Yule Decorations Going Up In City

The tangible evidence of Greenville's Christmas season began going up yesterday.

Utilities Commission electrical crews began installation of downtown Christmas decorations, strings of aluminum foil with colored lights and foil wreaths. They will be installed on Evans Street, from Third Street to Five Points, on Dickinson Avenue from Five Points to Grande Avenue, and on Fifth Street from Cotanche Street to Washington Street.

A target date of November 29 has been set for completion of the work. The city's annual Santa Claus parade will be held then. City Manager Leonard Bloxam said this morning the Utilities Commission crews are stringing an estimated 4,000 bulbs along the downtown streets. They are being checked on an area basis, and the entire system will not be cut on at the same time until the time of the Santa Claus parade, he said.

Although actual installation work began yesterday, Bloxam said the electrical crews have been preparing the decorations for the past "three or four days." They have been checking bulbs and connections in a local tobacco warehouse, and are installing the strings as they are cleared by the checking process.

The downtown decorations are the Utilities Commission's contribution to the Merchants Association's annual holiday project, Bloxam said. The commission pays for installation of the street decorations, electrical current to light them, and removal of them after Christmas.

Efforts are being made, he said, to install the lights without interrupting normal flow of traffic on business district streets.

ANOTHER WREATH GOES INTO PLACE
... As Electricians Prepare For Holiday Season

Greenville's Santa Parade Planned For November 29

Santa Claus will be taking time off from his toy-making at the North Pole on Friday, Nov. 29.

The jolly old man is coming to Greenville to participate in the city's annual parade at 4:00 p.m. as has been his custom for a number of years. He will not be alone.

He is to be accompanied by a number of bands, between 15 and 20 floats, Boy and Girl Scouts, Brownies, children in costumes, riding ponies, decorated bicycles and pets of every kind.

Larry Averette, chairman of the Merchants Association Trade Promotion Committee which is handling plans for the parade, stated this morning that plans for the event are progressing and should be completed within a few days.

"We think the parade will be one of the best ever staged here and expect a large turnout," he added.

The parade is sponsored annually by the local Merchants Association to launch their holiday season. Mrs. Cora Powell, Secretary of the Association, has announced that cash prizes will be awarded to winners in five categories again this year.

Best pony in the parade will receive a $10 prize and $5 will be awarded to the second place winner. In the costume division, first prize will be $5 and second prize $3. For pets, first prize will be $5, second prize $3 and third prize $2.

Decorated bicycles will carry duplicate awards for boys and girls with first place receiving $5, second place $3, and third place $2.

Duplicate prizes will be made to white and Negro entrants except for pony competition. There will be only one prize group in that category, for white children.

Children interested in entering any one of the categories can do so by registering at the Merchants Association Office on the City Hall's second floor. Numbers will

Will Retain His Leadership Post

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) says he will keep the job of Senate minority leader during the next session of Congress despite his entry into the California gubernatorial campaign.

Knowland made the statement in an address to the El Centro Rotary Club yesterday.

"The senator is seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination and is expected to face Democratic State Atty. Gen. Edmund Brown in next year's election. Incumbent Republican Gov. Goodwin Knight is seeking Knowland's Senate seat.

Coroner's Jury Finds No Negligence In Death

Edgar Eugene Davis, driver of the automobile that struck and killed a middle-aged Negro woman late Friday afternoon, was cleared of any negligence in connection with the fatal accident.

The Coroner's Jury, at last night's inquest held in the County Courthouse, recommended that no criminal action be taken against Davis.

Davis stated he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming automobile and did not see Mary Ann Jones, 50, walking on the highway, until he hit her. Force of the impact knocked the woman 77 feet down the road into a side ditch, dismembering her left leg, officers stated.

According to the woman's husband she had been to a nearby store and was returning home alone. He stated he came along shortly after the accident took place, less than 300 yards from their house, and identified her as she lay in the shallow side ditch.

Pt. H. R. Winslow of the State Highway Patrol said the woman apparently was killed instantly.

Winslow, first witness called to the stand by Coroner Griffin H. Rouse, stated his investigation uncovered no negligence on the part of Davis. From all indications, he said, the driver was traveling between 45 and 50 miles per hour at the time the woman was struck.

A passenger in Davis' car, James Wiley Norville of Macleesfield Rd., also stated he did not see the woman until a split-second before the impact. He said, "I shouted but it was too late."

The accident took place on N. C. 43 approximately two miles north of Choced between 5:45 and 6 p.m. P. C. R. E. Taylor of Griffin assisted in the investigation.

Decline Starts In Flu Epidemic

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Public Health Service said today there are indications the Asian influenza epidemic probably has reached its peak in some parts of the nation.

The report indicated this may include all sections except the Pacific states.

The number of deaths from influenza and pneumonia in 108 cities dropped during the week ended Nov. 16 to 782. This was 13 per cent below the number in the preceding week.

Also, the number of deaths in 114 cities from all causes last week was down three per cent from the preceding week, to a total of 12,222.

The decreases in deaths occurred in all geographic divisions of the nation except the Pacific states.

The weekly summary noted that a number of states reported that fewer cases were occurring.

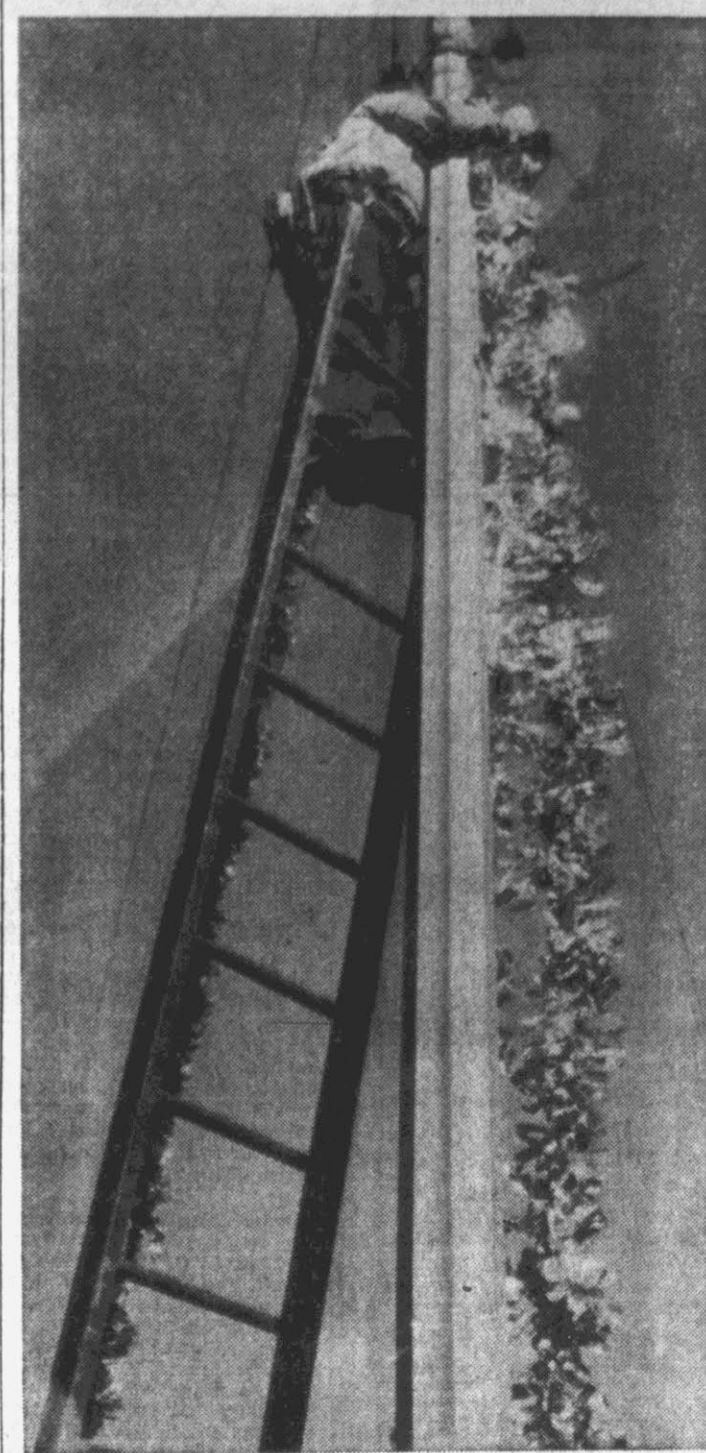

"School or industrial absenteeism is reported to have decreased to normal expected levels in some states," the report said. "Others report no new community outbreaks."

The summary said there were 780,000 new cases reported or estimated by 36 states for the week ended Nov. 16, compared with 1,100,000 by 38 states in the week ended Nov. 9. This pushed to at least 9,130,000 the estimated total of Asian flu cases since early June, based on incomplete reports.

Another report on the number of new cases of acute respiratory diseases in the week ended Oct. 26 indicated a peak might have been reached about Oct. 19 but the PHS cautioned this was not necessarily true.

The report showed a drop of 18 per cent in the number of new cases of respiratory diseases involving at least one day in bed. There were 10,948,000 estimated in the week ended Oct. 26, compared with 12,238,000 in the preceding week.

Wetzel Search Is Yielding Nothing

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—An FBI report that the man had been misidentified caused the Alabama State Highway Patrol to remove road blocks, hastily thrown up last night after a report that Frank Edward Wetzel was in the area.

Wetzel, an ex-convict and escapee from a New York mental hospital, is wanted in connection with the Nov. 5 slaying of two North Carolina state troopers.

A Florida taxi driver reported that he took a man fitting Wetzel's description to Opp, Ala., about 90 miles south of here. He identified a photograph of Wetzel as his passenger and a service station operator also identified the photograph.

Patrolmen set up roadblocks between here and Opp because the man was thought headed to Montgomery.

FBI agents picked up the man in Montgomery and said he was not Wetzel.

Investigators located him later in Wichita after finding the car and said he had moved to Wichita recently from Kansas City. They declined to divulge his name.

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP)—Until the man wanted in connection with the slaying of two North Carolina highway patrolmen is caught, W. L. Nelber of St. Louis will have to watch his step.

The trouble is Nelber, a 36-year-old sheet metal worker, looks very much like Frank Edward Wetzel, 36, an escapee from a New York mental hospital, a man that police everywhere are eager to get their hands on.

Nelber was arrested Tuesday night as he entered Jackson after police had been tipped by a Martin, Tenn., restaurant employee that a man answering Wetzel's description was traveling south.

After looking over a picture of Wetzel, Nelber said he was astonished by the look-alike features. "He looks just like me even to the scar on my lip," he said.

But that was as far as the resemblance went. Nelber's only police record was a traffic violation. Wetzel's criminal record dates back to 1933.

Boys Counting Cents And Cents

MOUNT KISCO, N. Y. (AP)—The Mount Kisko Boys Club is counting its blessings in pennies.

Last spring, Readers Digest magazine mailed out 100 million pennies, two each enclosed in letters to prospective subscribers.

However, 1½ million letters came back because of wrong addresses. That meant a return of three million pennies, or $30,000.

The thought of opening all those returned letters and digging out the coppers. So they offered the job to the boys club on a 50-50 basis.

Thus far the club has banked $5,000.

Clear Woman In Traffic Death

RLD SPRINGS, N.C. (AP)—Miss Mary Iema Clifton has been cleared of any blame in the traffic death of 4-year-old Charles Thomas Hill last week. A coroner's jury ruled the death an accident.

Miss Clifton said the boy "ran square into the car" she was driving at about 35 miles per hour.

Mao Concludes Moscow Visit

HONG KONG (AP)—Mao Tse-tung returned to Peking today after an 18-day visit to Moscow.

A Soviet jet airliner brought the Communist Chinese chief home. Peking radio announced his arrival.

Mao was one of the last of the foreign Communist leaders to return from the 40th anniversary celebration of the Bolshevik Revolution. The public jubilee was accompanied by top-level conferences, presumably on strengthening of Communist solidarity, but so far there has been no announcement that anything new was decided.

'Prank' Victim Still Unconscious

SHERMAN, Tex. (AP)—Herman E. Schiedlich, 19, an Austin College student injured in a college prank Tuesday night, remained unconscious today.

Students said the Marlin, Tex., freshman was driven six miles out of town and left to walk back. He jumped on the back of the auto and rode several hundred feet before falling off and injuring his head.

Meanwhile, the school ordered a halt to all hazing.

To Build Hatchery
ROSE HILL, N. C. (AP)—A spokesman for Swift & Co. announced last night plans for a hatchery to be set up here for producing 165,000 chicks a week.

Hodges Concedes Drive Is Underway To Place Him On National Demo Ticket

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Gov. Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina conceded today there is a movement to place him on the 1960 Democratic slate, probably as the vice presidential candidate.

"I have not encouraged this thing," the governor said. "I am taking no part in it."

The governor commented at an interview in answer to a reporter's question on recent speculation that a campaign is under way within the Democratic party ranks to land the vice presidential nomination for Hodges in 1960, possibly on a ticket with either Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts, Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, or Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri.

Hodges said, "There is no question but what Sen. Kennedy is leading the field at this time."

"I do not think there would be any objection to his being a Catholic, as far as the South is concerned, as happened when Al Smith was the candidate in 1928," Hodges said.

"But I am still not quite sure he could win. However, I can say he is still one of my favorites for the nomination."

The governor discounted the possibility of a third party movement in the South for 1960.

"I do not think there will be a third party in 1960," he said. "For my part, I think it would be foolish for Southerners to try to form a third party. We would lose whatever standing we now have in Congress and in the nation if we did."

"We have considerable influence now in national affairs, the Supreme Court decision of 1954 notwithstanding."

The solution to the problems faced by the South today, Hodges said, lies in "selling our point of view, our view of conservatism, our view of government at the local level, to the nation as a whole."

Hodges was chairman of the committee of Southern governors which called on President Eisenhower after the President sent troops into Little Rock to enforce integration at Central High School.

He declined comment, however, on the order that will remove troops from the city in the near future.

"Segregation is a national problem, not a Southern problem," the governor said. "It will develop that there is more of a segregation problem in the Northern cities like New York, Detroit and Chicago than there is in any Southern city or state."

Service Rivalries Held Responsible

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Mahon (D-Tex.), who contends the United States is "seriously behind" Russia in long-range missile development, said today interservice rivalry is partly responsible.

"One of our stumbling blocks is and has been interservice rivalry," Mahon said in an interview as his House Appropriations subcommittee moved deeper into an inquiry on the status of the U.S. missile program.

"There should be cooperation and the 'opposition' should be the Soviet Union," he added.

Secretary of Defense McElroy, leading off the testimony yesterday told newsmen afterward the U.S. missile program is in "good shape." He mentioned in this connection three intermediate range weapons—the Air Force's Thor, the Army's Jupiter and the Navy's Polaris.

However, Mahon disagreed sharply, saying "we have lagged behind the Russians in the intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM) and we've got to come from behind and come abreast as soon as we can."

Agreeing with Mahon, Rep. Sykes (D-Pa.) said he "would like to see some specific things that are being done to bring us abreast of the Russians."

However, a third member of the subcommittee, Rep. Wigglesworth

(R-Mass.), said, "Nobody knows that the Russians have. Most of these expressions of opinion are based on guesswork."

Mahon's statement that the United States is seriously behind the Soviet Union in developing an IRBM was challenged by William M. Holaday, the Defense Department's missile boss. "I don't believe so," Holaday said after emerging from the hearing.

Holaday conceded that "based on what they (the Russians) said, maybe we are behind them" in developing an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM).

Intermediate range missiles are designed to reach targets up to 1,500 miles away. An intercontinental missile would travel 5,000 miles.

Mahon said it would be "a very helpful thing" if the missile program were taken away from the individual services and consolidated "up into the Defense Department."

Another critic of interservice rivalry is Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.), who said in Montclair, N.J., that such pulling and hauling "suggests an alarming tendency to overlook the real competitor"—Russia.

"It has become apparent that rivalry between the services, far from speeding our efforts in the missile field, has . . . tended to slow down progress," he said.

"It is certainly not a problem that is restricted to the South," Hodges was in Mobile as the principal speaker at the annual convention of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce last night.

He said there is a growing concern in all parts of the country "that in our seeming desire to protect individual liberties we are often throwing to the wind individual responsibility," he added.

"It is not in the national interest for minority groups, of whatever race, color or belief, to be used as political pawns by either or both of our major political parties. . . . It is high time that more of our political leaders came out for the majority in this country instead of persisting in an unshakable scramble to appease minorities."

"What we need in both of our major political parties and in all sections of this nation is love and concern for our country first, with political expediency or advantage placed last."

Referring to recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions, Hodges said that persons outside the South are now concerned about matters which they accepted without question a year or so ago.

"There is a disagreement among us in the South," he said, "as to our feeling that the U.S. Supreme Court has made some serious errors of judgment and has exceeded what we have long thought was their field of responsibility."

Hodges, one of the four Southern governors who conferred with the President this fall about the school integration question, said that unless forceful, moderate leaders assert themselves, the South will become "a political and economic battleground that will hurt us greatly in our present forward march."

Baptists Prepare To End Session

RALEIGH (AP)—After shouting a resounding "no" to pleas from Wake Forest and Meredith College trustees that dancing be permitted on Baptist college campuses, nearly 4,000 messengers (delegates) to the Baptist State Convention prepared today to wind up their 127th annual session.

The messengers voted by an overwhelming majority to reaffirm action of the 1937 convention which banned dancing on the campuses of any Baptist institution, and asserted that dancing was demoralizing and brought on immorality.

All attendance records for conventions were broken when the list of messengers registered amounted to nearly 4,000.

Most of these were on hand in Raleigh's Memorial Auditorium yesterday when the dancing issue was debated. Members of the Wake Forest and Meredith trustees asked that dancing be approved and six ministers spoke in opposition.

After the vote against dancing, the convention quickly adopted two other motions. One called for the creation of a special committee of 17 which would, among other things, investigate "attitudes, activities or organizations" on the campuses of Baptist colleges which might be "hindering the development of a generally spiritual atmosphere."

Some observers saw in the convention's vote on dancing an indication that the convention intended to take a greater voice in directing the affairs of the Baptist colleges.

Another resolution adopted by the convention yesterday called for the creation of a committee which would prepare a "statement of permanent policy describing and setting forth the relationship" of the convention to the trustees of the various Baptist institutions, and of the institutions to the convention.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower ends a week's vacation in Dixie today and flies back to Washington.

Tonight Eisenhower and the First Lady plan to attend a dinner at a private club honoring Herbert Brownell, who recently resigned as attorney general.

Associates said the President has benefited greatly from his week at the Augusta National Golf Club in advance of next month's NATO Council meeting in Paris. They described him as much refreshed.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, announced last night that Eisenhower will sit in at the first meeting of the new Civil Rights Commission Dec. 9 in Washington. That unit was provided for under legislation authorized by Congress at its last session.

The six-member commission will undertake a two-year study of civil rights problems.

Wake Forest Students Stage 'Walk Out' Demonstration

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—The en masse Wake Forest College student body—about 1,900 students—walked out of the chapel program at 10:15 a.m. today in a jovial, good natured demonstration against the North Carolina Baptist State Convention's ban of on-campus dancing.

A number of students later gathered on the patio of Reynolds Hall to organize a dance to the music from a radio placed in the window.

The walkout followed on the heels of a demonstration last night during which Dr. J. C. Canipe, president of the convention, was burned in effigy. The walk-out this morning was well-organized.

The laughing students were slow getting into the chapel and when they finally were quieted, Dr. Thane McDonald, director of music, who had charge of the program, told them:

"We'll have a very brief program because I understand we have a deadline to meet about 10:15."

This was greeted with applause which quieted down for the college chorus to sing the Lord's Prayer.

Before another hymn could start, an alarm clock went off. Dr. McDonald commented, "That's too soon." The chorus started "Come Thou fount of every blessing . . ." but after only a couple of bars some students jumped up and shouted, "Come on, let's go."

As the students left the chapel the chorus switched to "Dear Old Wake Forest" the school's alma mater. The marching students joined in.

Outside the chapel some students began to chant, "We want to dance. We want to dance." Another group started a cheer for Arthur Murray, the dancing teacher.

Many students ran toward the WFOB mobile radio truck where they cheered and chanted at the request of the announcer. Another group of about 300 students went to the patio of Reynolds Hall where a radio placed in a window provided music. A few students danced.

Dean W. C. Archie said he had no comment concerning the demonstration.

He also said it was too early to say if any disciplinary action would be taken.

"The matter will be brought to the attention of the appropriate authorities," he said.

New Club Organized

Druidian Garden Club Elects Officers

Ten charter members of the newly organized Druidian Garden Club, which is to be state-sponsored by the Greenville Garden Club, met at the home of Mrs. Arthur Miller, 1601 Beaumont Rd., yesterday afternoon for the purpose of electing officers.

Mrs. Aaron Baxter was elected president; Mrs. Charles Adams, vice president; Mrs. Joe Miller, secretary; and Mrs. Arthur Miller, treasurer.

Other members present were Mrs. Frank Fuller, Mrs. Thomas Cannins, Mrs. J. D. Wilson, Mrs. Mike Brocato, Mrs. J. G. Wellard Jr. and Mrs. John Saied.

Garden club membership was explained and each member was asked to write down briefly what she expected or hoped to gain from the club. Many ideas were expressed, with future plans and motions adopted by the group.

Arrangements of gladioli decorated the living and dining rooms of Mrs. Miller's home where refreshments were served.

American Home Week To Be Observed Here

American Home Week has been proclaimed by Mayor S. Eugene West for the week of November 24-30.

In his proclamation Mayor West said, "I urge all citizens of Greenville to give thought to their family and the relationship between its members."

"A good home life gives for better citizens tomorrow. Observe American Home Week by bringing your family closer together through prayer, discussing each other's problems, and doing things as a family unit."

"If we are to face the problems of our world today and all the days to come with tolerance, peace, and cooperation, we must have better family relations," pointed out West.

Auxiliary Has Program On Thanksgiving

A Thanksgiving program was presented when the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Paul's P. H. Church held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night with the president presiding.

There were 29 members present, seven visitors, and one new member, Mrs. Nannie Williams.

Mrs. Dorothy Dixon, program chairman, presented a "Thanksgiving" program. Mrs. Dixon reminded members that "Thanksgiving is a special day set aside for giving thanks to God for his bountiful blessings and that one of the very best ways to show our gratitude would be by contributing generously to the forthcoming 'Harvest Train' sponsored each Thanksgiving for the benefit of Falcon-Children's Home in Falcon.

Tentative plans were made for the auxiliary to sponsor a "Snack Night" December 7. After various committee reports, hostesses, Mrs. O. T. Howard, Mrs. Carl Hannah and Mrs. Edward Frizzelle served refreshments.

Wahl-Coates Plans Harvest Festival

The Wahl-Coates School will hold a "Harvest Festival," which takes the place of their Halloween Carnival, postponed because of the flu situation, on Friday, beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Sandwiches, hamburgers, hot dogs, drinks, etc., will be sold in the cafeteria, and there will be fish ponds, country stores, pet shows, cake walks, game rooms, etc., in the various rooms. A program has been planned for the entire family.

Films Available At Library

Films which will be available from November 18-December 13 at Sheppard Memorial Library for use by rural or local groups are:

1. ACTION AGAINST THE LAW (TFC)—28 minutes, sound, black-and-white. In this film a series of minor incidents aggravated by intergroup frictions results in an ugly crisis as misguided citizens resort to mob violence. Introductory sequences establish the atmosphere of tension existing between the people of Marta and the fruit pickers whom they call "Cholos." On "the other side of the tracks." Only the quick action of the sheriff and the editor averts a terrible miscarriage of justice.

2. ART AND LIFE IN ITALY (Coronet)—10 minutes, sound, color. The art of Italy is shown as the result of activities of the Italian people in the land in which they live. Photographs included are scenes on the streets of Florence. Giotto's frescoes in the Arena chapel in Padua, and views of other historic monuments and works of art.

Recent Bride

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Mills of Greenville announce the marriage of their daughter, Frances Jean, to Edward Earl McLawhorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McLawhorn of Ayden. The wedding took place November 17. The couple will make their home in Winterville.

3. BANK HOLIDAY CRISIS OF 1933 (YA)—27 minutes, sound, black-and-white. March 6, 1933, President Franklin Roosevelt acts to avert a panic that is sweeping the nation.

4. CAMOUFLAGE IN NATURE THROUGH FORM AND COLOR MATCHING (Coronet)—10 minutes, sound, black-and-white. Demonstrates that coloration, resemblance and mimicry protect living things. Pictures of birds, animals, reptiles, and insects are photographed in their natural environments; pictures clearly indicate how these living things are scarcely distinguishable from their backgrounds.

5. CANADA'S NEW FARMLANDS (UWP)—20 minutes, sound, black-and-white. The principles which govern the development of new frontiers are clearly set forth in this picture. We observe two young Norwegians, who fought in the Canadian Army, begin the development of their new lands. Clearing the land, planting the crops and taking part in the life of the new community, these young men are typical of the people who push the boundaries of our civilization ever outward to new frontiers.

6. CASUALTY INSURANCE (EBF)—20 minutes, sound, color. A vivid survey of daily hazards covered by casualty insurance including the story of one policyholder's auto crash and court trial and how it involved the services of his insurance company. Also documents safety research and engineering by insurance companies to prevent accidents; shows how insurance helps stimulate business through extensive local investment, and reviews a number of career opportunities in this field.

Stokes Presents Program For PTA

FOUNTAIN—Calvin D. Stokes, principal of Fountain School, was in charge of the program at the November meeting of the Fountain Parent-Teacher Association held Thursday night in the school auditorium.

He presented the program "American Education" and showed a film "You and Your Parents." He invited parents and friends to visit the school sometime during the week, stating they were invited to come and spend Friday at the school and have dinner with them.

Kay Bell gave the devotional followed by the group singing the Thanksgiving song "Come Ye Thankful People Come."

Mrs. Eloise Bushman, president, presided over the business session. In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. S. Milton Baker, Mrs. Bushman gave a report on the barbeque supper and the teacher's fund.

Mrs. Philip M. Cory's eighth grade room won the attendance prize.

'Good Health' Foundation For Good Grooming' Notes Speaker

FOUNTAIN — Mrs. Carlton Gardner, clothing leader, gave the demonstration on "Good Grooming" when the Fountain Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Edwin Corbett last Wednesday afternoon.

During her discussion, Mrs. Gardner said, "The best incentive to being well groomed is the assurance you feel when you are well groomed. Good health is the most important foundation for good grooming."

Projects reports were given by several members during the business session and Mrs. Albert Bell reported that she had given about 20 or 30 books to the Farmville Public Library and had received an acknowledgment from the librarians for the gift.

Reports were heard from the crafts workshop and tentative plans made to hold a similar workshop in Fountain in the near future.

During the business session, the club voted to hold an old-fashioned quilting party and make a quilt for Mrs. J. C. Parker. The group will meet in the home of Mrs. Alton Moore Monday to begin work on this project.

Mrs. Albert Bell, new president, thanked the retiring officers for the work which they had done and urged members to continue the support of the new officers. The devotional was led by Mrs. J. W. Gay and the meeting was adjourned by the group repeating the collect in unison.

Mrs. Edmondson Named Active HDC Member

BETHEL—Mrs. R. B. Edmondson was named the most active club member by the Bethel Home Demonstration Club at their November meeting.

Mrs. J. S. Moore was hostess to the club at her home on Pitt Street with Mrs. C. E. Brown as co-hostess. Arrangements of mixed flowers were used in the living room and dining room where the members assembled.

Mrs. Lois Freeman, assistant home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on better grooming and asked everyone to look into the mirror and see if they could improve their appearance by better grooming.

Mrs. W. R. Bullock, president, presided during the business meeting when members voted to have a tea in December and exchange gifts.

Reports were heard from Mrs. H. L. Tetterton, home management leader, on rug cleaning; Mrs. R. R. Whitehurst, foods and nutrition leader, who distributed copies of her favorite cranberry salad recipe; and Mrs. C. E. Brown, family life leader, who said, "At the Thanksgiving season we should take time to be thankful for our many blessings."

Mrs. Edmondson reviewed "The Scapegoat" and "Rosemary Tree." Homemakers should serve God not only in the home but also beyond the home," said Mrs. M. T. Whitehurst when she gave the devotional.

Mrs. R. R. James, recreation leader, led the group in several games before the hostess served fruit cake topped with whipped cream and a cherry and hot coffee to the 19 members and four guests.

Mrs. Mizzelle Wins High Score Prize

BETHEL—When Mrs. J. L. Gurganus was hostess to her bridge club Thursday afternoon six members and three guests were present.

Arrangements of mixed fall flowers were used in the living room where the two tables of bridge were played. At the end of the first progression a fruit drink was served and at the end of the third a hostess plate with salad and hot coffee was served. Mrs. W. M. Mizzelle was awarded high score prize, Mrs. W. C. Whitehurst was awarded low score prize and Mrs. J. T. Blythe received the guest prize.

Lawyer Discusses Types Of Wills

Milton C. Williamson, attorney, gave a talk using as his subject, "Last Will and Testament" when he addressed the Pickwick Book Club Tuesday afternoon.

The speaker named the different kinds of wills and cited the advantages to making a will. He dwelt at length upon legal provisions where no will existed, using cases to illustrate.

Making An Impression On Others

North Carolina is getting more than its money's worth from its advertising and promotion efforts to attract new industry.

It is difficult to measure the interest this program has created among top industrial executives about North Carolina. It will always be difficult to measure the results of such a program in terms of new plants which come to the Old North State.

There can be no doubt, however, that North Carolina's efforts to attract new industry are gaining more nation-wide recognition at this moment than ever before in the history of the state. Far beyond its boundaries North Carolina is gaining a reputation as an aggressive state which is seeking industrial development and has a great deal to offer new industry. Such a reputation is bound to have a marked influence on the industrial development of the state.

Most of the credit for North Carolina's new industrial picture must go to Gov. Hodges.

Gov. Hodges and his program for North Carolina has struck the fancy of writers and editors throughout the country. The trek of state businessmen, Conservation and Development officials the governor to New York recently provided column after column of copy in large newspapers and trade journals.

Seeking Young Man Of Action

By LYNN NISBET

PORTS — One of the most important appointments facing Governor Hodges and the newly named State Ports Authority is a director of ports. Rumor has it they are looking for a relatively young man with successful experience in transportation — not as an operator of a truck or rail line, but from the point of view of a shipper. Since this job will be about 99.44 per cent business administration, as contrasted with many State executive positions which have definite political contacts with the taxpayer public, it will matter little whether the director is a North Carolinian or what his party affiliation might be.

Because of the intimate touch of highways and schools, wild life regulations and other phases of government with the individual citizens, it is impossible to separate administration in these areas from politics. As presently operated and as apparently contemplated for the next few years, the job of the Ports Authority is to develop shipments through the deep-water ports, chiefly at Morehead City and Wilmington. That is a job for a vigorous young business man, Capitol Square gossip has it that two or three retired army officers and past middle-age business men and politicians who are said to be seeking the post have very little little chance of getting the nod.

The ancient wise-crack about "old men for counsel, young men for action," seems to apply here. Average age of the newly appointed seven members on the Ports Authority is about 62 years. That would seem to enhance importance of getting an active and capable young man as executive director, regardless of place of residence or political affiliation.

PARTISAN — Considerable publicity has been given to the fact that Governor Hodges has appointed 35 Democratic county chairmen to boards and commissions of varying degrees of importance. This publicity is presumably intended to offset earlier criticism that the Governor had by-passed county and local Democratic organizations in selecting appointees. One newspaper story specifically implied that since county chairmen are supposed to have some influence over members of the State Democratic committee, the Governor's action was obviously for the purpose of gaining control of that body.

If that was the purpose, and many people doubt that such consideration entered into appraisal of qualifications of the appointees, it failed completely. In many instances the fact that a county chairman accepted appointment for himself instead of for some other person whom he might have recommended, has tended to depreciate rather than enhance his political influence and prestige in his bailiwick.

On the heels of that trip Business Week devoted several pages to a discussion of North Carolina's industrial development program. Life Magazine not long ago devoted several pages to Gov. Hodges and his role in seeking to boost the state's income through industrialization.

There is a great deal of difference between getting the state's name in the pages of the national press and getting a new industrial payroll here at home. Nevertheless the favorable publicity North Carolina and its industrial development program have had in recent months is bound to influence the thinking of many of the nation's business and industrial leaders. It will also influence their attitude toward North Carolina as a possible location for new plants.

No Court Can Return Wreck Dead To Life

"There will be no indictments. The drivers of both vehicles were killed. There's no one to indict."

With those words a Highway Patrolman summed up the highway accident he was investigating. Five persons had lost their lives in the collision. Two others were in the hospital.

It is no tragedy that no one is left to answer before a court of justice for the five lives which were lost in the collision. The tragedy lies in the fact that the five lives—like hundreds of others every year—were snuffed out in an accident which could have been avoided. No court of justice can give new life to the accident victims. No number of indictments could compensate members of the victims' families for the loss of their loved ones.

Law enforcement, fear of indictments, fear of punishment before the courts all have played an important part in impressing upon the average driver the need for highway safety. Without them our highway death rate would soar far beyond its already disgraceful level. But they are no deterrent upon the driver who cares so little for his own life and that of others that he flirts with death on the highways.

An Appraisal Of Our Tobacco Prospects

A great deal has been said and written about the tobacco program and the tobacco situation as it applies to the economy of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. Most of the information has been authoritative, coming from state or federal agricultural officials and sources closely associated with the tobacco industry.

Today on this page The Reflector begins a two-part appraisal of the tobacco situation published in the Monthly Review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. We believe Reflector readers will find this evaluation of the tobacco situation of interest.

'Product Mix' Comes To Fore

By ELMER ROESSNER

This is to explain "product mix," a term that has been heard frequently in recent years and which will probably be heard even more often in the next year.

Product mix is simply the ratio of various products in a company's output. The Imaginary Corp. may produce 200,000 toasters, 350,000 stoves and 900,000 fans each year. That's its product mix. Whether it's a good one depends on many circumstances. An off-hand guess would be that it's not very good. If it has a sales organization that can move that many stoves, it ought to be able to sell twice as many fans and five times as many toasters. And it ought to have a dozen more appliances and housewares, and perhaps a few things in some other fields, for a really effective mix.

An ideal product mix would include some consumer and some industrial products, with some of the industrial products made for government and some for private industry.

MIXES AS ASSETS

A company with such diversification would be secure against almost all economic changes. If consumers turned flighty, sales to industry and government would maintain most of the income. If government orders lagged, it could make greater efforts to sell to industry.

Product mix is another name for diversification, but it is usually applied more narrowly. A company may diversify by offering both goods and services, or by acquiring other companies in wholly unrelated lines. But its product mix may be only the goods produced in one factory, or in one group of plants.

One of the things that is pinching the economy right now, causing an increase in unemployment, is the thinness of the product mix of some of the big plane builders.

Confident of long-term and rising government orders, they did not broaden their product mix. It consisted of a few models of planes and replacement parts.

When the Defense Department cut back plane contracts, only a few manufacturers were geared to shift to production to civilian planes, or to guided missiles and space vehicles. Consequently, layoffs have been considerable.

MAY GET WORSE

This may get worse, since indications are that there will be further cutbacks in planes, especially propeller and turbo-prop types, with a corresponding increase in missile orders.

The product mix is another way in which big business has a built-in advantage over small business. Across the country there are thousands of small plants making single products. Often this product is a component in a large corporation's product.

When that product is discontinued, or when a new design eliminates the component, the small manufacturer is out of business. It is often difficult for a small enterprise, frantically trying to meet specifications and deadlines set by buyer of a component, to have time to develop a product mix by getting orders for a diverse product.

However, product mixes buttress big corporations. If someone invented a new substance making paint, explosives or even nylon obsolete, Du Pont would survive. Similar situations exist for most, but not all, of the giants.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
POWER OF PRAYER

Benjamin Franklin is noted for rare common sense. Probably nothing he ever said, however, had more sense to it than a statement he made while the delegates to the Constitutional Convention were debating the future of the country.

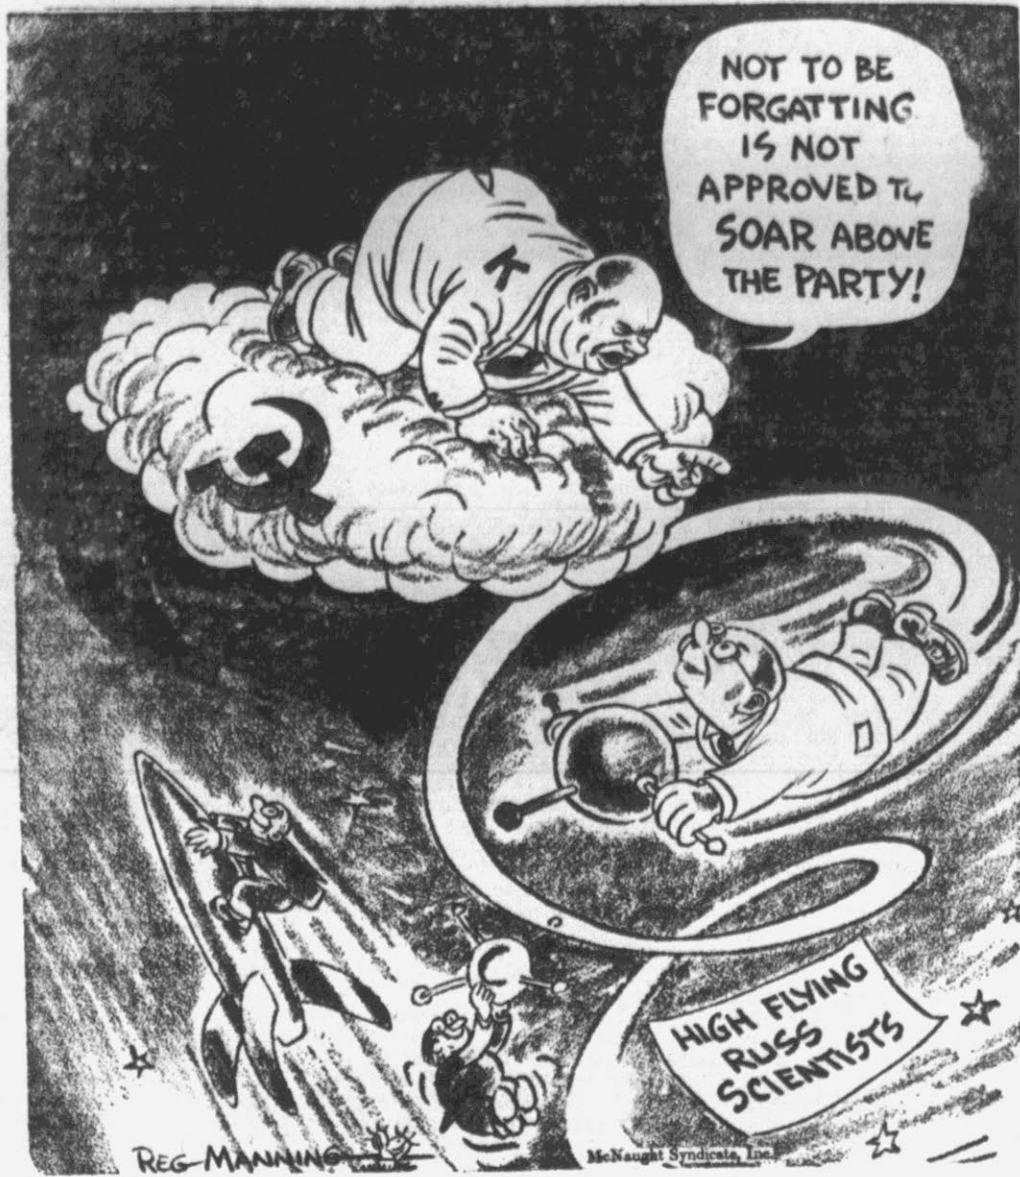

Said Franklin: "I have lived, sir, a long time, and the longer I live the more convincing proofs I see of this truth — that God governs the affairs of men. And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without his notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid? We have been assured, Sir, in the sacred writings that 'except the Lord build the house they labor in vain who build it.' I firmly believe this; and I also believe that without his conquering aid, we shall succeed in this political building no better than the builders of Babel."

"I therefore beg leave to move that henceforth prayers imploring the assistance of heaven, and its blessings on our deliberation be held in this assembly every morning before we proceed to business, and that one or more of the clergy of this city be requested to officiate at that service."

A statement like this coming from Franklin, who largely shared the deistic ideas of his generation, is indeed an unexpected endorsement of the things of faith. Also it is interesting to ponder the fact that within a week after Franklin had made his statement, the delegates began to bring a constitution out of chaos.

How High Is Up?

By EVERETTE PARKER

Sharing Season Is Near

Christmas is just around the corner for most of us.

For those less fortunate than we, however, December 25 is just like the first day of June or any other day. The difference being one little thing — money.

Earlier in the week my wife attended a meeting of a church group here in town for the first time since our marriage a short time ago. When she returned she was quite enthused about what had taken place.

I asked what had happened. When she told me it made me feel good.

It seems the group had begun thinking about what it could do for some of the less fortunate in and around Greenville. During the course of the afternoon many suggestions were made and accepted as "the thing to do."

One lady suggested the group extend help to one mother of seven children who has no visible means of support. Another suggestion was made to help several needy families around Christmas time.

So the afternoon went. Everyone seemed to have an idea that would bring happiness to a family or two before or around Christmas time.

The writer is not trying to be dramatic or to be a martyr to the cause. Having been brought up on a farm I have seen things that would melt even the hardest of hearts.

Little children without even an orange Christmas morning. Families having to go without food while so many around them have plenty.

Mothers telling their little boys and girls that Santa Claus must have forgotten to come by. "Don't cry," they would say, "maybe he will not forget you next year."

Granted there are many in foreign countries who are in dire need of help. By the same token there are many, probably less than two or three city blocks from us, that need as much or more help.

Needless to say every year many church groups, civic and fraternal organizations go all out to help the less fortunate. Those who lack the means to make happiness.

We should not let it go at that. As individuals each of us should consider it a privilege to help someone enjoy Christmas, if just in a small way.

Children have a way of acquiring a dislike for an old toy. These would make a nice plaything for some other youngster.

In the near future, you might check the attic. Very likely there are old clothes there. Anything from a pair of discarded shoes to a jacket too small for any member of the family.

Things we take for granted mean something to others.

There was a little boy that quit coming to Sunday School and church. When a worker checked with his parents he was told the youngster didn't have any clothes decent enough to wear.

You don't have to go very far to uncover cases like this. Jobs are getting harder to find. Many providers who are capable workers can't get work.

Let's look around our own community and do our best to make somebody else happy this Christmas. After all, happiness means so much and it costs so little for those who can afford it.

Other Editors Saying--- To The Moon? No Thanks

(The Charlotte Observer)

A newsman asked four Charlotte youngsters the other day if they'd like to pioneer in a trip to the moon. None found the idea exciting.

Actually this is not astonishing. The youngsters are reflecting the overweight inertia of their elders. Yet their answers to the questions reveal a lot about this newest generation in the teen years.

Nearly all the youngsters said they wanted to help someone else make the first trip. They recognize the importance of the venture and doubtless realize its significance better than the adults. They do not ignore the trip, but they'll just watch from the sidelines, thank you sir.

One youngster reflected clearly the complacency of this pleasure-loving era which Carl Sandburg describes as one of "fat-dripping prosperity." "I'm satisfied exactly where I am," said the teenager, "and I want to stay here. I don't know why anyone would be interested in going away from this place."

No quarrel here. Life in the land of the steak dinner and the chocolate cream pie is luxurious and sweet. Even with a mortgage and oh-so-many time payments, the new house is a kingly domain as it hugs the earth in one-story embrace. We are tied firmly to the alarm clock, the eight-thirty traffic and the main street sidewalks. Feet bolted to the ground of this planet, the older generation has no thought to shoot the moon or even indulge in the bold luxury of imagining.

One generation always imagines that the next is endowed with the antidotes to the current shortcomings. We'd reckon it's the optimist in us. But the truth will out. The steak dinner is more attractive than the flight into space. A fig for the moon. The steak is rare, warm and tender.

Leaf Farmers' Smokey Outlook

The following report on the bright leaf tobacco outlook appeared in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond's publication, the Monthly Review, for November.

Though American smokers puffed a record-breaking number of cigarettes in the past year, District producers of flue-cured—the principal cigarette-type tobacco—are faced with a 27 per cent drop in cash receipts from this year's bright tobacco crop as price increases only partially offset a one-third cutback in production. Not since 1940 have producers of the "golden weed" so important to the agricultural economy of the Carolinas and Virginia been confronted with so sharp a drop in cash receipts from flue-cured marketings.

The story behind this development is another important chapter in the history of American tobacco production. It is a story worth looking into since farmers in the Carolinas and Virginia produce about 90 per cent of all flue-cured leaf grown in this country and roughly 45 per cent of total world production. With such an important role in not only the nation's flue-cured economy but also the world's, it is natural that what happens to flue-cured supplies, demand, and prices has a direct bearing on their welfare.

Just how direct a bearing is indicated by the flue-cured leaf's relative contribution to total cash receipts from farm marketings. Bright tobacco in North Carolina, for example, produces more cash for farmers than does any other source of farm marketings. In fact, in South Carolina the bright leaf contributes 25 cents to every dollar of cash farm income, and Virginia farmers, on the average, find that 16 cents of each of their cash farm dollars comes from that "bewitching vegetable" with the bright leaves. Naturally these averages conceal a host of variations: some farmers in the three-state tobacco area lean heavily on the crop, while outside these belts flue-cured is of no importance.

What has given rise to the present dilemma of the 176,000 farmers and their families who depend on bright leaf tobacco for a share of their income? There is no one answer, nor can the factors that have led to this situation be stated simply, because each bears a relationship to the others. Briefly, the causes are: sharply increased yields per acre, decreased domestic use, a declining export market in relation to total world trade, and consequent rising supplies.

The present system of flue-cured acreage controls, in effect continuously since 1940, has intensified the efforts of farmers to grow more pounds of tobacco on their "allotted" number of acres. They have planted new higher yielding varieties, spaced plants closer together, used larger amounts of fertilizer, and irrigated their fields. And they have been successful, for the number of pounds harvested per acre has risen strikingly until in 1956 the average yield was nearly 60 per cent above 1940's.

But the most marked upturn in yields occurred in 1955 and 1956 when a vast proportion of the District's flue-cured farmers planted three very high-yielding, disease-resistant varieties. Record yields of bright leaf were

Happy Victor Borge

NEW YORK (AP) — "Nobody is safe," said Victor Borge. "But there is no life except happiness."

"Understanding of life can be achieved only by being happy."

It is a pleasure to meet off-stage this pleasant Dane, who milks money, music and laughter from the piano, because in his home he retains his professional atmosphere of good humor.

But on the other hand when he barks — with a smile — the girls in his joint in the Plaza Hotel (his wife and his secretary) bounce, too. Pronto — and smiling.

This is the possible dream of every American man — to be the boss, have the girls realize it, and enjoy it. They have to have fun out of it, too.

Borge is an unusual man with great talent. He is a highly conscious craftsman. His use of piano humor is mannered, adroit, warm, often repetitive, but highly effective.

He is in some ways the most successful humorist alive. One of his basic arts is to resist the impulse to bore an audience.

It is said that he received $100,000 for his first television show. It is also said that he will receive $200,000 or more for a show next Feb. 19 on CBS.

Borge came to this country as a poor immigrant with three things: his inability to speak English, his ability to disturb a piano, and his sense of humor.

Today he faces the world with the same charming defects, plus a wife and five children. He now runs a 450-acre farm in Connecticut and has become one of the nation's largest distributors of Rock Cornish hens.

This is now a million-dollar-a-year business with him, and the year-end season is at its height, but he says:

"I started with the Cadillac of the fowl business and now it is as common as the bicycle."

"I love my farm. But the cost of living is such that you have to make it worthwhile. You cannot just have land. You must do something with the land."

Although the margin of successful operation is notoriously short in the poultry field, Borge, who has earnings from the show world to plow into it, is optimistic that his efforts to popularize the Rock Cornish hen will yield him more than a mound of feathers. This is a plump-breasted bird designed to sell at 89 to 99 cents a pound.

His attitude toward life is as dry and wry in private as it is on the platform before the piano and the public. The way he talks about it, however, allows the personal and perhaps less professional. He has the gift of making you feel you excite him.

He says about this world:

"It is so small, so big, you cannot live long enough in it to do the things you want to."

He was speaking about invitations to perform in South Africa and Australia.

"It's so nice to be independent," he added. "To come and go as you please — to an extent, that is."

"I don't believe in fatalism. But I do believe in cause and effect."

"You have the universe of you. But inside you are five million different dynamos, each of which can limit your life, or extend it."

"A walk across the street can change your life. Every second can change your life."

"But I do believe in goals. I don't believe anything is just blind accident."

"People's lives would be more interesting if they would just realize how they can change from moment to moment."

"There is no such thing as an uninteresting life, unless you get overwhelmed by problems and feel neglected by a higher power."

"There is no such thing as bad weather or a bad thing. What I don't like, my neighbor may."

"There are people I see in the street I make big rings around. But happiness comes, as the weather does, in waves, not in streams."

"I am a very happy man."

Roadblocks, A Matter For Training

ROADBLOCK DEMONSTRATION—Officers, at yesterday's FBI conference held here, demonstrated why it is getting harder to escape the "iron hand" of the law. A roadblock, with members of the State Highway Patrol, Pitt County Sheriff's Department and the FBI participating, was staged during the morning session. Under surveillance, a "driver" is being arrested. (Reflector Photo).

Mother Of Murder Defendant Is Closely Questioned In Court

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—The much-married mother of a young murder defendant has taken the stand for the prosecution to answer questions fired by one of her several ex-husbands.

She is Mrs. Nina T. Miles, 37, formerly of Dunn, N.C., the mother of Charles Lee Guy III, 19-year-old boy accused of slaying her fiancé, G. F. Roberts.

During young Guy's first trial earlier this month, his mother testified that the victim's blood showed he was intoxicated at the time he was killed.

Young Guy's first trial ended in a mistrial because a detective blurted out a reference to a purported confession after the court had ruled the document not admissible as evidence. The older Guy charged that police had pressured his son into signing the confession.

At the time of the boy's arrest, police quoted his mother as saying she was living at a motel with Roberts and was planning to marry the 45-year-old advertising executive.

Mrs. Miles testified that on the night of the slaying her son engaged in a bitter argument with Miles.

Miles met the mother and her son at a cocktail bar and told the youth to "get lost," she testified. Guy replied that he "was going to get a shotgun and get him (Miles), if not tonight then the next morning," she testified.

When she visited her son later at county jail, Mrs. Miles said, "Sonny told me he was so mad and drunk that he thought he must have shot Miles."

The elder Guy cross-examined Mrs. Miles.

"Before living with Roberts did you live with Billy Miles?" he asked.

"That's correct," Mrs. Miles answered in a low voice.

During a court recess Mrs. Miles walked to her son, who was seated at the counsel table. She placed her hand on his shoulder and said within earshot of reporters:

"Please try to understand. I was subpoenaed as a witness. I have to testify. I have to tell the truth."

Young Guy stared straight ahead.

Leaf Farmers . .

In fact, flue-cured stocks on July 1, 1957, were 36 per cent above the 1953 figure.

All the while total supplies of flue-cured—carry-over stocks plus production—continued to mount, reaching a record-smashing 3.7 billion pounds in 1956. At this point, supplies were 3 times prospective annual domestic use and exports, whereas a more normal relationship is one in which supplies are about 2½ times prospective disappearance.

It was here that the wheels of the Government's price-support program really began to turn. In an attempt to bring supplies more in line with demand, acreage allotments had been cut 12 per cent in 1956, but the entire 1956 crop of United States flue-cured was only 4 per cent lower than in 1955, with production in the stronger action, the Department of Agriculture announced a 20 per cent further cut in 1957 allotments and gave notice that the high-yielding varieties of flue-cured which tended to produce tobacco lacking in flavor and aroma—generally the light-bodied leaf tobacco buyers did not want—would be supported at 50 per cent of the regular support rates.

Higher yields per acre have not caused all the trouble. In addition, the mounting supplies have been faced with a declining domestic demand as the quantity of flue-cured tobacco used by cigarette manufacturers shrank.

It is at this point that 1953 enters the picture. Cigarette output and consumption here at home had reached an all-time high in 1952. And then came the "cancer scare"—in the Fall of 1953. The effect of this scare was felt immediately. Some smokers cut down on the number of cigarettes smoked per day; a few stopped completely. The net result was that American smokers consumed 7 billion fewer cigarettes in 1953, and 25 billion fewer in 1954, than during the peak year 1952. Gradually people began smoking more cigarettes in 1955, and the uptrend in the number produced and consumed has continued.

But in light of all the publicity linking cigarettes and health, many smokers began to change their smoking habits, switching from regular cigarettes to the filter tip brands. Popularity of the filter tip cigarettes, which comprised only 3 per cent of total domestic consumption in 1953, has grown by leaps and bounds and, according to trade sources, may account for 40 per cent of all cigarettes sold

Eleven Bidders For Mill Work

Eleven general contractors have been listed as bidders on alterations and additions to a mill building for Greenville Mills, it was announced today by the Carolinas Branch of the Associated General Contractors of America, Inc.

Bids were scheduled to be opened this afternoon at 2:30 in the Board of Directors' room at the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company.

AGC, the construction industry's trade association in the Carolinas, listed the general contractors who plan to bid on the alterations and additions project as King-Hunter, Inc., Greensboro; Jones Brothers and Company, Wilson; East Carolina Construction Company, Dunn; DuBose Construction Company, Kinston; Fred C. Gardner Company, Inc., Kinston; Dunn Building Supply Company, Inc., Greenville; P. S. West Construction Company, Greenville and Statesville; J. W. Hunter Construction Company, Wilmington; R. N. Rouse and Company, Inc., Goldsboro; Grifton Builders, Inc., Grifton; and John V. Barger and Company, Inc., Mooresville.

The project will involve construction of an additional 13,000 square feet of floor space at the Dickinson Avenue site of Greenville Mills. The plant is a subsidiary of Artloom Carpets of Philadelphia.

Opium Vanishes From Courtroom

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Police today were investigating the disappearance of five pounds of opium from the court of Superior Judge Walter Carpenetti where it was to be evidence for a trial.

The opium—worth $5,000 on the illegal market and contained in two paper bags—vanished yesterday.

It had been placed under the counsel table for safekeeping.

This year. This swing to filter tips has had pronounced effects on flue-cured tobacco growers, for it has changed the leaf requirements of the cigarette manufacturers. It has not only changed the tobacco characteristics sought by the cigarette companies, but also aided in reducing the quantity of leaf used.

Police Who Broke Up Gangland Conference Now Under Inquiry

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—New York state police who broke up and investigated a "gangland conference" a week ago were under investigation themselves today.

Gov. Averell Harriman disclosed last night that he had ordered a number of inquiries of state agencies into the mobster meeting. One of them directs the state police superintendent to submit "a complete report on the conduct of the raid."

A spokesman said the governor wanted the report since criticism had been raised about the police action.

Troopers flushed out 60 men last Thursday from Joseph Barbara's remote country mansion in the hamlet of Apalachin in south-central New York. Many underworld luminaries were netted.

The troopers made no arrests. They said there was no charge on which to hold any of the guests. The visitors insisted they were visiting a sick friend—Barbara. Although no arrests were made, it was the first time any police had interfered with and broken up a meeting of such magnitude.

There has been criticism of the state police in some quarters over the prompt release of the participants in the meeting. There also have been reports that top state police officials were angry over the fact that they were not consulted during the roundup and questioning.

The state police superintendent, Francis S. McGarvey, endorsed the manner in which his subordinates had acted. They did "the best they could under the circumstances," he said.

The governor's spokesman was asked whether Harriman's call for a full report meant he had overruled McGarvey. The spokesman said Harriman simply wanted the report because of the criticism raised.

The participants, however, will feel the full weight of the flood of investigations that the Apalachin meeting has sparked.

The governor ordered the state investigations commissioner, Arthur Reuter, to "look into the activities and associations of those attending the meeting."

The State Parole Board and the State Tax Department will also make their own inquiries, it was learned. State police have launched their own broad probe.

In New York City, U. S. Atty. Paul W. Williams said the "crime cartel convention" had given "fresh impetus" to an investigation he has launched into rackets in the garment and trucking industries.

Other investigations launched are those of the Senate Rackets Committee, the Internal Revenue Service, the Alcohol Tax Unit of the U. S. Treasury Department, the State Liquor Authority and police of the home states and communities of the men involved.

McGarvey told a reporter he had no complaints about the manner in which troopers acted in breaking up the meeting and in questioning and releasing the men taken into custody.

Missile Program Hurt By Lag In Skilled Manpower

By SANKY TRIMBLE
WHITE SANDS PROVING GROUND, N.M. (AP)—Manpower may be a limiting factor for a projected speedup of the nation's missile program.

A high official at this 40-by-100 mile mountain-ringed rocket and missile range says "we have vacancies now. I'm not sure we can get the people for a crash program."

He spoke, of course, of the highly trained scientific and technical personnel needed for the complex job of missile research, development and testing.

The only answer to the shortage appears to be greatly expanded use of overtime involving manpower already on hand.

Overtime here — as in other rocket bases — was slashed in mid-summer. Restored, it was limited to actual operations on the integrated range, used by White Sands, Holloman Air Force Missile Development Center, and the Army at Fort Bliss, Tex. Even restored, the overtime on the integrated range operations has been cut in half.

One more factor may be an important one in any speedup involving this 300 million dollar base deep in the southern New Mexico desert.

Military officials here have repeatedly asked permission for night firings. The New Mexico State Highway Commission, which has primary control over U.S. Highway 70-80 which traverses the southern portion of the range, has just as repeatedly refused permission to have the highway closed for night firings. The road must be closed during any firings from White Sands itself.

There are roughly four families of rockets in various stages of development here. They are the surface-to-air missiles, targets, surface-to-surface and research vehicles.

Included in the surface-to-air family are the newly-unwrapped Talos, the Nike-Hercules, Nike-

Ajax, and the Hawk. Those classified as research vehicles include the Viking Hi, Wasp, Aerobee Hi,

Asp, and the Nike-Cajun. The Pogo-Hi is one of the newly developed radar targets. Surface-to-surface missiles include the Redstone, Dart, Honest John, LaCrosse, Little John and the Corporal. The Sergeant, a bigger brother of the Corporal, is still under tests and security wraps.

The full capacity of the integrated range controlled at White Sands is as yet unknown. Three years ago military chiefs were told that the maximum the proving ground could handle was 600 firings per year. In 1956 there was a total of 1,784 missiles launched. This year the figure is expected to reach about 2,000. Experts say that with proper scheduling and proper training, the range can handle many times that number.

With charges and counter-charges of bickering between the services over the missile program, unification is an accomplished fact — a reality — here. All four services make use of the integrated range and its vast facilities and instrumentation on an equal basis.

A NIKE-HERCULES ground-to-air missile blasts upward from mountain-rimmed White Sands Proving Ground, where officials report a shortage of skilled technicians will handicap any extensive speedup in missile development.

'Interference' Dangers Cited

DALLAS (AP)—School Supt. W. T. White says the biggest threat to public school education is interference by the federal government.

Dallas schools are under court order to integrate after midyear. White said those who ask the federal government for aid "are handing over to outside power the rights and responsibilities that ought to be handled on a local level."

"I had rather have less money, not as good equipment, school houses less well built... as long as we keep it at the local level," he said.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

By FAGALY and SHORTEN

'Neutral' Friends Opposing Russia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (U.P.)—Russia's brushoff of Western efforts to break the disarmament deadlock may have demonstrated her new "cold" position of strength. But it also put a severe strain on her friendship with many so-called neutral nations.

Delegates infer this from the lineup in the smashing 60-9 U.N. Assembly endorsement of the West's plan to increase the Commission to 25 members. Only the Soviet bloc voted against the proposal, despite Russia's warning she would boycott the talks unless half the nations at the conference table were Communist or neutral.

The West had been confident of victory on the vote. But few had expected Syria and Egypt, who receive economic and military aid from Moscow, to vote for the plan. Nor had they anticipated support from such Asian neutrals as Ceylon and Indonesia, who usually show a marked preference for Soviet ideas.

A number of usually pro-Soviet delegations were deeply surprised by Russia's ever-increasing demands during the East-West negotiations last week on enlarging the commission.

Yugoslav Communists, who played a key role in trying to bring the two sides together, became so annoyed by the Soviet tactics that they divorced themselves from the deal and quit the sponsor's list.

India, who originated the move to enlarge the commission, did not appreciate Russia's sudden rejection of the plan after the Indians

'Jitterbugging' At Wake Forest

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (U.P.)—Students at Wake Forest College jitterbugged on the campus plaza and burned in effigy the retiring president of the Baptist State Convention after the convention ruled out campus dancing.

About 500 or 600 students, mostly male, participated in the demonstration last night at the Baptist-supported school.

Hi-fi record players blasted at full volume as the laughing and cheering crowd of students danced and shouted such slogans as "Down with the Baptists."

Student leaders said about 25 per cent of the student body joined in the protest against the Baptist State Convention action in Raleigh. The convention overwhelmingly voted campus dancing and apparently ended a lengthy controversy on the topic. School trustees previously had voted to allow dancing.

The students, most of whom wore dark glasses or obscured their faces with handkerchiefs, climaxed the hour long demonstration by burning an effigy labeled "Dr. J. C. Canipe." Canipe retired as president of the Baptist State Convention after speaking against lifting the ban imposed by the convention in 1937.

College policemen took two students, unidentified, in custody for lighting firecrackers.

The convention's action affected seven Baptist colleges in the state. The vote followed a request by trustees of Wake Forest College and Meredith College (for women) at Raleigh that they allowed to regulate all forms of recreation on their campuses.

Logger Killed By Falling Tree

SPRUCE PINE, N.C. (U.P.)—A logging accident near here yesterday killed Herbert Guy Pendley, 41, of Spruce Pine.

Acting Coroner Manual Roberts said a gust of wind caught a tree being felled and sent it crashing down on Pendley.

Myrtle Darden Wins District Oratory Title

AYDEN — Myrtle Ruth Darden, an eighth grade student at South Ayden School, will represent the Ayden District in the Pitt County Oratorical Contest December 3.

Myrtle won the district championship Tuesday by a unanimous decision over Mary Davis of the Grifton Elementary School. Myrtle had entered the district contest by winning the school elimination last week when she competed against Eula Davis, Gloria Harp and Alton Darden.

The county-wide contest will be held at Bethel Union School. Judges in the district championship were Eugene Olive and James Brady, seniors at East Carolina College who are student teachers at Ayden School, and Mrs. F. Sanders of Greenville.

Myrtle is the daughter of John Jasper Darden of Route 2, Grifton.

PRESSING PROBLEM

DALLAS (U.P.)—E. George Siedel, assistant postmaster for transportation, says the railroad fan isn't the only one who misses the many trains of the past. Siedel told a meeting of postal transportation officials finding new ways to move mail along routes served by discontinued passenger trains is his most pressing problem.

Soviet Loan Of $175 Millions Said Involved

CAIRO (U.P.)—Russia's pledge of economic aid for Egypt is reported to mean a 175-million-dollar loan for President Nasser's five-year industrialization plan.

The semi-official Middle East News Agency said last night the agreement announced in Moscow Tuesday calls for Russia to provide 700 million rubles worth of aid. The official Soviet exchange rate is four rubles to the dollar.

Neither a joint Russian-Egyptian news agency report said what the aid would take. But it was assumed that, as in the case of Syria, the rubles would pay for Russian materials, equipment and technical advisers.

Maj. Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, the Egyptian war minister who negotiated the agreement with the Kremlin, flew home from Moscow yesterday in a Soviet jet airliner. He gave Nasser a two-hour report on his visit.

Although Soviet Premier Bulganin had said Russia's aid to Egypt and other Middle East countries is "selfless," the communists said Amer and the Kremlinites had discussed "political cooperation" as well as economic cooperation and military questions. There was no elaboration of any of this.

The Middle East News Agency said that starting in five years Egypt would repay the loan over a 12-year period. It did not say where Egypt would get the money or what the interest rate would be. Syria is to pay 2.5 per cent for her Russian aid.

Economic experts say Egypt has been economically dependent on the Communist bloc since she started trading cotton for arms in 1955. The cotton, which provides about 80 per cent of Egypt's foreign exchange, is believed heavily mortgaged in the future to pay for arms although Egyptian officials have denied any written commitments on future crops.

Plan 3-Year Study Of Credit, Money System

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—A three-year inquiry into the nation's money and credit structure was announced today by the Committee for Economic Development.

The study will be conducted by an independent, nonpartisan commission.

The CED, a research organization of 150 businessmen and educators, said it has received an initial grant of $500,000 from the Ford Foundation for the study. CED officials said the final cost may be twice as great.

To assure that the projected Commission on Money and Credit will be free from political or special-interest pressures, CED said the 9 to 18 members will be nominated by a selection committee, named by CED Chairman Donald K. David.

This committee consists of 10 heads of research institutions and colleges, including Arthur F. Burns, former chairman of President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers, and the presidents of Colgate, Cornell, Indiana and Stanford universities, and Amherst College.

As a further assurance of non-partisanship, CED officials said, the commission will not be expected to issue its final report until after the 1960 presidential election.

David, former dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, obtained authorization for the plan at the 15th anniversary meeting of CED's Board of Trustees here today.

He emphasized the commission will "work independently of CED, the Ford Foundation or the government," and will appoint its own research director and staff.

"It will be the first full-scale inquiry into monetary policies since the Aldrich committee of Congress began its three-year study in 1908," David said in a statement.

The Aldrich committee is credited with having done its spadework for creation of the Federal Reserve system by Congress in 1913.

Map Extensive Voter Campaign

CHARLOTTE (U.P.)—The president of the state NAACP chapter said yesterday the organization planned a campaign to increase North Carolina Negro voting registration from 135,000 to 250,000 by 1960.

State President Kelly M. Alexander of Charlotte said, "We're going into the rural areas and the backwoods. We're going house to house in the towns."

He added, "There's been too much apathy among our people." He said that North Carolina's program for getting Negroes to register is being used by the NAACP as a guide in other Southern states to increase registration.

He said that Negroes also should run for office. "They should run for state and national offices," he said.

"It is our duty to go into the backwoods area to mobilize and build up voting strength. We will make our people an important political factor—no matter who runs, Negro or not."

Alexander is chairman of the NAACP's Southwide committee, organized in Atlanta last week, to increase Negro voting.

Nations which have become independent since 1947, in addition to India and Pakistan, are: Burma, Cambodia, Ceylon, Ghana, Laos, Libya, Morocco, Israel, Indonesia, Korea, Sudan, Tunisia and Viet Nam.

Russians Gambled For Time, And Won, In 12-Year Strategy

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—The 12 tormented years since World War II fall into focus if you look at what the world faced and faces. The Russians gambled for time and won.

They started out in 1945 at a terrible military disadvantage. This country had the atomic bomb. They didn't. If they pushed too hard, they could have been massacred.

This was an unhappy position for a nation bent on communizing the world. Until they were equal in strength to the United States, they were an unimpressive spectacle to their would-be victims.

They'd be arguing from weakness. What they needed was time to catch up with or surpass this country. They concentrated on doing just that.

Once they reached their goal, then:

There didn't necessarily have to be a world war. Both sides then would know they could wipe themselves off the earth. In that kind of military standoff, the Russians, with their aggressive designs, had some advantage.

They could blackmail their neighbors, use intrigue, subversion, economic penetration, propaganda, everything in the book.

Their concentration of the military development—and apparently their confidence in reaching equality with the United States—explains as well as anything why they stalled and frustrated all attempts at disarmament.

In the meantime, they didn't stop pushing. They pushed, though short of war. For instance: pressuring Iran, Turkey, Greece. This country stiff-armed them and they backed down.

In 1948 they got control of Czechoslovakia by seizure from within. In 1949 they had their first atomic explosion. The next year they felt strong enough to try a little war.

They let it start in Korea. This country blocked them there. But without using the atomic bomb. By that time the Russians probably had atomic bombs of their own. A world war could have started then.

The Russians went on the hydrogen bomb (1953) and in 1957 to missiles and satellites.

In the years since Korea, while still trying to come abreast of the United States, the Russians still pushed. But they did it more quietly than in Greece, or Turkey or Iran or Korea. They slowly got a foothold in the Middle East by promises and help of various kinds. They worked on Southeast Asia.

Now that they are abreast of the United States they may push harder, although still short of all-out war. These next two years this country expects by 1959 to have some of its allies armed with missiles capable of hitting Russia from the western rim of Europe. Russia claims it has such weapons now, capable of destroying Western Europe from Russia.

Will it sit by until Western Europe equals it in missile strength? Perhaps, if only through fear of starting a war which could end in its own annihilation. For this reason: Russia is surrounded with American bombers which could dump hydrogen loads if Russia started shooting. Right now there is a standoff.

Time To Take Another Test

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—An elderly motorist was stopped by Traffic Officer D. L. Weber for driving down the middle of a one-way street the wrong way.

Weber's report said he asked the man if he could read a "one-way" sign on the next corner and the man answered: "Sure, it says 'wait'." The officer recommended a new driver's license test.

Re-Enlisting Is Long Range Job

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—A Norwich, Conn., Navy man of 18 years' service flew across country from San Diego, Calif., to Springfield in order to re-enlist.

Chief Yeoman Carlo Rudlosso, 35, took a commercial airline from the West Coast after being discharged and re-enlisted at the regional recruiting station here.

Another objective in his long trip was to visit his wife, Dorothy, a student at Williamamantic (Conn.) State Teachers College, and their 17-year-old daughter, Marcia.

Economic Loss Not Deductible

RALEIGH (AP)—When two corporations are merged, the survivor may not claim as an income tax deduction economic losses of the submerged concern.

This was the effect of a decision yesterday by the State Supreme Court in three tax cases from Gaston County. The corporations had gone to the courts after the former state revenue commissioner, Eugene Shaw, ruled they could not claim the deductions.

The cases came to the Supreme Court on the Revenue Department's appeal from Gaston Superior Court, where Judge J. C. Rudisill allowed a motion made by attorneys for the corporations to judgment on the pleadings in the case.

Plaintiffs in the three actions were Good Will Distributors (Northern) Inc., Good Will Distributors (Eastern) Inc., and Good Will Distributors (Western), Inc. In each case, the corporations had claimed as income tax deductions economic losses sustained by other concerns with which they had merged.

The Supreme Court's opinion, written by Associate Justice W. B. Rodman Jr., said a submerged corporation could not sell a loss to reduce the survivor's income tax.

Only 69 Years Old, Beats Youngsters In Hot-Rodding

By JOHN LANNAN

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Emil Nelson feels from his own experience that every man his age should have a hobby—but not necessarily his.

hot rodder.

"I feel like I'm 30 years old," enthuses the near-septuagenarian. "I can run races with the boys anytime."

And to prove it, Emil can show two awards won this year in the finals of the New England Hot Rod Council competition.

His Ford coupe was the fastest car entered from Maine and the top car in its class at the races over the Sanford Municipal Airport drag strip.

Emil isn't new to racing. He started speeding about two years ago after a lapse of 37 years. His last racing car in the old days was a Stanley Steamer he made himself.

Marriage and a metal working job kept him pretty close to home since the Stanley days. Lately his knowledge of metals, his love for fast cars and a convenient back yard shop, brought him back into competition, this time against men a third of his age.

He has been working on his present car for three years.

His last car was built of spare parts from the Stanley plant at Watertown, Mass., where he worked as a mechanic-assembler under Fred Marriot, who designed the famous "Torpedo" which outran the world's best cars at Ormond Beach, Fla., in the 1920s.

Emil, an immigrant from Norway, learned metal working in Massachusetts after spending two years as a mess boy aboard a tramp steamer.

At the end of every work day, Emil is out in his back yard garage, either helping his two sons and a son-in-law on their hopped-up cars or working on his own machine. One night a week, he and the boys attend meetings of the Portland Shaft Twister's Club, a hot rod group.

The Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte, N.C. was formerly a branch of the U. S. Mint.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, NOVEMBER 21, 1957

The Sports Reflector

By BILLY ARNOLD

East Carolina's arch cage rival, Atlantic Christian, will open its basketball season tomorrow night at Wilson against Pfeiffer. Then, the Pfeiffer club will journey to Greenville to tangle with Coach Howard Porter's Pirates Monday night.

Observers of the North State Conference will be watching the ACC-Pfeiffer match tomorrow night to see what Coach Jack McComas has put together for 1957-58—and they'll be comparing the results with Monday night's tilt, here, too.

McComas and Porter, after mediocre seasons last year, are both facing similar situations this winter. The slender ACC Coach, whose club landed in fourth place in 1956-57, lost four of his first five players and eight veterans altogether from the crew. He is in the midst of almost a complete rebuilding job. Porter, too, has lost several key players, including four boys who held down starting positions at times last year.

McCOMAS HAS BEEN BUSY

McComas, one of the shrewdest mentors in Carolina cage circles, has been busy, though, and the pre-season reports from Wilson have been far from pessimistic.

The Bulldogs seem to have come up with some capable replacements. McComas was able to line up four of the five starters from the best junior college team in the state—Edwards Military Institute. They are Don Ryan, Jim Holland, Walker Gillikin, and Rufus Outland. All are above 6-3 and bring two years of college experience into the Bulldog camp. Three Indiana freshmen also are expected to help the cause. They are Ernie Oden (6-5), Dick Knox (6-2), and Larry Shockley (6-3).

Other newcomers being counted on heavily are Frank Winfree, a Florida product who played last year at Wingate Junior College as a high school senior, John Baker, a 6-4 forward from Portsmouth, Va., Richie Oetting, a guard from Miami, and Billy Hinton, a 6-4 forward from Rock Ridge.

Two returnees from last year's club will also be used, of course. They are Darwin Williams, a junior guard who is the only returning starter, and Bob Whaley, junior forward.

TO PLAY NC STATE

McComas evidently isn't too worried. He has his club lined up to play North Carolina State, December 2, at Raleigh. The game will open the Wolfpack's '57-58 season. It will also mark the first time that State has played against a North State Conference team.

Coach Porter, after suffering through a 13-12 season last year, isn't being quite as optimistic as McComas. With Nick Nichols, Freddy James, Tim Smothers, and Don Harris missing from the lineup this winter, Porter is having to start almost from scratch and his cage schedule isn't very ambitious.

The Bucs play only three non-conference tilts this season. They battle Pfeiffer twice and Newberry College once to round out their outside play. The rest of the games will be strictly business with North State clubs.

This weekend's games should offer some indication as to how the two clubs may stack up against Conference foes and each other this season.

Davidson Signs Ex-Deac Star

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—Ernie Wiggins, 22, outstanding basketball guard for three years at Wake Forest College, starts work Dec. 1 as assistant basketball coach at Davidson College.

Tom Scott, athletic director and head basketball coach, yesterday announced the appointment of Wiggins to fill the staff vacancy created when Pride Ratteree went to The Citadel last spring as assistant football coach.

Wiggins also will work with either baseball or track in the spring. He lettered in track in high school. At Wake Forest, he and guard Jackie Murdock played together for three years and formed perhaps the best backcourt pair the college ever had.

Scott said Wiggins had been recommended by Bill Gibson, Wake Forest athletic director, and by Deacon Basketball Coach Horace (Bones) McKinney.

Wiggins, a native of London, Ky., had since graduation been working with Western Electric Co. in Winston-Salem. His wife Norma teaches school in Forsyth County (Winston-Salem).

Wiggins, a native of London, Ky., had since graduation been working with Western Electric Co. in Winston-Salem. His wife Norma teaches school in Forsyth County (Winston-Salem).

Missing From ECC Cage Scene

DROPPED OUT—Freddy James, senior guard on Coach Howard Porter's ECC cage team, dropped out of the Pirate basketball picture early this year when he entered pre-medicine. Due to the heavy schedule of his study, James will be unable to participate in the sport this year. He has been a Pirate regular for three seasons.

Clemson Has Eyes For Gator Bowl

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An Atlantic Coast Conference football game this weekend between a team with a 3-3 conference record and one with a 0-5 conference mark might mean a bowl bid.

The game pits Clemson against winless Wake Forest. The Gator Bowl reportedly is interested in the Clemson Tigers.

Though Clemson is only 3-3 in conference play, the Tigers are 5-3 overall, and that includes a convincing 20-7 victory over highly esteemed Rice.

Tiger Coach Frank Howard admitted yesterday that he had started a program of clearing obstacles from his bowl path. The obstacles consist of vaguely worded ACC regulations and the ACC's Orange Bowl contract.

The Orange Bowl contract, being terminated this year, provides that the ACC send its "most representative" team — almost certainly Duke this year — to Miami, and allow no other ACC team to play a bowl game on New Year's Day. But, the Gator Bowl is played on Dec. 28.

Conference rules say that "a team" may play a bowl game. Howard has asked the ACC bowl committee to determine whether that means only one team. He also asked the committee to determine whether or not he could accept a bowl bid if one comes.

"I've got a fine football team, the best in the South," Howard says.

Even if he clears the technicalities, Howard still has to beat Wake Forest and the word from Winston-Salem is that the Demon Deacons, despite 10 straight losses (eight of them this season), are far from being a dispirited squad.

Coach Art (Pappy) Lewis, whose West Virginia squad had to go hard to defeat the Deacons, 27-14, last weekend, commented:

"Wake Forest is a darn good ball club. I can't understand why they haven't beaten somebody." Wake Forest worked lightly yesterday with the emphasis on defensive assignments. Clemson, meanwhile, staged a dummy practice and worked on both offense and defense.

Elsewhere around the conference yesterday:

Freshmen ran Duke plays against the North Carolina varsity in a dummy scrimmage. Coach Jim Tatum continued to stress defense as he prepared the Tar Heels for their annual "game of the year."

Duke halfbacks got the most work in the Blue Devils' practice, which lasted until after dark. Tackle Tom Topping, nursing an injured ankle, appeared a doubtful starter against the Tar Heels.

Coach Earle Edwards divided

North Carolina State's practice time between offensive and defensive preparations for meeting South Carolina Saturday. The kicking and passing game got attention.

South Carolina went through the roughest practice session in three weeks as Coach Warren Giese stepped up the pace for the State game. The workout featured a long scrimmage session.

Virginia Coach Ben Martin fears that he may be short-handed against Maryland Saturday because of illness and injuries to players. Virginia worked on both offense and defense and Martin reported drills "are going very well."

Maryland Coach Tommy Mont, on the other hand, expressed satisfaction with his squad's start in practice, so he changed his scheduled dummy drill to a full-scale scrimmage. The Terps got in 90 minutes of head-knocking.

Rusty Gavilan Takes Decision

CHICAGO (AP)—Kid Gavilan is showing signs of rust but his fighting instinct still has plenty of polish.

The former welterweight champion, who at 31 wants to regain the title, craftily won a unanimous decision over Boston's Walt Byars last night in a 10-rounder televised nationally from Chicago Stadium.

Byars, 25, was in a purple rage in the sixth round, complaining to Referee Frank Sikora that the Cuban Kid had struck a low blow. It looked for a minute as if Byars would tear into Gavilan in angered frenzy.

This he did at the start of the seventh, and the Kid cooled him off with a change of tactics. He started left-jabbing him and the former Marine featherweight champion of the Korean campaign could not score effectively.

Gavilan fought his stubby opponent wisely with a pressing body attack most of the time, and although many of his blows were blocked inside, enough were jammed through to pile up points.

Byars, who pushed the Kid away in a gesture of disgust after the bell ended the sixth round, appeared to be jeering the former champ throughout the ninth. It seemed to rile Gavilan, who missed Byars' head with several shots after the bell. The referee had to step in and send them to their corners.

Eastern Class A Football Crown Is On Line Friday

Tomorrow night at ECC Football Stadium, Edenton and Farmville square off to decide the Eastern Class A State football champions. One of the two clubs will advance to the finals of the state title.

Odds-makers are shifting more and more to the opinion that Edenton will be the advancing team. They have given the defending champs anywhere from one point to 14 points edge over Farmville tomorrow night.

It isn't surprising, neither is it upsetting to Farmville, according to reports from the Red Devil camp. Coach Elbert Moye's club has been tabbed with the underdog role in practically every game it has engaged in this season—yet they finished undefeated in Coastal Conference play and have dropped two foes out of the state playoffs since.

The primary reason for Edenton's being picked the favorite seems to be the prolific scoring power of the Aces. Coach Bill Billings' outfit roared through the Albemarle conference in high style during the regular season and have put down their two playoff opponents in smashing fashion.

Comparisons

By comparison, Edenton has been much the more impressive club in the playoffs. Farmville has been forced to take both its playoff victories by virtue of yardage gained, since both games have ended in ties. The Red Devils, playing on their own field on both occasions, were held to a 0-0 deadlock with Beaufort and were tied 6-6 by Red Springs.

Edenton, however, disposed of Weldon by a pulverizing 40-12 score in the first game of the playoffs and then demolished Erwin 19-6 last week.

The Aces will bring an extremely fast and versatile club to College Field tomorrow night, a club that depends on quick striking power in the line and a tricky set of plays. Much of the Edenton effectiveness has come about as a result of fine blocking in the forward wall and Coach Billings' team makes use of that. They are primarily a running team.

Farmville's Devils are a running team, too, and have done most of their damage on the ground. It is expected, however, that Red Devil quarterback Sonny Mall may be called upon to pass some tomorrow night against the Aces. He has had several good throwing nights this season and has been known to crack a hard defense via air.

Horace Corbett and Irving Allen, Farmville's rapid halfbacks, are expected to see heavy duty. Both have been effective this season on off-tackle slant and end run and Coach Moye will probably try to shake them loose tomorrow night against the defending champs. Both are dangerous broken-field runners.

Johnny Dixon will be used as the Farmville battering ram at full-back.

A big crowd is expected to attend the contest, which starts at 8:00. Both schools are reportedly bringing plenty of fans with them to the game and local interest seems to have been aroused, too.

Tighe Says Detroit 'Going Places'; Can't Stand Still

DETROIT (AP)—"They're all nice fellows and I hate to see them go. But we never did much while they were here. We're going to go places — and you can't go any place standing still."

Jack Tighe made that comment, discussing the 13-player deal that was announced yesterday by the Detroit Tigers and the Kansas City Athletics.

General Manager John J. McHale says he is ready to make more trades. The Tigers would like to get back Vic Wertz, the heavy-hitting first baseman whom they traded to the St. Louis Browns in 1952.

In the latest trade, the Tigers lost Bill Tuttle, Frank House, Duke Maas, Jim Small and John Tsitouris and two minor league players to be named later. They received Billy Martin, Gus Zernial, Maury McDermott, Lou Skizas, Tom Morgan and Tim Thompson.

People around Detroit feel the Tigers got the better of the deal.

Tighe said, "We did real well." The five Tigers named in the deal average 24½ years in age. The six players coming to Detroit have an average age of 29½. The Tigers elected not to hesitate, hope and wait two or three years for players who might become front-line major leaguers.

McHale worked hard on "the trade. It was in the talk stage for more than two months. He spent three days in Chicago last week with Arnold Johnson, A's president, and their general manager, Parke Carroll. McHale was in close contact with Tighe.

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Manager Harry Craft of the Kansas City Athletics thinks he may have fallen heir to a sleeper in the 13-player trade with the Detroit Tigers.

"Jim Small could turn out to be the big surprise in the whole deal. I like that boy," said Craft. Small, a lefthanded hitting outfielder only 20 years old, was paid a $35,000 bonus by the Tigers in 1955.

"He can run and he has a strong arm. He can hit with power, too. I think the Tigers got down on him. He had some trouble running bases last year. He is young and needs experience but I'm high on him," Craft said.

Toy Counters Are Preparing For Christmas Rush

BOB HARRINGTON, JR.—son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Harrington ... Dreams of Christmas morning.

So Christmas isn't here yet. So even Thanksgiving is a week away. Local merchants have begun displaying their Christmas toys and that's enough for the kids. As the multitude of shiny new playthings go on the shelves of local stores the youngsters begin to trickle in. As the Christmas season progresses the kids will spend more and more of their time at the toy counters. Gradually they will pick and choose among all the things they want until they narrow their choice down to the few things they feel St. Nick will bring. Are the toys which are appearing on Greenville store counters this year any different from years gone by? Well, one store manager says, "Toys are changing toward sports and scientific items." Another says, "Programs on television call for toys which are designed from the television shows." However, a variety store operator says, "Basically the toys are the same in local variety stores." He says there are still the old standbys of dolls, guns and cowboy outfits. At any rate, whatever the kids want this year the stores will have. There are bikes, dolls, guns and, yep, the cowboy suits. But there are also rocket launchers, space helmets and other toys which mark the satellite age.

All-Important Research Is Key To Scientific Advance

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter
NEW YORK (AP)—We are being urged to spend more tax dollars on research to keep ahead of the Russians scientifically.

Especially we must do more basic research, say President Eisenhower and leading scientists. Just what is it?

Dr. Albert Szent-gyorgyi, a Nobel Prize winner working at the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole, Mass., declares:

"Research is four things. Brains with which to think. Eyes with which to see. Machines with which to measure. And fourth, money. It is brains and eyes which are most important."

Research can be either applied or basic.

Applied means directed toward finding or developing a specific product, drug or other invention. It usually means applying existing knowledge in new ways.

Basic research is the quest for new knowledge, ideas, discovery of more secrets of nature—solely for the sake of adding to our knowledge.

Basic research feeds the well of knowledge from which great progress and inventions come. Without it, the well goes dry. Applied research then can only keep reworking old facts and ideas.

No one can predict just what fruits basic discoveries will bring, or when.

The A-bomb was created in a few years with two billion dollars and all-out effort.

This was possible only because the basic truths about the atom had been found in the preceding 20 years by scientists just curious about the structure of atoms.

Penicillin, the Salk vaccine, plastics, score upon score of our greatest achievements were possible only because of basic discoveries.

Such research is the source of radar, defense weapons, missiles, and future trips to the moon.

It paves the way to entire new industries, more jobs, more leisure time to enjoy the arts.

In basic research lie the keys to preventing heart attacks, and curing or preventing cancer and other diseases.

The Soviets have been putting greater and greater stress on basic research, and this has many scientists worried. Basic research is the road to supremacy in science.

The United States, through government and industry, spends about five billion dollars a year on research, with less than 10 per cent going for basic research, the National Science Foundation estimates.

"The greatest threat to this country — economically and militarily—is lack of fundamental research," declares Col. Benjamin Elings, head of the Air Force ICBM Titan project.

Top scientists predict enormous benefits from more funds for basic research in many fields.

Lack of money often hurts, making it hard to attract qualified, imaginative men and women. Another problem is to supply enough money over long enough periods to keep teams working on their projects.

Excellent men frequently leave basic research in universities because they need more income to support their families. Applied research jobs in industry have been paying far better.

As Dr. Vernon Lippard, dean of the Yale Medical School, puts it: Men who choose basic research or teaching usually need "a strong incentive, and an understanding wife, or private source of income."

The pay and support are improving, and this is an optimistic trend.

Einstein nearly starved in his early years, but kept at his basic research. The goal now is to attract and keep more scientists engaged in basic research.

Benjamin Franklin had an answer when he was asked, "What good is basic research? He replied: "What good is a baby?" Tomorrow: Training future scientists—their rewards.

Need Balance In Flying His Craft

DENISON, Tex. (AP)—Bob Tate, who never has ridden in a real airplane, soars up to 50 feet in a craft he built for $550.

He calls the invention, made of discarded TV antenna pipe and plywood, a "giro-glider."

Tate directs it to either side or up and down while an auto tow it on a cable. He's been up 14 times. "Balance is everything," he says. "A shift in your weight and you're in trouble."

The Doctor's Husband

SYNOPSIS

Tracy Vaughan and Rosalie Gibson are young interns at Children's Hospital in St. Louis. As the story opens, Rosalie and Dr. Richard Ash discuss the rumor that Tracy is going to marry Dr. Michael Loren, Senior Resident at the hospital. At dinner the next evening, Michael tells Tracy of his unhappy first marriage and asks her to be his wife. She accepts.

CHAPTER 4

By early June Michael was set in his professional course; he was going to be pediatrician in Dr. O'Connell's office. Dr. O'Connell was an eminent authority on allergies and Professor Emeritus in the Medical School.

With him, his offices in the Medical Arts building were two well-established physicians, Dr. Howard Nisbet, ear, nose, and throat, and Dr. Shale Rogers, X-ray specialist. The opening for a pediatrician in this group was a fine one for any doctor, and it marked Dr. Loren's ability as high.

There were a few who commented that it also marked his parents' ability to put up the money, but that was quibbling. Dr. O'Connell would not take a second-rate man at any price.

As for Tracy, she was all but established as assistant resident at Children's Hospital of the Lincoln Group, with the long hours and hard work implied in such an appointment. Michael had already been named as a staff doctor in pediatrics for the group, so Tracy would be on his service.

As for their personal plans, letters and phone calls flew back and forth between California and Missouri.

Michael's parents were enthusiastic about his marriage to Tracy, who sounded like such a nice girl! They offered partial support to the young couple, and were refused. "We'll do fine," said Michael, with Tracy at his elbow, nodding agreement.

What were their wedding plans? Simple. Tracy's parents lived in Florida; her father was an invalid.

"But there must be a wedding!" Mrs. Loren was insistent. "If you'll come out here—"

"We can't get away, Mother. To California, or Florida."

"Then we'll come to St. Louis!" He said he'd ask Tracy. . . . He did. A compromise was reached.

The Loren would come from California; the wedding could be small—but beautiful! There must be invitations—Mrs. Loren would send her list at once. A date was set, and plans began to whirl about Tracy's bewildered head. Michael helped her with everything.

It was Michael who selected an apartment to show her. It was near the hospital, and around the corner from his office on Maryland Avenue. . . . which meant that it was much too expensive for a young married couple just starting out in their careers. But it was furnished, Michael pointed out.

Tracy shook her head. "It's too big," she argued. "And, oh, Michael, the rent is twice what we should be paying."

"Don't you have any confidence in me, Tracy?"

"Well, of course I do, Michael. Oh, darling, I'm only trying to say that we shouldn't spend money we only hope to get. We don't need all this. . . . She turned and waved her hand at the long living room in Williamsburg green and the bedroom in rose and ivory.

"At our stage of the game, a one room efficiency would do us."

"Now, my darling, suppose you listen to me." He took her arm and led her to the couch set under the windows.

"First," he said, "as a resident in the Group, you'll have to live close to the hospital. Otherwise they'd insist on your occupying the quarters they provide for you."

In the Nurses' Home. "But, Michael. . . ."

"Shhhh. Second, you talk about stages in my profession—"

Our profession?"

He smiled at her. "All right. But your living place is somewhat restricted by your stage, and we've handled that. So, now for mine. Which of course we want to be ours, some day."

She put her head down against his arm.

"Well, it does seem required that a doctor as big as you in order to have others think he is one. Also he must make a certain sort of picture for other doctors who may—or may not—call him in consultation or refer patients to him."

"Front," she said, boiling down in his words.

"If you like to use that term, yes. But you know as well as I do that over in the hospital we judge a visiting doctor by the way his hair is cut, the way he dresses, the car he drives—"

"We shouldn't."

"No, but we do. Therefore I must look successful to be successful, and the home I live in is part of that impression."

Tracy took a deep breath and looked at her watch. "I hope you're right enough to pay the rent on this," she told him.

He hugged her. "My folks would love to help us, darling."

Tracy looked up at him in horror. "Oh, Michael, they've already done too much!"

"They've done a lot," he agreed. "They've bought me into O'Connell's office, which sets me up in business. But my father thinks he owes that to his son."

"Besides your car? And your education? Oh, Mike."

He grinned. "I told you I was going to pay him back. I meant it. So—Come on, honey. I've got to get you back to the hospital, or you'll be late." His hand fumbled in his coat pocket. "Here's your key to the apartment. Don't lose it."

She looked up into Michael's face. "You've already rented it?"

"Sure. I knew you'd see it my way."

The next night, Saturday, Tracy passed up a date with Michael to attend a party in her honor at the dorm. He was inclined to protest.

It was excitingly pleasant to have him mind, but the shower was fun, too. The girls had gone all out with food, decorations, and gifts. The party was held in one of the small date rooms at the dorm, and each of the twelve young women present wished her well and sincerely.

So they rustled tissue paper and exclaimed over sheer stockings and a pretty slip, and laughed loudly at Rosalie's gift, a huge pink pottery pig in which Tracy, she said, was to save her pennies for that Oriental rug she had always wanted when she had a home.

So they talked about Tracy's ideas of the house she and Michael would build some day, and that led to a discussion of the apartment which Michael had rented.

"When . . ."

"Next week," said Tracy. "Saturday. A week from today. You'll get invitations Monday. They're in the mail—finally."

She smiled shyly. "Please don't be impressed. Michael's family wanted to have things a little more elaborate than I would have planned." She looked earnestly at her friends. "You must not feel that another gift is required!"

"We won't," said someone. "We couldn't afford it."

"I know," agreed Tracy. "But come to the church if you can. And Michael's parents are giving a buffet luncheon at the Jefferson afterwards—then we'll leave, rather early, for our honeymoon."

has to be crammed into the week end. We won't want to waste any of it. I—as I said—I didn't want an elaborate affair. The ceremony is the big thing, and the fact that we'll be married."

Her joy was shining so white in her face that the young women about her felt some of the magic of her love and were thrilled.

Rosalie Gibson clenched her hands in a vow to scalp Michael Loren if one spark of that glow should ever leave Tracy's eyes.

Michael's family wanted to have things a little more elaborate than I would have planned."

"We won't," said someone. "We couldn't afford it."

"I know," agreed Tracy. "But come to the church if you can. And Michael's parents are giving a buffet luncheon at the Jefferson afterwards—then we'll leave, rather early, for our honeymoon."

Photo-Electric Cell Wired To Brain Opens Door To 'Electronic Vision'

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—"Oh, I can see the light," said Miss Corstorphine, who was blind for 18 years, after she reacted to a new electronic device, her surgeons said.

The woman, Betty Corstorphine, 35, underwent a series of tests in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, Los Angeles, last month using a photo-electric cell connected to wires in her brain.

"I saw flashes at one time a bright flash like an electric light bulb, and at another time a grayness as though a light had just gone out," she said.

Dr. John C. Button said the test showed that brain cells did not atrophy like unused muscle cells but could be stimulated.

Saying that the test "opens the door to the possibilities of electronic vision," he predicted that with adequate funds medical science could refine the apparatus so that within five years almost all blind people could "see" by means of electrical stimulus of the vision centers.

"Eventually," he said, "I'm sure we'll get real sight."

Miss Corstorphine expressed a cautious optimism about the experiment.

"I went out there knowing, of course, that I was not going to get my sight back," she said. "I knew it was only a test, that much more research will have to go into it. But someday—we're hoping it's soon—there may be vision aids for the blind like there are hearing aids."

Button, a 46-year-old neurologist who lives in nearby Maplewood, described the device that may eventually be developed as "something like a radarscope or television set."

Miss Corstorphine, who volunteered for the tests begun last Oct. 23, has been blind since 1939 because of the pressure of an inoperable, benign tumor on her optic nerve.

"It is my understanding that there are different kinds of blindness," she said. "I seem to have alternating days—one day in which everything seems bright and another day in which it seems dark."

But, she added, "what I saw in Los Angeles was different—I saw flashes."

Button, who is also an osteopath, conducted the experiment with Dr. Tracy Putnam, former professor of neurosurgery at Harvard University and presently chief of neurosurgery at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

First, Button said, wires about half the thickness of a human hair were passed through drilled holes into Miss Corstorphine's brain.

They were then pushed about two inches into the back of the brain to the centers of vision.

The wires were attached to a transistor amplifier which, in turn, was connected to a small photo-electric cell. The theory was that the photoelectric cell would pick up light and convert it into a mild electric charge, thereby stimulating the brain.

Miss Corstorphine was given the cell and told to point it about a partially darkened room. As the cell was pointed toward lights placed about the room, Miss Corstorphine said she received flashes of light.

In further tests, Button said, she was able to determine whether the light was to her left or right. She could pick up flashes from lights as dim as a 40-watt bulb, he said.

The device, he said, can work on any blindness except that caused by injury to the center of vision deep in the brain. "And," he added, "there aren't many of them."

Heavy Explosion Sinks Italian Ship At Dock

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—The 2,285-ton Italian freighter Anna Maria levi sank alongside a Naples dock today soon after a violent explosion ripped through her mid-section.

Two Italians were known dead and two to five workers, believed trapped underwater aboard the wreck, were presumed dead.

More than 35 persons were injured, half a dozen of them seriously.

A U.S. Navy spokesman said no American ships or Navy men were near the scene of the blast. He added that the Navy offered help but Italian officials said they had the situation under control.

The ship went down in 40 feet of water. Only part of her bow projected above the surface.

Drivers from the Naples fire department were sent down to investigate. The cause of the explosion was not immediately determined.

The blast shattered windows in nearby buildings. Many of the injured were passers-by cut by flying glass.

Knows Secret Of 'Curing' Pests

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—A Hoosier doctor says he knows how to handle a "sidewalk consultation" patient.

This sort of patient, who makes a practice of asking a doctor's help at chance street meetings, is a bane of the profession, said Dr. E. Keith Hammond of Paoli, Ind., in a talk to the Michigan State Medical Society.

Dr. Hammond told J. one in particular. The cure was quick. "He told me he thought he had a hernia so I told him to strip on the spot for an examination."

In Connecticut a fishing license for women is cheaper than those sold to men.

Garden Plot Has Its Difficulties

POSTORIA, Ohio (AP)—That vegetable garden that retired Police Capt. Robert Walters dreamed about is having neighbor trouble.

The first time Walters planted it, a neighbor accidentally went over the boundary and disked it as part of his cornfield. The garden was replanted and nearing maturity when a neighbor employed a crop dusting plane to kill weeds in his corn. The weed killer finished off Walters' garden again.

"Maybe next year," says Walters. The U. S. Navy launched its first electrically propelled ship, the Jupiter, 44 years ago.

Gore Indicates Belief Atomic Energy Act Needn't Be Changed At Present

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) said today he believes European readiness to use American nuclear weapons in wartime can be achieved without amending the Atomic Energy Act.

"I generally favor increased cooperation with out allies in this field and if an amendment to the law is regarded as necessary by the administration, I would give it serious and sympathetic consideration," Gore said in an interview.

"But as of now I know of no such need and none has been indicated to the Senate-House committee."

Gore's statement reflects, in part, the kind of opposition in Congress which some think might force some compromises in the administration's announced intention to seek a freer exchange of scientific atomic information with U.S. allies.

President Eisenhower has said he will ask Congress to lift some of the secrecy provisions of the Atomic Energy Act.

The proposal has drawn a mixed, and none too favorable, reaction from Senate-House Atomic Energy committee members, of whom Gore is one. Chairman Durham (D-NC), among others, has questioned the adequacy of security systems in nations which would get such secret information.

Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles appear determined to seek some lowering of the secrecy ban. But some members of Congress obviously are beginning to see a possible way around this in Dulles' proposal to establish stockpiles of American atomic weapons in Europe.

"There is nothing in the Atomic Energy Act to prevent our allies from being informed of the size of these weapons, their destructive power and of the mechanics for their use in planes or artillery," Gore said.

The act prevents the divulging of information about the design and fabrication of the nuclear component of the weapon. It is this information that Eisenhower and Dulles apparently want to pool with Britain and other allies.

However, members of the Senate-House committee have raised questions about the British security system. They have said that if information is given to Britain, it also must be given to France, Italy and West Germany. Some of them regard this as too wide a field of dispersal of secrets, not all of which may be known to Russia.

Worth More To Him Than Fees

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—The Wyoming Game and Fish Dept. recently received a letter from Karl Schakel of Cincinnati containing a $200 check and this note:

"I have enjoyed hunting and fishing in Wyoming for several years. The privilege of hunting and fishing in your state is worth far more to me than your license fees and I would like to contribute the enclosed check . . ."

These weapons would be earmarked for Allied use in the event of war, but would remain under technical control of the United States and thus would not violate existing law governing disposal of such weapons.

Gore said that with such stockpiles established the United States could go ahead with all of the necessary preparations for Allied use of the weapons without changing the law.

College Entrance Tests Scheduled

Entrance examinations for new students who plan to attend East Carolina College during the winter quarter will be administered at the college Monday, December 2, at 9:30 in the Austin auditorium. All students applying for admission to the college for the first time are required to take the tests.

Dr. Judson White of the department of psychology, director of testing at East Carolina, will be in charge of the examinations.

The winter quarter at the college will begin December 2, when registration for classes will take place in the Wright building. Classes will begin Tuesday, December 3.

Bureau Protests Increased Rates

RALEIGH (AP)—A proposed hike in fire insurance rates on dwellings in unprotected areas has drawn protests from the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation and its affiliate Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co.

Their opposition was voiced yesterday by a public hearing before Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold on the rate increases proposed by the North Carolina Fire Insurance Rating Bureau.

Gold will give his decision after studying the record of the hearing, and other information relating to the proposed rate hike. It would amount to a total of $2,790,819 in annual premium volume.

Under the proposal, superior and ordinary classifications would be set up for dwellings in unprotected areas. Those classes as superior would be eligible for the present rate of 54 cents per $100 insurance for frame dwellings, while those classes as ordinary would have a rate of 80 cents.

A. C. Edwards of Hookerton, a spokesman for the Farm Bureau, said he suggested modifications in the requirements for superior classifications.

William T. Joyner of Raleigh, attorney for the rate bureau, said the rate proposal was drastic but not excessive.

Teamsters Set Up Defense Fund

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Top officers of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters have acknowledged a legal defense fund is being raised and may reach $150,000.

President-elect James R. Hoffa predicted the fund would total $75,000 to $100,000 and Harold J. Gibbons of St. Louis, an international vice president, said he will be very happy if the union can raise $150,000.

Both denied Chicago Tribune reports the fund will be as much as two million dollars.

Hoffa said in Detroit the union expects a wave of legal cases involving officials and business agents, especially if the Teamsters are kicked out of the AFL-CIO.

He said the fund "won't be used for my defense in pending trials. It will be used for the benefit of business agents."

Gibbons said only full-time, paid officers of the 800 Teamsters locals in the United States and Canada are asked to donate.

Continued Activity In 'Routine' Week

By SANDRA McLAUGHON
Ayden School Reporter

Things have been rather quiet at Ayden High School during the past two weeks, except for complaints about aching muscles by members of the boys and girls basketball squads.

The teams will open their schedules December 3. Practice sessions, which opened recently, were continuing each afternoon.

Seniors are hard at work to make their annual class play a big success. The play, "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," will be presented Friday night at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium. Admission will be 35 cents for students and 50 cents for adults.

The usual Homecoming Dance at AHS was replaced this year with a Coronation Dance that reflected the manner in which the school's various clubs and organizations can coordinate their activities.

The high school chorus was in charge of refreshments and the Future Homemakers of America conducted the crowning ceremony. Decorations were handled by the Beta Club and the Ayden-Winter-ville dance band, composed of the high school marching band, provided music for the dance.

Another coordinated feature at the Coronation Dance was taking pictures of the Homecoming sponsors and their escorts for the annual.

The annual staff has been working hard for several weeks to insure a high-quality production this year, and recent night and after-school meetings have resulted in preparation of the first 16 pages for the publisher. Additional work on the yearbook will be conducted as the events come along.

A recent school assembly featured a talk by Mrs. Irene Idhe, a New Jersey native who recently returned from several years of missionary duty in Japan. At the time of her chapel program for the students, Mrs. Idhe conducted a revival at the Ayden Methodist Church.

Plans for a November 26 poetry contest were formulated and discussed at a recent meeting of the National Forensic League. Invitation to prospective attendants are in the process of being mailed and the group anticipate a large participation.

WINNERS—AND A LOSER
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Vice squadmen who played the horses for a week to get evidence against a bookie did pretty well. Patrolmen Francis T. Noland and Robert Wolverton picked three winners. However, their winnings had to be turned in—along with the bookie.

Report Advance In Bank Debits

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Bank debits in five major North Carolina cities rose in October over the corresponding month last year, the Federal Reserve Bank said today. They declined in five cities.

For the second consecutive month, Asheville showed the greatest gain with a 21 per cent increase from $76,400,000 to $92,110,000. High Point was second with a 10 per cent rise from $58,045,000 to $63,949,000.

Greensboro's debits rose from $186,000,000 to $194,392,000, an increase of 5 per cent. Wilmington followed with a 4 per cent gain from $59,452,000 to $61,591,000, and Winston-Salem showed a 1 per cent rise from $222,946,000 to $225,805,000.

The greatest decrease was reported by Raleigh which showed a 22 per cent drop from $359,253,000 to $281,770,000. The Reserve Bank said that both Durham and Winston reported a 19 per cent decline from $139,318,000 to $111,917,000, and from $74,245,000 to $60,332,000, respectively.

Kinston followed with an 18 per cent drop from $51,012,000 to $41,720,000, while Charlotte reported a decline of less than 1 per cent, $494,836,000 to $494,650,000.

Debits—the value of checks written by individuals and businesses against their demand deposit accounts—are regarded as significant yardsticks of the business activity of an area.

Regular Visitor At Army Post

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)—"Stockade Annie" is a familiar figure around this Army post.

But you won't find this 80-year-old woman around the service clubs. She visits the stockade and the hospital.

Each Sunday, Mrs. Anna Mabry, a visitor at the post for 15 years, shows up with presents for the sick and a word of cheer for a GI who may have gone wrong. The bus company long ago gave her a pass from her Hopkinsville home to the post, where she is allowed to wander unaccompanied.

Recently, several soldiers chipped in to buy her a gold lapel watch.

Hurried To Meet At Wrong Hall

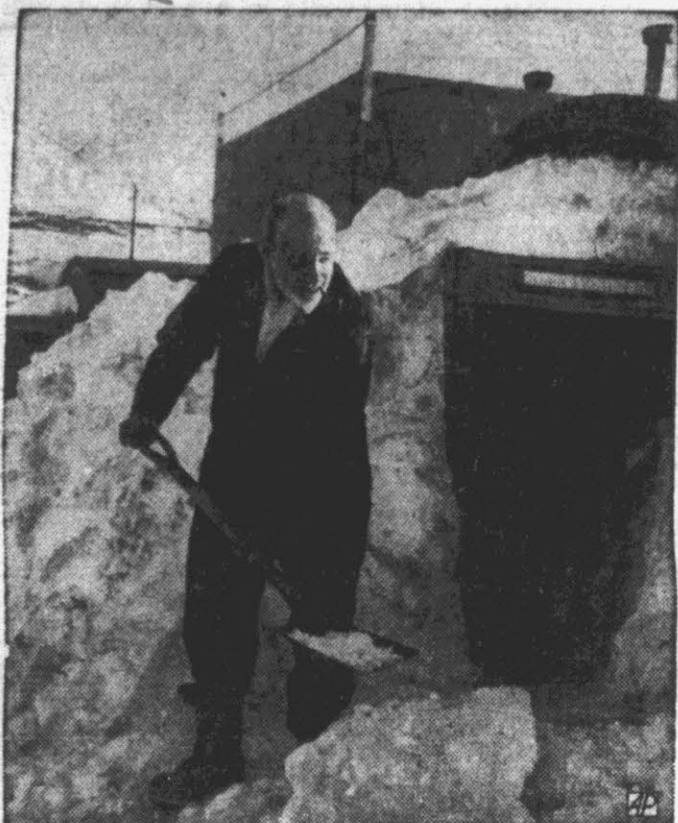

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—A man rushed into the Norman Chamber of Commerce office and told City Manager John F. Malone "Sorry I'm late for the meeting."

"What meeting?" asked Malone.

"A retail trade committee meeting," said the man.

"That was last Monday," Malone explained. Suddenly a light dawned on the man's face and he explained as he rushed for the door: "I remember now. It wasn't the Chamber at all. The meeting is at the Baptist Church."

Union Records To Be Called Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate rackety investigators said today they will subpoena convention election records of Teamsters locals in the union's Central Conference.

Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel of the special Senate committee, said only a few locals in the conference, headed by James R. Hoffa, have complied voluntarily with a committee request for the information.

Compliance has been better elsewhere, Kennedy said, with "a little over 50 per cent" of the records received and others promised.

Kennedy said that over 75 per cent of the delegates on whom information has been received so far were elected in violation of the union's constitution.

The records, which Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.) asked by letter last month, deal with local union's selection of delegates to the convention which elected Hoffa president of the Teamsters.

The committee contends many of the delegates were chosen improperly. Similar charges have been made in a Federal District Court suit challenging Hoffa's election, and he has been barred from taking office pending outcome of the suit. Trial now is scheduled for Dec. 2.

Kennedy told newsmen that among the locals which have complied are virtually all of those in the Western and Eastern conferences of Teamsters.

He said locals in the Southern Conference have not yet furnished the information but have agreed to do by Jan. 1 or after the end of the court case here on Hoffa's election—whichever is earlier.

Sees Revolution In Agriculture

CHICAGO (AP)—A North Carolina banker called today for "strategically located local manufacturing industries to absorb the people who are no longer needed on farms."

A. K. Davis of Winston-Salem observed that an agricultural revolution is in progress and one of its most serious results is that fewer farmers can produce more food and commodities.

"Obviously, we cannot maintain our traditional economy in this dynamic situation," Davis said. "The solution appears to lie in acquiring strategically located local manufacturing industries to absorb the people who are no longer needed on farms."

"This kind of rural industrialization will preserve the present social and economic pattern and at the same time, offer strong advantages for such industries which could not be enjoyed in metropolitan locations."

"This type of industrialization must be carried out on a regional basis, not just on the community level."

Davis, chairman of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., addressed the sixth national agricultural credit conference of the American Bankers Assn.

Discussing the Southeastern United States, Davis said there has been a most encouraging increase in farm income year after year "along with less reliance on the traditional cash crops."

The region, he said, needs more markets and marketing facilities and more processing plants for its agricultural commodities.

Flailed Fists, Thugs Retreat

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Father J. McNamany, a Roman Catholic priest, has a slight cut on his right hand today—but a couple of thugs may have some bruises.

Father McNamany said the thugs tried to rob him while he was walking along a dark street last night. Not a man to give up his wallet easily, the priest came up with fists swinging and the thugs beat a hasty retreat.

And with his Irish grin, the good father told police he still had his wallet.

Tobacconists On Way To Burley Market Opening

PARMVILLE—Local representatives of seven tobacco companies have departed for assignments on burley tobacco markets which will open Monday.

The buyers are reporting to posts in western North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and Indiana.

Buyers who have departed include:

Farmville Leaf Tobacco Company: H. N. Howard and H. N. Nolen Jr. to Glasgow, Ky.; K. B. Nolen Jr. to Glasgow, Ky.; K. B. Lytle, West Jefferson, N.C.; G. R. Smith Jr., Shelbyville, Ky.; N. A. Smith Jr., Carrollton, Ky.; J. W. Dale and Stuart Hamm, London, Ky.; and R. S. Scott, Louisville, Ky.

American Suppliers, Inc.: H. P. Cunningham, Knoxville, Tenn., and Randolph Allen, Carrollton, Ky.

Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company: Allen C. Darden, Lexington, Ky., and Paul Burnette, Madison, Ind.

Reynolds Tobacco Company: R. E. Pickett and Bill Gregory, Hartsville, Tenn.; Critz Hillard, Nashville, Tenn.; James Corbett, Fayetteville, Tenn.; Dalton Corbett, Pennington Gap, Va.; Billy Marsden, Franklin, Ky.; and J. B. Vandorff, Shelbyville, Ky.

A. C. Monk and Company, Inc.: A. R. Drake, John Andrews and Bill Allen, Abingdon, Va.; R. S. Johnson, Boone, N.C.; B. F. Wood, Sparta, Tenn.; Clarence Davis and Raymond Shivers, Morristown, Tenn.; Bevo Bridgeforth, Danville, Ky.; H. D. Laughinghouse, W. R. Hodges, J. M. Gibbs and Ed Beckman, Horse Cave, Ky.; and Joe Fluke and Charles Carr, Carrollton, Ky.

Imperial Tobacco Company will send J. C. Johnson to the Lynchburg, Va., market but he will not leave until December 1.

In addition to the Farmville buyers, James H. Kilpatrick has gone to Glasgow, Ky., and Martin Albright has reported to Danville, Ky., for posts in warehouses in the two towns.

Pountain residents who will report to assignments on the burley belt include Albert R. Bell, Roscoe Bell and James Walston. They will all go to Louisville, Ky.

Jurors Voted For Defendant

A jury verdict in favor of the defendant yesterday removed another case from the civil docket of Pitt County Superior Court.

The action, brought by J. R. Watkins, Co. of Winona, Minn., sought to recover $236.51, with six per cent interest from March 18, 1955, from Molly Shackelford of Greenville.

The company claimed it was due that amount from the defendant on grounds that she had signed as a surety for one of the company's agents.

In its complaint, the Watkins company claimed it entered into a contract on March 19, 1954, with James H. Williams who was to distribute Watkins products. The complaint also stated that the Shackelford woman was one of three persons who signed as sureties for Williams and that she was liable for a balance due the company.

In her answer, the defendant denied she had signed as a surety, claiming that the only paper she had ever signed for Williams was one he represented as a character affidavit for the purpose of seeking employment. She also claimed she could not neither read nor write except to the extent of writing her name.

A jury ruled that the Shackelford woman did not execute the contract and that she was not indebted to the Watkins company in any amount. After the jury's action, J. Bone ordered the suit dismissed and taxed the Watkins company with the costs.

Plead Guilty To Robbing Singer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two of four men charged with the $90,000 robbery of singer Lauritz Melchior's home have pleaded guilty. They will be sentenced Dec. 16.

The other two pleaded innocent yesterday and will stand trial.

The loot, chiefly furs and jewels, was recovered 48 hours after the June 18 robbery with the arrest of Richard McFall, 39, and Alfred Pope, 28. They pleaded guilty.

Louis Spivack, 44, and Wayne Burke, 39, pleaded innocent.

Other than their edible values, spices have often been used in place of gold and currency.

Woman Hurt In Truck-Auto Collision

WOMAN PAINFULLY INJURED IN COLLISION YESTERDAY
... accident occurred at intersection of N. C. 43 and 11.

A woman was painfully but not seriously injured yesterday afternoon in a truck-automobile accident at the intersection of N. C. Highways 11 and 43.

Mrs. Jean Johnston Switzer of Greenville Rt. 5 sustained three fractured ribs, a broken shoulder blade and a broken arm as well as minor lacerations and abrasions when the automobile she was driving collided with a heavy truck, laden with sand. Following treatment at Pitt Memorial Hospital, she was admitted. Her condition is considered "good."

Mrs. Switzer's four-month-old daughter, riding in the front seat, received minor lacerations and abrasions. The infant was treated and released.

The driver of the truck belonging to Dunn Builders Supply was identified as Charles Lewis Morris, 27-year-old Negro of Stokes Rt. 1. He was not injured.

Pit. H. R. Winslow of the State Highway Patrol, the investigating officer, stated the 1953 automobile operated by the injured woman was a total loss. The front of the truck struck the automobile a few inches from the front door on the left side. Damage to the truck was estimated to be $200.

The mishap occurred at 4:10 p. m. Assisting Winslow with his investigation was Pit. W. K. Chapman, State Highway Patrolman from Bethel, and City Police.

Winslow stated this morning that his investigation of the accident has not been completed.

Tribble's Position Gathers Strength From Convention

RALEIGH (AP)—Wake Forest President Harold W. Tribble, faced with an alumni move to unseat him, has found strong support in the Baptist State Convention.

Two victories were scored by supporters of Dr. Tribble yesterday in sessions of the convention's 127th annual meeting here.

First, the convention gave the college president a resounding vote of confidence. Then it elected to the Wake Forest Board of Trustees nine persons regarded as friendly to his administration.

Nine alternate candidates, considered to be generally anti-Tribble, were defeated by a margin approaching two to one.

The two actions seemed likely to throw roadblocks in the path of a drive by some Wake Forest alumni to remove Dr. Tribble. An alumni group recently mailed out some 14,000 copies of a report critical of his administration, and called for his resignation.

The convention's Nominating Committee submitted the names of nine persons, considered Tribble supporters, to fill expiring terms on the 36-member Wake Forest Board of Trustees.

R. D. Holleman of Durham countered with a slate of nominees. He said he was concerned about reports and rumors from the college which raised "danger signals." The only way to correct the situation, he said, "is to elect men and women who will get to these things and report to this convention."

A lengthy ballot count followed the convention's decision to vote on all 18 candidates. However, the nine offered by the nominating committee were elected by wide margins.

They were: The Rev. James Potter, Raleigh, 1,311 votes; the Rev. Gilmer Cross, Goldsboro, 1,357; Odus M. Mull, Shelby, 1,269; Charles Jenkins, Aulander, 1,302; the Rev. Dr. Swan Haworth, Lumberton, 1,327; the Rev. James C. Crammack, Fayetteville, 1,314; the Rev. Charles B. Summey, Knightdale, 1,282; Charles H. Larkins Sr., Kinston, 1,278; and Mrs. Earle James, Elkin, 1,305.

Those nominated by Holleman and the vote they received: Dr. J. Street Brewer, Goldsboro, 533; Mrs. J. M. Broughton Sr., Raleigh, 703; the Rev. A. P. Stephens, Lumberton, 523; Dr. I. Beverly Lake, Wake Forest, 617; John A. McLeod, Dunn, 507; Robert Forney, Lawndale, 418; H. P. Taylor Sr., Wadesboro, 519; Calvin Knight, Weldon, 575; and Fred Williams, Greensboro, 459.

The call for a vote of confidence came from the Rev. Douglas M. Branch of Rocky Mount, a member of the Wake Forest board and immediate past convention president. It carried by an overwhelming margin.

Dr. Tribble told newsmen the action "brought me genuine inspiration. I count it as a great privilege and duty to do my best at Wake Forest College in working in close cooperation with our beloved convention."

Grover Morris, chairman of the project committee said that Jaycees will furnish shotguns and shells. However he said that contestants may bring their own shotguns, preferably .12 gauge, if they desire.

Proceeds will be used for Jaycee civic projects.

THE DIFFERENCE

SOUTH KINGSTON, R.I. (AP)—Prof. Mollit S. Smart, assistant professor of child development and family relations at the state university, told a Parent-Teacher Assn. Meeting that the consistent difference between the normal weight children and the fat ones is that the latter spend more time watching TV.

Sponsor Annual Turkey Shoot

AYDEN—Local Jaycees are sponsoring their annual Thanksgiving Turkey Shoot Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It will be held in a field across from Jenkins Motor Co. just south of Ayden on N. C. 11.

Grover Morris, chairman of the project committee said that Jaycees will furnish shotguns and shells. However he said that contestants may bring their own shotguns, preferably .12 gauge, if they desire.

Proceeds will be used for Jaycee civic projects.

They Now Own A Pacific Island

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—What would you do if you suddenly won a South Pacific island complete with furnished hut, outrigger canoe and a native man Friday?

Well, the Kent Shelybs, who won an island in a national limerick contest sponsored by a movie studio and travel agency, have this to say:

"We intend to bask in the sun and just fish and swim and read and let the rest of the world go by."

Shelby, 23, an aircraft worker, said yesterday that his wife and 15-month-old daughter plan to fly to the 4 1/2-acre island in the Fiji group about the first of the year.

"If it's as good as it sounds we may never come back," Shelby said.

Rock 'n' Roll Invades Africa

NEW YORK (AP)—Rock 'n' roll is taking over in South Africa, according to a Zulu disc jockey.

King Edward Masanga, 41, who conducts a daily Zulu language program in Durban, is in this country on a special State Department grant to study American drama and broadcasting.

Masanga said his program in Durban features the old folk music, but that it is losing out to rock 'n' roll. Even the natives in the back country, he said, buy rock 'n' roll records when they come to town.

WRONG BULLSEYE

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Richard Patterson, a sharpshooter with his B.B. gun, hit the wrong bullseye when he put a shotgun shell on the ground, aimed, fired, and exploded it. A bit of the brass rim caromed off Richard's forehead. He was treated at a hospital for lacerations.

Doubt Criticisms Will Deter Adlai In New Job

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators Smathers (D-Fla.) and Gore (D-Tenn.) said today criticism from within the Eisenhower administration is not going to deflect Adlai E. Stevenson from advising Secretary of State Dulles on NATO policies.

The two Democratic senators said they regretted what they called a disparaging statement about Stevenson's abilities by Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's chief assistant.

Adams said in Chicago Monday that the American people want bipartisanship in international affairs and were getting it by Stevenson's inclusion in an advisory role in the efforts to work out a program for the North Atlantic Treaty Council meeting in Paris next month.

With obvious reference to Stevenson, twice-defeated Democratic presidential nominee, Adams added: "I'm not saying anything about the talents of the people being invited to consult with us."

Smathers, who heads the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee said he regards this as "a typical nit-picking statement from Adams."

"It will be ignored by Stevenson and other Democrats who believe in patriotic bipartisanship on international problems," Smathers said.

Gore said in a separate interview he thinks Adams made "an unfortunate and entirely gratuitous statement."

"Stevenson is too big a man to be affected by this sort of thing," he said.

Stevenson himself, asked in Chicago to comment on Adams' statement, said, "I will leave political comments to Republicans."

Sen. Clifford Case (R-N.J.) said he believes Stevenson will make "useful and constructive suggestions" in conferences with Dulles. Case added he doesn't think disparaging statements will help the cause of bipartisanship.

Sen. Wiley R. Wisl told an audience in Teaneck, N. J., last night he feels strongly "that in this critical hour of history we must achieve a revitalization of bipartisanship."

CPA Group Has Meet In Kinston

The Coastal Plains Area Chapter of the North Carolina Association of Certified Public Accountants held its November meeting in Kinston Tuesday night.

Thirty-one members of the chapter, including representatives from Greenville, heard talks by W. A. Townsend Jr. and Herman Wolff Jr., tax attorneys of Raleigh. They discussed methods of handling
