Faubus Expects Arkansas Legislature Will Be Called

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval Faubus today said that "at the moment, it appears very likely there will be a special session of the Legislature" to take up the Little Rock integration crisis.

Such a session, if it is called, would be asked to deal with the Little Rock school integration controversy in which Faubus is arrayed against the federal government.

Faubus added with emphasis, however, that the special session "still isn't definite."

The governor said he was not ready to say what form any bill dealing with the integration dismisgivings" were expressed as to whether anything worthwhile could be accomplished.

A newsman asked, "Governor, do you want a special session?"

Faubus deliberated for what seemed a full minute and then said:

"Personally, no."

"I don't think any governor is ever eager for the Legislature to meet, either in regular or special session," Faubus said, laughing.

Any act which would close Central High School or withhold financial aid from it presumably must apply to all schools in the state, Capitol observers said.

A week ago today the six Negro girls and three boys entered Central High for the first time. Rioting white mobs on the streets outside led to their withdrawal after three hours.

There were no mobs today and only a few curious onlookers as a single soldier escorted the Negroes into the building from the Army station wagon used to transport them.

There was the usual concentration of more than 100 white students on the broad front steps of the school's main entrance. Last week they laughed and even mildly taunted the Negroes but today

U. N. Committee Told Work Will Continue Until Soviet Union Stops

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United States declared today it will continue nuclear test explosions until the Soviet Union agrees to stop producing atomic and hydrogen weapons.

In a speech before the U. N.'s 12-nation Disarmament Commission, U. S. Representative J. W. Fulbright said:

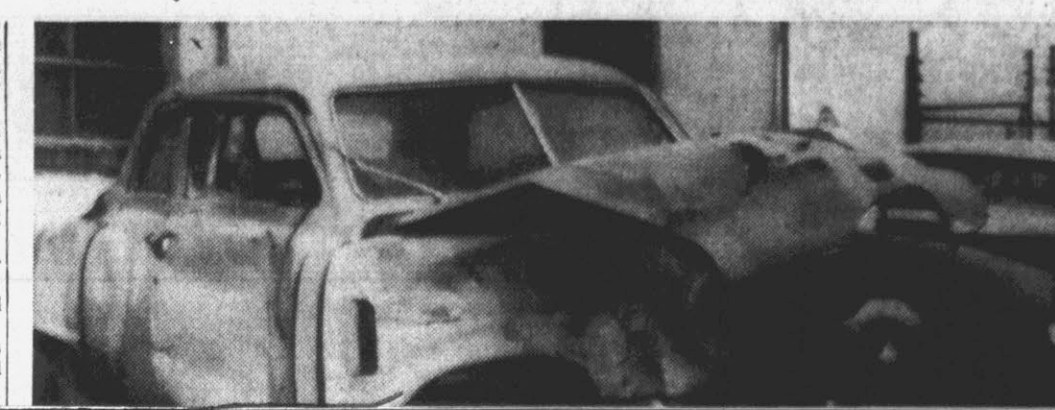

Three Traffic Deaths For Pitt Over Rainy Weekend

A wet Saturday night saw three persons lose their lives on the highways of Pitt County to push the total number of fatalities for the year to 10.

Two persons died as a result of injuries received when the car in which they were riding was involved in a collision at the intersection of N. C. 43 and U. S. 264. The wreck occurred at 10:10 p.m.

A pedestrian received fatal injuries when he was struck by a car on the Farmville-Bruce Road Saturday night.

The pedestrian was identified as David Earl Newton, 16-year-old Negro of Greenville Box 166 Rt. 4.

TWO KILLED IN THIS VEHICLE
... three die on Pitt highways Saturday night.

There have been suggestions that the Legislature be asked to close Little Rock Central High School where federal troops are enforcing court ordered integration of nine Negro students and have the school reopened as a private institution.

Faubus said he thought the Legislature was "predominantly" in favor of an extra session.

He said this was his impression from personal conversations, letters, telephone calls and telegrams.

He conceded that in conversation with seven northwestern Arkansas legislators yesterday, "some schools would have to be closed. If state financial aid were withdrawn because it is an integrated school, aid to all integrated schools presumably must be stopped.

Faubus said he believed the schools.

Meanwhile, the nine Negroes about whom the controversy swirled began their second week of integrated classes without incident at Central High. Only one paratrooper accompanied them compared with the 24 who took them into the building last Wednesday.

U. S. paratroopers have been escorting the Negro teenagers to classes since last Wednesday a few hours after President Eisenhower sent the 101st Airborne Division into Little Rock.

Inside the high school this morning 11 paratroopers stood in the halls armed only with billy clubs, a major said.

They were not—as last week—ordered to accompany students between classes.

The atmosphere was changed to one of complete calm, almost routine.

Troops were only sidearms today and did not carry rifles.

Lodge challenged the Kremlin to accept such a ban on stockpiling weapons if it really wants to end the nuclear tests.

Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev insisted on an immediate and unconditional end of the tests.

He said the United States was frustrating the hopes of millions of people by linking this question to other disarmament problems.

If the Soviet Union is not prepared to agree, Lodge said, "then I say with all the solemnity that I can that we are faced with a present major danger far graver than the problematic minor danger that comes from the testing of nuclear weapons in order to make the nuclear power available for defense without dangerous fallout."

The fatal collision at the N. C. 43-U. S. 264 intersection occurred as Highway Patrolman J. B. Surles looked on.

He identified the dead as William Wyatt Peaden, 48, of Greenville Box 12 Rt. 3 and Alice Keel Smith, 40, of 407 Jarvis St.

Surles said a 1950 model auto operated by Peaden collided with a 1949 model vehicle driven by Walter Reid Perkins, 21, of 400 Summit St. Both cars were total losses.

The car operated by Perkins was proceeding west on U. S. 264 while Peaden's vehicle was headed north on N. C. 43.

Surles said Peaden's car ran the stop sign on N. C. 43.

Both Peaden and Mrs. Smith lived to receive emergency treatment at Pitt Memorial Hospital. However, they succumbed to injuries during the night. Peaden had severe head and chest injuries and he remained unconscious. Mrs. Smith died of multiple injuries.

In the other vehicle, Perkins suffered a laceration over the left eye. He was treated and released. Riding in the front seat with Perkins was Miss Frieda Leebetter, 21, an ECC student. She was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital Saturday night.

In the back seat of the car operated by Perkins, Surles said, was Miss Peggy Batchelor of ECC and Guy V. Smith Jr. of 410 Pitt St.

Smith was owner of the car, the patrolman said.

The patrolman was pulling up to the intersection just as the collision occurred.

"It sounded like dynamite," he declared. "It looked as if a car had exploded."

The Peaden car was struck on the right side by the left front portion of the vehicle driven by Perkins. Peaden's car traveled 58 feet from the point of impact and

Light Damage In Wake Of Unheralded Coastal Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A coastal North Carolina storm left only light damage and no reported injuries in its wake today. It apparently was confined to the Wilmington area of the state's southeastern coast.

Residents checking damage under sullen, threatening skies found the biggest problem was thick slime carried into homes in low areas by tides which are running five to six feet above normal in some places.

The weather bureau said there were no advance warnings of the high winds, driving rains and sweeping seas yesterday because the storm formed right off the Wilmington coast and struck only a narrow area.

Carolina Beach appeared to be the hardest hit. Police chief Paul Wolfe reported this morning: "We have no dunes at all on the northern beaches."

Sand dunes along most of the beaches here suffered extensive damage. The loss of the dunes leave the beaches without protection against future storms.

Wind gusts were reported up to 60 miles per hour, but wind damage apparently was slight. Power crews reported very little damage to their lines.

From Saturday afternoon to midnight Sunday, the Wilmington area had 6.23 inches of rain, but flooding was caused mostly by extraordinarily high tides. When the tide ebbed, the floods receded and nothing was reported under water today.

But heavy rains throughout eastern North Carolina yesterday and last night were expected to send some rivers out of their banks.

The highest tides came about noon Sunday when the Carolina Beach city hall had 14 inches of water covering its floors. The highway patrol reported various low spots on roads were flooded.

Small craft warnings were still up today. The weather bureau cautioned against fresh to strong north and northeasterly winds, diminishing this afternoon and tonight.

Carolina Beach reported its highest tides between five and six feet above normal. Topsail Island estimated its tide at four and one-half feet above normal; Wrightsville Beach, four feet and Long Beach three and a half feet.

Some minor flooding on the lower reaches of the Cape Fear River was also predicted by the weather bureau today.

The weather bureau said rains, which averaged two to three inches, fell on the watersheds of the Dan and Roanoke and on the rivers which flow through Eastern North Carolina, the Cape Fear, the Neuse and the Tar.

"As a result, the rivers will rise considerably, but no serious flooding is expected unless there are additional heavy rains," the report added.

"Such unwillingness could confront us and other nations of the free world with a powerful nation whose conduct would only be explained ... by its determination to impose military domination on the world," he added.

Lodge told the commission that if Russia would agree in principle to the U. S. terms, then the United States would be ready to end the tests for a two-year period. He said the ban would go into effect without delay, even while inspection machinery was being discussed.

Lodge urged the commission to endorse the Western proposal for a ban on the production and stockpiling of nuclear weapons.

"Soviet acceptance of this principle would take us a great distance toward achievement of an agreement on disarmament," he declared, "for it is now one of the most important barriers to success."

"We urge the Soviet Union to reconsider its opposition to this step," Lodge expressed confidence the Russians had not spoken their last word on the subject.

"It is for the Soviet Union to speak," he said, "and tell us what we must contemplate."

Air Defense And Armored Forces To Be Weakened

WASHINGTON (AP) — One armored division and 14 air defense battalions will be dropped by the Army as part of its drive to cut 100,000 men from its strength by next June 30.

The announcement last night did not specify which units would be affected, but said the number of troops at various posts also will be cut back, with some of the installations being closed.

The greater part of the reduction, 71,000 men, will be accomplished by Jan. 1, the Army said, with the remaining 29,000 being eliminated by next June 30.

To the extent possible, the cuts will be concentrated in administrative, supply and special activities so maximum combat strength can be maintained.

The Army cuts are part of an over-all reduction of 200,000 men in the armed services ordered by Secretary of Defense Wilson in separate orders last July 16 and Sept. 19. The cut will leave the Army with 900,000 men.

An armored combat command will be substituted for one of the two armored divisions now in the United States, the Army said. The two are the 1st Armored at Ft. Polk, La., and the 4th Armored at Ft. Hood, Tex. The Army did not say which one would be affected.

The armored combat command will have 5,000 men. The strength of an armored division is about 14,600.

The air defense battalions to be eliminated will be either gun or sky-sweeper units. The Army said the need for them is being reduced with the development of new air defense missile units.

The Army said it will be necessary to "phase down or close" some posts, camps and training stations.

came to a halt on the highway. The car driven by Perkins traveled 78 feet and came to rest in the ditch alongside the road.

Surles said both Peaden and Mrs. Smith were thrown from the vehicle.

Assisting in the investigation was P. W. E. Williams.

The fatal collision left debris scattered along the highway. Traffic was snarled at the busy intersection, located just outside Greenville.

The intersection of the two highways is well marked with traffic islands. However, a change was made some months ago to require traffic on N. C. 43 to stop.

Pedestrian Death

The Newton woman received fatal injuries at 6:30 p.m. when he was struck by an automobile about one and a half miles south of N. C. 43 at Bruce.

Pt. Surles, who also investigated that accident, identified the driver of the car involved as Willie B. Smith, 23, of Winterville, Box 158.

Surles said Smith was headed toward Bruce and he met a truck and the pedestrian at the same time. Smith took Newton to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he never regained consciousness. He died of internal injuries.

Damage to Smith's 1950 vehicle was estimated at $100.

Inquests into the three deaths will be held later this week, Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said this morning.

Further investigation is underway, the coroner said.

The highway deaths bring to 10 the number of persons who have lost their lives in Pitt County auto accidents this year. Nine have died on rural roads and highways and one was killed in Greenville, according to Highway Patrol Cpl. C. E. Whitfield.

At this same time last year, 18 persons have met death on county roads, the corporal said.

Spray 'Red Tide' On Florida Coast

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Aerial spraying of the red tide area off St. Petersburg's gulf beaches has been stepped up amid indications the outbreak is increasing in intensity.

Bathers have begun to report the coughing and throat burning sensation associated the red tide.

So far offshore winds have kept a mass of dead fish, poisoned by the red tide, well out in the Gulf. The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service estimates the number at more than 100,000.

The red tide is caused by the presence in the water of a huge number of a minute marine organism called gymnodinium brevifrons.

Teamsters Invited To Look At The Evidence

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The scandal-ridden Teamsters Union today received and accepted a bid from the Senate Rackets Committee in Washington to inspect evidence in committee files challenging qualifications of some Teamsters convention delegates.

Dave Beck, Teamster president, revealed an exchange of telegrams with Committee Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) as the Teamsters opened their faithful convention with a roaring ovation for Beck.

Beck told reporters he received a telegram from McClellan last night saying the Senate committee has evidence in its files that some convention delegates have been chosen illegally. McClellan offered to turn it over to the union.

Beck said he replied the union would like to see the data and has assigned a Washington attorney, Martin O'Donoghue, to visit the Senate committee offices in Washington this morning.

Beck said he had assured McClellan that the convention credentials committee is "carefully investigating" the legality of selection of delegates.

"The information you have may be helpful even at this late date," Beck said he wired McClellan.

More than 100 of the convention's 1,929 delegates have been formally challenged before the credentials committee.

When Beck entered the packed municipal auditorium, the delegates gave him a resounding ovation. He and James R. Hoffa, present Midwest Teamster boss and leading candidate to succeed the retiring Beck as union president, posed together waving at the delegates.

One of Hoffa's four announced rivals for the presidency, Thomas L. Hickey of New York, like Hoffa a Teamster vice president, was roundly booed when he entered the convention.

John F. English, aging Teamster International secretary-treasurer, got a big hand when he stumped down to the platform on his wooden leg. He also posed shaking hands with Hoffa.

English never has announced his choice for the union presidency. His endorsement would be an influential factor.

The bottom fell out of Pitt County's early Autumn skies over the weekend.

The Utilities Commission's weather station reported this morning that weekend rain clouds dumped 3.1 inches of rain over the county. The clouds also held the county's temperature at an unusual level.

A high of 63 degrees was reported yesterday and a low of 62 was recorded last night. The one-degree variation marked the first time in many years that the temperature had been held at such a level.

"No report was made of any unusual effect of the weekend's rains on Tar River, but the Tar and other Eastern North Carolina rivers are expected to rise slightly later in the week. Rains were reported throughout the Eastern half of the state all day yesterday, with the Wilmington area apparently receiving the heaviest rainfall.

More than five inches of rain in the Wilmington area and, coupled with high tides and strong winds, caused heavy damage in the port city and neighboring beach resorts. The Wrightsville Beach highway was reported under water at some places yesterday, and Carolina Beach officials reported washed-out foundations on the boardwalk and eight to ten inches of water in the city hall and police station.

It was also reported that workmen were sandbagging the bulkhead and sea wall at Kure Beach, south of Carolina Beach.

Wilmington's weather troubles were caused by a low pressure cell about 100 miles off the coast. The cell also caused storm warnings to be hoisted from Wilmington to Cape Hatteras yesterday, and small craft warnings from Manito southward this morning.

The rain which began in Pitt County Saturday night was part of a storm that moved eastward across the state Saturday and slowed when it reached the area of influence of the low pressure cell off the coast.

Symington Raps Defense Cutback

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sen. Symington (D-Mo) charged today the Eisenhower administration "pulled the rug out from under our negotiators" and wrecked the recent London disarmament conference.

In a speech prepared for a district Kiwanis convention, Symington said the announcement of a 100,000-man cutback in armed forces by Secretary of Defense Wilson in July "was tragic in view of the disarmament conference then in session."

Then, the senator added, a ceiling was placed on defense spending, forcing cancellation of hundreds of defense contracts, and "there was a group of vague and disorderly pronouncements" on defense policies.

Symington said it is naive to think the Russians would agree to controlled disarmament when the United States already is disarming unilaterally.

Next came the Atomic Energy Commission's announcement of atomic weapons tests to be held at Eniwetok next April, giving "the impression the United States was not further considering steps toward an agreement to suspend tests," Symington said.

Fifty-Five Safe In Crash-Landing

ITAMI, Japan (AP) — Fifty-five passengers and crew members aboard a Japan Air Lines plane were reported to have escaped alive as the plane crash-landed and burned in a rice field today, an airlines spokesman said.

The crash occurred shortly after takeoff from Itami.

The DC4, flying from Osaka to Tokyo, was carrying 51 passengers and four crew members, the airline said.

Three of those aboard were non-Japanese and believed to be Americans. Five passengers, including one non-Japanese woman, were reported injured.

National police said the plane struck a power line as it was trying to gain altitude, and sat down in a paddy field about half a mile from the airport.

Itami is about 10 miles outside Osaka, a major city in southern Honshu, 250 miles southwest of Tokyo.

County Fair Plans To Open This Afternoon

Weather permitting, the Pitt County Agricultural Fair will open for business this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Manager Norman Chambliss said this morning.

The 26 rides and other midway attractions pulled into the fairgrounds yesterday after completing a week at the Rocky Mount Fair.

The fair manager said exhibits are being prepared this morning in the big exhibit hall.

Of particular interest, he said, is an exhibit being erected by the Formica Corp. It will show the NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — Okinawa police reported today 79 Okinawans are still missing and presumed drowned, five days after typhoon Faye raked the island with 146 m.p.h. winds. Fifty-two were confirmed dead, including one American Marine.

The storm, reportedly caused heavy damage to U. S. Air Force installations. An Air Force spokesman said today the damage at Naha was largely to Navy planes, bug gave no details.

No dollar estimate of damage to Air Force property was available, but a spokesman said the storm actually "saved us money" by clearing out temporary buildings scheduled for replacement.

Buchanan Discusses Pitt County Safety Council At CWBC Meet

L. M. Buchanan was the guest speaker Saturday morning when the Credit Women's Breakfast Club met with President Callie Rue Williams presiding.

Buchanan, chairman of the Pitt County Safety Council, gave a talk on "Safety." He stated that the aim of the council "were to promote safety in the home, school, on the street, in transportation, in industry and anywhere it may help in the field of safety."

The Pitt County Safety Council, he noted, has received the endorsement of the governor of this state for its outstanding work in this community.

"Our local council is united with the National Safety Council which was begun in Chicago by a group of industries who felt it a must to improve working conditions so as to make labor safe in industry and has since then branched in many media. It is a non-profit organization and any firms or individual are free to join," he said.

In conclusion Buchanan stressed that "The fundamental laws of safety today people take too much for granted and it is the aim of this council to help people become aware of this and thereby become more safety minded."

An invitation was read from the Wilson club inviting all members to attend the annual Boogie Night October 9 at 7:30 at the Wilson Country Club. Tom Webb was a guest of the club Saturday morning. Door prize was won by Mrs. Mildred Porter.

Bone Up On Beef Grades Advises Market Specialist

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — With pre-packaged meat coming into prominence, the housewife is more or less on her own at the meat market. There's no longer a friendly butcher to advise her on selecting the family meat supply.

Knowing the appropriate grade and cut to select for a particular meat dish is the first step to consider in menu planning, according to Kay Nawn, marketing specialist in the Livestock Branch, Department of Agriculture. Miss Nawn travels all over the country talking to consumer groups on meat selection. She says if you bone up on the subject you will spend your meat dollar wisely and please the head of the house and the kids.

It's easy to distinguish different cuts of meat, she says, if you look at the federal grade stamp. This also tells you the cut. There are some 450 federal meat grades in all important meat marketing centers throughout the country. They judge meat for quality and then stamp a long purple ribbon on it so that even on a relatively small retail meat cut you should be able to see some portion of the marking.

To learn more about these federal grades, you can write to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., and ask for Leaflet 310, U. S. Grades for Beef. Single copies are free. The booklet is one of the 10 most popular among government publications.

The class of meat obtained from cattle varies with age. From birth until three months of age, cattle meat is classified as veal; from three months to one year the grader will stamp it calf. After one year it's beef. Federal grades usually available to you are U. S. prime, U. S. choice, U. S. good, U. S. standards, U. S. commercial and U. S. utility.

"Knowing grades is very important, but knowing meat cuts is important, too," says Miss Nawn. "When beef is plentiful and prices are reasonable you might consider larger cuts of beef and using one cut in a variety of ways."

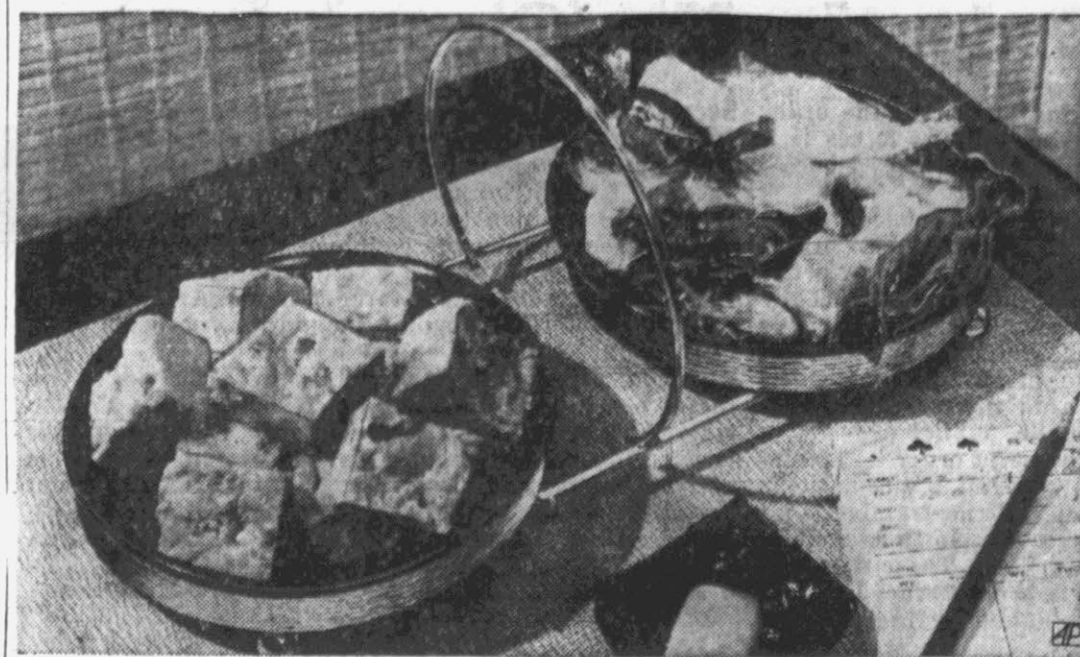

A blade chuck roast can be divided so a housewife can prepare four different types of meat dishes. A steak may be taken from it, part used for hamburger, part for stewing beef, part for pot roast. Steaks cut from rib roasts, says Miss Nawn, compare in palatability, tenderness and flavor with the more expensive club steaks.

People buying larger cuts of beef will find lower cuts such as standard and commercial suit their needs for hamburger, stewing beef and meat loaf and cost less per pound. Miss Nawn says, however, that if you're planning on roasting or broiling, it's wiser to limit your selection to U. S. choice or good grades.

To Kiss Or Not To Kiss? It Depends

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Dating season is in full swing again, judging by the letters from puzzled types. These questions are from students 16 to 18 years of age. Here goes:

Q. Our group has decided to put a controversial question up to you. It is this: Should girls kiss on a first date?

A. First-date-kissing depends entirely on the boy's character. If he is just kissing you good-night, it is okay. If he is using the kissing - with - parking - with - necking technique, it is definitely "no." Ditto if he acts like he expects to be kissed goodnight or complains because you resist his advances.

Q. My best friend dated a boy all summer, then they broke off, and have not seen each other for several months. Now he has called me and asked me to a big dance. She will be going also, with another boy. I do not know whether to accept the invitation in the circumstances.

A. You should not worry about past friendships if you like the boy. It would be different if he had dated your friend until a recent quarrel, but since they haven't seen each other for a long time, the companionship seems to have come to a halt.

Q. How often can you see a boy without giving the impression of "going steady" to which my parents object.

A. If you are seeing other boys too, then you certainly are not in the steady dating class. Some girls, however, do use the technique called "5 to 1," seeing the boy they like five times as often as other dates, and thereby hope to deceive their parents who object to steady dating.

Q. A boy I like will not come to our house because he does not get along with my father. My father says I may not date him unless he picks me up at the house. Would it be better for me to meet him on the sly or should I give him up if he refuses to meet me at the house?

A. If he cares enough for you he will swallow his pride and come to see you. If there is no chance that he and your father can be friends, it might be better to break off the relationship anyway before it gets to the serious stage.

Q. Do you believe in Dutch Treat? A boy I know suggests that he would like to see more of me, but can't afford to.

A. I do not believe in Dutch Treat, except when a couple is engaged and saving their money. Then it doesn't seem to make much difference which pocket it comes out of. If a boy can't afford to take you out then he should see you on a date that doesn't cost him anything. House party invitations are one way. There is

Legion Hears Jo Anne Parks, Margaret Harrell

On Thursday evening, Mrs. J. H. Rose entertained the American Legion Auxiliary, Greenville Post No. 39, assisted by Mesdames L. Rives, H. R. Rogers, J. B. Kirtrell, K. T. Futrell, J. Knott Proctor, Bert Greene, James L. Evans and T. I. Wagner.

Twenty-seven members and guests were present. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, president. Mrs. C. A. Bowen, chairman of Girls' State, introduced the guest speakers, Miss Margaret Ann Harrell and Miss JoAnne Parks, two delegates to 1957 Girls State who were sponsored by the Greenville Unit.

Each girl told what she had learned at Girls State about government, leadership and parliamentary law. They expressed the many pleasures of sightseeing, entertainment, visiting, and association with the 303 girls of the State who had been selected as delegates because of the outstanding qualities they showed in high school.

Mrs. Kennedy announced that the Area Meeting would be held at Littleton on October 4 and asked that all who wished to go would notify Mrs. Richard Briley. The Yearbooks, dedicated to "Past Unit Presidents," were given out. It was decided to invite Mrs. Raymond Fuson, newly-elected State Department President, to one of the meetings this year as guest speaker.

Mrs. H. R. Rogers, chairman of child welfare, mentioned the need for some good toys, puzzles, color books, picture books and records suitable for use in the school for retarded trainable children. She also reminded members to begin thinking about their gifts for the Christmas Gift Shops of the four veterans hospitals, which should be handed in by the end of October.

Mrs. W. C. Eagles reported on the convention held at Durham in June. She said that Veterans Hospitals, child welfare and rehabilitation were especially stressed. She mentioned that in the re-districting the Greenville Unit will be in the 1st Area of the 4th District (which is composed of Ayden, Elm City, Farmville, Goldsboro, Greenville, Kinston, Mount Olive, Rocky Mount, Snow Hill and Wilson).

Mrs. Rose and her committee served refreshments after the meeting.

We split the rolls lengthwise and butter the cut surfaces lightly. Then we layer one side with the meats and cheese—folding these over as necessary—and add very thin lengthwise slices of dill pickle. We spread the other side of the roll with the prepared mustard and tuck three or four small pickled onions down into it at intervals. We put the rolls together with a small leaf of lettuce and remain.

Revoked Order Is No 'Closed Book'

Army Secretary Brucker may feel that the order stepping up riot training for the military forces is a "closed book"; but it is anything but a "closed book" in the minds of many Americans.

President Eisenhower should order immediate release of the complete text of the controversial order.

The American people are entitled to know what the order contained and by whom it was issued. They have a perfect right to know whether the nation's military forces were being mobilized for deployment against the civilian population in any section of the nation. They are perfectly within their rights in demanding that the order be made public.

Controversy over the so-far secret order is certainly not one of merely sectional interest. If the nation's military forces are to receive special riot training, that training may well be put to use in the North as well as the South, in the East or in the West. The citizens of the nation, the ultimate rulers in a democracy, are entitled to know what is being planned by their armed forces.

The order itself—though it has been a closely guarded secret—is highly disturbing. Of even greater concern is the matter in which it has been handled.

Apparently it was issued in strict secrecy by some high ranking official of the armed forces. Apparently it was to remain a secret so far as the country's population was concerned. But once word leaked out, the Secretary of the Army immediately revoked it with the terse announcement that it was a "closed book" and the contents of the order would not be released because it might be misinterpreted.

In our opinion that is more of an excuse than a valid reason. Cannot the people of the United States be trusted to know what special unprecedented orders are being issued their armed forces? Is the Army plotting against the nation's civilian population, or parts of it, as it would an armed enemy nation?

Like other actions taken in the past week, this secret order to the Army was in our opinion ill-considered, hasty and not in the interest of the domestic tranquility of the nation. Its withdrawal by a high official is not sufficient. The full text of the order should be made public, and the sooner, the better.

Pitt County Fair Is 'Progress On Parade'

Pitt County goes on parade again today at the annual Agricultural Fair sponsored by the American Legion.

As in past years, the fair will offer hundreds of agricultural exhibits showing a cross section of the thriving agricultural economy of the county. There will be tobacco, of course, but there will be more too.

People who visit the fair will see in the exhibits prize cattle, swine and poultry. They will see vegetable crops, grains. There will be exhibits depicting methods of timber cultivation, development of better permanent pastures. There will be displays of many varieties of preserved foods produced on farms of Pitt County.

Collectively these agricultural exhibits will point up the fact that while Pitt relies principally on tobacco for its income, it is also capable of producing a wide variety of other farm commodities. It is capable of placing greater emphasis on agricultural diversification to enhance its farm income.

There will be something more too at this Agricultural Fair. There will be booths exhibiting products manufactured or products to be manufactured in Pitt County, bringing attention to the fact that industry and agriculture go hand-in-hand to give a well balanced economy to a community, a county, or an entire region.

In a very true sense, the "parade" at the Pitt County Fair this week will show what Pitt is doing to bolster its economy and what it can do to bring about a higher economic level for all its people.

Future Trends Seen In Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are some business predictions, based on analyses of developing trends and larded with a few leaks and advance information:

More stores will offer credit. The J. C. Penney chain is considering it, and other large cash merchandisers are probably weighing the idea. Regardless of their decisions, it seems certain that more stores will adopt time-pay plans in an effort to offset the government's tight-money policy on consumer spending.

Christmas sales will be bigger than forecast earlier. Sales in many lines have been rising, buoying retailers confidence and activating plans for wider stocks and more promotions. Stock market rallies are, of course, a negative influence but the income level, prospects of wage rises and the high employment ratio are positively positive.

MUSIC TO RETIRE BY

Labor fringe demands will take a new tack. Many union members are restless with pension plans that tie them to one company. There's a rising work-bench demand for pension plans that can be transferred to other companies. Labor leaders are aware of this ferment and may step up demands for such systems.

There's confidence in the electronics industry. It's happy about the shift in emphasis from planes to guided missiles. While there is a vast amount of electronic equipment in every war plane, there is even more in each guided missile. Guided missiles, unlike planes, are not reusable.

There's optimism in oil, too. While the industry is now crying hydrocarbon tears over import restrictions at the moment, most oil companies are confident that demand in America will rise about 2 per cent a year for a long time. While the rise has been greater in other years, the confidence in continued demand has seldom been greater.

Singapore will call you. The new nation of Malaya has been learning western ways fast and is about to spend $100,000 to promote travel to Singapore and the Peninsula.

CAPITAL PREDICTIONS Congress is in recess and many Congressmen are hey-nony-nonying around Europe at taxpayers' expense. Nevertheless, some of the issues for the 1958 session are shaping up and it is now possible to predict:

There's been strong effects to put the packers under the Federal Trade Commission. Packers are now regulated by the Department of Agriculture. But chain stores are trying to get out from under FTC control by insisting they are packers. Some Congressmen therefore want to put packers as well as chains under the FTC.

Customs revision will be tried again. America's foreign trade is growing fabulously, and as our influence in world affairs expands, it will grow even more. The big corset on growth is our customs procedures, which date, in part, to before the Civil War. There has been some improvement recently, but it looks as if there will be an all-out drive to bring operations up to, say, 1937.

There will be a big push to revise Social Security. Regulations baffle the working stiff from whom the costs are extracted and the benefits now paid insure many of only one thing—poverty until death. Public opinion is growing and many Congressmen will demand changes in the law and in benefits.

PROMOTER WANTS BELTS FOR BUS PASSENGERS "I see there are many studies to prove that seat-belts are almost necessities in autos," the Old Promoter said on his visit today.

We are not going to invest in any new seat-belt company," we said with great finality.

"I know, I know," he said, "but if there should be a law requiring them in passenger cars, why shouldn't they be compulsory on buses? If it is so important for every pleasure car rider to be seated and strapped in, why shouldn't every bus rider have a seat and belts?" "Sh-h!" we said. "The traveling public has lost the street-car and is losing the railroads. Don't demand seats and belts on buses, or the public will lose them, too!"

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

POWER OF CHRISTIAN FAITH Why has Christianity grown and influenced the lives of men through the centuries? At its center stands a cross. The greatest circumstance in the Christian gospel is the death of Christianity's Leader. Christianity is built on a catastrophe—the Crucifixion.

And yet, with everything against it, Christianity grows in power with the passing centuries and gives every indication of coming at last to full triumph over the world.

The source of Christianity's power is its divine nature. It is more than a set of teachings, more than a great organized church, more than any human movement could ever be. It is actually God coming into the stream of human history in the person of Jesus Christ, and bringing human life under His divine power. Christianity involves beliefs. Creeds have their place in our faith. The Church is the veritable body of Christ and therefore a sacred and supernatural reality. But Christianity is more than belief and higher than any organization that grows up about it. Christianity is God in human life exercising a saving power. Wicked men tried to stamp out Christianity by crucifying its Founder. But through the tragic circumstances of Calvary, forgiveness has come to the human heart—and as a result, salvation.

Nothing is so marvelous in this marvelous world as the marvelous power of Christian faith.

An Education In Mails

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That Henry Ford, asked on his 50th wedding anniversary to give his formula for a successful married life, replied it was the same formula he had used to make his automobile successful—"Stick to one model."

That Dwight Eisenhower is the only president who doesn't have at least one town named after him.

That about 16 million people in the United States have some form of allergy.

That even in captivity all the members of a herd of elephants never sleep at the same time. A few always stand guard while the others doze.

That a survey showed 70 out of 72 persons didn't know what day of the week they were born on. And do you?

That Mary Mayo claims worry kills more people than work because more people worry than work.

That Reno, Nev., is about 100 miles farther west than Los Angeles; and Jacksonville, Fla., is farther west than Cleveland, O.

That to join the Bald Head Club of America you must have a bald spot at least three inches in diameter.

That "ragtime" music was so named because it has a ragged rhythm.

That the difference between an actor and a star, is this: "An actor looks for a job. A star looks for a property."

That a fingernail on the Statue of Liberty measures 13 by 10 inches.

That 10 tons of steel are used in this country each week just to make the tiny staples which hold book matches together.

That D.H. Toller-Bond says a boy becomes a man when he walks around a puddle of water instead of through it.

That only about one third of the U.S. population uses a toothbrush three times a day.

That there is a town in Mississippi called Sock.

That the bartender at the Sutton restaurant says alcohol will preserve practically anything—except secrets!

That William Shakespeare, who could act as well as write, also was regarded as a talented dancer.

That the eight tallest buildings in the United States are all located in New York City.

That Al Cooper likes to tell of the Texan who flunked an easy question on a TV quiz show. He couldn't remember whose face was on a dollar bill.

That it was Montaigne who wrote, "I have never seen a greater monster or miracle in the world than myself." And can't we all say the same thing about ourselves?

And the Pavement Philosopher has come to these conclusions:

Uncle Sam has proved one thing for sure in the post-World War: Money may buy enemies—but it won't even rent a friend.

One of the hardest problems of the 20th century is for a man to keep both feet on the ground while building castles in Spain in his swivel chair.

The quickest way to get Americans back into physical shape is for the government to make them pay income taxes according to their weight.

Quote...

"Right is right and some citizens are willing to pay to prove it so. Take for instance, the Nebraska doctor who the other day filed a traffic complaint against a truck driver for passing a bus going uphill. The defendant insisted he was not guilty, but the court held otherwise."

"The doctor then stepped forward and paid the $20 fine assessed the truck driver. The physician explained he did not want to penalize the truck driver, he just wanted to prove himself right."—(The Macon Telegraph)

Dispute Over Tax-Usage Revived

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The Dulles-Hollister quarrel over the use of American taxpayers' money to finance foreign governments' socialist schemes has been revived in acute form by none other than Senator Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island. The Democratic Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has promised to make a sweeping investigation of this controversial question.

Green's immediate concern is the failure of Bolivia to compensate the United States for the famous Paternito tin mines, which that country nationalized several years ago. But, in his written protest to the State Department, he warned that continued American support of other nations' adventures in socialization and nationalization might create a wrong and harmful impression of the American attitude on this problem.

It might convince other countries, he said, that the United States condones and approves the kind of totalitarian economy which we condemn in Russia and the satellites. He reminded Dulles that Americans have invested heavily abroad, and frequently at the solicitation of the State Department itself.

U.S. HELP TO BOLIVIA—As time goes on, and as the United States continues to expend large sums to help the Bolivian Government (and many other similar regimes—Ed. note), Green wrote the State Department, "we have been identified more and more openly with the Bolivian Government."

"This is most unfortunate because it has led to misinterpretation of the United States Government's policy with respect to nationalization. The time has come, it seems to me, for clarification of this anomalous situation."

"We owe this, not merely to the people of the United States, who contribute to the support of Bolivia as taxpayers, but also to our many friends in countries in the Western Hemisphere, in Europe and in Asia, who look to the United States for clear and intelligent guidance in these troubled times."

AN EFFORT AT CLARIFICATION In retreating as head of the International Co-Operation Administration, John B. Hollister tried to provide the "clarification" demanded by Senator Green. Without consulting Dulles, Hollister declared that the Administration would frown on financing nationalized industries and activities, giving preference to private borrowers.

Dulles tried to brush the controversy under his expansive diplomatic rug. Conceding that the U.S. preferred private development, he said that the mixed policy of underwriting both public and private enterprises would be continued.

Otherwise, the U.S. would be guilty of a Russian propaganda charge that Washington bribes countries to support our anti-Communist program, and interferes with their affairs.

SENATOR'S INTERVENTION COMES AT INAPPROPRIATE TIME Senator Green's intervention, in view of his Foreign Relations chairmanship, comes at a peculiarly inopportune moment. Prime Minister Nehru's Finance Minister is now in Washington seeking at least $500,000 for a country where more than half of the economy has been nationalized, especially railroads and ports needing immediate improvement.

Change In Our Living

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass.—The automobile is not only revolutionizing highways, retailing, and financing; but also the style of buildings and homes. Simple arithmetic will prove that with the narrow business streets in the older cities, one of three things will happen:— (1) The fifty-year-old brick buildings will be torn down and replaced by modern one-story buildings; or (2) the streets widened; or (3) all stores will be open evenings. New Shopping Centers are otherwise inevitable.

Another example of simple mathematics:—People can borrow only so much money. This limit is fast being reached. If families are to have one or two larger automobiles, these families must be satisfied with smaller and fewer rooms in their home. As autos become larger and more expensive, homes must become smaller and less expensive. I therefore forecast that many of our readers will turn their pre-

All new homes will not have garages; but all will have enough land so that the family cars can be kept off the streets. The new style of architecture will be based on the Old Cape Cod house of one and one-half stories, or else people will live in duplex or co-operative apartments. People gave up their "horse and buggy" when they bought an automobile. They will learn to give up their present style of homes. Putting more money into the automobile may result in putting less money into the home. This will especially be true if we are facing either war or disarmament.

What Rooms Will Be Retained

The future home will have no "dining room"; and the orthodox "parlor" is definitely doomed. Weddings, funerals, and receptions will be held outside the home in places which have proper parking space. There will be one large "living room" in which the family will live, cook, and eat. There will be no "kitchen." With frozen foods and infrared cooking, only a few minutes will be needed to prepare a meal. From such cooking there will be no mess or odor.

Every house will, however, have two bathrooms—one for the parents, who will sleep on the first floor; one for the children, who will sleep on the second floor. Typical bathtubs of the present day will be seen only in museums. Bedrooms will be much smaller, comparing more with the bedrooms on ocean liners or on deluxe trains. Heating and air-conditioning will be much cheaper and more efficient. Both hot and cold air will come into the houses through underground pipes as gas and water now come. Electricity will be very much cheaper. "Bottled gas" will be used more.

Clothes can be much cheaper. Cloth will no longer be woven as cloth is today. Cloth will be made like paper cellophane. This unknown new "synthetic cloth" will come out of a machine as finished dresses for the women and children, or as finished suits for the men. Some women readers will say, "Impossible, women will insist on wearing different dresses and hats." These, of course, can differ in colors, but women will then be satisfied with standard clothes. The automobile will standardize clothing. There will be a few different makes of clothes at different price ranges. Auto dealers and gas stations may carry clothing.

Yes, revolutionary changes to be caused by the automobile have just commenced. Far greater changes are ahead. As "drive-in theatres" are following indoor theatres, so "drive-in schools" and "drive-in churches" will follow. Banks are now taking many of their deposits direct from customers who drive up in automobiles to a special window. Store show-windows, which have been a fruitful source of advertising for their merchants, will become of less value as more people pass in autos. More duplex and co-operative apartment houses are coming. Renting automobiles will largely take the place of buying them. This same may apply to furniture, and even clothes. This will especially be true if our nation is facing either War or Disarmament due to the threat of Russian Fallout.

Editor Feels Integration Opposed, But Little Rock Willing To Comply

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
 WAS HINGTON, (AP)—An Arkansas editor says most white citizens of Little Rock, although opposed to racial integration, are willing to comply with the Supreme Court's school integration decree.

Harry Ashmore, executive editor of Little Rock's Arkansas Gazette, said yesterday on a TV interview that "we could have done so without trouble" were it not for the actions of Gov. Orval Faubus. Ashmore said the governor's moves in the Little Rock school crisis were politically motivated.

The editor said it was a "dreadful" possibility that the Arkansas Legislature might close Central High School, center of the integration row in Little Rock. Faubus has said he is considering asking the Legislature to take such a step.

Federal troops now are on duty at Central High to enforce court orders requiring admission of Negro pupils. The paratroopers were ordered to Little Rock after mob violence by segregationists.

Ashmore said he believes "the first reaction of Little Rock to the appearance of federal troops was one of relief" after more than three weeks of tension and some "now, since order has been restored, we look out and see federal troops . . . on our streets—it's an incredible sight." He said the troops should be withdrawn as soon as possible.

As for future government moves in the Little Rock situation, Ashmore said, "My guess is that the federal government will move now through court actions in the next few days against leaders of the mob . . . around Central High School." He did not say what form he thought those court actions would take.

Meanwhile, a panel of Southern newsmen offered varying opinions on what effect the use of troops in Little Rock would have on the South in general. They appeared yesterday on a special CBS-TV program on the integration problem.

"Bitterness" was the term used by both Joseph B. Parham, editor of the Macon (Ga.) News and W. D. Workman Jr., correspondent for two South Carolina papers, to describe the reaction in their areas.

But Weldon James, associate editor of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal, said the attitude in the border states seems to be that President Eisenhower did what he had to do in ordering federal troops into Little Rock. Parham said resistance in Georgia to integration has become "even harder" since the President's troop order.

Workman, who represents the Charleston News and Courier and the Greenville News, said he has heard estimates it would take "anywhere from a thousand years" to bring acceptance of integration in the South.

James said the prevailing opinion among school officials in his border state area is that Eisenhower's troop action "adds to the doctrine of inevitability" of integration. He said people in his region foresee "gradual progress" (and) within 10 to 20 years at least token integration throughout the South.

Ashmore predicted that "integration is coming inevitably." But he said, "Social segregation will continue for a long time."

Referring to Faubus' description of him as an "ardent integrationist," Ashmore said he is ardent in upholding law and order. "This is the only issue before the people of the South and of my town," he said.

Ashmore noted that the federal courts twice had upheld the Little Rock school board's minimum plans for spaced-out integration. "I believe that a high proportion of the white citizens of our town do not want their schools integrated," Ashmore said. "This has not been the question at all. The question was whether we could, with order and good will, comply with the law, or whether we would resist."

"I believe that a considerable majority . . . support the proposition that we should have complied and believe that we could have done so without trouble had the governor not acted as he did," Ashmore, who served on Adlai Stevenson's staff during the Democratic presidential campaign, said the Democratic party has been "badly damaged." He said Faubus had "virtually invited a split in the Democratic party in the South."

However, he said it was too early to estimate the impact of the Little Rock events on next year's congressional elections or the 1960 presidential race.

Rep. Powell (D-NY), one of three Negro members of the House, said the Democrats have done nothing to help integration in Little Rock. He said in a TV interview, "I don't see how the Democratic party is going to keep the Negro vote . . ."

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt says military might alone will not defeat the Soviet Union.

The United States can beat the Russians only by being "far better than they are," she said as she returned here by plane yesterday from a 25-day visit to the Soviet Union.

To make a successful appeal to the world against persistent and carefully conducted Russian diplomacy, Americans need greater knowledge and understanding of that country's background and motives, Mrs. Roosevelt declared.

She advised students of Russian affairs to "study history as you have never studied it before."

Mrs. Roosevelt described Communist party leader Nikita S. Khrushchev, whom she met in a 2½-hour interview, as a "strong personality, an articulate person, a worker, and one who genuinely feels that communism is the wave of the future."

During her talk with Khrushchev, Mrs. Roosevelt said, they agreed that the world wants peace.

Khrushchev accused her, she said, of hating Communists. To this she reported replying: "Oh no, I don't. I don't hate anybody. I don't believe in communism as an ideological way of life."

The Little Rock, Ark., school situation, she said, "was the only piece of world news that appeared in the Communist newspapers."

Asked what comment the Russian made on it, Mrs. Roosevelt replied: "They said exactly what happened. There was no comment of any kind."

LOOSE BALL—Davidson's Harold Westervelt (84) and two East Carolina gridders chase a loose ball in the above action. The object of the chase was a punt that was partially blocked by Davidson. Coming in to trap the ball was Davidson's Earl Edwards. The ball was awarded to Davidson on a technicality. (Reflector Sports Photos by Billy Arnold).

Clemson's Frank Howard Not Likely To Be Looking Foward To Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It's highly probable that Clemson's Coach Frank Howard isn't looking forward to his team's clash with North Carolina State Saturday.

The reason is clear. While N.C. State's football squad mauls Maryland—a team that can't be considered a push-over—by a 48-13 score, Clemson was taking a 26-0 licking from the North Carolina Tar Heels.

Other top conference game will be at Durham, N.C., where Duke—40-0 victor—over Virginia Saturday—entertains Maryland. In the only other league contest, Virginia will be at Winston-Salem Saturday night to meet Wake Forest. The Deacons lost to Florida Saturday, 0-27.

In non-conference games, the Tar Heels will meet Navy at Chapel Hill, and South Carolina—26-0 winner over Wofford Saturday—invades Texas.

Duke halfback Wray Carlton broke two conference scoring records and the Blue Devils tied a team record in their triumph over Virginia.

Carlton's four touchdowns and two conversions for 26 points broke the record of 20 points set by Wake Forest's Bill Barnes against William and Mary in 1956, and the record of three touchdowns held by a host of players.

Duke's 30 first downs tied the ACC record set by Clemson against Presbyterian Sept. 21.

Here's how the coaches saw Saturday's games.

Earl Edwards said there were no standouts in the Wolfpack's drubbing of Maryland. He wore a big grin as he commented on the surprisingly high score.

The 48 points was the most racked up by a N.C. State team in 106 games, and it was the highest score against the Terps since a 49-20 loss to North Carolina in 1948.

On Saturday, at Elm Street park, 400 boys and girls participated in a Field Day sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club and organized by the recreation department.

Within the space of an hour, events ranging from the broad jump to button sewing were held.

A large portable drink cooler was awarded to Charles Boyd, holder of a lucky ticket. The cooler was donated by Jack Minges of the Pepsi-Cola plant.

All children received a free drink through the courtesy of Royal Crown and Pepsi Bottling companies, and a free ride on the Kiwanis Choo Choo was given each child.

Recreation department officials who had a part in the event were Gordon Goodman, Neely James and Mrs. Sam White, III.

Kiwanians who assisted were Jimmy Brewer, Charles Gaskins, Julian White, Dr. Elmer Lathen, Dr. Howard Grads, Max Ray Joyner, Ed Rawl, Jr., and Dr. S. R. Bartlett.

Bill Dole came back to East Carolina College Saturday night, but he sweated in a cold rain before he could claim the homecoming was sweet.

Dole's Davidson Wildcats, visiting College Stadium for the first time since the former ECC coach left the campus in 1952, whizzed and groaned their way to a 19-6 win over the Pirates.

The Wildcats, overwhelming favorites in the inter-conference contest, pulled out all of their offensive and defensive tricks to take the close game that preserved a Southern Conference record of never having lost to an East Carolina football team. The victory, in Dole's career there when he intercepted an East Carolina pass late in the second quarter and returned it to the Pirates' 32.

All four of Davidson's starting backs took turns carrying the ball to the ECC six from where half-back Paul Barbee scooted around right end for the touchdown.

The Pirates invited themselves back into the game three minutes later when Speight broke through right tackle, cut back to his left, and showed his heels to everybody on the longest run of the game. The score remained tied, 6-6, at the half when Carlton Matthews missed the extra point attempt.

With blood in their eyes, the Wildcats came back in the second half to roll impressively to their second touchdown. After Barbee returned the second half kick-off to his own 35, the Wildcats started a 15-play series that wound up with end Craig Wall taking a 15-yard pass from Charlie Benson and hot-footing it past East Carolina's secondary. David Fagg kicked the point to make the score 13-6 with seven minutes to go in the quarter.

The Pirates kept going for the distance with their offensive punches, but were backed into a hole late in the fourth period when Davidson fullback Dave Warden punted out on the ECC 25.

In two plays, the Pirates lost seven yards and sent Bob Lilley back to kick them out of trouble. An over-loaded Davidson line smashed through to block the attempted punt which Harold Westervelt recovered in the end zone. The fact that Fagg missed the extra point attempt was of little consequence because there was less than two minutes of playing time left in the game.

Most of the game was played in a steady rain that varied from heavy downpour to slow drizzle. As a result, both teams spent most of their time on the ground although Davidson did gamble with 12 passes, completing six for 83 yards. The Pirates, on the other hand, tried only four passes, and finally gave up when two of them were intercepted.

Scoring summary:
Davidson 0 6 7 6—19
East Carolina 0 6 0 0—6
Davidson scoring: touchdowns: Barbee, Wall and Westervelt; extra point: Fagg. East Carolina scoring: touchdown: Speight.

Bunning Joins 1957 Ranks Of Twenty-Game Winners

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There was only one more 20-game winner in major league baseball this season than there were 20-game losers.

Right-hander Jim Bunning became the third to win 20—joining southpaws Warren Spahn (21-11) of the National League champion Milwaukee Braves and Billy Pierce (20-12) of the Chicago White Sox—with 3 2-3 innings of shutout relief as Detroit defeated Kansas City 7-4 in the closing game of the regular season yesterday.

Left-hander Chuck Stobbs of the Washington Senators, meanwhile, lost his 20th—pairing with Robin Roberts (10-22) of the Philadelphia Phils—in a 7-4, 10-inning victory by the Baltimore Orioles.

Spahn, slated to pitch Wednesday's opening World Series game against the New York Yankees, led the NL for the third time with his eighth 20-victory year, a record for southpaws.

Right-hander Bob Buhl of the Braves (18-7) missed a shot at No. 19 yesterday although Milwaukee defeated Cincinnati 4-3.

A two-run ninth did it for the Braves, who rolled up 95 victories for the year—their club high, passing the 94 scored by Boston's miracle Braves in 1914.

In yesterday's other final NL games, the Chicago Cubs whipped the second-place St. Louis Cardinals 8-3; Philadelphia smacked Brooklyn's erstwhile champs 2-1 and Pittsburgh made a shambles of the San Francisco-bound New York Giants' last game at the Polo Grounds, 9-1.

In the American League, Boston tripped the Yankees 3-2, Cleveland socked the White Sox 5-3—but couldn't save Manager Kerby Farrell's job.

Farrell was ousted last night as the sixth-place Tribe finished in the second division for the first time since 1946—due mostly to pitching injuries. They were sixth, Bobby Bragan, ousted earlier as manager of the Pirates, will replace Farrell.

Both batting titles were determined earlier, but Boston's Ted Williams pushed his winning mark to 388 with a double and single against the Yankees for his fifth AL crown. Only Ty Cobb, with 12, ever won more.

Cardinal Stan Musial won his seventh NL championship, 451, tying ex-great Rogers Hornsby for second in the all-time league list.

behind Honus Wagner, who won eight.

Milwaukee's Hank Aaron, last year's NL batting champ (.328), is the home run king, with 44 and also leads in runs batted in with 132. The AL home run champ is Washington's Roy Sievers, with 42, who also scored in RBIs with 114.

ARMS FOR JORDAN — Jeeps armed with anti-armor weapons are lined up at Amman airport as U. S. Air Force transports speed up munitions shipments to Middle East nation.

Satellites May Circle Earth At 2,000 Miles

WASHINGTON (AP)—A research team said today American earth satellites may soar as high as 2,000 miles above the earth—500 miles higher than the previous maximum estimate.

Richard Tousey of the U. S. Naval Research Laboratory gave the new altitude estimate in a report prepared for an international conference designed to summarize and coordinate the rocket and earth satellite programs of various nations for the International Geophysical Year.

Attending the six-day parley opening today are delegates from 12 nations, including the United States and Russia, which are the only two nations planning to launch satellites. The other nations have programs designed to track and observe satellites, or programs for exploring the upper atmosphere with high-altitude rockets.

Russia previously has indicated it plans to reveal further details of its earth satellite program at the Washington meeting. Researcher Tousey mentioned only casually that "perhaps" the American satellites might attain a height of 2,000 miles in their oval-shaped orbits. He offered no reason for the new estimate.

Research Laboratory raised their original 900-mile estimate to 1,500 miles, they said, lowered estimates of the weight of the rocket-type launching vehicle, plus an improved performance outlook, appeared to justify the higher figure.

Thus, it's conceivable that still further improvements in the rocket weight and performance picture are now envisioned.

Six of the satellites are to be launched before the end of 1957 in December 1958, but no dates have yet been announced.

Stevenson Regretful No Parley Held Long Ago

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Adlai Stevenson, former Democratic presidential candidate, says he wishes President Eisenhower and the Southern governors had conferred "long ago" on the school integration issue.

If the President "and his position had been clearly expressed," Stevenson declared, "I don't believe we would have suffered this national misfortune" at Little Rock, Ark., "which has been so widely exploited by our enemies."

Stevenson made the remarks in a hand-written statement issued at a press conference here Saturday.

The twice-defeated presidential candidate expressed hope that soldiers "can be quickly withdrawn" from the Central High School at Little Rock. The time has come, he said, "to bind up our wounds."

Stevenson, who had supported the President's decision to send federal troops to enforce school integration at Little Rock, said "It is no secret that almost two years ago, I urged such meetings as President Eisenhower has arranged" for tomorrow with Southern governors.

Foreign-Design Shelters Tested

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission said

last night that the nine West German atomic shelters came through a nuclear detonation last Aug. 31 in "very satisfactory" shape.

The commission added: "The test results were accepted as further proof that construction of adequate shelters would result in the saving of lives in event of a nuclear attack."

The steel and concrete shelters, containing ventilation systems and other components shipped from Europe, were subjected to testing at an undisclosed distance from ground zero. The weapon, code-named "Smoky" was above nominal in yield, meaning that it exceeded the force of 20,000 tons of TNT.

The AEC said it was the first effects test for a foreign government made in Nevada.

"The European structures were subjected to overpressures considerably higher than had been used in any previous shelter test in Nevada," the report said. "All of them stood up under the blast. Most of the damage was superficial."

The Lonely Man

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER 31

Those nearest Bill Sinclair were clustering around him, asking questions and offering suggestions. One more practical than the others went for a glass of water. Deborah would have liked to do something for the stricken man but knew he would flinch from her if she came close.

"It's nothing," Bill was saying, speaking very slowly and with a visible effort. "A sudden twinge of pain. It caught me here, in the side. Don't worry, I think it's going now."

With wifely intuition, Enid Sinclair knew that he was lying; that it was shock, not a pain that unhinged him. She also knew that, for the time being, she was not likely to get at the truth. When Bill started to lie, he went on lying. Only by remorseless questioning in private would she break him down. And he was afraid. Why? She looked searchingly at Deborah but could find nothing in the girl's face to give her a clue.

"I'd better take you home," Enid said to Bill.

"Home," he stammered, snatching at the suggestion. "Yes, I want to go home."

Enid steadied him as he stood up and gave him the support of her arm in crossing the room. She or Ewan could ask any more questions.

Deborah did not suspect Scobie of being the murderer of Erica Garvin, though it should have occurred to her. He obviously was a brute capable of anything if he thought he could get away with it. Unless in panic or passion, he would not risk killing in the cold light of day. But Deborah did not doubt that he knew, or strongly suspected, the identity of the murderer.

Scobie had found temporary employment at the MacInches. Hector had said the man turned up every morning and worked all day at the odd jobs the MacInches had for him to do.

Deborah took the precaution of halting at a secluded place overlooking the MacInch estate before scouting the orchard through field glasses. When she got the range she saw Scobie balanced on a tall ladder, lopping the branches of a tree, while another man, presumably the gardener, steadied the ladder from the ground.

Feeling reasonably safe with the knowledge that Scobie would be occupied for the better part of the day, Deborah drove to his shack. The huge black dog chained by the door barked menacingly when she shut. They were single panes, set in rough frames nailed tight to the structure. The only way in, short of smashing a window or ripping down a wall, was through the door. And the padlock and hasps were discouragingly stout.

Naturally, she could not be sure that the missing murder weapon was hidden inside the shack. Scobie might have a dozen ingenious caches for filched property—but the shack seemed the obvious starting place.

Deborah remembered the method used by Sherlock Holmes to find a secret recess in a Scandal in Bohemia. "When a woman thinks that her house is on fire, her instinct is at once to rush to the thing she values most. It is a perfectly overpowering impulse."

A man might well do the same thing. A mere whiff of smoke would not make Scobie lose his head, but surely there was a way to trick him into revealing the hiding place. It seemed to Deborah that there was a way, a very simple one.

After dinner that evening, Deborah put on a coat, arranged a scarf lightly on her hair, and went out to post some letters. The mailbox was only a few streets away. They were dark streets, with ed to be of service. In the doorway, she paused for a moment. "It's been a lovely party," she said acidly, glancing from Deborah to Joyce and Ewan.

The departure of the Sinclairs broke up the party. When the door closed on the final guest, Joyce dropped into a chair.

"Well, that's over!" she exclaimed. "What was all the fuss about? I could see that something was wrong but I was too occupied to grasp what it was."

Deborah did not answer. The shock which the sight of the statue had caused Bill was too grave a matter to be discussed offhandedly. She wanted time to think.

"If you'll excuse me," she said, "I'll just run up and powder my nose."

She went out swiftly before Joyce ate. When he saw who approached, he stopped barking and wagged his tail. He was a menacing-looking beast but he remembered the juicy liver and soothing caresses she brought him last time. The chunk of red meat she threw him before coming close was quickly engulfed by the awesome jaws. Gulping it down without chewing, he wagged his tail again. "Glad to see me, Blackie-boy?" she murmured, kneeling to fondle his silky ears.

He was delighted. Starved of companionship, he made much of her, wriggling his powerful body in ecstasy, nuzzling her with nose and jowls, making it clear with whines and excited movements how very welcome she was.

Deborah moved slowly round the shack, examining it from all sides. The windows neither opened nor the yellow pools of light cast by the lamp posts. Few lights were showing in the houses and there was not a solitary pedestrian, not even a slinking cat, to enliven the deserted pavements. It was so still that the patter of her own footsteps seemed jarringly loud.

Reaching the box, she dropped the letters into the slot. She heard them slithering down, and started back. Before she had gone far she heard, of fancied she heard, footsteps, following behind. Looking back casually, she saw no one. The street appeared as deserted as before. But when she walked on the footsteps behind her started again.

They kept pace, like an echo. When she slowed down, the sounds behind her slowed down; when she quickened, they quickened; when she halted in indecision, they halted. She hardly dared look back again but stole herself to do so, and saw an empty street.

Her fright rose moment by moment at the thought that someone stood, motionless and unseen, waiting for her to go on. She told herself sharply not to be an idiot. The assumption that she was being followed deliberately implied that someone had lain in wait for her; and no one could have known she would come out that evening when she had not known it herself until ten minutes before.

She took a tentative step, then paused and listened. There was no echoing step. Emboldened, she walked on steadily and heard her self being followed again. The sound was unnerving.

Panic-possessed then, she started to run and heard running footsteps in pursuit. No, this was no mistake. The footsteps behind were

Hidden Peak In Pacific Found

HONOLULU, (AP) — An underwater mountain rising 11,000 feet from the Pacific floor — but still a mile under water — had been discovered about 800 miles north-east of Hawaii.

Engineers aboard the liberty ship Arthur M. Huddell, plotting the route for a new telephone cable between Hawaii and California, found it. The ship's crew named it "Mount Huddell."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (U)—The stock market milled irregularly in dull trading early this afternoon.

Gains and losses went from fractions to around a point.

The opening was active but a lower tendency soon made itself felt, putting the market generally lower early in the session. As volume slackened there was some clipping of losses and improvement in selected issues leaving the market mixed on balance.

Airports lost a slight initial edge to the upside but tobacco made some good gains.

Steel backed away as immediate prospects for the industry seemed cloudy. Standard Oil (New Jersey), though easy, halted its sharp retreat of Friday on news of its planned offering of at least a quarter billion dollars worth of new stock.

Layoffs were reported in various industrial plants, but purchasing agents reported renewed optimism about fourth quarter business. There was a prediction of a fourth quarter decline in rail freight traffic below the 1956 period.

Liggett & Myers and Lorillard were each ahead around a point as the tobacco continued to get renewed confidence of investors.

New Promotion Event Hailed As One Of Most Successful

Local merchants feel that last week's trade promotion, Greater Greenville Days, was one of the most successful sales events ever staged here.

Larry Averette, Chairman of the Trade Promotion Committee, and merchant, stated, "I am real happy with the success of the event."

"Merchants I have talked to think Greater Greenville Days was the most successful promotion we have ever staged for the first time."

"It has proved that cooperation from a large number of merchants can be beneficial to all concerned."

"As for my store we have had the best day of business we have ever had here for a single day. I would even go as far as to say Thursday, Friday and Saturday was the best three days in succession we have ever experienced."

Blount-Harvey Manager E. E. Featherston said, "I don't have the figures for Saturday yet but I would say the three-day event was very successful from our point of view."

Our business was substantially better than for the corresponding three day period last year. As far as Blount-Harvey's is concerned the promotion was an excellent one."

Morris Brody, manager of Brody's, stated, "In my opinion Greater Greenville Days was a very good promotional event."

"We had large crowds all during the three-day event. More people registered for free prizes than ever before."

"I saw a large number of out-of-town shoppers. To me this indicates the trade promotion proved to be extremely successful, outside of Pitt County as well."

B. B. Johnston, Manager of Belk-Tyler's Department Store, said, "It was the best promotion we have ever had by far, considering Greater Greenville Days has never been staged here before."

"We had excellent traffic all three days."

"I thought Greater Greenville Days was one of the most successful trade promotions ever staged here," Jesse Laughinghouse, owner of Bostic-Sugg Furniture Store, stated.

"Registration for prizes was the best since we opened our new store. I also noticed a great many out-of-town shoppers."

"I am very pleased."

Dennis Warren, Assistant Manager of Bissette's Drug Store, reported heavy traffic Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"As far as Bissette's is concerned the trade promotion went off in fine style. We are more than satisfied with its results."

MISS BRANTLEY, MRS. SLATER ... And A Watch To Count Minutes.

W. T. Grant Co. has invited one of its employees to become a clock-watcher on a small scale.

The company took the unusual action Friday night when a wrist watch was presented to Miss Lala B. Brantley, office manager of the company's Greenville store. The engraved watch carried with it Grant's "sincere appreciation" for 25 years service by Miss Brantley.

Whether the indirect invitation will be taken up is not much of a question in Miss Brantley's mind. Right now, she has no idea of beginning to count the minutes left before she can retire.

She figures she still has a lot of good time left to devote to the company she first served as a part-time sales clerk in 1932. She also believes there is a lot of ground to cover before she becomes eligible for the company's full retirement benefits which are begun when an employee reaches 60 years of age.

Miss Brantley has already covered a lot of ground, and positions, for the company although she has worked in the same store during her entire period of employment. Since beginning work on Oct. 1, 1932, she has been employed as a part-time sales girl, full-time sales girl, departmental manager, assistant store manager, and office manager.

The long tenure has seen ten managers come to the Greenville store, including the first woman store manager the Grant company ever placed in a Southern store. She is presently serving under the store's third woman manager, Mrs. Mildred Slater.

Miss Brantley's employment by the Grant company almost matches her period of residence in Greenville. She moved here in 1930 after living in a rural section of Pitt County since she was eight months old. She was born near Aurora, in Beaufort County.

The 25-year period, according to Miss Brantley, has been without any undue excitement, except, possibly, for having to stop a few shop-lifters. Despite that, however, she claims to have "enjoyed every minute of it."

She plans to keep on enjoying the minutes, especially now that she has a watch and permission from the company to keep up with them.
