRAY FROMSON SINGAPORE (AP)—The little man in the crowded cell had been a prisoner for a long time. But his real jailer was opium.

It was a steaming hot day, yet his scrawny body shivered. Like his cellmates on adjoining cots, he clutched a blanket.

The little man was going through the first week of trying to break the opium habit.

Opium pellets are still for sale in Singapore's crowded Chinatown, but the picture has brightened considerably in the past 10 years.

When the United Nations called on the world's governments in 1947 to crack down on drug traffic, Singapore was one of the worst offenders. Opium sales were a colony monopoly and a good part of the profits went to municipal coffers.

In 32 years the government had earned more than 23 million dollars. Some of Singapore's millionaires had amassed their fortunes through legitimate opium sales.

Now Singapore is spending more than $150,000 a year to curb opium selling and addiction. It is an uphill fight, says Maj. William Sochon, Singapore's prison commissioner.

Sochon says a prime expenditure is maintenance of the opium treatment center at St. John's Island, a prison hospital near Singapore, where police help addicts fight the habit.

St. John's opened two years ago. Since then it has checked 2,240 potential inmates. Those who were too old, too sick or hopeless were rejected. The remaining 900 were treated.

A pipe of opium costs about 35 cents. A real addict smokes about 20 pipes a day. Petty crime helps many addicts meet expenses.

The government estimates that some 5,000 opium smokers exist in Singapore. Most of their supply comes from Thailand, Communist China, Laos and the Middle East.

An addict on St. John's realizes that here is his last big chance. If he goes back to opium upon release and is caught, he will go to jail.

Heal says there have been only 28 recorded failures.

Negro Teachers For Levittown

LEVITTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Two Negro teachers have been hired for schools in this Southeastern Pennsylvania community of 60,000 where violent protests recently greeted the arrival of its first Negro family.

School authorities disclosed the appointments at a school board meeting yesterday. Names of the new teachers—a man and a woman—will not be announced until school starts, in line with established practice.

One teacher has been assigned to the new James Buchanan elementary school on Haines Road, near the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Myers and their three children. The Myers were the first Negroes to move into this planned suburban town of 15,000 homes.

For nine straight nights, crowds gathered in the vicinity of the Myers' house, jeering, picketing and, on occasion, hurling stones. The demonstrations ended after a police sergeant was struck by a rock as he guarded the Myers' home. State police banned gatherings of more than three persons in the neighborhood after that incident. Since then the section has been quiet. State police continue to patrol the area.

Dr. Guy P. Eberhart, regional superintendent of Bristol Township schools, who announced the teacher appointments, said they had no connection with the fact that Myers had moved to the neighborhood.

Eberhart said the other Negro teacher will be assigned to William Penn Junior High School, which opens Sept. 5. The Buchanan school, serving the area in which the Myers family lives, opens Sept. 16. The Myers children are not yet of school age.

A Machine Has His Number

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Billy Ray Lickert can cope with almost anything on a basketball court—but a hamburger-pressing machine has his number.

Lickert led Lafayette to the state high school title last season and will continue his basketball career this year at Kentucky.

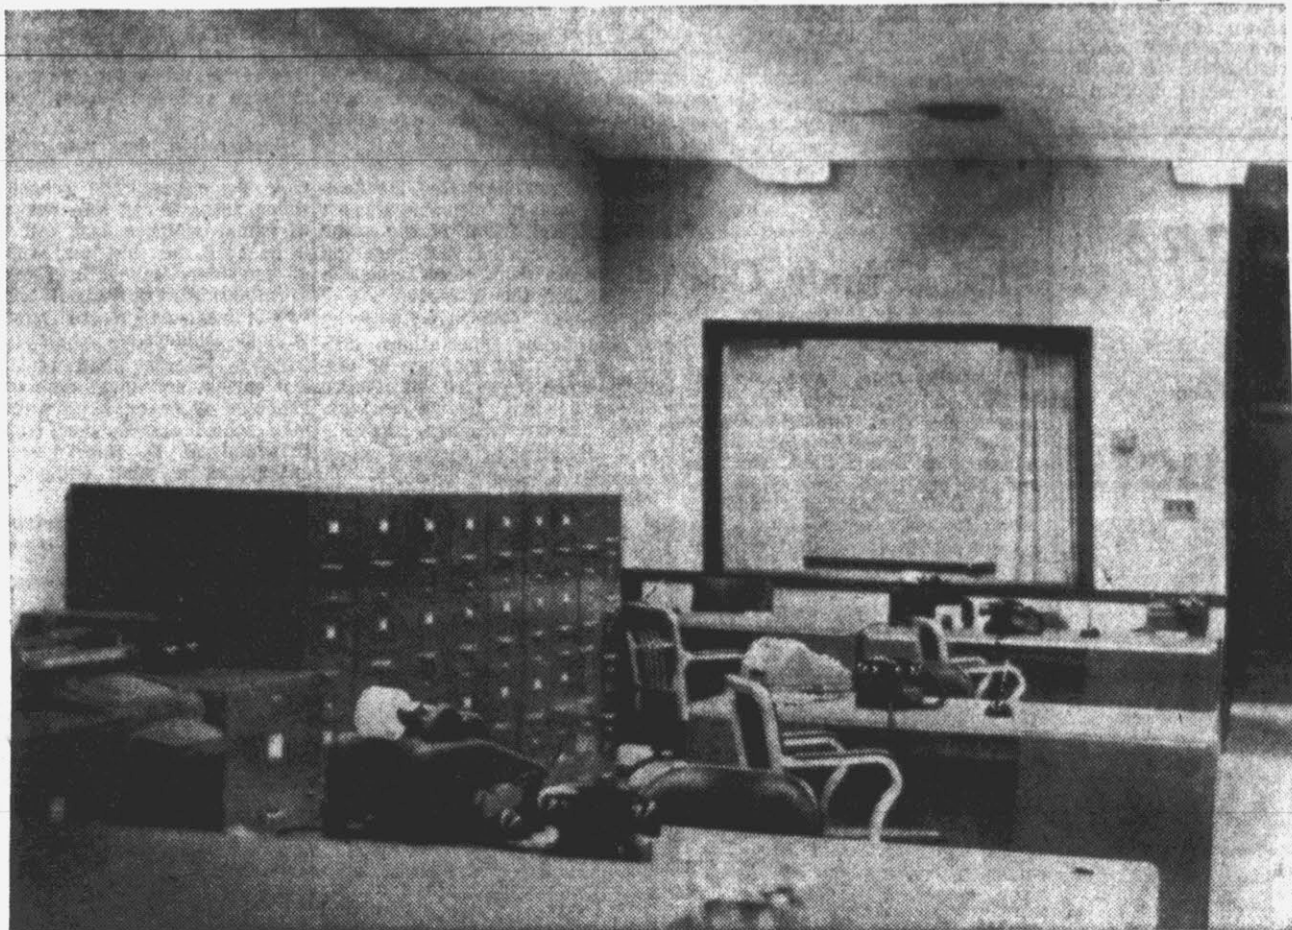

In the meantime he has been operating a hamburger-pressing machine at a restaurant. He caught his right hand in the machine Aug. 9 and it took a dozen stitches to close the deep cuts.

Yesterday—same fingers, same machine. This time, a hospital listed the scratches and abrasions as minor.

Benito Mussolini was named after Benito Juarez, a Mexican revolutionary.

The Lonely Man

By JAMES RONALD

© 1957, by James Ronald. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS

Deborah Vail, an actress unengaged at the moment, is driving from London to Garnock, in Scotland, to visit a married cousin. During a late evening downpour, a flat tire stops her on a lonely stretch of road. Lacking tools to change the tire, she sets out afoot to locate a telephone. After finding a house, and knocking repeatedly, a door is opened by a man who greets her angrily: "Can't you go away and leave me in peace! What do you think I am—a peep show? I ought to welcome you with a gun!"

Deborah is so overwrought that she faints. Upon regaining consciousness, she is lying inside the house, being tended by the stranger. It is evident they are alone. The stranger denies having a telephone.

CHAPTER 3

"Except for dirt, untidiness, neglect, the room Deborah was in would have had considerable charm. It was large and well-proportioned. The walls were painted in rosewood to the height of a tall man and painted dove gray above that. Someone of taste had taken pains to furnish and decorate it attractively. The few pictures and ornaments had been chosen with discrimination. There was no attempt at uniformity but the result was harmonious.

But everywhere she looked she saw dust and disorder. On tables and chairs lay the debris of several plates and cutlery, of several frayed meals. Even a greasy frying pan; an encrusted coffee pot.

A camp bed with tousled blankets stood against a wall. With a large house at his disposal, the man was camping out in one room.

Apparently he also used it as a studio, for an easel stood in the middle of the floor and on a table beside it lay a palette and a letter of brushes and tubes of paint. The easel supported an unfinished portrait of a very beautiful woman. Seeing Deborah looking at it, the man went forward quickly and threw a cloth over the picture. The action was like an abrupt admonition to mind her own business.

"I'll see what can be done about your car," he said.

He left the room and came back in a few minutes, clumping on thick-soled boots and wearing a shapeless felt hat and an old raincoat. He asked about the car keys and Deborah said she had left them in the ignition. She always did; it was not a car that any self-respecting thief would steal.

"Shall I come with you?" she asked, doing her best not to sound as unwilling as she felt.

"No, you stay here and get warm." Pausing in the doorway, he looked back with a frown.

"You'll be all right? You're not afraid to be left alone?"

"No, I'm not afraid."

"Good."

With that, he was gone. She was alone in the one lighted room of a dark house; a house that conveyed an impression of morbid antagonism. She was afraid now. She had said lightly that she could not repress a rising queasiness, a gripping foreboding. She was not in the least a timid person but the events of the night had set her nerves on edge.

A sudden sound made her jump. An imperative ringing, unquestionable the summons of a telephone bell. But he had said he had no telephone. The ringing went on and on. It came from the hall. Leaving the door of the living room open to light her way, she followed the sound to a nook under the stairs where the instrument stood on a small table.

An ordinary dial telephone. Why lie about something so commonplace? Deborah bit her lip. Should she answer it? No, she was an unwanted intruder. Her grudging host's affairs were no business of hers. Let it ring, in a little while it would stop. But the thing went on clamoring for attention.

The strain was too great. Deborah lifted the receiver.

The moment she raised it to her ear she heard a voice saying: "Get out and stay out. You're not wanted here." The words were followed by a strident, shocking obscenity that made her cringe.

There was a click as the speaker and chairs lay the debris of several plates and cutlery, of several frayed meals. Even a greasy frying pan; an encrusted coffee pot.

Never before had light and a fire's warmth been so welcoming, so reassuring. "Get out and stay out." The snarled command echoed in her brain. But who could know she was here? And why should anyone care? And then she realized that the words, though addressed to her, were not addressed in her ear. The voice with its gutter insults had spoken the instant the receiver was lifted. Obviously, the speaker had expected the lonely occupant of the house to answer. He was the one who was not wanted. But why? What had he done?

Unusually, she moved about the room. Her feminine curiosity was piqued by the shrouded portrait on the easel. Why had the man been so quick to throw the cover over it?

Throwing back the cloth, she took a long look at the painting. Yes, the woman who was the subject was very beautiful. Not only beautiful, but striking. Her mouth a scarlet bow against a pallid oval face. Hair of Venetian red, slender throat proudly held, large grey-green eyes that were oddly expressive and compelling. It was a rarely lovely face, strangely intriguing, a face so unusual so challenging to the imagination, that one could not conceive of ever tiring of it.

All that marred it was the evident discontent underlying the loveliness. Although she did not know the sitter, Deborah felt an irrational annoyance with the painter for betraying the inner discontent so unmistakably. He could have been a little less perceptive, a little more kind.

Touching a corner of the canvas, she found that the paint was still wet. It was evident that the artist had been working on the portrait that evening.

She reminded herself that she was prying. The artist had shown her most pointedly that his work was no concern of hers. Now that her curiosity was satisfied—and, at the same time, titillated—she felt a twinge of shame. Draping the cloth again over easel and canvas, she walked back to the fire and lit a cigarette from the lighter she found on a table.

As a fascinated child might do, she clicked the lighter several times, admiring the tiny flame that instantly and invariably responded.

It irked her to see the messy plates and saucers that cluttered various parts of the room. It was only fair to make some payment for the trouble she was giving her host. It was stupid to be frightened of an empty house, to be ruled by her nerves. But as she felt an inward quailing again as she went out again to the hall—prudently leaving the light there, and explored a connecting passage until she found the kitchen.

It was as repellently untidy as she had feared; a cockroach scuttled madly about the sink when the light went on; but she rolled up her sleeves and donned a soiled apron. She gathered the dirty dishes and the other things, washed them thoroughly, and put them away as neatly as possible.

While rinsing the sink she glanced up and saw a brutish male face staring in at her through the window. An ugly, stupid, bestial face with bulging eyes and a snoutish nose. It was like something monstrous from another world.

She screamed, and the face withdrew in a flash.

Claims Baptist Gains In Russia

HAMILTON, Ont. (AP)—The pastor of Moscow's only Baptist church says the Baptist ranks in the Soviet Union are increasing steadily.

The Rev. Yakov I. Shidkov told a news conference last night his church has 4,000 congregations in Russia and is gaining from 10,000 to 15,000 new members a year.

He spoke shortly before the Executive Committee of the Baptist World Alliance opened a five-day meeting here. He is among 120 delegates.

Heavy Russian Aid For Syrians

LONDON (AP)—Diplomatic sources in London estimated today the Russians have 350 military advisers in Syria.

The diplomatic sources said Russia also is reported to have sent 83 million dollars worth of arms to the Arab nation. They said this was in addition to previous shipments worth 56 million dollars prior to last fall's invasion of Suez.

The sources said Syria's stockpile of Russian arms now includes 200 T34 tanks, 50 self-propelled guns, 200 armored troop carriers, 120 122mm field guns, 60 anti-aircraft guns, 70 MIG15 and MIG17 fighter planes and an unspecified number of motor torpedo boats.

They said more Communist arms, including two submarines and 120 more planes, are expected to be sent to Syria as a result of the visit of Syrian Defense Minister Khaled al Azem to Moscow earlier this month.

A London newspaper correspondent reported from Damascus last week that thousands of Russian "volunteers" were pouring into Syria. The Soviet Communist party organ Pravda today termed his account a "gross and dishonest fabrication."

American officials meanwhile were reported urging that Britain supply Jordan with powerful 52-Centurion tanks to meet a Jordanian request for heavy tanks and small arms.

Informants said last night Jordan, which borders on Syria, had asked the United States for such arms to meet any internal or external threats. They added that although the United States is providing Jordan with 10 million dollars in aid, it prefers to limit its military help to small arms and similar equipment.

The informant said Britain, which has supplied Jordan with tanks in the past, probably will agree to sell or give the Middle East nation several Centurions.

A Lot Of Bull Is Roaming Prairie

ROSWELL, N. M. (AP)—One of the Southwest's largest buffaloes roams the prairie near here.

On the J. J. Lane Ranch, the animal is one of 31 head of adult buffalo. The bull stands 7 1/2 feet at the shoulder and weighs 2,600 pounds.

Poor Bargain Looms In Trading Radio Programs

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—There's been recent talk of official swapping of radio programs between the United States and Russia. If that happens, a good programming job awaits someone in Red land.

The stuff now beamed this way regularly from behind the Iron Curtain has all the audience appeal of a three-day rain at the seashore; a splash of military trumpets, a dash of symphony or folk song—and lots of talk, talk, talk.

How is programming like that going to captivate the radio fan? Particularly when nearby on the dial a smoky contralto is concentrating musically on "amour, amour, amour" over Radio Paris.

Maybe "The Last Word" pundits can figure out the significance of their own favorite words. The CBS-TV quartet sprinkled "I mean" around the chat-chat 21 times the other half hour.

Big league pitcher Sal Maglie scraped by his first brush with dramatics without too much trouble in "The Littlest Little Leaguer," occasioning maybe the biggest chuckle when another performer innocently asked, "he's an actor maybe?"

A trade report emphasizes how important filmed fare is to be this fall in major video enterprise.

The three networks have listed 24 1/2 hours of canned merchandise on the prime 34 hours of viewing space. In other words, 66 per cent of your evenings with the big glass eye will be pre-recorded.

The exclamation point is rapidly becoming a trend on TV. Getting used to "Panic!" and "Shock!" took a bit of traumatic adjust-

An Inflationary Trick By Tot

CORN, Okla. (AP)—Four-year-old Ernie Koop decided he'd venture downtown and took a handful of dimes his parents had been saving for him.

When his parents finally found him, the dimes were gone. Ernie had been hawking the best fun putting them into penny weighing machine slots and other vending machines.

WALL STREET — NEW YORK (AP)—Aircraft, oils, steels and selected issues pushed ahead early this afternoon as the stock market rose in moderate trading.

It was a follow-through on yesterday's strong recovery, one of the best advances of the year, but turnover slackened from yesterday's pace.

Missile-making companies continued to enjoy a rise on Russia's reported development of an intercontinental missile.

Heavily engaged in missile-making, both General Dynamics and Douglas Aircraft gained well over a point while Martin Co. was up about a point. Avco, which announced it had made a major breakthrough in developing the nose cone for a big missile, shaped an early fraction advance.

United Aircraft also rose more than a point. Boeing was a 1-point gainer.

The major steels trimmed early gains. U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic Steel were firm, youngsters were ahead a major fraction while Lukens rose a point.

Amerasia, Sinclair, Gulf Oil and Standard Oil (New Jersey) were all up about a point or better. Similar gains were made by Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Goodrich, Radio Corp. and Schering.

Bullard lost around 2 points as this heavy machine tool maker omitted its dividend. Lowenstein lost a point on news of its dividend cut. New York Central dropped a fraction as its earnings dropped sharply.

News that three companies controlled by Atlas Corp. will merge with two others to form the largest uranium mining enterprise in the world brought scant activity to Atlas stock. A block of 1,000 shares traded at 9 1/4, up 1/4 but this gain was cut later.

Teen-Age Crime Drops In One City, Reversing Trend

PLAIN TALK. Lt. Stanley Skuzinski, head of the Juvenile division of the Grand Rapids, Mich., Police Department, lays it on the line for a boy in trouble.

Eleven Sent From Pitt For Induction Monday

A total of 11 registrants were sent for induction Monday by the Pitt County Selective Service Board.

Those leaving were: Judson Warren Whitehurst, Jesse Sutton Canady, Sylvester Rogers, Elmer Leary, Demetrius Dixon, Joseph Alonza James, Paul Lawrence Suggs, Joe Louis Evans, William Earl Cole, Ephraim Clarence Green and Samuel Lee Cox, Jr.

Mrs. Selma W. Rogers, Clerk of the Board, also reported that 12 registrants were also sent for their preinduction Armed Forces Examination. There names were not listed.

In addition to the 11 men who left Monday for final induction, four others were scheduled to leave but failed to report with the group. The four delinquents were: Edward Earl Taft, James Taft, Odell Parker and Bruce Cox, Jr.

VIP Treatment For Fifty Civil Air Patrol Boys

PERRIN AIR FORCE BASE, Tex. — Fifty youths from 47 states — all Civil Air Patrol honor cadets — will realize dreams today with a chance at the controls of a jet scheduled for each.

The cadets, aged 16 to 18, are from every state except Rhode Island and are considered prime Air Force officer material because of their cadet records. They are getting the VIP treatment.

They came here Sunday and have gone through an orientation course.

Each is paired with an instructor pilot. An Air Force spokesman said 16 had previously piloted planes and would take the controls within 20 to 30 minutes of being airborne today.

All are expected to be piloting and navigating by the last flight Saturday. They will not take off on land.

Bouquets From Eighty Judges

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Eighty judges stood at intersections yesterday and bestowed bouquets upon courteous drivers.

It was the first annual "Courtesy Day" sponsored by the Allied Florists' Assn. and the judges had 100 bouquets to give away.

By late afternoon they had found only 70 deserving drivers and the sun had waded away the awards.

One happy woman driver exclaimed, "I'll have to take the flowers home to my husband or else he'll never believe this."

"I'm AWOL from my wife in Cincinnati," said another driver who refused to give his name and drove off hurriedly after receiving the floral gift.

N. C. WEATHER OUTLOOK THROUGH LABOR DAY

Named To Board

BY JAMES SMALLEGAN
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. (AP) — An upward trend in juvenile crime continues in the United States. But in this Michigan furniture city of 200,000 it is the other way around — down, down, down.

Since 1949 the number of Grand Rapids youngsters under 17 involved in crimes has dipped almost 25 per cent, despite a population increase of 11 per cent.

The FBI Uniform Crime Report shows that during the same period the national rate of juvenile delinquency has jumped to more than seven times what it was in 1949.

Grand Rapids had nearly 2,000 juveniles involved in law violations in 1949. Last year there were less than 1,500, and police say the trend is toward an even lower figure this year. Nationally, the FBI reports 36,000 juveniles were arrested in 1949, compared with almost 234,500 last year.

Wide Attack
Lt. Stanley Skuzinski, who runs the Grand Rapids Police Department's juvenile division, credits several things for the city's declining delinquency rate.

For one thing, he says: "We work with clubs of boys aged 17 through 21 who help us keep gangs of youngsters from forming. They're closer to the younger teen-agers than we are and the youngsters respect their confidence. We don't have an organized gang of youngsters in the city."

"We find trouble, when it develops, most generally starts from a group congregated on a street corner. The first thing you know someone dares someone to do something and he's either 'chicken' or in trouble."

"Whenever we see groups hanging around we don't just run them off, we kind of 'talk' them home."

For another thing, he credits Grand Rapids' "nobility."

"We have our poor neighborhoods, like any city, but we don't have a slum. Sixty-three and a half per cent of Grand Rapids' residents own or are buying their homes."

Another thing the police lieutenant points out is the total of more than 200 churches here, many of them of the strict Dutch faith that settlers brought with them 107 years ago.

This year 1,200 Grand Rapids children are going to camp through a $30,138 fund raised through a one-day drive.

Kids Kept Busy
Skuzinski and his 13-member staff also busy themselves helping with a bustling municipal program of recreational events, ranging from swimming to square dancing, all year long.

Exactly what relation, if any, there is between juvenile and adult crime rates, Skuzinski isn't sure.

But he and other policemen are proud of the Grand Rapids' low adult rate, too.

"I believe crime prevention starts with the youngsters," Skuzinski said, "and we're working to grove it. You can't just chase youngsters away and expect them to keep out of trouble. You've got to work with them; give them something to do."

Small Response To All-Star Campaign

Charles P. Gaskins of Greenville has been appointed a member of the Board of Directors of the North Carolina School for the Blind and Deaf at Raleigh. His appointment (for four years) was one of several announced by Governor Luther Hodges.

Solicitation chairman for the fund raising campaign being staged to send 14 Greenville Little Leaguers and their coaches to Washington stated this morning that they have received little response for the "Dollars for the All-Stars."

W. M. Scales Jr. and Les Turnage again appealed to the residents of Greenville and Pitt County for monetary assistance in an effort to provide a free trip to Washington, D. C. for the Little League All-Stars on the weekend of September 7 and 8. A group of local citizens are making an all-out effort to send the State Championship team on the trip in appreciation for the representation they gave Greenville in the state and regional playoffs.

Plans have been in progress here for several weeks to provide funds for the trip. The Junior Chamber of Commerce has donated $100 of the $500 needed for expenses leaving $400 to be raised through other channels.

An appeal was made over the weekend for interested citizens to send one or more dollars to Dr. Leo Jenkins at East Carolina College. Dr. Jenkins is heading the group in charge of these prospective trip.

A report this morning revealed that very little response has been received from the initial request.

Turnage emphasized, "Since the trip will be coming up in less than two weeks, it is urgently requested that interested parties back the campaign at the earliest possible date."

The twins, Milton and Melvin Worthington, each spoke on one of the two roads, their text being Matthew 7:13-14.

"There is a broad road," declared the first twin, "which leads to destruction. Every man is born on that road, doomed."

"But a man doesn't have to remain on that road," exclaimed the second twin, "because there is a narrow road which has been prepared for him. He can leave the road which leads to destruction and get on the straight and narrow way by receiving Christ as Lord and as Saviour and being born again."

A packed house heard the Musical Messenger Quartet sing. Baritone soloist Kemp Edwards sang one number with the quartet and a solo.

Rev. R. J. Kennedy will speak tonight.

Dual Message Given By Twin Ministers

SPECIAL VFW MEET
Charles Gray Morgan Post No. 7032, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will have a special meeting at the Post Home tonight at 7:30. Post Commander Bob Carson said it is being called to make plans for the fall membership drive. All members are requested to be present.

Plan Report On Carolina Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate Rackets Committee source said yesterday the committee likely would get a report next week on an investigation of textile industry-unions disputes in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Special agents of the committee, the source said, now are writing a report of their investigating mission in the Carolinas. However, the source said that if any hearings result they probably would not be held before November or December.

The investigators looked into charges and countercharges from textile union officials and industry.

Slight Price Sag On Eastern Belt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sales resumed today in the Eastern North Carolina and Border South Carolina-North Carolina flue cured tobacco markets after slightly sagging prices yesterday.

The Federal-State Market News Service said prices on the Border Belt fell 1/2 to 5/8 per hundredweight from Monday's averages and held steady to 1/2 to 3/4 lower on the Eastern Belt.

The news service said general quality of leaf on the Border Belt yesterday was slightly lower than Monday with a larger percentage of poor and nondescript grades. Volume continued heavy.

Monday's sales on the Border Belt averaged $62.58 per hundredweight on 11,255,655 pounds. The average was $2.40 above Friday's. The Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp. got 1.30 per cent of the total sales.

Monday's sales on the Eastern Belt averaged $54.99 per hundredweight, highest of the season, on 8,799,238 pounds. The increase was $2.42 above Friday's average. About 2 per cent of the sales went to the federal government under the price support program.

One-Day Sales Record Set By Farmville Market

FARMVILLE — A new one-day sales record was set for the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday when 259,574 pounds of leaf were sold at an average of $54.33 per one hundred pounds.

Total money paid out yesterday, according to Sales Supervisor Charles S. Edwards, was $141,029.33. The sales pushed the market's average for the season to $52.81, based on total sales of 2,754,496 pounds of tobacco for $1,454,653.85.

Edwards said today's sale are short, but running ahead of expectations. Full sales are anticipated in each of the market's 12 warehouses tomorrow and Friday.

Colored News

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Gardner and daughter, Blinda, Mrs. Jennie Harris and daughter, Annie Lillie, Mrs. Charles Sherrod and Mrs. Simon Tyson Jr., were dinner guests Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus E. Gardner.

Zion Chapel F.W.B. Church in Greenville has announced plans for an all-local project in which everybody in the community may participate. It is a 1958 Birthday Calendar and an effort will be made to get the birth date of many Greenville and Pitt county people. These will be printed on the calendars and those whose names appear will receive cards and remembrances on their birthdays. Profits from the advertising, sale of calendars and the small charge for birth date listings will be used for the Sunday school rooms at the church, a committee man stated.

It was the first annual "Courtesy Day" sponsored by the Allied Florists' Assn. and the judges had 100 bouquets to give away.

By late afternoon they had found only 70 deserving drivers and the sun had waded away the awards.
