'Country Kitchen' Said Making Comeback

By JOHN O. B. WALLACE
AP Newsfeatures

THE AMERICAN FAMILY is moving back into the kitchen! It's the best news we've heard in many an autumn moon.

In the kitchen, you're closer to the victuals—and far removed from the dreary twaddle of television.

But more than that seems to be behind this poyous journey. Mother, the experts tell us, has lost her appetite for those gleaming-white, antiseptic kitchens.

This is not to say that Mother is forfeiting her right to any of those modern, labor-saving appliances which have made life in the kitchen so much easier.

Mother, the experts tell us, just wants to get some of that old-fashioned atmosphere back into the kitchen.

It's a return to the old Dutch kitchen—or, at it is known also, the country kitchen—where there is ample space as well as the facilities for family living.

Old-Fashioned Warmth

The trend today in kitchen design is away from cold, white efficiency—and back to the rich, warm atmosphere of colonial day kitchens. The Dutch kitchen of today is a combination of the old and new. It is old in its friendly warmth—and new in its use of modern materials.

Its basic components are still there—the large, open kitchen area with a fireplace and a dining table and a decor of wood and brick. There is still a door from the kitchen to the outside.

Elsewhere there are changes. Modern flooring materials, for example, are being used—rubber, vinyl, asphalt or ceramic tile.

A MODERN VERSION OF AN OLD DUTCH KITCHEN—The flooring material is tile, and the appliances are the latest. Yet the warmth of earlier kitchens is retained by the use of exposed wooden beams in the ceiling and pine paneling on the walls. Today's designers are enlarging kitchens in order to take in more elements of family activity—eating, relaxing and informal entertaining.

But to achieve warmth, increasing use is being made of the old sturdy materials—brick, stone, cheerful wall paper and wood.

Modern appliances, of course, continue to be added. However, even the appliances, themselves, have been discarding the white finishes in favor of color and texture.

For paneling and built-in storage space, knotty or clear western pine woods are becoming increasingly popular. A variety of new and interesting finishes have been developed. These increase the luster and warmth of wood while still retaining the natural beauty of the many available grains.

There are new ways of treating wood, too, and the pine-paneled kitchens of today thus are clean and as easy to maintain as almost any other material.

With the accent on wood, a new concept in built-ins and storage space has been achieved.

There are island counters with cabinets and drawers that open on both sides.

There are floor-to-ceiling cabinets for groceries and utensils. There are even high fidelity units built into a paneled wall, for an ultra modern touch.

Still, the important features of the earlier kitchens are there—especially the huge brick or stone fireplace with perhaps a barbecue oven or grille added, and the open wooden beamed ceiling.

She Earns Living Clipping Men

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jewell Bennett is a vivacious blonde who likes to clip men—that is, all men except bald ones.

For Jewell is a lady barber.

Miss Bennett, who lathers and trims at the historic Maxwell House Hotel here, sees nothing odd in her choice of vocation. But she snips away at discrimination against women in her profession.

"We can do as good a job as a man barber," she declares.

How did an attractive young girl from a nearby farming community happen to land in what is generally regarded as a masculine occupation?

"I've actually been barbering all my life," she says. "Ever since I can remember, I've been cutting hair, starting off practicing on my giddy and three brothers."

"When I decided to take up barbering, Dad thought I'd gone crazy," Miss Bennett remarks, as she clips the curly black locks from one of her regular male customers.

She worked her way through night barber college as a manicurist, finishing in March, 1956. She works alongside several male barbers.

How do men react when faced with a lady barber?

"Unless a customer knows me," Jewell says laughingly, "he just automatically seems to shy away from my chair. They seem to hate to get in my chair when a male barber is idle."

"But my regular customers seem very satisfied," she adds.

Fellow workers in the basement shop say Miss Bennett is too modest.

"Not a man could build up the trade she has in the length of time she has," declares Mrs. Carleene Holt, a red-headed manicurist. "Those men just like a woman's touch."

Henry Rucker, the shop manager, agrees.

"There's not a barber in Nashville that has more customers than

CLIP ARTIST . . . Lady barber Jewell Bennett clips client.

Miss Jewell. I'd hire another woman barber if I could get one.

"Another thing," adds Rucker, "a man can't seem to say no to a lady when she suggests some of the extras, like special shampoos or treatments. The customer who'd say to Miss Jewell would turn down the male barber."

Miss Bennett says she never cuts women's hair.

"I just prefer to wait on men. They're easier to please."

Barbers are noted as great talkers and she is no exception. While trimming a customer's hair, she carries on a running conversation "in what ever he's interested in."

She particularly likes to talk about hunting and fishing—her two favorite off-duty sports.

Although she's fond of "my regulars," as she calls them, Miss Bennett says she never expects to meet the man of her life in a barber shop.

Because of her profession, does she patronize a beauty parlor like many women? No indeed!

"I'm one of those cranky women. I fix my own hair," she says with a nod that sends her long blonde locks waving.

She doesn't regret her decision to enter a field usually considered reserved for men.

"I plan to keep on as long as I can stand up," Miss Bennett says. "Someday I'd like to own a barbershop of my own, with just women barbers, but I can't get enough women interested in learning the profession."

Shower Is Given For Bride-Elect

FOUNTAIN—The Fountain Community Building was decorated with fall flowers Monday evening when Mrs. J. L. Peele, Mrs. R. L. Peele, Mrs. W. W. Jefferson, and Mrs. W. R. Mercer entertained at a miscellaneous shower for Miss Anne Harris, bride-elect.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Mercer, the honoree, and Mrs. W. W. Jefferson.

After a social hour, the gifts were opened and displayed.

Guests were then invited to the refreshment table decorated with tall silver candelabra with epergne arrangements of tiny pink chrysanthemums. Mrs. R. A. Fountain poured Russian tea. The guests served themselves cheese straws, ribbon sandwiches, date bars, nuts, mints and bridal cakes.

Approximately 50 guests were present.

Party Honors Future Bride

FOUNTAIN—Miss Anne Harris, whose wedding will take place December 7, was honored with a bridge party Saturday afternoon given by Mrs. Edward Newton.

An array of colorful fall flowers were used in the living room and arrangements of white chrysanthemums and roses decorated the dining room.

A corsage marked the honoree's place at the head table. At the end of three progressions scores were tallied, four prizes were awarded to Mrs. W. R. Harris, and Mrs. William Redick for high and Mrs. J. M. Horton second high.

Mrs. Gene Hodges received the floating prize. Miss Harris was presented a piece of silver in her chosen pattern.

Arrangements of tiny mums and miniature brides decorated the refreshment tables where a recheated fruit salad with hot spiced tea and bridal cakes were served.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Gene Hodges of Washington, Mrs. Nannie P. Hearne of Falkland and Mrs. Floyd of Petersburg, Va.

Mrs. Burnette Talks At Meet

FOUNTAIN—The Women of the Fountain Presbyterian Church held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night in the church with 14 members attending.

Mrs. Paule Burnette gave the devotional part of the program, using Ephesians 4:1-6 for her scripture; she also reviewed the Study Book "Christians Are Citizens," closing with a prayer.

Mrs. Mark W. Owens, president, presided over the business session. Mrs. J. A. Mercer, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and thank-you notes. Mrs. J. L. Dozier, treasurer, gave her report.

Plans were made for the In-gathering supper to be held in the Fellowship Hall of the church Wednesday night, Nov. 13.

Mrs. F. A. Fountain gave a report on the annual meeting of the Women of the Church held in Washington Tuesday, October 22, in the First Presbyterian Church in Washington.

The meeting was closed with a prayer by Mrs. Owens.

Wooten Class Holds Meeting

The Lydia Wooten Class of Jarvis Memorial Church held its October meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. M. W. Maxwell, 303 S. Library St. Co-hostesses were Mrs. J. A. Piver, Mrs. T. P. Smaw, Mrs. John Clark and Mrs. E. L. Baker.

Mrs. Maxwell gave the devotional which stressed the fact that this is United Nations Week.

Mrs. T. P. Smaw gave an annual treasurer's report.

The program was given by Mrs. Margaret V. Crenshaw, Instructor of Library Service at ECC. Her subject stressed Democracy and the importance of Allies and individual right. She left this thought with the members: "Human beings are the most important things in the world."

Mrs. J. L. Simmons, class president, presented plans for a combination meeting for November and December to be held as a dinner meeting at the church on December 2.

Mrs. Simmons closed the meeting with a prayer.

The hostesses served the 23 members present refreshments carrying out the Halloween motif.

Students Hold Campaign Rally

Last night a few of the students of Winterville High School sponsored a rally at the Winterville Community Building.

The purpose of this rally was to campaign for the school paper staff. The students who are running for these various offices are Tommy Day, Tommy Braxton and Doris Dillingham.

The rally consisted of campaign speeches made by various managers. Later in the evening the students were allowed to dance.

Approximately 100 students attended.

A wedge of Blue cheese creamed and added to French dressing is delicious poured over fresh pear salads.

Homemakers Invited To Attend Meetings

Homemakers in the Greenville area have been invited to attend at East Carolina College a series of six meetings at which topics of interest to them are receiving attention.

My Girls All Wear Leather

Associated Press Women's Editor
IF YOU WANT MEN to notice your clothes, wear leather, says Samuel Robert of Haverhill, Mass.

This youthful-looking father of a college daughter and a prep school son may be suspected of an ulterior motive in his remarks, since he is one of the country's leading designers and manufacturers of leather fashions for women. But his pretty daughter, Andrea, a senior at Vassar, staunchly upholds her dad's opinion.

"Boys hardly ever notice what I'm wearing," says she, "unless I happen to have on a leather coat or jacket. Then they do nips-ups."

"Try it yourself," advises Robert. "Men always notice a handsome piece of leather—it's just something instinctive. A man may make no comment on your beautiful new mink coat—but just put on a suede polo coat and listen to his complements!"

Robert got interested in leather when he took over the family cleaning and dyeing business founded by his father. When leather garments were sent in for cleaning, he felt that tanning processes should be improved so that fine leather could be cleaned more easily. Although he was highly successful in expanding the cleaning business, he always had had a hankering to be a designer, too. So in 1945 he started designing and making high-style leather garments, with a modern factory in Haverhill and a showroom in New York.

"I guess it was a natural for me," he says. "I was raised in a leather city. I knew the tanner, and I was able to explain my ideas to them. I wanted them to develop finer leathers than ever had been available before, and to work out new methods that would make leather garments easy to clean, light-weight and practical."

"Well, they did it. And that's why leather fashions have become practically standard in almost every woman's wardrobe today."

In his current collection Robert has everything from leather shorts and slacks to mink-collared evening costumes of white suede embroidered in gold and seed pearls.

There are suits with supple kid-skin jackets in every color of the spectrum, with cashmere skirts and sweaters dyed to match. There are leather polo coats and reefer, fur-trimmed town coats in kid or suede, leather skirts and jackets—even leather dresses. "With these new light-weight, supple skins, you can do almost anything with leather that you can with fabric," says he. "The color goes all the way through, too, and most of them can be kept clean simply by wiping with a damp sponge of cloth."

All members of the Robert family are leather fans—daughter Andrea, son Stephen, a student at Exeter, and the attractive, blonde Mrs. Robert. Which makes it nice for Pop.

Learn A Lesson From A Queen

AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor
YOU CAN'T HELP but feel that a little bit of queen has rubbed off on you, especially when she's as young, pretty, and widely photographed as Elizabeth II. Her visit to America has put droves of young girls back on the charm beam.

A queen, the girls have realized, isn't touched by a fairy godmother with a magic wand to accomplish a myriad of beauty miracles. Queens have just as many food temptations as others, and certainly wade through a good many banquets that are loaded with calories. Any girl who wants to achieve queenly stature knows that she's got to get there the hard way.

There are exercises, masseuses and massage machines, all within the grasp of the girl who must have a little assistance with dieting. A little will power goes a long way to getting one started on the road to a pretty figure. There's no sense in just wishing on a star. You've got to work for figure loveliness.

If you'd have queenly hair, it should be neat, set in becoming fashion, not frizzed or windblown instilled unruliness that some girls associate with casual charm. The trend is to lustrous locks that look scrupulously clean and shining.

One of the popular vanity table items these days is hair dressing. One new hair control spray is especially timely because it does not contain the lacquer that leaves a gummy residue, making the hair look stiff, but instead gives a natural sleekness to the hair. The spray was developed by a busy woman with varied careers as business woman, flyer, author. She sought a hair spray that could be sprayed on gently and last all day. The same spray may be used on little girls' pony tails and Junior's cowlicks.

The complexion is coming in for its share of attention this season, too, and the lady like regal pink and white glow is the aim of schoolgirls and society matrons. Makeup doesn't stand out on the skin like a coat of paint on a barn. The idea is to put on color to make the skin look fragile, delicately colored as a Renoir painting. Beauty doesn't leap at the eye, the eye leaps to the beauty.

Mrs. J. W. Van Landenham Edgecombe Home Demonstration Agent, gave a talk on how to match colors and color schemes. She stated all colors are based on three primary hues—red, blue and yellow. She displayed fabric for drapes, colors for walls and samples of rugs to match.

At the conclusion of the talk several members worked in pairs decorating living rooms.

The hostess served cookies, nuts and candy and iced drinks to the ten members present.

Antibiotics save lives and worry

There was nothing good about the "good old days" when it came to fighting infectious diseases. Today, modern antibiotics frequently enable physicians to bring down dangerously high temperatures in a matter of hours—and to get patients back on their feet in days instead of weeks.

When your physician prescribes an antibiotic, it is usually important to start treatment as soon as possible—which is why our prescription department carries a complete stock of all leading antibiotics on hand. For service without delay, form the habit of bringing your prescriptions to us.

Manufacturing Ideas Are Ready

What can we manufacture here that will afford employment for our people?

There is hardly a community in North Carolina in which that question has not been asked many times in the past year. A number of communities have found an answer to their satisfaction, and as a result small, home-grown industries have been springing up. Other communities are still repeating the question and making little real effort to find an answer.

The State Department of Conservation and Development has heard the question many times. That agency has sought answers and has compiled a list of 137 different items which might be manufactured in communities of this state. The list is made up of items which existing industries in North Carolina now have to purchase from outside the state. Most of these industries, according to C and D officials, have said they would prefer to purchase their supplies within North Carolina.

So there it is. Every community in North Carolina now has for its use a ready-made list of industrial opportunities. It is a list of items for which there already exist a ready market within the boundaries of this state. It is a list which will fit into its unique local situation.

For some of the items, it would cost several million dollars to set up an adequate manufacturing plant. Other items on the list might be produced with an initial capital outlay of only a few hundred dollars.

Almost any community which wants a home-grown manufacturing plant should be able to acquire one for itself if the necessary initiative is available in the community itself. The C. and D. department is offering its services to every community in North Carolina to help establish these small industries. The potential of their economic contribution to the state is limited only by the willingness of individual communities to embark on one of these projects.

The Reflector urges every community in Pitt County to consider carefully the local industrial opportunities available to them and during the next 12 months seek to establish at least one new home-grown industry. It will take time and effort on the part of the community. It will take some money too. But the return in improved economic conditions of the county which can be realized by such efforts will be well worth both the time and money which are put into such projects.

Three Whole Days To Defeat Those Viruses

The one-day school holiday declared by Greenville school officials may prove an effective measure in breaking the grip flu-like diseases have upon youngsters of Greenville. It can only do so, however, if the holiday is coupled with the exercise of common sense on the part of parents of Greenville's school youngsters.

Like other schools in the state, Greenville schools in recent weeks have been handicapped in their operations by the large number of absences. School officials, reluctant to interrupt classes for even a day, postponed closing the schools as long as they thought wise. Late yesterday it was announced that no school would be held in Greenville today.

That means the youngsters have three full days to nurse their sniffles, colds and viruses before returning to classes on Monday. The holiday will mean little in the way of reducing school absences if it is not used for that purpose.

Here are some general recommendations of physicians which parents may keep in mind for their children:

- Stay at home.
- Stay out of rain and dampness.
- Avoid undue strenuous activity.
- Stay in a warm, even temperature.

New Precedent In Bit Of Cotton

By ELMER ROESSNER

A wisp of cotton may lead to a new precedent in law governing the ownership of ideas.

The cotton figures in a suit scheduled for a full hearing in January.

The idea is a "cotton test" for the effectiveness of electric shavers. Half a man's face is shaved with a razor and half with an electric shaver. Cotton is rubbed on each side of the face. Fibers are said to cling to hair stubble on the side shaved by the razor.

Warwick & Legler, Inc., a Philadelphia advertising agency, said it proposed the idea to Schick, Inc., when the latter was a client in 1956. Schick did not then accept the idea, and later became a client of Benton & Bowles, Inc.

WHO CAN USE IT?

After Schick had changed agencies, it told Warwick & Legler that its new agency had proposed a similar idea, and asked Warwick & Legler to waive any claims to it. The latter refused, declaring it was the owner of the idea and that it had sold rights to it to Remington Rand for its shaver.

Schick, it was alleged, nevertheless used the idea in a short television commercial and Warwick & Legler brought suit. Judge J. Cullen Ganey, in Federal Court in Philadelphia, granted a temporary injunction and set a hearing on a permanent order for early next year.

Schick contended that it was entitled to all ideas originated for it while it was a client, excepting of course those ideas for which the agency had incurred substantial expenses for which it was not reimbursed. Schick held that commissions collected by the agency paid for its own creative work during the time it was a client.

Warwick & Legler, however, contends that this is not the general practice in the industry.

AFFECTS ALL ADVERTISING

The final decision, assuming that it is based on the basic issue, will have profound effects on all advertising agencies. If the courts rule that clients are entitled to all ideas developed for them by their advertising agencies, many clients will gain bonanzas because agencies usually develop two or three times as many ideas as a client can use at the time.

On the other hand, if the decision holds that clients own only those ideas that they have used, there will be considerable changes in agency practices. When an account is shifted from one agency to another these days, it is common practice for the new agency to offer jobs to people who have worked on the account in the old agency. If the final decision supports it, an agency losing an account might enjoin the new agency from hiring away any personnel on the grounds that they are repositories for ideas.

The decision may have a bearing on another practice of advertising — one, incidentally, not involved in the current litigation. This is the practice of companies asking several prospective agencies to submit "presentations" of the ideas they would use.

It is frequently charged that some companies ask for many presentations just for the opportunity to pirate ideas proposed. If the present case leads to a ruling giving agencies fuller rights to their ideas, they might be able to take action when they can prove their ideas have been swiped. On the other hand, it may make prospective advertisers more cautious in asking for presentations.

BRINGING "FAIR TRADE" SITUATION UP TO DATE

Recent body blows to "fair trade" laws that permit manufacturers to fix retail prices of their product are having counterproductive effects. The Bureau of Education on Fair Trade is pushing for a Federal law under which prices could be fixed regardless of state laws, many of which have been found unconstitutional.

Meanwhile, Max Hess, the Allentown, Pa., merchant, is considering plans to establish a mail-order house in some city without "fair trade" laws through which he would sell Pennsylvania products at lower prices than he can legally charge in his own store.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DEADPAN AND LOW PULSE. The word "enthusiasm" is derived from a Greek word meaning "inspired by a god." It has been watered down in modern English until it means that general fervor and zeal which one may manifest on any occasion. But an amazing amount of enthusiasm has departed from this world in recent decades. This is noticeable among all classes, but particularly among the young as their show of enthusiasm is considered not good form.

A few evenings ago I heard a college professor speaking to an entering group of freshmen. He was telling them how to be popular in college. Never wear a necktie, he said; if you do you will be taken for a faculty member. Never wear anything clean. Go about in dirty clothes, look and act slovenly. Never say anything you haven't heard someone else say at least twenty times. Finally, never make a "good mark." Once in a while he averred, with a straight face, a student may slip and get an "A" in some subject, but if it can be proved that he never did any studying, it will be forgiven and forgotten.

Of course he was speaking facetiously, and the students roared with laughter. But here is an example of what we started out to say. Deadpan and low pulse are popular among modern youth. No enthusiasm. To be enthusiastic is bad, bad form.

Moon And Tide

by DON SCHLIENZ

An Early Look At 1958

I wouldn't have done it for just anybody, but I figured you should know about some things that are in store next year.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has compiled a listing of special days, weeks and months for 1958. A report on the first six months' events found my desk and it's only fair you should get some of the highlights.

You're aware, I trust, of those old standbys like New Year's Day, National 4-H Club Week, Palm Sunday, April Fool's day and the like; so this report will consist of just a few remarkable items not generally known.

Among other things, January is also Sockroom Needs Month; a month which also includes Odorless Decoration Week. Save the Puff Week, National Franklin Thrift Day and Large (Economy) Size Week.

February is the first of two Good Breakfast Months, and includes National Weight-Watchers Week, Pencil Week and Bachelor's Day.

March — the month which comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb — can count among its 31 days a National Arithmetic Week, National Smile Week (how did they come so close together?), National Teen-Agers Day and Spring Clean-Up Week.

April — this one I like — is also known as Pearadise in April Month. Then there's a Let's All Play Ball Week, a National Laugh Week and a National Fun Day.

Having worked our way into May (are you still with me?), we run smack dab into National Young Republican Day; then there's Let's Go Fishing Week; National Tax Freedom Holiday and National Coin Week. May has also been designated as Picture Month, National Retirement Month and Plumbing, Heating, Cooling Month. Take your choice.

June is singularly lacking in out-of-the-ordinary affairs. It is known as National Recreation Month; and National Expectant Fathers Day comes on the 14th, with Father's Day on the 15th — a happy coincidence.

Of those above six months, June remains the best bet for inserting your own special Day or Week, or Night, June-Spoon-Moon Night, for instance, could be chosen for a time when there was a full moon. And one might plan ahead for a Let's Stay In Bed Late This Morning Day, or a Let's Walk To Work Day. There's no getting around it, a month is more than merely a month anymore.

Opinions In Brief

"To watch a football game is to be in prolonged neurotic doubt as to what you're seeing. It is more like an emergency happening at a distance than a game. I don't wonder the spectators take to drink." —Jacques Barzun.

"Football has become so complicated, the student will find it a recreation to go to classes." —T. S. Elliot.

"Are you interested in startling facts? Here's one produced by a recent study: Last year taxes—levied by the federal, state and local governments—took an average of $2,400 from each of America's 42 million families. Part of this was paid directly and part indirectly." —Industrial News Review.

"Putting the 'potential murderer' label on all drinking drivers runs counter to popular notions, but it is in keeping with the facts. The facts are that alcohol is related chemically to chloroform, ether and ethylene, which are anesthetic gases. And it is also related to those gases in the effect it has on the body." —Dallas Times Herald.

Ladies Quit Fighting

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Whatever happened to the equal rights movement, which was intended to give women the same rights as men?

Have the ladies gone soft? Very few of the ladies today seem to want to man the barricades in the fight for greater freedom for their sex.

The thought was raised by the announcement that the British government has recommended that women be granted seats in the House of Lords for the first time in history.

This would seem to be, on the face of it, one of the smallest sops to feminine vanity possible and a largely meaningless political organization of vanished grandeur and departed power, has about as much real influence in the affairs of the British Commonwealth as the aide-de-camp of a Zulu tribal chief.

As a Londoner might put it, "a seat in the House of Lords plus six pence will also get you a seat on the bus."

However, it is quite likely many ladies will regard the installation of a powder room in the House of Lords as a big feminist victory, which just goes to show how the equal rights campaign has lost its virility—at least in the English-speaking world.

The outlook for more major gains by the feminists in the United States today appears dismal. At the present moment the movement is bogged down, stalemated, debilitated. The ladies have been bought off by partial success, become amug with small victories, lost their flaming revolutionary zeal.

Where are the turbulent feminists of yore? Where are the ladies who grimly paraded the streets in demand for equal rights, grimly stepping out of line only to slap the faces of jeering male bystanders? Where are the embattled Amazons of moral justice who dared jail terms, who boldly picketed the White House?

They won the right to vote, but where did they go on from there in the right to hold public office? A few won judgeships, a scattering of ambassadorial posts, a couple of Cabinet posts, a handful of seats in Congress, some governorships.

They now can outvote men, but what woman ever has been a major contender for the vice presidency or the presidency? Have the girls lost faith in themselves? Has a little small doubt crept into their minds that maybe, after all, women aren't really equal to men in the really top posts?

Women now hold 22 million jobs and make up about a third of the nation's work force. But they haven't yet been able to enforce their demand for a pay scale equal to that of men in the same jobs. They have moved into all the professions but in dismally small numbers and at a dismally slow pace.

The French feel theirs is a man's country and the United States is a hen-pecked land dominated by women. But the truth is that France has a far higher percentage of lady doctors, lady legislators, and lady lawyers than does America.

Here in the United States many industrial organizations which forcibly retire men at 65 forcibly retire their women employees at 60 or even 55, a policy which may or may not reflect corporate galantry but certainly is a plain curb on woman's quest for equality of career opportunity and lifelong earning power.

One could cite many other examples of discrimination against women, but why bother? A few isolated soprano howls of protest are raised, but the old anger and outrage of most women toward man's injustice has died down. The feminist army has been divided and conquered, and it flies banners. It is, in fact, no longer an army. It set out a generation or more ago to win the loaf of equality, and now it sits down and munches the half-loaf it settled for.

"This is now a woman's world," say wily men who know better, and flattered women prefer to believe it rather than fight on.

Other Editors Saying-- Advice For Readers

(The Dallas Times Herald)

Walter Cronkite, the noted CBS news analyst, offered sage advice to newspaper readers during his appearance here the other day at the Southwest Journalism Forum. Read deeply, he said. You must, in order to gain more than superficial understanding of complex world situations, like that in Syria.

Scanning headlines and listening to news broadcasts, noted Cronkite, isn't enough to make you well informed. Only well informed, thinking citizens can make constructive contributions to the policies that guide the nation's destiny.

Newspapers, too, have a responsibility. They must present the news attractively and clearly. By and large they have been striving to fulfill this duty. Through seminars, in-service training, reader comprehension studies and other means the objective of simple, understandable, writing is constantly pursued. But though news and knowledge be served on a silver platter, readers are still required to put forth a minimum of effort. Mere scanning of stories can give a wholly distorted idea of its contents.

The day has vanished when the nation's thinking can safely be left up to officials and a select few citizens who make it their business to get to the bottom of important public issues. A good case could be made to show that if more citizens had been doing their homework, public opinion would long since have brought about an accelerated scientific and missile development program. "Reading deeply" is today as much a citizen's responsibility as voting.

TO EDUCATION INSTEAD

(The Macon News)

The cost of having kept 1,000 paratroopers from the 101st Airborne Division in Little Rock to enforce racial integration at Central High School is reported to have been $96,000 a day. In addition, it is estimated the cost of federalizing the Arkansas National Guard was $250,000 a day.

The same amount of money put into educational facilities for Arkansas would have worked wonders for the wonder State. Using local school building cost figures as a measurement, a complete school with 14 classrooms, an office, clinic, library and combination lunchroom and library could have been built for every day the Guard was federalized if the funds had gone to education. The cost of the paratroopers daily would have enabled Little Rock to have added between 13 and 14 classrooms a day.

It must also have been galling to Little Rock teachers to have seen all that cash being paid for bayonet-toting instead of cran-um-stuffing. In a study of teacher salaries in 443 cities with more than 25,000 population, Little Rock ranked 424th in pay to instructors holding bachelor and master degrees.

Many Eyes On Tuesday's Vote

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The gubernatorial balloting next Tuesday in two strangely contrasting states — New Jersey and Virginia — will be scrutinized closely by national political leaders to ascertain voters' reaction to the Administration's recent setbacks and difficulties.

They will be interested chiefly in the behavior of the Negro, the labor and the so-called Zionist bloc. For despite the growing independence of the electorate, the experts still believe that citizens with common concerns and interests are inclined to vote accordingly and fairly solidly.

President Eisenhower's aides expect to improve the GOP's status with the colored people, to retain 1952-1956 gains among the working population and to lose votes among elements opposed to his Middle East policies and reversal of the Roosevelt-Truman attitude toward Israel.

MEYNER'S MAJORITY FACTOR Governor Meyner approved the strong Civil Rights pronouncement recently issued by the Democrats' National Advisory Committee. He also noted that when New Jersey's schools opened in September, "children of all races, and nationalities went through the doors."

Approximately 120,000 Negroes are registered voters in New Jersey. After voting New Deal-Fair Deal tickets for 20 years, they gave Eisenhower fairly good support in 1952, and even more in 1956.

Although Meyner is expected to win, he must roll up a huge majority — 150,000 or more — to receive serious consideration for 1960 against better-known rivals. And the Negro vote can hurt or help him in this cause.

The nominally Democratic labor population resents the "right to work" legislation adopted by many Southern states, as well as Senator McClellan's sponsorship of national legislation of this problem. But it will probably be for Meyner because of his efforts on their behalf on a state level.

VIRGINIA VOTE SIGNIFICANT Although invariably victorious, the Byrd machine in the Old Dominion hopes to turn out a record demonstration for J. Lindsey Almond Jr. for Governor. It aims to deliver a resounding rebuke to the Administration for its effect in the South and throughout the nation. It wants to check all chatter about Dixie becoming a two-Party area.

It gave its electoral total to Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956 in protest against "Truman liberalism." With a tremendous majority for Almond, it hopes to warn both national parties of the depth of resentment in the South, where there has been talk of a Third Party.

Theodore Roosevelt Dalton, the Republican candidate, polled the unprecedented total of 45 per cent of the vote several years ago. If he is to repeat, thereby giving encouragement to national GOP leaders, he will have to rely on the dubious colored and labor blocs.

The Spirit of Christian Worship ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Paul writes to the Corinthians of his rules of conduct for men and women when they attend church. The woman's head should be covered, he tells them; the man's uncovered.

The Spirit of Christian Worship

PAUL EXPLAINS MEANING OF THE LORD'S SUPPER AND HOW IT SHOULD BE OBSERVED.

Scripture—I Corinthians 11.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL IN THIS LESSON, which may not be too easy for the younger children, and possibly the older ones, Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests that it be introduced by being reminded "that no great leader of worldwide influence ever asked, or was expected, to be remembered regularly by some specific celebration, the rules for which he laid down."

so-called partaking of the Lord's Supper is far from the example Christ set. Instead of the sacred nature of the sacrament being emphasized, it was made into a feast, where members of a certain "set" brought their food and shared it with one another, and the poor had no food and no part.

The Golden Text

The last supper.

"But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup."—I Corinthians 11:28.

"Let hungry men eat at home," and let each one examine himself and see if he is worthy to partake of this sacrament.

MEMORY VERSE—I Cor. 11:28.

MEMORY VERSE "But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup."—I Corinthians 11:28.

of God, but the man does have authority over the woman." The women of our time are likely to dispute Paul's assertion. Most modern women in America, England and Europe claim an equal partnership with their husbands in all matters pertaining to home affairs, church participation, politics, etc.

Whoever takes part in this sacred ceremony unworthily, "shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord," Paul wrote. "But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup."

College Football Reaches Key Stage This Weekend

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

College football reaches the point of no return this weekend in the big races for conference titles and bowl spots. And only Oklahoma, among the unbeaten, untied giants, and three other clubs among the nation's top 10 figure to be breathing easy come tomorrow evening.

Oklahoma should have a ball making Kansas State No. 46 in its winning streak. It looks like the same sort of afternoon for Ohio State, Army and North Carolina State, rated eight, nine and 10 in the current Associated Press poll.

Ohio State, still shooting for the Rose Bowl and maybe the Big Ten crown as well, meets winless Northwestern, Army, once-beaten as is Ohio State, plays Colgate. And NC State, undefeated but twice tied, and NCAA barred from a bowl bid, meets winless Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

But for the rest—blood, sweat and maybe tears here and there. Texas A&M, carrying the No. 1 ranking for the first time this season, meets Arkansas, once-beaten but still breathing in the South-west conference fight for the Cotton Bowl. Unbeaten Iowa and Auburn, ranked third and fourth, have fought times against conference foes, too—the Hawkeyes against improved Michigan and Auburn against Florida.

Undefeated Notre Dame, rated No. 5, has slipped past Army and Pittsburgh in its last two games and now meets once-beaten Navy. Michigan State, No. 6, still has a hope for the Rose Bowl going into tomorrow's game with Wisconsin's Badgers. And tied but unbeaten Duke, ranked No. 7 with the ACC's Orange Bowl okay apparently in hand, has a toughie in Georgia Tech, a poor 2-2-1, but still in line for a possible bowl berth.

That's what the top 10 face tomorrow. Now here's the picture in the conference races:

SOUTHWEST—While Texas A&M should have the edge over Arkansas, the Porkers are battling to stay in on the title tangle that pays off with a Cotton Bowl berth. Texas, tied with A&M for the conference lead, meets Southern Methodist.

BIG TEN—Iowa can't play in the Rose Bowl two years in a row, but the Hawkeyes could repeat as conference champs by defeating Michigan—and then Minnesota and Ohio State.

SOUTHEASTERN—Auburn and Florida are both barred from bowls by NCAA probation. Auburn currently is tied for the lead with Mississippi, which meets non-league Houston tomorrow night. Auburn and Mississippi do not meet.

BIG EIGHT—If anyone but Oklahoma rules this roast it might be Missouri, if the Tigers can get past Colorado tomorrow. Then all Missouri has to do is knock off the Sooners next week.

PACIFIC COAST—Oregon, Washington State and Stanford lead the way in the battle to the Rose Bowl, and Oregon meets Stanford tomorrow. Washington State plays Oregon State.

ATLANTIC COAST—Duke, tied by NC State, has the nod because of the Wolfpacks' bad boy ranking by the NCAA.

IVY—Dartmouth, lone unbeaten, untied team in the East, meets Yale and the loser likely has no tie. Princeton, tied with Dartmouth in the league, plays Brown.

Flu, Weather Cancels Game For Greenville

Tonight's Greenville - Wilson football game has been cancelled due to bad weather and the flu epidemic here.

With the closing of GHS yesterday, the game was automatically called off.

It marked the second game in a row that has been cancelled for the Phantoms. Last week a non-conference tilt between the G-Men and Fuquay-Springs was postponed. Neither of the two games is expected to be played later.

It was learned today that the Kinston-Washington Northeastern Conference football tilt scheduled for tonight at Washington has been cancelled.

Kinston high assistant Coach Tom Moseley said the announcement, he stated that the action was taken upon advice received from the health department. The game will not be rescheduled.

N.C. Footballers Are Well Up In Statistics Race

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Lenoir Rhyne, North Carolina A&T of Greensboro are among the team leaders, and fullback Harold Bullard of Lenoir Rhyne, and end Jerry Richardson of Wofford are high in individual statistics among football teams of the nation's smaller colleges.

Bullard is No. 6 in the nation in rushing, averaging 102.5 yards a game in six games through last Saturday. Edward Nesbitt of A&T is 25th with an average of 83.2 yards in four games.

Ralph Zehring, East Carolina College quarterback, is 25th in passing. He has completed 24 in 51 attempts for 374 yards. He has had four interceptions.

Jerry Richardson, Wofford end, is 24th in pass receiving, having caught 21 in seven games for 301 yards and six touchdowns.

Richardson and Bullard are among a quartet tied for fifth in scoring, according to statistics of the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA). Richardson has scored seven touchdowns and 12 conversions. Bullard has scored nine touchdowns.

Lenoir Rhyne is sixth in team total offense with 2,739 yards in seven games, 2,037 on rushing and 722 on passing. The team has averaged 394.2 yards a game.

In total defense, North Carolina A&T is fourth and Lenoir Rhyne is 10th. A&T has allowed opponents an average of 127 yards a game and Lenoir Rhyne has yielded an average of 156.4 yards a game.

A&T is second in rushing defense. In four games, opponents have averaged only 52 yards a game on the ground. Lenoir Rhyne is sixth in rushing defense, having yielded 70.7 yards average on the ground.

Lenoir Rhyne is 10th in team rushing on an average of 291 yards a game in its seven games.

Martinez Named To NAIA Duty

HICKORY, N.C. (AP)—Four new members yesterday were named to the District 26 Committee of the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Named to the district committee headed by Chairman Clarence Stasovich of Lenoir Rhyne College were Dr. Jack R. Netcher of High Point College, G. W. (Doc) Mathis of Elon, Bob Broome of Appalachian and Joel Robertson of Wofford.

Three other appointments included James E. Fulghum, Atlantic Christian College, reappointed district publicity chairman; George W. McCreary of Lenoir Rhyne, secretary-treasurer; and Ray Martinez of East Carolina College, named to promote district swimming and help the NAIA's national swimming committee with its annual meet, won last year by ECC.

Appalachian Rated 3-TD Favorite Against Pirates

Farmville Eleven In Eliminations By Cancellation

FARMVILLE — Farmville High School's football Red Devils will move into elimination play for the State Class A championship next week.

The way was opened for the Devils this morning when their scheduled game with Benvenue was called off because of bad weather, colds and flu-like diseases in both schools. The game was to have been played in Farmville tonight.

Cancellation of the contest leaves Farmville with a 4-0 record in Coastal Conference play, and puts the team in a position of unchallenged leadership. Benvenue, which has a conference mark of two wins and one loss, was the last team in a position to keep Farmville from the championship.

Decision not to play the game was announced this morning after conferences between officials of both schools. Neither of the schools has been closed because of the health situation, but Pitt County school officials today ordered all of the county's units to suspend operations at 1 p.m. with the suspension to remain in effect until at least Monday morning.

Farmville has a 6-2 record against all opponents thus far this year. Their opponent in next week's elimination play, and site of the contest, have not been announced yet.

Contenders Are Getting Restless

NEW YORK (AP)—While Carmen Basilio waits on Sugar Ray Robinson and the International Boxing Club to decide when he will defend his world middleweight title, the contenders are getting restless.

Spider Webb, Chicago, the No. 6 boy in the Ring ratings, will try to strengthen his claim tonight in a 10-round match with Willie Vaughn of Los Angeles at Madison Square Garden. Webb is the 13 to 5 favorite.

Gene Fullmer, the No. 2 contender, meets Neal Rivers at the Garden, Nov. 15 and Rory Calhoun, No. 3 takes on Bobby Boyd, No. 9, in the same ring Nov. 22. Calhoun recently whipped Rocky Castellani in a dreary bout.

By the time this series of matches has been completed, Robinson may have decided if he wants to defend this winter. Unless an exception is made, he can't fight tonight matches because the championship must be on the line every time he weighs 160 pounds or less. He never has weighed close to 160.

Webb makes his second start in 16 days in his stepped-up campaign to reach the top of the division. He thinks he is ready for anybody, including Basilio, but would like to take on either Joe Giardello or Fullmer, the ex-champ, in the meantime. He already holds a decision over Calhoun, scored in 1956.

The Spider has a 24-2 pro record. As an amateur he represented the United States in the 1952 Olympics at Helsinki, losing to Lazo Papp of Hungary. He has won five of six this year. After defeating Neal Rivers, Will Greaves and Randy Sandy he bowed to Charlie Joseph at New Orleans, June 18. Webb whipped Joseph in a rematch at Chicago, Aug. 7.

Charge Cyclists Endanger Planes

WARWICK, R.I. (AP)—Two motorcyclists were under arrest today for endangering airplanes.

Thomas J. Kilday and Robert H. Katt, both 18, were arrested after they drove their motorcycle the length of the runway at Hills-grove Airport while planes were in the landing pattern.

Christy Is The Halfback Who Scares His Foes

Dick Christy is a halfback who keeps opposing teams scared and everybody in the stadium sitting on the edge of their seats.

He's a 5-10 speedster who can break open a game (and frequently does) with one of his electrifying runs. He's also a major factor in North Carolina State's amazing record of four wins and two ties.

It was Christy who scored three times when N.C. State drubbed Maryland 48-13. It was Christy who turned in a 97-yard touchdown run as State stopped Clemson 13-7. It was Christy who scored the Wolfpack's only touchdown as State edged Florida State 7-0. And it was Christy who scored both of State's touchdowns in the Wolfpack's come-from-behind 14-12 tie of mighty Duke last week.

Christy, a 191 pounder, topped North Carolina State's career rushing total in the first game of this season. Every time he carries the ball, he pushes the record up. It now stands at 1,462 yards. Coach Earle Edwards hopes Christy can add to that tomorrow when the Wolfpack plays host to Wake Forest in one of two Atlantic Coast Conference games.

Flu kept five State players from practice yesterday including tackle Darrell Dess, guard Francis Tokar, both starters; end John Collier, fullback Wally Prince and center Ronald Savage.

Ed Selvy Pulls Out Of Furman

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—The Furman University athletic department disclosed today that Ed Selvy, brother of former Furman all-American Frank Selvy had withdrawn from school.

Selvy transferred to Furman from Kentucky last January and would have been eligible for basketball at the middle of this season.

Athletic director and basketball coach Lyles Aley did not elaborate on the reason for Selvy's departure except to say that Selvy had indicated he would take a job in Kentucky.

His home is Corbin Ky. He is married and the father of one child.

Deer Hunting In Pitt Ends Today

The open season for hunting deer in Pitt county closes today.

Open season for hunting deer in other North Carolina counties (with some exceptions) continues from October 15 to through January 1.

The second half of the dove hunting season begins December 1 and continues through January 10.

Appalachian's Mountaineers, rated three-touchdown favorites, invade College Stadium tomorrow night to meet East Carolina's Pirates in a North State Conference match.

For the Bucs, it will be their seventh game of the season and they will be seeking their first win. Thus far, they have dropped contests to Richmond, Davidson, Catawba, Elon, Western Carolina, and Newberry.

Though the long string of consecutive losses indicate that this is ECC's most dismal football season in history, the Bucs could conceivably even better last year's mark. In 1956, the Pirates finished with a 2-6-1 slate. At this point, they have three games left on the card and it is possible that they could rally and finished with a 3-6 mark.

Odds-makers refuse to leave the Pirates anything, however. A long range prediction by some indicate that ECC will be staggering underdogs in all three of its final games.

Appalachian is given a three-TD edge tomorrow night. Lenoir Rhyne, the conference leader along with Elon, is next week's opponent for the Bucs and they will probably be rated to win by an even heavier score. Presbyterian will have the Bucs in South Carolina three weeks from tomorrow and will also be rated to win.

The Apps will bring a 3-3 record to ECC stadium tomorrow night. They started off the year with a bang, winning two straight, then dropped three in a row. Last week they whipped Emory and Henry, 19-7.

The Mountaineers are expected to employ a good ground attack against the Pirates. They are mostly a grinding team, according to reports, and do most of their damage through the line.

Coach Jack Boone's boys are expected to use a ground attack also for the most part Saturday night. Ralph Zehring is scheduled to handle quarterback duties. His chief runners will probably be James Speight and Tommy Nash.

Robinson 'Beat' First Year Jinx.

By MAL SCHECHTER
PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—The way Cincinnati's Frank Robinson tells it, 90 per cent of his recognition as the Associated Press sophomore-of-the-year in the National League belongs to his manager, Birdie Tebbets.

"He kept after me all the way, and that's what a young ball-player needs, because all of us let down too easily, thinking we've got it made," the 22-year-old Redleg said today on learning the results of the annual poll.

Robinson's 1957 performance at first base and in left field earned top billing for him and knocked the props from under the so-called "sophomore jinx." Robinson was the league's 1956 rookie-of-the-year.

"It's wonderful. I'll be up in the air about it for a week, and I doubt if I'll be much good to the Marines," Robinson said at the Marine Recruit Training base here where he will spend six months of reserve training ending April 1.

And the Oakland, Calif., wrist-hitter added: "Most of the credit should go to Manager Birdie. He's worked hard with his ballplayers, and particularly me. Ninety per cent of the credit for my success goes to him."

But whatever credit the solid right-handed hitter deflected to his mentor, 57 of the 182 ballots cast by participating members of the Baseball Writers Assn. of America put down Robinson's name in the AP poll.

Close competitors were pitcher Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles (once Brooklyn) Dodgers with 44 votes, and second baseman Don Blasingame of the St. Louis Cardinals with 36.

The record book shows Robinson topped his rookie 290 batting average to .322 as a sophomore, tying Milwaukee's Hank Aaron for third spot in the senior circuit batting race.

And he also ranked third in number of safeties with 197, only three fewer hits than pacesetter Red Schoendienst of the Braves. In 150 games, Robinson knocked in 75 runs and scored 97.

His home run total fell from 38 in 1956 to 29 last season, but his hit total rose by 31.

Diamond historians note it was only a few days before the 1956 season opened that Robinson gained the Redleg starting roster, a kind of Cinderella start after going unlisted on the spring training slate.

Robersonville Ready Meet Ayden Tonight

AYDEN—Robersonville, a Coastal Conference team that has already been licked once by Ayden, has agreed to act as a fill-in opponent for the Tornados tonight in the latter's Homecoming tilt.

The Ayden-Tarboro game that was originally scheduled for tonight was called off early this week due to an epidemic of the flu at Tarboro. That game would have been a non-loop contest.

Tonight's game, too, will not count in conference standings.

Earlier this season, Ayden upset the favored Rams 19-0 in a battle that virtually dropped Robersonville out of the race for the Coastal crown.

May Not Play
A later announcement from Ayden this morning stated that rain may still cancel the game. Ayden officials said that if it continues to rain, as weather reports indicate, the game will be called off.

Tonight's tilt will give Ayden an opportunity to improve its 5-3 overall season record—and will give Robersonville a second chance at the club that knocked them out of the conference title race.

Two linemen are on the question list for Ayden. Dan Bateman and Leslie Stocks, regulars, may not

Star-Studded Duke Hopes To Really Crush Engineers

ATLANTA (AP)—A star-studded Duke team, big, fast and undefeated, invades Grant Field tomorrow hoping to make mince-meat of Georgia Tech's erratic, underdog Engineers.

Duke coach Bill Murray has never beaten Tech on its home field and everything points to this as his year to succeed. The Blue Devils, ranked No. 7 nationally in the Associated Press poll, bring with them impressive records on both offense and defense.

Halfback Wray Carlton, a 196-pound junior who has fine speed and shiftness, is the big gun in Duke's well-stocked arsenal. He has averaged 5.4 yards while piling up 368 yards rushing. Murray says he may become one of Duke's all-time great runners.

He gets good support from George Dutrow, Hal McElhaney, Bob Brothead, Dan Lee, Bunny Bell, Phil Dupler and Pryor Miller. McElhaney, however, hurt an ankle against North Carolina State last week and is counted out of the Tech game.

In the line, the Blue Devils are big and rugged. Try of the top men are guard Roy Hord (220) and tackle Tom Topping (210), a pair of all-America candidates.

Tech coach Bobby Dodd calls it the best Duke team he's seen since the "Iron Dukes" of 1938, who were unbeaten and unscored on until Southern California beat them 7-3 in the Rose Bowl.

Dodd says his squad is at its lowest ebb of the season physically because of injuries to No. 2 center Maxie Baughan and guard Dan Theodocion and Sim Fulcher. All-America center hopeful Don Stephenson, who had one of his best days against Duke last year, and guard Foster Watkins are being groomed for double-duty against the Blue Devils.

So is quarterback Fred Braselton, but the soph signal-caller already has turned in ironman stints in several games this year.

Dodd has revamped his lineups to get more heft in the backfield. He plans to use Tax Anderson as the starting right halfback instead of Cal James and Jim Benson as the No. 2 fullback instead of Larry Fontz because Anderson and Benson are bigger and stronger.

Fontz, Tech's top rusher with 133 yards, and James both probably will see action, however.

Tech's first two backfield units stack up like this: No. 1—Braselton (190) at quarterback, Anderson (200) and Stan Flowers (200) at halfback and Lester Simerville (175) at fullback; No. 2—Braselton, Floyd Faucette (190) and Joe Delany (185) at halfback and Benson (210) at fullback.

Wingate Rated In No. 2 Position

WINGATE, N.C. (AP)—Wingate College, undefeated in seven games is the No. 2 team among Southern junior colleges.

First place in the rankings of the National Assn. of Junior Colleges is Arlington, Tex., Junior College, undefeated in six games. Tyler, Tex., is third; Texarkana, Tex., fourth and Joplin, Mo., fifth.

Wingate has three games remaining, with Hargrave Military Academy of Chatham, Va., here Saturday night; with Mars Hill Nov. 9 and with The Citadel freshmen Nov. 15.

Wingate has been mentioned as a possible team for the Junior Rose Bowl.

Elon-Catamount Game Called Off

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP)—The Western Carolina-Elon football game scheduled here Saturday was called off yesterday because of an outbreak of flu on the Western Carolina team.

It marked the second week in a row that Elon has had a football game called off because of flu.

Elon football coach Sid Varney said WCC coach Dan Robinson telephoned him yesterday saying that an outbreak of flu had left him with only 16 players. Robinson said 10 players were out with flu and four others were out with injuries. He said he could not field a complete team.

Elon's game last week against Catawba was called off because campus. Elon then agreed to play a flu outbreak on the Catawba Davidson after Presbyterian College the Wildcat's opponent backed out of their game because of flu. Then Davidson had to cancel its game with Elon because of flu.

Varney said no plans have been made yet to reschedule the Catawba and Western Carolina games. The schools like Elon, are members of the North State Conference.

Epps Homecoming Game Postponed Until Monday

Tonight's scheduled football game between Epps High School of Greenville and P. S. Jones High School of Washington has been postponed until Monday night.

Postponement of the game was forced by bad weather which also caused suspension of all classes in Greenville city schools today. Kick-off time Monday night will be 8 o'clock in Guy Smith Stadium.

The game, which will be Epps' first home contest in five weeks, will also be Homecoming for the Bulldogs. Activities which were originally scheduled for tonight will be carried over to Monday.

The delay in playing the game will enable the Bulldogs to get first-team tackle James Teel back into the line-up. Two other players, Fred Watson and Willie Lee Adams, will miss the contest, however, because of injuries.

Epps' starting line-up for the Monday game is expected to include Calvin Gatlin and James Tyson at the ends, James Teel and Herman Woolard at tackles, Dalton Davis and Kenny Green at the guards, Garland Allen at center, Joe Tyson at quarterback, Virgil Lynch and Woodrow Wilson at the

Nat'l Champion Came In Third

COLUMBIA (AP)—The national champion in late model convertible auto racing came home third in a race here last night.

Bob Welborn of Greensboro, N.C., the 1957 national champion, came in behind Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va. and second place Billy Myers of Germantown, N.C.

A necessary pit stop by Myers cost him the lead to Weatherly. Weatherly drove a Ford, Myers and Oldsmobile and Welborn a Chevrolet.

Partial Beginning Made In Space Travel By Humans

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—Human space travel has already partially begun. Our jet pilots are flying so high that much of the earth's air is beneath them. They are already meeting and conquering some major problems involved in trips to the Moon or Mars.

Human volunteers in special experiments are producing answers as to whether, and how, humans can stand greater and more severe challenges higher in the void of space.

But don't fall for the pitch of some promoter offering you bargain-price reserved tickets to the Moon by 1960 or 1965.

It just won't be that easy. Indeed, there are some scientists and experts who say space travel is forever out of the question—men couldn't stand it, or be protected well enough.

There's a middle opinion that human journeys into space are a very long way off—perhaps no earlier than the end of this century.

But enthusiasts say the first space Columbus—John or Ivan—has already been born or now is even in school. They see initial space journeys within five to 10 years.

Jet-pilots are flying in such thin air that they must carry their own oxygen, use pressurized cabins and special suits, or else their blood would boil at these heights. Their planes are overcoming problems of heat from friction at high speed in the air they meet. The pilots are experiencing sensations of no gravity—weightlessness—at times in their flights.

Space flight means more of most of the same problems, intensified. But with new problems added.

Can human life withstand the radiation men will meet in space from cosmic rays, and from intense ultraviolet light and X-rays from the sun? Our blanket of atmosphere blocks out most of these rays, which might quickly kill or damage the unprotected body.

Our air also burns up most of the meteors whizzing in at us from space. How crowded is space with this cosmic dust, or with big meteor chunks traveling faster than any cannon shell, and just as lethal if they barreled through a pressurized space cruiser?

Baby moons—U. S. and Russian—equipped with sensitive instruments and radios, will report what these hazards are, or what unsuspected dangers may exist.

Under International Geophysical Year agreement, both nations are pledged to tell the world what their baby moons learn.

With that knowledge, scientists and engineers might devise materials and methods to safeguard human astronauts physically.

Monkeys have gone up 60 miles high inside U. S. rockets. Russians report sending dogs 130 miles high. Just in the last few days, a Soviet scientist said a next step could be to put dogs or other animals in baby moons, with instruments recording and reporting what happens to them.

Such animal trials could be arranged humanely to prevent suffering. But the real step would be human volunteers testing the practicality of space travel.

Could people psychologically withstand the peculiar challenges of space? Long trips mean a few persons cooped together in probably cramped quarters for days or months, in perhaps continuous peril, with sudden emergencies calling for quick, decisive, cooperative actions.

Picked men manning atomic submarines operate under similar conditions, and their answer is yes.

Women might be the first choice because, say male psychologists, they can tolerate boredom and monotonous tasks better. Another suggestion is to put space crews into suspended animation on long journeys with special drugs while automatic controls or signals from earth control the flight to Mars.

It seems certain that the first astronauts will be carefully hand-picked—maybe one in thousands—on considerations of health, psychology, training and skills.

MISSING A POINT ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—The tame, new generation somehow hasn't quite got the idea behind "trick or treat."

"I guess you'll have to trick. I'm out of treats," apologized Mrs. Melba Holmes to a 9-year-old goblin. She prepared for the worst. The little spook thereupon stood on his head on the sidewalk.

Police Ordered Arrest All NAACP Officers

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Police today had orders to arrest all officers of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People they could find in integration-wracked Little Rock.

The City Council last night voted unanimously for the arrests.

Acting Mayor Lee H. Evans and seven aldermen agreed on the action after the NAACP failed to obey a new ordinance which requires certain groups to bare their confidential files.

Deadline for submitting the information was yesterday.

Only two local NAACP officers were known to authorities and one of them, Mrs. L. C. Bates, was in New York. She is state president of the organization.

The other officer is the Rev. J. C. Crenshaw, pastor of the Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church and president of the Little Rock chapter of the NAACP.

Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann notified the NAACP and three Little Rock segregationist groups Oct. 15 that they would have to make their records public under the new ordinance.

The NAACP this week filed a petition in U.S. District Court here requesting a restraining order to block enforcement of the ordinance and a hearing was set for Nov. 4.

All three of the segregationist groups—the League of Central High Mothers, the Freedom Fund for Little Rock and the Capital Citizens Council—submitted their records to the city yesterday.

Mann said after telling the four organizations to file their reports that he considered all were contributing to racial tension at Little Rock.

Mann is in New York on a business trip.

The federal-state deadlock over integration of nine Negro students at Central High School shows no sign of loosening.

After Gov. Orval Faubus placed National Guardsmen around the school and the six Negro girls and three boys were barred, a federal court enjoined the governor from interfering with integration.

Faubus withdrew the guardsmen and rioting broke out when the Negroes entered Central High Sept. 23. Next day, President Eisenhower federalized the Arkansas Guardsmen and sent 1,000 paratroopers to Little Rock. The Negroes entered the school Sept. 25 and have attended classes since.

Although most of the guardsmen have been released from federal duty and half of the 101st Airborne Division contingent has left Little Rock, federal soldiers still remain inside and outside Central High.

Mrs. Bates, who is on a speaking tour, addressed a New York NAACP committee last night.

Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel for the NAACP, said she would return soon to Little Rock and would be represented by adequate counsel.

Another NAACP spokesman said she planned to leave New York for Little Rock after a Sunday speaking engagement.

"She is not the kind to run away from a fight," the spokesman said.

Marshall said the Little Rock City Council's action was "another instance of the efforts of the State of Arkansas to use judicial processes to thwart the Constitution of the United States of America."

The Little Rock ordinance was drafted by State Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett. Although it does not mention the NAACP by name, Bennett has left no doubt it was aimed at the organization.

Bennett told the councilmen he considered the ordinance a strong weapon against the NAACP and said the organization feared it would lose its followers if its records were shown to the public.

Bennett also said: "One of the troubles with the South is that we have been letting the Darkie run to federal courts while we don't use the state courts to attack them."

City Atty. O. D. Longstreth Jr., who also attended the session, suggested that a council vote be delayed until after the NAACP petition was heard in U.S. District Court.

But Longstreth withdrew the proposal under pressure of the Aldermen. He drafted the arrest order which took effect today.

Conviction of violation of the ordinance carries a penalty ranging from $50 to $250.

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP, said in San Francisco last night that the organization consistently had kept its membership lists from public view because pressure had been applied against known members in the South.

Wilkins said that in some cases members had been fired from their jobs and in other cases violence had been directed against them.

Bennett has sent copies of the ordinance to all cities in Arkansas and six towns besides Little Rock have adopted it.

Purported Confession By Chas. Guy Awaits Ruling

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Charles Lee Guy III, 19, will have to wait until Tuesday to learn whether a seven-page statement, purportedly a confession, will be heard by the jury trying him on a murder charge.

Superior Judge Allen T. Lynch adjourned the proceedings at the close of court yesterday and said he will be prepared to rule Tuesday on admissibility of the statement.

The opposing attorneys had spent most of the day arguing the point.

Young Guy has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to the shotgun slaying of Guy F. Roberts, an advertising executive. Roberts was killed as he lay in bed at a Santa Monica motel Aug. 15.

The defendant's mother, Mrs. Nina Angus, told investigators she had intended to marry Roberts.

Attorney Charles Lee Guy Jr., who came here from Dunn, N.C., to defend his son, shifted the trial spotlight to his former wife, the boy's mother, at one point.

In cross-examining detective Robert Holborow, the father asked: "Did not his own mother... attempt to point the finger of suspicion at her own son?"

The question went unanswered as the court intervened, ruling it improper.

Holborow testified that during the questioning of her son, Mrs.

Angus said to the youth: "You were not wearing the clothes you have on now. You are not wearing your mustard-colored pants. Why don't you tell the truth, sonny?"

The detective said the boy replied: "I am telling the truth, mom."

Attorney Guy called his son to the stand later in an effort to show the alleged confession was obtained under duress and because Mrs. Angus at that time also was being held in the case.

Under questioning by his father, the blond youth acknowledged the signature on the document was his.

"I just glanced at it here and there. I didn't read it. I didn't particularly care at the time because my mother had already been released," the youth said.

In response to a query from the bench, young Guy said the statement embodied the answers he had given during the interrogation but the answers were false.

"Did the officers hit you or push you around?" his father asked him.

"No, sir. But I don't think it would have taken five minutes more."

In rebuttal, Dep. Dist. Atty. David N. Pitts called the officers who had questioned the defendant. Detective Capt. Robert Guggenmos repeatedly said no promise of leniency, reward or other benefit had been made.

Allis-Chalmers Subsoiling Lets Rain Soak In

Store moisture in the subsoil where your crops can call on it for future use.

The rugged Allis-Chalmers subsoiler breaks up packed soil and shatters hardpan, reducing water runoff and erosion. You'll have more moisture stored in the soil... less water standing in low spots.

With WD-45, D-14 and CA Tractors, the Allis-Chalmers subsoiler goes deep and stays there... provides uniform penetration to a depth of 18 inches or more.

CHAPTER 23
Blue rode up the slope toward the cabin, his eyes on me. He held the reins in his left hand; his right arm hung at his side. I stood in the doorway, thinking that I could shoot him out of his saddle without running any chance of getting shot, but I didn't try. I guess he knew I wouldn't.

so that fear would work on me, and he thought he had waited long enough. He made his play with his left hand and I made mine.

I took his hand, so surprised that I found it hard to believe this was actually happening. He had never apologized to anyone as far as I knew, but to apologize to me of all people was something that came under the heading of a miracle.

He dismounted and walked toward me, his right arm still hanging at his side. His gun was on his left hip. His right arm was stiff. Vic Toll had said Sammy Blue was as good with his left hand as he had been with his right. But was he? Well, I'd soon find out.

I never made a smoother, faster draw, maybe because I knew I had to, and of course I had the advantage of the short barrel. I was way ahead of Blue. He didn't get off a shot. My first bullet caught him in the left shoulder and knocked him back out of the doorway as cleanly as if he had been jerked off his feet by an invisible wire. I fired again as he fell, the bullet angling through his chest.

"You'll come home?" "It's up to Ma." "All right." I wasn't going to waste time making up with Gil. First I had to tell Bess about Barney Lux; then Frank and I were going to root him out of the bunkhouse.

As Blue walked toward me, I backed up. By the time he reached the doorway, I was standing against the opposite wall of the cabin. He stopped, a little bandy-legged man, his left hand close to the butt of his gun.

I ran out of the cabin and stood over him. His eyes were open, and blood was running down his chin. "I practiced but not enough," he said.

Barney Lux is caught and tried. How does a killer react when the tables are turned? Don't miss the answer in tomorrow's installment of "Desperate Man."

"I'm going to kill you, Munro." Blue said. "I guess you know that." I hoped he would make his play then, because the interior of the cabin was dark compared to the bright sunlight as he had been used to, and he might have trouble seeing me. I wanted to start the ball myself, but I had never drawn a gun against a man when I was facing him, and I couldn't quite bring myself to do it now.

He spoke slowly, whispering the words, for that was all the strength he had. Then he was dead, his mouth dropping open, his hands going slack in the dust at his sides. I leaned against the cabin wall for a time, my knees weak, blood pounding through my body. All the practicing he'd done with his left hand had not been enough. Maybe he's thought he was ready. Or maybe he knew he'd fall, but still he'd had to try when Dick Price told him where I was.

WGTC Radio

Blue seemed to be in a hurry. He stood motionless, staring at me, maybe waiting for his eyes to become accustomed to the thin light. Or perhaps this was his way, enjoying the cat-and-mouse game he had played with my father last fall in the lobby of the hotel in Buhl.

I dropped my gun back into the holster and dragged Blue's body inside the cabin. Somebody would come after him when he didn't show up at the Rafter 2. I jerked the bride off his horse and gave him a slap. I got my Winchester from the cabin and shut the door, then saddled up and started for the park. I'd tell Bess, and then I'd take care of Barney Lux.

FRIDAY

"I had quite a ride," he said finally. "I was in town, or I'd have been here sooner. Price rode in to get me." He lifted his right arm a few inches and dropped it back to his side. "You didn't think I'd forget you did this to me, did you?"

By the time I reached the park, the sun had been down by two hours and the moon was up. I decided the best help I could get for the job ahead was Frank Dence.

SATURDAY

I didn't answer. Right from the moment I'd shot him in Buhl, I'd known I'd have to face him again. Suddenly frantic desire to live clawed through my consciousness and I thought of Kity and what it would mean to her if I died this way.

When I got to his place, Frank was in bed asleep, but in no time at all he and Kip had saddled up and were riding with me to Bess' house.

FRIDAY

"You're scared, sonny," Blue said. "You're scared right down to your guts. You can't move and you can't talk."

We rode most of the way up the lane to Bess' house, then we stopped. We could see a light in the house, but not in the bunkhouse. I said, "Bess is up, but chances are Lux is asleep. How about walking in and letting Kip hold the horses here?"

SATURDAY

I had been scared; then suddenly I wasn't. I wouldn't beg and I wouldn't crawl. I had forgotten for a moment, but now I remembered that he had sent the saddle tramp Jones to Dillon's Park.

We dismounted and walked to the house, moving quietly and saying nothing. I knocked on the front door, Frank standing a step behind me. When the door opened Bess saw who it was and, turning, said, "Gil, Dave's back."

SATURDAY

"Then who did?" "Barney Lux," Blue said, and grinned. "And he killed Elder Smith too. Surprised?"

I wished he was ten miles from there. Now we were stuck with him. He got up from his chair and walked to the door. He was nervous and red in the face. I thought at first he was afraid I intended to tie into him again, but it wasn't that.

SATURDAY

"Give hundred dollars for each job," Blue said, "but that's his way, not mine. I work for Runyan. Barney worked for Toll." He couldn't stand it any longer. I suppose he'd been using up time

"I'm apologizing for what I said last Sunday." He held out his hand. "I'm sorry. You done right to poke at me."

By SHELBY JEAN BARROW
Grimesland School Reporter
Melissa Whichard has been elected chief of Grimesland High School's cheering squad. Other members of the squad who were selected in a recent election are Joann Eiks, Jackie Eiks, Carolyn Minton and Doris Mobley.

Mascots have been elected by members of the Senior Class. Selected by the group were Kaye Galloway and Jimmy Page.

Sophia Clark, Jean Barrow, Shirley Singleton, Peggy Warren, Jimmy Edwards, Lindy Edwards, Curtis Wagoner, Robert Baker, Fred Stokes and Joe Bell took the qualifying test in the National Merit Scholarship competition last week.

Basketball season for the Grimesland Panthers will open November 5 with a game at the Jasper Consolidated School in Lenoir County. The remainder of the schedule will be announced in the near future.

Letters for use on bulletin boards have been added to library materials available for students in the school. Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, county supervisor, obtained the letters which will replace the old letters made from construction paper.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (NCDA) — Hog prices steady. Tops of 16.75 to 17.50 at Tarboro, Enfield, Scotland Neck, Winterville, Bethel and Murfreesboro; 16.50 to 17.25 at Rocky Mount; 16.50 to 17 at Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Nahant, Angier, Albertson and Lillington; 16.25 to 16.75 at Clayton, Goldsboro, Castle Hayne; 16.50 at Rich Square, Fayetteville, Clinton, Lumberton, Smithfield, Pine Level, Blackmans Crossroads, Elizabethton, Newton Grove, Dunn, Whiteville, Bailey, Mount Olive, Clarkton and Shalotte.

RALEIGH (NCDA) — North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers, farm price mostly 15 with few at 16.

Eggs — Prices paid by distributors for clean, sized, minimum 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte weaker, large 51; Durham steady, large 50. Prices paid producers on graded out basis: Asheville, about steady, A large 50 to 52, mostly 50.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market went through a fairly sharp sinking spell today but trading was moderate early this afternoon.

The dip occurred from a two-week high on the average and was a logical level for profit-taking, brokers said. But the fact that the Federal Reserve System has maintained its credit restraint and tight money policy despite recent predictions to the contrary had a dampening effect on investor confidence.

This was added to yesterday's news of a big decline in rail car loadings which pointed to a general falling-off in business, especially manufactured goods.

Pivotal issues were down generally from 1 to 2 points, with wider losses showing here and there.

The market was lower from the start, continuing yesterday's downward trend which cut off a stable rally in its third session.

Based on the decline in the average, at noon, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange was down an estimated $2,600,000,000.

Du Pont fell around 4 points, in an exceptional move for this session. Gulf Oil was down around 3. Amerasia dropped more than 2, as did U.S. Steel.

As trading progressed into the afternoon some prices, which had shown a slight firming tendency for a while, fell to new lows for the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down $2.10 to $156.20 with the industrials down $4.20, the rails down $1.50 and the utilities unchanged.

Five Persons Injured In 3-Car Accident Yesterday

DRIVER ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY IN ACCIDENT ... automobile turned over on N. Greene St.

AUTOMOBILE COLLIDED WITH TWO-TON TRUCK ... five injured in three-vehicle collision yesterday.

Three women, a man and an 11-year-old child suffered personal injuries in a three-vehicle accident early yesterday afternoon at the intersection of N. C. Highway 43 and Memorial Dr.

The injured were identified as: Mrs. Ralph Ferguson of Robersonville; Mrs. C. L. Whitfield of Greenville, Route 1; Mrs. Clyde Jordan Daniels of Robersonville; C. L. Whitfield of Greenville, Rte. 1, and Sylvia Whitfield of Greenville, Rte. 1.

Mrs. Ferguson sustained facial lacerations and a mild concussion. Her condition was said to be "good" this morning. Mrs. Whitfield, who received a deep laceration of the scalp and a mild concussion, was said to be in "satisfactory" condition today. The young girl suffered a fractured shoulder. Whitfield, with chest injuries and lacerations, is in "good" condition. Mrs. Daniels, identified as the driver of the automobile involved in the accident, suffered minor bruises and lacerations but was not admitted. Whitfield, his wife and the younger were occupants of a 1956 one-half ton pickup truck traveling west on N. C. 43, according to the investigating officer. Mrs. Daniels and Mrs. Ferguson were together in the 1956 automobile.

The third vehicle involved was a 1956 two-ton truck being operated by Marvin Smith of Roberson-ville. He was not injured. Pfc. D. L. Minshew of the State Highway Patrol, assisted by Pfc. J. B. Surles and Pfc. H. R. Winslow, conducted the investigation. Minshew charged Mrs. Daniels with failure to stop for a stop sign.

Minshew stated the automobile being operated by Mrs. Daniels struck the left front of the pickup truck, knocking it a considerable distance down the intersection.

Mrs. Daniels' vehicle then crashed into the left side of the two-ton truck yielding to the stop sign at the time of the accident. Mrs. Whitfield was identified as the driver of the pickup truck. She was thrown onto the highway as a result of the impact, the officer stated.

The automobile and pickup truck were said to be total losses. Minshew estimated damage to the other truck involved at $100.

Escapes Serious Injury
A 26-year-old mechanic narrowly escaped serious injury when the automobile he was driving overturned several times on N. Greene Street yesterday afternoon.

Robert Allison Harrington of 110-A Contentnea St. told investigating officers from the City Police Department that he lost control of the vehicle he was driving. The vehicle belonged to Carlton Cates of 208 Ridgeway St. The driver was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment shortly after the accident and later released. He sustained minor bruises and lacerations. There were no other occupants in the vehicle at the time of the mishap.

Distillery Wins Delay In Action

RALEIGH (AP) — The State ABC Board will be prepared when it meets here Nov. 13 to hear more information on reports that free liquor has flowed at Democratic party gatherings.

State ABC Chairman Tom Allen said yesterday an invitation to the session will go to Robert L. Thompson of Raleigh, who circulated a memorandum containing a broadside on free liquor allegations.

"Anybody else who has any information to offer the board is invited to be present," Allen added.

Meanwhile, a distillery won a delay at least until Jan. 3 in a suspension ordered by the ABC Board on the sale of its products in Tar Heel liquor stores.

The 30-day ban on the products of Glenmore Distilleries of Louisville, Ky., had been ordered effective today. However, the board yesterday postponed a hearing on the matter after being told it was on shaky legal ground.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton told the board it was his opinion that it had no legal authority to ban the sale of Glenmore products on the shelves of ABC stores. He said it would have power to take action on Glenmore's permit to sell to North Carolina distributors. Allen said the board took the position that Glenmore was "responsible for the actions of its representatives."

Newlett, N. Y., and one brother, Roosevelt Payton, Hacksack, N. J. The body will be at the home from 5 p.m. Saturday until the hour of the funeral.

AYDEN — Thomas Cannon of near Hookerton died at State Hospital at Goldsboro Thursday. Funeral arrangements had not been made. The Norcott Funeral Home in Ayden has charge of the funeral.

Rev. P. H. Mumford, pastor of York Memorial A. M. E. Zion Church, wishes to remind members to come prepared to report Conference assessments Sunday. The Annual Conference is just a few days off. The 11 a.m. service Sunday will be conducted by the pastor, and music will be rendered by the two Senior Chorus. Evening worship as usual is at 7:30. Tuesday night is time for Junior Choir rehearsal, prayer meeting is on Wednesday night, and Thursday night will see rehearsals by the Senior Choir and Gospel Chorus. The Trustees will meet Monday night. The public is cordially invited to all services at York Memorial.

AYDEN — Mrs. Lizzie (Sis) Moore, 710 East Avenue, died at her home Tuesday night after a long illness. Funeral services will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at St. Paul's Christian Church in Ayden, with Rev. Walter Croom of Deep Run officiating. Burial will be in the Ayden cemetery. Mrs. Moore was the daughter of Ben Payton of New Bern and the late Cora Payton Allen of Ayden, and the widow of Jessie Moore. She was born and reared in the Ayden community and was a member of St. Paul's Christian Church. She was a member of Ayden Tent Lodge and the Court of Calanthe. Members of these lodges are to meet Sunday at 1:30 to render rites. Mrs. Moore is survived by her father; a daughter, Priscilla Moore, State Teachers College, Winston-Salem; three sons, J. C. Moore, Chicago, SP-3 Douglas Moore, U. S. Army, Aberdeen, Md., and SP-3 Robert L. Moore, now serving in the army, Germany; one sister, Mrs. Lillian Allen of

Superior Court Concludes Term Here Yesterday

Pitt County Superior Court wound up a one-week criminal term yesterday afternoon.

The term was ended by Judge Walter J. Bone after four days of deliberations. Judgments which were returned by the court in its final sessions included:

Bessie Williams, Negro, Farmville, indecent exposure, public drunkenness and disorderly conduct, directed verdict of not guilty on the charge of public drunkenness and disorderly conduct, jury verdict of not guilty on the charge of indecent exposure.

Hugh Ward Ricks, 1114 West Fourth Street, Greenville, failure to yield right-of-way, appeal to Superior Court dismissed, case remanded to Greenville Municipal Court for proper judgment.

Mount, speeding, plea of guilty. Mount, speeding, plea of guilty, $25 and costs; Earl Nichols, Route 4, Greenville, driving under the influence, jury verdict of guilty, 60 days; Milton Elliott Wintley, Tarboro, driving under the influence and improper brakes, jury verdict of guilty, $150 and costs. Holton Williams, Negro, Ayden, public drunkenness, plea of guilty, 30 days suspended upon payment of $25 and costs before November 18 and on further condition defendant remains of good behavior and violates no laws.

Church Observes 157th Anniversary On Sunday

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Free Will Baptist Church will observe its 157th anniversary with special services Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Rev. Henry Melvin, the pastor, invites former pastors and members and friends to share in the anniversary and "homecoming" celebration.

The services Sunday will mark the beginning of revival services which will continue through November 10 each night at 7:30. Rev. Fred Rivenbark, pastor of Fairmont Park Free Will Baptist Church, Norfolk, Va., will do the preaching. An interesting sidelight on the life of Mr. Rivenbark is that he is a "son in the ministry" of Pastor Melvin, having been converted under him 22 years ago.

Reedy Branch Church was organized half a mile west of Winterville in 1800 and was housed in a log cabin with a fireplace for the heating system. The pews were slabs of wood. Some time later—about 1880—a small frame building replaced the log structure. In 1901 the present commodious structure was occupied. Class rooms were added in 1925 and a vestibule and tower was added. A modern six-room house was built for the parsonage in 1952 and occupied by the first resident and full-time pastor.

In 1956 the first unit of a modern educational building was completed. This unit is of block and contains 10 class rooms, kitchen, rest rooms and a utility room. Eventually there will be three units.

Ban Dancing At Wake Forest And Meredith
RALEIGH (AP) — Dancing on the campuses of Wake Forest and Meredith colleges will be taboo until the Baptist State Convention decides the issue at its annual meeting opening here Nov. 19.

Trustees of the colleges and the General Board of the State Convention yesterday reached a compromise leaving the question up to the full convention. The trustees agreed to suspend recent actions to permit supervised social dancing, and the general board voted to recommend "without prejudice" that the convention review its stand in opposition to dancing on the campuses of Baptist colleges.

The recommendation will carry with it neither favor nor disfavor for dancing. "All we are saying," explained Dr. Perry W. Crouch of Asheville, general board president, "is that here are two colleges with a problem and we are asking you to discuss their problem."

DEATH OF FATHER
A message was received here yesterday that J. A. Williams of Seven Springs had died. Funeral details were unavailable. Mr. Williams was the father of Mrs. Mitchell White, Jr., 1705 Tremont Drive, Greenville.
