Evidence Of Fire In Remains Of Airliner

HONOLULU (AP)—The Navy, not the evidence of fire today, has recovered the bodies of 17 persons who were killed when a Pan American Airways Stratocruiser vanished over the Pacific a week ago.

An ocean search was pressed for additional bodies and debris that might provide clues to the fate of the plane that disappeared with 44 persons on a flight from San Francisco to Hawaii.

Three of the bodies had wrist watches stopped at 5:27. The last radio message from the plane, a routine position report, was received at 5:04 p.m. Friday. Twelve bodies had on life jackets.

There was "some evidence of fire" in the "considerable debris consisting of mail, cushions, miscellaneous buoyant parts," the aircraft carrier Philippine Sea reported.

The bodies were found yesterday as the carrier combed a more than 100-mile-square area 855 miles northeast of Honolulu with a flotilla of small boats picking up debris from the Romance of the Skies, which vanished with 36 passengers and a crew of eight.

With small boats from all ships in the area working under helicopter guidance, the Navy said it expected "to exhaust the possibility of survivors and recover all available bodies and significant material from the area" by 5 p.m. today.

All the bodies found were shoeless; most wore lifejackets and all had "external injuries and multiple fractures," the Navy reported. "The cause of death is considered to be the extensive injuries and fractures," the Philippine Sea radioed.

Coast Guard Capt. Donald MacDiarmid said the evidence "indicates the pilot did not have everything go sour suddenly or he would not have had time to warn people to get into jackets and get their shoes off. I would assume the pilot ditched the aircraft."

Removing the shoes is routine ditching practice for planes at sea.

A Navy officer said there could be three reasons why the plane Honolulu-bound from San Francisco, sent no distress signal. "That's the big mystery," said the officer, who declined use of his name.

He said there could have been a fire, a propeller could have flown off, or a meteor could have hit the plane.

He considered the loose propeller the likeliest cause.

Helping the Philippine Sea were the destroyers Epperson and Renshaw and the Coast Guard cutter Bering Strait. All had small boats working over an 11-by-3 mile area where the bodies were found floating among debris.

The bodies were found 88 miles north of the plane's course to Honolulu. The Navy said this was due to natural drift and the time was about right for the bodies to have risen to the surface.

Identities of the bodies were withheld pending notification of kin.

The Navy issued strict instructions to preserve the remains by refrigeration, since embalming might interfere with pathological tests which might throw some light on how the victims met death.

Climaxing the biggest peacetime search in the Pacific, one of the Philippine Sea's planes yesterday morning reported the first findings of bodies floating among debris. One still was lashed to a seat by its safety belt.

In San Francisco, Pan American and Civil Aeronautics Board investigators continued to search plane records and personal backgrounds of the 44 people aboard for some clue to the big riddle: How could a four-engine plane with the most modern radio and safety equipment vanish at 10,000 feet altitude over a calm sea without sending out some hint that it was in distress?

Always Helpful To Others, Finds Self In Deep Trouble

LAWDALE, N.C. (AP)—A pleasant-faced, bespectacled little man who was always ready to help somebody in trouble was deep in trouble himself today—charged with falsifying bank records.

John Francis Carpenter, for 35 years a respected bank official and community leader, was accused yesterday of falsifying bank records to hide a shortage of $116,623 at the Lawdale branch of the Union Trust Co. of nearby Shelby.

The 53-year-old church officer and Sunday School teacher was taken into custody by FBI agents yesterday afternoon and arranged before U.S. Commissioner John P. Mull.

He was released under $5,000 bond for trial in U.S. District Court in Shelby in April, 1956. The news stunned townsfolk who described Carpenter as a "warm-hearted man with sympathy for the problems of others."

Bank officials would not comment on where the money went, saying only that investigation was continuing.

The president of Union Trust Co. said last night that he was not ready to say exactly how the shortage came about. But he admitted that Carpenter had indicated manipulations of the books began during the later years of World War II. All losses, he said, were covered.

The branch bank passed all its periodic examinations in recent years. The FBI's charge against Carpenter gave no indication of how long the bank's books have been out of order. Carpenter was charged with violation of the Federal Reserve Act, the specific charge saying that "on or about

Nov. 11, 1957, he did with intent to injure and defraud the Lawdale Branch of the Union Trust Co. knowingly and willfully make a false entry by understating the demand deposits on the bank by approximately $116,623.88."

Carpenter was a respected, popular man in this little community. He joined the bank in August, 1922, following in the footsteps of his late father. He ran the branch almost as a one-man bank, occasionally calling in his wife or one of his two sisters for part-time help.

During the years, he served as treasurer of several church and fraternal organizations. He was a happily married man with one daughter.

Mrs. Carpenter told reporters yesterday: "He helped many other people... and now he's in trouble himself."

Water Program Said Hurt By Red Tape, No Interest

AT SOIL CONSERVATION MEET

... Sen. Scott, Chairman Coastal Plain Soil Conservation District Alonzo Edwards, State Soil Conservationist Earl Garrett.

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP)—Red tape and short funds on the national level and lack of interest at the grass roots have been cited by Sen. W. Kerr Scott (D-NC) as drawbacks to development of a sound water program.

The Tar Heel senator told Soil Conservation District supervisors here last night that money spent to develop water resources "is a chapel investment in the future."

Scott paid particular attention to the Small Watershed Program of the federal government in his address to the annual meeting of supervisors from 18 Eastern North Carolina counties.

The program, in effect only three years, already is being seriously hampered by red tape and lack of funds before it has a chance to get off the ground, Scott maintained. He accused the national administration of being "too staid" with money for water conservation.

At the same time, Scott said more interest in water development must be aroused on the local level in order for the federal programs to get into "full operation."

He noted that North Carolina is one of 11 states which have not passed enabling acts which would permit local governments and soil conservation districts to "take full advantage" of the Small Watershed Program and federal grants available under it.

Under the Small Watershed Program, set up by Congress in 1954, local communities may apply for state and federal assistance in building water reservoirs for flood control, industrial expansion, irrigation, public water supplies and recreation. Of 782 applications from local communities under the program, Scott reported, only 296 have been approved and only 60 have reached the operation stage.

In North Carolina, he said, 16 project applications have cleared the state level and reached Washington for approval. Eight of these have been approved for planning assistance and none have reached the operation stage, he added.

Some 17 Northeastern counties were represented at the Soil Conservation District supervisors meeting.

Attendance ranged from five per county up to the 30 who attended from Pitt.

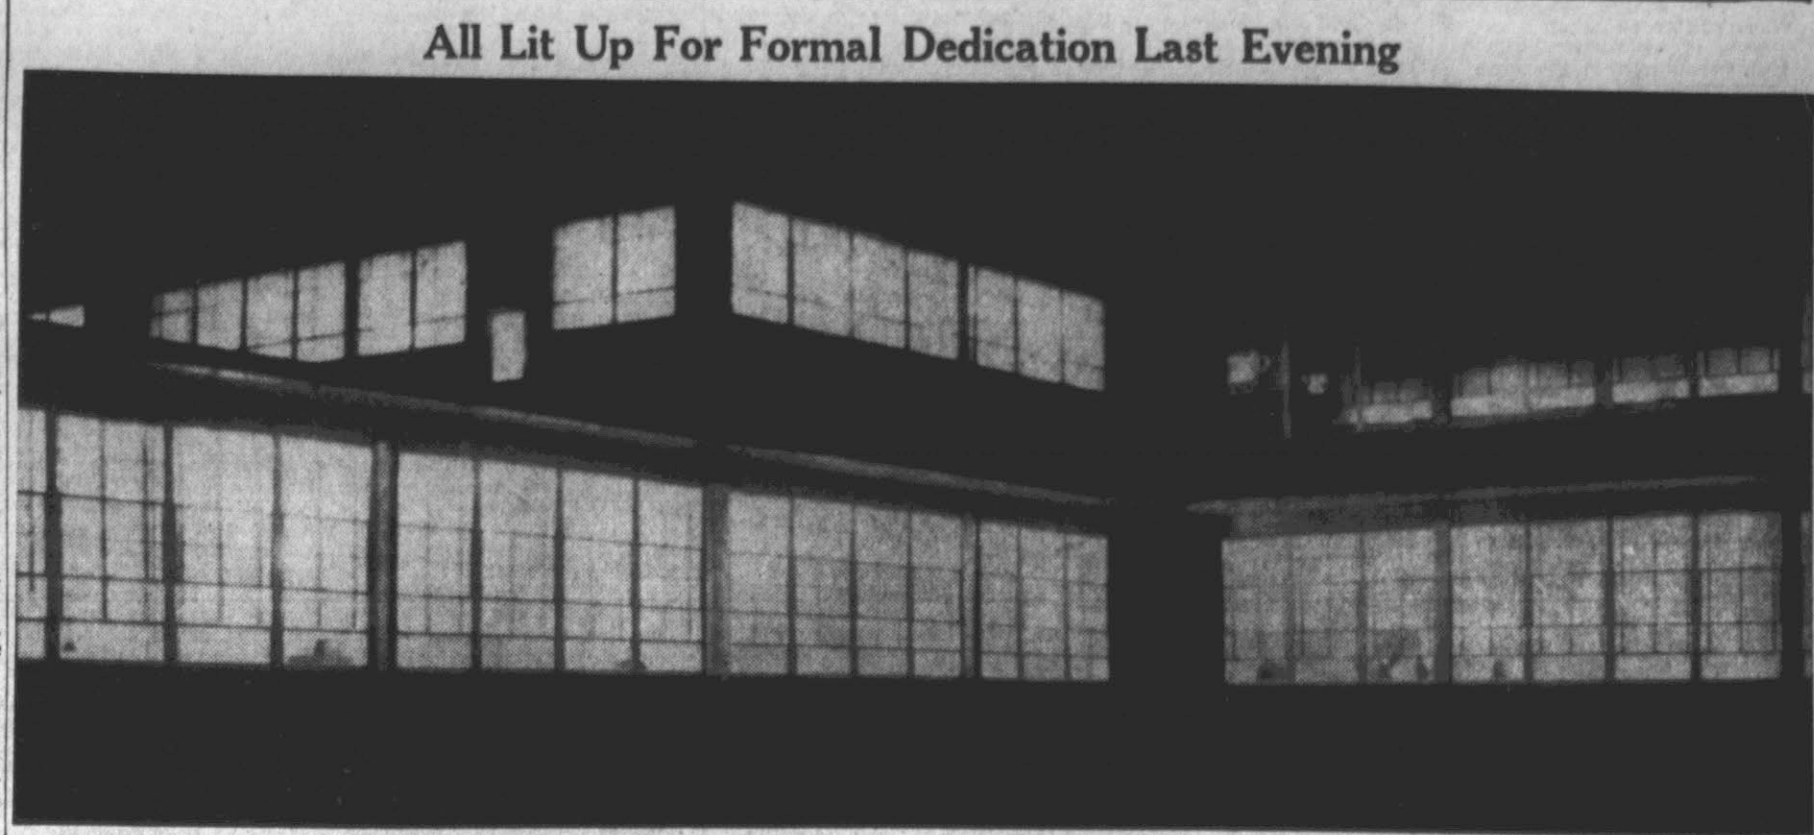

There were also guests from Washington, D. C., Winston-Salem and Raleigh. The 200 in attendance were made up of conservation-minded farmers, businessmen and professional workers.

This was the second area meeting of this type and sentiment was strong among those attending to make the meetings annual affairs.

The 55-year-old spy ring master stood stonily before U.S. District Judge Mortimer W. Byers in Brooklyn as the sentence was pronounced.

All Lit Up For Formal Dedication Last Evening

GREENVILLE'S JUNIUS H. ROSE HIGH SCHOOL

... As It Appeared During Last Night's Dedication.

Educator Honored

SUPERINTENDENT J. H. ROSE ... Who Dreamed Of Being A Railroad Man.

He Nearly Missed Career In Schools

BY JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer

Junius H. Rose, the man for whom Greenville named a school last night, almost missed the life he found in education.

He wanted to be a railroad man. The idea of working for a railroad was a youthful dream of the man who was one of seven children born to a Methodist preacher. It was a serious dream, and one which lasted until his undergraduate days in college when he began to lean toward a job offer from an insurance company.

Insurance selling was still uppermost in his mind in the Spring of 1913 when he was a Senior at Trinity College, now Duke University, in Durham. In April of that year, however, a professor of education persuaded him to visit Kinston to talk with S. M. Underwood (father of the present Greenville attorney) who was superintendent of schools in Kinston.

Underwood offered Rose a job as Principal of Kinston High School, a job that paid $90 a month for eight months, and Rose took it. Rose began his work in Kinston in September, 1913, and stayed there for two years. Underwood, who had become Superintendent of Pitt County Schools during those years, then talked Rose into the job of Principal of Bethel's school.

Rose stayed at Bethel for two years and then went into the Army where he was an artillery lieutenant for two years.

The chance to move to Greenville came while Rose was on leave from the Army in May, 1919. He was offered the principalship of Greenville High School, which he accepted as of September, 1919.

After a year as principal, the school board elected him Superintendent and he moved into that job on July 1, 1920. He's been there ever since.

Some folks say it was typical for Rose not to know of his election as superintendent for a couple of weeks after it took place. He was shepherding a group of young people on a trip to White Lake at the time and he didn't find out about his new job until he returned to Greenville from the trip.

Falks say it's typical because Rose has involved himself so much with young people that he sometimes misses at first, events in his own life. His record of community activities would offer some support to the idea.

After moving to Greenville in 1919, Rose joined Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, became superintendent of the Sunday School there and held the job until 1956. He also handled the Boy Scout program in Greenville for the first three years he was here, taking boys and girls to summer camps, helping form the first Boy Scout Council in the city in 1923 (and becoming an officer of the council), and receiving Scouting's coveted Silver Beaver Award for distinguished service to the Boy Scout program.

In church affairs, Rose was a member of the church choir for 23 years. He was also a member of the church's Board of Education and Commission on Education, serving as chairman for seven years. His other church work includes membership in the Official Board, the Board of Trustees, Board of Trustees of Camp Don Lee (a Methodist youth camp since its founding ten years ago, and Board of Trustees of Louisville College.

Rose was a member of the North Carolina Conference Board of Christian Education for 16 years and vice-chairman of the group for six years, and he is a member of the Executive Council of the North Carolina Conference College Foundation of the Methodist Church.

He is presently chairman of the Pitt County Civil Defense Council, which was organized at the outbreak of the Korean War. His previous experience with Civil Defense dates back to before World War II, however, when he helped set up the U. S. Army's aircraft warning services in North Carolina, a movement that began in 1939.

During World War II, Rose was assistant state director of Civil Defense for Eastern North Carolina, an appointment made by former Governor J. Melville Broughton. He was also chairman of the Pitt County Civil Defense Council during the war.

World War I service qualified Rose for membership in the American Legion, and its 40 and 8 Society, and he has been active in those organizations. He was state commander of the Legion in 1939 and 1940, state vice-commander in 1937 and 1938, and is presently serving as Grand Chef of the local

Obligation Of Succeeding Generations Is Keynote Of Dedicatory Ceremonies

The "obligation of each generation to impart its treasures of wisdom and knowledge to the generations following" was sounded last night as Greenville dedicated the newest of its public school buildings and paid tribute to Superintendent J. H. Rose.

Chairman J. B. James of the Greenville City Board of Education sounded the keynote in ceremonies that marked the formal naming of the new high school for Rose who has been the city's school superintendent for more than 37 years. More than 1,000 people, including representatives of state and local governments, attended the exercises at the school.

In the dedication, James said, "This building which, by the favor of God and the labor of man, has been completed, embodies the obligation of each generation to impart its treasures of wisdom and knowledge to the generations following. For the fulfillment of this task we need not only the best that man can do, but the blessing of Almighty God. Let us, therefore, bring to Him our praises for His aid in this undertaking, and our prayers on behalf of those who by their gifts or their services, shall unite in fulfilling the purpose for which this building was prepared."

Prior to James' dedicatory remarks, the crowd had heard greetings by city and county government and education officials, including remarks by Controller C. D. Douglas of the State Department of Public Instruction.

In his brief response, Rose told the assembly, "This is a great night for me, but it has filled me with a humbleness of spirit. . . . It has given me a lift inside, and an acute sense of dedication, and I but hope I can enlarge my life as this school plant enlarges."

The assembly gave the superintendent a rising round of applause as he went to the platform for his remarks. The ovation halted the ceremony for more than a minute.

Following the ceremonies in the school gymnasium, open house was observed by members of the school staff and faculty. Classrooms and other areas in the building were opened for public inspection, and refreshments were served in the cafeteria by members of the high school Parent-Teacher Association.

In the dedicatory remarks, James recalled for the assembly his past association with former Governor Thomas J. Jarvis, first chairman of the Board of Trustees of Greenville City Schools. "I had wondered at the most appropriate thing to say here to night," James said, "and as I looked over the program of events I saw Governor Jarvis' name as first school board chairman."

"I recalled many hours in his presence and I heard him talk many times about education and schools. I especially remember his last public address, at North Carolina State College.

"Although he was rather feeble, Governor Jarvis accepted the invitation to speak with the idea of education instilled in his heart and mind. And at that meeting, he used these words, 'The churches and school houses are the great instrumentalities of God, prepared, organized, maintained and supported for uplifting mankind and making life better.'"

"I believe all of the past chairmen of the board would agree with me when I say it behooves us all to see that we place in life . . . only those things that are noble . . . to inspire future boys and girls."

"I say this, because to live in the hearts of future generations is not to die."

James then made the formal dedicatory remarks. Responses to the presentation of the building for its primary purpose were given by Principal O. E. Dowd, Student Council President Bob Bilbro and Senior Class President Edward Buchanan. Recognition was also given to Chief Marshal Mary Ann Bryant who presented flowers to the Superintendent and Mrs. Rose.

Decision to name the new building for Rose was made by the City Board of Education at its May 9, 1957, meeting. The resolution which the board passed on that date drew concurring resolutions from the City Council, the Pitt County Board of County Commissioners, and the Pitt County Board of Education.

The resolution cited Rose's " . . . untiring and selfless effort to the expansion and development of the public school system of the City of Greenville" since 1919 when he became principal of Greenville High School. After serving a year as high school principal, Rose was elected Superintendent of the system and took the office on July 1, 1920.

In addition to other special guests at last night's assembly, members of the superintendent's family sat with him in a special section in the gymnasium.

Among the special guests, the State Department of Public Instruction sent Controller Douglas; Director of Research Dr. V. M. Mulholland, a former principal of Greenville High School; J. E. Hunter, director of the Division of Teacher Allotment and General Control; John L. Cameron, director of the Division of School Planning; and A. C. Davis, director of the Division of Auditing and Accounting.

Also present were representatives of the Class of 1906, first class to graduate from a public high school in Greenville, and representatives of the Class of 1913, first class to complete ten grades in the school system.

Confesses Killing

Ollie Watts, 50-year-old Negro of Grifton R. I., has admitted killing Charlotte London Williams whose body was found in an old still well Wednesday, it was announced today.

Sheriff Rue W. Tyson said today that Watts told him he struck the woman on the head, then wrapped a wire around her neck and dragged her through the woods to the hole.

Watts had earlier denied any knowledge of the woman's death. However, he was taken in custody by the Sheriff's Department shortly after the body was discovered. Wednesday officers drew warrants charging him with murder. Watts is being held without bond since.

The Sheriff said the killing took place in the frame home where Watts and Miss Williams "kept house together," according to the story the accused man told him.

Officers had previously found what appeared to be blood stains on the wall of a bedroom in the home. The dwelling is located just off a dirt road about four miles north of Grifton.

The body, which had apparently been in the hole for some time, was badly decomposed. It was discovered by two hunters, who called Highway Patrolman R. E. Tayloe. He, in turn, called county authorities. Also assisting in the investigation as SBI Agent Clyde Fentress.

PTA Hears Talk On Safety

GRIFTON—C. L. Henkel spoke to the November meeting of the Griffon PTA held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the school assembly room.

In the absence of the president, Leigh Vanneman called the meeting to order and led in the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

The Rev. Ralph I. Epps, local Methodist minister, said the invocation, and the principal, E. B. Bright, led the group in the singing of the school song. Henkel, safety engineer at the Kinston Du Pont plant, gave a talk on "Safety."

"The aim," he told parents and friends of the school, "is to educate and train our children to grow up to be useful citizens and a credit to the community in which they live. In order to do this we first must see that they keep alive in the home, the school and on the highway.

"It is alarming that we have made so little progress in decreasing the death rate percentage caused by accidents when this is a major killer. In training we must learn to recognize hazards and remove these to prevent injury and accidents. The emphasis in schools cannot be overlooked if we want our children to have a safety program that is adequate to the times."

During the business meeting the recommendations made by the executive committee at the Monday night session were heard and accepted. They are that the band committee be made a standing committee in the PTA; that the budget of $1100 as presented by the budget committee be accepted; that $535 be allowed the library committee; and that the House and Grounds Committee be allowed additional funds in the amount of $85.52 for the maps, screens, and other equipment purchased.

Joe Shaw of the Ways and Means Committee spoke on behalf of the committee and reported on the Halloween carnival, stating that the proceeds from the carnival, amounted to $668.69. He thanked all who made the occasion a success.

Bright made several announcements as to holidays and asked all interested persons to attend the band concert on Saturday afternoon at the Shell station on Queen Street, which will be a "kickoff" for the Band Boosters' sale of tickets.

Since this is National Education Week, he reminded parents and friends to visit the school sometime during the week.

In the attendance contest there was a tie between Mrs. Whitley's third and Mrs. Buck's fifth grades in the elementary section and for the high school Mrs. Musselwhite's seventh grade was winner.

The December meeting of the PTA will be in the school auditorium with the band and the glee club presenting a program of Christmas and sacred music.

Mr. Persick was awarded a second place for a large ceramic bowl. Dr. Wellington Gray, director of the department, won a first and a second award in jewelry design and a third place ribbon in drawing.

At the recent Chowan County Fair Sara Asbell of Edenton won a second place ribbon for her silk screen textile design.

Mr. Persick has recently been notified that a green ash glazed pot designed and executed by him has been accepted by the jury of the Fiber-Clay-Metal-1957 Show currently on view in St. Paul, Minnesota.

Mrs. Robert Starling Receives Award At HD Program

SPEAKER, HONORED . . . Mrs. Robert Starling, left, was honored by being selected the outstanding HD leader of the year. Assisted by Mrs. Oia Kittrell, she presented a program on her "Round The World Trip." at the Home Demonstration Achievement Day Program.

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Mrs. Robert B. Starling of the Red Banks Club received the outstanding club leader award of the year at the Home Demonstration Achievement Day program held yesterday, in the Educational Building of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Approximately 200 Home Demonstration club members and guests attended the morning meeting which was highlighted by an illustrated "Trip Around The World" and a skit pointing out Home Demonstration Club activities for 1957.

Showing color slides of her trip to Ceylon, Mrs. Robert Starling told her audience of the charm and personalities of people throughout the world whom she met and saw when she attended the American County Women of the World Conference this summer.

"Delegates to this meeting planted seeds of international friendship which we hope will produce world peace," she said.

Wearing a pale blue sari with gold sandals, Mrs. Starling, assisted by Mrs. Oia Kittrell of the Red Banks Club, showed many unusual souvenirs that were collected on this trip. Mrs. Kittrell was attired in a red embroidered costume that typifies the present-day mode of dress in Jordan.

Mrs. Starling was introduced by Mrs. Hugh Hardee Jr., president of the Red Banks Club.

Mrs. Wilbur Worthington, who was installed as County Council Executive Board president, acted as mistress of ceremonies during the television-adapted skit which featured Mrs. Alton Chapman and Mrs. Albert Bell as contestants in the isolation booths.

It was brought out in the skit that 173 rural families in Pitt County have made home improvements or remodeled, 188 have improved their surroundings and 27 have built new homes during the past year.

One hundred and twenty-nine families were assisted with house-keeping methods and 77 with legal methods during the year. Some other facts pointed out were that 150 farm families own pressure cookers, 230 serve the seven basic foods each day, and 217 have home freezers at the present time.

During the year $1,250 was received by Home Demonstration women for products sold. County clubs contributed to the Red Cross, Polio Drive, Cancer, Heart Fund, TB and Crippled Children's Society, or assisted in these drives.

Rural families have read a total of 711 books during the year and 1435 magazines or newspapers. Since the women ended the contest in a tie, each was presented a check for satisfaction in appreciation of their outstanding club work.

Officers Installed
Mrs. Lucy Allen of the Red Oak Club installed the new officers for the County Council Executive Board. They are Mrs. Wilbur Worthington, of the Cannon's Club, president; Mrs. Albert Bell of the Fountain Club, vice president; Mrs. Harry Jarvis of the Littlefield Club, secretary; Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr. of the Red Oak Club, treasurer; Mrs. Herbert Taylor of the Timothy Club, director; and Mrs. R. B. Edmondson of the Bethel Club, director.

Awards Presented
Mrs. Clifton Ellis of the Seven Pines Club presented the Fountain Club and the Red Banks Club gavel in recognition of their perfect attendance at yesterday's meeting. The roll call of the clubs showed that every Home Demonstration Club in Pitt County was represented.

A special reading award was presented by Miss Elizabeth Copeland, Shepard Memorial Librarian, to the Renston-Nobles Club whose members have read more books than any of the other clubs during the year. They have read a total of 280 books.

Recognition was made of the clubs which had turned in 100 per cent of their members' reports. These were Seven Pines, Red Banks, Red Oak, Timothy and Fountain.

Mrs. Alton Chapman of the St. John's Club presented perfect attendance awards to 94 club members. Special recognition was given Mrs. D. N. Nobles Jr. for 16 years perfect attendance, Mrs. W. A. Cherry, 15 years, and Mrs. F. C. James, 14 years.

Red Oak Club was given the award for leadership and attendance for the year.

Special Guests Welcomed

No State Of Emergency Exists Yet

Cool official reception to the proposal that Congress enact standby wage, price, credit and rationing controls is nothing more than should be expected. Except in situations of extreme emergency proposals for direct government controls on the nation's economy have been coolly received.

And there does not exist at present an emergency which suggests that additional government economic controls are necessary.

It has been quite evident that the government, by exercising the authority it already has, has taken the steam out of inflation. Tighter money created by the exercise of federal authority has slowed inflation to an appreciable degree. In the words of some officials and economists, action which already has been taken has or will soon stop inflation. As a matter of fact there has been in recent weeks talk that curbs already in effect will be gradually relaxed.

Under these circumstances is there any necessity for such extreme legislation as rationing, wage, price and further credit controls, even on a standby basis?

Should a national emergency suddenly arise, Congress would be in session anyway and could quickly enact whatever emergency measures are necessary. Little could be gained by writing a standby law now, because in all probability it would have to be amended or revised to fit a situation under which it might be needed. Congress has a sufficient amount of pressing business which urgently needs its attention when it convenes in January to include such additional economic controls on its agenda. Such legislation, if it is proposed, would consume literally weeks of valuable Congressional time whether or not it was written into law.

The federal government already has sufficient authority to exercise whatever control is necessary on the nation's economy. We quite frankly, are of the opinion the federal government already exercises too much direct control over the private business of the nation. To increase this authority, even on a standby basis, would be to encourage greater government curbs on business activity than we already have.

Our Turn Next, After Pilot Plant Is Proven?

The Reflector makes no effort to hide its disappointment at the selection of a site in South Carolina rather than North Carolina for the location of the nuclear-generated electric plant of the Carolinas-Virginia Nuclear Power Association.

Until a few days ago we were quite confident the new plant would be located in North Carolina although we had long ago given up hope that it might be in the Eastern part of the state.

Be that as it may, North Carolina cannot help but benefit by the ambitious undertaking of the four private power companies. The new plant will be the only privately owned nuclear power plant in the Southeast. While the area immediately around its location will attract a greater amount of interest than other areas served by the companies which own it, the undertaking in itself will attract some nation-wide attention to all of the area served by the four private power companies.

After the pilot nuclear-generated electric power plant has had an opportunity to prove itself—indeed perhaps before it goes into operation—it is quite likely that the CVNPA will be considering other similar plants in its area. A site in North Carolina certainly would be the most logical location for any additional nuclear generated electric plants the group constructs.

Adequate electric power is one of the essentials for an area which would further its industrial development. This noble experiment undertaken by CVNPA points to the fact that the four private power companies which serve a broad area of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia, intend to continue to supply all the electricity their area can consume.

'Know-How' For Small Retailers

By ELMER ROESSNER
Small retailers next summer will have the same opportunities to absorb management know-how that top corporation executives now enjoy. The American Management Association will conduct round-table discussion courses for them at Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., in July and August, according to an announcement by Lawrence A. Appleby, president of the A.M.A.

The course will be limited to owners of retail stores and will be largely for those employing from 25 to 400 persons. It will be based on the same principles governing courses for big-business executives.

Donald G. Mitchell, A.M.A. chairman and president of Pennsylvania, said the decision to provide management guidance for small business owners grew from studies indicating that this sector of the economy needed help and was eager for assistance.

"The major pressure on management in the next ten years will be the necessity of speed in making decisions," he said. "This applies to all business. The pace is accelerating and the executive who is unable to make sound decisions and make them fast is heading a losing enterprise."

"A correct decision made too late can be as bad as a poor decision."

A.M.A. researches, he said, indicated that marketing was one of the most troublesome problems for small businesses and the 1958 sessions will be largely concerned with that phase of operations.

"The average life of a retail store is five years," Mr. Mitchell said. "That's far too short, and represents a waste of capital and talent. Many small retailers feel that the big boys grab the best ideas first and, in a measure, that is true. We will try to set up courses that will enable small businesses to know how to meet that situation—perhaps by learning how to make a war machine as dreadful as anything known to antiquity. But Goliath lacked one thing. He was on the wrong side. He had everything but God. Thousands and tens of thousands times this passage of Scripture has been taught and used as the basis for sermons, and always the point thrust into the mind of the hearer or reader has been that the weakness of God is stronger than men and the foolishness of God is wiser than men. David with a slingshot and God on his side was more than equal to Goliath, the horrendous champion of an evil and lost cause.

David coming to the throne a few years later finished off the Philistines. Weakness under the power of God had triumphed.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
ON THE WRONG SIDE

Goliath of Gath, the huge antagonist whom the shepherd boy David brought low with his slingshot, appeared, as the battle began, to have everything in his favor.

In the first place he had overwhelming strength. The Biblical description is that of a man of gigantic proportions, fierce temper, and overwhelming skill. In the second place he had the best military equipment of his day. His spear was as long and as heavy as a weaver's beam. He had a mighty helmet and thick armor and a heavy sword. Last of all he had the support of his colleagues, and that band of Philistine ruffians constituted

Some of the more loyal followers probably thought of getting reservations for the Orange Bowl even before the season's opener with N.C. State. People sat down and madly wrote for tickets to a game or games.

Then it happened. The bubble burst wide open.

Tatum Saw It Coming

Big Jim Tatum just sat back in an easy chair at Folger Buick Company and started talking about the football situation at Carolina for the coming season.

I sat in a chair nearby asking him questions while our Sports Editor Billy Arnold took pictures as he spoke about his 1957 prospects with the slightest of smiles on his face.

Being a student at the University at one time I naturally had a great deal of curiosity about what Sunny Jim thought about his team. Like a great deal of UNC fans throughout the state and nation I had become accustomed to my team losing game after game since the great Charlie Justice left the campus in 1949.

When I heard in 1956 that Tatum was coming back to the scene of his former glories, I was overjoyed. We would again have a winning team.

He came to the campus and promptly made the statement that the team had some of the best players he had ever coached. To go even further he stated the team could very easily come up with a winning combination during the season.

Game after game, defeat after defeat, went by until the glorious basketball season finally came along. When the smoke finally cleared the team had lost its self-respect, Tatum's respect, the respect of the fans not to mention losing seven ball games.

At the end, to add insult to injury, Carolina had an ineligible man on the team and had to forfeit the two games it won and a tie. The final record, after much wailing and moaning, was 10 losses and no wins.

As I sat in my living room last Saturday afternoon watching the Tar Heels slaughter the Gamecocks of South Carolina, I thought about Jim Tatum and what he told me about his team.

Looking back over the record this season I find that most of what he said was true and it makes my heart glad. It's a wonderful to be rooting for a winning team again after eight years.

FLATION Thus, although quite unconsciously perhaps, President Eisenhower has handed to a Democratic Congress the responsibility of making appropriations that will unbalance the budget, kill all chances of a tax reduction and possibly contribute to further inflation.

The expenditure of many more billions in a crash program will naturally create shortages of durable and consumer goods, necessitate overtime pay and increase prices immeasurably. It may require even heavier taxation.

In its present mood, Congress will undoubtedly accept such a challenge. It will most certainly "authorize" the Administration to spend far more than Eisenhower now contemplates, leaving it to him to ask for the actual appropriations.

The time has passed, so the people's representatives on Capitol Hill believe, to trifle with the problem of national survival. The Democrats are quite willing to become known as the "Defense Party" in today's crisis.

Hired Man's Fate

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remember the hired man?

A generation ago he began to disappear from the American scene, and left a gap in family life that has never quite been filled. There is none to take his place.

The hired man at one time was a neighborhood resource, the poor relation by loyalty but not by blood of a dozen or so families he had adopted.

Any family in the community could ask the hired man to work for them. He generally worked only for the families he chose, loyal as he was.

His pay was invariably low. Nobody spoiled him with money. Nobody expected him to brood over the fact his fate was to brush the dust from the welcome mat spread for other feet.

Often he would work for sick people, who having survived local medicine and escaped the local undertaker, would victoriously call in the hired man to brighten up the place to make them feel better.

The hired man knew that sick people, getting well, are helped by seeing their belongings in order — the yard clean, the sidewalks swept, brass knocker on the front door brightly polished. It made them feel they had more of a hold on life.

But the hired man, kind of looked down upon his superiors, and yet at the same time welcomed by them, wasn't just a crutch for the sick getting well.

He was also a kind of measurement of the wealth of the family. He did the jobs they could do themselves but were too busy to do or too proud to do in public.

Actually there wasn't much he couldn't do. He could and did mow the grass, fix a light plug, clean the yard, paint the house, or even carry out the ashes from the basement.

But in those days the hired man was generally an outdoor-working man. When he came indoors, he was usually to eat in the kitchen.

He didn't work every day because he was a lone man, unmarried and not wanting to be married; and always knew, whether he wanted to earn it or not, there was a welcome for him in many kitchens.

Most wives were glad to feed him — and for several reasons. For one thing, he was different from their husbands. He was male and independent as their husbands were, and solitary. But at least, if he wouldn't obey a woman, he would listen to her, or appear to.

He took his time about his work. He would stop and talk to the kids. He would stay in a warm kitchen on a cold day and listen to a wife's complaints as long as she served food or poured coffee. The main thing was he was company.

He was never in a hurry, because he knew he wasn't going anywhere. He wasn't dependable in an emergency, because he didn't live by your emergency. But when he was actually there he was as dependable as your need required. He could stop a leaking faucet, coax a reluctant handle of a bathroom fixture back into action, even weed gardens though he planted nothing himself.

Whatever happened to the hired man?

He did like everybody else has tried to do in the middle of the 20th century. He specialized. He married and had his own offspring. His ears belong to his own wife, his play time to his own children.

Today one hired man is hired to fix the television set. Another hired man is hired to fix one part of the plumbing, and still another to meet another plumbing problem. A fourth hired man can repair short circuits and is an authority on light bulbs, up to 100 watts.

In an age of specialization the only true all-around hired man in a home is the housewife herself. This is why, if a husband came home at midday, he might find his wife in the kitchen all alone and talking to herself.

Larger Share Of 'Idle' Money

By LYNN NISBET
BANKS — One of the first official acts of Ben Roberts as Commissioner of Banks was to sign and authorize release of a composite statement of condition of all banks operating in North Carolina.

The composite statement prepared by the staff of the banking commission from individual reports at close of business October 11 shows an increase in total banking assets since September 26, 1956, of more than $23 million.

There are 165 State banks with 302 branches operating this year, compared with 167 banks and 283 branches last year. There are 46 National banks with 78 branches, compared with 47 banks and 64 branches in 1956.

That adds up to a total of 591 banking places in the state, an increase of 30 during the year.

There was substantial increase in individual and business deposits, a decrease in deposits of governmental units. Loans were nearly $12 million less this year. Increase in deposits and reduction in loans indicates a larger percentage of "idle" money.

The statement indicates a trend toward National banks. The number of National banking units increased from 111 to 124, more than 11 per cent and their resources went up $9 million or about 13 per cent. Meantime the number of State banking units went from 450 to 467 an increase of less than four per cent, while their resources increased nearly $14.5 million or about three-quarters of one per cent.

The percentage of capital in ratio to deposits and of deposits and loans shows the banks in North Carolina to be in somewhat stronger condition than a year ago.

NO OATH — Dean Henry Brandt of the UNC law school was pleased that he and his colleagues on the commission to rewrite the constitution were not required to take an oath before entering upon their work. Not that he objected to taking an oath faithfully to perform his duties under any circumstances, or that he felt there is anything contrary to the constitution in what his group is undertaking. It just struck as somewhat anomalous for 15 persons to take an oath to support the constitution of North Carolina, when the job assigned them was to rewrite it.

The text prepared by this commission will be presented to the next Legislature for approval and submission to the people at the next general election for ratification.

The act authorizing the commission to be appointed by the Governor was passed by the recent General Assembly instead of the bill sponsored by Sen. Perry Martin of Northampton providing for a constitutional convention to which the people would elect delegates. While the plan adopted for a small group, hand-picked by the Governor, was opposed in some quarters on the ground it gave the incumbent chief executive too much influence, majority of the legislators preferred it. Main reason for the preference was that the convention proposal called for delegates to be elected on the same basis as present representation in the General Assembly, a situation that might well have perpetuated some of the inequities most objectionable in the present constitution.

Since the General Assembly must determine what proposed changes shall be submitted in the election and all the people will have a chance to vote upon them before they become effective, and further considering the recognized ability, integrity and statesmanship of the commission personnel, there appears little reason to fear effort to "put over" anything on the public.

COMPLEMENTARY — Governor Hodges took considerable pains at his weekly news conference, when he announced appointment of the commission to study the problem of public school financing, to point out that while there might be a little overlapping in some areas there is no conflict of purpose among the several groups studying various phases of the school set up.

The financing study was authorized by the General Assembly. It will delve into such matters as Federal, State and local responsibility for providing money to operate the schools, fuller utilization of physical facilities and human resources in school operation and other items such as year-around schools. There is provision for paying out of tax money the cost of this program.

The upcoming study of public school curriculum, financed largely by a grant from the Richardson Foundation, but with some State funds, will confine itself to the one phase of what shall be taught in the classrooms.

The Citizens Committee for Better Schools, set up by the Governor on his own initiative, and also financed by non-tax grants, has no authority and is not expected to make any formal reports. Its sole function is to stimulate interest at local level in improvement of the schools in all areas of activity.

In addition to these agencies which operate under State sponsorship, direct or indirect, there are numerous others with the same general objectives. The State Association of School Boards has its committee of 100. The State Parent-Teacher Association (PTA), and the North Carolina Education Association (NCEA) have active committees working for more economic and efficient operation of the public schools.

The Resurrection and Our Faith ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Corinthians 15.

Paul writes the Corinthians how he had preached to them that Christ died for our sins, was buried, and rose on the third day.

Peter was first of the Apostles to see the Risen Lord. Then the other 11 saw Him, and then 500 of the brethren.

The Risen Lord was next seen by his brother James, and again by all the Apostles, Paul reminds the members of the church at Corinth.

Last of all Paul saw the Lord when, as Saul, he was on his way to Damascus to persecute Christians. MEMORY VERSE—I Corinth. 15:58.

The Resurrection and Our Faith

BE STEADFAST IN WORK FOR CHRIST WHO DIED FOR OUR SINS, BUT WAS RISEN

Scripture—I Corinthians 15.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL OUR LESSON today is about Christ's death on the cross and His resurrection. In it Paul devotes the entire chapter 15 of First Corinthians, reminding the people of the church of Corinth that he had preached the Risen Lord to them when he was founding their church, and they had received and believed it. He recalls the appearances of our Lord to the Apostles and brethren after the Resurrection.

The first of the Apostles to behold the Risen Lord was Cephas, which, translated means stone, or petros, from which word comes Peter. Next He appeared to the "12," the official name for the Apostles, but now 11, as Judas was dead. We are told nothing of the details of this meeting, only that it occurred on Easter Day. Then the other Apostles saw apostle, because I persecuted the church of God." No other great leader of religion ever rose from the dead, Dr. Wilbur M. Smith points out, not even the founders of modern cults, which makes Jesus supreme. This fact should be impressed on the younger class members, Dr. Smith suggests.

For the classes of young children Paul's many words about the great importance of Christ's resurrection may be difficult to understand, but for the older members of the Sunday school they should be studied earnestly by the teacher and be regarded as profoundly important.

Many young children may have had no experience with death itself although they may have been taken to a funeral service for some relative or friend. For them Paul's word picture of the sowing of seeds of wheat or some other food would interest them.

The seed is sown, and part of it as being Him, but we do not know how or when, and some of them were dead when Paul wrote this Epistle between 57 and 59 A.D. Those who had seen Him after His resurrection were marked men, alive 25 years after the event, says A. T. Robertson.

Paul then says James was the next to see Jesus, and he is thought to have been the Lord's brother, then again He appeared to all the Apostles, 10 appearing in all before the Ascension.

Last of all was Paul himself, formerly called Saul, who saw his vision of Jesus when he was on his way to Damascus planning to persecute the Christians. Paul writes humbly that he is the "least of the Apostles, that I am not meet to be called an

B & O Asks To End Passenger Service

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, yielding to the auto and the airplane, wants to quit the passenger business on the highly competitive Baltimore-New York line.

In an announcement yesterday, the B&O said it was requesting permission to discontinue 14 passenger trains northeast of Baltimore. The road said it was losing about five million dollars a year on them.

Thus the Baltimore and Ohio, one of the four major east-west trunk lines, joined a general re-orientation movement among railroads.

Less than two weeks ago, the New York Central and the Pennsylvania announced they were considering a merger. The Erie, the Lackawanna and the Delaware & Hudson are doing the same.

Other mergers are in the wind. Transportation experts said B&O's proposal obviously stemmed from competition with the private automobile and the airlines.

President Howard E. Simpson acknowledged this was so. "We regret the necessity for this action, but declining patronage of this service and its increased wages, materials and other costs have resulted in a very substantial loss," he said.

"In recent years large sums of money have been spent by state and federal bodies for the con-

Law Men Break Up Mobster's New York Convention

APALACHIN, N.Y. (AP)—State police and U.S. Treasury agents yesterday broke up what an investigator said was a convention held by mobster Vito Genovese and 64 pals.

The 65 men were picked up yesterday at a hilltop retreat near this south central New York community. All were released after identifying themselves.

"We haven't a thing on them," said Sgt. Edgar Crosswell of the State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation. "But we made it clear we wanted them out of the area."

Crosswell said the men were armed only with fat wads of cash—no guns. They came from New York, New Jersey, Ohio, California, Texas, Colorado, Pennsylvania, Puerto Rico and Cuba, he added.

"We broke up the meeting because we were convinced it was being held for an unlawful purpose," he declared. "They're all hoodlums; there's no doubt about it."

Crosswell said several such meetings had been held in this area in recent years. The last one of comparable size was in November 1956, he added.

The men began filtering into the area Wednesday, he said. Troopers became suspicious when they saw large numbers of expensive cars, many with out-of-state license plates, parked at motels.

Crosswell said police set up roadblocks and partly surrounded the house on the hill before the men started to break for it.

Thirteen were picked up in a field, the others at the roadblocks. Genovese, 59, of Atlantic Highlands, N.J., once was described by former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as "King of the Rackets."

Crosswell said police set up roadblocks and partly surrounded the house on the hill before the men started to break for it.

East Germany Is Now Aware Of Population Loss

BERLIN (AP)—Communist East Germany admits it is running short of people.

The sustained flight of refugees westward is upsetting the economy. A low birth rate, the impact of World War II casualties and an aging population make the future look even grimmer.

Western officials fear the Stalinist regime may take drastic action to plug the West Berlin loophole most refugees use to escape.

In 1956 East Germany suffered a net loss of 228,654 persons, official statistics show. The population of 17 1/2 million is being whittled steadily by a refugee exodus averaging around 5,000 weekly this year. More than two million persons have gone to West Germany since 1946.

Escape from the East is relatively easy once a refugee reaches East Berlin. He can take a 5-cent subway ride over to West Berlin and wait for a free airplane ride to West Germany.

No Candy, Even With $100 Bill

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Money can't buy everything—sometimes not even a nickel candy bar.

A little first grade girl learned that yesterday when she innocently asked for some five cent candy and handed a shopkeeper a $100 bill.

Instead of the candy, the bill brought—running—her school principal, then her mother.

The money? Found in a drawer at home, where the child's mother had left it for deposit later in a bank.

Claims Water Blackens Hooch

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Just what turned the hooch black may never be known.

Lynn M. Thatcher, chief of the Utah State Health Department's Bureau of Sanitation, says a woman complained that when water from the family well was added to her husband's whiskey, the drink turned black.

Aaron Edges Musial For Nat'l League MVP Vote

CHICAGO (AP)—Hank Aaron says he didn't think anybody could beat out Stan Musial for the 1957 National League's Most Valuable Player award.

But the wrist-hitting, 23-year-old outfielder for the world champion Milwaukee Braves won the honor yesterday by a close nine-point margin over the veteran St. Louis Cardinal star in balloting by the Baseball Writers Assn.

Musial, winner of his seventh batting title with a .351 mark, finished with 230. Braves second baseman Schoendienst was third with 221, followed by Mays with 174 and Milwaukee left-hander Spahn with 131.

Student Cooperative Ass'n Links Teachers And Pupils

SCA PRESIDENT BOB BILBRO... presides over meet of Rose High School student government.

By MARGARET HARRELL As full of life and activity as the students who compose it, the Rose high school Student Cooperative Association is a vital bridge between teachers and students. At weekly meetings 20 representatives, one per home room, discuss topics of student interest. For instance, yesterday they had an enthusiastic discussion about possible Thanksgiving and Christmas projects. Most recent among the 1957-'58 Student Council's undertakings is the sale of covers to protect the students' books. "The over-all purpose of the council," explained Bob Bilbro, current president, "is to coordinate student activities. Because we are in a new building, the 1957-'58 council's work has been especially challenging and necessary."

During World War II, the S.C.A. bought bonds, sold war stamps, and collected part of the 21,200 pounds of paper gathered by the school. To help English children escape explosives, they waged a "Bundles for Britain" drive. Unusual projects during the organization's twenty-year span include a fund-raising carnival, complete with a scary room and a cake walk. President, served as mayor of the Student City Governor Day. The council sponsored this occasion to promote interest in government and knowledge of it. Junius H. Rose, Superintendent of schools and an enthusiastic supporter of the first Student Council, declared, "In my opinion, the S.C.A. is a very valuable part of the school program. I know the organization shall continue working to better the school."

Participate In Marking Of Education Week

In observing American Education Week the Belvoir-Parkland schools have planned and participated in a number of educational programs throughout the week. Members of the Senior Class arranged in the entrance of the front hall a bulletin board display entitled "Prosper with Progress in Your Education." On Thursday the entire school was opened to interested parents and friends who wished to visit the school and observe the various classes. Members of the local chapter of the Future Teachers of America greeted visitors and signed a visitation tag on each. Following lunch in the school cafeteria, the visitors and entire student body assembled in the auditorium for an educational skit entitled "The Last Class," prepared and presented by members of a tenth grade English class, with the assistance of a number of seniors. Mr. E. N. Warren, Principal, spoke briefly to the group in the interests of education, encouraging more serious study on the part of the students, and greater concern and cooperation from the parents. Referring to the highly scientific age in which we now live, he urged more attention to those fields of scholastic work that would better equip them to meet the demand of the times.

Organizes Firm While In Prison

COLUMBIA (AP)—A South Carolina lumberman serving 15 years in the state penitentiary heads a newly-chartered lumber company. The firm is the Whitener-Dwyer Lumber Co., Inc., of Ridgeland, capitalized at $300,000. President is Guy V. Whitener, 53, of Newberry, who began serving time soon after his conviction in December, 1953, on charges of carnal knowledge of an 11-year-old girl.

At the prison, Whitener is in charge of the boiler plant. The firm's charter papers report that the new firm's directors met at 1515 Gist St. here — the address of the State Prison.

Contests Urged Mother-Daughter

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Girl scouts of America have been urged to promote mother-and-daughter cooking contests "to help restore the family dinner table to the place it used to have in the American home." The suggestion came from George Gallup, public opinion expert, who addressed the 5,000 delegates to the scouts' 34th national council.

Gallup said such contests would be a natural development from the girls' cookie baking and selling projects and would set a fine example in an age when many a family dining room or dinette is not unlike a snack bar.

'Subliminal' Ads Draw Objection

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The National Assn. of Radio & Television Broadcasters code review board for TV asked stations yesterday not to use a method that flashes commercials to the viewers' subconscious. The idea has created quite a furor. Don Martin, assistant to the president of NARTB, said that by this method a message is flashed at 1-3000th of a second, and repeated every five seconds during the showing of a movie. He said the viewer does not even see the message, or at least it does not reach his brain. The board held that "any proposal to use... 'subliminal perception' be referred to the board immediately for further review and consideration."

Good Price Prospect For Increased Turkey Supply

The North Carolina turkey supply is larger than ever before due to more turkeys being raised this year in addition to an abundant over-supply from last year.

CHAPTER 35

Gil nodded that he understood what he was to do, and I started for the front door of the Belle Union saloon, bending down so I'd be under the one window between the corner and the balcony. I wasn't sure Gil would ever come through that door, but I couldn't back out.

Frank Dance and the whole park bunch were watching me. So was Kiley. And probably Bess. She'd be watching Gil, too. He knew it. That was my one real hope.

I went in fast, both barrels cocked. Vic Toll was the nearest to the door. The rest were lined out along the bar almost to the far end. I had counted on surprise and I was right. Twelve hound dogs would never expect a rabbit to turn on them and fight, and that was just about the way this stacked up to them.

"Stand pat," I said, angling toward the opposite wall.

They swung around to face me. I had never seen as many surprised faces in my life as I did right then. One man about halfway down the bar, the fellow who called himself Slim Jim, started dropping his hand toward his gun. I yelled at him: "Hold it or I'll blow your head off! Somebody will get me after that, but it won't help you any."

He froze. So did the rest of them. Then Toll found his voice. "What is this, Mumro? Trying to commit suicide?"

"No, but the first man who tries for his gun will," I said. "Toll, stay where you are. The rest of you move to the other side of the room."

Toll laughed. At that moment he looked bigger and tougher than he ever had. He said: "Do what he says, boys. I'm a mite curious to see what he's up to."

I was trying to watch all of them, and I just couldn't do it. I was panicky then, panicky enough to have done something foolish if they hadn't obeyed Toll's orders, but they did.

I didn't have enough eyes to watch the back door, but I heard Johnny call, "Don't try it, Les! If Mumro don't get you, I will." In all my life I had never heard a sweeter sound than Johnny Strong's voice.

We had then lined up along the wall then, Johnny said: "Shuck your gun belts. Slow and easy. Just let 'em drop. Some of you boys might decide to get brave."

They unbuckled their gun belts and dropped them, a few cursing us, most of them grinning as if this was a joke. I wondered what Toll was doing. I couldn't risk taking my eyes off the crew to look at him. If Gil didn't come through the door, Johnny and I were both dead men because Toll had his gun and we were standing with our backs to him. Then I heard the whisper of the balcony flapping shut, and Toll's feering voice, "Well, I'll be! This rooster's growing a set of teeth."

I turned then because I had to. Gil had stopped just inside the door, his right hand hovering over his gun. His face was white, but he wasn't trembling. He had complete control over himself just as he'd had last Thanksgiving when he'd shot at a walrus.

I looked at Toll. He was staring at Gil as if he expected him to run, but Gil didn't run. Then Toll made his play. The shots came, close together, one, two, the thunder of the explosions slamming into each other and running across

Some Antarctic Veterans Will Be Going Home

MCMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (AP)—The Navy's "old explorers," veterans of the long dark winter in the Antarctic, were told today some but not all of them might get out by Christmas.

Rear Adm. George J. Dufek, Navy commander in the Antarctic, told an assembly of the men due for rotation they could leave any time their one-year assignments are up and their jobs completed. If weather and ice conditions permit planes and ships to take them out.

Nineteen veterans of the recently ended polar winter have left. More than 60 others remain.

Dufek said to Navy ships, the Greenville Victory and the ice-breaker Atka, are due to leave Christchurch, New Zealand, Nov. 22 with supplies for the U. S. stations at Little America and McMurdo Sound. They will take out some veterans and others will be flown home, the admiral said.

BROTHERLY LOVE

HEMETT, Calif. (AP)—A small boy, leading a smaller one, approached a neighbor lady here and said: "For a nickel I'll have my brother imitate a hen for you."

"No," was the reply, "I'll have him eat a worm for you."

N. C. Gaining In Milk Production

RALEIGH — North Carolina gained on the rest of the nation in milk production last year.

Dewey W. Hennessee, marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says that although the number of milk producers dropped around 2 per cent in North Carolina last year, milk production increased by 14 per cent over the previous year, compared to a 1 per cent increase in the nation as a whole.

Hennessee says that an increase in price granted producers by the Milk Commission for Class I milk, the apparent economies of larger scale production and a relatively favorable price for feed are some of the factors which should cause milk production to show even greater gains in this state during 1958 — especially during the fall months.

He explains that largest percentage increases are expected in the Coastal Plain section where new producers are being admitted into the market and where cuts in tobacco acreages and other controls have made the growing of this crop less attractive. He anticipates a 15 per cent increase in 1958 over the estimated 865.7 million pounds produced in 1957.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—Another mark of the Old West has been erased from Albuquerque. Public Works Director E. O. Betts ordered removal of the few remaining horse hitching rings in cutting along Third Street after he saw a woman stumble on one. "I don't really think we need them anymore," he said.

DEAD LETTER

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—John T. McCullough, Madison postal clerk, reports that a tourist came into the post office with 50 postcard views of the state capitol, wrote a brief message on each and dropped the cards into the slot—without an address on any of them.

Probing the atom...for you

Atomic scientists are finding exciting uses for the boundless energy of the uranium atom

EVERY DAY BRINGS the benefits of atomic energy closer to our daily living. It presents a new tool and a new field of exploration for scientists all over the world.

A longer, healthier life is hopefully ahead as the controlled rays of the atom are first used to pin-point and then to destroy malignant tissues. Radiation studies of how plants absorb nutrition from sun and soil are showing the way to improved food supplies. And other research indicates that it may soon be possible to store irradiated foods indefinitely—without using refrigeration.

These are but a few of the vital jobs being done by radioisotopes—materials made radioactive by exposure to splitting uranium atoms. Radioisotopes of such elements as sodium, iron, and iodine are created in atomic furnaces or reactors at Oak Ridge... the great atomic energy center operated by Union Carbide for the Atomic Energy Commission.

The people of Union Carbide will continue their pioneering research and development in atomic energy to bring you a brighter future.

FREE: To learn more about the atom and the advances being made in the peaceful applications of atomic energy, write for "The Atom In Our Hands," booklet K.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market roared ahead to a big gain in response to the government's credit-easing move but profit-taking trimmed some prices early this afternoon.

An estimated $4,500,000,000 was added to the quoted value of listed stocks, based on the rise in the average at noon.

Leading stocks rose from 1 to 3 points or more, slicing the early gains of up to 4 and better.

The ticker tape was late on two occasions—first near the opening when it was behind the pace of transactions for 25 minutes and again shortly thereafter when it was late for another 5 minutes.

All sections of the market, even the slow-moving utilities and the bedraggled rails, joined the upsurge.

The big recovery from the lower trend came on overnight news that the Federal Reserve Board had lowered the discount rate to 3 per cent from 3 1/2 per cent in four of its regional banks.

Wall Street saw this as a big step toward relieving the tight money situation which has been one of its worst worries.

A succession of huge blocks piled-up in the early buying rush. On the first hour 1,270,000 shares changed hands compared with 600,000 in yesterday's first hour. By noon the volume was 1,860,000, better than a whole day's turnover in some recent slow sessions.

After trading moderated, prices slipped below their highs. Some stocks saw-sawed, improving and then paring their big gains. One was Lukens Steel which recovered its 5-point gain after knocking a point from it.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up $3.70 to $156.00 with the industrials up $8.00, the rails up $3.30 and the utilities up 80 cents.

Wreck Injures Three Marines On Pitt Highway

FARMVILLE — Three Camp Lejeune Marines sustained injuries in a collision on U.S. 258 between Farmville and Fountain this morning.

Pfc. D.L. Minshew of the State Highway Patrol identified the injured as Vincent M. Fitzell who received lacerations of the head and a minor leg injury; Gerald Cramer, lacerations of the face; and Frank Conti, lacerations of the head and a leg injury.

Minshew, who investigated the mishap at the intersection of a rural unpaved road and the highway at Tolly, stated that Conti was the driver and owner of the 1957 automobile involved. Conti was charged with passing at an intersection.

The second vehicle involved, a 1951 dump truck owned by the North Carolina Highway Commission, was being operated by Harvey Lee Harris of Grifton Rf. 1. He was not injured.

Harris told the investigation officer that he was preparing to make a left turn onto the unpaved road when the automobile crashed into the rear of the truck. Minshew quoted Conti as saying he was in the process of passing the truck and did not have time to avoid the collision.

Two other occupants, riding in the rear of the automobile escaped without personal injury.

Minshew estimated damages to the automobile to be $1,000. Damage to the rear of the truck was fixed at $75.

The Highway Patrolman stated that his investigation of the accident has not been completed.

Graduates Of 1913 In Class Reunion Hold 'Pre-Hearing' On New Air Route Appeals

MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1913 AT GHS . . . Gathered At Their First Formal Reunion In 44 Years.

Six members of the Class of 1913 of Greenville High School were guests at a dinner that preceded last night's dedication of the Junius H. Rose High School.

David J. Whichard, publisher of The Daily Reflector, and Mrs. C. Swanson Graves of Washington, members of the class, were hosts at the dinner. Special guests were Miss Lela Higgs of Greenville, Miss Christine Johnson of Greenville, and Mrs. Earl W. Hellen of Greenville.

Also present were Superintendent of Schools J.H. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Taft, Mayor and Mrs. S. Eugene West, C. Swanson Graves of Washington, and Mrs. Whichard.

Mrs. Graves is the former Rubelle Forbes and Mrs. Hellen is the former Christine Tyson. They and other members of the group who met last night marked the class's first formal reunion since its graduation as the first group to complete the ten year public school system set up in Greenville.

There were 15 members in the original class, 12 of whom are living at the present time. The six living members who were not able to be present last night notified the hosts that they would be unable to attend because of distances involved.

Executives Club To Hear Speaker

He Nearly . . .

The school official has been a member of the Greenville Recreation Commission for 14 years, a member of the Board of Trustees of Sheppard Memorial Library for 15 years, and he led the drive which raised money for the library's first Bookmobile.

At the present time, Rose is chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation, a job he's had since 1940. He was a member of the Rotary Club for several years, and chairman of the Boy's Work Committee.

After World War II, he was appointed to the Greenville Veterans' Housing Commission and was elected president of the group which brought 62 pre-fabricated houses to Greenville and Pitt County from various military installations and sold them to veterans for costs of getting them here.

At the request of the George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, he has directed Confederate Memorial Day exercises in the schools on May 10 of every year since 1920.

State work Rose has accepted includes an appointment by Governor William B. Umstead in 1953 as first chairman of the North Carolina Commission for Employ the Physically Handicapped, membership on a two-year study commission for merit increases for teachers, and membership on an Education Commission appointed by Governor Clyde Hoey to make a two-year study of the North Carolina school system and then make recommendations for its improvement.

All of that work would suggest that Rose had little time for professional education groups, but he found time to take part in their work, too.

He was chairman of the North Carolina Advisory Board of the National Youth Association from 1939 to 1941, legislative chairman of the state Congress of Parents and Teachers during the same years, president of the Northeast-

Two Killed In Plunge By Car

NEW BERN, N. C. (AP)—An automobile with four Coast Guardsmen from Tangier Sound, Va., plunged down a 40-foot bank into a marsh near here early today, killing two and injuring the others.

Injured and in fair condition at the hospital at nearby Camp Lejeune Marine base were Charles Presley and Charles Rolands.

The hometowns of the four were not learned immediately.

Report Break-In At High School During Night

The Junius H. Rose High School had hardly been officially dedicated before it was robbed.

Police officers stated today that a robber or robbers entered the school's cafeteria sometime last night, causing minor damage to several fixtures as well as breaking a window and several locks.

Entrance was gained to the cafeteria through a side door, officers state. A window to the door was discovered broken.

Police also found a jar of jelly broken outside the door and a small package of meat a short distance from the entrance of the cafeteria. Nothing else has been determined to be missing, they reported following a preliminary inventory.

Investigation is being continued, according to Police Chief S.G. Gibbs.

Bus Turns Over, Children Injured

WAKE FOREST, N. C. (AP) — About 10 children were injured, none seriously, when the school bus in which they were riding turned over on its side on a rural dirt road five miles west of here early today.

Police Chief Floyd Whitman said the injured children suffered minor cuts and bruises and were treated at a doctor's office here.

Whitman stated the school bus and a truck loaded with feed approached a bridge in foggy weather shortly after 8 a.m. The bus driver swerved his vehicle to avoid hitting the truck, Whitman said. The bus left the highway and went onto the soft shoulders, causing the vehicle to turn over on its side in the marshy land, the officer added.

Hold 'Pre-Hearing' On New Air Route Appeals

WASHINGTON (AP)—A pre-hearing conference was held here yesterday on proposed new air routes in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee. It probably will be six or seven months before the hearing opens.

An examiner for the Civil Aeronautics Board heard ideas from airlines and civic officials on the scope and procedure of the hearing.

Piedmont Airlines of Winston-Salem initiated the case, and has been joined by numerous other carriers and communities seeking new or expanded air service.

CAB Bureau Counsel William E. McCollom proposed that the local service to be considered, be within the following boundaries:

On the north by St. Louis, Louisville, Ashland-Hunfington, W.Va., and Washington-Baltimore; on the east by Baltimore-Washington, Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic Ocean to Savannah, Ga.; on the south by Savannah and Atlanta north to the Tennessee-North Carolina line and then along the Tennessee line to Bristol, Knoxville, Nashville and Memphis; on the west by Memphis and St. Louis. Piedmont has requested authority to serve these cities for the first time:

Atlanta and Augusta, Ga.; Baltimore; Columbia and Florence, S.C.; Jacksonville, Goldsboro, Rocky Mount and Elizabeth City, N.C., and Roanoke, Va.

Rep. Herbert Bonner of North Carolina said he wanted to endorse proposals of service to the Pitt County-Greenville area.

Examiner William F. Cusick said this area came within the scope of McCollom's outline and would be included.

The CAB will decide the boundaries of the investigation and which of the multiple applications will be consolidated into the hearing. It also will decide where civic testimony will be held. Winston-Salem and Charlotte have asked for this portion of the hearing.

It was agreed yesterday that briefs of applicants and other interested parties shall be filed within 90 days after the board issues its consolidation order. Ninety days then will be permitted for the filing of rebuttal briefs. The hearing would be called 15 days after the rebuttals are in. This would put the hearing into late June or early July.

The work Rose has done since the first entered the business of being a school man in 1913 has changed a lot of his early ideas about life and a career for life. But he still has a few traits that are a result of his early planning.

For instance, his present office is in a building beside Atlantic Coast Line Railroad's North-South track through Greenville. Trains use the track several times a day and Rose takes a special delight in watching them rumble past.

And if there are people in his office when a train comes by, they have to wait until the train is gone.

After all, Rose still thinks about the days when he dreamed of pushing a train engine up and down the tracks of the United States.
