All Over State, Tar Heels Pause To Pay Tribute On Veterans Day

Many Cities And Communities Conducting Special Observance Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Today was a holiday for federal and state employees in North Carolina as Tar Heels paused to pay tribute to veterans who have served in the nation's wars.

Parades, speechmaking and dinners highlighted Veterans Day observances throughout the state.

Gov. Luther Hodges led a long list of state officials and employees who observed the holiday with rest.

Among the cities scheduling parades were Salisbury, Charlotte, and Warsaw.

The speakers at Salisbury were W. D. Robbins of Willard, state commander of the American Legion, and James Wallace of Gastonia, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The speeches came at the end of a big parade in Salisbury which in turn was followed by a free lunch for all Rowan County veterans.

At Charlotte, veterans, National Guardsmen, and reserve units of all branches of the Armed Services, paraded to Independence Square where Commander Robert Harker of the Hornets Nest American Legion Post No. 9 spoke briefly.

All Gold Star Mothers in the Warsaw area were invited to sit in the reviewing stand for the parade there. The celebration included a dance and beauty contest tonight.

Many of the programs were scheduled tonight. At Wilmington, State Treasurer Edwin Gill will speak at the American Legion Home on "The Wasted Years."

Adm. Hamilton Howe (USNRet), director of Civil Defense for Forsyth County, will speak at Winston-Salem during an observance sponsored by the Clyde Bolling Post of the American Legion which will dedicate a new home.

Lexington celebrated its Veterans Day Saturday with a parade witnessed by more than 10,000 persons. Brig. Gen. Charles H. Chase, deputy commander of Ft. Bragg, was the featured speaker.

Space-Riding Dog In Soviet Satellite Dead; Radio On Sputnik II Now Also Silent

WASHINGTON (AP)—Death reportedly has claimed the Russian dog Laika, first earth creature to penetrate outer space.

The report of Laika's death was published today by the Italian Communist newspaper L'Unita, quoting its Moscow correspondent. It said Laika was "put to sleep by a strong narcotic contained in the last bite of food to avoid its suffering prolonged agony."

The headline said "Laika is Dead," although the story did not use those words. It said, "Laika will never return to earth." An early edition of the Rome newspaper quoted what it said was an official Moscow announcement of the dog's death. But the final edition did not mention an official announcement.

There was no direct word from Moscow on Laika's fate, but the Soviet news agency Tass said last night that "the program of scientific research as planned through the second Sputnik has been fulfilled completely."

Later, Moscow radio reported that Sputnik II had completed its 11th orbit of the earth, but made no mention of Laika.

Russia's second space satellite was launched eight days ago, carrying the fluffy little Russian dog in a harness inside. For the first four days, the Russians reported getting radioed information on Laika's bodily reactions as the half-ton Sputnik sped around the earth at altitudes ranging up to more than 1,000 miles.

The Tass report said Sputnik II's two radio transmitters now are dead and that direct reports no longer are being received. It said nothing about Laika.

"The program of scientific observations connected with receiving data from this Sputnik was estimated for seven days," the agency said. "At present this program has been fulfilled completely."

Tass reported that valuable information has been obtained from these observations and that further study will be made through radar and optical equipment.

In London, Prof. A. C. Lovell, a leading British astronomer, said it was very, very odd that the radio transmissions from Sputnik II ended so quickly. He said he can't believe "they sent this rocket up for getting information from it for only seven days."

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. Project Vanguard officials tracking Sputnik II issued a timetable today for five passes by the Soviet satellite over the United States for Nov. 12.

Sputnik II will be traveling southwest to northeast in the morning and northwest to southeast in the evening.

Sputnik II was launched Nov. 3. The newspaper Evening Moscow said Sputnik I and its carrier rocket had finished more than 550 circuits since their launching Oct. 4. The radio on Sputnik I has been dead for some time.

In reporting Laika's death, Laika gave science precious data which will soon allow mankind to dominate space.

Laika had been locked in an airtight compartment inside the second satellite. The Russians said she was fed automatically. A Russian diplomat in Germany said last week an eight-day food supply had been put aboard the Sputnik.

The Soviet weekly Journal Ogonyok said Laika—which it described as an easy-going, even-tempered dog—was trained to spend long periods in cramped quarters and to ration her food.

Some scientists have suggested the compartment containing Laika could be detached and parachuted back to earth. But the L'Unita report—apparently cleared by Soviet censors—indicated the Russians had no such plans.

In Cambridge, England, Dr. Alan Nunn May, who was convicted in 1945 of giving British atomic secrets to the Russians, said he was ready to volunteer to go aloft in a space satellite in the interests of science.

May, who was released after six years in prison, waved aside any suggestion that he helped give the Soviets the lead in space technology. He said the Russians "put everything into the development of scientists."

LANCASTER, Ky. (AP)—The FBI reported last night it has evidence which will enable them to identify the killer of two North Carolina patrolmen as the search for the fugitive moved to a stalemate in this area.

M. P. Chiles of the Charlotte, N.C. FBI office said "Certain pieces of evidence have been obtained which will enable us to identify the individual" who stole a 1957 Oldsmobile involved in the shootings nearly a week ago.

Meanwhile, police in Clinton, N.C., last night picked up a man with Kentucky plates. However, he was cleared early today after Lt. W. F. Hunt of the North Carolina Highway Patrol said it was ascertained that he was merely a carnival drifter who had no connection with the slayings.

Kentucky State Police Capt. Millard Sharp said earlier "We assume the fugitive is still in Kentucky and will continue to hunt until it is proved different."

Sharp said all leads are being tracked down, including the theft of a wrecker from Richmond, Ky., Friday night or Saturday morning. He said descriptions of hitchhikers fitting the description of the killer of patrolmen Wister Lee Reese and T. L. Brown have failed to check out.

The manhunt moved into this area of central Kentucky Thursday following a trail of stolen and wrecked cars.

Agent Chiles indicated the auto found abandoned in Chattanooga, Tenn., furnished the lead which may identify the fugitive.

The FBI, saying it was giving the case priority attention, said everything possible is being done to identify the unknown assailant who shot the patrolmen last Tuesday night.

The only eyewitness to one of the slayings cleared one suspect held at Georgetown, Ky., late last week.

SNOW HILL — Chances were slim today that sight could be saved in the eye of a Greene County deputy sheriff who was injured Saturday night.

The deputy, J. J. Ellis of Walsenburg, is in Duke Hospital at Durham, where he was taken late Saturday night after being struck by a bottle at a Negro "juke."

Joint in the Spring Branch community of Greene County. The deputy's eyeball was punctured by the blow, and a spokesman for the sheriff's office said this morning that doctors were not optimistic about chances of saving the eye.

Three young Negroes, have been arrested and charged with the assault. Two of them, Milton Lee Evans, 26, and John Arthur Evans, 17, are in the Greene County Jail, and David Lee Ward, 20, is in a Wilson hospital where he is being treated for a gunshot wound in the leg. Ward was shot by Deputy Ellis after the deputy was hit, according to the Greene County sheriff's office.

According to reports, Ellis had stopped by the Negro store to make a routine investigation. He was apparently hit in the face with a bottle after he stepped inside the building. The three Negroes who have been charged with the assault were arrested after other deputies made an investigation.

The investigation is continuing, pending outcome of the deputy's wound.

Church Session Set Next Week At Williamston

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP)—Christian Churches of North Carolina will hold their annual State Convention here next week with several important proposals on the agenda.

A suggested national campaign to raise $25,000,000 to establish new churches will be explained to the State Board of the Christian Churches Wednesday by the Rev. Lawrence S. Ashley, executive secretary of the Florida Christian Missionary Society and a member of the committee planning the proposed campaign.

A plan seeking permission to explore possibilities of merging discipline Student Fellowships on college and university campuses in the state with the United Student Fellowships of the United Church of Christ will be aired.

A third proposal calls for a capitol fund campaign to raise a minimum of $500,000 for the denomination's own institution, Atlantic Christian College in Wilson.

Mrs. Harry J. Shonts of Winston-Salem is convention president.

Harris said he was told by the Agriculture department that he could plant all he wanted as long as he paid penalties. He said: "I was trying to prove this country doesn't need a support program for cotton." (AP Wirephoto).

Arrest Suspect In Larceny Case

Police have arrested David L. Clark, 37-year-old Negro of 310 Keade St. on a charge of larceny. Clark is accused of taking a tool box and tools from a C. L. Russ Plumbing Co. truck. The items were reported taken from the truck Saturday night while it was parked at Second and Reade St.

Hope Fades For Lost Airliner, All Aboard

HONOLULU (AP)—Hope of rescuing the 44 persons missing since Friday night on a vanished Pan American stratoscruiser in the Pacific virtually flickered out today.

Three flares sighted last night were probably "shooting stars" or from other search aircraft." Coast Guard spokesman said, "They were flight flares and that's always kind of doubtful" as a distress signal.

Investigation of the flares continued after daybreak as part of a gigantic search operation covering 172,440 square miles of the ocean.

But no trace of the missing plane, "Romance of the Skies," had been found at daylight today, more than 2 1/2 days after last word from the huge Flying Clipper.

Additional search aircraft fished out from Oahu Island at daylight to join the Pacific's greatest aerial rescue mission, planes, helicopters, submarines, the aircraft carrier Philippine Sea and a small fleet of Coast Guard vessels searched the ocean's swells for traces of the plane after a series of possible clues faded out.

The destroyer escort Epperson had been ordered to investigate the flares sighted last night.

Long-range radar-equipped Navy Constellations reported seeing two flares at different points—one 540 miles west of the plane's position when it radioed routinely Friday night before disappearing. The second was slightly west of the first.

An Air Force plane sighted a third flare some 340 miles west of the Pan American airliner's last reported position. It was described as white.

Surface craft criss-crossed the search area, now broken into two rectangular areas under the new pattern. One is 460 miles long and 115 miles wide and the other is 695 miles long and 172 miles wide.

Both straddle the path the lost plane was on.

Earlier, hope had flickered and faded with a report of the sighting of a yellow dye marker, "a flare and something red" at a spot 425 miles west of the airliner's last position.

Hours elapsed before two ships reported that nothing could be found at that spot. A Coast Guard spokesman said re-evaluation of the sighting—reported by a lone airman—indicated it could have been a school of whales instead of a marker, or possibly other fish.

Another hopeful report—that of an oil slick—was being thoroughly checked by surface craft.

The airliner—Romance of the Skies—carried 36 passengers and a crew of eight from San Francisco toward Honolulu. At 5:04 a.m. Friday it routinely radioed its position 1,028 miles east of Honolulu. The pilot was supposed to make another routine report at 6 p. m. He didn't. The plane abruptly, and silently, disappeared.

That set off the biggest peacetime search in the Pacific. And it prompted speculation—but described as "pure speculation"—that something sudden and terrifying had happened. Pan American officials refused to speculate. They said emphatically that nobody knew or could guess what had happened to the four-engine, luxuriously equipped plane.

Egypt, Syria Turn Attacks Against King Of Jordan

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Cairo newspapers boomed out new attacks today against young King Hussein and his Jordan regime, charging he was making undercover deals with Israel, and predicting the people would trample traitors and oppressors underfoot.

In Damascus, the Syrian capital, about 10,000 Palestinian refugees paraded through the streets shouting "Down with King Hussein!" Echoing the strong Egyptian propaganda campaign, the demonstrators denounced alleged negotiations by Jordan to "conclude peace with Israel and liquidate the Palestine cause."

The demonstrators chanted "Our lands are not for sale for dollars," and "No pacts, no imperialism."

Syrian authorities threw a heavy guard around the Jordan legation in Damascus.

King Hussein struck back at the Egyptian propaganda attacks over the weekend. He said yesterday Egyptian leaders had "sold themselves to communism, and exploit Arab nationalism to divert Egyptian public opinion away from the deteriorating situation at home."

In a broadcast Saturday he said his people resented "lies fabricated recently by the hired trumpets of propaganda in Egypt against Jordan with the intention of stirring mutiny."

Half or more of Jordan's population is composed of Palestine Arabs, people easily stirred by any hint that their claim to their old homes in Israel might be sacrificed in a peace settlement.

The Egyptian and Syrian press and radio have assailed Hussein intermittently since he ousted a pro-Egyptian and leftist government in a major crisis last spring.

The papers renewed the campaign last week, printing various stories about alleged negotiations between Jordan and Israel, and darkly hinting Hussein would suffer the same fate as his grandfather — assassination.

Some stories said the talks were in direct contacts between Jordan and Israeli officials. Others said U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson, who visited Hussein recently, took a hand in the talks.

May Announce Site Of South's Nuclear Plant

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The site of the South's first privately-owned nuclear electric plant may be announced here tomorrow.

The Carolinas-Virginia Nuclear Power Associates confirmed on the eve of its board of directors meeting that Parr, S.C., 30 miles northwest of Columbia, is the latest of three sites which have been considered. The others have not been made public.

Parr, on a wide part of the Broad River, is a company village of 20 families whose menfolk operate hydro-electric and steam generating plants owned by the South Carolina Electric & Gas Co. of Columbia.

SCE&G, one of the four utilities comprising the nuclear associates, has taken options on 900 acres encircling its Parr plants.

The steering committee of the associates meets here today, and the directors tomorrow. Other companies in the syndicate are Duke Power Co., at whose offices the meetings will be held, Carolina Power & Light Co. of Raleigh, and Virginia Electric Power Co. of Richmond.

The nuclear plant would be built under the Atomic Energy Commission industry-partnership program. No cost estimates have been made. But the AEC has been asked to pay most of the development costs, and waive its usual charges for nuclear fuel.

Experienced Amateur To Play Difficult "Mousetrap" Role

By GEORGE E. PERRY

A true and devoted actress, one who wants to really live her part, as it were, is often called upon to go all out in order to authenticate her role, to make it believable. This, understandably, often calls for many difficult things to be done, or sometimes things which are foreign to her nature. Such is the case with Miss Beatrice Chauncey.

In the forthcoming production of Agatha Christie's play, "The Mousetrap," this very seasoned amateur actress, who plays the role of Miss Casewell (a very manly young woman), has to smoke as a requirement for the part. Now to many this may not seem terribly awesome nor cause for alarm; a woman's smoking is no longer looked upon with a startled expression. But to those of us who know Beatrice, this sacrifice for the arts is something to reckon with. (I, for one, can't imagine her puffing nonchalantly on a cigarette.)

The same was true, by the way, with the celebrated actress Agnes Moorehead, who told me that she had had to smoke once in a picture, how distasteful to her it was, how her mother would gasp when she saw the film (Miss Moorehead being the daughter of a Presbyterian minister), and that she would never accept another part that called for this in the script. Miss Chauncey, however, has raised no real objections to this requisite of her role, and informed me that she has been practicing so that she won't be so apt to cough.

In "Macbeth," another campus play, she played a witch! In "As You Like It," she was cast in the part of Audrey, a country wench who ate raw turnips and onions.

Last summer, as one of the eight resident company members of the Laramie, Wyoming Summer Theatre, she continued in her portrayal of these "character parts." In "Anastasia" she played a Baroness, in "My Sister Eileen," she was no less than a prostitute, complete with red hair, false eyelashes, tight dresses, very high heels, and all the rest. "An enjoyable role," said Miss Chauncey.

She had the part of Battle Axe Annie, a female sheriff, in "The Curse of the Aching Heart," and in "Ten Little Indians," another play by Agatha Christie, she wound up with the part of a religious fanatic.

The gamut of Miss Chauncey's roles, as you can see, is a wide one. But once in a while, she has played a "nice" part. In the faculty presentation of "Harvey," she had fun in playing the lovable sister of Elwood P. Dowd, and as Veta Louise, created locally the role which Josephine Hull made so famous on Broadway. In the Greenville Little Theatre's "My Sister Eileen," she played the prospective tenant.

Aside from acting, Miss Chauncey has also done back-stage work, specifically in "Bus Stop," while working with the group in Laramie. Incidentally, she also taught school speaking in the summer school run in conjunction with this theatre.

Drama critics have said these things about her roles: "Beatrice Chauncey captured the spotlight each time she would sink across the stage, swinging her beads and chewing her gum." "As the Baroness, she added much to the humor of the play," and "She was delightful as a sanctimonious old dame who possesses a grisly sense of righteousness."

So along with being a member of the Music Department Faculty at East Carolina College, she has obviously had plenty of opportunities to fulfill the urge to act. Interestingly enough, too, is the fact that while in her Junior year at college, she quit school in order to go on the road with a traveling marionette company, playing school assembly engagements in the mid-west. So she is obviously acquainted with the tribulations of touring.

Miss Ruth Graber

The college's Music Department is again represented in "The Mousetrap" in the personage of Miss Ruth Graber, who plays the role of Mrs. Molly Ralston, co-runner of a boarding house where an intriguing murder takes place. Miss Graber studied drama at Pennsylvania State, and was a member in the Bradford, Pa. Little Theatre Group, where she played the role of the daughter in "Papa Is All."

"The Mousetrap," produced and sponsored jointly by the Greenville Little Theatre Guild and the A.A.U.W., will be presented in McGinnis Auditorium on the East Carolina College campus on November 19 and 20. Proceeds will go into the Foreign Scholarship Fund, the local A.A.U.W. Chapter's annual philanthropic venture.

MISS BEATRICE CHAUNCEY

Experienced Amateur

I said Miss Chauncey was an experienced amateur. I know this to be true, for I have acted with her and directed plays in which she has appeared, and it seems that in every one she has had to do something, or be someone not too much like she is in real life.

For instance, in "The Silver Whistle," a faculty production of a few seasons ago, she not only played a very old lady, but also had to curse quite profusely. In "The Curious Savage," another faculty production, she did the role of Fairy Mae, a pathetic but insane young girl in an asylum.

Pianist To Open Entertainment Series At ECC With A Concert

Mario Braggiotti, noted pianist, will appear at East Carolina College December 4 in the opening concert of the 1957-1958 campus Entertainment Series. He will play in the Wright auditorium at 8 p.m.

James W. Butler, chairman of the college Entertainment Committee, has just announced attractions which will be included on the series for this school year. Arrangements have been completed for programs here by the Vienna Boy's Choir, March 10; Carol Glenn, violinist, and Eugene List, pianist, March 26; and the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, April 29. Two other attractions will soon be announced.

The Entertainment Committee will sponsor in addition for the second consecutive year the appearance of a professional actor in the leading role of a play to be presented by the East Carolina Playhouse, student dramatics club. The popular "Teahouse of the August Moon" has been selected for production in January. Arrangements are now being made with the American National Theatre and Academy to secure a guest artist for the play.

Tips on care of the various parts of the body that lead to good grooming were discussed and essential materials were displayed. Mrs. May pointed out that being well groomed gives a person a feeling of self-confidence.

The devotional was presented by Mrs. Thurman Page.

Plans were made for a Christmas luncheon to be followed by a "Craft Fair" in December.

Modern drugs reduce time lost from work

For most people, losing wage-time away from work is usually the most costly part of an illness. That's why antibiotics and many other modern medicines are such tremendous health bargains. They enable your physician to shorten the time you are laid up—help you get back on the job sooner. So you see, what looks like an expense is really an economical investment.

We'd like to leave you with one other thought. Modern drugs are effective because they are potent and combat specific diseases. Your physician's prescription is specially written to your needs. Our experienced pharmacists have the skill to follow these directions precisely. We'd welcome the opportunity to demonstrate this skill for you.

Two Contributions To Tomorrow

Two recent financial contributions to education in North Carolina may well pave the way to better public school instruction for the youth of this state.

Last week the National Science Foundation announced a grant of $266,800 to the University at Chapel Hill to continue its mathematics and science teaching course for the second consecutive year.

Friday there came the $50,000 contribution from the Richardson Foundation to finance a study of the public school curriculum in North Carolina.

Though these contributions are unrelated so far as their sources are concerned, the goals they seek to accomplish are closely tied together.

The National Science Foundation grant to the University at Chapel Hill will be used to finance the 1958-59 program to train 50 high school teachers in the latest techniques of instructing science and mathematics. The Foundation, recognizing the need for additional young people in the fields of science, also recognizes the fact that this development of young scientists must begin not at the college level, but in public schools. Hence, its program to train high school teachers in science and mathematics instruction techniques in order that these teachers in turn may prepare potential scientists for further instruction on the college level.

In the program of the National Science Foundation, the improvement of the teacher comes first, although it may seem far removed from the end product the program seeks to produce. We cannot overlook the fact that if the chain reaction which produces a new scientist is to have its greatest effect, it must be touched off by a public school teacher.

The goal of the Richardson Foundation contribution, while not pointed specifically to the development of scientists, follows somewhat the same theory. The public schools of North Carolina, if they are to equip the state's youngsters for the world in which they will live, must have a curriculum that will meet the needs of the youngsters.

The course of instruction which equipped the individual to cope with problems of life in the horse and buggy era is not adequate to equip today's youngsters who will live in the nuclear-interplanetary age. Thus the constant study and revision of public school curricula are essential if schools are to meet the needs of the youngsters they are designed to serve.

The $50,000 Richardson Foundation contribution will underwrite the cost of a new curriculum survey for North Carolina's public schools. The ultimate contribution such a survey will provide for North Carolina's youngsters cannot be estimated.

Suffice it to say these two contributions to the state's educational system may well influence the whole pattern of public school education in North Carolina, resulting in better education for the youngsters of this state.

We Must Not Accept Defeat In Manhunt

North Carolinians, particularly law enforcement officers, have been keenly disappointed as one by one leads to the killer of two highway patrolmen have come to dead ends.

In the past few days hope that the killer would be quickly apprehended has faded. It appears now that only a long, careful investigation will put the finger on the man who shot the two North Carolina patrolmen. It appears too, that investigators will depend a great deal on luck in bringing to justice the man they so want to catch.

We are confident that sooner or later the slayer of Patrolmen Reece and Brown will be captured. Quite obviously North Carolina and other states cannot continue indefinitely the huge manhunt they staged in an effort to nab the killer. It seems to us, however, that North Carolina should keep one or two of its investigators on the case full time until the slayer is brought into custody.

It is important to this and other states that a man who killed two officers should be removed from society as quickly as possible.

Sputnik Sparks Retail Boomlet

By ELMER ROESSNER

The Sputnik retail boomlet promises to get bigger.

Since midyear, retail sales have lacked spark. In most lines they have increased far less than expected; in others they have declined. With the first Russian outer-space missile they perked up; with the second they went even higher. Election day sales, always good if the weather permits, made new records in many areas.

The same kind of upsurge in sales appeared during stages of the Korean War a few years ago. Some observers said it was caused by fears of shortages; others said it resulted from a let's-live-it-up feeling engendered by fears of a global war. Still others theorized it was simply an emotional reaction to mass excitement.

But whatever the basic cause, we seem to be having a boomlet right now and, with nothing on the horizon to abate it, it may carry Christmas sales to still another all-time high.

ASIAN FLU IS COUNTER-WEIGHT

Here are more business predictions, based on analyses of developing trends and reinforced with a few bits of advance information: Fear of flu will slow some business activities. There are some early signs: Convention reservations are down a bit. Mail and phone orders at retail have been picking up. Unless the epidemic wanes, attendance at many winter conventions and trade shows will be disappointing and some of the sputnik boom will be counteracted.

There will be more railroad mergers tried. That will be true, even if the New York Central-Pennsylvania wedding runs into Federal blocks, which it probably will. But the idea was so dramatic that it started other unhappy lines to start merger discussions. Some proposals may soon emerge on front pages.

You'll hear more about British cheeses. The British have been aware of the popularity of French, Italian and other foreign cheeses in the U. S. and plans are being talked up for an aggressive campaign in America. While Blue Stilton has a following here, the British think demand could be built up for Cheshire, Double Gloucester, Wensleydale and Leicester cheeses.

NEW PAIN KILLER

You'll be bombarded with boasts for a new pain killer. If campaigns for headache remedies give you a headache, prepare for the worst. A new remedy is about to hit the market, and $1,000,000 in advertising money says you'll read and hear about it soon.

You'll be swamped with Christmas gift catalogs. These have been an increasingly effective advertising weapon year after year. Mail-order houses have been issuing fatter ones every year, gift and food specialty companies have been expanding their mailings and department stores have been splurging, often with reprints of newspaper sections.

This form of promotion may reach saturation this year and then decline because shoppers are being gift-cataloged, to despair.

Teamsters demands will be tough. To save face, union leaders will have to swagger a lot when contracts expire late this year and early next year. Most in need of face-saving now is James Hoffa who, despite legalisms, is running the union. And when employers balk at stiff increases, they'll be asked, "What did you do when the union was in trouble?"

OLD PROMOTER BLOWS WHISTLE ON SPUTNIK GAGS

The Old Promoter was grimmer than ever before when he walked in today. "This has gone far enough," he declared. "Naturally, we asked what 'Sputnik gags!' he snapped. 'Bars are advertising sputnik cocktails. Radio shops are advertising, 'Bring in your sputnik for repairs.' Radio-and-television comics are trying to outgag each other with sputnik jokes.

"All this is like laughing at a funeral — the funeral of the Free World. Suppose the next Russian weapon is a stalenk.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT OF OUR AGE?

Are we living in an age of enlightenment? In some ways we are; in other ways we are not. Certainly no generation of humanity has known so much or achieved so many useful techniques as this age. Yet knowledge is not always enlightenment. True enlightenment depends upon the employment we make of knowledge. Nothing is so dangerous as a well-educated villain. Widespread ignorance is better than high intellectual attainment no longer dominated by moral restraint.

The Dark Ages of ignorance were indescribably terrible, but if we do not watch out, we may make our own age as terrible and our research as intelligence as those Dark Ages. Everyone knows, of course, that a resort to atomic warfare would ruin everything we have achieved and perhaps put us back centuries. But even more menacing than the threat of atomic war is the danger that we may come so to trust in our own knowledge and the techniques we have developed that we will relinquish our hold on spiritual things.

To be sure, the churches are crowded, but don't put too much stock in that, as an evidence of genuine spiritual revival. What we must ask ourselves is whether or not we, and the world at large, are being fascinated and overwhelmed by the lure of seen things and thus blinded and numbed to the significance of the unseen and eternal.

President Eisenhower made an impressive statement of American scientific power in his "chins up" speech but its effect should be to put the whole world in a thinking position with its chin in its hand. What he said proved less that America does not lag than that the Russians and Americans together are racing to a power which makes this planet precarious. Our problem may not be shining satellites in space but a clinker which once was called Earth.

Undoubtedly many may have been reassured by the President's speech. Certainly it expressed his confidence in such terms that it could be shared, that America has not fallen far behind its adversary which put the satellites in the sky. It was marked by his determination, widely shared too, that this country in education, research, and execution shall never lag behind any country anywhere. It carried his belated program to share our "secrets" with the free world. But nothing was so impressive in the President's speech as his description of the destructive power we possess and which, he implicitly suggested, the Russians possess in only slightly less degree.

Risky Deals Abroad

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — The devaluation of the French franc and the threat of currency devaluation in other European countries have caused considerable concern here in the U. S. I am asked if foreign investments are safe or wise at this time. Of course, there is no simple answer to such a question, but I will try to explain my position.

GOOD INVESTMENT CLIMATE
Usually, I have advised people not to invest their hard-earned money abroad. I have done this not because it is impossible to make profits on foreign investments, but because their proper supervision takes more time and effort than most people are willing to give. Without close supervision, profits are unlikely and serious losses are possible. Sometimes I have advised against buying the securities of foreign companies because of tax complications in the home country of the firm and in the U. S.

However, I have never been against sound foreign investments in cases where the prospective investors were willing to work hard to protect their interests. Some foreign countries, like Canada, and, to a lesser extent, Britain, France, Italy, and Spain—provide a fairly good climate for American funds. Others, including some of our neighbors in Latin America, cling to restrictive laws which make it foolhardy for Americans to invest.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

When you hear of an investment opportunity abroad, do not jump. Take time to investigate the company. Or if you are going to engage in a foreign business operation, study the laws of the country so that you will know where you stand and what your rights are. You can get expert help from U. S. consulates abroad and from American officials of company operating in foreign lands. Find out exactly what foreign taxes you will have to pay and what percentage of your earnings you will be able to take out of the country and deposit to your account here in the U. S.

If you do not know the language of the country, employ some trustworthy person who does know it so that you will not lose out through failure to understand contracts and other agreements. Obtain such concessions as you feel are justified and drive as hard a bargain as you can. You will be the better respected for it. Because of low labor costs, good profit margins are possible in some foreign countries, but business moves more slowly abroad and you must have patience.

THE CANADIAN MARKET

Closest nation to us in time and in economic ties is Canada. As in the U. S., commerce between various sections flourishes because Canada has a uniform currency which commands the same value throughout the land. In Canada, the people also live and work under a system of private enterprise. Each province adheres to certain principles established in the Federal Law of Canada to foster private enterprise.

Under such circumstances, investments of U. S. citizens have a good over-all chance of prospering. At least, they are not subject to some of the non-economic restrictions enforced in many other foreign countries. Also, Canada has huge metals and minerals resources which can be developed more speedily and efficiently with the help of U. S. private capital. In my opinion, Canada is on the way up. There may be setbacks, but I foresee tremendous growth ahead. I unhesitatingly recommend Canada as a good place to direct your money and talents if you wish to invest outside the U. S.

AMERICAN COMPANIES ABROAD

I am in favor of American companies extending their operations to foreign countries where this is practical. Such investment serves to offset the disadvantages flowing from heavy exports to America by giving

Gruenther May Be Logical Man

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — General Alfred M. Gruenther has been recommended to the White House by prominent Republicans and military figures as the logical selection for heading any agency charged with the task of mobilizing Allied scientific resources in the field of satellites, rockets and missiles.

The president of the American Red Cross and former NATO commander has many qualifications for what will be an extremely difficult post, in the opinion of his backers. Although born into a Nebraska Democratic family, he is completely non-political in his approach to a problem. Besides his executive and organizing talents, he is a man of boundless energy.

He is that rare person in military circles—namely, a well-rounded, sophisticated and broad-minded individual. In this respect, military men think him far superior to President Eisenhower himself. Like the President, he is a diplomat rather than a martinet.

He will need these qualities in difficult dealings with such groups as scientists, industrialists, ballistic experts and the politicians on Capitol Hill. Luckily, he has become extremely popular there from his frequent appearances before Congressional committees.

MILITARY MAN PREFERABLE
It is generally believed that a military man will be preferable to a scientist in the task of pulling together the numerous and separate agencies now working on various sectors of research and development. The amazing success of Lieutenant General Leslie R. Groves as head of the Manhattan Project, which produced the atom bomb in jig time, furnishes a precedent for an even sterner effort.

Finally, Gruenther is a personal friend of Eisenhower and his favorite bridge partner. Between the president and the man who directs an operation as important as the 1944 invasion of Europe there must be complete compatibility and understanding.

ANECDOTE, EXPLAINS ALL
Incidentally, an anecdote which General Gruenther told to an Army Orientation School several years ago appears to be prophetic in the light of Russia's two Sputniks encircling the universe. It explains, perhaps, why the Kremlin was able to defeat us in the race into outer space.

Two highly placed members of the Soviet organization, according to Gruenther, were discussing the possibility of exploding several atomic bombs in important American cities—New York, Washington, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, etc. The first thought that it would be a simple task to pack them in suitcases, stack them in a hotel room so that they would detonate under a timing arrangement.

When the second described the project as impossible, the first asked: "But we have the atom bombs, don't we?"

The more intelligent Communist answered in the affirmative. But he added: "We have the atom bombs, but we don't have any suitcases."

U. S. MAY HAVE TO FOLLOW SUIT
In retrospect, the moral is that the Kremlin neglected suitcases—also automobiles, television and radio sets, vast sports stadia — and concentrated on Sputniks. Many experts argue that, to a less degree perhaps, that is the stern prospect which confronts the United States. The audience which heard this story consisted of the nation's leading industrialists, educators, high Truman officials, military experts, newspaper correspondents and union labor representatives. They thought it "the best joke they had heard in a long, long time!"

BOTH PARTIES GUILTY
The bipartisan nature of the neglect of the armed forces and scientific research should eliminate today's grave problem from the narrow field of politics. In Washington's opinion, both Harry S. Truman and President Eisenhower, as well as Republican and Democratic Congressmen, have been equally guilty.

In the postwar years when former Secretary of War Louis A. Johnson insisted that he was merely cutting "the fat but not the muscle" from the military system (1949-1950), Truman asked only $15 billion for the Army-Navy-Air budget. It was in 1950 that the North Koreans launched their "police action" against our South Korean Allies.

This unfortunate situation explains why no responsible official or politician at Washington today views the Sputnik problem in a partisan or political light.

Ingrid Arrives For London Role

LONDON (AP)—Ingrid Bergman arrived in London last night to work on a new film and refused to discuss her break with her husband, Roberto Rossellini.

Her eyes filling with tears at a question about her legal separation last week from the Italian director, the actress said:

"There has been too much reaction to our decision."

The reaction, she added, was "not much more considerate than it had been before," apparently a reference to the publicity which accompanied her affair with Rossellini nearly eight years ago while she was still married to Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

Miss Bergman said her three children by Rossellini would remain in Rome until she finds an apartment in London. She said she expected to remain in the British capital at least six months but "I'll go back to Italy now and then . . . on and off." She added she has no plans to go to Hollywood. Miss Bergman also denied a Stockholm report that she plans to marry Lars Schmidt, a wealthy Swedish impresario. The actress was met at the airport by Cary Grant, her costar in the coming film comedy "Kind Sir."

Both Truman And Eisenhower Administrations Fell Asleep

By JAMES MARLOW Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Truman and Eisenhower administrations both fell asleep. They were shocked awake by a war and a Sputnik. It is not clear whether President Truman ever fully understood—or that President Eisenhower does now—the threat from Russian progress in missiles, satellites and science.

The Russians have outstripped this country in satellites, probably in intercontinental missiles, and in emphasis on training scientists and engineers. Why? No one has pointed the finger more sharply than Werner von Braun.

As a German he helped develop the Nazis' V2 rocket against Britain in World War II. Now, as an American citizen, he is one of this country's top missile experts. He says:

This country had no ballistic missile program worth mentioning between 1945 and 1951, or until one year after the Korean War started this country into realization of Russia's military intentions.

But von Braun indirectly also blames the Eisenhower administration for the present lag by saying we did not work hard enough on missiles "during the first 6 to 10 years" after World War II. That puts the date—when this country began to push its missile program hardest—at 1955, or two years after Eisenhower took office.

Those were 10 years in which the Russians, judging from the results now appearing, laid the groundwork for their missile and satellite development.

Years from now it may seem unbelievable that Eisenhower could say—as he did in his Thursday night broadcast—that until now he had been getting top scientific advice informally instead of having it organized.

Now he's setting out to organize it by appointing President James R. Killian of Massachusetts Institute of Technology as his special assistant to coordinate an American scientific defense effort.

Eisenhower, who appeared very calm over the first Russian Sputnik, took this action after the second Sputnik went up, a month later. But just how much Killian's appointment means remains to be seen.

Unless he has real power—and it is not clear that he has—he may be bypassed or undercut by heads of government agencies and projects.

Eisenhower makes another speech in Oklahoma City Wednesday night. He is expected to talk about a new program to develop American scientists and engineers perhaps with government help, in order to keep up with or surpass Russian education in those fields.

But the fact that the Russians for years have put tremendous effort into training scientists and engineers, and that we haven't been doing it, can hardly be considered new.

There's just been delay in waking up to it or doing something about it.

Despite Heavy Outlays, Tooth Decay Is Prevalent

By FRANK CAREY AP Science Reporter

CLEVELAND (AP)—A large proportion of the nation's people are "dental cripples" despite enormous expenditures for dental care.

Charles P. Gaskins was host at supper to the Greenville Kiwanis Club's officers and directors and several committee chairmen on a recent night at Nelson Hopkins Tavern on the Tar, in the principal of Bruce Vice-President J. D. (Dixie) McGlohon presided.

Plans were made for the annual "Christmas Cheer" for deserving families. Dr. Allen Taylor, chairman of the Underprivileged Child Committee, heads the Christmas committee.

The Kiwanis Minstrel Committee for the benefit of underprivileged children reported that the show this year was one of the best and a success.

Present in addition to Director Gaskins, the host, and Vice-President McGlohon, were Immediate Past President J. E. Waldrop, Lt. Gov. John T. Barnhill, Secretary John O. Reynolds, directors, D. A. Blue, W. Riley Cox, Robert L. Elks, W. O. (Bill) Moore, W. S. Corbit Jr., J. G. Proctor and Ed Rawl Jr., and Minstrel Chairman Eli Bloom, James Brewer, Dr. Taylor, and Publicity Chairman Chester Walsh. President Charles F. Blair was in New York a New York state dental official said today.

"This is the extent of the dental caries (decay) problem," Dr. David B. Ast, director of the Bureau of Dental Health, New York, State Department of Health, told the opening session of the American Public Health Assn.'s 85th annual meeting.

He said the American public spent $1,500,000,000 in 1955 for dental care.

Tooth decay, he said, "affects practically the entire population, starting early in life, and the annual increments of defects occur at a faster rate than the corrections which can be made by dentists."

He said tooth decay could be reduced materially by cutting down on sweets and by brushing the teeth immediately after eating or drinking any food at any time, but he declared both those procedures are impractical.

"Regular and periodic care by the family dentist will not necessarily prevent the incidence of dental caries," he said, "but it could very well prevent the gross destruction of tooth structure and loss of teeth with their concomitant dental problems."

"However, with size of the problem as it exists today, the limited number of dentists available and the high rate of incremental defects, only a small portion of the problem is being met by corrective service."

Advocating fluoridation of public drinking water supplies, he said studies of this technique in the United States and Canada have demonstrated its capabilities of reducing tooth decay by 60 per cent.

Commissions In WACs Offered

Army recruiters in the Greenville area are accepting applications for direct appointments as second lieutenants in the Women's Army Corps (WAC).

Women interested in the program have been asked to file applications as soon as possible, since the next class for the WAC Officer Basic Course is scheduled to begin March 3, 1958. Before any woman can be accepted for the program, however, applications for appointments to commissioned status have to be at Third Army Headquarters prior to January 10, 1958.

Army recruiters also said that they are also authorized to accept applications for the Army's student nurse and home economist programs. Local recruiting headquarters are in the Post Office building.

Both of the Greenville students introduced resolutions during the three-day meeting.

Lenoir Rhyne Rolls Over East Carolina, 55-7 Score

Pirate Pass In Second Quarter Earns Lone Tally

Like a runaway steamroller in a forest, Lenoir Rhyne's powerful football team rolled and cracked East Carolina's match-stick defense at College Stadium, Saturday night, 55-7.

Coach Clarence Stastavitch's nationally-ranked Bears whipped to a quick 21-0 lead in the first quarter to chill any thoughts of an East Carolina upset, then went on the score at will throughout the rest of the game. It fixed the Bear record at 7-1-1, and gave ECC its eighth straight loss.

Stastavitch, usually not one to be merciful to an opponent, used his second and third teams frequently after the first quarter, giving his first team ample rest.

The devastating Bear backfield, composed of fullback Harold Bullard, Dean Cline, Ronnie Hoffman and Bill Ackard, ran wild against the ECC defense. Bullard and Ackard, leading scorers in the North State loop, scored two touchdowns apiece and Ackard passed for another.

Hoffman, Lee Farmer and Bob Miller scored the other touchdowns. Hume Collins booted five extra points and Nevio Renuzzio got two.

Bears Start Early

East Carolina won the toss and received. Quarterback Ralph Zehring tossed a long pass on the opening play from scrimmage that fell inches from fullback James Speight's hands, incomplete. Two more plays failed to net the Bears sufficient yardage, and they punted.

The Bears took the ball just inside ECC territory and cracked the line twice for two first downs. A moment later, Bullard glided into the end zone on a 14-yard breeze to give the LR club its first score of the night.

It was Bullard, the long-striding All-American fullback, who did most of Lenoir Rhyne's damage in the line. Time and again he bore through the center of the Pirate defense for large chunks of yardage to break open ECC's forward wall. Then, Ackard and Hoffman began working on the ends.

Shortly after Bullard's initial score, Hoffman cut through end and zoomed 39 yards for another Bear score. Then the Lenoir Rhyne touchdowns came in a torrential downpour that had the Pirates deep in a hole at halftime, 35-7.

ECC's Score

East Carolina's lone touchdown came just before the second quarter ended on an eight-yard pass from quarterback Ralph Zehring to end Charlie Vaughn. Zehring hit Vaughn with a jump toss just behind the Bear line and the big end chugged the rest of the way for the score.

Charlie Bishop booted the extra point. It was nullified due to a Buc penalty. He then repeated from five yards further out for ECC's seventh point.

Lenoir Rhyne tallied again before the half ended and it was 35-7 when the teams went in for the break.

With his club loaded with substitutes, Coach Stastavitch's crew went on the rampage again in the final two quarters, chalking up three more touchdowns. The Bears scored twice in the third period and only once in the fourth.

A host of ECC ball players were knocked out of the action by the hard-charging, vicious-blocking Bears. James Speight, who turned in a terrific defensive ball game at halfback, went out with an injured ankle. Fellow halfback Tommy Nash was also sidelined for a while with a cut forehead. Guard Bubba Mathews was another. Center Lynn Barnett was another.

BEAR TOUCHDOWN—Bob Miller (46) chugs through the center of the East Carolina line for two yards and another Lenoir Rhyne touchdown with Buc Ralph Zehring clinging on to him. It was Lenoir Rhyne's last TD of the night and capped off a 55-7 victory for the visiting Bears. It was the eighth loss of the season for the Pirates and their 12th straight defeat since last year. (Reflector Photos by Billy Arnold).

ON THE MOVE—A familiar sight Saturday night was the one above: Bill Ackard (26) toting the football with Big Harold Bullard (14) carrying interference. Both boys scored two touchdowns apiece in the 55-7 win over East Carolina, and Ackard passed for a third tally. The victory put the Bears out in front in the North State conference with a 4-0 record.

Pirate Standouts

Speight, Charlie Bishop and converted guard Bull Rogers reeled off ECC's longest gains of the night. Walkie Hanford, pint-sized halfback, also turned in a nice run on a punt return.

Outstanding line performances were recorded by Tackle Charles Cook and end Bill Cain. The entire Lenoir Rhyne forward wall played a bruising game. It was the firm, ferocious blocking of the Bear line that accounted for most of Bullard's, Hoffman's and Ackard's running successes.

Next week, ECC journeys to South Carolina to tackle Presbyterian College, an equally winless club. It will be the final game of a long season for the Pirates.

Aggies Refuse To Get Weary

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Texas A&M, the nation's No. 1 team, sped through its eighth straight victory Saturday with 10 boys getting in 40 to 50 minutes apiece, as usual.

You have to be tough to wear the moleskins of Aggie land. Never more than 23 players get into a game and 13 of those do about 90 per cent of the playing.

This may be the thinnest squad, quantitatively speaking, to ever lead the nation.

"Are the boys tired and weary?" somebody asked Coach Paul Bryant after the Aggies were "up" four weeks in a row for important Southwest Conference games.

"Tired?" snorted the coach. "They can't get tired with the little work we've been able to get in, in view of the bad weather, injuries and illness."

Bryant might have said something about how he works his substitutions like a game of chess, making them at the time when there can be no ill effects from the loss of strength.

He also might have mentioned that the Aggies are noted for strong finishes. They seem tougher at the finish than at the start.

They're in mighty fine condition for boys who get to work so little. The fans call them "Bear-fearing players."

They mean that the Aggies call on all their reserve strength when the going gets tough because they have pride—a pride that says they won't let down for their coach.

The 10 who usually play from 40 to 50 minutes each are ends Bobby Marks and John Tracey, tackles Charley Krueger and Ken Beck, center John Gilbert, guard Tommy Howard, quarterback Roddy Osborne, halfbacks John Crow and Loyd Taylor and fullback Dick Gay.

Only at guard are these numerous substitutions and it's because there are few experienced men at these posts. Eight boys have been used at the two positions. "We just have to sort of hide our guards," says Bryant.

A RARE SIGHT—Lenoir Rhyne's Bill Ackard (26) is brought down by a host of ECC tacklers in Saturday night's North State tilt at College Stadium. The above was a rare sight, as testified by the 55-7 score. Lenoir Rhyne won.

Machen And Hurricane To Tangle Wednesday

By JACK HAND
The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eddie Machen, unbeaten Redding, Calif., heavyweight, will test his strength on Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson of New York in a Wednesday bout at San Francisco that could be important to Machen's title hopes.

A match with heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson is Machen's goal and he hopes to improve on Patterson's showing against the Hurricane. Jackson went 12 rounds to lose a split decision to Patterson in their first match in 1956 but was stopped in 10 rounds of a title match, July 29.

Machen is No. 1 contender, Jackson No. 5 in Ring, No. 6 in the National Boxing Assn. ratings. In 36 pro bouts, Jackson has a 26-1 record. Machen, 25, has a 2-0 record with 15 knockouts.

ABC-TV will carry the bout with a San Francisco blackout.

Gene Fullmer returns to Madison Square Garden for the first time since he won the middleweight title from Sugar Ray Robinson to box Neal Rivers of Las Vegas, Nev., on the Friday show (NBC radio-TV).

Of course, many things have happened to Fullmer since that January night. He lost the title when he ran into a Robinson left hook at Chicago, May 1. Robinson, in turn, lost the championship to De Cola.

In the girls game, Grifton Lou Rae Mewborn and Sandra Price combined their efforts to pace the hosts to the 59-30 win. Price tallied 17 points and Mewborn connected for 18.

Keith Beamon netted 19 points to pace Hookerton to the 62-27 boys win.

Ed Smoot, 14-year-old son of Tom Smoot of Greenville, smacked a hole in one yesterday at the Greenville Golf and Country club. The youngster's drive came on the 15th hole.

Playing with him at the time were Rick Sauve, Dallas Clark, and Bobby Thomas.

It was apparently the first hole in one ever achieved on the local course by a youngster.

Clemson's Orange Bowl Dream Has Still Two Obstacles To Overcome

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Clemson, which lost to Colorado 21-27 in the Orange Bowl football game last New Year's, had visions today of being the Atlantic Coast Conference representative again on Jan. 1.

But the Tigers must beat Duke Saturday and then need an assist from North Carolina to prevent the Blue Devils from claiming the prize.

"Looks like we are a second half ball club" said Clemson Coach Frank Howard.

On previous Saturdays, his Tigers defeated Rice 20-7, South Carolina 13-0, and Virginia 20-6. That followed losses by 7-13 to North Carolina State and 0-26 to North Carolina, and a 66-0 rout of Presbyterian in the opening game.

North Carolina State, which had been undefeated in seven games, winning five and tying two, was surprised by William and Mary of the Southern Conference Saturday and lost 7-6.

Duke managed a 6-6 tie with Navy at Baltimore, North Carolina whacked South Carolina 28-6, unless Wake Forest lost its seventh this season and ninth counting last year's last two games, 10-3, to Virginia Tech. Virginia had an open date.

Besides the Clemson at Duke game, this week's schedule is Maryland at Miami Friday night, and North Carolina State at Virginia Tech, South Carolina at Virginia and West Virginia at Wake Forest.

North Carolina State is ineligible for bowl competition because it is under suspension by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. for basketball recruiting irregularities.

State and Duke lead the standings with identical records—four victories, no losses and one tie in league games; five victories, one loss and two ties over-all.

Clemson and North Carolina are tied for third with three conference wins and two losses. In all games, Clemson has won five and lost two, while North Carolina has won five and lost three.

The won-lost records of the other teams in order, conference games, followed by all games: Maryland 3-3, 3-8; Virginia 1-2, 2-4-1; South Carolina 0-4, 3-4; Wake Forest 0-5, 0-7.

Capsule comment from the coaches on Saturday's games:

Bill Murray of Duke: "We had a great chance to win and an unfortunate thing happened to us." Near the end of the game Duke connected on a pass to the Navy two, but a clipping penalty put the Blue Devils back to the 34.

Murray also said, "I'm happy we didn't get beat and unhappy we didn't win."

Eddie Erdelatz of Navy: "Duke is the best team we've played to date. It's tough to put out like that and not win it."

Earle Edwards of North Carolina State: "I was very disappointed, but we didn't play well and we all made plenty of mistakes."

Paul Amen of Wake Forest: "We went all out to beat VPI, but we could not capitalize on scoring opportunities."

Baltimore Stops Redskins, 21-17

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Baltimore Colts stopped the Washington Redskins 21-17 in a National Football League game yesterday that packed a last-minute wallop.

The Colts scored their winning touchdown with 50 seconds remaining. But with a Washington crowd of 33,149 watching, the Skins took the ensuing kickoff and drove with all their might down the field in a drive that was finally stopped with the game over when quarterback Eddie LeBaron was pulled down trying to pass.

The big gun for Baltimore was quarterback Johnny Unitas who tossed two scoring passes and plunged over from the three for the Colts' third touchdown.

Unitas tossed his two payoff passes in the first half and Washington scored on rookie halfback Jim Podoley's three-yard burst to make it 14-7 at halftime. Another rookie Skin back, Don Bosseler, plunged over from the one to make it 14-14. Washington went ahead in the fourth on Sam Baker's 37-yard field goal.

But Baltimore recovered a LeBaron fumble on the colt 21 and with Unitas doing the passing and Ray Berry and Long Gone Dupre doing the catching, the Colts moved down the field. Unitas going over with 50 seconds left.

The Colts two passes were caught by Berry.

Tommy O'Connell, one-time Illinois great, tossed two touchdown passes yesterday as the Cleveland Browns retained their hold on the Eastern Division lead by blanking the Pittsburgh Steelers, 24-0.

This, coupled with San Francisco's 37-24 loss to the Los Angeles Rams left the Browns with the best mark in the league, 6-1.

Despite their loss, the 49ers continued to pace the Western Conference with a 5-2 record, one hop ahead of Baltimore and Detroit at 4-3.

The Colts remained in contention with a 21-17 victory over Washington and the Lions dropped Philadelphia 27-16. In the East, Giants (5-2) stayed right behind the Browns by defeating Chicago's Cardinals, 27-14.

Officials Face Court Exams

HIGH POINT, N. C. (AP)—North Carolina high school basketball officials will be given examinations next Sunday for the coming season.

Taking the exams will be both boys and girls officials.

J. A. (Tony) Simeon of High Point, director of the central division, said Hickory, Gastonia, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Charlotte, High Point and Graham will be the sites for the examinations.

Walter Jones of Farmville and Joe Eiben of Arden are directors for the eastern and western districts, respectively.

Hole-In-One For 14-Year-Old

Ed Smoot, 14-year-old son of Tom Smoot of Greenville, smacked a hole in one yesterday at the Greenville Golf and Country club. The youngster's drive came on the 15th hole.

Playing with him at the time were Rick Sauve, Dallas Clark, and Bobby Thomas.

It was apparently the first hole in one ever achieved on the local course by a youngster.

Meet For Loop Crown Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two North State Conference clubs with perfect records in league play, Lenoir Rhyne and Elon, meet at Hickory Saturday to settle their dispute over the championship.

Lenoir Rhyne, champion for the past two years, has a 4-0 record in league play. The latest victory for the Bears was a 55-7 trouncing of East Carolina Saturday, running their victory string to six.

Elon, looking for its first conference title since 1941, romped over non-league Newberry, 34-7, Saturday, after two weeks of idleness because of flu. Elon is 3-0 in the conference, and has five straight victories.

Other games this week will find Guilford at Catawba, Appalachian at Tampa, Fla., and East Carolina at Presbyterian Western Carolina has an open date.

Catawba is third in the conference standings with a 2-1 record. Western Carolina (2-2) is fourth.

Others in order are Appalachian (2-4), Guilford (1-2), and East Carolina (0-5). Guilford edged Appalachian 14-7, last Saturday, in the only other game involving conference teams. It was Guilford's first victory of the season.

Saturday's game is the last scheduled game for Elon. No announcement has been made about possible games with Catawba and Western Carolina, which were called off earlier because of flu outbreaks.

Play Tonight

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Greenville high school's football team invades Roanoke Rapids' stadium tonight to face the Yellow Jackets in a Northeastern Conference game tonight.

The tilt, regularly scheduled for last Friday night, was postponed due to rain and the flu. It will mark the end of the season for both clubs, although Greenville is trying to arrange a fill-in game for next Friday night to make up for two earlier cancelled tilts.

Going into tonight's contest, GHS will bring a 2-5 record. Roanoke Rapids has a 1-6-1 mark.

NATO Committee To Challenge Study Charge

PARIS (AP)—American and British members of a NATO parliamentary committee today are expected to challenge charges by a study group that the alliance's ground forces are disintegrating and atomic weapons are being overemphasized.
 Neither U.S. nor British representatives were consulted by the Belgian and Dutch officials who drew up the critical report. The larger nations were certain to offer a rebuttal.
 The report was presented by Arthur Gilson of Belgium, chairman last year of the NATO Parliamentary Assembly's Military Committee, and Lt. Gen. Michael Rudolph Hendrik Calmeyer of the Netherlands.
 They had sharp words for NATO's supreme headquarters, under the command of U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad.
 The report went to the 15-nation Military Committee, scheduled to meet here today. The committee's parent body, the Parliamentary Assembly, is the Atlantic Alliance's chief civilian advisory group.

Gilson and Calmeyer, instructed a year ago to draw up the report, declared: "The Soviet military threat cannot be met simply by means of atomic bomb."
 The two experts called for renewed emphasis on conventional defense forces, a "common defense plan, an equitable division of the common effort and subsequently a common defense budget."
 The report expressed the Con-

Sen. Kerr Urges Greater Effort

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. Kerr (D-Okl.) urged President Eisenhower today to "give even more dynamic leadership" to a drive to overcome Russian missile supremacy.

Kerr, a frequent critic both of Eisenhower and of his administration, said, "There have been faults and mistakes by those in high places, but we cannot win the future by rehashing old errors."

In a speech prepared for the American Petroleum Institute, Kerr said Russia's launching of two satellites makes it "perfectly clear that Russia is far ahead in the development and production" of the intercontinental ballistic missile, which he described as "the most decisive weapon yet conceived by the mind of man."

Containing unity is needed not only among people of this country but among its allies, he said: "We must develop a plan that will make the most effective use of our abundant spiritual, mental and physical resources. We must bring about the full mobilization of these resources."

"The President of the United States—great patriot that he is—must give even more dynamic leadership of all of the people of the United States. He must order full steam ahead for a united and mobilized nation."

WHITEHALL, N. Y. (AP)—For 30 years the fire horn in this village near the Vermont line emitted a grunt instead of a howl—until a fireman discovered recently that the wires in the horn had been installed backwards. Now the horn produces a sharp, shrill blast.

Judge Brundage paused to let his remarks sink in. Then Luke Jordan clapped, his big hands making a tremendous racket in the crowded room. Brundage pounded the butt of his gun on the desk, glaring at Jordan.

"If that happens again, I'll clear the courtroom," Brundage laid the gun down. "I have been told that there is a great deal more at stake in this case than appears on the surface. I have also been told that I can expect an outburst of violence from the side that loses. The sheriff has not seen fit to disarm you men who are here as spectators on the ground that this is still a frontier community, and a gun is as necessary for a man's survival as his horse. I understand that; and now you men who are here had better understand something. I will not tolerate outbursts of any kind while the court is in session. What's more, I will shoot the first man who attempts to turn this trial into an ordeal by violence." He sat down. "Call the first juror."

"I felt like clapping, too. I was convinced that no other judge in the state ran his court the way Jefferson Brundage did, and I was equally convinced that no other judge could cut through legal red tape and get down to the basic element of justice the way Brundage would. For the time and place, Judge Brundage was perfect."

"The lawyers took the entire morning to pick the jury. I liked the way Bess' lawyer, Daniel Judson, performed. He was a tall, lantern-jawed man who might just now have ridden in off the range. He belonged in this country; he talked our language, and I was convinced that the jury would believe him if any lawyer would be believed."

"Lloyd Mack was the prosecutor, a short, stocky man who was inclined to be overbearing at times, and that, I felt, would work in our favor. But the little confidence I had began to fade as I watched the growing number of men who sat in the jury box. The solid men like Alec Brady and Rutherford Cartwright were dismissed. The ones who were retained were like the barber, Scis-McGuire, who would turn whichever way the wind blew."

The jury, as finally selected, was composed of five townsmen and seven ranchers from down the river. I couldn't really object to any of them, but at the same time there wasn't a man in the bunch I felt we could count on.

When court was recessed at noon, I waited until Frank Dance came down the aisle and walked out with him. I asked, "What do you think?"

"We're whipped, Dave," he said. "Not yet," I said. "They haven't even started."

"I tell you we're whipped," he interrupted. "Just look at them boogers on the jury. Who are they watching? Vic Toll, that's who."

I couldn't say anything to that because he was right. We walked in silence to the Chinaman's place at the end of Main Street. We ate there, and when we got back to the hotel the jury was finishing dinner. I stood in the archway waiting for a minute. Toll's bunch had the three tables in the back of the room. None of them tried to talk to the jurors, but the room was filled with their loud voices and laughter. Maybe I imagined it, but it seemed to me Toll was throwing his weight at the jury without committing an overt act of any kind.

I turned and walked toward the door, jerking my head at Johnny Strong, who motioned to Frank

Three Unknowns For Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's military dead from all wars are honored today at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where next year three unknowns from as many conflicts will lie.

Gov. Joe Foss of South Dakota, a Marine flying ace in World War II and an Air Force officer during the Korean conflict, was the principal speaker for Veterans Day ceremonies timed to mark the anniversary of the armistice which ended World War I.

When next Veterans Day comes there will be three Unknown Soldiers—symbols of all the unknowns who died in two world wars and Korea. The unknowns of World War II and Korea will be placed in crypts at the tomb on Memorial Day, May 30, 1958.

President Eisenhower's staff secretary, Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, was named by the chief executive to represent him in laying a wreath at the tomb in Arlington National Cemetery.

Convention Will Decide On Issue

RALEIGH (AP)—The controversy over dancing at Baptist colleges is one of the issues to be decided when the Baptist State Convention holds its three day session here beginning Nov. 19.

The dancing controversy revolves around the question of whether the acceptance of federal aid and Meredith College have authority to allow supervised dances on their campuses. The trustees, in a compromise with the convention's general board, agreed to leave the question to the full convention for settlement.

Messengers representing some 830,000 Baptists in North Carolina will attend the 127th annual session.

Another issue to be discussed is whether the acceptance of federal research grants by the Bowman Gray Medical School of Wake Forest College poses a threat to the principle of separation of church and state. The school also has accepted a federal grant of $598,473 for a new building.

Dr. J. C. Canipe of Hendersonville, convention president, will address the group at the opening session in Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium. His successor will be chosen on Wednesday, Nov. 20.

Predicts China To Rival Russia

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Dr. David G. Mandelbaum, University of California anthropologist, predicts Communist China's scientific development "will in all probability be greater than that in Soviet Russia."

Dr. Mandelbaum, speaking at the sixth annual UNESCO conference, said: "It is a reasonable guess that China will catch up with Russia in much less than 40 years" . . . the time elapsed since the Communists came to power in Russia.

Maryland has a town called Silver Spring, but it really is a suburb of Washington, D. C.

Ideal Is Called 'Unobtainium'

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A top Air Materiel Command officer at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base has disclosed specifications of the ultimate material sought by the Air Force.

He is Maj. Gen. William O. Senter, chief of procurement and production, who describes it this way:

It must be practically weightless, infinitely strong, resist any degree of heat, mill, machine-cast, and stand forging with great ease and be available at negligible cost.

"We haven't found this material yet," Gen. Senter says, "but we do have a name for it. We call it 'unobtainium.'"

A RECRUIT WON SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The first "Pauline Bunyan Log Cutting Contest" started shakily when it was found there were more prizes than contestants. The sponsors recruited petite Mrs. Jean Davis of Arrostook County, Maine, from the crowd to compete. When the sawdust settled, Mrs. Davis had won first prize.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK—The stock market was irregularly higher early this afternoon in slow Veterans Day trading.

Key stocks were up from fractions to around a point.

Gains were shown among steels, motors, aircrafts, coppers, radio-television and selected issues. Some losses appeared among oils, chemicals and rails.

The news background included a drop in the U. S. Treasury's short-term borrowing cost and a report that the national administration is seeking congressional approval for a temporary increase in the federal debt issue.

The average was depressed by a sharp drop in Standard Oil (New Jersey) as trading began in rights to subscribe to its new stock issue calculated to bring in between 250 and 300 million dollars.

Jersey Standard was down 2 1/2 to 48 1/2 on an opening block of 30,000 shares. In later trades the loss was cut to about 2 points.

Dealings in the rights were brisk. The firm's shareholders are entitled to rights to subscribe to one new share for every 30 shares held.

The rocket fuel stocks did little. U. S. Borax was up a major fraction but American Potash eased.

Leading rails had a slight edge to the downside. New York Central and Illinois Central were easy.

The Associated Press average of 80 stocks at noon was up 10 cents to $155.30 with the industrials up 10 cents, the rails down 10 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Driver Failed To Make It Home, Riding On One Rim

A driver who tried to make it home on the rim after a tire blew out early yesterday morning wound up in a ditch instead—and a woman passenger in his car nearly lost a leg.

Edna Corbett, Negro, resident of Route 2, Farmville was treated for shock and released at Pitt Memorial Hospital after being trapped in a car operated by Arthur Lee Freeman, Negro, of the same address. The woman's leg was pinned in a door of Freeman's car after the car left the road and plunged into a ditch.

Highway Patrolman J. B. Surles said Freeman told him that a tire on the car blew out and that Freeman was trying to get home on the rim. The excessive bouncing action caused another wheel to run off, and Freeman's car went into a ditch on the left side of the old Stantonburg Road, about four miles southwest of Greenville.

Surles said when the car hit the ditch, the Corbett woman, who was a passenger in the back seat, slid forward and her leg went out the door which had been hit by the impact of the car hitting the ditch. The car then rocked down into the ditch and the ditch bank forced the door closed on the woman's leg.

Initial efforts to free the woman with a crow bar and a shovel were unsuccessful. She was freed, finally, when a wrecker lifted the car out of the ditch. The woman was taken to the hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad's truck.

Freeman was charged with reckless driving for operating the automobile as he did. Surles said. The accident occurred about 1 a.m. yesterday.

Three hours after that accident, an automobile operated by a Cherry Point marine left N. C. 43 a short distance South of Chocod School and injured one passenger. Surles identified the injured as Robert Carney, also of Cherry Point, who was sleeping in the front seat when the car left the highway, went out of control

Recreating America Of Early 1900s For TV

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Can you think of a more difficult television assignment than re-creating the story of American life between 1900 and 1917 from old films?

It's been done, however—and a fascinating hour of TV entertainment it is to one who has seen it in advance. The public will have the same opportunity Nov. 21 when Project 20 presents "The Innocent Years" on NBC-TV.

"At first, to find the film sound-ed like that proverbial blank wall detectives run into on murder cases," says Daniel Jones, chief film researcher for the Project 20 staff under Henry Salomon.

But then things began to happen. They turned up extraordinary films of President McKinley's funeral, of Mark Twain at home, of immigrants arriving at Ellis Island. Thanks to their discovery, you will see Coney Island and horse-drawn fire engines racing to a fire, Teddy Roosevelt and President Taft.

How was this absorbing history on film recovered?

"In museums and the Library of Congress," says Jones. "In old laboratories and attics, by reading old trade magazines, and talking to old men in the business with phenomenal memories. . . . Above all, I guess, by following your nose in old vaults and learning that the stuff that stank worst was the best for our project."

By that he meant that the film made at the time was the so-called "nitrate" film which smells like phosgene gas as it ages. Unlike the present safety film, it spoiled easily—decomposed and then exploded.

Soviet Schools Stress Sciences

WASHINGTON (AP)—The curriculum in Russian schools lays heavy emphasis on science and related fields because Russian leaders "believe that these subjects contribute most directly to mastery and control of the material environment."

This was one conclusion in a study by the U. S. Office of Education on the Russian educational system. The report was issued yesterday.

In connection with that report, U. S. Education Commissioner Lawrence G. Dierthick said it is clear Russian education is "making an increasing contribution to the Soviet objectives, particularly in science and technology."

The report said that enrollment in Russian institutions of higher education rose from 169,000 in 1927 to 1,867,000 last year. In the United States, it said, enrollment in comparable institutions increased from 1,114,000 to 2,996,000 over the same span.

Meanwhile, a separate study of Soviet publications dealing with education showed that by the time Russian students have completed 10 years of primary and secondary schooling, they have received 1,353 hours of classroom and laboratory instruction in science.

While saying the Soviet educational emphasis is on science, the report indicated that Russia may be behind the United States in providing higher education for its young people.

The report's main point was that Russia educates its children for the good of the state while schooling in the United States aims at developing the individual.
