Soviet's Second Satellite, Carrying Dog, Rides High

By RICHARD WESLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sputnik II, whirling more than 1,000 miles out in space with a little dog named Curly aboard, gave the world another convincing glimpse of Russian technical prowess today.

The Soviet Union's second earth satellite roared aloft about 11:38 p.m. EST Saturday. Data released by the Russians indicated it was propelled by a powerful new ballistic missile.

The announcement brought also a renewal of demands that this country speed up its missile and satellite programs to overtake the Russians. But Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy and other officials indicated they expect little or no change in this country's present schedule.

The feat gave the Russians another first—the first live space traveler, a Spitz-type female dog named Kudryavka, which is Russian for Curly.

Recordings of her breathing, heart beat and blood pressure, transmitted to earth in a coded radio hissing sound, will supply information on the hazards men would face in space travel.

Radio reports from the orbiting satellite indicated that Curly was alive and in good condition as Sputnik II shot round the world once every 103.7 minutes at 17,840 miles an hour.

There also were hints the little animal may be parachuted safely back to earth before the new satellite plunges back into the atmosphere and is destroyed.

The Moscow announcement described Sputnik II as the third stage of the rocket which launched it into space. Total weight of the apparatus, which astonished some scientists, was given as 1,120 pounds.

An accurate orbit for the new satellite still had no been calculated today, but residents of the United States were expected to be sighting Sputnik II before long. It is traveling substantially the same pattern as its predecessor, but is taking a little bit longer for each circuit.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass. said the new satellite "should be visible very soon as an evening object in United States latitudes."

Whipple said it also should begin making morning passes over the United States "in a few days."

Scientists and radio amateurs began picking up the now-familiar beep-beeps shortly after Sputnik II was launched. The new satellite was transmitting on the same frequencies as Sputnik I did — 20 and 40 megacycles.

Sputnik I — the 184-pound pioneer earth satellite the Reds sent into space Oct. 4 — still is circling the earth on a lower and faster orbit. The batteries in the original satellite died about three weeks after it went up.

Moscow radio said Sputnik II swings 1,056 miles out into space at the farthest extent.

One broadcast said the new satellite is built to stay up longer than Sputnik I, "despite a considerable increase of the weight of the scientific and measurement equipment, which amounts to over half a ton."

"The second satellite was given a greater velocity in its flight at the time of reaching its orbit, with a view to prolonging its life," the announcement said.

British scientist Kenneth Gatland, vice chairman of the British Interplanetary Society, called the accomplishment "simply fantastic."

"It must mean the Russians could land a rocket with a sizable payload on the moon tomorrow," Gatland said.

Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the U.S. earth satellite program, found the weight of the satellite less astonishing than some of his colleagues."

"It doesn't surprise me," Hagen said, "that they were able to put that weight in orbit since they must have done the same thing before with their first satellite and the casing and the satellite were detached."

Hagen said "The thing is, we don't know how much of all their weight represents the third stage rocket casing alone and how much of it represents the satellite and its scientific equipment."

Despite the powerful thrust of the launching rockets, and the accompanying implications of advanced missile technology, it was Curly, the space-traveling dog, about which most of the speculation swirled.

She was sealed in an air-tight, air-conditioned chamber equipped with instruments to record her reactions to space flight.

Moscow said preliminary transmissions from Sputnik II indicated Kudryavka was in good condition, and Soviet scientists hinted the little animal might eventually be parachuted safely back to earth.

U.S. officials responsible for this country's missiles and satellites programs appeared determined to remain calm under criticism from members of Congress.

Secretary of Defense McElroy said in Cincinnati yesterday that Sputnik II will have no great effect on U.S. missile-satellite programs.

"We already are in a presure program," McElroy told reporters. "Our program is in very good shape right now."

Pentagon officials noted that both McElroy and President Eisenhower already have said that U. S. missile-satellite programs are being given the highest priority, regardless of Soviet accomplishments.

Dr. Hagen, director of Project Vanguard, the U.S. satellite program, said he saw no immediate likelihood of a chance in U. S. plans.

"I think," Hagen said, "we should pursue our own program which is a thorough and well thought out project. Then at the end of the International Geophysical Year (Dec. 31, 1958), we can take stock and see just which country has achieved the most scientific results."

Hagen said American scientists are quite satisfied with their own progress in the satellite field and are confident they can get their own satellites into orbit on schedule.

That schedule calls for launching a series of six-inch globes next month, which may or may not assume orbits. The first fully instrumented satellite is expected to be sent into an orbit next March.

Three-State Alarm Is Out For Girls, Man In Shooting

ROBERSONVILLE — No trace has been found of three young Robersonville girls reported to be in the hands of a man involved in a shooting here late Saturday night.

Martin County Sheriff Raymond Rawls identified the missing girls as daughters of Willie H. Roberson of Robersonville Route 1. Their whereabouts has been unknown since the shooting incident took place at the Airport Inn, a local juke joint.

Rawls stated a three-state alarm has been sent out.

The sheriff identified the man involved in the shooting as Ralph Grady, a construction worker from Ashboro. Grady reportedly shot James Luther Gardner of Jamesville Route 1 following an argument over "who was the best man."

Gardner's condition has been described as "critical." The bullet entered his chest approximately one-half inch below his heart, Rawls said.

Witnesses told the sheriff that Gardner knocked Grady to the floor during an argument but was pulled off him by several of his friends. They stated Grady got up from the floor, went outside to an automobile, got his pistol and shot Gardner without saying a word to him when he came back in.

The oldest Roberson girl, Barbara Ann, who had reportedly been dating Grady, ran in and prevented him from shooting the wounded man lying on the floor, one of the bystanders said.

Rawls stated that according to the information he had received Grady kept the crowd at gunpoint until he got into an automobile. Witnesses said the Roberson girl was driving the car, belonging to her father, with Grady in the front seat and her two younger sisters in the back seat.

The three girls had come to the Airport Inn a short time before the shooting took place, Rawls told The Reflector. Their ages were given as 18, 13 and nine.

From all indications, Rawls said, Grady had been with them prior to his argument with Gardner. The pistol has not been found.

Law enforcement officers from Robersonville, Williamston and surrounding areas are intensifying their search. Earlier searches Saturday night, Sunday and today have failed to yield evidence of the whereabouts of Grady and the three girls, the Martin County sheriff stated.

Board 'Cool' To New Roads Plan

Pitt County Commissioners, faced with only routine business this morning, rambled into an off-the-cuff discussion of the position of County Boards of Commissioners in the state's new secondary road program.

"So far as I can see we will have no more to do with which roads are worked on and which are not than we have ever had," one commissioner declared.

"It looks like to me they are just trying to make the County Commissioners a buffer between the people and the Highway people, and we don't have a thing to do with deciding what secondary road work is done in the county," another commented.

Still another Commissioner told his fellow members of the board, "I've had I don't know how many phone calls about this new set-up, and I've had about 15 people to come to see me about secondary roads. I've just told them all quite frankly that this Board of Commissioners doesn't have a thing to do with how the secondary road appropriations are spent in Pitt. There is a lot of confusion over this merit system plan for the roads. It's going to mean that some roads that were near the top of the list for work priority may be dropped way down the list."

The discussion among the Commissioners was prompted by the receipt of two petitions for road work with the Board approved and forwarded by the Highway Commission division office.

Two requests for bringing forward two unspent school capital outlay items from the 1956-57 budget to the 1957-58 budget were approved by the Board this morning. One item amounted to $85,000 which was budgeted last year for construction of a gymtorium at a Negro school. A spokesman told the Commissioners that the amount was not spent during the past fiscal year because the Board of Education had plans to build two gymtoriums, one at the Ayden Negro School and the other at the Winterville Negro school and preferred to undertake both projects this year. The additional funds for the second structure has already been set up in this year's capital outlay budget.

The other request for transfer of school capital outlay funds to this year's budget came from the Arthur School district board which asked that $953.81 of the district's capital outlay budget that was not spent last year be carried forwrad in the budget for the current year.

The Commissioners received monthly reports from department heads of the county this morning and acted on other routine matters.

Virginia Woman Says Red Glare Settled On Car

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — A southside Virginia woman reported today a strange red glare bedeviled her family car last night on a trip home from Philpott Lake on the North Carolina border.

Mrs. Ruby Hairston of Bassett said the eerie glow settled over the car about 6:50 p.m. as she and four members of her family drove along the Henry-Oak Level road and traveled with them for 10 minutes in a west to east direction. It finally vanished.

"We couldn't see any direct light," Mrs. Hairston said. "Just the immense oval red glow that went on and off. It faded from bright red to a pale amber pink then brightened again. It seemed moving with and ahead of us at an angle of about 45 degrees."

She said the family told others about it and later her brother, who was not along on the trip, said he had heard a report of a similar red glow in a broadcast over station WLW at Cincinnati.

Postpone Case

TARBORO (AP) — A court case which could test authority of a local school board to assign students under the state's Pupil Assignment Law was postponed today.

Because an attorney was unable to attend, the case was put off when it was called in Edgecombe Superior Court. Spokesmen said they hoped to get to the case later this week or possibly next week.

Suspect Cyanide Death Involved

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A 15-month-old boy died yesterday, and authorities were investigating today whether the fumigation of his home with cyanide gas had anything to do with the death.

Coroner Alph Clark ordered an autopsy on the body of Johnny Larry Ratley.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Ratley said they had left their home a few miles south of here on the Camden road Wednesday after ordering the house fumigated against flathead beetles.

They said they returned Saturday, three of their four children began vomiting Sunday morning. One, Wayne 4, became unconscious, so they took him to a hospital, leaving the others in care of a relative who lives nearby. They said that when they returned, Johnny Larry, who had slept through it all, was dead in bed.

Clark said four empty cans of poison used in fumigation were found under the bed of one of the children, but it was not learned how they got there.

'Mystery Object' In Texas Puzzles Public, Officials

LEVELLAND, Tex. (AP)—Reports of a mystery object which one witness said flew around with a "great sound and rush of wind" had officials and the public puzzled today.

Newsmen and authorities had reports of sightings over a wide west Texas area Saturday and yesterday.

Peace officers checking areas where landings were reported were unable to find any trace. Reese Air Force Base officials here declined to say whether an investigation was being made.

Pedro Saucedo, 30, a farm hand and newsmen, "I was driving out and newsmen, "I was driving ou to a farm near the Pettit community (west of here Saturday night) with a friend, Joe Salaz, when we first saw the thing.

"When it got near the lights of my truck went out and the motor died. I jumped out of the truck and hit the dirt because I was afraid. I called to Joe but he didn't get out. The thing passed directly over my truck with a great sound and a rush of wind. It sounded like thunder and my truck rocked from the blast. I felt a lot of heat. Then I got up and watched it go out of sight toward Levelland," he said.

Saucedo, a Korean war veteran, said it wss "torpedo shaped" or like "a rocket," but much larger."

Ronald Martin, 18, a Levelland truck driver, said his truck engine died and the lights went out "when a big ball of fire dropped on the highway" east of here early Sunday. Martin said the object changed to a bluish green color when it settled on the highway, then changed to a fireball again when it rose straight up and disappeared.

Newell Wright, a Texas Tech student from here, reported a similar occurrance east of Levelland.

Patrolman A. J. Fowler said Saucedo and about 14 others who called in reports of the object sounded upset and in some cases terrified.

"They seemed to agree that this something was 200 feet long, shaped like an egg and was lit up like it was on fire—but looked more like neon lights," he said.

"They said it was about 200 feet in the air, and when it got close car motors and lights would go off. Everybody that called was very excited," he asserted.

Sheriff Weir Clem said he saw a brilliant light in the distance but didn't get close enough for a good look. Highway Patrolman Lee Hargrove and Floyd Cavin reported seeing similar flashes in the sky in about the same area. All were riding in separate cars.

There were reports of an unexplained light in the sky far across the state between Sherman and McKinney. Other sightings were reported around Amarillo, far to the north.

Calvin Harris and Sandy McKean, CAA control tower workers at the Amarillo Airport, said they saw a "blue gaseous object which moved swiftly and left an amber trail southeast of the city" Saturday night.

Will Mothball Last Battleship On Active Duty

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — America's single battleship on active duty, the USS Wisconsin, sailed today to join her sister giants already mothballed.

Ousted from her former place in the nation's first line of defense by newer and deadlier weapons, the 45,000-ton dreadnaught headed for New York and decomissioning at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Built at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, she was launched in December 1943. She steamed to the Pacific and joined the 3rd Fleet in December 1944. Her big guns spoke with devastating authority at Leyte, Luzon, Formosa, Hong Kong, Indochina, Iwo Jima, and Okinawa.

They spoke again during the five months she supported United Nations forces in Korea in 1951-52.

Ministers Urge End Of Prejudice

ATLANTA (AP) — Eighty white ministers from Atlanta, in a statement of their racial beliefs, have called for an end of prejudice and maintenance of communications between white and Negro leaders.

The manifesto, issued yesterday by clergymen of various faiths, also called for prayer, obedience to law, preservation of public schools and protection of free speech.

It was the first such statement to come out of the deep South. The declaration vigorously decried the idea that school integration would lead to physical race mixing. That is the key segregationist argument.

The principles of thought and conduct presented by the clergymen were said to be "of basic importance in preserving the integrity of both races."

Views expressed were those of individuals and not of any organization or congregation.

Signers included pastors of many large churches and longtime leaders of various denominations. Sects presented were Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Lutheran, Congregational and Christian.

$10,000 Gamble In Clean-Up Week

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina is gambling $10,000 in hopes of saving a large portion of the $250,000 spent each year in cleaning up its trash-laden highways.

This is "Clean Up North Carolina Week," by proclamation of Gov. Luther Hodges.

The Highway Department has started putting up signs calling attention to 600 trash cans set up in roadside table areas and other spots on major highways.

The Highway Patrol is giving out litterbags at highway check points, and to all cars stopped during regular patrol. The heavy brown paper bags carry the slogan "Don't Be A Litterbug. Keep North Carolina Beautiful." There is a picture of an evil looking insect dumping trash.

Faces Hearing In Pistol Death

KINSTON, N.C. (AP)—Bruce Byrd, 200-pound Kinston carpenter, gets a preliminary hearing today in the same Recorder's Courtroom outside of which he wounded Harry Daughety, 50, Lenoir County farmer, last Friday morning.

Byrd, 38, said that Daughety had caused a separation between him and his wife, and their five children.

Byrd is charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. Four bullets from a .38 caliber revolver grazed Daughety, and he was released from a hospital after emergency treatment.

Observers Agree Another Red Propaganda Victory

LONDON (AP) — British and French commentators agreed today that the launching of the second earth satellite has given the Soviet Union another tremendous propaganda victory.

There were widespread speculation that the Red scientists may be on the verge of sending a rocket all the way to the moon perhaps within days.

Military correspondents agreed that with rockets of the titanic power necessary to put Sputnik II into orbit just over a thousand miles out in space, the Soviet Union could easily pelt the United States with H-bombs.

China's Red regime was quick to seize on the propaganda implications of the Soviet feat. Peiping radio asserted the new launching proved the "absolute superiority" of the Communist system over capitalism.

"The outstanding achievements of Soviet science and technology are all the more admirable compared with the repeated failure of the West to send an artificial satellite into space," said the broadcast.

London's Conservative Daily Mail called anew for a joint British-American effort, saying Sputnik II "gives an even more urgent warning to Britain and America to get together in a close scientific partnership."

"Nothing but a big joint effort will suffice to overtake the Soviets," the mail declared. "Nothing less will save the West."

The London Daily Herald, voice of the Labor party, said the situation calls for "meetings and frank talks between the rulers of the world."

The independent London Daily Express termed the propaganda value of the new satellite immense, "particularly as the Russians had given notice of the launching."

"They said they would do it. And they have done it," the Express pointed out. "The message is clear: 'You can believe Moscow.'"

The Conservative Daily Telegraph said the two satellite launchings had greatly strengthened the power of Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet Communist party chief.

"These demonstrations of technological success certainly provide Khrushchev with just that kind of momentum that ambitious rulers formerly found in successful military campaigns," the Telegraph said.

Two Parisian newspapers, Figaro and Parisien Libere, suggested the Soviet Union would launch a rocket to the moon on Thursday, the 40th anniversary of the Communist revolution.

"Let us note that Nov. 7 is the date of the full moon," Figaro said.

An Indian Foreign Ministry official in New Delhi said the high degree of Soviet technology revealed by the new satellite "makes old thinkings on world problems outmoded."

"Human psychology," he added, "needs readjustment to a fourth dimensional, transplanetary outlook. It must get out of the rut of 19th century, power-politics thinking."

Youth's Neck Is Broken In Attack By Another Boy

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—One teenager beat another to death here last night.

Ronnie Ramsey, 16, died of a broken neck.

Three other teenagers were picked up for questioning at 5:45 a.m. today, more than six hours later.

Victor Davis, 14, said he and Ramsey, a carrier boy for the Gastonia Gazette, were trying to hitch a ride from near the center of town back to their home in the Smyre section of East Gastonia when three boys came walking along, and one threw a rock. Davis continued:

"You'd better not hit me," Ramsey said. Whereupon one of the trio threw him to the ground face down, held him with his left hand, and hit him in back of the head with his right hand. When Ramsey passed out, the three ran in one direction, and Davis ran in another to call a night policeman.

It was found that Ramsey was dead of a broken neck.

EXTENDED WEATHER FORECAST FOR N. C.

School Absentee Rate Is Improving

The flu epidemic that has crippled public school education in Pitt County for the past week is showing signs of letting up.

J. H. Rose, Superintendent of City Schools, reported this morning that the total number of absentees locally have dropped from 1,286 on Thursday to 921 this morning.

"From all indications we could well be over the hump with the epidemic," he stated.

Rose said the total number of absentees in the Negro schools continues to decrease. Of today's number, only 338 were registered by Negro students.

County schools resumed operation this morning with less than 25 percent of the total enrollment absent, Superintendent D. H. Conley reports.

From figures received today, Conley stated that the Negro schools were off total enrollment by approximately 30 percent while the white schools absences were averaging less than 15 percent of total enrollment.

Conley said the situation "is looking better." "If the present trend continues, we expect the list of absentees to drop considerably before the end of this week," he added. Of the Negro schools, H. B. Suggs had the highest attendance average this morning, having 83 percent of its enrollment present.

The hardest hit of the county schools was Nichols where only 45 percent of the total enrollment was present today.

Dr. C. F. Irons, ECC physician, states the College still has a full infirmary, with about the same number of flu patients as reported last Friday.

According to Dr. Irons, "We still have a flu epidemic'

He explained that under the present circumstances there is no indication the epidemic will cause suspension of classes at East Carolina College.

Meanwhile Mrs. Louise Yelverton Harrell of Teachy, N.C. died in the Onslow Memorial Hospital at Jacksonville, possibly from pneumonia.

College officials stated that Mrs. Harrell, a 23-year-old graduate student, had not been treated in the infirmary. She died three hours after being admitted to the Jacksonville hospital Saturday night.

Given $266,800 To Push Science

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—The National Science Foundation has given the University of North Carolina another $266,800 to help relieve the shortage of engineers and scientists in this age of space travel and electronics.

The money will be used to train better high school science and mathematics teachers. It is thought that better teachers will induce more youngsters to seek careers in science.

Fifty teachers will be chosen in the academic year beginning next September. Each will get $3,000 for the 10-month program, plus allowances for family, travel, tuition, fees and other expenses.

The university got a similar grant when the national program started last year, and 50 teachers now are studying here. The new grant was announced yesterday.

Seventeen universities and colleges are participating in the national drive to prepare high-quality scientists and engineers under the National Science Foundation grant program.

The 50 now studying here are from North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky, Georgia, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Louisiana, Maryland Pennsylvania.

A Dog Named 'Curly' First Space Age Heroine

NEW YORK (AP)—A dog known simply as Curly is the first heroine of the space age.

She has an outside chance of coming home safely from fantastic adventures as the pioneer passenger aboard Russia's second Sputnik.

Russian scientists hint Curly could be parachuted back to earth to bark, to wag her tail, to enjoy a pampered dog's life.

But the Soviets don't say how or when. They have not spelled out how Curly is living or feeling.

Millions of adults and children are wondering or worrying. Some are protesting Curly's trip and treatment.

Just what are Curly's chances and life aboard Sputnik II?

This is the story from Russian announcements and estimates by U.S. experts:

She is inside a cramped compartment or container, is probably strapped down and can't move about.

Curly survived the shock of take off and is still alive, Moscow says. Instruments are recording her heartbeat, breathing, blood pressure, temperature, and sending this information to earth by radio code.

She is fed by an automatic device, Moscow says. How she gets water is not explained. Veterinarians say water is even more essential than food for a dog.

Curly possibly could live for a few months or more if given enough food and water, says Dr. Gerry Schnelle, chief of staff of Angell Memorial Animal Hospital in Boston.

She is inside a sealed chamber in the rocket, the Russians say. But there's no word yet how food, water or oxygen is supplied to the chamber or how much is stored in the rocket.

Moscow just says the chamber is "air conditioned." To keep Curly alive for weeks or months would take great amounts of oxygen and a method of removing carbon dioxide.

She undoubtedly is unhappy or frightened. But Moscow says Curly has been trained for her job, taking shorter rocket rides about 100 miles high and then parachuting to earth.

With such training she would be less frightened and would need less food and water because she would be quieter, Schnelle said.

He makes it clear he doesn't like or approve of Curly's ordeal.

She is probably comfortable, temperature-wise, in the insulated container. Her rocket is probably not spinning, except perhaps slowly, so she is not made dizzy.

The Russians sent her up to get direct knowledge of how life in space affects a living animal.

Curly's fate there can show some hazards which future human space travelers would meet from cosmic rays, X-rays and intense ultra-violet rays from the sun, meteors, or other conditions, and how to protect them. Instruments in the satellite are measuring and reporting these factors also.

The greatest worry is how Curly can come home safely after days, weeks or months in space. The only apparent answer is to parachute her out, inside her container. Otherwise she would die when the rocket, falling back to earth, heated red hot and burned from friction of the earth's thick atmosphere.

Hint Of Meredith College Plan For Growth At Highway Meet

RALEIGH (AP)—Hints that Meredith College in Raleigh may be expanded into a large coeducation college to serve Baptists of Eastern North Carolina were heard at a hearing before the State Highway Commission today.

The hints were made as the Highway Commission heard Meredith officials protest a proposed relocation of U.S. 1 just west of Raleigh—which would take some 6 or 7 acres of the college campus.

Meredith president Carlyle Campbell said there is "Infinitely more at stake than replacing one road with a better one." He pointed out that Baptists had discussed the need of placing a large coeducational institution in Eastern North Carolina since the removal of Wake Forest College to Winston-Salem.

Much thought has been given to expanding Meredith instead of building a new institution on a new site, Campbell said. Meredith, a girls' school, now has an enrollment of 640. Campbell said this is expected to reach 1,000 by 1961 and if it were expended and made co-educational it would need accommodations for 1,500 students.

Several other groups appeared before the Highway Commission to discuss road problems.

Campbell said that the project which would take the southwest corner of the college property for a cloverleaf intersection with Raleigh's Hillsboro Street and border its western property line with a limited access. multi-lane highway would be a "roadblock to hinder achievement of our purposes."

Some 22 other groups or individuals within a 100-mile radius of Raleigh have asked to be heard during the two-day session.

An award was to be presented to the Highway Department during ceremonies this afternoon. The U.S. Department of Defense award was won for allowing highway employes serving in the Armed Forces Reserves to perform their required active duty without loss of pay.

At its closing meeting tomorrow, the commission will review low bids opening Tuesday on eight road improvement projects in nine counties. The bids totaled nearly six million dollars.

The public hearings today and tomorrow are the second in a series to be held by the commission since it took office in July. The first was at Asheville last month, when more than 60 groups and individuals from the western part of the state voiced opinions and suggestions on road work. A third series of hearings is tentatively set for Winston-Salem Jan. 6-7.

Mrs. L. T. Shotwell was hostess to the Chatham Book Club Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. J. Bryan Brown, continuing the club's study of the Ten Commandments, spoke on the fifth and sixth Commandments.

God gave us ten rules to live by; these have become a part of our heritage. They are not a set of ethical abstractions but a set of practical rules for getting along in a very rough world, stated Mrs. Brown.

The Fifth Commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother," has been called the centerpiece of God's law. Parents provide love, care and control for their children. As the child learns to love and respect its parents, so later does it love and respect God. So, upon the parent and child relationship in the home rests almost our entire civilization.

In a much broader sense we know that a nation which honors its ancestors by learning from them, sharing their precepts and perpetuating their principles, is a nation that endures. Honoring our fathers and mothers means the carrying on of the best in their lives: it means learning from them and building a noble structure on the foundations they have laid.

God made us to live with each other, and the process of living requires certain rules. Life can be good or bad—depending on how well we keep the rules as we go along. God laid down five rules to govern our relationships with each other, which includes the Commandment "Thou shalt not kill."

Involved in this rule are the laws of health—which to violate is to kill—even though it may be by degrees. We can kill by killing faith or ideals. Such things as ingratitude, neglect, cruelty, indifference can be slow but sure instruments of death.

"Thou shalt not kill" involves the whole realm of living and the very reasons for living. To reverence the life of all men is God's law for us, declared Mrs. Brown.

The hostess served a dessert course with nuts and coffee. Arrangements of fall flowers were used throughout the home.

Mrs. H. B. Monroe was guest for the meeting.

A resident of Plymouth, N. C., Miss Mayo was an honor graduate of East Carolina College in May, 1957. She is a member of Sigma Pi Alpha and of Kappa Delta Pi, national honor society in education. At present she is conducting classes in French in the Edenton High School and doing experimental work there in foreign-languages classes for children below high-school level.

Hostess To Meet Of Cosmos Club

Mrs. Julian White Jr. was hostess to the Cosmos Book Club last week at her home on Elm Street.

The living room was decorated with Jack-O-Lanterns glowing in a background of fall leaves and pyracantha berries.

Mrs. White introduced her guest, Mrs. C. B. Rowlette Jr., of Bethel. She then served a dessert course, assisted by Mrs. Ed Rawl and Mrs. Rowlette.

A musical program was presented by Martha Henderson, Dona Forbes, and Susan Laughter. Miss Forbes sang "Tammy," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. White. Miss Henderson sang "Fascination" and the three together did a pantomime of the McGuire sisters singing "Around the World."

Carolina's Population Gains By 8.5 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP)—Latest Census Bureau population estimates show that North and South Carolina have gained a total of 556,000 persons since the 1950 census.

North Carolina's population in 1950 was listed at 4,061,929. The Census Bureau estimates the state's population as of July 1, 1956, at 4,406,000, an increase of 344,000, or 8.5 per cent.

South Carolina's population in 1950 was listed at 2,117,027. The population as of July 1 1956, was estimated at 2,329,000, of gain of 212,000, or 10 per cent.

The Census Bureau said the 11 Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast states have gained by 23.1 per cent since the 1950 census, or double the national average.

Nevada showed the greatest percentage increase—60 per cent—jumping from 160,063 in 1950 to 256,000 in 1956.

However, on a numerical basis, California led with an increase of 2,885,000 or 27 per cent bringing the total population to 13,471,000. That is second only to New York's 15,826,000.

California, Florida, Texas, Michigan and Ohio each gained more than a million during the six-year period.

Four states, Arkansas, West Virginia, Vermont and Mississippi, each showed a drop in population during the period. Arkansas led the list with a drop of 8 per cent.

The total population of the United States climbed 11 per cent between 1950 and 1956, from 150,697,361 to 167259000. The population today is estimated by the Census Bureau at 172 million.

Education Fund Drive Is Opened

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Methodists today hold a fried chicken picnic that will kickoff their campaign for five million dollars for a new senior college here, and for other Methodist educational institutions.

Eight hundred Methodists of the North Carolina Annual Conference open their chicken boxes on the 700-acre site purchased last year for a four-million-dollar college.

The denomination also plans to build a four-year coeducational college at Rocky Mount to be named North Carolina Wesleyan.

The 700 acres a mile north of the Fayetteville city limits on rolling ground overlooking the Cape Fear River was presented to the Methodist College, Inc., in February. It was bought by money and pledges from almost 6,800 Fayetteville and Cumberland County residents.

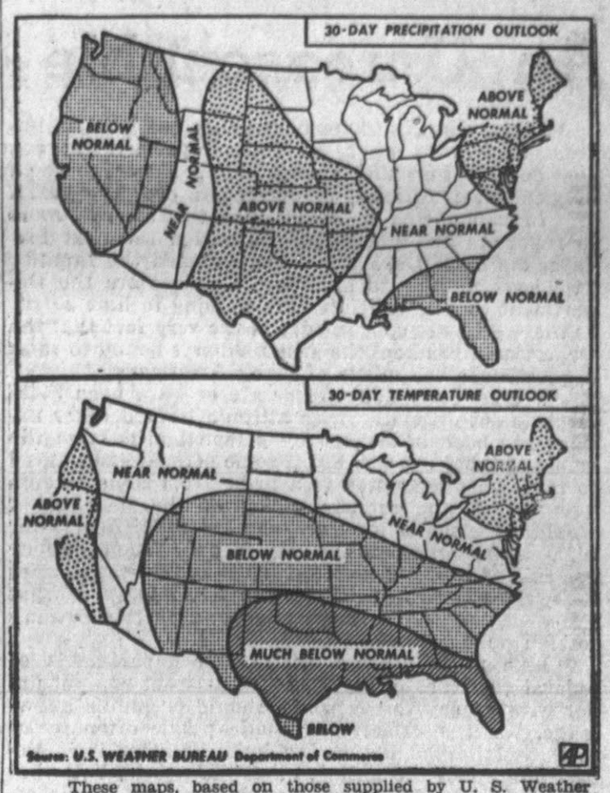

When the conference first planned the college early last year, it recommended that Fayetteville raise two million dollars over five years, extend city utilifurnish $50,000 annual support afties to the site free of charge, and er the college is opened.

It also was recommended that the conference raise two million dollars over a 15-year-period as capital outlay for the college, and furnish up to $300 a student a year as continuing support.

Senate Probers Near End Of Line In Shefferman Inquiries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators neared the end of an inquiry into Nathan W. Shefferman's operations today with a look at his firm's services for eight or nine companies in Flint, Mich.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the special Senate Rackets Investigating Committee said Shefferman's activities there were "maybe a little worse" than those already spotlighted.

During the last two weeks the committee has received testimony that Shefferman, head of the Chicago firm of Labor Relations Associates, Inc., has assisted employers in resisting unionization of their plants.

Shefferman has been described by committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy as a specialist in "union busting."

One of the witnesses called to testify today, George Kamenow of Detroit, was associated with Shefferman for many years but now has his own labor relations firm.

Kennedy said the committee was interested in what services Kamenow, as Shefferman's representative, performed for the companies in Flint and in "what financial arrangements he said would be necessary."

In an unrelated matter, the committee was expecting Zigmund (Ziggy) Snyder, a Detroit Teamsters Union official, to be on hand for today's hearing in response to a subpoena served on him last week.

Snyder, a business agent for the Detroit local of James R. Hoffa, newly elected president of the scandal-scarred Teamsters Union, was described by McClellan as an important witness whom the committee had been trying to find for weeks.

McClellan said Shefferman and his son, Shelton Shefferman, have been called to testify tomorrow in the windup of the inquiry. He said he hoped to conclude their testimony not later than Wednesday.

Then the committee, investigating improper practices in the labor-management field, plans to recess until Nov. 12 when it will start hearings involving what McClellan called management-union "collusion" in the New York City garbage collection business.

Students To Hear Head Of Research Operation

Dr. George Lee Simpson Jr., director of the Research Triangle Project of the Executive Department of the North Carolina State Government, will address students in four departments of instruction at East Carolina College Tuesday. The meeting, which will be open to the public, is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Austin auditorium.

In his talk before majors in social studies, English, art, and foreign languages, Dr. Simpson will discuss requisites for success in various careers. The program will be presented under the sponsorship of the Danforth Foundation Project at East Carolina.

The Research Triangle project, headed by Dr. Simpson, has the immediate goal of attracting industrial laboratories to North Carolina. Its ultimate aim is building not only in this state but also in the entire South a scientific-industrial movement which will favorably affect the development of the entire region.

The Triangle, centered around the area of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Duke University, Durham; and North Carolina State College, Raleigh, has as chief assets both excellent research facilities and approximately 850 research people. This potential places North Carolina in a strategic position to maintain a position of industrial leadership in the South.

An Unreasonable Limit In Secrecy

Secrecy in government obviously has gone to unreasonable limits when the State Department spends considerable time and money hiding a storage room of gifts given officials by foreigners over the years.

In announcing it would open this storage room to reporters and photographers within the next few days, the State Department has assumed the familiar "we have nothing to hide" air. Chances are the Department and its officials have nothing to hide so far as these gifts are concerned. But the very fact that the Department has kept the gifts hidden is bound to raise a question in the minds of many Americans.

We seriously doubt there are or have been State Department officials whose attitude toward other nations has been influenced by personal gifts from the rulers of those nations. But if some official has wanted to take what amounted to a bribe from some foreign government, the secrecy policy of the department would have made it easier—not more difficult—for him. At the same time the very fact that such a policy has existed makes it more difficult—rather than easier—for the American people to judge in retrospect what influence these gifts might have had on this nation's foreign policy.

Like many other agencies and departments of federal government, the State Department has put under wraps many things which should be public knowledge. What information is made public often seems to be determined not in the light of what is in the best interest of the nation, or of the public, but what is in the best interest of the department and its officials. The trend to this concept of secrecy in many government agencies has grown alarmingly in recent years. Time and again we have seen an agency, under pressure because a secret leaked out, divulge information which obviously was not made public simply because it was embarrassing to the agency or some high official. In each instance greater embarrassment has resulted for the agency in question. Citizens' faith in the free flow of information from government offices has been shaken.

Everything which concerns the government or any of its agencies concerns the people of the United States who are, ultimately, the government. National security demands that some things in government remain secret. The national interest, however, demands that this store of facts be kept at the very minimum.

When every agency official has authority to determine what the public shall be permitted to know and what it shall not be permitted to know, government, in a very real sense, is being taken away from the people.

Black Robes Alone Do Not Create 'Dignity'

We find ourselves nodding approvingly at the decision of the state's Superior Court judges to wear black robes while they are presiding at terms of court. They will add another touch of dignity which will do the courts no harm.

Presence of the black robes behind the benches in county courthouses isn't going to mean the whole atmosphere of the state's Superior Court sessions is going to change, however. We trust the North Carolina Bar Association, which has long advocated the move, and the Conference of Superior Court Judges which has just adopted the change, do not attach too great an importance to the robes.

The decision by the judges, said the president of the Conference, is a move "to create an atmosphere of greater dignity and to maintain stricter decorum". A black robe in itself may create atmosphere, but the robe alone will have little to do with maintaining stricter decorum in the Superior Courts of the state. That matter will depend entirely on the judges who don those robes and the attorneys who try cases before those judges.

In the final analysis it will not be the black robes alone which create an atmosphere of greater dignity and maintain stricter decorum in the Superior Courts of North Carolina.

Pick-Up In Car Sales

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — The automobile business has had a rather poor spring and summer. However, I look for a good fourth quarter saleswise. Also, I predict that total domestic production for 1957 will top 6,000,000 units. It may be as high as 6,200,000 or 6.8 per cent above last year. However, that would still be 22 per cent below the peak year of 1955.

CAUSES OF THE DIP

Many competent observers feel that last year's downturn in auto sales and this year's only moderate recovery indicate that we made too many cars in 1955. In that year we produced nearly 8,000,000 units. These people feel that the industry must now undergo a further period of adjustment while the nation "digests" the overproduction of 1955. I think there is some truth in such reasoning. However, there are additional factors involved in the dip in auto sales.

The current rolling readjustment in general business must also be taken into account as an adverse sales factor. There are increasing indications that the dip also reflects some sales resistance on the part of people who just do not like the car styling and performance being turned out by Detroit at the present time.

WHAT DO THE PEOPLE NEED?

In their haste to turn the tide after last year's poor sales showing, car makers concentrated on extreme-styling eye appeal. They came out with cars longer than necessary. They loaded them with gadgets designed to catch the eye. These longer heavier cars require more horsepower. They burn more gas and most of them have engines which will operate efficiently only with high-octane gas.

At a time when automobile congestion may choke out the very downtown life of our large cities, car makers have added to the problem by making cars which need more parking space and cost more to maintain. These giant new cars may fulfill the desires and amibtions of many people, but do they meet the needs of postwar America today? Certainly they will be marketable only through intensive advertising.

MAKE SMALLER CARS

Some United States auto manufacturers contend that they cannot build a small car that will compete successfully on a volume basis with a good used car of standard size. They may be correct. But the time will come when Detroit must face facts. The automobile has contributed much to our American way of life. It has led to the development of the suburbs. It has provided and it now provides employment for large numbers of our people, directly or indirectly. Ours is a wheeled economy in the best sense of that term.

A good deal of our prosperity today stems from our success in having mass-produced the automobile and having made it readily available to vast numbers of our people. However, that prosperity could be seriously threatened if we continue to misuse the automobile. The car of tomorrow will be smaller, more functionally styled, though still beautiful. It will be cheaper to buy, to operate, and to maintain. And it will be safer to use.

MORE FOREIGN CARS COMING TO U. S.

While going all out for size and flashy styling, Detroit is not entirely blind to the fact that there is a market for small cars here. Only one major domestic producer does not have a foreign subsidiary making small, economical foreign cars for export to the U. S. Small car demand has been doubling each year for some time now. If this trend continues, and I predict it will, U. S. car makers may be forced to revise their thinking on car size.

Perhaps the European cars now being imported are too small to attract wide market support in the U. S. However, their reception has been encouraging. It proves that many

Financial Side Now Up To Date

By LYNN NISBET
(Last of three articles on Tax structure.)

MODERNIZATION — The facts set out in the two preceding articles would seem to justify the pride North Carolinians have had in their State financial structure. They also explain the reluctance on part of the people and the Legislature to change a system which has worked so well.

Actually, the system has not been changed very much. Methods of applying the basic principles to current situations have been modernized.

The formula for allocating liability for business income taxes, devised out of necessity for survival in the depression era, did not fit the highly competitive conditions of the present. Economic changes suggested that some items covered by the general sales tax 25 years ago should be exempted now, while some items then exempted should now be taxed.

With respect to both income and sales taxes there had grown up a mass of administrative rulings and interpretations by commissioners of revenue. Most of these regulations have been written into the text of the law, or specifically outlawed by the statutes.

Of necessity there will still be questions demanding interpretative rulings by the administrators of the tax laws. For most part, however, the law itself rather than some administrator's ruling, will determine what tax is due by whom.

Along with clarification and revision of the tax laws has come simplification and strengthening of the administrative and enforcement machinery in the Department of Revenue.

ADMINISTRATION — Primary responsibility for administering the tax laws is ested in the Department of Revenue. This agency collects about 97 per cent of the State's general fund money, and a substantial part of the highway funds, derived from the gasoline tax. The other three percent of the general fund is collected in the form of license and service fees by other departments—bank-insurance, wildlife resources, etc. That part of the highway fund represented in automobile license is collected by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The Department of Revenue is headed by a commissioner, appointed by the Governor and responsible only to him. Functions of the department are distributed among several divisions—income tax, sales tax, franchise and privilege, estate and inheritance, etc. The staff of auditors, collectors and inspectors, with supporting clerical aides, has been augmented by successive Legislatures. Department personnel numbers about 700 regular full time employees, with temporary extra workers during peak income tax periods.

REVIEW—Closely affiliated with the Department of Revenue, but not organically parts of it, are the State Board of Assessment and the Board of Tax Review. Both are composed of high ranking State officials serving on these boards in ex-officio capacity.

The Board of Assessment fixes values on public utilities property—railroad, telephone, power, etc. and allocates the percentage of total value to the several counties for advalorem taxes. The State levies no property tax and has no control over local rates.

Recognizing that no formula could be devised that would fit every individual taxpayer's situation, the State set up a Board of Tax Review. Its duties are just what the name implies. It hears and passes upon appeals from decisions of the Commissioner of Revenue in contested cases. It has responsibility for determining what part of the income of firms doing business in several states should be taxed in North Carolina.

APPEAL — Although every reasonable effort seems to have been made by statutes to achieve equity and uniformity in tax liability, in keeping with the North Carolina tradition that every person is entitled to a full hearing, there is provision for appeal to the courts from any decision of any administrative officer or board.

Another Look At Future Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Fat men will soon have a better time of it when shopping for apparel.

The clothing industry is beginning to realize that many men are offended when told they take "stout," "portly" or "long" sizes. The more sensitive males might buy new garments more often if they didn't have to face salesmen who say, "Forty-four stout, eh? Hm-m!"

The Clothing Manufacturers Association is looking for new designations for other than average shapes. This is to predict that as soon as flattering terms are decided upon, they will be promoted far and wide across the country, with local retailers co-operating enthusiastically.

And here are more predictions of developments to come in business:

More gasoline price cuts will come. Seasonal cuts have been made in most sections of the country, but supplies are still heavy and many companies may have to shave prices again to reduce inventory.

STORM OF CHRISTMAS CARDS

You'll get more Christmas cards than ever this year. Sales of greeting cards have been rising steadily each year and, fanned with more elaborate designs, a new high volume is almost certain this December. An important factor: An increasing number of business firms send greetings to customers and suppliers.

Coffee prices will remain at present levels. Producing countries are trying to shove up prices but supplies are so large they can do little more than prevent further drops.

You'll hear more about silk. The silk trade, hit by war and the rise of synthetics, feels it is ready for a comeback. It is working on several promotional campaigns intended again to associate silk with the idea of unsurpassable luxury.

Cocoa prices will hold. A survey of the 1957-58 crops indicates world production about the same or slightly higher than last year.

MORE FRUITS, JUICES

There will be plenty of deciduous fruits next year. Preliminary Department of Agriculture surveys show more trees will come into bearing in 1958 which, with reasonable weather, will increase America's supplies.

There will be more juice, too. Citrus fruit production is expected to be about the same as last season, but there is a large carry-over of juices, almost twice as much as a year ago.

Illustrated heels are coming. A way to change the appearance of heels of women's shoes by covering them with paintings on parchment has been devised in Italy. The parchment replacements have been introduced in Allentown, Pa., and the idea may be just off-beat enough to sweep the country.

PUBLIC WANTS MORE OLD PROMOTER DECLARES

"I have an idea worth a whole box of cigars," the Old Promoter announced on his weekly visit today.

"Here's one on account," we said. "What is it?"

"It's a way for some typewriter manufacturer to get a larger share of the market," he said. "Manufacturers have overlooked the fact that most Americans love exclamation points. A study of any batch of handwritten letters will show that.

"But to type an exclamation point on most machines, a person has to hit a period, then back-space and shift and hit a single quotation mark. More often than not, the quote mark and period don't line up.

"If some manufacturer would bring out a machine with its own exclamation mark, especially one a bit oversize with a real 'bang' effect, the public would love it."

There it is, typewriter manufacturers. You can have the idea. Just send a box of cigars to the Old Pormoter, care of this paper.

Wants People To Laugh

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

BERLIN (AP) — Guenther Rutenborn, the pastor-playwright who preaches in Communist East Germany, says the theater should help end the Cold War by making people laugh.

This is what the pastor tries to do in his latest play "The Potsdam Treaty," which follows his "The Sign of Jonah," which received excellent notices recently in New York.

Rutenborn says Christians and Communists will find it easier to live together if they can "laugh at the problem of our time.

"And through the medium of the theater I want to teach people how to laugh."

Coming from a man who for 12 years has preached the Evangelical (Lutheran) faith under the hostile eyes of the Communists, the laughter formula for getting along with the Reds can't be dismissed lightly.

Pastor in Potsdam

Rutenborn, 45, the first of Germany's postwar dramatists to win critical acclaim in New York, is a tall, spare balding man with merry blue eyes behind thick horned rim glasses.

Under Communist rule Potsdam remains a bomb-shattered town suffering the regimentation and economic pinch common to East Germany. This is the setting for Rutenborn's "grin and bear it" comedy "The Potsdam Treaty."

To be interviewed the pastor walked over the bridge from Potsdam to meet the writer in free West Berlin.

"I always tell my congregation," said the pastor: "Don't forget the sun is shining, even in Potsdam. That is the primary fact.

"The other facts include Communist officials. But we have had to learn how to live with them, to invite them to have a drink or tea with cake.

"The world of the 20th Century is divided between communism and democracy and we cannot destroy their world.

"In Potsdam we have not been able to wait until the Communist officials turn Christian and confess our opinions.

Living Together is Theme

"Therefore the theme of my comedy is the wisdom of living together."

"The Potsdam Treaty" takes place in a house divided into two apartments, one of a Christian family and the other belonging to the family of a Communist official. They share a common kitchen and bathroom.

The Christians fear the future. But the wife of the Communist official — "wives are so much wiser than husbands" — teaches her spouse that while at home he must behave like a Christian.

Peace then reigns in the house and Rutenborn explains that the two families have accepted the lesson of the Bible which teaches that "in the olden days men of faith lived beside men without faith."

Rutenborn's one-act play "The Sign of Jonah" is to be televised in the United States this fall. The play was first shown in America at New York's Union Theological Seminary where it won excellent notices

The pastor likes to quote one distinguished New York dramma critic who said of the play: "In one hour is concentrated the tragedy of human life."

Rutenborn said: "You know when you write a play, you don't always know what you are writing. But when I read what this man wrote about 'The Sign of Jonah,' I said to my wife, he is right. That is what I meant."

Other Editors Saying--- Gives Mankind A Lift

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Yes, it was a foolhardy thing. Yes, it cost Uncle Sam a pretty penny and it may have subjected some folks to extra hazards to sea and air.

Reference is to the effort of Melvin West of Jacksonville to sail his 15-foot outboard motor boat from Morehead City to Bermuda. The distance is 580 miles.

West proved himself a member of the lunatic fringe, but he proved also that man, small, alone, with little else but a brave heart and an iron will, can face the tumultous sea and rise above it.

West just wanted to show man could do it, that Mel West could do it. When he first started and was 30 miles out he found a broken oil line on his craft and had to put back for repairs.

Then the sullen sea pounded at his light craft so steadily the gas supply was eaten up with only 150 miles of the journey ended. A steamer picked him up. He begged gas and food and water. He declined to surrender.

He climbed back into the bobbing boat and headed toward Bermuda again.

The seas beat higher. The winds strove against his craft. He was 165 miles short of his goal when he was found again. The Coast Guard, taking an attitude the average citizen will approve, had refused to send searchers for him on a second appeal until an emergency was evident. West was still on his two feet, still fighting. He had four candy bars left, a half cup of water. But he begged for more food, a new supply of water and gas. He had set out to reach Bermuda in an open boat and he would do or die.

The searchers who found him were forbidden to give him new supplies. Effort of his father, Barry West, in Morehead to charter a plane to drop him supplies failed. Bermuda had no plane which could do the task.

To many a normal and logical man, West looks plenty silly. But for millions of men, he did something terribly important. He lifted their hearts with his casual disregard of personal danger and suffering. He had an idea and he had to try it out. Of such stuff is greatness and progress made.

Opinions In Brief

"While the preservation of state's rights is actually no more important to one part of our country than to another, the Southern States have become known as its chief champion. That is because these states have seemed to resent control by a centralized government more than any other states, and because the people of the South have seemed to set more store by individual freedom and local self-government than the people of other regions." — Thurman Sensin

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE BEST IS YET TO BE

Sports writers often draw the picture of a worn-out old athlete. Perhaps he was a prize fighter. Maybe he was a college football captain, or a great runner, a baseball player, or a tennis champion. But the time came when evil days seemed to fall upon him. It was more than the slowing down which comes with passing years. Something inside the man himself let up—or perhaps we should say let down. Anyway the chap was left with nothing but memories. He liked to buttonhole people and tell them what a great guy he used to be. There is always something wistful in the gathering twilight of such a life. When all the glories we have lie in the past, we are in a bad way indeed. The present has little significance. The future has no hope.

But why should it be this way? Certainly not because God intends it so to be. For we can say with great confidence that He does not so intend it. We are meant to grow, not to stand still. We are meant to advance, not to retreat. Life is supposed to go on and on until it gets somewhere. God has provided all eternity for our fulfillment. When we stop before we get started, when we spend our days thinking about a career that was and is not now—then we are sick, we are unhappy, we are completely undone.

It is good to look back on life; it is better to look out on life; better still to look forward to life. If we want to, we can face the future with courage, because God has made us not for defeat but for victory.

No Drastic Change In Policies

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON Although the Russians' military and scientific achievements will necessitate a re-examination of American foreign policy, the Administration will resist demands for drastic changes in our relations with Russia, our Allies and neutrals pending a restoration of the uneasy balance of power of the last decade.

There will be demands on Capitol Hill for less financial support of such alliances as NATO, METO and SEATO on the ground that intercontinental missiles and hydrogen bombs render obsolete these conventional defense outposts. In a new wave of isolation sentiment, it will be contended that foreign aid money could be spent more wisely on a "crash" program at home.

Specifically, it is pointed out that the $50 billion sent overseas since World War II would have enabled us to outrace the Russians in conquering "outer space." Such a policy, once advocated by Herbert Hoover, the late Robert A. Taft and General Douglas MacArthur, is known as the "Fortress America" doctrine. It still has many supporters in Congress, and their number may now increase.

NEED MORE BASES NOW

As against such a retreat, White House, State Department and Pentagon spokesmen argue that the free world now has need of more rather than fewer bases encircling Russia. It has been in a desperate effort to break this blockade that the Kremlin concentrated so completely and so effectively on spatially superior devices. They hope to leapfrog this barrier through the air.

Temporarily at least, these forward bases, equipped with hydrogen and atom bombs, will tend to neutralize the Communists' intercontinental missile. Until Moscow can build hundreds, even thousands, of perfected, accurate and deliverable bombs of this kind, American and Allied bases, which extend from Northern Europe to Korea, can furnish us with immense retaliatory and punishing power.

ACT TO PREVENT STAMPEDE

On the diplomatic front, Washington must act to keep neutral nations in the Middle East, North Africa, Asia and the Orient from making a panic-stricken stampede into the Russian camp. The Administration's outwardly calm reception of Russia's recent triumphs was designed to have this psychological and political effect.

So far, there has been no such stampede. On the contrary, and especially in the Middle East, the ruling monarchs and politicians seek to avoid involvement with either side. Even friendly Lebanon may repudiate and rescind its original acceptance and approval of the Eisenhower Doctrine on the ground that it is a dangerous and provocative infringement of her neutrality.

Committed nations, such as Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Greece, Turkey and Japan have not weakened—they cannot—in their pro-Western allegiance. Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain recently expressed their sentiment when he told anti-American Bevanites that a dissolution of ties with the United States was "unthinkable."

Ironically, and contrary to earlier fears, Khrushchev's bravado and boasts, based on his scientists' accomplishments, appear to have driven the more civilized and advanced nations into a closer relationship with us. Even newspaper criticism of this country in London and Paris has been muted.

RELY ON U.S.

As in North War I and II, they feel that they must rely on us to come to their aid in the current crisis. No other nation, they realize, has the financial resources, the industrial skills and plant and the scientific personnel to redress the present and prospective imbalance.

But the Eisenhower Administration can preserve this solid political, military and diplomatic front only if it justifies this faith and trust. Either alone or in concert with Britain, West German and France, the United States must regain domination of stellar and spatial battlefields. And it has, in the opinion of experts on the problem, less than a year in which to demonstrate its superiority over the Communist Empire.

Some Friends Think Nixon Is Traveling Too Fast, Too Early

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some friendly politicians are beginning to believe Vice President Nixon may be traveling too fast too early in his drive for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination.

Nixon received boosts last week from former New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's description of him as a "superb" candidate, from Sen. William F. Knowland's reported decision not to enter presidential primaries outside California, and from California Gov. Goodwin Knight's apparent plan to avoid a decisive showdown fight with Knowland for the state's nomination for governor.

Nixon is coming to look more and more like the man to beat for the nomination.

That may be a satisfying spot in some circumstances. But many politicians contend that the earlier an aspirant arrives at that point, the earlier he becomes a target for political sniping and the more time he gives his enemies to combine against him.

In some respects, that is what happened to the late Sen. Robert A. Taft prior to 1952. Taft drew so much attention to himself that he became widely known as "Mr. Republican." He was the man to beat, and when Taft's critics were given the time to bring Dwight D. Eisenhower around to a receptive mood, they had the man to beat the Ohio senator.

Nixon is identifying himself with the "modern" wing of the Republicans so widely as to invite an onslaught from the more conservative Republicans who make up a substantial majority of the party's members in Congress.

These Republicans once counted Nixon as one of them. Although they were disillusioned on that score by some of his actions as vice president, they came to his defense when Harold E. Stassen made his abortive effort to knock Nixon off the ticket last year.

But Nixon's new prominence in the field of potential 1960 candidates seems likely to bring his critics closer together and to precipitate some concentrated firing at him.

A case in point may grow out of Nixon's reported work in surveying the foreign aid field. Unless the temper of the country changes, any increase in foreign aid is not going to be popular with the majority of Republicans in the House and Senate. President Eisenhower took his worst congressional licking on foreign aid in the last session of Congress, with Republicans contributing to his defeat.

If Nixon for instance, comes up with suggestions for a substantial loan to India out of the development fund the administration barely squeezed out of the last session, this may be regarded by some Republicans as an opportunity to cut the vice president down to size.

Friends say Nixon recognizes the political risks involved in getting himself labeled as front man for a cause that might be highly unpopular with a majority of his GOP colleagues.

On the other hand, the vice president evidently feels that he can get more convention votes by standout positions on controversial issues than he can by pleasing members of the House and Senate.

Nixon's strategy appears to be to make himself appealing to the states that hold the big blocs of convention votes. He has appealed to them by his stand on civil rights.

This stand seems likely to cost Nixon the support of all of the Southern delegations to the convention. Eisenhower needed some southern support to beat Taft in 1952.

Nixon's enemies thus may have a reservoir to draw upon if they can find a Republican less identified with the civil rights issue.

Union Points To Financial Gains

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—Boyd Payton, Southern director of the Textile Workers Union of America, says a TWUA drive in Gaston County is being pegged on the argument that unionism means bigger payrolls and in turn more business.

Payton said Saturday the union has a new organizing drive underway in the county. He said the union has mailed letters to Gaston businessmen presenting its argument.

Chief target is Textiles Inc., which has 12 plants in and around Gastonia. Of the county's 30,000 textile workers, only about 1000 are organized.

The drive comes on the heels of a statement by F. E. Grier of Greenwood S.C., immediate past president of the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute, who said the industry faces "economic nightmare" if textile inventories are not reduced.

The chairman of Textiles Inc., A. G. Myers of Gastonia, called Geier's proposal to reduce inventories is "a splendid idea."

The union, however, is opposed to reduced inventories claiming this would result in a weekly wage loss of about three million dollars for the state's 228,000 textile workers.

Khrushchev Position Strengthened Inside Russia Despite Zhukov Case

MOSCOW (AP)—The position of Nikita Khrushchev as top man in the Soviet Union appeared unchallengeable today following the political disgrace of Marshal Georgi Zhikov.

Military leaders and journals of the armed forces were quick to endorse the expulsion of the former defense minister from the Soviet Communist party's Central Committee and from its ruling Presidium.

Crowds jamming Moscow streets in Advance of the celebration Thursday of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution displayed little interest in the fate of the World War II hero. Their attention appeared captured by the launching of Sputnik II, the preparations for the two-day anniversary holiday, and reductions in the price of pork, ducks and geese.

The announcement of the marshal's degradation had been expected since soon after his dismissal from the post of defense minister was revealed Oct. 26. The party Central Committee finally announced Saturday night that he had been stripped of his party posts.

The announcement added that he would be given a new job but did not say what it would be. Presumably he will get some obscure post in a remote location, as V. M. Molotov and Georgi Malenkov did following their similar disgrace last summer.

The charges against Zhukov had been accurately forecast for several days by dispatches to Western Communist papers and special articles in the Soviet press on the supremacy of the party over the armed forces.

As expected, the central committee said the marshal was guilty of trying to liquidate the party's control of the armed forces and of trying to establish a "cult of personality" centered on himself. He was also charged with a "tendency to adventurism in his understanding and evaluation of the most important problems of foreign policy."

Zhukov's successor, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, and other military leaders joined in public expressions of the political lessons of Zhukov's downfall. The Soviet press announced meetings of political groups within all major military commands for reaffirmation of the Leninist principle that the Communist party is supreme.

The commander of the Leningrad District, Gen. M. V. Zakharov, at a meeting of military and party leaders in Leningrad supported the Central Committee's charges against Zhukov. Military leaders in the Moscow area also endorsed the committee action.

Red Star, the army newspaper, said the army and navy "support with deep feelings of satisfaction the decision" of the Central Committee.

Writing in Pravda, Marshal Ivan Konev, who had been Zhukov's deputy in the Defense Ministry, said his former boss had "definite tendency to regard the Soviet armed forces as his own domain."

"He did not justify the confidence of the party," Konev wrote.

A determined East Carolina football team put the skids on Appalachian's offensive attack and battled them toe-to-toe here Saturday night, but wound up on the short end of a 7-6 score at the final whistle.

Rated three-touchdown underdogs to the young Appalachian outfit, Coach Jack Boone's Pirates played their best ball game of the year and showed well against the North State Conference club in every department.

The big difference in the final score came on an after-the-TD boot.

A medium-sized but highly enthusiastic East Carolina crowd turned out for the contest and cheered spiritedly right down to the end.

Bucs Score First

East Carolina scored the first touchdown of the game on the third play of the second quarter to climax a 78-yard drive. Halfback James Speight sped 16 yards around his own right end to catch the Apps flatfooted and went the full distance without being touched by the opposition.

The drive began on the ECC 28 yard line when the Bucs stopped an Appalachian bid and took possession. With Tommy Nash, Speight and fullback Joe Holmes blasting the tackles for three and four yards at a clip, the Bucs worked down to the Mountaineer 25.

Bob Maynard roared through for five down to the 18 as the whistle ended the first period. Speight picked up four more and Maynard lost two back to the 16. From there, Quarterback Ralph Zehring called a quick play that got underway before the App defense had even gotten into position—and Speight zoomed through them for the tally. Hoss Howell's boot was wide to the right.

APPS COME BACK

Appalachian came back to get its touchdown in the same period. The Mountaineer drive to paydirt was begun when Glenwood Wilson intercepted a pass by ECC's Stu Holland on the 42 and carried it back to the App 49.

Glendenning, Midkiff, and Walker pounded the Pirate line for yardage in the next few plays, moving the ball to the ECC 20, picking up three first downs in the process. Wilson and Savage carried it to the 13 and an offsides penalty against the Mountaineers moved it back to the 18.

App quarterback Wewayne Milner completed a short pass to Wilson who was cut down at the 15 by Speight. Another pass, this time to Burlesson, carried to the seven. Two running plays moved it to the six, A Milner jump-pass to Burleson from there was completed and Burleson Trudged over for the touchdown.

On the extra-point attempt (which was wide) ECC fullback Joe Holmes Cracked through to dump the kicker. East Carloina was penalized one yard and the kick was tried again. This time it was good and Appalachian took a narrow 7-6 lead. It was good enough to win the game.

ECC KICKING

The Bucs, who haven't shown up very well in the kicking game since the season started, booted quite a bit Saturday night and with pretty good results. Strangely enough, it was a boot that lost them the game.

In the third period, the Pirates pushed down to the Appalachian 10 but were unable to carry it over. Maynard bulled to the seven and Nash was smothered for an eight-yard loss back to the 15. The Pirates decided to try a field goal.

Bubba Mathews' boot sailed inches wide to the right and the Mountaineers took over again.

In the punting department, ECC outshone the visitors by a mile. Joe Holmes kicked four times for an average of 42.0 yards per boot.

At one time, with his back to the goal line, he unleashed a 57-yard quick-kick that got his club out of danger.

FINALLY CLICKED

For the first time this season, the ECC ground game was clicking well against an opponent. The Bucs' rushing totals for the first three quarters of play were just a shade below Appalachian's.

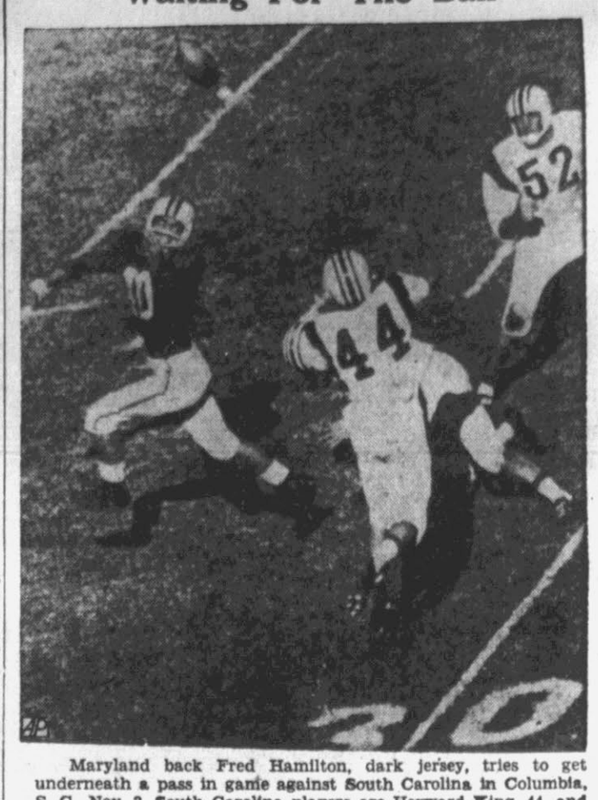

In the first period, ECC picked up 64 yards to Appalachian's 66. In the second period, it was 45 to 47. ECC outran the visitors 44 to 41 in the third quarted, but in the final stanza the Apps ran away with it 61 to 36.

Coach Jack Boone shifted his lineup about during most of the game. Seeing backfield duty several times were Ralph Zehring, Stu Holland, Tommy Nash, Charlie Bishop, Joe Holmes, Bobby Lilley, Bob Maynard, James Speight, and Walkie Hanniford.

Boone's starting lineup in the line consisted of Howard Beale and Bill Cain at ends, James Faircloth and Charles Cook at tackles, Ed Emory and Kenny Burgess at guards, and Lynn Barnett at center.

Next week ECC plays host to rugged Lenoir Rhyne at College Stadium. The Bears are currently leading the league and are undefeated in loop play.

Monday Quarterbacks See A Field Day After Upsets

By ED WILKS

NEW YORK (AP)—While most everyone second-guessed Iowa for the play-it-safe plan in the closing minutes that brought the unbeaten Hawkeyes a tie with Michigan, a pair of TV-inspired questions apparently went unasked:

1. Why, in their first chance with the ball, did the Hawkeyes switch to and stick with a passing game after their vicious slants through an unbalanced line had the Wolverines bewitched, bothered and bewildered? Not only did the Hawkeyes stick with the pass but they were stuck with it — losing the ball.

2. Why, with two minutes plus left in the first half, and with Iowa ready to be had after three second period TDs had left them behind 21-7, did Michigan choose to try for the long gainer with far but futile passes—instead of buckling down to the steady offense that had the Hawkeyes on the run?

Coach Forest Evashevski had a quick and clear answer to the second guess about Iowa's reluctance to try for a quick and winning TD in the last moments.

"We had too far to go," said Ev. "The Michigan defense played us loose, set to stop our passing and we didn't dare risk an interception deep in our own territory."

The Collegians were a bunch of fakers Saturday. Four fake field goals were attempted. Two gained ground, but only one paid off with a TD.

Michigan, tied by Iowa and Columbia, beaten 8-0 by Cornell, missed altogether. Colorado came close, when the pass receiver on the play was knocked out of bounds a half foot from the goal. The Buffs lost to Missouri 9-6.

The real sleight of hand guy was Penn State's reckless Richie Lucas. The soph quarterback's magic had West Virginia tackling the wrong man again and again and he twice passed for TDs in the 27-6 victory with Mountaineer defenses looking for a running play, leaving receivers all alone in the end zone. Lucas also turned a fake punt into a 19-yard gain.

Not all the field goals were fakes Saturday. Al Gerlick booted a 22-yarder in the final 3 minutes for Syracuse's 24-21 upset of Pitt. It was the first 3-pointer for the boys from Syracuse in nine years.

John Fritsch booted a 24-yarder in Maryland's 10-6 victory over South Carolina. UCLA's Kirk Wilson connected on a 33-yard field goal in the fourth period that beat Cal 16-14.

Utah, scheduled to meet Army and the Air Force next, really had the hosses from start to finish in that 55-0 romp over Colorado State. Merrill Douglas took the opening kickoff 65 yards for a TD. Monk Bailey returned an interception 87 yards for a TD on the final play.

The game was played in a blizzard—so any way you look at it, Colorado State U. was snowed under.

There were a lot of one-man gangs Saturday — Navy's Ray Wellborn with all three TDs in the 20-6 victory over Notre Dame and Kansas' Wally Strauch, who scored both TDs and booted both PATs in the 14-12 upset of Nebraska, to mention two. But how about Middlebury's Grover (Pete) Aldrich? He threw four passes for 117 yards, three for TDs, scored twice himself, carried for 56 yards in 21 rushes and kicked two conversions — accounting for 32 points in the 39-12 victory over Norwich.

Fewer TDs But Leads Scorers

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Halfback Wray Carlton hasn't scored a touchdown for his Duke football team since the Rice game Oct. 12, but the speedy Blue Devil still leads the Atlantic Coast Conference individual scoring race.

Since the Rice game, Carlton has booted four extra points, two against Wake Forest and two against North Carolina State. He and Duke were held scoreless by Georgia Tech last week, but Carlton still tops the scorers with 51 points.

North Carolina State's fine runner, Dick Christy, inched closer to Carlton by scoring one touchdown in the Wolfpack's victory over Wake Forest Saturday to bring his total to 48 points. He has scored eight touchdowns for his total while Carlton has tallied seven and kicked nine extra points.

Jim Bakhtiar, Virginia's hustling fullback, is third with 43 points on six touchdowns and seven extra points and halfback King Dixon of South Carolina is fourth with five touchdowns for 30 points.

Then comes Dick Hunter of N.C. State with 28 points on three touchdowns and 10 extra points.

Tied for sixth place with 24 points are Alex Hawkins of South Carolina with three touchdowns and six extra points and quarterback Nelson Yarbrough of Virginia with four touchdowns.

Georgia Tech Dreams Of Reward For Duke Defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Georgia Tech's hopes for a bowl bid were brighter today, after the Engineers' 13-0 upset over the previously unbeaten Duke Blue Devils.

And another Southeastern Conference team, Tennessee, used its single-wing power Saturday to thrash an Atlantic Coast Conference club, the University of North Carolina, 35-0. The Vols were favored, but not by five touchdowns.

Clemson saved the ACC wounds by whipping Rice 20-7 as Harvey White, 200-pound sophomore quarterback, threw two fourth-down touchdown passes. Clemson was a 12-point underdog.

In conference games, North Carolina State continued unbeaten, 19-0 over Wake Forest, which has yet to win in six games, and Maryland staved off all but one of a half dozen threats and won 10-6 over South Carolina on reserve quarterback John Fritch's field goal and conversion.

Virginia lost 20-7 to the unbeaten Virginia Military Institute Keydets of the Southern Conference. The victory gave VMI the Virginia Big Six championship.

Games for ACC clubs this Saturday are Duke vs. Navy at Baltimore, Maryland at Clemson, South Carolina at North Carolina, William and Mary at North Carolina State, and Virginia Tech at Wake Forest. Virginia has an open date.

North Carolina State and Duke are tied for the lead in the conference with four victories and a tie apiece in their five league games. In all games, State has not been defeated, although it has been tied twice in seven outings. Duke has a 5-1-1 record.

Discounting the only other tie, Virginia's 6-6 standoff with West Virginia in their season opener, here's the won-lost record of other ACC club, conference games and all games:

Maryland, 3-2, 3-4; North Carolina 2-2, 4-3; Clemson 2-2, 4-2; Virginia 1-2, 2-4; South Carolina 0-3, 3-3; Wake Forest 0-5, 6-6.

Here is capsule comment from the coaches on Saturday's games:

Tommy Mont of Maryland—"This was the best game any team of mine has ever won—for certain reasons." He did not elaborate.

Warren Giese of South Carolina—"We didn't have enough to move the ball when we got down into scoring territory."

Jim Tatum of North Carolina—"I never saw a flatter team in my life, yet we've never had a better week of practice. We weren't fooled for a single time. They just ran over us."

Bowden Wyatt of Tennessee—"Boys who can block, run and pass can win football games anytime. We did just that today."

Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech—"They (his team) went out there and played perfect ball. They didn't make a single fumble, and the defense never let Duke up."

Bill Murray of Duke—"The best job of defensing (by Tech) since the last time we were in Atlanta." That was in 1955, when Georgia Tech won, 27-0. Not since 1949 has a Duke team defeated Georgia Tech at Grant Field in Atlanta.

Earle Edwards of North Carolina State — "I was well pleased with the way our punting went, getting them in the hole on their ore-yard line twice. Wake Forest, of course, helped us some, fumbling a couple of times. One especially, down on the Wake 21, hurt them." The kicking of the 10th ranked Wolfpack was great. On their five boots they averaged 52.5 yards.

Redskins Treated To Running Exhibition

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Washington Redskins, mighty proud of their three first string rookie backs, were treated to a fine exhibition of running by a Cleveland rookie yesterday as the Browns downed the 'Skins 21-17 in a National Football League game.

The Browns, who moved into the leadership of the Eastern Division with the victory, gave Jim Brown, the former All-America at Syracuse, a full head of steam.

Brown responded with two touchdowns on runs of four and nine yards and picked up 109 yards in 21 tries, just 12 less than the entire Redskin effort.

Brown banged over for the first Cleveland score to the delight of 52,936 Cleveland fans. The Redskins came back with a 10-yard field goal by Sam Baker and then scored in the third period on former North Carolina star Ed Sutton's eight-yard burst.

But Cleveland came back for two more touchdowns, Brown going over from one in the third period and quarterback Tom O'Connell on a one-foot plunge in the final period.

Bert Zagers provided the last Washington score with a 56-yard punt return. The week before he scored on a 76-yard punt return.

Pro football's 30-year-old "man with the golden arm" — San Francisco's Y. A. Tittle — today reflected on an opinion he expressed before the 1957 National Football League season began.

Speaking about a club that was experimenting at quarterback with fourmer Michigan State star Earl Morrall and John Brodie, the outstanding rookie from Stanford, Tittle said: "With all these young quarterbacks around I just hope I can make the ball club."

Today, Morrall is pitching 'em for Pittsburgh, Brodie rides the bench and Tittle, a 10-year NFL veteran, has led the 49ers to within striking distance of their first conference title.

Tittle directed all five scoring thrusts against Detroit yesterday, the last a 41-yard pass to R. C. Owens for the clincher with only 11 seconds remaining for a 35-31 victory over the Lions. That left the 49ers all alone atop the Western Division with a 5-1 mark. The Lions and Baltimore are tied for second at 3-3.

In the Eastern Division, the Cleveland Browns, led by Jimmy Brown and Timmy O'Connell, retained their grip in first place with a 21-17 defeat at Washington. The Browns are now 5-1.

The New York Giants 31-17 victors over Green Bay, and Pittsburgh, which took the measure of Baltimore, 19-13, remained a game behind with 4-2 records.

Chicago's Bears, preseason Western favorites, captured their second victory in six starts, overcoming Los Angeles 16-10, and Philadelphia eased past Chicago's Cardinals 38-21 in the league's other games.

Cleveland made good use of former Syracuse All-America Brown, who scored twice, and gained 109 yards in 21 tries. O'Connell, who made good on eight of 12 passes — and the absence of the Redskins' league-leading passer Eddie LeBaron who was injured in the second quarter.

Bout Will Clear Air In Bantamweight Circles

By JACK HAND
The Associated Press

After three years of confusion, the bantamweight title will have an undisputed ruler Wednesday night when Alphonse Halimi of France meets Raul (Raton) Macias of Mexico at Los Angeles.

Macias, recognized as world champion in the 118-pound class by the National Boxing Assn. is favored in the 15-round match at Wrigley Field.

More than 20,000 fans are expected to pay a gross gate of $225,000. Each fighter gets a $50,000 guarantee. Macias also has the privilege of a percentage of the gate.

ABC television will beam the bout across the nation but Los Angeles and a 300-mile area will be blacked out.

Since Jimmy Carruthers of Australia retired as champ in 1954, there have been a series of disputes in the division. Macias won NBA recognition but Robert Cohan of France was crowned by Europe, New York State and most other sections. Cohen lost his share of the crown to Italy's Mario D'Agata who, in turn, lost to Halimi in April.

Archie Moore goes to the post the second week in succession when he moves into Seattle for a Tuesday nontitle scrap with Eddie Cotton. The light heavyweight champ, fighting his endless battle with the scales, weighed 193 Thursday when he stopped Bobby Mitchell in Vancouver.

Promoter Teddy Brenner shows an unbeaten middleweight Monday at New York's St. Nicholas Arena when Gene (Ace) Armstrong of Elizabeth, N.J. battles Randy Sandy of New York.

Armstrong has won all of his 11 pro fights. Sandy, a frequent TV performer, has a 19-7-1 record. The 10-round match will be seen on DuMont TV in some sections.

While the horse show takes over Madison Square Garden, the boxing shifts out of town for a week. The Friday show will come from Washington where Davy Moore of Springfield, Ohio, and Jose Cotero of Los Angeles will meet.

The match will be carried on NBC radio and TV.

Eppes Taking On P.S. Jones Team

Eppes high school's Bulldogs, after battling a weekend of rain, will take on the P. S. Jones Yellow Jackets tonight in their annual Homecoming contest at Guy Smith Stadium.

P. S. Jones of Washington is a AAA Conference ball club and has been unable to whip the locals during the past two seasons. It was the Yellow Jackets however, that walked away with Eppes' Homecoming contest three years ago, 19-6.

Eppes will be trying to get back into the win column tonight after dropping two straight to Fayetteville and Wilmington.

Expected to pace the Bulldogs tonight are James Harris, fullback, James Teel, Tackle, Dalton Davis, guard, Garland Allen, center and guard Kenny Green.

Game time is set for 8:00.

No Change In N. State Ranks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The standings remained about the same in the North State football race last weekend, partly because of flu cancellations. But the resurgent Lenoir Rhyne Bears have a chance this Saturday to take undisputed possession of the lead.

Lenoir Rhyne, 27-0 winner of Emory and Henry in a non-league game Saturday, is tied for first place at 3-0 with Elon, idled when Western Carolina called off their game because of the flu.

Catawba also was idle, canceling its game with Presbyterian because of the flu.

Elon, which has won all its four games this season, is host to Newberry in a non-conference game Saturday. Lenoir Rhyne, which has a 6-1-1 overall record, will take the lead should it defeat East Carolina at Greenville in one of the two conference games.

Appalachian, 2-3 in the league, is at Guilford, 0-2, in the other. Appalachian edged East Carolina 7-6 Saturday.

Emory and Henry is at Western Carolina, and Catawba has an open date.

Elon will have to go some to keep its undefeated record against Newberry. The South Carolinians stomped Guilford 56-0 last Saturday. Guilford has lost its five games this season.

Western Carolina, 2-2 in the league and 2-5 overall, also should be in a ball game with Emory and Henry, despite the Virginian's four-touchdown loss to Lenoir-Rhyne. The Bears have won their last five games after opening with a loss and a scoreless deadlock.

Second Red Satellite Adds Urgency To Pooling Brains

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia's launching of a second satellite added urgency today to the Eisenhower administration's slowly developing drive for a pooling of Western scientific brainpower and greater cooperation among Allied nations.

A new Soviet achievement in outer space flight had been anticipated following the launching of the first satellite a month ago and was somewhat discounted in advance. Nevertheless officials recognized that it afforded fresh evidence of Russia's lead in the missiles field—a matter of great military as well as scientific significance.

The impact of this second rocket triumph on world opinion is offset somewhat, however, by the Moscow announcement Saturday that Marshal Georgi Zhukov had been stripped of all his political authority as well as the position of defense minister which he had lost a week ago.

The United States immediately pointed up Zhukov's ouster as significant evidence of the existence of "stresses and strains" in the Soviet system.

Officials said privately that this removal of one of Russia's top war heroes and greatest military leaders from the ruling group in which he had seemed to be a powerful figure was convincing proof that the whole Soviet system is subject to great political instability.

Insofar as Russia's military power is concerned, this means the existence of a worrisome element of uncertainty for free world leaders in estimating what course the Soviet Union may follow over even a relatively short time.

Officials also said that this fact, together with Russia's progress in missile science, makes it more important than ever for the Allied powers to begin moving actively along the line which President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan laid down here 10 days ago.

Responding to the challenge of the first Sputnik and Russia's earlier claim to the successful firing of an intercontinental missile, they called on the free world and particularly the NATO allies to pool resources. This aim was fixed in order to overtake the Soviet lead in space science and to prepare for a long continuation of the cold war. It is to promote work toward these goals that Eisenhower plans to attend a NATO summit conference at Paris in December.

The State Department is rushing preparation of plans for specific proposals to be made by the President at that time. It also seems probable that he will then be able to announce a U.S. decision to stockpile atomic arms in Europe for use by the Allied forces there should war come.

West Concedes Trip A Failure

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—Disc Jockey Melvin West plans to take up his radio job again soon, after taking time out to regain the 15-odd pounds he lost on an unsuccessful boat trip to Bermuda.

West came back home to Morehead City Saturday, and some 300 of his hometown friends gathered to meet him.

"God was my mate," he told the assemblage. "I was never alone. When you have that many prayc , from that many people you are never alone."

West, who was picked up 150 miles short of Bermuda in the Atlantic when his 15-foot outboard motorboat ran out of fuel said "It was a wonderful trip...I have no regrets. I'm 'only sorry I caused so much anxiety among you good folks."

He told reporters he considered th.. trip in the 30-horsepower boat a failure because he didn't do what he set out to do, although he struggled against the Atlantic Ocean for 11 days.

At his homecoming, there were speeches by Mayor Pat Dill, and others, including West and his father, Barry West, operator of a fishing pier here.

The disc jockey plans to motor to New York today, towing a trailer on which he will bring back his boat. It is arriving on a freighter due to dock in Brooklyn tomorrow.

Lost Child Dies In Freezing Cold

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—Lost with her puppy high on 7,510-foot Reyes Pe.. in the Los Padres National Forest, Jill Hatch, 7, Santa Barbara, Calif. fell asleep and perished in freezing weather.

Her body was found in the snow yesterday only a mile from Camp Sheideck a private resort in the mountains, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hatch, had gone to fish.

Coroner Virgil Payton said the girl apparently died of exposure. The temperature dropped to 32 Saturday night. Jill's companion, a dog, was not found.

Assumes Duties In Regional Body

Dr. Edgar W. Hirshberg of the department of English at East Carolina College has just begun his duties as secretary-treasurer of the College English Association's Regional Division, including North Carolina and Virginia.

He was elected to office at a convention last weekend at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va. His term will extend over a period of three years.

Map Legal Incentives To Defy Federal Courts

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Louisiana today planned legal incentives for school officials to defy federal courts, with closing public schools a last resort to dodge integration.

Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the legislative "watchdog" committee on segregation, explained: "We are interested in protecting public school officials and employes because some of them may decide they want to be in contempt of court. We want to provide an incentive, in case they want to defy a federal court order to integrate."

The north Louisiana senator, also chairman of the Citizens Councils of America, did not elaborate. He hinted at economic protection for anyone sent to a federal jail.

Rainach's committee met for almost four hours behind closed doors yesterday with the board of directors of the Louisiana School Boards Assn.

The two groups, the segregation leader said, unanimously adopted a resolution directing the committee staff "to conduct hearings and draft appropriate legislation . . . which would automatically close any public school which is integrated, whether by order of any court, military action or otherwise. . ."

The resolution also directed "said legislation to provide for the continued education of the children and the protection of teachers and other public employes affected thereby."

The measure would be introduced in the 1958 legislature or a special session if one is called before next May.

"I don't see that a special session is necessary," Rainach said, "although later developments may make it necessary."

He said President Eisenhower's intervention with federal troops in the Little Rock school integration crisis "is precipitating the act, but the overall situation demands it."

"We are a long way from closing our schools," Rainach added. "One intermediate step that has been suggested would be to close down a school that was integrated and let the governor reopen it under his police powers."

Committee counsel W. M. Shaw said this was similar to a law recently enacted in Florida.

The 1954 school segregation law drafted by the committee in the weeks after the Supreme Court's decision outlawing school segregation placed the maintenance of separate schools under the state's inherent police power.

These laws were knocked out in an integration suit involving the New Orleans school system. An order to integrate in New Orleans has been appealed and the case is pending in federal court.

Gov. Knight To Confer With Ike

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Gov. Goodwin J. Knight was reported lined up for a talk with President Eisenhower tomorrow to be followed by an announcement the Californian will run for the U.S. Senate instead of governor in next June's primary election.

The report in the Sacramento Union was credited to "an unimpeachable source."

A switch by Knight would leave Sen. William F. Knowland alone on the Republican side of the ticket. Atty. Gen. Edmund G. Brown is the sole entry on the Democratic side.

There has been no comment from Knight's office on the report.

DESPERATE MAN

© 1956, 1957, Wayne D. Overholser. From the novel published by The Macmillan Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 25

We rode out of the yard and down the lane to the county road and turned east. Bess and Frank Dance were in front, I rode behind them with Lux, and Kip and Gil brought up the rear. No laughter, no words, no sound except the beat of hoofs on the dirt of the road that had been turned hard the last few days by the hot sun.

I had not paid any attention to the weather for several hours, but now I was aware of the sullne mutter of thunder and of clouds moving in from the west. The smell of rain was in the air, flavored by the scent of sage, and it struck me that rain was exactly what we wanted, a regular old gulley washer that would wipe out our tracks. I didn't want to answer sheriff Ed Veach's questions.

We crossed Buck creek, followed the road for another mile or more, then swung north across a stretch of hardpan, going on until we met the creek which angled toward the Big Red from a northeasterly direction. We were on Rafter 3 range now, and from what Frank had said earlier in the evening, I knew this was exactly where we wanted to be.

Barney Lux had not opened his mouth since we'd left Anchor. He'd cracked that one time, but now he seemed composed. He wasn't sobbing or begging, he wasn't even cursing. I figured Lux was a coward because only a coward would have shot my father and Elder Smith the way he had, but now I decided he wasn't. Indifferent to any code of morals, indifferent even to taking human life, but not a coward. At least he was game enough at the finish.

We followed the creek for a quarter of a mile until we reached an ancient cottonwood with limbs bigger than a man's leg. Frank dismounted, saying, "Stay on your horse, Lux." The rest of us got down, leaving our horses some distance back of Lux's animal. The moon was overcast, and lightning was working above us. I glimpsed Lux's face, his mouth set, hard bitter and defiant.

Frank took charge and I was glad he did, partly because it was a dirty job, but mostly because I didn't want anyone to think it was personal vengance on my part. Frank tied a knot in the end of his rope and tossed it over a limb. He worked fast, wanting to get it over with, I suppose.

"Stand up on your saddle," he told Lux.

He brought his horse in close beside the other animal, tied Lux's feet and hands behind his back, then slipped the noose over Lux's head and tightened it around his neck. He turned his horse and rode off, then dismounted and, returning to the tree, tied the free end of the rope around the trunk of another, smaller cottonwood.

"Got any last words?" Frank asked. "Any requests?"

"What difference does it make?" Lux said hoarsely. "You wouldn't do anything for me."

Frank waited what might have been thirty seconds. I stood staring up at Lux, seeing only a vague figure until the lightning came. My mouth was hot and dry. I had no concept of time. At this moment it seemed to be standing still.

"We'll give you a minute to pray," Frank said. "More if you need it."

"Pray?" Lux said in the same hoarse voice. "Let her rip. I'll see you all in hell and I'll blackball every one of you when I see you coming!"

Frank turned to Gil. "You want to give the horse a cut?"

Gil backed off. Suddnely the clouds broke away and the moon came out and I could see his face. He looked as green as moss on the side of a tree. Suddenly he wheeled and walked away. Then he stopped and bent over and was sick.

"I'll do it!" Bess said, and slashed the horse with her quirt.

The animal went out from under Barney in a lunge; his body dropped and turned, his head cocked grotesquely, and then it began to sway like a giant pendulum. I heard the limb creak as his weight struck it. In the moonlight I saw his shadow against the earth, but I could not see the rope, so I had the hideous impression he was hanging between earth and sky.

I walked away and got on my horse. I'd thought I had no feeling about this, that it was simply a dirty job we were compelled to do if we were to survive, but I'd been wrong. I rode slowly, bent over the saddle horn, a terrible sick emptiness in my belly.

We reined up, Frank saying: "Bess, fix it with Shorty to say you didn't leave your house tonight. Dave, you and Gil do the same with your ma. Kip and me'll do likewise at our place. We know we done right, but Ed Veach ain't gonna see it that way if he gets a notion about what happened."

We grunted agreement. I guess none of us wanted to talk. Then Frank said something else that I should have thought about, but hadn't. "Looks to me like there's little to choose between the man who buys the killing and the man who does it."

"We can't get our hands on Vic Toll to hang him," Kip said.

"But we ain't safe as long as Toll's alive," Frank said doggedly. "He can always buy another gun, or use the law to frame us. Hard to tell what he'll do, but he'll do something. Runyan won't, but Toll will. I say he's got to die."

"How?" I asked.

"I don't know, yet," Frank said. "Maybe in a gun fight. Gil, you'd be the man to do it."

"I'll do it," Gil said. "But it'll have to be when the sign's right. I can't ride over to Rafter 3 and smoke him down."

"I don't expect you to," Frank said, and whirled his horse and rode on.

Kip and Bess went on, too, and Gil and I rode up our lane. We took care of our horses and walked wearily to the house, Gil lagging a step behind me. I was tired in every nerve and bone and muscle. I had never been so tired in my life.

There was a light in the kitchen, and I wondered if Ma had slept at all. She had coffee on the stove and was setting the table when I went in ahead of Gil. I suppose she had heard the horses, apparently thinking that there was just one and it was only Gil. She looked up, her gaze on me. I saw shock, and then pleasure. I never dreamed the sight of me would bring that kind of expression to her face.

"Dave!" The word broke out of her involuntarily, and she ran to me and put her arms around me. "Oh, Dave, you're back!" She hugged me and then she looked up at me, and I knew everything would be all right.

Dave receives a long-awaited letter from his girl-friend, Kitsy, away at school in Denver. Read its dramatic contents in tomorrow's installment of "Desperate Man."

Problem Of Growing Old Will Be Show's Feature

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The problems involved in growing old seldom are dramatized on television. Tonight, however, there is an outstanding exception when "Studio One" (CBS-TV) presents "The Bend in the Road."

If the production directed by Fielder Cook is as good as the script by John Vlahos it is worth viewing this drama starring Franchot Tone and Cathleen Nesbitt.

Vlahos said recently the story is mostly "about a retired Protestant minister's search for his usefulness. He's an old man in a nation of youth and youth's success. What can he contribute? He goes through a spiritual evaluation of himself, to the world, to himself and to his family."

How does it happen that Vlahos, baptized in the Greek Orthodox faith, should be so interested and informed about the life of a Protestant clergyman?

Perhaps it goes back to the days when Vlahos, now 39 and with a host of TV drama credits, was a boy in his native Springfield, Ohio. The son of devout Greek Orthodox parents, he joined a Boy Scout troop in a local Presbyterian church. He liked the boys, the church and the minister.

One Sunday he joined the church with a group of other young people.

"My mother became hysterical," Vlahos recalls. "The neighbors were shocked, it appeared I was in bad trouble. They sent for an Orthodox priest in a nearby town and the Presbyterian minister was called in."

Vlahos is vague about the outcome of the sectarian dilemma—but he does say that he regrets there is not a Presbyterian church in Westport, Conn., where he now lives with his wife and two children. Although not presently an active member of any church, he believes that true religious spirit transcends sectarian lines.

Vlahos feels that the basic theme of his drama is one of the continuity of life. "Europeans appreciate the importance of continuity of life. It's something that we must come to appreciate too."

Belafonte Came Close To Losing Sight In Eye

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP)—Back from 28 days of darkness, Harry Belafonte was resuming his career in the Waldorf Towers, 43 stories above Manhattan.

He was filming shots for his new movie, "The End of the Earth," in which he plays one of the three survivors of an atomic holocaust.

While the camera shot him from an opposite tower, Harry wandered out on a terrace to survey the abandoned city. New York still hummed below, but camera magic will make it appear deserted.

After the shot, Harry retired inside to have drops put in his eyes. Then he told about his operation for a detached retina, which appears to have been more serious than many people realized.

"It all started when I was doing the Nat King Cole TV show on the coast," he related. "The bright lights seemed to cause a fuzzyness in my eye. I continued playing dates, but my vision in the eye had increasing areas of blackness."

Two days before he was to open in Washington, D. C., he consulted a doctor. "You aren't going anywhere but to a hospital," the doctor told him. "Another couple of days with your eye in that condition and you may lose the sight of it entirely."

The corrective operation required 4½ hours, he said, and another operation two days later took two hours. Then came the greatest ordeal: His eyes were bandaged for 28 days.

"I nearly went crazy," he said. "I would imagine all kinds of things—that there were strangers in the room, that I was really going blind."

Belafonte served out his 28 sightless days. At the end of that time, he was available to start "The End of the Earth." This required some fast work by writer-director Ranald McDougall.

How is McDougall conveying the impression of a dead New York? He explained that experts will erase traffic from the busy streets when the film is printed, also move buildings to more desirable locations in the shots.

The Wall Street area was roped off and filmed on Sunday. The company is also using wreckage of the old Black Tom explosion of World War I to depict the disaster.

The world's entire supply of cryolite, a sodium-aluminum fluoride, comes from mines in Greenland. It is used in the production of aluminum.

Squeeze Profits Is On, But Continue High

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The squeeze on profits is on in earnest today. But at the three-quarter mark of the year all but one of the 12 top money makers of big business report profits running well ahead of the nine month figures for 1956.

The reports—some setting records—come at a time when doubts of the economy's future beset Wall Street and when big business is getting increased attention from congressional critics.

Half of the top dozen of the big earners had a poorer July-September quarter this year than last. But the carry over of earnings from the first half of the year made their combined total for the first nine months 25.9 per cent above the 1956 period.

The record of industry as a whole is poor by comparison with the biggest firms. Earnings statements now pouring in show most corporate profits down from the second quarter of this year, and a sizable percentage of the companies show declines from a year ago.

A congressional committee is questioning steel officials about the price rise of last summer. Steel firms reporting so far show earnings averaging 22 per cent above last year, more because of the steel strike in the summer of 1956, perhaps, than because of the price boost.

As a whole, oil industry profits are running 15 per cent ahead of last year, but many of the smaller companies report declines.

General Motors was the only one of the top 12 money makers among nonfinancial corporations to show lower nine month figures than a year ago. And this decline in net income after taxes drops it from first to third place among the "golden dozen."

Jersey Standard Oil, despite a dip in the third quarter, has spurted to the top of the nine-month list with profits of 660 million dollars, up from 603 million in the previous year.

The Bell Telephone System in the nine months ending Aug. 31 climbed to second place with 624 million dollars. U.S. Steel stayed in fourth place with record earnings of 329 million.

Gulf Oil is now fifth in the 1957 profit sweepstakes. At the half way mark Du Pont is now ninth. The Texas Co. has spurted to sixth place, trading places with Ford Motor.

But Ford reports marked gains over a year ago, 230 million dollars now, 145 million then.

NEW YORK (AP)—News of Russia's second space satellite set the stock market back on its heels today but losses were trimmed a bit by early afternoon.

Aircrafts and missiles advanced briskly against the general trend, spurred by renewed expectations of greater government spending in these fields to counter the Russian successes.

New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad also pushed ahead on the weekend news that these two carriers, the nation's biggest, are studying merger possibilities.

The majority of key stocks, however, took losses ranging from fractions to around 2 points or more. Steels, oils, some chemicals, base metals, rails and a variety of others were well on the downside.

The ticker tape lagged behind transactions for a couple of minutes at the opening as a large number of big blocks were sold.

Aircrafts and missiles were up from the start. Douglas Aircraft, Martin Co. and General Dynamics ran to new highs for the day as trading went into the afternoon.

Losers of around a point or so included U.S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Ford, Northern Pacific, Illinois Central, Du Pont, Goodrich, Radio Corp., Westinghouse Electric, Southern Railway, Texas Co. and Johns-Manville.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down $1.80 to $154.10 with the industrials down $2.90, the rails down $1.90 and the utilities down 40 cents.

Weekend Sees 6 Liquor Arrests In Pitt County

Law enforcement officers spent a busy weekend in Pitt County, with six arrests being made on illicit liquor charges.

ABC officers, working with Burl Hardison, State Beer Inspector and Constable William Crandall, made three arrests in Greenville Saturday night.

Olivia Streeter, 24-year-old Negro woman, and her husband, Willie Frank Streeter, 28-year-old Negro of 1400 W. Fifth Street, were arrested and charged with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey which was reportedly found in a pot in their home. Both were released under $200 bond each.

Officers reportedly found two gallons and seven pints of illicit whiskey in the home of James Adams, Negro, of 1406-A Ward St. A warrant has been issued for Adams who was not home at the time the search was made.

Yesterday afternoon ABC officers H. B. Lilley and W. M. Taylor, assisted by Constables Joe Joyner and Crandall, arrested a local Negro woman and two county residents on liquor charges.

Gladys Randolph of 610-A Pamlico Ave. was charged with possession of illicit whiskey for the purpose of sale when officers reportedly found one and one-half gallons of bootleg in her possession. She was released under a $200 bond.

Stancil Jenkins, 50-year-old Negro of Robersonville Route 1, was charged with illegal possession for purpose of sale. Officers report they found one gallon of bootleg in his possession. He was released under a $200 bond to appear in Pitt Recorder's Court.

A 26-year-old Negro, John Louis Smith of Robersonville Route 3, was also arrested for possession and transportation of illicit whiskey. Released under a $300 bond, he is scheduled to be tried in Pitt Recorder's Court.

Two States To Pick Governors

WASHINGTON (AP)—New Jersey and Virginia elect governors tomorrow as voters in a half dozen states cast ballots in off-year elections.

Those two states and Kentucky also will elect their legislatures. Pennsylvania and New Jersey will fill vacancies in the House of representatives, and mayors will be chosen in New York City, Pittsburgh and a number of other cities.

Advance indications were that the Democrats would win both governorships and that the Republicans would hold on to both House seats at stake, but several factors added interest to the races.

Racial issues may be significant in both the New Jersey and Virginia elections, and observers were watching for possible shifts in Negro sentiment as a result of the Little Rock school integration incident.

The Republican candidates for governor carried the endorsement of President Eisenhower, who was victorious in both states last year. In both cases the incumbents are Democrats.

NEW JERSEY — Democratic Gov. Robert B. Meyner, whose election in 1953 ended a 10-year string of Republican governors, is seeking reelection in a race that could boost him or drop him from consideration for his party's national ticket in 1960. Opposing him is State Sen. Malcolm S. Forbes, a magazine publisher for whom Vice President Nixon campaigned actively.

Dalton, a state senator and GOP national committeeman who captured 45 per cent of the vote in trying for the governorship four years ago, is running this time against Democrat J. Lindsay Almond Jr. Almond supports the "massive resistance" to integration urged by his party's leaders in the state. Dalton has called for a locally administered pupil assignment plan which he contends would better withstand court tests and still permit only token integration.

NEW YORK—Democratic Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City is given the edge for re-election over Republican Robert K. Christenberry, hotel executive and former state boxing commission chairman. Mayors will be named also in 50 other New York Communities, including Buffalo and Albany.

PENNSYLVANIA—A House vacancy caused by the resignation of Republican Rep. Samuel K. McConnell Jr. will be filled in the state's 13th District. Seeking the post are Republican John A. Lafore Jr. of Haverford and Democrat Glenn W. Preston of Oreland. Mayors will be elected in Pittsburgh, Scranton and 21 other cities. Voters will ballot state-wide on a proposal to pay a Korean War bonus.

KENTUCKY — A state legislature will be named along with mayors in Louisville and most other cities.

CONNECTICUT — Mayors will be chosen in New Haven, Bridgeport and Waterbury.

Textile Union Is Rid Of 2 Objectionable Officers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Textile Workers Union (UTW), rid of the two top officers who had brought it under AFL - CIO cleanup orders, awaited today a special convention called to select new leaders.

President Anthony Valente resigned under fire Saturday, following the lead of secretary-treasurer Lloyd Klenert, who had quit earlier in the face of Senate Rackets Committee disclosures that both had used union funds to help buy houses. They contended they had repaid the union.

The UTW executive board, meeting Saturday, accepted Valente's resignation, rescinded an earlier arrangement to give Klenert $100 a week severance pay for 20 years, and arranged for a new convention as soon as possible.

No temporary officers were named. Instead, the board directed that its new secretary-treasurer, Francis Schaufenbil, should perform any acts required of the president subject to approval of the board.

The board recommended that the union's trustees employ a new certified public accountant to make an audit of the union's books and records.

It also voted for rigid enforcement of the union's recently adopted ethical practices code, which it said are more stringent than those of the parent federation.

After taking those actions, the board directed Schaufenbil and six vice presidents to meet with AFL - CIO President George Meany, report what has been done and discuss with him any other pertinent matters.

No date was fixed for the convention. Schaufenbil said that will depend on the availability of facilities. But he said it will be held as soon as possible, probably in New York, Philadelphia or Washington.

Animal Lovers Set Up Outcry

NEW YORK (AP)—Animal lovers around the world are protesting Russia's use of a dog as a passenger in its new earth satellite.

Warren W. McSpadden, general manager of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said yesterday a protest to the Soviet Union would be sent through the State Department.

McSpadden said the dog is faced with "unnecessary sacrifice" or with "great pain and suffering should it survive."

Sending a dog to outer space, he said, "cannot possibly advance human health and welfare."

In another protest, telegraphed to the Soviet Embassy in Washington, Mrs. D. Kibbe Riddell, President of Bide-a-Wee Assn., Inc., condemned "this atrocity."

Mrs. Riddell said the Russian government "has once again proved its inhumanity." Her association maintains an adoption center for animals in Manhattan.

In London, the National Canine Defense League asked dog-lovers everywhere to observe a minute of silence each day on behalf of Curly.

The organization said it will send a delegation marching on the Soviet Embassy to condemn use of the dog on the artificial moon.

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A group of Statesville businessmen has purchased the Holgate Brothers Co. toy manufacturing plant here and will operate it under a new name—Holgate Toys, Inc.

The new firm purchased the plant from the Kane, Pa., concern and the company's New York sales office was included. No sale price was listed. Legal documents filed with the register of deeds indicated it was approximately $400,000.

J. V. Dunleavy Jr. is president of Holgate.

Seek To Hold Off Nuclear Test Ban

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Western sponsors made plans today to ram through a U.N. resolution to hold off any ban on nuclear tests until a disarmament agreement is reached.

Approval of the western resolution by the U.N. Assembly's Political Committee would dump rival Soviet, Indian, Japanese and Yugoslav proposals to stop the tests as the first step toward such an agreement.

Yugoslav, Spanish and Russian delegates were expected to speak today.

An official of the 82 - nation group said it probably would vote late today or tomorrow on the rival resolutions. A resolution requires only a bare majority for committee approval but must get a two-thirds vote in the General Assembly.

There was general agreement to vote first on a Belgian resolution for a worldwide campaign to publicize the devastating effects of modern weapons and the need for adequate control as part of disarmament.

French delegate Jules Moch served notice he then would move to have the committee vote on the 24-nation Western-backed disarmmament resolution before any of the other proposals at hand.

However, Bolivia, Costa Rica, El Salvador and Uruguay have submitted an amendment to the Western resolution calling on the big powers to consider devoting any savings from disarmament to improving world living conditions especially in less developed countries.

Federal Bribery Case Dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP)— A federal bribery and conspiracy indictment against Hyman I. Fischbach, Miami attorney, was dismissed today on request of the Justice Department.

The lawyer had been accused along with James R. Hoffa, now president-elect of the Teamsters Union, of planting a spy on the staff of the Senate committee investigating rackets in the labor-management field. Hoffa was acquitted by a jury.

U. S. Dist. Judge F. Dickinson Letts granted the dismissal as requested by Asst. U.S. Atty. Edward P. Troxell

Hoffa and Fischbach were accused of conspiring to bribe John Cye Cheasty, an investigator for the Senate committee, to feed Hoffa committee secrets.
