Inspect Test Satellite

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, (D-TEX), chairman of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, currently holding hearings in Washington on the U. S. missile program, holds a test satellite brought to the session by Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the Navy's project vanguard. (AP Wirephoto).

Won't Be Able To See 'Test Moon'

BALTIMORE (AP)—The tiny test satellite the United States hopes to launch Dec. 4 will not be visible to the naked eye, but its five-foot-long brightly painted third-stage rocket will be seen.

It should provide plenty of opportunities for visual tracking as it trails the little beeping satellite across the heavens.

The third-stage rocket has been the most classified of all components of the 72-foot-tall, 22,000-pound Vanguard launching vehicle. But the Martin Co., which built and will fire the rocket, gave a peek at it in pictures it released today showing the 6.4-inch, four-pound test sphere mounted on the rocket.

Only the nose of the rocket, which will be completely cloaked in an apron of the bigger second-stage rocket, is shown in the photograph. But it reveals a white spherical shape, about 12 to 15 inches across, on which the tiny satellite is mounted.

After about 40 miles of ascent, the seven-foot-long asbestos-plastic nose cone of the rocket will split in two and fall off, leaving the satellite exposed for the rest of its climb.

The nose cone will protect the satellite from aerodynamic heating expected to reach 1,500 degrees Fahrenheit through the earth's dense lower atmosphere.

The photograph also shows four rods which brace the satellite to the walls of the second-stage rocket apron.

At about 287 miles, just short of orbital altitude, a spin table, propelled by tiny jets, will start the entire third stage with its still attached satellite rotating.

After the first complete spin, the supporting rods will snap out of the way and leave the shiny aluminum sphere ready for its spring into space.

Bush said he plans to make a personal inspection of missile production facilities on the West Coast and of SAC's retaliatory power. He said he will fly in an Air Force plane Monday to SAC headquarters at Omaha, Neb.

He also will visit the Western development division of the Air Force's Research and Development Command and the Douglas and North American production plants and testing facilities in the Los Angeles area.

In saying testimony showed the U. S. missile position in relation to Russia is worse than he thought it was, Kefauver refused to go into detail.

Other subcommittee members who sat in on a closed-door intelligence briefing Wednesday said afterward they heard a "sad and shocking" story on Russian military-scientific progress.

The briefing was given by Allen Dulles, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency.

These senators, too, declined to say just what they learned from the CIA chief. But it was reported last night the subcommittee was told Russia now has a few submarines, possibly four, capable of firing a missile with a nuclear warhead up to 700-900 miles.

Other vessels in Russia's sub fleet, estimated at about 450 boats, were reported being readied for such missile equipment.

One informant said the reported Soviet sub-missile capability "means they are practically in a position to wipe out any major city on the eastern seaboard." He did not say, however, that any of the Russian subs now are stationed within missile range of the East Coast.

The CIA was quoted by one source as reporting the Russian subs could launch missiles while still submerged. The weapons were described as of the "cruise" type—presumably a guided missile slower than a ballistic missile.

The U. S. Navy has a small number of submarines equipped with the Regulus, a subsonic missile capable of carrying a nuclear warhead up to about 800 miles.

In addition, the Navy is developing the Polaris, an Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile designed to be fired from beneath the surface of the ocean. However, development of the Polaris has been described as being behind that of the Army's Jupiter IRBM and the Air Force's Thor. IRBMs have a planned range of up to 1,500 miles.

Kefauver Claims Missile Picture Not Yet Hopeless

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said today three days of testimony on the status of the U. S. missile program shows the situation "is worse than I thought it was."

Kefauver, a member of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee conducting the missile-satellite probe, said in an interview the testimony by defense officials, intelligence specialists and scientists added up to "shocking evidence of how the country has gotten behind" Russia in certain scientific-military fields.

But the Tennesseean said "the picture is not hopeless," adding: "We've got to give more money and attention to missiles, satellites and scientific development and education. We can catch up and get ahead if we only put our will to it."

Sen. Bush (R-Conn.) said today the hearings demonstrate a need for the highest priority for expanding missile production and strengthening the Strategic Air Command.

Bush, member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who has been attending hearings of the preparedness subcommittee, said in a statement that "the highest priority must be given to maintaining and strengthening our present capacity for massive retaliation should the Soviet Union be foolhardy enough to attack us or our NATO Allies."

"We must also, and with equal priority, accelerate and expand our intercontinental and intermediate range missile programs," he added.

Bush said he plans to make a personal inspection of missile production facilities on the West Coast and of SAC's retaliatory power. He said he will fly in an Air Force plane Monday to SAC headquarters at Omaha, Neb.

He also will visit the Western development division of the Air Force's Research and Development Command and the Douglas and North American production plants and testing facilities in the Los Angeles area.

Secretary of Defense McElroy announced Wednesday that orders had been issued for production of the Jupiter and the Thor. He did this while testifying before the subcommittee which later recessed its hearings until Dec. 13.

The plan for the trip to Gettysburg, announced yesterday on a "hope" basis, was made firm earlier today on the basis of a new medical report of continued "excellent" recovery progress.

"The doctors have agreed it is perfectly all right for him to make the trip," press secretary James C. Hagerty said.

Some 150 to 200 persons waited near a White House gate to watch the Eisenhowers leave.

The President and First Lady smiled and nodded to the onlookers.

Eisenhowers To Spend Weekend On Their Farm

WASHINGTON (AP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower set out by automobile today for a weekend or more at their Pennsylvania farm in a striking new demonstration of his speedy recovery from a mild stroke.

The President, piling the move on top of yesterday's burst of activity which included surprise attendance at a Thanksgiving church service, went with full approval from his doctors, the White House said.

The plan for the trip to Gettysburg, announced yesterday on a "hope" basis, was made firm earlier today on the basis of a new medical report of continued "excellent" recovery progress.

"The doctors have agreed it is perfectly all right for him to make the trip," press secretary James C. Hagerty said.

Some 150 to 200 persons waited near a White House gate to watch the Eisenhowers leave.

The President and First Lady smiled and nodded to the onlookers.

The presidential auto was followed by a Secret Service car and another White House limousine carrying Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, White House physician, and some staff members.

Eisenhower wore a rust colored jacket and tan slacks. He removed his hat just before the car reached the gate, having spotted the crowd waiting outside.

Eisenhower had a long sleep, from 8 o'clock last night until 6 this morning, Hagerty said. It was not that he was overly tired, Hagerty said. He had a busy Thanksgiving day, going to church and presiding over a family dinner. Hagerty said Eisenhower retired shortly after dinner.

How long they will remain is questionable, but Hagerty said it will be at least through the weekend.

Hagerty said he probably will be unable to announce anything more definite about the stay at the farm until Sunday.

A Cabinet meeting is scheduled Monday. And on Tuesday, congressional leaders of both parties are coming to the White House for a briefing on military and defense matters and the legislative program for the new congressional session.

There has been no change, Hagerty said, in plans for the session with congressional chiefs. But whether Eisenhower personally will sit in still is up in the air.

Hagerty read this brief 8:30 a.m. bulletin from the White House physician, Dr. Howard M. Snyder:

"The President had a good night's sleep. He slept almost continuously from early last evening until 6 o'clock this morning. His progress continues to be excellent."

While Hagerty was speaking, Eisenhower was conferring with his chief assistant, Sherman Adams, and Brig. Gen. Andrew Goodpaster, White House staff secretary, on official business.

Hagerty said that he and Dr. Snyder were the only White House officials also making the trip to Gettysburg.

The new medical progress report and the firming up of plans for the Gettysburg run, together with yesterday's surprise burst of activity, added up to a signal of a faster recovery pace than had been indicated by Eisenhower's doctors.

The White House continues to emphasize that the road to complete recovery still stretches a good distance into the future. His physicians are pictured as believing Eisenhower must have several weeks of rest before he can return to his job full time.

Eisenhower spent half an hour with Adams and Goodpaster, signed 11 papers and initiated another, Hagerty said.

Early Decision On NATO Role For Nixon Promised

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House may announce a decision soon as to whether Vice President Nixon will sit in for the convalescing President Eisenhower at the NATO summit conference in Paris next month.

Nixon has said he is ready to go, and apparently the NATO Council expects the vice president to attend the meeting which opens Dec. 16.

The council said yesterday in a statement released in Paris that it learned with satisfaction that Vice President Nixon would lead the American delegation.

However, the final decision apparently has not yet been made. If Nixon gets the assignment, he would be catapulted into greater international prominence at a time when his role as vice president has taken on added significance at home.

He has spent many hours at the White House since Eisenhower was stricken Monday with a blockage of a small brain artery. Nixon has maintained throughout that he was not assuming any presidential duties, and has said he expects Eisenhower to be back on the job after a short period of convalescence.

Nixon stood in for Eisenhower yesterday in bidding farewell at the airport to King Mohammed V of Morocco, who was leaving after three days of talks with U. S. officials.

When he stopped by the White House later, Nixon said he planned to meet with Sherman Adams, Eisenhower's top aide.

It was at the airport that Nixon, in response to queries from newsmen, indicated his willingness to go to the Paris NATO conference.

"I am always ready to do whatever President Eisenhower wants me to," he said.

Nixon added that the question as to "who would make up the United States delegation" will be submitted to Eisenhower.

The White House said Eisenhower's doctors will decide later whether he is up to making the trip.

Nixon held his first news conference at the White House Wednesday.

He said he was not doing any more than he did in 1955 when Eisenhower suffered a heart attack.

He said Eisenhower asked him this week to see that meetings of the Cabinet and National Security Council are held on schedule during Eisenhower's absence. Nixon will preside at the sessions as he did in 1955.

Wetzel is being held in Los Angeles, Calif., until the extradition matter is settled. If a hearing should be required, a delay of several days might result.

Goodman said the party to return Wetzel would fly to California, then bring the prisoner back by train.

Law enforcement officers reported only minor situations to disturb the calmness of their day, and the Greenville Fire Department had only two calls—a grass fire and a false alarm—during the 24-hour period.

Sub-Zero Cold For North And Central Plains

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Cold air pushed by winds up to 50 miles an hour moved into the north and central Plains early today and the Weather Bureau warned that temperatures would take a nose dive to 10 to 15 degrees below zero.

The worst of the cold wave is expected to concentrate in northern Minnesota and northeast North Dakota, where temperatures are forecast to drop to -10 and -15. Zero readings are in prospect for points as far south as northern Iowa and South Dakota by tomorrow morning.

Northerly winds of 35 to 50 m.p.h. accompanied the freeze. Temperatures also were expected to drop to 10 to 15 degrees in northern Missouri, northeast Kansas and southwest Nebraska.

Elsewhere in the nation, the Northeast had springlike weather, rains doused a vast area east of the Ohio Valley and snow flurries fell in Wyoming and northwest Colorado. The Dakotas also had snow flurries.

Overcast skies and light rain predominated in the New England states during the night, but early today temperatures were mostly in the 40s and 50s, giving the area a springlike atmosphere. Two days earlier, readings were in the teens and lower.

Rains extended southward along the East Coast through the middle Atlantic states and Florida and from the Ohio Valley to the middle Gulf Coast states.

Planes and ships yesterday, bombarded the Moroccan village of Ahira, north of the Ifni enclave, and the villages of Oum Ifissin and Shoukhat, in the southeast corner of the enclave, were bombed and machinegunned, causing many casualties, according to Al Alam's account.

JOINT DEFENSE
OSLO, Norway (AP)—A high Norwegian military source said today that Danish and German naval forces will take over the joint naval defense of southern Norway.

Norway's tiny navy will be concentrated in the far north, the informant said.

According to the boys, they were moving downtown, looking for squirrels, when they heard geese honking on Tar River below them. When they started for the river, the boat overturned in water over the heads of both boys.

The boat was recovered shortly after the accident but efforts to recover the rifle were unsuccessful.

Both boys are sophomores at Farmville High School.

However, authorities said not the extra finger but a tip from an undisclosed source led to the arrest of the Smithfield native Wednesday, two days after the Angier Branch of the First Citizens Bank & Trust Co. was robbed of $33,000. Officers said almost all the money was recovered in Jackson's automobile.

Jackson is being held in jail here for trial at the April 8 term of federal District Court in Raleigh.

Spanish Bombers Said Striking Rebellious Colony

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—Spanish bombers have killed at least 180 persons in the rebellious colony of Ifni, the newspaper Al Alam said today. Spanish forces launched attacks by land and sea yesterday in their effort to crush the uprising, it added.

The paper, organ of the Moroccan Istiglal Independence party, said 50 persons were killed by bombs in the village of Fouar and 130 in Sidi Hamed Larouss.

Planes and ships yesterday, bombarded the Moroccan village of Ahira, north of the Ifni enclave, and the villages of Oum Ifissin and Shoukhat, in the southeast corner of the enclave, were bombed and machinegunned, causing many casualties, according to Al Alam's account.

N. C. Still Waits On Wetzel Data

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina authorities hoped to learn today when they may send officers to California to return the accused slayer of two Highway Patrolmen to this state.

The office of Gov. Hodges planned to check with the office of California Gov. Goodwin Knight to determine whether extradition papers for Frank Edward Wetzel will be necessary.

How speedily the extradition matter is handled will determine when the 37-year-old fugitive from a New York state mental institution is brought back to North Carolina to face murder charges in the deaths of Patrolmen Wister Lee Reece and J. T. Brown.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Raymond Goodman of Richmond County revealed last night he will be one of three officers selected to make the California trip to take custody of Wetzel for North Carolina.

Goodman said he would accompany Col. James R. Smith, Highway Patrol commander, and Capt. A. W. Welch, commander of Highway Patrol Troop C at Greensboro.

When he is returned, Wetzel will be held in Central Prison in Raleigh until early in January when he is expected to be tried in Richmond County Superior Court for the murder of Reece.

The patrolman had stopped a speeding auto near Ellerbe on the night of Nov. 5 when he was shot down. About an hour later, Brown was killed in a similar manner near Sanford, about 60 miles away.

Wetzel was picked up in Bakersfield, Calif., on a vagrancy charge. The FBI said his fingerprints matched those found on a car abandoned in Chaitanooga, Tenn., and identified as the murder vehicle.

Wetzel is being held in Los Angeles, Calif., until the extradition matter is settled. If a hearing should be required, a delay of several days might result.

Goodman said the party to return Wetzel would fly to California, then bring the prisoner back by train.

Law enforcement officers reported only minor situations to disturb the calmness of their day, and the Greenville Fire Department had only two calls—a grass fire and a false alarm—during the 24-hour period.

Most business houses and offices returned to regular routines this morning, but school students, including those at East Carolina College, will continue their holidays until Monday.

Schools in the city and county systems will reopen Monday morning, and ECC students will return to the campus Monday to register for the Winter Quarter which begins Tuesday.

Business districts in all of the county's towns were all but deserted most of yesterday as citizens took time out for union church services, traditional Thanksgiving dinners, and two televised football games.

The church services yesterday included one at Immanuel Baptist Church, with Dr. H. G. Haney preaching the Thanksgiving sermon.

Highway Death Toll May Be Less

CHICAGO (AP)—The 1957 death toll on the nation's highways might be 1,000 less than last year, the National Safety Council estimated today.

Council officials said their optimistic estimate of 38,600 deaths was based on three factors:

1. Some 31,350 highway deaths during the first 10 months, about 800 less than 1956.

2. During the first eight months of 1957, 5.6 persons died for every 100 million miles of highway travel. Last year, the figure was 6.

3. Twenty-nine of 46 states reporting showed traffic records for the first 10 months of 1957 which were improved over last year. Montana and Idaho showed 20 per cent improvements.

In October, 455 of the reporting cities had perfect records. The three largest were Richmond, Va., Jacksonville, Fla., and Salt Lake City, Utah.

There were 135 cities which had perfect records in 1956, the first 10 months. The three largest were Lynn, Mass., Rock Island, Ill., and Ann Arbor, Mich.

In 1956, 39,628 died in highway accidents.

The council said deaths in October totaled 3,480, approximately the same as in October 1956, which was the lowest since 1949.

Retired General Says Russians Guttured Germany Of Scientists

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Soviet labor, and complaints were registered by the West against such seizures, of course to no avail.

Howley himself was unable to be present at the subcommittee's hearings here today on charges of Soviet kidnaping of scientists to speed its missile program. A written statement by him was released by subcommittee counsel Robert Morris.

Howley said a limited number of top German scientists in West Germany were invited to come to the United States—among them the guided missile expert Werner von Braun. He emphasized that they were restricted to top layer men only, that none of them

Mild Weather Here Yesterday

Unusually mild weather for this time of year prevailed Thanksgiving Day in the Greenville area. The highest temperature recorded Thursday was 71 degrees. Lowest temperature last night 62, and at 8 a.m. today it was 65.

Three-tenths of an inch of rain fell here during the last 24 hours. Tar River at Greenville was at the 11-foot level today as a result of heavy upstate rains. The normal level of Tar River at Greenville is from three and a half to five feet.

Rivermen said today that the stream is dangerous to small craft as a result of floating and submerged logs, and other debris.

Supreme Soviet To Hold Session Next Month

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government announced today that the Supreme Soviet, Russia's Parliament, will hold a budget session beginning Dec. 19.

A decree published in the Communist party newspaper Pravda said other papers summoned more than 1,300 members of the Supreme Soviet's two houses to the meeting. The full agenda and probably length of the session were not indicated.

The Supreme Soviet usually meets for a week to 10 days. Government spokesmen report on the national and international situations at opening meetings.

The last meeting was a one-day ceremonial session Nov. 6 which served as a sounding board for party boss Nikita Khrushchev and other leaders on the eve of celebrations of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Phone Rate Boost Costly For County

Pitt Countians will find their collective telephone bill for local service approximately $120,000 higher during the next 12 months than they have the past year if the rate increase now in effect is approved by the State Utilities Commission.

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company which serves Pitt County, made its new rates for local service effective Monday pending action by the Utilities Commission on its request for a rate increase to provide an additional $1,500,000 annually in revenue.

In response to The Daily Reflector's question, "How much will this monthly rate increase cost your telephone subscribers in Pitt County?" Jack Havens, vice president of Carolina Tel. & Tel., provided this answer:

Based on the 10,929 telephones on the company's six exchanges in Pitt County as of October 31, the additional revenue from the increased rate will be $10,178 per month.

Havens pointed out that the number of telephones served by the company's six exchanges in Pitt may include a small number of rural telephones in adjacent counties. He explained that telephones on all of the company's six exchanges in Pitt County will carry the same dollar increase in rate for each category of service. New rates for telephones on two of the county's exchanges, Greenville and Ayden, were affected by a change in the exchange classification.

In response to The Daily Reflector's request, Havens provided breakdown of figures for each of the county's six telephone exchanges showing the number of telephones and the estimated revenue increase because of the new rates:

Greenville: 7,584 telephones; $7,900 monthly increase.
Ayden: 847 telephones; $900 monthly increase.
Bethel: 481 telephones; $400 monthly increase.
Farmville: 1,407 telephones; $1,050 monthly increase.
Fountain: 184 telephones; $128 monthly increase.
Grifton: 463 telephones; $400 monthly increase.

France, Too?

PARIS (AP)—The French weekly magazine Enterprise said today France will test an atomic bomb next spring.

A Defense Department spokesman said "We can't confirm it." The department has declined to comment on similar reports that France intends to add atomic weapons to its arsenal.

The magazine said work on a French A-bomb began in 1956. It reported that the speed with which France has been able to construct a bomb has surprised France's chief allies, the United States and Britain.

The magazine did not say where the test would be conducted. A rumor current in Paris for several weeks has mentioned the Sahara as a likely spot.

Red Cross Feeds Flood Victims

LUMBERTON, N. C. (AP)—The 150 flood-out residents of Moccasin Bottoms were fed again by the Red Cross today. They waited for the fourth day for the Lumber River to recede so they could go back home.

The 30 white, Indian and Negro families were driven out of their small frame homes in a lowland area Monday night.

Results of his talks with Secretary of State Dulles, Hafid, aide to Crown Prince Moulay Hassan, arrived later to bring the King on fighting in the tiny Spanish colony of Ifni facing the Atlantic and surrounded by Morocco on three sides.

The fighting broke out last weekend. Moroccan officials spoke of revolts in Ifni, "plying uprisings by the Berber tribesmen who live in the 741-square-mile enclave. The Spanish said the fighting arose from raids by the Moroccan Liberation Army, an irregular force not directly controlled by Rabat. The strongly nationalist liberation army spearheaded the military campaign that won Mocooco freedom from French control last year. Since then it has sought to add to Morocco some territory claimed as Spanish Sahara and French Algeria.

Hassan charged in Rabat that Spanish forces had launched attacks from Ifni on Moroccan territory. He said the royal army had been ordered to fight back. This was the first indication that official Moroccan forces might become involved alongside the irregulars.

The Spanish Foreign Ministry in Madrid denied "any aggression against Moroccan territory." Spanish troops, war planes and paratroopers have been rushed to Ifni and Spanish Sahara, south of Moroccan nationalists say 50 Spanish troops have been killed and several small towns in the enclave captured. Madrid says five of its soldiers have been killed and attacks repulsed.

Some Spanish officials said unofficially the Ifni trouble began about the time Hassan took over the government. They suggested

Farthing-Tappan Vows Pledged

An afternoon ceremony November 24 held in the Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church united in marriage Miss Phyllis Arlene Tappan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George H. Tappan of Ballston Spa, New York, to James Guy Farthing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Farthing of Mocksville, North Carolina.

The bride's brother-in-law, Rev. Edward C. Thornburg, officiated during the double-ring rites.

Organist Miss Mabel Lewis presented the nuptial music for the evening. White gladioli and fern decorated the altar of the church.

The bride wore a pale blue and white floral brocade dress and matching accessories. Accompanying the outfit was a white purple-throated orchid pinned to a matching muff.

Matron of honor and only attendant was Mrs. Edward C. Thornburg, sister of the bride. She wore a light cocoa street length dress with matching accessories and carried two bronze cymbidium orchids pinned to a muff.

Mr. Farthing was assisted by Lloyd Farthing, brother, as best man.

The bridegroom's mother attended the wedding wearing an aqua and brown dress with brown accessories. Her corsage was yellow roses.

After the reception the new Mrs. Farthing changed to a blue and brown check suit with matching accessories to wear on her wedding trip to Key West, Florida and by boat to Cuba.

Upon returning from their trip, the couple will reside at 248 Union Street, Schenectady, New York.

The bride is a graduate of Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake High School and held the position of head teller at the Mohawk National Bank in Schenectady.

After attending the United States Military Academy, West

Point, the bridegroom received a degree from North Carolina State College in Raleigh, N. C. He is obtaining a position as sales engineer with General Electric Corporation.

mony a reception was given for the bridal couple and their families.

Mrs. L. L. Coward, Mrs. Irving A. Roberson, and Mrs. Charles Durwood Allen served wedding cake, sherbert and ginger ale punch, mint patties and nut.

Chatham Club Concludes Commandments Study

The Rev. W. M. Howard was guest speaker for the Chatham Book Club Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Carter Studdert, 1602 Beaumont Road.

Upon arrival of the members and guest, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. E. Blair, served a salad plate with coffee and salted nuts.

Mrs. Carl Adams, in charge of the program for the afternoon, introduced the Rev. Howard, who gave the last in the series of studies of the Ten Commandments.

He reviewed briefly the two divisions of the Commandments and then discussed in detail the Ninth and Tenth Commandments. The Rev. Howard pointed out ways in which people of today, seemingly innocent, "bear false witness against their neighbors."

In discussing the Tenth Commandment, which says in part, "Thou shalt not covet anything which is thy neighbor's," he traced examples in history, literature and the Bible to show the ways in which people have desired their neighbor's goods.

"If one desires and covets long enough," stated the Rev. Howard, "he can find a way by which he can get what he wants."

He said further that the Commandments are as applicable today as they were when given to Moses in Old Testament times.

Mrs. C. E. Blair, president of the club, presided over a routine business session. The treasurer reported that the club, cooperating with the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, had bought a Christmas Seal Bond.

Following the exchange of books and a short social hour the club adjourned.

WMS Planning Observance Of Week Of Prayer

Next week the W. M. S. of the Immanuel Baptist Church will observe Week of Prayer. Meetings will be held each day according to the following schedule:

Monday, 8:00 p.m. "That He Gave To All Countries," Margaret Shields Everett and Mary Hester Powell Circles.

Tuesday, 10:00 a.m. "That He Sent To All People," Annie Smith Bilbro Circle.

Wednesday, 7:45 p.m. "That He Empowered Against All Hindrances," Carol Leigh Humphries and Wilma Weeks Circles.

Thursday, 3:30 p.m. "That He Called From All Races," Mary Frances Page Circle.

Friday, 3:30 p.m. "That We Must Love Him Too," Virginia Barnes Highfill Circle.

The theme for these meetings will be "For God So Loved." Friday will be Day of Prayer around the world. The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

30 Years Ago Today

November 29, 1927

The Model School defeated the graded school 27 to 12. Billy Station caught a 12 yard pass thrown by Park. Park made a touchdown in one minute to pay. A 40 yard run brought the touchdown. The players were Kasey, Wilson, Park, Sugg, Stator, Barr, Wells and Warren. Stars were Park, Stator and Wilson.

On November 24 the members of the Dorcas Class of Jarvis Memorial Church gave a miscellaneous shower to Mrs. Karsnak, formerly Miss Emma Mallison, a member of the class. It was given as a stork shower and therefore a complete surprise to her. As she opened the packages she expressed her thanks in her usual vivacious manner. An ice cream with cake, followed by fruit, was served by the bride's mother, Mrs. J. B. Mallison, assisted by her daughter, Miss Almata.

Household Furnishing Course To Be Offered At East Carolina

"Construction of Household Furnishings" is the subject of a course to be offered during the winter quarter at East Carolina College by the department of home economics. Dr. Bessie McNiel, department head, announced.

The course may be taken on either a credit or a non-credit basis. Dr. McNiel stated. Those completing requirements and wishing credit will gain three quarter hours.

Students enrolled in the course will receive training in many of the skills which are useful in the home. These include making curtains, draperies, and slip covers; refinishing wood; and upholstering furniture. Mabel Dougherty, faculty member of the home economics department, will be instructor.

The class is scheduled for Monday afternoons from 2 to 4 and Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 3 to 5. These hours can be changed, Dr. McNiel explained, if there is sufficient demand for the course among those unable to attend at the times stated.

If further information about the work is desired, it may be obtained by telephoning Dr. McNiel at 6101, Extension 43.

Mrs. John Behr Named President, Representative Of Leaders Club

At the November meeting of the Girl Scout Leaders Club, Mrs. John Behr was elected president and leader representative of the Pitt County Girl Scout Council.

After a brief business session Mrs. Behr gave a report of the Regional Conference on Senior Scouting which she recently attended at Southern Pines. "Although there is no active senior scout troop in the Greenville area, it is hoped that many of the present intermediate Scouts will advance to this program," said Mrs. Behr.

Troop 28
Intermediate Scouts from Troop 28 of West Greenville School held a doll show in connection with the annual PTA carnival Friday.

Proceeds from this show went to the PTA of West Greenville for their many projects. In addition to having fun, this work will count towards the community service project for their second class rank. Mrs. Leon Kendrick and Mrs. R. E. Cramer are co-leaders for this troop.

This group is also planning to have a float in the annual Christmas parade.

Auxiliary Aids Four Families

At the monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars held on Monday evening, Mrs. B. T. Joyner, chairman of the rehabilitation committee, reported that requests had been received and services supplied to aid four families of veterans.

In one case, food and medical care were provided and aid in clearing a claim for benefits was rendered. A financial donation was made to a family to assist in obtaining needed medical care; school fees were authorized for a child and rent was paid for another family. These services were made possible through funds derived from the annual Buddy Poppy Sale.

Mrs. J. A. Joyner Jr., president, presided at the meeting which was held in the home of Mrs. C. B. West Jr.

A request from the VA hospital at Oteen for four pairs of pajamas was approved and the group favored sending additional gifts. A request from Caswell Training School for three rubber or Plastic toys was also authorized and additional gifts were approved to be sent to that institution. A special remembrance for the brother of an auxiliary member who is currently a patient at the VA hospital in Fayetteville was favored.

Mrs. Kenneth Brown, Americanism chairman, reported that South Greenville Elementary School has purchased 15 classroom flags in connection with the Auxiliary's special flag project.

A $10 bond was purchased from the local chapter of the Tuberculosis Association. Christmas seals from the VFW National Home were purchased in the amount of $2.

Mrs. C. B. West Jr. gave a report on the Second District meeting held in Grifton recently. She noted that membership was stressed and awards to be offered in the district were announced.

A letter of thanks was read from the VA hospital in Fayetteville for the help given by the auxiliary.

Cards and flowers have been sent to members who have been sick during the month.

Mrs. B. T. Joyner was the recipient of the door prize.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Joe Squires, Mrs. Elbert Bullock, Mrs. Bill Phillips and Mrs.

Stella Joyce who served refreshments during the social hour.

Chicod Jr. 4-H'ers Select Projects

Miss Margaret Stevens, assistant home demonstration agent, and Cecil Register, assistant farm agent, assisted the Chicod Junior 4-H Club in choosing their projects and getting their record books when the club met Tuesday.

Some of the projects chosen were Breakfast, Dinner, Supper, Better Grooming, Frozen Foods, and Raising Pigs. Boys and girls attending the meeting received their membership pins.

Carol Porter presided over the meeting and Mary Buck gave the devotion.

Mrs. Taft Discusses Personality

Mrs. Joseph M. Taft discussed Art Linkletter, a television personality, when Mrs. Wendell W. Smiley entertained at the Inter Se Club at her home Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Taft told how Linkletter is a skilled performer when it comes to interviewing people and his way with people which has proved that people are funny.

Several excerpts from Linkletter's recently published book, "Kids Say the Darndest Things," which illustrated his success in interviewing children was given.

Preceding the program a social hour was held with Mrs. Smiley serving a dessert course and coffee to the members of the Inter Se Club and her special guests for the afternoon, Mrs. L. G. Williams, Mrs. Wesley Harvey, and Mrs. Dick Evans.

Bernie Tyndall Has Birthday Party

GRIFTON—Master Bernie Tyndall celebrated his seventh birthday Saturday afternoon when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tyndall entertained at a party at their home on Church Street. The home for the afternoon was gaily decorated with multi-colored balloons and red and yellow streamers.

The young guests were greeted by Bernie and Michael Tyndall and shown to the gift table which was decorated in red and yellow. During the play period the balloon and festival donkey game was played, prizes going to Jeanine Desverges and Gloria McGlohon. After the games dancing was parred.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a white linen cloth and centered with the decorated two tiered cake.

The 1958 Leaf Prospect Is Good

Flue-cured tobacco regions have little cause to grumble over 1958 acreage allotments announced this week by the Department of Agriculture.

For the individual farm, acreage allotments this year will be the same as last year. In the case of Pitt County it means we will have a total allotment of approximately 25,100 acres in 1958, just as we did in 1957.

But with the acreage allotment being the same as this year, it is reasonable to expect that Pitt, as well as other counties, will produce a greater number of pounds of tobacco in 1958 than was the case this year. That, of course will mean more farm income from tobacco next year than this.

Why can we expect more tobacco on the same number of acres next year?

There are a number of reasons. First of all there is the weather and the growing season. In the opinion of many farmers, 1957 had the worst tobacco growing season in Pitt of any year since 1952. The law of averages will give us a better growing season during the coming year.

Even with a growing season comparable to last year, Pitt may expect a better per acre yield in 1958.

1958. Farmers are showing a great deal more care in selection of their tobacco seed than at any other time. This factor should result in less "off-brand" tobacco next year than was produced in the county this year. Because of experiences of individual farmers this year, diseases should take a smaller toll of the county's tobacco crop next year.

Then too, we may expect farmers to take greater care in the cultivation and handling of their crop next year than was the case this year.

According to County Agent S. C. Winchester, average weather conditions during the 1958 growing season, coupled with other factors, should enable Pitt to increase its average yield 150 to 200 pounds per acre next year over this year's average. That would mean a total production increase of three and three-quarters to five million pounds of tobacco in Pitt next year. In terms of dollars, based on this year's prices, it could mean an additional one and one-half to two and one-half million dollars in farm income from tobacco in this county next year.

While the picture could change appreciably before time to sell the 1958 tobacco crop, the overall situation points to a better year in 1958 for Pitt County's tobacco farmers than was the case this year.

Portraits That Governor Chose

By LYNN NISBET

PORTRAITS — A few months ago Governor Luther Hodges replaced old portraits of other former chief executives in his private office with pictures of Charles Brantley Aycock and Angus Wilton McLean. Aides who made the change do not recall whose pictures were removed. They said Governor Hodges wanted Aycock and McLean because they symbolized the two major objectives of his administration — educational progress and sound business in government.

A third portrait in the Governor's inner office is that of Samuel Johnston, who served about 15 months in 1788-89. Inquiries about why he was accorded that honored position elicited the answer that it was somewhat smaller than most of the portraits and fit into the space available for another picture.

Portraits of three former executives are displayed in the anteroom to the Governor's office. They are Abner Nash (1780-81), Benjamin Smith (1810-11) and William Hawkins (1811-14). Inquiries failed to discover why these particular men were chosen for these positions. The name of Abner Nash appears on almost every page of the history of North Carolina for the decade between the middle 1770's and the 1780's. Smith and Hawkins were less prominent than some other Governors in the past.

Besides the pictures in the Governor's office there are a dozen or more portraits of former executives in the Mansion, and others are in the art gallery and the hall of history.

There is a law about statutory on public grounds and about memorial plaques and other permanent installations around Capitol square, and about custody of State-owned portraits in general. As to whose picture is placed where in the Mansion or the Governor's office is entirely up to the incumbent chief executive.

JUSTICES — Portraits of all 13 of the chief justices since the Supreme Court was constituted approximately as at present in 1818 hang in the court room. In the corridors of the third floor justice building hang portraits of all but four or five of the associate justices. Efforts are being made to fill these vacant spots. In every instance the portraits of Governors and justices were presented to the State by members of the families, friends or patriotic associations and the pictures have cost the taxpayers nothing.

Dillard Gardner, marshal of the court, recalls how a problem involving the judicial pictures was met. When the court was moving into its new building some 15 years ago it was discovered that the plywood walls in the court room were not strong enough to hold up the heavy life-size pictures. So they were re-framed in the lightest material available at the time.

OTHERS — The offices of the Secretary of State, Auditor and Treasurer have portraits of former occupants of these offices. The conference room in the Attorney General's office has an almost complete series of photographs of attorneys general from colonial times, assembled by the late Harry McMullan. The Highway Commission board room in the C&D department has all directors from its beginning in 1925 through 1955. Most of the other State departments and institutions have comparable photographic or portrait records of former officials. Some of the items were obtained at considerable trouble and in a few instances the old pictures are rare and very valuable.

Paintings in the State Museum of Art, including portraits and still life subjects, have attracted visitors from all over the country.

GREAT SEAL — One of the most interesting paintings around Capitol square is that of the Great Seal of the State of North Carolina in the office of Commissioner of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine. Inquiries have failed to discover the name of the artist, but the late Graham H. Andrews, prominent banker and mayor of Raleigh, told your reporter this story about it some years ago:

The presently unknown artist was commissioned by the State of North Carolina to paint the picture for display at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893. The artist chose the late mayor's mother and the wife of Col. A. B. Andrews, vice-president of the Southern Railway, as a model for the standing figure representing Liberty. As a model for the sitting figure of Plenty he chose Carr. Besides representing Liberty and Plenty the portraits of the ladies are said to be excellent likenesses.

Mrs. Andrews as Liberty is holding the constitution in one hand and a staff upon which hangs a liberty cap with a streamer. That conforms to current requirements for the Great holds in one hand the small end of a cornucopia (horn of plenty) from which is pouring a variety of fruits, and in the other hand an ear of corn. Present specifications for the Great Seal call for three heads of wheat instead of an ear of corn, and most pictures show mixed grain and fruit pouring from the horn.

The statute does not prescribe a background. The 1893 artist painted a mountain range and a sailboat on the sea. Most current designs show a background of agriculture and industry. In the 1890's the Department of Agriculture was the chief promotional agency for the State. The agricultural fund paid the bill for the painting and for the display at the World's Fair and when the exposition was over the original painting was turned over to the department. There is considerable sentiment for having the history of the painting verified and having it placed either in the hall of history or in the museum of art.

Don't Underestimate Our Public Schools

Perhaps through stubbornness, perhaps through ignorance, we find ourselves taking exception to assertions that other nations do a better job of educating their young people than does the United States.

We are aware that our public schools have many shortcomings. We are keenly concerned about the apathy on the part of the nation's citizenry toward the needs of public schools. We are convinced that the public schools, if we would foot the bill, could give the young people of this country much more than they are getting from their formal education.

Notwithstanding these things, we are sure in our own mind that the public schools of this country come more nearly educating all of its boys and girls than the educational system of any other nation. In some phases of their programs they may excel our teaching methods, our courses of instruction. Their youngsters may know more foreign languages, or have more years of study in mathematics or physics.

Yet, we cannot bring ourselves to believe that our educational system is inferior; that we should re-vamp our system after that of some other countries which devote attention to the above-average child which the others are left to shift for themselves.

American public schools have much room for improvement. But it is a mistake to underestimate the value of the work being done in our public schools when comparing them to the schools of other countries.

One Hatful Of Business Items

By ELMER ROESSNER

Strange and curious, and sometimes wonderful, is the news of business and here is a hatful of items to prove it:

Fifteen years too late for many of us, a rubber torsion spring suspension seat has been designed to take the bounce out of the military jeep . . . Door-to-door salesmen still soon arrive on flying platforms, predicts Herman Perl, of Newark, N.J., president of Fire Detective, whose salesmen now travel by car to sell home fire alarms.

Creditors lost $2,779,000 when 91 apparel, accessory and general merchandise retailers failed in October, Dun & Bradstreet reports.

Apply plugging — putting the core back in a cored apple — is just a "playful act" and not grounds for firing a cannery worker, the National Labor Relations Board has ruled.

Early American is by far the best selling furniture style, a Home Furnishings Daily survey shows . . . The American shortage of gretian root has been relieved by a shipment from Yugoslavia. It's used in tonics . . . The rise in winter sports is boosting the sales of long Johns, manufacturers say.

SAY "FREE" CAUTIOUSLY To test the pulling power of its advertising, a Milwaukee store offered a free television lamp to each customer entering the store between 9 and 11 a.m. More than 6,000 showed up and the store gave $15,000 worth of lamps . . . If you think your parking fees are high, remember that charges on setting down an intercontinental airliner in Britain is $160 . . . Between next Friday and Christmas, almost 4,000,000 jeweled watches will be sold as gifts, Elgin estimates.

Because John D. Rockefeller, Jr., objected, the Chock Full O'Nuts Corp. has rewritten its singing commercial. "Better coffee Rockefeller's money can't buy" has been changed to "better coffee a millionaire's etc." Hilton Hotels, like thousands of others, use window envelopes. But when contents are removed, through the window appears the message: "Thank you, we appreciate your business." . . . Foreign governments are paying American publicity firms a total of $6,000,000 a year to influence us, Printers' Ink says . . . Welch cakes, a historic delicacy, are now being exported from Cernarth, Carmarthenshire, West Wales.

ORIENTAL STYLES The first Japanese fashions for children and teen-agers to be imported into America have been exhibited by Max Hess, Allentown, Pa., merchant . . . In 2057, the cornerstone to CBS Laboratories, Stamford, Conn., won't be difficult to locate. Radioactive metal was added . . . A bequest for perpetual care of a family burial lot cannot be deducted as a funeral expense if the decedent isn't buried there, rules.

Spanish rosemary, patchouli and sandalwood have recently declined in the New York market.

The Asian flu epidemic boosted the sales of juices, Supermarket News reports . . . A television station with one camera and one employee is operating at Port Jervis, N.Y., which is hemmed in by mountains that bounce back competitive telecasts . . . By 1960, American women will be spending more money for aerosol hair "laquer" than for any other cosmetic item, according to an announcement for G. Barr & Co., whose press agent doesn't seem to know how to spell the name of its product.

Wigs and toupees are "cosmetics" in Pennsylvania, according to a new ruling, and are therefore subject to sales taxes . . . Business firms are now demanding safes colored to match office decor, Mosler Safe Co. reports . . . See? Isn't there a lot of giddiness in business?

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

HIGH COST OF FAITH One of the ideas which we need most to put out of our minds is that we can cultivate religious faith and develop moral character entirely apart from sacrifice.

There is a type of piety today which is undergirded by the conviction that all we need to do is relax and all the spiritual graces will steal into our hearts and settle down upon our minds. There is, of course, a place for mysticism in true religion, and mysticism involves among other things the maintenance of an attitude of mind which will permit the Spirit of God to speak to our hearts. But mysticism is only a small part of religion. Most religion involves work, discipline, sacrifice. The cross would not have held the central place it does hold in our faith were it not for the fact that it stands for something very real. The crucifixion of Christ was a great redeeming act, but it is also a great symbol. It sets forth the truth that there can be no spiritual victory without sacrifice, no faith without a cross.

So the next time you find yourself complaining how hard it is to have religious faith and live righteously, just remind yourself that it was intended to be this way. So intended, indeed, by the God of love. We were not put into this world primarily to be happy but primarily to learn how to grow souls that will grow and glorify God throughout all eternity.

Thanksgiving Leftovers

So you've got leftover turkey all over the place and nobody wants to down it.

Don't deny it. Every body's got the same trouble. It's an age old problem which has plagued mankind since the first little turkey gobbler let out its first peep.

Well, friend, the Taylor Home Management Advisory Council, made up of himself and Woman's Editor Anne Singleton has the answer.

When yours truly confronted Mrs. Singleton with the problem of what to do with leftovers after Thanksgiving, she immediately dug down into her vast source of material and came up with an article which gave several nice suggestions.

"One of the pleasantest ways to serve sliced leftover turkey is to accompany it with a fruit salad and a hot bread," the article said. "A popular salad, and one that tastes delicious with cold turkey is made from avocado, orange sections and seedless grapes."

Sound interesting? Well here's how it's made.

Avocado Fruit Salad

Ingredients: 3 avocados, 3 oranges (sectioned membrane-free), small bunch seedless grapes, orange French dressing. Method: Cut avocados in half lengthwise; remove pits. Arrange 6 or 7 orange sections in avocado halves with white grapes. Serve with Orange French Dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Oh yes, there's a foot note. If desired, avocados may be peeled and sliced; arrange slices on salad greens with orange sections and grapes.

Now doesn't that sound nice? Of course there are those who say rather than go to all that trouble why not feed the old turkey to the dog.

That's not the spirit, though. You've got it. Now live with it.

There's also a recipe for orange French Dressing: Ingredients: 1 can (6 ounces) frozen concentrated orange juice, 1/4 cup salad oil, 1/4 cup cider vinegar, 3 to 4 tablespoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon Tabasco sauce.

Method: Put undiluted orange juice concentrate, salad oil, vinegar, sugar, mustard, salt and Tabasco in jar, bowl or bottle. Shake or beat until blended; or mix in electric blender. Dressing may be stored covered in refrigerator. Shake well before using. Makes 1 and 3/4 cups.

There you have it. A complete method for making use of left over turkey. Also included was a recipe for hot bread. If the proper enthusiasm is exhibited concerning the above recipes we might be prevailed upon to publish the hot bread recipe in time for Christmas leftovers.

Anyway, let us know how it turns out. I won't know personally. We had baked chicken at our house.

The department also announced its purpose to support discounted varieties next year at only half the rate allowed for comparable grades of other types of leaf. That is in line with practices recognized in the sale of the 1957 crop.

Farm organizations have endorsed the decision the department has announced both as to acreage allotments at the same level as this year, and as to fifty percent support of the discounted varieties. It is the most logical procedure that could be followed, under the circumstances, and will be approved by growers generally and the industry as a whole.

With this year's crop out of the hands of the farmers and in possession of dealers and manufacturers, producers will now turn to another year. Their task, as always, will be aimed at production of the best possible quality, and in the hope that weather conditions, at least in this area, will be more favorable than in recent season.

Other Editors Saying -- Fighting The Surplus

(Henderson Dispatch)

Acreage quotas for the 1958 flue-cured tobacco crop have been fixed at substantially the same as those in effect this year. The total as announced by the Department of Agriculture is 713,468 acres for the five States which grow the supply, and that is approximately one thousand acres increase. That slight margin is permitted as a lever for making certain adjustments in obvious hardship cases.

To all intents and purposes, there is no change in allotments for next season. Holding the total in line with 1957 figures is another blow aimed at the tremendous over-supply of flue-cured tobacco, a historic delicacy, are now being exported from Cernarth, Carmarthenshire, West Wales.

Lonely Town Blues

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—This is a lonely town for people who are alone. You may think every town is lonely for people alone but this is the town I know.

Believe me, the bigger the town, the lonelier the lonely are. A man alone, the only human being on a desert, may feel lonely. But he will feel more lonely among 8,000,000 human beings, if he has nobody to talk to.

If you have nobody to talk to except a cactus plant, you may feel sorry for yourself. But you don't take it personally. If you can find nobody to talk to among 8,000,000 human beings, you do take it personally. This is the worst kind of loneliness — painful, profound, abiding.

I have made sort of a study of loneliness in this town—along the streets, in the libraries, in the public parks, in the restaurants, and the case studies which follow have the single virtue of fact. They are real. No novelist dreamed them up.

To the library at 42nd St. — that's the one with the lions in front — a man called Harold came almost every night, after work. He made a slight pretense of consulting technical journals but mostly Harold came to talk with the ladies at the information desk.

They came to know him as genteel, well-spoken, well-dressed, cultured, and as a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Harold also was a hunchback.

He came to talk, but he came also to feed the pigeons on the front steps. Especially, a lame pigeon.

He talked about his aunt and uncle in Boston. He lived alone in New York. Then one day he told the girls at the desk that his aunt had died. Then his uncle died, and Harold went up to look after their personal effects.

Two weeks later, the girls at the information desk read that Harold had died. It was one of those stories. He had jumped or fallen from his 12th-floor apartment.

But the sharpest etching in loneliness may be found in New York is at the Automat, the coin cafeterias. Mostly people who come in to eat at an Automat are out in 20 or 25 minutes. The widows and the old maids take longer.

I have it on the word of one Automat manager that, having nothing else to do, having sat in the part or caught a movie or watched the afternoon TV in their room, they can't resist coming to the cafeteria for dinner as early as 5 p.m. Then they try to stretch it to 9 or 10.

I sat near three such old ladies one afternoon. First, they got their silverware and napkins, and then they spread extra napkins as table-mats. Then they talked. Then they got their tomato juice. Then they talked. Then they got their main course. Then they talked. Then they got their dessert. Then they talked. Then they got their tea.

The conversation I overheard was something like this: "I hear Frank had a heart attack. And he has such a good job, cashier."

"That, too bad." Pause. "You know this tomato juice is improving."

"Soon, it'll be time for me to wear my green coat," said one of the old ladies, rubbing arthritic fingers, trying to maintain her dignity with no place to go, nothing to do.

"Doris said a swell man took her out. I'll find out what a swell man he is. I'll find out."

The tone implied she hoped to find out the man wasn't so swell. Sylvia bought a new hat and dress. Her children had been out last Sunday. They paid for a cab both ways."

Finally she brought a long pause until finally the third woman, who wore a bird's nest hat, sighed. "I think," she said, "I'll get some dinner."

Opinions In Brief

"There is a very great difference between local or state government buildin' gthings, that is, a public utility system or a dam or anything else, and the federal government doing it. Because as federal government begins to run riot with the expenditures that it deems good for the country, if necessary, it can print money; it can go into debt." — President Eisenhower.

"The two professions—medicine and journalism—have some notable points of similarity. Both are concerned with important functions of human life. Doctors strive to preserve and restore human health. Journalists deal with the health of human minds in a democracy by trying to keep them adequately informed." — Louisville Courier Journal.

Grandest Alliance Of Them All

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — A Grand alliance such as the world has never witnessed will emerge from next month's NATO Paris Conference under the tentative Eisenhower-Dulles program. It is "tentative" only in the sense that all our Allies have not yet agreed to it — only Britain and Canada.

This anti-Communist offensive will dwarf the military and political coalitions which were mobilized against the Mongols, the Turks, Napoleon, the Kaiser and Hitler in historic crises confronting Western civilization. But there will be a vast difference between those coalitions and the contemplated offensive against Soviet Russia and its satellites.

Despite our leading role in 1917-18 and 1941-45, England was the original promoter of these democratic uprisings. Indeed, for a while in these trials of the West, Britain stood tragically alone.

In the proposed anti-Communist array, the United States will be the organizer, the principal financier and the military mainstay. The President will virtually be its Commander-in-Chief.

POSSIBILITIES NOT SPELLED OUT The Administration has not spelled out these new possibilities clearly and definitely yet. It cannot because, save for London and Ottawa, and possibly Paris, it is not certain of our far-flung and exposed Allies' reaction to this proposed unit challenge to Communist aggression.

However, despite official reticence, such is the formula and the pattern of the grand American advance. Its adoption at Paris, and the White House is optimistic, will necessitate vast new assumptions of specific responsibilities by the United States. Secretary Dulles had envisaged them only faintly in private and public talks.

GRANDIOSE ALLIANCE First, it will require a merger into a single organization of our present loose system of alliances — NATO, METO and SEATO. These are the American-sponsored pacts which seek to "contain" the Soviet in Western Europe, the Middle East and Southeast Asia, respectively. Despite our promotion of them, we belong only to NATO.

The smaller and more exposed nations, which are included in METO and SEATO on the rim of the Sino-Russian Empire, have grumbled over their exclusion from the larger NATO. If Western Europe is attacked, they would naturally expect a Communist foray against them sooner or later. But, as of today, they have no sure guarantee of assistance from the greater powers.

Militarily, it will mean more intensive preparation by the United States to wage minor and localized actions, as in Korea. As Dulles concedes, it will call for the stockpiling of small, tactical nuclear weapons in all these distant areas. They can then be pinpointed against all the passes, land and sea, through which Red ground forces must invade.

The responsibility for meeting and neutralizing a Soviet aerial strike, of course, would fall upon the U. S. Air Force, whether retaliating from overseas land bases or aircraft carriers.

POLITICAL, MILITARY UNITY Such a world-wide alliance will require a transformation of NATO into a tight political organization — a sort of Allied United Nations. There would have to be a small, central, governing and policymaking body to decide upon both action and implementation. It would need a Cabinet and a Joint Chiefs of Staff.

No single member, for instance, could be permitted to plunge the whole organization into war for bilateral reasons or policies, as the British, the French and Israelis almost did with their invasion of Egypt, or as the French problem in North Africa could do. There would have to be political as well as military and economic unity and harmony.

That is the tremendous task — formulation of a strong and practical system of international interdependence — which confronts Allied statesmen today.

Opens Entertainment Series

Mario Braggiotti, noted pianist, will open the 1957-1958 Entertainment Series at East Carolina College with a concert Wednesday, December 4, at 8 p.m. in the Wright auditorium. He will play under the auspices of the college Entertainment Committee, sponsor of the annual series.

Braggiotti programs are based on the idea that something for the enjoyment of each person in the audience must be included. The atmosphere is one of informality and cordiality.

Frats May Fight To Keep Their Discrimination

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—The nation's college fraternities set out today on what may be an organized fight to preserve racial and religious discrimination clauses in their constitutions. A committee of the National Interfraternity Conference in progress here issued a report naming 63 U. S. college campuses on which it said antidiscrimination "agitation" is practiced.

The report criticized what it called "planned attempts to reduce Greek-letter societies to a position of impotence, if not to eliminate them entirely."

It was to be submitted for approval or disapproval today to the General Assembly comprising more than 700 college students and alumni who represent 61 national fraternities. The three-way conference opened yesterday.

Francis S. Van Derbur of Denver, conference chairman, said the report prepared by a committee on fraternity autonomy was "a well-considered document by some of the finest minds in the fraternity system."

The committee chairman is Herbert L. Brown of Philadelphia, an alumni member of Phi Sigma Kappa.

The report rapped the universities of Massachusetts, New Mexico, Oregon and Washington and Kansas City and Lewis and Clark colleges as schools which have announced they will not permit fraternities which prohibit membership on the basis of race, color and creed.

Amherst and the State University of New York were sharply criticized for ordering social fraternities to revise their charters or leave the campus.

Everything They Had Burned; But A Good Day Had

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Three days ago the home of Dick and Helen Peterman and their 10 children burned down. Furniture, clothing, everything went up in flames. The Petermans were left with practically nothing.

A neighbor took the big family into her small home. Then the family's plight was brought to the attention of Mrs. Frederick Rieker, a private secretary in a downtown building where Peterman works as a porter.

Mrs. Rieker, widow of a banker, invited the Petermans to share her 14-room house for as long as they wish. A kindly poultry and produce man sent over a big turkey along with the full fixings. Peterman's boss gave him extra time off with pay. Further help is promised from other sympathizers.

The Petermans said it turned out to be a pretty good Thanksgiving after all.

Blinded Veteran Saved Family

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A veteran blinded by a 1945 minefield explosion in France groped his way through a burning building yesterday to arouse five occupants from apartments.

The sightless hero, William M. Hughes, 43, owns a gift shop in the building. Awakened by choking smoke, he aroused his wife and telephoned a fire alarm. Then he made his way through the smoke to the second floor to awaken the other residents.

Assured everyone was fleeing, Hughes returned to help his wife carry out their two pet canaries and 6-year-old dog Muffin. Firemen confined the blaze to the basement.

ECC Basketeers Journey To Guilford For First North State Tilt Of Young Season

Guilford Picked To Win; Shoaf's Club Strong

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor
East Carolina College will send its basketball team to Guilford tomorrow night for the second contest of the 1957-58 season and the first in North Carolina Conference competition.

Local Boy

IKE RIDDICK—former Greenville high school All-Stater will be in the starting lineup for ECC tomorrow night against Guilford.

Coach Howard Porter's quick-revised lineup included newcomers Jessell Curry and Don Smith, along with veterans Guy Mendenhall, Ike Riddick, and Harold Ingram.

The Fox is expected to stick to that starting quintet against the Quakers tomorrow night. Charlic Adams, who worked some at a guard slot last year and who missed the Pfeiffer contest due to a twisted ankle is expected to be on the bench tomorrow night.

Coach Howard Porter's quick-revised lineup included newcomers Jessell Curry and Don Smith, along with veterans Guy Mendenhall, Ike Riddick, and Harold Ingram.

Guilford Unknown
Very little is known about Guilford's club this year, although the Quakers are expected to display a veteran team.

The Buc coaches Porter and Earl Smith are not overly optimistic about tomorrow's tilt. Though Monday night's showing against Pfeiffer was impressive, Porter has stated that his team still is untried.

Porter puts it this way: "We're not trying to be evasive or pessimistic, just honest. We've had to start almost from scratch and most of our boys are untried. Only one of the starting five is a proven ball player."

Guy Mendenhall, who is entering his fourth season as a member of the ECC squad, is the lone starter who has shown his wares in the past.

Actually, most observers figure the Bucs to be at least two years away from a North State championship team. Curry and Riddick have two more years after this one. Smith has three more. Joe Plaster and Adams, who are expected to offer reserve strength to the outfit this winter, have another season after this one.

Coach Porter is still working to get his club into shape. When the team was crippled early this season by the losses of Nick Nichols, Tim Smothers, Freddy James, Maurice Everette and Waddell Solomon, Porter began his rebuilding job. He came up with a 107-68 win over Pfeiffer Monday night, but it could have been different. Or it could be different tomorrow night. The thing is, nobody can know, at the present, just how dependable the Bucs are. The club is young.

Guilford will rate the favorite's role tomorrow night on the Quaker home court. Coach Shoaf's outfit has always been strong on Guilford ground and gets the nod for this reason and on last year's performances.

VMI Dominates Balloting In All-SC Football Picks

By ED YOUNG
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Military Institute's Keydets, who in a single season went from football rags to riches, were rewarded today with four positions on the 1957 All-Southern Conference team.

It was the most notable showing VMI ever has made on the honor team chosen for the Associated Press by conference coaches, newspaper sports writers and radio sportscasters. Never before have the Keydets had more than two all-conference choices in any season.

Keydet standouts winning places on the team were halfback Bobby Jordan, fullback Sam Woolwine, tackle Jim McFalls and guard Lou Farmer. All were key players in VMI's finest football season in 37 years.

William and Mary landed three players on the team, The Citadel two, West Virginia and George Washington one apiece.

The selections: Ends—Paul Maguire, The Citadel, and Larry Peccatiello, William and Mary.

Tackles — Jim McFalls, VMI, and Elliott Schaubach, William and Mary.

Guards — Chuck Howley, West Virginia, and Lou Farmer, VMI. Center—Bill Rush, William and Mary.

Backs—Bobby Jordan, VMI; Mike Sommer, George Washington; Sam Woolwine, VMI; and Bobby Schwarze, The Citadel.

West Virginia's failure to land anyone other than its great star,

Howley, on the honor squad was the most surprising feature of this year's balloting. The Mountaineers, winners of 24 consecutive conference games, had placed 20 players on the all-conference teams of the previous four years and were represented by six players last year.

Only two members of this year's all-conference club — Lowley and Woolwine — are repeaters from the 1956 honor team. Four of the all-stars — McFalls, Farmer, Jordan and Sommer — Stepped up from the 1956 second team.

The all-conference backfield averages only 181 pounds but is ideally balanced, with two halfbacks (Jordan and Sommer), a fullback (Woolwine) and a quarterback (Schwarze). The mobile line, anchored by the 220-pound Howley, averages 207 pounds.

Seven of the all-conference stars are seniors. McFalls, Schaubach and Schwarze are juniors, Maguire only a sophomore.

Maguire and Woolwine had the closest calls in the voting. Maguire was a narrow winner over Virginia Tech end Carroll Dale.

Tackles — Ed Rutsch, George Washington, and Jim Burks, Virginia Tech.

Guards—Joe Nicely, West Virginia, and Pat Lambert, Richmond.

er, with an average of over 42 yards per kick, and was among the league leaders in rushing and pass-catching all season.

Sommer is the breakout threat among the backs.

Woolwine, at 175 pounds, is the lightest fullback in the conference but has power to belt a line that belies his modest proportions.

Schwarze, another 17-pounder who hails from Jersey City, was a brilliant new star in the conference campaign. A deceptive ballhandler and a fine passer, he set conference records in total offense and passing yardage, accumulating 1,018 yards — 930 via passing — in his first nine games.

This distinguished array of backs is fronted by a line notable for its speed and stamina.

Maguire, a 185-pounder from Youngstown, Ohio, was well on his way toward setting a league record for pass receptions when a leg injury put him out of action in October. He caught 20 passes for 429 yards and two touchdowns.

The second team: Ends — Carroll Dale, Virginia Tech, and Terry Fairbanks, West Virginia.

Tackles — Ed Rutsch, George Washington, and Jim Burks, Virginia Tech.

Guards—Joe Nicely, West Virginia, and Pat Lambert, Richmond.

Backs—Larry Krutko, West Virginia; Duke Johnston, Virginia Military; Billy Baker, Furman, and Ralph Anastasio, West Virginia.

Lenoir Rhyne Lays Claim To NS Title With 75-0 Victory

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Lenoir Rhyne College laid claim to the North State Conference football title today—with a 75-0 victory over traditional rival Catawba to emphasize the point.

The Bears routed the Indians with a record-11-touchdown barrage, four of them by senior fullback Harold Bullard, before 7,000 in the annual Thanksgiving Day battle here yesterday.

Lenoir Rhyne's claim to the title rested on the fact that Elon, with a 4-0 North State record, didn't play the five loop games required by conference bylaws. One of Elon's victories was a 20-7 victory over Lenoir Rhyne. Two of Elon's conference games were cancelled because of the flu epidemic and the Christians decided not to play them despite the conference regulations.

Lenoir Rhyne finished with a 4-1 record. While Bear Coach Clarence Stasavich didn't say emphatically that Lenoir Rhyne was claiming the title, he did comment tersely:

"A rule is a rule. I believe we should stick by them. Elon did not play the required five conference games."

Bullard, playing his final college game, paced the Bears in their crushing ground attack that practically drove Catawba out of the stadium. He scored on touchdown runs of 53, 13, 8 and 4 yards, gained 75 yards rushing despite a bad ankle, and ended his collegiate career with a total of 3,105 yards on offense. His four touchdowns gave him 42 for the four years he has played here.

Lenoir Rhyne's 75 points narrows their season's scoring total of 387, surpassing the conference record of 380 set by the Bears last season.

The Bears, zorking Stasavich's single wing attack to perfection, ground out 409 yards rushing and added 155 more by passing, mostly on Bill Ackard's 7 out of 9 completion. Catawba was held to 129 yards rushing and 51 passing. The Indians threatened only once midway to Lenoir Rhyne's 21 in the second quarter only to lose the ball on a fumble.

AP Announces All-Soph Team

ATLANTA (AP)—Eleven football players who seem destined to bid for greater regional and national football honors in the next two years have been named to the Associated Press All-Sophomores team for the Southeastern Conference.

Auburn, Florida and Louisiana State placed two men each on the team, which was chosen by the AP's regional All-America Advisory Board of sports writers and sportscasters.

With so many fine sophomores playing regularly in the SEC this season, the board had difficulty choosing from among the numerous standouts at several positions. But there was no hesitation in naming two of the linemen who have played major roles in unbeaten Auburn's spectacular defense this year. Tiger center Jackie Burkett and guard Zeke Smith, both starters all season, were solid choices.

The other linemen and ends Larry Leblanc of Louisiana State and George Boone of Kentucky and guard Asa Cox of Florida.

The All-Soph backfield, boasting loads of speed, power passing ability and scoring potential, is comprised of Fred Braselton of Georgia Tech, Richie Pettibon of Tulane, Billy Cannon of LSU and Tom Moore of Vanderbilt.

Mitchell Quits As Ark. Coach

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Jack Mitchell, named head football coach at Kansas yesterday to no one's surprise, is the second in three years to forsake Arkansas for a coaching job in his home state.

He followed Bowden Wyatt to Arkansas after the 1954 season, when Wyatt returned to his alma mater—Tennessee.

Mitchell, who will be 33 Tuesday, is an Oklahoma product, although a native of Kansas. He played under coach Bud Wilkinson, quarterbacking the Sooners in 1946, 1947 and 1948.

He said yesterday money was no object in his leaving Arkansas. He was being paid $15,000 yearly there under a contract that had nine years to go. He will get the same here for five years, the highest salary ever given a Kansas coach.

"My wife, Jeanne, and I were born in Kansas, raised in Kansas and plan to live our lives in Kansas," he explained. The Mitchells call Arkansas City, Kan., their hometown.

His Razorbacks won 23 games, lost 16 and tied one in Mitchell's three-year tenure. Before that he was head coach at Wichita, where he won 13, lost five and tied one in two years. Wichita won the Missouri Valley Conference title in 1954.

Cooper, Rose Win Doubles Crowns

ADELAIDE (AP)—Top seeded Ashley Cooper and Mervyn Rose won the South Australian doubles tennis championship today from Mal Anderson and Neale Fraser in a lachlustr final which only showed that Australian selectors still have a problem finding the proper Davis Cup doubles combination. The score was 6-4, 6-4, 5-7, 0-6, 6-0.

Fraser disclosed afterwards that he pulled a back muscle in the third set and had to play the last three sets in pain. He said a doctor advised the injury is not serious and with treatment he should be okay by next Wednesday.

Navy, Rice, Miss. In Bowls; Auburn Will Seek National Title

UNC- Virginia Tilt Won't Mean A Thing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It'll be a case of riding a treadmill for Virginia and North Carolina in their Atlantic Coast Conference football game tomorrow. Neither can advance in the standings regardless of the outcome.

North Carolina must win to hold to undisputed possession of third place. A defeat would throw them back into a third place tie with Clemson and Maryland at 4-3.

The Cavaliers will go into the game at Chapel Hill in sixth place at 1-4. But with seventh place South Carolina, 1-5, playing last place Wake Forest, 0-6, the outcome of both games will bear on Virginia's standing. Maryland, which has completed its season, and Clemson, which faces non-league Furman, could find themselves in a third place tie with the Tar Heels, should Coach Jim Tatum's team fall before Virginia.

A victory, however, would leave Maryland and Clemson in a tie for fourth.

Though Virginia's overall record is 2-6-1, Tatum says he isn't taking the Cavaliers lightly. He said Virginia has an "explosive" team.

"Any team that has a fine fullback like Jim Bakhtiar and a great passing game is dangerous," he said.

Rain forced the Tar Heels indoors yesterday, but the practice included stress against passing. Virginia also concluded its work.

Though his team heavily favored over Furman of the Southern Conference, Clemson Coach Frank Howard is another one not taking his foe lightly.

Furman has one of the nation's better passing quarterbacks in Bill Baker. Clemson worked on pass offense and defense and then practiced its ground game.

Thanksgiving wasn't a day of rest for South Carolina and Wake Forest. The Demon Deacons have lost nine straight games and will be gunning to make tomorrow's finale a victory. Wake Forest practiced despite a light rain and a fog so heavy it caused cancellation of the punting drills.

The other ACC members—Duke, North Carolina State and Maryland have ended their seasons, although Duke will play in the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

Vaughn Is 7-5 Favorite Over Tiger Jones

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Vaughn is a 7-5 favorite to beat Ralph (Tiger) Jones tonight in a battle of hard luck middleweights at Madison Square Garden.

Willing Willie, of Los Angeles, has been made the choice on the strength of his fine showing against classy Spider Webb at the Garden Nov. 1. The 24-year-old Californian dropped the verdict to the Spider but his burst down the stretch made it close.

Jones, 29-year-old veteran from Yonkers, N. Y., will be risking a good payday and a chance to climb into the top 10 rankings again. He has a date with contender Joey Giardello lined up for Miami Beach Dec. 27 but he has to beat Vaughn to seal it.

The middleweights are subbing for lightweight contenders Paolo Rost and Johnny Busso. Busso suffered an infected eye early this week.

Navy, Mississippi and Rice can claim bowl berths with victories tomorrow while Auburn, boasting a pure record but barred from post season play, shoots for college football's national championship.

Neither Navy, Mississippi nor Rice, have easy jobs ahead despite their national rankings.

The Middles (7-1-1), favored by three points, have to defeat Army (7-1-0) to go to the Cotton Bowl. Navy is ranked No. 8 in this week's Associated Press poll. Army is 10th.

Navy has lost only to North Carolina and was tied by Duke. The Cadets have been beaten only by Notre Dame (ranked 21).

Mississippi (8-1) ranked No. 7, can finish second in the Southeastern Conference by defeating Mississippi State (5-2) and get the Sugar Bowl berth Auburn will have to pass up because of NCAA probationary action. State, a three point underdog, also could get the Sugar Bowl bid with a victory, but even with a not-too-bad defeat could be a Bowl candidate.

Rice (6-3) needs nothing short of a victory over Baylor (3-5-1) for an undisputed Southwest Conference title and the host spot in the Cotton Bowl. A loss or tie would send Texas to the Dallas classic New Year's Day now that the Longhorns have disposed of fourth-rated Texas A&M (9-7) on Bobby Lackey's 38-yard field goal yesterday.

Should ninth-ranked Rice get only a deadlock against Baylor, Texas would tie for the title and advance to the Cotton Bowl by virtue of a 19-14 decision over the Owls. Both are virtually assured bowl berths, however, since the runner-up likely will wind either in the Sugar Bowl or Gator Bowl.

Auburn (9-0), bidding to remain No. 1 in next week's final AP poll that decides the national title, goes against Alabama (2-6-1). The Tigers, naturally, will be SEC champs with a victory—but even the upset of the year probably won't save Coach J. B. Whitworth's job with Bama. Paul Bryant, Texas A&M coach, indicated after the Texas defeat that he may switch to his alma mater, Ohio State and Michigan State, both 8-1 and ranked second and third in this week's poll, have completed their regular seasons and only a shabby game by Auburn appears likely to boost either one to the national title.

Oklahoma (No. 5) is the only other member of the nation's top 10 teams still in business. The Sooners (8-1) play Oklahoma State (6-2-1).

The Vanderbilt-Tennessee and Georgia-Georgia Tech games also will attract bowl committee notice tomorrow. Vandy (5-2-2), Tennessee (6-3-0) and Tech (4-3-2), are in the running for the Gator, Cotton and Sugar bowls too.

The only major bowls filled are the Rose (Ohio State vs. Oregon State) and Orange (Oklahoma vs. Duke).

Virginia Military turned down bowl bids from the Tangerine and Sun committees after defeating Virginia Tech 14-6 yesterday for the Southern Conference title.

Lions Woke Up To Beat Green Bay Club, 18-6

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Lions had gone five quarters without a touchdown when Coach George Wilson told them — "in words you can't print"—that it was high time they woke up and started playing football.

Whether Wilson's halftime speech brought it about or not, the Lions "woke up" in the second half yesterday and dealt the Green Bay Packers an 18-6 defeat. It was the only game scheduled in the National Football League.

The triumph kept Detroit in the scramble for the Western Conference championship, half a game behind the Baltimore Colts, who tangle with the Los Angeles Rams Sunday.

"We had been flat for five quarters, and for no good reason," said Wilson. "So I told 'em—in words you can't print—that they had better wake up and act like a big league football team."

Wilson admitted it was his loudest explosion since he took over as head coach last summer when Buddy Parker resigned. The Lions' second-half comeback produced 15 points.

The Detroit defense threw Green Bay backs for a net loss of seven yards rushing in the second half, recovered two fumbles, intercepted a pass and scored a safety when Darris McCord tackled quarterback Babe Parilli in the Packer end zone.

A 62-yard rumble through the mud by fullback John Henry Johnson on the first play of the second half sent the Lions into a 10-6 advantage they never relinquished.

Jim Martin kicked three field goals for the Lions. Fred Cone kicked two in the first half for a 5-3 Packer halftime lead.

CHAPTER 10

At noon, on June 23, 1951, Mary Tracy Vaughan was married to Michael John Loren in the Boffinger Chapel of Christ Church Cathedral. There were yellow roses and larkspur upon the altar; the bride wore a cornflower blue suit and a white hat; her maid of honor, Rosalie Gibson, wore a suit of darker blue. Michael's father was best man.

Michael went through the ceremony, and the luncheon afterward, correctly, mechanically with no notable difference from other grave-faced bridegrooms.

At long last, the toasts and the congratulations were done with. Michael's car was brought up. As they reached the Speedway, he glanced at the girl beside him. His face was still stern, his manner punctilious, his voice steady. "Do you want," he asked now, "to stop anywhere before we leave the city?"

Tracy glanced at him. "I don't see why we should."

"All right then, we can go straight through to the Lake. We should get there by seven o'clock."

For ten minutes nothing more was said. Tracy sat watching Michael, beginning to get darned good and tired of his moodiness.

Their destination was a resort built upon the shore of wide lakes that evening as they drove toward it, the sky was a tender blue, and the setting sun put a few pink feather clouds about the tops of the darkening mountains, all reflected in the lake.

"It's beautiful," Tracy breathed, clasping her hands together. "Oh, Michael."

He drove on to the hotel, a two-story building of stucco and heavy-beam ornamentation. "Wait here," he told Tracy, getting out of the car. "I've reserved a cabin."

In a few minutes he came striding back, got under the wheel, and pulled up at the door.

He helped Tracy out, took her bag from the trunk and followed her inside. There was a comfortable living room with a fireplace, and a picture window that brought the lake and the mountains inside. There were a bedroom and a bath.

And Michael stood straight and stern in the middle of the floor, not touching her nor smiling.

And all at once it was more than a girl could bear! More than Tracy could. So she threw her hat into a chair and stamped her small foot, then whirled upon Michael to inform him that if this was the way things were going to be on their honeymoon, she wished she had not married him!

Something flickered across his eyes.

"I know that's what you wanted!" cried Tracy furiously. "It's what Carol Rainey wanted, too!"

She went over to the side of the window, to a place where she could look into Michael's face as he talked to him, as she told at length of Carol's call on her and spoke of the things which the woman had said to prove her self-centered and unscrupulous.

"The minute she met you, Michael, she knew that you were only a man. Even if she was strongly attracted to you, decency would have held an honest woman aloof from making a play for you. I've seen her only twice, and I'll agree that I don't know her. But you don't know her either, except as a type. The always innocent person, always misunderstood and abused by others. She's perfect, all others wrong. That she looks like your wife, Laura, is perhaps only a coincidence."

Michael shot her an angry glance.

"All right," said Tracy, "that's for Carol. Now look at me and my side of this affair. Which includes a good bit of your side.

"You spent three months, Michael, dating me, being nice to me, courting me. You said you loved me. And I was proud to know that you loved me. I felt that we had much in common, and together we could build a life that would be rewarding. We made our plans.

"Then Carol Rainey appeared, and she seemed able in a few hours to tear down all the plans you had made and to threaten mine.

"But because I loved you, and because I am the sort of woman you said you could love and wanted to marry, I made myself hold you to your promise, truly believing that your own judgment—taste, ethics, whatever you want to call it—would come to know that this was the right thing to do.

"Why, Michael, you had even asked me to protect you from women like Laura. And that is exactly what I am doing, for I am as sure as I am of anything on earth that this Rainey woman is no good for you or for your career. I don't know that I don't ask it of you, but I will ask it, just the same. Do you see no more of her?"

The look he turned on her told her at once that she'd gone too far.

"You may as well know, Tracy," he said coldly, "that I would never allow you to tell me whom I can see, or when. You are never to forbid me to do anything! As a man, and certainly not as a doctor. Mrs. Rainey's children are my patients, and I certainly shall continue to see them—and her."

Tracy leaned against the window frame. "Oh, please, Michael," she said, faintly, "don't say anything more! We—"

"I have a great deal more to say!" He went on. "About careers, for instance. Let's talk a little about your career as well as mine. Your profession, and mine."

"Our profession, Michael," she said softly.

"No, my dear. Your profession, and mine, are quite different things you know, as we practice them."

She stared at him. "What do you mean?"

"Do you want to know what I mean?" he asked.

"Well—" She didn't, really. She wished he'd stop talking. That he'd just put his arms around her, and—"Yes!" he said loudly, actually rubbing his hands together. "I guess I could do a bit of analysis on my own part. I've no doubt some of your patients could take scrutiny, too. But I'll confine myself to your way with those patients. 'Doctoring by ear,' your method might be called. 'Old-fashioned doctoring' is another term. Or 'old-fashioned doctor-patient relationship.'" His tone was extremely nasty. "You know better, you've been trained very well—but you still think you can save a child's life by losing sleep and holding his hand!"

She was too hurt and bewildered to speak!

"But that's your affair. All I ask is that you stay with your affairs, and leave mine alone. Legally, of course, you are my wife. But that is as far as I think the matter should go. I'll send your dinner here to you. Tomorrow afternoon I'll drive you back to the city." He went out and closed the door behind him.

Homecoming Event Highlighted Week

BELVOIR-FALKLAND HOMECOMING QUEEN
... Grace Edwards After Coronation At Dance

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir - Falkland Reporter

One of the highlights of our school year occurred on Friday night of last week, when our annual Homecoming event was held. The evening began with an exciting doubleheader basketball game with our arch, Bethel. Adding to the pleasure of the occasion was the fact that both our teams scored a victory before a capacity crowd of students and alumni of our school.

Following the ball games, the gymnasium floor was cleared for the Grand March performed by 13 selected girls and their escorts. Leading the ballroom figures were Dorothy Harris, 1956 Homecoming Queen, and her escort, Allen Harris. After each couple had been presented, the name of the new Queen was announced, and Grace Edwards, representing the Senior Class, was crowned "Miss Homecoming" of 1957-58. On hand to assist the outgoing Queen in the coronation was Mr. Roy Jones, Chairman of the Belvoir - Falkland School Board, who presented the new Queen a bouquet of American Beauty roses and a gift from the student body. The gymnasium was decorated with red and white streamers, and at the north end "Welcome Alumni" was hung in large silver letters. The platform on which the throne was located was covered in white, and behind this a large heart-shaped figure stood. Suspended from this figure was "Homecoming" in large red letters.

After the new Queen had rejoined her court and participated in a number of ballroom figures, spectators were invited to enjoy a refreshment hour. The school cafeteria was opened and refreshments served from a decorated table, centered with an arrangement of fall flowers. On either side of this was a burning candle in low silver candleholders. Betty Harrell poured punch for the 300 guests who were present for the occasion. Also assisting in serving were Margaret May and Shirley Harrell.

The evening's festivities ended with a Homecoming Dance in the gymnasium.

Sponsors for the title of "Miss Homecoming" included: Grace Edwards, sponsored by the Senior Class; Betsy Thomas, sponsored by Junior Class; Sadie Moore, sponsored by Sophomore Class A; Linda Smith, sponsored by Sophomore Class B; Nadine Garris, sponsored by Freshman Class A; Carolyn Harris, sponsored by Freshman Class B; Frances Edwards, sponsored by F. H. A.; Catherine Windham, sponsored by F. P. A.; Barbara Parker, sponsored by Student Council; F. Heba Wooten, sponsored by Beta Club; Marie Waters, sponsored by N. F. L.; Nellie Gwaltney, sponsored by Glee Club; and Brenda Windham, sponsored by Monogram Club.

The figures by the Homecoming contestants were under the direction of Mrs. Glenn Scott and Mrs. Thelma Switzer.

TOUGH OLD DAYS
KITCHENER, Ont. (AP)—Sgt. Herbert Gimbel and Cecil Farnham, both completing 31 years on the Kitchener police force, say modern policemen "never had it so good." In their early days the pair pounded a beat for 11 hours at a stretch, with one day off each month.

More than one ton of nickel is used to build a modern jet engine for high-speed aircraft.

Laborites Voice Misgiving On H-Bombs Over Britain

LONDON (AP)—While Laborites continued to express misgivings about U. S. bombers making training flights from Britain—with H-bombs aboard, the British press rallied to the Conservative government's stand today.

The most widely read paper in the country, the Daily Mirror, said today East-West tensions fully justify arming the bombers with nuclear weapons. The independent newspaper usually supports the Labor party.

The carrying of bombs was revealed in the House of Commons Wednesday when Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said he "should think" they do. Prime Minister Macmillan stepped in to allay some of the apprehension raised.

Macmillan said U. S. authorities have taken elaborate precautions to prevent a nuclear blast should a bomb-carrying plane crash. He explained that the planes carry bombs in separate parts that have to be expertly assembled before a nuclear explosion is possible.

"Can you give an assurance," he was asked by Labor Leader Hugh Gaitskell, "that there is no danger, if one of these aircraft were to crash, of a nuclear explosion resulting?"

"Yes, sir," the Prime Minister replied. "I am told there is no danger of an explosion."

The American government forces make it a practice to keep always ready, when one of these patrols is in the air from our bases, a special tanker machine which can go up and help refuel an aircraft so that, if there was a question of it not being able to land in this country, it could fly back to its own base in America.

Some Labor groups reacted to the news with resolutions opposing the practice of flying H-bombs around over Englishmen's heads.

The Daily Mirror said in a front page editorial that "in the state of the world today this desperate precaution is—unhappily—justified."

"Until there are better relations between Russia and the West, it would be wrong, perhaps fatal, to let sentiment and simple emotion weaken our defenses," the editorial said.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph said Laborite concern "is not only misplaced, it also shows ignorance of the basic fact of contemporary deterrence." It said the threat of Soviet missiles made it necessary to keep armed planes aloft that could retaliate even if airfields were knocked out by a surprise attack.

Ayden Jaycees Join Eye Bank Drive

AYDEN MAYOR COREY STOKES SIGNS EYE WILL . . . Dr. Davenport, Marvin Baldree look on

AYDEN — Local Jaycees have joined Operation Jay-Eye, a statewide Jaycee campaign for procurement of more "eyes" for the blind.

The organization will seek more memberships in the North Carolina Eye Bank for Restoring Sight, Inc. and solicit for eye wills. Dr. Clifton Davenport, chairman of the Public Health Committee of both the Ayden Jaycees and the Jaycee Ninth District, presented the project.

The Eye Bank, a non-profit organization located in the N. C. Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem, procures eye wills, receives donated upon death of a donor, and sends the eyes to an eye surgeon promptly so the cornea can replace a scarred or cloudy cornea of a blind person.

Davenport explained that since there is a long line of blind persons needing the corneal transplant operation, the North Carolina Jaycees were asked to help speed up the procurement of "new" eyes.

He further stated, "Anyone willing to pass on the precious gift of eyesight, upon his or her death, on to some living but blind, can do so by signing a will."

Timber Fire Is Under Control

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The big brush and timber fire in the San Gabriel Mountains, which burned to within four miles of football communities 20 miles from Los Angeles, has been brought under control.

The announcement was made yesterday as turkey dinners were being served to some 1,000 men still on the lines. Some of the meals were flown by helicopter to crews on remote ridges.

The blaze, which flared up during a windstorm Nov. 21, blackened 25,000 acres of valuable watershed.

HOT TIP ON COOL ITEM RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Police arrested a man here on charges of possessing stolen property. The man contended he bought the property, an electric refrigerator. Police testified his house wasn't wired for electricity.

Post-Game Celebration In Miami Became Riot

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Rioting students, joined later by older men, clashed with squads of police early today in the aftermath of Miami Edison's 20-7 football victory over Miami High School.

One motorcycle policeman was hit by a rock and required hospital attention. Four others received injuries severe enough to require reports. Two others were roughed up.

One fireman and an undetermined number of students also were reported injured by clubs, fists, bottles or rocks during the height of the demonstration on Edison grounds.

Four persons were arrested and two juveniles were cited, police said.

Capt. J. T. Griffin said the riot broke out when a policeman tried to put out a fire the celebrating football fans had built in the street.

Three men were held in jail in lieu of bonds ranging up to $350 on charges that included disorderly conduct and failure to obey the order of a police officer.

They were identified as Robert Martinelli, 18, a truck driver; Joseph P. D'Auria, 21, a University of Miami student; and Jacob A. Bedell, 18, a truck driver. A fourth, James V. Ferdinand, 17, a high school student, was released without bond.

Bedell also was charged with assault and battery for allegedly hitting motorcycle officer Ralph Hinson with a rock. Hinson was released after treatment at a hospital.

Griffin said five police cruisers and a patrol wagon were damaged.

Officers turned a fire hose on the demonstrators, and students on roofs of nearby stores hurled stones and bottles at the police.

IT ISN'T EASY MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—It's not easy to look like a rolled-up rug, no matter how straight and still you stand. That's what Freddie Wiggins, 23, found out when police flushed him from a group of up-ended linoleum rolls in a warehouse they were searching for a prowler. Wiggins was booked for investigation of burglary.

Abandoned Tots Brought To U.S.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Eighty-seven little Korean orphans, four of them ill with tuberculosis, arrived in the United States yesterday.

The children, infants to 6-year-olds, came from the Harry Holt Orphanage in Korea. Holt, a wealthy, Creswell, Ore., farmer, has brought 575 mixed-blood youngsters to new homes in this country in a series of baby-lifts. He has adopted eight of them himself.

The children, fathered by U.S. troops in Korea, were abandoned by their Kmorean mothers. Holt has 130 more in the orphanage and hopes to bring them to new homes in this country before Christmas.

The four tubercular children were admitted to the United States under special authorization of the Immigration Service. Holt said earlier that the U.S. Public Health Service would supervise their care and that the new parents would pay for treatment of the illnesses.

Holt and his wife have five children of their own.

Four of the children will make their homes in Oregon. The rest are destined for homes throughout the country.

No Leftovers In This Gathering

ST. LIBORY, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Albert Taylor and 50 relatives sat down to a big Thanksgiving dinner in the parlor of the Taylor home at 12:30 p.m.

At 2 p.m., 90 minutes later, the last dish was dried and on the shelf.

Mrs. Taylor had no leftover problem as a result of the dinner, a family custom the past 12 years. Nobody left until everything was eaten. That also is a family custom.

Charge Addicts, Not Peddlers In Habit's Spread

CHICAGO (AP)—Medical investigators today blamed addicts—rather than peddlers—for spreading the narcotics habit.

They said users apparently give the stuff to those who never have used it, and they added:

"Active proselyting by drug peddlers plays a very small role in spreading addiction."

The views were set forth in a report of the American Medical Assn. Council on Mental Health and its Committee on Narcotic Addiction. The report, printed in part in the AMA journal, was based on a 2½-year study.

The investigators suggested addiction should be regarded as an illness and should be treated medically rather than punitively.

"Opiate addiction does not cause the degree of damage to physical health that other intoxications tolerated by our society can cause," the report set forth.

Might Salvage Most Of Cotton

ELECTRA, Tex. (AP)—The thanks given at this northwest Texas town yesterday came from hundreds toiling in the cotton fields, thankful that clear skies gave them a chance to salvage some of the crop.

Farmers, schoolchildren and merchants in the town of about 6,000 worked harvesting cotton. The crop, delayed in planting by hard spring rains, was only about a third harvested before fall rains, sleet and snow set in.

Much of the cotton rotted on the stalks, but farmers hoped they might salvage up to 75 per cent.

NEW YORK (NYSE) — News that President Eisenhower was well enough to travel by automobile to his Gettysburg farm gave the stock market a bit of an extra lift today.

Key stocks were ahead 1 to 2 points in active trading early this afternoon.

The market was slightly higher before the news came but it rose more vigorously on this striking demonstration of the President's recovery.

Oils and aircrafts were about the best gainers but most major divisions of the list went ahead.

The aircrafts continued to benefit from Defense Secretary McElroy's order to put the Jupiter and Thor in a 1-point gain. Boeing, Martin Co. and General Dynamics added a point or more; but Chrysler, prime contractors for the Jupiter, showed scant change.

Zenith leaped around 4 on news of its 2-for-1 stock split proposal and plans to raise the quarterly dividend rate. Later it trimmed a fraction from this rise.

Coppers, after initial irregularity on word of a price cut by a big Belgian producer, were mainly on the upside.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up $1.00 to $159.50 with the industrials up $1.80, the rails up 60 cents and the utilities up 30 cents.

Seek Military Band In Parade

FARMVILLE — Except for one item, plans were completed this morning for Farmville's annual Santa Claus parade which officially launches the Christmas season.

The parade will begin tomorrow at 10:30 a.m.

Efforts are still being made, through the National Guard, to obtain a military band for the parade which already has more than 30 units scheduled to participate. Word on the military band is expected sometime today, according to Mayor Charles S. Edwards, secretary of the sponsoring Farmville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

Edwards said this morning that parade music will be furnished by bands from Farmville High School and H. B. Sugg High School, and the military band if one can be obtained. Also scheduled to appear in the parade are 15 floats, including 12 professional projects.

Line of march for the parade will begin at the intersection of Horne Avenue and Main Street. It will continue down Main, turning right on Cotton to George Street. It will move down George to Wilson Street, turning back to Main and then to Horne where the units will disband.

In the event of rain tomorrow morning, Edwards said the parade will be rescheduled for either Monday or Tuesday. Present plans list Monday as the first alternate date.

Pupils Watched Wedding On TV

DALLAS — Television was almost a school-wide activity at the Jefferson Davis school yesterday.

One of the teachers, Marvin L. Grantham, was married on the Bride and Groom show.

Sixteen TV sets were set up in classrooms.

No one looked away from the set in Grantham's fifth grade class. "Wasn't it beautiful?" sighed one little girl as the music faded.

A deep red blush crept up the cheeks of a boy when the groom kissed the bride, the former Miss Verda Giles, a student in the Baylor University school of nursing.

Principal John J. Santillo said there was no campaign to have the youngsters bring the television sets to school. "They all volunteered," he said.

Royalty Visited N. C. Yesterday

PINEHURST, N. C. — Royalty visited North Carolina for a Thanksgiving dinner yesterday and for a look at the state's famed long-leaf pines.

He was Prince Paul of Hanover, a brother of Queen Frederica of Greece. The prince flew down from Washington yesterday for dinner with retired Gen. George C. Marshall and Mrs. Marshall at their winter home, Liscombe Lodge, here.

Paul was met at the Fayetteville airport by Jack Younis, owner of Radio Station WEEB at Southern Pines. He was brought here with a Highway Patrol escort. He flew back to Washington late yesterday afternoon.

The prince is in this country for a lecture tour at colleges and universities. He returns to Germany next week.

Brazen Theft In Broad Daylight

PROVIDENCE, R. I. — Edward F. Malenfant, 19, of Woonsocket, is scheduled to be sentenced Tuesday on a larceny charge. He pleaded no contest yesterday.

Police told Judge Luigi De Pasquale in District Court that Malenfant and a friend carted out a big cigarette dispensing machine from the lobby of a downtown department store on Oct. 2.

"In broad daylight?" asked the judge.

"Yes," said Detective Christopher Water, "and they even asked the girls on the counter to hold the door open for them."

Thelbert Manning Funeral Today

AYDEN—Thelbert P. Manning, 53, died Wednesday at 6 a.m. at his home in the St. John's community of Pitt county.

Funeral services will be held at Britt's Funeral Chapel in Ayden Friday at 3 p.m. Rev. Horace Quigley, Methodist minister of Richlands will officiate. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mr. Manning was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Heber Manning, R-1, Ayden, and a member of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Surviving are his wife, the former Annie Wilson; one daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Emerson of Houston, Texas; one son, Durwood Manning, Queen's Village, N. Y.; three sisters, Mrs. Kathleen Woolard of Greenville, Mrs. Sam Wright, Kenneth Square, Penn., and Mrs. Dickey May Pittman of Burgaw; two brothers, Woodrow Manning of the Navy and Bruton Manning of Jacksonville, Fla. Also surviving are two stepsons, Roy Lee Hoell of the Navy and Bertis Alton of the home; three stepdaughters, Mrs. Lillian Guilmatt of Providence, R. I. and Mrs. Olive K. Hoell and Mrs. Anne Hoell of the home.

Last Rites Are Held For John R. Jerman

JOHN R. JERMAN, 84, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital at 8:25 a.m. Thursday following a heart attack suffered two days ago.

Funeral services were held at the graveside at the Morven Cemetery in Anson county near Wadesboro Friday at 2 p.m.

Mr. Jerman had made his home in Greenville since the death of his wife in Waverly Hall, Ga., in 1952. He was born and reared in Anson County, in the Wadesboro community, and spent most of his life in Waverly Hall. He was a member of Waverly Hall Methodist Church.

He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. C. A. Musselwhite, with whom he made his home, and Mrs. G. C. Tice, Sr., both of Greenville, and Mrs. A. L. Clemmer of Hamlet.

"Fidelio" was Beethoven's only opera.

Funeral Tomorrow For John I. Brann

JOHN I. BRANN, 79, farmer, died Thursday at 12:30 p.m. near Greenville at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lee Heath. He had been in failing health three years.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Wilkerson Chapel by the Rev. Henry Melvin, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville. Burial will be in the Brann family cemetery near Friendship Church.

Mr. Brann was born and reared in Greene county. Mrs. Brann died in 1939. He was a member of Friendship Free Will Baptist Church near Farmville.

He is survived by three sons, Arthur L. Brann of Greenville, William J. Brann of Snow Hill and George Brann of Baltimore, Md.; two daughters, Mrs. Lee Heath and Mrs. Ruffin Carr of Greenville; a brother, Alex Brann of Winterville; 19 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

The Chinese language and its dialects are used by nearly 500 million people.

Cuban Crop Set Afire By Rebels

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Fires were reported sweeping over a wide area of sugar cane fields last night in southeast Cuba—set by rebels trying to bring down the government by ruining the sugar crop and causing economic hardship.

The fires were reported in Oriente province, center of rebels led by Fidel Castro, who launched his ago. Sugar industry spokesmen in Havana predicted that the burning would fall to ruin Cuba's main export crop.

Meanwhile, there were new but unconfirmed rumors that reinforcements for Castro have landed from Florida and Mexico.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Louise Williams Stewart, who died in New York City last Tuesday, will be held at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church Sunday at 1:30 p.m. Rev. J. A. Nimmo will officiate. Burial will be in Brown Hill Cemetery. Surviving are her husband, William Stewart of New York City; her mother, Mrs. Della Grice, and one brother, James Williams, both of Greenville.

The Pastor's Aid Club of Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church will sponsor a fish fry Saturday evening in the church basement. The public is invited.
