

Almost Topcoat Time

HILDA BOWMAN, GERALD ELLEN ... turn collars up as cold weather strikes.

That's Right, It Got Pretty Chilly

Buddy, you're right. It's cold. But, if it's comfort at all, you won't have to run your stove full blast tonight.

The forecast, however, doesn't help much when you look at yesterday, last night and this morning. The Greenville Utilities Commission weather station said their instruments recorded a low of 33 last night and that the temperature had dragged itself only as high as 39 at 8 o'clock this morning.

That frosty thermometer recorded a high of only 53 yesterday afternoon and the weather station crew wasn't expecting much more than that today.

Greenville and Pitt County aren't the only cool places in the Carolinas, however. Neighboring New Bern and Elizabeth City both got down to 32 (freezing) last night; Raleigh dipped to 29, as did Columbia, S. C.; Asheville had a cold 28; and Mount Mitchell took the prize with a low of 27.

In addition, the Blue Ridge Parkway between Asheville and Mount Mitchell was closed because of snow, and the whole mountain area of North Carolina was still trying to climb from beneath the blanket of snow dumped over the weekend.

No Lights For Airport Runway; Cars Lined Up

It was an old story of no runway lights as a local pilot flew in after dark last night.

Vance S. (Buddy) Harrington buzzed the airport for about 30 minutes in an effort to attract attention and have the runway lights switched on.

Civil Air Patrol members responded but Gus Bestedt, member of the CAP reported the switch room was locked and the runway lights could not be turned on.

The fire department and rescue squad were contacted to stand by and autos were lined up along the runway to guide the local pilot. Harrington landed his single engine plane safely.

Harrington arrived at 6:05 p.m. He circled the airport until help arrived and finally landed his plane at 6:35 p.m.

Accused Attacker Ordered To State Hospital For Examining

A 27-year-old Greenville white man, charged with an October 9 assault on a young married woman, has been committed to the State Hospital at Raleigh for observation and examination.

An order committing James Earl Forrest to the hospital was signed yesterday by Judge Walter J. Bone after Forrest's attorneys requested it. Forrest will remain in the hospital at least 30 days, according to Judge Bone's order.

Forrest is charged with assaulting Mrs. Myrtle Faye Walls on the night of October 9. According to police reports, Mrs. Walls was forced into the fenced-in backyard of an Eighth St. residence where she was stabbed four times and her assailant attempted to commit an unnatural act.

The slender married man surrendered to police on October 11 after he said he had read newspaper accounts of the assault. He did not specifically admit the incident, but Police Chief S. G. Gibbs quoted him as saying, "If I did attack her, I don't remember it, but I want to straighten the thing out."

Mrs. Walls identified Forrest as her assailant when he was carried to her room at Pitt Memorial Hospital by police.

cluded frost throughout the two states last night. Light frost is forecast for tonight in scattered portions of South Carolina, and in the mountains and more northern portions of North Carolina.

The cool weather is riding on the wing of a cool mass that presently covers an area from Virginia and the Ohio Valley down as far south as northern Alabama, Mississippi and northwest Florida.

Two Elementary Schools Hard Hit

Wahl-Coates and West Greenville schools were reported today as the hardest hit among Greenville schools suffering from absences due to colds and flu-like diseases.

Superintendent J. H. Rose said the two schools have a combined total of 259 absences, slightly less than a fourth of the city's total number of absences for today. Total for the city's nine schools, according to Rose, was "slightly above 900," or about "35 or 40 less than yesterday's total of 951."

The absence situation at the two elementary schools were spotlighted, Rose said, by one class at Wahl-Coates which had 26 absences in a class of 35 students and by one class at West Greenville which had 27 absences in a class of 35.

Situations in the other schools were improving, Rose said, particularly at the Junius H. Ross Senior High School which reported 90 absences today, after reaching a high of 180 last week; at the Junior High School, which is down to slightly more than 100 after a high of 175; and in all the Negro schools.

Ports Authority Talks Expansion

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The North Carolina State Ports Authority was expected to discuss plans for port expansion at Wilmington and Morehead City at a meeting here today.

For the meeting, the authority chose this inland city which, as a merchandise distribution center, depends on good transportation facilities.

The application to the Commission which was filed on October 24 requested immediate increases totaling one and a half million dollars of additional gross revenue per year. Of this amount the Company would retain only about $600,000 after taxes applicable to the gross additional revenue.

As an indication of the continuing effect of inflation, Vice President J. F. Havens stated that the total telephone plant investment had increased from 37 1/2 million dollars at the end of October 1952 (investment date for last rate proceeding) to 76 million dollars at the end of August 1957, or an increase of more than 100%. During the same period the number of telephones increased from 105,000 to about 150,000 or an increase of 42%.

During the period since the last rate proceeding the company has granted across-the-board increases in pay to its employees on five different occasions, one of which was considered in the 1952 rate proceeding. Total payments to personnel since 1952, giving consideration to the increase in number of employees during the period, have increased from about $4 million for the year 1952 to more than $7 million in 1957 based on seven months annualized.

The cost of providing telephone service has also been affected by an increase in taxes including ad valorem taxes paid to counties and towns. The ad valorem tax increase is related to the amount of added investment made by the company in the five-year period.

Vice President Havens also brought out that the cost of its cheapest form of permanent capital, i. e., bonds, had increased considerably since 1952 and that its to pay $100 and costs, and Flournoy Chism Bowles of Kinston was ordered to pay $150 and costs. Edwards pleaded guilty to a charge of driving under the influence and a jury found Bowles guilty after he had entered a plea of not guilty.

The Grand Jury, which adjourned after returning the true bills against Forrest, also returned six other true bills after being presented with bills of indictment by Solicitor Robert D. Rouse Jr.

Russian Leaders Believed Locked In Power Struggle

Support Thought Going To Zhukov

LONDON (AP)—Indications grew today that Marshal Georgi Zhukov had rallied unexpected support in a showdown battle over power and policies inside the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party.

The delay in announcing a decision on whether Zhukov would remain a member of the ruling party Presidium contributed to an impression that a battle was on between the marshal and Soviet party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

The impression was heightened by the tight Moscow censorship. Even the Communist press outside the Soviet Union seemed confused by the blackout on information.

Hints of a behind-the-scenes struggle came from editorials in Soviet newspapers, impressions of Western diplomats in Moscow and dispatches from Communist correspondents in the Soviet capital.

Inferences were drawn from reports the Central Committee had been meeting off and on since the 61-year-old marshal's ouster as defense minister Saturday. It had been expected to make an important announcement early today after an all-night session, but it remained silent.

However, news correspondents with experience in Moscow said the delay on any public announcement may be due simply to the mechanics of giving advance word to party committees throughout the country.

Reports to London had said the announcement would tell of the

Stevenson Said 'Sounded Out'

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune said today it was learned on good authority that Adlai E. Stevenson has been quietly sounded out by the Eisenhower administration for appointment to the new civil rights commission.

A Washington dispatch to the newspaper added that Stevenson, the twice defeated Democratic presidential candidate, has discussed the matter with close associates and is reported inclined to turn down the offer.

The story said the White House is believed to be eager to appoint the six-member commission established in the civil rights bill passed by Congress last summer.

In addition to Stevenson, other names under consideration at the White House are reliably reported to include former Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, an Eisenhower Democrat, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, a Republican.

Still others reported under active consideration are former Sen. Frank Graham, a Democrat and onetime president of the University of North Carolina, and Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Denver Post and a Republican.

Telephone Company Asks For Increased Rates

Continued inflation affecting both the cost of maintaining telephone service and expanding and improving such service has forced the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company to apply to the North Carolina Utilities Commission for an adjustment in its exchange rates. The last such application was filed in September 1952 and the Commission issued its order in connection with that application in July 1953.

The application to the Commission which was filed on October 24 requested immediate increases totaling one and a half million dollars of additional gross revenue per year. Of this amount the Company would retain only about $600,000 after taxes applicable to the gross additional revenue.

As an indication of the continuing effect of inflation, Vice President J. F. Report Around $5,000 Raised By Chest Drive

Approximately $5,000 has been raised so far in the Greenville Community Chest campaign which began last Tuesday.

The goal for this year's Chest drive is $14,000 of which slightly more than 80 per cent is earmarked for Boy Scout and Girl Scout activities.

J. B. Kittrell, Jr., president of the Greenville Community Chest, said today $1,000 has been contributed by the faculty of East Carolina College and approximately $900 in collections has been reported by the Negro division of the campaign. Remainder of the collections have come from solicitors in the special gifts division.

About 50 per cent of the special gifts solicitors have made their reports so far, Kittrell said, and he urged other members of the special gifts division to complete their work and make their reports as soon as possible.

The house-to-house canvass of city by women workers of the Community Chest will begin tonight and continue until each residential area of the city is covered. Kittrell said officials of the Community Chest hope the entire campaign will be completed by the end of next week. He urged citizens and business firms of the city to be generous in their contributions in order to reach the $14,000 goal for this year's campaign—the last Community Chest campaign in Greenville—can be reached as soon as possible.

Airline Asks To Drop Its Service

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. (AP)—In an application filed yesterday with the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, Capital Airlines has asked to discontinue its service to Elizabeth City, Rocky Mount, Asheville and Bristol, Tenn.

Announcement of the move by Capital was made by W. J. Bridgers, district operations manager for the airline, in a notification to the Chamber of Commerce here.

The Asheville request is for a "temporary" suspension of service until "completion of an airport" there.

The sphere's radio ceased transmissions four days ago, and there have been no U. S. sightings either of Sputnik or of its rocket section in the last few days because their orbits do not bring them across this continent during twilight or dawn.

In the latest of a series of announced technological advances by the military, the Army disclosed some information yesterday about its new Hawk missile, which is designed to blast low flying planes out of the sky.

An announcement said the missile has a radar device that ignores stationary objects and speeds the weapon toward moving aerial targets. The Army said the Hawk can destroy invading aircraft even at treetop level.

The missile is not yet ready for combat issue and an Army statement said the Hawk "must be brought forward rapidly."

Wilson's Aug. 17 memorandum had stirred much criticism from members of Congress and others. The order told the services to cut their spending by an amount equal to 10 per cent of the $1,700,000,000 approved for basic research.

A spokesman said Wilson had intended that the reductions be made out of $3,600,000,000 set up for procurement and production in research and development, rather than trimming basic research funds.

for service and a large number of requests for higher grades of service. Based on this demand it is contemplated that $12 million of additional expenditure will be required in 1958.

"To carry on such an expansion program," added the official, "it is absolutely essential that the earnings be sufficient to attract the necessary new capital from investors."

In the filing made by the company increases of $1.25 per month for on party service, $1.00 for two-party service, 75c for four-party service and 50c for multi-party service were requested. In addition, 28 exchanges which through increases in the number of telephones can now be classified to a higher rated group have been re-classified to the proper rate group.

The company official stated that in meeting its obligation of providing adequate telephone service to eastern North Carolina, expenditures were made in 1956 of more than $13 million dollars and that in the first eight months of 1957 expenditures have been made at the rate of one and a half million dollars per month. Notwithstanding the large expenditures made there are approximately 8,000 unfilled applications

LONDON (AP)—Leaders of the Soviet Union were believed locked today in a showdown battle over power and policy touched off by the decision to fire Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov.

The Central Committee of the Communist party, which has been meeting off and on ever since Zhukov was ousted Saturday, had been expected to make an important announcement during the early morning hours.

Reports reaching London indicated it would tell of Zhukov's removal from the 15-man party Presidium, its all-powerful politico-bureaucratic body which became a full member of the Politburo in 1953.

But both Moscow radio and the Moscow press remained silent. Hints filtered through the tight censorship in the Soviet capital that the committee was still grappling with its problems after an all-night session.

Senior editors of Moscow newspapers were called yesterday to a conference at which Western observers believed they were briefed on the expected announcement.

All the papers went to press this morning, however, with no mention of either Zhukov or the central committee meeting.

This was taken in some quarters as an indication that Zhukov had marshaled unexpected strength to resist the move depriving him of control over the Soviet military machine.

The Communist Daily Worker in London said in a dispatch from its Moscow correspondent that Zhukov got into trouble with the party rulers by hindering the work of party commissars in the army ranks. These are the party appointees who keep tabs on army personnel independent of the military command.

The Daily Worker correspondent would have access to information not available to other Western newsmen.

During the night Moscow censors imposed a complete communications blackout for a three-hour period on Western newsmen in the Soviet capital.

When it was finally possible to get through by telephone from London just before dawn, the correspondents were able to say little except that much of their copy was being held up by censorship.

There was some speculation that Zhukov might have precipitated a showdown with Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev by advising—as a professional military man—a more cautious approach to the Middle East crisis.

Khrushchev has been openly rattling the saber at Turkey and the United States, accusing them of plotting to attack Syria because of its new pro-Communist orientation.

Zhukov has in the past been pictured as a conservative army man without inclination to take risks of war.

The marshal's distaste for party spies in the army is nothing new. The Daily Worker said it had been believed Zhukov's elevation last June to the Presidium would change his attitude toward commissars in the army. Instead, the worker declared, the Presidium "found even greater difficulties being placed in the way of Communist organizations in the army."

The worker also reported Khrushchev had told the Central Committee Zhukov had been advancing his own interests within the military while hindering the party.

The public in Moscow exhibited little outward concern over the latest Kremlin shakeup.

Red Square, where curious crowds often stand eyeing the Kremlin when something big is in the air, was clear of idlers by midnight last night.

'Basic Research' Money Restored

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department has ordered the military services to make no cuts in the $1,700,000,000 which Congress voted for basic research in the current fiscal year.

Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy, who took office Oct. 10, yesterday announced modification of an Aug. 17 economy memorandum issued by his predecessor Charles E. Wilson.

The Wilson memo had the effect of curtailing some basic research spending, although Pentagon aides said this had not been intended.

Scientific matters also got new White House attention today as President Eisenhower arranged to meet with government officials and Dr. Isadore I. Rabi of Columbia University, chairman of a special scientific advisory committee.

Meanwhile, Russia's Sputnik—a major factor in the quickening interest in U. S. research—silently orbited the earth at 18,000 m.p.h. The Red moon was launched Oct. 4.

The sphere's radio ceased transmissions four days ago, and there have been no U. S. sightings either of Sputnik or of its rocket section in the last few days because their orbits do not bring them across this continent during twilight or dawn.

In the latest of a series of announced technological advances by the military, the Army disclosed some information yesterday about its new Hawk missile, which is designed to blast low flying planes out of the sky.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Industrialist David Sarnoff, said today that time for victory in the cold war is running out under the pressure of Soviet success in weapon technology.

"If we are to win the cold war, or at least obtain the upper hand in it, it must be done before mankind is overwhelmed by the holocaust of hydrogen war," Sarnoff said.

Sarnoff, chairman of the board of the Radio Corp. of America and a retired Army brigadier general, prepared his remarks for the annual meeting of the Assn. of the Army of the United States.

Sarnoff said the Moscow announcement last August of a successful test of an intercontinental ballistic missile "may be exaggerated but it is not safe to rely on that assumption." Perfection of an ICBM is inevitable because "both sides know its principle," said Sarnoff.

It is only a matter of time—"within a few years and possibly sooner"—that both Russia and the United States will have mass production of the transoceanic missiles, he predicted.

Then will come "dreadful parity," Sarnoff forecast. He contended that the logic of not starting a war with those weapons might not be a restraining influence—"emotion, raised to a pitch of hysteria by the very magnitude of the menace, may vanquish reason."

In another prepared address, Dr. Willard F. Libby, atomic energy commissioner, told of the progress in educating the civilian population to the realities of nuclear warfare.

"It has been pleasing to notice," he said, "how the newspaper reporters and the communication media have helped in telling people about radioactive fallout."

"Three years ago, there were hardly 100 people in the world outside the atomic energy projects who had a clear understanding of the nature of radioactive fallout. Now I think it would be safe to say that perhaps one-third of the people in the Western world have a fairly clear understanding."

A recent poll indicated that as many as half of the people in the United States understood the rudiments.

A speaker hinted yesterday that the Army is hoping the Defense Department will relax its limitations on the permitted range of Army missiles.

Gen. Willard G. Wyman, head of the Continental Army Command, discussed the need for ground force missiles in addressing the Assn. of the U. S. Army yesterday.

"I consider it dangerous to fetter our development now with arbitrary range limitations and rigid definitions," Wyman said.

A directive now limits Army authority to a 200-mile range for bombardment type missiles, and to a 100-mile range for anti-aircraft guided missiles.

At a subsequent news conference, Wyman was asked about the remark.

Wyman replied he thought that when former Secretary of Defense Wilson issued the restrictions, in a directive on the roles and missions of the armed forces, he recognized that the area—on missile development and use was "somewhat cloudy."

And, said the general, he thought the directive recognized that "there would be changes from time to time."

Wyman put his views into a speech which he read. But another high officer discarded a prepared speech which took pointed issue with some philosophies and claims of the Air Force and limited his actual talk to a mild discourse on the Army's role in air defense.

Lt. Gen. Stanley R. Mickelsen, who is retiring as chief of the Army's Air Defense Command, scrapped his original text which said such things as "interceptor

Local Merchants Eye Trend Of Later Closings On Friday

Greenville merchants are viewing the idea of keeping their doors open until 9 o'clock on Friday night with mixed sentiments, a survey by The Daily Reflector revealed this morning.

Following a trend, statewide and throughout the nation, a number of local business firms have disclosed plans to begin remaining open for the late-hour shopper Friday night.

A manager of one department store stated, "We feel there are many customers who are not being served by Greenville merchants."

"It has been ascertained that many potential customers are going out of town to buy merchandise."

"Since reports from neighboring towns who have numbers of business firms remaining open on Friday night have been extremely encouraging we have decided, in view of impending circumstances, to afford our shoppers the same opportunity."

Dan Saleed, an associate of Saleed's Department Store, stated his firm is making plans to remain open until 9 p.m. Friday.

In making the announcement, Saleed said, "We are planning to remain open in order that the public might be afforded an opportunity to trade at its convenience."

Sarnoff Warns Time Is Running Out On Victory

West Convinced It Can Be Done

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Melvin West, picked up at sea 160 miles short of his motorboat goal here, declined to say yesterday whether or not he'll try the trip again.

"I proved to myself and a great many people that there's no reason why it couldn't be done except for some malfunction," the 28-year-old Jacksonville, N.C., disc jockey said.

West set out for Bermuda from Morehead City, N.C., Oct. 17 in a 15-foot open boat. "The impossible," powered by a 30 h.p. outboard motor. He expected the 580-mile trip to Bermuda to take 40 hours.

Four days later a merchant ship found him and gave him water, matches and food. He was more than 300 miles from his goal.

"I had sufficient gas to get in. I knew. That very night, less than six hours after I had left the freighter, I discovered I had a leak in my fuel line," West told newsmen here when he and his boat arrived yesterday on the Coast Guard cutter Rockaway.

He said he found the leak after about 30 gallons of fuel flooded the boat's bilges.

"I bailed the gas out of the boat as quickly as I could, but had this accident not happened I feel I could have reached Bermuda with six gallons of gasoline to spare. I had run out of gas on Thursday morning (Oct. 24) and had not been spotted by a plane until yesterday (Sunday)," West said.

"Only God could help me express how I felt when the Coast Guard plane swung in toward me yesterday morning."

"Must Be On Alert" WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today that in a period of domestic Russian upheaval the United States and the rest of the free world must be on the alert for possible foreign moves by the Soviet.

Greenville hardware dealers also reported that no definite decision has been made. No other reports have been received from the furniture dealers here.

Charlie White of Whites Stores Inc. stated that his firm plans to close at the regular time, 5:30 p.m., on Friday.

Mrs. Alexander Feted At Shower

ROBERSONVILLE—The home of Mrs. Alton Andrews was decorated with fall flowers Friday evening when she was co-hostess with Mrs. Dennis Williamson and Mrs. Thurman Andrews at a miscellaneous shower honoring Mrs. Ray Alexander, recent bride.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. T. Andrews, her daughter, and the honoree.

After the gifts were opened and displayed, everyone was invited to the refreshment table which was centered by an arrangement of white carnations and chrysanthemums. Mrs. Alton Andrews poured the punch while the callers served themselves potato chips, bridal cakes, mints and salted nuts.

Mrs. Dennis Williamson said the goodbyes to the 40 friends.

meat, 1 egg, 1 can (3 ounces) chopped broiled mushrooms, 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, 1-4 cup finely diced celery.

Method: Cut squash in two lengthwise. Cut thin slice from bottom of each squash half so vegetable will stand evenly in baking pan. Place squash, hollow side down, in greased shallow baking pan. Bake in hot (400 degrees) oven about 45 minutes. Meanwhile cook sausage over moderate heat in small skillet until lightly browned and crumbly—about 15 minutes. Beat egg enough to combine yolk and white; mix with mushrooms (including liquid in can), bread crumbs, salt, a dash of pepper, celery and cooked sausage including fat in skillet. Remove squash from oven and turn hollow side up; fill with stuffing. Return to oven; bake, uncovered, until squash is tender and lightly browned—about 30 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

Children To March

The children from many of the local churches will march throughout the city Thursday night, from 6:30-8:00 p.m. to collect money for United Children's Fund.

Miss Elizabeth Wilson, Chairman for this city's UNICEF Trick or Treat, stated that the city had been mapped out and sections have been assigned to the children of the following churches participating: Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, St. James Methodist Church, St. Paul's Episcopal, Eight Street Christian, Immanuel Baptist, Memorial Baptist, Holiness Pentecostal, Presbyterian Church, Church of Christ, Greenville Free Will Baptist, Salvation Army, Mount Calvary, Sycamore Baptist, Cornerstone Baptist, Selvia Chapel and York Memorial A. M. E. Zion.

This has been planned so that only one group of UNICEF collecting children will call at each home in the city. The children will wear official arm bands and will carry dairy cartons for the money. "Please leave your porch light on and give generously to this most worthy cause," said Miss Wilson.

Miss Wilson stated that each church in the city is requested to get wrappers from the Guaranty Bank and roll and wrap the money and deposit it Friday morning to the United Council of Church Women's account and mail the deposit slip to Mrs. J. E. Phelps, 1505 E. 6th Street, City.

This money collected will be sent to the United Children's Fund, United Nations, New York City, to help alleviate the suffering of children in the world.

This well-known lecturer has appeared before groups from New York to Florida, from New Jersey to Nebraska, going to some of the clubs as many as several times.

Mrs. Moore mentioned this morning that tickets have been purchased by interested persons in Columbia and other neighboring communities.

Directors Of Historical Pageant Begin Planning

Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, head of the department of music at East Carolina College, has begun work as director of "East Carolina's Spade," historical pageant to be presented next spring in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the college. He is also serving as coordinator of music.

Assistant directors in charge of staging the four parts into which the pageant is divided have been announced by Dr. Cuthbert. They are Dr. James D. Allison, Dr. Joseph Whitley, and Claude Garren, all of the English department, and George E. Perry of the music department.

"East Carolina's Spade," written by Emma L. Hooper of the department of English, will combine drama, music, and dancing. Casting is already in progress. Students, faculty members, alumni, and various off-campus people will play the roles of those who have made East Carolina history.

Four music organizations on the campus will take part in the pageant, Dr. Cuthbert states. Now ready to begin work on the score are the Women's Chorus, directed by Dan E. Vornholt; the College Choir, directed by Dr. Carl Hjortsvang; the Concert Band, directed by Herbert L. Carter; and the East Carolina College Orchestra, directed by Dr. Cuthbert.

An Aura Of Change Is Apparent

Throughout Eastern North Carolina a new attitude toward the area's economy is rapidly going through the transition from an idea to a fact.

The Reflector is impressed and encouraged by the determination of the area to turn what could be an economic setback into an advantage. We are convinced that farmers and business people of the area are beginning to cope effectively with problems brought about by sharp declines in tobacco production.

Unless these impressions are erroneous, it follows that this part of North Carolina is crossing the threshold into a new economic era. It will be one in which agricultural diversification, long advocated but realized in only a small degree, will blossom forth. It will be one in which Eastern North Carolina will shake off the fetters which have held its industrial employment to only 15 per cent of the state's total, and have held down to 15 per cent the added wealth it has given North Carolina through manufacturing.

Farmers are actively seeking new crops to plant on idle acres to replace the income loss from tobacco. Local officials, businessmen and other citizens are becoming actively concerned about new plants, home grown and imported, to provide more year-round jobs for people who are leaving the farms.

As a whole, Eastern North Carolina has been shaken out of its complacency by the change in its tobacco economy. Most people realize we can no longer sit on our hands and expect to live as high on the hog as the flush tobacco economy has made us accustomed.

ed. The quest for new money crops, new industry, new sources of income is beginning in earnest.

Eastern North Carolina cannot expect to make the adjustment overnight. For decades we have looked to tobacco to provide 70 to 80 per cent of our farm income. And we have looked to agriculture to provide the nucleus around which the entire economy has revolved. It will take a great deal of effort by a great many people to change Eastern Carolina's agriculture and economic pattern. It will take time for the adjustment to be completed and for the area to emerge on a higher economic plane than it has ever known.

The important thing at the moment is that the area realizes it must make a new adjustment, and its people have shown initiative in making that adjustment as soon as possible.

Melvin West Proved Himself And His Boat

The odds were too great for Melvin West. In spite of his 11-day ordeal with the Atlantic, he didn't succeed in proving that an outboard motorboat could go from the United States to Bermuda.

But he did prove some other things, which in the long run, may be of greater importance to him. He proved that his craft was seaworthy and could remain afloat far at sea for an extended period. He did prove his own seamanship ability, for he remained alive and kept his tiny craft pretty well on course during the trip which ended 165 miles short of his destination.

For West, and for the thousands of Tar Heels who have awaited anxiously for word of his progress for the better part of two weeks, the modern saga of the young man and the sea is over. To be sure there is some disappointment West didn't make it to Bermuda. But the 11 days of anxiety was enough for most of us. No one can say the Coast Guard did wrong by ending his trip in spite of his appeal for more fuel and a few more days at sea.

The Coast Guard went the limit for West. He owes his life to his rescuers.

In his own words West expressed the feeling of the vast majority of his shoreside spectators: "Thank God it's over with."

Another Boost To Hi-Fi Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER
Hi-fi equipment sales are likely to get another boost from the growing interest in stereophonic sound.

Hi-fi has been doing pretty well as it is. The number of fans is multiplying and tastes are running to more expensive equipment. Retail sales have reached an estimated $400,000,000 a year.

The initiated may now skip the next four paragraphs.

The uninitiated may like to know that hi-fi, short for "high fidelity," is the reproduction of sound in the full range of the human ear. Ordinary radio and phonographic equipment does not reproduce very high or very low sounds. Therefore the listener can't hear music exactly as rendered. Hi-fi equipment widens the range of sound.

HOW MANY EARS?
But even wide sound range does not give the listener the same sensation he gets listening in person to an orchestra. In hearing live music, a listener gets slightly different sounds in each ear. In hearing ordinary radio recorded music, even with the usual hi-fi equipment, the listener gets sound only from one point. Monaural, the fanciers call it.

But when sounds of an orchestra or singer are picked up on two microphones and each pick-up is played through separate speakers, then the listener gets more of the effect he would if he were on the spot with both ears pointed. Binaural, that's called. That's from Latin, meaning two ears. It is also called stereophonic, from the Greek words for "solid" and "sound." Some fanciers distinguish between binaural and stereophonic, but they lose your reporter in the higher register.

A few radio stations with both AM and FM have broadcast binaural music. To get the effect, a listener has to have two receivers, one tuned to each channel. Stereophonic sound is also available on magnetic tape. Machines with two sets of speakers are needed for good results.

NOW OF DISCS
Meanwhile, at least two methods have been found to put stereophonic sound on records. One system puts one pick-up on each side of the groove; another puts the sounds in the bottom and on one side. When one needle picks up both sounds and mixes them, it is usually called stereophonic; when double needles each pick up on track, and the sound is played through two sets of speakers, it is binaural.

Great interest in stereophonic records was displayed at the recent hi-fi show in New York. Many dealers reported their customers were eager for stereophonic records. It was freely predicted that such discs would be readily available sometime in 1958.

These records will naturally command higher prices than ordinary records, but not necessarily more than binaural tape.

But what may interest hi-fi retailers most is the fact that hi-fiers will want both tape and disc players. Furthermore, binaural tape or disc systems will require additional investments in equipment. For example, a hi-fier with disc equipment would have to double his playing system for true binaural music. A hi-fier with only tape equipment might have to triple his investment in gadgetry.

Meanwhile, music shops are watching the situation closely. Some are shortening their inventory of old one-ear records, just in case the stereophonic craze sweeps the nation—which it may well do.

BRITISH TO FIND KALAMAZOO IS A CITY, NOT A SONG

During World War II, "Kalamazoo" was a song hit in England. The British liked it because it was American, it had rhythm and it was different. One young Michigan flier was driven almost crazy because whenever he mentioned the fact he was from Kalamazoo, the British laughed and remarked what a lot of fun the Yanks were. They knew there was no such a place.

Now, more than a decade later, they'll learn the truth. The U.S. Information Agency has selected Kalamazoo as a "window of America" to be presented in a British exhibit. Photos, charts and film strips will depict the city as a typical changing community in America. It was once an Indian reservation, later a rural center and now an industrial area where persons of many races and nationalities work together.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
THAT UNFAILING WITNESS
God has not left us without witness—or it would be better to say without witnesses, for there are four witnesses which constantly testify to our souls that God is good, that his power is adequate, that his love for us is without measure.

The first witness is the witness of the Bible. It tells us everything we are capable of understanding about the nature of God, the extent of His power, the loving purposes He cherishes for our welfare and triumph.

The second witness is the gallant witness of faithful men. Millions have suffered and died for their faith. Millions more have found the secret of happy living in obedience to God's command. In His will is our peace.

The third witness is the witness of our own conscience. The word conscience means "with wisdom." It is that set of moral principles within the inner recesses of our hearts which tell us that some things are right and other things are wrong. It is something that rings a bell—that sometimes sounds a siren. Pay attention to that witness.

The fourth witness is the witness of the Church. The Church is a supernatural creation which exists in our midst. Through the Bible, through human faithfulness, through the conscience, and through the Church the Holy Spirit brings to us continually the guidance and blessing of God.

All Shook Up

Some Travel Highlights

I have just returned from what I consider the most wonderful trip of my slightly less than 24 years.

My honeymoon. Contrary to early reports this writer and his bride went west to the beautiful mountains of North Carolina rather than to Sea Island, Georgia. To tell the absolute truth with all due respect to Talmadge, I am extremely happy that we did.

Never before have I seen the trees radiate their beauty to the eager-eyed tourists so. Every leaf held its own, giving no indication of falling before the oncoming winter's weather.

We stopped over to visit some of my wife's relatives while passing through Asheville.

While there I had an experience that I will probably never forget.

We were taken out to dine at The Manor Hotel, a very elegant establishment. Following the meal I was walking through the corridor to the lounge to meet another member of the party when I slipped on the first step of the stairs and fell in reverse for five steps before I could catch myself.

As I got up from the floor, out of the corner of my eye I could see the old ladies smiling. I looked neither to the left or right but straight ahead as I continued on my way, none the worse for my experience.

Government Services, Inc. really got a gold-mine when it leased the houses built by the Tennessee Valley Authority for workers erecting the Fontana Dam.

The settlement has been developed into one of the most visited resorts in North Carolina, already having made hundreds of times more than it originally cost.

I had never been to Fontana until we spent several days there last week. Everything is made-to-order for those who want to get away from the hustle and bustle of everyday living.

One of the big attractions to the Fontana Village resort is the dam itself.

The huge structure was completed in 1945, costing TVA millions of dollars. Towering 484 feet from the floor of the valley the dam is a beautiful sight to behold.

While we stood looking out across the lake, one of the guards walked up to us and began to answer our eager questions without the slightest hesitation.

He said the dam is scheduled to pay for itself in 20 years on the sale of electrical power alone. In addition millions of dollars in crops and personal property is saved each year by Fontana which curbs the heavy rainfall in the mountains during the winter.

The newly given assignment is not obligatory for sheriffs. The county law enforcement chiefs are merely given the power to act; and the blacklist sent them by secretary of their special committee is termed a guide for sheriffs "if you so desire to use it."

To the rest of the high sheriffs of North Carolina we recommend the position taken by Wake County's Sheriff Robert J. Pleasants who has announced that he does not intend to establish himself as a censor of magazine stands for the simple reason that he hesitates "to trust my judgment on deciding what is fit to read and what isn't."

If censorship of any kind we must have in North Carolina, let it at least be above the sheriff's level.

Other Editors Saying-- Censorship & Sheriffs

(Greensboro Daily News)
The Daily News, with a congenial dislike for censorship and its inherent dangers, reiterates its disapproval of the blacklisting of crime comics and other magazines by the North Carolina Sheriffs' Association.

We hold no brief for any of the blacklisted publications. While we recognize limits of obscenity, lasciviousness and exploitation of crime and sex, public opinion and parental responsibility should be major deterrents. When publications are not fit to be sent through the mails, there is at least a beginning of definitive censorship. Any form of censorship must be watched with grave concern. Frankly we have no pat answer to the problems which are involved.

About the only legal guide anybody has lies in the definition, put in question form, by the U.S. Supreme Court: "Whether to the average person applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to the prurient interest."

The indecisiveness and variableness within that definition are illimitable. Who can or should apply the general test which the high court has set forth? The Daily News, for one, does not think that the sheriffs of North Carolina can or should; and that statement is mere reiteration of opinion expressed when the 1957 General Assembly gave them such power.

One of the very first things we'd like to know is, who prepared the N. C. Sheriffs' Association blacklist, why and how. The average sheriff is all mixed up in politics and simply does not have the qualifications for saying what other persons should see or read.

The newly given assignment is not obligatory for sheriffs. The county law enforcement chiefs are merely given the power to act; and the blacklist sent them by secretary of their special committee is termed a guide for sheriffs "if you so desire to use it."

To the rest of the high sheriffs of North Carolina we recommend the position taken by Wake County's Sheriff Robert J. Pleasants who has announced that he does not intend to establish himself as a censor of magazine stands for the simple reason that he hesitates "to trust my judgment on deciding what is fit to read and what isn't."

If censorship of any kind we must have in North Carolina, let it at least be above the sheriff's level.

Crazy Dream Time

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Adolescence, they say, is a time of crazy dreams.

But if you put a window in the head of most middle-aged people and let a teen-ager peek at the dreams therein — well, the kid would bust his dudendum from laughing.

The hidden goals of the middle-aged American are as odd as those of any other juvenile delinquent a third his age. Here, for example, are a few hoarded ambitions one man would like to achieve who has crossed the 40th milestone:

To become a passenger on the s-e-c-o-n-d space ship that makes a successful round trip voyage to the moon.

To scratch his initials on the T-1000 when no one is looking. To find a new pleasure as wildly enjoyable as roller skating.

To open a Chinese fortune cookie and find therein not a printed proverb but a large and lustrous black pearl.

To open an oyster and find the same thing.

To be able to eat a dish of red cabbage without burping for 16 hours afterward.

To be able to eat as much as you want, and still lose as much weight as you want.

To meet again the girl who filled you in the 7th grade—and have her break into instant tears as she realized the horrible waste she had made of her life.

To work for a boss you can understand, but who finds in you depths of character he can never hope to plumb.

To have that kind of a wife, too.

To discover two kinds of instantly effective hangover cures.

To develop a new kind of toothpaste that will not only clean old teeth but also sprout new ones.

To be given a cat that has inherited money.

To enroll at Notre Dame and become the first Irishman over 45 to throw a winning touchdown pass in the last second of play.

To buy a crew-cut toupee, glue it to your skull, and discover a week later that it is actually taking root.

To hear a good funny story about a nonalking horse.

To meet an interesting stranger at a cocktail party who didn't wind up trying to sell you stocks, bonds or life insurance.

To see Bali again, the Bay of Naples, the Ardennes in Belgium, Kasserine Gap, but with the same people you were with before.

To come upon a new vitamin that would make you feel as good in the morning now as you once felt in that morning prime when you didn't know what vitamins were.

To find a convenient free parking space that would fit your car and no other car in the world.

To discover a tranquilizing pill that would work on all people, including Russians and Chinese.

To find again a good $2 hotel room, a good pair of $5 shoes, a good two-bit haircut—given by a silent barber—and a good $45 sharkskin suit with two pairs of pants and a vest.

To know for sure the life ahead will hold as many pleasant memories as the years behind.

Those are one man's hedge-podge dreams. What are yours?

Did you know that there are over 60,000 known problem drinkers of alcoholic beverages in North Carolina? Most of our divorces, automobile accidents, and crimes have unrestrained use of alcohol somewhere in their cause histories? More important still, did you know that 20,000 people in North Carolina are maintaining sobriety and finding happiness through Alcoholics Anonymous? There is a very active group of A.A. in Greenville whose members are ready and willing to render aid to anyone who sincerely wishes to stop drinking.

A monthly "open" meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the A. A. Club on the Farmville Highway just beyond the Moose Club House. Those who have loved ones or friends with liquor problems or are interested in arresting this disease which is now America's fourth ranking one, are cordially invited and urged to be present. A wonderful program is anticipated. A.A. has no initiation fees or dues, just a great desire to help other alcoholics to achieve sobriety. Dr. Joseph N. LeComte, 120 N. Woodlawn Ave.

The People Aren't Scared, Yet

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — Is the United States entering a period of anti-inflationary readjustment that was planned by the Administration to stabilize the dollar and lower prices? Or has the deliberate "tight money" policy headed us into a dangerous decline, as charged by the bigwigs of the Democratic opposition?

Next to concern over the Russian Sputnik and intercontinental missiles, these questions disturb the Administration's top experts, as well as the executives of business, industry and finance. President Eisenhower has shown his anxiety by calling in such authorities as Bernard M. Baruch, Arthur F. Burns, former White House economic adviser, and the new National Economic Council organized by Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson.

Meanwhile, several signs of a depressing nature have appeared. Corporate profits and dividends have fallen, despite increased sales, because of high production costs and taxes. Inventories have been slashed because of a drop in orders.

UNEMPLOYMENT
Defense cutbacks will soon throw 500,000 civilians and soldiers out of work. Plant expansion has been curtailed. Unemployment has developed in many sections. Housing construction has been curtailed, heavily. Only offsetting expenditures are for schools, highways, public works, etc.

Possibly in anticipation of a 1958 decline, Wall Street had its worst days (then making a remarkable recovery) since Eisenhower's heart attack two years ago. Other factors for heavy selling and falling prices were the troubled world situation, Russia's new military power, unloading for tax losses and the fright of inexperienced investors.

Despite Eisenhower's recent encouraging words, and his plan to deliver reassuring speeches on national defense and economy, the experts at the capital are as puzzled over present conditions and future prospects as the man on the street. They are all in the economic dark.

EDITORIAL CONCERN
Federal Reserve spokesmen, who inaugurated the "tight money" program with their higher interest rates, which have handicapped even Vincent Astor's skyscraper project in New York, remain unmoved. They insist that it would be a "great mistake to relax credit restraint" just as we are achieving the price stability we have sought.

But Elliott V. Bell, who was once considered as an Eisenhower Secretary of the Treasury, expresses alarm in the current issue of Business Week. He says: "Faced with evidence that Russia has almost certainly forged ahead of us in development of the intercontinental ballistic missile, we are compelled to make an agonizing reappraisal of our whole defense program. I question whether political or public pressure will continue to permit national defense to be subordinated to anti-inflation policies."

material priorities and production. And if the demand to catch up with Russia results in a costly crash effort, there will be no 1958 tax cut.

CONSUMER SPENDING
Fortunately, there are several favorable factors. The people are not as scared as the experts.

There has been a sizable increase in consumer spending. But the 5 per cent increase has been one-sided. They are spending their money on services and light consumer goods. Food, clothing, kitchen appliances, entertainment and everyday articles outsell homes, automobiles, furniture, television and radio sets and other durables.

In short, we are still rolling along on a relatively high economic plateau. The next few months will probably determine whether the movement shall be horizontal or downward.

President Eisenhower appears to stand in a happy middle. If conditions remain fairly stable, he will pursue his present conservative and restrictive policies in order to bolster the dollar in relation to prices. But if the economy needs "a shot in the arm," the Russian Sputnik provides a valid reason for politico-military pump priming.

Talks At World Community Day

The Rev. John W. Drake Jr., Rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, will be the speaker when the church women of Greenville gather to observe World Community Day Friday at 11 a. m. at the Immanuel Baptist Church.

THE REV. JOHN W. DRAKE JR.

His topic will be "Bread, Freedom and Dignity" which is the unified theme for this world-wide observance.

The Rector of St. Paul's is a native of Spartanburg, S. C., although his growing years were spent in Wilson where he graduated from high school in 1940. He took a B.S. degree from Wake Forest College in 1943 and a B.D. degree in 1943 from the School of Theology at Sewanee, Tenn., the University of the South. Since graduation he has attended the Summer Graduate School of Theology at Sewanee, working on a Master of Sacred Theology degree.

During his ministry the Rev. Drake has been Curate of St. Paul's Church in Winston-Salem, Rector of Trinity Parish in Scotland Neck, First Rector of St. Timothy's Parish in Winston-Salem, and came to Greenville last fall to become Rector of St. Paul's Church here.

Home Is Big Business Now

By DOROTHY ROE AP Women's Editor
The housewife's days of happy organization are numbered. The efficiency experts are after her.

This became clear after a visit to the National Business Show in New York, where they are cunningly undermining feminine sales resistance with such things as baby blue typewriters and pink cash registers. Having filled the nation's offices with mechanical Frankensteins which often prove smarter than the bosses, the business machine boys are training their big guns on the American home.

Do you keep your grocery bills on a kitchen spike? Do you keep your household money in the sugar bowl? Do you figure your budget simply by stopping when you run out of money? Shame on you! That's a typical feminine, archaic and inefficient way to operate a household, say the business boys.

The American home is big business these days. This fact was discovered by some of the super salesmen after it dawned on them how much it cost to pay the grocer, the milkman, the laundryman, the baby-sitter, the part time gardener, the garbage collector, the television repair man, the washing machine payments and the once-a-week cleaning woman. All these expenditures are handled ordinarily by the little woman. And all these expenditures, they found, with a sense of deep shock, accounted for the lion's share of whatever the man of the house was able to earn.

Well, said the business boys, if the lady of the house is running such a big business as this, it's high time she got organized about it.

They're going hammer and gongs not only at the poor, helpless housewife, but also at the architects and builders to make a section of every kitchen a business office, complete with pastel typewriter, cash register, file cabinets and built-in desk.

The cash register, they explain, will keep an accurate account of expenditures and what each is for, as well as ring up receipts.

The efficiency boys insist that all this will make life much simpler for the little woman. Just think, they say, how wonderful it will be to have an efficient filing system for carbon copies of notes to the milkman, to Johnny's teacher and to the baby-sitter, ready for reference at a moment's notice. The notes will all have been typed, of course.

You have a record all ready for the man of the house, to prove you haven't been goofing off on the job.

Seventh Grade Gives U. N. Day Program

ROBERSONVILLE—United Nations Day, October 24, was celebrated in the Robersonville Elementary School with a program given by Mrs. Evelyn Cherry's seventh grade.

The pupils in colorful costumes with flags on display represented the 35 nations. The United Nations "Song of Peace" was sung. The goals of the U. N.—peace, security, freedom, understanding, prosperity, health and education for all the people of the world—was brought out during an interview with Mr. Lodge.

A dance followed. The program was concluded with the new song "Pledge of Allegiance" set to the tune of many songs that are dear to the hearts of all Americans.

With Farm Women

By VIRGINIA M. NANCE
Have Fun and Save, Too
The opportunity to learn how to save money continues to inspire most people today and home demonstration club women are close followers of this feeling.

When Sampson County club women heard that they could make their own lampshades for about one-third the cost of buying one, they became properly inspired.

According to Mrs. Emily Johnston, home demonstration agent, Mrs. Callie Hardwick, Agricultural Extension Service housing and house furnishings specialist, met with a group of women at the Clinton armory to give instructions and supervise the making of lampshades. She demonstrated making a slip-cover for a shade, making a shade of fiberglass and making a shade of fabric.

The atmosphere of such a workshop reveals how the women feel. They say "We can have fun making these and be saving money at the same time."

Mother-Daughter Team
Leola Dickerson, Rockingham County winner in 4-H frozen foods project, has said that her project has been vitally important in carrying out the food conservation plans for her family.

"My mother and I work as a team," says Leola. "One of us gathers the vegetables and fruits, while the other starts preparing them for the freezer. This way we get the foods into the freezer quicker and easier than if we worked alone."

According to Assistant Home Agent Eugenia Green, Leola's experiences are not limited to the freezing of fruits and vegetables. She has frozen nearly all types of meats and baked products. She has also undertaken as a special activity the giving of demonstrations to a group of community girls and to her class in school.

First Morning Meet
The Pierce Home Demonstration club members want to be in on everything possible. When the Belk-Tyler drapery demonstration conflicted with their regular club meeting, they suggested changing their meeting to a morning meeting. This was done.

Mrs. George Dall was mighty glad. Because she was the lucky winner of the dor prize at the Bely-Tyler demonstration. Then, on the next Thursday morning club members assembled in their club house for the first morning club meeting to be held in Pitt County.

To make it an extra special occasion they decided they would just take lunch along, too. So at the close of the meeting luncheon was served from a table centered with a dried arrangement carrying out the halloween motif.

Federation Cook Book
The Home Demonstration Federation Cook Book on sale all over the state this year is helping to build good public relations, according to Martha B. Thompson, Davidson County home agent.

Mrs. Thompson explains that the cook book has been sold by club women.

From Davidson County the books have traveled to many a far spot. Mrs. Charles Graham, Southern Regional Director, took several copies with her to the National Home Demonstration Council Meetings in Texas and Ohio as gifts for National officers and friends. People who have seen them in other states have ordered copies. Southern recipes are really getting around!

Copies have found their way to transplanted North Carolinians in Kansas, Oklahoma and California who were homesick for recipes of some of the old favorite North Carolina dishes. They wanted to introduce them to "less fortunate" friends who didn't know the delights of Chicken dumplings, hush puppies, persimmon pudding, and other southern dishes.

Mrs. Thompson says that the club women in Davidson County feel that the cook books are doing a wonderful job "winning friends and influencing people."

Family of Fair Winners
Mrs. Clyde Whittington, Horse Shoe Home Demonstration Club, Henderson County, is a firm believer in entering her handiwork in fairs. Premium money won by her, her sister and her daughter has been unusually large.

Home Agent Kathleen C. Hodges reports that at the Western North Carolina Fair, Mrs. Whittington won $15.75 on her entries.

tries. Her daughter, Barbara, won $26.00, and her young sister, Pat Bialock, won $25.75. There entries included such things as clothing, crafts, and canned products.

"I made the down payment for a set of Britannica Encyclopedias with the money won at the 1956 fair," explains Mrs. Whittington. "and I made the final payment with the 1957 money. Other payments in between were made from sales of crafts, vegetables, canned products, jellies and preserves. The total cost of the encyclopedias was $375."

In addition to their fair winnings at the Western N. C. Fair, the three added $98.75 to their winnings from the Buncombe County Fair.

Mrs. Hodges concludes that the Whittingtons are considering buying a home and farm of their own and are convinced that they can

Start Planning Halloween Fare

FOR HALLOWEEN—Soup in a pumpkin tureen (left) and frosted doughnuts with jack-o-lantern faces. For small fry ghosts and goblins.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Because a Halloween party for small fry needs fun food, here are two ideas to consider.

Ask youngsters to supper and use a pumpkin jack-o-lantern to hold a bowl of nourishing hot soup. Two varieties of canned condensed soup, beef noodle and vegetable, may be headed with 1 1/2 soup cans of water for this course to serve four; double the quantities as needed. Most children like these varieties of soup and they'll be enthralled with the pumpkin tureen. Use a favorite filling for sandwiches to accompany the soup.

Let the dessert be a do-it-yourself affair. Have store-bought doughnuts on hand along with a goodly amount of confectioners' sugar frosting and assorted Halloween candies. The trick-and-treat set will have a wonderful time frosting the doughnuts and decorating them with funny faces, using the candy for features. To make life easy for both small fry and yourself, put the frosting in small paper dessert dishes, and have wooden tongue depressors handy for spreading.

The party beverage might be cider served in paper cups decorated with a Halloween motif. Or, if you like, serve hamburgers on toasted buns with carrot curls and milk (made orange

Cool Belt Switches To Part Of The Southeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There was a switch in the weather, temperaturewise, today, with many parts of the Southeast colder than the Northeast and the Great Lakes region.

Temperatures were mostly in the 30s in the Ohio Valley and the Virginias southward. Some places reported below freezing readings.

The cool belt extended into the northern sections of Alabama and Mississippi and northwest Florida, and covered most areas in the Carolinas, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia. It was 28 degrees at Crossville, Tenn., compared to a reading of 42 at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., on Lake Superior.

Cross City, in northwest Florida, reported a chilly 35 degrees, and it was 32—freezing—at Alma, in southwest Georgia. Both Raleigh, N. C. and Chattanooga, Tenn., cooled to 30 degree marks. In contrast, it was 43 at Boston, 44 in Minneapolis, 41 in Detroit and 38 in Chicago.

Temperatures in the 30s also were general in the northern Plains and the Northern Rockies but southerly winds warmed the Southern Plains and the Middle Mississippi Valley. Westerly winds also brought warming trend was reported from Texas northeastward through lower Michigan.

Dry weather prevailed in most of the country. Fair and warmer weather was the outlook for most areas east of the Mississippi River as well as in the lower and Middle Mississippi Valleys and the Southern Plains. Snow flurries and cooler weather was forecast in the Upper Mississippi Valley while showers were expected along the North Pacific Coast and in the southwest desert region.

Actor-Dancer Is Suing Panorama

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor and dancer Gene Nelson is suing Panorama Pictures Corp. for $75,000 damages because a horse fell on him.

The suit, filed yesterday, alleges he suffered a fractured pelvis and other injuries which have prevented him from working since the accident Aug. 5. Nelson was on location in Tennessee for filming of "Natchez Trace" at the time.

Seed Producers Slow To File

RALEIGH (AP)—With the deadline near, only 10 of 26 seed producers have filed applications for recording varieties of flue-cured tobacco seed to be sold in North Carolina for the 1958 season.

State Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine pointed out yesterday that the law says such recordings must be made with him prior to November 1 preceding each growing season.

Ballentine said he hoped "it will not become necessary to deny the right to sell tobacco seed in North Carolina to any grower because of his failure to record his seed after their approval by the tobacco seed committee. The procedure is laid down by the law and leaves me no discretion in the matter."

The 1957 Legislature created a Tobacco Seed Committee to pass on the correct identification of flue-cured varieties. The committee has filed a report in which it identified 34 varieties of seed, which are eligible for recording. Under the 1957 law, the seed producers must register their seed with the agriculture commissioner and submit a one-ounce sample of the seed to him.

The list supplied by the tobacco seed committee includes the "discontinued" varieties—Dixie Bright 244, Coker's 139 and Coker's 140. It also includes Golden Gem 711, which was submitted for approval by Bissett's Seed Farm, and four other growers.

The new law provides, through the registration requirement, a means of tracing responsibility for seed.

The Sports Reflector

By BILLY ARNOLD

When East Carolina's basketball team opens its 1957-58 cage season, several familiar faces will be missing from the lineup.

Coach Howard Porter had had his squad of about 20 boys working out now for a little over two weeks. Since the beginning of practice, three key players have been lost!

Nick Nichols, a 6-4 veteran and senior, has been scratched from the roster for the entire season. Nichols was bothered with shoulder injuries last year which have recurred throughout drill. Sunday, the shoulder was injured again (he wasn't playing ball at the time) and it is probable that he will have an operation. Coach Porter stated today that "It looks like he'll be out for good."

Another senior, guard Freddy James has been lost to the squad for the season, due to conflicting schedules. It appears now that James is going into medicine and will not play any more basketball for ECC.

Tim Smothers, a 6-6 center who saw first string duty at times last season, has dropped off the squad due to scholastic difficulties.

Coach Porter lost Don Harris, an All-Conference forward, via graduation.

AND THE FLU

"And at the present time," Coach Porter commented, "We have several boys out with the flu. Of course, we're hoping that's just a temporary thing. They'll be back."

Of Porter's 1956-57 club, only two seniors who saw regular duty will return. Guy Mendenhall, a 6-4 center-forward from Cary, will be playing his final season this year. Harold Ingram, guard, will also be back.

Charlie Adams, a junior who transferred from Carolina and handled a guard slot for the Bucs last season, will be back again. Ike Riddick, Dennis O'Brien, Roy Dennis, Maurice Everette, and Waddell Solomon will also return to guard positions.

Lanky Joe Plaster will also be back, along with Wallace Lewis and Marion-Hales. That rounds out the list of returnees from 1956-57.

SEVERAL NEWCOMERS

Coach Porter named several new boys "who may help us some this year."

Jessel Curry, a transfer from the University of Kentucky, and Craig Reid, a transfer from Louisburg Junior College, have looked good in practice, according to the Fox.

He also named four freshmen who may see action this season: Dan Smith, of Portsmouth; Jimmy Hall, of Burgaw (who stands 6-8); Marvin Gregory, of South Carolina; and Ray Gurtner, from Durham County.

Asked about his club's probable strength this season, Coach Porter said: "Well, you really can't predict how good your boys are going to be until you see what the opposition has. Right now, we just don't know. We'll have to wait and see."

Redskin Coach Not 'Surprised'

WASHINGTON (AP)—How can a pro football team look so bad one week and so good the next?

3 YEAR OLD CENTURY CLUB STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY

Pose the question to coach Joe Kuharich, whose Washington Redskins have soared and sunk on alternative Sundays, and he tosses back a question of his own:

"How come Sam Snead will shoot a 68 one day and a 76 the next?"

In either case, Kuharich said today, there are so many angles it's hard to finger any single one. "In golf, maybe a key shot trickles into a trap instead of holding to the fairway. In football, you miss a tackle on the line or in the hole and you suffer. Football is a game of errors. The team that makes the most will lose."

The Redskins, loop-de-loops of the National Football League, have these results to show for a 2-3 record to date: Lost to Pittsburgh, 28-7...Beat Chicago Cards, 37-14...Lost to New York 24-20...Lost to same Cards, 44-14...Beat same Giants, 31-14.

Nothing surprises Kuharich in pro football, where all teams are pretty much in balance and each has the ability to score on any play from anywhere on the field at any moment of the game. The Redskins have made hay with some slick quarterbacking by little Eddie LeBaron, the league's leading passer, artful receiving by end Johnny Carson and fine running by rookie backs Jim Podoley, Don Bosseler and Ed Sutton. Defensively, they've had good days and bad.

Talent aside, Kuharich listed "fumbles, interceptions and official decisions at crucial moments as the most telling factors in a football game."

FOUR SCHOOL RECORDS

CHAPLAIN HILL (AP)—Dave Scutlock, University of North Carolina junior trackman, set four school records last spring. The Greensboro lad broke records in the 440 and 880-yard runs and figured in new marks as anchor man with the mile and two-mile relay teams.

Georgia Tech In Below-Par Year

ATLANTA (AP)—Duke, one of the nation's top football powers and a leading candidate for the Orange Bowl, will come to town Saturday to play Georgia Tech's below-par Engineers.

Tech, which usually is beginning to get bowl fever about this time every year, is virtually out of the post-season picture.

The Engineers, almost 50 per cent sophomore among the regulars, have won two, lost two and tied one.

Duke is unbeaten but was held to a tie Saturday by North Carolina State.

Tech-Duke series is one of the most colorful in the deep South and has been marked by surprises and wild finishes.

Coach Bill Murray will be making his fourth trip to Atlanta with his Blue Devils and he said today he hopes "We will have better luck than other times. His teams have lost two and tied one on Tech soil."

"We play Tech every year and we know it's tough to beat them any time at any place," he added.

Coach Bobby Dodd of Tech said his boys know Duke will be rugged "But I believe they will get ready to play another fine game as they did two weeks ago against Auburn."

Tech lost to Auburn 3-0 but Dodd said it was his team's finest effort of the season.

Injuries could be a factor in the game, which is expected to draw a capacity crowd of 40,000. Hal McElhenny, Duke's powerful fullback, is a doubtful participant because of an ankle injured during the North Carolina State tie. Maxie Baughan, Tech's No. 2 center, is lost for the rest of the season because of a chipped ankle bone suffered in the Tulane game Saturday night.

On the bright side of Tech, halfback Joe Delany will be available after being out with a broken collarbone since the season opened. Delany, Tech's best punter, is one of the two experienced ball carriers on the squad. Halfback Stan Flowers is the other veteran.

More Action For Tommy Tibbs In Wake Of Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—For a fighter who has lost more than he has won, little Tommy Tibbs gets a lot of work.

And the aggressive New England lightweight champion is going to see plenty more action off his lopsided decision in 10 rounds over Frankie Ippolito of New York at St. Nicholas Arena last night.

It was Tibbs' debut on a network television scrap and he scored a hit with the fans.

"How did he ever lose 43 fights," said a puzzled fan after watching the chunky 23-year-old Bostonian floor, cut and pound Ippolito, the 9-5 favorite.

Driver Regas To The Rescue

LAKE MEAD, Nev. (AP)—Winning races and saving people are getting to be regular occurrences with little Jack Regas, 150-pound driver of Hawk Kai III, the Seattle unlimited hydroplane. He won the Silver Cup on the Detroit River, the President's Cup on the Potomac and the Governor's Cup on the Ohio at Madison, Ind.

During the second heat of the Silver Cup he dove into the water to rescue driver Fred Alter who had been flipped out of the Miss U.S. 1. In the President's Cup race, Regas went overboard to aid in the rescue of Col. Russ Schlieh whose "Shanty I exploded."

Shantz Honored For Comeback

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—"It was darn nice of the fellows to remember me," said little Bobby Shantz today upon learning he had been voted the American League comeback player of the year in an Associated Press poll of baseball writers.

Sixty-nine of the 152 participating writers in the annual poll voted for Shantz. Gene Woodings, Cleveland outfielder, was named on 32 ballots. Ted Williams of Boston, who won the league batting title, was third with 12 votes followed by Washington outfielder Roy Stivers and Baltimore pitcher Billy Loew, each with nine.

Shantz' modest reaction was typical of the tiny southpaw who almost quit baseball two years ago because of shoulder miseries. His troubles started in September 1952, the year he won 24 games for the Philadelphia Athletics and was selected the league's most valuable player.

In mid-September, Shantz was hit by a pitch and suffered a broken wrist. Then came the shoulder trouble — torn tendons, the doctors said. He won 13 games in three years for the Kansas City A's.

"If they had released me, I'd have quit baseball," said Bobby.

"Frankly, I don't know. Fans sent me bottles of all kinds of stuff, everything including horse liniment. I tried them all. Actually, I think rest really did it. I saw at least half a dozen doctors, took hundreds of X-rays, held the arm up, down and out, but I think rest did it."

Football Event Beaten By Flu

The annual Halloween Night Midget League Football spectacular has been whipped by the flu.

Recreation department head Gordon Goodman announced this morning that the Halloween Night double-header contest between four Midget League grid teams has been called off, due to the flu.

"The boys have been dropping out of school at such a heavy rate," Goodman said, "that it was decided to cancel the games."

Only a dozen boys out of all four teams reported for practice yesterday, prompting the decision to cancel the Halloween tilts.

The Halloween Spectacle has been an annual affair for the past several years, sponsored by the Exchange Club and the Recreation Department.

Texas Aggies Top Poll As Sooners Slip To Second

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

The Associated Press

The Texas Aggies again showed that even the best college football teams can't afford to let down for a moment as they rolled into first place in the Associated Press weekly ranking poll. Oklahoma proved the point as it slipped to second after a close call against Colorado in the opinion of writers and broadcasters from 36 states and the District of Columbia.

It was the second time this season that Oklahoma's Sooners, unbeaten in 45 consecutive games, had lost the lead just because they didn't win decisively. They dropped behind Michigan State after their 21-7 victory over Texas then regarded as a comparatively weak foe; regained the No. 1 spot a week ago, then dropped behind Texas A & M today after Colorado had held them to a 14-13 decision.

The Aggies, meanwhile, rolled over Baylor 14-0 for their sixth straight this season and their fourth shutout in six starts, thus gaining stature in the eyes of the sports writers and broadcasters participating in the AP balloting.

First Basemen In Big Demand

NEW YORK (AP)—Some sort of a record was set in the opening game of the 1957 World Series in Yankee Stadium. Six first basemen saw action, three for each team. However, one of them, Milwaukee's Nippy Jones, was used only as a pinch hitter.

The Braves started Joe Adcock on first and when it appeared he had taken his last turn at bat against Whitey Ford, glove man Frank Tompa took over at the bag.

The Yankees started Bill Skowron but his sacroiliac popped out of place in the first inning and he left the game at the start of the third. Elston Howard then took over at first. When the Braves used a righthanded pitcher, Joe Collins became the Yankee first sacker.

Only these two teams were ranked in the first ten by all 166 voters. No one put the Aggies lower than eighth while Oklahoma was given two votes for ninth place and two for tenth.

Iowa, tied for the Big Ten lead retained third place with 20 first place votes but from there on down the order bore little resemblance to the top 10 of a week ago as upsets and close calls brought about a fast shuffle.

Murray Sees 'One Good Thing' From Tie With State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duke Coach Bill Murray, readying the nation's No. 7 football team for Georgia Tech, figures at least one good thing came from Duke's 14-14 tie with 10th-ranked North Carolina State last Saturday.

"We feel we have a jump in preparing for Tech. N.C. State runs many plays similar to Tech and we just experienced a hard week in preparing for State's offense," said Murray.

On top of that, Murray has a couple of other factors up his sleeve. Defensive end coach Herschel Caldwell has coached Tech ever since Duke first played the Georgians, in 1933. And Bob Bossons, another assistant coach, came to Duke in January from Tech's coaching staff. Murray's counting on Bossons for first hand appraisal of Tech players.

"Tech employs the unbalanced line and flankers, and, in fact, has more sets of formations than State. State used 12 on us and Tech regularly uses 17."

If N.C. State gave Duke a plus factor in advance preparation, the same team gave the Blue Devils a minus factor too. Fullback Hal McElhenny suffered an ankle injury and may miss the Tech game, Murray said.

Caldwell warned the Blue Devils that Tech will be tough. "Once the team gets together their boys will run with anybody," Caldwell said.

Duke is one of four Atlantic Coast Conference teams meeting outside competition this weekend. North Carolina is host to Tennessee of the Southeastern Conference. Virginia is host to VMI of the Southern Conference, and Clemson travels to Rice of the Southwestern Conference. ACC games are Maryland at South Carolina and Wake Forest at N.C. State.

Wake Forest, for the third straight week going against a conference powerhouse, took the practice field in sweatshirts yesterday and worked on pass defense and punting. Coach Paul Arma also gave the squad a defensive look at State's offense.

State, meanwhile, had a blackboard session on offenses and defenses for the coming game ago went through a light workout. Coach Earle Edwards also reviewed the Wolfpack with movies of the Duke game.

South Carolina scrimmaged yesterday. Coach Warren Giese reported the Gamecocks in good physical condition for Maryland. Maryland Coach Tommy Mont at 14 different tracks in Florida, reported that tackle Fred Cole will be lost for the season because of a bone separation in his shoulder.

Mont gave the Terps a light workout, setting up offenses and defenses.

Clemson staged a dummy workout with the emphasis on pass offense and defense. Coach Frank Howard planned to step up the pace today.

Coach Ben Martin warned his Virginia Cavaliers for what his scout called "the best VMI team he has seen in many seasons." Martin said junior guard Frank Call, outstanding against Army, may not start this weekend because of a knee injury.

North Carolina Coach Jim Tatum drilled his top units in light gear yesterday, but sent the remainder of the squad through heavy contact work.

GHS-Wilson

A final decision as to whether or not the Greenville high school-Wilson football game will be played this Friday night, will be rendered tomorrow.

An outbreak of flu in both schools has crippled both the Phantoms and the Cyclones during the past two weeks and there is some question as to whether the game will be played. Greenville's game with Fuquay-Springs was postponed just a week ago for the same reason.

GHS officials in contact with Wilson said today that Wilson's club is in "about the same shape as ours."

The game will be played if at all possible, due to the fact that a football game cannot be postponed until later in most cases. Full schedules and time limits make it necessary for games to be played unless it is definitely impossible.

The 24-year-old rider from Black Lick, Pa., this year has won stakes at 14 different tracks in Florida, Kentucky, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, New York, Massachusetts and Illinois.

Market Mirrors Expectation Of 'Levelling Off'

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market has been telling us since mid July that businessmen are expecting a levelling off or mild retreat from the long business boom.

Stock traders felt that if such a dip in business activity and earnings was in the works, then most stocks were over priced.

The question today is whether the correction in stock prices since mid July has gone far enough—has fully discounted in advance the business recession which may or may not be aborning.

Some think the market has over discounted the chances of a recession—that the big snapback last Wednesday marked the end of the price drop.

Since the stock exchange is an auction market in which some want to buy and some want to sell there are many who feel just the opposite. They hold that the stock price decline has still more distance to go before prices accurately mirror the chances of business being as good and earnings as high or higher next year.

Bing And Bride Go Back To Their Jobs

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A happy Bing Crosby and his pretty bride settled down today to a workday marriage—but there was one worry on the old groaner's mind.

He admitted in an exclusive interview that they had received congratulations from all his four sons except Gary, the eldest.

"I don't know why I haven't heard from him," Bing said. "He must be on a tour or something."

Gary, at 23, is a few months older than the new Mrs. Crosby, actress Kathy Grant. He is stationed in Germany with the U.S. Army, and spends much of his time entertaining troops at remote bases.

Bing was at CBS radio by 10 a. m. yesterday and by 1 p. m. had recorded 11 songs for his radio show.

Third Party Talk Is Discounted By Gov. Hodges

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Luther Hodges discounted talk of a third party move to the South and predicted a Democratic presidential victory in 1960 here yesterday.

Hodges also said he believed a Southerner could be elected president—but not in 1960.

Hodges was interviewed by newsmen during a visit here in discounting third party talk.

"You might say I was in a small state of shock," he said, "but I just didn't know how to make the move."

Kathy conceded the wedding was somewhat surprising to her. "You might say I was in a small state of shock," she said, "but it was such happy shock."

Crosby had these final words to say about his bride: "She's a wonderful, wonderful girl. I couldn't be happier."

Federal School Aid Action Ticketed For A Pigeonhole

By R. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal aid for school construction, twice turned down by Congress in the last two years, has been quietly ticketed for a House committee pigeonhole at the 1958 session.

A decision to drop the school aid fight temporarily was disclosed today by Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey (D-W.Va.), chairman of the House subcommittee on general education.

Politics, the bitter school segregation issue, and Democratic irritation with President Eisenhower's leadership in last session's school aid battle were all factors contributing to the decision, Bailey said.

Speaking to a reporter, Bailey asserted that as chairman of the House subcommittee controlling school legislation he intended to sit on the bill at the next session of Congress which opens in January.

"The administration had its chance last year," Bailey said, referring to the 208-203 House defeat handed a 1½ billion dollar aid bill which reflected most of the administration's proposals.

On this vote, 111 Republicans and 97 Democrats teamed to kill the bill. Against killing it were 77 Republicans and 126 Democrats.

"First of all, the Eisenhower administration wants to make a political issue of school grants," Bailey asserted. "An election year is a bad time to play politics with school needs."

Bailey, a strong backer of school grants, said he expects Eisenhower will renew his request in his 1959 budget message in January.

"Furthermore, until such time as President Eisenhower can show a majority of his own party is in favor of the legislation, I am not going to take any action," Bailey said.

Bailey said he was also forced reluctantly to the conclusion that the integration dispute — cutting strongly into school aid support from Southern Democrats — would mitigate strongly against passage of federal grants at this time.

While planning to drop general school assistance next year, Bailey said his subcommittee plans to continue special assistance to local school districts overburdened by pupils from federal defense and military activities.

This federal program of school aid to impacted areas has funneled around $1,200,000,000 in federal school construction funds into some 2,300 local school districts in the past six years.

Additional millions of dollars of federal aid have been spent for maintenance and operation of overcrowded buildings in impacted areas since the program began in 1951. The current budget provides approximately $9 million dollars for this purpose.

Another education subcommittee headed by Rep. Elliott (D-Ala.) is expected to consider federal tuition and assistance grants to worthy students in technical training fields.

May-December Unions Fare Well In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bing Crosby's wedding to a girl the same age as one of his sons follows the trend in May-December marriages in Hollywood. And, perhaps surprisingly, such marriages have had a good average in a town where divorce is sometimes considered a way of life.

There is 30 years' difference between Bing and his bride, Kathy Grant. Far from being a handicap, the gap is considered an advantage by some observers of the filmland scene. Take a look at the record.

Many of Hollywood's mature leading men have chosen wives decades younger than themselves. It's true that such alliances are often second, third or fourth marriages. But they have stuck where others failed.

William Powell set the pattern in 1940. He chose as his third wife an MGM starlet, Diana Lewis. He was 47; she could barely vote. Hollywood gave the marriage six months. The Powells are still happily wed.

Humphrey Bogart, 45, had a headlined romance with his young leading lady, Lauren Bacall, 21. No one gave her a chance to accomplish what three other women had failed to do — tame Bogart. But she did it, and his last decade was the happiest of his life.

Rudy Vallee was another three-time loser. In 1949, he married a University of California coed, Eleanor Norris. Though he was 29 years older, their marriage has remained constant.

Twice-divorced Cary Grant was another star who fell in love with his leading lady. She was Betsy Drake, with whom he appeared in the prophetic "Every Girl Should Be Married." When they married, he was 46, she was 26. They are one of the town's most devoted couples.

Saddened by the death of his first wife, Fred Macmurray found companionship with June Haver, also unhappy from a series of personal tragedies. They married when he was 45 and she was 28. She seems perfectly content to forget her career and take care of their home and their adopted twins.

Older women were among Clark Gable's first four wives. As his fifth, he chose Kay Spreckels, 20 years his junior.

Sage Advice To Stranger In Town

NOBLE, Okla. (AP) — Harold Mauldin, a member of the town board here, gave a visitor a tour of Noble and explained the town does not have a police officer.

"What happens when you see a driver coming down the highway here 80 miles an hour?" the visitor asked.

Mauldin replied: "You run like heck to get out of the way."

Present Views Likely To Change

DES MOINES (AP) — Pat Thomas, 8, overheard his parents discussing the propriety of very short shorts a young woman wore on a downtown street here.

"I'll admit she does have beautiful legs," said Mrs. Thompson. "Yeah," Pat commented. "For a girl."

Made A Living From Borrowing

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ralph B. Hatz of the fashionable Pittsburgh suburb of Mount Lebanon found a novel way to make a living.

He borrowed about a million dollars from neighbors over a 29-year period, invested the money in securities and used the dividends and interest to live on and to pay off the loans.

His method was made public when several of the neighbors took action in Common Pleas Court, confining that 68-year-old Hatz is insolvent.

Hatz's attorney, Harry S. Kalsion, said his client isn't opposing the legal move.

"It's true he borrowed a million dollars over a period of 20 years, but most of it has been paid back," Kalsion said.

Kalsion said Hatz "managed to make a living for himself" but didn't get rich. About a year ago, said Kalsion, Hatz got into difficulty because of a stock market decline.

Kalsion said Hatz paid interest on the money he borrowed. The stocks, purchased in Hatz's name, are now in the hands of a receiver.

81-Year-Old, And Grounded

SWANS ISLAND, Maine (AP) — At 81, Mrs. Mamie Torrey had had to stop motorbiking around this Maine coast island.

A spell of rheumatism bothered Mrs. Torrey so much this summer that she sold the motor scooter her grandson bought her for more than a year ago.

But she won't be content to stay off the island roads. Now, she's hoping to save enough money to buy "one of them electric cars."

Free-lances originally were roaming knits and men-at-arms who sold their services to various lords.

BALTIMORE (AP) — They call it the "Star of Canton," and it's going out for the first time since the early 1940's.

The brilliant jet of flame has burned beside a 225-foot tower of a refinery in the Canton section of the city. Fuel manufacturing processes are being stopped at the plant now, and the "star" will burn no more.

Outer Space Pulls Minds Of Men Much Like Gravity Pulls Downward

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter
NEW YORK (AP) — Your wrist watch tells you it is high noon. You glance out a porthole, and the sky is entirely black, save for awesomely brilliant, uninking stars.

Your nose itches. You reach to scratch, and slap your own face viciously . . . you forgot again about no gravity.

Suddenly a too-loud PING echoes through the ship. You freeze in fright, wondering if a meteor made a hole . . . then relax, for no alarm signal sounds.

Thirsty, you drink some water, but not from a glass. It comes from a plastic squeeze bottle, with the nozzle carefully planted in your mouth.

For you are going to the moon or mars aboard a spaceship, where life is fantastically different from earth.

The time—10 years among optimistically, maybe many more. Expert estimates vary.

But this is the promise now that the space has opened with a little man-made moon circling the earth.

More little moons are coming, American as well as Russian, during the current International Geophysical Year.

They will discover actual space conditions and the hazards which partly will determine when and how humans go journeying safely through space.

Rocket and space experts have drawn the general plans, even designed ships and protective measures to vault humans to our sister planets . . . and home again. It's only your second day out on this rocket hurtling through space, so you can be excused for having slapped yourself when your nose itched. Really, you're rapidly getting used to a most peculiar problem of weightlessness, from lack of gravity.

Your brain told you to lift your hand gently to your nose. But you used the same effort you would have used on earth. Here, undeterred by gravity, your hand would move up like a boxer's lighting jab.

For your ship is really falling through space, not influenced by the earth's gravity. You have no weight, neither does anything else aboard the ship.

High-flying jet pilots experience this same thing sometimes for brief moments when their planes' centrifugal force balances gravity.

They find it a mighty strange sensation, there's no feeling of up or down. Your usual senses fail you. Some find weightlessness upsetting; others say it's not bad or even pleasant.

Except for the foresight of your spaceship's planners, you might be having a terrible time with weightlessness. You still might at times, in some parts of the ship.

With no gravity, you feel like you're constantly falling into a bottomless pit. A slight push of your foot sends you flying into the air. Sneeze, and you'd fly backward to bang against a cabin wall.

Is that passengers across the cabin standing upside down — or are you? At meals, drop a piece of toast, and it hangs in the air. Your meat would be fastened to a plate, you might eat it by grabbing it with a clamp. The lift of a fork could send it flying to the ceiling.

But your ship preferably is spinning, creating centrifugal force to substitute for gravity. The direction "down" is the outer edge of your round, spinning spaceship.

Gravity gave you a bad moment, you recall, at take-off from earth. The quick acceleration from powerful rocket engines made you feel like lead, with a weight four to ten times greater than that of normal gravity.

But it was soon over and you taxied up to the space platform 500 miles above earth, dined there and then boarded this ship for the journey to mars.

You're aware, and glad, of the forced ventilation. Otherwise you might suffocate. If air has no weight, warm and cold air don't circulate automatically. The air you breathed out could stay right in front of your face, depriving you of oxygen.

Oxygen for a short moon trip comes, perhaps, from liquid oxygen, turning to gas as it warms up. On this many-weeks jaunt, a special greenhouse of algae or other plant life supplies the oxygen, using the carbon dioxide you breathe out.

Your cabin is, of course, pressurized. You know you'd live only a few seconds in the vacuum of space, unless protected by special pressurized space suits.

This worries you some. Space is crowded with flying meteors, traveling thousands of miles an hour, mostly very tiny. But a big one could smash straight through your ship. The little pioneer man-made moons found this chance was fairly small. Your ship has double walls, the outer one halting tiny meteors. An alarm system warns of any hole for quick plugging.

And your ship is made of special materials to reduce risks from radioactivity of cosmic rays and X-rays from the sun. Again, the IGY moons spelled out the risk.

You gaze out the porthole, and wonder how cold it is right outside in space. The captain explains: Space has no temperature. There's previous little air to heat up. The side of the ship exposed to the sun gets very hot, but the side in shadow is very cold and radiates heat into space.

Special arrangements of materials and coatings that reflect or radiate heat help keep you comfortable inside the ship.

Seventy-Six Americans In Topmost Wealth Bracket

NEW YORK (AP)—Jean Paul Getty, a Minnesota-born oilman, is the nation's richest man, according to a magazine survey published Monday.

Getty tops a list of 76 Americans with fortunes estimated at 75 million to a billion dollars.

The survey, conducted by Fortune magazine, placed Getty, who will be 63 on Dec. 15, in the 700-million to a billion-dollar category.

The tall, well-built Oxford graduate in economics lives in Paris and Saudi Arabia. He runs the Tidewater Oil Co. and owns the Hotel Pierre in New York City among other things.

In London Getty said, "It doesn't make any difference to me personally if I am worth five million, or 200 million, or one billion or several billion dollars."

He said he doesn't know the exact total of his holdings but "would hope to get several billions" if he sold out.

"Remember," he added, "a billion dollars isn't worth what it used to be."

Getty was a millionaire in oil when he was 23. He said luck helped him get rich.

"In the depression I did what the experts said one should not do," he said. "I was a very big buyer of oil company stocks."

no account taken of half a billion dollars worth of oil still in the ground that he owns.

Mellons, Du Ponts, Rockefellers and Fords dominate the list.

With Richardson in the 200-to-400-million-dollar category are Irene du Pont of Wilmington, Del., and Cuba; William du Pont Jr. of Wilmington; Mrs. Frederick Guest of Palm Beach, Fla.; Howard Hughes, Los Angeles tool manufacturer, aircraft maker, and movie producer; Joseph P. Kennedy of Boston and New York; former U. S. Ambassador to England; Alfred P. Sloan Jr. of General Motors; and Daniel K. Ludwig, a New York shipper.

Six Rockefellers—David, John D. III, Laurance, Nelson and Winthrop, and Mrs. Jean Rockefeller Maize of New York—are in the 100-to-200-million-dollar category as is Mrs. Edsel Ford of Detroit.

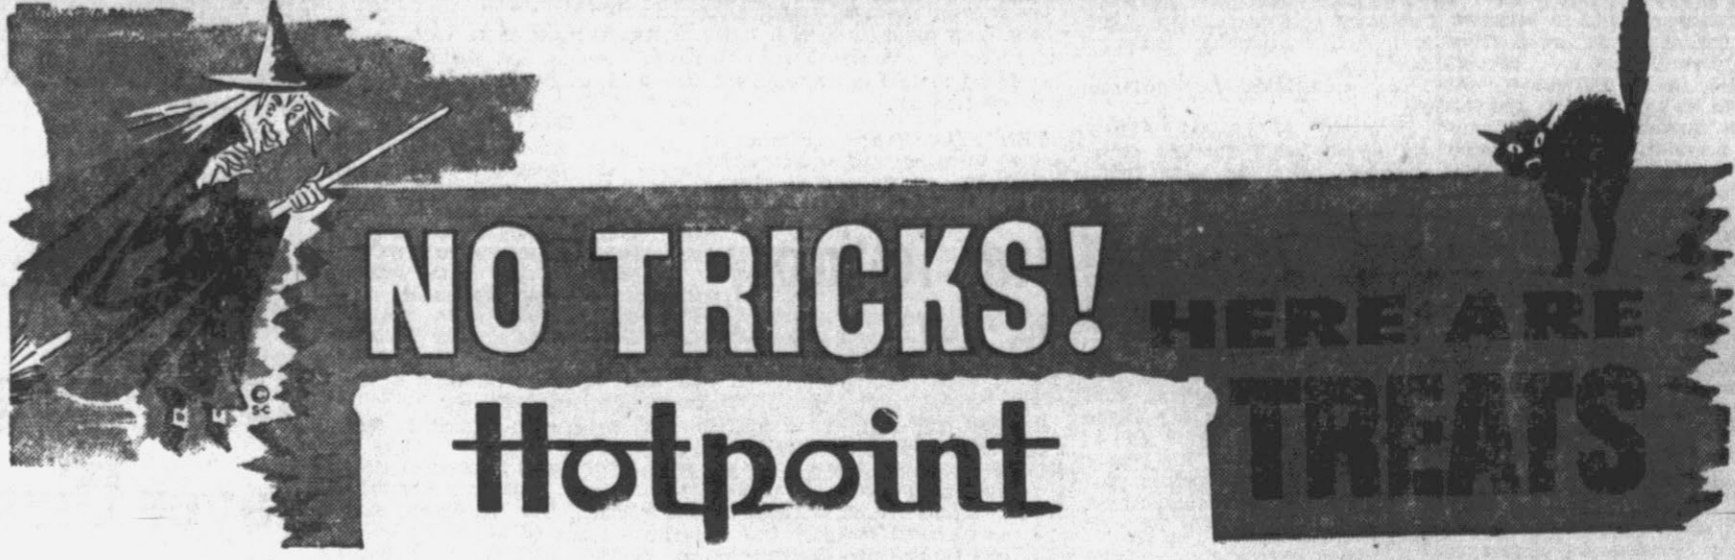

Oilmen in the 100-to-200-million category are James Abercrombie Co. Houston; Jacob Blaustein of Baltimore; William Keck of Los Angeles; John Mecom of Houston; Clint Murchison of Dallas; and R. E. Smith of Houston.

Other familiar names in the class include real estate man Vincent Astor of New York; tobacco heiress Doris Duke; John Hay Whitney, American ambassador to Britain; and Amory Houghton, U. S. ambassador to France.

Others in the 100-to-200-million bracket are Stephen Bechtel, a San Francisco construction man; William Blakley, a Dallas airline and real estate operator; Mrs. Alfred I. du Pont of Jacksonville and Wilmington; Arthur Hunt, a Pittsburgh aluminum man; William L. McKnight, a St. Paul, Minn., mining operator; and Lamont du Pont Copeland of Wilmington.

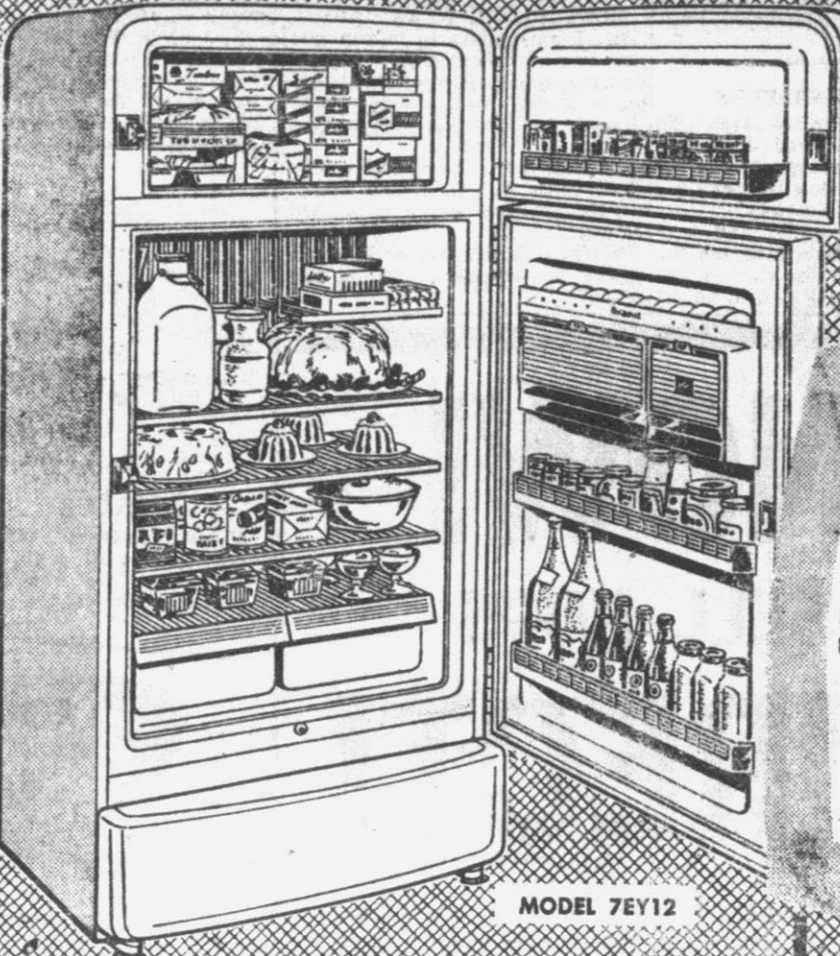

Also: Financier Clarence Dillon of New York; glass maker Arthur A. Houghton Jr. of New York; General Motors' Charles F. Kettering of Dayton, Ohio; Mrs. Chauncey McCormick of Chicago; Mrs. Charles Payson of New York; and General Motors' John L. Pratt of Fredericksburg, Va.

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York is one of 31 in the 75-to-100-million-dollar category, as is Geoffrey L. Cabot of Boston who is 96.

Off-Year Elections Pose A Host Of Clues As To How Parties Will Fare

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Contests for governor in New Jersey and Virginia, two special U. S. House races in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and scores of races for mayor topped by New York City's will be decided in scattered voting a week from today.

Major party leaders will be watching the off-year turnout and results for signs of how things might go for their candidates in the 1958 elections for Congress, now controlled by the Democrats.

Except for a lively school issue in Virginia where candidates differ only as to the method of keeping schools racially segregated, and a brief mention of Little Rock in New Jersey, national issues have been lacking. Voter interest has been apathetic to fair.

Democrats, who have been winning most of the important state and local off-year and special elections since the Eisenhower administration began in 1953 expect to retain the Governorships in New Jersey and Virginia and the New York City mayoralty.

Republicans say they have a fairly good chance of upsetting Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner in New Jersey with Republican Malcolm S. Forbes. Meyner will be laying on the line his chances for a spot on the Democratic presidential ticket in 1960.

GOP chiefs also expect their party to hang on to the two House seats in the strongly Republican New Jersey 2nd and Pennsylvania 13th Districts.

Besides electing governors, New Jersey and Virginia will be picking state legislators, as will Kentucky. Several constitutional amendments will be on the ballot in New York and Pennsylvania, including one in the Keystone State to pay a Korean War bonus.

Here briefly is the background of the more important contests in five states:

NEW JERSEY—The race for governor between the 49-year-old Meyner and Forbes, 33-year-old State Senator and magazine publisher, is regarded as close, with most observers giving Meyner the edge. Meyner won by 153,000 votes in 1953 to end a 10-year Republican regime.

The contest has revolved mainly around state issues. However, Forbes on Oct. 15 brought the Little Rock integration crisis into the campaign and has also made taxes a big issue. He says Meyner is the "biggest spender in the state's history."

Meyner says increased state spending is due to more state aid funds for education going to local communities. He argues that all costs and services have risen and claims his administration has been efficient and economical.

Republicans have sent Vice President Nixon into the state to help Forbes. President Eisenhower for some time ago posed with Forbes for cameramen at the White House and gave him some campaign tips.

The election in New Jersey's 2nd District is to fill the vacancy created by the death of Republican Rep. T. Millet Hand. Candidates are Assemblyman Milton W. Glenn, Republican, of margate, and Joseph G. Hancock, Democrat, of Greenwich Township.

Ten of the state's 21 state senators and all 60 assemblymen will be elected. Each house is now 2 to 1 Republican.

VIRGINIA—Ejects a governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, and 100-member house of delegates. The candidates for governor are:

Democrat J. Lindsay Almond Jr., former state attorney general, who favors the state Democratic administration's program of unyielding resistance to school integration, and has the backing of the political organization headed by the veteran Sen. Byrd (D-Va). Democratic Gov. Thomas B. Stanley cannot succeed himself under state law.

Republican Ted Dalton, state senator and GOP national committeeman who gave the Democrats a scare four years ago by polling 45 per cent of the vote in his first race for governor. Dalton favors a locally administered pupil assignment plan for Virginia.

Both candidates favor continued segregation, but Dalton takes what he considers a more realistic view. He says his locally administered pupil assignment plan, such as is now in effect in North Carolina, permits only token controlled integration and has stood the test in federal courts.

Democratic leaders say Dalton will not run as strong as he did in 1953 largely because of the school issue and what they call a growing disaffection with President Eisenhower, who carried the state in 1952 and 1956.

The outlook is for a vote of between 500,000 and 600,000.

NEW YORK—Ejects 51 mayors, including those in New York City, Buffalo, Albany, Binghamton, Syracuse, Utica, Elmira and Poughkeepsie. Of the 51, Republicans now hold 29 seats, Democrats 19, and nonpartisans 3.

New York's Democratic Mayor Robert Wagner is generally expected to win his re-election bid against Republican Robert K. Christenberry, Tennessee-born hotel executive and former chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Turnouts in the city campaign have been small. Issues have included juvenile delinquency and transfer of the Giant and Dodger baseball teams from New York to the West Coast.

New York voters also will mark six proposed constitutional amendments. One would legalize bingo parties given by charitable, fraternal and religious groups. Another would approve holding a convention in 1959 to overhaul the state constitution.

PENNSYLVANIA—Ejects a House member and mayors of Pittsburgh and 22 smaller cities.

Hear Testimony On 'False Arrest'

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP)—Testimony continued here today in a $315,000 false arrest suit filed by a former soldier against Rowan County Sheriff Arthur J. Shuping and the National Security Co.

Herbert G. Hoffman contends he was falsely and maliciously arrested Oct. 25, 1955, in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Helen C. Barnes of Landis, a housewife who was found stabbed to death in her home. Officers said robbery was the motive.

Hoffman was returned here from overseas Army duty. He was acquitted.

Hoffman contends that the arrest caused him to suffer emotional shock and great expense, that he was held five weeks without privilege of contacting family or counsel and that the murder warrant was not served until after he had been held in jail five weeks.

Hoffman is seeking $165,000 in actual damages and $150,000 punitive damages.

Both Hoffman and his wife testified yesterday at the opening of the trial.

The sheriff's reply, read by his attorneys, said he acted in good faith in arresting Hoffman on the basis of evidence given by the State Bureau of Investigation, and supported by witnesses. He said also that a county court judge found probable cause for trial and that a grand jury indicted Hoffman.

DRASTIC MEASURES

QUINCY, Ill. (AP)—Magistrate Edward Moore figured John Lee, 68, was a little drastic in his action to move a fellow roomer's car that blocked his doorway.

He found Lee guilty and sentenced him to 15 days in jail for attempting to set the car on fire and trying to attack it with an ax.

and votes on proposals to pay a Korean War bonus and to liberalize absentee voting laws. A total of 5,333,056 voters are registered.

Republicans say they will retain the House seat in the 13th District, left vacant with the resignation of Republican Rep. Samuel K. McConnell Jr. Candidates are John A. LaFore Jr., Haverford Republican, and Glenn W. Preston, Oregon Democrat.

Veteran Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh appears headed for an unprecedented fourth term, although his Republican opponent, former Judge John T. Drew, has conducted a strong campaign.

KENTUCKY—Ejects a mayor in Louisville as well as half of its 38 state senators and all its 100 representatives.

Hotelmen Face Tax Fraud Case

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP)—A North Carolina and Georgia hotel man and his South Carolina attorney have been indicted for federal income tax fraud.

A federal grand jury here returned the indictment yesterday against Maurice Puckett of Asheville, N.C., and Braxton C. Wallace, a certified public accountant and lawyer of Greenwood, S.C.

Puckett, who lives in the swank Biltmore Forest residential district of Asheville, owns two of Asheville's top hotels, the Battery Park and the George Vanderbilt. He also has hotel interests in Atlanta and Savannah, Ga.

The indictment charged that Puckett and Wallace illegally withheld $27,332.44 in taxes in 1951-52-53 by not declaring Puckett's true income. The indictment said Wallace prepared all of Puckett's tax returns and named Wallace as a defendant on each charge.

The indictment also lists other income tax charges. Among offenses charged:

In 1948, the defendants backdated a deed for a Charlotte building to take advantage of a net operating loss, defrauding the government of tax on the real estate sale.

In 1950, the defendants deprived the government of $69,529 by retiring half of the capital stock of the Savannah Hotel Operating Co. in the form of a dividend which they did not report.

In 1951-52 the Savannah company paid Puckett $16,350 rental for air conditioning units which he did not declare as income.

In 1951, Puckett earned $43,260 but reported only $24,770.

In 1952, Puckett earned $35,697 but paid taxes on only $17,275.

In 1953, Puckett earned $54,695 but reported only $39,799.

Declines Prize For Good Reason

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—"Sir, I am calling to inform you that you have been awarded a $35 dancing scholarship at (a local) dance studio," said a sweet young thing in a telephone call to Gol. George S. Wallace.

"Young lady, I'm almost a hundred years old and can't walk," replied Wallace to the astonished caller.

Wallace, in his 80s and an attorney for 60 years, declined the offer.

Movie Mogul Louis B. Mayer Dies At Age 72

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Louis B. Mayer, 72, the sentimental film tycoon who assembled the biggest array of stars in motion picture history, died today.

His death was believed to have been caused by anemia, from which he had been suffering some time.

Mayer was hospitalized in San Francisco last August, but his condition improved and he was allowed to return to his southern California home Sept. 16. He had been home only a few days, when his condition deteriorated, and he was admitted to the UCLA Medical Center.

Mayer had been receiving blood transfusions several weeks.

His condition took a turn for the worse last evening.

He entered a coma and died at 12:35 a.m.

Mayer — for a quarter-century one of the movies' most powerful executives and from 1937 to 1943 the highest paid worker in the United States—began his business career assisting his father in a ship salvage business.

Born in Minsk, Russia, July 4, 1885, he was taken at three months to St. John, N. B. That was where he joined his father's business after a short public school education. He entered the fledgling movie industry as an exhibitor in Massachusetts in 1907. He became a theater owner-manager, then a film distributor and finally — needing more films to show—the co-organizer of a production company.

He came to Hollywood in 1917 and from 1924 to 1951 was executive in charge of production at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studio.

MGM climbed to greatness under the production genius of Irving Thalberg. When he died in 1936, Mayer took over direct control of production.

His great talent as a discoverer of stars brought under the MGM banner the greatest galaxy in film history.

Among them were Marie Dressler, Mae Murray, Norma Shearer, Greta Garbo, John Gilbert, Lon Chaney, Nelson Eddy, Jeanette MacDonald, Clark Gable, Judy Garland, Greer Garson, Hedy Lamarr. Others were Luise Rainer, William Powell, Myrna Loy, Robert Montgomery, Joan Crawford, Rosalind Russell, James Stewart, Robert Taylor, Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Lana Turner, Walter Pidgeon, Esther Williams, Van Johnson and Margaret O'Brien.

Norse, explorer Leif Ericsson was driven by storm onto the American coast in the year 1000 at a place he walled Wineland for the grapes he found there.

Not So Emphatic In Re-Assertion

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Gov. Goodwin J. Knight said again yesterday that he is a candidate for reelection. This time he did not say it quite as strongly, or so political observers thought.

There still was conjecture that Knight and Sen. William F. Knowland would find some way to avoid a head-on clash next June in the California Republican primary. Both have announced they would seek the gubernatorial nomination.

Knight, who has been suffering from flu, released a 550-word statement yesterday as he left for a secret vacation. He said "any-eral of Sen. Knowland's staunch supporters" had proposed a deal: They would support him for the Senate if he left the contest for governor.

Knight said, "I have not entered into any such agreement." He fell short, however, of completely ruling it out. He did not name the "staunch supporters."

The governor made reference to repeated assertions by Rep. Patrick J. Hillings (R-Calif.) that Knight was considering a federal post. Knight said he had not sought or been offered any appointment but he did not say that he would not accept one. He had added that several weeks ago.

This year spring came at once, the grass was up, first in the meadows and pastures that made up the floor of the park, then on the lower slopes of Campbell mountain.

I met with a lot of grumbling that afternoon, but all the park rangers came to the meeting. They felt, just as I did, that we ought to know what Runyan had to offer, even if nothing came of it.

Kirk Douglas Sticks His Neck Out, Doesn't Mind

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—Kirk Douglas believes that "every once in a while you have to stick your neck out."

their faces before the well-known public.
Of the interview itself, which the public will see Saturday evening, Douglas said it was completely impromptu and that Wallace "surprised me a few times. He plays a little rough, so I was a little rough too. I called him a snob—and I hope he didn't cut that out of the film."

Although Christmas is almost two months away, now is none too soon to start if you plan to send photo-greeting cards. Every year more and more people send greetings this friendly way, because photographic cards are the warmest, most personal way to say "Merry Christmas" and "Happy Holiday."

Insect World Is Full Of Oddities
STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP)—Katydids have ears on their front elbows.
Among other things you can learn from "Insects—Hunters and Trappers," a new book by Dr. Ross E. Hutchins of Mississippi State College:

Grasshoppers' ears are on the sides of their stomachs, just behind their back legs. An ant can lift a pebble 52 times its own weight. Some beetles can lift 850 times their own weight.
The only insect that uses a tool is the Ammophila wasp which uses a pebble to tamp dirt.

LONGEST SUSPENSION BRIDGE

The opening of Michigan's five-mile Mackinac Bridge, linking the upper and lower peninsula's between Mackinac City on the south and St. Ignace on the north, adds a bright new chapter to the history of American bridge building. The 100-million-dollar bridge has been under construction for four years.

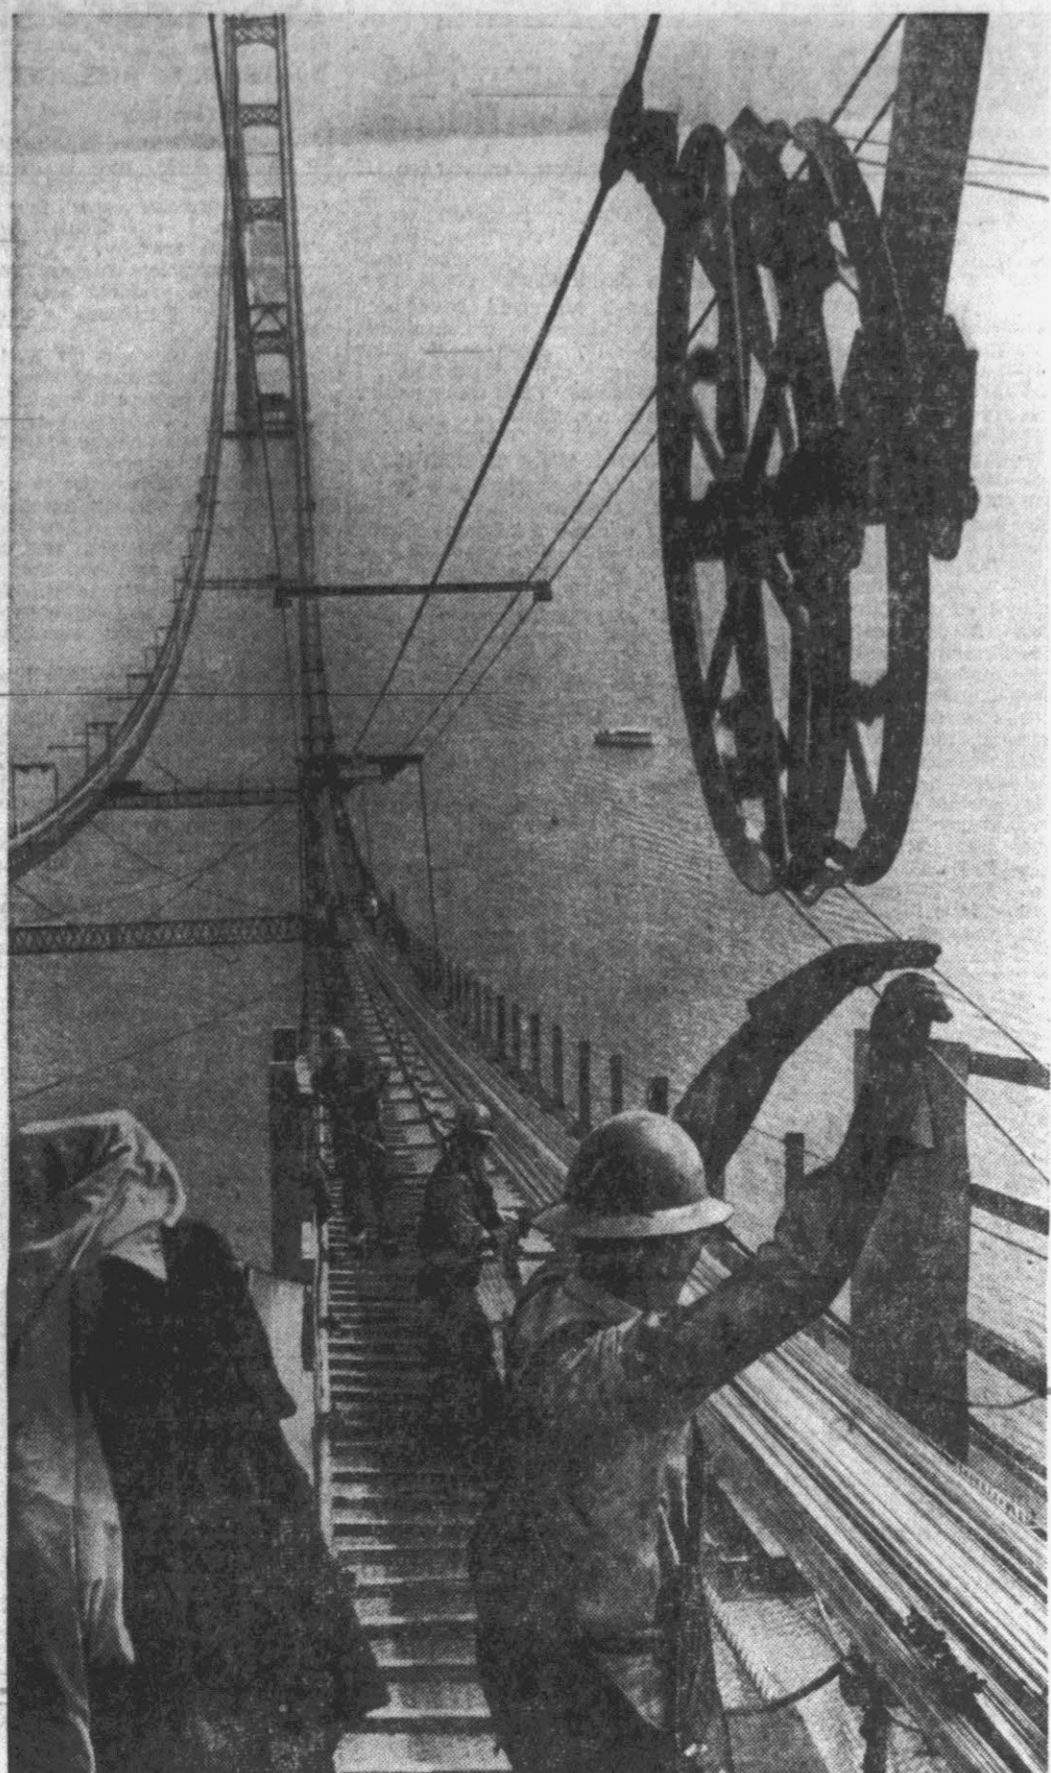

A suspension bridge in the middle of the overwater link, is 8,614 feet from anchorage to anchorage, making it the longest suspension bridge in the world, topping San Francisco's famed Golden Gate bridge by 2,164 feet. Working in turbulent water flowing through a wide glacial gorge in the middle of the strait, builders sank foundations 200 feet to bed rock, an unusual engineering feat. Special trusses help the bridge stand up to the high winds in the strait, and armor plate protects it against ice in winter. There are two approach spans of over 9,000 feet in total length, and a 48-foot roadway to accommodate four lanes of traffic.

Michigan's mighty Mackinac Bridge, with its two approach spans, stretches for five miles across the Straits of Mackinac.

Spinning the main suspension cables high over the water was herculean job.

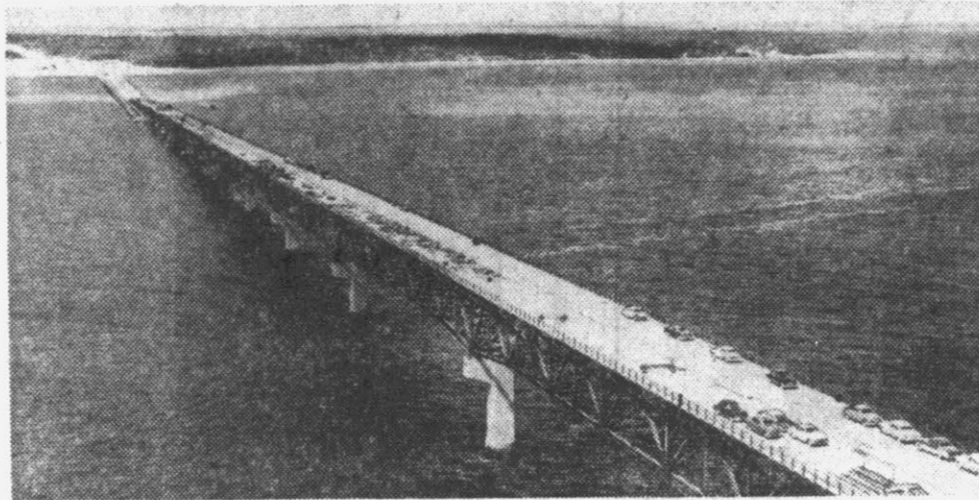

Dr. D. B. Steinman, world-famous consulting engineer and designer of bridge, inspects project.

Steel truss sections were pre-assembled into 120-foot-long sections. Floated to site on barges, they were lifted into place.

Bridgemen, working high above the Straits, "squeeze" the 12,580 wires of each cable into compact cylindrical mass.

Bridge approach spans range up to 560 feet in length.

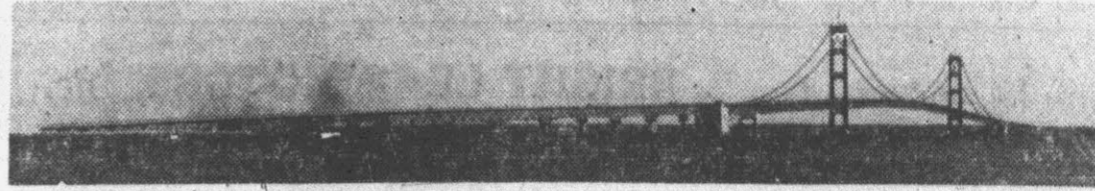

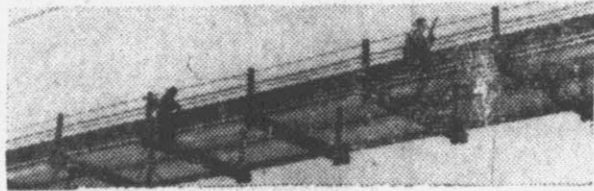

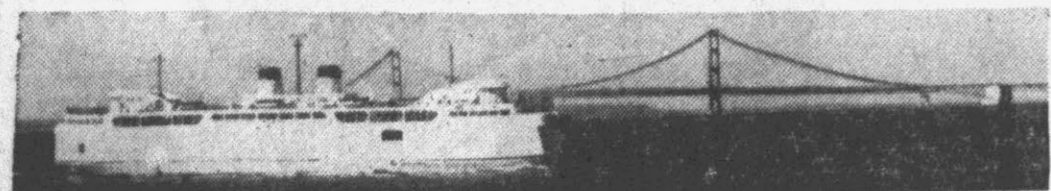

Tourists on ferry act as "sidewalk superintendents" during construction.

Last steel deck surface section is laid into place.
