Faubus Attorneys Walk Out On Injunction Hearing; Governor Refuse s Appear

BULLETIN

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Attorneys for Gov. Orval Faubus suddenly and dramatically walked out on the injunction hearing against the governor today after declaring they do not recognize the jurisdiction of the U. S. District Court.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The history-making hearing on a requested injunction against Gov. Orval Faubus opened in U. S. District Court today—without Faubus.

The governor was under summons to appear in the case in which the government is seeking to enjoin him from further interference with integration at Little Rock Central High School.

It was the second consecutive day on which he declined to come into court.

Yesterday, he refused a federal court subpoena for another civil rights lawsuit.

Proceedings in the injunction hearing began immediately before U. S. Dist. Judge Ronald W. Davies.

There was a motion before Davies to disqualify himself on ground that he was "biased and prejudiced" against Faubus.

It was filed by Faubus' attorneys and was heard first.

Government attorneys filed a countermotion this morning to strike the affidavit against Davies.

Faubus was not strictly required under a summons to appear in person today. The U. S. District Court clerk said he could appear in person today. The U. S. Dist. Court clerk said he could be represented by attorneys.

At 9:35 a.m. it was reported Faubus was still in bed at the governor's mansion. The hearing opened at 10:04.

Davies opened the hearing by asking for arguments on the government's motion to set aside Faubus' affidavit of prejudice.

Donald B. MacGuineas, attorney from the Justice Department, rose to argue.

He said he had two principal contentions:

1. That the affidavit should have been filed 10 days before the hearing—a procedure he said is required by law.

2. That the allegations charging bias and prejudice on the part of Davies were not true.

The courtroom was packed and corridors outside were filled.

Inside the small courtroom, one side was completely filled with whites, the other side predominantly by Negroes with a few whites.

Some of the white spectators were recognized by newsmen as having been among the crowds that gathered outside Central High after it was surrounded by National Guardsmen.

The jury box was filled entirely by reporters. No jury is used in a case of this kind.

The case is the first test of authority by the U. S. government with a state government over the emotion-torn issue of integrating the public schools.

The issue is clear and simple. Did Faubus make illegal use of the National Guard? Did he violate the constitutional rights of the students?

Or did his mandate to maintain peace and order in the state give him the right to use the guardsmen on such a mission?

Technically, the lawsuit is over the government's petition for injunctions against Faubus, ordering him to stop interfering with the integration of the high school.

Re-Elected

Dr. G. Grady Dixon of Ayden was reelected president of the State Board of Health at its Raleigh meeting yesterday. Other officers elected were Dr. J. R. Bender of Winston-Salem, vice president, and Dr. Charles Bugg of Raleigh, Executive Committee member.

Gromyko Says West To Blame

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko blamed the West today for the tense Middle East situation. He declared Russia "cannot watch impassively over a situation that bears upon its own security."

The Soviet leader struck back vigorously at charges made by Secretary of State Dulles that the Kremlin was endangering peace in the Middle East by sending arms to Arab countries.

Gromyko told the 82-nation General Assembly "The Soviet Union cannot place itself in the position of an impassive observer while the Near and Middle East—an area close to the frontiers of the Soviet Union, is being turned into a permanent hotbed of military conflicts."

He accused the West of inventing charges against the Soviet Union to hide its own intentions to dominate the Middle East.

He placed the blame specifically on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and asserted that "rude political and economic pressure is being exerted" against Syria.

"Lately," he said, "she is being more and more frequently threatened with open military intervention."

The reason for this, Gromyko continued, "is that the people of Syria and their government refuse to submit to foreign dictation or to allow their country to be drawn into aggressive blocs."

He declared that the U. S. position on the Syrian problem is ample proof "that the Eisenhower Doctrine is completely hostile to the interests of the people of the Near East."

Dulles told the Assembly yesterday that Turkey is facing a "growing military danger" as a result of Soviet arms massed along the Syrian border and also along the Soviet-Turkish frontier.

Gromyko took copious notes while Dulles was making his charges.

United Fund To Organize; Chest Maps Final Effort

Simultaneous announcements here today revealed plans for a fund-raising campaign by the Greenville Community Chest next month, and the formation of a group for the organization of a county-wide United Fund for Pitt to go into operation during 1958.

The announcements came from J. B. Kittrell Jr., president of the Community Chest, and A. Hartwell Campbell, who will serve as chairman of a steering committee for the organization of a United Fund in Pitt County.

Both announcements were an outgrowth of recent action by the Board of Directors of the Greenville Community Chest.

Prior to its campaign last year, the Board of Directors of the Community Chest announced it would not conduct a fund raising campaign during 1957 unless its 1956 goal were realized. The goal was not reached and early this year the Community Chest directors reiterated their stand with the announcement that a campaign would not be held this year.

At a special meeting last week, several local citizens asked directors of the Community Chest to conduct a campaign this year for funds for Boy and Girl Scouts and other chest agencies. The Chest directors agreed to conduct a campaign for funds this year only and on condition that a United Fund be organized locally not later than the first quarter of 1958.

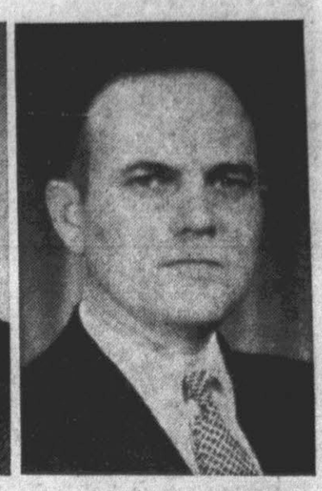

J. B. Kittrell Sr. and S. Reynolds May will serve as co-chairmen for the Community Chest campaign which will seek a goal of $14,000. The campaign is slated to begin October 14. The co-chairmen said today appointments of other officials for the fund-raising effort will be announced within the next few days.

S. REYNOLDS MAY

A. HARTWELL CAMPBELL

In the simultaneous announcement concerning the organization of a United Fund, Campbell said he will head the steering committee for organization composed of J. B. Kittrell Jr. and E. E. Rawl Sr. of Greenville, Bob Young of Bethel, Sam Nelson of Grifton, Bill Monk of Farmville, and Corey Stokes of Ayden.

"County-wide community needs force upon us the necessity of collective action to adequately support many worthy causes," Campbell said. "The United way is the proven successful way to fulfill these community needs. Pitt County stands in great need of such an organized effort."

Campbell is general manager of television station WNCT and secretary of the Carolina Broadcasting System. He is president of Sentinel Life Insurance company and a member of the executive committee of Carolinas United, the organization of United Funds in North and South Carolina. Kittrell and Rawl serve as members of the Board of Directors of Carolinas United.

Campbell said today organizational plans for a county-wide United Fund would be in progress in the near future, and he added that the organization is expected to be effected early in 1958. No United Fund campaign is planned locally, he said, until the fall of 1958 at which time funds will be raised for the operation of red feather agencies during the year 1959.

President Kittrell of the Community Chest said that when the organization decided not to have a fund-raising campaign this year, it was with the hope that a United effort would be in operation for a unified campaign this fall. "In order to avoid having seven separate drives this fall," Kittrell said, "the board agreed to hold a campaign for this year only with the understanding that a county-wide steering committee be formed to have a United Fund organized by the first quarter of 1958."

Question Teamster Election

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal Dist. Judge J. Dickinson Letts indicated today he would sign an order directing the Teamsters Union to show cause why election of new union officers should not be delayed.

A group of union members in New York is seeking to block elections at the Teamsters convention opening in Miami Sept. 30.

They contend Teamster convention delegates have been designated illegally to rig election of James R. Hoffa as union president.

Judge Letts directed that attorneys for the group prepare a proposed order for his signature.

The judge said the order prepared for his signature should require a hearing here Sept. 27.

Letts said Teamsters officials should be served with notice of the hearing by Sept. 24. Most of them are already in Florida for convention preliminaries.

Godfrey P. Schmidt, attorney representing a group of New York area rank and file Teamsters members in the proceedings, said the order he expected the judge to sign this afternoon was a victory.

He said it kept open a strong possibility that the elections can be blocked by federal court order until such time as new convention delegates can be chosen. He said present delegates were "hand-picked" by Hoffa, the Union's Midwest Teamsters boss, and retiring union President Dave Beck.

Schmidt filed a petition yesterday for a restraining order against an election by what he contends is the prospectively packed convention.

New Lights For West End Circle

Mercury vapor lights are to be installed at newly-modernized West End Circle, Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam announced today.

Poles for the special lights will be mounted in the traffic islands which separate the four-lane drive in that business area.

The mercury lights will be installed beginning at the divided roadway on the Kinston highway entering the city. They will continue to Truman St. at the north end of the circle.

Lights will also be installed along U. S. 264 to the Moose Lodge and on a short portion of N.C. 11- U.S. 13 beyond the Dickinson Ave. intersection.

Bloxam said 25 to 30 mercury lights will be needed for the project and the cost he estimated at around $4,000.

The utilities superintendent said plans are to use green salt treated wooden poles rather than creosote posts.

The green salt poles are light green in color and they can be painted with aluminum paint, he pointed out.

The lighting project is being carried out by the Utilities Commission. The job will probably be done as the highway work in the intersection progresses.

EXPECTING ANOTHER

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP)—Princess Grace of Monaco, the former Grace Kelly of Hollywood and Philadelphia, is expecting her second child in March, a palace informant announced today.

The Future Holds This

WHOA, NOT YET
. . . local flu vaccine supply still scarce.

Flu Vaccine Is 'Available' Soon

A globe-trotting epidemic of Asian flu, looking for a home in the United States, has not yet found the road to Pitt County.

Officials of the Pitt County Health Department said this morning that a spot check of physicians in the county yesterday failed to disclose any "appreciable increase in the amount of influenza in the county." The check, which was ordered by the State Board of Health, will be made weekly until the U. S. Public Health Service says the danger of an epidemic in the United States is past.

The Public Health Service hoisted its warning flags higher today, reporting a total of at least 100,000 cases in the country. Mississippi, with a reported 20,000 cases, and California, with a reported 16,000 cases, are the country's danger points at the present time, according to the Public Health Service.

Dr. Joseph D. Franzoni, acting director of the Pitt County Health Department, and Miss Julia Fisher the department's chief nurse, said today that "a few cases" had been reported in the county, but the number was not extraordinary.

The Health Department officials also said that special vaccine, which is the chief means of combatting the disease, has not yet been made available to county health departments by the State Board of Health.

"Vaccine will be made available to county health units, but there has been no announcement of the date," Dr. Franzoni said. "There has not been any announcement, either, of whether a priority basis for distribution will be set up for such vaccine," he added.

A Greenville druggist said this morning, however, that one vaccine manufacturer's product should become available this weekend. The druggist added that, according to his information, the vaccine would come in multiple-dose quantities for distribution to physicians and that individuals would not be able to obtain single doses from retail drug outlets.

Small quantities of vaccine have already been made available to physicians in the county, the druggist said.

In the absence of large quantities of the vaccine, Miss Fisher suggested that persons who have symptoms of the disease "should go to bed and contact a doctor for diagnosis and treatment."

"Other than that," she said, "there is no real preventive except to follow good health practices." She suggested adequate rest, proper foods and good hygiene practices.

Bedfast Boy Is Class President

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP)—A boy whose only link with school is a telephone line is the president of the 10th grade class at Moberly Junior High School.

The newly elected class president, bedfast temporarily because of a spinal ailment, is Bob Mohney, 14.

Bob has been confined since last May, when physicians discovered some bone deterioration near the base of his spine. It is uncertain how long he will be bedfast.

He is keeping up his studies by home-to-school telephone service.

Two Typhoons Threaten Luzon

MANILA (AP)—Two typhoons today swirled out of the Pacific toward the Philippines threatening the rich agricultural areas of northern Luzon Island.

The newest typhoon, named Gloria, was last located 80 miles east of the eastern Luzon coast. It packed 140 m.p.h. center winds. The Manila Weather Bureau said it was expected to hit Luzon sometime tonight or early tomorrow.

Lethal Cyanide Removed From Ontario Town

THAMESVILLE, Ont. (AP)—The 1,100 residents of this southern Ontario town heaved a collective sigh of relief today. Workers had removed 25,000 pounds of deadly cyanide dumped in the streets by a truck-train collision.

Chemical experts said all dangers from the poisonous dust and pellets was past.

Workmen using bulldozers and trucks scraped up the spilled cyanide yesterday and hauled it to a disposal ditch two miles from town. From there it will be transferred to a plant at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

A load of 10,000 pounds of sodium hyperchloride was spread at the crash scene in the center of Thamesville to neutralize any dangerous cyanide properties remaining.

The cyanide — 55 drums of copper cyanide dust and 155 drums of sodium cyanide in egg-sized pellets — was aboard a truck that was chopped in two by a Canadian National Railways passenger train shortly before midnight Wednesday.

The dangerous cargo spewed out along more than 300 feet of road and right-of-way. Cyanide dust piled up two to three feet high in some spots.

A spokesman for Du Pont of Canada said there was no threat of deadly fumes. But he acknowledged the flakes could burn skin and cause death if taken internally. The wrecked truck was carrying the cyanide from the E.I. du Pont Co., in Buffalo to Detroit.

The driver, J. C. Sluder of Wayne, Mich., was treated for shoulder injuries and cuts. He said he tried to stop when he saw the train approaching the crossing "but I was so close I couldn't stop."

The locomotive crew suffered some burns. About a score of workmen were reported suffering from skin burns received during the cleanup operation. Some Thamesville residents reported the dust caused skin and eye irritations.

Cyanides such as those aboard the wrecked truck are used in electroplating and mining.

Below-Freezing After Big Snow

HELENA, Mont. (AP)—Subfreezing temperatures gripped parts of the Rocky Mountain area today in the wake of one of the heaviest snowfalls in Helena's history.

Nearly 14 inches fell during a 24-hour period ended yesterday. A transient laborer was frozen to death as the blizzard snarled traffic and disrupted communications.

The body of Stephan Hat, about 50, Crawford, Neb., was found yesterday at Spokane, Wash., in an open railroad car that had crossed the Montana Rockies.

The U.S. Weather Bureau put out frost warnings as far south as Denver. Temperatures in many cities in Montana, Wyoming and Colorado were expected to dip into the 20s.

Wilson Thinks US Gaining On Soviet Armed Strength

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Wilson says he believes "we have gained on the Russians in relative military strength since 1953," despite manpower cuts and other Pentagon economy moves.

Claiming gains from better weapons, including missiles, Wilson hinted at still further manpower cutbacks as he discussed at a news conference a 100,000-man force reduction ordered yesterday. That cut, to be effective by next June 30, will reduce the nation's military strength to 2,600,000 men.

He called it a fair assumption still further cuts may be made in connection with the next fiscal budget which goes to Congress in January.

The 100,000-man cut, Wilson said means the Air Force will have to drop at least four wings, the Army will have to deactivate one more division, and the Navy will have to take more ships out of active service.

The secretary said this can be done "without impairment of our national security" and without materially affecting deployment of troops overseas.

This cut and an earlier 100,000-man reduction ordered in July are calculated to reduce military spending by about a billion dollars. The Pentagon is trying to keep its outlays within 38 billion dollars this year.

Wilson also disclosed plans to pare the Defense Department's civilian payroll by 35,000 to 40,000 workers. This would be in addition to a 53-000-worker reduction announced earlier. There was no estimate of the saving from this move.

The defense chief said the manpower cutbacks were approved by President Eisenhower.

At the same news conference, Wilson discounted the importance of a Russian claim last month that Soviet weaponeers had made a successful test of an intercontinental ballistic missile.

Wilson said that what the Russian report said "is probably actually true." But he contended the Soviets made only a general statement that they had develed a missile, that it had performed as it was intended to do, and that the test results indicated such projectiles could be directed toward any part of the world.

The secretary added that "the United States could have said the same thing months ago."

Wilson said that in his opinion the Russians don't have an operational missile. But he said they will have one someday — "and so will we."

Later, William M. Holaday, Wilson's special assistant on long-range weapons development, said in a speech to a scientific meeting that the United States "has sent a test ballistic missile thousands of miles."

A defense official said Holaday referred to a successful launching last November of a modified Army Jupiter, an intermediate range missile designed to travel 1,500 miles. On this test, the Jupiter went 3,000 miles.

In explaining the reasons behind the new manpower trimming, Wilson said, "We are so close to the debt limit that the Treasury can't even borrow the money." The legal ceiling on the national debt is 275 billion dollars.

Four-Day Strike Over For Telephone Workers

NEW YORK (AP)—The nationwide four-day strike of 23,800 telephone exchange equipment installers ended today with agreement on a new contract. A back-to-work movement began almost immediately.

The installers, employes of Western Electric Co., and who are members of the Communications Workers of America, were reported here to be streaming back to their tasks in the 44 states in which the strike was effective.

Long distance operators, who had been observing the picket lines of their striking fellow employes, also returned.

The negotiators for the company and the union settled on pay increases ranging from 6 to 12 cents an hour plus other benefits.

The 6-to-12 cent boost had been offered by the Western Electric in recent negotiation sessions but had been rejected by the union until today.

Both sides expressed satisfaction with the settlement, reached after months of negotiations.

Alfred C. Billotte, chief negotiator for Western Electric, manufacturing arm of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., said: "We're very pleased this is over and that the agreement is eminently fair to both sides."

Joseph Dunne, national director of the CWA's installation unit, said increases and other benefits give the installers an hourly package of 13.2 cents. He described this as the highest settlement in the Bell Telephone System this year.

Dunne said return-to-work messages were being sent to installers across the nation.

The AT&T has said it maintained normal long-distance service throughout the country despite the fact that many thousands of operators and other employes honored the CWA's picket lines.

Supervisory personnel handled a large part of the work load.

Most local telephone service was virtually unaffected because of automatic dialing equipment.

The agreement is subject to ratification by union members.

A separate statewide strike against the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. continued today.

About 18,500 CWA members, mostly operators, struck against Ohio Bell in a contract dispute at the same time the nationwide strike against Western Electric started last Monday Morning. Negotiations in the Ohio strike continue today in Cleveland. No progress was reported after two short meetings last night.

The installers strike was in 44 states and the District of Columbia, unaffected were Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Montana, where local telephone companies maintain their own equipment.

Psychiatrist Opines Grimes 'Temporarily Insane'

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP)—A psychiatrist told a Beaufort Superior Court jury today it was his "professional opinion" that J. D. Grimes Jr. was "temporarily insane" at the time of the shooting of Haywood Paul.

Dr. Harry Brick of Richmond, Va., was called to the stand to bolster Grimes' defense against a second degree murder charge in the slaying of Paul, a tenant farmer.

Grimes has admitted firing four shots into Paul when, he said, he discovered Mrs. Grimes and Paul having sexual relations under a tobacco barn shelter near the Grimes home. He said the sight "completely drove me out of my mind."

Dr. Brick said he based his opinion on consultations with Grimes since the slaying and on a hypothetical question asked him by defense lawyer John C. Rodman outlining circumstances of the slaying as the defense claims they happened.

"In my opinion, Grimes was not in sufficient possession of his mental faculties to know the nature and quality of the act he was doing," said Dr. Brick.

A person aroused from a sound sleep, as Grimes said he was on the night of the slaying, would be in "sort of a twilight state," the psychiatrist explained. In such a condition, he continued, the "shocking situation" which Grimes said he encountered would "further aggravate his already disturbed condition."

Dr. Brick added, "He was certainly not responsible for what he was doing."

The defense also called a number of character witnesses, including the Rev. Wilfred T. Waterhouse, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, where both Grimes and his wife are members.

Later today, the state was expected to begin calling its witnesses. There were indications that Judge Joseph W. Parker would hold night sessions, if necessary, to get the case to the jury this weekend.

Grimes, 42, attorney and member of a prominent family, has pleaded innocent in the pistol slaying of Haywood Paul, 47, on grounds of temporary insanity.

Grimes related to a jury in Beaufort Superior Court yesterday how he discovered his wife and Paul having sexual relations under a tobacco barn shelter near the Grimes home late the night of Aug. 16.

Disclosure of a letter warning of an affair between his wife and Paul was one of the highlights of yesterday's dramatic session. The letter was written by Paul's wife last October to Grimes' father. In it, Mrs. Paul stated that an affair between her husband and Mrs. Grimes had been "going on ever since the early spring."

She said her husband had "broke up four" marriages and warned that if something was not done "someone is going to get hurt and hurt bad."

J. D. Grimes Sr., 79-year - old lawyer, told the court Mrs. Paul had talked with him later and said "she had found out she was mistaken and asked me to forget all about it."

The younger Grimes was on the witness stand nearly five hours. He said "I feel like I went crazy" over the shock of finding his almost nude wife having an affair with Paul. The tenant farmer was shot four times with a .32 caliber pistol.

Grimes testified he trusted his wife and refused to believe she was having an affair with Paul. He said that he discussed the letter with his wife and his father.

"I trusted my wife and trusted Haywood," he declared, adding that he told his wife he thought it would be best if Paul did not "hang around" the Grimes home "too much."

Under cross examination, he said that he and his wife have continued to live at their home since the shooting but "not as man and wife in any sense of the word."

He and his wife have not separated, he testified, because of their five children. "What we will do in the future I don't know," he said.

Mrs. Grimes, 39, has not appeared in court. Grimes said that after the shooting his wife ran to him and "I pushed her away from me and cursed her."

She became hysterical and was under a doctor's care for several days, Grimes testified.

Woman's Club Hears Dr. Jenkins Last Night

"A new world is struggling to be born. We must prepare our children for this new world which will be, in effect, a Second Industrial Revolution. This new world will be characterized by five things: atomic energy, electronic controls, longer life, more democratic society in terms of comforts of life, and leisure time," said Dr. Leo Jenkins when he addressed the Woman's Club last night.

Adding, "It is suggested that we give study to a seven year elementary school of 10½ months each year or a total education of 72½ months, and three years high school, eleven months each year or a total of 33 months.

Save Three Years

"Colleges should consider a three year under-graduate program instead of four with regular sessions being held in the summer. The over-all educational program will be about the same, but students would save three precious years in their young lives, and our multibillion educational program would have much greater utilization."

Dr. Jenkins who is vice president of East Carolina College concluded.

"Every community in North Carolina should have a citizens committee for better schools charged with the purpose of giving constant study to a school curriculum, organization, and calendar, suitable for life in an atomic age."

He was introduced by Mrs. J. H. B Moore.

Members were received by Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, past-president, and Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, honorary life president, and introduced to the new members—Mrs. Wardell Worthington, Mrs. B. C. Intriguing is the manner in which Marion McCoy has extended the pocket flange on her wool-and-rabbit's-hair dress to form a loop over the covered belt . . . which continues down the opposite side to the other pocket, caught down with a massive jewelled pin. Flattering is the contrasting toned curved yoke which fastens with three covered buttons, a slot seam following down the length of the bodice.

Christian Education Director

(Reflector Photo)

Miss Carolyn Clapp . . . busy girl now.

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

A local girl has recently become Director of Christian Education at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Miss Carolyn Clapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Clapp, explains her new position:

"I have three areas of duties. I am junior choir director, counselor for the Young Churchmen, and I direct the Sunday school activities. This is stimulating and interesting work because I am constantly working with people and children," she adds.

Miss Clapp has behind her quite a bit of experience with children. She has served for the past three years as third grade teacher in the Raleigh city school system.

A graduate of Greenville High School, Miss Clapp majored in primary education at East Carolina College.

This versatile, friendly person attended an Episcopal Seminary, the Nashotah House, in Wisconsin this summer to prepare her for her new duties. During the three summers prior, she attended workcamps in New York, the slums of St. Louis, and Southern France.

Active in church activities, Miss Clapp was an advisor for the teen-age church group while in Raleigh, participated in the choir, and taught Sunday school.

Nominations Committee Report Heard At Last Night's PTA Meet

The nomination committee gave their report when the West Greenville PTA met last night at the school auditorium.

Mrs. J. T. Cox was named vice president, Mrs. George Gardner, treasurer, and Mrs. Glen Cannon, secretary.

Mrs. Amos Evans, president, welcomed the group and Eddie Gray stressed prayer in the home when he gave the devotion. Teachers were introduced by Mrs. Agnes Fullilove, principal, and the anticipated budget was read by Mrs. George Gardner, treasurer, during the business meeting.

Junius H. Rose, guest speaker, discussed the present and future problems in the school.

Following the meeting a receiving line was formed consisting of the new teachers and the PTA officers. Each teacher was presented a corsage. The school colors, blue and yellow, were carried out in the fall flower arrangements that were used for the tea.

GRIFTON—The Hoe and Hope Garden Club held their first meeting of the 1957-58 year Thursday night of last week at the home of Mrs. McDonald Weatherington on Charles Street where arrangements of garden flowers were used throughout the home.

Mrs. Weatherington presided at the business meeting. Members discussed plans for the year's work, improvements on programs which would appeal to more members, and community projects.

Committees were appointed and a social outing planned for members.

Announcement of a horticulture meeting in Warsaw on October 10 was made and members were asked to attend.

The hostess served refreshments.

Mrs. Shackleford Wins High Score

GRIFTON—Mrs. Roy Jackson was hostess on Thursday night of last week when she had as guests members of her contract club and invited players.

Garden flowers were used to decorate the home and congealed salad, ham biscuits, brownies and cold drinks were served as cards were laid aside.

During the progressions highest scores were compiled by Mesdames Sam Nelson and Mark Phillips for club members and for visitors Mrs. Frances Shackleford. Making up the tables were Mesdames Walter Patrick, Ben G. Tucker, Kathleen Garris, Edward Hart, Woodrow Smith, Roger Johnson, Kenneth Talton, David Parker and G. L. Tucker.

Christian Science Society

Man's God-given dominion over disease and discord will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Matter" is the Golden Text from I John (2:15): "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love thee world, the love of the Father is not in him."

Selections to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (381:20-21): "Think less of the enactments of mortal mind, and yiu will sooner grasp man's God-given dominion."

Scriptural passages will include the following from Romans (8:5): "For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of Spirit."

Constitution Week Being Observed By DAR Group

FARMVILLE—In observance of Constitution Week, facsimiles of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights were on display and also pamphlets on these Charters of Freedom when the Major Benjamin May Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met. During the meeting the message of the President General, Mrs. Frederick A. Grove, was read which stated: "Let us be realistic and know that only by preserving our Constitution in its entirety and with the vigor of its system of checks and balances can we be assured of a future that is consistent with the love of liberty that is inherent in the American people.

"Let us not continue to allow any encroachment upon these precious liberties — encroachments that allow either the Federal or executive to absorb any part of the legislative. The legislative is another name for the Voice of the People. Be vocal and courageous in defense of Freedom, Americans, wherever you are."

Mrs. H. D. Moye, Regent, welcomed the members and called attention to the Proclamation of Constitution Week for 17-23 by the Farmville mayor, Charles S. Edwards. He stated, "It is essential to support our Constitution which is the most wonderful work ever made at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

Mrs. Ellen Lewis Carroll, program chairman, distributed the yearbooks and explained the selection of the subjects and where to find the material. She suggested that each program leader give her own program.

8th District Meeting Wednesday

Mrs. Moye read an invitation from the Major Reading Blount Chapter in Washington, N. C. to attend the meeting of the 8th District on September 25.

She announced that two members of the Major Benjamin May chapter would be installed as officers of the District—Miss Elizabeth Lang as director and Mrs. J. O. Pollard as secretary-treasurer—and asked that a large delegation attend to witnness the installation.

Miss Lang read a letter of appreciation for the flowers sent at the time of the death of Mrs. Hugh S. Sheppard, a member of the chapter. Mrs. Moye read a letter from a member, Mrs. Percy Thigpen of Rocky Mount, saying she is compiling the genealogical records of her father, the late Andrew Joyner.

Mrs. Preston M. Murphrey told of a recent trip to New Bern when Miss Gertrude S. Carraway invited her to Tryon Palace. She mentioned that the Palace would be open in about ten months.

Mrs. Carroll, membership chairman, presented two names for membership, Miss Nancy Lewis of Farmville and Tarboro and Mrs. Edna Williams Cox of Greenville.

Arrangements were made to serve a luncheon on October 12. The next chapter meeting will be on October 5.

On September 24 at 7 p.m. a dinner will be given at the chapter house honoring the State Regent, Mrs. Roy H. Cagle, and the other state officers who will attend the district meeting in Washington on Wednesday. They will be guests of the chapter members for the night.

No Excuse Now To Be Unprepared

Every reasonable precaution should be taken by Pitt County as the number of cases of flu reach epidemic proportions in communities of several states.

Health authorities are keeping a watchful eye on the situation for any indication that an appreciable number of flu cases exist in this county.

But that is not enough!

Some overall plan should be developed immediately to deal with an emergency situation should the highly contagious disease reach epidemic proportions in Pitt County.

Though some vaccine is now available, there is not enough to go around. Officials have said it will be at least the first of the year before there will be available a sufficient amount even for those people in "essential" classifications. We must assume therefore that measures in addition to that of mass innoculation against the disease must be planned.

Health officials, in conjunction with school officials and others, should set up a plan which could be put into operation with minimum notice should the disease threaten to become widespread in this area. Perhaps the plan would include the closing of schools before flu reached the epidemic level in Pitt. Perhaps it would also include the cancelling of public meetings, training in home nursing and a number of other measures.

These suggestions may sound drastic; but the situation should be viewed realistically. We cannot afrod another flu epidemic like the one of 1918 which claimed a million American lives. These and many other measures were used during that critical epidemic, but for the most part the emergency measures were put into effect only after a great toll was taken.

In 1918 the disease was called Spanish flu. The nation was fore-warned and some measures—which proved grossly inadequate were taken. Today, four decades later with modern methods for the prevention and treatment of disease, it will be inexcusable if Pitt or any other county is taken by surprise with a flu epidemic.

That Tax Repayment Is The Hardest Part

It's a good feeling to receive through the mails a check, large or small. But it's awfully hard, a week or a month later to receive a notice that part of the money has to be returned.

That's the situation facing Pitt County and its eight municipalities with their intangble tax receipts from the state. The Department of Revenue made an error of $281,500 in distributing the intangible tax fund to local governments throughout the state. Pitt County and the municipalities in this county were among those overpaid.

Now, in addition to sending back to the state amounts ranging from $991.74 for the county government to $2.09 for the town of Grimesland and the local governments must do the additional bookkeeping work involved in the transaction.

We'd have felt better about it if Pitt and its municipalities had been short-changed in the first transaction and could not expect another check from the state rather than having to send back to Raleigh money already received.

It's our guess the Department of Revenue will be extra careful next year when it distributes this fund to local governments.

'Harmony' Was Not The Word

By LYNN NISBET

POST MORTEM — Scraps of information picked up from casual talks with persons who attended the regional Democratic conference here early this week indicated that it was "harmonious" only in the sense that nobody slugged anybody else with his fists, or used such violent language as to justify expulsion from the meeting.

Chairman Paul Butler told newsmen after the meeting that issues were not discussed, only organization and finances, and that he was pleased with results. He also reported that no policies or resolutions were adopted except the "bread and butter" appreciation of North Carolina's hospitality. That resolution was definitely in order, because although it was a national committee affair the North Carolina chairman signed a check on the State party bank account for the meeting rooms, the dinner and luncheon, and the State provided transportation for visitors to and from airports and rail stations.

It appears that Chairman Butler has a slightly different definition of "harmony" from that given in the dictionary. The Monday night session, billed as a time for letting down hair, almost developed into a hairpulling affair. Issues and policies were discussed and plain talk was the rule.

Consensus is that the session was fruitful. It served to clear the atmosphere on at least two points about which there had been some misunderstanding, of lack of information. The Southerners know now that they cannot expect and need not hope for concessions on part of the national organization with respect to civil rights and race relations. The national chairman knows better than before that opposition to the national policies on these matters is not confined to a few radicals and troublemakers in the South, but is deeply imbedded in the hearts and minds of nearly all the citizens.

SOUTHERN — Eastern North Carolinians right now are as much interested in the Southern Railway as in Souther politics. Plans are in the making for a "Salute the Southern" party to be held somewhere along the line of the A&NC railroad between Goldsboro and Morehead City to welcome the Southern's acquisition of the operating lease on that line. The project, sponsored by chambers of commerce and other civic groups in the towns, contemplates having President Harry DeButts and other high ranking Southern Railway officials as honor guests.

The party will be somewhat belated but carries out the main idea which James M. White, secretary of the N.C. Railroad Association, had for breaking the announcement that the Southern had decided to buy the A&EC stock and franchise. White and others felt the development was of sufficient importance to rate good publicity in North Carolina. The unfortunate timing of the announcement when it was made reduced the story to a few paragraphs under small head. It was released in Washington by President DeButts as a routine item, because the deal was not a major project for the far flung Southern system.

That same afternoon Governor Hodges released the news in Raleigh, at a special conference of reporters, business men and State officials called for the purpose of announcing the prospective development of a research park by Karl Robbins in the heart of the Research triangle. The railroad announcement was incidental and secondary to the main agenda of that conference. It is of primary interest to the middle eastern part of the state, and the folks in that territory want to show recognition of its importance.

RURAL—URBAN — Early indications are that if there develop real contests for seats in the next Congress the issue of big towns against rural areas and small towns may be in the background. Majority of North Carolina's representatives live in less than the largest towns of their respective districts. Exceptions are Alton Lennon of Wilmington in the seventh district; Basil Whitener of Gastonia in the 11th and George Shuford of Asheville in the 12th.

There are only four districts in which one city stands out as a dominant population factor. Raleigh in the fourth; Winston-Salem in the fifth; Charlotte in the 10th and Asheville in the 12ti..

The first district has Elizabeth City, Greenville and Washington in the 10,000 or above class. The second has Wilson and Kinston with half of Rocky Mount. The third has Goldsboro and New Bern. The sixth has Burlington, Durham, Greensboro and High Point. The seventh has Fayetteville and Wilmington. The eighth has Lexington, Monroe and Thomasville. The ninth has Albemarle, Concord, Salisbury and Statesville (and it also has Kannapolis, unincorporated but about as big a "city" as any of the others). The 11th has Gastonia and Shelby.

In most of these districts the cities or towns listed have approximately equal prestige, although varying in population. While Winston-Salem is by far the dominant city in the fifth district, Reidsville is not by any means a little country town. Charlotte, the biggest city in the Carolinas, dominates the 10th district, but Hickory with its nearly 20,000 is an important population center.

The point of this story is that if opposition develops to incumbent congressmen it is most likely to come from the big towns in the district.

Season Coming For Shoplifters

By ELMER ROESSNER

One way to cut down shoplifting in a store is to mount an old television camera — or something that looks like one—above the selling area. It's even more effective if there's a red light on it.

Many stores are playing this trick on shoplifters and probably many more will do it during the holiday shopping season.

It doesn't cut pilferage by employees because they soon know the camera is a dummy. Eventually shoplifters find it out too. But until they do, they hesitate to take chances.

A longer-lasting way to curb shoplifters is to install genuine closed-circuit television systems. These also check employee pilferage.

Television store - watching works two ways: It enables store protection systems to spot and get evidence on shoplifters; it frightens shoplifters away.

IN 11 BIG STORES

Eleven of the largest stores in the country are now using closed-circuit television, according to John R. Howland, television sales manager for Thompson Products. The latest is Gimbels downtown store in New York, where a system was put in operation this month. The pioneer was the Halle Brothers store in Cleveland.

Alexanders reports that thefts were reduced 70 per cent in the first month after TV eyes were placed in its five New York stores; Blauners, in Philadelphia, reports that a single camera trained on the entrance reduced losses from $3,900 to $900 a month.

It is portable that many other stores will establish such systems before the Christmas rush begins. This rush is the harvest season for shoplifters. The crowds, the confusion and the unwariness of temporary help make shoplifting less difficult. Many shoplifters are said to retire for months on their thefts between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Some stores estimate their loss by theft as high as 2 per cent of sales. Since department and variety stores — principal victims of these thieves — sell about $15 billion worth of goods a year, shop-lifting losses may be as high as $300,000,000 annually.

COSTS VARY

A single television camera costs about $1,500 installed. A typical camera has four lenses in a turret mounting, with a motor-driven housing. The camera shoots at almost any angle and takes long, medium and close-up pictures, all by remote control from an office in the store's protection bureau.

Wiring and monitoring costs are extra. Many stores have several cameras, sometimes two or more on each busy floor. A store may also add a still camera, to make permanent records of incriminating scenes on the television scene. It may also add a walkie-talkie system by which the monitor can direct store detectives to suspicious persons.

Most stores make their cameras as conspicuous as possible; they would much prefer to frighten thieves away than to arrest them. However, sometimes a store will conceal one or two cameras as added protection. It's a common practice to add a few dummy cameras when installing a TV protecting system. In some places, live and dummy cameras are rotated so shoplifters never know whether they are being watched or not.

There are almost always blind spots in closed-circuit systems, but this is of little advantage. Store detectives are told that shoplifters, as soon as they find these spots, will concentrate their activities there, hence be more readily caught by live detectives.

WOMEN LOSE A SPOT IN THE ADVERTISING SUN

The women-in-liquor-ads rhubarb is over.

It flared up when Rums of Puerto Rico used women in its advertising. The Distilled Spirits Institute objected, as did Senator Warren G. Magnuson, chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, and a number of prohibitionists. The public, however, took it calmly.

However, Governor Luis Munoz Marin of Puerto Rico decided not to antagonize either Congress or the Institute, and asked the rum group to "eliminate the controversial lady."

MAY BE THEY MAKE IT UP ON SALES OF DRESSING

Some retail stores lose money on turkeys during the Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons, judging from a Department of Agriculture study. It found that these stores feature turkeys at near-zero margins, which means that after overhead, the stores lose money on each sale.

Railroads Of Pitt County

That train, that "stranger" in town that carried a crowd of ECC football fans to Portsmouth, was enough of a novelty hereabouts to cause some talk, some headlines and some pictures.

It called to mind once again the importance of transportation in the past, as well as today, in developing — or "opening up" — areas to the march of golden progress.

These days we talk about the need of aerial service for forward-looking communities; in other days it was the railroad, and, truth to tell, the railroad is still mightily important. Take for instance Southern's assuming operating control of the Atlantic and East Carolina Railway.

Railroads have frequently made it a matter of policy to develop areas they serve in order to bolster their own business. It paid off big, if for example an agricultural area was helped to establish industries; railroads profited, communities profited.

Why we have towns in Pitt today whose existence is largely based on railroad traffic of the past.

As of 1911, Pitt had the Atlantic Coast Line passing through the county from north to south, and the Norfolk and Southern ran from east to west. They intersected each other in Greenville. Another branch of the ACL, from Parmele to Washington, passed through the northeastern part of the county for a distance of about 18 miles. The East Carolina, from Tarboro to Hookerton, passed throuhh the western part of Pitt for 10 miles; and the Beaufort County Lumber Co. had a road from Greenville to near Vanceboro that carried some passengers as well as freight.

The earliest account of railroading in Pitt, that I could find in Henry King's "Sketches of Pitt County," relates that by 1890 the Scotland Neck and Kinston Railroad was completed to Kinston and a regular train service began. This gave a boom to Grifton. King says "This railroad ran through a fine section of country and other little towns sprang up along its route. Among them were Ayden and Winterville."

Pactolus was on the Washington Branch RR, extending from Parmele to Washington, and nearly all its length in Pitt. (Incidentally, King answered a question I raised some time ago about the source of the town's name of Pactolus. He writes that a Greek, named Lincoln, settled near there in 1790. He was a teacher. About 1810 he named the place Pactolus because the land was so fertile and the promise of reward so great, after the river Pactolus in Asia Minor, whose sand was mixed with gold and the country very productive.) The building of the railroad in 1892 gave it new life.

Oakley, Stokes and Whichards were towns on the Washington Branch that sprang into existance after the building of the road.

The Norfolk and Southern, from Raleigh to Washington, by Greenville, was completed in 1907 and it carried its first passengers to the State Fair to hear William Jennings Bryan speak. King, in writing of that road, recalled that "it runs through Farmville and Grimesland. Two new stations are Arthur, between Farmville and Greenville, and Simpson, between Greenville and Grimesland. This road was begun several years before and finally bought by the N&S which completed it, giving another direct line to the Northern markets."

At about this time too, the East Carolina Railroad was extended to Hookerton, from Farmville. Grading for extension of the Norfolk and Southern from Farmville to Snow Hill was finished in the summer in 1908.

With such an heritage of railroading, it seems strange today that forming of a train at this onetime "crossroads" of the iron horse should be worthy of special attention.

Times have certainly changed.

Other Editors Saying--- Et Ux

(Cleveland (Tenn.) Daily Banner)

Et ux is a Latin phrase meaning "and wife". Husbands have been getting away with murder for years. And it all started in the ancient past when the boy who invented Latin made up a shorter word for "wife" than wife. He probably said, "Boys, let's call the gals we're married to 'uxes'." "Ux", he probably added, "is a good, short word; it doesn't mean anything, and we can snap it out real sharp when we want 'em to do something. How's this sound, 'Ux! Mend my toga!'"

Through the years, it became commonplace to refer to a wife as "ux" because it's a short word. With all due respect to the legal profession of today . . . men whom we regard respectfully. . . they are woefully behind the times with reference to our wives. Just imagine one lawyer calling another, and saying, "John Doe and his beautiful ux were in here today, and signed the papers so that your client and his ux can move into the house tomorrow."

There's a certain amount of male satisfaction, however, in the situation. Lots of wives today are of the emancipated variety, that they quit taking a back seat after Carrie Nation showed them the way. Some of 'em get pretty smart about things and every once in a while get us poor husbands trapped in an argument. With the husband utterly whipped down for any sort of an answer, he can always mutter with satisfaction, well, after all, she's just an ux, the law says so.

How does your ux feel about such an uncomplimentary designation? Can you fancy what would happen if a young husband were to whisper in his new bride's ear, "You are the loveliest ux in the world." Said legal ux would put some unlegal knots on his head. Our wives spend a good deal of our income on themselves just so they won't look like "uxen" and they do it so we will admire them all the time. Mr. Lawyer, you always call a spade a spade, so from now on how about calling a wife a wife. The twentieth-century ux deserves that break.

Opinions In Brief

"Of course a child must be fed, clothed enough to appear in polite society, loved, and have a sense of security and protection from certain hazards. But a child also needs to be alone, to let his imagination have full sway, to wander about chasing a butterfly or watching the ants at work or the clouds floating in the sky."—Henderson (Ky.) Secret Success Secreat

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — You may need a lofty intelligence to get rich on a television quiz show, but you don't have to be a mental giant to succeed in business.

Sweat and boldness are the pay-off qualities there. So says Erich Hirschfeld, a onetime immigrant who at 43 has become head of the world's largest camera store.

"Business is the most exciting thing in the world," said Hirschfeld, "and to succeed in it you should live it every hour you're awake. Intelligence is not so important as endless hard work — and daring.

"You must always be on the search for new ideas and be willing to try them when you find them. A man who feels his job is dull or routine is already stalemated.

"You must take action then—even if the action turns out to be a mistake. At least by the mistake you have learned something. You must always be willing to take a chance. You must always be daring to keep life exciting."

Hirschfeld is in a position to know. A short, dark, smiling man with a Napoleonic self-confidence and the effervescent temperament of an operatic tenor, he has never let his own life become commonplace.

In 1938 he bade farewell to Nazi Germany and landed here virtually penniless.

"I knew so little English I couldn't even buy a stamp," recalled Hirschfeld, who accent now would baffle a philogogist, since it is a heady mixture of German, English, Spanish and Portuguese.

Except for a stroke of good luck he might today be a Broadway head waiter. The good luck consisted of the fact that his cousin, a restaurant owner to whom he applied for a job, couldn't give him one.

Erich went to work for a new tire firm and in a few years his ceaseless industry won him a partnership. Looking around for new worlds to conquer, he decided to export cameras to South America. He went to the late Charles G. Willoughby, an Ohio farm boy who had become the tycoon of "camera row" here, and placed a $30,000 order.

Impressed by his daring, Willoughby invited Hirschfeld into his own firm to head its export division. Erich soon worked it up to a multimillion-dollar annual volume. Two months ago he was elected president of Willoughby's.

Its clientele ranges from teenage kids to Emperor Haile Selassie.

Photography now is a $750,000-000 a year industry, and Hirschfeld is confident it will soon hit a billion-dollar annual volume. Four out of five American families own cameras, and the nation's 40 million shutterbugs take an estimated two billion pictures a year.

Expressing a conviction that homicide, wife beating and piracy on the high seas are relatively rare among camera fans, Hirschfeld said, puffing on a Brazilian cigar: "They live longer, sleep more soundly and get along better with their families than most of other people. Clicking that shutter relieves tension and calms a person down."

But to get back to his success recipe:

"There is a magic in belief, and most people miss success because in their hearts they don't believe the effort to achieve it is worthwhile to them. They don't find hard work exciting, and they don't like taking chances."

Politicos Now Fear Chaos Ahead

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Political leaders of both major parties, including White House aides, frankly admit their deep concern at the direction which the Civil Rights struggle has assumed at Little Rock and elsewhere in the South.

Despite their parliamentary jockeying for the colored vote, they now fear that neither the Democrats nor the GOP will benefit, and that the outcome may be only bitterness and confusion. Today's hearing in Judge Davies' courtroom, where Governor Orval Faubus pleads to a Federal injunction against the use of state troops at the embattled high school, may be only the beginning of bipartisan chaos.

SOUTHERN RESISTANCE TO INTEGRATION According to this nonlegal viewpoint, it has become fairly clear that the Deep South, as well as Virginia, will resist full integration with every weapon in their power. They may not even stand for the sort of "token" integration that has been advanced as a compromise in some areas.

Governor Faubus, Governor Marvin Griffin of Georgia, Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and their associates must know the temper of their people. Since they are veteran politicians, still hoping for future preferment from the voters, it is their job to know and respond to dominant public sentiment.

Senator Thurmond's record-breaking speech against the bill, which irritated even his Dixie colleagues, was a political necessity. He won nomination on a write-in vote over the opposition of the organization. His seat is none too safe, although he may have assured his re-election by his one-man filibuster, futile though it was.

SYMBOL OF DEEP - SEATED SENTIMENT Although he has not announced his intentions yet, Governor Faubus is believed to be motivated, in part at least, by his ambition for an unprecedented third term. He had not been an extremist on the subject until recently.

Far more important from a long-range viewpoint than the Faubus-Griffin -Thurmond opposition is the fact that they are only symbols of widespread and deep-seated sentiment in the South. They know what they are doing — and why. Otherewise, they would not be so adamant in taking on the Federal government — the White House, the Congress, the Supreme Court and their respective agents.

VICTIMS OF SOUTHERN RECALCITRANCY Three prospective victims of Southern recalcitrancy have special cause to be worried. They are Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Senator William F. Knowland. Their Presidential trains may be derailed at Little Rock, Atlanta, Nashville, Richmond and other beleaguered cities.

Senator Johnson, for instance, had good reason to feel that he had made a Texas entry more agreeable to the North by steering the vote-equality measure to passage. But that section's resentment over the Little Rock and Nashville episodes may now be directed against him, or any Democrat from below the Mason and Dixon Line.

PREMATURE SATISFACTION Nixon and Knowland labored for an even harsher law, with the backing of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People. But their spokesmen complain that President Eisenhower has not shown enough force or firmness in carrying out the Supreme Court's decision.

In fact, they even argue that the high tribunal itself should have been more explicit in prescribing for implementation of its historic verdict.

Thus, today's situation pleases nobody, although the racial issue was supposed to have been eliminated, to a great degree, from American politics. The politicians on Capitol Hill were slightly premature in patting themselves on the back.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

HERITAGE—GOOD AND BAD

One of the most valuable things in life is a good heritage. Have it, and you have the foundation of true happiness. Lack it, and the absence of this factor may become your greatest problem.

The problem of heritage is not easy to face. If we have a good heritage, we have it; if we don't have it, we don't have it. But if we don't have it, there are a million things we can do to offset the disadvantages of a poor heritage. There are compensations galore. Otherwise life would be hopeless and we would be the pawns of fate.

The people who have risen above congenital ill health and pressed on to triumphal achievement are legion. We live under conditions which allow a man to be born in the humblest of circumstances yet rise to the heights of glory. We may have little capacity for book learning yet make up for it in manual skill—and the latter is an honorable as the former. We may wish we had a big fortune, but the rich are very seldom happy; maybe we in straightened circumstances have more happiness to the square inch than our rich neighbor has to the square yard. We may live under the dark cloud or our own wrong doing, or the wrong doing of loved ones. Hard as this is to bear, it can be borne, as many witness by their gallant lives.

And if we have a good heritage, the one inescapable responsibility is that we guard it. It is precious. It is God's gift.

Daniel, Steadfast in Crises — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Daniel 1—6.

Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, ordered that young men in good health and with the ability to stand in his palace be brought before him. Among those chosen were Daniel and his three brothers.

Daniel refused to eat meat from the king's table for fear of defilement. He begged the eunuch that he and his brothers be given only pulse (a meal of porridge) and water. The eunuch agreed.

Nebuchadnezzar asked his magicians to interpret a dream although he could not remember it. They could not, but Daniel received a vision from God and told the king what his dream meant.

To Belshazzar Daniel interpreted the writing on the wall—Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin—to mean, "Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians."

MEMORY VERSE—Ephesians 6:10.

Daniel, Steadfast in Crises

HE WAS OBEDIENT TO THE WILL OF GOD

Scripture—Daniel 1-6.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE STORY of Daniel, a captive of Nebuchadnezzar in Babylon, is one of the most dramatic in the Old Testament. It contains so much material that it may be difficult to mention all the episodes in the lesson time.

Daniel lived in Babylon during the reigns of four kings, Nebuchadnezzar, Belshazzar, Darius and Cyrus. When Nebuchadnezzar conquered Jerusalem, he told Ashpenaz, chief of his eunuchs, to bring certain of the princely young people from Israel who were healthy, well favored, skillful in wisdom and knowledge and who understood science, to his palace, to learn the language of the Chaldeans and to live at the court, eating meat from the king's table.

Daniel and his brothers were given the names of Beltesharrar for Daniel, Shadrach for Hananiah, Mishael for Meshach, and Azariah for Abednego. Now Daniel decided that he could not eat the king's meat or drink his wine because it was against Jewish custom. He persuaded Ashpenaz to let the four of them live on pulse (a porridge made of meal) and water for 10 days, and then compare their appearance with that of those who were eating the king's food. At the end of the 10 days, the Jewish youths were in better condition than the others.

Nebuchadnezzar had a dream which he couldn't remember in his waking hours, but which bothered him a great deal. He asked his magicians to tell him its meaning, but they were unable to because they didn't know what the dream was, which angered the king, who threatened them with death. They went to Daniel and he feared he and his brothers would perish with the rest if the dream were not revealed. That night Daniel had a vision from God in which the secret was given him, so he interpreted the dream for the king, telling him God had revealed it to him. The king made Daniel "a great man."

When Belshazzar was king of Babylon he gave a great feast to a thousand lords, with their wives and women friends. It must have been quite a revel, with the king and his guests drinking toasts until they were drunk. The king gave orders to bring the gold and silver vessels which Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the temple in Jerusalem, to this profane feast, and all drank from them. Then there appeared "the fingers of a man's hand, and wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaister of the wall." The king was so frightened that "his knees smote one against another." The words were Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin.

The queen told Belshazzar to call Daniel, and he sent for him. Daniel interpreted the word Mene. "God hath numbered thy kingdom and brought it to an end. Tekel, Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting. Peres: Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians."

Daniel was clothed with scarlet, a gold chain was put about his neck, and he was appointed the third ruler in the kingdom. But that night Belshazzar was slain "and Darius, the Median, took the kingdom."

The familiar story of Daniel's brothers being cast into a fiery furnace, but emerging unharmed is also included in the lesson in Nebuchadnezzar's reign, and may be told if the teacher has the time. Their "fault" was that they would not bow down and worship a golden image which the king had made.

Also, in the reign of Darius, occurs the equally familiar tale of Daniel's being thrown into the den of lions because the princes were jealous of his favor with the king. Darius gave the order reluctantly, and the next morning, after a sleepless night, he went to the den and called to Daniel, who answered that "God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths that they have not hurt me."

"So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God."

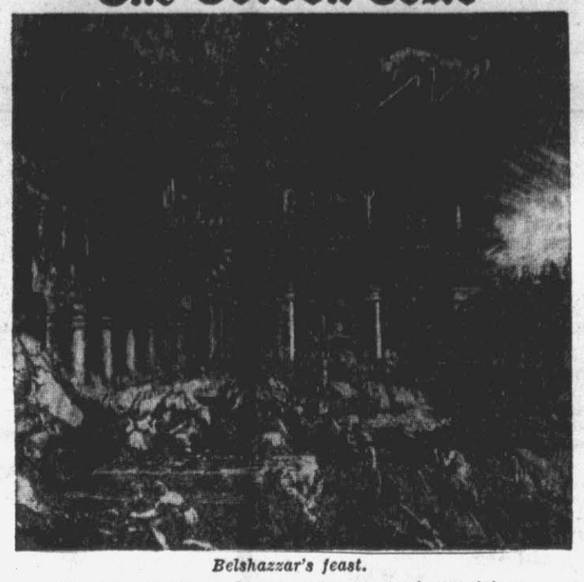

"So this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, and in the reign of Cyrus, the Persian," because he was a true, capable, strong character who did the will of God.

College Has 155 Senior Teachers

Seniors at East Carolina College who are gaining experience this fall as classroom instructors in the student teaching program at the college include 155 men and women. Of these 46 are working in the primary and the grammar gardes and 109 in secondary schools.

Dr. J. L. Oppelt, director of student teaching and placement at the college, has just announced that 92 women and 63 men are teaching in the Wahl-Coates Laboratory School on the campus, the Greenville High School and city elementary schools, and in high schools in twenty other towns in Eastern North Carolina.

Those teaching in the elementary grades include 32 assigned to the primary grades and 14 to the grammar grades. The 109 who are in secondary-school classrooms, are teaching in the fields of art, business, English, foreign languages, industrial arts, mathematics, music, home economics, physical education, science, and the social studies.

The campus Laboratory School, where 38 seniors have teaching assignments, has the largest number of student teachers. The Greenville High School, with 19 East Carolina student teachers, comes next in numbers. Other centers in which East Carolina students are now teaching are Ayden, Belvoir, Bethel, Farmville, Grifton, Chicod, Stokes, Grimesland, Winterville, Lucama, Rock Ridge, Plymouth, Maury, Kinston, Contentnea, New Bern, Robersonville, Washington, Tarboro, and Rocky Mount.

2 CHILDREN AND A BUCKET OF TAR:— Take a bucket of roofing tar and two small children—and this is the result. Walter Johnson, 5, and his sister Yvonne, 4, found the bucket on a porch at their home in Miami, Fla., and before their mother, Mrs. Katherine Johnson, knew what had happened, this did. Mrs. Johnson is trying to clean up the children in a hospital to which she took them. The children weren't burned by the tar, but perhaps Mama is burning slowly inside. (AP Wirephoto).

Ayden Jaycees Hear Advocate Of Toastmaster Club; Urged To Join

AYDEN — Guest Speaker Hall Miller related merits of the Grifton Toastmaster Club to the Ayden Junior Chamber of Commerce at the club's meeting staged earlier this week.

After discussing the various aspects of the club, the purpose of which is self-improvement in the field of public and private speaking, Hall invited Ayden citizens to join the Grfton club or to consider a joint Ayden-Grifton organization.

During the club's business session Profit-making chairman Bill Stroud presented a preliminary report on the recent Prison Valiety show. The Jaycees voted to purchase an ad in the Ayden Junior Varsity program in order that the team might acquire equipment.

Tom Wheless, Chairman of the Civic Improvement Committee, discussed plans for cleaning up the Jaycee park and possible constluction of a sign and lighting fixtures for the grounds.

A new member, Floyd Rowe, was introduced to the group. President Marvin Baldree Jr. appointed Rowe to the Leadership Training Committee.

Guests at the meeting in addition to speaker were Lem Davis, Carroll McLawhorn and Ham Lang.

Junta Prepares To Hold Election

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—The ruling military junta today alerted all armed forces in Haiti for Sunday's presidential and congressional elections.

The junta issued steel helmets to 2,500 troops and police. Three thousand reserves also can be called up if violence breaks out.

Brig. Gen. Antonio Kebreau, chief of the army staff and head of the three-man junta, pledged the armed forces will guarantee free and honest elections. He vowed any disorders would be crushed.

All men and women over 21 are eligible to vote, about 1½ million out of Haiti's four million population. Ninety per cent of the voters are illiterate. They will vote by dipping a finger in indelible ink and making a mark on the ballot.

Three men are seeking the presidency—ex-Sen. Louis Dejoie, Dr. Francois Duvalier and Clement Jumelle. A fourth candidate, Daniel Fignole, popular with the masses, was exiled to New York June 14.

Fignole then was acting president. Other candidates suspected him of using the office to strengthen his own candidacy. After a period of disorders the military junta moved in and took over.

Haiti's last election was in 1950. Paul Magloire was elected president. When he tried to prolong his tenure in violation of the law last December he was ousted by a general strike. Strikes or military coups have overthrown five other governments since.

He hurried to the hospital with her, leaving Bob Stoonts to tend the store.

Sooners And Terps Facing Hard Grid Season Openers

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press

Oklahoma runs into a stiff test right off and Maryland, a onetime powerhouse, will try to start the long road back tomorrow as the 1957 edition of the college football season opens with top games in every section of the country.

The Sooners from Norman, Okla., play Pittsburgh in the Iron City and, despite Coach Bud Wilkinson's foreboding of disaster, rate 13-point favorites to win their 41st straight game.

Pitt is strong, perhaps the strongest outfit in the East. But despite the loss of 18 lettermen, Oklahoma has no intentions of permitting a blotch on its record which includes:

1. 40 straight victories.
2. 116 straight games in which it has scored.
3. No defeats in the Big Eight since Wilkinson took over as coach in 1947.

Maryland ran into a series of bad breaks last year in Tommy Mont's first season as coach and wound up with an unimpressive 2-7-1 record. Now they must play Texas A&M in their opener in Dallas in the NCAA's TV Game of the Week.

The Aggies, still smarting over being barred from the Cotton Bowl last year by the NCAA, possibly are even stronger this time around. They are the logical choices for the Southwest Conference crown.

And Maryland?

Well, Mont must be wondering when he ever is going to get a break. Some observers thought the Terps might win the Atlantic Coast Conference championship. But only last Tuesday, his No. 1 fullback, Phil Perlo, broke a blood vessel in his right thigh and will be lost for at least a week.

Other important clashes send Southern Methodist against California, Texas against Georgia, Navy against Boston College and North Carolina State against North Carolina.

SMU could throw a monkey wrench into the Southwest Conference race, and this one will be a tipoff on what league foes can expect later. Cal, however, is favored.

Darrell Royal will be trying to get off to an auspicious start in his first game a sfield general at Texas after moving from Washington. His club will be the choice. The game is the second half of a day-night double-header in Atlanta. Kentucky and Georgia Tech play under the sun.

Navy could turn out to be another power in the East. It figures to have an easy time with BC.

The Tarheels have been installed as slight favorites over N.C.State.

Micro Midgets To Race Sunday

After an enthusiastic welcome-back crowd at the Micro-Midget auto races last week, officials have staged another card for this Sunday afternoon at 2:00.

No admission will be charged for the races and a large field of performers is expected to be on hand for the competition at the Greenville Airport Fairgrounds.

Bob Ballards, noted sports announcer from this area, will handle the loudspeaker.

Last week's crowd, according to a spokesman, was one of the largest ever to attend the races in Greenville.

Odds Edge Upward On Old Archie

By JACK STEVENSON

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Young Tony Anthony, who was just 2 years old when Archie Moore began fighting main events, battles to relieve the crafty but aging boxing master of his light heavyweight title tonight.

Odds on the fight opened in the challenger's favor, then swung to even as Moore's weight problems decreased. By ring time, the champion probably will be favored.

NBC will telecast at 10 p.m., EDT.

That's largely because Anthonys ability to take a solid smash remains questionable. He failed to finish four times while campaigning as a middleweight, thus leaving some glass jaw impressions. He hasn't lost, however, since moving into the 175-pound class in late 1955.

The champion, who might be anywhere between 40 and 44, goes after a knockout early while Tony plans to stay away during the early rounds and then close against a foe he expects will be tiring.

Anthony at 22 carries his poundage on a 6-foot-1 frame. He emphasizes speed rather than slugging ability, although he stopped 23 of 35 foes since turning pro after being on Uncle Sam's 1952 Olympic squad.

Tony earned the title shot by knocking out Chuck Spieser in Detroit last April 4 but could only gain a draw against French-Canadian Yvon Durelle June 14.

The champ stands just a quarter inch under six feet but gives away two inches in reach.

Moore's crown goes on the line for the sixth time since he captured it from Joey Maxim in St. Louis Dec. 17, 1952.

Visiting the battle pit on 185 occasions, Archie has won 158 times, lost 22 and fought 5 draws. His list of kockouts totals 116—more than Jack Dempsey, Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson combined.

Tonight he collects a $90,000 guarantee. Tony's contract calls for 33 1-3 per cent of gate proceeds over $40,000.

Crippled Kinston Eleven Facing Weakened Phants

KINSTON — Odds on tonight's Northeastern Conference battle between Kinston and Greenville at Grainger Stadium have shifted slightly just before game time.

Favored to whip the twice-beaten Greenies, Kinston was given an even better chance to do the job when it was learned that three regular Phantom performers would miss tonight's tilt.

However, it is reported today that Kinston is also suffering from an outbreak of injuries. There is word that Coach Frank Mock's Red Devils were so soundly thrashed last week (Raleigh drubbed them 35-6) that the entire backfield may be out of action.

The Kinston Daily Free Press quotes Mock as saying that his coaching staff has spent more time taping injuries and putting players in the whirlpool for treatment than drilling.

New Backfield?

Charles Lewis, senior halfback and the only letterman in the Devil backfield, will miss the contest due to an injured shoulder sustained in the opener against Jones Central two weeks ago.

Quarterback Gene Anderson is also slated for little or no duty tonight, due to a hip injury picked up against Raleigh.

The Red Devil line, however, is expected to be in good shape for the tilt.

Coach Bud Phillips will send a weakened Greenville high school team into action tonight, a six-point underdog to the Devils.

Missing from their regular positions will be tackles Billy Brown and Ralph Sullivan, and fullback Charles Ross. Brown is still ailing from a dislocated shoulder sustained in the Goldsboro opener and Ross and Sullivan are out with the flu.

The lineup released by Phillips yesterday as his probable starting group is as follows:

Ends—Billy Cox and Steve Noble. Tackles—Kelly Barnhill and Godfrey Oakley. Guards—Wilbur Owens and Norfleet Felton. Center—Albert Crawford. Quarterback—Mack Roebuck. Halfbacks—Robert Howell and Charles Roberts. Fullback—Robin Wilfong.

Devil Lineup

The lineup released by Kinston today was issued with the word that several of the starters will see almost no action. Two of the starting backs will be seeing duty at new positions.

Offensively, Louis Pollac and John Laws will run at ends; tackles will be Ranny Jones and Bob Moore; Larry Croome and Bob Alexander will be the guards; Jim Brake will be center; Anderson will try for a while at quarterback; Ken Fitzgerald and Billy Cooke will be halfbacks; John Cutler will run at fullback.

Cooke is a converted fullback and Cuter, a 200-pound boy, is a converted end.

With both coaches wailing loudly, tonight's tilt might well receive billing as the battle between the conference's two most injury-riddled clubs.

Cards Must Win 3-Game Series At Cincinnati Before 'Showdown'

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

The second-place St. Louis Cardinals are riding a "play and pray" parlay at Cincinnati before opening what should be a three-game showdown in the National League race against the first-place Milwaukee Braves Monday night.

A sweep of the three-game week end set at Cincinnati is a "must" for the Cards to guarantee they'll still be close to the Braves going into the final week.

The Braves, leading by four with a magic number of six, have won three straight, junking a slump that whittled their 8½-game bulge to 2½. Both the Braves and Cards have nine to play, with any combination of six Milwaukee victories and St.Louis defeats giving the Braves the flag.

The Braves play an afternoon game at Chicago today against the frisky Cubs, with southpaw Warren Spahn making a third pitch for his eighth 20-victory season.

In the American League, the pennant race is over for all practical purposes. The New York Yankees, with a six-game lead and a magic number of four, are at home to Boston tonight while Chicago's second-place White Sox are at Cleveland.

The White Sox prolonged the inevitable in the only game scheduled yesterday with Nelli Fox and Minnie Minoso slamming consecutive home runs in a four-run 13th that defeated Washington 7-3.

The Cardinals, who have split eight games at Cincinnati but lead the Redlegs 11-8 for the season, bump into an old southpaw hex tonight with young Don Gross (6-9) starting for the Redlegs. Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell (8-10) opens for the Cardinals.

Mizell was the Cards' lone southpaw until yesterday, when they bought Bob Kuzava (8-1) from Columbus of the American Assn. and Morrio Martin (14-4) from Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League. Both have been around. Kuzava is 34, Martin 35.

To make room for the pair, St. Louis released relief veteran Hoyt Wilhelm and sold infielder Eddie Miksis to Baltimore.

The Braves, with hard-hitting Eddie Mathews and Wes Covington ill and slugging Bob Hazle bothered by a sore shoulder, didn't figure to have an easy time with the seventh-place Cubs. The Bruins, with Ernie Banks on a homer hitting binge, have won five in a row and stand 9-10 against Milwaukee.

The Cubs will throw their best, right-handers Bob Rush (6-15), Moe Drabowsky (11-14) and Dick Drott (15-11), against the Braves, who figure to pick Bob Buhl (17-7) and probably Bob Trowbridge (7-5) after Spahn (19-10) pitches the opener.

Ayden Jayvees Take 19-0 Win

ROBERSONVILLE — In what might prove to be a preview of things to come, Ayden's Jayvees defeated Robersonville's Jayvees 19-0 last night.

The visitors scored two touchdowns in the first half and one in the final quarter to register their second victory of the season. Ayden trounced Benvenue's Junior Varsity last week to the tune of 20-7.

A charging line, led by Left End David Bullock and Tackle Rayvon Byrd, held the Robersonville offense in check throughout the contest. Tailback Tommy Ward and his mates were able to muster only three first downs during the entire game.

Ayden scored its first touchdown on a 20-yard run. Two short wide sweeps netted the second and third scores. The first two extra point trys were stopped but a third was good on a pass to run the final score to 19-0.

The contest was the first for the Robersonville Junior Varsity. Ayden's record is now two wins and no losses.

Dodgers May Get A 'Final Push' Today

NEW YORK (AP)—The Dodgers, already leaning to the West, may get their final push toward Los Angeles today.

New York's Board of Estimate was expected to inform Dodger boss Walter O'Malley it would cost the city too much to keep the club in Brooklyn under the conditions he has outlined.

O'Malley's next step conceivably would be to accept Los Angeles' offer. He has until Sept. 30 to tell the National League his final decision.

O'Malley was scheduled for an afternoon meeting at City Hall with Mayor Robert Wagner, millionaire Nelson A. Rockefeller and Thomas Goodfellow, president of the Long Island Rail Road.

They will discuss possible modifications in Rockefeller's offer of financial assistance in helping O'Malley obtain land in downtown Brooklyn for a new ballpark.

It was learned the board after two long executive meetings was strongly opposed to Rockefeller's proposal. City Hall sources said despite Rockefeller's generosity in putting up two million dollars for the land, the city would stand to lose as much as 6½ million dollars in the transaction.

The prohibitive cost would come in condemnation of the Flatbush and Atlantic Avenue site, now occupied by a station of the Long Island Rail Road, a large meat market and other structures.

In addition to buying the land for two million, Rockefeller offered to lease the site for 20 years rent free to the Dodgers, who would pay all real estate taxes and assessments. The Dodgers would build a park on the site, estimated to cost 8½ or 9 million dollars, and would have the option to buy the land during the lease period for two million plus 2½ per cent interest.

Further details of the plan include giving the city the stadium and the option to repurchase the land if the Dodgers did not exercise their option within the 20-year period and giving Rockefeller first choice at buying the Dodgers if they were up for sale.

O'Malley was reported fed up by what he called "vacillating action" by the board. A club spokesman said even if the board did approve the Rockefeller proposal, O'Malley might not accept it.

"Even if New York was not to finally come through with a firm offer," he said, "I'm afraid it might come too late. If I had to bet, I'd bet the Dodgers will go to Los Angeles."

Curing Tobacco Is Easier Today

FARMVILLE HOME OF FLORENCE-MAYO COMPANY
. . . Producers Of Oil And Gas Tobacco Curers.

OLD "BREAD AND BUTTER"
. . . Model Of R. E. Mayo's First Oil-Burning Curer.

Editor's note: This is another in a series of articles dealing with industries already located and flourishing in Pitt County.

FARMVILLE — A tobacco farmer who likes his sleep can take a considerable measure of credit in getting other tobacco farmers to bed early in the past 22 years.

Reuben E. Mayo, president of the Florence-Mayo Company of Farmville, is the man.

Despite his fondness for sleep, Mayo is anything but a sleepyhead. In the years since 1935, he has been the guiding hand in construction of more than 50,000 oil and gas tobacco curers.

Nor is he about to take himself to a feather bed, well-deserved as the rest may be. He is still very much active in the business he laughingly claims to have started because he was tired of losing sleep to nurse old-fashioned furnaces in tobacco farms.

The business Mayo heads is one of the best-known of Pitt County's industries. From a plant with 35,000 square feet of floor space, the Florence-Mayo Company has sent oil and gas tobacco curers to tobacco farmers throughout the Western Hemisphere.

At last count, there were more than 50,000 barns equipped with the Florence-Mayo curers — a far cry from the days when Mayo's Greene County neighbors were laughing at him for building a tobacco barn without furnace or flues. That was in 1935 when Mayo, like everybody, stayed up during the night in tobacco-curing season to stoke wood and coal furnaces, and to keep an eye on barns.

The laughing that Mayo's neighbors were doing turned to amazement when his first oil-burning curer completely cured a barn of tobacco in a day less than they had done so with regular flue-cured methods.

Mayo says today his first curer, and the barn he built for it, utilized the same principle that governed air-conditioning — which was also getting its start then. The barn looked similar to other tobacco barns, but it was built without furnace and flues, and with three snout-like projections at each end.

The curer utilized oil burners, much like those in kerosene stoves, which heated air drawn into the barn through the snout-like projections. The heated air spread through the barn and passed from the interior of the barn through a vent at the top. It was, Mayo showed his neighbors, an even heat and a heat that would permit him to go to bed early because he had no open-flame furnace to tend.

Word of Mayo's invention spread through bright leaf tobacco country and interest in it picked up. The Greene County man formed a partnership with a neighbor, Jake Frizzelle, to manufacture the curers for their friends.

The business got to be so well-known, however, that the two men were unable to supply as ment, 85 per cent of its business is in oil curers. There has been very little basic change in the oil curer and the first model produced by Mayo is still the most popular.

Mayo believes the oil curer's popularity lies in its economy of operation.

"There is a low initial cost for the oil curer, and it is just plain fact it costs less to operate," Mayo says. "However, either gas or oil will do a good job if properly installed and properly operated.

"I can find absolutely no difference in the cured tobacco on my own farm which has barns equipped with both gas and oil curers," Mayo adds.

REUBEN E. MAYO
. . . Oil Curer Inventor

The story of the Florence-Mayo Company is a genuine success story, but Mayo is quick to admit that the success formula is a simple one.

"I simply hit the business on the ground floor, and the product I had to offer was the right answer to many of the curing problems of bright leaf tobacco farmers," he says.

Although Florence Stove Company, which got in on the ground floor, too, is no longer active in the burners, and the new Florence-Mayo Company set up shop in Maury to manufacture the curers.

Continued growth forced the business to expand and the company moved into its Farmville quarters in 1949. The building the company now occupies represents an investment of $200,000 and in its peak season of production offers employment to 100 persons. June and July are the big months for production, but retail dealers (there are about 250 of them now) report their heaviest sales come during the early months of each year.

Maximum capacity in the plant, which is a self-supporting business in that all units used in the curers are produced in Farmville, is about 100 curers per day. The company's sales record was set in 1951 when sales amounted to more than a million dollars and although sales are still high Mayo says 1957 is the slowest year the company has had in the past 15 years.

Although Florence-Mayo spends a considerable amount of money and time in research and developmany curers as were requested. Frizzelle disposed of his interest in the business to the Florence Stove Company, which furnished the business from a production standpoint, it still names two members of the company's board. John B. Wright is a director and William Wagner is secretary-treasurer of the board. Both men are from Chicago.

Mayo is the company president and treasurer, and J. T. Nolen of Farmville is vice-president and assistant treasurer. Mrs. Mayo is a director and Mrs. Bobby Fulford is office secretary.

The production end of the business, which is directed by Mayo, is headed by plant foreman Bob Drew and assistant foreman Bill Wood.

Mayo's interest in tobacco and the problems of curing it is an understandable outgrowth of his position as a tobacco farmer. But, there is one point in his attitude toward tobacco that never fails to amaze visitors to his plant: He doesn't smoke.

Legionaires Depart On 'Pilgrimage Of Peace'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A thousand or more American Legionnaires headed for Europe today on a "pilgrimage for peace" after winding up their 39th annual convention.

The exodus began after the veterans elected John S. Gleason Jr., 42, Chicago banker, World War II veteran and father of six boys, as their new national commander.

While most of the conventioneers set out for home, others took off on visits to old battlefields on a good will mission.

They did not travel as a unit, but in various groups. All will get together for a reception to be given by the French government later in the month in Paris, birthplace of the 2,800,000-member Legion.

This is the fourth such trip at 10-year intervals.

Chief item of interest among the delegates was adoption of a resolution calling upon Congress to approve a limited pension plan — to aid veterans in the 65-year age bracket who have small incomes.

The Legion estimates that more than a million World War I veterans will be 65 or older by next June 30. So will 22,000 World War II veterans.

After Gleason was elected national commander for a one-year term as successor to W. C (Dan) Daniel of Danville, Va., he promised the delegates he would serve the Legion's objectives "faithfully and to the fullest extent of my abilities."

"One of the great tasks facing the Legion," he said, "is to keep alive with all patriotic Americans the values and traditions that make up the root stock of our free Republic."

He continued: "Today, we stand on the threshold of scientific breakthroughs into the innermost secrets of the universe. In the hands of the godless and the treacherous, each new discovery can become a force capable of destrouing civilization itself.

"In the hands of a generation schooled in the ancient religious faiths and in the moral and spiritual precepts of a free society, mankind can prosper and live in peace and freedom. I believe it is up to us to meet the challenge of an uncertain tomorrow."

Gleason showed he is not a "peace-at-any-price advocate."

He said after his election: "Freedom is the privilege of those who are prepared to guard it—to defend it—and accept any sacrifice that is required to preserve it."

Gleason's main interest as a Legionnaire is the care and rehabilitation of the wounded and disabled and care of their dependents. This, he says, is the cardinal purpose of the Legion.

Gleason, a model train hobbyist, says, "It's a hobby the boys and I can share together."

There are no daughters in the Gleason household in Winnetka, Ill.

The head of the house — tall, erect, with prematurely silvery hair—has a soldierly appearance in his blue legion uniform and red overseas cap. He dresses like a typically conservative banker in his business life. His manner is pleasant and his smile is ready.

He is president of the First National Bank of Chicago.

He interrupted his service with the bank to enlist as a private in 1941. He served in the Pacific campaign and rose to lieutenant colonel. He won the Silver Star, Soldier's Medal, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the Philippine Presidential Citation. Now he is a brigadier general in the National Guard.

Interrupted His Work To Knife, Shoot Victim

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—A barber interrupted a haircut yesterday to stab a friend, returned to his job and then stopped again to shoot to death the man he stabbed, Sheriff Dave Starr reported.

Herman L. Allen, 33, was jailed on an open charge in the slaying of Little Wes Kersey, 24, Stillmore, Ga.

A customer, Harry F. Ryan, told officers that Allen was cutting his hair while engaged in an argument.

Allen suddenly stabbed Kersey in the chest with scissors, then forced him to sit in a chair while he continued to cut Ryan's hair, Starr said.

After a few moments Kersey bolted for the door and Allen pulled a pistol and fired twice, hitting him the second time in the back, the sheriff said.

Ryan was unharmed.

Plan Operations Of FHA For New Term

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland Reporter

Plans for 1957-1958 operation of the Belvoir-Falkland chapter of Future Homemakers of America were made at a meeting of chapter officers and committee members last week.

The official FHA yearbook, programs for the year, money-making projects, and improvement projects were discussed and approved. Tentative dates were also set for monthly meetings and at the first, on September 10, general membership of the chapter approved the yearbook.

Also at the first meeting, committees were appointed for projects, recreation, degrees, refreshments, program and scrapbook. Six chapter mothers were also elected, including Mrs. E. C. Windham, Mrs. D. J. Windham, Mrs. L. J. May, Mrs. A. F. Gwaltney, Mrs. Howard Garris and Mrs. Ben Thomas Jr. Gail Garris and Nellie Gwaltney were named as representatives to the County FHA Dinner.

Officers of the FHA are Nellie Gwaltney, president; Marie Carraway, vice-president; Linda Smith, secretary; Lillian Corbett, treasurer; Annie Mae Everett and Faye Cobb, historians; Brenda Windham, parliamentarian; Pattie Moore, reporter; Iris Smith, photographer; Betty Lou Nelson, song leader; and Gail Garris, county officer. Mrs. Hazel Tripp is chapter advisor.

Officers for the two sections of the Sophomore Class have been elected, with Annie Mae Everett being named as president of 10-A and Linda Smith being named as president of 10-B.

Other officers of 10-A are Steve Moore, vice-president; Faye Wade, secretary; Linda Carson, treasurer; Betty Lou Nelson, reporter; and Sadie Moore, Student Council representative. Mrs. Dorothy Hardy is the group advisor.

Other officers of 10-B are Brenda Windham, vice - president; Joyce Bullock, secretary; Pattie Moore, treasurer; Barbara Parker, reporter; and Marie Harrell, Student Council representative. Mrs. Hazel Tripp is advisor for the group.

Junior Class members have begun their annual magazine sale, the biggest single money-making project of the year. Class members will continue the drive for two weeks and have set a goal of $900.

Members of the class have also begun selections of a class ring. This year, a standard school ring has been adopted with an eagle one one side of the stone and a replica of the school on the other side. Stone colors, however, will be left to the decision of each Junior Class at BFHS.

The Tobacco Drive, sponsored by the Student Council, closed last week with a profit of $110 for the student government organization. Prizes of $5 each were given to the fifth and twelfth grades for bringing in the largest number of pounds.

Beta Club members will conduct their annual tapping-in ceremonies for ten new members on September 30, it was announced this week after the club had its first meeting of the year.

The tapping will be held during the first PTA meeting of the year.

New members who are tapped will be honored at a party during October.

Other business discussed by Beta Club members during their meeting included selling popcorn at ball games, cleaning the Teachers' Lounge, raising the flag each day, chapel programs, and making bulletin boards.

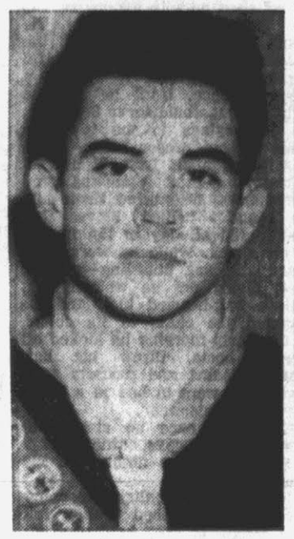

Pictures for the school annual were taken last week by a commercial photographer who visited the school.

Approximately 30 National Forensic League members from Belvoir-Falkland and Greenville participated in an NFL practice session September 10. Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, R. B. Starling and J. T Cobb were scorers for the program which included discussions of the NFL debate topic, "Should Military Discipline be Practised in Public Schools?"; manuscript readings, and poetry readings.

Without air, life stops
... for you and for industry

SEEING A CLOUD is probably the nearest we come to 'seeing' air, because air is a mixture of invisible gases.

Life-giving oxygen comprises about 21 per cent of the air. We all know how it helps sick people get well, but few of us realize that steel and other major industries could not operate without the same oxygen in tremendous quantities. About 78 per cent of the air is nitrogen. Food processors use it as an atmosphere to protect freshness and flavor of food.

The remaining one per cent of the air is composed of the little-known yet vital "rare" gases — argon, helium, krypton, neon, and xenon. These gases are essential in making incandescent light bulbs, in electric welding processes, and in refining new metals such as titanium.

For fifty years, the people of Union Carbide have been separating the gases of the air and finding new ways in which they can help make a better life for all of us.

The Lonely Man

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER 23

Scobie's brutal, sullen face was heavy with rancor as he leaned on the bar in a local pub, nursing a grudge. His red-rimmed eyes were fixed in hatred and resentment on a young man who sat chatting and laughing with friends at a table near the fire. A few minutes before, Scobie's elbow had been jostled by the young man, or so Scobie fancied; and instead of apologizing the offender had looked straight through Scobie as though he did not exist.

Scobie had an idea that he had caught the words "drunken lout" as the young man rejoined his companions.

He was just drunk enough to see an insult in every trifling slight. Besides, he resented the young man's spotless collar, neat blue suit, well-brushed hair, and generally spruce appearance. He resented the white, evenly-spaced teeth the young man kept showing in carefree laughter. He resented the finicking way the young man made a drink last, sipping it and setting it aside, instead of gulping it down and calling for another.

"I'll show him" was the nearest to a coherent thought in Scobie's mind. He felt like breaking his glass, crossing the room in two strides, and jabbing the jagged edges into the laughing young face. Once . . . you could get two years hard labor for a caper like that.

"Same again," he said, his grimy fingers placing a coin on the bar.

"You've had enough," said the landlord bluntly. "Watch your step. I've got an eye on you. Don't try any of your larks in here."

The landlord was large and solid, with fists like hams. For all his size he could move quickly. Scobie had seen him thrusting up the flap of his counter and coming through ready for action before a man would follow one breath with another. Already Scobie was barred from several pubs in the town; he could not afford to lose this one. Besides, the landlord was always a ready customer for a plump hare or a brace of pheasant if Scobie brought them to the back door.

With an inaudibly snarled oath, he slouched out of the place. It was no good waiting about to take a bash at the young chap when he came out; it would mean taking on his friends as well. Better to wait and give him a going-over one night when he was alone; and if he lost his watch and pocket money at the same time, so much the worse for him.

Scobie would not forget. Scobie never forgot an injury, real or imagined. One of these dark nights he was going to get his revenge on that fancy young woman from London who was visiting the Monteiths. He was sure if was because of Deborah that he had lost his job with the Monteiths. It would be a pleasure to smash her pretty face. He could wait. Nothing was lost by waiting, by mulling over in your mind the indignities and brutalities to be inflicted on the victim.

He was taking his time over that bit of blackmail. Letting the bloke sweat and stew over the notes in printed wording that let him know there was someone who could give him away. He would be all the more ready to pay, and pay plenty, when Scobie decided how the money could be transferred without danger to himself.

On his way along Market Street, keeping out of habit to the shadows, he saw a man dismounting from a newish bicycle outside the chemist's shop, crossing the pavement hurriedly, and ringing the night bell. In a minute or so, a light went on in the shop, the door was opened, and the man went in.

As soon as he was out of sight, Scobie crossed the deserted street, whipped a leg over the saddle, and rode off on the bicycle.

While cycling to his hovel on the outskirts of the town he saw only one policeman. The dark was his element and he spotted the uniformed patroller in plenty of time to dodge him with ease. The big black dog chained near his door would have shattered the night's hush with savage barking at the approach of anyone else but he only whined when his master rode up.

Propping the bicycle against a wall, Scobie unfastened the chain and the dog ran off silently into the dark to find its supper. It would come home with the blood of a rabbit warm on its jowl.

Unlocking the padlock that secured his door, Scobie went in and lit an oil lamp hanging by a rope from the rafters of his one-room habitation. He went out again, carried in the bicycle, and stood it on old newspapers where the murky light fell on it. He shut and barred the door, covered the windows with sacking, and went to work on the bicycle as systematically as if it were a routine he followed every day. He stripped the frame, removing all the accessories that might aid identification. Wrapped in oilskin and sacking, they would lie hidden in the crotch of a tree in the woods behind his shack until they could be sold for quick cash, no questions asked, to a dealer of his acquaintance.

He burned off the original blue paint with a blow-lamp and applied a coat of quick-drying black. He roughed up with sandpaper the new leather of the saddle. He would be in no hurry to sell the bicycle. As it stood, the rightful owner would reject it without a second glance. Until he got the right offer it would serve Scobie on his journeyings to the town, in place of his present one, which was falling apart from ill usage.

Crumpling the paint-spattered newspapers, he stuffed them into the round - bellied stove that smouldered all day in the middle of his shack. While he worked he heard the dog snuffling at the door. Going out he welcomed it with a half-hearted kick and refastened the chain to its collar. In the early morning he kicked off laceless boots, threw his hat, muffler, jacket and trousers on a chair, and went to bed in a filthy shirt and underwear.

Almost at once he started to snore. Sleep always came quickly to Scobie. He had nothing on his conscience.

Hours later, sunlight seeping through an unwashed window fell on a tangle of grey hair protruding from a fetid heap of tattered blankets. The morning was half gone but Scobie lay foundered in sleep, breathing stertorously through a gaping mouth.

The sun was directly overhead when he came out of his tumble-down dwelling, pulling his crumpled hat down to shield his eyes. He had a headache and his whole being felt sour. Many people feel sour on rising but Scobie carried his sourness all day. The hat had been an elegant thing with a jaunty feather when he found it, long ago, on the driving-seat of a parked Bentley. In its present state it would have disgraced a scarecrow.

In a muddy enclosure behind his shack he scattered grain to the hens that scrabbled and pecked about his ankles. They had been acquired, a few at a time, from distant farms on moonless nights and brought home, trussed and sacked, on his bicycle.

From a screening clump of bushes on the side of a hill, Deborah was watching the man's movements through field glasses. She saw him foraging for firewood and returning to his shack with loaded arms. Soon after, he came out again, cast a cursory glance all round him, and shambled off down the dusty road. Through the field glasses she scanned the rises and bends of the road for his passing. She did not leave her hiding place until he was well out of sight . . .

There's only the danger of the dog for Deborah to contend with, until . . . Continue "The Lonely Man" tomorrow.

NOW A TEACHER

MOSCOW (AP) — Dmitri Shepilov, ex-foreign minister ousted in the recent Kremlin purge, has taken up his duties as a teacher in the Far East Institute at remote Frunze on the Chinese border, say diplomatic sources. Kirghizia, in which Frunze lies, long has been used by the Soviet government as a center of political exile.

MORE TO ADMIRE

Big M Dream-Car Design—shared with no other car. Here is inspired beauty that other cars can never copy—beauty that will keep The Big M uniquely new in years to come. And Mercury is uniquely practical; only Mercury has Floating Ride—most effective combination of bump-smothering features ever put between you and the road. Only Mercury offers a power seat that "remembers," and a Power-Booster Fan in Montclair series.

MORE TO ENJOY

Everything's big about The Big M—except the price. Mercury is longer, wider, more spacious than ever before. It has more hip room for true relaxation; more leg room for stretch-out comfort; and Mercury brakes are bigger for safe, sure stops. Everywhere you look—more value, more trend-setting features. For example: Merc-O-Matic Keyboard Control, real 4-beam headlamps, and a host of others.

LESS TO PAY, IF YOU BUY NOW

It's Big M close-out time! Year's biggest savings! We're closing out all 1957 Mercurys. Never again will you be able to get such a buy as now, on a car so advanced it will outdate many a 1958 car. So step out of the ordinary, step into a Mercury. It will cost you less if you buy now—we're giving terrific trade-in allowances. Stop in while we have a good selection of models and colors.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market opened lower and continued to decline as trading expanded early this afternoon.

Practically all sections of the list were affected by the selling but oils, steels, metals and aircrafts were under most pressure. Losses ran from fractions to about 2 points.

Very few stocks were able to make upward progress against the major trend. Activity was greater than in any of the slow markets earlier this week.

The weak oil group was led lower by Gulf Oil, which fell more than 3 points. It is one of the "international" oils. Royal Dutch restricted its loss to less than a point.

Oils also had to contend with a report from the Chase Manhatten Bank saying inventories of refined products and crude oil are too heavy. Standard Oil (New Jersey) was off more than a point and Sinclair about a point.

Sulphur stocks continued their slide in the wake of price reductions by two producers. Freeport Sulphur fell more than 2 points. Jefferson Lake said it had decided temporarily to postpone offering of 150,000 additional common shares.

Youngstown dropped more than a point and major fractional losses were rung up by U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Republic in the steel group. Republic's loss came despite a statement by a company official calling business prospects good.

Aircrafts were upset by the new reduction ordered in the armed forces with the possibility another cut may be made. Curtiss-Wright fell more than a point. So did Douglas. Boeing and United Aircraft were off nearly a point.

All the motors were down fractions except Studebaker-Packard, which managed a small gain following a prediction by the company's president that operations would be at a profitable rate by the end of 1957.

Another firm stock was Transamerica, which rose nearly a point in active dealings. The company announced a reorganization plan.

Baltimore and Ohio and Southern Railway lost more than a point. International Paper was off more than 2 and International Nickel more than 1. Homestake was up a little.

Superior Court In Recess Until Monday Morning

Superior Court recessed yesterday until Monday morning when Judge Walter J. Bone will convene the second week of a two-weeks civil term.

Yesterday's recess was declared after Judge Bone signed a judgment permitting a non-suit in an action brought by Frank Brown against Mrs. Pauline Whitehurst. The non-suit was entered at the request of Brown, according to the judgment.

In the suit, Brown had sought to recover $489.53, plus interest, from Mrs. Whitehurst. Brown's complaint alleged that he was due the money under terms of a contract in which he agreed to farm Mrs. Whitehurst's land on shares.

Mrs. Whitehurst denied Brown's claim and made a counterclaim in which she sought $500 from Brown.

The drunkometer flunked its test. It failed even to come close to showing how much liquor four "guinea pigs" had downed.

Police Chief Roy Bergman said the machine is a mechanical gadget "and no better than the men operating it." Hamm is now a patrolman.

N.C. Will Remain In Demo Party: Hodges

15n wyyf ah724a 20

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges says he thinks North Carolina will stick with the Democratic party because "we would gain more and the South would gain more."

The governor made the statement yesterday in commenting on remarks by National Democratic Chairman Paul Butler at a news conference here Tuesday.

Butler said in effect that the Democratic party nationally will not let the threat of a third party movement in the South prevent it from taking a strong stand on civil rights.

Hodges told his news conference yesterday that so many things were happening in the Democratic party that "you are tempted to throw up your hands."

He said a Republican friend recently told him, "Luther, I haven't anywhere to go." The governor said he replied that "the Democrats have had that problem for some time."

In his remarks here, Butler said he thought President Eisenhower should have ordered Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas to obey court orders to integrate Central High School at Little Rock. He also said he believed the civil rights bill passed by Congress was a step in the right direction.

Hodges commented that "it's hard to say what effect Butler's remarks would have in the South. "I don't think there was much that he hasn't said before. But every time he says it, everybody gets mad. I wish it were not necessary for him to say it."

He agreed with Butler that there are more things uniting than dividing the Democratic party. However, the one thing that divides the party has more "emotional stress" attached to it, Hodges noted.

He said he wished Butler "would have more diplomacy." Pointing out that he had observed Butler during the two - day conference here of Southern Democratic party workers, Hodges said, "You've got to have respect for the boy." He added, however, that he doesn't think Butler "pleases the South very much."

Convict Claims Wrong Knife Is Presented Court

RALEIGH (AP) — A convict who contends he fatally knifed another prisoner in self defense was expected to produce the alleged death weapon in Wake Superior Court today.

Edward Turcotte, 31, of East Providence, R.I., told the jury yesterday that a knife produced by the state in his murder trial was not the death weapon. He declined to divulge where he said he had hidden the weapon because guards would get it.

Turcotte is one of eight prisoners on trial charged with first degree murder in the slaying of Martin Chavis at Central Prison July 30. Chavis, a Robeson County Indian, was serving a life term for murder.

Turcotte testified that he hit Chavis once on the head with a metal pipe and knifed him three times when Chavis advanced on him with a knife. He said he had hidden the pipe and knife.

When he refused to say where he had hidden the weapons, the court agreed to allow him to produce them today.

Under cross examination, Turcotte denied that he was implicated in alleged convict drug rings operating at the prison at the time.

He testified that three or four of the other defendants were in the prison yard weather shelter at the time of the knifing, but that none of them had anything to do with it.

"They were framed," Turcotte declared.

Judge C. W. Hall yesterday dismissed the charge against James Gregory, 31, of Mobile, Ala., by allowing a nonsuit. The judge ruled there was insufficient evidence.

Others on trial are Joseph Brewer of New York City, Johnny Babson of Rockingham, Fred Day Bowmen of High Point, Jacque Lee Schneider of Greensboro, Olen Montgomery, Ralph Douglas Byers and Floyd Reeves, all of Winston-Salem.

Greenville Youth Is Apprehended In Housebreaking

An unidentified 15-year-old Greenville Negro boy has been apprehended in New York in connection with a housebreaking and theft here Tuesday morning.

The youngster was picked up by the New York Youth Bureau. According to reports he had two $100 bills in his possession at the time of his arrest.

He is being held in connection for the theft of $210 from the home of Mrs. W. F. Fleming of 200 S. Jarvis St. Mrs. Fleming told investigating officers that the money was stolen sometime Tuesday morning while she was away.

Police Chief S. G. Gibbs states the youth purchased a ticket for New York shortly after the robbery took place and was apprehended yesterday. He is being brought back to Greenville by Pitt County Deputies Duke Andrews and Rick Jackson.

Call Recreation Meeting Tonight

A meeting of interested Greenville Citizens has been called for tonight in an effort to determine methods of obtaining needed equipment for the new Negro Recreation Center.

No Vaccine Priorities By State Health Board

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Board of Health has decided not to recommend any priority in the administering of Asian flu vaccine.

At its meeting here yesterday the board also discussed a statewide program for chronic diseases and a proposed program to make vaccination against polio compulsory.

Dr. Fred T. Foard, head of the Division of Epidemiology, said that 61,531 cubic centimeters of the Asian flue vaccine had been released up to Sept. 12 to North Carolina in allotments from manufacturers. The allotments are based on population. A c.c. is enough for one shot.

The board is encouraging, however, certain groups take the shots. They include doctors and nurses, persons in charge of public services and people engaged in transportation, communication and public safety.

Dr. Foard reported there is very little call for Salk vaccine at this time by county health departments. For this reason the vaccine manufacturers have been requested not to ship a quantity now on order until notified.

He said the number of paralytic polio cases was down in the sta this year because of the Salk vaccine.

Under the proposed discussed by the board, the Legislature would be asked to make the Salk shots compulsory.

Dr. J. W. R. Norton, state health officer, said some members of the board felt the matter should be studied further.

A program to deal with chronic diseases and the human aging process will be financed by a federal allotment of $113,000 to the state, the board was told.

The program includes about 23 projects. Among them are additional equipment, increased laboratory diagnosis, expansion of cancer detection facilities, additional personnel, an accident prevention program, additional county personnel and facilities and scholarships for Public Health nurses.

Jeff Wilson Is Jaycee Speaker

The Jaycees last night heard Jeff B. Wilson of the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association.

Wilson commended the club on its handling of the State Teen-Age Road-e-o two years ago. The Road-e-o is co-sponsored by the Jaycees and the N. C. Motor Carriers Association.

He stated that the "trucking industry is a part of the overall pattern of transportation.

"Seventy-five per cent of everything you use moves all or part way by truck," he declared.

The Jaycees also voted to cooperate with the Civitans on the erection of signs on major highways leading into the city.

Emblems of local civic clubs will be hung on the sign.

John Ray Hardy reported on the project.

Also approved was a Speak-Up Club to be organized within the Jaycees. Bob Russ will serve as chairman.

President James W. Boykin reminded the group that the Bloodmobile will visit the city Oct. 4.

Start On Golden Anniversary Issue Of Yearbook

East Carolina's 1958 yearbook, the "Buccaneer," will be a special edition, with contents featuring the Fiftieth Anniversary of the founding of the college, Editor I. K. Williamson of Princeton, N.C., has announced. An editorial staff of twenty-one students began work on the publication this week.

Members of the four college classes are now being photographed, and work on portraits will continue through October 4. The yearbook will be illustrated also with campus scenes, pictures of student activities, and other photographs. Art work will be in charge of Ann McKay of Red Springs.

"Fifty Years of Progress" will be the theme of the Golden Anniversary volume of the "Buccaneer." A special 32-page section focusing attention on college events and classroom and departmental activities will contribute to this key idea, Mr. Williamson stated.
