Miss Hill, Mr. Leary Speak Vows Yesterday

Miss Lucy Magdalene Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hill of Greenville, became the bride of Billy Gray Leary, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Leary of Edenton, in a candlelight ceremony at Greenville Free Will Baptist Church Sunday afternoon.

The Rev. D. A. Windham officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with two seven-branched candelabras holding lighted cathedral candles. Baskets of white gladioli and pompons interspersed with palms and bridal greenery were used. The family pews were marked with white satin ribbon and greenery.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Taylor, organist, and Gilbert Windham, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a waltz length gown of white velveteen. The sweetheart neckline of lace accented the fitted bodice which extended into a full skirt with soft pleats in the back and long sleeves which ended in points over the hands. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a cascade of American Beauty Roses centered with a white orchid.

Her maid of honor and only attendant was Miss Peggy Shore, former roommate of the bride, of Winston-Salem. She wore a dress of red velveteen patterned after the bride's gown. Her headpiece was red velveteen with a face veil and she carried a white satin muff designed with red roses and white carnations.

Jack Leary was his brother's best man. Ushers were Tommy Leary, brother of the bridegroom, and Wallace Peele, cousin of the bride.

Ted Peele, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer, and Elizabeth Riggs, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The bride's mother wore an azure blue lace dress and a corsage of variegated carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore an ice blue lace dress with a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Leary is a graduate of Greenville High School and North Carolina Baptist School of Nursing in Winston-Salem. She has been employed at Pitt County Memorial Hospital for the past year.

Leary is a graduate of Chowan County High School, Mars Hill College, and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of North Carolina.

The bride wore as her going-away outfit an egg shell blue wool suit with matching hat and brown skin shoes and bag. The orchid lifted from her bouquet completed her outfit.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will live on Route 1, Edenton.

The approximately 30 guests were greeted upon arrival at the home of Miss Moye, Longmeadow Drive, by the hostesses and honoree.

Wearing a brown suit with a dark blue silk blouse, Mrs. Wilkerson was presented a white daisy chrysanthemum corsage by the hostesses. Guests were invited into the dining room by Mrs. Jesse Moye where the soft drinks and party dainties were served buffet. Chrysanthemums were accented in the decorations throughout the home.

Assisting with the morning party were the mothers of the hostesses, Mrs. Helen White Hawes, Mrs. James F. Jenkins, Mrs. David Mosier, and Mrs. Moye.

Special guests were the mother of the honoree, Mrs. Graham Flanagan, and the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Lindsay Wilkerson.

Enjoy Your Party At Ease

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

It's fun to give a party, but few women know how, says Nata Lee, who has made parties her business for the last 20 years.

"The most common mistake of hostesses," says she, "is getting too ambitious in planning a party. They are likely to get so involved in working out elaborate food that they haven't time to give proper thought to the guest list or even to clean up the house."

Nata believes even the simplest dinner party for a half-dozen friends should be planned with care, and that it's just as important to plan good talk as it is to produce good food.

"Whom to invite is your first problem," says she. "To have a successful party, you must bring together guests who will have some interests in common, who will produce stimulating conversation and won't be at sword's

"Then look over the room for point before the evening is over. your party, and never invite more people than can be seated comfortably in that room. Consider your service. If you haven't a staff, don't try to have a formal sit-down dinner for more than six people. Plan your table setting, and if it is a buffet dinner, be sure to have enough tables for your guests—don't make them balance-plates on their laps.

Autumn Colors Predominate At Book Club Meet

Arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums lent an autumn note to the living and dining rooms when Mrs. E. S. Flanagan was hostess to the Lector Book Club at her home on Eastern Street Tuesday.

During a business session, presided over by Mrs. Harold Forbes, president, club members planned to meet December 10 at the home of Mrs. Ray MacKenzie to discuss plans for the Christmas season.

Mrs. Flanagan introduced Mrs. W. L. Hall, guest speaker, who gave an account of her recent trip to Europe.

Mrs. Hall spoke particularly about her month's stay in Italy where she made her temporary home in Florence. Her daughter, Jane, was enrolled as a student at the University of Florence.

The speaker mentioned that she and her daughter took advantage of every opportunity to visit the art museums, concerts, plays, and other points of cultural interest. She also discussed the side trips and excursions they took throughout Italy.

Mrs. Hall pointed out that she was impressed with the friendliness and sociability of the Italian people. "In Florence, Rome, or in small villages, their courtesy and kindness was quite evident," she said.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Flanagan served a sweet course with coffee. Club members exchanged books before the meeting adjourned.

An Obligation To Use All Influence

Local governments whose areas are served by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company owe it to their citizens to intervene in the rate hike hearing before the State Utilities Commission to assure that excessive telephone rates are not levied on their citizens.

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company has asked for rate increases on local service which it says will increase its annual revenue by 1.5 million dollars. It says it must have this additional revenue to give it a reasonable return on the investment it has made and must make to provide telephone service where it is needed in its area.

Is the rate increase justified? This question must be decided by the State Utilities Commission on the basis of the information presented it at the hearing.

For our part, however, The Reflector questions the necessity of the proposed rate increase for the company to carry on its service to a broad area of North Carolina and still assure its stockholder a reasonable return on their investment. We feel the Utilities Commission should be given the benefit of hearing both sides of the proposed increase . . . not just the company's side. We are therefore in accord with the proposed plan whereby the local governments collectively will make a presentation before the commission. We are confident such a presentation will show that part, if not all, the increase proposed by the company is unnecessary.

For the exchanges in Pitt County alone the increased rates of the company will cost telephone users approximately $120,000 a year, plus tax. It will cost the local governments in Pitt County a few hundred dollars to join with other communities in footing the bill to have experts present the case of the communities before the Commission.

The local governments of Pitt County would be amiss in their duty to their citizens if they collectively refuse to spend a few hundred dollars which might result in saving their citizens many thousands of dollars a year.

President's Absence Could Hurt Session

Absence of the President of the United States at the NATO summit conference in Paris could well prove a handicap to the accomplishments hoped for at the meeting.

The position and attitude of the United States representatives at the meeting will be the same as they would be if the President himself could lead the U. S. delegation to the conference. Whatever is done at the conference will have the same support from President Eisenhower as it would if he were present at the meeting. Certainly the President, though he is not in Paris for the conference, will play a major role in whatever is accomplished there.

The handicap lies in an almost intangible, yet infinitely important quality in such a meeting, which will be lacking in Paris. The head-man of the most powerful nation of the free world will not be present in person. Regardless of how ably the President is represented by Vice President Nixon or whoever heads the American delegation, it will not be like having the top man there himself.

This factor alone could have a profound effect on the outcome of the NATO summit conference.

The Full Story Is Told Later

By HAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — After each of President Eisenhower's three illnesses, the White House first gave wrong information or only part of the truth and let stand for hours. Later it told the full story.

This happened after his heart seizure and ileitis attack and now again after his mild stroke. But this time, when the White House attempted to tell the real story at last, it made a mess of it.

Eisenhower had his heart attack in Denver early Sept. 24, 1955. At 2 a. m., the White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, was called to Eisenhower's side.

At 8 a. m. Snyder announced the President had a "mild digestive upset." At noon that day Snyder said the President's condition was "good" and again said he had a "digestive upset."

At 2:35 p. m. Murray Snyder, then Eisenhower's assistant press secretary, told newsmen the President had suffered a heart attack. Press secretary James C. Hagerty on vacation, flew to Denver and took over. He did a masterful job thereafter.

Eisenhower had a history of ileitis: inflammation in the small intestine. He felt a stomach upset at 12:45 a. m. June 8, 1956. Over the phone Dr. Snyder prescribed a "slight dose of milk of magnesia."

Eisenhower didn't improve. At 2 a. m. Dr. Snyder went to the White House and stayed all night.

Again at 10:30 a. m. Hagerty described the President's condition as "not an illness but an upset" and said he had a "hunch" Eisenhower would go to his Gettysburg farm for the weekend.

At 12:25 p. m. Hagerty said Eisenhower was being taken to the hospital as a "preventive measure" and that the President's illness had been diagnosed as ileitis. Eisenhower was operated on the following morning.

When Eisenhower suffered a blockage of a small brain artery last Monday, Hagerty was in Paris. The assistant press secretary, Mrs. Anne Wheaton, announced at 6:30 p. m. that day that Eisenhower had had a "chill" and had been ordered to bed by his doctors. One of these doctors was Snyder.

Mrs. Wheaton said it was Dr. Snyder's decision to withhold any medical details until the following morning. She had a prepared statement when she talked. She refused to say who drew it up.

She met with reporters several times again that night and the following morning, Nov. 26, but provided no more detailed information. At 2:55 p. m. Tuesday she appeared before newsmen with a medical report.

This report revealed that Snyder and other doctors had examined Eisenhower the previous day and diagnosed his condition as a blood clot or occlusion closing a blood vessel of the brain.

Nevertheless, the report given out Monday said Eisenhower had had a chill and made no mention of the doctors' findings.

Mrs. Wheaton was emphatic in saying it was not a stroke. She made a mistake — which had to be corrected later — by saying she thought the President's illness was a form of heart attack.

Hagerty flew back from Paris. On Wednesday he was asked why the truth on the President's condition had been held up 24 hours. Hagerty replied that the doctors wanted to be sure of their diagnosis.

When he was asked if he would have handled White House announcements on Eisenhower's illness differently than Mrs. Wheaton, Hagerty said: "No, I don't think so."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WARPING

A carpenter called my attention, recently, to the fact that if doors are not used they warp. "Leave a door standing open all the time or shut all the time," he said, "and sure as anything it will sag and warp within a few years."

The open door and the closed door! The open mind and the closed mind! Here you encounter warping. The person who keeps his mind closed continually becomes, indeed, a warped personality. No new thought ever comes to his mind to illuminate and enliven what is already there.

By the same token, the open mind warps also—that is, if it is too much open, or open at both ends. Some people are so open-minded that information goes straight into their minds and out again, without leaving the slightest residuum of knowledge.

We need to remind ourselves continually that true wisdom consists in maintaining balance. We need to have a mind which closes on certain thoughts once in a while and holds them tightly forever. At the same time, it must be evident to everyone that broad-mindedness is the accompaniment of true wisdom. But to be broad-minded does not mean leaving open both the front and back doors of our minds.

Watch out for warping. Unused doors, unused minds; closed doors, closed minds; minds open as all out-of-doors—all these encourage and promote warping.

Year-End Bonus Can Be Trouble

By ELMER ROESSNER

If you are an employer and want to give your employees bonuses this year-end, go ahead. Be a sport. But better check the details with your tax accountant. If you don't give it with the proper ceremonial deductions, you may find yourself in a jam.

For one thing, bonuses are subject to Federal income tax withholdings. And you know what can happen if you fail to withhold the correct amounts from employees' earnings. Fines, Jail, Devil's Island.

If a bonus is paid at the same time as a salary or wage payment, the two amounts may be added and the appropriate deduction made from the total. If paid at a different time, the bonus may be considered as part of the last or the next wage or salary payment, and the withholding figured accordingly. Or the Internal Revenue Service will be happy if you withhold a flat 18 per cent.

MORE DEDUCTIONS

Technically, presents to employees are considered compensation and a boss who gives a $10 turkey to an employee is expected to withhold 18 per cent of the bird if not acceptable. However, there is positively no one in Alcatraz at the moment for failing to withhold part of a Christmas gift. But there can always be a first.

Office parties are not considered gifts and it is not necessary for employers to withhold 18 per cent of each drink. Don't go away. Bonuses are also subject to Social Security Federal unemployment, state unemployment, state disability and state income tax withholdings, if any.

Again, this applies to gifts as well as cash, and while enforcement is lax when turkeys, hams, liquors, candy and watches are concerned, there's a bit of strictness when the gift consists of stocks or bonds.

There's another point to watch. Bonuses are sometimes considered wages under Federal labor laws. Thus, a fat bonus may increase an employee's average hourly earnings, entitling him to a higher overtime rate. This is almost always true when the size of the bonus is fixed by a union contract, and generally true when it is related to hours worked or yearly earnings.

BONUSES MAY DROP

However, if the employer makes it clear that the bonus is a gift, and the employee agrees to that definition, it will not affect overtime rates. But it will still be subject to all those withholdings.

Because of recent nervousness by corporate management, year-end bonuses may be lower than last year.

Corporate earnings appear to have declined somewhat this month. Declines tend to make corporations often try to build cash reserves by reducing dividends and bonus payments.

However, the situation is far from critical. Some companies have cut dividend rates, and those corporations, incidentally, are the ones most likely to thin down their bonus payments.

On the whole, dividends have more than held up so far. During the first 10 months of this year, publicly reported cash dividends were $9,038,700,000, according to Commerce Department figures. In the same period of 1956, they were $8,724,500,000. Corporate earnings during the first half of the year were slightly above the first half of 1956.

Later figures are not yet available.

CATCHING UP ON TRADING STAMPS

A Chicago trading stamp company has added Cadillac, mink stoles and power cruisers to its catalogue of products redeemable for stamps. It concedes that few individuals can save 2,000 books for a Caddy, but points out a club or congregation could . . .

A Rochester, N. Y., court has enjoined a store from giving trading stamps with fair-traded products. Stamps, it ruled, are a discount from the fixed price.

Can I Help Ease That Load?

By SAUL PETT

Lady, It's Bad All Over

NEW YORK (AP) — Many American women chained to the care and feeding of home and children suffer from the delusion that their husbands lead more interesting lives than they do.

Getting her goodby kiss in the morning, the wife turns drearily back to the breakfast dishes while her husband, she is convinced, rushes off to the office and an outside life rich in human experience.

When a husband points out that his business life is often nothing but routine, pressure and monotony, a wife will frequently say: "Yes, but at least you have people—adults, different adults to talk to, to stimulate you. Who (most agitated wives aren't grammatical) have I got—the baby, the mailman, the neighbor women with their exciting talk fro like a pitchman watching out for a copy.

The office hypochondriac. He has diseases the American Medical Assn. never heard of.

The office quack. He has cures the AMA never heard of. Whatever troubles you, this boy has a pill, powder, exercise or diet to fix it.

The office paranoiac. Beware. If you're too busy to go to lunch with him, be sure you can prove it. This boy is convinced that every time two men collect at the water cooler they're talking about him.

The office wolf. All bark, no bite. Probably no teeth.

The office "miracle man." It's miraculous that he has not only endured with the company 35 years but climbed to fourth vice president without ever having made a single decision.

Other Editors Saying— Tightening Rail Belt

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The Atlantic Coast line's request to discontinue two passenger trains operating between the Rocky Mount and Wilmington has occasioned little adverse comment. This was brought about because the railroad (1) exercised excellent judgment from a public relations standpoint by acquainting the public with the situation before any action was taken; (2) the request is accompanied with facts and figures showing that the public has not taken advantage of the service provided with the result that a great annual loss is being sustained by the railroad through the operation of these two trains; and (3) Service, while not as adequate as at present, still will be available for those who desire same through the facilities of existing trains.

Announcement that the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads are contemplating a merger points up the fact that action is required to rationalize the whole railroad picture.

These are giants of the rail industry, and they account for 10 per cent of all the rail mileage in the nation.

Presumably the proponents of this merger have large plans for putting the companies on a sounder basis than now exists. And what they may evolve would probably affect most of the other lines. In fact, there are tentative plans for merging several of the other large railroads.

It has become common knowledge that some sectors of the industry are operating at a loss. This is especially true of passenger traffic. There has been a gradual curtailment of rail passenger service for years, and there is acceleration of this trend.

Even so, airline competition is sufficient to restrain the railroads, even assuming that government regulatory bodies would sanction passenger fare increases.

One of the headaches is the threat of inland water navigation.

Such competition is frequently imposed with tongue in cheek. It doesn't require a transportation expert to ascertain that navigation by barge lines and other vessels on the flat prairie rivers would be prohibitively expensive, especially as barge canals would cease being a joke.

The main drive in this respect, is not to provide waterborne freight carriers, but to beat down railroad freight rates.

Possibly engineering research experts have some new ideas which will rescue the railroads from their dilemma. What the solution could be is not readily apparent. But it is becoming more and more obvious that reorganization and economy will not be enough.

Brownell To Fight Nixon Choice?

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Washington Republican circles have been stirred by reports that former Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., opposes Vice President Richard M. Nixon as the Party's 1960 candidate, and that he will re-enter politics to block selection of the Californian.

It amounts to a spectacular political Sputnik.

In fact, it is understood that Brownell will seek the Republican nomination for Governor of New York next year in order to carry out his anti-Nixon maneuver. Even if defeated by Governor Averell Harriman, which is likely, he would remain as titular head of the Empire State GOP, and be in a position to try to control the state's 90 delegates to the 1960 convention.

Brownell's reported plans also place him in opposition to former Governor Thomas E. Dewey, his old enemy at Albany. The former Governor has virtually endorsed Nixon for 1960, as has Sherman Adams, White House Chief of Staff. A Nixon in the White House might name Dewey as Secretary of State, which has been the latter's lively ambition for years.

ADMINISTRATION BEHIND NIXON Indeed, although Eisenhower's characteristic caution prevents him from giving political signals so far in advance, the impression grows that the full weight of the Administration's influence will be thrown behind Nixon in the 1960 race. He has become the Presidential spokesman on major national and international problems.

The White House, it is pointed out, intervened in order to persuade Governor Goodwin J. Knight to withdraw from a reelection try in order to provide a clear field to Senator William F. Knowland. Knight will run for the Knowland Senate vacancy.

By seeking to keep this important state from falling into Democratic hands at Sacramento as a result of GOP feuds, the White House indirectly straightened the V.P.'s 1960 chances.

INTRAPARTY DIFFERENCES But the Brownell scheme would endanger the Party's prospects

Bears On The Prowl?

By ROBER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Most readers are anxious to know whether we are now in a Bear Market. This applies to real estate, stocks, real estate and commodity prices, as well as to stocks and bonds. Let me first say that everything points to good Christmas business. Retailers who are at their stores from opening to closing and who attend to business have nothing to worry about, at least this year.

HISTORY OF BEAR MARKETS

During my fifty years of watching Wall Street, a part of which time I spent on Wall Street, I have witnessed five Bear Markets. Naturally they all follow Bull Markets such as we have seen in the past decade. In fact, there has been no other Bull Market during these fifty years as long and as profitable as the one we have experienced since 1942.

When Bull Markets increase and become overextended, that is the first indication of a Bear Market. Furthermore, such Bear Markets ultimately include commodity prices and real estate activity, as well as stocks and bonds. One type of activity, however, may anticipate or extend beyond another. The bond market is still high. Stocks are usually the first to collapse and the first to come back, whereas real estate is the last.

DIFFERENT RULES FOR FORECASTING BEAR MARKETS

When we were on a Gold Standard, the best sign of the approach of a Bear Market was high interest rates. Today, however, we are no longer on the Gold Standard, but on a political Standard. The government in Washington cannot forever extend prosperity; but they can certainly stretch it out.

Another system which has worked fairly well in forecasting markets is the Dow Theory. This was originated many years ago by one of the former owners of the Wall Street Journal. I presume any reader can secure an explanation of it by writing the Wall Street Journal in New York City. Just now, however, this Dow Theory is out of style.

I personally have been guided by the Area Theory, so-called. Briefly, this means that as long as business remains near its normal line of growth we have nothing to fear, except for some very unexpected eventuality. When, however, business begins to form an Area of Prosperity above the normal line larger than previous areas, we must be on our guard. When the area becomes too large, an Area of Depression below the normal line begins to develop. Stocks and retail profits usually begin to decline in the last part of the Prosperity Area, and begin to come back in the early part of the Depression Area. The word AREA is used rather than high or low because if the area above or below the normal line is deep then it will last a much shorter length of time than if it is shallow. Contrariwise, a shallow area will tend to last longer. Thus, under the Area Theory, you cannot make a forecast as to the length of a period of prosperity or of depression until you know its height or depth.

The official greeter, celebrant, mourner and tax collector. This is the power behind all moves to set up and finance office Christmas parties, "get-acquainted" lunches for new hands, farewell parties for old hands, burial parties for the late hands.

About the only really unusual type is the man who does his work well with no fuss, is always happy, friendly, helpful. Everybody finds him charming and interesting.

But then you can always talk to me, baby, at home.

This was very clearly illustrated during the second election of President Eisenhower. Most stock and business analysts felt that the "bloom was off the rose" in 1955 and believed a Bear Market had started. The tremor in the victory of Mr. Eisenhower in 1956 entirely changed.

THOMAS EDISON'S FIRST INVENTION WAS AN ELECTRICAL VOTE RECORDER HE SUBMITTED TO CONGRESS. IT WAS REJECTED!

Brownell, it is recalled, had serious differences in the Civil Rights controversy. Then Attorney General Brownell framed a measure that would have authorized the deployment of the full Federal power, including the military, to enforce all laws against alleged racial discrimination. He became anathema to the South and its men on Capitol Hill.

As a veteran political operator, Brownell recognized that a drastic measure might win back the colored vote which F.D.R. and Harry S. Truman had proselytized for the Democrats. So did the Northern bloc generally, both Democrats and Republicans.

Although he favored an effective law, Nixon knew the temperament of members of Congress. He realized that compromise was necessary in order to obtain even minimum legislation and to avoid a filibuster. He won Eisenhower to his viewpoint. It was a distinct rebuff to the President's legal adviser, and he resented it bitterly. He resigned immediately.

These and other intraparty differences will confront the members of the Republican National Committee when they hold their annual meeting at Washington in a few weeks. For the Republicans will have no hope of winning in 1960 unless political squabbles in California and New York, which enjoy 77 electoral votes between them, are resolved.

Although averse to dabbling in the bread-and-butter and drab details of practical politics, President Eisenhower may be forced to deal with these Sputniks in the political skies. Both his and the Party's prestige are not too high in these difficult days.

'Tables Should Reflect Hostess Personality' Explains Guest Speaker

Miss Margaret Stevens, assistant home demonstration agent, was guest speaker for the Delphian Book Club Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Jack Minges.

The hostess introduced Miss Stevens whose program was "Table Settings." She began with a simple breakfast table and continued with luncheon tea tables and formal and informal dinner tables.

She gave in detail an outline of table accessories available today, from paper place mats the children can make, to the most expensive linens, pottery, china, crystal and glassware.

She stressed using what one had and letting tables reflect personalities. To illustrate this she fixed several arrangements for a Thanksgiving table using a cornucopia with fruit, Pilgrim candles and turkeys.

For the Christmas table she had made a red net Christmas tree trimmed with small silver beads and larger silver balls at the base.

She concluded the program with slides taken of various functions held in the county and state.

The president, Mrs. Craven Hughes, presided over a brief business meeting after which Mrs. Minges served sandwiches, nuts, brownies and coffee.

The Sports Reflector

By BILLY ARNOLD

When East Carolina went down to Greensboro Saturday night and flattened Guilford on the Quakers' home court to record their second win of the season...

Of course, this being the first conference tilt of the year for both clubs, even these assumptions can be proved 100 per cent wrong before the end of the season.

Coach Howard Porter, whose club stunned everybody with a 107-68 victory over Pfeiffer in the opener, has been in this coaching business long enough not to get too enthusiastic over his Bucs' two triumphs.

But Porter knows that his team is a young one, and inexperienced one. The two very decisive victories, coming at a time when everybody—the experts included—has portrayed the 1957-58 Bucs as a badly-crippled, sorely-in-need-of-everything club...

He is being truthful in saying that his club hasn't proved itself yet and that he cannot predict great things for it. Last year's Pirates were loaded, according to pre-season reports, yet they finished with a 13-12 record...

LONG HARD SEASON AHEAD

A victory over Guilford can be misleading, if taken the wrong way. Sure, the Quakers are rated a strong team this season, perhaps one of the best in the loop. But oddsmakers have also named Western Carolina, High Point, and Lenoir Rhyne as potential champions...

Porter is, of course, hoping and aiming for the North State title this season. But The Fox is inclined to go along with those who predict that the Pirates are at least one to two years away from a championship team.

It figures on paper: With Ike Riddick and Jessell Curry, both sophomores at the guard posts; Charlie Adams, with another year at forward; Don Smith with three more years at forward; Joe Plaster with another season too at center, the Bucs seem to have a better chance as time goes by.

CATAMOUNTS LOST, TOO

Western Carolina, picked by most of the smart money boys as the team to beat in the North State this season, also got clipped, Saturday. Catawba laid them low and thus jumps into an early first-place tie with East Carolina in the loop standings.

With the first two games of the season having been played, two of the league's favorites have taken defeats and two of the most-unlikely teams are roosting on top of the heap.

Perhaps from the Catawba victory, another assumption might be made: that this year's North State race will be another of the hectic, upside-down sort of seasons that has taken place during the past two years.

During the past two seasons, it has become increasingly apparent that the league is getting stronger by the year. No one team has been able to sweep through the conference easily since the year that East Carolina went to Kansas City with Bobby Hodges, Sonny Huffman, J. C. Thomas and that crew.

Last year, the North State Conference made the oddsmakers look bad from start to finish and the first week of play this year has started the process again.

This week, the season moves into full swing, with conference games on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. The current league leaders, ECC and Catawba, will battle it out on Saturday night when the Indians invade East Carolina's memorial gymnasium.

It will be ECC's biggest test of the young season.

ECC Pirates Defeat Guilford By 91-69

Gridiron Crowns Settled And Bowls Are Now Filled

By ED WILKS The Associated Press Conference titles are settled, the bowls are filled and all that remains in college football for 1957 is the selection of the national champion and the All America team.

The national champ will be named tomorrow in the final Associated Press poll. The AP All America will be announced Thursday.

Unbeaten, untied Auburn, considered a good-field, no-hit outfit until last weekend, beat the drum long and loud in a final bid for the national championship with a 40-0 rumble against Alabama Saturday. The Tigers (10-0) took over the No. 1 spot in last week's rankings with Ohio State second and Michigan State third.

Auburn took its first Southeastern Conference title, but the Tigers are on NCAA probation and ineligible for bowl play. That left the SEC's spot in the Sugar Bowl for runner-up Mississippi, which tied Mississippi State 7-7 Saturday.

The bowl search was finished Saturday after three other season-closing games — Navy's 14-0 victory over Army, Rice's 20-0 breeze over Baylor for the Southwest Conference crown, and Tennessee's 20-7 victory over Vanderbilt — which set up this year-end schedule.

Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.—Ohio State (8-1) vs Oregon (7-3); Cotton bowl at Dallas—Rice (7-3) vs Navy (8-1-1); Sugar Bowl at New Orleans—Mississippi (8-1-1) vs. Texas (6-3-1).

Orange Bowl at Miami—Oklahoma (9-1) vs. Duke (6-2-2); Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.—Tennessee (7-3) vs. Texas A&M (8-2).

Arizona State (10-0), the only other major unbeaten, untied team, finished its season with a 47-7 victory over Arizona, but is barred from bowl play by a school rule.

Tennessee is the only 1957 bowl team back for another shot. It lost to Baylor in this year's Sugar Bowl 13-7. It will be making its 11th appearance in a major bowl.

Navy has appeared in only two other bowl games, defeating Mississippi 21-0 in the 1955 Sugar Bowl, and tying Washington 14-14 in the 1924 Rose Bowl.

Oklahoma, completing its regular season with a 53-6 job on Oklahoma State, will be making a fourth trip to the Orange Bowl in the finale to the Big Eight-Atlantic Coast agreement.

Mississippi, 2-3 in bowl competition, is making its third trip to the New Orleans classic.

Six Teams Place Men On All-ACC Football Squad

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Six teams placed men on the Associated Press Atlantic Coast Conference all-star football team announced today, with Orange Bowl-bound Duke gaining three positions.

Conference champion North Carolina State, ineligible for bowl play because of NCAA restrictions, won two berths and came up with the player selected as the No. 1 performer of the conference, halfback Dick Christy.

Maryland and North Carolina also placed two men on the honor eleven, with Virginia and Clemson each winning one position.

For the first time in the five-year history of the conference two sophomores were selected—Maryland guard Rod Breedlove and Clemson quarterback Harvey Hite.

Here's the lineup: Ends — Buddy Payne, North Carolina; Ed Cooke, Maryland; tackles — Tom Topping, Duke; Phil Blazer, North Carolina; guards — Rod Breedlove, Maryland; Roy Hord, Duke; center — Jim Oddo, North Carolina State; backs — Dick Christy, North Carolina State; Wray Carlton, Duke; Jim Bakhtiar, Virginia; Harvey White, Clemson.

It's a rugged squad that averages 212 in the line and 193½ in the backfield.

Cooke, at 235, is the biggest man in the line, with Oddo, at 187, the only maverick under 200.

Christy, Carlton and Topping were unanimous first team picks of the Associated Press regional board of five sportswriters and one sportscaster. Topping was the choice of ACC coaches as the best lineman in the circuit.

Bakhtiar is the only repeater from the 1956 honor team. His power running and high grade all-around play made Virginia a team to be respected.

Christy, who capped an outstanding career by scoring all the North Carolina State points in the 29-26 victory over South Carolina that sewed up the conference title, is a fine all-around performer. He and Carlton are gifted halfbacks whose versatility includes pass catching and throwing in addition to outstanding running.

White is a fine passing, hard running quarterback who has matured rapidly since midseason.

Atlantic Coast Conference Cage Play Begins Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Atlantic Coast Conference opens its 1957-58 basketball season tonight with five of the league's eight teams in action against non-conference opposition. Tonight's card has Duke at Kentucky, Virginia at William and Mary, North Carolina State at home to Atlantic Christian, Wake Forest at home to Davidson, and South Carolina meeting Georgia in Charlotte.

North Carolina, No. 1 in the nation and hoping to keep it that way, doesn't get into the act until Saturday when it plays host to Clemson. Clemson and Maryland open their seasons Wednesday, the Tigers at home to Georgia and the Terrapins playing host to George Washington.

North Carolina went through last season undefeated, winning the national crown and amassing a record of 32 victories. The other ACC clubs, with overall records shown, finished like this: Maryland 16-10; Duke 13-11; Wake Forest 19-9; N. C. State 15-11; South Carolina 17-12; Clemson 7-17; and Virginia 6-19.

The North Carolina Tar Heels rank as the league's top power, but the road ahead is not easy—conference-wise or otherwise.

Coach Frank McGuire lost his ace pointmaker, Lennie Rosenbluth—the only man he stood to lose from last year's squad; but now the Tar Heels must go without the dandy of the Kansas City playoffs — Joe Quigg — who was sidelined with a broken leg suffered in practice.

However, returning from last year's Tar Heel lineup are Tommy Kearns, Pete Brennan, Bob Cunningham, Roy Searcy, Danny Lotz and Gehrmann Holland, and these promising sophomores: Dick Kepley, a 6-9 center; Lee Shafer, 6-7 forward; and Harvey Salz, a top ball handler and basket marksmen.

Coach Bud Millikan at Maryland, losing only one starter from last year's squad, also has a bunch

They whipped the Meriden All-Stars, 35-0, here yesterday in the Silver Bowl football game for boys 12 years old and under.

Twelve-year-old Robert Johnson, the 105-pound fullback of the Tar Heel team, scored three touchdowns and one conversion. End Hoyte Albertson, also 12, scored twice on passes.

the conference.

However, the Bears were beaten during the season by Elon, which had its schedule abbreviated by the influenza epidemic and wound up with 4-0-0 in the conference. North State regulations require a team to play five conference games to be considered for the title.

Conference coaches also will meet tomorrow and that night Bob Stauffenberg, 200-pound senior fullback for Elon, will receive the American Business Club award as outstanding player for 1957 in the conference.

Stauffenberg was chosen in voting by 45 conference coaches, sportswriters and sportscasters. He narrowly won over fullback Harold Bullard of Lenoir Rhyne, two-time previous winner. No one else was close.

The club also will present its annual award to the outstanding player in the Western Class AAA (high school) Conference Tuesday night.

Stauffenberg gained more than 2,000 yards rushing in his four years at Elon, although he was sidelined much of his sophomore season because of a broken arm.

Wake Forest Coach Paul Amen will speak at the banquet.

AAU To Restore Lee Calhoun To 'Good Standing'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Olympic hurdling champion Lee Calhoun of North Carolina College will be restored to good standing by the Amateur Athletic Union next August.

The AAU, holding its national convention here Saturday, voted to restore Calhoun after a committee recommended the action.

Calhoun, who won the 110-meter hurdles in the 1956 Olympics, lost his amateur status after he was married on a television program (Bride and Groom last August).

The AAU had warned Calhoun that because of the gifts given by the program, he would lose his amateur status if he went through with the wedding on the program.

Retiring Secretary - Treasurer Dan Ferris, who headed the committee, said it was recommending that Calhoun be reinstated because of "unusual circumstances."

Drop Request For Fishing Pier

ATLANTIC BEACH—A request for permission to build a new fishing pier on the site of the burned-out Ocean King Hotel at Atlantic Beach was voluntarily withdrawn yesterday.

The action came at a special meeting of the Atlantic Beach Board of Aldermen and was based on "considerable opposition to the plan." Announcement that the request was being withdrawn was made by Mayor A. B. Cooper of Atlantic Beach, owner of property where the pier was to have been erected.

Cooper also said his group was withdrawing an application made to Army engineers for permission to build the pier. The engineers were to have returned the application, with comments, next Saturday.

Aldermen received the request for a building permit two weeks ago. Action was deferred by the board until property owners could be advised of the proposal, and when the board convened yesterday Cooper said the request was being withdrawn because of property owners' reactions.

If it had been constructed, the

Young Season Has Its Second Upset

GUILFORD COLLEGE — East Carolina's Pirates pulled their second upset of the season, Saturday, coming from behind to dump North State Conference opponent Guilford, 91-69, here, on the Quakers' home court.

It was the first conference tilt of the year for both clubs and Guilford was rated favorites over the visiting Bucs.

Guilford took the opening tap and moved to an early lead, with forward Roger Roan and center Bob Henderson leading the way. The Quakers stayed from two to nine points ahead of the visitors throughout the first quarter and carried their lead on into the second quarter.

Midway in the second period, East Carolina began to run and the Pirates started finding the shooting range. Joe Plaster, working at center along with starter Guy Mendenhall, combined with forwards Don Smith and Harold Ingram to begin a gradual taking over of the backboards. East Carolina started getting control of the ball.

Just a few moments before halftime, ECC tied the game, 41-41, and the Bucs soon took over. Plaster, Smith, Ingram and guard Ike Riddick came back in the second half to assault the nets for close to 50 points, while Guilford, stunned and disbelieving, managed to get only 28.

The Pirates took almost complete control of the rebounds, although they were the shorter of the two clubs, and Coach Howard Porter's running attack kept the Bucs ahead by an ever-mounting score.

Riddick and Plaster paced the Bucs during the second half and both came out as the Pirates' leading scorers at the end of the game. Plaster recorded 19 points, while Riddick added 16.

Coach Porter, having picked up a comfortable lead by midway the third quarter, used substitutes freely. Charlie Adams, who played regularly at times last year and who has been out of the lineup this season due to the flu and ankle troubles, saw some action and netted seven points. Jessell Curry, a starter at guard, claimed 12. Mendenhall got 11.

Each of the Buc starters hit in the double figures. Mendenhall got 11, Curry got 12, Smith had 11, Ingram had 13, Riddick had 16, Plaster, although he didn't start, picked up most of his points in the latter part of the first half and throughout the second half.

Bob Henderson was the top scorer for the hosts, getting 17 points. Roan, Bob Young, and Don Hemrick added 11 each for Coach Bob Shoaf's club.

The victory was the second of the young season for Coach Howard's quintet. Last week, they dumped a highly-rated Pfeiffer College team, 107-69 at East Carolina's Memorial gymnasium.

Next game on the Buc slate is pier would have been located near the center of the beach's bathing and cottage areas.

Table with columns: East Carolina, FG, FT, PF, TP. Rows: Ingram, Adams, Huffman, Smith, Lewis, Mendenhall, Plaster, Riddick, Reid, Curry, O'Brien, Totals.

Farmers Must Spend For Fertilizer And Lime, If They Are To Earn More

RALEIGH — Farmers like everywhere else have to spend money in order to make money. This rule certainly applies to the use of lime and fertilizer in crop production in this state.

Regardless of the fact that lime pays handsome dividends, North Carolina farmers are using much less today than is needed, according to Dr. W.C. White, agronomy specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service at State College. On the basis of the present cropping system about 4,000,000 tons of lime are needed to bring North Carolina soils up to proper lime levels. If this much lime were applied, it would still take about 1,000,000 tons of lime annually for this state to maintain adequate lime levels in soils.

These figures represent what should be used—how do they compare with what is used? This comparison does not look very good for North Carolina farmers since they are using less than 1-3 as much lime as is needed just for maintenance only. This means that in recent years they have used in the neighborhood of 300,000 tons of lime. "The moral of these comparisons is that North Carolina farmers have a long way to go—and a lot of profits to realize—from increasing lime usage," declares White.

When considering the use of any practice a farmer should examine how much return he can obtain from one dollar invested, advises White. There are few, if any, practices a farmer can use that give better returns than money spent for lime. Experiments in North Carolina have shown that money spent for lime applied at the rate of two tons per acre on Ladino clover has returned about $17 for each dollar spent. That represents about 1,700 per cent interest!

Use of lime on row crops also pays well where it is needed. Cotton experiments have shown that for soils needing lime, returns of about $55 for each dollar spent on lime have been realized. It should be pointed out, however, that these large figures for returns per dollar invested are for cases where lime is badly needed. In the same experiments cited for cotton, but on a different soil where lime was not needed quite so badly, only about $7 was realized for each dollar invested. Even with this return it represents a very nice profit.

Farmers in North Carolina do not have to apply lime blindly trying to find those places where lime pays so handsomely. All they to do is to take a soil sample and send it in to the Soil Testing Division of the Department of Agriculture in Raleigh where a laboratory test will show exactly how much lime is needed. With this information it is hard for any farmer to go wrong in applying lime and reaping at least several dollars for every dollar spent.

Why do soils need lime? In answering this one should remember that soils were naturally low in fertility in the virgin condition because of the extreme weathering that had taken place. Nevertheless, North Carolina soils are some of the most productive in the country when properly fertilized and limed. Lime contains one of the essential elements for plant growth—calcium. Calcium is lost from soil by leaching and also it is removed by plants. Thus, during years of cropping and weathering, the lime content of our soils has been reduced to low levels. Thus, one reason lime is needed is to supply calcium which is essential for all plant growth.

Another reason North Carolina soils need lime is that lime effects the acidity of soils. Plants do not grow as well in very acid soil as they do in slightly acid soil because the availability of other elements is influenced. For example, phosphorus, another essential element for plant growth, becomes much less available to plants as the acidity of the soil increases. Lime makes the soil "sweet", or alkaline. Consequently when lime is added conditions are such that phosphorus is more available to plants.

Use of lime is particularly important where legumes are grown because the micro-organisms in the root nodules on legumes function much better in "slightly acid" soils than in "very acid" soils. This is one of the reasons why you hear so much about the use of lime on Ladino clover and alfalfa. Lime supplies a plant nutrient, it provides conditions whereby other plant nutrients are more available, and it also provides conditions where micro-organisms that contribute to plant growth can be more active.

Just because a little lime might be a good thing, one should not conclude that a lot of lime is even better. Too much lime can cause trouble in North Carolina soils and this is another reason why White strongly advises the use of soil testing.

Little Hope For Man Lost On Stormy Peak

MT. RAINIER NATIONAL Park, Wash. (AP)—Search for a young Seattle engineer missing since Saturday morning on storm-swept Mt. Rainier will be resumed today, weather permitting, Chief Ranger Al Rose said.

Lovell Linn, 23, who moved to Seattle six months ago from Minneapolis, was last seen by a fellow climber Saturday morning near Panorama Point, at the 6,500 foot level on the 14,402-foot mountain.

Chances of finding Linn alive are "very slim," Rose said. Linn, an engineer with the Boeing Airplane Co., and a companion Harry Holcomb, 25, of Seattle, set out on snowshoes from Paradise Inn at the 5,500-foot level early Saturday morning. Holcomb carried skis. Holcomb left Linn about 10 a.m. and returned to Paradise at 3:30 p.m.

Snow, driven by wind, started falling before Holcomb reached the inn. Search parties were driven back by the howling storm

Home Warning Device Is Planned By Civil Defense

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The head of the nation's civil defense today told a national convention of mayors, "We are developing and testing a simple home warning device that can be plugged into any electrical outlet."

"We hope," said Leo A. Hoegh, federal civil defense administrator, "to see a workable device of this usefulness installed in every home in America that is served by a central power system."

In an address prepared for delivery before the American Municipal Assn., the former Iowa governor said: "As a result of the launching of the Sputniks and the possibility of Russia having intercontinental missiles (which our planning has anticipated, civil defense has become a far more timely subject for discussion than ever before. . . . In some cities, civil defense plans which have been mothballed and put on a standby basis will have to be activated."

Hoegh called the principal roadblock a federal civil defense law "that became archaic long before it was seven years old."

He said he considered "extremely vital to the improvement of every level of civil defense" the House-passed Durham bill which comes before the Senate when it reconvenes. The bill's key provision authorizes the PCDA to assist directly and financially in establishing efficient working organizations "at every level of government."

Hoegh listed five key requirements of an effective civil defense program and commented on each:

1. Warning. "We can transmit warnings to 200 key points in every state within 90 seconds. . . . We are continuing to strengthen this system."
2. Communications and control. Communications now are primarily teletype and telephone. "We are in the process of backing these up with radio communications."
3. Survival planning—shelter studies. "We are financing in most of the nation's critical target areas, involving 45 states and three territories, detailed operational survival plans. These plans will be completed within the next seven months." A shelter program, based on Nevada atomic tests, is being pushed.
4. Recovery. "Our medical supplies in stockpiles will treat five million people for three weeks. We need more."
5. Research and education. He mentioned the home plug-in device under this category. "We are determined to reach every individual with information and guidance that may mean the difference between living and dying in this nuclear age."

Hammarskjold Holding Conferences In Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold continued talks with Jordanian leaders today but there was no indication of compromise in the dispute U.N. sources feared might bring an open clash with Israel.

Trouble could break out Wednesday, when an Israeli convoy again is scheduled to go to Israeli-held Mt. Scopus, inside Jordanian territory.

A spokesman for Hammarskjold said that shooting might result if Jordan continues to refuse to allow convoys through and Israel insists on sending them.

"This thing could get that serious if it is not settled," he declared.

Hammarskjold arrived from Beirut yesterday and soon after talked at length with 23-year-old King Hussein, had two long sessions with Foreign Minister and Deputy Premier Samir Rifai and met briefly with Premier Ibrahim Hashem.

A communique said Hammarskjold and Jordanian leaders discussed "problems relating to the strengthening of the position of the U.N. truce supervision organization . . . particularly in the Mt. Scopus demilitarized area."

Hammarskjold flew to the Middle East last week after Jordan turned back two Israeli convoys to Mt Scopus and also demanded that U.S. Marine Col. Byron Leary be removed as chief U.N. truce observer.

The Jordanians charged that gasoline carried by the convoys constituted military supplies barred by the Palestine armistice. Israel contended that the gasoline is needed for an electric generator on Mt. Scopus, a low hill inside the Arab-held Old City of Jerusalem. The hill, occupied by Israel ever since the Palestine War, is the site of Hadassah Hospital and the Hebrew University.

Jordan claimed that Col. Leary was biased in Israel's favor and announced it would no longer accept him as a mediator. Hammarskjold in reply expressed full confidence in the Marine officer.

Jordan officials said Rifai in the talks with Hammarskjold adamantly refused to compromise either issue. U.N. officials feared

Big Labor Group Might Pull Out

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department opens its 49th regular convention today amid speculation as to whether or not the 3½-million-member group might move to secede from the AFL-CIO.

Resolutions calling for such an action as secession because of jurisdictional problems have been submitted to the department for presentation at the three-day meeting.

Other resolutions call on the department to take what steps are necessary "regardless of how drastic"—to protect craft jurisdiction. This includes cessation of per capita tax payment to the parent union, which would mean automatic suspension.

The department's Executive Committee met behind closed doors for almost three hours yesterday. Afterwards, James Garrison, of Detroit, acting as spokesman for the committee, RALEIGH (AP)—A week-long look at North Carolina culture gets underway here tomorrow.

The yearly "Culture Week" program will be highlighted by the presentation of awards for outstanding work in the fields of art, literature—fiction, non-fiction and poetry—and historical research and preservation.

Members of societies and organizations interested in the state's music, literature, art, folklore and history are scheduled to register here tomorrow for the four-day program.

A "Music Day" program, sponsored by the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs, will lead off the week's events. This program is a newcomer to the list of cultural events planned.

On Wednesday, the North Carolina State Art Society will be featured. Other programs slated include: Thursday, the North Carolina Society for the Preservation of Antiquities; Friday, the North Carolina Literary and Historical Assn. and the North Carolina Folklore Society; and Saturday, the North Carolina Poetry Society, and the North Carolina Society of County and Local Historians.

For the first time this year a corporate citizenship award will be made by the Literary and Historical Assn. A corporation with headquarters or a branch in North Carolina will be honored Friday, Dr. Christopher Crittenden, association secretary, stated.

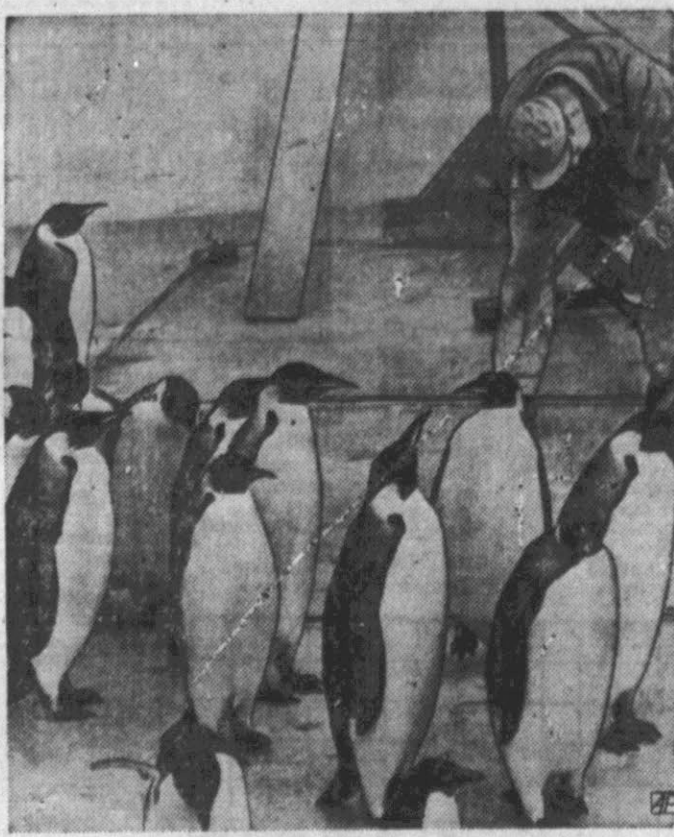

Wednesday evening the purchase awards of the State Art Society will be unveiled in conjunction with the opening of the 20th annual North Carolina Artists' Exhibition.

Another highlight of the week will be the announcement of the literary awards. They include: the Mayflower Cup for the year's best non-fiction; the Sir Walter Raleigh award for the best fiction; the American Assn. of University Women's award for juvenile literature; the Roanoke-Chowan poetry award and the R. D. W. Connor award for the best article during the past year on a subject about North Carolina published in the North Carolina Historical Review.

At tomorrow's opening program, Dr. Benjamin Swain, conductor of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, will conduct an afternoon program on symphony education in the public schools. A concert also is planned. The Moravian contribution to American music will be the subject of a talk by Donald M. McCorkle, executive director of the Moravian Music Foundation.

Presiding at the Music Day program will be Mrs. Henry J. Shonts of Winston-Salem, president of the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs.

The Grass Roots Opera Company of Raleigh will perform Alec Wilder's "Sunday Excursion" at a banquet program. Mrs. Maurice Honigman of Gastonia, national board member of the Federation of Music Clubs from North Carolina, will be the principal speaker.

Church Leaders See Major Challenges In Nuclear Age

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, Associated Press Religion Writer

St. Louis, Mo. (AP)—Church leaders said today Christian forces in America are pulling together as never before — but that they face some new challenges in a dawning age of nuclear power and space travel.

The relation of "nuclear-space" developments to religious faith was brought up in an opening business session of the Triennial General Assembly of the big National Council of Churches.

The Council represents 30 Protestant and orthodox denominations with about 37½ million members, nearly a fourth of the nation's population. More than 2,000 clerical and lay delegates are here for the policy-making meeting.

The Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, of Philadelphia, the Council's president, said participation of churches still outside the Council is needed to make a stronger Christian impact on the life of the nation. He mentioned specifically the Southern Baptists and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

These two bodies, along with the Roman Catholic Church, are the only large denominations not in the Council.

The Rev. Wesley H. Hager, a St. Louis Methodist clergyman, said the Council has become "the helping hand, the strong right arm, the positive voice of American Protestantism."

The assembly opened last night with a colorful worship service. Twin lines of robed delegates marched down the aisles of the city's big Kiel Auditorium to the strains of organ music and high-trumpet calls.

Challenge Hoffa Election Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Trial of a suit challenging the election of James R. Hoffa as president of the Teamsters Union opens today in Federal District Court.

Hoffa, currently on trial in New York City on criminal wiretap conspiracy charges, was not expected to attend early phases of the hearing here, although he may testify later.

He is charged in the New York trial with conspiracy to tap telephones in the Teamsters' Detroit office building between 1953 and 1957. That trial resumes today after a Thanksgiving recess.

The Washington action is a civil suit which does not require Hoffa's presence in court, although he and other officials of the union are named as defendants.

New Terms For Lennon Sisters

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—The four singing Lennon sisters, acquiring show business fame on the Lawrence Welk television show, have court approval today of a new contract paying each $203.50 a week for three years.

Superior Judge Orlando H. Rhodes approved the deal for the minor girls, directing them to invest 20 per cent of their earnings in U.S. Savings Bonds.

William H. Lennon, father of Diane, 18; Peggy, 16; Kathy, 14; and Janet, 11, said the contract permits the girls to accept other engagements which do not conflict with the television schedule. Their mother Mrs. Isabella Lennon said the youngsters have a nest egg of $19,000 and are buying annuities which eventually will pay each one $50,000.

Called Again By His Draft Board

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—M. Sgt. Virgil D. Flynn, 55, a military man since 1921, thinks the Tacoma, Wash., selective service board has gone a little too far.

He received this week a postcard from the Tacoma board announcing he is available for order to active duty. This wasn't Flynn's first difficulty with a draft board.

In 1942, when he was with an Army Air Corps unit in Greenland, the sheriff called at his home in Omaha, Neb., to serve notice he was to appear before the local board for induction.

Flynn told the draft board then he was willing to leave Greenland but the Army couldn't see the trip as necessary.

He now is stationed with headquarters of the 33rd Air Defense Division in Oklahoma City.

CHAPTER 12
 At four, Michael's car drew up before the cottage; she took her bag, her purse, and went out to it. On the drive back to the city, she sat beside him. Once he asked her when she went on duty, and she answered, not sulking, not braced in tone, but just as she would have answered such a question from a taxi driver, . . . courteously pleasant.

He drove the car into the basement garage, and they took the elevator up to the apartment. There the first thing Michael did was to pick up the phone and locate them each to the hospital switchboard.

He put the phone down, then turned to look at her.

Now he'll say he's sorry, thought Tracy, and then I can . . .

"But—since we both recognize the importance of appearances, Tracy," was what he said, "it will be necessary for us to maintain the outward signs of our marriage as I can. We're both disappointed in the way things have gone, I am sure I can count on your good taste and discretion to conceal the situation from others." He stood gazing at her for a minute, then went past her and into the bedroom.

Unbelieving, she stood where she was and watched him take his clothes from the closet and carry them into the small room across the hall. He was moving into the maid's room! He made a dozen trips, methodically, neatly. He emptied his half of the big closet, then took his things from the drawers of the chest and from the shelves in the bathroom.

When he had finished, she went into the bedroom herself and closed the door. She looked at the key in its lock but did not touch it. Feeling a hundred years old, she changed into a thin dress, unpacked her bag, and put her clothes away.

Before she was finished, Michael called to her. "I'm going to the hospital to check on a couple of things. Good-bye."

Tracy said good-bye.

He returned at eleven. Tracy heard him come in, and turned to look at the clock beside her bed to determine the time.

The next morning when she came into the living room, he was there before her, reading the paper. He glanced up and got to his feet. Tracy flushed. "Should I make breakfast?"

"Goodness, no! Why should you? It will be much easier for both of us to get it at the hospital. In fact, I don't think any regular meal-getting is indicated with the hours you keep."

So they began their "married life."

So they continued it. Michael acted his part as well. So the face they presented to the world was all it should be, or near enough that no comment was excited. A friend or two laughed about the Lorens' determination not to act or look like newlyweds, but no one suspected the truth.

As the days passed, Michael and Tracy settled down into a relationship that was a great deal like that of a brother and sister living together, not liking each other too well but managing to adjust themselves to one another's hours and tastes and little faults.

And so the weeks went by, and became months. Work filled Tracy's life, and she supposed it did for Michael. His work—or Carol.

Sometimes they talked to each other about their work. That, and items of hospital gossip, were their only subjects of discussion. Sometimes they became deeply interested in their discussion of a case.

Sometimes they disagreed sharply, feeling a genuine relief in being able to argue with each other, if only on the subject of whether a doctor should tell the mother of a cerebral palsied child that the baby would never walk.

Gradually Tracy lost her acute hurt over the outrageous things he had said to her on their wedding night in her growing concern about Michael as a doctor. He did not seem to consider the personal angles to a case at all! Saying that he was a specialist, with the connotation of glossiness, was not the answer. He worked in an office headed by Dr. O'Connell, an authority in his field, but no one ever took a more intimate and personal interest in a case than did the great allergist.

Of course Tracy was not happy, and she didn't look well. Michael began to watch her, with genuine concern in his dark eyes. One evening he watched her thus as they sat together in their living room, reading, and not talking.

"Tracy?" said Michael's deep voice.

She thought he would say that he was going out "for a few minutes." So, without looking up from her magazine, she said only, "Yes?"

"I think you should get a divorce now."

She jerked, and the magazine slipped from her hands to sprawl in a spread of color upon the carpet.

"What?" she asked, unbelieving.

"I said that I would give you a divorce. You have grounds, and I think you should attend to it." His voice told that he was sorry for her.

"But I can't do that, Michael."

"Why, of course you can. We can't go on forever this way!"

She rubbed her finger tips up through her hair. "No—" she said again. "I mean, divorce is impossible. I'd never do it."

He leaned toward her, his face puzzled. "For religious reasons?"

"No. I think divorce is permissible under certain conditions. But for us—divorce isn't the answer, Michael. It would be the easier way, but it would solve nothing. In your other marriage all it did for you was to let you forget Laura enough to get yourself tangled up with her prototype. If you had worked at your first marriage—" "I could have married you." He broke off, realizing what he was about to say, and he flushed.

"Yes," he said more gently, "I know—"

It was the nearest they had come to that sort of talk. And, that night, before Tracy could say any more, Michael put his hands on his knees, got to his feet, and walked out of the apartment.

So—life went on, and Tracy worked hard in an effort to endure it. She kept long hours, glad that they let her be away from the apartment. She leaned upon her work, deriving from it everything that her life with Michael failed to give her companionship, pride, and reassurance.

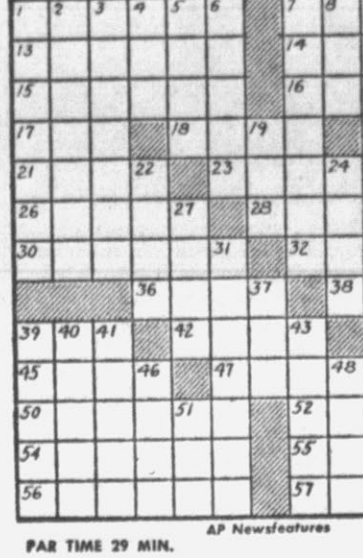

If Michael was not ready to let her do anything at all with their marriage, she would put her entire effort into her career. And so she worked—hard.

But it was not enough—for she still loved Michael, and frustration stalked her constantly, a lurking beast always ready to pounce.

Some Choose To Ignore Pennies To Save Dollars

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP)—Saving dollars by throwing pennies away is finding favor today with a growing number of economy minded business firms.

They call it whole-dollar accounting. It means eliminating the posting of pennies in a company's books by rounding out each figure to the nearest dollar. Over a period of time the results usually average out about the same as with traditional book keeping methods.

The Controllershship Foundation says pinching the pennies off brings savings up to 60 per cent in posting and 43 per cent in checking.

The foundation, research arm of the Controllersh Institute of America, says the commonly used formula rounds upward the amounts of 51 cents and over, and rounds downward amounts of 49 cents and less.

The foundation studied whole-dollar accounting by 13 firms to see how well averaging out works. It reports Bethlehem Steel's variance in 1955 was $2.60 for each one million dollars of billings.

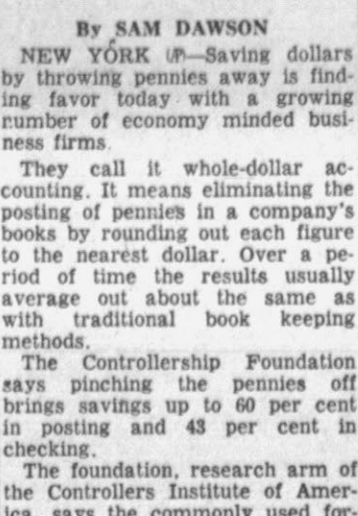

Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. reports an average net variance of less than $5 a month on annual gross revenues of 107 million dollars.

The foundation says that the great volume of accounting statistical work occurs not in sales slips and billings but in the internal accounting and analysis operations. It finds Pan American World Airways saving more than 25 million key punch strokes a year by using whole-dollar accounting in the book keeping stage of its operations.

F. & R. Lazarus, Columbus, Ohio, department store, records cash and charge account transactions in full on the cash registers, but at the end of each day figures are rounded to whole dollars for daily sales reports of each selling department. It reports several million digits a year eliminated from reports.

But from you the customer, you'll find any company using whole-dollar accounting in its book keeping wants the entire amount owed, right down to the last penny.

Industrialist Cites 5 Steps To Share 'Pie'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Five steps which the nation's cities can take to get their slices of new multibillion-dollar industry pie were charted here today by General Electric's Vice President Roy W. Johnson.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the American Municipal Assn., Johnson thus dangled the pie before the 1,600 delegates: "Annual investment in new plant and equipment of a nonpublic nature is expected to increase from the present 37 1/2 billion annual rate to 55 billion dollars by 1967."

He underscored the cities' needs for more industry by saying:

1. The United States will have to find a place for 60 million more people in the next 18 years and most of them will be urbanized.
2. Revenue needs of cities already are at the bursting point—with traffic jams alone costing five billion dollars last year, "or more than our total investment in urban public transit."
3. A good quality and quantity of people showing "evidences of progress in raising general and vocational education standards and facilities."
4. The presence of "industrial neighbors-to-be" who contribute to charities and other municipal needs "with no bargains asked."
5. An aggressive leadership in the mayor's or city manager's office.

Eskimos are believed to be descended from the same stock as American Indians. There is a similarity in their languages and culture.

Stevenson's Job Nearing Its End

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson may end this week his work as an adviser to the Eisenhower administration on NATO policies.

Conceding the end was coming "a little sooner than expected," Stevenson said last night he has no plans to join the U.S. delegation to a Dec. 16-18 meeting of the heads of state of North Atlantic Treaty countries, at which closer Allied scientific and defensive collaboration will be sought.

Stevenson did not foreclose the possibility he still may go to Paris, saying he "would certainly consider" any request from the administration that he participate. But he said a Paris trip hasn't even been discussed.

The State Department announced that Stevenson will sit in on at least part of a White House meeting with Republican and Democratic congressional leaders tomorrow. That general discussion of defense and foreign policy will include talks of plans for the forthcoming Paris NATO conference.

The State Department said Stevenson "has been invited to be present for the NATO presentation and has accepted."

It was only two weeks ago today that Stevenson moved into a State Department office to help give a bipartisan approach to NATO planning in the face of Russian satellite and missile gains. He subsequently was named formally as a consultant and put on a $48,800 daily rate of pay, plus expenses. There was no announcement then how long he would remain.

A federal census estimates that Australia's population is approximately 9,600,000.

TO RETIRE—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, now 70 years old, has announced his intention to retire next year as deputy Allied commander in Europe. He's the last top Allied commander of World War II on active duty.

- Worrying Wife Probably Saved Her Husband
- PITTSBURGH (AP)—John P. O'Hagen, 61, was alive today—thanks to his wife's worrying.
- While working at Columbia Hospital last night, Mrs. O'Hagen phoned her husband at their apartment two times but got no answer.
- Worried, she called a neighbor, Jack Miller, who said he hadn't seen O'Hagen. Then Miller heard the sound of a car motor. "Maybe your husband is in the garage."
- Miller went to the garage and found O'Hagen unconscious on the floor beside his auto. The car hood was up, indicating that O'Hagen had been tinkering with the motor. Only a small side door of the garage was open.
- O'Hagen was reported in fair condition, suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Judicial Beard Goes To Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP)—One of Hawaii's federal judges spent a term on the Alaska bench, and returned with a full beard.

"Beards are very popular in Alaska," Judge J. Frank McLaughlin explained. "I was encouraged to grow one while I was there. Now I'm going to keep it because I hate to shave."

They Stole It, Wanted Refund

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Officials of a Tulsa department store have seen a lot of audacious shoplifters but nothing like two young women recently arrested who wanted a refund.

They took a briefcase from one floor and tried to get a $14 refund on it from a clerk on another floor. They were charged with deceit.

High-Wire Man Falls To Death

Television Will Have Better 'Oscar' Show

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD IS - All signs point to the best of the Academy Award telecasts next March 25. First and most importantly, the film industry has kicked in to pick up the tab on the telecast. So the proceedings won't be interrupted by a lengthy display of fleets of automobiles. Also, the Academy has taken action to pare down the number of Oscars. Many observers, this one included, have advocated that the minor Oscars be presented before the show goes on the air. Since that can't be managed because of protests from the various crafts and arts, the Academy is doing the next best thing. Three awards have already been eliminated. The inevitable protests have been registered. The writers are sore because one of their three awards has been knocked out. Sure, there were more Oscars to pass around under the old system.

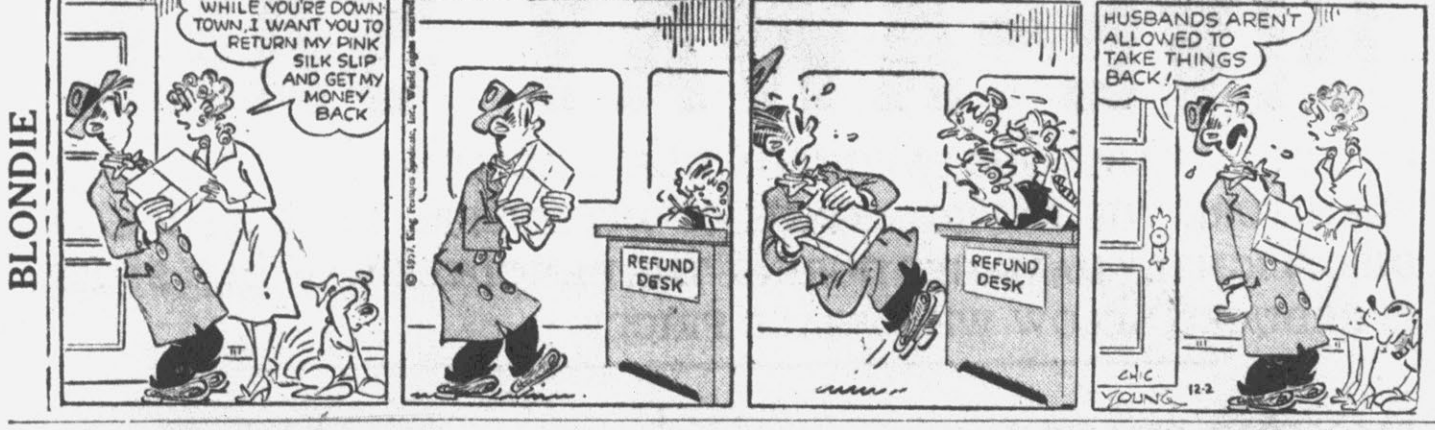

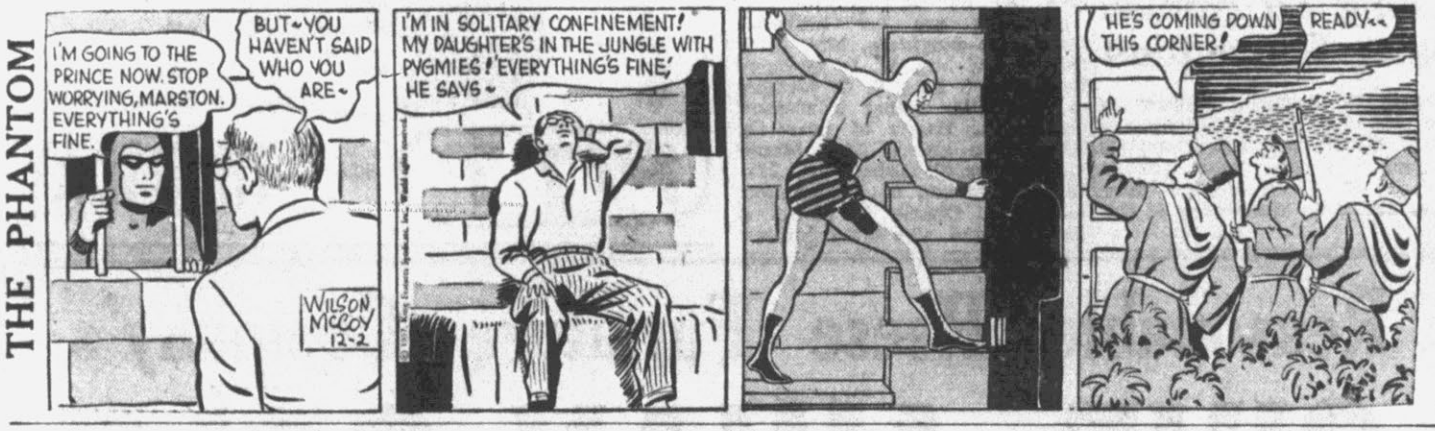

But many writers realized that three Oscars minimized the importance of the writing award. Many believe there should be only one award for writing. . . . Alfred Hitchcock's outspoken comment about Kim Novak, whom he is directing in "Vertigo": "Isn't it strange that she should have all this stardom before she is ready for it? But I've worked with such girls before. Joan Fontaine, for example." Kim should be so lucky. Hitch directed Joan to an Oscar in "Suspicion". Wonder why Marlon Brando is making appearances to plug "Sayonara"? Because he gets 10 cents of every dollar that it draws, that's why. Even her fellow players were surprised at the poor photographing of Rita Hayworth in "Pal Joey." They claim she looks terrific in the flesh. . . . NEW YORK (P)—Aircraft provided the main exception to a mostly lower stock market early this afternoon. In active dealings the aircraft the missile issues posted gains running to a point or more. The rest of the market was mostly down a similar amount, although improving a bit around the noon hour.

The aircraft again were influenced by the prospect of greatly stepped up production of missiles. Martin, Boeing, Sperry, and North American Aviation moved ahead about a point.

President Eisenhower continued to make an excellent recovery from his mild stroke but that appeared to have less influence on the market than specific news relating to various industries.

Steels declined on predictions that production this month will reach the lowest point of the year. Metals fell back following a cut in the price of lead at New York.

In the rail section New York Central and New Haven announced additional layoffs. Central declined about 1/2, Chesapeake & Ohio fell more than a point and Illinois Central and Southern Railway eased fractionally.

Motors generally declined with Chrysler and Ford off about a point. Gulf Oil, down nearly 2 points, led the oil group lower. Other losses in the section, however, were limited to small fractions. Chemicals recorded minor losses, as did most retail merchandisers.

There was some resistance to selling among utilities with American Telephone & Telegraph up more than a point.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 60 cents at $159.30 with the industrials off 90 cents, rails off $1.00 and utilities up 20 cents.
