Mild Demonstration By Some Little Rock Pupils, But Issue Still Deadlocked

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—An escort of 12 soldiers encountered no trouble today in taking nine Negro students into Central High School for a 10th day of integrated classes.

About 100 white students were massed before the front entrance of the school. Three or four of them displayed small Confederate flags but there was none of the hooting or jeering that marked the last two days.

All the Negroes were present today. Yesterday one of the six Negro girls was absent because of illness.

Sixteen rifle-carrying National Guardsmen escorted the Negroes halfway across the campus. There four regular Army paratroopers met the Negroes and took them the rest of the way into the school.

There was no sign of the 75 white students who walked out of Central High yesterday in what was scheduled as a mass demonstration but turned out to be a flop. They were either absent today, or else inside seeking to make their peace with school officials, wh had threatened them all with suspension.

Opposing sides were still deadlocked today in their efforts to solve the integration crisis. No one had come up with a new plan under which federal troops might be removed.

Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina, chairman of a group of Southern governors who met with President Eisenhower in an unsuccessful effort to solve the problem, simply said:

"We've got to have a few days to let this thing cool off."

The nine Negroes entered the school Sept. 25 under guard of federal troops flown here under orders of Eisenhower. Paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division used bayonets to break up crowds of white demonstrators. That was the last of the demonstrations until yesterday's student walkout attempt.

Inside the school yesterday, highly trained paratroopers of the 101st took over again from National Guardsmen.

This military change apparently took place because white students roughed up some of the Negro students in the two previous days. Guardsmen remained on duty on the campus.

School authorities said no corridor trouble developed yesterday. Only eight Negroes attended—one girl was ill.

Arkansas' Gov. Orval Faubus, accused by Eisenhower and others of inciting segregationists when he stationed the National Guard—then under the governor's control—at Central High Sept. 2, continued to receive ovations from crowds of Arkansans.

He was greeted with rousing cheers yesterday as he rode in a parade opening the National Cotton Picking Contest in Blytheville, Ark.

The governor, in a press meeting, stood by his earlier position that he had given sufficient assurances to Eisenhower after the working out of a compromise plan for removal of federal troops.

Eisenhower has maintained that Faubus' statement that he would not obstruct integration orders was insufficiently firm.

Faubus said the compromise proposal, worked out with help of four Southern governors, asked him to surrender what he called "my discretionary powers as governor."

Hoffa Sweeps To Presidency Of Teamsters In First Ballot Test

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—James R. Hoffa today won election as president of the scandal-scarred Teamsters Union by a margin of well over 4 to 1 over two opponents.

The 44-year-old Detroit union leader took over command of the nation's biggest labor organization despite scandal in which he himself has been heavily involved.

With nearly two-third of the voting among Teamster convention delegates completed, Hoffa had more than half of the total 1,754 votes to be cast.

At that point Hoffa had 878, against 98 for Thomas J. Haggerty of Chicago and 192 for William A. Lee, also of Chicago.

Lee and Haggerty had campaigned as cleanup candidates, but the convention delegates chose to reject the mass of union corruption charges against Hoffa, retiring union President Dave Beck and other high Teamster bosses.

Hoffa's election as president of the 1½ million member union was expected to bring its ouster from the parent AFL-CIO. The federation has labeled Hoffa as corrupt and called for his ouster from organized labor.

Delegates voted by voice as their names were called.

Hoffa's name was put in nomination by John English, veteran union secretary treasurer, who called Hoffa "The champion of the Teamsters."

English said the convention met at a crucial time for the union—with agents, he said, of the FBI, Senate Rackets Committee and the AFL-CIO here keeping tab on what went on.

English said Hoffa had done more for the Teamsters than anyone else in union history and although the union faces "a little trouble here and there, he'll take care of that.

"Now is the time to show Jimmy our appreciation," English said.

Haggerty was nominated by Peter J. Hoban, Chicago. Hoban declared his man always puts principle ahead of money. He said the union today stands before the court of public opinion and all organized labor wants Hoffa defeated.

Thomas J. Mahoney, Chicago, nominated Lee. With Lee as president, Mahoney said, the union's present scandals will be cleared away "and this union can again hold its head high."

He said under Lee there would be no dictatorship and local unions could operate autonomously. Lee's nomination was seconded by Frank W. Brewster, Seattle.

However, a first ballot election of Hoffa, the Midwest Teamster boss from Detroit, to succeed retiring President Dave Beck seemed almost certain.

In a sudden move made yesterday, the decks were cleared for Hoffa to take over the presidency Oct. 15, a month and a half before Beck's term expires Dec. 1.

Earlier, Hoffa had told newsmen, "We will fight to remain in the AFL-CIO." He made it clear he will challenge AFL-CIO President George Meany in Meany's own bailiwick over an ultimatum to the Teamsters to get rid of corrupt influences or face expulsion from the labor combine.

Beck, Hoffa and two other Teamster officials are charged with various counts of misconduct, including misuse of union funds, by the AFL-CIO and the Senate Rackets Committee.

Hoffa plans to carry an aggressive defense to local labor federations from coast to coast, many of which are Teamster strongholds. He said the Wayne County (Detroit) Federation of Labor already has asked the AFL-CIO to reverse its condemnation of Hoffa as a corrupt labor leader.

Similar pressure from other local federations on the parent AFL-CIO would not be surprising, Hoffa said.

The move to give the 44-year-old Detroiter almost immediate control of the scandal-scarred Teamsters Union was as unexpected as it was carefully arranged.

Beck, after giving a brief accounting of his five-year stewardship, and a defense of charge against him, announced that he desired a leave of absence for a termination of his term. He said interests of the union could best be served by having his successor, "whoever he may be," installed immediately.

Hoffa, confidently standing almost at Beck's elbow, quickly stepped up and moved to give Beck a leave of absence effective Oct. 15. It was quietly and unanimously adopted by the delegates by a rising vote..

Oct. 15 is the date Hoffa is to stand trial in New York City on wiretap charges and be arraigned on perjury indictments.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council has given the Teamsters Union until Oct. 24 to rid itself of corrupt influences or face ouster. Actual expulsion would require a two-thirds vote at the AFL-CIO convention beginning Dec. 5.

The smoothly arranged leave of absence for Beck and tumultuous demonstrations yesterday continued to emphasize Hoffa's hold on the convention.

No Negligence Is Found In Inquest Into 3 Deaths

Last night, the Corner's Jury recommended that no criminal action be taken in the deaths of three Pitt County residents involved in traffic accidents Saturday night.

No negligence was found on the part of Walter Reid Perkins of 400 Summit St. and Willie B. Smith of Winterville during the relatively short Inquest, conducted by Pitt County Coroner Griffin H. Rouse and District Solicitor Bob Rouse of Farmville. Both were identified as the drivers of automobiles involved in the two accidents that took three lives.

William Wyatt Peaden, 48, of Greenville Rt. 3 and Alice Keel Smith, 40, of 407 Jarvis St. were fatally injured when the vehicle in which they were riding collided with another automobile driven by Perkins at the intersection of N.C. 43-U.S. 264 at 10:10 Saturday night. Perkins and two ECC students sustained minor injuries in the mishap.

Ptl. J.B. Surles, who witnessed the accident, told the Coroner's Jury it sounded like dynamite. "I thought an automobile had exploded."

Perkins said, "It happened so quick I didn't know what had happened."

Another occupant of the car, Miss Peggy Batchelor of ECC, said she didn't see the Peaden vehicle until after the accident. Miss Frieda Ledbetter, also a student at ECC, stated that she saw the car coming through the intersection but did not have time to utter a word before the collision took place.

Both Peaden and the Smith woman were thrown from their automobile. Peaden never regained consciousness but did live to receive emergency treatment at Pitt Memorial Hospital. He died from severe head injuries.

Mrs. Smith sustained multiple injuries. She regained consciousness after receiving treatment. Surles stated that she talked to him in a coherent manner for approximately 10 minutes.

She died a short time later.

The investigating officer said the car operated by Perkins was proceeding west on U.S. 264 at the time of accident while Peaden's vehicle was traveling north on N.C. 43. He said Peaden's car ran the stop sign on N.C. 43. There were no other witnesses to the fatal collision.

Surles said both automobiles were a total loss.

No Probable Cause

The Coroner's Jury found no probable cause in the death of David Earl Newton 16-year-old Negro of Greenville Rt. 4 and recommended that no criminal action be taken against Willie B. Smith of Winterville.

Newton was fatally injured late Saturday afternoon when struck by an automobile being operated by Smith on the Farmville-Bruce highway. Suffering from head and internal injuries the youngster died at 3:04 a.m. Sunday in Pitt Memorial Hospital, never regaining consciousness.

He was taken to the hospital by Smith shortly after the accident took place. The driver said he must have hit the boy around 6:30 p.m. Ptl. Surles, who also investigated this mishap, told the Jury that visibility was extremely poor at the time due to inclement weather.

Smith stated that he was temporarily blinded by lights from an oncoming gasoline truck and did not see the pedestrian walked on the right side of the center line.

"I didn't know what I hit until I backed up my car and shined the headlights on the side of the road", he related.

"There I saw the boy, lying there unconscious."

Ptl. Surles said no traces of tire marks were found on the side of the highway that would indicate the automobile left road at any time before and after the accident. The boy's shoe was found lying near the center line.

Present Awards At Fair Tonight

Trophies and prizes will be presented tonight to grand and reserve champion winners in the Pitt County Agricultural Fair Junior Purebred Swine Show.

C. J. Goodman, assistant county agent, said the awards will be made at the fairgrounds at 6:30 p.m.

Awards are being presented by Pitt Milling Co., Drum's Hatchery, H. L. Hodges and Son, and King Bros. of Ayden.

In addition the Chamber of Commerce is presenting hog feeders to the Junior Swine grand champion winners and hog waterers to the reserve champion winners.

Grand champion winners in the Junior Swine Show were: Yorkshire, Sammy Whitehurst, Stokes 4-H; Hampshire, Stettinus Hemby, Negro 4-H; other breeds, Jamie Barnhill, Stokes 4-H.

Reserve Champion winners in the Junior Swine Show were: Yorkshire, Richard McLawhorn, Bethany 4-H Club; Hampshire, Norman Eastwood, Pactolus 4-H Club; other breeds, James Allen Braxton, Greenville 4-H.

Percy Flowers 'Missing' After Fresh Charges

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Law enforcement officers were expected to resume today efforts to locate J. Percy Flowers, well-known merchant and farmer indicted on several charges by a Johnston County Grand Jury.

First attempts to serve warrants on Flowers met with failure yesterday, and Solicitor W. Jack Hooks said he believed Flowers "has fled."

An indictment charging Flowers with assault with intent to kill a former tenant on one of his farms was returned yesterday by the grand jury. The day before, the grand jury indicted Flowers on charges of liquor law violations and with the illegal purchase of a pistol.

James Seawell, the tenant farmer who accused Flowers of firing a pistol at him, testified before the grand jury. Asst. Solicitor Billy Britt said Seawell was "reluctant to testify" on Wednesday and reported "he had been threatened."

However, after Judge Leo Carr ordered Seawell confined to jail overnight as a material witness and for his protection, Britt said Seawell "testified freely."

Others indicted along with Flowers were released on bond yesterday, including his brother, Jimmy, who had been charged with "Obstructing officers in the performance of their duties."

The charges resulted from a raid several weeks ago on a store near Clayton owned by Percy Flowers. The store was padlocked and officers said small quantities of tax-paid and non-tax paid whisky were found, along with material and equipment for the manufacture of whisky.

Those free under bond included: Jimmy Flowers, $1,500 bond; Willis Sullivan, $3,500 bond; Marshall Creech, farm manager for Percy Flowers, $2,500 bond.

Polish Red Regime Voices Threats In Anti-Govm't Riot

WARSAW (AP)—Communist authorities today threatened "severe sanctions" against students who took part in Warsaw's first anti-government demonstration since Wladyslaw Gomulka came to power.

Riot police backed by worker militiamen battled about 2,000 students in a melee of tear gas, rubber truncheons and bricks last night outside the Warsaw Polytechnic School. The students were protesting suppression of their newspaper.

About 30 students were reported under arrest. Ten police were injured by bricks rained down from windows of a student boarding house and by paving stones hurled in the streets. Several students were treated for effects of tear gas and bruises from truncheons.

All morning papers carried this warning to the students:

"It is understood the rector of Polytechnic has said severe sanctions will be taken against participants (in the demonstration), including expulsion from college."

The official account said the police had arrested "those who were the most aggressive."

The demonstration was the first break between the Communist party and its officially sponsored Union of Socialist Youth.

The Polytechnic students were in the forefront of the surge for freedom that produced the downfall of the Stalinist government and party hierarchy last year and the return of Gomulka to government leadership.

Roman Zambrowski, a member of the ruling party Politburo, scheduled a meeting with a delegation from the students' union to discuss the order closing their weekly anti-Socialist paper Po Prostu Straight On).

As Communist party secretary, Gomulka had charted a more moderate course after taking over 12 months ago following the "bread and freedom" uprising of workers in Poznan. But the government ruled the student paper's attacks on Stalinism had gone too far.

The students gathered at Narutowicza Square in the evening. They jerred as the police lined up around the square.

The police marched shoulder to shoulder on the students. Fist fights broke out. The police attacked with truncheons.

"We want gas," the students yelled sarcastically. The police obliged by throwing tear gas renades. The 2,000 students broke and ran.

An hour later, about 500 students massed on the steps of a boarding house near the Polytechnic school.

"Gestapo, Gestapo," they shouted as the police approached. The police again laid down a tear gas barrage. The students fled into the boarding house.

Factory militia — armed workers units established by the government to cope with such public disturbances — then arrived, provoking another outburst of fighting and another gas attack by the police. By midnight, five hours after the first trouble broke out, quiet was restored.

Warsaw radio said college authorities would take severe measures against the participants.

Couldn't Leave

PLYMOUTH, England (AP)—Gunner Bartholomew Meehan received 14 days compassionate leave from the British army to visit his wife and their new baby in 1951. He came back six years later.

At a court-martial yesterday on a charge of desertion, Meehan said he just couldn't seem to get away from his wife.

When he wanted to give himself up in 1952, she disclosed that she was going to have another baby. The same thing happened in 1953—anda again in 1954, 1955 and 1956.

Upon learning that no child was expectable this year, Meehan told the court, he surrendered to the military police.

The sympathetic court let the penitent father of six off with a sentence of one year's detention.

Small Plane Pilot Seeking Set New Non-Stop Record

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Radio silence cloaked the progress today of ex-Marine fighter Pilot William Wyatt, who took off hoping to set a record by flying nonstop to Rome, Italy.

Wyatt, 25, from Dallas, winged away from the Galveston Municipal Airport at 12:57 p. m. CST yesterday. He is flying a Mooney Mark 20, a small, single-engined monoplane built by Mooney Aircraft Inc., of Kerrville, Tex.

A Civil Aeronautics Administration employe here said its only word from Wyatt since takeoff was his 5:27 p. m. CST report yesterday that he was over Greenwood, Miss.

This was taken to indicate he was running behind schedule. He had filed a flight plan calling for his plane to pass over Muscle Shoals, Ala., by 4:45 p. m. CST yesterday.

Wyatt had estimated he could fly to Rome in 36 to 40 hours. The 5,500-mile hop would better a 4,957-mile mark set in 1949 by William Odom in flying from Honolulu to Teterboro, N.J.

His flight plan called for the former Marine to follow the Great Circle course. He was due to fly over Jackson, Miss.; Muscle Shoals, Ala.; Boston; Tor Bay, Sidney, Nova Scotia; across the Atlantic to Pelonis, France; Nice, France, and thence to Rome.

Wyatt, a lean, 6-foot bachelor, planned to get short naps by letting his automatic pilot fly part time. He had an alarm clock to keep from oversleeping. His provisions for the marathon flight were four sandwiches, coffee, orange and tomato juice, candy and water.

Three of the four seats in his plane were removed and tanks installed to increase gasoline capacity from a normal 50 gallons to 260 gallons—enough to keep him in the air 48 hours, the flier estimated.

His craft had a gross takeoff weight of 3,503 pounds, a 950-pound overload. He traveled 2,300 feet down a runway getting into the air.

The plane is equipped with both short and long range radio and is designed to float if forced down over water. He also carried an emergency life raft.

Mooney Aircraft president, Hal Raschal, said the monoplane's 150-horsepower Lycoming engine made it capable of flying 170 m.p.h. but it would cruise most economically at 150 m.p.h.

Blockade Could Starve Out Reds Into Submission

SAN MARINO (AP)—Italy's tight blockade threatened today to starve San Marino's Red leaders into submission. They are locked in a fight with anti-Communists.

Food stocks were getting low as Italian police blocked all seven roads into the world's smallest republic. One public market already had closed because it had nothing to sell. The other had only a few potatoes, tomatoes and grapes.

What food reached the 38-square-mile country and its 40,000 people was smuggled in at black market prices by persons skirting the roadblocks and sneaking across the fields at night. Italian police brought up two tanks to the border again last night and used their searchlights to spot smugglers and infiltrators.

San Marino's Communist government still had 70 armed militiamen inside the old stone government house, but was feeling shaky. Gino Giacomini, 72-year-old foreigh minister, told a news conference he had messaged Italian Premier Adone Zoli proposing that an Italian parliamentary commission visit the country. He promised the Red regime would step down if such a commission decided it should.

Cases Of Asian Flu Continue Fast Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asian flu cases nearly doubled again last week, going up by an estimated 200,000 new cases to make a total of 422,650 since early June.

Reporting this today, the Public Health Service said the estimates were based on incomplete reports.

A spokesman pointed out also that the reports cover the period only through last Saturday. Thus, they do not include outbreaks this week such as 150,000 new cases among New York City school children.

The spokesman also said 18 deaths have been reported in the continental United States in connection with the flu outbreak; 13 in Puerto Rico; 7 in Hawaii and 2 in Alaska.

The weekly disease summary of the Health Service said the number of cases of influenza and influenza-like disease continued to increase in most parts of the United States last week.

"A large number of outbreaks were reported in schools, based principally on absenteeism rates," the report said.

"The estimated number of cases of influenza and of cases suspected of having influenza was 200,000 which brings the total to 422,650.

"These numbers have very definite limitations for several reasons. In most outbreaks, there are an unknown number of cases of other acute respiratory diseases which normally occur at this season of the year. The states use different methods of estimating incidence of new cases. Finally, some states did not include a report on influenza."

Discussing reports by individual states, the summary said:

In the South Atlantic states comparatively few new outbreaks were reported.

In North Carolina 33 of the 100 counties listed one or more cases, with the occurrence mostly sporadic and a few school outbreaks. Most cases were in urban areas.

Liquor Salesman Is Fined $750 In Case

RALEIGH (AP)—The State ABC Board will decide next Wednesday whether to revoke or suspend the license of a liquor salesman fined $750 and court costs yesterday, state ABC Chairman Tom Allen said today.

Fred B. Kelly, a representative for Glenmore Distilleries, was fined for his alleged role in distribution of whisky gifts to state lawmakers during the last Legislature.

Allen said the board has no regulations calling for mandatory action in such a case. He added, "The board will have to decide what to do about it."

Kelly was fined in Wake Superior Court by Judge W. H. S. Burgwyn after pleading nolo contendere (no contest) to a charge of transporting whisky in quantities over the one gallon legal limit.

Judge Burgwyn recalled newspaper stories on the liquor-for-legislators scandal last spring.

"I don't think it influenced any one. But some people believe it might have influenced vital matters of the state," he said. "I do not feel that I should unduly punish this man (Kelly)—But I do not want left any approval of what he did."

Kelly was alleged to have hauled cases of whisky to the hotel Sir Walter for distribution to lawmakers, many of whom roomed at the hotel during the legislative session.

The trial of another man charged as a result of the investigation touched off by the scandal was postponed until next Thursday. He is Frank K. Sims, chairman of the Mecklenburg County ABC Board and a former liquor lobbyist.

Sims is charged with obtaining a hotel room under a false name. He admitted renting a room at the hotel in the name of "A. B. Carter." The room reportedly was used to store the liquor for distribution to lawmakers.

Judge Burgwyn quickly rebutted a suggestion by defense attorney Tom Ruffin that whisky gifts to legislators had been "going on for 50 or 60 years."

"It wasn't going on in 1917," said the judge. In that year, Burgwyn served as a member of the State Senate.

W. Brantley Womble of Raleigh, a lawmaker from Wake County in the past Legislature, also represented Kelly. He asked the judge for leniency because he said Kelly was in financial straits.

LAST IN SERIES

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—The 24th and final atomic blast in the current test series is now scheduled to be fired at 5 a.m. tomorrow. It was to have been set off early today but was postponed last night because of winds.

Education Board Meeting Monday

The Pitt County Board of Education will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday in the Tucker Building. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m.

Superintendent of County Schools D. H. Conley said this morning that the board anticipates only routine activities during the day. He added, however, that some pupil assignments, not included in original assignments, will be made during the day.

Routine Awaits Commissioners

County Commissioners are expected to handle only routine matters at their regular monthly meeting Monday.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. in the Commissioner's Room of the Court House. Chairman J. Alton Gardner will preside.

Charged Two Men, Hold Girl, In Raleigh Hideaway 'Love Nest'

RALEIGH (AP)—Two young men are facing charges and a teen-age girl is in a detention home after they allegedly used an abandoned house here as a hideaway "love nest."

Domestic Court officers said the ranshackled house also was used as a meeting place for a teen-age club. However, Anne Viser, girls' counselor for the court, said an investigation showed there was nothing immoral about the club.

A 15-year-old girl was placed in the detention home after she was found in the abandoned home with two older men.

The two men were charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. They were identified as James Thaddeus Matthews, 21, and Gerald Thomas Casper, 18, both of Raleigh. They face trial in Domestic Relations Court.

The members of the teen-age club ranged in ages from 13 to 15 and were said to be Hugh Morson High School Students. A 13-year-old girl was quoted as saying members "Had to qualify" before being admitted. A court official said this qualification was that the members were not troublemakers.

The disclosures came after Domestic Court and other officers went to the vacant dwelling in search of the run-away girl. As the officers neared the entrance, two young men and the girl jumped from a second story window in an effort to escape, police said. The girl was captured when she turned her ankle and her male companions fled, leaving her.

In an upstairs room officers found beer cans, a sheet spread on the floor, an oil lamp and other household items.

District NCEA Convention Scheduled Tuesday

Greenville's city schools will be dismissed all day Tuesday to permit teachers to attend the 35th annual convention of the Northeastern District of the North Carolina Education Association.

The convention will be held in Rocky Mount, and is expected to attract more than 1,500 delegates from 22 counties in Northeastern North Carolina.

Pitt County schools, which will send delegates to the meeting, will operate on a regular schedule during the day and no classes will be dismissed, Superintendent D. H. Conley said today.

Dr. Frank Fuller of East Carolina College, president of the district association, will preside over the meeting. Other general officers for the group are Mrs. Elsie Eagan of ECC, secretary, and Fodie H. Hodges of Kinston, former principal at Chicod School, NCEA Director.

Greenville and Pitt County people who will appear on the program during the one-day meeting include Dr. Ralph Brimley, Director of Public Relations and Foundations at East Carolina College, who will address a divisional meeting of classroom teachers; and Walter B. Jones, a member of the North Carolina General Assembly from Farmville, who will address a meeting of superintendents.

Divisional and departmental officers from Greenville and Pitt County who will participate include Mrs. Kara L. Fennell, West Greenville School, classroom teachers; Dr. Eva Williamson, ECC, higher education; Frances Daniels, ECC, business education; Mrs. Georgia Franklin, Greenville Junior High School, elementary education; W. F. Landing, Greenville High School, English; Madeline Weeks, ECC, Future Teachers of America activities; William L. May, Ayden School, guidance services; Mrs. Hazel G. Tripp, Belvoir School, and Alya Ray Taylor, Winterville School, Home Economics; Thomas J. Halgwood, ECC, and H. B. Monroe, ECC industrial arts; Mrs. Nellie R. White, Greenville High School, modern foreign languages; and Mrs. Alma A. Clark, Greenville City Schools, librarians.

In addition to the regular convention activities, a meeting of educational secretaries has been planned for next Saturday in the Pitt County Board of Education offices. Mrs. Ethel G. Tucker, secretary for the Pitt County Schools, will preside at the meeting.

The Rev. Leon Russell of Rocky Mount, a former pastor of Jarvis Memorial Church in Greenville, will pronounce the invocation at the convention's general session Tuesday afternoon.

Most of the divisional and departmental meetings of the convention will be held in the Rocky Mount Senior High School building.

Hypnotist Assists Students

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

A stately blonde, Joan Brandon could stand on her looks alone, but as a hypnotist she is quite an accomplished person also.

Besides astounding audiences all over the world with her presentation, she has done much to further the art of hypnosis. Her many performances have convinced thousands of people that hypnotism is not something to be feared.

"It is a science," she said. "A person under hypnosis will not do anything or tell anything that is contrary to their morals, conscious, or genuine wishes."

Never using confederates who pretend they are hypnotized, Miss Brandon has found a good following here, particularly with the college students.

Help Students

"I've hypnotized some of the East Carolina College students in order to enable them to concentrate, to memorize, and remember so that their school work will immediately improve," she noted.

Many mothers have also brought their children to this hypnotist in order for her to stop them from biting their fingernails and sucking their thumbs.

In ancient times hypnotism was regarded as something of a mystical art. Miss Brandon explains that today genuine hypnotism is a science like physics and chemistry where the origin of a psychological point of view can be found.

"The power of the mind exceeds our imagination. You are stronger and more powerful than you think you are, both physically and mentally. You may learn to utilize this phenomenal power by concentration and autosuggestion," she added.

She claims her art is a combination of a natural gift and the training she got from her father, which he got from his father who was also a hypnotist.

Hypnotism and Medicine

This soft spoken woman firmly believes that medicine and hypnosis are a good team and that they will be used more as their powers together are known.

While the medicine cures the patient, she feels that hypnotism can relieve the pain and give the patient an optimistic frame of mind.

This is not a new field to her, however. On countless occasions she has offered her services to doctors whenever they call and she is now writing a book on the powers of hypnosis which she hopes will be used as a textbook by medical students.

"A person can have a major operation or give birth to a child without feeling pain if they are under hypnosis," she mentioned.

To Appear In New York

Originally from New Orleans, La., Miss Brandon and her brother, Jack, who assists her as manager, now maintain an apartment in New York where she will be appearing several weeks.

At the age of 13, she made her first public appearances in a coast-to-coast tour of theatres and signed her first contract to appear in London at the age of 14.

Miss Joan Brandon . . . hypnotist, writer, lecturer.

Since then she has appeared in each state in the United States, Australia, South America, Canada, Mexico, and before royalty and the public in Europe.

A versatile entertainer, she recently appeared on her own television show from New York City and a radio show originating in Miami Beach, and several widely-read magazines have featured her story.

In her spare moments she gives lectures and demonstrations at colleges, universities, and doctors' conventions.

Now appearing at the Pitt County Fair in matinee and evening performances she mentions, "In my demonstrations of hypnotism, I use the powers of concentration and suggestion. If you develop these qualities within yourself, you will discover undreamed of power and the ability to help yourself to a richer life."

Mrs. Edwards Comments On Year's Books

When the new books for the year's reading were presented to the Inter Se Club at the first meeting this fall, Mrs. Jack R. Edwards commented on the special points of interest, highlights of the stories and interesting facts about the settings and authors.

The president, Mrs. T. H. Henderson, presided over the business session.

Mrs. L. M. Buchanan was hostess for this meeting at her home on Lewis Street. Assisted by her daughter, Miss Anne Buchanan, she served a frozen fruit salad with party accompaniments.

Arrangements of fall flowers and candlelight added to the room decorations.

Mrs. Edwin Tugwell was a special guest.

Social Notes

Miss Joanne Hardee left today for Greensboro to be the weekend guest of Miss Kitty Collins, a student at Woman's College. They will attend "homecoming day" exercises at Wake Forest College.

Fall Flowers Used In Hostess' Home

BETHEL — Mrs. A. M. McWhorter was hostess to her bridge club Saturday. She greeted the guests and ushered them into the living room where tables were arranged for eight players. The room was decorated with arrangements of fall flowers.

Those who entered the game were Mesdames J. L. Brown, J. H. Andrews, W. M. Mizzelle, Sam Keel, N. G. Beverly Jr., W. C. Whitehurst, J. L. Gurganus and A. M. McWhorter. Mrs. J. H. Andrews won high score and Mrs. N. G. Beverly was consolation winner.

After the game, a sweet course was served.

Fleming Hall Students Entertain At Coffee Hour

Women students living in Fleming Hall at East Carolina College held a recent informal coffee hour at which they used for the first time the silver service presented to the dormitory by Mrs. James L. Fleming of Greenville and her children.

Fleming Hall is named in honor of the late Senator James Lawson Fleming, who introduced into the state General Assembly in 1907 the first bill providing for the establishement in Eastern North Carolina of a school for the training of teachers. East Carolina is observing in 1957 the fiftieth anniversary of its founding in 1907.

Dorothy Taylor of Angier and Billie Jo McLamb of Newton Grove acted as co-chairman of the dormitory entertainment. Officers of Fleming Hall, who acted as hostesses, are Kay Thomason of Kannapolis, president; Dorothy Culberson of Silver City, treasurer; and Martha Rose Mendenhall of Cary, vice president.

Others who assisted in entertaining those present included Charlotte Fitchett of Elizabeth City, Patricia Twiford of Crumpy Point, Martha Ann Bowers of Norlina, Barbara Watson of Bethel, Peggie Smith of Angier, and Kristi Pendergraft of Chapel Hill.

Mrs. Jenkins Reviews Books

Mrs. Leo Jenkins entertained the Aries Book Club Tuesday night at her home on Rutledge Drive.

Mrs. Stephen Bartlett presided at the short business session, after which Mrs. Virginia Basnight gave a "Short Subject" on Marsalid, a new drug.

Books selected for the year were presented by Mrs. Jenkins, club librarian. They are "The Crown Tree" by Blythe, "Below the Salt" by Costain, Dorothy Erskine and Patrick Dennis' "The Pink Hotel," "Queen of France" by Castelot, "Cameron Hill" by Flavin, "Mary of Scotland" by Kenyon, "Alias O. Henry" by Langford, "Day of Infamy" by Lord, Caroyan's "Paper You're Crazy," "By Love Possessed" by Cozzens, "The World of Suzie Wong" by Mason, "Anne Boleyn" by Anthony, "Through a Glass Darkly" by Kathleen Norris, "The Wonderful O" by James Thurber, "Mr. Audubon's Lucy" by Kennedy, "The Three Lives of Harriet Hubbard Ayer" by Taves, "A Man Ten Feet Tall" by Miller, "Silver Spoon" by Gilbert, "Silver Platter' by Berlin, and Daphne du Mauriers "The Scapegoat."

The hostess served a sweet course to the 14 members present.

Atheneum BC Has Luncheon Meet, Program

The Atheneum Book Club held its first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. S. M. Crisp where arrangements of Prince Feather, roses and other fall flowers were used.

A two course luncheon was served to the members and guests, Mrs. J. D. Messick and Mrs. J. D. Gilliam.

In the absence of the new president, Mrs. Lee Hannah, Mrs. Walter Harrington, vice president, presided over a short business session. After reports from committee chairmen, Mrs. J. B. Cummings gave a resume of each of the books for the coming year.

Books were distributed and the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. Davis Wins High Score Prize

Members present for the game were Mesdames Tom Andrews Jr., Leighton Blount Jr., R. P. Michaels Jr., Francis Rowlette, D. O. Speir, Bill Johnson. The invited guests who played were Mrs. Robert Davis and Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst. Marie Davis won high score.

The hostess served a salad plate with choice of hot coffee or bottle drinks.

Auxiliary Makes Plans For Meet

GRIFTON—The VFW Post No. 4062 Auxiliary met on Thursday night at the VFW hut in regular session. Mrs. Catherine Condon presided at the business session when plans were made for the Second District meeting which will be held on October 26-27 with the local post and auxiliary as hosts. The meeting will open with a dance on the 26th and will convene at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon. The meeting will close with a dinner in the high school cafeteria.

Special guests at this meeting will be Mrs. Mima Bland of Kinston, district president, and Mrs. Maude Osburn, department president, of Albemarle.

Other plans were completed for a joint meeting of veterans and the auxiliary of the local post at a dinner meeting October 10 at which time the ladies will be hostesses.

At the conclusion of the business hour Mesdames Nell Ewell and Elva Smith served homemade cake and iced drinks to the 13 members present.

Speaker Notes 'It's Smart To Be Well Fed'

"It's smart to be well fed—if you want to look and feel your best," Mrs. Lois Freeman told the Red Oak club members at their October meeting.

She stated that foods supply the body needs for health and vigor. Using a flannelboard she illustrated step-by-step the Basic Seven Food Groups and made from them two menus, one each for breakfast and dinner, giving a good health reason for eating these foods.

Mrs. Rena Manning gave the highlights of her attendance at the Family Life Council held at East Carolina College.

Mrs. Thurston Wynn, chairman of the club community fund, was instructed to send $5.00 to the Mental Health Drive. The kitchen committee was instructed to get further supplies for the kitchen.

A local department store extended an invitation to attend their drapery show on Oct. 17 and an invitation was read from the Greenville Garden Club to attend their Christmas design school which will be held in McGinnis auditorium.

It was noted that Oct. 28 was the date for the arts and crafts workshop at the Home Demonstration Laboratory. The workshop will feature copper plaques and bowls.

Yearly reports were submitted by members and the hostesses, Mrs. Crawford, Mrs. Vandiford, served cool drinks, assorted cookies and nuts.

Mrs. Williams Suggest 'Plant Bulbs Now For Spring Beauty'

FARMVILLE—Mrs. Frank A. Williams gave a program on Fall Planting of Bulbs for Spring beauty when the Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. B. Melton Allen on North Main Street Tuesday.

Mrs. Williams stated "November and December are the months to plant tulips, hyacinths, and daffodils. Decide before buying what to plant and where to plant to give the most beauty to the yard.

"Bulbs should be kept cold for four or five weeks before planting and planted immediately after removal from the refrigerator. The chilling process gives the bulbs the cold they need for good growth. Most bulbs should be planted six inches deep and six inches apart. Bulbs are among the most versatile flowers in the garden. They can be planted in beds, in borders blended into rock gardens, used to set off a wall or any of the blooming shrubs," She suggested.

Chose Well Drained Spot

"Choose a well drained spot for bulbs. Spade it up and mix in plant food containing a good supply of phosphorous. Work soil deep enough so bulb will rest on top of pulverised soil when planted. For best display do not plant different varieties in the same clump."

Mrs. Williams said "whether you have fallen in love with tulips, hyancinths or daffodils now is the time to stop dreaming about spring flowers and get out and dig. You will be rewarded with a riot of color and beauty when your garden begins to burst into bloom with the arrival and song of the robin."

Mrs. A. C. Turnage, president, presided and after reading the Garden collect read a letter from the State chairman, Mrs. George W. Ford, stating that the completion of the Elizabethan Garden is almost a reality. The Gate House is finished and now funds are needed to complete the planting.

For this need the local club decorate the new home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Lewis for Holiday House. The proceeds a silver offering, to go into this fund. Note paper was sold.

Mrs. B. Melton Allen Gave the Treasurer's report and distributed the Litter-bug stickers for cars, trucks and city trash cans. Fifty litterbug bags will be ordered. The club will sell blue-bird houses in the Save The Blue Bird national project. Mrs. E. P. Bass was appointed to consult with Mr. Bass, agricultural teacher, about making these and Mrs. L. E. Turnage to get the pattern from the Home Demonstration Agent.

Mrs. L. E. Turnage and Miss Tabitha M. DeCisconti were appointed by the President to select a garden book to be donated by the club to the Library. The club will also give a subscription to the Glower Grower.

Garden Therapy is a vital National project. The members gave reports of visits and gifts to the sick, shut-ins, and blind with a total of 20 hours in this work this month.

Ice-box cake, nuts, cheese wafers and hot tea was served by the hostess and her mother, Mrs. C. H. Mozingo.

Berries, in novel arrangements, decorated the home.

Auxiliary Publishes Book Of Instructions In Event Of Attack

AYDEN—The Ayden unit of the American Legion Auxiliary held their first meeting of the Fall season recently at the home of Mrs. C. C. Little with Mrs. Jack Collins presiding.

Following the formal opening and routine business, Mrs. Collins gave a report of her trip to the national convention meeting of the Auxiliary held at Atlantic City in September.

Attention was called to the area meeting to be held in Littleton October 4 and all were urged to attend.

Christmas gifts for boys in veterans hospitals were called to the attention of the group and it was announced that the girls who went to Girls State would give their report at the next meeting.

A highlight of the meeting was the presentation of 50 copies of a book, "Survival." This book contains complete instructions of how to protect yourself, your family, your community, in the event of attack. The Auxiliary is keenly aware of the need to arouse people to make preparation for such an event in the confusion and chaos of our atomic world of today.

These books have been prepared by the Auxiliary and the printing and binding was made possible by ads from progressive business firms of Ayden.

Each contributor will be given a book. A copy will be placed in each Ayden school, each doctor's office, each drug store, in rural communities and in the homes of interested individuals. Interested persons wanting a copy should call Mrs. Collins.

Following the meeting, a sweet course with coffee was served by the hostess.

The October meeting will be held with Mrs. A. F. Rowe and Mrs. Stancil Sumrell ae co-hostess at the home of Mrs. Rowe.

OES Grand Matron Visits Robersonville

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. Eva Vann of Washington, District Deputy Grand Matron of the Order of Eastern Star, made her official visit to the Stonewall Chapter of Robersonville Monday night.

Before the meeting the members and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Vann, were served a covered dish supper.

A special program was presented by Mrs. Ethel Little, Mrs. Thelma Gray and Mrs. Margaret Rogerson.

Everyone was invited to the banquet hall for the social hour which followed.

Mrs. Grace Taylor, seated at one end of the table, poured the punch while Mrs. Betty Taylor served cake. The other refreshments were potato chips and assorted sandwiches.

Celebrates Birthday

BETHEL—Jennie Lou Manning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Manning, celebrated her seventh birthday Saturday afternoon. As the children arrived, Jennie Lou greeted them on the lawn where arrangemnts had been made for the party. The 28 children were allowed to choose and direct their games. At the end of the play session, a decorated cake was placed on an outdoor table. The children were served ice cream, nuts and cup cakes.

Paternalistic Trend Is Unchecked

Every few years there appears on the political horizon in the United States a glimmer of hope that a new trend may be developing to stem the tide of socialism which has been creeping over this country for the better part of three decades.

In each instance, however, the glimmer has faded, and the movement toward government paternalism continues.

Such was the case in 1952 when President Eisenhower was elected on the Republican ticket with promises of government economy, reduction in the nation's mushrooming bureaucracy, and relief from the heavy tax burden which of necessity must go hand-in-hand with government paternalism. It did not take long to see these campaign promises eclipsed with additions to government payrolls on every hand, higher federal spending, and growing tax revenues.

Studies show that today some fifty million Americans—almost one-third of the nation's population—are receiving checks of some kind from some agency of federal, state or local government. This doesn't mean that one-third of the nation receives in direct payments from the government the full amount of their income; but it does mean that a third of the population has its hand in the growing pie of paternalism.

At the rate this trend has progressed in the past three decades, is there reason to believe that another three decades will not bring government checks to well over half the nation's population? And, if that becomes the case, will free enterprise be able to support the gigantic tax burden required for such a program? Will we find, as a matter of finance, socialization of industries, businesses and everything else is necessary to provide the give-away funds for federal, state and local governments?

For the parade toward socialism, most of the rank and file citizens of the nation blame the politicians who dream up new ways of providing benefits of one sore or another for the citizenry in the way of cash payments. To some extent the politicians are at fault. But the greater burden of responsibility must rest upon the shoulders of voters who denounce socialistic tendencies in government, deplore the present tax burden, and yet lend their full support at the polls for the candidate who promises most or delivers most in the way of welfare (socialistic, paternalistic) benefits for the citizenry.

There has not been Congressional or Presidential election in the United States in the past 25 years in which some phase of the federal social welfare program has not been a major issue. For the most part the politicians have found it advantageous to be in favor of more and better government give-away programs.

The public has seen fit, while demanding tax reductions, and government economy, also to demand of their government more paternalistic programs which will feed dollars directly into their hands.

Will the headlong charge toward socialism and government paternalism continue, or will the tide be stemmed before it is too late?

Big Concern For Poorer Children

By LYNN NISBET

DR. POE — Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer, is deeply concerned about developments in the school integration situation throughout the whole country. His concern is not directly for the maintenance of States rights, or the prestige of any particular official or level of government. It is for the children of the South and for the poorer children throughout the country. It is grounded in his fear that ultimate result may be the breakdown in public education, the closing of free public schools. He and others warned when the Supreme Court first outlawed segregation that this might come about.

Lately more emphasis has been put on the question of which level of government has major responsibility for enforcing law, including court orders, rather than on the basic need to keep the schools open. In the rivalry for political power and the flaring of emotional prejudice among older people, the inherent rights of children have been overlooked.

Dr. Poe's men has been wielded as effectively and perhaps with broader recognition than was the eloquent voice of his distinguished father-in-law, Charles B. Aycock, in behalf of the right of every child to equal opportunity to bourgeon out the best that is in him. He wired leaders in the recent Southern Governors Conference begging them not to overlook the right of the child in all the discussion of other rights.

It makes little difference in the educational opportunities of a child whether the school house is padlocked by court order, vacated by voluntary withdrawal of pupils and teachers, or kept open by bayonets in an atmosphere preventing balanced mental or spiritual development.

HUMOR — There is nothing "funny" in the overall situation of race animosities and contests for political power. Yet, in the opinion of an elderly minister who asked not to be quoted, the main hope for the survival of our institutions is the innate sense of humor of the American people.

"When a people can smile in the midst of trouble, and sometimes laugh at the trouble itself, there is hope," he said. He cited several incidents to illustrate his point. He called stories told by his father of Confederate soldiers drinking "tea" made of dried oak leaves and "coffee derived from okra seeds, and bragging that "Ole Abe ain't got such delicacies as this." He had heard about a more distant ancestor who wrapped his feet at Valley Forge in a petticoat contributed by his girl friend, and bragged that "Even King George can't put his feet where mine are."

So he reasoned that the fellow who first thought up the parody on the Navy recruiting slogan and posted a sign at his service station urging young men to "Join the army and see our fine high schools," might be contributing more to ultimate solution of the problem than the folks who cannot see anything in the situation to smile about.

The ability to smile is much more important than capacity to laugh. Edgar Allan Poe in the "Fall of the House of Usher" makes that very clear. The guests at a final banquet indulged in demoniacal laughter, but smiled never at all. North Americans, made up of components of nearly every racial strain, not only have survived but have built a great nation because of their ability to smile in the midst of the trouble and to laugh at the trouble itself. The old preacher has faith that they will retain that ability.

REVIEW — A cooperative review of the administration of the Social Security Program as it applies to public employees in North Carolina will be conducted in a series of meetings throughout the state. Thirteen sessions have been scheduled beginning at Charlotte next Monday and winding up at Fayetteville on October 18.

Employees of 97 counties, 232 cities and towns, many libraries, hospitals, ABC boards, State department, agencies and institutions, and 157 boards of education are covered by Social Security under the agreements between the Federal, State and local governments. During the past two years State and local government employees voted to come under the Federal program as well as continuing their own retirement system. Purpose of the meetings scheduled for the next two weeks is to discuss methods of improving administration.

PEACEMAKER — A friend spotted Judge Sumner Burgwyn walking up Fayetteville street the other morning and quipped: "That's the man they ought to have sent to Washington to settle the Little Rock matter. Any man who can establish peace in Hyde county and prevent civil war between Englehard and Swan Quarter over the high school location should be able to handle any problem." A consent judgment was signed by Judge Burgwyn several weeks ago locating a central high school near New Holland, about halfway between Englehard and Swan Quarter and just across Lake Mattamuskeet from Fairfield. This ended a controversy of years standing, involving State and county boards of education.

Hodges Contributed To Easing Of Tension

Gov. Hodges is to be commended for the role he has played in efforts to bring about a solution to the problem which exists in Little Rock. Though federal troops still remain at Central High School in Little Rock, the committee of Southern Givernors headed by Gov. Hodges obviously has contributed to easing the tension which existed not only in Little Rock, but throughout the nation.

The governor of North Carolina, in our opinion, enjoys the highest respect of both the President and Gov. Faubus. The moderate course he has followed in seeking to work out a solution between the two principals involved in the situation is bound to have influenced both the President and Gov. Faubus. Continued efforts by Gov. Hodges, we believe, will lead to a workable solution.

Books Selling On How To Sell

By ELMER ROESSNER

Want to sell something to somebody? Make your offer and say, "Say yes!" He may say yes."

Americans buy a million books a year on how to sell. More than 200 books on selling are in print; those that go out of print are replaced by newer books; one or two new ones tumble off publishers' presses each week.

Every once in a while one comes along that commands more than passing interest. One such, just out, is "Successful Selling Strategies," by Charles L. Lapp. (Published by McGraw-Hill; 343 pages plus index; $4.95.)

Professor Lapp, who teaches marketing at Washington University, has been a frequent contributor to this column, sending in comments, ideas and copies of speeches. It may be that your reporter is therefore prejudiced; on the other hand, it may be that Professor Lapp knows whereof he writes and has been doing a good job of selling himself here.

SPELLS OUT POINTS

There are many superior features to Professor Lapp's book. It is packed with tested ideas and the professor understands the importance of arranging them in readily assimilable form. He knows the advantages and impact of grouping points under subheads and numbering the points.

Tucked away in the book — along about page 184 — is a little gem of an idea. It started with Glenn Drake, a personality-development lecturer, who does a one-hour turn on "Say yes!" Professor Lapp heard, was impressed and tried it out. His first pupil was Karen, his two-and-a-half-year-old daughter, who caught on quickly. She would say to her mother, "I want that dress Mother. Say yes," or "I want that doll, say yes."

Professor Lapp was amazed at how often she got dresses and dolls and decided on more experiments. After a hard day he stretched out on a couch and said to his wife, "Ruth, I'd like a bottle of soda, please say yes." For the first time in nine years she got and served him soda. Soon he had other members of his family sewing on buttons and darning his socks.

He related his experiences in a talk before a group of dentists. One reporter later that had had used the words to get a tight patient to pay his bill and his landlord to remodel his office.

Professor Lapp called on the dean of his university, outlined his case for promotion and, banging his fist on the desk, said, "I want an increase in salary and I want a promotion. Say yes!" The dean said yes and Professor Lapp hurried out before the dean had a chance to change his mind.

So his advice to all salesmen —linked to a score of other suggestions for asking for the order and closing the sale —is to state the offer at the close of the presentation and say, "Say yes!"

If it doesn't sell appliances, at least it may get your wife to bring you a bottle of pop.

THREE NEW IDEAS TO STIMULATE SALES

To stimulate sales of power lawnmowers, one manufacturer is offering a kit containing details on how to build a youngster's auto powered by a tarded-in lawnmower engine. The auto can have a 50-inch wheel base and carry a driver weighing up to 100 pounds at speeds of from six to ten miles an hour . . . "We make a mistake" advertisements to get rid of cats and dogs are no longer rare, but new treatments are. A Fond du Lac, Wis., store used a full page advertisement showing a picture of a dejected buyer. Headlines said, "This man made 167 mistakes," and text offered that many items at 20 to 65 per cent reductions . . . A Wichita, Kan., store is capitalizing on those waits for elevators. On stands in front of, beside and above elevator doors it displays impulse items.

Quote . . .

"The doctrine of regulation and legislation by 'master minds,' in whose judgment and will all the people may gladly and quietly acquiesce, has been too glaringly apparent at Washington during these past ten years."—Franklin Delano Roosevelt (1930).

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LIFE OUT OF DEATH

Jesus, in his sojourn on the earth, set forth many seemingly strange doctrines. On one occasion he said, "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abides alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit."

Now as a fact of agriculture, this is true beyond all possibility of argument. The grain (or as the King James Version has it, the "corn") of wheat falls into the ground and dies, and, as a result, produces a wheat stalk with a head containing many grains of wheat. And from this simple fact of the growing world, Jeses deduced a spiritual principle. "He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal."

In other words, said Jesus, the only way you can be fruitful in the spiritual world is the way a seed is fruitful in the physical world. You must die. Not dying the death which will result in your burial, but dying that inner death of selfishness and egotism in order that you may experience the wonderful and resurrected life which comes to those who have yielded their wills and their souls in obedience to God.

We are spiritual beings. This makes life very difficult for us, because a conflict goes on continually between the flesh and the spirit. But it also makes life glorious. Out of struggle — yes, out of death — comes life.

Biggest Guided Missile

By EVERETTE PARKER

Nerves, Nerves, Nerves

I just picked up the calendar on my desk and ripped away the month of September.

Staring me in the face was the month of October with a date with a heavy black mark around it. That date was October 19.

October 19 represents a very special day to me. On that day I am scheduled to become, for the first time in my life, a married man.

To make a long story short I have only 15 more days before I am to become involved in nuptial ceremonies with one of the finest women on the face of this earth.

Some few months ago I wrote a column depicting my condition with 114 days of individuallism left.

I have seen right many newly married men who say they didn't get nervous at all. Others say they get nervous the minute they walked into the church while a few stated they were just a bundle of nerves weeks before the blessed event took place.

Sitting here I belong to the few who are just a bundle of nerves. When I say I am a bundle of nerves that is probably the biggest understatement of my life.

Several weeks ago I got sick one morning at work. There was no doubt in my mind that I had severe pains in my chest and side.

When I could stand it no longer I went to a physician who gave me a complete checkup. He checked everything and listened very attentively to what I thought was wrong with me.

In a few minutes results of the final tests were brought by a nurse. He checked them very closely and pondered for a few minutes.

Finally he looked up at me and said, "I am happy to say there is nothing basically wrong with you Mr. Parker."

I smiled very doubtfully.

He went on to say, "Tell me have you got anything on your mind. You know something that might be of grave concern to you."

"I am getting married soon," I stated.

He laughed and said, "You haven't got anything wrong with you that marriage won't cure."

I thanked him. In my mind I knew he must be right.

Well lately my nerves have been getting worse. I am imagining all sorts of things. Right now I have the Asian flu.

Other Editors Saying--- Labor Station Proposal

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Suggestion has been made that Goldsboro create a labor recruitment station. The idea is now being thoroughly canvassed by Unemployment Security officials in conversation with city and county authorities.

It is proposed to create in Goldsboro a labor recruitment station under a plan which has been operated with success in other cities. The plan for Goldsboro and Wayne, however, would be adapted to our own situations

In brief it would work like this. At some point outside the congested area a site of a block in extent, or thereabouts, would be set up. It would be so located that trucks could drive into it from one side and leave on the other side.

Men and women who wanted temporary farm jobs would go to the site early in the morning. At the time when farms generally drive in to find workers. A farmer with his automobile or truck would stop at the labor station and hire the number of workers he needs.

The idea has much to recommend it. It would bring those wanting jobs and those needing labor together conveniently. It would give the man seeking a job a definite time and place where he might find one. It would prevent the farmer from having to drive around certain areas before daylight knocking on doors and offering jobs.

At the present an estimated 500 to 600 migrant farm workers are in the Mt. Olive area. Some of these were brought in from hundreds of miles away. They are helping pick cotton and harvest sweet potatoes.

While this number has been brought in from a distance, there are many in Goldsboro who would like such employment. It would solve a labor problem here. It would mean increased business through increased, employment, and for the farmer it would be more convenient.

Each Spring sees hundreds of migrant farm workers brought into Wayne, and Duplin and Sampson to help with the truck crop harvest. There would be several weeks in the spring and several weeks in late summer and early Fall when a labor station in Goldsboro would really pay off.

Such a plan would have to be set up under city regulation and control. Or if a suitable location cannot be secured inside the city limits, the proposed station could be set up on the edge of the city. In that even it would be controlled by definite rules and regulations established by the County Commissioners.

If the plan is to be put into effect by next Spring, all details and plans must be worked out in the near future.

Aides Gave Ike Some Bad Advice

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON President Eisenhower's integration difficulties at Little Rock and elsewhere in the South stem from what many members of his official family regard as bad advice from his principal aides in this matter—namely, Attorney General Herbert Brownell and Sherman Adams, White House Chief of Staff. From the legal and political standpoint, they ran the show.

It was Brownell, for instance, who sponsored the original Civil Rights Bill, with its provision for the use of troops to enforce, not only the Supreme Court's demand for mixing pupils in the schools, but for the whole integration movement.

Brownell still refuses to say whether he personally drafted the measure, or whether he entrusted the task to a subordinate. But he assumed full responsibility for it when he carried it from the Department of Justice to the President's desk.

"HIDDEN" OBJECTIVES IN ORIGINAL CIVIL RIGHTS BILL. Not until Southern Senators, chiefly Russell of Georgia and Ervin of North Carolina, exposed the "hidden" objectives of the bill did Eisenhower admit that he did not fully understand its purposes and provisions. The real meaning of the Brownell proposal was "hidden," according to Russell-Ervin contention, in the sense that the sections authorizing military action were not spelled out.

The measure simply referred to numbered paragraphs of the United States Code which few Senators or Eisenhower had ever read. In a matter of this importance, it is pointed out belatedly, a lawyer should inform his client —the President—in elaborate detail instead of leaving him in ignorance about the bill's more far-reaching, inflamatory and controversial features.

CHIEF WHITE HOUSE AIDE BLAMED Adams is held equally responsible for Eisenhower's embarrassment by numerous colleagues, but especially by distressed Republican politicians. It is his job to read and digest all recommendations, communications and documents before they are presented to Eisenhower. He shares responsibility with the Budget Bureau in this respect. He is, literally, the President's guardian.

JUDICIOUS HANDLING WANTING Had Adams examined and analyzed the Brownell project carefully and conscientiously, he would have asked the Attorney General for a full explanation of the "hidden" threat of military intervention. Although it may have been an oversight the two men's faulty preparation and briefing of the President is attributed to their political preoccupation with wooing and winning the colored vote for the GOP.

Ike's advisers were also responsible for his failure to handle the integration problem more judiciously from the very day of the Supreme Court edict. It was suggested many months ago, as it has been since the Little Rock disturbances, that he consult with Southern Senators, educators and spokesmen for and against integration.

Instead of standing solely on the Supreme Court ruling, he was urged to learn for himself the effect which immediate and forceful implementation would have on the social, economic and living conditions in the South.

After all, he has sent experts abroad to ascertain the impact of American financial aid on foreigners, and their governments.

SOUND ADVICE UNHEEDED. After such a study, it was proposed that he deliver a nationwide, televised address, urging patience and restraint, not only upon the public, but also on politicians like Governor Orval Faubus and jurists like Judge Ronald N. Davies of North Dakota. Eisenhower has frequently taken to TV to counsel with the citizenry on far less important questions.

For some reason, this seemingly wise and statesmanlike advice was not heeded. One explanation is that it would appear to be a criticism of the Supreme Court. Last Tuesday, however, the President tried to rectify this omission and to disregard earlier advisers' laissez-faire attitude by conferring with Southern Governors.

In view of Ike's unhappy experiences with an Attorney General from New York and a Chief of Staff from New Hampshire, what he needs at this moment in his official circle is a wise man from the South.

Finds Friends In Fur

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "The fur people are a great part of my life," said actress June Havoc, who keeps and is consoled by seven dogs and two cats.

"They are my companions. I started out with them when there were no 'skin people' — no children my own age — Around to play with. Therefore the fur people have been a great part of my life, and still are.

"You know how a hobo, if you give him a handout, will make a mark on the pavement to let other hoboes know yours is a door to knock on? Well, I have a cross like that on top of my head.

"It's invisible to the skin people, but it says to all the fur people, 'This is the place, Charlie!'

"Dogs can see it two blocks away and give me the wink. They know I know."

Miss Havoc has been honored by West Coast humane societies for her work in helping save 265,000 homeless cats and dogs doomed to extermination.

"I helped get them jobs," she said, "I particularly like to find jobs for middle-aged fur people who have lost their former homes. They are truly tragic. Everybody loves a puppy or a kitty —but who ever buys a middle-aged dog or cat?"

Miss Havoc, Gypsy Rose Lee's little sister, feels there is a kind of kinship between the fur people and human entertainers — a secret bond of understanding. Both know their main role in life is to make somebody else feel better.

June herself admits she didn't earn a penny until she was two years old, when she started dancing in vaudeville.

"At 3 I went into films, and at 3½ the legitimate theater," she recalled.

"I have been thrown with older folks so much that today I can sit around with people of 65 or 70 and pop the cork as well as if I were one of them.

"Actors lead a life most people could never stand. They're always in and out of the freezer. They have so many low moments . . . Moments when nobody wants them . . . moments that can annihilate.

"Fortitude is 90 per cent of show business. Show business isn't really a career at all — it's a life."

June, who is featured tonight on Ed Murrow's CBS network program, "Person to Person," isn't in the freezer at the moment. She is writing her autobiography and rehearsing for a new Broadway comedy called, "One Foot in the Door."

"It feels wonderful," said June who always keeps her sprangles ready to hit the night club circuit when no suitable film or stage roles are on her horizon. "But I'm no idiot. I know I'll be back in the freezer again."

Miss Havoc, who never went to school a day in her life, is proud of the fact that single-handed she has written down the story of her early struggles.

"I wrote 42 pounds of words," she said. "The book carries me up to the age of 14-the wildest years of my life."

June also has the pride in her profession that marks the true craftsman, and this is her goal:

"I want to stay out of the ice-box . . . to be independent enough to say at 85, 'I do want that role' or 'I don't want that role' . . . and to die with my makeup on.

"I'm not a frivolous person. Is that too much to ask in this world?"

The Public Forum

To the Editor:

During National Newspaper Week I would like to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to you for the wonderful services The Daily Reflector has rendered to The Salvation Army. Whether the problem has been to tell the story of The Salvation Army or to raise funds to support its work, your newspaper has shown a spirit of helpfulness and cooperation.

Too many people now take the newspaper for granted. They forget they can buy here in the United States for a nickel what cannot be purchased in some nations for a million dollars — a newspaper written by free men!

Your newspaper serves us and thousands of others, just as we try to serve those who come to The Salvation Army for spiritual enlightenment and nourishment.

WE SALUTE YOU!

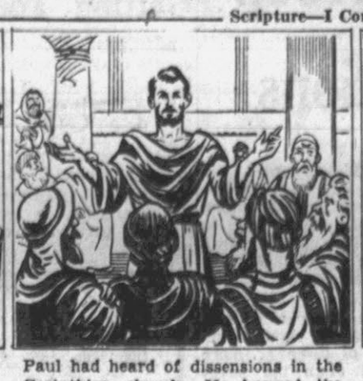
Paul Writes to the Corinthians ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Corinthians 1—4.

Paul, "called to be an apostle of Christ," wrote to the church in Corinth, wishing its members "grace and peace from our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."



Paul had heard of dissensions in the Corinthian church. He begged the members not to be divided, but "to speak all the same thing, joined together in the same mind."

"When I came to you," Paul wrote, "I came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom. For I determined not to know any thing save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified."

"I will come to you shortly, if the Lord will. Shall I come unto you with a rod, or in love, and the spirit of meekness?"

MEMORY VERSE—I Corinthians 2:2.

Paul Writes to the Corinthians

HE BEGS THEM TO BE OF ONE MIND; NOT DIVIDED

Scripture—I Corinthians 1—4.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

AFTER our series of lessons on interesting and inspiring personalities in the Old Testament, we turn now to the New Testament and St. Paul's efforts to maintain peace among the members of the newly formed churches, and to advise them to be of one mind and spirit, not divided.

The editor of our Sunday school notes, Dr. Wilbur M. Smith, suggests that the younger classes could be introduced to this rather difficult lesson (for the young) by calling to their attention the many parts which go into the making of a modern automobile.

If, when driving this complicated machine there is heard a peculiar noise, a squeak, say, a pounding or clicking; the driver knows that something is wrong and goes at once to have it repaired. If the machinery is not adjusted so that the car runs smoothly, the trip may be ruined or an accident occur.

The children will also be reminded that if all in the class are not listening to the teacher, answering the questions asked them, but are restless and disorderly, perhaps quarrelsome, the effect of the lesson will be lost and the whole class be disturbed.

So it is in our churches in which dissensions and divided opinions arise, causing arguments and ill feelings. Paul had been informed that there was such discord in the church in Corinth, which he had founded. Corinth was a famous seaport, and people from every part of the great Roman empire came together there. Paul probably came there in the autumn of A.D. 50, and stayed 18 months. He begins his Epistle thus:

"Paul, called to be an apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, and Sosthenes our brother." We do not know Sosthenes, but he must have been a fellow laborer with the Apostle in Corinth.

"Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."

"Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment."

"For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you." Chloe must have been someone who carried weight with the Corinthians, a woman either of Corinth or Ephesus, from which latter city Paul was writing.

The Greeks were much given to argumentation, and after Paul had left Corinth, another, a brilliant man named Apollos, a coworker of Paul's, preached to them, and his eloquence was such that many were more impressed by his discourses than by Paul's simpler sermons.

Paul was the founder of the church in Corinth, and Paul speaks of this by saying: "Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase."

These two men were both workers for God and Christ. As Paul writes: "For we are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." Paul says further that he founded, but "let every man take heed how he buildeth thereon."

There are many fine men today doing God's work in the ministry. Some may possess more eloquent tongues than others, but all are possessed of the Spirit of God and of Christ, "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

Paul speaks about shortly visiting at Corinth, almost seems to apologize for his chidings, for he writes: "I write not these things to shame you but as my beloved sons I warn you."

Spiders Bedevil Suburban Homes

BALTIMORE (AP)—Mrs. Richard Thompson, a harried housewife in a suburban housing development invaded by black widow spiders, says she may call on the Army for help.

More than 100 of the insects with the sometimes-fatal bite were found in a section of the Victory Villa development within the last week.

The Baltimore County Health Department sent residents literature on how to deal with the spiders but said the department was not equipped to handle the job itself.

Swatted At Fly, Fined By Court

DETROIT (AP) — Harold Chandler had to pay $10 for assault and battery because he took a swat at a fly.

The trouble was that Chandler, 31, was in a restauran at the time and he didn't hit the fly at all. His swat nearly unseated Frieda Mooney, 25, who was sitting on an adjoining stool.

Miss Mooney's escort Fred Boone, 35, wasn't impressed by Chandler's story of the fly. A scuffle resulted.

Chandler was fined by Recorder's Judge Elvin L. Davenport.

Knowland And Knight Gird For Slambang Vote Fight

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Sen. William F. Knowland and Gov. Goodwin J. Knight were committed today to a bitter fight to the finish in their contest for the Republican nomination for governor.

"The die is cast," said Knowland.

"This will be no panty waist campaign," said Knight.

The two rivals, who with Vice President Nixon represent California's Republican Big Three, quickly clashed after Knowland announced his candidacy for governor yesterday.

Atty. Gen. Edmund G. Brown, prospective Democratic candidate for governor, chimed in from Monterey that Knowland's entry "seems to give the people a fine choice between an incumbent dead duck and a foolish modern McKinley."

Brown, predicting a vicious Knowland-Knight fight for the GOP nomination, called Knowland a "modern McKinley" because, he said, the senator "has evidenced in all his acts and statements a reactionarism that even the Republican party has long since passed."

Knight seized on Knowland's formal statement and news conference comment which avoided an absolute pledge to stay out of the 1960 presidential race.

The 61-year-old governor spoke of the decision by the Senate minority leader to oppose him as "a hydra-headed bid for the presidency" and called for an "honest, straight forward declaration of intent."

Knowland, 49, did not mention the presidential issue in his reply but said: "Though the incumbent may think that he has a vested right in the gubernatorial post and is the only one qualified to hold it, most Californians do not believe in the doctrine of the indespensible man."

The senator said in his declaration to candidacy for governor that he intended to fulfill the term or terms to which he might be elected. He said that if he wins the $40,000-a-year job, "I shall enter into that great office with no commitments other than the ones I make publicly."

Asked specifically by newsmen whether he expected to seek the Republican presidential nomination, he said, "No one has a crystal ball as to 1960 or to 1964."

Sen. Knowland's carefully worded statement," said Knight, "is properly assessed by all who heard it as a thinly disguised invitation to his later 'draft' for the presidential nomination in 1960.

"The voters simply want to know whether or not Sen. Knowland is willing to abandon for the next five years any presidential ambitions which would divert him from the big job of being governor—and that he doesn't consider California a mere pebble on the road to the White House."

YDC Session Is Opened Today

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—Three of the state's political leaders appeared here today as the North Carolina Young Democratic Clubs opened their annual convention.

The keynote speaker was Gov. Luther Hodges. Tonight's banquet speakers include U.S. Senator Samuel Ervin Jr. of Morganton, a leader in the fight against the Civil Rights Bill, and Rep. Harold Cooley of Nashville, veteran chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

The first business session opened at 2 p.m. with the president's address by Steve Nimocks of Fayetteville.

Other convention business includes reports of various officers, election of officers tomorrow and the adoption of resolutions.

Chief among the resolutions is one calling for the state's congressional delegation to seek a constitutional amendment spelling out state's rights.

Nimocks, who said he expected the resolution to be approved, called the resolution "far greater in scope than the single question of integration or segregation of the races. It is fundamental to our government.

"While some of us may differ on ways and means of preserving these rights, we believe that we are in almost unanimous accord as to the principle involved," he said.

Presidential candidates include Robert Davis of Salisbury and Louis Allen, a Burlington lawyer.

SIAMESE TWINS

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N.Y. (AP) — Siamese twins joined at the pelvis were born last week in Mercy Hospital here, it was disclosed yesterday. The hospital said that, at the request of the parents, it was unable to release any information on the twins or say whether a severing operation was planned.

Lead-Free Paint For Japan's Toys

TOKYO (AP) — By early next month only Japanese toys decorated with lead-free paints will be going to American and other overseas markets, an inspection director said today.

Yokichi Sato, managing director of the Japan Metal Toys Inspection Assn., a government agency, said a new regulation for toys shipped abroad will be announced in the Japanese official gazette Oct. 15.

He said thisste p was not taken because Japanese metal toys being made now are considered dangerous, "but to fulfill the requirements of American customers." There have been some charges in the United States that Japanese toys might be harmful to children.

He said that although the paint on Japanese metal toys includes some lead to give them luster, they are harmless because the paint is coated with varnish after being baked at high temperatures to harden it.

"The toys would not be dangerous even if a child put them in its mouth," Sato declared.

Sato said he believes there will be an increase of about 10 per cent in metal toys exports to the United States over last year.

Whistling For Traffic Control

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP) — Passing motorists are being whistled at by pretty young matrons on Mcallen street corners.

They're members of the David Crockett School "mothers patrol," and they're using the whistles like traffic patrolmen. The patrol was formed to see pupils across two busy intersections near the school.

Dr. R. A. Lindquist said the mothers will continue to whistle and take turns guiding children across the street morning and afternoon until the city can install traffic signals, promised in about six weeks.

Keeping Promise Of 31 Years Ago

DALLAS (AP)—A senior at the old Central High School in Fort Worth made a promise to a fellow senior 31 years ago.

One predicted: "Someday I'm going to be the governor of Texas."

Asked the first boy: "When you get to be governor, will you come and speak to my congregation?"

"Sure I will," replied the second.

That promise will be fulfilled Sunday morning when Gov. Price Daniel speaks to Dr. J. A. Lovell's congregation at the First Covenant Church in Dallas.

Brucker Refutes Troop Brutality Allegations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Army Brucker, replying to what he called "many loose and irresponsible accusations," says he knows of no unnecessary use of force by U.S. soldiers at Little Rock, Ark.

Mentioning specifically the case of a civilian struck by a soldier's rifle butt, Brucker said in a statement that under the circumstances it was the "elementary duty of this soldier to resist the assault andt o retain his rifle."

The civilian, C. E. Blake of North Little Rock, tried unsuccessfully yesterday to obtain warrants against three soldiers he said were involved. Prosecutor Frank Holt at Little Rock refused to issue the warrants and said he told Blake any complaint should be made to U.S. authorities.

Blake suffered a head wound last week on the first day U.S. paratroopers were assigned to maintain order at Little Rock's Central High School. He was one of a group near the school which refused to move as ordered.

Blake's story was that he was standing on private property, minding his own business, when a soldier put a bayonet to his chest. When he pushed the bayonet away, he said, another soldier knocked him to the ground with a rifle butt and a third also struck him.

Brucker said that when Blake refused to move as ordered, a soldier started "pushing Blake with the flat of his rifle," and added:

"Thereupon, Blake cursed and yelled at the soldier and attempted to disarm him by taking hold of his rifle, struggling to wrench it from the soldier's hands." In the scuffle, Brucker said, Blake was struck on the head.

Brucker took issue also with what he said was "a vague newspaper account of three or more citizens pushed down the street with bayonets at their throats."

Some slowly moving persons may have found bayonets close to them, he said, "but it is significant that no specific person has identified himself as making any claim that a bayonet was held at his throat."

Brucker said the soldiers are under orders to use force only when absolutely necessary, and that oppressive action has been strictly forbidden.

'Mr. Kitzel' Dies Of Heart Ailment

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP)—The man who played Mr. Kitzel on Jack Benny's radio and television shows is dead.

Arthur (Artie) Auerback, 34, died yesterday in West Valley Community Hospital of a heart ailment.

He came to Hollywood 20 years ago with the Al Pearce radio show. He joined the Benny show about 12 years ago.

Auerback's dialect rendition of the song "Pickle in the Middle With the Mustard on Top" became a show business classic.

A native of New York City, Auerback at one time was a reporter and photographer for the New York Daily News. He leaves his widow Dorris.

The number of persons 65 and over in the United States has quadrupled since 1900. The total population has only doubled in the same time.

Buffalo Mascot Getting Too Big

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—The University of Colorado is saying goodby to Mr. Chips.

Mr. Chips is a 600-pound buffalo calf, donated to the school whose student teams are known as "Buffaloes," by a 1932 alumnus, William M. White of Pueblo.

That was last spring. Mr. Chips was boarded at a nearby ranch. He took part in several campus functions.

But leaders of the Associated Students decided their mascot was getting "too big and too unruly." They agreed, sadly, to offer him to a zoo.

New Confidence Rises In Braves' Camp

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Back home with a split in the two games played at Yankee Stadium, the suddenly stimulated Milwaukee Braves, from Manager Fred Haney down, were confident today they would beat the New York Yankees in the World Series.

The odds-makers still made the American League champions a 6-5 favorite.

Elated by his team's fine all-round performance yesterday that backed up Lew Burdette's brilliant pitching with a 4-2 triumph, Haney plans to throw Bob Buhl, the last of his Big Three, at the Yankees tomorrow in the first of three consecutive games at County Stadium.

The 18-game winner will be opposed by Bob Turley, New York's hardest throwing pitcher.

Yesterday's game before 65,202 fans was a battle all the way until Hank Bauer rapped into a game-ending force play to leave the tying runs on the basepaths.

"These fellows showed our guys they mean business," declared Casey Stengel, the all-knowing New York manager. "This was a big game for them. They're going to be tougher to beat from now on. Mind you, I'm not saying we won't do it but it's not going to be easy. Not from the looks of the way they battled us today."

The usually mild-mannered Haney hurled a veiled challenge at Casey's crew.

"We know we will win now," he said. "We're over the hump. We stood up to those guys in their own back yard and held them even. Now they've got to play us three games in our park. I think pitching will be the key to this series and I know we've got the pitching."

In an effort to make use of as much left-handed batting strength as possible against the right-handed Turley, Haney will open with a revised lineup that will include the spectacular rookie Bob Hazle in place of the veteran Andy Pafko in right field, and probably Frank Torre instead of Joe Adcock at first base. Del Rice, a .500 hitter in the 1946 World Series for the St. Louis Cardinals, will catch Buhl.

The batting order will also suffer a slight alteration. Wes Covington, the hitting star of the series up to now, with four safeties in eight times at bat, has been moved up from seventh to fifth, with Hazle batting sixth, Torre

Stengel said he would not decide on his third game lineup until after this afternoon's practice session but he indicated one or two changes would be made. He was strongly considering playing Jerry Lumpe, his left-handed-hitting rookie, at third base and moving Tony Kubek back to left field. Otherwise the lineup will remain unchanged.

Haney called yesterday's game "the most satisfying we've played all year."

The biggest praise was for Burdette, the fidgety, 30-year-old side-armer from Nitro, W.Va., who throttled the Yankees on seven hits. A home run by Hank Bauer and a 15-foot dribble-single by Jerry Coleman produced the only Yankee runs.

Burdette's toughest inning, outside of those that saw New York score, was the sixth when Mickey Mantle walked and Enos Slaughter sliced a one-out double to left. The rangy right-hander then made a fine play on Harry Simpson's roller toward third, getting his man by a whisker and keeping the runners anchored. The runners remained stranded when Red Schoendienst threw out Kubek.

Lew, once Yankee property, had to fight off another challenge in the ninth. After disposing of Simpson, he gave up singles to Kubek and pinch hitter Lumpe, in between an out by Joe Collins, and suddenly the Yankees had the tying runs on base. But Burdette rose to the challenge by inducing the dangerous Bauer to send a roller to Logan, who threw to Schoendienst for the force play.

"This was the only time I considered taking Burdette out of the game," Haney told newsmen later. "If Bauer had gotten on base, I was all ready to call in Don McMahon from the bullpen to pitch to Gil McDougald."

There was an undercurrent of bitterness on both sides. The Yankees rode the Braves hard all through the game and the visitors retaliated in kind.

PIRATE GUARD—Dick Monds, 200-pound senior guard and so-captain on the East Carolina football team, will be expected to pace the Bucs tomorrow night when they invade Catawba. The game will be the first North State Conference meet of the year for ECC.

Pirates Set For Catawba Eleven

After meeting two strong Southern Conference elevens on the gridiron this season, East Carolina College moves into its own league Saturday night when the Pirates journey to Salisbury for its game with Catawba College. This game will be the North State Conference opener for the two schools.

The University of Richmond romped past the Bucs on the opening night by a score of 40-7, but last weekend Coach Jack Boone's sophomore-loaded club rebounded with what Boone termed one of the best team efforts since he has been at East Carolina.

Rated as heavy underdogs, ECC scrapped Davidson on even grounds before bowing 19-6 in the final stages of the game.

The Pirates' head mentor was well pleased with his club's performance. A couple of Bucs' mistakes turned into touchdowns for the Wildcats of Davidson, Boone observed. He declared line play was exceptionally good, as it held Davidson's ground attack under control and opened up nice holes for the Pirates' backs.

Gaining praise for their outstanding play were Ken Burgess, Dick Bonds, Ed Emory, Charles Cooke, Lynn Barnett, and James Faircloth. Monds, the ECC co-captain, was lauded for playing one of his best games since enrolling here.

Boone was disappointed that the pass defense against Davidson made possible their picking up needed yardage on several plays with short passes over the middled. "But we were improved over our Richmond showing, and we shall continue to improve," Boone added.

The running of backs James Speight, Tommy Nash, and Bobby Lilley was especially pleasing to the ECC coaches.

Boone and his staff have been spending more time in pass defense drills this week. The Catawba Indians were rained out last Saturday, and the ECC coaches have had to form their scouting report from the opening tilt which placed Davidson and Catawba as foes.

Catawba has been rated as second to Lenoir Rhyne in North State Conference football in preseason forecasts. Quarterback Lou Biacchi will be the big boy the Bucs must stop. The 210-pound quarterback is heralded as one of the top backs in the loop.

Milwaukee Rolls Out Red Carpet For Its Braves

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The red carpet was rolled out and thousands of cheering fans turned out last night as the Milwaukee Braves returned home from New York to prepare for the first World Series game ever played here.

The Braves returned to the faithful a few hours after defeating the Yankees 4-2 to square the series at one game each. The third will be played tomorrow at Milwaukee County Stadium.

It was a cool night and a stiff cold wind whipped across Billy Mitchell Airport as the Braves' chartered airliner landed. But the cheers of 6,500 happy fans warmed things up quickly as the plane put down.

One of the first to alight was manager Fred Haney, who blinked in the glare of spotlights that lighted the ramp, waved to the crowd and declared:

"Things went very much better today. We know now the Yankees can be had. We hope to wrap it up here."

Robersonville And Farmville Clash Tonight

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

FARMVILLE—The big game of the week in high school football in this area, will be tonight's clash between Farmville and Robersonville, two Coastal Conference opponents.

Going into the tilt tonight, they are the number one and number two teams in Coastal play. Farmville, with a 1-0 record, is the loop's top team. Robersonville is second with a 2-1 mark.

Circumstances in the hectic Coastal Conference have made tonight's tilt an extremely important one. This has already become a big year for upsets in Coastal play and each of the favored clubs has met its match at least once thus far.

Robersonville, highly-favored to steam-roller the rest of the league into the ground this year with a cast of strong, fast, and experienced gridders, was knocked off by Ayden. Ayden, in turn, was set down by Farmville and Vanceboro. Farmville, though it boasts a 1-0 conference mark, has been beaten twice by non-conference clubs.

Anybody's Game

In this mixed-up Coastal circle, tonight's tilt could be anybody's game. The men who hand out the odds are a bit reluctant to put a label on the contest, but Robersonville has been awarded a six-point edge.

The Rams have compiled a 3-1 overall mark for play thus far. They whipped Contentnea 26-0 and Rich Square 32-6 and Vanceboro 13-0. They lost 19-0 to Ayden.

Farmville has an overall 2-2 record, having won out over Nashville 40-6 and Ayden 12-0 and having lost 7-6 to La Grange and 31-0 to Morehead City.

Other Games

Ayden, with a 1-2 conference mark, will take time out from Coastal play to journey to Williamston tonight. Coach Stuart Tripp's Tornadoes hope to improve their 2-2 overall record there.

Reports from the Ayden camp tell that the Tornadoes are in good shape, physically, with no injuries hindering the club.

Vanceboro played its weekend game Wednesday night, due to a conflict in schedules, and came out on the short end of a 25-14 score with Benvenue. The loss put a 2-2 tab on their overall. Their conference record is 1-2. Vanceboro has won over Ayden, and lost to Benvenue and Robersonville.

Next weekend is Vanceboro's next tilt. Coach Pat Jones' club goes to Jacksonville to play the AA Cardinals.

Robersonville-Farmville

Back to the number one game tonight:

Robersonville will go into the game with a host of injuries that threatens the Ram power offensive. Eddie Perry and Mike Roberson, Coach Bob Lee's top runners, are saddled with hurts which will probably cut their effectiveness, according to reports from Robersonville.

Farmville will have its backfield in tact with Sonny Mall, Johnny Dixon, Horace Corbett and Irving Allen, in good shape. The Red Devils are expected to depend upon both air and ground plays against the Rams.

Game time all around the Conference is slated for 8:00.

Phants Journey To Selma Tonight

SELMA — Greenville high school seeking its second victory of the season, battles the Class AA-C Selma Green tonight here.

Coach Bud Phillips' Phantoms are reportedly in good shape for the tilt and are rated six-point favorites.

Thus far this season, the G-Men have compiled a 1-3 mark, winning over Kinston and losing to Goldsboro, Washington and Jacksonville.

Teams Will Meet In 'Oyster Bowl'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy-Georgia football game will be played as scheduled in the "Oyster Bowl" at Norfolk, Va. The Navy said it has been assured that ticketholders "will be seated without discrimination."

Rear Adm. William R. Smedberg III the Navy Academy superintendent, announced yesterday a decision to go ahead with the game, planned for Oct. 19.

He did so after a conference with Secretary of the Navy Gates and Mel Blassingham, chairman of the Oyster Bowl Committee. The Navy and bowl officials met after a demand by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) that the game be canceled unless all seats were sold on a nonsegregated basis.

Virginia law forbids seating of Negroes and whites together at public gatherings. In the past, this prohibition has not been enforced strictly at the Oyster Bowl because few Negroes attended.

There were reports from Norfolk that tickets to this year's game were being sold on a segregated basis.

Scorebooks Fail Show Grief Ahead For Top Ten Grid Teams Saturday

By ORLO ROBERTSON

If there is trouble brewing for the nation's top 10 college football teams tomorrow, it doesn't show in comparative scores.

In going undefeated in 14 games, the teams comprising the first 10 in this week's Associated Press poll have rolled up a total of 460 points while holding their opponents to 72.

By contrast their opponents have won only 5, lost 10 and tied 3. In the 18 games, they scored 189 points while yielding 256.

Not one from top-ranked Oklahoma on down to 10th-rated Michigan has been really tested. It will be an upset if any are beaten tomorrow.

Potent Oklahoma, idle last week after blanking Pitt 26-0, goes after its 42nd successive victory, against Iowa State (1-0-1). Oklahoma has not been beaten by a Big Eight conference team since Coach Bud Wilkinson took over 10 years ago.

Second-ranked Michigan State, 1-0 after blasting Indiana 54-0 in the Spartans' opener, meets winless California (0-2) in the TV Game of the Week.

The remainder of the top 10 line up like this:

Minnesota, 46-7 conqueror of Washington, meets Purdue, 0-1 after losing 12-0 to Notre Dame. Duke, 2-0 with a 26-14 onquest of South Carolina and 40-0 victors over Virginia, takes on disappointing Maryland (0-2).

The Texas Aggies, with a 21-13 victory over Maryland and a 21-0 blanking of Texas Tech, meet Missouri, 0-1 with a 7-7 tie with Vanderbilt and 35-13 victory over Arizona.

Navy, considered by many experts to be the best in the East after thrashing Boston College 46-6 and William & Mary 33-6, clashes with North Carolina (1-1). Auburn, surprise 7-0 conqueror of Tennessee in its lone effort, should have no trouble against Chattanooga (1-0-1).

Iowa's Hawkeyes, who showed a great potential in downing Utah State 70-14, are at home to Washington State (1-1). Oregon State, with 20-0 victory over Southern California and 34-6 over Kansas, also steps out of its league for a clash with Northwestern (0-1).

Michigan, figured to be one of the title threats in the Big 10, entertains Georgia (0-2) after turning back Southern California 16-6 in its only other start.

Wes Covington Can Jest About Spring Troubles

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee's Wes Covington jests about the miseries which beset him in the spring.

"They said I couldn't catch a ball in a wicker basket," he said. "I worked hard on my fielding. Then they said I'd learned to field but forgotten how to hit."

There is more truth than levity in Covington's little joke. His hitting became so atrocious that he was farmed out to Wichita of the American Assn. for a month. He almost was traded to the Giants in the 3-for-1 deal for Red Schoendienst.

Today the Braves are happy they were prevented from such a hasty error by the intervention of Milwaukee scout Ted McGrew.

The six-foot, 205-pound Negro athlete from Durham, N.C., is the Braves' leading hitter in the series—4 hits in 8 at bats for .500—and it was his spectacular fielding which was credited with helping Milwaukee knot the series with the New York Yankees yesterday 4-2.

In the second inning the Yankees had rallied against pitcher Lew Burdette. One run was in and men were on first and second when Bobby Shantz, wee Yankee pitcher, hit a rifle shot to deep left field.

Covington took off after the ball and nabbed it back-handed over his head while on a dead run.

"It was the key play of the game for us," said Manager Fred Haney of the Braves afterwards. "If Wes hadn't made that catch they might have made two or three more runs and we might have been out of the ball game."

"The ball was hit harder than I thought," said Covington. "When I saw it going over my head I got on my horses and went after it. I believe the ball would have gone for a home run."

Some Shifts In Boxing's Ranks

NEW YORK (AP)—Welterweight champion Carmen Basilio's victory over middleweight ruler Sugar Ray Robinson not only gained Basilio the 160-pound crown but earned him the "Fighter of The Month" award in the Ring Magazine monthly ratings released today. It also put him high on the list for the Fighter of The Year prize.

Robinson became the No. 1 challenger with Gene Fullmer, another former champion, dropped to second place. He was followed by Rory Calhoun, White Plains, N.Y., Joey Giardello, Philadelphia, Charley Humez, France; Joey Giambra, San Francisco, Spider Webb, Chicago, Charley Joseph, New Orleans, Bobby Boyd, Chicago, and Yama Bahama, Bimini, B.W.I.

Basilio's welterweight title was declared vacant. Boston's Tony DeMarco, a former champion, held the No. 1 rating.

Several changes were made in the heavyweight ranks. Willie Pastrano, the New Orleans fancy Dan, moved up from fourth to third, trading places with Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson of New York. Pat McMurtry of Tacoma, Wash., was boosted from seventh to sixth, and undefeated Alex Miteff of Argentina zoomed from tenth to seventh.

Navy Game Could Be A Big One For Jim Tatum's Team

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Does North Carolina Coach Jim Tatum have the answer to Navy's passing game?

"When the ball is in the air," says Tatum, "it's anybody's ball and one pass interception is equal to five downs."

Tatum's philosophy should get a stern test tomorrow when his Tar Heels face the sixth-ranked Navy at Chapel Hill.

The game could be a "big" one for North Carolina, seeking its first winning season since 1949.

The Tar Heels, after losing 0-7 to North Carolina State in their opener, drubbed defending Atlantic Coast Conference champion Clemson 26-0 last week. A victory over Navy could provide the impetus for a winning season. A victory tomorrow would mark the first time since early in the 1953 season that the North Carolinians have won two straight.

The stumbling block is Navy, with a first team of lettermen, nine of them seniors with plenty of experience. At the quarterback is Tom Forrestal, the nation's No. 3 passer. Navy has won its first two games, over Boston College and William and Mary, but how much of a real test these games were remain to be seen.

Meanwhile, North Carolina practiced its pass defense yesterday and Tatum said his squad generally was in good condition.

North Carolina State and Clemson, which meet tomorrow at Clemson, tapered off their drills yesterday. Each team reviewed offense and defense. Clemson Coach Frank Howard announced that Co-Capt. John Grdijan, a guard, was back in action after missing a day's practice.

Wake Forest and Virginia, two of three ACC members without a victory, each stressed offense in night workouts. The two meet at Winston-Salem in a night game.

There were several changes made by Coach Ben Martin in the Virginia lineup which included the elevation of Reece Whitley to first string quarterback in place of Nelson Yarbrough, the ACC's leading passer last year.

Wake Forest Coach Paul Amen announced that end Barry Hines, counted on as a starter this season, would miss the Virginia game because of a leg injury.

It was a light workout for Duke yesterday with the Blue Devils practicing against Maryland offense and defense. Coach Bill Murray said first string halfback Eddie Rushton likely would not see action against Maryland at Duke Saturday because of a bruised hip.

Of the Maryland squad, only guard Paul Tonetti, who had his appendix removed after last week's loss to N.C. State, will miss the game. The Terps held a light workout yesterday which featured kicking drills.

South Carolina, which has a tough assignment against Texas at Austin tomorrow, worked light, stressing individual tactics and dummy scrimmage.

Tufts Is Leader In Total Offense

NEW YORK (AP)—Tufts College of Massachusetts is the small college football leader in total offense and rushing on the basis of its 40-6 victory over Bowdoin, the NCAA Service Bureau reported today.

The Jumbos netted 493 yards on the ground last Saturday, and 514 altogether in 60 plays.

Whitworth (Wash.) leads in forward passing, with a one-game total of 242 yards while losing to Williamette.

In total defense, Shaw (N.C.), in its opener allowed Virginia Union only 23 yards, and Washington (Mo.) topped the punters with three kicks against Missouri lines averaging 52.3 yards.

U. S. Ryder Cup Team Out Front

LINDRICK, England (AP) — The United States took a quick lead over England at the start of the Ryder Cup golf matches today.

Doug Ford of New York and Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla. won the first of four Scotch foursomes that opened the two-day competition. They made a 3 up lead after nine holes stand up for a 1 up victory over the English pair of Peter Alliss and Bernard Hunt. They finished the 18 holes in 68, two under par, while Alliss and Hunt posted a 69.

It was cold at the start of the matches, but it soon became warmer. Two hours after the start officials estimated that 10,000 fans were on course watching the play.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

We cheerfully admit that the Atlantic Monthly and the Saturday Review are two wonderful magazines, American institutions that should be kept alive, dedicated as they are to advancing the cause of literature, culture, etc. But lately they have been paying a lot of attention to Science, an area in which neither periodical is completely at home—or even in place. The latest Atlantic, for example, bulges with a 64-page supplement on "Science and Industry." This week's Saturday Review has a large section on Research, Science and Humanity. Some of this poaching on the preserves of Science is good, we say, but are SR and the Atlantic going overboard?

HIRSHBERG

We realize that ignorant, non-scientific laymen like us need to know more about the mysteries of nature, especially in this age when Science dominates the entire civilized world. But we wonder about the scientists themselves. Do they know anything about our poor civilized world of culture—so called — literature, and the like? How many articles on the latest developments in poetry, for example, appear in Popular Mechanics Magazine, or any other scientific or pseudo-scientific journal? Do scientists, engineers and technical people in general pay as much attention to literature as we non-technicians are asked to pay to science? We think they don't—and we wonder whether essentially non-scientific publications like SR and the Atlantic might not be going a little too far afield for comfort, in going off the deep end on science at a time when the non-scientist is struggling to stay alive in a hostile, scientific world. . . .

Talking Books

The American Foundation for the Blind has a project in which literature and science have a wonderful tie-in, despite our gripe above. The Foundation has put some 2500 books on records, which are available free, on loan, to any blind person. Latest addition to this library of Talking Books is a recent Literary Guild choice and current best seller, "The Day Christ Died," by Jim Bishop, whose mother, by the way, was blind. The reader of this particular record is Alexander Scourby, stage and TV star, who has read the entire Bible as a Talking Book three times. Blind people can get "The Day Christ Died" or any of the other Talking Books through the American Foundation. . . .

Local Scene

Rehearsals are well under way for two major productions of Greenvile's fall theatre season. . . . Paul Green's "House of Connelly" will be offered by the East Carolina Playhouse during the last week in October. The A.A.U.W. and Greenville Little Theatre will put on Agatha Christie's mystery thriller—even the cast doesn't know whodunit — "The Mousetrap" later in November—the 19th and 20th, to be exact. . . . And coming next week to the local cinema will be the film version of Ernest Hemingway's great novel, "The Sun Also Rises," to be followed by a picture based on another novel, "The Pride and the Passion"—both, we understand, topflight movies. . . . And looking way ahead now, the opera season will see "Der Fledermaus" being brought here by the Grass Roots Opera Company, in January.

Today's Review

Dr. Joseph Steelman of the ECC Department of Social Studies, a specialist in American history, contributes his comments on a recent book about the American Revolution. . . .

REBELS AND REDCOATS, By George F. Scheer and Hugh F. Rankin. Cleveland, Ohio: World Publishing Company. 1957. Pp. 572. $7.50.

From "an unbelievably vast body of contemporary documents unknown to the general reader" the authors of this volume have selected graphic accounts recorded by Rebels and Redcoats to illustrate the story of land warfare during the American Revolution. They have omitted naval, diplomatic, and political phases to highlight the role of the military from Lexington to Yorktown. It is within this framework that the actual participants tell their story of suffering, hardship, heroism, treachery, cowardice, defeat, and victory.

Without doubt the hero of this narrative emerges as the common soldier in the American ranks. It may come as a rude shock to some enthusiasts, however, to read of the unheroic action of the militia in several campaigns. A substantial number of passages buttress George Washington's military reputation, and the campaigns of George Rogers Clark and Nathanael Greene, among all principal engagements, are handled with extraordinary facility.

The particular forte of this volume rests upon the use of interpolations, written in a lively, jaunty style, wherein Rankin and Scheer describe the setting and provide a running commentary on the strategy of the Revolutionary campaigns. It is here that the authors demonstrate their competence to handle the subject with skill and erudition.

Wintry Weather For Northwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wintry weather spread across northwestern sections of the nation today with snowfall up to 5 inches and temperatures in the 20s.

More rain and cloudy weather was the dreary picture in the Southeast but it was generally fair in most of the central and northeastern sections of the country.

An intense storm centered near Yellowstone Park in northwest Wyoming generated strong, cold winds which swept across wide areas from the Great Plains to the Pacific Coast.

Cold air continued to spread southward as far as southern Nevada and northwestern Utah, dropping temperatures into the low and middle 30s. However, the core of the cold belt was in the northern Rockies, which were stung by a fresh invasion of icy air in western Montana and northern Idaho.

Fresh falls of snow during the night brought a 5-inch carpet of white at Mullen Pass near the Montana-Idaho border. Snow measured 3 inches at Drummond, Mont. Temperatures were mostly in the 20s in the snow belt, with lows of 23 at Butte and Cut Bank, Mont.

State Highway Building Burns

SHELBY, N.C. (AP)—A $40,000 fire early today destroyed a building and equipment of the 12th Highway Division equipment shops on U.S. 74A near here.

Superintendent A. F. Abernathy said the fire, of undetermined cause, destroyed equipment worth $25,000, and the building valued at $15,000.

He said work in the six counties served by the division would continue from a sub-shop on the grounds, and with equipment drawn from other divisional shops.

Shelby firemen, who responded to an alarm given by the night watchman, J. J. Jolley, were able to prevent the flames from spreading to other shop buildings.

Egyptian Village Remains Center Of Ancient Magic

By AMENOPHIS TADROS

CAIRO (AP)—After darkness falls on the Nile Delta, inhabitants of a weird village near Cairo creep out of their mud huts and gather round an old man who unrolls a sheet of ancient Egyptian papyrus.

From the sheet he reads ancient incantations — the key to contact with the world of the "jinn," those shadowy beings who hover between the natural and the supernatural.

This is the village of Aghour Alward, the seat of rites which the inhabitants say date back thousands of years.

An Egyptian ill with a mysterious disease, a man who wants to make a beautiful girl love him, a woman who wants to keep her husband from going out too often at night—all these go to Aghour Alward. They see one of the magicians, pay the equivalent of 15 cents, and get a charm to serve their needs.

When you seek such a charm, you have to go to Aghour Alward after dark. The houses are mud huts. The streets are narrow passages barely two yards wide. Most of the huts have no windows. The dark figures of black-veiled women dart in and out, but you'd better not stare. Legend has it you may find yourself turned into a monkey, a snake, or a donkey by the wizards of Aghour Alward.

An Egyptian who recently visited an old crone in the village says that in her hut he listened to an uproarious "conference of the jin." Then a tiny hand, like that of a baby, held his and handed him the charm he needed. He assumed the hand was that of a jinni.

Two men and a woman are the chief magicians in Aghour Alward. But the village as a whole is noted for the secrets that it keeps within its own little circle.

Belief in jinn is widespread in the East, especially in the Arab world. Jinn have the power to do evil or good, depending on the charm you hold. Aladdin happened to conjure up a good jinn when he rubbed his magic lamp.

Two Clues Turned Up By Cancer Researchers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Researchers at the University of California virus laboratory say two clues—one involving the mutation of cells—might possibly lead them to the cause of cancer.

The search centers on the mutation of cells of the womb sac that surrounds the unborn infant and in tiny particles that appear spontaneously in various malignant cells.

Nobel prize winner Wendell Stanley and Dr. Robley Williams revealed the leads for the first time yesterday in a report to the California division of the American Cancer Society. The society supports their work.

Dr. Stanley said the sac tissues readily grew in test tubes, providing an ideal material in which to cultivate viruses.

As reproduction continues, he explained, parts are placed in other test tubes and they form the nuclei for further independent colonies. Somewhere in this process mutation occurs, he said.

Dr. Stanley and his colleagues found the cells, after several generations, were not identical with those of the parent tissue. They had doubled the number of their chromosomes — the genetic sections that establish hereditary traits.

More important, he continued, they found the mutated cells, when injected into laboratory animals, caused cancer. Injection of the original cells, taken directly from a mother at birth, caused no cancer.

Dr. Stanley said this phase of the search now seeks the exact moment when the cells become cancer-causing. If the point of change or mutation can be determined, he explained, then nicroscopic and chemical tests may show how a human or animal cell suddenly turns cancerous.

Dr. Williams told how he found in dozens of different types of cancers during microscopic examinations a seemingly identical particle not present in normal cells. The problem, he said, is to find whether this particle exists in all cancer cells and what it is.

Both Dr. Williams and Dr. Stanley suggest the particle may be a virus, which fits Dr. Stanley's recently announced hypothesis that all cancer is a virus disease.

The sac or amniotic tissue research might fit this theory, Dr. Stanley said, since it is possible the mutation might permit a latent virus to become active at a given point.

New Roof With Brush?

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — With a paint brush you can re-roof your home, according to Aluminum Co. of America.

The company says one coat of a new "wonder material" it has developed — a colored aluminum asphalt roof coating — produces a metallic protective finish that will waterproof, insulate, decorate and preserve practically any type of roof.

The coating, which comes in colors ranging from copper to green, is resistant to chemical attacks, drying from the sun and erosion from water, Alcoa notes.

In addition to roofs the new coating is suitable for waterproofing and decorating vertical walls of cement.

Philadelphians Try Patch Up Racial Tensions In City

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A campaign to help the victims of teenage violence and to rid the city of racial bitterness gathered force today.

Public agencies and aroused individuals, white and Negro, joined in an expressed determination to end "these senseless fights before more young people are hurt."

The quoted words are those of Mrs. Clara Baldwin, a Negro in her late 40s with a family of her own and a strong sense of social responsibility.

Mrs. Baldwin, cheered on by city officials and welfare groups, earlier this week started canvassing her North Philadelphia neighborhood to raise money for the family of Billy Fluck, 15-year-old white boy, who was stabbed in an attack upon him by several Negro youths. The boy's spinal column was all but severed by a knife, causing paralysis of both legs. Doctors fear he may never walk again.

Living only a few blocks from the Flucks, Mrs. Baldwin said she was horrified by what had happened. In less than three days, she and her husband Thomas rallied to their efforts more than 100 volunteer solicitors, most of them Negroes.

About 35 canvassers gathered in the Baldwin home last night and reckoned up about $100 in contributions. Approximately the same amount was raised the night before.

Mrs. Baldwin said one young Negro housewife contributed all she had—36 cents. One of the volunteers is an elderly blind woman, who goes from door to door, led by a friend.

The Citizens Committee against Juvenile Delinquency and their Causes, a large and influential Negro agency, announced last night that it fully backs what Mrs. Baldwin and her associates are doing.

Capt. Harry Fox, head of the Police Department's Juvenile Aid Bureau, described Mrs. Baldwin's activities as an outstanding example of how racial tension can be lessened when level heads take over in a neighborhood.

Meanwhile, in Camden, N.J., across the Delaware River, five Philadelphia Negroes, each 19, and two of them Marines on leave, were sentenced to jail for one year for disorderly conduct.

Camden Municipal Judge Anthony Marino told them: "I am satisfied that you came over here for no good, and I'm going to make an example of you. If people like you would stay away, there would be no trouble around our school. I want everyone to know that you have to pay the penalty. We are tired of gangs and tired of people getting hurt."

Last Tuesday, Michael Petrilli, 15-year-old white boy, was stabbed and slashed when he went to the aid of another white boy who was being attacked by a group of young Negroes outside the high school.

The five sentenced were identified as Samuel J. Wilson and James F. Brown, the Marines; George Oliver, Winfred Dingle and Roosevelt Grant.

200,000 Cases

NEW YORK (AP) — The city has more than 200,000 cases of suspected Asian flu.

Two upper respiratory ailment deaths have been reported, but the exact flu type has not been determined.

Hospital clinics were jammed yesterday, and school attendance still was down about 20 per cent. Teacher absenteeism was an abnormal 7 per cent.

Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, state health commissioner, said the situation here is "potentially serious, but as of today it is not serious."

Fifteen of the 28 municipal hospitals treated 5,729 cases Wednesday, or 28 per cent more than the day before. Hospital figures for yesterday have not yet been compiled.

Authorities said influenza—exact type unknown—played a part in the deaths of Carla Brown, 9, Brooklyn, and William Dodds, 42, carpenter aboard the British ship Britannica.

Sometimes Pays To Blow A Horn

MILLIS, Mass. (AP) — Sometimes it pays to blow your own horn.

John F. Powers was in an accident early one morning and was pinned in his overturned car.

His cries for help went unheard at 1 a.m. so he leaned on the horn steadily until a nearby resident came to his assistance.

PRESIDENT — Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, 56-year-old diplomat with previous careers in law, newspaper work and radio broadcasting, has been elected president of the 12th United Nations General Assembly.

Willis Promoted To NG General

RALEIGH (AP)—The new commander of the Tar Heel National Guard's Fourth Corps Artillery is Weston H. Willis newly promoted to brigadier general of Jacksonville.

His promotion from the rank of colonel was announced yesterday by Gov. Hodges, who said selection of the 51-year-old officer had the "unqualified recommendation" of State Adj. Gen. Campus Waynick. The Fourth Corps Artillery has headquarters at Charlotte.

Hodges made it clear that the promotion was not involved in the so-called "pact of the colonels" worked out several years ago under former State Adj. Gen. John Hall Manning. Willis was one of three colonels who were to take turns filling the artillery generalship for three years each under the agreement.

However, Hodges said Willis was "well qualified." He added that National Guard promotions must be made "on the merits of the current qualifications of all eligible officers."

Suggests Bounty On Litterbugs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The city may declare open season on litterbugs.

City attorney Dion Holm has delivered a legal opinion that the city fathers may offer a $250 bounty on the pest and post signs offering that reward for information leading to arrest and conviction.

Holm not only said such signs would be legal; he drafted a brief ordinance offering the $250 reward.

It appears they'll have to be brought in alive, however. Nothing was said about pelts.

Trading Stamp Plans Upheld In Ruling By FTC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trading stamp plans are a perfectly legitimate trade practice so long as they are properly handled, the Federal Trade Commission has decided.

The five commissioners of the FTC, after nearly 18 months of study, came up with that unanimous opinion yesterday. But they said the commission will crack down on any stamp plan found to be deceiving the public or used in any way as an unfair method of competition.

There are now 300 kinds of trading stamps distributed by about 200,000 retailers. They are turned in for premiums with a retail value estimated at 600 million dollars a year.

The FTC turned its investigative eye on the plans last year after complaints by both businessmen and customers that the plans were deceptive trade practices or unfair methods of competition.

The commissioners in their opinion didn't specify which particular plans they had been investigating, but one FTC source indicated they included "most of the big ones."

The FTC said there really was not any question as to whether the trading stamp plans were in themselves illegal, according to federal law. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled as long ago as 1916 that any prohibition of the plans would have to be done by the various states.

Nor did the FTC commissioners specify what, if any, particular evils they had been looking for in the past year and a half.

But FTC sources said last spring the commission could and would step in if any plan was found to be misleading the public about the premiums offered; using unfair methods of competition, such as giving one store in an area exclusive rights to the plan; or discriminating by selling the same stamps to different stores at different prices.

Fair Tickets On Their Way

RALEIGH (AP)—The news that State Fair Week is on the way, along with tickets for their free admission, will soon be reaching Tar Heel school children.

The annual extravaganza opens at the Fairgrounds here on Oct. 15 and runs through Oct. 19. Fair officials said yesterday more than 250,000 free tickets have been mailed to schools for distribution to pupils and teachers.

The tickets will be honored on Tuesday, Oct. 15, set aside especially for Wake County school children, and on Friday, Oct. 18, which will be Young North Carolinian Day and 4-H Club Day.

Raleigh and Wake County schools received 34,852 tickets, the largest single block. Superintendents of 1'2 of the state's 170 school units had requested tickets.

Employ Physically Handicapped Week Scheduled For Oct. 6-12

National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week will be observed October 6 through October 12.

W. B. Dillingham, manager of the Pitt County office of the Employment Security Commission reminded today that employers are not asked for donations or to hire the handicapped out of a sense of pity or patriotism, but only to give them equal employment opportunities with those who are in good physical condition.

"Statistics show," he said, "that it is good business to hire the handicapped workers. It is their abilities and not their disabilities that count."

"If anyone can use a handicapped worker in their business," he added, "they may contact the employment office and we will be happy to assist them."

NEPH Week committee member Audrey Andrews termed physically handicapped workers as equal and often superior to the able-bodied in production; their safety records as good or better than others; their record of attendance "comparable" to that of other workers; and "Practically every kind of a job can be done well by physically handicapped workers who have been properly selected."

What can employers do to further this program?

According to the Employment Security Commission, they can:

1. Survey their business to find out where physically handicapped workers can be best used.
2. List all job openings with the local Public Employment Office.
3. Judge each handicapped worker by his ability, not his disability.
4. Match jobs with his abilities.
5. Hire a physically handicapped worker for a job he can do.

Welcome Relief From Business Stress, Strains

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Series this time is an even more welcome relief from business worries than usual.

But by the time the new world champions are crowned, the business year will be well into its final testing period. Question marks looming larger every day run all the way from falling prices of steel and other metal scrap to what effects the attempt to put off defense hardware payments will have on industrial activity.

Also up for decision are how much Americans are going to put out in cash for Christmas spending and whether federal spending will doom hopes for tax cuts.

Weakness in farm prices worries industries and merchants catering to farm families.

The oil industry is knee deep in problems, running from the import squabble to unexpected slackening in demand.

Weakness in industrial raw materials is being watched closely. Steel and copper scrap prices have been falling. This is partly due to the failure of demand for steel and copper to pick up as hoped after the summer slackness. In the case of steel it is also partly due to the mills using more pig iron and less scrap in their mix.

Steel mills are still waiting for a rush of orders from their big customers in the auto industry. Another big steel user, the construction industry, is showing signs now of having reached a peak.

Weakness in the price of industrial raw materials used to precede declines in prices of finished goods. As of now these wholesale and retail prices still tend to rise. In the testing period ahead industry will find out if these higher prices can be made to stick.

The stock market has been reflecting all of these doubts and also the squeeze on profits. Some brokers hold that the shakeout in the market has provided some bargains that should tempt investors.

But, if the World Series brings its usual lull in stock market activity, many jangled nerves will be thankful.

The Lonely Man

By JAMES RONALD

CHAPTER 35

Andrew Garvin's house was dark except for the one room in which he painted, ate, slept, and brooded away long dragging days of loneliness. On that wild night, weeks ago, the light in that room had suddenly gone out when Deborah knocked on the door. She remembered how rebuffed and bewildered she had felt at the time. Well, from now on Andrew Garvin would be able to open his door with confidence at any hour. He would no longer be a target for idle tongues and eyes.

This time, while Deborah's knock still echoed, a curtain was drawn back from one of the lighted windows and the artist stood there, outlined. Deborah moved back from the door to let the light fall on her, to let him see who it was that came knocking at this hour. He let the curtain drop. In a few seconds the hall light went on, she heard footsteps approaching; and then the door swung open. Andrew stood looking out at her. His frowning eyes traveled over her from head to toe. He stared into the darkness beyond, as if expecting to see someone in the background.

"Deborah! My God, what's happened to you? You look as if you'd been in the wars!"

"Are you going to let me in?" she asked weakly. "Or must I faint again on your doorstep?"

"Come in, of course," he said quickly, pushing the door wider.

It was all she could do to take the two steps that brought her over the threshold into the house. After that, Andrew supported her, with an arm about her waist, through the hall, into the lighted living room, and eased her into a chair in front of the fire. He said something about fetching brandy but she shook her head.

"I'll be all right in a minute. I've been through a lot tonight. Now it's up to you. You've got to—"

The warmth of the fire, the comfort of the chair, brought a drowsy lassitude stealing over her senses, stilling her tongue, making her head nod, making it difficult to think, far less speak.

"Yes?" said Andrew, after a little while. He regarded her curiously. "What were you going to say? What have I got to do?"

"You've got to stand up for yourself. It's up to you to prove your innocence."

"How can I?"

His eyes were fixed kheely on her face. They shifted for a second to the crude parcel in her arms.

"I've found it," she said dizzily. In another moment she was going to let her head drop, she was going to pass out.

"Found what?" he asked. "Deborah, can you hear me? What have you found?"

"Of course I can hear you," she said, rousing herself with difficulty. "I've found what the police searched for so long in vain. I've found the missing weapon."

He was silent. She looked up and saw him turning away, going slowly to the mantelpiece and resting an arm on it, letting his head drop until it rested on the arm.

"Don't you see what that means?" she said. "There may be fingerprints."

"So there may," he said quietly, without looking at her.

It was a strain to force herself to be fully awake but she made the effort. There was so much to tell him. About the obviously blackmailing note that first caused her to suspect that Scobie had the weapon. About her visits to his shack to spy out the land and make friends with the watchdog. About the nocturnal adventure that almost ended in disaster.

"And that's it?" he asked, raising his head.

"Yes."

"Let me see."

"It ought not to be handled until the police test it in their laboratory. I don't know much about fingerprints but surely there's a danger of smudging them."

"Give me the statuette," he said compellingly, reaching out a hand.

Deborah stared at him. His lean, haggard face looked sickly.

"What did you say?"

"My dear girl," he said, controlling himself by a visible effort, "there's no need to look so startled. I only asked to be permitted to examine your prize, whatever it is."

"You said 'the statuette.' How did you know it's a statuette? Even the police don't know that. It only stood at your wife's bedside for a short time before she was murdered."

"Did I say 'statuette'? I suppose that's how you described it when you were telling me."

"I didn't describe it. I said 'the weapon.'"

She had risen unsteadily to her feet. Now she started edging toward the door. He was there before her. He put his back to it. His expression was odd, as if he felt overwhelmingly sorry for her.

"You're exhausted and nervous," he said gently. "You've been through so much, it's no wonder your mind is ready to snatch at any strange fancy. Go back and sit down. You need rest. Just relax. Close your eyes. Try to get a little sleep."

His tone was soothingly hyponotic but she knew she must not be swayed by it.

"If I'm as tired as all that," she said, trying desperately to speak lightly, "I'd better go home. Come and see me in the morning. We'll talk things over then, when I'm more myself."

"Don't be a little fool," said Andrew Garvin, quite calmly. "You know quite well I can't let you walk out of here. Put the statuette down over there, on the table, and stand back from it."

A shaky laugh came out of Deborah without her volition; she could not help it. "And I believed in you! I thought it dreadful that an innocent man should be persecuted."

"Do you think persecution is the worst of it? How little you know. When a man destroys the thing he values most the rest of his days are spent regretting it."

"Please don't tell me you're sorry you killed her!" said Deborah angrily. "That would be a little too much."

"It doesn't matter whether you believe it or not. No matter what she was — and no one knew better than I what she was — I loved her. If I'd been given time to think she'd be alive today. My God, I didn't want to kill her. And I begged you, for your own good, to stop playing detective."

"It was you, following me, the other night," said Deborah.

"I could have killed you then. A little more pressure on your throat, and that would have been the end of you. I hoped a fright would be enough." In a pitying tone, he added, "You see, I didn't want to kill you."

A shiver passed through her slim body but she said, almost boldly: "You didn't want to kill your wife . . . but you did."

"As long as I live — and, believe me, I intend to live — I'll regret it. It wouldn't have happened if she hadn't driven me out of my wits with anger. For a few seconds I went mad, only a few seconds, but then it was too late to control myself. Now I see her face wherever I turn and I know I'll never kiss her mouth again, never hold her in my arms again. If there's a hell it can't be worse than the hell I've made for myself . . ."

Suddenly he made a dart and his powerful hands closed on Deborah's throat. 'It won't hurt if you don't struggle,' he murmured." The story comes to a heart-pounding conclusion tomorrow.

In Indian Garb For Oahu Rites

HONOLULU (AP) — Marine Sgt. Carl Bryant of Nebraska, a full-blooded Sioux, will be in ceremonial Indian dress for the Windward Oahu Stampede this weekend.

Bryant said his great-great-uncle was Chief Spotted Tail.

Bryant is with the air station's search and rescue unit—as chief helicopter mechanic.

PHANTOM EMPLOYE

CLIFTON FORGE, Va. (AP)—There is a city check here for R. A. Nicely, but the city fathers don't know who he is, what he has been doing, or anybody who knows him. They would like to know—because records show he has drawn $5,287.65 as an hourly worker since 1950.

The first houses in Salt Lake City were arranged in the form of a walled fort.

Traffic Cases Dominated In County Court Session

Traffic cases accounted for nearly three-fourths of the 49 cases disposed of in a one-day session of Pitt County Recorder's Court this week.

Judge Dink James returned judgments in 35 cases charging traffic violations, including 26 speeding cases. The other nine traffic cases presented by Solicitor James C. Lanier Jr. involved charges ranging from operating a motor vehicle without a proper license to failure to comply with license restrictions.

Twelve defendants in speeding cases had prayer for judgment continued and suspended upon payment of costs and surrender of driver's licenses for ten days. They were Gerald Thomas Atkins, New Bern; George Vernon Bagley, Hobbsville; Edward Frank Black, Cherry Point; Cleo Cannon, Negro, Route 3, Greenville; Roy Nelson Dennis, East Carolina College, Greenville.

Also, James E. Hughes, Cherry Point; Adolphus Richardson, Negro, Cherry Point; James Andrew Stewart, Washington, N. C.; Claudie Earl Stocks, Route 2, Ayden; Robert Joseph Lawlor, Camp Lejeune; Charlie Dixon, Route 3, Washington; and Francis R. Perry, Cherry Point.

Donald Eugene Stoltz, Cherry Point, had prayer for judgment in a speeding case continued and suspended upon payment of $5 and costs, and surrender of his driver's license for ten days.

Tommy Franklin Tilghman, New Bern, also received a continuance and suspension of prayer for judgment after pleading guilty to speeding. He had been charged with speeding and careless and reckless driving, but the state took a nol pros on the charge of careless and reckless driving. Tilghman was also ordered to pay costs and surrender his driver's license for ten days.

A Route 1, Greenville, Negro, Earl Anderson, was ordered to pay costs and surrender his driver's license after pleading guilty in absentia to a charge of speeding. Eight other defendants who entered similar pleas were ordered to pay $25, costs deducted, and surrender their licenses for ten days.

They were Theodore Dieckman, Cherry Point; Jesse Ray Daughtridge, New Bern; Richard George Wickles, Cherry Point; Gerald W. Remter, Cherry Point; William Augustus Haddock, Route 2, Tanceboro; Samuel Pierce Daughtie, Carolina Warehouse, Greenville; Isabelle Berry Creech, Route 1, Washington; and Wesley Burton Avery, Route 1, New Bern.

Ernest Holt Weaver of Louisburg, who had been charged with speeding and following too closely, entered a plea of guilty in absentia to the speeding charge and was fined $25, costs deducted, when the plea was accepted by the state.

Other speeding cases and judgments returned included Peter J. McShea, Cherry Point, speeding 80 miles-per-hour, 30 days suspended upon payment of $10 and costs, and driver's license suspended for 12 months; and Alton Earl Warren, Route 5, Greenville, speeding, not guilty.

Other traffic cases and judgments returned were:

Leroy Allen, Route 1, Greenville, no operator's license, continued to; Robert Lee Wooten, Negro, Route 5, Greenville, no operator's license, continued to; Alton Ray Hopkins, Negro, Route 1, Stokes, no operator's license, continued to.

Robert Battle, Negro, Route 1, Tarboro, no chauffeur's license, continued to; Bobby Ray Barnhill, Negro, Route 2, Robersonville, no operator's license, 60 days suspended upon payment of $25 and costs and on further condition that defendant does not operate a motor vehicle until he is issued a proper license.

Margaret Goff Dildy, Route 1, Farmville, driving with an expired operator's license, continued to; Eugene Lovick, Negro, Bell Arthur, no operator's license and careless and reckless driving, 60 days suspended upon payment of $25 and costs, and on further condition that defendant does not operate a motor vehicle until he is issued a proper license.

Marvin Lee Howard, Negro, Route 3, Bethel, careless and reckless driving, $25 and costs, driver's license suspended for six months; and James Ervin Whitley, Route 1, Grimesland, failure to comply with restrictions on driver's license, $5 and costs.

Other cases and judgment returned during the session included:

Wilbur Elks, Fred (Green) Taft, Marvin Rose and Herbert Floyd, all of Route 1, Grimesland, gambling, each defendant ordered to pay $10 to be applied to costs; Albert Ellis, Fountain, assault with a deadly weapon, not guilty; Jack Friedman, Farmville, assault with a deadly weapon (two counts), not guilty.

Jack Friedman, Farmville, forcible trespass, 30 days suspended upon payment of $25 and costs, and on further condition that defendant does not carry in his car a pistol, pistol ordered confiscated, defendant gave notice of appeal to Pitt County Superior Court, appeal bond set at $200.

Estelle Wright, Negro, Route 1, Greenville, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, 60 days suspended upon payment of $50, costs deducted, and on further condition that defendant does not violate any liquor laws for two years; Hattie Howard, Negro, Bethel, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, $10 and costs.

William Andrews, Negro, Bethel, assault with a deadly weapon, 90 days suspended upon payment of $25 and costs, and on further conditions that defendant does not have a knife in his possession for two years and that he pays $22 to the Bethel Clinic.

J. C. Baker and David Lee Baker, no addresses listed, assault, not guilty; David Lee Sanderson, Route 1, Ayden, assault with a deadly weapon (shotgun), nol pros; and Charlie Hammond, Negro, Winterville, disposing of mortgaged property, ordered committed to jail for violating terms of a 60-day suspended sentence imposed on February 7, 1957.

Second License Within A Year

KNOVILXLE, Tenn. (AP)—An 86-year-old Knox Countian has just received his second marriage license in less than a year.

Sam Houston Graves was married Oct. 15 to Martha Beeler, 74, of Knoxville, and was granted a divorce soon afterward. A marriage license was issued yesterday to Graves and Mary Candus Clower, 63, Powell, Tenn.

Records show it will be Graves' third marriage and Mrs. Clower's fourth.

Wanted To Go, Any Direction

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ky. (AP) — George Crawford, 45, wanted to hop a train and wasn't particular about the direction.

Before depot employes arrived for work, Crawford pulled stop signals for trains going north and south.

Soon a fast passenger train screeched to an unscheduled stop, but Crawford didn't have time to climb aboard. He was arrested by a railroad detective.

"Guess I'll go back to my old job now," sighed Crawford.

He'd been released a few months ago from prison, where he worked in the laundry.

Wyoming, in 1869, was the first state to grant women the right to vote.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels, aircrafts, nonferrous metals and oils took losses as the stock market declined in quiet trading early this afternoon.

Key stocks dropped from fractions to around 2 points.

The market was mixed at the opening but was unable to continue the rallying tendencies which rescued the list from a decline near yesterday's close.

Aircraft shares continued to reflect gloom in the industry over prospects for new financing in view of the government's announced policy to limit monthly payments to aircraft and missile contractors. While this was counteracted to a degree yesterday by President Eisenhower's insistence that the economy drive entails no further cuts in defense outlays, the original news continued to have a depressing effect.

Government action freeing 135 million additional pounds of nickel for non-defense industry adversely affected prices of stocks in that field.

International Nickel fell around 3 points. United Aircraft was down more than a point. Boeing, Douglas Aircraft and General Dynamics dropped fractions.

Kennecott was a 1-point loser and Anaconda lost a fraction.

Lukens Steel was down more than 4 in a continued reaction to realization that although the firm has enjoyed record sales and earnings, the year's net income will not be as huge as originally anticipated.

U.S. Steel was down a point or so while Bethlehem and Republic Steel took smaller losses.

Gulf Oil was off a couple of points on news that its second half earnings are expected to fall below the first half. Royal Dutch continued to lose ground on expectations of huge new financing, dropping more than a point.

While some leading rails were bolstered by investment house recommendations, the price picture in this section was ragged. Santa Fe and New York Central were up a bit but Illinois Central and Baltimore & Ohio were off slightly.

American Telephone was down around a point as was Goodrich. Johns-Manville, Radio Corp. and Twentieth Century - Fox posted small gains.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 40 cents to $68.00 with the industrials down 90 cents, the rails down 30 cents and utilities unchanged.

County Fair Has Heavy Turnout

Yesterday was the second biggest day in the history of the Pitt County Agricultural Fair, Manager Norman Y. Chambliss said this morning.

The manager estimated that 5,000 children were on hand for the day. Both white city and county school children were admitted free until 6 p.m. yesterday.

In all "we had more than 10,000 people at the fair yesterday," Chambliss said.

"The Executive Committee of the Pitt County Fair is to be congratulated on presenting to the people of Pitt County such outstanding stars as Pinky Lee and Joan Brandon," Chambliss declared. "Personally I consider Joan Brandon the greatest performer I have ever seen in my fair experience.

"We have been encouraged in seeing the people visiting the fair inspecting the agricultural exhibits. The patrons appear to be interested in seeing 'Pitt County on Parade.'"

Chambliss said the Joan Brandon performance will be the outstanding attraction at the Fair tonight and Saturday. Her shows are presented at 8:15; p.m.

"We have an idea we may have to stage two grandstand shows tonight and Saturday to take care of the crowds wanting to see the world's greatest hypnotist."

Mollet Asked To Form Cabinet

PARIS (AP)—President Rene Coty today asked Socialist Guy Mollet to form the next government of France.

Mollet neither accepted nor refused. He said he would examine the possibilities of forming a government and promised to give his answer within a few days.

Political observers had predicted Mollet would get the nod to succeed Maurice Bourges-Maunoury, who resigned this week after the National Assembly rejected his move to end the Algerian rebellion by giving the North African territory limited home rule.

These same observers predicted also that Mollet would refuse Coty's offer, and that the President's choice then would be either Rene Pleven or Robert Schuman. Both are moderates, advocates of a United Europe and two-time premiers.

Mollet was premier of France for 15 months—a French postwar record — before giving way to Bourges-Maunoury last June. The latter's Cabinet virtually duplicated the Socialist leader's and their policies were about the same.

Mollet told reporters he was "rather skeptical" about his chances of forming a cabinet.

"No new element has appeared since I was thrown out of office some months ago," he said. But he said Coty had insisted, and he would try.

Seven Attending YDC Meeting

Seven students from East Carolina College are in Southern Pines this week participating in the state meeting of the North Carolina Young Democrats Club. The delegation from the college is headed by Bobby Ray Hall, senior from Erwin, who is serving for the second year as president of the East Carolina YDC.

Others from the college who are attending the meeting are Jean and Jane Duke, of Washington, N. C.; Howard Baker of Erwin, Mavis Gilchrist of Roseboro, and Edwin A. Dennis of Durham. Dr. Gathleen Stokes of the social studies department, faculty advisor of the campus organization, accompanied the students to Southern Pines.

Nothing Cheap About Missiles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Uncle Sam's missiles cost from $4,400 to more than four million dollars apiece, a trade publisher says.

Bennett H. Horcheler of Cleveland, publishing director of the trade magazine Aeronautical Purchasing, told a news conference the magazine's Washington correspondent made these estimates of costs for 15 missiles:

Sidewinder, $4,400; Sparrow III, $40,000; Falcon, $9,000; Nike I, $20,000; Nike II, $80,000-$100,000; Tartar, $40,000; Bullpup, above $10,000; Petrel, $80,000; Corporal, above $100,000; Matador, $100,000; Redstone, $1,000,000; LaCrosse, above $50,000; Regulus II, $430,000; Snark, $1,000,000.

The Atlas, Horchler said, costs more than four million.

Colors Strike Actor's Eyes After Blindness

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What does an actor notice when he regains his sight after seven years?

Colors, mostly — "Everything is so full of color — the cars, the buildings, the furniture."

Also, his family ("They look wonderful"), his friends ("How old they've grown!") and himself ("Me, too!").

These are the reactions of Jason Robards, who is resuming his acting career after seven years of darkness. You'd remember his face — he was long one of Hollywood's well-known character actors. If your memory goes back farther, you'd recall him as a star in the silents and the early talkies and on stage in the long-run "Lightnin.'"

One day in 1949, he left his valley home to drive to Hollywood. His vision was blurred, as if something gummy was covering his eyes. He dropped by his optometrist, thinking he might need new glasses.

"Save your money," the doctor told him. "You've got cataracts."

Robards' vision failed steadily and he soon began the seven years in which he could barely discern light and shadows.

What did he do?

"I learned a lot about people. You can really tell how people feel when you hear their voices and you don't see them cover up with their faces.

"I listened to radio and then to television. I learned a lot about acting, too. It amazed me to hear what actors were getting away with."

In January this year, Robards underwent an operation to remove the cataracts. His first vision: his doctor's sports coat.

"It was awful and I told him so," Robards smiled.

The actor saw his wife and daughter, who was 10 when he last viewed her. Then he went to New York to see his son, Jason Jr., a hit in the play "Long Day's Journey into Night."

Now he's back at his profession, playing an important role in one of the segments of Warner Brothers' "Sugar Foot" TV series. And, with his experience behind him, he expects to resume his career with new perception.

Offer To Hypnotize High School Band Into Practicing Is Left Open

An offer by hypnotist Joan Brandon to hypnotize Greenville High School band members into practicing was left open today—to permit band members to decide whether or not they want to try it.

Miss Brandon, who is appearing at the Pitt County Agricultural Fair this week, made the offer during an appearance last night before the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce. Preliminary arrangements were whipped up after band director James E. Rodgers asked her if she could do it, and Miss Brandon told him that she could and would.

She cited a previous experience in which she said she hypnotized an entire football team as a basis for making the claim last night.

Rogers said this morning that the position would be offered to the band this afternoon during a rehearsal period at the high school.

"If enough of them are interested in doing it, we'll be there," Rodgers said. He added, however, that many of the band members attended the fair last night and "may not be interested in returning tonight."

Rodgers also said, "I intend to encourage the band members to take the challenge, but I can't force them to do so since they'll have to pay their own way."

If the challenge is accepted, Miss Brandon will stage a special performance after her regular 8:15 show.

Edward W. Mooring Funeral On Saturday

WALSTONBURG — Edward W. Mooring, 45, died suddenly at his home near Walstonburg at 10:45 Thursday night. He had been in failing health two years.

Funeral services will be held at the home Saturday at 3 p.m. by Rev. C. L. Patrick, pastor of Free Union Free Will Baptist Church, Wooten's Crossroads. Burial will be in the Heath family cemetery, near Maury.

Mr. Mooring, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude L. Mooring of near Farmville, was born in Ayden but spent most of his life in Greene county. He was a farmer until 1955 when he moved to Wotten's Crossroads where he was employed as a clerk in F. L. Walston's Store. He was a member of Grimsley's Free Will Baptist Church, near Snow Hill. He was married to Miss Katherine Rouse of near Maury in 1929.

Surviving are his wife; a son, Edward Earl Mooring of the home; two daughters, Mrs. James M. Shirley of Greenville and Miss Annie Lou Mooring of the home; one grandchild; his parents; four brothers, Leo L. Mooring, Hopewell, Va., Charlie B. Mooring, Snow Hill and Claude J. and Clarence L. Mooring of near Farmville, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Joyner of Farmville.

Student Club To Hear Math Prof

Dr. David R. Davis, director of the department of mathematics at East Carolina College, will discuss "Non-Euclidean Geometry" at the first meeting for the fall quarter of the student mathematics club. The program will take place Tuesday, October 8, in the Austin building and will be open to visitors.

Dr. Davis became head of the East Carolina mathematics department when the college opened September 2 for the 1957-1958 term. Formerly he served as head of the mathematics department of State Teachers College at Montclair, N. J.

He is co-author of a well-known textbook, "Introductory College Mathematics," and has published also "Modern College Geometry," and "The Teaching of Mathematics."

Birthstone for June is pearl.

U.S. Expected Ask For Endorsing Of Proposals

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States was expected to ask the U.N. Assembly today to endorse Western disarmament proposals by instructing the Disarmament uubcommittee to renew negotiations on the basis of the Western plan for arms cuts — and no others.

Informed diplomats said the United States would have no part of amendments asking the Assembly to endorse Indian, Japanese and Soviet proposals for suspension of nuclear weapon tests immediately.

The West has said it would stop atomic tests only if the Soviet Union agreed to a conversion at the same time — under international supervision — of all atomic production to peaceful purposes.

The United States compromised in the Assembly last February by agreeing that the world forum should recommend all disarmament proposals — Western, Soviet and others — for the subcommittee's "prompt attention." As a result, a disarmament resolution passed unanimously.

But now, the diplomats said, the United States feels that any such catch-all endorsement would equate the latest Soviet proposals with the latest Western proposals and give the former more credit than the Americans think they deserve.

Britain, Canada, France and the United States put the new Western plan before the Soviet Union Aug. 2 in subcommittee talks in London. The talks recessed in deadlock Sept. 6.

Federal Employe Ranks Declined 7,031 In August

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Byrd (D-Va) reported today the number of federal employes dropped 7,031 in August as compared with July.

The decrease more than offset a rise of 6,337 in the federal payroll which took place in July.

Byrd, chairman of the Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures, said there were 2,400,620 U.S. workers in August as against 2,407,651 in July.

The number was about evenly divided between the civilian agencies, which had 1,246,021 employes in August, and the Defense Department, which had 1,154,599 nonmilitary workers.

The civilian agencies had a decline of 1,904 jobs for the month. The Defense Department total decreased 5,127, which included Navy, 2,602; Air Force, 1,395; and Army, 1,115.

Hypnotist Talks Before Jaycees

Joan Brandon, who is being featured at the Pitt County Agricultural Fair this week with her hypnotic act, discussed hypnosis at the Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting last night.

Miss Brandon told of medical and other uses of the science during last night's meeting.

W. C. Taylor Jr., new president of the organization, presided over the meeting. He recently replaced James W. Boykin as president. Boykin moved from Greenville to accept a job as manager of a soft drink bottling plant.

Taylor announced that he had appointed John Ray Hardy as the club's first vice-president to fill the position vacated when Taylor moved up to the presidency.

In 1953 Sweden imported 570 tons of fruit and berry juices from the United States, but in 1955 these imports jumped to 5,000 tons.

Farmville Market Has $60.54 Day

FARMVILLE—Fifty-seven piles of tobacco offered yesterday on the Farmville Tobacco Market went for prices ranging between $70 and $82 as the market had a sales average of $60.54 for the day.

Sales Supervisor Charles S. Edwards said the market moved 608,890 pounds of tocacco during the day for a total of $368,627.62. The sale moved the season's average to $50.44.

Edwards added that yesterday's high company purchase was $90 per hundred pounds for a pile of cigar wrapper leaf.
