

Decorate Dorm Room With A Theme

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

At the present time there are countless girls moving back into old memory-filled dorm rooms and still more who are facing four strange new walls.

Also in Greenville there are a large number of girls who are classified as day students. Whether the room belongs to a day student or a dorm student—it still has a big order to fill.

It is the place where she retreats from the other students or family and settles down with her books. It's sleeping quarters, dressing room and living room combined.

To Take The Chill Away

If her home happens to be in a dormitory she'll need lots of portable ingredients to take the chill off the cold, bare room. Colorful, wrinkle resistant, washable bedspreads can brighten even the drabdest cubicle. Small area rugs also give color and comfort to this "room away from home."

A room for studying must be well lit and the lamp manufacturers provide study lamps, almost every lamp imaginable for those who will be burning the midnight oil.

Decorate Around A Theme

It's fun to decorate a room around a basic theme.

A room with maple furniture brings an Early American decor to mind—braided rugs, flower prints and printed bedspreads.

Now for the ultra-modern miss there is the ultra-modern room. Wrought-iron lamps, bookcases, and butterfly chairs with bright canvas seats are inexpensive and make the room have a comfortable, personable touch.

Many girls buy or make mobiles to suspend from the ceiling and use brilliant patches of color (fabric, not paint) at random on their walls.

Borrow Themes

Themes borrowed from other countries give a room a special, continental—A Spanish major might be proud to use bright colored bedspreads and rugs with travel posters and souvenirs scattered about.

The travel posters are free for the asking at most foreign government tourist offices or airlines.

Day Students May Have Problems

For those Greenville girls who will live at home, they may find a more difficult problem.

They might not be lucky enough to have a separate study area, but they can convert one end of their bedroom into a study. This girl at home is not starting from nothing like her dorm sister. She has to plan the area in keeping with the rest of the room and house.

Good lighting is a must and a carefully selected, feminine-looking lamp can give as much illumination as a regular study lamp.

By the way, it's a good idea to have at least two extra chairs nearby in case friends drop in to study. A telephone is also a convenient item for double-checking those assignments.

MISS GRACE HARDY of LaGrange . . . moved into her dormitory room in Cotton Hall yesterday with the assistance of her nephew.

Youth of all denominations will be present at the meetings Sunday through Thursday nights. Opening at 7:15 with songs led by Gayle Clapp, East Carolina College sophomore, the gatherings will include worship services, discussion groups, and recreation.

Howard Garner, master of ceremonies, will also direct "Witnessing for Christ in Such an Age," a dramatic worship service Thursday night. In the cast are Rev. James H. Warren, teacher at Scarritt College, Tenn., Rev. Ralph Fleming, pastor at Newport, and Gayle Clapp.

Inspirational speaker for the week, Rev. E. G. Purcell of Raleigh, will deliver message concerning youth's responsibility "To Be Alive In Such An Age." Leading the intermediate discussion group will be Rev. Robert Eason of Ayden; talking with the seniors will be Washington's Rev. N. W. Grant.

Dad's Shirts Go To College

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor Smart coeds have discovered a new way to ease the college budget. They're using Dad's old shirts for gay nightshirts.

Local sewing center experts say it's easy. Cut the collar off the shirt, making a scoop neckline. Cut off sleeves above the placket and below the elbow. Then stitch on the trimming of your choice.

For a dainty, frilly nightie, get five yards of nylon val lace beading, two and 5-8 yards of matching lace edging and six yards of rayon satin baby ribbon to thread through the lace beading. Then sew lace beading down center front, around neckline, sleeves and armhole, and on pocket edge. Thread the ribbon through the beading, leaving enough for bows at neck and sleeves. Stitch lace edging around shirttail, and there you are with a glamorous night-shirt at little cost. Dainty lace trims can be bought for as little as ten cents a yard, so the cost of your frilly nightshirt should be not much over a dollar.

Many variations are possible. You can use rows of rickrack or colored bias binding for trimming. Try dressing up one of Dad's old shirts with alternate rows of pink and red bias binding down front closing, around sleeves, down the middle of the back and around the shirttail. You can leave the collar on, if it's not too worn. The result is a gay dormitory nightie.

Guests helped themselves to mints, mixed nuts, cheese straws, and an assortment of open face and party sandwiches which carried out the bridal motif.

The 40 guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Bundy, Miss Hadley, and Mrs. Emily Moye Hadley, mother of the bride-elect. Massive arrangements of multi-colored summer flowers were placed in the den and living room for the occasion.

Besides being showered with many gifts, Miss Hadley was also remembered by the hostess with a piece of silver in her chosen pattern.

Mrs. S. L. Daughtridge and Mrs. M. W. Maxwell invited the callers into the dining room where an appointed table was laid with an embroidered cutwork imported cloth.

Following a social hour, good-byes were said to the hostess.

Guest Editorial

Look Backward, Lest We Forget

Editor's note: The following editorial was prepared for the current series by J. CON LANIER, general counsel for the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association and the Tobacco Association of the United States.

For more than twenty-five years, with the exception of 1938, flue-cured tobacco growers have operated under a continuous tobacco program. During this period, flue-cured tobacco prices have equaled and exceeded parity. No other major farm commodity has approached this record.

Since 1933 tobacco growers have enjoyed a long period of reasonable prosperity, and the program has provided reasonable prices, security against poverty, bankruptcy and want. It has been a success.

Many people take the program for granted, and forget that it is not necessarily permanent. It is a man-made program, implemented by legislation in the Congress of the United States. What the Congress has granted, the Congress can take away.

It has been said that it takes only so many nails to build a coffin. In the past few weeks, a lot of nails have been driven to fashion a coffin for this program.

At this time, when tobacco is being accused of producing lung cancer; when crippling legislation is being introduced in Congress, when tempers flare and anger warps sound judgment; when people who have profited greatly under the program are now seeking through court action to destroy it, it is time to take a long look backwards and remember.

We should remember that before a program was begun, tobacco was selling at a starvation level. We should remember that when controls were voted out in 1937, tobacco prices dropped drastically. We should remember that since 1938 prices have been satisfactory. And we should remember that the destruction of this program will be a stark tragedy in the tobacco growing areas, affecting not only the growers but even the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker.

In this first year under the variety discount plan, the industry is enduring the pains of adjustment. The plan is not perfect, and it takes time to iron out individual inequities. These inequities can and will be corrected as time goes on, provided the program is preserved.

President Jackson once said "The Union, it must be preserved". It is imperative for the tobacco producers to close ranks with the slogan "The Program, it must be preserved."

We should remember the words of Kipling: "Lord God of Hosts Be with us yet Lest we forget Lest we forget."

Sometime Today, A Sigh Of Remembrance

This is it. Greenville's children go back to school today; the wheels are turning at East Carolina College, and the county schools are already meshing their gears.

There are a lot of good resolutions being made at this time, and a lot of planning under way for the new term.

Excitement is in the air as the easy-going days of summer give way to a scheduled course of education. For the young people, it is an "occasion".

But for Teacher? Sometime today, we suspect, Teacher's eyes will briefly be diverted to that world outside... framed by a window; and vacation-time's brief months will be remembered with a silent sigh.

Fancy Foods In Peoples' Future

By ELMER ROESSNER Americans are about to go on their biggest fancy food binge in history, judging from activities at the third annual Fancy Food and Confection Show in New York.

The number of companies represented was up from 300 to 400; the number of items shown was up from 4,000 to 5,000 and, most significant of all, orders were up around 25 per cent, with some exhibitors claiming a 50 per cent rise.

The biggest buyers were department stores, fancy food stores and mail order houses, with the last making the largest increase in orders. Food-by-mail is a rapidly growing industry in America; some day we must do a full column on it.

There was some buying by supermarket chains. Supermarkets are taking greater interest in fancy foods. Some have opened food specialty departments. However, the show was a little early for supermarket buying. The chains make greatest sales around the holidays and usually buy for Thanksgiving-Christmas specialties later in September.

SEA URCHINS, ANYONE? Cheeses, fruit and other cakes, cookies, preserves and candies drew the largest orders, but the most exotic foods attracted most attention. On display were the old stand-bys of the specialty food market: fried worms, canned rattlesnake meat, crystallized rose petals, jalapeno peppers stuffed with turkey, fish or cheese, and Bombay duck, which is really fish.

This year there were more new entries than ever before. Perhaps the most talked-of product was chocolate-covered ants, a lex up on fried ants, introduced last year. Also arresting attention were tins containing a mother oyster and a genuine cultured pearl, priced to sell around $1. Strictly speaking, this is not a specialty food since the oyster is inedible, having been dunked in formaldehyde. There was an edible companion, however: a tin of smoked Japanese oysters, guaranteed to contain at least one pearl.

WHY DON'T YOU LIKE? Other comestibles (if that's the word) included barbecued Japanese snake meat, fried bumble bees, fried silk worms, fried za za insects, French fried grasshoppers, broiled sparrow, sliced smoked rabbit, whale meat steak, whole baby octopi in six-ounce tins, sea urchin paste in tubes, salted Japanese cherry blossoms, fried butterfly cocoons, roasted whole grouse in port wine jelly from Scotland, and seaweed powder with monosodium glutamate. If you think your reporter imagined things, check with A. & A. Food Products Corp., 122 Warren St. New York 7, which exhibited all these products and several hundred more.

Among other introductions was canned colin, a fish something like a flounder from northern France, by Frederic Import Corp., 330 E. 79th St. New York 21; reindeer steak and fried turkey slices in tins from Sweden, by Bruno Scheidt, Inc., 16 Hudson St., New York; man-size patty shells, by Danish Bakers, 170 Broadway, New York 38; Danish hams in a choice of champagne, burgundy, cherry wine, tawny port, sherry or Scotch whisky, by Gala Foods, New York 17; salted whale skin in jars and baby trout in tins, by American Roland Food Co., 16 Hudson St., New York; and Kobu nuts, by Perry H. Chipour, Inc., 101 Hudson St., New York 13, N.Y.

These nuts consist of two half peanuts forming a sandwich of spiced rice paste and tied together with Kobu leaves. With orders so heavy, few exhibitors had time to go out for lunch. Your reporter watched to see what they sent out for when they had a chance. In every case the snack was corned beef on rye, with a paper container of coffee.

Extension of empire is not all it is cracked up to be. The more a county expands, the more trouble it finds itself getting into. The little countries like Switzerland, Denmark, and the Scandinavian countries, which have not been avid for empire, appear to have a stability which the huge octopus-like empires do not have.

Contentment is a marvelous gift, both to an individual and to a nation. We will save ourselves much unhappiness if we don't try to take hold of the world with both hands. Cancer, we are told, is a variety of growth which gets out of hand to bring death.

Many people have cancer of the soul and don't know it.

Breaking Maj. Simons' Record

by DON SCHLIENZ

Le Grand Backyard Chef

I guess it's time for everybody to stand back and take a fresh look at that new specialized personality on the American scene (backyard variety).

With his long-handled fork and studious approach, he's the nearest thing to the Indispensable Man at a cookout. No charcoal-broiling affair should be without one, for it takes more than good intentions to bring out the inherent mouth-watering goodness of outdoor cookery.

From somewhere (perhaps it is a racial memory) he has acquired judgment as to the right quantity of charcoal to be used, the right height for the grill over the hot coals, the right time to turn the meats and the right time to baste. His audience is both respectful and watchful; each person looking ahead to The Day when they may be called upon to serve as le grand chef.

His judgment alone entitles this newest hero to a pedestal, but he has an added flair for magnificently ignoring gnats, mosquitos and the running warfare maintained by small-fry who thrive on the excitement of the occasion.

Calmly efficient, he says

"fetch" and it is fetched. He says "bring your plates," and they are brung.

Salads, rolls, beverages, desserts... the ladies look after those necessary accompaniment to the main course; and of course, no such meal could be fabricated without their fullest interest as well as keeping the chef's artist-temperament under gentle control.

There's a small-size mystery connected with outdoor cooking. For some unexplained reason women are less inclined to take over the chores as long as there's a man around who has even the smallest kind of experience with charcoal broilers. Sure, some women swing a mean fork; but my own infrequent observations are that their self-assurance around an electric or gas range is lacking when they meet up with outdoor cooking. This could be an act, designed to lend an aura of pre-eminence in one field to the usually hapless male. But on the whole, if it is an act, it is a most believable one.

Our way we've been dabbling our toes in that charcoal-broiler-cookout craze. Conclusion: it's every bit as enjoyable as everybody says.

Other Editors Saying... New Attack On Filibuster

(Rocky Mount Telegram) Civil rights advocates, now that they have their long-sought civil rights bill safely through Congress, will seek next to do away with the Senate's filibuster rule. By accomplishing this they feel there is no limit to what they can ram through Congress in the way of new and more powerful civil rights legislation. All this, of course, is distasteful to Southern legislators.

The South's major weapon against Northern-type legislative efforts in the past has been Senate rule 22 which provides for unlimited debate on any proposal to change the rules. It binds the Senate to the requirement for 64 affirmative votes to end debate. That is two-thirds of the entire membership.

Vice President Nixon has offered the opinion that he regards Senate Rule 22 as unconstitutional. Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) believes Nixon will hold that the Senate can adopt new rules by a majority vote. Nixon agrees with him. Under the present rules, Southerners can hold the floor against undesirable legislation until the moon turns blue, or until the Southerners run out of breath.

Douglass and other Northerners have proposed a so-called sliding scale rule to shut off filibusters. Under it the Senate could limit debate at any time by a vote of two-thirds of those participating in the roll call. Or encouragement by endorsing him publicly at a press conference.

PERPLEXING ELECTION WIN. In view of this political jigsaw, the politicians ask whether Proxmire won because the voters consider that the Administration and Congress pursued too reactionary a course. If so, how explain the fact that the rural Republicans shied away because they apparently felt that Eisenhower had deserted the old-fashioned Republican cause?

While The Rayburns and Nixons, the Johnsons and Knowlands try to answer that question, it is evident that the conservative moderates — the middle-of-the-roads — have gained control of both major parties, insofar as their viewpoint is expressed on Capitol Hill. And it is usually the Congressional leadership, not the gubernatorial or state blocs, which frame convention platforms.

IKES' ONLY CLEAN-CUT VICTORY. In the guise of a "modern Republican," President Eisenhower won only one clean-cut victory, and that was enactment of his Middle East Doctrine, which had no ideological implications. Even so, it was adopted with misgivings, and only because of the now realized fear that Russia was intent on a serious infiltration of both Egypt and Syria.

The Civil Rights Bill became law, but in a diluted form that was opposed to the last moment by the President, Attorney General Brownell and the Administration's Congressional leaders. And the emasculated shape in which it emerged was not satisfactory to the extreme liberals on either side of the aisle, although they accepted it as the best they could obtain at the recent session.

Appropriations for national defense and foreign aid, which was begun by Roosevelt and carried on by Truman, were slashed in an outburst of nationalistic protest. American participation in the World Trade Organization known as GATT, whose architect was the late Cordell Hull, was blocked by conservative protectionists.

The liberals' zeal for shouldering foreign burdens at the expense of American taxpayers was blunted by realists, even though their attitude sparked the charge that they were reactionary.

DOMESTIC LEGISLATION DISHEARTENING The record with re-

Novels Came Later

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — Most writers dream of turning out a novel they can sell to Hollywood and become rich.

Dale Van Every, a top authority on America's early frontier, did it the other way. He quit a $75,000-a-year job in Hollywood in 1943 to become a historical novelist.

"I was making $1,500 a week — which made me a working picture writer, not a celebrity," he remarked drily. "My only regret now is that I didn't quit sooner."

Van Every, now 61, has written ten novels — the most recent is "The Voyagers" — since he turned his back on Hollywood, where he worked on some 100 pictures after an earlier career as a newspaperman here and in Washington, D. C. The novels have sold more than two million copies.

One of the ironies of his success as a novelist is that some critics, aware of his Hollywood background, feel his books have been written with an eye for the film market. Van Every says that actually the exact opposite is true.

"None of my novels have been sold to the movies," he pointed out. "I use fiction only as a kind of sugar-coating for the facts. It is the facts that interest me."

"My pleasure in writing is the delight in recreating a lost world — the period between 1780 and 1811, when America really became a nation."

"Everyone knows about the frontier of the later West — the covered wagon, the stage coach, the cowboy and the horse Indian."

But even the college professors don't know too much about the early West, the frontier east of the Mississippi — the West of the stockade, the flatboat, the long rifle, the time when the Indians outnumbered and were stronger than the white settlers and won every battle except the last one."

Van Every, whose grandfather's grandfather was a Tory fighter in the Revolution, has been interested in this little-known period since boyhood. Thanks to his profitable years in the Hollywood vineyard, he was able to assemble one of the nation's finest private historical libraries.

A methodical craftsman, he writes five drafts of each novel, sometimes spends three or four days checking to be sure he has a detail of frontier life exactly right.

"Newspaper training is the best for anyone learning to write," he said. "It reaches you a respect for facts, and how to find and use them."

As a result of his interminable research Van Every lards his novels with such interesting facts as why Indians daubed a captive's head with clay before burning him at the stake. It was to preserve the scalp! Indians rarely violated a white female captive in order to preserve their own purity.

Indians used crushed sunflower seeds for hair oil. Indians regarded as delicacies the eyeballs of the buffalo, and frons cooked whole in cornmeal gruel.

"They also enjoyed moose snout boiled dog's head, and turkey eggs eaten the day before they were due to hatch," added Van Every, who is a steak man himself.

The novelist recently sold his home in Santa Barbara, Calif., and plans to spend a year or two wandering the world with his wife.

"I'm too young to settle down," he said.

—And, you'd learn from the mails, that: Hoxs are immune to poisonous snakes.

That women get some of their best ideas from men, and the petticoat proves this. The petticoat stems from a toy of male waist-coat, or vest, worn by men centuries ago. The girls took off the buttons and anchored it from the waist instead of the shoulders.

Federal Outlays In Eastern N. C.

By LYNN NISBET PAYROLLS — Recent news stories have served to emphasize the importance of the Federal military payrolls, especially in Eastern North Carolina. The same stories illustrate what looks to the civilian layman on a cursory glance like a crazy quilt pattern of military operations.

The United States military establishment is the biggest paymaster in North Carolina, counting expenditures for the National Guard, the several reserve organizations and college training programs, the regular uniformed personnel and civilian employees at the big bases located in the East. Fort Bragg artillery and Pope Field airbase at Fayetteville, the Marine Corps bases at Cherry Point and Lejeune, the expanding activities at Seymour Johnson Field at Goldsboro, plus dozens of smaller Air Force, Army, Marine and Navy units and the Coast Guard turn loose multiplied millions of dollars in payroll money.

A substantial part of the payments made to uniformed personnel temporarily based here goes back home, but a good deal of it is spent in local trade channels. The estimate of 10,000 civilian employees at these North Carolina military installations is believed to be conservative. These employees live and spend their money at home just like the employees of big industry like DuPont, Burlington Industries, General Electric, Reynolds, Tobacco, etc. Very few of these private business corporations have more than 10,000 wage earners in the state.

The cutback occasioned by reduced appropriations for defense is reflected in announcements that hundreds of civilian workers at the military bases will be laid off. Information is that Cherry Point will be most seriously affected as to total numbers, but with no more impact on local economy than at several other places.

SHIFTING — The scientists and inventors are keeping ahead of the economic and political planners. Before orders for modern implements can be processed, new designs have made the ordered jobs obsolete. A training program for one type of pilot is being underway before new kinds of planes and ships and land motors render the scheduled training unnecessary.

That is why the Air Force abandons the program at Stallings Field at Kinston while spending millions of dollars to reactivate Seymour Johnson Field at Goldsboro, just 25 miles away. The Navy is abandoning the established dirigible base near Elizabeth City — and spending millions to develop a different kind of operation at nearby Edenton. The waste involved in these shifting of emphasis is tremendous, and to most civilians it seems inexcusable.

Managers of private business strive to avoid excessive inventories of obsolete goods by recognizing ing that changes are sure to come and placing orders only for immediate needs. Government, especially the military, apparently assumes that every new gadget is the final word in that area and contracts for equipment, materials and supplies are placed in quantities to meet needs for years to come. The tragic fact is that many of these contracted items are accepted and paid for with taxpayers money months after they have been declared obsolete. This has been the case ever since World War I, but apparently it is more flagrant and wasteful in the Eisenhower regime than ever before. It is less excusable now because the military-politicos have the record of experience to guide them, if they had capacity to read and interpret the record.

TRANSPORTATION — Transportation is an increasingly important factor in the location of industry, and to less degree in the location of military posts. Here, too, the inventors have outrun the economic planners. Roads and bridges are not constructed to handle the behemoths of the highways hauling freight and passengers or the family cars geared for 100-mile speed. Consequently good roads are being abandoned and millions of public dollars spent on heavier pavement on a different right of way.

Railroads are by-passing a lot of towns through the policy of discontinuing what Business Week calls "retail trains" in favor of mile long trains serving only the big centers.

Senator Arthur Kirkman, a general manager of the High Point, Thomasville & Denton Railroad Company, points out the danger in this situation in a recent issue of "The Signal" house organ for his company. The various devices used by big railroads to eliminate competition among themselves and between themselves and strictly competitive short lines often result in sizeable communities becoming one railroad towns and losing benefit of competitive services. This is in effect an invitation to motor trucks to come and get the business. Directing attention to the problem at home, Senator Kirkman concludes with this paragraph:

North Carolina, off to a good start in making known its advantages as a location for new industry, must be alert to the whole picture of wake up to find that transportation agencies dictated the pattern of development rather than the less realistic planners. A balanced economy is the goal and spotty development must be avoided. Working together, State government and transportation—rail, truck water and air—the good results can be amazing. Competition and greedy rivalry are not the same thing whether it be between our two North Carolina ports or this railroad and its competitors. Competition is healthy. Sadistic rivalry is malignant. So we have always been taught.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS GROWTH OUT OF HAND The great historian Gibbon once wrote that the fall of Rome was the inevitable result of immoderate greatness. In other words, Rome grew so big that the Empire started to decay at the center. As the people flocked into the cities and as the fertility of the home land declined, Rome began living off the provinces. She sent her armies out to conquer more territory, but she was not producing anything. She outgrew herself. At last the end came. Barbarians from the North swarmed down into Italy, burst open the gates of Rome, and made themselves at home amidst conditions of splendor, which astonished and pleased them mightily.

Extension of empire is not all it is cracked up to be. The more a county expands, the more trouble it finds itself getting into. The little countries like Switzerland, Denmark, and the Scandinavian countries, which have not been avid for empire, appear to have a stability which the huge octopus-like empires do not have.

President Flies To Vacation Site
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower flies to New England today for a seaside vacation of golf and fishing as the Navy's guest at Newport, R.I.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower will occupy a tree-shaded 12-room, white stucco house which the new commander of the base, Rear Adm. Henry Cromellin, is yielding to the commander in chief.

There has been no official word on how long they will stay. If the weather is good, they may remain until close to the scheduled mid-October visit to Washington of Britain's Queen Elizabeth.

The President does plan to make some commuter flights from Newport for business conferences in Washington.

As always on vacation, the President will mix work and recreation at Newport. A temporary office has been set up at the naval base.

Eisenhower still must act on almost 100 bills remaining from the big pile that Congress sent to his desk shortly before adjourning last Friday. Those remaining include the civil rights measure, which administration officials have predicted he will sign.

On the vacation side, the Eisenhower golf faces a real test at the heavily sand-trapped Newport Country Club. The course is located just 15 minutes by boat from the naval base. There is plenty of fine fishing in the area.

It was her 100th birthday.

Her secret of long life: "stay active."

Loy Henderson Reports Today On His Findings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Loy Henderson, Mideast trouble shooter, returns today to report to Secretary of State Dulles on possible measures to counter Syria's pro-Soviet ties.

Advance reports said Henderson had encountered new pressures for the United States to become a full member of the anti-Communist Baghdad Pact because of the Syrian situation.

These reports from diplomatic sources also said officials of Jordan and Lebanon had told Henderson they would like some fresh demonstration of United States support for them.

Henderson went to the Middle East about two weeks ago. In Turkey he conferred with government officials and leaders of Iraq and Jordan who were visiting in that country at the time. He then spent a few days in Lebanon before beginning his return journey.

Turkey and Iraq are members of the Baghdad Pact, which also includes Britain, Pakistan and Iran. The United States has always resisted pressures to become a full member of the alliance, although it is a member of the pact committees on military planning, economic problems and anti-subversion measures.

Turkish and Iraqi leaders are reported to have told Henderson that an American decision to join the organization—which would require Senate ratification of the treaty—would provide strong evidence of United States determination to participate fully in the defense of the area.

Lebanon and Jordan, also neighbors of Syria, are reported to be worried about the possibility of subversive actions against them based in Syria and directed by Soviet authorities bent on expanding their influence in the region.

So far State Department officials have talked chiefly about relying on other Middle Eastern countries to keep the pro-Soviet swing in Syria from going any further, and eventually to moderate Syria's position.

From Drawings To Flight Line In 8 Months For Jet Aircraft

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Eight months ago Lockheed Aircraft Co. directors nodded approvingly at some preliminary drawings of a small jet transport. Today the plane, named JetStar, tests its shiny wings in flight.

No one is claiming any records for turning out an airplane in eight months from drawing board to flight line, but it is a performance of note in the fiercely competitive aircraft industry.

Normally it takes anywhere from two to three years to transform a sketch of a new aircraft design into a modern airplane.

Clarence L. Kelly Johnson, Lockheed's vice president for engineering and research, heads the company's 350-man Special Projects Department—and the more special the project the better this 47-year-old engineering whiz likes it.

Late in World War II Special Projects turned out the prototype of the F80 Shooting Star in just 143 days. But the much larger JetStar, a swept-wing, 500-m.p.h., 10-passenger plane, may well be the group's most remarkable achievement.

The Air Force had indicated an interest in a small, swift jet transport that could be used for top-priority military transportation. Lockheed, first company in a position to offer one, also plans to offer the JetStar to private firms as a transport for company executives.

The price? From $500,000 to $700,000, depending on the number of orders.

Johnson was so sure of his crew's ability to put the plane together quickly that the day after that directors meeting eight months ago he posted a sign in the Special Projects area. It read: "First flight, 9 a.m., Sept. 4, 1957. 241 days left."

A worker from another department wandered into the hangar one day, expecting to see tireless crews swarming like ants over the JetStar. He found a group of silent men sitting on the floor munching sandwiches.

"Hey, what goes on?" he asked. "Here I come in at 10:30 in the morning and you're already eating lunch. What gives?"

"This," one man answered wearily, "is yesterday's lunch."

LONDON (AP)—Sleek, Soviet TU104 jet airliner landed at London Airport today on the first leg of its historic flight to the United States.

After a refueling stop it was to take off for Keflavik, Iceland; Gander, Nfld.; and McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey—making it the first Russian plane to land in the United States in 20 years and the first Soviet civilian plane ever to fly to America.

The flight from Moscow to McGuire covers 5,570 miles and was expected to take about 18 hours total flying time.

The last Russian aircraft to visit the United States flew over the North Pole, making a 6,200-mile flight in 62 hours.

Aboard the airliner were 19 passengers, most of them translators and minor officials of the Soviet delegation to the U.N. General Assembly, and 12 crewmen. The McGuire base is about 60 miles from the site of U.N. headquarters in New York City.

The 1,610-mile flight from Moscow to London was made in 3 hours 45 minutes. Keflavik is 1,190 miles farther along. Gander is another 1,585 miles and McGuire another 1,185.

The TU104 was expected at the New Jersey air base early tonight.

Departure of the big twinjet from Moscow's Vnukovo Airport was delayed nearly three hours because of bad weather over London.

Sleek Soviet Jet Airliner Is On Its Way To America

At Gander, an American pilot and radio operator will be put aboard to guide the liner after it enters American air space. The 12 crewmen boarding the plane in Moscow included three British Royal Air Force officers. It was their job to help navigate to London and Newfoundland.

Top members of the delegation are tentatively scheduled to leave Moscow aboard a second TU104 Sept. 14.

The Soviet government raised a last-minute objection to landing at McGuire yesterday, but the United States refused to change the flight plan.

Russian Embassy officials in Washington complained that McGuire was 60 miles from New York, the destination of the passengers, and asked permission to land at Idlewild Airport, the usual arrival point for aircraft from overseas. Idlewild is 10 miles on the other side of U.N. headquarters.

The State Department did say the second jet liner could land at Idlewild if it passed a "noise level" test showing the craft's engines did not create an undue disturbance.

Jet airliners normally are barred from using nearly all American commercial airfields, officially because of the noise the jet engines make and the need for extra long runways.

The last Russian plane to land in the United States was a military aircraft that flew from Moscow to San Jacinto, Calif., in 1937.

Just before the TU104 reached London today, Moscow radio boasted that the Soviet Union has still more advanced passenger aircraft which will appear soon on the world's air routes. It said one will be able to fly from Moscow to New York nonstop but gave no additional details.

SHP Honored For Traffic Safety Work

CHARLOTTE—The North Carolina State Highway Patrol has been selected by the Aistate Safety Crusade as the recipient of a Certificate of Commendation honoring its outstanding participation in community traffic safety and accident prevention activities.

Crusade regional director Robert D. Eger said the coveted award will be presented in the office of Governor Hodges on September 12 in recognition of leadership in promoting safety on the highways in North Carolina.

"Activities of the North Carolina State Highway Patrol typify the best efforts of an organization that realizes how much it can do to help solve our serious traffic problem," Eger said. "Everyone can help reduce accidents, save lives and prevent injuries."

The Aistate Safety Crusade is a nationwide traffic safety campaign conducted in the interests of safer driving.

Colorful Thief Easy To Catch

FAIRMONT, Minn. (AP)—The stain of his crime was plain to see on a certain Fairmont teenager. Arnold Jahn, plagued by thefts of gasoline from a tank in his backyard, rigged up a homemade thief catcher. He fixed a small charge of explosive so when the hose was lifted from the tank it would go off, spraying the culprit with hard-to-remove dye.

It worked, and not long afterward the sheriff's office arrested a teenage boy—brightly colored—for gasoline theft.

Late Afternoon And Night Classes Slated At ECC

East Carolina College has scheduled for the fall quarter 39 courses to be taught in the late afternoon, at night, or on Saturday morning, Vice President Leo W. Jenkins has announced.

This program, he explained, provides for those who work or who for other reasons are unable to attend classes during the day the opportunity of beginning or continuing their college training. Since specially scheduled classes are taught each quarter at East Carolina, he said, the participating student will be able to continue his work until requirements for a degree are completed.

The 39 courses offered this fall include work on all levels of instruction, from classes for freshmen to those for graduate students. Twelve departments of instruction are participating in the program. Courses have been planned to meet the educational needs of students of widely varied needs, interests, and backgrounds.

Areas of instruction include art, business, education, English, geography, health, and physical education, home economics, industrial arts, mathematics, psychology, science, and history.

Those who wish to enroll in any of the late afternoon, night, or Saturday classes may register Thursday, September 5, in the Wright Building or on the date of the first meeting of the class, according to college Registrar Orval L. Phillips. The registrar's office will also be open each day except Saturday and Sunday September 6-19 from 7:30 to 8 p.m.

Further information on the program may be obtained from Dr. Phillips or Dr. Jenkins at the college.

Slow Driver Has To Pay Up, Too

NEW HARTFORD, N.Y. (AP)—Arthur Markle, 66, said the reason he was driving between 5 and 10 miles an hour on Route 5, a main state highway, was because he had heard that speed causes most accidents.

A state trooper said a long line of Labor Day traffic was following him.

The peace justice said slow driving could cause accidents too and fined Markle, of nearby Frankfort, $10.

Plans Are Drawn For New College

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—An Atlanta architectural firm has been appointed to draw up plans for the new Methodist college to be erected near here, it was announced today.

Dr. R. L. Pittman, chairman of the college building committee, said the firm of Stevens and Wilkinson was selected after the committee had interviewed "a great number of outstanding buildings."

Dr. Pittman said the committee felt Stevens and Wilkinson "are best equipped to handle the assignment according to our special needs."

One Studio's Production Policy Helping Industry

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The biggest shot in the arm for the ailing film industry has been 20th Century-Fox's full production policy. At a time when other studios have made no pictures in months (RKO, Republic and others are limping along with scant filming, the Fox lot has been jumping. I caught up with production boss Buddy Adler to see how he manages to battle the trend.

The white-haired, handsome executive was visiting one of the sets on his bustling lot. A graduate of magazines and movie shorts, he is the successful producer ("From Here to Eternity") who succeeded Darryl Zanuck as headman.

The secret, he indicated, is youthful enthusiasm.

"You've got to have excitement for this business to make good pictures," he said. "The ones who are doing important things are mainly the newcomers. They're discovering new things and trying new approaches. Many of the veterans who have made their mint are tired and slowing down."

For that reason, he said, he's bringing newcomers into the production end. Significantly, most of them are writers.

"I have great faith in writers," said Adler, who was one himself. "They are the really indispensable creators in this business. Even the greatest of directors can't make a great picture unless he has a great script."

Adler reported that he has delivered 30 pictures as this year's product and is now working on films for 1958. The success of his program is indicated by an 80 per cent jump in receipts.

In the Adler future book are some hot properties, including at least two blockbusters. One is "Peyton Place," which will run three hours and may be released as a roadshow. The other is the third of the studio's Rodgers and Hammerstein musicals, "South Pacific."

The executive feels that the rest of the film industry is awakening and starting to follow Fox's example. "I find the others are beginning to outbid me for story properties," he said.

Spahn Hurls 41st Shutout Of Career; Yankees Win

Braves Hurler Becomes Loop's All-Time Best

By ED WILKS The Associated Press Wonderful Warren Spahn, now the National League's all-time southpaw shutout king, has the edge for the Pitcher of the Year award today while right-hander Jack Sanford, Philadelphia's late-comer, likely will have to be satisfied with the league's rookie citation.

Spahn, the 36-year-old master of Milwaukee's first-place Braves, moved ahead of Sanford and left-hander Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox and gained his 41st career shutout yesterday in an 8-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

It was Spahn's 18th victory, matching Pierce for the major league lead, and kept the easy-running Braves 8 1/2 games ahead of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals, who clobbered Cincinnati 14-4.

Sanford, a 28-year-old rookie, missed a big bid to keep pace in victories when he was lifted for an eighth-inning pinchhitter as the Phils took a 12-inning, 3-2 victory over Brooklyn.

In the American League, New York's "struggling" Yankees regained a 5 1/2-game lead with a 2-0 victory at Baltimore while Detroit edged the second-place White Sox 3-2 in 12 innings. Those were the only AL games scheduled.

The New York Giants defeated Pittsburgh 6-5 in 12 in the other NL game.

Spahn got past the pesky seventh-place Cubs with a six-hitter, striking out five and walking only one. Southpaw Dick Littlefield matched Spahn's whitewash job for six frames, then dropped his third in a five-run seventh with three of the scores unearned. Hank Aaron then made it a romp with his 39th homer, good for three runs, in the eighth.

The NL record for career shutouts was set at 90 by Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Sanford was tagged for both Brooklyn runs and the three meager hits the Dodgers managed two by Gil Hodges, Dick Farrell and Bob Miller, who pitched the 12th, no-hit the Brooks over the last five with Farrell winning his seventh.

The Phils had only three hits for eight, but Harry Anderson then junked Don Drysdale's bid for a second consecutive shutout with a two-run, two-out homer in the ninth that tied it. Ex-Dodger Chico Fernandez tripled and Willie Jones batted for Farrell, hit a long fly for the clincher.

It was a base-running boner that saved it for the Phils as Charlie Neal missed third and was tagged out after apparently scoring on his RBI double in the seventh that made it 2-0.

The Cardinals rapped loser Joe Nuxhall and five relievers for 16 hits. They scored eight, two on Del Ennis' 18th homer, in the first two frames. Wilmer Mizell, who doubled home three runs, was tagged for solo home runs by Pete Whisenand and Smokey Burgess, but hung on with a 10-hitter.

Bill Skowron's bat won for the Yankees. He had two of their three hits, one his 17th home run, over the first seven against loser Billy O'Dell, then added an RBI single in the ninth off Billy Loes. Tom Sturdivant won his 13th, but needed ninth-inning relief from Sal Mazie, who retired the side in his Yankee debut.

Mickey Mantle was 0-for-4, losing three points for a .370 average in his bat race with Ted Williams. The Boston thumper, hitting .376, will miss the two-game series opener at Yankee Stadium tonight because of a virus infection.

Al Kaline thumped the White Sox, swatting his 21st home run to lead off the 11th. He also singled home a run in the first off Bob "No-Hit" Keegan. Gerry Staley lost in relief for a 5-1 record. Billy Hoelt won his seventh with an eight-hitter, giving up homers to Larry Doby and Walt Droya. Home runs by Willie Mays, Danny O'Connell and Valmy Thomas brought the Giants a 5-all tie, then Ray Jablonski lofted a sacrifice fly after two walks and an error had loaded the bases.

Stengel Says Mantle Could Make Or Break Yankees

BALTIMORE (AP) — Manager Casey Stengel's biggest worry about whether the New York Yankees can hold their 5 1/2-game lead in the American League seems to be injuries to his team.

"If that fella is all right, well, if he isn't we're in a bad plight. The 'fella' he pointed to in the batting practice cage was Mickey Mantle.

Mantle isn't "all right" and it's showing in the Yankee performance. The great hitting outfielder has been suffering with aching shins since a series in Kansas City Aug. 20-22. The Yankees have lost seven of their last 13 games although giving no ground to the Chicago White Sox.

Stengel has no fear of the Sox head to head. Even with Mantle ailing, the Yanks beat them three straight games about a week ago.

"They beat me one series by pitting the ball around the infield," he said. "They have nothing much except speed. It seems every time you look up they have a man going from first to third. They beat us one game this season by just hitting the ball in front of the plate."

Stengel figures he has some speed too. "If I can play Tony Kubek in left, Mantle in center and Hank Bauer in right, we're pretty fast too, aren't we?"

Bauer is another of the injured Yankee players who has Stengel frowning. He has a fractured thumb and may be out for another week.

But the big worry is Mantle. The switch-hitting ace still is hobbling like an old man with arthritis.

His batting average dropped seven points, from .377 to .370, in the three game series with the Baltimore Orioles ending yesterday. He got one hit in 15 times at bat.

Equally important to the Yankee scheme is Mantle's inability to show any speed covering the outfield. Fly balls which he normally would catch with ease are dropping in for hits simply because he can't reach them. One such went for a double over his head against the Orioles.

Marciano To Present Awards At Salisbury

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Retired heavyweight boxing champion Rocky Marciano will present trophies to North Carolina's outstanding sportswriters and sportscasters here Nov. 25.

Pete DiMizio, who annually entertains the state's sportswriters and sportscasters at a banquet, announced yesterday that Marciano had accepted an invitation to participate.

DiMizio expected about 100 sports reporters to attend the 5th annual banquet. The state's outstanding sportscaster and sportswriter selected by a poll within the profession, will receive the Kirby Memorial Awards.

Marciano retired from boxing last year after holding the heavyweight title since 1952. He makes his home in Miami, Fla.

Flock Has Only Bitter Words For Profession ACC Footballers Facing "Third Day Aches" Today

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Fonny Flock, who retired from stock car racing after being injured in Monday's Southern 500 at Darlington, yesterday had bitter words for the profession he followed for 15 years.

Flock suffered a broken arm and other injuries in a spectacular three-car crash which claimed the life of driver Bobby Myers of Winston-Salem, N.C. After being released from a Florence hospital, Flock, an Atlanta, Ga., resident, came here to recuperate.

"I'm sick of racing as it is today. It is run by promoters who are out for the almighty dollar and they couldn't care less for the welfare of the drivers," Flock said.

"The Darlington Raceway is no exception. They were hurting for entries this year and would accept almost any car and driver that cared to enter."

Flock blamed amateurs in part for the wreck which killed Myers. "I was gunning down the stretch," he said, "between the second and third turns when I ran up on these two amateurs running almost side by side, but with passing room between them. As I tried to get through they closed and caught my car in the middle. I managed to squeeze through except for my right rear bumper which got tangled with the left front bumper of the car on my right."

"The tangle threw my car into a backward spin and I continued down the track backwards at 110 m.p.h. until I hit the concrete wall. It was here, while facing the oncoming traffic, that Myers hit my front end, hurtled into the air and was hit simultaneously from the rear by Paul Goldsmith of St. Claire Shores, Mich., who also suffered injuries. The blow to Goldsmith sent Myers' car end over end."

While in Florence hospital Flock announced his retirement from racing. He said he broke a promise to his wife by competing in the Southern 500. He told her he would not race, but then filled in for Herb Thomas for a few laps.

"Fellows are just fools to drive these days," Flock said.

Lopez Still Says Sox San Take 1st

DETROIT (AP) — Al Lopez, who should be accustomed by now to finishing second to the New York that his Chicago White Sox still can catch the league leaders — "with a little luck."

Lopez finished second to the Yankees five times in his six years as manager of the Cleveland Indians, and barring a miracle of sorts, he will do it again in his first year at the White Sox helm.

"We're not dead yet," he said yesterday after his club lost another game to the Detroit Tigers. "We're only five games behind in the loss column and we have 22 games to play. So we're still in there."

The White Sox dropped two out of three to the Tigers and remained 5 1/2 games behind the Yankees. The Sox carried a 2-1 lead into the bottom of the ninth inning yesterday before pinch hitter Ray Boone batted in the tying run with a single. Al Kaline homered to win it in the 11th, 3-2.

Atlantic Coast Conference football players took to the practice fields today for what probably will be, collectively, the toughest session of the season.

The players, undergoing two-day drills, today faced the "third day aches," muscular soreness of such peculiar intensity that it is unequalled on any other day of the season.

Coaches pushed hard in conditioning the squads for opening dates, just 15 days away for seven of the eight ACC teams. The eighth, Wake Forest, gets one extra week of practice before its Sept. 28 opening game at Florida.

Four ACC teams start the season off with conference games, Duke at South Carolina and North Carolina State at North Carolina, Sept. 21. Clemson, Maryland and Virginia venture against outside competition that date.

Injuries already have struck two camps, Maryland and defending conference champion Clemson. Maryland lost first string guard Ron Athey for a week or 10 days due to a sprained right knee and reserve guard Bob Suchy also sprained a knee and will be lost for a time. Clemson tackle Donnie Meador re-injured his neck, first hurt in a swimming accident last May.

South Carolina's Gamecocks yesterday went through what Coach Warren Giese called "the roughest scrimmage since I've been here." Giese declined to single out any player for comment as he stressed team spirit in building for the opening tilt against Duke, dubbed in pre-season as one of the toughest teams in the nation.

Duke's Blue Devils, meanwhile, put in a rugged session themselves with a stress on heavy work. Coach Bill Murray broke up the contact with passing and punting drills.

Coach Earle Edwards likewise stressed passing and punting, sure wind builders, at North Carolina State during a morning workout and last night concentrated on fundamentals.

At North Carolina, Coach Jim Tatum, juggled his backs in a search for the combination he wants.

The ACC's 1956 Coach-of-the-Year, Paul Amen, roused his squad early for a 6:30 a.m. drill, then charged them back onto the practice field at 4 p.m. for a long pass defense session and contact work. The morning drill emphasized fundamentals.

Virginia players went through their first offensive scrimmage yesterday. Coach Ben Martin also devoted time to nearly every phase of the game and introduced several new players into the repertoire.

Williams, who celebrated his 39th birthday last Friday, was forced out of the starting lineup the next night in Baltimore. He leads New York's Mickey Mantle by six points — 376 to 370 — in their battle for the American League batting title.

Hey, The Shortstop Lost An Arm

A combination of camera angle and action on the play makes it appear that St. Louis shortstop Dick Schofield has lost his left arm when upset by sliding Johnny Temple in 7th inning of Cards-Cincinnati nightcap. Schofield, his glove seeming to dangle in mid-air and his left leg appearing off at the knee, got the ball away but the throw was too late to double Bob Thurman at first. The play started when Thurman grounded to Don Blasingame at second. Reds won both the games played in Cincinnati. (AP Wirephoto).

USA Will Send Oldest In History To Tourney

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States will send the oldest Davis Cup team in its history to Australia this year in a try to recapture the famed tennis trophy.

The squad will consist of Gardner Mulloy, 43, of Miami; Vic Seixas, 34, of Philadelphia; Budge Patty, 33, of Paris and Los Angeles, and the "baby" of the team, Ham Richardson, 24, of Westfield, N.J. — if he's willing to leave his wife at home.

The Davis Cup selection committee meets Friday to mull over the problem, but its decision is expected to be made by Monday.

Neither Renville McManis, president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn., nor Bill Talbert, captain of the U.S. team, would tip their hand, but it's pretty well known around the West Side Tennis Club that the official thought is taking.

U.S. tennis brass believes, with Lew Hadad and Ken Rosewall no longer available to the Aussies, that this may be the year to regain the famed international bowl.

So there will be no experimenting with youngsters. America will send its oldest and wisest heads down under on the theory that they might outmaneuver Australia's young kids, who will be making their first Davis Cup appearance.

Seixas, veteran of five Davis Cup challenge rounds, is one of the sport's great battles. Had recently said, "Of all the players I've met, I consider Seixas the most dangerous—he never quits."

New Althea Seeks Title This Year

By ED CORRIGAN FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—There is a new Althea Gibson seeking the national tennis championship this year.

The 30-year-old Miss Gibson first came to Forest Hills in 1950. The old Althea Gibson was an unknown Negro girl from New York's teeming Harlem. She caused a ripple by almost beating Louise Brough.

She came each year only to be frustrated. Last year she made it to the final only to be beaten by Shirley Fry. She was jumpy that day on the center court and her game showed it.

Now, as Wimbledon champion, she fears no one in her quest to join the select circle of Wimbledon-U.S. champions. Only Helen Wills, Alice Marble, Maureen Connolly, Pauline Betz and Miss Fry are members of the exclusive club.

"I don't fear any player in the tournament," she said today. "Why be afraid of anyone? After all, it's only a game."

Miss Gibson is in the quarter-final along with Mrs. Mary Hawton of England, Mrs. Dorothy Knode of Forest Hills, Lois Felix of Meriden, Mass., and Miss Brough.

In yesterday's play Miss Gibson eliminated Britain's Sheila Armstrong 6-2, 6-1; Mrs. Hawton turned back Mrs. Pat Todd, La Jolla, Calif., 6-4, 6-1; Mrs. Knode whipped Ann Shilcock of Britain 6-2, 6-1; Miss Felix upset Christine Truman of Britain 6-2, 6-1; and Miss Brough defeated Lorna Raymond, Covina, Calif., 6-0, 7-5.

In the men's division, Ashley Cooper of Australia, Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Cliff Mayne of Fort Monmouth, N.J., jumped the pack and gained the quarter-finals. Cooper turned back Tony Vincent, New York, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2; Patty crushed Don Fontana of Canada 6-4, 6-2, 9-7; and Mayne prevailed over Don Thompson, New York, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Not At Home, When Jet Plane Smashed In

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Almost any other Tuesday at 5 p. m., the Charles Schneiders and Raymond Meyers would have been at home.

Yesterday a Navy jet fighter smashed into their homes at that hour in suburban Berkeley, leaving them in charred ruins.

The pilot, Lt. John R. Renshaw, Centerville, Md., appeared to be shooting for an open space a block west of the Meyer home.

Instead his burning plane hit what may have been the only two unoccupied homes in the area. Renshaw was killed.

Schneider, operator of a home improvement firm, said his wife would have been getting supper almost any other Tuesday. Their children, Linda, 8, Charles, 5, and Richard, 3 1/2 months, would be at home.

But it was the first day of school and his wife had picked out the children's best clothes. She told her husband at his office: "I think when the kids come home, they'll be all dressed up so I think we'll go over to mother's. You can pick us up there."

They were at the home of Mrs. Schneider's mother Mrs. Lorena Stevens, in suburban Jennings when the plane ripped through the Meyer home and into their six-room frame house, leaving only a few upright timbers and four drawers of untouched clothing in a scorched dresser. Schneider was still at his office.

Almost any other Tuesday, Raymond Meyer would be in the shower bathing after a day on a construction job.

But yesterday he was kept 10 minutes overtime. He made up a few minutes en route to pick up his wife at work. He made up a few more minutes on the home stretch.

They were just two blocks away when the plane hit.

Harry Fields, a neighbor, said the Meyers' house "just disappeared."

"By the time I could get to the door, which was four or five seconds, the second house was in flames," he said.

The plane apparently developed trouble immediately after takeoff from Lambert-St. Louis Airport a mile from Berkeley, and was on fire before the crash.

Lt. Renshaw, stationed at the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent River, Md., had made the trip here to pick up some test equipment.

Angry Denials Of Magazine Tales

By JACK LEFLER

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Glamorous actress Maureen O'Hara and sultry singer Dorothy Dandridge have declared on the witness stand that Confidential magazine stories involving them in theater and woodland love-making episodes were untrue.

The two stars put glitter into the criminal libel trial of the magazine yesterday when, their eyes flashing angrily, they snapped their denials while testifying for the prosecution.

They were the first, and appear the last, celebrities to appear in the trial of Confidential and Whisper magazines and their Hollywood agents Fred and Marjorie Meade. The prosecution expects to complete its rebuttal testimony today.

Miss O'Hara testified that the story entitled "When Maureen O'Hara Cuddled in Row 35" was completely false.

Outside the courtroom she told newsmen that she has not had an offer of work since the article appeared and that she feels the story is to blame. She has sued Confidential for five million dollars.

The red-haired Miss O'Hara came to court attired in a blue and white striped dress and white stitched hat. While on the witness stand she told the court that she was in Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood only twice during 1953 and 1954, both times to attend premieres with her brothers.

Those years include the disputed periods in which, defense witnesses have testified, Miss O'Hara was seen in a rear row of the theater, embracing passionately with a Latin man.

Miss Dandridge, Negro singer and actress, said a story entitled "What Dorothy Dandridge Did in the Woods" was "absolutely untrue." She testified she did not walk or make love in the woods with white band leader Daniel Terry while playing an engagement at Lake Tahoe, on the California-Nevada border, seven years ago.

Trim Miss Dandridge wore a beige suit and white shoes and gloves with a pearl choker and pearl earrings.

The time of Miss O'Hara's supposed torrid lovemaking in the theater had been set as November 1953 by a former Grauman's employee, James Craig. He said he supplied the information for the Confidential story. Another defense witness, Michael Casey, placed the incident in February 1954.

Miss O'Hara testified that she was in Europe making a picture

Five Garages In Town 'Missing'

MEDIA, Pa. (AP)—Five garages are missing in nearby Concordville today and state police blame it on an indignant interior decorator, a happy-go-lucky bulldozer driver and a few beers.

The garages used to be behind the home of Donald Baeshore, 46, the decorator. He thought they were an eyesore.

State Police Pvt. Earl Glasser said Baeshore was talking about them over some beers in a bar two weeks ago with a bulldozer operator, Charles Bennett.

Glasser said Bennett offered to get rid of them.

The garages were pushed into a nearby ravine and all but buried beneath five tons of dirt. The biggest clue to their disappearance, Glasser said, was the bulldozer tracks.

The tracks led to Bennett, he said, and Bennett led to Baeshore. Glasser led both men to Justice of the Peace A. Randall Mathews, who held them in $1,000 bail each for a further hearing on malicious mischief charges.

The garages were owned by Concord Foods, Inc., which took a dim view of the whole thing.

Expect Millions In Future Leases

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—A state official predicts Pennsylvania may benefit by millions of dollars when it leases the first offshore oil and gas drilling rights along Lake Erie later this month.

"We have no hope of this being any way near as big as the offshore operations now under way in the Gulf of Mexico and off the coast of California," said Robert C. Barwick, "but it could well mean millions of dollars for Pennsylvania just the same."

The state has fixed Sept. 24 to receive bids for leasing of two sections off Lake Erie, one 19,300 acres and the other 16,500 acres. Leases will be awarded the highest bidders with each operator required to pay the state royalties of an eighth of the field price of oil or gas that is recovered.

Pennsylvania owns about 735 square miles of land under Lake Erie and will be the first state to lease drilling rights although drilling is being done from the Canadian shore.

New Wrinkle In Biting Insect

TALOGA, Okla. (AP)—Carlos Squires thought he got a wrinkle in his sock when he hurriedly put on his boot.

The wrinkle didn't work out so he pulled off his boot—and a big centipede unwrapped itself from around his big toe. It bit Squires and he had to spend two days in the hospital.

Station Break After 4 Years

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—After granting a woman a divorce recently, Superior Judge Ralph K. Pierson asked her informally why she was willing to let her husband have their TV set. Her answer: "Well, I've been sitting watching it for four years now while he's been out playing around. So I guess it's his turn."

Early Start For Driving A Car

WARREN, Ohio. (AP)—State Patrolmen were amazed recently when they stopped a car on Ohio 5.

The driver was eight-year old Terry Evans. Terry's stepfather, John R. Jones, of Newton Falls, told patrolmen he didn't know it was against the law.

Jones was cited for permitting an unlicensed minor to operate a motor vehicle.

CHAPTER 9

It stood close to the road. A low-roofed cottage of white-washed stone with outbuildings of rugged appearance. A sign on the gate, unevenly lettered by an amateur hand, proclaimed:

Wm. MANSON

As Deborah pushed open the gate a buxom, middle-aged woman with flour on her muscular bare forearms and an apron round her middle came to the open door and looked out with an authoritative eye.

"Annie?" she repeated, when Deborah inquired for the girl. "And what wile ye wantin' w' her?"

"I understand she worked for the Garvins."

"Aye, that she did," said the woman, pursing her lips. "And got her head filled w' nonsense. Lipsick an' gaddin' about an' nae respect for anybody."

"Oh, Mother," said a voice from within the cottage.

The fresh face of a girl in the late teens looked over the woman's brawny shoulder.

"Dinna 'Oh Mither' me," said the woman. "I ken whit I'm takin' about. It's bad enow, bringin' up lassies these days, without a red-haired hussy pittin' waur ideas in their heads."

Grudgingly, she edged her bulk to let her daughter pass. Mistaking Deborah's elegance and self-possession, and her 'English' accent, she remained within earshot while her daughter conversed with the stranger.

"I shan't keep you; but there's something I'd like to ask."

"Yes, miss?"

"I'm afraid it's about the murder."

"Oh," the girl looked disappointed. She had hoped this attractive stranger would offer a position. "That's all anyone talks about."

"I expect it gets you down. Now, about the errand your mistress sent you on — the one that kept you away all day."

"Oh, that? That was only an excuse to get me out of the way, said Annie, Manson frankly. "Every so often she'd send me to Dumfries for something I could have got as well at Garnock. When I came back it would be easy seen that she'd had a visitor while I was gone. One she didn't want me to know about."

"A man?"

"Yes, miss."

"Always the same man?"

"I don't think so. I couldn't say for sure. On those occasions I never saw the caller. Except once, when I got a lift instead of coming by bus, and was back early. And then I only saw a gentleman driving off in his car."

"What did he look like?"

"I've no idea, miss. I was a good way off. I could just make out that it was a man. The car was one of those sports models, like the master's Jaguar."

"Was it usual for your mistress to be in pajamas at one in the afternoon?"

"Not as a rule, miss. Usually she was dressed by noon and off to Garnock or Dumfries for lunch."

"I want to get one point quite clear," said Deborah. "Annie, you're certain Mrs. Garvin was expecting a caller?"

"Oh, yes, miss. I'd come to know the drill, as the saying goes."

After thanking the girl and her mother, Deborah walked back to her car. It was long after lunch-time when she returned to Birch Drive.

There was an apology on the tip of her tongue but her cousin would not listen.

"Joyce," said Deborah gently. "An indignant sniff and a reproving glance was the only answer. 'I'm sorry,' said Deborah. 'You're not sorry a bit,' said Joyce. 'I was never so humiliated. How could you make such an exhibition of yourself? In an hour it was all over Garnock that you drove slap into a crowd, knocking down half a dozen people, to rescue Andrew Garvin.'

"I didn't knock down anyone."

"No, you didn't. More by good luck than judgment. Oh, Deborah, how could you?"

"I had to. I couldn't help it."

"Before you came I boasted about you to all my friends. My cousin, the glamorous actress. Now what will they think?"

"Probably that I did it for publicity."

"Don't joke. It isn't funny. Everyone was dying to meet you. The Amateur Dramatic Society wanted you to direct their next play. I haven't had time to tell you of all the invitations to lunch and tea."

"And now I've blotted my copybook. Shall I pack my things and leave in disgrace?"

"Darling," said Joyce reproachfully, "you know I'm on your side. I'm all for you. Only . . . well, you do make it difficult. And then, there's the MacInches. They're bound to have heard."

"And just who are the MacInches? You speak the name almost with awe. Ought I to make a low bow?"

"They're the only 'Country' people we know. Hector is a Q. C. and very wealthy. Judith, his wife, is a dear. They live in Edinburgh but spend as much time as possible at their country house near Garnock. They're giving a dinner party for you tomorrow night. You'll get a fabulous meal — and a chance to wear your prettiest evening dress."

"Sounds inviting. I'll be on my best behavior. . . . Oh! I meant to tell you when I came in — I've talked to the girl who used to be the Garvins' maid."

"I don't want to hear about it," said Joyce, stiffening again.

"On the day she was killed, Erica Garvin expected a male caller. Doesn't that suggest a few possibilities? A lover, tired of her, perhaps, who couldn't be rid of her except by —"

"I tell you, I'm not interested."

"Oh, very well." Rising, Deborah said, "I think I'll put the car away. It's time I learned where it goes. Where did Ewan put it last night?"

"In the old coachhouse. You'll see it at the end of the garden. There's loads of room."

As she went out by the front door, Deborah heard a metallic clicking somewhere to the rear of the place. Steering her car slowly round the curving, moss-grown drive, she saw a man perched on a ladder, pruning a tall hedge with a pair of clippers. The wide doors of the disused coachhouse stood open and a tattered jacket dangled from a doorknob. The neck of a whisky bottle protruded from a torn pocket. . . .

Reds Plan Take Over Schools

TRIVANDRUM, India (AP)—State-aided private schools in Kerala, which have helped make the state one of India's most literate, face the threat of total control by a local Communist government. The private educators have threatened to close down.

Legislation passed yesterday by the Communist-dominated Legislature empowers the state government to take over any of these schools which it considers mis-managed.

The bill, adopted without a recorded vote, also calls for a government panel of teachers from which all school managers must select instructors.

Education Minister Joseph Mundassery, long active in the Communist party, said the bill will become a model for other Indian states. He said the Red state government "intends eventually to take over all primary schools."

The Communist education bill aroused wide opposition. The Roman Catholic Church, which operates many schools in the state, was joined by the Congress party and the Moslem League. The bill was denounced at a rally attended by about 40,000 persons a week ago.

Artificial Rice Made From Corn

MANILA (AP)—A machine to turn corn into artificial rice arrived in Manila today. Government officials hope its output will be acceptable when real rice—a staple of the native diet—is short.

The machine was invented by Robert I. Kauffman, a 37-year-old attorney from Malden, Mass. Government officials said it can be moved about easily on a trailer and can process enough corn to feed 25,000 people a day at a cost of about 5 cents a person.

Over A Dozen Years Later Soviet Honors War Hero

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
AP Foreign News Analyst

It took more than a dozen years for a Soviet war hero, Lt. Mikhail Devyatayev, to get recognition from the ungrateful Soviet government for his bravery.

Finally, he has been decorated with the Order of Lenin. His pictures have been published in the papers. The brand of cowardice Joseph Stalin used for all Soviet soldiers who fell prisoner of the Germans has—at last—been removed from him.

Devyatayev commanded a trio of fighter planes. He was sent on a mission over the German lines. In an effort to save the life of his squadron commander, under heavy attack, Devyatayev was wounded and shot down. He landed safely—but semiconscious. The next day he awoke in a German

Burglaries, Yes But No Churches

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP)—Police say Thomas Counts, 48, has admitted burglarizing 22 firms in the past two years, but sturdily denies robbing any churches.

Police Chief Harold Hall said Counts, spotted while trying to enter a doctor's office, was charged with burglary and breaking and entering.

"Only a low-down man would break into a church," said Counts.

Wife-Disposal Is Tax Deductible

CINCINNATI (AP)—The cost of getting rid of your wife can be tax deductible, the U.S. Sixth District Court of Appeals has ruled.

The Court said F.C. Bowers of Battle Creek, Mich., was entitled to write off $45,000 in lawyers fees acquired during his recent divorce litigation because the money was spent "for the protection and conservation of Bowers' property."

People who can easily pay any price say:

"Pay more... what for? Ford's the buy!"

Why? Because this 1957 Ford gives you the advanced features, the solid ride, the effortless handling that you once expected to find only in expensive cars. And when it comes to looks, where in all the world can you find fresher styling than in the sculptured-in-steel lines of this new Ford?

Or consider Ford's famous V-8 engine. No other manufacturer in the industry today electronically balances every V-8 engine, while operating under its own power, the way that Ford does. This means you get a smoother-running engine—the finest V-8 in Ford's 25 years of V-8 leadership.

Ford's superiority is evident in many places. In the vital rear axle, the pinion gear that turns the rear wheels is straddle-mounted . . . supported between two anti-friction bearings instead of being "overhung" from a single bearing. This makes operation quieter, smoother and longer-lasting. It's a feature that Ford shares with only one other car maker—Rolls Royce.

These are only a few of the important hidden values that are yours in the new kind of Ford. But they indicate why so many people who can pay almost any price for a car—people who have driven expensive cars for years—are buying Ford today. Action Test this great performing car at your Ford Dealer's just once and you too, will ask, "Pay more . . . what for?"

First Day In School

New pupil. A mother takes her little girl to school for the first time. They're arriving at the Hastings on Hudson, N.Y., elementary school where the tiny miss will start school life as kindergartner.

"What's wrong here? These crayons keep falling down all the time."

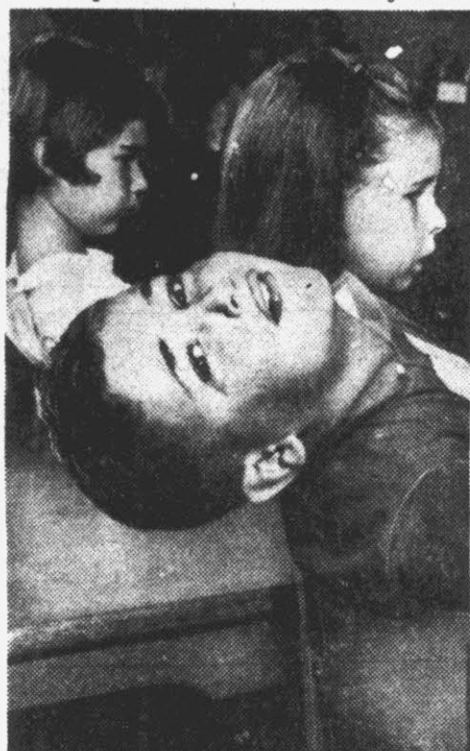

Over 4 million children, ages 5 to 6, will enter a schoolroom for the first time this fall.

These youngsters, used to so much unbridled fun and play at home, will find the transition from home to school a strange and bewildering experience. Some will find it frightening. Others will find it exciting, and a lot of fun. The first few hours will be really tough on the teacher who will have to show a heap of patience in getting the tots straightened out for the many school days ahead.

Entering a classroom for the first time are these kindergartners at the Hastings on Hudson, N.Y., elementary school. Their teacher is Miss Carolyn Schmidt, who has taught school, always a kindergarten class, for 20 years. Their first hours in school are pictured here.

The Anxious One: "Wonder if I'm doing it right?"

The Playful One: "Look, everybody! Can you do this?"

The Busy One: "Like it? 'Aw, this is child's play!'"

"This is fun!" The teacher, Carolyn Schmidt, leads class in animated singing.

"We love to build." The kindergartners have lots of fun playing with blocks of many colors and sizes.

Teacher assembles pupils in going home order. Every child is labeled with name and address so bus driver will know stops he has to make.

Bus driver "Happy" Halloran looks at label pinned on little Stephen Ray. Lad proudly carries drawing he made on first day at school.

Orientation Program For ECC Freshmen Is Begun

Freshmen at East Carolina College, beginning the 28th annual orientation program on the campus this morning, heard at the opening general assembly in the Wright auditorium an inspirational address by college President John D. Messick, who stressed cooperation with others and personal achievement through conscientious work as dependable guides for students.

Registration of all freshmen and new students will take place in the Wright building this afternoon. With the help of faculty advisors from the departments of instruction and the Air Force ROTC, those beginning their work at East Carolina this fall will arrange their schedules of classes for the quarter. Total enrollment of new students will not be determined until after registration closes.

Thursday's program will keep newcomers busy as they are introduced to various aspects of campus life and instructed in the use of college facilities, such as the library, the infirmary, the post office, and the laundry. Representatives of student organizations will describe the aims and values of their activities at an afternoon meeting. Greenville churches will extend a welcome to new students at an assembly at 7:30 p.m. in the Austin Auditorium. The YWCA YMCA will entertain informally at the Y Hut from 9 to 10 p.m.

"You are fortunate in being able to enter college," Dr. Messick told freshmen this morning. He pointed out that precarious economic conditions in this section have prevented many who planned to enroll for college work this fall from beginning their college education.

In North Carolina, he said, only 16 per cent of high school graduates enter college. This state stands next to the bottom in the number of people of college who receive a college education. College graduates make up only 4 per cent of the adult population of the United States, he said. Thus, those who have the opportunity of training in an institution of higher learning are a group with special advantages.

President Messick urged students to cooperate with others both on the campus and in the community.

Col. Edward Maloney, professor of air science at East Carolina, pointed out to men students, this morning the opportunities offered by training in the Air Force ROTC program on the campus. Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director of the department of music led those present in group singing of popular selections.

Power Disrupted As Cable 'Blew'

A main feeder circuit cable blew up at Greenville Utilities plant last night disrupting service on several circuits for approximately four minutes.

Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam said the circuit, carrying 12,470 volts, blew up and flashed over to a substation's steel structure. That knocked the power plant off for a short while.

Bloxam said all circuits were off for four minutes except areas served by a substation located on the U. S. 264 bypass. Areas not affected included the television station, Ayde-Winterville, and Elmhurst. Forest Hills and other divisions in that area of Greenville.

The utilities superintendent said the circuit was picked up on another circuit and service was restored to normal.

"We have spent some money in the past couple years to make the system flexible enough to take care of this type situation," Bloxam said.

The affected cable will now be inspected before the electrical equipment is again placed in operation.

The cable trouble caused considerable noise which was heard some distance from the plant. There was also a bright flash accompanying the short.

Bloxam said there was no way to determine the cause of the trouble.

ROBERSONVILLE TOBACCONISTS HAVE REASON TO SMILE

... yesterday's sales "biggest and best" of season.

ROBERSONVILLE — This Martin County tobacco market had its best sale of the season yesterday, Sales Supervisor Rufus Armstrong reported this morning.

Robersonville sold 397,442 pounds of tobacco for an average of $54.51 per one hundred. The figures represent a high for the 1957 marketing season.

To date, the local market has sold 2,774,956 pounds of tobacco. Armstrong said, "Right now our average is hovering around the $52 mark."

The Sales Supervisor went on to say that the quality of tobacco being sold is "getting better all the time." He said according to figures released Stabilization is getting less than three per cent of the total sales.

Armstrong said, "I haven't seen a penny sales card all season. If I didn't have a sample copy in my pocket I would not know what they look like."

After talking to a number of Robersonville warehouse, Armstrong said few tickets had been turned on the market.

"In my four years here I have never seen the farmer more satisfied with the prices his tobacco is bringing."

Having completed three full weeks the market is slightly behind last year's sales total. The market's average is higher than last year, Armstrong added.

Three Traffic Accidents On City Streets Tuesday

Following a quiet Labor Day weekend, city police were called to investigate three traffic accidents on local streets yesterday afternoon and night.

Officers estimated damages to the five vehicles involved in the three collisions at $800. Two of the accidents involved only one car.

Personal injury was reported in one of the single-vehicle collisions. A man and his daughter suffered painful but not serious injuries when his automobile crashed into a light pole at the intersection of 10th and Oak Sts.

The Rev. Thomas M. Davis and his daughter, Dot, were identified as the two injured early in the afternoon. The Rev. Davis sustained abrasions of the forehead while the 17-year-old girl had a broken tooth and cuts of the lower lip.

Both were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Truck for treatment. They were released a short time later.

At the time of the accident, the teenage girl was being given lessons by her father, according to police. Making a left turn off 10th St., the 1955 automobile struck a light pole.

Damage to the automobile was estimated at $300 by investigating officers. The pole was also slightly damaged, officers said.

The mishap took place at 2:15. No traffic violation was cited by police.

Later in the afternoon police officers investigated a three-vehicle collision at the intersection of Dickinson and Boyd Aves.
