Pitt Safety Council Names New Officers

BUCHANAN JOHNSON WHEDBEE ... Officers of Pitt County Safety Council

Name Buchanan New Chairman Here Yesterday

L. M. Buchanan, local insurance man, is the new chairman of the Pitt County Safety Council. Buchanan, succeeding F. Buchanan Johnson, was named to the post at the Council's September meeting yesterday. Other officers are: Vice-Chairman, Charles H. Whedbee; Secretary, Withers Harvey; and Treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Deal.

The officers for the Pitt organization's second year of operation were selected by a nominating committee. Outgoing chairman Johnson presented the names to more than 20 members present who approved the selections. County Schools Superintendent D. H. Conley gave a report to the Council on safety precautions being taken under a newly enacted law. He said, "Every precaution is being taken to make our schools safer in the years to come."

A report was made by Pfc. R. E. Taylor of the State Highway Patrol on a recent school bus inspection made at the county garage in Winterville. According to the Patrolman no noted discrepancies were found during the inspection several weeks ago. Cpl. C. E. Whitfield of State Highway Patrol Troop A headquarters told the group that much progress had been made in traffic safety in this and surrounding counties. "We of the Patrol are very optimistic about traffic safety in the future."

He explained that this county is way ahead of last year's record, the worst in history. According to figures last year on September, Pitt had 18 fatalities. To date this year seven fatalities have been registered, 11 less. Whitfield went on to say that the county has had 19 less personal injuries and considerably less property damage. "It is my opinion that the public is becoming more safety conscious," he stated. Before the meal a few moments of silence was observed in memorial to the late Dr. Walter Humbert. Dr. Humbert was serving as Vice-Chairman for the Council at the time of his death.

Ready Answer Worth 21 Points

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — Harold Craig, who usually keeps audiences in suspense while he answers questions on television, had a quick reply to one posed at the New York State Fair. Gov. Averell Harriman asked Craig, who has won $104,000 on NBC-TV's "Twenty-One," to name the most striking display at the fair. Fair Queen Mary Frawley, responded Craig, a bachelor dairy farmer from North Hebron, N.Y. The governor said he should get 21 points for the answer.

Fugitive's Claim Of Sanctuary Was Ignored

HONOLULU — George Leroy Page, South Carolina fugitive, returns to Honolulu today after an unsuccessful flight to Hawaii's ancient City of Refuge where he sought sanctuary. Page, 28, surrendered peacefully last night—but under protest at the advice of his attorney. The two policemen who arrested him carried a warrant signed by Farrant L. Turner, who was acting governor of the territory until William F. Quinn's inauguration last Monday. Page, who escaped the South Carolina Penitentiary in 1954 while serving a life term for murder, slipped out of Honolulu yes-

Claim Uprising In Cuba Crushed

HAVANA — President Batista's government claimed today it had crushed an uprising in southern Cuba after day-long fighting against a rebel force supported by naval and maritime police dissidents. "Many" persons were said to have been killed or wounded in the action at Cienfuegos, 150 miles southeast of Havana, but there was no immediate estimate of casualties. The government rushed in army troops and threatened to take some 400 rebels seized the police headquarters in the heart of Cienfuegos and threatened to take over the port city of 52,000 persons. Attacking with bombs, heavy machineguns and small arms, the government forces routed the rebel band. Those who escaped scattered in the hills. In staging the outbreak members of the armed forces for the first time joined followers of rebel guerrilla leader Fidel Castro. The rebels holed up in the police headquarters just before dawn and held out most of the day against increasingly heavy blows from government military units. Bombs plastered the police center and caused heavy damage to the City Hall. Machinegun and rifle fire turned the city's streets into a no man's land. The fighting died out in the late afternoon, and the government announced it had regained control. A statement issued by Maj. Gen. Francisco Tabernilla, army chief of staff, and Adm. Rodriguez Calderon said the uprising started at the naval base in Cienfuegos Bay. Other accounts said a group of sailors from the naval base joined forces with maritime police and Castro partisans. They said the rebels swarmed through the streets, shouting that the Batista government had been overthrown and Castro's forces had established military rule in Havana. A communique purportedly issued from Castro's headquarters in the Sierra Maestra mountains of southeast Cuba declared the outbreak at Cienfuegos "marks the end of tyranny." It called on Cubans everywhere to rise against Batista. But the attempt to seize Cienfuegos appeared to have been ill timed, apparently depending on expectations of similar uprisings in other naval bases which failed to materialize. It was the first major operation carried out by Castro's followers in central Cuba.

Storm Brewing Out In Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla. — Ship reports to the Miami Weather Bureau indicated today that a tropical storm is brewing far out in the Atlantic Ocean—in an area which has given birth to many of history's most destructive hurricanes. Forecaster Walter Davis said a ship 2,300 miles east-southeast of Miami radioed that barometric pressure was dropping and winds picking up rapidly. "It appears that a storm is in the formative stage out there," Davis said. "We have asked the ship and any others in the area to give us reports at two-hour intervals." The vicinity from which the ship reported is a blind spot on weather maps because there are no regular shipping lanes. As the storm moves eastward, it will whirl into thicker ocean-going traffic. Because the storm is so far away and not at present a menace to any land area, Davis said hurricane hunter planes would not fly out into it until Sunday or Monday. Virtually all the record-breaking hurricanes of the past have formed far out in the Atlantic in September. These included the Galveston hurricane which took 8,000 lives in 1900, the great Miami hurricane of 1926, and the New England hurricane of 1938 which caused $350 million dollars property damage.

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. — Atomic scientists detonated a baby nuclear device today at the test site here. The Atomic Energy Commission termed it "far below nominal." Nominal is equivalent to 20,000 tons of TNT, or 20 kilotons. Observers estimated today's explosion as less than 10 kilotons, which would make it one of the smallest blasts of the AEC's 1957 test series. It was fired at 5:45 a. m. Today's blast was the 17th in the current series. It was detonated from a balloon tethered 500 feet above the Yucca Flat test area. Newsmen were not allowed to view the test from on the site. They watched from Angel's Peak. From there a fireball—a dull orange in color—was visible for three seconds. It faded quickly. A small, semicircular cloud rose after the shot was fired. The AEC said that weather conditions for the test were perfect. Little fallout is anticipated off the test site, said an AEC spokesman. In Las Vegas, 80 miles southeast, only a brief flash was seen. Nature of tests conducted in connection with today's blast, code-named "Wheeler," were not disclosed. The device was prepared by the University of California radiation laboratory at Livermore, Calif.

Lull In Little Rock; Judge Asked Postpone Desegregation Order

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The lull in Little Rock's smoldering integration crisis appeared today to be in the hands of a federal judge as heavily armed National Guardsmen still ringed Central High School. A momentary lull developed yesterday in the battle over racial mixing. The Little Rock School Board offered the possibility of a temporary solution by asking federal Judge Ronald N. Davies to follow an indefinite legal postponement of integration. There was a report that a cross was burned early today outside the home of Little Rock's mayor but police said they had no record of such an incident. A source close to the mayor insisted the report was true. Judge Davies will hear the school board's petition tomorrow. Twice within the past week Davies has ordered racial mixing to proceed immediately.

The crowd of whites across from the campus dropped to about 100 today as school opened. Yesterday that hour, the crowd totaled about 250, and swelled to around 700 during the day—the largest of the week's demonstrations. The relaxed tension was evident among the National Guardsmen. They broke formations and stood in groups talking this morning, although as the hour for school opening approached, they returned to ranks. Two military vehicles remained at each end of the block, and several trucks were parked in the street. Today's crowd, like those of previous days, was composed of both men and women of varying ages, and only a sprinkling of teenagers. Gov. Orval Faubus, who ordered the troops last Tuesday to keep nine Negro students from entering the high school, yesterday got President Eisenhower's answer to an appeal for intervention in the clash of federal and state authority. Eisenhower told Faubus that he would use all legal means at his command to uphold the federal Constitution. The President will interrupt his vacation at Newport, R.I., to return to Washington tomorrow for a conference with Atty. Gen. Brownell. Faubus has not been seen publicly since he held a news conference Wednesday morning and an aide said last night that the governor's whereabouts were unknown. But the aide raised a statement from the governor which said he was getting almost unanimous support from every section of Arkansas.

The governor wired Eisenhower Wednesday that he had information that federal agents in Little Rock had discussed the possibility of taking him into custody, and said he suspected federal men of tapping his telephone lines. Faubus asked the President for cooperation in trying to settle the crisis peacefully. The governor contends that he ordered out the National Guard to avert violence. Crowds ranging from 300 to 700 persons have formed every day in front of Central High School since classes started. They jeered the nine Negro students who were turned away by soldiers Wednesday morning. But there has been no violence. No attempt was made by the Negroes to enter the school yesterday. Eisenhower, in his reply to Faubus, said "there is no basis of fact to the statements you make in your telegram that federal authorities have been considering taking you into custody or that telephone lines to your executive mansion have been tapped by any agency of the federal government." Neither the President nor any of his aides indicated what, if any, action might be contemplated by the federal government.

Enrolled 4,506

Greenville City Schools enrolled a total of 4,506 students this week as the system began its 1957-1958 term. Largest enrollment reported among the city's nine schools was at C. M. Eppes School where 772 Negro students reported for opening day. The Junius H. Rose Senior High School, which opened this year with four grades, has 578 students to rank as the city's largest school for white children. Other schools and enrollments reported by Superintendent J. H. Rose included: West Greenville, 434; Wahl-Coates, 490; Elmhurst, 415; Third Street, 368; Junior High School, 468; Fleming Street, 436; and South Greenville, 345. A break-down of the enrollment figures shows 2,753 white students and 1,753 Negro students.

New Training School Is Ready

GOLDSBORO — A 4 1/2 million dollar training school for mentally defective Negro children is ready for operation. Some staff members already have reported for work at the school, located at the state hospital for Negroes near here. Acceptance of the plant, under construction for the past two years, by the State Hospitals Board of Control recently cleared the way for doors to open within the next few days. A 22 million dollar bond issue for mental hospitals, authorized in 1953, financed the training school. It will make available space in the Negro mental hospital, where children have been given care along with adult patients. Although it eventually will have a capacity of 1,200 children, dormitory space for only 600 has been provided initially. More dormitory space will be added as the need arises and funds permit.

Will Try GI For Shooting Korean

SEOUL — PFC. Martin Mills of Brooklyn, N.Y., will be tried by a general court-martial late this month for the fatal shooting of a Korean civilian, an Army spokesman said today. Mills is charged with involuntary manslaughter and failure to obey a lawful order. Mills was a guard on a pipeline in the port city of Inchon. The Army said he fired warning shots on Aug. 25 to prevent several Koreans from climbing on the pipeline. One shot ricocheted, hitting one of the Koreans.

Milestone Week For N. Carolina

By CHARLES WEST Associated Press Staff Writer North Carolina today concludes a milestone week in the 118-year history of public instruction in the state. The first week in which Negro and white students shared common classrooms. School authorities in three cities—Charlotte, Winston-Salem and Greensboro—accomplished the enrollment of Negroes in hitherto white schools with a minimum of public demonstration. It was only a token integration: four Negroes in Charlotte, one in Winston-Salem and six in Greensboro. In Charlotte, for instance, the four constituted only an infinitesimal percentage of the 18,949 students enrolled in white schools. Charlotte Negro schools enrollment totaled 9,885. Curious crowds, some jeering and making insulting remarks, watched the Negroes arrive at white schools in each of the three cities. Only at Charlotte's Harding High School did the crowd get out of control. A group of 150 to 200 white students, fired by the words of a white housewife who said, "It's up to you to all to keep her out," tossed pebbles and sticks at a Negro girl and spat on her as she left Harding after enrolling Wednesday. The girl, suffering a sore throat, stayed away from classes yesterday on a physician's advice. One Harding student, 18-year-old Liston Wood Flowers, drew a 30-day suspended sentence yesterday for throwing an object at the girl. A 15-year-old student, Patricia Elizabeth Smith, probably will be tried in Charlotte Juvenile Court next week on charges of spitting on the Negro. Authorities removed life-size dummies of Negroes from a flagpole at Harding High School and a flagpole at Reynolds High School, Winston-Salem, Thursday night. Charlotte police apprehended five white teenagers in connection with the effort at Harding but filed no charges. The North Carolina Legislature in 1839 set up the first public instruction program for the state, then in 1869 added a provision for the education of Negroes. The school boards of the three cities, acting under a new Pupils Assignment Act, last July 23 decided to admit the 11 Negroes to white schools. Five Negroes enrolled in an elementary and junior high school at Greensboro Tuesday. There police broke up a dozer white adults and youths as they heckled the Negro pupils. A Negro entered a Greensboro high school the next day without incident. Three Charlotte white schools Wednesday opened their doors to one Negro apiece. Except for insults and jeers, the Harding incident was the only disturbance. The fourth Negro pupil delayed her enrollment one day. A Negro girl who entered the Winston-Salem high school yesterday dodged a curious crowd by using a pedestrian tunnel under a street. Her enrollment passed without incident. Several white students at the Winston-Salem school volunteered to scrub sidewalks outside the school painted signs bearing such slogans as "Go home, nigger," and "black nigger."

Urge Conference On Saving Arabs From Red Inroads

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON — Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) today urged the Eisenhower administration to consider an immediate conference with Saudi Arabia and Egypt to study ways "to preserve Arab nationalism from further Soviet aggression." Mansfield, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, coupled this proposal with a suggestion that the United States ask the United Nations General Assembly to set up international controls over arms shipments to the Middle East. The Assembly is to convene in New York next week. The senator advanced his proposals in an interview as the United States pushed arrangements to speed defensive weapons to four nations bordering Soviet Syria. Officials said the decision to speed up deliveries of previously promised arms to Jordan, Lebanon, Turkey and Iraq was made in part to symbolize American determination to support those nations against any aggression, subversion or other pressures from Syria. The governments of Lebanon and Jordan, both strongly pro-Western, were described here as feeling themselves under heavy political pressures because of the Syrian crisis. In the case of Jordan, an airlift will begin operating, perhaps next week, to deliver mobile weapons—presumably such things as light artillery and machine guns. Disclosure of the decision to hasten weapons deliveries to the four nations came as the State Department announced that Secretary Dulles will make a personal report on the Syrian situation to President Eisenhower. Eisenhower will fly back to Washington tomorrow from Newport, R.I., where he began a vacation only a few days ago. The President will return to Newport after conferring with Dulles and other administration officials. The statement announcing the Eisenhower-Dulles conference said Dulles had received a first-hand report from Loy W. Henderson, deputy under secretary of state, who returned Wednesday from a two-week flying visit to the Middle East. During this trip, Henderson conferred with leaders of Turkey, Iraq, Jordan and Lebanon. Henderson, the statement said, "found deep concern lest Syria should become a victim of international communism and as such become a base for further threatening the independence and integrity of the region." Mansfield said the speedup in delivery of U.S. arms to Jordan, Lebanon, Turkey and Iraq, may hold back aggression by Syria and perhaps allow dissident elements in that country to re-establish order on a reasonable basis." The senator, assistant Democratic floor leader, also said: "Perhaps, in addition to what is contemplated, it might be well for the United States to weigh the possibility of a conference with King Saud of Saudi Arabia and President Nasser of Egypt to consider additional ways to preserve Arab nationalism against further Soviet aggression."

Chemist Claims Discounted Leaf Is 'Acceptable'

RALEIGH (AP)—A Wilson chemist testified today that chemical tests he made of green leaves from a field of Coker 139 tobacco—a discount variety—showed the tobacco to be acceptable in his opinion. W. A. Bridgers said he made the tests on tobacco grown on the farm of Sam Robbins, Rt. 1, Elm City. The tests showed, he said, that the tobacco contained a high nicotine content. He attributed this to the "enormous quantity of nitrogen" used on the crop. Bridgers' testimony came at a hearing on a suit contesting a discounted price supports on three flue-cured tobacco varieties. Government lawyers were expected to renew a motion to dismiss the suit. Federal Judge Don Gilliam overruled the motion yesterday at the start of the hearing. However, he said, he did so "for the time being." The suit was brought by 78 Eastern North Carolina farmers. Bridgers, who operates the Southern Testing and Research laboratory, said he also made tests of cured tobacco from the 139 field on Robbins' farm and the amount of nicotine was low. The leaves, he noted, were from the bottom of the stalk and the nicotine content usually runs higher in the leaves nearer the top of the stalk. Under cross-examination, Bridgers said it is not customary for farmers to use an "enormous amount" of nitrogen on tobacco. Bridgers offered the opinion that extra nitrogen would tend to increase the aroma and flavor of tobacco.

Drive For Blind Aid To Open Monday

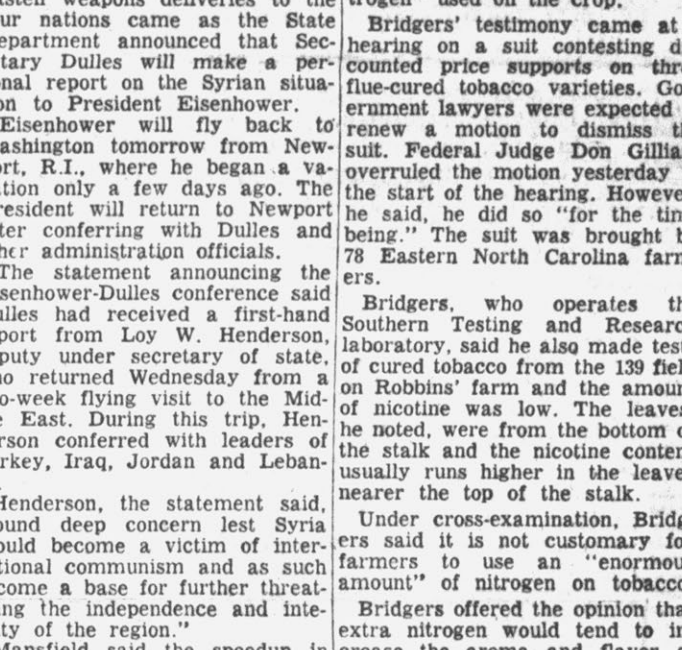

MISS MANNING, BILBRO . . . blind fund drive begins Monday. The annual drive for funds to aid blind persons of Pitt County will begin Monday, Tyson Bilbro, chairman of the Lions Sight Conservation and Blind Committee announced today. The Lions club sponsors of the Pitt County Association for the Blind will conduct the county-wide solicitations. Bilbro said the funds collected during the drive will be used to provide needed services and care for the visually handicapped persons of the county. "Pitt County is one of only five counties in the state with a full-time case worker for the blind," Bilbro pointed out. "This is made possible by the money collected in this annual drive, part of her salary being paid by the Pitt County Blind Association and the Greenville Lions Club. "Many other services are provided for the visually handicapped by this fund. These include medical and eye examinations with surgery if indicated, glasses were needed, and artificial eyes. Through these services 63 persons in Pitt County were removed from the classification of blind last year alone." Other services rendered from this fund are concerned with personal supervision and instruction for the blind by Miss Jeannie Manning, local case worker. She gives instructions in Braille, occupational therapy crafts and daily activities. She also helps to arrange transportation to clinics for examinations. Recently she has distributed checker games for blind persons in Pitt County. One hundred of these games were obtained by the Greenville Lions Club. "North Carolina has been recognized as one of several outstanding states in regard to its blind program. Pitt County, through its local Blind Association and the Greenville Lions Club, is one of the leaders in the state in providing services and sponsoring activities for the blind," Bilbro said. The goal for the drive is $2,800. Wickoff will be Monday night and solicitation will begin Tuesday morning. Lions will contact business firms and employees for contributions. The chairman said an attempt will be made to complete the drive in a week.

Mom Teaches Daughter Various Majorette Twirls

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Nancy Caroline Elliott, or Nannie as she is fondly called, would much rather twirl a baton than play with dolls like other two-year-olds.

This brown-haired, brown-eyed daughter of band director and Mrs. Boyd Elliott of Ayden already can perform five different twirls with the ease of a professional.

Her accomplishment does not surprise her mother who is a former Fayetteville high school and Meredith College majorette.

In fact, talented mama and versatile daughter have been spending many hours practicing together since Nannie was a year old.

Whenever the Ayden-Winterville Band appears in a parade or at a football game . . . there is this high stepping mascot majorette in her fetching white corduroy and blue satin outfit, made by a neighbor, Mrs. H. W. Smith.

"She loves the band and I can't keep her away from it," remarks Mrs. Elliott.

Plans are now being made by the band to add another mascot majorette—Becky Baldree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Baldree, Jr., of Ayden.

This four-year old will be instructed by her mother, the former Miss Sarah Sellers of Greenville who was a Greenville High School as well as an East Carolina College majorette.

How To Get Dad To Do Dishes

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

If you want to lure the man of the house into the kitchen at dishwashing time, try making him a handsome, he-man apron from some of the decorative printed linen dish towels available these days.

Some of the best textile designs of the market are turning up on dishtowels nowadays, and it's simple as falling off a log to use them in many ways—for aprons, place mats, cafe curtains or even casual shirts.

The modern dishtowel, in fact, is almost too pretty to use for drying dishes, so local sewing center experts suggest you take them to your sewing machine to whip up items for gifts, bazaars or for your own use.

A couple of gay, decorative aprons can be made in practically no time—one for your husband, one for you. His apron is made by simply sewing cotton twill tape on the dishtowel to serve as neckband and ties. Choose a bold design of green and white scallions on a black ground for this one—he'll be so proud of it he'll be meek as a lamb when you lead him to the dishes in the sink.

For your apron you might choose a dishtowel with a striking corn-on-the-cob design. Pleat across the long way of the towel and secure with a double row of stitching. Knot the ends of a length of white cotton cord and whip across the top of the apron. That's all there is to it.

The newest dishtowels, made of a special blend of cotton, rayon and linen, measure 20 by 30 inches. This is a perfect size for kitchen cafe curtains, place mats and various other things, including aprons. Outstanding designs available in department stores include red strawberries on a pink background, colorful vegetables in baskets and many other bright and whimsical motifs.

Of course, you can always use the towels to dry the dishes, too. But for directions for making bazaar items from dishtowels write to: KITCHEN TOWELS, Post Office Box 415, Grand Central Post Office, New York, N. Y.

Summer Reading Paves Back-To-School Path

By DOROTHY V. WHIFFLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

Reading comes easier to some children than to others. It is pretty safe to say that all children want to read if for no other reason than to be like other children.

If you have a poor reader and if you also have time, patience and enthusiasm, you may be able to use the long summer holiday to interest your child in the pleasures to be found between the covers of a book.

There are many reasons why a child wanders through the first or second or even the third grade without acquiring the basic skill of reading. Some children are poor readers because of a physical handicap. They don't see well or they cannot hear as much as the others. Sometimes lack of interest in reading is a reflection of a home where no one reads. The child has never had stories read to him. He has never seen anyone pick up a book for pleasure. Many reading problems are due to emotional conflicts in the home.

Help Needed

But whatever the cause, the non-reader needs expert help, first to find out why he doesn't read and second to remedy the cause and get him started on the right path to learn this basic and most important skill. If he is in a remedial reading class at school, if his problems, physical or emotional, are being taken care of through the school, he may need no formal help during the summer.

At the same time a little subtle help might be most useful. If he could be given a few truly interesting books that fired his interest and imagination he might find it fun to discover their contents.

It's hard to find the right books

—books that are easy to read but more mature than the primers used for beginning readers. Such books do exist and if you search hard enough you can find them. The books for any particular child should take his special interests into consideration. For some children "how to do it" books are really intriguing, for others adventure stories or imaginative tales are better.

Keep It Simple

Whatever the subject matter the reading must be simple — short sentences, plenty of pictures and the type arranged so that it doesn't look like a discouraging amount of reading. But above all there must be pleasure ahead when the words are deciphered. Your enthusiasm will help a lot. Genuine enthusiasm is contagious.

If you need help in finding just the right books for your child get a new book by Phyllis Penner called "The Proof of the Pudding" published by the John Day Company. Phyllis Penner has been a librarian for 32 years. She knows what appeals to children and how to approach a child to stimulate his interest in books. Her volume includes lists of books for all manner of children, those with problems, those without.

Whether you have a problem reader or a book worm you will enjoy this book and absorb some of the author's enthusiasm for books and children.

Dinner Honors Miss Hadley, Dr. Callaway

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Longino entertained Miss Martha Emily Moye Hadley and Dr. Henry Abbott Callaway Jr. at an informal dinner party at their home last night.

Upon arrival the 10 guests were served tomato juice cocktails by the hostess and host and invited into the dining room where the two-course turkey dinner was served from a table covered with a white cutwork cloth and centered with a floral arrangement of red roses and other summer flowers.

Dr. and Mrs. Longino presented the honoree with a corsage of yellow roses. Miss Hadley wore a black winter cotton dress set off by a white pique collar for the occasion.

Of local interest in the den was an arrangement of pink chrysanthemums.

As an honor gift, Miss Hadley and Dr. Callaway were presented a silver butter dish by the hostess and host.

CAST IRON CARE
When cleaning cast iron do not scrub it thoroughly as the "greasy" appearing surface prevents the pan from rusting and makes cooking easier. Store the pan after coating it with a thin layer of oil or grease applied with a paper towel.

SOCK DRESS
A headliner on college campuses this fall will be the sock dress—a woven wool jersey dress knitted in Argyle sock pattern, made on the simplest possible lines, like an elongated sweater with draw string belt.

Most popular for daytime wear will be the fur colors, to match the important fur accessories of the season. The tones, in soft beige, browns and taupes, have fur names: golden sable, honey sable, red fox, nutria, mink, black mink and—for an iridescent stocking-leopard.

Further to-do about shorter skirts pleases the hostess makers even more. If women are going to be showing more leg, and if the leg must match the dress, the inevitable result is that women are going to be buying a lot more stockings.

So this fall you'll be seeing nylons in every color of the rainbow. For daytime wear the colors are discreet, giving just a hint of tint on the leg. But for cocktail and evening wear, brilliant jewel-toned stockings are going to be all over the place—with shoes to match. Colors available at present include: ruby, sapphire, emerald, amethyst, garnet and topaz. And there are even iridescent stockings in pastel or deep toned changeable colors.

Mrs. Bundy Entertains Mrs. Rawlins

Mrs. W. J. Bundy entertained at five tables of bridge Thursday afternoon honoring Mrs. Phil Rawlins of Tarboro.

The home was decorated with bouquets of late summer flowers. Four progressions of bridge were played, with the high score prize, a unique vial of perfume, going to Mrs. Milo Smith. The second-high prize, individual serving trays, was won by Mrs. Norman Garrison. The honoree was presented a flask of toilet water.

After the progressions of bridge, the guests were invited into the dining room to a table covered with a hand-cut linen cloth and centered with a floral arrangement of fuji mums and pink carnations, flanked by pink tapers in silver candelabras.

Lime punch was served by Mrs. Phil Rawlins, Mrs. S. L. Daught-ridge and Mrs. M. W. Maxwell assisted in serving open-faced sandwiches, mixed nuts, cheese straws, mints and iced rum squares.

Goodbyes were said by Mrs. Bundy and Mrs. Rawlins.

Fall Legs Clothed In Many Colors

This fall fashion designers are talking a lot about the "one color" look. This means everything should be the same color—hat, dress, handbag, gloves, shoes—even stockings.

To stocking manufacturers, who have been trying for years to find a way to persuade women to buy a wardrobe of stockings, this is great news.

Further to-do about shorter skirts pleases the hostess makers even more. If women are going to be showing more leg, and if the leg must match the dress, the inevitable result is that women are going to be buying a lot more stockings.

Christian Science Announcements

How spiritual perception of the true nature of man brings growth and progress will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday.

Scriptural readings in the Lesson-Sermon on "Man" will include the following from Acts (17:24,25): "God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things." From "Science and Health with Keys to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following (203:13): "Spiritual perception brings out the possibilities of being, destroys reliance on aught but God, and so makes man the image of his Maker in deed and in truth."

Mrs. Lester E. Turnage was program chairman and gave a talk on the culture of iris, stating that it should be divided about a month after the blooming period and reset in a well prepared bed dug eight or ten inches deep consisting of soil mixed with peatmoss, compost and fertilizer. "Do not cover the rhizome more than an inch," she said. She then gave a list of medal winners and showed pictures.

"If different varieties are planted the blooming period will last from March to July. There are several kinds—Dutch, Japanese, German. The bearded iris is the most popular. Mrs. Turnage said, "The mythological goddess of the rainbow was the Greek goddess Iris. The first iris in history was found in an old Greek tomb. It is attractive when planted with flowering shrubs and with blooming plants."

Tabitha M. DeVisconti, speaking on "Garden Therapy," stated that to reach out a hand to those less fortunate in thoughtfulness and in friendliness will help to produce recovery of an illness or a grievous burden.

"We can work with orphanages, patients in veterans hospitals, mental wards, county homes, nursing homes for the aged, polio patients, tuberculosis hospitals, children's wards, handicapped people, shut-ins, and the blind. We can share ourselves with the less fortunate and we will be the gainer," she noted.

Mrs. G. Alex Rouse told of the pleasure derived from the roses in the Alice Dall Rose Garden at the Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville by doctors, nurses and patients. It was Mrs. Rouse's idea that this garden be started. The Farmville Garden Club contributes roses and money for its upkeep.

Miss Joyner, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Lang, served heavenly hash and nuts.

Guest Editorial

The Challenge Was Never Greater

Editor's note: The following editorial was prepared for the current series by JUNE H. ROSE, Superintendent of Greenville City Schools.

Carrying on a program of public education today is a greater challenge than at any other time in the history of our community or state. The problems are many and complex. However, the existence of these problems should not discourage the leaders in education but rather make the job more interesting.

The average business man today faces new and complex problems every day. However, he is not quitting or throwing up his hands. The modern business man is making an attempt to solve these problems.

School people will do well to keep in mind that they are not the only ones who are facing difficult problems.

Two big problems facing School Boards are: (1) Furnishing sufficient financial support for current operations and at the same time providing good buildings and equipment for the buildings; (2) How to

Butler's Party Meet In Raleigh

By LYNN NISBET

STATES' RIGHTS — There is an off-side chance that the inside stuff planned by Paul Butler, national Democratic chairman, for the Southeastern regional conference of party leaders in Raleigh on September 16 may backfire. This one of half a dozen regional meetings planned for this fall throughout the United States to lay plans for the congressional campaigns next year and the presidential race in 1960.

It has been announced as a "closed meeting" to which only members of the national committee, state chairmen and vice chairmen from the Southeast were invited. As the host state North Carolina party officials were allowed to invite the Governor and two or three other party leaders.

Acceptances of invitations have been received to date from nearly every state chairman, several of the state vice chairmen, and only three or four members of the national committee. This might be interpreted to mean that Democrats in the area are more concerned about party affairs as they affect individual States than about national policies or candidates.

Tentative plans for the conference call for it to be held in a private room at the Sir Walter Hotel rather than in the capitol building or a public auditorium where such meetings are traditionally held in North Carolina. A dinner has been arranged for that evening in a room with maximum capacity of 40 persons.

Tarheel party leaders profess to know nothing about the program or topics for discussion. "It is Mr. Butler's meeting," they say. It is understood, however, that the North Carolina Democratic Committee will pick up the dinner check as the official host.

MUNICIPALITIES — Apparently there was an unusual turnover in municipal officials in this year's elections. Consequently the general theme of the League of Municipalities convention here September 29 through October 1 will be a sort of "get acquainted" program — for the new officials to get acquainted with each other and with the problems of local city and town government.

In addition to this general motif, the municipal officials will hear a battery of nationally famed speakers, including Rep. L. H. Fountain, member of the Congress from the second district; Sen. Kerr Scott of North Carolina; Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts; and Governor Luther Hodges. It is unusual for one convention to bring to the same forum four speakers of such caliber.

BALANCE — It is entirely appropriate for Governor Hodges in his talk to the Associated Press Broadcasters the other night to pay tribute to the contribution made by the radio and television in disseminating news. Newspaper reporters, especially those on Associated Press papers who work their hearts out to develop stories for the broadcasters to use, might take exception to his appraisal that radio and television afforded more "balanced and intelligent presentation of the news," and that it was presented with a "minimum of interpretation of editing."

That is true when speeches or statements are presented in full, but no more true than when the full text of speech is published in a newspaper. Everybody in the newspaper, radio or television game knows that a statement or a picture taken out of context, selected for two minutes showing out of a 30 minute speech, can be more devastating or flattering, as the editor desires, in sound or picture than is possible in the printed word — selected for the same reasons.

HIGHWAYS — In justification of the new highway policy, Governor Hodges indulges in the diatribe interpretation which he had condemned. "If today's dollar is spent on highway designs which will become inadequate in a very few years, then much of today's dollar will have been wasted," he said. So he boasts that the new highway department has employed experts to develop long range highway planning. Governors Bickett and Morrison and Frank Page, chairman of the first real State highway commission, had the same idea more than 30 years ago. So they planned the future and built roads to last half a century. Many of those roads are still as good as when completed in the mid-twenties. Except the road planners did not comprehend then, and cannot forecast now, the progress of planners of automobiles and real estate developments.

The idealistic concept of a primary highway to connect every county seat and major city in the state occasioned construction of many miles of highway at millions of dollars cost in the decade after World War I. Those roads were still physically good after World War II, but were utterly obsolete from economic use viewpoint. Some highways built since War II are already obsolete. There is no reason to believe that those being built in 1957-58 will not suffer the same fate; or that planning more than three years ahead will stand up any better now than similar planning did 30-odd years ago.

It is entirely possible that the trend to small easily maneuvered automobiles, powered by atomic energy and magnetized so they can't turn over or leave the road, will make the present 360-feet wide super clover-leaf highways as unnecessary in a few years as the behemoth like trucks and 100-mile passenger cars rendered obsolete the "permanent" highways built 30 years and more ago — or even 10 years back.

carry on an adequate instruction program in this modern age.

With our growing population it is becoming more and more difficult to build enough modern buildings to take care of all the children who are being born, and therefore, we may have to modify our plan of operation of schools. Worthy of consideration also is the possibility of a twelve month school with each child attending the school three of the four quarters. It is also a possibility that television may afford some aid.

School people must spend more time acquainting the taxpaying citizens with the problems of school finance, and should invite citizen groups to help find some of the answers.

As to problem number 2, how to carry on an adequate instruction program in this modern age we have to remember certain things.

One factor that makes the problem of education difficult today is that in so many cases now both mother and father have full time jobs away from home and this tends to reduce the number of hours which parents give their children in counseling and directing time.

Schools must also be aware of the fact today that we have a large number of children who are over-stimulated by modern living. In the homes, TV's and radios are turned on by the hours. Comic books, horror books, and sex books are available to children.

While it is true that evil has always been in our world the children of a generation or so ago were not as aware of it as they are today, and the fact that children read the newspapers and know what evil is doing to the adult population as well as to the younger group imposes an additional burden upon the teacher. A great deal more is required of a teacher today in the matter of counseling and guidance, and it is more necessary today than ever before for the teacher and the parent to confer regularly concerning the child's development.

It is a truism that school and home must co-operate in any program of education. That statement has been made so often that it has almost lost its emphasis. But now it must be a part of the belief of every parent and teacher and school administrator.

The evils of adult over-organization have reached down to the level of the grammar grade, and in some cases into the primary grade. Worthy organizations, such as boy and girl scouts, churches, recreation commissions, civic clubs, and athletic organizations are all bidding for the time and the mind of the child.

There must be concerted and co-operative effort on the part of school and home to direct a child's life so that the important things come first. Also, it is necessary to see that a child leaves out of his daily life some of the things that fritter away the time of child and dissipate his energies.

In the midst of all these problems school people and parents should remember that the great principles of true education do not change and that they are just as fixed and abiding as great principles of true living.

It is rather silly to argue that education can always be attractive. We have had too much of this theory in America in the past. The attractiveness of real education is the attraction of a challenge to do a hard job well.

In speaking of the rights of children in this modern age we need to remember that every child has a right and a need to be disciplined mentally and physically.

A Specialist In The Zanier Field

By ELMER ROESSNER

American business is becoming slightly wackier and Franklin C. Wertheim, of Jamaica, N. Y., is glad. Mr. Wertheim is in the advertising novelty business. The two companies in which he is interested are among the smaller of the 18,000 in the field. "But our companies," Mr. Wertheim said, "are the zaniest. Definitely."

There is no precise figure on the sales of advertising novelty companies. Estimates range upward from a billion dollars a year, but such estimates include practically everything on which an advertiser's name and sales message can be imprinted — calendars, balloons, ball point pens, pencils, rulers, cigarette lighters, blotters, ashtrays, road maps and other trivia — and business gifts of greater value, such as theater tickets and cases of champagne.

But Mr. Wertheim is interested only in the zany end of the field and most of his products involve tricks, jokes, gadgets or mad, mad devices.

His current hit is a die-cut bit of cardboard. When placed in a pocket the top of a man's head is seen, with fingers and nose over the edge of the pocket — much like the "Kilroy was here" graffiti of World War II. The car has a legend, "Are you noisy?" and this tempts viewers to pull the card out, on which they may read a sales message. Other recent items include a pencil with a compartment containing coffee concentrate for people whose bosses won't let them out for coffee breaks, and another containing pills "to relieve sales headaches." The last one got Mr. Wertheim in trouble. He started using aspirin tablets and the government warned him he was dispensing medicine without a license, so he switched to lactose tablets.

These gadgets are designed for salesman to give to prospects, to attract visitors to trade show exhibits, and to include in direct mail offerings.

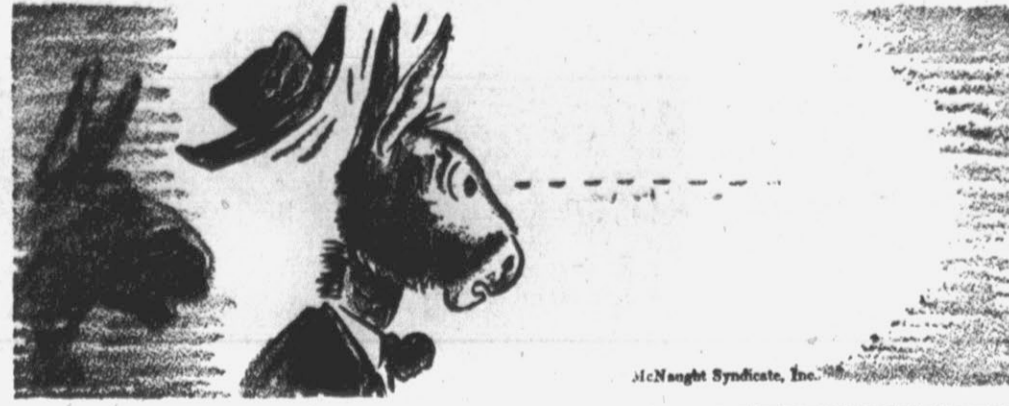

HOW THEY WORK They don't make sales all by themselves, Mr. Wertheim conceded. "But they put the prospect in good humor and often make the difference between a sale and a turnaround. For some reason—perhaps because they are operating under more pressure — businessmen like amusing and interesting devices. Men who would be insulted if offered a gift love to get a tricky little gadget — and our sales are climbing."

Among his companies' products are a pencil that changes color while it writes, pencils with scotch and bourbon flavored lollipops on the end, rolling pencils that can be used as dice, pencils containing samples of genuine uranium ore, and a number of puzzles.

His all-time hit, Mr. Wertheim said, is a card with a string running through a hole and two separate string and card without tearing the card or cutting the string. It can be done, but it took one college professor a week to figure out how. So far more than 500,000 of these cards have been sold.

In spite of warnings from Secretary Dulles and Minority Leader Knowland that it might block action on important foreign aid legislation, Nixon insisted on ruling against the Senate provisions which permit filibusters. Nixon's antifilibuster decision was overturned by a 55-38 vote, but it aided the pro-Civil Rights faction. And it did not endanger

Political Charge Account

By EVERETTE PARKER

Like A Roller-Coaster

I did something yesterday afternoon I had never done before.

I flew. Not exactly without wings, but in an Air Force Helicopter.

You know something? It wasn't too bad for the first time either. Sort of like going up on a roller coaster, except it was just a little higher.

The experience began when I was assigned to take pictures of the helicopter being used by airmen at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro. A crew from the base came down to Greenville yesterday at the request of East Carolina College to give demonstrations to freshmen ROTC students.

After looking around for the landing site of the thing for about 20 minutes I found it out back of the new high school building.

There was a large crowd there watching. Mayor Eugene West was there along with Dr. Sam White, Craven Hughes, the Chief over at the College, and many more including a number of curious children and a couple of dogs who looked at the flying machine with awe.

Seeing the large crowd and the H-19 Helicopter I got right excited and wanted to go up immediately.

I walked up to the Captain and asked him if I could ride with the next load. He said I could but I would have to sign a little piece of paper.

In a hurry I didn't even read what he said but I had a pretty good idea. Anyway I signed my life away for a few minutes or at least thought I did.

The big plane came in and the crew unloaded its passengers. We were next and I am sure my heart was in my throat.

I stepped into the "big bladed thing" and let the kind sergeant buckle me down and put ear phones on my head. He said I could talk to the pilot anytime I wanted to.

Right then and there I started talking to the man up front whose hands my life was in.

Presently everyone was in the stomach of the bird and off we went on wings of Angel's song. I said I would not get scared but all I had to do was look out the door and there was about half of Pitt County below me.

The town of Greenville looked small. Why the Tar River resembled a small stream. Frankly I didn't know what to think.

I had never been that high before. With this thought in mind I kept checking my safety belt to make sure that sergeant didn't forget to hook something up.

One of the stipulations of my assignment was to get some pictures so I preceded to take them. Time and time again I leaned out without fear of life and limb to get shots and almost dropped the camera one time.

Before long the pilot took the bird back to its nest and I got out none the worst for my experience. You know this business of flying is not so bad after all.

For a time, though, while I was up a thousand or two feet, I had my doubts about the sanity of the Wright Brothers who tried what I was doing some years ago at Kill Devil Hills.

Other Editors Saying --- These Three Guideposts

(Raleigh Times)

Three sections in Governor Hodges' speech last night stand out clearly and sharply in his discussions of the problems brought on by the school integration situation. They are:

"We are forced to recognize that the court has the final word in the interpretation" of the constitution.

"There is no sure, certain and easy solution to this problem."

"North Carolinians do not like lawlessness. We have no place in our State for the Ku Klux Klan, Negro or white, meddling in our affairs."

It is hard to see how anyone, Negro or white, can take issue with Governor Hodges on those three items. And, if all North Carolinians will recognize the truth in those three items, there will be no trouble in this State, whether there is much or little integration.

In the first place, we must admit the truth of the fact that the court is going to have the final say.

And, if we admit that there is no sure, certain or easy solution, we will have gone a long, long road before there is any happy ending, or even any happy turning.

And, if we turn our backs on lawlessness, on the KKK and its white-collar offshoots and on all outside agitators, we will not mix with blood our unsure, uncertain and uneasy plodding down that long road. We must avoid violence at any cost, for violence can settle nothing, and nothing can be settled as long as any sort of violence poisons the air. Questions of this import can be settled only in an atmosphere of peace and quiet and of prayer.

The Governor, in his speech, again appealed to the Negroes of North Carolina to follow a policy of voluntary separation in schools. In making that appeal, it is certain that the Governor is conscientiously doing what he feels is best for all the people of this State.

It may well be that he is completely right in making that appeal.

It would seem certain, however, that the best way for this appeal from the Governor to have any weight is for the white people of North Carolina, not truth in the faces of the Negroes, the doors so many Negroes feel must be opened, if only just a small bit. A small spot of integration here, and another there in North Carolina, in the eyes of many people, would seem to be a good way of making it possible for the Governor's appeal to fall on open ears in the Negro race.

Ordering very limited amounts of integration in areas where such action would be accepted with the least feeling would seem to be an excellent way of taking the first steps down the road we must travel to keeping all our schools open and operating to the best advantage of all our children, white and black.

Nixon's Quiet Vote Campaign

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Vice President Richard M. Nixon is conducting his campaign for the 1960 Presidential nomination on a lofty and liberal level in order to counteract Harry S. Truman's assertion that he was tricky. In fact, friends and political advisers now worry lest he err on the side of seriousness and solemnity, or a Dewey-like "stiffness."

Although Senator William F. Knowland, a possible 1960 rival, performed publicly as White House manager of the Civil Rights Bill, Nixon backstaged an even more intensive fight for the more extreme measure, and against any compromise.

When certain Republican National Committee members counseled inaction so that the issue could be tossed into the 1958 Congressional contests, Nixon suggested that President Eisenhower reject this partisan advice. Ike did.

adoption of Eisenhower's Middle East Doctrine.

VICE PRESIDENT'S BID FOR COLORED VOTE Nixon's bid for the colored vote, as his attitude is interpreted by his colleagues, supports the belief that he wants the Presidency. Although there was relatively few colored voters in California, the politicians' recognition of their new ballot-box status may help the Vice President at the 1960 convention.

It is significant that Nixon chose Houston to announce that he was an honorary member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. And when several prominent Republicans avoided the Reverend Martin Luther King, Nixon appeared and was photographed with the leader of the bus boycott in Montgomery, Ala.

NIXON INVITED NEGROES TO NEW HOME Moreover, Negroes were present at the first social affair in Nixon's new $70,000 home in the exclusive Wesley Heights section of Washington, where there is a covenant against their ownership of property. They included editors and reporters of Afro-American newspapers who journeyed with him in Ghana, where Nixon represented the President at the birth of this new Negro republic.

and photographs of the Vice President have been published in almost every Negro newspaper and magazine. If any politician, Republican or Democrat, benefited from the Civil Rights struggle and surrounding circumstances, it is Nixon. Senator Russell of Georgia expects Nixon to demand strict Civil Rights enforcement.

OPPOSED BY GOP LEFTISTS Although regarded as a conservative when he served in the House, and still looked upon as less liberal than Eisenhower by the old Guard, the Vice President has labored constantly on behalf of the Administration's program of "modern Republicanism." He is still opposed by GOP leftists, however, led by Harold E. Stassen, who tried to block his renomination last year.

Nixon worked, although unsuccessfully, for the School Construction Bill, for expansion of the Federal Health program, and for income tax credits for money spent by parents on their children's education.

He broke completely with the Capehart - Jenner - Malone die-hards on foreign aid. He argued that, unless the United States furnishes funds for backward and neutral nations, they will get money from Russia and line up against us in a showdown.

Busy Bees On The Job

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP)—A group of teen-agers in El Monte known as the Busy Bee Assemblers is breaking adult assembly records on sub-contracts from large manufacturing concerns — and keeping out of mischief.

While juvenile crime is on the increase in Southern California — up 22 per cent in adjacent Los Angeles over last year — no member of the Busy Bees ever has been arrested or even questioned by El Monte police.

By keeping busy, the Busy Bees stay out of trouble. The youngsters work after school hours under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. John DuBief, but 17-year-old high school senior Russel Lage is in charge of production and assembly chores. He probably is America's youngest plant superintendent.

"He's simply wonderful," Mrs. DuBief says of Lage. "Last Christmas we gave him 5 per cent of the business. There just couldn't be a better worker, man or boy."

Results Pay Off Pay for the Busy Bees depends on results, now how many hours are worked. But, where adults labored diligently to turn out 60 metal hinge assemblies an hour, the average adult hourly output of finished pover chip racks was 200, but the Bees averaged 675 an hour. Most Bees make about $1.40 an hour, some as high as $2.20 an hour.

Foreman Lage is doing all right for a 17-year-old. "I've got $500 in the bank and I bought my new car with my earnings," he says. "I don't know if I'll go to college, but I'll have the money to go if I decide to, and even more important to me is the vocational preparation I am getting. I can get a good job right now at almost any plant strictly off the experience I have gained here in the last 18 months."

The Busy Bee plant, a converted garage, is more than a workshop. The Bees do their homework there, plan beach parties, discuss mutual problems, grow up together.

"I've been a mother-confessor to these kids for the last two years," says Mrs. DuBief, "and I'll bet I've helped do more homework for them than in all the years I was in school myself."

Busy Bee Assemblers came into existence in 1955 when the DuBiefs' son, Bobby, couldn't land a summer job. His mother had been an assembler and riveter in an aircraft plant. She recalled that companies jobbed out assembly work, and went out hunting orders. A week later the family had one for 4,500 steel hinges. They started work in the garage. Bobby and two high school buddies handling all the work.

That's how the teenage industry got its start. Now there are 25 youngsters busy in the garage.

"Imagine them paying us for this," says pert Patricia All. "Why we're having a ball—much more fun than the kids who have nothing to do when classes are out."

Opinions In Brief

"Aside from the tangible improvements obtained from suggestions, the system of asking comments also means increased interest among workers in studying their jobs and trying to do them more speedily and effectively. It would be hard to put any cash value on such an atmosphere, but obviously it is immensely profitable in building and maintaining morale." Memphis Commercial Appeal.

"One hundred years ago, Lord Macaulay of Great Britain wrote an American friend commenting on our form of government here in the United States. He saw nothing in its composition, he said, to prevent us from complete disintegration as a strong nation by at least some time within the next century (the century in which we are now living)." — Thurman Senning.

LEANS BACKWARD ON POLITICAL FINANCES Recalling the 1952 attacks on his so-called "office slush fund," the Leans backward with respect to political and personal finances.

Although in great demand as a speaker, he refuses to accept any fees for his appearances. He is unique in this respect, for many members engage New York agencies to obtain oratorical dates for them. Former Vice President Barkley's charge was reported to be quite a substantial sum.

AIMS TO AVOID BEING THOUGHT "SLICK" In other ways, Nixon strives to erase memories and impressions of him as a "slick politician." He dropped Murray Chotiner, a longtime friend and campaign manager, when the public relations man represented clients in a jam with Uncle Sam. In several "conflict of interest" controversies, involving prominent GOP money and vote collectors, he insisted that they be fired. They were, albeit reluctantly, by Ike.

Eisenhower frequently mentions 1960 possibilities, including Stassen, Henry Cabot Lodge, Christian A. Herter, General Alfred M. Gruenther, Nixon and Knowland. But Nixon's associates are hoping — and betting — that the President will wind up in the V.P.'s corner.

Baruch, Faithful Secretary ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Jeremiah 36.

The word of the Lord came to the prophet Jeremiah to take a scroll and write all the words the Lord had spoken against Israel and Judah. Jeremiah called Baruch and dictated to him, and he wrote the words.

Jeremiah told Baruch to take the scroll and read it to the people in the Lord's house. It was possible that when they heard what the Lord had said, they would renounce their evil ways and He would forgive them.

Baruch read the scroll to the people and to the princes. They told the king and he sent for Jehudi to read it to him. The king then cut the scroll and threw it into the fire on the hearth.

When Baruch told Jeremiah that the king had burned the scroll, Jeremiah told him to take another roll and rewrite all the words of the Lord, and Baruch obeyed the prophet.

princes were there, and to them all Michaiah told the words he had heard read, and the princes sent Jehudi to Baruch, telling him to bring the scroll to them.

Jehoiakim, second son of the good Josiah, was king of Judah and the last king to reign in the city of Jerusalem.

The king sent Jehudi to fetch the roll and he read it to the king. It was wintertime, and there was a fire burning on the hearth before the king.

In the fourth year of Jehoiakim's reign, the word of the Lord came to the prophet Jeremiah commanding him to take "a roll of a book" a papyrus or parchment scroll, and write on it all the words He had spoken

New ECC Term Shapes Up As Seeing More Expansion

By MARY GREENE

East Carolina College turned up this week for the 1957-1958 term with optimism as the keynote of opening events of the session.

It looks as if the school year just beginning will continue the expansion of the last ten years in number of students and in physical facilities on the campus and will bring further variety and improvement in academic work.

Introduction of instruction by closed-circuit television will be one of the most interesting developments of the year. The last General Assembly appropriated a sum of $75,000 for the purchase of TV equipment to be used by a state institution. East Carolina was chosen by the state Board of Higher Education as the college in which closed-circuit instruction would be introduced on an experimental basis and studied and evaluated over a two-year period.

Vice President and Dean of Instruction Leo W. Jenkins heads a committee of faculty members who are in charge of organizing and directing the TV service. A film of engineers is now surveying the campus to select buildings best suited to the installation of equipment. Science, English, and history will be the first subjects in the curriculum to be taught over closed-circuit TV, Dr. Jenkins has announced.

President John D. Messick of East Carolina College announced at the opening faculty meeting of the fall quarter last Monday that installation of the equipment will begin at an early date. Instruction is slated to begin in December or January, he said.

Closed-circuit TV, with emphasis on its techniques and values, has received considerable study and attention among staff members at the college for the past several months. During the 1957 summer session, a workshop in educational TV brought to the campus authorities from many networks, TV stations, and educational organizations throughout the nation. Rosalind Rouleston, director of radio and TV activities on the campus, directed the workshop. Many faculty members took advantage of the opportunity of attending sessions.

Dr. R. R. Lowdermilk, senior specialist in radio and TV in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D. C., appeared Monday of this week before the college staff in an analysis of various problems and opportunities of instruction by closed-circuit TV.

During the present school term East Carolina will continue its series of courses presented over WGTC, Channel 9, "History of the Theater," with Dr. James D. Allison of the department of English as instructor, is the current offering. Classes are presented each Saturday morning at 8 a.m. The course will extend over a period of 30 weeks.

East Carolina's ambitious program of radio and TV broadcasts will continue throughout the school year under the direction of Miss Rouleston. In addition to live broadcasts, recorded radio programs are now being heard over stations located in many towns and cities in North Carolina.

Enrollment this year is expected to show an increase over that of 1956-1957. Since students may register for the fall quarter through September 11, an official count of those enrolled will not be available until after that date.

Through entrance tests administered during the spring and summer months, East Carolina eliminated from the freshman class a number of applicants among high school graduates. Approximately 10% of those taking the entrance tests were rated as unprepared for college work and were refused admission to the college. It seems likely that exclusion of these students will result in raising standards of instruction.

Several building projects slated to begin during the school year will improve the college plant. East Carolina's student body has more than tripled during the past ten years. Physical facilities have become inadequate to meet needs, especially for dormitory, classroom, office, and diningroom accommodations.

President Messick stated at the beginning of the fall quarter that, according to present plans, a new dormitory will be begun within the next month or two. Architects are now working on plans for a new classroom building. Additions to several other buildings, including the Administration building, music hall, the South Dining hall, and the power plant, are slated for construction within the near future.

Additional Flu Vaccine Released

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service has announced the release of 1,028,295 additional doses of Asian flu vaccine—bringing to 3,705,770 the total dosage made available so far.

The latest release is for civilian use, and is the first to be allocated among the states on the basis of population. The vaccine first became available Aug. 12.

The American Red Cross has called on its 3,700 chapters to help local authorities in planning for possible widespread outbreaks of Asian flu this fall and winter.

Bronx Fire Left 200 Homeless

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 200 persons were made homeless in the Bronx today by a fire which destroyed a lumber yard, two tenements, two frame dwellings and a fish market.

The five-alarm blaze threatened an entire city block before it was brought under control. Six firemen were injured, none seriously.

Fire Commissioner Edward F. Cavanagh Jr. ordered immediate inspection of all city lumber yards in six weeks. Cavanagh said: "This is a menace you don't put up with."

Debut Tonight For Phantom Eleven First Test For Light GHS Team

GOLDSBORO — Tonight marks the first game of the 1957 football season for Greenville high school...

Both clubs face the prospect of being shallow in experienced players. Goldsboro will start a club tonight which includes only five lettermen...

Probable Lineups Though Coach Phillips has not released a definite starting lineup, the following has been named as his probable opening eleven...

Matter Of Opinion Just what one considers beef is probably decided by which league he is in. Goldsboro reports that its club will be one of their lightest in years...

Table with 3 columns: Greenville, Pos., Goldsboro. Lists players like C. Noble, K. Barnhill, B. Brown, A. Crawford, W. Owens, R. Sullivan, B. Cox, M. Roebuck, B. Howell, B. Roberts, N. Felton and their positions.

Lost 2 Net Stars, But Aussies Win

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Even with Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall laboring for the professionals, the possibility of an all-Australian final for the National Tennis Championship became a distinct possibility today.

Anderson's semifinal opponent — if he gets past Ayala — will be Sven Davidson of Sweden, who made yesterday a glum one for the United States by whipping Cliff Mayne, an Army lieutenant from Fort Monmouth, N.J., 3-6, 7-5, 6-1. That was expected even though Mayne earlier had eliminated Neale Fraser, the No. 2 Aussie.

Blumer, brother of Beverly Hills, Calif., seeded No. 2, and Mrs. Dorothy Knode of Forest Hills, N.Y., No. 3, each gained their brackets yesterday. Miss Brough crushed 18-year-old Ann Haydon of England, 7-5, 6-1, and Mrs. Knode polished off Lois Felix of Meriden, Conn., 6-2, 6-1.

Hi-Toms Defeat Bulls In Playoffs

THOMASVILLE, N.C. — The hometown ball park was the victory scene last night as High Point — Thomasville defeated Durham, 5-2, and won its first game in the Carolina League playoffs.

The Hi-Toms will try to even things up in the best of seven series tonight when they battle the Bulls again on Finch Field here. Durham now leads, 2-1.

Three runs in the last of the eighth broke up a 2-2 tie and gave the Hi-Toms their victory margin. The Hi-Toms led the bases when John Kennedy's grounder to second base was dropped on a double play attempt. A walk forced in one run, and a single by George Contratto brought in the two others.

Before the bottom of the eighth, all the scoring had resulted from home runs. A heavy blow by Don Jones produced two runs for the Hi-Toms in the sixth, and a circuit club by Bubba Morton gave Durham two scores in the top of the eighth.

Durham led the league in the first half of the season. High Point — Thomasville entered the playoffs as second half champs.

Wilson Baseball Club At Stake

WILSON, N.C. — The future of the Wilson baseball club in the Carolina League will be decided at a meeting of stockholders next Wednesday night.

Jimmy Gaston, the club's general manager, said the meeting is of extreme importance. Treasurer Carroll Kemp will present a complete picture of the organization's finances. The team is reported to be in debt. One source has put it at $4,000 or slightly more.

A report said several major league teams may be interested in getting a working agreement with Wilson if the club should remain in the Carolina League, a Class B circuit.

Kid Gavilan, Cuban welterweight, started boxing at the age of 12.

RETT EVERETT, CHARLES STATION, along with Norfleet Felton and Jeff Fountain give Greenville high school plenty of depth at the fullback position. Coach Bud Phillips may use all of them tonight against Goldsboro, when his Phantoms open their 1957 football season. Gametime is 8:00 at the Goldsboro high school field.

Redhead Sparking Braves

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Ask almost any Milwaukee player to single out the one Brave who has been most responsible for bringing them within sight of the promised land and he'll say without hesitation — Red Schoendienst.

Not only the fans but the Milwaukee players are in love with Schoendienst. Most of them had never played with anyone like him before. Milwaukee never had a second baseman who could make the plays he makes. It never had a player who gave so much of himself to win. His contribution is not limited to his magnificent all-around play.

It is no mere coincidence — as the modest redhead wishes you to believe — that the Braves' climb began almost immediately after the three-for-one trade that brought Schoendienst from the New York Giants. His contribution went far beyond his excellence in the field and at bat.

In a short space of time he became the field leader the team so sorely lacked last year. The players grew to respect him not only for his advice, spirit and hard work but because he set a fine example for them. He went out and did the things he wanted them to do.

"Within a space of two weeks," said catcher Del Crandall, "we built up a 7 1/2 game difference. Schoendienst was that 7 1/2 game difference."

"You've got to play with him to appreciate him," said first baseman Frank Torre. "I always admired Red's ability," said third baseman Eddie Mathews.

Schoendienst is the take-charge guy we've been waiting for," said Manager Fred Haney. "He has taken a firm grip on the club since he's been in the lineup. The other players look to him with great respect. "Naturally, Schoendienst has been a big help, but I wouldn't say he's been the only difference. All the boys have been doing a fine job, particularly those who have filled in for our injured players. This is not intended to be a rap at Danny O'Connell, who's a nice boy and a fine ball player, but the boys seem more confident with Red at second. Just his being out there gives them a lift because of his experience."

Art Fowler Is 'Through' For Rest Of Season

SPARTANBURG (AP) — Veteran righthander Art Fowler says he's through pitching for the remainder of the season.

Fowler returned to his home near here yesterday, bitter over his sale from the Cincinnati Redlegs to Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

He said he would play for Seattle next year if the offer is right. He added, however, that he would prefer playing in the Southern Association if he is not called back to the majors.

Fowler denied statements attributed to him in Cincinnati that being released by the Redlegs was "the worst disgrace suffered in my baseball career." The veteran hurler said his statement was "enlarged." "I only said that I would not report to Seattle this season," he explained. "I did say that I think I'm a better pitcher than some of the others on the staff. But anyone with pride would think the same thing."

Ghost Of Another Pitching Failure Haunts Milwaukee

By ED WILKS The Associated Press

Can another pitching collapse again detour Milwaukee's steamroller off Pennant Drive into Nightmare Alley? Remember 1956: The Braves took the lead in July behind righthanders Lew Burdette and Bob Buhl and southpaw Warren Spahn. But after Labor Day, when Milwaukee ran its winning streak to six for a 3 1/2-game lead, Buhl won only two games and Burdette one.

The pair pitched only one complete game between them. The Braves lost 12 of 23 and Brooklyn took the flag by a game. So what? So the St. Louis Cardinals put the rap on Milwaukee 10-1 last night, sweeping a two-game set and trimming the Braves' lead to 6 1/2 games — with Burdette failing to go the distance for the fourth consecutive time.

With Buhl sidelined at least until this weekend with a sore shoulder, and Gene Conley (an added starter this year) stopped winless in six straight starts, the Braves' staff has managed only six complete games in the last 22.

While St. Louis brought the fight to the Braves, third place Brooklyn stayed alive with a 3-1 victory at Philadelphia. The Dodgers trail by eight.

In the American League, the New York Yankees rallied and beat Boston 5-2, reclaiming a 5 1/2-game spread over idle Chicago. Chuck Stobbs blanked Baltimore on three hits for a 3-0 Washington victory in the only other AL game scheduled.

Brooklyn hanged Robin Roberts his 19th defeat — the most he ever has lost at Philadelphia; and the Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed the New York Giants again, 4-2.

The Cardinals, faced with an almost impossible task in pursuit of the Braves with only 21 games remaining, breezed in behind the four-hit pitching of Sam Jones. The big righthander fanned six and walked only one while winning his 11th.

The Redbirds, who came from 8 1/2 games behind once before this season, but needed 27 games to do it, got rolling with three in the fifth that chased Burdette to an eighth defeat.

The Dodgers tagged Roberts early on RBI doubles by Rube

Sam Jones, Cardinals—Allowed only four hits, struck out six and walked but two in 10 - 1 victory over Braves, whose run was unearned.

HITTING Bob Grim, Yankees—The relief pitcher won his own game, lofting a three-run homer in the ninth—his second home run in the majors and first hit in eight at bats for the year—that beat the Red Sox 5-2.

Basilio Dropping Welter Title If He Beats Sugar

ALEANDRIA BAY, N.Y. — Guam with the Marines, listening to Carmen Basilio beats Sugar Ray Robinson he'll keep the middleweight title and give up the welterweight championship since boxing commissions no longer allow a man to hold two or three crowns.

The National Boxing Assn. has indicated Basilio would have a choice of which to keep if he whips Robinson at Yankee Stadium Sept. 23.

"I've got a rematch contract with Robinson," Basilio said today in the midst of a two-day enforced "vacation." "If I win — and I expect to win — I'm supposed to fight Robinson again. That would rule out any idea of holding the welter title. When I give it up, I'll stick to it. Anyhow I won't have to make 147 pounds anymore."

The welter champ looks fit and ready for action at about 152 pounds.

Co-managers Joe Netro and Johnny Denhorae dreaming of a future match with Joey Giardello once the champ finishes his business with Robinson.

Basilio's biggest purse to date was about $82,000 for his Boston rematch with Tony DeMarco, Nov. 30, 1955. If all goes well, he'll draw about $300,000 for the Robinson match.

The 30-year-old onion farmer from Canastota, N.Y., is a comparative newcomer to higher finance.

WGTC Radio

HELICOPTER GETTING READY FOR ANOTHER TRIP YESTERDAY
... Air Force gave demonstrations for four hours.

For four hours a large helicopter flew around the city of Greenville yesterday.

The helicopter, dispatched from Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, came here at the request of East Carolina College officials who wanted to give its freshmen ROTC students a chance to see what they could expect later on. Capt. Andrew Johnson stated the demonstration yesterday was the first of its kind ever given in this state.

Time and time again, the $500,000 helicopter carried crews of curious people on a "joy ride" over the city. Each time it returned, more were eager to go up. The 'copter is being used by the Air Force's Air-Sea Rescue Group at the Goldsboro base. Johnson, who commands the group, said his personnel had only been called on once to rescue a pilot since the base reopened. "In the event of an emergency involving civilians we may be called upon," he went on to say. "Thus far no need for our services has arisen with the exception of rescuing one pilot who bailed out of his trainer some time ago."

Gov't Lawyers Pressing For Dismissal Of Tobacco Suit

RALEIGH (AP)—Government lawyers were expected to renew today a motion to dismiss a suit contesting discounted price supports on three flue-cured tobacco varieties.

Judge Don Gilliam, presiding in Federal District Court here, overruled the motion yesterday at the start of a hearing on the action brought by 78 Eastern North Carolina farmers. However, he said he did so "for the time being" and the motion was expected to be brought up again when attorneys for the farmers completed their evidence.

During the first day of the hearings, lawyers for the plaintiffs announced they have dropped plans to seek recovery of half a million dollars in alleged damages. Instead, they concentrated on a court order to halt the program of 50 per cent price supports on the "outlawed" tobacco varieties. The suit names as defendants the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Agriculture Secretary Benson, and agencies concerned with carrying out the discount program. It contends that Benson has authority to support tobacco prices only at 90 per cent of parity, as required by law.

Farmers who went on the stand included Quentin Stroud and Aaron Murphy of Pink Hill; Sam Robbins, Rt. 1, Elm City; Floyd Graff Jr., Kinston; and George W. Cox, Trenton. Their stories were similar. They said they planted what they thought were acceptable varieties, but in mid-season their crops were identified by government inspectors as wholly or partly "discount" varieties.

W. A. Bridgers, a Wilson chemist, also testified. He said he thought on the basis of tests he made that Robbins' crop "should be classified as acceptable."

Bridgers operates the Southern Testing and Research Laboratory. Robbins said his crop, identified as a discount variety, was produced with plants from a neighbor who seeded "711" variety and who later obtained a full-support marketing card. The discount varieties are Coker 139, Coker 140, and Dixie Bright 244. The discount action was taken because it was alleged that the varieties were low in flavor and aroma characteristics demanded by the market.

Two Elected To Positions On School Staff

Directors of Greenville Cooperative School have unanimously elected Dr. Judson White and Mrs. R. M. Garrett, Jr., to positions on the school staff.

Dr. White will be the school's psychologist, replacing the late Dr. Hazel Taylor. Mrs. Garrett was named to replace Mrs. J. E. Waltz on the advisory staff.

Classes for the school, which is for first grade students who are not eligible for public school because of age regulations, opened this week. Mrs. Rachel Rogers is directing the school which is being conducted in the Junior High School building.

A spokesman for the school said this morning that there are still a few vacancies in the class. Further information can be obtained from Dr. Frank Longino.

Hodges Declines Comment On Other States' Actions

RALEIGH (AP)—While Gov. Hodges is proud of the North Carolina way of handling the school segregation problem, he has no comment on actions of other states.

He expressed these views yesterday at his news conference when reporters sought his reactions to this week's segregation developments.

Hodges used a quotation from a speech he delivered Tuesday night to answer queries for comment on events at Greensboro, Charlotte and Winston-Salem, where 11 Negro children were enrolled in previously all-white schools. He had said, he recalled, that "I was very proud of North Carolina for the way she has met this problem... and I'm still proud."

However, Hodges declined to comment on the use of National Guard troops by Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas to block integration at a Little Rock, Ark., high school. One state should not judge another, he explained, because "We do not know all of the facts and facets" involved in the other state.

He questioned whether some accounts of the reception a Negro girl received at a Charlotte high school were exaggerated. While the accounts indicated the girl had been struck with sticks and stones, Hodges said he understood pebbles and wood shavings were thrown. It was his understanding, he added, that the crowd wanted "to show how they felt" and did not act with intention of harming the girl.

Hodges indicated he and Atty. Gen. George Patton see no possibility of bringing charges of incit-

Education Board Avoids A Fight

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Board of Education has refused again to step into the bitter Hyde County controversy over consolidation of the Englehard High School with one at Swan Quarter.

It acted yesterday by turning down a delegation's request for assignment of three teachers to the Englehard school. Despite the consolidation move by the Hyde board, 56 students enrolled at Englehard this week and volunteer teachers turned out to start classes.

A court fight to block the consolidation already is in progress, with a special term of Hyde County Superior Court set to open hearings next Monday.

Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state Supt. of Public Instruction, said the state board could not legally recognize that students are enrolled at Englehard because the county board has assigned them to Swan Quarter. Because of the Hyde Board's action, the state board assigned the county's high school teachers to Swan Quarter.

Indonesia Bans News Magazine; Claim 'Insult'

JAKARTA (AP) — Indonesian Attorney General Suprpto has ordered the Aug. 26 issue of Newsweek magazine confiscated because it said President Sukarno had been influenced by a Russian blonde.

Suprpto said the story "not only insulted the president but also the entire Indonesian people."

The Newsweek story, centering on recent elections in Java, said: "Some diplomats attribute Sukarno's pro-Soviet leanings to the influence of a beautiful blonde Russian woman who accompanied him on his return from Moscow last year."

The attorney general said he had proposed to Prime Minister Djardura that the magazine be banned. He added that any person found in possession of the magazine would face prosecution.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP) — An odd present is in store for President Eisenhower.

Maurice Tremblay, a toolmaker whose hobby is making what he calls "cockeyed clocks," said he will send a clock to the president which runs backwards and has letters instead of numbers.

The letters spell "Mr. Eisenhower," when read backward.

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER II

"Stay and have a cup of tea?" Joyce cordially invited David Gray. The police inspector hesitated for only a moment before replying. "Thanks, I believe I will," but in that instant a spark of mutual antagonism seemed to leap between him and Deborah. She was aware that she would not have seconded the invitation. Selecting the most comfortable chair, he seated himself with a plumb.

Deborah thought him annoyingly sure of himself. She had no doubt he had ample self-conceit. At breakfast that morning, Joyce had insisted on giving her his history in brief, although Deborah had protested that no subject interested her less. He was the son of a local doctor. As a boy, David Gray had planned to be a doctor but when left almost penniless in his late teens he had joined the police force and for years had walked a beat. Although his career was interrupted by military service during the war, he had risen in the police force in record time.

He was fair-haired, fresh-skinned, clear-eyed and built like an athlete; but Deborah could not like him. There was a sardonic twist to his mouth, as if he was wary of the world and watchful for false moves.

"None the worse for your adventure this morning, Miss Vail?" he said in a mockingly solicitous tone.

"You heard about it?" asked Joyce, when Deborah failed to answer.

"A constable reported the incident. He gave a description of the lady who drove recklessly into the crowd, and the registration number of her car. I told him to interest himself no further."

"I wonder you didn't have me investigated," said Deborah.

"Oh, I did," he replied, crossing his legs. "Just a routine phone call to London. The Scotland Yard people were commendably prompt. It seems you're reputed to be of very high character. No questionable associates. You were with a stock company in Bristol when Garvin was in London, so you didn't meet him there. You've never been in Garnock before, so you didn't meet you here. So you needn't be afraid that the papers will live up to the case with hints about the artist's association with a beautiful — and mysterious — actress."

"Do you often get your face slapped, Mr. Gray?" asked Deborah furiously.

"Not often. I watch out for things like that."

The following morning, Deborah stopped for petrol at a wayside garage. About to drive off, she noticed that her receipt was wrongly dated. She called the attendant back.

"This isn't Tuesday the ninth, she pointed out.

"Isn't it? He scratched his chin. "No, neither it is. Wednesday all day, isn't it?" He grinned. "Ah, well, what's the difference? As long as we both know you've paid."

Deborah looked at the name of the garage.

"Isn't this where Mr. Garvin gets his petrol?"

The attendant leaned confidently on her car door, all set for a friendly gossip.

"He did — but he doesn't. I'm afraid I've offended the gentleman. Not that I lose any sleep over it. Aye, I could tell you a thing or two about that bold lad and the fancy lady he was married to. D'ye know, he bought petrol from me the very day of the murder, when he swore he was miles away? I don't think he liked me spoiling his alibi, but what's a man to do when the police come asking?"

"When did the police question you? How long after the murder?"

"Oh, a few days. Maybe a week."

"How could you be sure of the exact day he bought petrol? It's easy to make a mistake."

"When they came asking, I looked up the sales slip. There it was, in black and white, not getting around it."

"And a week from now," said Deborah, "you'd look up the carbon of my sales slip — and be ready to swear I bought petrol on Tuesday the ninth."

Old Mrs. Craw lived alone but was never lonely. She had for company all the joys and sorrows of eighty years to live over again. And she had a window facing the road.

When not nodding before the fire, half napping, half remembering, she loved to sit by her window, watching placidly for an occasional passer-by. If someone stopped at her gate Old Mrs. Craw had the kettle on for tea and her hearing-aid in place before the caller was halfway up the path.

On this chill, cloudy morning she started Deborah by opening the door to her while the girl's hand still reached for the knocker.

"Come away in, my dear. My, you're a bonny sight in that pretty dress."

Deborah hovered diffidently, half in the tiny hall and half out.

"Come ben to the parlor. Sit ye down by the fire. We'll have a nice cup of tea."

In a casual way Deborah remarked on the tall chimneys and gray walls of the house, far off down the road, that was the only other dwelling in sight.

"That's where Mr. Garvin bides," replied Old Mrs. Craw. After a reflective pause she added, "Poor Mr. Garvin."

"Then you don't think he's guilty?"

"Ah, my dear, I don't let my mind dwell on it, one way or the other. Ye ken, it was I that saw him coming home that day. I've often wished I hadn't."

"Did he pass your cottage?"

"No, he came the other way. At the back of twelve, it was. And within the hour the poor lassie was dead."

"At that distance, how did you know it was him?"

"I've got eyes, haven't I?" said the old lady, with a touch of asperity. "He drove up in his motor car. Dressed the way he usually is, in a jacket and trousers that don't match."

"A sports jacket and slacks," said Deborah.

"Aye, it was him all right," said Mrs. Craw unhappily. "And I had to admit it to the police when they asked."

The old lady took her spectacles from her lap, wiped them on her apron, put them on, and blinked two or three times to focus her sight. She stared out of the window.

"It's an odd time for the postman," she said.

Deborah turned to look. A man on a bicycle was riding up the road but it was not a bicycle of official red, he was not in uniform, and his burden was a knapsack, not a postbag. Yes, the old lady had eyes; but they were unreliable at a distance.

Wants Changes In Traffic Laws

FARMER CITY, Ill. (AP) — Horse and buggy traffic laws still prevail in this country town and patrolman O.W. Reinke wants 'em changed.

The 1915 traffic ordinance set fines at not less than $3 and not more than $50 with collections going to the county treasury. He asks the city council to fix it so traffic fines would be from $1 to $100 and held in the city treasury.

The old law set the speed limit when rounding a corner at five miles an hour, and vehicles moving slowly must keep close to the curb to allow free passage for faster moving vehicles.

PIZZA CHAMPION

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A 240-pound retired glass worker polished off five 14-inch pepperoni pizzas yesterday to win the pizza pie eating championship of southeastern Ohio. John Scarpella won $25 and his fill of pizzas in the contest conducted by the Sons of Italy.

Radio Will Keep Bellhops Hopping

INDIANAPOLIS, (AP) — The Marriott Hotel has a new shortwave radio system to keep its bellhops on the hop.

Palmer Suddaby, general supervisor, said the system includes 28 lapel receivers and four sending stations powerful enough to reach personnel 30 feet outside the hotel.

"It should speed up our room service several hundred per cent," Suddaby said.

Tar Heel Held In Texas Robbery

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — Police here held a North Carolina man in lieu of $5,000 bond on charges of robbing a taxi driver.

Officers identified the man as John Edward Riley, 21, of Wilmington, N.C.

Taxi driver E. Palacious of Edinburg said a passenger pulled a gun on him in Hidalgo, Tex., Tuesday and took the cab. State Highway Patrolmen arrested Riley in Hidalgo later.

BAD DAY FOR BAD MEN
 ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — It was a bad day all around for three armed men who attempted to hold up a bar recently.

Bar operator Estanislado C. de Baca, who weighs less than 100 pounds, tossed one of the gun-toting trio over the bar.

Baca's sister-in-law, Mrs. Saturnina Pearce, jerked the gun out of the hand of another bandit and threw it at him.

That was too much. The trio fled.

NEW YORK (P)—The Stock Market hung at dead center early this afternoon with prices narrowly mixed and trading continuing at a slow pace.

Key issues showed plus or minus signs ranging from fractions to around a point.

The market was resuming the extreme caution it has shown all week in the absence of solid clues as to future prospects for business this fall and early next year.

Traders and investors were keeping to the sidelines in large numbers. The background of news included such items as a report that construction work in August was at a record high, that crude oil production last week fell to the lowest level in nearly two years, that demand for copper is continuing to slacken and that newsprint output is being reduced by a number of mills.

The irregular price pattern pervaded most major divisions of the list.

Chemway, which rose a point yesterday as the day's second most active stock, lost it today as the news was released about its new drug for treatment of hardening of the arteries.

North American Aviation was ahead a point following announcement of a 40 cent extra dividend, similar to one it paid last October. A 10,000-share block of United Whelan was traded unchanged at 4 1/2.

US Steel took a small loss while Youngstown Sheet rose a bit. Lukens Steel was firm.

Chrysler edged ahead. General Motors eased. Ford was off slightly. American Motors posted a fractional gain.

Among the oils, Texas Co. rose a fraction. Sinclair and Standard Oil (New Jersey) were off a little. Royal Dutch eased.

Baltimore and Ohio gained a bit. Illinois Central took a small loss. Other major carriers showed little or no change.

Kennecott was off around a point and International Nickel a major fraction. American Smel-

Pitt Farmer Injured In Collision At Intersection

A 72-year-old Pitt County farmer suffered a fractured collar bone in a traffic accident at the intersection of Wilson and Chestnut Sts. yesterday afternoon.

The driver of the other automobile involved, John C. Tripp of Vanceboro Rt. 2, escaped without injury.
