Ingredients: 1 cup self-rising flour, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 6 tablespoons (about) milk, extra milk, grated Parmesan cheese, paprika.
Method: Cut flour and butter together with a pastry blender until fat particles are tiny. With a fork, stir in milk a few tablespoons at a time, to form a dough; mixture will be stiff. If it is too stiff to drop, add a little more milk. Drop dough into muffin pans whose wells are small—each 2 tablespoon capacity—filling wells almost to top. Brush tops of dough with extra milk; sprinkle about 1/2 teaspoon grated Parmesan; dust with paprika. Bake in a hot (450 degrees) oven 12 to 15 minutes or until biscuits are baked through and tops are lightly browned. Serve piping hot. Makes 10 small drop biscuits.

Yule Decorations Can Be Made Inexpensively

"Use what you have in your Christmas decorations . . . do not commercialize . . . leave Christ in your decorations," urged Mrs. Lester Turnage of Farmville when she spoke to the Elmhurst Garden Club yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. James Tucker.

"Begin the first of December telling your children the true meaning of Christmas. Let them know that it is Christ's birthday. Children should learn that it is better to give than to receive," she said.

To illustrate "Use What You Have," Mrs. Turnage showed the members how a jolly snowman could be made from a half pint milk bottle covered with cotton. After making a head from a small round piece of cotton she quickly added arms and a face.

By taping a cork and adding a bright red hat and long white beard she created a wee Santa Claus. "For tree decorations save tin can lids which you can center with pictures and encircle with fringe," explained Mrs. Turnage.

"Do you use can biscuits? If so, save the empty cans . . . cover them with mesh and bright Christmas balls for a clapper."

Another novel, inexpensive decoration was demonstrated by using crepe paper, wire, and floral tape to form gay poinsettias.

Club President, Mrs. James Grulke, presided over a brief business meeting at which time the club accepted the resignation of Mrs. J. W. Baker.

The hostess served coffee, donuts, cakes, and assorted crackers. The next meeting will be held December 16 with Mrs. James Grulke

Don't Just Sit—Develop Interests

By DOROTHY ROE
As: Aclaimed Press Women's Editor

A woman who sits at home and complains because her husband is too busy to take her out dining and dancing is not only a dope but also is well started on the road to Reno, says Phyllis Cerf, society wife of one of America's busiest men, publisher-author-TV panelist Bennett Cerf.

The only sensible thing for a wife to do, says Phyllis, is to get busy herself and develop just as many fascinating outside interests as her husband has.

Mrs. Cerf is a publisher in her own right, author or co-author of half a dozen successful books, a nationally famous puzzle expert, a newspaper columnist and a regular contributor to a national magazine. Her latest book, "The Complete Family Fun Book," which she co-authored with her friend and puzzle collaborator Edith Young, has just been published by Random House and contains several hundred ways to avoid being bored.

In addition this very busy wife is the mother of two sons, Christopher, 16, and Jonathan, 11, runs an apartment in New York and a home in the country, entertains lavishly and loves her husband.

"When we were first married," says Phyllis, "Bennett was hopping around like a cat on a hot tin roof, doing thousands of things, and I was complaining. Then I got smart and got busy too."

Before her marriage Phyllis had been successively a movie actress, an advertising executive and author of radio scripts. Then she was introduced to Bennett Cerf by the late Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker magazine, and forgot all about careers for a time.

The work of 15 students will be shown tonight. Pottery on exhibition will include many types of articles. Techniques used include the coil, pinch, slab, and potter's wheel methods of work. The students whose work is included in the show developed their own glazes and applied their own decorations to the articles made.

An informal social hour will be held for guests attending the exhibition, Persick states.

A new course in pottery will be offered at the college next quarter. Those who are interested in enrolling may obtain information from William Persick, Art Department, East Carolina College.

Egypt's First Coed Recalls Early Days

By ANGELO NATALE
CAIRO (AP)—The young Egyptian girl hesitated at the gates of the American University in Cairo. Then, overcoming her fears, she ran up the stairs and became Egypt's first coed.

Today, almost 30 years later, Eva El Masri recalls with a touch of pride how she blazed a trail which thousands of other young Egyptian girls have since followed.

In the Egypt of 30 years ago, it was almost unthinkable for a girl to venture far into the halls of knowledge. Her place was in the home, her purpose to prepare for marriage and children. Women were heavily veiled. Polygamy was commonplace. Seclusion of women in harems was more or less the rule.

But Eva—now Mrs. Yousef Sidhom—came from a family with an almost unquenchable thirst for knowledge. She cracked a barrier of prejudice against women and found a surprisingly small amount of hostility. She says: "I was very reserved. As the only girl, I had to be. As a rule I brought my lunch with me. Only on rare occasions would I go to the lunchroom to eat with the rest of the students. I did join the orchestra and glee club, however."

Her grades were good enough to warrant a scholarship to Smith College in Massachusetts after her graduation from the university here. In one year at Smith Eva obtained a master's degree in sociology.

When she returned from America, Eva worked for several years as editor of the magazine, "The Egyptian Woman." She represented Egypt at various women's conferences in foreign countries. Then came marriage in 1948 to Yousef Sidhom, a lawyer in Alexandria where they make their home.

30 Years Ago

Today
November 22, 1927

Several of the friends and founders of East Carolina Teachers College have recently been honored by several of the buildings on the campus being named in their honor. The Board of Trustees vested in President Wright sometime ago the authority to designate the names of these buildings. The following are the names selected:

The west dormitory will be known as Wilson Hall, named in honor of C. W. Wilson, who was connected with the college from its founding down to his death in 1922. Mr. Wilson was one of the best loved teachers the college has ever had.

The east dormitory will be known as Jarvis Hall, in honor of Governor Jarvis, whose warm interest and untiring efforts in helping to found and build up the college was one of the hobbies of his latter years.

The next building going east has been named Fleming Hall, in honor of Hon. J. L. Fleming, the member of the General Assembly from this county in 1907 who introduced the bill for the founding of the college and helped to fight it through the Legislature.

The three story dormitory will be known as Cotten Hall in honor of Mrs. Sallie Southall Cotten. Mrs. Cotten has been one of the outstanding women of the state for many years.

Then comes the library, now the Joyner building, named in honor of J. Y. Joyner, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, for many years a member of the Board of Trustees and one of the staunch friends of the college.

The faculty house will be known as Ragsdale Hall, in honor of Mr. W. H. Ragsdale, one of the leading spirits in the founding of the college. At that time, 1907, Mr. Ragsdale was County Superintendent of Schools of Pitt County. Later he became an instructor in the college and remained as instructor until his death in 1914.

Today's High Fashion Hats Late Back In Centuries Notes Speaker

Mrs. William C. Gurganus stated all the hats worn today are variations of styles worn by men dating back to the third and fourth centuries when she addressed the Cosmos Book Club November 12.

The guest speaker was introduced by the hostess. She told the history of women's hats. Her talk was illustrated by pictures and sketches.

"The wedding headdress of today was introduced by women of the sixth century who wore coronets and tiaras of jewels," said Mrs. Gurganus.

"Our turban hat was first worn by Charles 13th (XIII). The pill-box styles were introduced in 1600 and was worn at a side angle, but in 1865 was changed to our present style.

"Very few changes have been made in the basic styles of centuries past. The main differences are hat materials, trimmings and fashion dictates," she pointed out.

Mrs. Gurganus concluded by showing several hats which she makes and briefly discussed hat designing.

Mrs. E. E. Rawl Jr. was hostess to the club at her home on Rock Spring Road which was decorated for the occasion with varied arrangements of chrysanthemums and lighted tapers.

From an appointed table, tea was poured by the president, Mrs. Vance Harrington. Members and guests, Mrs. Morris Brody and Mrs. William C. Gurganus Jr. served themselves assorted sandwiches, cheese wafers and petit-fours.

A short business meeting was held by the president. A donation was voted to be sent to the Pitt County TB Association. An announcement was read concerning the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church Holiday Bazaar to be held on November 26 and 27.

Overlooking A Great Potential?

A friend of ours the other day suggested that Greenville and Pitt County are overlooking a great potential here at home by not placing more emphasis on expansion of local industry as efforts are accelerated to attract outside industry.

And he's probably right. His reasoning goes like this: We are spending considerable money, time and effort in obtaining new industry when that same money, time and effort could be spent to aid and assist local people to take their buildings, equipment, knowledge and efforts to use in producing products that would put as large or possibly a larger payroll in our community as outside industries.

He suggests there are a number of local businesses now in Pitt County which, with proper assistance from local people, could double or triple their production and employment within a relatively short time. He further suggests that committees to assist local industries are equally if not more important than committees whose primary function is the acquiring of new industries for the community.

It has been and continues to be, the conviction of The Reflector that Pitt County should develop to the fullest extent the potential of its home grown industries. Industrial development committees should seek out those local businesses and industries which may be expanded or diversified. At the same time the owners of these businesses should not be reluctant to make their wishes known if they desire to expand their operations but need local assistance to do so.

Most of us always look for the greener pastures many miles from home. Often we fail to see and take advantage of the opportunities which are within our own community.

It is wise for every community periodically to carefully survey its own potential to make sure that opportunities for local industrial expansion and development are not being overlooked.

Like our friend, we have the feeling that Greenville and all of Pitt County may be overlooking a great potential in its existing local industries. If Pitt County is to reap the economic benefits it expects from industrialization, we must develop what we have here at home as well as seek new industry from other places to locate here.

They've Put Hodges' Hat In Political Ring

It's official now. Gov. Hodges' hat is in the ring for the Democratic nomination for vice president come 1960.

The governor's answer to a question of a newspaper reporter in Mobile, Ala., confirms speculation that North Carolina's chief executive would not end his public service with the end of his term as governor.

His answer also makes it a safe guess that Gov. Hodges has given up any idea he might have entertained about tackling Sen. W. Kerr Scott in a battle for a Senate seat in 1960. If Gov. Hodges is willing to concede that a drive is under way to place him on the national ticket, he has put out of his mind any ideas about a Senate seat for the next three years at least.

Gov. Hodges has emerged with considerable impact on the national political scene in the past few years. He played a prominent role at the Democratic national convention in 1956. He served with distinction as head of the national governor's conference, and as chairman of the committee of Southern Governors who called on President Eisenhower after troops were sent into Little Rock.

The businessman governor of North Carolina probably has more appeal to the high echelon of business executives of the nation than he does to the top level officials of the Democratic party. Be that as it may, it is a mistake to minimize the influence of that former group in Democratic circles. Then too, Gov. Hodges could fairly well assure the Democratic Party of solid Southern support were he on the national ticket in 1960. He would, in our opinion, have more national appeal than did Sparkman in 1952 or Kefauver in 1956 as the number two man on the Democratic ticket.

But there are a good many things to consider in a national ticket. First and foremost, no one yet has the inside track on the Democratic presidential nomination. Until that is fairly well established—and it may still be an open race when the national convention convenes—the vice presidential nomination can be given little consideration.

We are pleased that Gov. Hodges has made his position known. We would be more pleased to see his name on the national Democratic ticket.

But a lot of political scrambling will be done between now and 1960. It is far too early to be counting 1960 eggs.

Feel Loss Of Personal Link

By ELMER ROESSNER

Supermarkets are in a quandary. They flourish because they have cut personal contact with shoppers to a minimum. Now they are finding that the same lack of contact often retards expansion and broadening of lines.

The changing character of the food shopper complicates the matter. A generation ago the typical shopper in a food store was a matron. She had learned about foods and cooking over many years at home and long and frequent gabfests with neighbors.

Today the typical food shopper is a younger woman who may have learned to make biscuits in high school home economics, or her husband, whose tastes were shaped by a mess sergeant. Furthermore, their neighbors and confidantes are as unlearned.

THE NATIONAL DISH Your reporter was in a market when a woman said to the butcher, "The last seven customers bought chopped meat. Why is that?"

The butcher smiled. "The old ones bought it because their husbands have soft teeth. The young ones bought it because they work and haven't time to cook anything else, or because they don't know how to cook anything else."

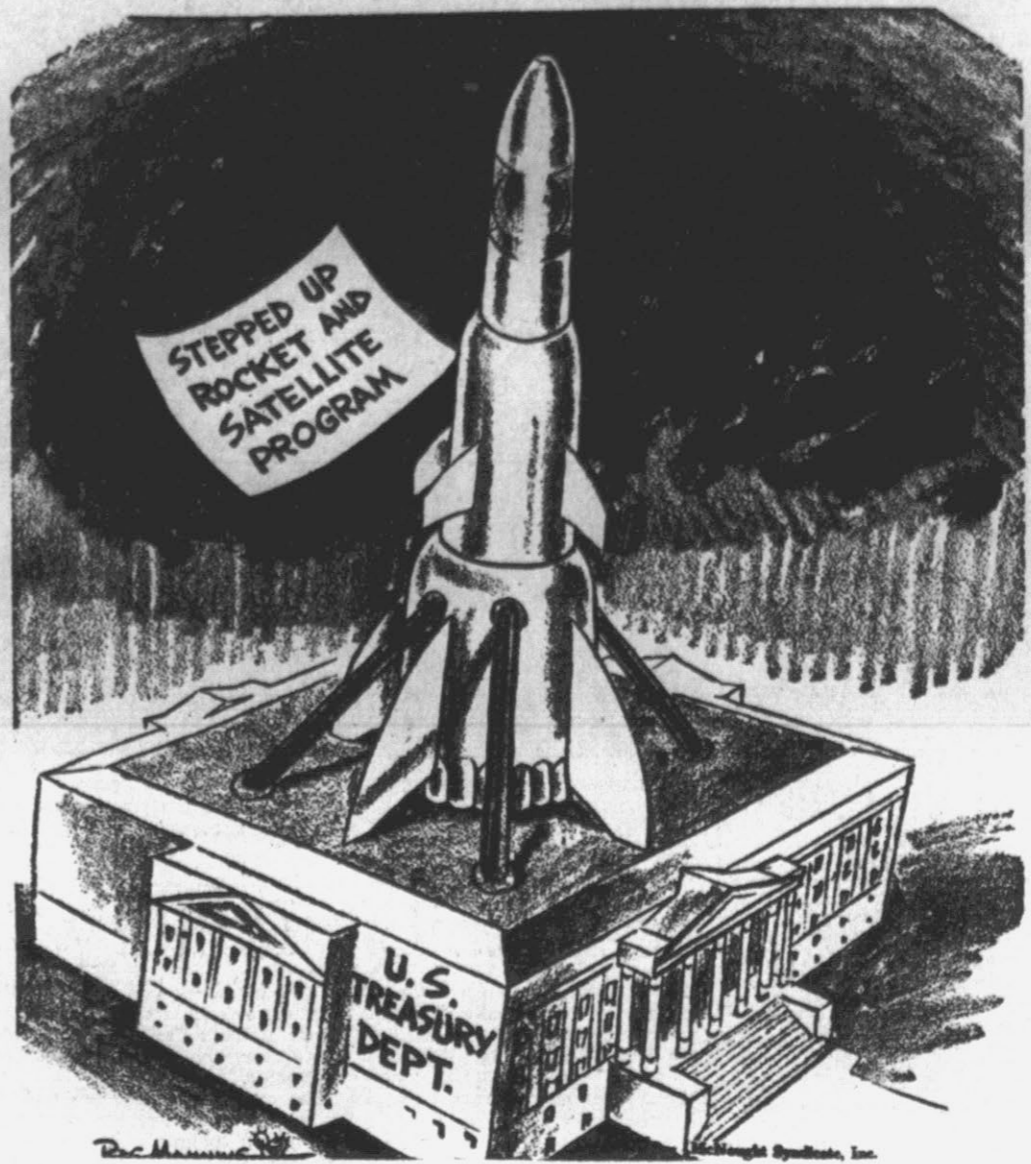

Another time your reporter overheard a supermarket attendant tell a young wife how to grill the steak she had selected. "Oh!" said the shopper, "so that's what that thing at the bottom of the stove is for!"

A recent survey showed the average woman shopper preferred the redder beef to the more tender, marbled meat. While scores of fine sausages are available, many markets can sell only frankfurters and salami.

Tendencies toward chopped meat, grass-fed beef and hot dogs compound problems for supermarket butchers. Some find restaurant markets for specialties, some get rid of them to the knowing at deep cut prices, and others grind up everything that will go through the chopping machine. You may have eaten more sweetbreads, tongue and heart than you know!

IN NONMEATS, TOO Supermarkets carry about four times the number of items the old food store used to carry. But they could carry eight times as many if more shoppers were not just meat-and-potatoes

Notes On This And That

Want to see a man jump in the Tar River? William L. Ford, a rubber company sales representative plans to do just that Saturday afternoon.

In a telegram to the Reflector, Ford announced that he would take the water leap at 3 p.m. Saturday afternoon at the Oyster Landing which is located at the foot of Side St.

It's all a publicity gimmick, of course.

Ford will be demonstrating an insular hunting suit which his company makes and which has been demonstrated at Blount-Harvey's this week.

Ford claims the suit will keep a hunter afloat if he falls in the water and it's also supposed to keep him from freezing.

So the plan is to prove it by jumping in.

State Highway Patrol Cpl. C. E.

Whitfield points out that five of Pitt County's 13 fatalities this year have been pedestrians.

In each case the corporal notes, the fatally injured pedestrian was violating a state law by either walking on the wrong side of the highway or walking into the path of an oncoming car.

What's more, all five of the fatal accidents involving pedestrians occurred at night or late in the afternoon, Whitfield reported, and in three of the cases the driver of the automobile was blinded by lights from an oncoming vehicle.

The corporal urged those who must walk along the highways at night to obey traffic regulations. In addition, he advised that they carry a flashlight if that is not possible, he says, pedestrians may carry a white cloth or handkerchief in their hand so that motorists may spot them more easily.

It's also advisable to wear light clothing for walking along the road ways.

Pitt's traffic fatality count is slowly creeping upward, although it is still considerably below the record breaking total of last year.

There have been 13 fatalities so far on Pitt's highways and city streets. At the same time last year there had been 13 traffic fatalities in the county. Last year was the record breaker. In all, 24 persons lost their lives in highway accidents.

Boss Dave Whichard on his pack of Greek cigarettes on his desk brought to him by Mailing Room Worker Octavius Rodgers.

The things come in a flip top box of sorts and instead of being round like the popular American brands they are oval in shape.

The cigarettes smoke fairly mild, but the boss says every time one is smoked in his office it leaves an after odor that lasts for hours.

Oh, yes, they are not filters, and they are not king-sized.

Other Editors Saying-- More Smoke Than Light

(Wall Street Journal)

The New York State Health Department, we see by the papers, is considering a campaign aimed at cigaret smoking. The announced objective is to reduce lung cancer.

Two associates of the state Commissioner of Health presented a paper before the American Public Health Association's annual meeting in Cleveland and they suggested that the political campaign against cigaret smoking be financed by a tax on cigarets.

Dr. Morton Levin, New York's Assistant Commissioner of Health, think that everybody ought to know about the danger of smoking, and that if everyone now smoking just quit there would be a lung cancer death rate reduction of 43 percent nationwide.

Meanwhile, a study by a professor of pharmacology from the Medical College of Virginia and the research director for the American Tobacco Company of smoking habits and health of some 11,000 workers in the nine plants of the tobacco company, led them to the conclusion that it is "evident that cigaret smoking per se is not necessarily or invariably associated with a higher risk of lung cancer, or heart disease or shortened life."

The American Cancer Society's director of statistical research concludes that the tobacco company's study didn't mean much because it didn't compare the death rate of employees who smoked heavily with those who didn't smoke at all. The company survey did show, however, that in comparison with the general public twice as many workers smoke more than a pack a day and that they lived longer.

We do think, though, that until there is conclusive proof one way or another the state health departments would be wise to restrict their endeavors to research and stay out of the missionary campaign business.

For two reasons: One, cigarettes cost quite enough now without making the smoker pay an extra tax to read unproved propaganda about how bad it is for him to smoke.

Two, the next step from a governmental policy against smoking is a law against smoking. And even Mr. Volstead would probably testify that his law did more harm than good.

Leaf Farmers' Smokey Outlook

Part II

Through the years, farmers had worked to produce a light-colored, rigid-bodied tobacco for use in regular cigarettes. This type leaf — the primings, lugs, and cutters grown on the bottom of the stalk — usually sold for premium prices and was purchased almost entirely by domestic buyers. The darker, heavier-bodied, more aromatic tobacco types — the leaf and smoking leaf grades produced at the top of the stalk — were considered to be of low and medium quality, commanded a lower price, and were bought almost exclusively by buyers for the export trade. But to produce the filter tip brands — to get flavor through the filters — cigarette companies needed the more aromatic types of leaf. Hence, domestic and foreign buyers began competing for the same grades of tobacco. This situation, compounded by the unusually large amounts of pale-colored leaf produced in 1955 and 1956, gave rise to the disturbing price patterns mentioned earlier.

Filter tip cigarettes generally require less tobacco than non-filter tip brands because of the space occupied by the filter. The length and circumference of some brands have also been reduced. More efficient machinery and more complete use of the tobacco leaf itself also make it possible to get more cigarettes from a given quantity of leaf tobacco. With these factors operating, the experts estimate that manufacturers are now producing 10 per cent more cigarettes per pound of farm-sales-weight tobacco than they were 3 years ago.

And so the paradox goes on! Cigarette output has risen steadily for the past 3 years, but the domestic use of leaf tobacco has continued to decline and is now 15 per cent below the 1952 peak.

Bright leaf tobacco producers in the Carolinas and Virginia have a big stake in the export market, for 33 cents of each dollar of cash income derived from the flue-cured leaf comes from exports. The share was even larger during the prewar years.

But United States flue-cured exports since World War II have faced an increasingly competitive world market. Growers in this country during the years immediately preceding the War produced nearly two-thirds of the world's flue-cured, and their 1947-51 average accounted for more than three-fifths of world production. Today, however, they produce less than half of the world total. Keenest competition comes from the main exporting countries — the Rhodesias and Nyasaland, Canada, and India — countries whose 1956 production total 448 million pounds, 19 per cent higher than in 1955, and 65 per cent above the 1947-51 average. Many of the flue-cured importing countries are also boosting domestic production of flue-cured as are the Philippines, Pakistan, Indonesia, and Australia.

Thus world production and international trade in flue-cured have increased during the post-war years. Yet in spite of these facts, and despite the assistance given foreign countries under special programs sponsored by the U. S. Government, this country's share of world flue-cured exports in recent years has ranged from 60 to 70 per cent as contrasted with 85 per cent in the prewar period.

For a number of years, particularly since World War II, higher prices for United States leaf, a scarcity of dollars, high import duties, guaranteed purchase arrangements, and other regulations have made it increasingly difficult for this country's flue-cured to compete in world markets. Adding to this difficulty in recent years has been the growing use of bilateral trade agreements in the sale of flue-cured — agreements by

About Irving Berlin

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifty years ago a young Bowery singing water wrote the words for a song called "Marie from Sunny Italy," and it earned him a total of 37 cents.

Today, more than 1,000 songs later, Irving Berlin, whose golden anniversary in show business is being widely celebrated, is believed to have made more money out of music than any other man in history.

Just how much this self-taught genius of song has amassed is a favorite topic of Broadway connoisseurs. But it is known that as of last June 30 the tunes and shows he has donated to different charities had raised $10,079,768. Not a bad donation from a boy who once sang in the streets for pennies!

One of his tunes, "White Christmas," sold 23 million records. More than 250 new recordings of his songs have been made in the past few months alone.

The world enjoys his music, but knows little of Irving Berlin, the man. He will be 70 next May 11. What is he like — this brooding, solitary figure who, after all these years, can still play a piano in only one key — F sharp?

Few men are heroes to their valets, but Berlin remains very much of a personal hero to Helmy Kressa, 53, his arranger.

Kressa, a former student at the Dresden Conservatory in Germany, wanted to be a conductor. But he started as a copyist for Berlin in 1925, became his arranger in 1927, and has stayed with him ever since.

"Irving is the most prolific song writer who ever lived," he said, "and he is as interested in his work now as ever."

"Weeks may go by without his turning out a single tune, and then he will write 10 in a row."

"He is a real craftsman with the language as well as with the tunes. By the time he has finished a song, he usually has enough good lyrics left over to make five other songs."

"He requires no special atmosphere to create. He writes anywhere — wherever he is — in an airplane, a car, at a desk, or walking. He concentrates night and day on his songs."

"I have left him at midnight and come back in the morning and found him still there, wearing the same clothes. But the song would be finished."

"He works well under pressure. He composes mostly in his head, then plays it later on the piano. Sometimes, when he has finished a new song, he will phone me and sing it to me — and I write it down. I am the musical stenographer."

"He is a very warm man, and doesn't like ostentation. He doesn't show off. He can see through human nature at a glance, and can spot a phony on sight."

"One thing that amazes me is that he has a phenomenal memory, and yet can be very absent-minded."

"He may walk out of a room and forget his coat and hat. But he can also concentrate and do three things at once — dictate a social letter, talk to his lawyer, and at the same time work out a new tune in his head. He is regarded as one of the best businessmen in the field."

"He doesn't get mad very often, and is tolerant of forms of music he doesn't care for himself — such as rock 'n' roll."

"What is his favorite of all the songs he has written? Although he says he has no favorites, I would say the one closest to his heart is 'God bless America.'"

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Corinthians 16.

The Jerusalem Christians being in want, Paul writes to the Corinthians that every "first day of the week" each should contribute to help their poorer brethren in Jerusalem.

Paul then writes to the Corinthians that if Timothy came to them, they should not despise him because of his youth, for "He worketh the work of the Lord," as Paul does.

Paul rejoices, he writes, that Stephanas, Fortuna and Achaicus have come to the church, "For they have refreshed my spirit and yours, therefore acknowledge them that are such."

Paul sends salutations from Aquila and Priscilla from the church in their house, closing his epistle with "My love be with you in Christ Jesus."

GIVE GENEROUSLY AND LOVINGLY TO THOSE IN NEED

Scripture—I Corinthians 16.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. IN PAUL'S 16th and last chapter of his first epistle to the Corinthians, he first takes up the matter of a collection to be made to the brethren in Jerusalem—the first account we have of a punctual Sunday collection for a charitable cause. Paul writes the Corinthians of an order he had given to the churches of Galatia for this object, but we know nothing more of that order.

The reason the Christian Jews were so poverty stricken was probably the fact that they were hated by the rich and great of Jerusalem, and were thus reduced to the last extremity by not being employed with work on which they depended.

"Upon the first day of the week," wrote Paul, (probably for poorer folk is probably a common experience in most homes of the United States today and for some years past, and the children have seen their mothers collecting garments in good condition which their children have outgrown, and parcels of food that are then sent to charitable organizations in this country or, more often, to many different foreign countries whose people are in dire need of the common necessities of life. This, too, is doing God's work, especially when these gifts are accompanied by loving, friendly messages.

Then Paul asks that if Timothy comes to Corinth, they will not look down upon him because he is young, for he is doing the work of the Lord, as Paul is. Timothy, whom sometimes Paul called his son, and to whom he

Sunday) "let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come."

When he comes to Corinth, Paul writes, the persons who were commended for the task of delivering these gifts by letters Paul had received, were to take them to Jerusalem, or perhaps Paul himself might do it, accompanied by those others.

Paul tells them he will come to them when he has passed through Macedonia, and he might spend the winter with them, but for some time he would remain in Ephesus, from whence he was writing, because he had a great opportunity there, although there were many adversaries. He did make this journey to Corinth, which is described in St. Luke and in Acts.

later addressed two epistles, was to be received cordially and treated with respect.

Three other men are also mentioned as going to Corinth—Stephanas, whom Paul had baptized (I Cor. 1:16); Fortunatus and Achaicus, of whom we know little, but of whom Paul says, "They have refreshed my spirit and yours."

Then Paul says, "The churches of Asia salute you. Aquila and Priscilla also, from the church in their house, and all the brethren greet you. Greet ye one another with an holy kiss."

One final burst of wrath he gives for those in the wicked city who do not love the Lord Jesus, then he concludes with the beautiful words, "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. My love be with you all in Jesus Christ. Amen."

Carlin arrived after crossing the Pacific in the sea-going jeep to Alaska and coming down the Alaskan highway from Anchorage. Carlin and his American wife set off from Bontreal on a world tour in the vehicle in 1948. They crossed the Atlantic, spent four years in England before jeeping across seas, mountains and deserts to India. Mrs. Carlin then flew to New York and decided to wait for him there. Wedding Gifts, Old Treasures Of Dallas Woman To Be Sold

DALLAS (AP)—Treasures of a wealthy Dallas woman who always dreamed of having a fine home but lived almost 50 years in a downtown hotel will be sold to settle her estate.

None of the treasures—including her wedding presents—were ever used. They were sent directly to a Dallas warehouse for storage.

The wedding gifts were being unwrapped from their original tissue paper wrappings under the watchful eyes of Pinkerton guards. They will be evaluated by experts from Neiman-Marcus Co., Dallas specialty store.

The estate is that of Mrs. T. J. Carmody, who died in 1955. Her husband, a Corsicana, Tex., banker and investor, died in 1940.

J. N. Garitty, vice president of the Corsicana First National Bank and executor of the estate, said he could not estimate the value of the collection.

He indicated it would be sold at a private sale after its appraisal.

One antique silver urn bears the original bill of sale showing that Mrs. Carmody paid $2,640 for it.

Another item—a brass clock and pair of candelabra "from the collection of J. P. Morgan"—shows a price of $1,250.

Four large wardrobe trunks bought and sent directly into storage, still in their original packing cases, cost $2,200.

A sizable group of large antique silver sets and urns were willed by Mrs. Carmody to the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts and are set aside for the museum.

Garitty estimated that the silver going to the museum may be worth $75,000.

"But that's strictly a wild guess," he added.

There are other less valuable treasures too. Bottles of French perfume by the dozen, unopened. Set after set of ivory dominoes, obviously never played with.

And, in a tiny box, a little silver thimble and a lock of hair.

The couple traveled widely but always returned to their hotel quarters. She wanted a big home but he preferred living at the hotel.

In May 1927, Mrs. Carmody had started sending things she bought to the warehouse for storage. People who knew her said she bought her treasures only after deep consideration.

In Mrs. Carmody's wedding book is a clipping from the Corsicana newspaper of 1906. It said: "Those who called to wish the young couple bon voyage lingered to admire the wealth of handsome wedding gifts."

Attorney Thinks N.C. Assignment Law In Danger

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A Charlotte lawyer says that most Tar Heel attorneys feel the state's Pupil Assignment law is in very grave danger.

Atty. Carlton Fleming told the Charlotte Classroom Teachers Assn. yesterday that the law may be attacked under the 14th amendment.

He added that the law is still on shaky ground with the courts because the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled only that it was not unconstitutional on its face.

This, Fleming said, left open the question of whether the law might be unconstitutionally applied.

Fleming said the so-called safety valve provisions of the Pupil Plan, covering the possible closing of public schools by a local vote and the paying of tuition grants to pupils who object to mixed classes, are weak spots.

He said provisions for state regulation of private schools and tuition payments to such schools might open the way for court action under the 14th amendment.

The Charlotte Board of Education has asked school officials and the board attorney to suggest a time limit on applications for pupil reassignment on grounds of opposition to integration.

The question was raised by a transfer request from the parents of a seventh grader at Piedmont. The board turned down a request from her parents earlier this year and found a reapplication for transfer waiting for them yesterday.

This time, the grounds were opposition to integration. Piedmont has one Negro pupil. The board approved the transfer, but one member argued that a parent who has accepted integration for some weeks shouldn't be privileged to request a transfer on grounds of opposing mixed classes.

Baptist Convention Closes; Record Registration Of 3,850 Reported

RALEIGH (AP)—Messengers to the 127th annual Baptist State Convention returned home today after one of the most eventful sessions in recent years.

The convention took these actions yesterday before adjourning its three-day meeting:

1. Handed to the executive committee of the convention's General Board the decision on whether any part of a report on an investigation of the administration of Dr. Harold W. Tribble as president of Wake Forest College is made public.

2. Expressed its disapproval of the practice of some Baptist churches of admitting "associate members."

In other final day action, the convention voted to silence for a brief while the Rev. James M. Bulman of East Spencer, who has attempted repeatedly to bring up the issue of local church autonomy.

The vote denied Bulman the right to speak during a period of about two hours, until the end of the session.

The convention set a record for attendance. Dr. J. C. Canipe of Hendersonville, retiring convention president, said the registration of 3,850 was "more than double anything we've had up to now."

The Rev. A. Leroy Parker of Greensboro was elected to follow Dr. Canipe as convention president. It will meet next year in Durham, and in Greensboro in 1959.

A subcommittee of the Wake Forest Board of Trustees two years ago conducted the probe of the administration of Dr. Tribble, a controversial figure in Baptist circles for several years. The investigation records have remained secret since that time.

The convention yesterday first voted to instruct the college's trustees to make the report public. Later it adopted a motion of Dr. Douglas M. Branch of Rocky Mount that the Executive Committee of the convention's General Board take charge of the matter. Presumably, the committee will decide how much, if any, of the report is made public.

The question of associate membership in Baptist churches arose after the Pilot Mountain Baptist Assn. declined to admit the church on the Wake Forest campus to the association because the church had accepted associate members.

The convention's resolution committee had recommended that no action be taken on the issue, but the Rev. H. L. Ferguson of Charlotte offered a substitute motion which won convention approval. Ferguson's motion expressed the convention's desire to make it "crystal clear that associate membership in any Baptist church does not have the approval of this convention." At the same time, it said the convention was not undertaking to dictate to churches or associations.

Without debate the convention adopted the report of its committee on social service and civic righteousness, a portion of which dealt with the problem of race relations. It observed that "a sizeable minority of Baptist people are ready to move forward toward a Christian solution to this problem."

The report also suggested that individual Baptist churches appoint a committee on race relations which would "keep the congregation informed about problems related to race within the community and to each potential area of conflict by working with Negro leaders for mutual understanding."

Rumored Choice 'Bargain' Sales Spelled Arrest

WASHINGTON (AP)—W. Wilson White, an assistant attorney general, reportedly has been chosen to head the new Civil Rights Division in the Justice Department.

This information came last night from informed sources. In Philadelphia, his home, White said it was impossible for him to comment.

A Justice Department spokesman also declined comment. He said there has been nothing final on an appointee to fill the post authorized by the civil rights law passed at the last session of Congress.

That law provides that the new Civil Rights Division shall be headed by an assistant attorney general.

Since White already is an assistant attorney general handling other duties, it was not immediately clear whether his name would have to be submitted to the Senate again for confirmation as head of the Civil Rights Division.

The award said Bond often exposed himself to the dangers of high pressures and twice entered a recompression chamber under high pressure to attend submariners suffering from the bends.

Rear Adm. Frederick B. Warder, Atlantic Submarine Force commander, also lauded Bond's disarming of an emotionally upset knife-wielding patient.

Regulars Will Not Be With ECC Monday Against Pfeiffer

NOT WITH IT ANY MORE—Don Harris and Tim Smothers, two stalwarts on the East Carolina basketball team last season will not be with the club this year. Harris passed on via graduation and Smothers dropped out of school. Coach Howard Porter will send his new squad against Pfeiffer Monday night, at ECC gym, opening the 1957-58 season with a non-conference tilt.

Porter Expected Use Four Veterans In Starting Five

When East Carolina College opens its 1957-58 basketball season here Monday night against invading Pfeiffer College, Coach Howard Porter is expected to unveil a starting lineup composed of four veterans and a newcomer.

North State Conference observers will be watching to see what The Fox will come up with in the way of lineups since he has lost four of last year's regulars.

Gone from the squad will be Don Harris, former All-Conference forward, Nick Nichols, Tim Smothers and Freddy James. All four were starters at various points during the topsy-turvy 1956-57 year. Only Harris was lost via graduation.

Probable Starters
Speculation is that Porter will start Ike Riddick, Charlie Adams, Guy Mendenhall, Harold Ingram—all veterans—and Jessel Curry, an import from the University of Kentucky.

Odd as it may seem, all four of the veterans named above were also starters last year at one time or another. Porter shifted his lineup many times last season in an effort to improve his starting unit and used several different starting combinations. Of the probable starting group Monday night, however, only Guy Mendenhall has been a regular dependable starter. Riddick and Adams saw a lot of action last season at guard positions, while Ingram worked mostly as a forward. Mendenhall played forward and center.

Curry, a 6-1 native of Portsmouth, Va., who played ball at the University of Kentucky as a freshman, is also best at a guard position, it is reported. Coach Porter is expected to use him at the guard slot along with Adams and have Mendenhall at center. Ingram and Riddick will probably man the forward positions.

No definite lineup has yet been released by Porter.

13-12 Season
Last year, ECC faced its toughest season in some time, winning 13 and losing 12, just barely beating the .500 mark. Much of the trouble was brought about by the loss of forward Nick Nichols, who stayed on the bench a lot of the time with shoulder injuries. Also, Don Harris spent much of the season in a scoring slump. This year both will be completely absent from the team. Harris graduated and Nichols has undergone a shoulder operation that will keep him out all year.

Last season's center position also offered some problems to Coach Porter. He used 6-8 Joe Plaster, 6-5 Tim Smothers, and Mendenhall at the position alternately and couldn't seem to get the needed results. This year, Smothers has been lost to the club due to scholastic difficulties. Plaster will still be with the club and will be expected to see some action at that spot. Mendenhall, however, has the inside track.

Unit Untried
As a unit, Porter's present probable starting quintet is untried. Though four of them worked together at times last year, they did not play enough as a unit to foretell what kind of outfit they will be Monday night. Also, the addition of Curry could completely change the outlook one way or the other.

Porter is still expected to have his club play the shoot-and-run brand of ball that has brought ECC a large share of success in the North State loop in recent years.

Game time for the non-conference tilt, Monday night, is set for 8:00 and a capacity crowd is expected to attend.

Calhoun Fights Boyd; Dreaming Of Title Shot

NEW YORK (AP)—They say Rachmannoff "sends" Rory Calhoun and Beethoven, too. The Boston Pops (the orchestra not the boxing commission) is No. 1 on his hit parade. But the sweetest music he could hear would be news of a title shot at Carmen Basilio.

Calhoun, a muscular young man from White Plains (out of McDonough, Ga., belongs to that active group of middleweights who mill around while Sugar Ray Robinson mulls his future plans. If Ray decides he wants a rematch with Basilio, the others must wait.

The fall boxing season at Madison Square Garden has been devoted largely to the 160-pounders. Tonight's bout with Bobby Boyd of Chicago is the second time around for Calhoun who whipped Rocky Castellani, Oct. 18.

Calhoun and Boyd are listed among the top 10 contenders for Basilio. Ring Magazine lists Calhoun No. 3 and Boyd No. 9. The National Boxing Assn. ranks Calhoun No. 5 and Boyd No. 8.

There will be the usual Friday network (NBC) radio and TV coverage.

Calhoun, only 23, sports a shiny 30-2-1 record.

Boyd, 24, is 46-7-2.

Carolina Could End 7 Years Of Duke Setbacks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Will tomorrow be the end of the seven-year drought for North Carolina in its long and bitterly contested football series with Duke University?

North Carolina Coach Jim Tatum is saying yes with his heart and no with his mouth.

Speaking of Duke yesterday, Tatum said, "I would rate Bob Brodhead the best quarterback in the conference, although I do believe our Jack Cummings and Clemson's Harvey White will become better quarterbacks after they have had experience."

"At halfbacks, Eddie Rushton, Wray Carlton and George Dutrow are bigger and faster than our Hal Decantis and Daly Goff, and Ed McElhane (of Duke) would make any backfield in the nation. He is certainly an All America."

"In the line they are just as big as we are, but they have more experience and agility. Tom Topping, Roy Hord and Buzz Guy are all mentioned for All America. They have experience in the line where we are dominated by sophomores. Buddy Payne and Phil Blazer are our best linemen, but they (Duke) have more experience," Tatum added. "In depth they have it all over us."

Not since 1949 has North Carolina beaten Duke. Before that, Tar Heels trimmed the Blue Devils four straight years and before that it was Duke over North Carolina four years running. This year's game is doubly important for Duke. A victory would make them ACC champions.

Tatum ended practice for the game yesterday with a blocking and tackling drill and reviewed offense and defense. Only halfback Don Coker, out with an injured ankle, will miss the game.

Duke completed its work with a spirited practice and welcomed the return of Topping, who was injured in the Clemson game last week.

The eight ACC teams engaged in four league games tomorrow, the final full weekend of the season.

Wake Forest, aiming for its first victory in nine games this season, looked good in its workout which included a review of offensive assignments. Clemson, which plays host to Wake Forest, stressed defense against Deacon plays.

North Carolina State, which invades South Carolina, emphasized passing in its drills while the Gamecocks held a light dummy drill. First string halfback King Lixon of South Carolina, still sidelined with injuries, probably will be replaced by Heyward King.

Pass offense and defense came in for attention at Virginia. Coach Ben Martin said his entire first team likely will be ready to go against Maryland at College Park. The Terps held only a light drill yesterday.

Alabama U. Wants To Hire Tatum

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The president-elect of the University of Alabama says Paul (Bear) Bryant isn't interested in coaching football there, but has recommended North Carolina coach Jim Tatum for the job.

Dr. Frank A. Rose said last night Bryant, coach at Texas A&M, told him in a letter he wants to fulfill his present commitment.

Dr. Rose indicated Bryant would be acceptable at Alabama as coach, but added no offer had been made to him. He said Bryant was one of several persons consulted about the Alabama job.

The opening developed when Alabama declined to renew the contract of J. B. Whitworth.

The Dallas News said last night Bryant refused to say whether or not he would go to Alabama, his alma mater.

When asked if he wouldn't like to deny he was going to 'Bama to squelch the rumors, Bryant said, "No, I wouldn't want to say that because I might do it."

Dr. Rose declined to discuss the weight Bryant's recommendation of Tatum would carry. He said the Alabama Athletic Committee will meet soon to discuss the situation.

At Chapel Hill, N.C., Coach Tatum had "no comment." He said he did not know anything about the matter "except what I read in the papers" and that "nobody has contacted me from Alabama."

He said he did not know whether Bryant had actually recommended him for the Alabama job or not, but "I assume he did" and "I appreciate Bear's doing that" since "Bear and I are good friends."

But, he said, with North Carolina's crucial game with Duke coming up on Saturday, "I certainly don't have any mind on that today."

Alabama U. Edenton Eleven Is Rated As 'Favorite'

Farmville and Edenton square off tonight at College Stadium, here, to battle for the Eastern Class A State football title—and powerful Edenton is a two-touchdown favorite to come out on top.

The hard-rocking Edenton offense, sparked by fullback Bruce White, 165 pound senior, and David Fletcher, 185-pound senior, is rated too much for the Red Devils.

For Edenton, this will be the third season in four years that they have been engaged in the State playoffs. They are the defending champions.

Farmville, on the other hand, is making its first bid for a state title.

Coach Bill Billings' Aces will bring an 8-1-1 record to College stadium, while Elbert Moyer's Devils have a 7-2 mark. Edenton took championship honors in the Albemarle conference. Farmville won the Coastal Conference title with a 4-0 record.

Playoff Scores
The two-touchdown favorite role has been awarded to Edenton mostly on the strength of its performances in the playoffs thus far, as compared to Farmville's. The Aces opened up with a 40-12 blasting of Weldon, completely smashing their opponents and giving an indication of the Edenton scoring potential. Next, they walloped previously-undefeated Erwin, 19-6.

Farmville has reached this point in the playoffs by two tie ball games—winning both on yardage. Both games were low-score tilts, too, which offers some speculation that the Devils cannot run with Edenton. Coach Moyer's club whipped Beaufort 9-0 in the opener and Red Springs 6-6 last week.

Winner of tonight's tilt will battle the Western Division champion for the state title next week.

Pacing the Farmville attack tonight will be Sonny Mall, Horace Corbett, Irving Allen, and Johnny Dixon in the backfield. Linemen are expected to be led by Clyde Killebrew, Troy Dail, Johnny Thorne, and Joe Flake.

Game time is 8:00.

Mantle Is Voted MVP Of 1957 In American League

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees was voted the American League's most valuable player of the 1957 season today by the Baseball Writers Assn. of America.

It was the second straight MVP award for the star center fielder but, unlike 1956, when he swept the boards, polling the maximum 336 points, Mantle barely beat out runner-up Ted Williams of Boston and Roy Sievers of Washington. Mantle had 233 points, Williams 209 and Sievers 205.

Mantle had only six first-place votes, compared with five for Williams and four for Sievers, but none of the 24 voting baseball writers named him lower than fourth.

Mantle, Williams and Sievers were named on every ballot, as was Nellie Fox of the Chicago White Sox, who finished fourth with a surprising five votes for first place and 193 points. Gil McDougald of the Yankees, commanded the four other first-place votes, finished fifth with 165 points.

It was the fourth time in his brilliant career with the Red Sox that Williams finished second. He won the award in 1946 and 1949.

Vic Wertz, slugging Cleveland first baseman, finished sixth with 61 points. He was followed by Frank Malzone, Red Sox third baseman, 59; Minnie Miñoso, Chicago outfielder, 55; Jim Bunning, Detroit pitcher, 46; and Al Kaline, Detroit outfielder, 40.

Twenty-seven players were named in the voting. New York placed eight, Chicago five, Detroit four, Boston three, Kansas, City, Cleveland and Baltimore two and Washington one.

Mantle enjoyed a banner season although it did not quite measure up to his sensational power hitting of the previous year when he captured the triple crown (batting, RBIs and home runs). His .265 batting average, although 12 points higher than his '56 mark, 1954.

was not good enough to win the championship. Neither were his 34 home runs nor his 94 runs batted in. He missed much of the final three weeks of the season, however, because of a serious case of shin splints.

Williams enjoyed one of the greatest seasons—if not the greatest—of his remarkable career. At the age of 39, the great slugger captured his fifth batting title with a mark of 388, his highest since topping 400 in '41. He hammered 38 home runs although he, too, missed three weeks of the season, and posted a fabulous .731 slugging percentage.

Sievers, in his ninth year in the majors, finally came into his own. The 31-year-old outfielder hit 32 home runs and drove in 114 runs to win both titles.

Duke Cagers To Try Out Frosh

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Basketball fans will have a chance to judge the strength of the Duke cager team for this season at the annual Blue Devil varsity-freshman game tonight.

The Blue Devils have nine varsity men returning and their strongest freshmen prospects since points higher than his '56 mark, 1954.

Buc Track Team Loses Opener To ACC In Meet

WILSON — Atlantic Christian College defeated Coach J. C. Miller's ECC track team yesterday in the opening match of the year, 25-30.

There was one bright spot in the outcome for the Bucs, despite the loss. Foster Morse took an impressive first place in the two and one-half mile run with a time of 13 minutes and 59 seconds. He holds the North State Conference two mile record.

Bill Freeman came in fifth for the Pirates in the meet. Five members of the entire squad represented the Bucs in the meet. They were Joe Pond, Derry Walker and Bob Johnson, along with the two already named.

With 10 possible scoring positions available in the meet, Atlantic Christian took the second, third, fourth, seventh and ninth positions. ECC took the first, fifth, sixth, eighth, and tenth slots.

The meet is scored by position, and each participant is given a number of points equivalent to his position. For instance, the number one finishing player is awarded one point, etc. The team that has the most runners to come in closest to first place will have the lowest number of points and the lowest score is the winning score.

The race was arranged not only for the purpose of competition and sportsmanship, according to Coach Miller, but also to arouse interest in the track program which will actually begin February 1, when ECC begins to prepare for the Atlantic Coast Conference's annual indoor meet. Yesterday's meet was something of a prep match.

East Carolina has been preparing to defend its North State championship all through the winter, as many boys have been working out in the college gymnasium. Any student interested in applying for the team is urged to see Dr. Miller or assistant Coach Milton Collier.

Taylor Quits As Stanford Coach

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—Popular Chuck Taylor, Stanford's football head man the past seven seasons, finishes out his coaching career tomorrow and then helps hunt for his successor.

The 27-year-old redhead, one of the hottest exponents of the forward pass and wide-open football, will become assistant director of athletics.

Announcement that he is quitting as football coach at his alma mater and would take up new duties as right-hand man to Athletic Director Al Masters came yesterday, just two days before the traditional big game here with California.

With a record as head coach of 39 victories, 29 defeats and 2 ties, Taylor came under no pressure to resign but had stated previously that he never had planned to make coaching football a lifetime career.

He has been one of Stanford's most popular coaches. Although he said he hoped there would be no melodrama connected with his stepping out as coach, quarterback Jack Douglas declared, "We're going to win the big game for him."

Addressing 7,000 students last night at a rally, Taylor extolled Douglas as "the best quarterback I've ever coached," and said he deserved All America ranking "although he probably won't get it as we're not an all-winning team this year."

Stanford has a 5-4 record this season with a 3-3 in the Pacific Coast Conference.

Taylor told reporters his coaching career was definitely ended, "but the opportunity to work with Al Masters in promoting intercollegiate competition is one I treasure and look forward to."

Speculation immediately turned to Taylor's successor in the job that's reported to have paid $15,000 annually. One of the first names on the rumor list was Pete Kmetovic, now an assistant.

Kmetovic and Taylor were team mates on the 1941 Rose Bowl game from Nebraska.

Biacchi Aerials Prove Decisive

NEWBERRY, S.C. (AP)—Lou Biacchi's pinpoint passing was instrumental in two of Catawba's three touchdowns here last night in a 20-7 victory over Newberry.

He set up one TD on a 32-yard pass to Benny Wright, and hit T. Davis with an 18-yard payoff pitch.

The North State Conference club scored its other six pointers on a 57-yard plunge by Sam Morrow that clung a 72-yard march.

Newberry scored in the final quarter on a short plunge by Scotty Spears. His own passing was a feature of the drive.

The game, originally set for Sept. 28, was postponed by bad weather and flu.

Parking Space Limited At Duke

GREENSBORO (AP)—If you're driving to the Duke-North Carolina football game tomorrow, here is some advice from the Highway Patrol:

Double up in your cars. Don't go singly. The reason: Some of the Duke parking lots are muddy and won't be used.

Leave early and bring your lunch to avoid a last-minute rush into the available parking lots.

Before and after the game the patrol will observe one-way traffic on Highway 751 from Highway 70 to the west side parking field and one-way east traffic on 751 to U.S. 15 south from the east side parking lot.

Thousands Of Potential Scientists Dying On Vine; Pupils Steered Away

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter
NEW YORK (AP)—Thousands of tomorrow's potential scientists are dying on the vine.

A scientist needs an intelligent mind, special training—often years of rigorous training—and real interest. Talent in science, say leading scientists, is essentially intense interest.

But many bright young minds are being steered away from science. Educators and scientists cite numerous reasons:

Science and mathematics courses are not stressed enough in schools, including early enough and well enough.

Mathematics is a cornerstone of science, and our modern way of life. But many youngsters think of algebra as a horrid world. Arithmetic often is taught boringly.

"Cook book high school labs" blunt interest.

"Any good student is irked to death by the memorization and formulas and routinized with which science is taught these days," said Dr. R. W. Lefler, professor of physics and education at Purdue University.

We suffer a shortage of high school science teachers. Teachers' salaries generally "are a national disgrace and evidence of public indifference toward learning," declares Dr. B. D. Thomas, director of the Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, Ohio.

Numerous teen-agers, a Purdue survey finds, regard scientists as wicked, as longhairs or squares, or unable or incapable of living a normal life, or of enjoying life.

Many students avoid science courses as hard, or for squares. If the science bug bites them later on in college, they find they'll have to go back, at extra time and expense, to make up what they had missed, or else turn to some other career.

Russian students in 10-year schools have taken five years of physics, six of math, three of biology, four of chemistry.

Many bright students can't afford college. Systems of scholarships are being suggested so able,

Interested students can go on to college—in all fields of learning, not just science.

High school and college students often avoid science because they see higher pay and rewards going to careers in selling, advertising, medicine, business, entertainment and other fields.

Some scientists make very good incomes. Some are notoriously underpaid, especially in teaching and basic research, and especially by standards of their contributions to human welfare and progress.

Half of U.S. scientists made less than $6,525 annually in 1954 and 1955, the National Science Foundation reports from a questionnaire of 50,000 men and women.

Median salaries—meaning that half were more, and half made less—were: physicists, $7,275; geologists, $7,250; mathematicians, $6,300; biologists, $6,275; meteorologists $6,050; astronomers $5,950, and psychologists, $5,850.

Jobs in industry generally pay higher. These medians may well be higher now.

The American Chemical Society reports STARTING median salaries this year range from $8,100 for Ph.D.s in chemical engineering and $7,800 for Ph.D.s in chemistry to $5,500 and $5,200 for those with bachelor degrees in chemical engineering and chemistry respectively.

These averages cover both industry and teaching, but the society said that Ph.D.s going into industry averaged 38 per cent higher paychecks than those going into teaching.

Money is not the sole reward for most scientists. They would like more, of course. Their rewards include doing what they like best—creative, learning more, finding values that carry no dollar sign.

Seek To Help Missionary Surrounded By Savages

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A message for a missionary surrounded by savages in the jungles of Ecuador was broadcast from Kansas City last night in hopes it may save his life—if he is still alive.

The missionary is Dr. Winifred Tidmarsh, an Englishman. Wednesday, the savage Auca Indians filled the air around his shack with the calls of birds and beasts, an indication they were going to attack.

Not since January 1956 has anyone tried to Christianize the Aucas. That month five Americans who had flown into the dense jungle were killed, impaled by needle-pointed spears nine feet long.

A few weeks ago Dr. Tidmarsh, a missionary for the Christian Missions in Many Lands, set up his shack on the Oglan River in Auca territory.

Wednesday, the savages closed in on him.

When his plight became known to Rachel Saint, working on the Auca language at the Summer Institute of Linguistics in Arkansas, she had an Auca girl there make a recording, pleading with her people not to slay the white man.

Miss Saint, a missionary herself, is a sister of one of the men killed, pilot Nate Saint.

Last night, the processed recording was broadcast by ham radio operator Paul Carpenter here to Quito, capital of Ecuador, where it was picked up and taped by Maj. Everett Beall, signal officer with the Army mission, and Robert G. Schneider, the linguistics institute's agent there.

"You can never know how much we appreciate this, fellows," Schneider radioed Carpenter and Don Burns of the Kansas City Assn. for International Relations and Trade. Burns arranged the broadcast.

"This may save a life," Schneider said. "We are going to try to get a plane to drop the tape to Dr. Tidmarsh tomorrow (today)." Tidmarsh was a recorder and loudspeaker, and could play the tape back for the Indians to hear. If it cannot be dropped, a plane may broadcast the appeal over the Auca country, Schneider said.

CHICAGO (AP)—A Chicago housewife is going to get a pink telephone, as she demanded, to replace a defective ivory phone and her husband won't have to pay $5 for the installation.

A dispute between the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. and Bernard J. Arnold, a phone subscriber, was cut short yesterday by a State Commerce Commission examiner when he picked up the tab for the installation.

Arnold had complained to the commission after the company installed a new ivory replacement phone but insisted on $5 before switching to pink. He said his wife wanted a pink one to match her kitchen.

A company official told commission examiner William E. Helander that the company made no charge "housewives would be swarming around to change their phone colors for esthetic reasons."

Helander said the commission regulations provide for the $5 charge but Arnold argued the regulation did not apply "as long as they had to replace the defective phone."

Helander tossed a $5 bill on the table for the phone company and said: "If this case is not resolved, I'll have to write a long report and take it up with five busy commissioners. This ends the case."

Helander went into another room to hear a utility company's request for a 25 million dollar a year rate increase.

Study Venture In Credit Sales

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Changing home budget habits are pushing charge account and installment buying into old strongholds of cash and carry.

Early next year J. C. Penney will test credit sales in a few of its 1,700 stores which have been strictly cash and carry since its founding in 1902.

W. T. Grant is putting an installment credit plan into 86 new stores this year, bringing its entire chain of 699 into the plan. It tested the idea on a pilot basis in Atlanta, Ga., in 1946, and gradually extended it to other stores and regions.

Versions of installment paying for merchandise also have been spreading among many department stores.

Credit buying has increased everywhere since the war. Young persons in particular budget their income to fit installment payments. Rising prices and merchandise upgrading have put many purchases out of the reach of the old cash and carry customer.

The trend to larger families also spurs use of credit for mass outfitting and for buying big ticket items.

So the cash and carry chains appealing to lower budget groups have found the department store charge account systems an increasing competition.

Officials of Grant's say their credit plan has been used by more than a million customers. Last year 33½ million dollars worth of merchandise, or 8.8 per cent of total sales, were charged.

Penney's hasn't decided yet which type of credit plan to use or where the tests will be made.

Fancy Food For British Soldier

LONDON (AP)—Days are numbered for char, wad, bubble and squeak, praties and bangers.

In their places on British army menus enlisted men and women each meal are offered such fare as porterhouse steak, duck, goose, vol-au-vent omelette surprise, charlotte russe and peach melba.

A buck private, but not an officer, gets lunch and dinner choices of 8 types of potatoes, 6 vegetables, 12 meats, soups and half a dozen sweet dishes to top off the meal.

Fancied-up menus are one of come-ons Britain is giving to volunteers. In another couple of years Britain hopes to end the draft leaving patriotism and friendly persuasion as the two best means of getting her soldiers.

The first of the souped-up kitchens was opened at the Royal Artillery Depot in London's Woolwich section. For possibly the first time in the history of English-speaking soldiery, there have been no complaints from the ranks.

Army spokesmen claim that during the past three weeks there have been indications of much higher morale at the depot, which could mean more re-enlistments.

British soldiers traditionally have called tea "char," sandwiches "wad," a conglomeration of meat and vegetables mixed into a stew "bubble and squeak," plain boiled potatoes "praties" and sausages "bangers."

Gein Weeps, Prays As Courts Study Case; Sanity Test Seen

WAUTOMA, Wis. (AP)—Edward Gein, who admits slaying two women and pillaging the graves of at least nine other women, wept and prayed yesterday as the courts studied his fate.

The 51-year-old bachelor was arraigned in Waushara County Court yesterday on a charge of first-degree murder and was bound over to Circuit Court for trial.

Defense counsel William Deller and Dist. Atty. Earl Kileen already had agreed on a sanity test for Gein.

Under Wisconsin law, Circuit Court could commit Gein immediately to the Central State Hospital for the Criminal Insane without hearing the murder trial. Wisconsin does not have capital punishment.

Gein is charged specifically with murder and mutilation last Saturday of Mrs. Bernice Worden, 58-year-old hardware store operator in Plainfield, seven miles from his farm.

He also has admitted slaying and butchering Mrs. Mary Hogan in December 1954.

Hogan said Mrs. Worden and Mrs. Hogan were shot to death on impulse when it occurred to him they reminded him of his paralyzed mother, whom he had nursed until she died at their secluded farm home 12 years ago.

The Rev. Kenneth Engelman, 33 pastor of the Wautoma Methodist Church, told newsmen how Gein sobbed and prayed.

The young minister, who never had seen Gein before, visited him in jail as "a citizen of God."

Pastor Engelman said, "I walked in and said, 'Mr. Gein, I am here to give you spiritual help, and we talked for awhile. After breaking down, he collected himself and then started to talk about it and then cried again. Gein sought forgiveness. I think he was referring to God."

He said he and the accused slayer knelt together beside the bunk in the cell "and prayed for his comfort and forgiveness."

The clergyman said Gein told NAMES AT LAW WESTPORT, Conn. (AP)—Wake & See is the name of a law firm in Westport. And there's money in it, too. Edwin K. Dimes is one of the partners.

him his concern was not solely for himself, but also for the pain he had inflicted on others.

After the minister left, Gein told Sheriff Arthur Schley, "I hope he comes again."

The clergyman's visit followed four days of official questioning during which the middle-aged handyman told how an unnatural attachment to his mother developed into a sex obsession and led to violation of graves and finally to the two slayings.

He said he watched death notices in newspapers and then opened the graves of women who had just been buried. He said that from some graves he took only the heads, while from others he took the heads and other portions of the corpses. He took a whole body from one grave.

He said he drew "great satisfaction" from donning a vest made from a woman's torso, puttees of human skin and a mask made of a face peeled from a skull.

After his mother died, he said, "I wanted to become a woman."

ELIZABETH SEIFERT'S NEW NOVEL The Doctor's Husband

CHAPTER 5

Driving out to Rogers' the next afternoon, Tracy told Michael about the pig. A small party had been arranged for the new man in the office; his bride-to-be was to meet Michael's associates and their families. It was a time of great importance to the girl.

The party was being held in the play house, a low structure of white frame with wide blue awnings and a paved terrace which overlooked the river a hundred feet below. There were a mammoth barbecue chimney, comfortable chairs, and comfortable-looking guests, all of the men in sport shirts, all of the women in cotton, except a blonde, who wore an immaculate suit of white linen. She evidently had been invited to pair off with Mr. Nisbet, who was unmarried. Her name was Rainey — Mrs. Rainey — and she was beautiful.

Mrs. O'Connell was tall and dark, with the golden-brown skin and the strong hands of a golfer. The two Rogers daughters were very pretty girls of eighteen and twenty, debutantes on the city's social list; there were two young men for them. Mrs. Rogers, the hostess, was a large, smiling woman who said she was glad to know Tracy — and Michael — and she insisted that she could not call the girl "Dr. Vaughan," nor introduce her so.

"Call me Tracy," said the little redhead. "Even the patients do that."

It was fun, relaxed, and very pleasant. They sat about and drank beer, and talked. After an hour of this, Mrs. Rogers began to busy herself with preparations for serving supper. Dr. Rogers produced what looked more like a roast than a steak, and the men went into a huddle over the proper crust of salt to put on for charring.

Tracy shyly offered to help Mrs. Rogers. She had a fine, busy time running errands, arranging stacks of plates, and rows of silver. She and Howdy Nixbet trundled a cart up the drive to the main house and brought back the prepared vegetables for the salad and other sundries.

Tracy was having a good time and apparently Michael was too, for he had been taken over by the blonde in the white suit. He didn't seem to mind that at all.

"Who is she?" Tracy asked Howdy when they went into the play house for the napkins Mrs. Rogers wanted.

"Name's Carol Rainey; she's a widow, two small children."

"She's stunning," said Tracy. For supper, Tracy sat at one end of the table in the group of young people. Michael sat beside her, but his attention was largely absorbed by Mrs. Rainey on his right.

They all laughed a lot, and ate a lot, and talked a great deal of nonsense which must have been clearly audible to Michael and Carol Rainey, if they cared to listen. Mostly they did not.

In fact, Tracy found an odd minute or two to wonder why they all should so entirely ignore Mrs. Rainey. She was young, perhaps no older than Tracy, and she was beautiful. Her skin and her hair, which was brushed into a complicated chignon on her neck, were all a gleaming pale gold color. Her eyes were dove-grey, and seductive. Her figure was exquisite, and her voice cooed alluringly.

By occasionally listening, Tracy gathered that she was talking intently to Michael about her children, about the "trauma" which her little boy had suffered because of his father's overindependence upon discipline. Mrs. Rainey gave details, and explained the results of punishment, and Michael listened to her, absorbed, even fascinated. That was what surprised Tracy. Socially he always objected to shop talk!

She leaned forward across the trestle table to look again at this woman who sat beyond Michael. And then she sat back, frowning. She couldn't figure it out.

"Another piece of pie, Tracy?" asked Howdy.

She bit at her upper lip. "Howdy," she asked, "did you have a pediatrician in the office, before Michael?"

He nodded. "Yes, sure."

"What happened to him?"

"Well, for one thing, a little trouble over in Korea."

Tracy nodded and picked up her coffee cup.

"But I don't think O'Connell will be happy if you use that means of getting Michael out of Carol's reach."

Tracy flushed. "Don't be silly!" "Your eyes look pretty green in this light."

It had been arranged during the drive out to the Rogers', that Monday afternoon Tracy would pick Michael up at his office and together they would go down to the City Hall to apply for their marriage license.

At three on Monday, as had been arranged with the Superintendent, Tracy went off duty, swiftly changed into a dark linen dress and put on hat and gloves, took her purse, and walked to the Medical Arts Building.

The comfortable, lamplit waiting room was half-filled, and the receptionist smiled in recognition when Tracy went to her window. "I'm afraid Dr. Loren is still busy with a patient, Dr. Vaughan. There's a Mrs. Rainey in his office."

"Oh, yes," said Tracy. "She's the one with the traumatic children! What are the children like? How old are they?"

"I don't know," she answered readily enough. "They didn't come with her on this visit."

Tracy smiled at the girl behind the window counter. "I'll wait," she said. She selected a magazine from the table and dropped into a chair in the corner of the room. There were no children waiting, so once he got rid of Mrs. Rainey, he'd be free. But it was taking time to get rid of her.

At ten minutes after four, Tracy went over to the window, sliding the glass aside. "I'm afraid you're going to have to interrupt Dr. Loren," she said quietly.

Almost at once, Michael came out still in his white jacket — and looking very handsome! He crooked a finger at Tracy, indicating that he wanted her to step into the outer hall with him. He led her along the corridor to the head of the marble stairs.

"I'm sorry I forgot our date, Tracy."

Date! Unbelieving, Tracy searched his face. "But, Michael . . . I'm sorry, but you can see that I'm running late, and well—we just won't make it."

"We can make it," she said breathlessly, "if we start at once."

"I can't leave a patient!"

She bit her lip to keep it from trembling. "You know I arranged with the Supe to take a thirty-six hour duty if she'd let me off for half of today."

"I'd forgotten the details, but . . ."

"It's four-fifteen," said Tracy breathlessly. Their wedding could not be postponed. There were all those expensive invitations, the church, and the hotel. "Don't you realize, Michael, that what with the three-day waiting period . . ."

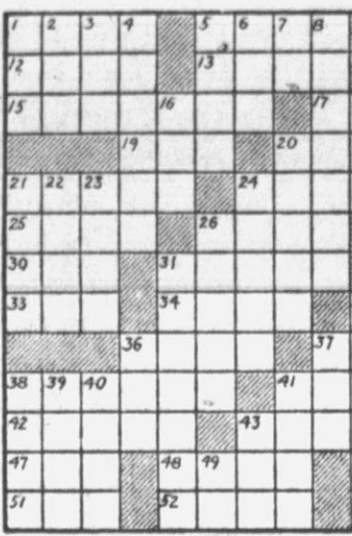

Today was Monday. If they got the license on Wednesday . . . but they couldn't! That thirty-six hour deal would make it Thursday, and . . .

He nodded. "I'll change," he agreed, his face like stone.

'Queen Of Theater' Didn't Want To Act

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—I never really wanted to be an actress. I always hoped to be a pianist. But I had to eat, and acting seemed like the natural thing to do, since the family was already in it."

This was Ethel Barrymore's reflection on her career on the eve of a nationwide tribute to her 64 years as queen of the American theater. Tomorrow night, NBC will televise a "command performance" in her honor. Saluting her will be Claudette Colbert, Joseph Cotten, Hoagy Carmichael, daughter Ethel Barrymore Colt, plus baseball greats Leo Durocher, Fred Haney, Casey Stengel and Roy Campanella.

This week Miss Barrymore gave one of her rare interviews in the Beverly Hills apartment where she lives with her son Sammy Colt. At 78, she doesn't get around as much as she used to. But as she spoke, she demonstrated she still has the Barrymore fire and the ability to impale an interviewer on his own questions.

What does she think about all this fuss over her on TV?

"Why, I think it's very complimentary," she snapped. "Who wouldn't be honored by it? What a strange question!"

The bedroom was dominated by the great eve of a TV set and I asked if she watched it much.

"Yes, I watch it," she replied. "I have seen some of my old pictures lately. It's the first time I've seen myself on the screen."

Her classic reply as to why she never saw her pictures has always been: "I never saw myself

Calendar Erred On Thanksgiving

ONEONTA, N.Y. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. William Calsam bought a turkey and trimmings a week early for Thanksgiving. Fortunately, they have a freezer to store them in.

Calsam, manager of a television cable concern, took his wife shopping last Saturday after he found the holiday listed on his office calendar as Nov. 21.

He ran into an argument when he phoned his daughter to make sure the family would come for Christmas. Investigation of other calendars set him straight.

Calsam confirmed yesterday that the calendar manufacturer was responsible for the mistake.

BONUS

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Clyde Boock got an extra dividend when she purchased a suit at a rummage sale.

Hallucinations To Watch For

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Can't sleep? Then watch out for witches with frizzled hair, luminous chicken wire and water jets spouting through the floor.

These are hallucinations reported by persons who have gone without sleep for 72 hours or more, says Dr. Eugene Bliss, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Utah.

Bliss told the Western American Psychiatric Assn. that he got his information by conducting a "stay-awake" experiment with volunteer medical students.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (NCDA)—Hog markets steady to 25 higher to day. Tops of 17.00 to 17.75 at Tarboro, Enfield, Winterville, Scotland Neck, Rocky Mount, Bethel and Murfreesboro; 17.25 to 17.75 at Kinston, Lillington, New Bern, Benson, Nahant, Albertson and Argier; 17.50 at Castle Hayne, Clinton, Fayetteville and Elizabethtown; 17.25 at Smithfield, Clayton, Dunn, Whiteville, Bailey, Mount Olive and Newton Grove; 17.00 at Lumberton, Shalotte, Pine Level, Goldsboro and Blackman's Crossroads.

RALEIGH (NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets, fryers and broilers farm price mostly 2 cents lower, 66 per cent at 15 cents, 12 per cent at 16, 2 per cent at 17 and 20 per cent under-terminated.

EGGS, prices paid by distributors for clean, sized 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh, large 57½¢; Charlotte 58¢; Durham steady, large 55 to 56½¢.

PRICES PAID producers on a graded-out basis: Asheville—A large, steady at 66¢.

NEW YORK—The stock market moved irregularly higher in fairly active trading early this afternoon.

Leading issues were ahead narrowly but here and there was a 1 or 2-point gainer. There was an assortment of fractional losers. Aircrafts were higher at the start as news of missiles brought these stocks into the limelight. The list was generally mixed in early trading. Prices began to move ahead as the session went into the afternoon.

Some profit-taking was evident on the strong advances of the past two sessions, based on expectations that the Federal Reserve Board would take further broad action to loosen credit. The mild easing factors made known by the board were a disappointment to some in Wall Street.

A slackening in retail trade and the news that the cost of living index held steady in October for the first time in 14 months, instead of rising, were background factors.

The leading rails, which have taken a severe battering lately, were comparatively immune to the latest piece of bad news: The sharpest year-to-year decline in car loadings since August 1954.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 10 cents to $156.90, with the industrials up 40 cents, the rails up 20 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Civil Term Of Pupil Prayer Group Court Is Ended Practice Is Growing

A one-week civil term of Pitt County Superior Court was adjourned yesterday after a jury ruled that a Pitt County farmer was not entitled to use a private road crossing lands owned by a neighbor.

Judge Walter J. Boone declared the term ended after the jury ruled that George H. Clapp had never acquired an easement entitling him to use a private road that crossed land owned by Mrs. Helen Tucker Greene. Final judgment in the action was not signed yesterday, but attorneys for both sides agreed that it was to be signed by Judge Boone out-of-term and out-of-county.

Clapp gave notice of appeal to the State Supreme Court after the verdict of the jury's verdict which, coupled with the judgment, will permanently enjoin and restrain him from using the road.

The road in question is one which crosses the Greene land on the west side of N. C. 43 south of Greenville. Both sides admitted that the road had been used by Clapp for several years, but Mrs. Greene and her husband, Burt Greene, had given notice of closing it.

Clapp had sought to have the court issue a temporary restraining order until the matter was finally determined and had also requested a permanent order granting him an easement for continued maintenance and use of the road.

In their answer to Clapp's complaint, Mr. and Mrs. Greene said there was never any evidence of "adverse possession" of the road until Clapp "attempted to drive the children of Mrs. Greene off the road." Prior to that time, they said, they had not objected to Clapp using the road across their property.

In the counter-suit, Mr. and Mrs. Greene asked that the restraining orders be denied and that Clapp be restrained from interfering with or removing any obstruction they might place on the road.
