Firemen Unable To Save Flaming Dwelling

GRIMESLAND HOUSE BURNS ... teacher's dwelling destroyed this morning.

Grimesland Family Loses Home, Belongings In Fire

GRIMESLAND—A four-room frame house, the home of a local teacher, his wife and two children, was destroyed by flames here this morning.

The dwelling was owned and occupied by M. W. Rountree, Negro, a teacher at Pitt County Training School.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Febbie Greene, Negro, who lives nearby. She said the flames were burning near the top of the house and at the kitchen in the rear of the dwelling when she saw them.

Two Pitt Schools Hit By Flu

Two Negro schools in the Pitt County system today became the hardest-hit victims of a flu-like disease sweeping through the county.

County Superintendent D. H. Conley said Sallie Branch School of Route 4 and Nichols School of Bell Arthur were both in "bad shape."

Fifteen Gov't Heads Of NATO Schedule Meeting

PARIS (AP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization officials announced today that the government chiefs of its 15 member nations will attend its December council meeting in Paris.

An announcement was expected from the White House in Washington today that President Eisenhower would lead the American delegation to the summit conference, an outgrowth of the President's meeting with British Prime Minister Macmillan in Washington last week.

Both Eisenhower and Macmillan had withheld announcement of their plans to attend the December council until the NATO notification but it was generally known they would be on hand.

One Israeli Minister Badly Hurt By Grenade

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel's social welfare minister was reported in serious condition today, a victim of a deranged young Jew who hurled a small grenade into the Israeli Parliament.

Most continuously since its founding, was injured superficially on his hands and left leg by bomb splinters. He was hospitalized overnight although he insisted on going home.

Both the Washington meeting and plans for the NATO summit meeting were a reaction to several recent major developments in Russia. These included:

Premier David Ben-Gurion, Foreign Minister Golda Meir and two other Cabinet ministers escaped with minor injuries when the explosive went off last night near the speakers' dais.

Communications Minister Moshe Carmel, who suffered a broken bone in the left arm, was also hospitalized.

1. Apparent development of Soviet guided missiles to a point that threatens NATO members in Europe and possibly the United States.

Police said the grenade was thrown from the rear of the public gallery by Moshe Ben Jacob Douek, 25, a former patient in a mental hospital. A maintenance employee nabbed him.

Health Minister Israel Barzilai was scratched but returned to Parliament when the session was resumed about two hours after the bombing. Small holes blown in the walls and floor were the only visible signs of the incident.

2. Launching of Sputnik, the Soviet earth satellite.

Not until the inmates heard Heyns' voice over their radios in the big maximum security building would they release the guards and turn over weapons that included two makeshift knives, some razor blades and a tear gas riot gun.

Heyns, who raced to Spokane, 15 miles away, in a state patrol car to make the broadcasts over a commercial radio station, didn't say enough in his first statement.

Albert Hutchings, chief security guard at the building, resigned Monday at Heyns' request and the inmates had read newspaper accounts of it. Heyns said they apparently thought Hutchings' departure would change the treatment system.

Oppose Change

A group of between 20 and 25 local merchants voted unanimously to continue their regular Friday hours at a special meeting held this morning.

A spokesman, Jim Taylor, stated the group agreed to begin opening on Friday evenings in preparation for the Christmas holiday shoppers on Dec. 6. The stores will remain open on Friday nights until 9 o'clock through the holidays, Taylor added.

According to reports today six local business firms will be open this Friday evening. They are: W. T. Grant, Belk-Tyler's, J. C. Penney, Sauced's, Collins-Pridmore and Bostic-Sugg Furniture Co.

Greenville Couple 'Strike Gold' In Irish Sweepstake

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Clark, Jr. of Greenville were $140,000 richer (before taxes) today after Stephanotis, a 100 to 6 long shot romped over the finish line to win the Cambridgehire Handicap at New Market, England.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark held an Irish Hospital sweepstake ticket on the winner which has been sent to them by Mrs. Clark's mother in Berkeley, Calif.

This morning, but didn't find anything about the winner of the race. Ariane called me from home and said she had just received a telephone call from her mother in California who said a San Francisco paper had informed her that the ticket had won.

unexpired term as Register of Deeds for Pitt County before resigning that position to become commercial manager of television station WNCT while that organization was being formed.

"It's a hell of a surprise," Clark said this morning when he was able to confirm earlier information that they held a winning ticket.

"I kept trying to get confirmation of the winner," he told the Reflector this morning, "but didn't really know until you called me."

As for the future, the Clarks asserted, "We are going to continue working like nothing has happened."

As the definite plans for their winnings, the Clarks say they have none at the moment. "I do plan to pay my bills," Clark quipped with a broad smile, "and that should make some of my creditors in Greenville very happy."

"What really surprised me is that we really had this luck," said Ariane, his attractive wife. "Mother sent us a ticket and we made it. I guess I am excited. I'm trying to keep myself down. It's hard to believe."

"Please say we haven't received any money yet," Mrs. Clark told a reporter. "We haven't received it and we don't know when we will."

The Clarks returned to Greenville from New York and opened The House On Fourth, a ladies fashion store which they operated for a time. Later Clark filled an

"The upshot of the whole matter is that the U. S. government gets the windfall out of it," Clark said. He figures the government will take something like $111,000 for their winnings on the sweepstake ticket. The couple added that they will split their winnings with Mrs. Clark's mother, Mrs. Marie Mildner of Berkeley who sent them the ticket.

The Clarks' excitement over their sweepstake ticket began yesterday when they received a letter from Ireland informing them they had drawn a horse, Stephanotis, in the race. That alone meant they would receive about $1,000.

After receiving the letter we read the information we had," Clark said, "and assumed the race would be run today. We calculated it would be run about 10 o'clock this morning our time. I checked the news wire at the television station several times

Conley said that among the county schools, Negro units are apparently suffering most from absences. He said some schools were reporting decreases in the number of absences and that county schools would definitely remain open for tomorrow's and Friday's classes unless there were unanticipated large increases in absences.

Eisenhower told a news conference he would like very much to visit England on the same trip but does not know whether he will be able to.

In his news conference remarks, Eisenhower placed great importance on what he called the NATO concept of collective security and defense. He and Macmillan already have reached preliminary agreement to pool Anglo-American scientific resources in an effort to overtake and surpass Russia.

Under terms of the Syrian resolution, two of the seven commission members would be named by Syria, two by Turkey and the other three by common consent of the two governments.

Included in today's report from the city schools were 617 in the white schools and 342 in the Negro schools.

The idea of Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and the other NATO chiefs of government attending the Paris conference was first broached last provision that the new body would be empowered to investigate the situation on both sides of the Turkish-Syrian border.

Conley added, however, that absences during the remainder of the week would be checked and that a special report would be given to the Pitt County Board of Education which is scheduled to meet Monday morning. The board meeting is the regular November assembly for the group.

Eisenhower said today he plans to attend the mid-December NATO Council meeting in Paris—assuming a majority of the heads of the government of the other 14 member nations also attend.

He did not say so specifically, but he obviously had in mind such recent developments as Russian progress in the ballistic missile field and the Soviet launching of an earth satellite.

Revolt Of Criminally Insane Is Subdued

MEDICAL LAKE, Wash. (AP)—Simmering unrest among criminally insane patients at the State Mental Hospital blew up into a dramatic nine-hour revolt that ended harmlessly last night for 36 hostages.

Heyns, who raced to Spokane, 15 miles away, in a state patrol car to make the broadcasts over a commercial radio station, didn't say enough in his first statement.

Albert Hutchings, chief security guard at the building, resigned Monday at Heyns' request and the inmates had read newspaper accounts of it.

Transforming Metals Expertly

First Step . . . Mrs. J. C. Williamson of Bethel traces desired design.

Second Step . . . Mrs. Russell James of Bethel applies sulphur solution.

Approximately 60 Pitt County Home Demonstration Club members attended a two-day workshop on planters and plaques held in the Home Demonstration Auditorium at the old hospital building.

The last of two workshops was completed today. They were instructed by Miss Marjorie Shearin, Food Conservation and Marketing specialist at State College.

Planters and plaques were made from copper and brass metals by those attending the workshop. They traced a design on the metal planters and plaques.

Then embossing was done. Embossing is a process by which the design is raised on the metal. Sulphur solution was applied. By rubbing, this turned the metal dark to complete the process.

Planters were finished after the metal strip was tacked around the outside. The plaques and planters are to be used throughout the Home Demonstration members' homes and in Home Demonstration clubhouses.

The Sans Souci Book Club was delightfully entertained on Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Fred Forbes. After being welcomed by the hostess the guests were invited into the living room where a profusion of yellow chrysanthemums and softly shaded lights added much to the pleasure of the afternoon. The routine business was quickly dispensed with and the books exchanged and discussed giving time for the interesting program on Greece, which

History Can Be Financial Asset

History, long viewed by North Carolina as so many musty yellowed pages and crumbling, illegible records, tumbled-down shacks and decaying buildings, is taking on a new look.

In many quarters of the state it is being viewed as a major attraction to gain more of the tourist dollars for the Tar Heel state.

Neither view of the state's history is in itself entirely correct. Yet, this latter interpretation of the state's past is making some sections sit up and take notice of the part they have played in shaping the course of the state and the nation.

Dr. Christopher Crittenden, director of the State Department of Archives and History, has asserted restoration and preservation of the state's historical sites could bring the state an additional $42 million annually in tourist trade. What's more, the state, in cooperation with cities and counties, is making progress in its program of putting on public display its historic sites.

North Carolina for decades has resigned itself to a place of secondary historical importance between the Old Dominion State to the North, and the Palmetto State to the South. It has left to its neighbors, north and south, the envious position of gaining reputations of states steeped in history. North Carolina largely has ignored its own historical sites so far as publicizing them as tourist attractions is concerned.

The tourist business is big business in North Carolina. But it can be even bigger if the state and its local governments realize that history has also become big business in the United States. Restoration of Tryon Palace in New Bern is destined to become a major historic site in this section of the nation. The Bentonville Battleground in Johnston County, scene of the largest battle ever fought in North Carolina, will also attract many visitors over the years. So too will hundreds of lesser historic sites if North Carolina will but make them presentable and point them up as tourist attractions.

It would be a mistake for North Carolina or any other state to approach its history from purely a commercial standpoint. At the same time if the commercial aspect of restoring historic sites in the state can provide the impetus for advancement in this field, it will serve the state in two ways: To make native Tar Heels more aware of the history of their state, and to provide points of interest which will attract outsiders to North Carolina.

One Step Forward Is Fine, But More Await

Defense Secretary McElroy has taken a step in the right direction with his order restoring to the Armed Forces the $1.7 billions for basic research lopped off by order of his predecessor Defense Secretary Wilson.

Congress had appropriated the funds for basic research with the feeling it was needed to keep the scientific development program of the United States on a par with that of other nations. Events of recent weeks has made it clear that the United States can ill afford to curtail its scientific research and development programs. If any change is made, these programs must be accelerated.

McElroy's step is one in the right direction. Yet it is only one in a series of steps which must be taken if this nation is to reap from its research program the kind of results the taxpayers want and have the right to expect.

The major undertaking for McElroy in his new job as Secretary of Defense, is a consolidation of the many scientific research and development programs—particularly in the nuclear field—which are now being carried on by various branches of the Armed Forces.

As The Reflector has said before, indications point to the conclusion that the United States, through duplication of research efforts by branches of the Armed Forces, is wasting countless man-hours as well as dollars. Through a practical consolidation of this work, basic research could be accelerated and more results realized from funds now being spent.

Urge To Merge Given Incentives

By ELMER ROESSNER

Both inflation and the remedy for inflation have sped the urge to merge.

Inflation has long been a causative factor. Higher costs of materials and higher wages have required higher amounts of operating capital. Companies without capital to replenish inventories and to maintain payrolls until they, too, could get higher prices have had painful alternatives: they could liquidate or merge. Most merged.

The Federal Reserve has tightened the supply of money in an effort to check inflation. Paradoxically, this remedy has caused mergers no less than inflation itself.

It has created a sort of push-pull action.

HOW IT PUSHES, PULLS
With the cost of borrowed money higher, lenders are more choosy about whom they lend to. A company may be highly solvent yet lack cash because much of its assets are tied up in inventory and accounts receivable. Often it becomes necessary to replace equipment, add new products or expand selling efforts to survive.

The alternative may be to merge. A company in more liquid condition, in short, the company is pushed.

On the other hand, a large company may find itself with high earnings and ample cash. It may, of course, increase its dividends. But it may serve its stockholders better by acquiring another company, especially a sound one that needs operating cash. Thus the tight money situation enables a liquid company to pull in another.

HIGH COST OF SELLING
Another causative factor in mergers has been often overlooked by business analysts. That's skyrocketing costs of keeping salesmen on the road.

Almost every business engaged in personal selling has been wrestling with sales costs. Those that have to keep representatives constantly traveling have been especially troubled. Transportation, hotels, meals, entertainment and incidentals can run to $1,000 a week or more—before salary and commissions—these days.

One way to reduce the ratio between costs and sales is to add new products. When this isn't feasible, a handy alternative is to merge with another company that has more products—and the same problem.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR MERGERS
Meanwhile, a couple of experts in the field have suggested a substitute for mergers. In a paper presented to the American Management Association, Arthur P. Marlin, vice president of Diversification Institute, and Dale Berman, analyst for Bond, Watkins, Jason & Co., suggested the establishment of joint subsidiaries.

In other words, companies A and B can set up subsidiary C instead of merging. They can put as much money and other assets into the subsidiary as seems advisable and the subsidiaries can take over as many functions of companies A and B as may be agreed upon.

A joint subsidiary, the experts say, can provide for expansion and most other benefits of a merger and, at the same time avoid the risk of legal attack.

"The savings joint subsidiaries effect by helping parent companies to make their capital go further are no less important a factor in their wide adoption than the savings they make through risk sharing," the report said.

There is a danger that earnings of joint subsidiaries can be doubly taxed, a danger that must be weighed against other advantages.

BEST OF NEW BOOKS FOR MANAGEMENT MEN

Among the new books of special values to businessmen are these:

"Motivation in Advertising," by Pierre Martineau, the result of years of study into what makes people buy. Not quite as excited as Vance Packard's "Hidden Persuaders," but more useful to the advertiser who wants to make sales. (McGraw-Hill, 201 pages, $5.50.)

"Adventures in Small Business," 119 success stories by the editors of Fortune. (McGraw-Hill, 273 pages, $3.75.)

"How to Make Money Make Money," by Henry Gellerman, a Bache executive. A good, basic treatise on investing. (Crowell, 296 pages, $4.50.)

"The Techniques of Delegating," by Donald A. and Eleanor C. Laird. Guidance on the toughest job in management. (McGraw-Hill, 179 pages, $3.95.)

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
COST OF LOYALTY

One of the great New Testament scholars of modern times, in speaking about Christians who lived during the first century or two after our Lord's ascension, says that they were the most enthusiastic group that ever appeared in human history, that they were irrepressibly happy, and always in trouble.

Why were they always in trouble? For the simple reason that no matter in what century we live or in what sphere we move, there is always a penalty attached to being loyal. If we are unshakably loyal to certain friends, there are others who will want our friendship and who will be jealous and provoked at us because of this loyalty. If we are loyal to our religious faith, there will be many who will lose no opportunity to sneer at us and call us fanatics. The early Christians were loyal to their emperor but they refused to acknowledge him a god, because they had a higher loyalty—their loyalty to the heavenly King, Jesus. So thousands of them were cruelly put to death and hundreds of thousands felt the sting of suffering, because of their loyalty.

All of us need to realize that it costs something to be loyal. The people who try to slip through life being loyal to nothing but their own selfish desires are miserable creatures. In fact, they are lost souls.

Loyalty means the willingness at times to stand up and be counted. It brings great joy; it brings discomfort and sometimes suffering. But it is worth what it costs.

An Old Home Is Doomed

Workmen are now building a barricade around the old Reflector building at Evans and Third St. in preparation for rebuilding the structure.

As I walked by the other day I couldn't resist the temptation to step in and take one last look around the old premises which served the Daily Reflector for so many years.

The structure stood just as it was left a little more than a year ago when the Reflector employees pulled up stakes and moved lock, stock and printer's ink to the new building slightly more than a block away.

The old building was strangely quiet to one who had been accustomed to the hustle and bustle of the old days.

Downstairs in the back portion of the structure where the Reflector's old 16-page press had thundered away day-after-day through many an edition there is now only a big gapping hole.

Upstairs a little more than a year ago, Lin-o-types had chattered each day until they ground out enough type to fill the Reflector's pages.

Now only electrical conduits peep through the floor to show where the intricate machines once sat.

I walked into the old newsroom which in early days had served as a private office. As the newspaper grew it was converted to the use of the news staff and before the Reflector moved from the overburdened old building, six staffers were finally jammed into the tiny room.

The building, which will soon feel the blows of the wrecker's hammers, has stood through many a year.

Built in the late 1890's it was purchased by the newspaper around the turn of the century. Then, of course, the daily was a tiny paper in a tiny Pitt County town. The structure provided more than adequate room for the paper's growth for many, many years and offices and equipment were placed in various sections of the structure from time-to-time.

Finally in the '30s everything was consolidated in the downstairs portion with upstairs offices being rented out.

It continued that way until 1947 when, the expanding newspaper, finding it needed more room, moved composing room and news offices upstairs.

That gave double the amount of space for publishing the paper. But the newspaper had entered an unprecedented period of growth and in a few years even that proved to be insufficient.

Thus it was that the publishers decided to build a new building on Cotanche St.

With the old building vacant some disposition of it had to be made. Finally the owners decided to rip it down to the brick walls and to remove the upper story. When the new structure is completed it will be practically a new building.

An era will have ended for the Reflector and for Greenville.

Funds continued to come in after September 1. Many contributions were made in memory of R.P. Holding, who died suddenly the last week in August after he had assumed a leading role in the emergency fund drive.

On Thursday of this week the $2,000 note was cancelled. Contributions totaling $2,077.70 had been received by the Bentonville Battleground Association since the loan was obtained and the Bentonville property purchased.

Bullets In His Body

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Here in the city beautiful that nearly every day can greet a dawn with a homicide, there came a sudden death that gave the millions pause.

It was a different death. It was not a routine death in a city where many strange ways of death are routine.

This was a gaudier death, the going away with five bullets in his body of the kind of a man who dies with big money in his pocket but who when alive, while often arrested is rarely convicted.

It is the kind of a story that is big news to City Hall and to the man who rides into work here from the suburbs, a source of gossip from the Bowers flophouse to Park Ave.

It is an example of the "law beyond the law"—the tale of a man who many people think deserves to be killed but he is killed by the people, but by his people.

His death may be justice but it is not law. Police officials announce 100 detectives have been assigned to search for the killers, but very few of the 8 1/2 million people who live here think the 100 will bring the two killers to successful trial; nor do they worry much.

For some reason that amazes more civilized nations, many Americans and some of the law officers they hire feel that justice is done when one underworld character exterminates another, a legal and moral attitude as indefensible as it is indigenous.

When I read in the papers that Albert Anastasia had been slain in the same New York hotel out of which Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, had struggled, clutching a dying belly, I could not escape the thought that these gangsters, like the German forces I had met in war, were military creatures of a military mind, and sometimes were guilty of confronting a new situation with a habit rather than an improvisation.

As an observer of death on many fronts, however, some artistic and some inartistic, I must say the two-man execution of Anastasia marks a postwar low in the art of public assassination.

The whole picture is one of seclusion, not only from the viewpoint of those who fired but from the standpoint of those who ordered the triggers pulled. They belong in lime — those who pulled the triggers. And those who gave the orders belong in the electric chair.

The picture: They must have been nervous, and that is bad. First, as their victim is sitting in a barber chair, they start talking to the barber. By the time they say the first word they are late to the job.

Then they fired 10 shots at close range and were lucky that some of the five hit, according to the papers.

This percentage of target inaccuracy illustrates the danger of conversation during business hours. In wartime I have met able, disciplined soldiers who would hang their heads at this kind of a performance.

But the two must have had a well-organized plan, for the way I look at it they had flanking protectors and blockers outside the shop to take care of the outside possible interrupters. And I rather doubt that the men who shot Anastasia ran for a subway.

It would be so much simpler to stroll on an elevator and go upstairs and eat food in quiet in a room registered by another man, and enjoy television in peace. Let the second stringers dispose of the guns.

I realize this theory requires the employment of at least five men to kill one. But it is hard to figure how they could have used fewer and been sure of coping with the traffic problem.

Opinions In Brief

"An assessor in telling of his county's tax levy refers to it as a normal increase. What's that, we'd like to know? And how about a normal decrease?" — Sherman County (Ore.) Journal.

"The products of American industry—undreamed of luxuries a century ago—could not distribute until advertising created new demands. The early communist government in Russia considered advertising to be an economic waste. However, the Russians found that people accustomed to doing without would buy even necessities once they became available without advertising. Today, consumer advertising is common in Russia." — Piger, Nebraska, Enterprise.

support in Knowland's attempt to win the California gubernatorial nomination from Goodwin J. Knight, Vice President obviously believes that union bosses' excessive domination of their members' affairs should be checked.

Although favoring foreign aid, Nixon feels that private loans rather than Federal funds should assume greater responsibilities. In contrast to Ike's defense of Federal expenditures and expansion at the Sloan testimonial in New York, the V.P. says:

"Government capital is in a sense crisis capital. The source of investment funds that can be greatly expanded is private capital. There are budgetary limits to what the government can do. The most productive source of economic progress is private rather than government enterprise."

In none of these remarks has Nixon broken with the President. But he certainly does differ in degree, in definiteness and in emphasis. And he most assuredly does not like an overenthusiastic "modern Republican," which will suit GOP conservatives on Capitol Hill.

Adams, Charles E. Wilson and Clarence B. Randall. He does not regard them as a "scientific stunt" or a "score in a basketball game in outer space," as they said.

He warned that it would require stern effort and possible financial sacrifice to match the Communists. He thinks that the general national defense program could stand an overhauling and possible expansion.

As against some Republicans' demand for a political tax cut, and Eisenhower's insistence on a balanced budget, he believes that both ideas may have to be subordinated to national security needs.

Senior Class members packed a lot of activity into a few days last week.

Class superlatives were selected Thursday, and on Friday, the class members were visited by a publishinghouse representative who took orders for graduation invitations, thank you notes, memory books, calling cards and appreciation folders.

Also during the week the Seniors selected their caps and gowns for 1958 commencement exercises, choosing to use white again. Another activity by the group included discussions with a representative of Hunter Publishing Company which will publish the school annual. The representative met with members of the yearbook staff and assisted them in laying out material in the book.

Solemnity Was Briefly Broken

BALTIMORE (AP)—It was a generally solemn occasion as Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin inspected The Maryland Penitentiary yesterday.

But Warden Vernon L. Papercack managed to draw a chuckle from the governor when he referred to the penitentiary's hospital dispensary as "our out-patient department."

Youngsters Told 'Shave If Needed'

LEBANON, Ind. (AP)—First grade pupils at St. Joseph School brought home notes announcing they will have their pictures taken Thursday.

Instructions to the boys said: "Have clean face, hair well combed, shave if needed."

FALLS TO DEATH

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Charles Muirhead, 45, started up an 80 foot light standard to replace a burned out bulb above the San Jose State College football stadium.

Sixty feet up he fell; crashed to death in the bleachers.

Paving Roller Failed On Grade

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—George Rickett started up steep Douglas St., on an eight-ton paving roller, but quickly found the monster sliding back down — although the rollers still were turning forward.

"There wasn't much I could do," said Rickett. "These things don't have brakes; just clutches." After backing sliding one block, the roller cracked a telephone pole and hit two parked cars before stopping.

No one was hurt.

Highway Bids Top $5 Millions

RALEIGH (AP)—Low bids on two relocation projects on the interstate highway system have run to a total of $5,124,200.

The figure was reported by the State Highway Department yesterday after it opened bids on eight road improvement projects. The interstate jobs accounted for the major share of the $5,919,967.66 total of low bids for all eight projects.

The State Highway Commission will review the low bids, calling for 27 1/2 miles of work in nine counties, at a meeting here Nov. 4-5. At the same meeting, citizens of the central and eastern part of the state will attend a public hearing on road problems.

One of the interstate projects will provide grading and structures on 10.27 miles of relocating U.S. 158 from a point in Davie County to the Winston-Salem city limits. Low bids totaled $2,842,110.55, including $1,909,984.95 for 13 big structures and $932,126 for dual lane grading and house moving.

Low bids totaled $2,282,198.20 on the other interstate job, which calls for 9.04 miles of relocation on U.S. 70 from near Effland towards the Durham County line. Construction of 11 major bridges was estimated at $944,916, dual-lane grading called for $1,327,882.20, and house moving was set at $9,400.

58 FORD COMING NOV. 7

Nothing newer

AROUND THE WORLD

The 58 Ford has been proved around the world. This is the most dramatic and most grueling test ever given a new car before its public announcement.

The whole world was used as a test track for the 58 Ford. The car drove through England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, India, Malaya, Thailand, Cambodia, Vietnam, and finally back to the place it started—Detroit, Michigan, U.S.A.

The Ford powered over the great mountain ranges of three continents: from the Alps to the Himalayas and the Rockies. It crossed the great rivers of history: the Thames, the Seine, the Tiber, the Arno, the Tigris, the Euphrates, the Indus, the Ganges.

This car stood at Buckingham Palace, rolled up the Champs Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe, and paused at the Eiffel Tower. It was greeted by the great Paris courtesiers at the famous fashion salons where its "sculptured in steel" styling was applauded by the most style-conscious audience in the world.

The 58 Ford rode smoothly down the rugged, beautiful seacoast of Tito's country, to a festival in Dubrovnik, and into Greece to Athens, where this newest classic met such ancient classics as the Parthenon and the Temple of Poseidon.

Into Turkey: and the 58 Ford passed the great white lacework palaces of the Sultans along the Bosphorus and the Golden Horn. Then the Ford went where few but nomads travel, up into the hot days and chill nights of the ancient mountains of Afghanistan. And thence along the route Alexander the Great followed with his chariots to cross the historic Indus river.

On and on the Ford moved, down into the heat of mysterious India, through New Delhi to the Taj Mahal, and to the great pink palace of the Maharajah of Jaipur.

This great new car met the challenge of the monsoons—rains that for centuries have stopped all road movement throughout Indo-China, but didn't stop the 58 Ford. It drove on to Penang in Malaya, and then north to Bangkok.

Further on came Saigon, the Paris of the Orient, at the farthest tip of Southeast Asia. Finally, it powered across the great Rockies and plains of North America and back, at long last, to Detroit, Michigan.

The 58 Ford . . . has been proved and approved around the world. A natural question arises. Why did Ford go to such great lengths with its 1958 model? Why spend so much money and time and go through all the problems of negotiations, customs, border transit, diplomacy in so many countries?

The answer: in the competitive automobile market of today, only the best in all-around value can survive. And this round-the-world test is the most decisive possible demonstration of the best.

The 1958 Ford is value: hard-dollar value. It is also style, power, performance, and a dozen great new features. But above all, it is value.

This is the car you've been waiting for. See it November 7—there's nothing newer in the world than the 58 Ford!

Will Broadcast Salute To Youth

The Mutual Broadcasting System, for the second consecutive year, will broadcast a special radio "Salute To Youth Honor Day" direct from the world-famed Moose Child City, Mooseheart, Ill., on Thursday, according to Ed Lewis, secretary of the local Moose lodge.

Locally this special program will be broadcast over radio station WGTO at 7:15 p.m., he announced. It will be made available to more than 500 stations by the Mutual Broadcasting System.

This special program will feature the children of Mooseheart who will salute their counterparts throughout all of America. The 75-piece student band of the Moose Child City, the 65-voice combined Catholic and Protestant child choruses, the talented Girls' Drum and Bugle Corps, and the 80-piece Symphony Orchestra will all participate in this event.

The 15-minute radio show will be a musical salute to millions of boys and girls throughout America who on that night will be celebrating Moose Youth Honor Day with parties, dances, movies and other constructive programs instead of indulging in vandalism on this Halloween.

January Will See End Of Secondary Road Survey

CHARLOTTE (AP)—By the end of January, every mile of the state's secondary road system will have been surveyed and "everyone will know exactly where his road stands," a State Highway Commission official said here yesterday.

Harold Makepeace of Sanford, director of the state's secondary road department, said that after the survey is completed engineers will know what is needed to bring the secondary routes up to minimum requirements as traffic arteries.

Makepeace conferred with Mecklenburg and Union county officials in one of many meetings planned around the state on how road work is to be handled under the state's new highway commission setup.

There are presently 58,000 miles of secondary roads, Makepeace said. When the survey is completed, "everyone will know exactly where his road stands, what

Pirates Work Hard For Possible 'Last Chance'

JAMES SPEIGHT ... looking good in ECC drills.

East Carolina's still-winless football team has been working hard this week, preparing for what may be their last chance to record a victory this season.

Monday, ECC heard a scouting report on the Appalachian club and started working offensively on a plan to upset their conference foes.

Rock Fish Rodeo Plans Complete

Plans for the Annual Rock Fish Rodeo in Elizabeth City have been completed with an opening Fish Fry on November 15, at the Elizabeth City Shipyard.

Maryland Record Gives Giese No Peace Of Mind

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The fact that Maryland has lost four football games this season doesn't make South Carolina Coach Warren Giese overoptimistic about his own team's chances against the Terps on Saturday.

Duke No. 7, N.C. State No. 10 and Tennessee No. 17. Maryland has won ACC games from North Carolina and Wake Forest.

Giese, seeking South Carolina's first Atlantic Coast Conference victory in three starts, came to his present job just two seasons ago from Maryland.

North Carolina State, undefeated by twice-tied, staged a lengthy defensive scrimmage yesterday against reserves running Wake Forest plays, the Wolfpack's next opponent.

All four of Maryland defeats were to teams ranked in the top 20 nationally: Texas A&M is No. 1.

Hawaii was annexed to the United States in 1898.

The Oregon State Beavers aren't eligible for a Rose Bowl bid this year because of the no-repeat rule, but Coach Tommy Prothro fully expects his charges to win the Pacific Coast Conference championship.

Phants' Game With Wilson Is Still 'On'

Coach Bud Phillips, whose Greenville high school gridders have been crippled with the flu for the past two weeks, said this morning that the GHS-Wilson game scheduled for this Friday "is on, as far as we know at the present time."

Akins KOs Tony DeMarco, Claims Welter Crown

BOSTON (AP) — Virgil Akins personally assumed leadership in a mixed-up welterweight division today with any tournament to decide a world-recognized champion hanging on a probable rematch with Tony DeMarco.

"I'm the champion and now all those guys who've ducked me can get in line," Akins said after accepting a belt as the recognized titleholder in Massachusetts, supported by Illinois.

At present, three regular ball-players are still on the sick list. Albert Crawford and Norfleet Felton, both centers, have not reported to drill, John Boyd, a regular defensive halfback who also sees duty at times offensively, was in light logs yesterday.

Wilson, a AAA club with a 6-2 season record, is regarded one of the strongest teams in Eastern North Carolina football circles. Last week, the Cyclones were edged 21-20 by Wilmington, dropping them from the Eastern AAA Conference football title race.

Intramural Tourney At ECC To Begin Monday

With touch football season ending its regular play this Friday, a tournament to determine the final league championship will start next Monday.

Intramural Leaders Continue To Pace Entries

With ten big games scheduled for last week and the early part of this week, there was quite a bit of action on the intramural football field as the EPO and the Country Gentlemen continued to pace the winners.

John Spooner and Gary Treon all got into the scoring act. In another game last week the Country Gentlemen poured it on for the second straight time to top Kappa Sigma Nu 33 to 2. It was Treon, Spooner, Bob Watkin, Cahoon and Swaine who did their team's scoring.

Rats rolled over Phi Gamma Pi by a score of 51 to 0. Every man on the River Rats' squad scored. On Tuesday the Delta Sigma Rho turned back a late rally by the ROTC to come out on top by a margin of 21 to 12. Tom Edison's seven points paced Delta Sig while Gerald Duffy, Buddy Whitfield and Wade Nixon scored the remaining points.

Al Vaughn and George Williams, this team has improved quite a bit in the last few games. They won the intramural football championship last year and are tournament favorites if they have the above mentioned players available.

The resident of Inglewood, Calif. was given his unconditional release of the St. Louis Cards at the close of the 1956 campaign. He was picked up by the Giants as a free agent.

Cast Is Chosen For Ayden Senior Play

By SANDRA MCLAWHON Ayden School Reporter

The past week has been a full and exciting one for Ayden High School students. High-light of the week was selection of cast members of the Senior Play, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," a three-act comedy adapted from the novel by John Fox, Jr. Students who were given roles in the play are Carl Nobles, John Hart, Shirley Moseley, Annette Dail, Wayland McGlohon, Pattie McCay, Billy Norris, Brenda Davis, Suzanne Taylor, Julaine Cannon, Tommy Edwards, Brenda Little and Carol Lynne Cavileer.

Basketball cheerleaders for the 1957-1958 season were also chosen during the week. Brenda Davis was named chief of seven-member squad which also includes Pattie McCay, Suzanne Taylor, Julaine Cannon, Sandra McLawhion, Shirley Moseley and Carolyn Turnage.

Pattie McCay, sponsored by Tommy Edwards, has been elected Homecoming Queen and will reign over Friday's Homecoming activities, including the football game with Tarboro. Pattie was elected by the student body, after members of the football team had selected the contestants. Other nominees included first runner-up Brenda Davis, second runner-up Lynne Cavileer, Suzanne Taylor, Barbara Worthington, Peggy Wood, Francine Cannon, Carolyn Turnage, Dawne Rouse, Carolyn Booth, Gloria Crawley, Camilla Surrall and Sue Fort.

Homecoming activities Friday will be launched with a parade at 2:30 p.m. The Ayden-Winterville High School Band will furnish music and sponsors for Ayden football players will ride in the parade. The football game, which will begin at 8 p.m., will feature half-time activities that will include coronation of the queen and a special musical salute by the band. A Homecoming Dance, at the Ayden Community Building after the game, will complete the festivities.

Ayden's Junior Varsity football team completed an undefeated season last Thursday by beating Farmville's Jayvees. The victory gave the Tornado Juniors a record of six wins and no losses for the year.

A Halloween Carnival has been scheduled for Thursday night. An innovation for this year's carnival will be a popularity contest, which is taking the place of the baby contest of previous years. Students in any of the 12 grades in Ayden's schools are eligible for the contest and the winner will be selected by other students.

Three students and their advisor returned yesterday from Hickory where they participated in the North Carolina Student Council Congress. Tommy Edwards, Freddie Skinner and James Ross were student delegates to the three-day meeting. They were accompanied by Mrs. LaRue Evans, Student Council advisor.

Members of the Future Business Leaders of America chapter have set up committees and projects for the school year. Among the proposed projects 100 per cent attendance at the state convention, caring for the bulletin board in the reception room, redecorating the business department, and sponsoring a "Career Day" in Ayden High School this year.

Pet's Barking Guided Search

REDDING, Calif. (AP)—The barking of her little dog led searchers to Sarah Ann Dobbs, a 3-year-old deaf-mute lost overnight in a chilly, wooded canyon. The child was found yesterday snuggled up to the puppy, dozing. She was clad only in a light T-shirt and panties. She apparently had stumbled into a creek and removed her wet jeans. Several hundred men, with bloodhounds and assisted by the Civil Air Patrol had searched the area.

Tipsy Boatman Hailed To Court

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A salesman has been convicted of drunken driving — in a motorboat. Municipal Judge Charles Smith placed James Awalt, 31, on one year probation and gave him this advice: When you drink, don't drive your motorboat.

Charges Aired That Political And State Leaders Shared Liquor Gifts

RALEIGH (AP)—Charges that political leaders and state officials drank liquor from the same source which supplied gifts to some legislators have been made by a partner in a Raleigh public relations firm. The fresh chapter in the "Legislative Liquor Scandal" was revealed last night when Gov. Hodges released a copy of a widely-circulated memorandum from Robert L. Thompson, a former newspaperman active in some political campaigns. In an accompanying statement, Hodges called on persons with "evidence about the issue of liquor" to present their information to proper authorities "and not leave the matter to rumor." "I have no personal knowledge of many of the charges" leveled by Thompson, Hodges declared. "In the past few months, I have heard indirectly several rumors and insinuations which I could not substantiate or prove," the governor added. "If Mr. Thompson or any other citizen, has any evidence of the violation of state laws and regulations, he should make the charges before the ABC Board or the proper court," Hodges asserted. Thompson, who served as secretary to the late Gov. Clyde R. Hoey, asserted that a pool of liquor provided by salesmen for distilleries has supplied drinks for big Democratic party affairs as well as gifts to lawmakers.

One of these was Thompson's allegation that the source of liquor for a cocktail party staged by Democrats last year was discussed "in the governor's presence." The governor answered: "I have no knowledge of any such incident." The other was Thompson's contention that state ABC chairman Tom Allen gave up a trip to California at the expense of distillers after Thompson talked to Gov. Hodges. "I did tell Mr. Allen that I thought such an arrangement would be improper," the governor stated. However, Allen said "Nobody had agreed to pay for anybody's trip to California." He said he and his wife made the trip in the fall of 1956, but paid their own expenses.

A Horse, Fresh In From Hollywood's Wild West

By CHARLES MERCER NEW YORK (AP)—Walking down Madison Avenue the other day, I ran into this horse fresh in from Hollywood who buttonholed me and said:

"Interview me." "Why interview a horse — even a talking horse?" "Look, pardner," said the horse. "I've been sent east as a representative of the National Federation of Sons of the Saddle Sores. It's a sort of an association like that us horses have organized to bring public attention to the horse in opera. Horse opera, that is. "Did you know that on the three television networks there are now 27 or 28 or something horse operas—I know they call 'em adult westerns, but to us horses they're still horse operas. Because where would any of 'em be without horses?" "Well, sir, us horses have noticed that some of you eastern dudes who write about television haven't been paying much attention to these—adult westerns." "Well," I said to the horse. "The reason is that there just isn't much to say about—adult westerns. Sure, there's lots of action and the good guys win over the bad guys and—" "Wait a minute," said the horse. "There's plenty to say. You just ask us horses. That's why I'm here. Take out your pencil and write this down. "It's high time somebody said a word for us horses. Do you realize that not a single cowboy has kissed one of us all season? No, sir. They're going around kissing girls now."

"Can you imagine a cowboy kissing girls? It never was that way in the good old days of Roy Rogers and Gene Autry. They know that a man's best friend is his horse. These new fellas think a man's best friend is his girl."

Pogo-Stick Fall Results In Suit

PROSSER, Wash. (AP)—A suit seeking $11,300 damages for injuries allegedly suffered in a fall from a pogo stick was filed in Superior Court at Prosser. Mrs. Loin E. Hicks of Richland, Wash., brought the action Monday against Mr. and Mrs. Marlon Lee, also of Richland. Mrs. Hicks claims she suffered a ruptured disc and other injuries when she fell from a pogo stick at the Lee home Sept. 11, 1955. Mrs. Hicks said in the suit the "pogo stick was defective and had a worn rubber tip." She said she was invited to use the stick which belonged to the Lee children. Mrs. Hicks asked $10,000 general damages and $1,300 special damages.

This Flamingo Was Off Course

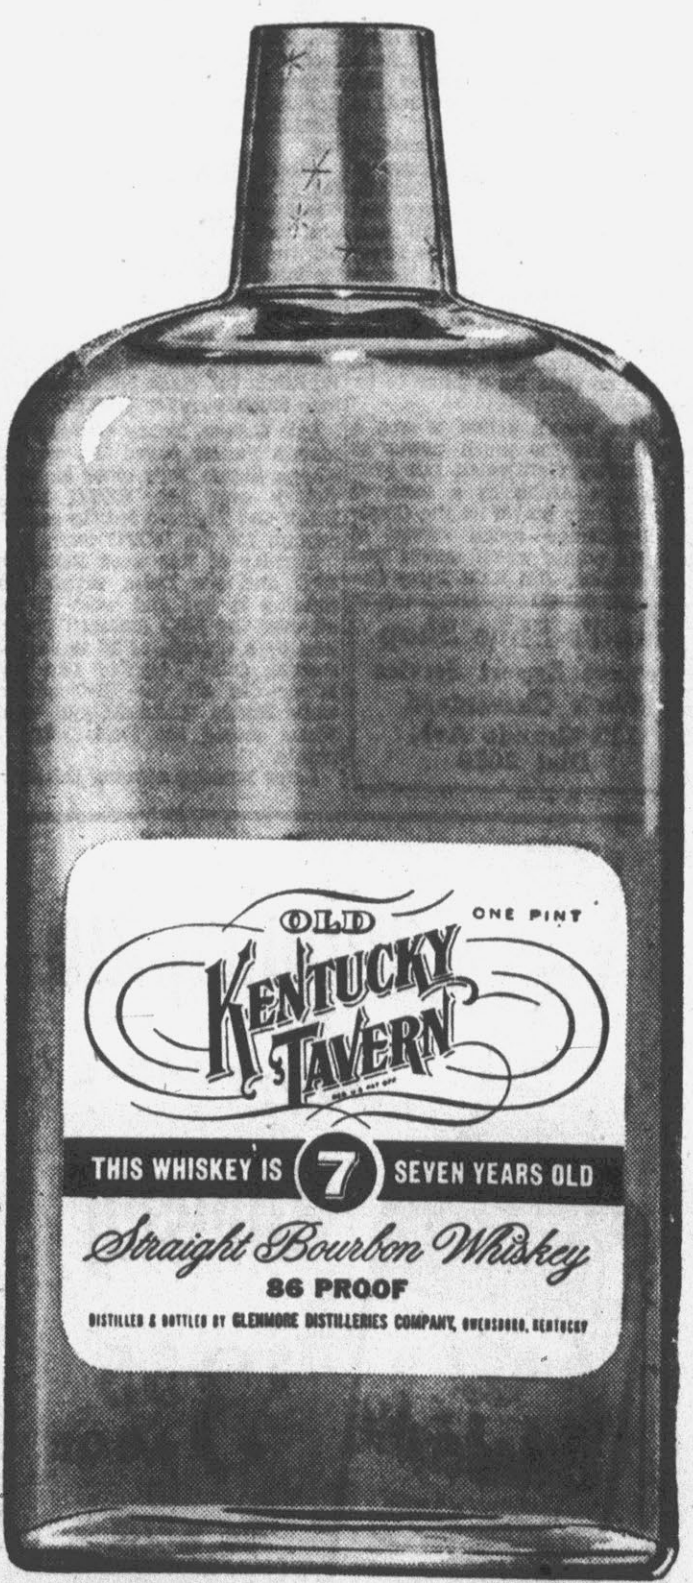

SHORT PUMP, Va. (AP)—A flamingo, which should have been flitting about palm trees and sandy tropical areas, turned up in a pond with three domestic ducks here. The three-and-a-half foot tall bird drew the attention of the Virginia Game Commission. Commission experts said it wasn't impossible for the bird to fly to Virginia but highly improbable, and expressed the view that it had escaped from a bird dealer.

Toothsome Tot Born With Teeth

NEWBERRY, Mich. (AP)—Stephen Paul Nelson lost his first teeth when he was 5 weeks old. Two dentists — one holding and one pulling — did the work. A physician had recommended the loose teeth come out to prevent the baby from swallowing them. Stephen was born with the teeth.

From all appearances everyone enjoyed the affair, from the youngster to the old college senior, on to the blackest-faced joker to the cream-skinned dancing girls being directed by Marie Wallace backstage.

Under the direction of Kiwanian Eli Bloom, the "old show" staged in Greenville annually, has come to town.

Last night the young dancing girls were pretty, the men who dressed themselves as women for a number of "imported dances" were striking and the jokes were rare.

A large crowd of ECC students attending the minstrel were kept laughing throughout the production by the antics of the black-faced "boys" who kept pulling the jokes out from every point on the stage.

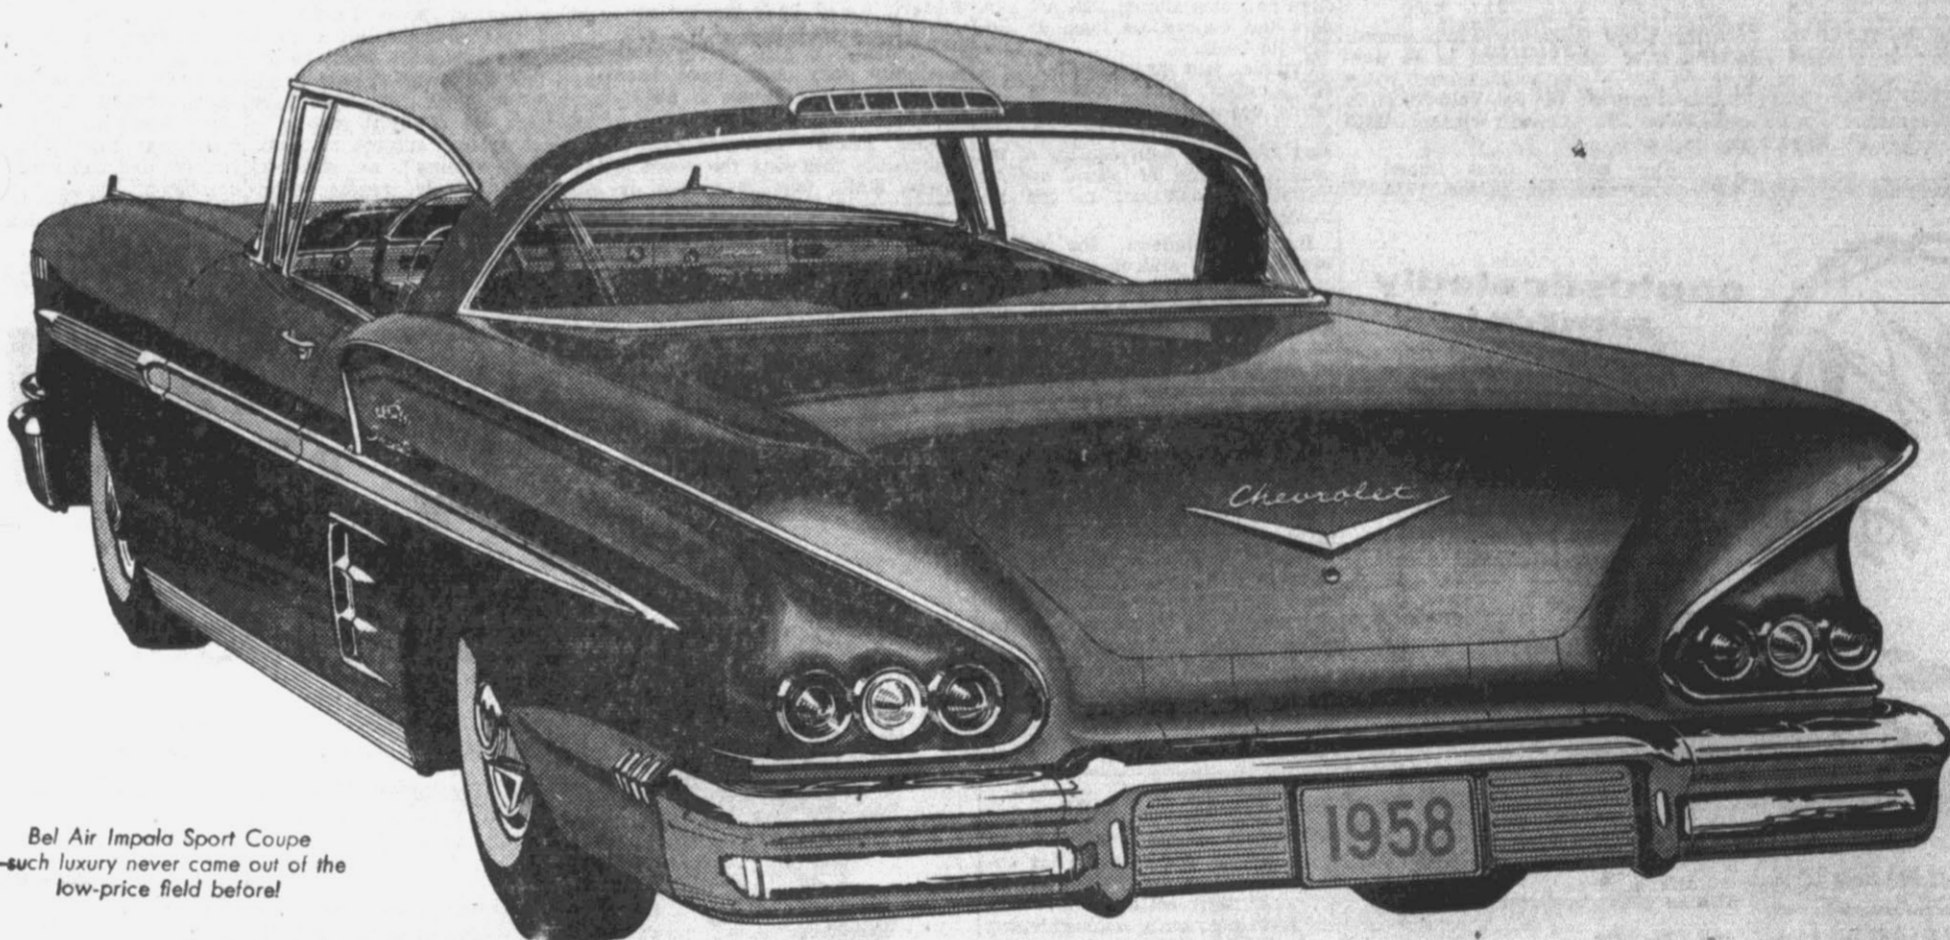

The minstrel has appeared here under Bloom's direction for 16 years. Last night crowd was indicative of attendance at past performances.

From all appearances everyone enjoyed the affair, from the youngster to the old college senior, on to the blackest-faced joker to the cream-skinned dancing girls being directed by Marie Wallace backstage.

As has been the case in past years, the Dixieland Minstrel will be in town for two more performances, tonight and tomorrow night. Both performances are to be held in Austin Auditorium on the ECC campus.

The proceeds from the Minstrel are to go into the Kiwanis Club's Underprivileged Children's Fund. From this fund is purchased everything from clothing to an artificial limb for the less fortunate in and around Greenville.

U. S. Officials Figure Zhukov Is On Skids After Khrushchev Statement

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials figured today that Marshal Georgi Zhukov is definitely on the skids, but they were uncertain how far he would fall.

President Eisenhower has an opportunity at a news conference to give his own views on the Zhukov mystery. As top generals, Eisenhower and Zhukov worked together at the end of World War II and Eisenhower has expressed admiration for Zhukov's soldierly qualities.

Evidence that Zhukov was on the downgrade was found here most concretely in the way in which Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev referred to him while talking with reporters at a Turkish Embassy reception in Moscow yesterday.

Khrushchev was quoted as saying "we" would give the world famous military leader and war hero a new assignment "commensurate with his qualifications."

This comment was read in Washington as a patronizing reference to a man of Zhukov's stature and a confirmation of the impression which had been growing since Sunday that Khrushchev is firmly in control of Soviet authority.

If the analysis now being made here is correct—and the confirmation or rejection will await Zhukov's new assignment—it means that many experts in the Western world have been wrong about the extent of Zhukov's power all along. It also suggests the possibility they may have been wrong about the nature of his influence on Soviet policies.

When Zhukov was restored to prominence following the death of Joseph Stalin four years ago, he quickly became in Western eyes one of the men to watch in the Soviet hierarchy. The impression was strengthened when he became a member of the Communist party ruling clique and finally moved into the Presidium of the party's central committee as a member.

The Zhukov role, as many Western experts built it up, was further enhanced by prolonged and intense interests over the possibility he provided a channel for personal exchanges between President Eisenhower and the top-most Soviet policymakers.

Finally in the last few months, following the June purge of V. M. Molotov and Georgi Malenkov from the ruling group, Zhukov became in the opinion of some experts here a man who shared power with Khrushchev and was possibly even more powerful.

The secret police apparatus on which Stalin had relied to enforce his despotism had been de-emphasized by the collective government which succeeded him, leaving only the army as an instrument of physical power. Zhukov, it was assumed, controlled the army.

Some of the State Department's experts, perhaps most, considered that Zhukov's role was overrated and that real political authority in Russia was exercised by the Communist party which in their view pervaded both the downgraded secret police system and the Soviet military establishment.

Secretary of State Dulles reflected this estimate at a news conference yesterday when he argued that the Soviet system is not so monolithic as may have been supposed. He pictured instead a political system subject to "pulling and hauling" as different forces sought to assert themselves. He suggested that this pressure on the exercise of power varies as between the Communist party and the governmental machinery, which are technically separate, between the secret police and the army and by implication, between various individuals who move into positions of influence.

Dulles himself, however, ventured no theory of his own as to what the present shakeup involving Zhukov means or what effect it may have on Soviet behavior toward the rest of the world.

The role of Zhukov as developed in the West has generally attributed to him a conservative and restraining influence on Khrushchev. The implication of such speculation, if it proved to be true, would be that without this restraining influence Khrushchev might now be inclined to go in for more international adventures and sabre rattling of the kind which the world has just witnessed in the Middle East.

It is possibly significant, however, that at the same Turkish party at which he spoke of a new assignment for Zhukov, Khrushchev also said words possibly designed to cool off Middle East tensions quite substantially. He expressed the belief there would be no war in the Middle East and that things there had taken a turn for the better.

One possible explanation for his sudden soft line, which came after weeks of threats to Turkey and of charging that the United States was promoting a Turkish attack on Syria, was that Russian propaganda would now claim that Soviet support had prevented the alleged war plan from being carried out and had saved Syria from destruction. Some such maneuver had in fact been anticipated by American officials who said Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders must have known all along that the United States had no intention of starting a war in the Middle East.

But there was also at least a theoretical possibility that this sudden shift of the Soviet line toward Turkey, dramatized by Khrushchev's presence at the Turkish party, was associated in some manner with the internal changes in the Kremlin.

Fire Insurance Hearing Nov. 20

RALEIGH (AP)—State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Golf will hold a public hearing Nov. 20 on proposed hikes in fire insurance rates totaling $2,790,810 annually.

The North Carolina Fire Insurance Rating Bureau yesterday put its bid for the rate increasing averaging 7.5 per cent.

The bulk of the increase, or an estimated at $1,805,095 annually in premiums, would fall on dwellings in unprotected areas, which failed to receive a "superior" rating.

Gold has turned down requests by the bureau for a rat differential on farm dwellings. The rating system proposed by the bureau would set up a differential based on physical characteristics of unprotected dwellings rather than occupancy by farmers or non-farmers.

Tribble Says Handful Of Agitators Seeks Ouster

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—Dr. Harold Tribble says latest efforts to have him removed is an age-old one—opposition among some Forest College come from "A Wake Forest to Winston-Salem to get control of the Baptist college."

Dr. Tribble said another reason for the college head issued a lengthy statement yesterday in reply to a report by Dr. Walton Kitchen of Clinton, son of Dr. Tribble's predecessor as head of the college, that "thousands" of alumni are organizing a drive to have Dr. Tribble ousted. Dr. Kitchen had said alumni will not support the college so long as Dr. Tribble heads it.

In his statement, the college president said Andrew J. Hutchins of Canton sought a post on the college's administrative staff, but did not get it. Hutchins later headed a nine-member committee set up by the college board of trustees to investigate a "rising tide of discontent" at the college. The board later stopped the investigation and declined release of the committee's findings.

SMOKE AND FIRE
TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—When smoke comes, fire can't be far behind, a safety crew here learned. They were setting out warning flare pots on a road-widening project when they smelled smoke. Fire was close behind, all right. One of the pots had tipped, igniting the rear of their truck.

DESPERATE MAN

© 1956, 1957, Wayne D. Overholser. From the novel published by The Macmillan Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 21

We buried Elder Smith on a warm afternoon, spring a feeling and a smell in the air. From somewhere over in Frank Dance's field a meadowlark added its sweet tone to our hymns.

Afterwards, when I was riding home with Kip and his father, I asked, "You didn't pick up any sign at all?"

Frank shook his head. "I found some cigarette stubs back of the store, and a horse had been left in the shed behind the schoolhouse, maybe for a couple of hours; but no tracks. You know how hard that ground is: packed down like a floor."

We had nothing to go on then, less even than I knew about my father's killer. I said, "I guess I should tell you before Frank, but I think the man we want lives in the park."

Frank nodded, tight-lipped. "I figure the same, Dave. Whoever done it must have known Joe's and the Elder's habits. Joe always went out the front door to milk. The Elder always got up before sunup and went out the back, rain or shine, winter or summer."

Frank shook his head at me. "What does that tell us?"

"One thing's sure," Kip said. "If we'd taken Runyan's offer the other night, Elder Smith would be alive."

"I ain't so sure about that, Kip," Frank said. "Maybe Runyan gave the order. Maybe Toll did it, thinking that was what his boss wanted. But then again, maybe it was the same buzzard who killed Joe figuring the job was good for another chunk of dinero. What I'm saying is, we can't go off half-cocked. Not yet."

We rode in silence until we reached their lane, when Frank said, "Don't tell anybody what we're thinking, Dave. Not even Gil or your mother."

"I won't," I said, and rode on.

We had church the following Sunday morning, of a sort. Bess refused to take charge because she said it was no job for a woman. Finally Frank Dance walked up to the front of the room. He made a ludicrous figure standing beside the organ, red in the face, the Bible almost lost in his great hands, his deep voice expressionless as he stated each word as if it were an entire sentence and had no connection with the next one.

After the service was over we lingered outside. The day was a warm one with a few lacy white clouds caressing the top of Campbell Mountain. No one seemed to want to go home. Fear was with us. There was no mistaking it. Not that it was really voiced in words, but everyone of us, I was sure, was asking himself the obvious question: Who would be next?

There were plans to make if we were to go on living here. Bess said she'd teach school next fall if we couldn't find anyone. Lorna Dance agreed to come over and keep the store open in the afternoons and work the mail that came in from Buhl twice a week.

Then Matt Colohan couldn't control himself any longer. He shouted: "You're a bunch of fools! We had a chance to sell at a good price and get out of the park but you wouldn't let me do it."

"Shut up, Matt," Johnny Strong said. "Shut that up."

But now that it was started, he couldn't shut up. "I'm gonna talk," Matt shouted. "It's past time to talk. We've had two killings. They can go right on smoking us down one at a time, and what can we do if we don't get out? Tell me that Johnny, if you're so smart!"

But Johnny had no answer. He looked at his wife who was holding her baby in her arms, and she looked at him, but neither said a word. I glanced at Riley MacKay. His gaze was on his wife. She was the city girl who'd leave Riley, folks said; but now she was holding her shoulders high and proud and she was the one who answered Matt.

"We're not smart, Matt," she said. "Not any of us. None of us wants to die, either, but we're going to stay because our homes are here."

You never knew about a person, I thought, not what was inside until the squeeze was on. Mrs. Riley MacKay would be all right, and the gossips like Mrs. Colohan would stop talking about her. She'd stay with Riley and make her home here and raise her children. Yes, she'd be all right, and even Matt was ashamed.

"Yeah, reckon we'll stay," he muttered.

Then Gil said: "If Dave wasn't such a stupid fool, Elder Smith would be alive today."

We looked at him. We stopped breathing, I guess. I know I did. It was the same as if we had been shocked by a sudden down-pour of cold water. He didn't look at me. He stood beside my mother, about ten feet from me, his face grave, his gaze moving from Frank Dance to Johnny Strong and on to Luke Jordan. Then a fire got hold of me and I began to tremble.

For me, at that moment, everyone disappeared except Gil. Frank Dance's voice barely reached my ears. "What do you mean, Gil?"

"Why, he had to do everything himself when Pa was killed," Gil said. "Didn't even stay to help get Pa's body inside. Just grabbed his gun and saddled up and spent all day hunting that saddle tramp Jones. While he was doing that, the killer got away, the same killer who shot Elder Smith."

Little red lights started dancing in front of my eyes. In that one instant all the injustices I'd suffered at Gil's hands whipped through my mind.

I took two long strides and hit him, my fist coming up from my boot tops. Maybe he didn't see it coming. Maybe he wanted me to hit him. I don't really know, but he didn't duck or try to ward off my blow. I caught him square on the chin, and he went back and down, knocked as cold as Frank Dance had knocked Matt Colohan the night of the meeting when Si Beam was here.

A woman screamed. Another one cried, "He's killed him!"

My mother was on her knees, cradling Gil's head in her lap. She looked up at me, and I saw hate in her eyes, or I thought I did.

She said: "Go away, Dave. Never come back. I don't want to see you again."

I couldn't move for a time. I just stood staring at her while my world and my dreams came tumbling down on top of me. The Big Ten wouldn't be mine. I couldn't marry Kitsy. I wouldn't have any place to bring her, any way to make a living for her.

I wheeled and ran toward my horse. I felt a hand on my arm — Johnny Strong's, I think — but I jerked free and kept on. I mounted and rode away, my horse kicking up the soft dirt of the road as he ran. I didn't look back, and I couldn't look ahead.

Bess take advantage of Dave's anger to set a trap for the killer. Be sure to follow her daring plan in tomorrow's installment of "Desperate Man."

Ann Sothern And Lucille Ball Make A Good Team

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A movie teaming of Ann Sothern and Lucille Ball? It could happen, and the results should be hilarious.

The two top TV comedienne played buddies in the first 75-minute version of "I Love Lucy." The combination was so great that a movie teaming is being planned for them.

This is one of the many enterprises I learned about in a chat with Ann, once the "Private Secretary" of television and now her own boss. And is she busy? She's got everything going from a sewing center in Sun Valley Idaho to a TV series about firemen.

After some guest shots in New York, Ann returned home for a brief stay before heading for a special TV show she'll emcee in Las Vegas.

"What's doing? Everything," she said. "Lucy and I hit it off real good, and we may do the movie together. Strangely enough, we had never worked together before, though we were both at MGM at the same time."

"Television? I'm going to cut down on the guest shots. I've got another series in the works for me, and it should be great. And I've got another series I've been working on for two years."

"It's about firemen, and I've spent hours at firehouses doing research. It's the only exciting line of work that hasn't been done in a TV series, and it has great possibilities. Firemen don't just put out fires; you find them everywhere—at drownings, riots, auto crashes, disasters and so forth."

What about "Private Secretary"?

No more of that, she said. The trade couldn't imagine why she would quit the show when the ratings were still good. But she said she just couldn't work with the co-owners of the show, and she had been placed in the kit of burglary tools used by some professional operators out of Texas.

"With this particular gang—still on the loose—the telephones are just as important as the cutting torches," Bryvins said.

He said they work like this:

After casing the place to be burglarized, the gang lays a telephone line from the safe to a vantage point outside the building where streets can be covered in all directions. The telephone is powered by dry cell batteries.

"The peeler" or "driller" can work comfortably, assured he won't be surprised by an officer who might slip in through the back of the building.

"The lookout communicates all the information from the outside. When an automobile passes, the man operating the torches and drills stops work."

Bartlesville police said in the recent burglary attempt there, the burglars apparently were disturbed and departed in such a hurry they left the telephone equipment behind.

Report Burglars Going Modern

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Burglars have gone modern in Oklahoma, says State Crime Bureau Chief O. K. Bryvins.

He claims the old fashioned way of pounding open a safe and trusting to luck on a getaway has gone the way of the horse.

"They are using hastily rigged telephones to communicate information to the 'driller' who works on the safe," Bryvins said yesterday. "We have seized such equipment at the scene of a burglary in a supermarket in Bartlesville."

Bryvins said his agents had received information that telephones

Learns Kitchen Is A Noisy Place

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. Ledon Backes, almost totally deaf for the whole of her married life, has just had an operation to restore her hearing. And she's found her kitchen is a pretty noisy place.

"I never knew things sounded so when I fried them," she said. "They make a terrible racket."

TEDDY ROOSEVELT: America Celebrates The Centennial Of The Birth Of Our 26th President

Teddy at age of 10. As a child, he was weak and asthmatic, but later overcame his illness.

At 17, he was a strong lad. He rowed, ran, boxed, took long walks, and practiced calisthenics.

At 18, he entered Harvard, where he was active in field sports, a good boxer, and excellent student.

The "first Roosevelt," Teddy, is being honored by America during a centennial year celebration that is to extend right up to his birthday anniversary on October 27, 1958.

The 26th President, author, statesman, warrior, hunter, historian and descendant of a long line of public leaders, was one of the most colorful figures in U.S. politics.

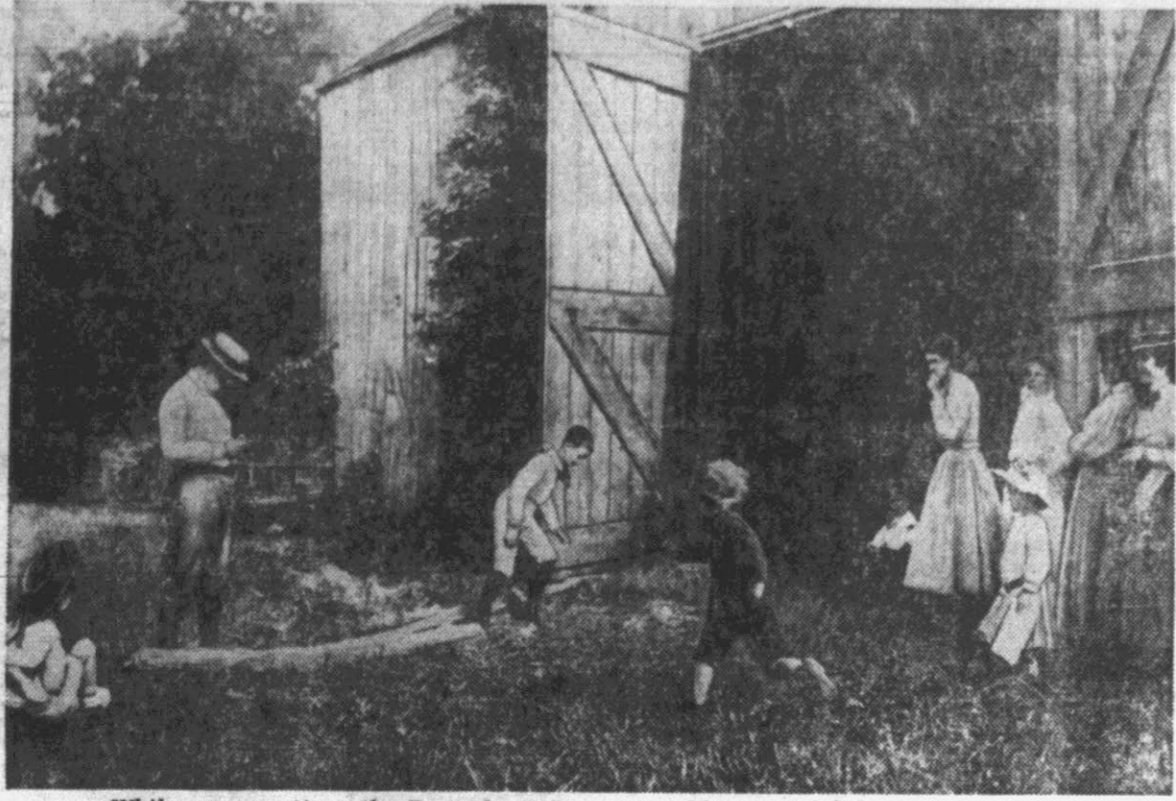

Sickly as a boy, he lived to make a creed of "the strenuous life," as he called it, and to exhibit an early flair for politics. He was a New York state assemblyman a year after his graduation from Harvard in 1880. Thereafter he became New York state governor, assistant secretary of the navy, vice president, and upon McKinley's assassination, President.

Elected president thereafter as a Republican, he left the White House in 1909 to become a third or Bull Moose party presidential candidate three years later and run against Woodrow Wilson, the Democrat, and William Howard Taft, Republican. Roosevelt polled four million votes while losing to Wilson.

Back in private life, T.R. remained a popular figure, the unforgettable "rough rider" of the Spanish-American War, wielder of the "big stick" in fights against corruption and "special interests." In World War I he stoutly espoused the allied cause and sought active duty. His death in 1919 resulted from complications of fever contracted while hunting in Brazilian jungles.

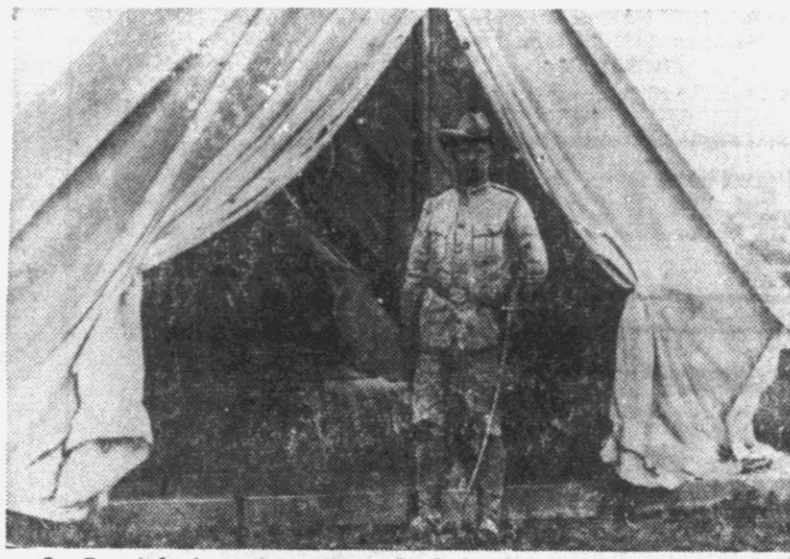

Theodore Roosevelt, valiant in war, courageous in peace.

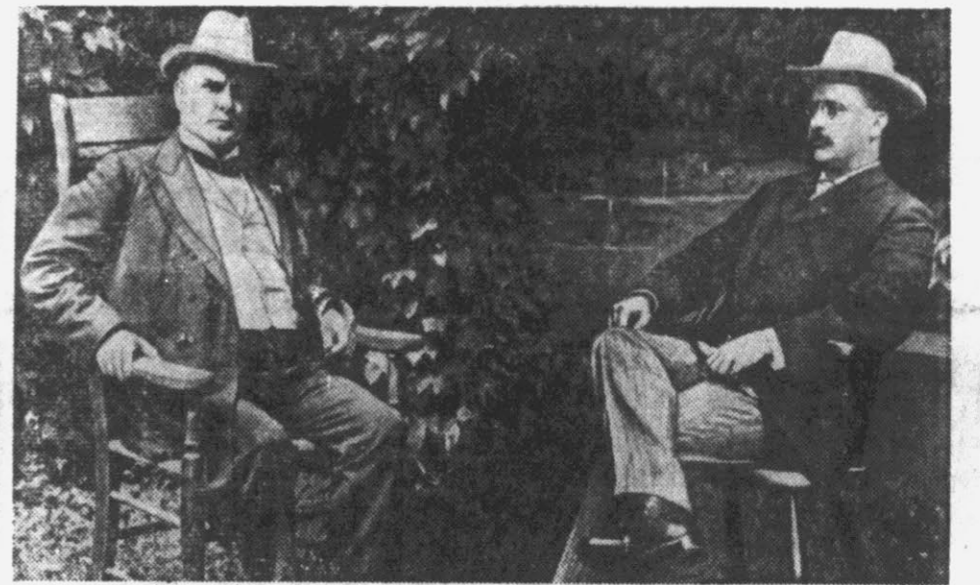

While on vacation, the President times two of his grandchildren in a race around the barn at Sagamore Hill, his home at Oyster Bay, Long Island, N.Y.

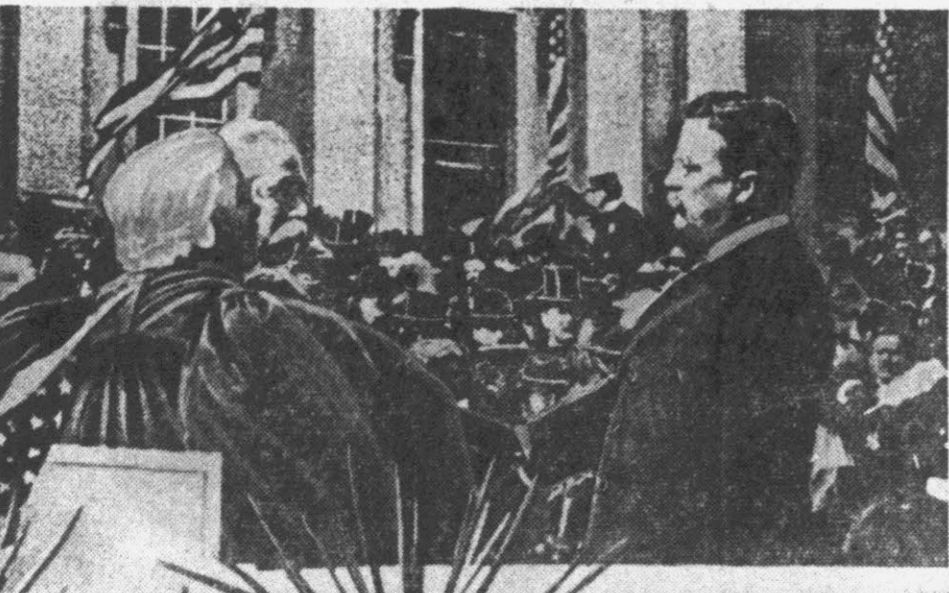

T.R., in 1897, as assistant secretary of the navy. The secretary, John D. Long, described him as "running over with enthusiasm and effort."

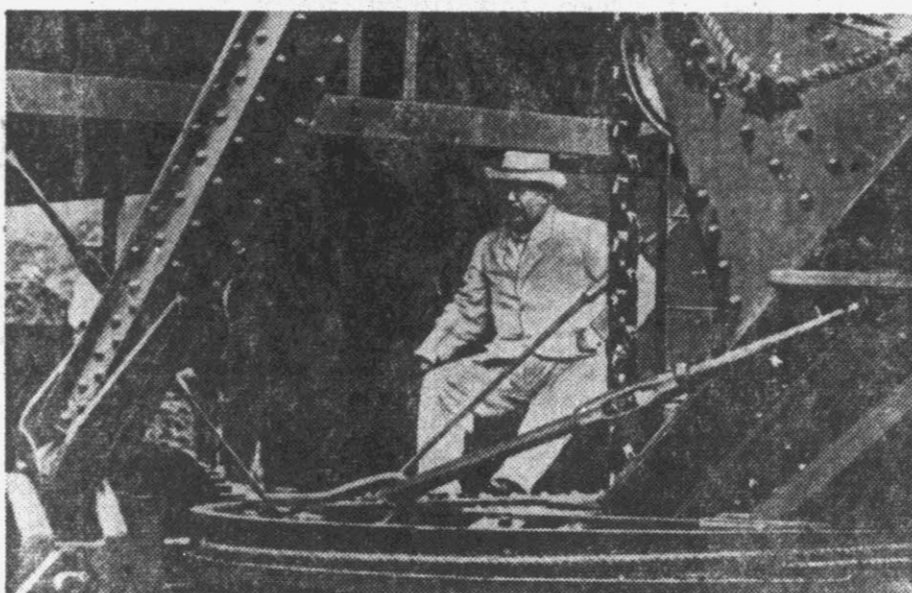

In Spanish-American War, he helped organize First Volunteer Cavalry, known familiarly as "Roosevelt's Rough Riders." He led many charges against enemy in Cuba.

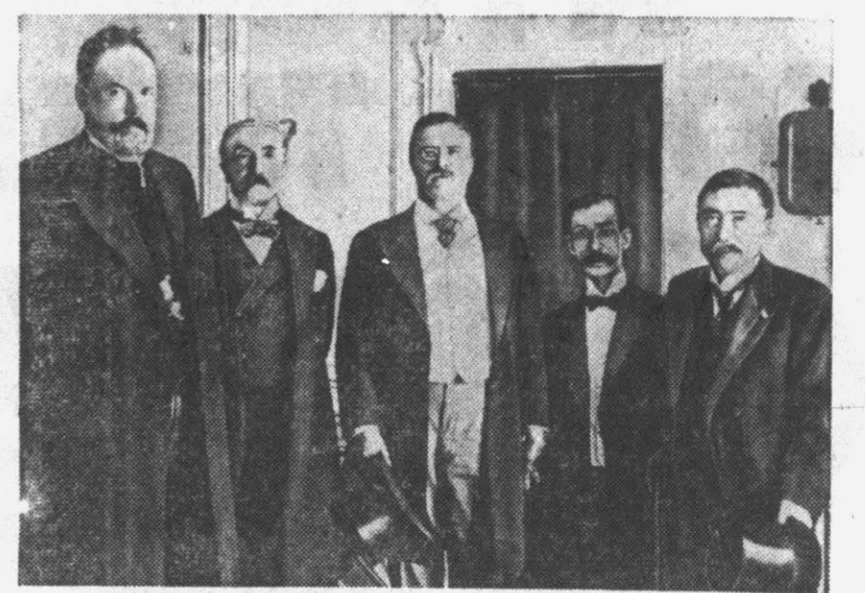

President McKinley, in bid for reelection, and Roosevelt, his running mate, get together to discuss plans for 1900 campaign.

After winning 1904 election, T.R. is sworn in for first full term as President. He had held post after McKinley's assassination in 1901.

Wearing white suit, Roosevelt sits comfortably inside huge steam shovel during construction of Panama Canal in 1906.

He helped negotiate peace between Russia and Japan in 1905, and for it won Nobel peace prize. He's shown with Russian and Japanese delegates on the Mayflower.

Wearing tattered pants and old shoes, T.R. sits in cabin, fondling stray dog during bear hunt in Colorado in 1905. He named dog Skip and brought it back to White House.

Lover of big game hunts, Roosevelt is shown beside elephant he brought down in Africa in 1909. He also hunted in Brazil and Far West.

Few political personages have figured as frequently in cartoons as Mr. Roosevelt. T.R. with his "big stick", as shown above, was popular subject.

Our Satellite Can't Be Called A 'Sputnik' Too

By ED CREAGH Associated Press News Analyst WASHINGTON (AP)—What is this country going to call its satellite, once it launches one? Sputnik II? No, somehow that doesn't quite ring the bell. Besides, it may be outmoded by the time we get our little ball up in the air. How about "Kintups"? That's Sputnik spelled backward. No? Then what do you suggest?

It's a problem to furrow the most wrinkled brows of the advertising experts on New York's Madison Ave., to say nothing of the equally crinkled brows of the phrase conifers in the Pentagon and elsewhere on the government payroll. We're sort of half-way committed to the name "Vanguard," since that's the name of the U.S. satellite project. But the steam went out of that one long ago.

"Vanguard" means that you're head of the other guy, and Sputnik gives the laugh to that idea daily—even if it has lost its beep. But nobody ever calls anything by its right name in this country anyway. The Army's Vertol helicopter was promptly, and forever, rechristened "The Flying Banana." There probably is a correct name for a certain recoilless weapon which is handy against tanks, but nobody would know it by any other name than bazooka. So Vanguard probably was doomed even before it became obsolete. The problem is to find a jaunty substitute which gives a Bronx cheer to the Russians. Somehow none of the suggestions which crop up in cocktail party conversations makes the cookie crumble, as some people may still be saying on Madison Ave. We could call our gadget

"Socialite," since it will—we trust move in the very best circles. Or "Rover Boy." Or "S. S. (for space ship) Ohyeswecan." Nope. You can hear the groans already, from here to Moscow. We could go back to the old myths. But with Thor, Jupiter and the other rockets already whooshing off, that field has been pretty thoroughly ploughed too. Maybe the best idea would be to let the men in uniform decide on a satellite name. They have a flair for it. Remember the bombers of World War II: "Wabash Choo-choo," "Little Eva," "Ding-Dong Daddy." To say nothing of those which caused some generals to blush and turn away. When all's said and done, though it will be hard to beat "Sputnik," you must have heard the story about the fellow who went into court and asked permission to change his name. "What's your name now?" inquired the judge. "Mike Sputnik," confessed the petitioner. "I see what you mean," chuckled the judge. "You don't know the half of it," Mike said grimly. "Anywhere I go, people make fun of me. They make jokes about my wife, my kids. It's driving me nuts." "Okay," said the judge. "What do you want to change your name to?" "Sam Sputnik."

Port's Tobacco Shipments Grow

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Col. Richard S. Marr, executive director of the State Ports Authority, says that this year more than 20 per cent of tobacco exported from the United States will pass through Wilmington and Morehead City. Marr cited the figure to illustrate the growth of the two ports in his report to the authority meeting here yesterday. He called it "the finest report I have ever made to you." He said the port facilities at the two cities may have their first million dollar year by next June 30. Combined operating revenues at Wilmington and Morehead City for the year ending last June 30 totaled $387,464; Marr told the members of the authority. "In the not too distant future, and it is well within the realm of possibility for this year, our gross revenues will be over a million dollars." Marr said that in the last six months of 1953 state docks at Wilmington handled only 15 vessels and Morehead City only six. Growth at Wilmington since, then, has been almost 1,000 per cent in ships handled. Morehead City, which lost two years while constructing new facilities, boosted its number of tobacco ships handled from four to more than 30. Wilmington's net operating profit during the last fiscal year, Marr said, more than offset a loss at Morehead City. The authority showed a net profit of $39,110 during the last fiscal year, he said.

'ABANDONED SHIP' DALLAS (AP)—Two Fort Worth, Tex., women abandoned ship last night as they rounded a curve and saw a freight train directly in the path of their auto. Sue Chumley, 20, and Jo Ann Burt, 20, leaped from their auto and suffered only minor injuries. The car was demolished.

NEW YORK (AP) — Aircrafts spurred on prospects for greater defense spending, pacing the stock market to a brisk rally early this afternoon.

Key stocks advanced from fractions to around 3 points or more, improving their early level which was moderately higher.

President Eisenhower's statements on defense spending spurred the aircrafts late in the morning and other stocks gained in sympathy.

The President reiterated a Defense Department prediction that defense spending would probably rise by 400 million dollars and he also said that the 38-billion-dollar spending ceiling for defense during the current fiscal year is not sacrosanct.

The market had some good corporate financial reports to bolster it although the overall run of such news still presented a mixed pattern. Wall Street sources said that the foreign news today was more reassuring.

Activity picked-up considerably after the Eisenhower news but trading slackened within a half hour and some of the better gains were trimmed.

Coppers, still benefiting from brighter prospects for the industry, were outstanding gainers.

Blaze Menaces Business Area Of Albemarle

ALBEMARLE, N. C. (AP) — Fire broke out in a two-story department store building today during morning business hours and for a time menaced adjacent buildings in the downtown district.

City firemen, aided by a half-dozen rural departments from over Stanley County, poured heavy streams of water on the blaze and apparently had it controlled just before 11 a.m.

Employees at Rayless Department Store, where the fire started, apparently between floors, noticed the smoke and the brick building was quickly evacuated before the fire spread.

No damage estimate was available at once but observers said the top floor of the Rayless building was gutted and that smoke damage might be considerable to the rest of the structure. Smoke damage also resulted to Penney's Department Store and the Cabarrus Bank & Trust Co., which are on either side of Rayless.

City Fireman Pete Furr was overcome by smoke and Badin Fireman J. C. Blair suffered a non-serious leg injury when he slipped into a hole atop the Penny building.

The fire may have started from defective wiring, observers suggested. It was discovered about 9:30 a.m. and burned out of control for about an hour.

An estimated 50 firemen were on the scene. Trucks came from the Locust, Millington, Badin, Bethany and Richfield-Misenheimer rural fire departments. The Norwood department also was represented.

Smoke covered an area of three or four blocks before the freshening wind cleared much of it away. Business came to a standstill as crowds gathered to watch the fire.

The city firemen were hampered at first when their hoses sprung leaks and connections failed to hold. But they reported their water supply was more than ample.

The fire-fighting activities took place mostly from adjacent rooftops and across alleys. The firemen were unable to get to the top of the burning building.

Trial Of Charles Guy Is Started

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The jury in the murder trial of 19-year-old Charles Lee Guy III has heard a description of the scene in the motel room where advertising executive Guy F. Roberts met death.

The jurors, ten women and two men—plus two women alternates—were selected yesterday.

Guy has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to the shotgun slaying of Roberts, the man his mother said she intended to marry.

Guy, already represented by his father, got further legal reinforcement yesterday when his former stepfather joined the defense.

John Angus, 50, a retired Chicago lawyer now living in Las Vegas, Nev., told newsmen he was married for seven years to the young man's mother, Mrs. Nina James Angus.

PILOT CLUB MEMBERS IN VOLUNTEER PROJECT ... preparing TB Association Bond Letters For Seal Sale.

Plans for the annual sale of Tuberculosis Association Christmas Seals moved head yesterday when volunteer workers began preparation and stuffing of bond letters for prospective donors.

Pilot Club members handled yesterday's letters which will be sent to prospective donors of $5 or more. The bond letters will precede regular Seal Sale letters which are scheduled to be distributed November 13.

City Fireman Pete Furr was overcome by smoke and Badin Fireman J. C. Blair suffered a non-serious leg injury when he slipped into a hole atop the Penny building.

Minor Injuries In Auto Mishap

J. Con Lanier, local attorney, sustained minor leg bruises in an accident yesterday afternoon between LaGrange and Goldsboro.

Lanier stated his 1957 automobile was struck from behind by an automobile pulling a trailer when he slowed down to avoid hitting a dog. The driver of the second vehicle involved escaped uninjured.

Investigating officers estimated damages to the local resident's automobile at between $750 and $1,000.

Airline Seeking Unwanted Stops

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Piedmont Airlines has announced that it may ask to be assigned routes in North Carolina which Capital Airlines wants to discontinue.

Capital asked the Civil Aeronautics board Monday for permission to end its Norfolk-Knoxville flight. If granted, Elizabeth City and Rocky Mount would lose all their air service and Charlotte would lose its direct connection to Knoxville.

Capital also asked to be allowed to discontinue serving Asheville until the airport there can handle four-engine planes.

Piedmont President Thomas H. Davis of Winston-Salem said his airline may ask for the route which Capital wants to stop.

Flu Bug Is Closing Some Schools In North Carolina

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Schools were closed at several places in North Carolina today in the wake of what State Board of Health officials describe as the worst epidemic of flu the state has experienced since 1918.

Dr. Jacob Koomen, chief of the health department's Communicable Disease Control Section estimated yesterday that since mid-September flu has struck one in every 34 Tar Heels for a total of about 131,000 cases.

He made this estimate after compiling reports from county health offices which added up to a total of 77,776 cases of "influenza like" diseases in the state last week — as compared with 38,984 cases the week before and 14,505 the week before that.

Meanwhile at Statesville, School Supt. A. D. Kornegay said all Negro schools have been closed for the rest of the week because of flu. He also reported absences were mounting at the white junior and senior high schools. School officials at Mooresville reported about 400 children were absent from schools there Monday.

At Newton, the Central Negro High School was closed for the week as 56 per cent of the student body and several teachers were absent because of flu. Two elementary schools, served by some of the same buses that serve the high school, also were closed.

Dr. Koomen reported that there was no way of telling whether the flu epidemic had reached its peak. He noted that absences among school children had begun to taper off in some counties but still was on the rise in others. Those showing a drop include Durham and Wake.

Meanwhile, for the second consecutive week, Catawba College called off a football game because of flu among its grid players. Last week's game with Elon was postponed and the school announced yesterday that Saturday's battle with Presbyterian College at Clinton, S.C., had been canceled.

Flora Macdonald College at Red Springs was reported under quarantine because of the flu which caused the cancellation of a college dance and a musical recital.

'Any Amount' That's Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) said today the country is willing to pour any amount of money that can be spent usefully and constructively into missile development to surpass the Russians.

Dirksen, the assistant Republican leader, said public reaction to the Soviet Sputnik is likely to bring a determined drive in the next session to increase defense expenditures.

Assessing this same reaction, Sen. Morse (D-Ore.) called in a separate interview for a crash program of missile development. He said it ought to be directed "by the nation's top scientists and not by the politicians."

A number of other senators of both parties have called for a speedup in missile development and have deplored rivalry among the services.

But Dirksen said that as a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee he will combat any tendency to provide defense agencies with more funds than can be used by the competent, trained manpower available to them. He said lack of such manpower may be a critical element in speeding up the program.

If it is, Morse said it will be "because this administration has discouraged the scientists at every turn."

President Eisenhower has held firm thus far on a 38 billion dollar outlay for defense in the current year, ending next June 30.
