Robert Dance Holding One-Man Show At Local Art Gallery

A STREET SCENE . . . is included in the group of paintings by Robert Dance now on exhibit at the local art gallery. (Reflector Photo By Anne Singleton).

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

In conjunction with "Culture Week" observance in Raleigh, a new exhibit—a one-man show by Robert B. Dance—is now being featured in the front room of the local art gallery at Sheppard Memorial Library.

Over 30 illustrations and paintings by this Kinston artist were "hung" yesterday and will remain at the gallery until December 31.

This current exhibit reflects the versatility of this young artist who works with water colors, casein, oil, pastels, pencil, charcoal and pen and ink. He often combines several of these in one picture.

Dance's illustrations are not confined to any one subject matter. Although wildlife has a special appeal for him, the same fine line of design is to be seen in other subjects which he creates. Many of his illustrations and paintings have appeared in leading magazines.

Some of his paintings will be shown in the North Carolina Artists Exhibition opening today and continuing until December 29 at the North Carolina Museum of Art, Raleigh.

Interested persons or groups are invited to visit this exhibit at 5:30 p.m. (the gallery which is open Monday through Saturday from 2 to 5:30 p.m.)

Sponsoring First Student Show

Janet Hill of Elizabeth City is now exhibiting her work as a student of art at East Carolina College in the Austin building on the campus. The show is the first by a senior art major to be sponsored by the department of art at the college. It will be followed during the school year by exhibitions by other seniors, according to Director Wellington B. Gray of the art department.

The current exhibition by Miss Hill will be on view through December 19. The public is invited to see her work during this period, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to noon.

Miss Hill's show is made up of seven oils in which a number of different techniques are used. Subject matter includes still life paintings of fruits and vegetables, described by Dr. Gray as being done "in a highly individual style as far as still life work is concerned."

Among the oils are a landscape and a non-objective painting. One of the most unusual effects, according to Dr. Gray, is achieved by a figure painted on burlap.

Miss Hill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hill of Elizabeth City and a graduate of the Elizabeth City High School. At East Carolina she has been active in the work of the Art Club; served for two years as feature editor of the student newspaper, the "East Carolinian," and is currently a columnist on the staff; acted as a college marshal Gray of the art department.

League Discusses Christmas Plans

Plans to make Christmas a happy occasion for those less fortunate were discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Greenville Service League held Monday at Elm Street Park.

During the business meeting which opened with Mrs. Wesley Harvey, president, leading the group in the "Prayer of Christian Service," Mrs. Ed Parkinson, finance chairman, reported a successful month and thanked Mrs. Reading and Mrs. Burnett for making the card party a success and Mrs. West for use of her home.

It was announced that the League members will help with the TB Seal Sale as usual and will be at a table in the Post Office from December 16-20. Mrs. C. W. Howard is in charge of securing workers for this project.

"There is a desperate need for Girl Scout and Brownie leaders in Greenville," said Mrs. William Wright, Girl Scout chairman. She asked anyone interested to call her or Mrs. Knott Proctor.

During November six calls were answered by Mrs. West, emergency charity chairman. Plans were made to deliver Christmas baskets on Sunday, December 22, at 2 p.m. from the A&P store. Mrs. Dick Evans reported that two worthy patients were helped at the hospital.

Mrs. James T. Little announced that new aprons had been made for the Coffee Shop and favors were made for trays at Thanksgiving.

All members were urged to be at the Nurses Dining Hall at the hospital Friday, December 20, at 9:30 a.m. to help decorate the tree, trim doors, fill fruit bags, and fix favors for the patients' Christmas trays.

Coffee Shop workers will observe Christmas holidays from December 21-January 6. Mrs. Harvey extended to members best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year at the close of the meeting.

Judicial System Can Stand A Look

Is the state's judicial system being judged unfairly by the people of North Carolina or officials who have pointed to the need for streamlining its operations?

Yet the people of North Carolina should not overlook the assertion of Associate Justice Emery B. Denny who declared that the judicial system should be judged by "its overall accomplishments" and not on the basis of "isolated or unusual incidents."

Constructive criticism which has been leveled at the state's judicial system has not been pin-pointed at "isolated or unusual incidents." By and large, criticism has been pointed at conditions which exist throughout the state; backlogs of cases which have built up on Superior Court dockets, the slow operations of the courts in the face of an increasing number of cases which must be heard by them; the number of cases which for one reason or another practically die of old age before they are brought to trial.

These are not isolated or unusual incidents in the operation of the state's judicial system. Some or all of these conditions exist in a sufficient number of North Carolina's 100 counties to make them a matter of state-wide concern.

In spite of these factors, North Carolina's judicial system is not hopelessly bogged down. It is not on the verge of becoming inoperative. Nevertheless, it would be a drastic mistake for the state to close its eyes to these problems which face the state's judicial system.

Changes in the state's judicial system which have been made in the past few years have resulted in a marked improvement in many situations which existed in the state's Superior Courts. The creation of more judges and more judicial districts put the courts in a better position to handle their larger work load and reduce the number of old cases which jammed the dockets. But these improvements alone are not sufficient. Out of the study commission which is now reviewing the state's entire judicial system there will come a number of recommendations which can, if adopted, greatly improve the operation of North Carolina's judicial system.

What they will mean to the improvement of the judicial system will depend largely on the calibre of support they receive from the judges, the Bar Association and the citizens of North Carolina.

Another Newspaper In A Brand New Home

The Reflector is understandably pleased with the growth and progress which have been shown by newspapers generally in Eastern North Carolina in the past few years.

As the community newspapers expand, their services to their immediate areas are increased, and their contribution to the betterment of their respective communities and the state as a whole is enhanced.

Indicative of this growth and progress of Eastern Carolina newspapers is the number of new and larger newspaper plants which have been built in this area in recent years. The latest of these major expansion programs is that of the Henderson Daily Dispatch which this week began operations from its new building. Like many other newspapers of Eastern North Carolina, the Dispatch for years had operated in a plant it had outgrown.

From our own experience, we can appreciate the problems the Dispatch and its staff faced in their building program. We are aware of the headaches they found in moving tons of newspaper equipment from one building to another. We also know how delighted they must be to have their operations now located in new, spacious quarters that will permit further expansion for the newspaper and greater service to Henderson and surrounding area.

The Reflector offers its congratulations to the Henderson Dispatch and its publisher Henry A. Dennis on the completion of a major expansion of that newspaper's facilities.

Talk Building Under Ground

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here's a plan to solve the Social Security problem. It is for the United States to cede Bourbon County, Calif., to those over 65 years of age, for the establishment of the Senior Republic. There the elders can set up their own government. Because there would be no need for taxes, their Social Security payments would enable them to enjoy comfortable and contented lives.

Wait a minute! Don't try to tell me that Bourbon County is in Kentucky, not California! There are 58 counties in California and 57 of them are Bourbon counties. The other, Los Angeles County, is a vodka county. Don't tell me otherwise. I'm a native son.

The plan, on the surface, seems strange. But the more you think of it, the more practical it appears.

At present, persons subsisting on Social Security are doing only that. The little foxes of inflation have eaten up the grapes of their payments. Unless they have savings or generous and employed children they are barely getting by.

This plan calls for taking a warm, pleasant section of the United States and establishing it as an independent nation. It does not have to be a county. It does not have to be a state. It could be a good stretch of beach. It could be in Florida instead of California.

All persons on Social Security would be permitted to move there and become citizens. Home builders would undoubtedly be interested in erecting small, single-level homes for sale or rent.

Costs of governing this republic would be so low that it would not be necessary to levy taxes. It would be unnecessary to support a military force or an atomic weapons establishment because the United States would have to defend the area. There would be no need for Congressional investigations, government publicity men, agricultural county agents or other costly governmental trimmings. There would be no juvenile delinquency to cope with, no schools to support, no maternity hospitals to finance.

There might be need of a few hospitals and a few policemen to get old drinkers home after legal closing, there would also have to be a small highway crew, a few sanitation men and a president to say the wrong things at the wrong time. All that would cost little.

The republic could grant concessions for a hotel, casino and resort to take care of—and to take children who went there to see parents and to bask in the luxury of untaxedness. Royalty payments from these concessions would be large. The republic, like that of France, could impose an exit tax on all visitors. And like the United States, the United Nations, and other countries, it could bring out frequent issues of fancy stamps to sell to collectors.

In fact, with these revenues and careful management, the republic might be able to pay dividends to the citizens instead of collecting taxes from them.

EVERYTHING A BARGAIN Because there would be no taxes, everything would be cheap. Cigarettes would cost only a dime a pack. Pipe tobacco would be weighed on grocery scales at a few cents an ounce. Fine whiskies, brandies and rums would cost less than a dollar a bottle. Without taxes, there would be no need to bottle beer or wine. An older could take his pitcher to the pub and get it filled for a few cents.

Since we are spotting this country in a warm climate, costs of fuel, heat and clothing would be low. Because there would be no tariffs and sales taxes, prices of everything else would be down.

Tuna from Japan, flour from Canada, meat from Argentina, fruits from Mexico, cheeses from Italy and other products come in without hindrance, quotas or duty. If American manufacturers could not cut their prices to the incomes of the citizens, the older could get radios and television sets from Germany, autos from England and cameras from Japan at low, no-duty prices.

In this tax-free climate, a Social Security beneficiary could live a pretty good life on the maximum of $108.50 a month. And unless we find some way for older to live on that sum, the rest of us will soon have to pay much higher Social Security rates.

Strength For Today

TRULY CERTIFIED RELIGION The Chinese word for Presbyterian sounds so much like the Chinese word for moth ball that young missionaries, attempting to preach in Chinese before they have learned the language too well, often amuse their congregations by speaking of the moth ball church when they mean the Presbyterian Church.

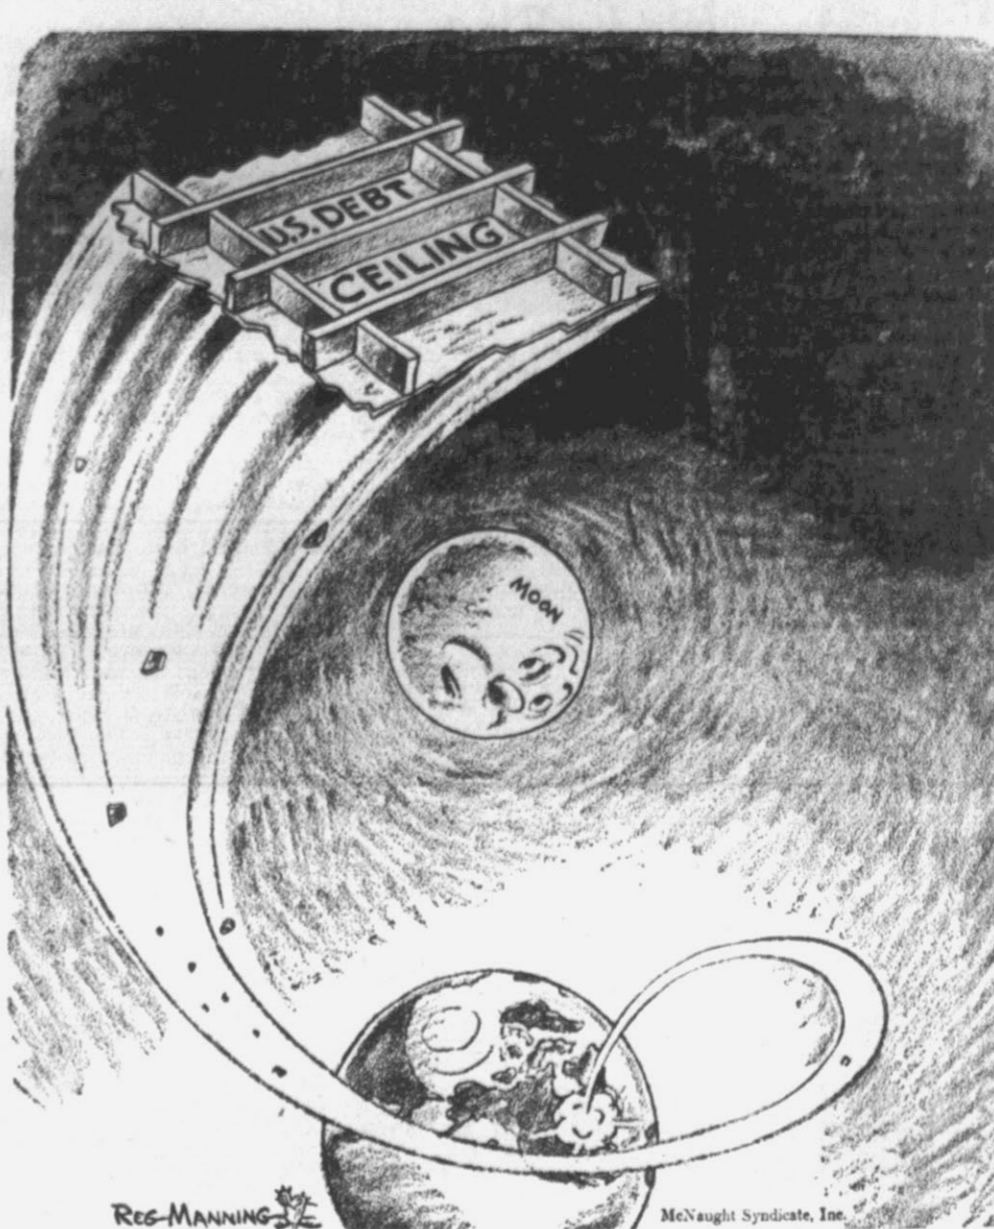

Moth balls are used to put in garments which we want to wrap up and put away for a while and forget about. A great many people's religion is a moth-ball religion. They get it out each Sunday, put it on, go to church in it, and then come home and, taking it off, fold it carefully and put it away in moth balls. This is not only true of Presbyterians (the present writer happens to be one) but of every other religious group known to man. We like to confine our religion to a definite area or associate it with a few pious customs or relegate it to a few sacred occasions.

As for life in general — well, there we intend to have a good time, indulge ourselves, hate our enemies, and seek to get ahead regardless of others. And all the while the religion we profess on Sunday is wrapped up in moth balls and put away carefully on a high shelf.

Dr. Samuel Johnson once remarked that a life which will bear the inspection of men and God is the only certificate of true religion.

Next Into Space

Tagged Along On A Raid

There we were, the two Constables and myself, riding through the dense undergrowth to what would be my first experience.

My first experience at seeing an actual whiskey still, how they operate and how they are destroyed.

Finally after about five minutes of riding down a narrow wooded path, one of the lawmen stopped the truck and we got out and began walking to the site of the still. On and on we went through briar patches, swampland and bushes that seemed to resent our very presence. Another few minutes that seemed like an hour and I got my first look at a "moonshine maker". It was nothing more than a few barrels, some meal, pipes and a large quantity of glass jars.

"Well there it is", one of the Constables. "We have been trying to catch that thing in operation for about two weeks."

"They must have figured out that we'd discovered them." As I looked at the still I found it hard to believe anything that mechanically simple could produce whiskey. Everything was there except the main thing, I was told. The "snake", the most expensive part of the still, was missing.

The officers looked everywhere for the coil-like piece of equipment, but could not find it. Before we left the site of the still however they found that the still operators used a car radiator to strain the white liquor instead of the conventional method.

Speaking about the whiskey produced by the still one officer stated, "Man that stuff could probably kill a mule."

After a fruitless search for the radiator used for the snake the officers used an axe to destroy the still. They broke the glass jars, cut holes in the side of the distillery and crashed the wooden barrels.

"Sure wish we could have found that snake", one said. "All they got to do is just get a couple more barrels and they are in business again."

The odor from the mash poured out on the ground was terrible. Everything saturated with the smell of malt.

I thought as I made my way back to the truck somebody's pocketbook would be substantially thinner as a result of our little excursion.

Right here at Christmas time too.

Overheard at the Santa Parade here last Friday . . . A little boy upon seeing a ring on Santa's finger as he passed by waving, tugged at his father's arm and asked, "Daddy what college does Santa go to?"

Quote . . .

"Thirty years ago a large segment of the population was engaged in frenzied stock market speculation. Today, millions of persons own stocks, but few use securities for gambling purposes."—Olympia, Wash., Daily Olympian.

"I've never found a 'bad' little boy nor a 'bad' little girl at Christmastime."—Santa Claus.

Name For Our 'Moon'

By ED CREAUGH

WASHINGTON (AP)— Russia has the Sputnik but we still don't have a name for our own satellite.

This is not the fault of the American people. A newspaper writer — this one, as a matter of fact — invited suggestions some weeks ago and the replies are still coming. Very ingenious, many of them. The public applied itself.

Trouble is not many of the suggestions are likely to appeal to those in authority. They tend to be a bit sarcastic, to point up the fact that this country was a couple of months behind a certain other great power in getting a baby moon operating.

C.J. McQuade, managing editor of the Beckley, W. Va. Raleigh Register, suggests the name "Fore."

"This golfing term is rightly or wrongly identified with the American government. Too, it sometimes denotes late comers who for one reason or another get in a hurry," he explained.

"Just name it 'The Laggard,'" proposes Telmer P. Vaughan of Charleston, S.C. — an idea that may not appeal to the planners of Navy Operation Vanguard, which was given the job of getting the moonlet and others like it off the ground.

"The name, naturally would be 'Disputnik,'" gibes Ed Ritzer of Nazareth, Pa.

"Why not call ours 'Me, Too?'" Inquires Ralph D. Braisted of San Francisco.

Jim Murphy of Santa Barbara, Calif., comes up with "Tortoise." And Dick Gibbons of the Battle Creek Mich. Enquirer and News suggests either "Mad Ball" or "BLTN," the latter meaning "better late than never."

Not all the suggestions are of a scoffing nature, to be sure. Dallas Brightwell of Frankfort, Ky., offers "Irenik" as a tribute to both President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon.

Mrs. J.H. Piper of Shelton, Wash., favors "Moon Scout," since her husband used to be a Boy Scout executive.

Adah Manning Young of Havre, Mont., will settle for nothing less than "Fastmolest."

And Winifred M. Flynn of Hammond, Ind., contributes "Red Herring II" as a reproach to Communists who have stolen U.S. scientific secrets.

Doubtless there is food for thought in all these proposed names. But none, somehow, taps you in the back of the head like good old "Sputnik" to say nothing of the later "Mutnik."

"Sputnik" is, of course, nothing more or less than the Russian word for "satellite." Maybe we'd be well-advised to follow the Russians' example, stop trying to be clever and just call a spade a spade—or, in this case, a satellite a satellite.

Maybe "satellite" sounds as crazy to the Russians as "Sputnik" does to us.

Opinions In Brief

"General business slowed down in October, but it was, for the most part, a healthy slowdown of a sort of 'Let's Stop, Look and Listen' kind of a slow-down, rather than one based on fear. Tight money had its bearing, of course, but it is thought that most of the expansion projects which were postponed in late 1957 will blossom forth fully in 1958."—Baltimore Daily Record.

"The hue and cry for better education, in which we join, is motivated by our determination not to surrender to nor be destroyed by Communist Russia. But if the steps we take are but further steps on the road to a strong centralized government in Washington, then we ourselves are surrendering to, or being destroyed by, the spirit of totalitarianism."—Petaluma, Calif., Argus Courier.

Other Editors Saying--- What It Will Mean

(Raleigh Times)

A North Carolina newspaper editor is plugging for a "Star of Hope" satellite to be launched by America before Christmas. His plan is to have an American satellite sheathed in a highly reflective material which would provide all the peoples of the world with a visual symbol of hope and peace.

His idea, of course, is a good one. The sight of an American satellite just now undoubtedly would cheer the free world. But, that cheer would come not from the fact that the satellite is sheathed in a bright, pretty material which reflects light, but because the satellite had come from America.

That brings us to the basic problem, the problem of keeping alive in the world a love for America and for what America has stood for during the years of her life. The peoples of the world in years past have not looked with grateful hearts on our flag just because it is a pretty combination of colors, even though it must be admitted that our flag is indeed pretty.

The people of the world have been grateful for our flag because of what they have seen in it. They have seen not merely something red, white and blue, but something which stood for national honesty, something which stood for national decency, something which meant an ability and a willingness to help the little people. They have seen in that flag an unwillingness to use our strength to further our own selfish interests, but a willingness to use that strength to help our friends.

Our problem during these troubled times to see to it that our country continues to walk in such a way as to make sure that our flag continues to mean all that to the world, and that any satellite we may send up would mean the same thing to the world.

We must be careful not to make our satellites and our flag the symbol of a nation which deliberately skates up to the brink of war. We must not allow our flag to become the symbol of a people who seem to think we can dictate to our friends simply because of our dollars.

The moment our flag ceases to mean to the world what it has meant all these years, that moment it will be useless for us to send up any satellites or anything else designed to impress people with how wonderful we are.

The Russian symbols are the hammer and the sickle. There is nothing at all wrong with the hammer or with the sickle, since both are tools of vast use to the world. The trouble with them together is what they stand for as Soviet symbols.

As long as our stars and stripes stand for what is right and just, we're all right, whether our satellites are sheathed in reflective material or whether they're just plain, ordinary satellites.

Nearly Insoluble Difficulties

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Numerous practical and possibly insoluble difficulties beset the Eisenhower-Dulles program for formation of a grand anti-Communist Alliance, or for the more limited task of transforming NATO into a more powerful bulwark against a Russian invasion of Western Europe.

These problems have arisen during preliminary conversations on the scope of the Western Allies' Paris Conference on December 16, which Vice President Nixon and Secretary Dulles plan to attend. In an effort to achieve agreement before the statesmen meet, there have been extensive talks at Washington, London and Paris.

As a result of these exchanges, it is probable that no detailed decisions will be reached at the top-level conference in the French Capital. It is expected that the heads of the 15 states will frame a broad program, and leave writing of the actual blueprints to experts in the fields of war and peace.

Their product will then be submitted to another meeting. And that final assembly of Presidents, Prime Ministers and members, with their advisers, will probably rank with such historic conferences as those that have fixed the fate of nations in the past — Vienna, Versailles, Wata and Potsdam. It may be the last call for the preservation of peace, even if only an uneasy one.

NATO TREATY LEAVES LETHAL LAG The NATO treaty itself presents a formidable obstacle to military co-operation.

Although it says that "An attack on one shall be construed as an attack on all," it provides further that each member shall decide whether it shall take up arms in accord with its own constitutional processes.

Thus, the U. S. Congress would have to debate and decide whether a Russian invasion of Turkey should be resisted by American troops, or, as Secretary Dulles promises, whether we should retaliate against Russia proper with A-H weapons.

It is obvious that such a delay, together with similar lags in other member countries, would be fatal in a war waged with intercontinental or intermediate-range missiles. There would be no time or troops left to retaliate.

CONGRESS MAY BE REFLUCTANT TO AGREE But will the members of NATO, and especially the U. S. Congress, agree to sacrifice their sovereign power so that a NATO commander — General Lauris Norstad — or even President Eisenhower can pronounce global war? So far, the answer has been in the negative at these preparatory discussions.

Secretary Dulles has rejected German proposals that there be prior consultations before any members takes an action which might result in a general war. Bonn had in mind the French-British-Israeli invasion of Egypt, the French embroilment in Algeria and the British differences in Cyprus.

But it is inconceivable that the United States would wait on a NATO meeting before resisting an attack on our soldiers at overseas posts in Canada, Mexico or South America. With our security so imperiled, we could not stand by pending the outcome of an international debate. And the same reasoning — or emotions — apply to the other 14 members.

Under such circumstances, it would be every man for himself.

CONTINENTAL NATIONS WANT ATOMIC PROTECTION The proposed division of military labor sets up another stumbling block. Under this system, which Washington favors, each member would build some specific weapon, thus avoiding duplication.

The U. S. and Britain, naturally, would concentrate on intercontinental and intermediate missiles, A-H tactical and strategic bombs and nuclear submarines. The smaller nations would manufacture the more conventional weapons. In fact, there is Anglo-American belief that that even France should not become an atomic power — an idea which Paris resents.

So does almost every continental nation. As their spokesmen point out, restricting them to small arms would leave them defenseless against Russia, if the U. S. and Britain failed to come to their aid on time. As yet, in view of the NATO treaty provisions, there can be no guarantee of an immediate response.

Finally, how can President Eisenhower — or any President — make such a handsome pledge? How can he bind future Chief Executives or Congresses to fulfill obligations which we may undertake at Paris? Congressmen are curious and skeptical about this point.

Atomic Weapons Posing Dilemma

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is an ABC on the American dilemma about sharing atomic weapons secrets with allies.
It began in 1946 when this country had a monopoly on atomic development and Congress hoped to keep it that way as long as possible.

formation on those weapons, such as size, weight and effect, but not if it is believed such information might reveal anything about design or manufacture.
3. He cannot turn over atomic weapons to the allies. For instance, hydrogen bombs would have to be kept at American bases. They must be in American custody.
Yet, it's quite possible French or British troops and airmen could be instructed in using them, provided American officers were present and therefore in possession of the weapons.

School Merger Plan Rejected

TROY, N.C. (AP) — Montgomery County citizens have voted down a proposal to merge the county's five high schools into one consolidated school. The proposal failed in a special election held yesterday.
Opposition to the measure was based on an increase in taxes to handle the consolidation and community pride in the existing five schools: Troy, Biscoe, Candor, Mount Gilead and Star.

Top Ten Stories Of Business For 1957—To Date

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—With 1957 entering the last lap of the business race today, the news picture of the year becomes clearer. Barring a late starting dark horse, here are the top 10 business news stories of the year—just one man's opinion.

1. Stock market didos. Not so much because of the significance of the market's many ups and downs as because they have dramatized—not always rightly—the other big stories of 1957. From a peak in July stock prices skidded to a low in October and have mostly sea-sawed since.
2. The long boom ends. The biggest climb in American history faltered early in the year, first leveling off and then by summer definitely taking a breather.
3. The cost of living. Inflation ruled the first nine months. In October there was a breather here too, but still higher prices were feared before 1957 fades.
4. The President's health. The market reacted quickly, first, down when he suffered a slight stroke; up, when he recovered quickly.
5. Sputnik. The effect of the Russian satellite on business, aside from the psychological, was the boost that increased defense spending later on may give the economy. The question—Will it help end any recession?
6. Tight money. Businessmen, especially the smaller ones, complained that expansion plans were hamstrung. Home builders were particularly critical of the Federal Reserve system's tight reins. The system has reversed itself and all 12 Federal Reserve banks are lending to member banks at 3 per cent instead of 5%.
7. Unemployment. Rising a little in the fall, it ends the year still increasing and with more jobless expected before spring.
8. Profits. Although still overall a big higher than in 1956, corporate profits have been slowing down in their upward pace.
9. Construction. The record business expansion boom has bolstered the economy all year, but industry was pulling in its horns toward the end and planning less for next year. Home building, on the other hand, has trailed this year but shows signs of picking up in 1958.
10. Metals. Prices of steel and aluminum rose. Prices of most other metals fell sharply. Output of steel slipped well below capacity, and the nonferrous metals also felt the drop in demand. Foreign competition was a big news story during the year and growing as 1957 draws to an end.

ELIZABETH SEIFERT'S NEW NOVEL The Doctor's Husband

CHAPTER 14

A day or two later, Tracy came into the apartment late in the afternoon and found Carol Rainey seated on the living room couch, having a cocktail with Michael. Tracy had not been expected—Michael must have forgotten that this was her free day. She had been downtown, and for once she was not in uniform against Carol's smart elegance.

This afternoon Tracy's slim coat and small hat were becoming, her gloves were snowy, her black pumps trim.

She was surprised, but not half so surprised as those other two. For the first time in these past months, Tracy had the advantage, and she knew it! For a minute she stood silent, a small, brave figure. Then she smiled a little and advanced, her hand outstretched.

"I'm very sorry I was not at home when you called, Mrs. Rainey. Has Michael made you comfortable?"

Carol's head went up, a glitter sparkled in her eyes, and her lips drew thin. She anticipated the row which Tracy had decided not to permit. For if there was no row, no accusation, nor bitter charge, Carol would have no ammunition with which to fight.

While Tracy had all the defense she needed. This was her home; in it she could be, and was, the gracious hostess. She turned on lamps, and asked about ice. She inquired about Carol's children.

Carol was unable to answer or smile in return. In fact, Carol decided that she'd had it. She set her glass down and stood up again. "I'll have to leave, Mike."

She waited a second for his protest or offer to go with her. He gave her neither. He handed her the fur scarf which was draped over a chair, and walked with her to the door.

Tracy did not watch them. When he returned to the living room she still stood gazing down at the floor.

"Tracy," said Michael's deep voice, "I owe you an apology." She was taken by surprise, entirely.

"Yes," he rubbed his hands together. "Carol should not have come here, and I should not have let her stay. Perhaps you think I brought her here. I did not. But just the same—I apologize, Tracy. You behaved very well. I—well—would you want to go somewhere for dinner?"

He was telling her that he did not mean to follow Carol. But—"Oh, Michael," cried Tracy, "I promised Rosalie and a couple of the girls that I'd eat with them tonight. I am sorry. I could call them?"

"No, don't do that. I just thought—But—another time, maybe?"

He walked away from her, toward his room.

She gathered up the glasses, washed them, set them away. She went to her room and tidied herself. While she was combing her hair, she heard Michael leave.

Would he seek Carol? Perhaps. Perhaps not.

Rosalie's little party was fun, and Tracy did her best to enjoy it. She knew that Michael's gesture had been only a part of his apology. And yet—

The four young women at dinner in the coffee shop of one of the hotels near the hospital center, then they went to the Nurses' home and sat around, talking shop.

All at once, remembering that afternoon, tears poured down Tracy's face, her slender shoulders shook; she put her hands to her cheeks and sobbed aloud, completely out of control.

The two nurses and the doctor wasted ten seconds in shocked surprise. Then, of course, they knew what to do with a case of hysterics.

And one thing they did not do was ask why.

Miss McDonald had her car, and when Tracy quieted, she and Rosalie took the girl home. Michael admitted them.

"She's working too hard," Rosalie told him sternly. "I never heard it claimed, did you, that the only good doctor was a dead one?"

"No, I never did," said Michael gravely. "Will you girls put her to bed? I'll ask the Director to talk to her."

At Michael's suggestion, Tracy went to Florida for three days at Christmas. Her father's illness made this a reasonable thing for her to do, and of course the holiday was easier that way. In her parent's home, seeing her mother's devotion, and her father's dependence upon his wife, Tracy came back to the city determined on effecting a change in her life with Michael.

She would talk to him, soberly, without emotion, and if they could come to no decision of themselves, she would ask him to go with her to a marriage counselor.

The opportunity, and the occasion, came almost at once. Before Tracy could do more than get ready to plan her procedure.

On her return from Florida, she was told by the Pediatric Resident that she was wanted in Feddersen's office over at Barnes.

Tracy looked up, almost angrily. "What does the big shot want with me?" she demanded.

"Well, now, it so happens he did not say."

Tracy grinned and trotted off. Feddersen was one of the Group's Nobel winners, and so very good that the interns no longer called him an Arrowsmith. He was a specialist in cancer, and—

What could such a man want from a first-year resident in pediatrics?

She found out, of course, and then could not, really, believe what she was told.

"Take the day off, Dr. Vaughan," said Dr. Feddersen kindly. "Don't try to make a decision immediately. Just take the day—"

"But—"

The big man smiled at the little redheaded girl. "I've arranged for you to have the day."

She laughed, and nodded. "Thank you, Dr. Feddersen. I'm just a little overwhelmed."

"I know. Well, you go home and think about it, and let me know tomorrow what you've decided. I realize that it isn't a simple thing

Special Venire To Try Marines Television Log

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—A special 50-man venire reports to New Hanover Superior Court today for selection of a jury to try 10 Marines charged in the death of Charles E. Sullivan, 23, during a roadside brawl.

Judge Henry L. Stevens ordered the venire after Judge Chester R. Morris of Coimlock asked to be excused from hearing the case. One of the defendants is from Coimlock.

Sullivan died Sept. 20 of a bullet wound from his own 22 caliber rifle. The death followed a brawl in a parking lot beside a roadhouse where Sullivan became involved in a dispute with a Marine he accused of "bumping into" Mrs. Sullivan.

Sheriff M. B. Register said Sullivan apparently fired the rifle in the air to warn the Marines away. The sheriff said the rifle fired a second time during the fight and the bullet struck Sullivan.

The Marines were stationed at Camp Lejeune.

The New Hanover grand jury first indicted eight men in the death, then later indicted two more. Defendants include:

Toxicological Lab Is Planned

RALEIGH (AP)—A toxicological laboratory will be established at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine to aid in investigating deaths suspected of being caused by poison.

This was decided yesterday at a meeting of the state's Post Mortem Medico-Legal Examiners Commission. Dr. J. W. R. Norton, state health officer and committee chairman, said the laboratory will make use of the facilities and personnel at the medical school.

It will be used to make tests for poison in cases where poison is suspected as a possible cause of death. Dr. Norton pointed out that the laboratory will be available to counties which have come under the Medical Examiner System created by the 1955 Legislature and administered by the committee.

The Medical Examiner System investigates deaths resulting from other than natural cause. Counties have the option of coming under this system or of retaining the old system under which deaths of a suspicious nature are probed by coroners.

Union, Walkes and Guilford are the only counties which come under the 1955 law, but Dr. Norton said he is hopeful more will come in shortly.

Stove Sets Fire Fatal To Eight

MARIANNA, Ark. (AP)—Fire started by an overheated wood stove swept through a farmhouse near here and killed a pregnant mother and her seven children. Sheriff Courtney Langston Jr. identified the dead woman as Mrs. J. L. Bowers, 37, wife of a Negro tenant on a farm at nearby Westor. The children ranged in age from 9 to 1.

The sheriff said Bowers had gone out hunting a few hours before the fire broke out.

The bodies were all in a bedroom. Langston said apparently the mother awakened and ran to the children's room in an attempt to rescue them, but was overcome and died with them.

Columnist Sees More Prosperity

CAMDEN, N.J. — Business will get worse before it gets better but it will get so much better that the last half of 1958 will be a period of unprecedented prosperity, Elmer Roesener, business columnist, told the Camden County Chamber of Commerce this week.

The economy is now in a moderate decline, he said, pointing out that inventories have increased, factory employment is down, plant and equipment programs are being stretched out, corporation earnings are lessening and exports are shrinking.

"Consumer attitudes, let us be thankful, are still good," he said but he warned that layoffs would weaken them. Even employed people get nervous and tend to reduce buying when their neighbors are laid off, he reminded Camden businessmen.

A disturbing factor, he said, is that some employers believe labor is on the run. They think that the rise in unemployment and Congressional exposures have weakened labor's attitudes. On the contrary, he said any psychologist will assert that these factors will make labor more aggressive. He advised his listeners to have realistic attitudes about labor's strength and not to enter negotiations feeling that employers have an upper hand. Further declines in the economy, Roesener warned, will require demands for a shorter work week.

By mid-1958, he said, the labor situation will be straightened out, the highway program will move into high speed—14 per cent above this year—the housing boom will be reactivated and construction of jet planes will increase employment.

Most important of all, he said, will be the government's missile program.

"Congress, frightened by Sputnik, has thrown off the sackcloth of economy," he said, and predicted that it would give the Armed Forces all the money they show they need.

He also predicted that increased spending would be financed largely by borrowing, and to make this economical, the government would act to reduce the interest rate. This cheaper money would, in turn, help to boom housing, other construction, commitments for plans and equipment and for business expansion in the latter half of the year.

"The cosmic joke of the decade," Roesener said, "may be that Sputnik and Laika, taking off into outer space, created a suction that will draw American prosperity to its highest altitude yet."

Belvoir-Falkland NCEA Group Hears Dr. Long

The second NCEA meeting for the Belvoir-Falkland schools was held on November 27. Twenty-six teachers of the district assembled in the Home Economics Building to hear Dr. J. K. Long, head of the Graduate School of East Carolina College, discuss "Guidance in the Schools Today."

In relating a number of pertinent factors on this topic, Dr. Long emphasized the role of the teacher in guidance, the need for counseling in every school, the present shortage of qualified guidance counselors in North Carolina schools, and the lasting influence of counseling on young people of high school age.

Refreshments of cranberry crunch and coffee were prepared and served under the direction of Mrs. Hazel Tripp, Home Economics teacher for the district.

Pass Three Bills On Segregation

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Legislature went home yesterday after spending 21 days in special session passing three segregation bills.

Gov. Price Daniel, a Democrat, called the special session.

The first two bills, asked by the governor and passed last week, would close public schools when there are mob or riot threats, and would give the state attorney general $50,000 to help fight local integration suits in federal courts.

The final bill would allow county judges to require registration of organizations involved in school integration troubles. Backers of the bill openly said it was aimed at hamstringing the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People. It would require such groups to list members, officers and affiliations.

The 13-12 Senate vote on the registration bill yesterday was typical of the close legislative debates on segregation. Possible delaying tactics by Sen. Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio, a Democrat who has filibustered segregation bills three times in the various sessions, were beaten down by a 14-10 vote.

The school closing bill, probably the most controversial, allows the governor to close any school where it appears troops will be used to enforce racial integration orders or where there is the threat of mobs or riots.

Fund-Raising Firm Employed

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—The Western North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church has employed a fund-raising firm to guide a 3 million dollar education campaign.

The conference's Commission on Higher Education, headed by the Rev. Dr. Wilson O. Weidon of First Methodist Church here, announced the action yesterday. The firm is Ward, Dreshman and Reinhardt, Inc.

The money will go to Brevard College, Greensboro College, High School and the Wesley Foundation programs at state-supported colleges.

First Farmer In Pitt To Certify A Litter Of Pigs

W. C. HOLLOWELL
... certified sow with second litter of pigs.

W. C. Hollowell of Bethel Rt. 1 has become the first purebred swine grower in Pitt County to certify a litter of pigs under Production Registry.

Thus the Pitt farmer is taking advantage of a program which is currently being emphasized by farm agents.

"This meat hog certification program will put more money in the farmer's pocket, thought greater sow productivity, increased rate of gain, and an improved carcass quality," says Assistant County Agent C. J. Goodman.

"This program will cause more pork to be consumed and create a market for more pigs."

Goodman says that a sow must farrow at least eight pigs to qualify for Production Registry.

To nominate the litter the hog raiser completes an official blank and sends it to the National Breed Association within three days after farrowing. At least eight pigs must be weaned from this litter.

"The pigs are weighed at 56 days and the weights reported to the National Breed Association," Goodman continued. "A gilt litter must weigh at least 275 pounds and a sow over 15 months of age must weigh at least 320 pounds or more at 56 days of age. At 180 days two pigs from the litter are slaughtered and they must weigh at least 200 pounds each.

"The carcass measurements and other information are sent to the national association where joint tracings are measured and pigs are certified if all requirements are met."

In Hollowell's case the pigs passed the minimum requirements with flying colors.

Twelve pigs were farrowed from the litter and 12 pigs were weaned. The weight of the litter at 56 days was 482.6 pounds.

Statistics on the two pigs slaughtered after 180 days are as follows:

Hog No. 1: Weight at slaughter—230 pounds, adjusted weight for 180 days—244 pounds; fat back—1.5 inches; length—31.5 inches; loin area—5.35 sq. inches.

Hog No. 2: Weight at slaughter—206 pounds, adjusted weight for 180 days—209 pounds; fat back—1.4 inches; length—30.3 inches; loin area—5.78 sq. inches.

Hollowell is a pure bred Hampshire grower.

"Certifying one sow is not so much but it is a start," Hollowell said. He plans to continue the program until all his sows are certified. The certification program gives a "measuring stick to go by," he believes.

The 6.78 square inches of loin area for pig number two is considered extremely good. Goodman said Jack Kelly, in charge of Animal Husbandry Extension at N. C. State College, believes it may be a record.

In the British protectorate island of Zanzibar off the African East Coast, the only profitable industries are processing of clove and coconut oil, and manufacture of soap.

Applications To AF Academy Being Accepted

Applications are now being accepted for nomination to the cadet class that will enter the United States Air Force Academy in June, 1958. S-Sgt. Norman G. Dean of the Air Force Recruiting Office at Greenville, N.C., said today.

Young men who desire to compete for an appointment to this class should apply for a nomination as soon as possible. Since nominating quotas are limited and time is required to process the nominations and schedule testing, the prospective candidate should not delay.

To meet the eligibility requirements, applicants must be at least 17 and must not have passed their 22nd birthday by July 1, 1958 be male citizens of the United States; morally and physically fit; between 5 feet 4 inches and 6 feet 4 inches in height, and never have been married.

Each individual who meets the eligibility requirements may apply for a nomination by writing to a U. S. Senator from his state or to the U. S. Representative from his Congressional district. In such a letter the applicant should state briefly his qualifications, place of residence, educational background, and reason for wanting to enter the Academy.

For A Convalescing Man, President Appears Leading A Pretty Busy Life

By MARVIN ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON (AP) — For a convalescing man ordered to take it easy, President Eisenhower appears to be leading a pretty busy life nine days after his mild stroke.

But his recuperation progress "continues to be excellent," and so long as that is the case there will be no more medical bulletins on his condition, White House press secretary James C. Hagerly announced.

From the time Eisenhower was stricken Nov. 25 with a blockage of a branch artery to the brain there had been at least one bulletin daily and sometimes two or three.

In response to a question, Hagerly said the discontinuance does not mean the President is fully recovered. It simply means, he said, that there is no point in going ahead with issuance of bulletins saying without variation that Eisenhower still is getting along fine.

Yesterday, eight days after the onset of his illness, Eisenhower put in 7½ hours at the White House. It was the kind of day that varied in no outward way from many others he had spent there before this latest illness.

This is the way it went: Eisenhower turned up in his office at 8:15 a.m. He worked there for about 45 minutes, got in during that period a brief conference with Adlai Stevenson, then went to the nearby Cabinet room to preside at a briefing of congressional leaders of both parties of national defense and foreign policy problems.

He stayed on at that conference for 90 minutes, went back to his office for about an hour, then returned to the meeting. He was at the session a total of 2½ hours.

Then he knocked off 90 minutes for lunch and the midday rest his doctors prescribed after his 1955 heart attack. He was back in his office by 2:30 p.m. and he didn't call it a day until about 5:15 p.m.

During the afternoon he conferred with his new scientific adviser, Dr. James F. Killian Jr., his personal secretary, conferred for 45 minutes with Vice President Nixon, then worked for a while on miscellaneous matters.

All that was against the background of the announcement by the President's doctors Nov. 26 that his illness would require several weeks of rest and "substantially decreased activity."

Hagerly replied "No" when asked whether the doctors had changed their minds about that prescription and may have indicated they now feel Eisenhower's illness was not as serious as they first thought.

The press secretary said in reply to another question that the doctors are aware of the kind of activity Eisenhower plans each day. They approved his schedule, he said.

Asked then how the President looked and felt when he finally called it quits late yesterday, Hagerly said: "He looked perfectly natural and was quite chipper."

Americans Were Pretty Much In Dark On Project

By JOHN A. BARBOUR
NEW YORK (AP) — Just a few months before Sputnik I was launched, half the American people hadn't heard of the U.S. earth satellite program, the American Rocket Society heard today.

Social psychologist Donald N. Michael reported that a pre-Sputnik cross-section survey of Baltimore citizens indicated that five sixths of them didn't understand what satellite means.

Even after the Sputniks were circling the globe, Michael said, 10 per cent of the freshmen and sophomores at one university said they didn't know the Russians had launched a satellite.

Michael made the statements in a talk prepared for a rocket society panel on the problem of getting public support for future rocket and space programs.

Space travel projects will be competing for public monies, he said, with such things as social security, city projects, highway building and airport construction.

In an aging population, he suggested, there was reason to doubt the inspirational value of space travel against that of old-age insurance. Yet, he said, public money will have to support both.

"My strong suspicion," he said, is that urban and suburban dwellers of the near future will be much less interested in putting a dozen men on the moon or Mars than they will be in voting a man into the Senate who will vote funds for their pressing needs."

The future, he said, should relate the need and the benefits of space travel to the average man's way of life.

Michael is senior research associate for Dunlap and Associates, Inc., a Stamford, Conn., statistical and survey firm.

Each Member of Congress may nominate ten candidates. All the Congressional nominees in each state will then compete for the vacancies allotted to that state. Each of the 48 states is allocated a number of vacancies proportional to its total representation in the Congress.

Members of the Regular or Reserve components of the Army and Air Force, including the National Guard, who meet the eligibility criteria, may apply for vacancies allotted to the services. They should contact their organization commanders who will require them to complete DD Form 786 and forward it to the Air Force Academy. Information pertaining to the Academy application is contained in Air Force Regulation 53-10 and Army Regulation 350-58.

Vacancies are also allotted to the following: sons of deceased veterans, and sons of members of Regular components of all branches of the Armed Services. Sons of Medal of Honor winners, if otherwise qualified, are admitted without regard to total vacancies. Requests for nomination in those categories should be sent to the Director of Admissions, U. S. Air Force Academy, Denver 8, Colorado.

A candidate improves his chances by entering all the categories in which he is eligible. Since selections are made on an order of merit basis from each category, it is not unlikely for a candidate entered in more than one category to rank high enough for selection in one, yet be too low for selection in another.

Factors considered in the competitions include the results of a series of aptitude and achievement tests, combined with a survey of preparatory or high school records, and personal evaluations to determine academic achievement and leadership potential.

All candidates must pass the Air Force Medical Examination for Flying Training to be considered for admission to the Academy.

Detailed information concerning admission procedures may be obtained upon request from the Director of Admissions, U. S. Air Force Academy, Denver 8, Colorado.

All nominations must be in the hands of the Air Force by January 31, 1958. The Air Force will choose 448 cadets to enter the Academy at its temporary site on Lowry Air Force Base in Denver on June 27, 1958. The Academy is scheduled to move to the permanent site near Colorado Springs during the latter part of 1958.

Eight-Year-Old Saved Everyone

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Ernest Pool, an 8-year-old Negro boy, was in the kitchen of his ramshackle home yesterday washing dishes and minding eight of his brothers, sisters and cousins. Ernest's mother and aunt were about half a mile away picking cotton.

Suddenly the tin pipe extending from the wood stove to the roof clattered to the floor and the stove overturned. Papers that were scattered on the floor burst into flames.

Twenty minutes later the shack was in ruins. Beyond the ruins stood nine Negro children, ages 13 months to 8 years. They were unharmed.

Ernest had saved everybody. "I just grabbed them and threw them out," he said.

Mrs. Dorothy Brown, mother of five of the children, and Mrs. Daisy Lee Jones, mother of three, were unaware of what happened until they returned to the ruins of the house.

Obscenity Cases Set For Dec. 17

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Superior Court arguments on an obscenity charge against Confidential and Whisper magazines has been set for Dec. 17.

Conspiracy to commit criminal libel charges against the two magazines were dismissed Oct. 12, after a seven-week trial ended in a deadlocked jury. So were all charges against individuals.

Grifton Girls Notch 6th Win

GRIFTON—Grifton's high-riding girls basketball team claimed their sixth straight victory of the season last night, defeating Contentnea here, 52-31, while the hosting boys took a close 37-36 licking.

Pretty Lou Rae Mewborn paced the winning girls with a 19-point performance. She was aided by Price, who got 16, and Nelson who notched 13.

The Grifton girls opened up with a wild 16-5 first quarter that snowed the visitors under and carried on their prolific scoring to finally end up with a winning margin of 21 points.

The Grifton jayvees were defeated in a preliminary game, 29-34, as Contentnea took two out of the three tilts played.

Contentnea's victory in the boys' game came at the end of a four-minute overtime and made it Grifton's fifth loss in six games.

Hord Honored

NEW YORK (AP)—Duke guard Roy Hord has been named to the "Today" television program's all-star football team.

The team, selected by sportscasters across the nation, was announced yesterday. It included:

Ends Jim Gibbons of Iowa and Jimmy Phillips of Auburn; tackles Lou Michaels of Kentucky and Alex Karras of Iowa; guard Bill Firsher of Oklahoma; center Dan Currie of Michigan State; and backs Lee Grosscup of Utah, Cledon Thomas of Oklahoma, Walt Kowalczyk of Michigan State and John Crow of Texas A & M.

Charlotte Bows To Philly Team

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Charlotte Clippers bowed to the Philadelphia Ramblers, 6-5, here last night at 4:04 in a "sudden death" overtime of their Eastern Hockey League match. Philadelphia's Ross Turnbull scored the winning goal.

EHL rules concerning a tie game call for an overtime period with the victory going to the first team to score.

Charlotte, however, maintained the first place in league standings by one point over the Ramblers. Defenseman John Muckler scored for Charlotte with only 13 seconds left in the regular game and sent the contest into the overtime period. Jerry Sullivan paced the Clippers with two goals.

FORNES GETS 28—Jimmy Fornes, sharp-shooting Chicod guard (left), pulled down 28 points in last night's 63-49 victory. The pint-sized Chicod ballplayer has been one of the highest-scoring performers in the Pitt County Conference for the past two seasons.

Devils, Chicod Split 2 Games

CHICOD—Farmville invaded Chicod last night for the first game of the case season for the Red Devils and came out with a win and a loss.

The Farmville girls recorded a 33-29 victory over the hosts, but the sharp-shooting Chicod boys rolled up a 63-49 victory over the Devils.

Baker, Beamon and Little did all the scoring for the winning Farmville girls. Janice Mills, Hudson, and Wallace did all of the scoring for Chicod.

In the boys' tilt, high-scoring Jimmy Fornes whipped in 28 points to pace his club to a 63-49 win over Farmville. Smith added 21.

Chicod's next ball game will be played Friday night at Bethel.

Oil Heater Sets Off Fire Which Kills 6 Persons

MARTINS FERRY, Ohio (AP)—An oil heater which was accidentally knocked over turned the Porter Glass Co. here into an inferno which killed six persons.

Firemen reported finding the sixth victim's body early today. Five bodies were recovered previously.

All the dead were employees at the small glass-blowing company. Five were women.

Those missing and believed dead were Miss Francis Good, Bellaire, Ohio; Mrs. Mary Jane Byard, Martins Ferry; Miss Goldie Gibbons, Yorkville, Ohio; Mrs. Rose McMahon, Martins Ferry; Hazel Stocia, Martins Ferry; and Matthew McElroy, Martins Ferry.

The five women are believed to have been trapped on the second floor of the two-floor, 75-year-old frame structure.

Grimesland, Foe Divide Ballgames

GRIMESLAND—Chocowinity and Grimesland split a pair of ball games here last night, with the visiting boys taking a 43-36 victory and the host girls notching a lopsided 64-30 triumph.

The winning Grimesland girls made it their sixth victory of the season against only one loss thus far. For the boys, it was their sixth loss against only one victory.

Pacing the winning girl were Singleton (27), and Martin (19). Howell also added 13 as a substitute.

Allgood of Chocowinity dumped in 23 points to pace the visiting boys to their 43-36 win.

Next game on tap for the Grimesland teams will be Friday night at Belvoir-Falkland.

When North Carolina Coach Frank McGuire trots out this year's edition of the nation's No. 1 basketball team last year, Saturday against Clemson, a lot of folks—including many players—will have to look up.

McGuire's probable starting line up averages 6-5, the average considerably shortened by the Tar Heels' good little man, Tommy Kearns, a 5-11 senior.

Other probable starters are seniors Pete Brennan (6-6) and Bob Cunningham (6-4) and sophomores Lee Shaffer (6-7) and Dick Kepley (6-9).

"My plan is to leave Kearns and Cunningham in the back court and use Brennan, Shaffer and Kepley up front," McGuire said.

Two of his top reserves are Danny Lotz (6-7) and Ray Stanley (6-4).

The pressure will be on the Tar Heels, who won 32 games without a loss last year, paced by All-America Lennie Rosenbluth. Rosenbluth was the only departing starter from the championship team, but during a practice scrimmage Nov. 7 veteran Joe Quigg (6-9) suffered a broken leg.

"Losing Rosenbluth was a tremendous blow," said McGuire, "but we were prepared for that. If we failed just because we lost Rosenbluth, it would be my fault for not having a man to move into his place."

"But when you lose a player like Quigg at the last minute, when you have counted on him all along... well, that's a different matter."

North Carolina will be the last of the eight Atlantic Coast Conference teams to open the season. Duke, North Carolina State, South Carolina, Virginia and Wake Forest started Monday night. All were idle last night, but Clemson and Maryland open tonight; Clemson entertaining Georgia and Maryland host to George Washington.

McGuire, who had a 14-0 ACC record last year, confided: "It will take a 9-5 record to win the regular season honors in our conference."

"Everybody's improved except maybe Wake Forest, but don't ever underestimate (Bones) McKinney (starting as Wake's head coach this year)."

McGuire is eager to see action. "Never have I so anxiously awaited the beginning of a season. I feel we are just like a boxer who has been training hard for some time—anybody."

He thinks the Tar Heels might have it again this year. "We have three great seniors back to steady the sophomores, and they should be able to do it. You must remember that we had a lot of luck last year, and that you can't expect to continue unbeaten. But we're just liable to have a heck of a club again by the time the December feeling-out period is over and January arrives."

But he hedges. "If you think Sputnik has been flying high, we have too. Sputnik is going to come down and so are we."

"And it will be a good thing for us."

Celtics Appear Headed To Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—The Boston Celtics have completed one-fourth of their National Basketball Assn. schedule and with a 16-2 record appear headed for a rout of their competitor in the circuit's Eastern Division.

Most of the time, the Celtics get the bulk of their scoring from either Bob Cousy, Bill Sharman or Bill Russell. Sometimes it's someone else.

Last night, the "someone else" was Frank Ramsey, who dropped in 35 points as Boston rode over the Detroit Pistons 124-113. Sharman pitched in with 32 as the winners moved comfortably ahead in the third quarter. George Yardley, the league's top scorer had 34 for Detroit.

The triumph enabled Boston to increase its lead to seven games over the Syracuse Nationals, who moved into that spot with a 119-96 victory over Philadelphia Warriors in the first game of a Madison Square Garden doubleheader. The New York Knickerbockers beat Cincinnati's Royals 110-104 in the second game.

The St. Louis Hawks also continued to roll along with a 115-108 triumph over the hapless Minneapolis Lakers.

Scientist Looks At Life After Death And Sees No Physical Evidence Of Possibility

EDITOR'S NOTE—Is there experimental evidence of life beyond the grave? Dr. Selman Waksman, Nobel Prize winner for his part in discovering streptomycin and director of Rutgers University's Institute of Microbiology, gives his views in the second of three articles in a series on this abiding human mystery.

By DR. SELMAN A. WAKSMAN

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — Before the question—Can life exist after death?—can be answered, either in the affirmative or negative, we must first make certain that we understand what we are discussing. Otherwise, this question could be answered only on the basis of speculative assumptions and generalities that are not subject to any kind of experimental proof.

The answer to this question must also steer clear of religious beliefs and prejudices that are largely in the domain of the theologians. A scientist is conditioned by training and experience to answer questions only on the basis of facts established through careful observation and subject to actual measurements, and, therefore, both consciously and unconsciously will apply the same type of criteria to the present question.

What is life? Life is usually defined as a condition or state that characterizes animate or living matter (plants and animals). Living bodies have certain definite properties that differentiate them sharply from nonliving materials. These properties can be summarized briefly as follows:

1. Growth. This is a gradual increase of all the components of living systems.
2. Metabolism. This is the capacity of living systems to assimilate food substances.
3. Respiration. This includes both respiration in the presence of oxygen (aerobic state), and the ability of certain cells to live in the absence of oxygen (anaerobic state).
4. Reproduction. This characteristic of life ranges from the simple fission of bacteria and budding of yeasts to the complex sexual reproduction of both lower and higher forms of life.
5. Adaptation to the environment. This may be a result of spontaneous mutation, of interbreeding between strains and varieties, or still other factors.
6. Intelligence. Even single-cell organisms often show a rudimentary type of intelligence (such as reactions to heat and other destructive agents), but man has acquired mental processes that enable him to control or at least understand, actually or potentially, virtually all of the activities in the environment with which he is surrounded.

Thus, simple and complex forms of life are characterized by various properties that enable anyone to recognize their living state.

What is death? A living organism, be it small or large, simple or complex, is said to die when its living functions come to an end. The body ceases to respire, cannot reproduce its own kind, cannot adapt itself to its environment, and all its other functions cease completely.

As soon as an organism dies, unless it is preserved by special chemicals or sterilized by dehydration, heat or other means, it is immediately attacked by low forms of life (bacteria, molds and worms), which destroy its cells and tissues and transform the cells and tissues of the dead body into those constituent elements (inorganic and gaseous forms) from which the body was originally built up.

What characterizes living processes? Living processes are primarily characterized by the fact that they can be measured. Even such infinitesimal forms of life as the viruses, which almost border on the inanimate, could be studied long before they were seen even with the highest possible microscopic magnifications. Their multiplication could be determined, their ability to cause specific diseases could be established, and means were developed for combating them.

The somewhat larger forms of life, the unicellular bacteria, have been studied in an even greater variety of ways. Their nutrition, multiplication, adaptation to environment, and many other activities were gradually elucidated. They could now be combatted, if injurious, or encouraged, if they were found to make a valuable contribution to human welfare.

The living reactions of still higher forms of life can be measured in a multiplicity of different ways. Even the inexperienced observer can thus tell whether a plant or animal is alive or dead.

What about life after death? Without considering religious and supernatural beliefs, and without considering processes that up to now have never been measured or evaluated, we must conclude that life, at least in a material sense, ceases with death. There is, therefore, only one conclusion that one can reach if one accepts the ancient dictum: "Omnia vivum ex vivo," or "All that is living must have originated from living matter." Just as no life can arise spontaneously, so we can hardly assume that life can exist without the commonly recognized reactions characteristic of living systems.

The material cessation of vital activity was so evident, even to the ancients, that believers in life after death have almost universally assumed that "life" continues to exist indefinitely in a different guise.

This leaves us with the possibility that "life" after death, in the immaterial form of a soul or spirit, might provide immortality after the cessation of life. All attempts, however, to prove the existence of such spiritual entities by the methods of science have been universally unsuccessful. The scientist is no better equipped than the philosopher or the theologian to answer the problem of an unverifiable form of life, and would be unable to accept any unprovable speculations beyond those necessary for the conduct of experiments and the comprehension of the universe. There seems to be no necessary scientific reason to believe in life after death. Man's natural desire for immortality is not a rational basis for scientific belief, although it remains a compelling factor in religious belief. Therefore, we must conclude from our stated definitions of life and death, that any belief in life after death is in disagreement with all the accumulated wisdom and knowledge of modern biology. Fourth Salk 'Booster' Shot Is Recommended

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A fourth "booster" shot of Salk polio vaccine next spring for all persons who have previously received the usual three shots was recommended today by a University of Pennsylvania doctor.

At the same time, Dr. Lewis L. Coriell urged all persons under 40 who haven't done so to complete the usual three shot course of "properly spaced" injections. Such a system, he said, offers the possibility for "virtual elimination of paralytic poliomyelitis as a significant disease in 1958."

Coriell, associate professor of immunology in pediatrics at the university's School of Medicine, said in a report prepared for the 11th clinical session of the American Medical Assn. "Three years of increasingly widespread use of . . . (Salk) polio vaccine have coincided with unprecedented reduction in reported cases of poliomyelitis. A particularly low incidence and low paralytic rate are the outstanding features of the 1957 season."

He said estimates suggest that protection against paralytic disease approached 90 per cent in patients who received "three or more" properly spaced injections of vaccine, and 75 to 80 per cent in those receiving less than three shots.

The doctor declared that in view of downward polio trends since the advent of the vaccine "it seems logical to predict that poliomyelitis will be reduced even more drastically in 1958 provided the vaccination program is continued, including a full course of three properly spaced injections for all persons under 40 years of age and a fourth booster dose in the spring of 1958 to all who have previously received three or more injections."

Baptists Cancel Planned Session

RALEIGH (AP)—A group of prominent North Carolina Baptists won't meet in Greensboro tomorrow as scheduled apparently because there might be some misunderstanding as to the purpose of the session.

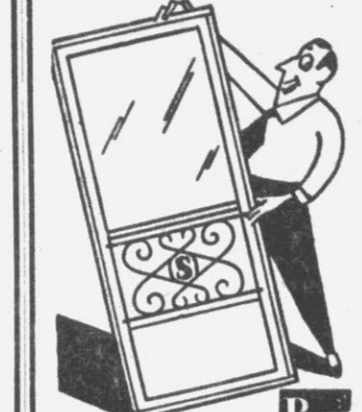

Dr. M. A. Huggins, general secretary of the Baptist State Convention, announced here yesterday the meeting had been called off. He declined to say why the action was taken.

Earlier in Greensboro, the Rev. A. L. Parker, new State Convention president, had said there was doubt the meeting would be held "due to the fact it has received the publicity it has."

The purpose of the meeting, Dr. Huggins said, was to clarify so-called misunderstandings about what took place at the recent Baptist State Convention in Raleigh. The Rev. Mr. Parker said he and Dr. Huggins received a number of telephone calls yesterday after word of the meeting was announced in the papers. He said some of the calls indicated there might be some misunderstanding as to the purposes of the meeting.

Now Report 709 From Overseas

DURHAM—A total of 709 students from '66 foreign countries, and overseas territories are enrolled this semester in the colleges and universities of North Carolina.

These figures were released today by the N. C. Council of Churches, Durham, which has compiled lists of foreign students in the state for the past five years.

The current figure compares with 573 students reported last year coming from 71 countries. 40 schools reported one or more foreign students, led by N. C. State College, Raleigh, with 216; followed by University of N.C., Chapel Hill, 112; Duke University, 89; Warren Wilson College, Swannanoa, 48; A. and T. College, Greensboro, 25; Presbyterian Junior College, Maxton, 23; and Guilford College, Greensboro, 21.

Since these lists were started, greatly expanded programs have been launched by churches and civic groups to welcome these visitors into homes and communities, according to the Rev. Morton R. Kurtz, Executive Director of the Church Council, The Council's Department of United Church Women, and its 44 local units have adopted this as a special project. This has been a real factor, Kurtz said, in building greater understanding and goodwill between people and the countries they represent.

Promotion For Dr. L. W. Jenkins

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, vice president and dean of instruction at East Carolina College, has received announcement of his promotion to the rank of major in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve. Notification of the appointment came from the office of Commandant of the Marine Corps, R. McPate.

During World War II Dr. Jenkins, then a captain in the U. S. Marine Corps, served in Guam, Guadalcanal, and Iwo-Jima and was awarded the Bronze Star and two Presidential Citations.

Policemen Were There, Waiting

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Two men held up a whisky store here last night, got several thousand dollars, then came out and found 13 policemen waiting for them.

Policeman Johnny N. Fore had spotted the holdup from outside and turned in an alarm. Officers arrested two men identified as Frank N. Madson, 27, of Detroit, Mich., and Steven R. Cronin of Chicago. Police said that Cronin told them he escaped from Utah State Prison about three weeks ago while serving a term for armed robbery. Employees at the Alcohol Beverage Control liquor store on Market Avenue, just off Asheville's main square, said two men entered the store just one minute before closing time. One told cashier Charles Chambers: "Be quiet. This is a holdup. No one is going to get hurt. Just back away from the cash register and turn around." The men carried guns, employees said. Officers, within one minute after the pair left, arrested Madson in an alley behind a hotel and Cronin under a parked car.

Art Society Has Limelight Today

RALEIGH (AP)—Attention turned to art today with a meeting of the State Art Society as North Carolina's "Culture Week" moved into its second day.

The 20th annual North Carolina artists' Exhibition is scheduled to be previewed tonight at the State Art Museum.

The Art Society makes available $1,000 annually for the purchase of works from the exhibition. A jury of out-of-state experts selected the works for purchase and the winners will be announced tonight.

Perry T. Rathbone, director of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, is slated to speak at tonight's session of the Art Society.

The North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs sponsored a musical program yesterday and a banquet last night to begin the series of meetings by cultural societies and organizations.

The North Carolina Society for the Preservation of Antiquities will hold its session tomorrow. This will be followed Friday by meetings of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Assn., and the North Carolina Folklore Society. The program concludes Saturday with meetings of the North Carolina Poetry Society, and the North Carolina Society of County and Local Historians.

Sinatra 'Organized' His Varied Efforts

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What brought about the change in Frank Sinatra?

His switch from washed-up crooner to one-man industry is one of Hollywood's favorite stories. But how he managed it is somewhat of a mystery.

During a bull session on the set of "Kings go Forth," he gave some insight on the answer. His rejuvenation appears to be due in large part to psychiatry, success and common sense.

"For the first time in my life, I'm organized," he observed. "I had to learn the hard way, but now I know that I can only do one thing at a time. Oh, when I think of the energy I wasted 10 years ago trying to do everything at once and getting nothing done really well!"

"Now I know what I'm doing. All of today, I'll devote my time to this picture, giving it all my concentration. Then I'll go have dinner and go to a recording session from 9 to midnight at Capitol Records. In the time I'm going there, I'll adjust my thinking to the making of records."

Thus he devotes himself to his many enterprises one at a time, without getting frantic about any of them. He isn't sure how he arrived at such a philosophy, but he admitted that he once sought help from psychiatry.

"I was under analysis for six months once," he said. "The reason was that I had a couple of specific problems I had to work out. I got them off my chest and that was that."

Frank conceded that success had a lot to do with ironing out his conflicts. Nothing quite succeeds like it, and he has had plenty of success in the last two years.

But it's not the scatter-gun success that he had in his early swimming days. This time, everything is carefully planned. His pictures, for example, now earn him more than a salary. He is a partner in each of them. He figures to make a pile from "The Joker is Wild" and "Pal Joey" both of which are cleaning up at the box office.

HONOR GUARD FOR BEAR—Teddy, the down bear mascot of the U. S. 6th Infantry Regiment in West Berlin, rides in honor guard jeep on his final parade before release from military service. The 10-month-old pet has become too big for mascot duties and will be sent to the National Zoological Park in Washington. With Teddy is Pfc. Donald G. Phagan of Thomaston, Ga., the bear's keeper, who will accompany him to Washington. Teddy was born in the Berlin zoo and was presented to the regiment by West Berlin as a "living symbol of Berlin." In the background is a statue of a bear, the main figure in the city's coat of arms and trademark. (AP Wirephoto).

Sky Lit Up For Miles As Big Warehouse Burns

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—A warehouse fire six miles north of Fayetteville at a peach orchard and packing plant lit up Cumberland County skies for miles last night and caused a traffic tie-up on the Fayetteville-Raleigh highway.

The flames destroyed the main warehouse and packing rooms of the Golden Belt Orchard and Farm between 8 and 9 p.m. An explosion, supposedly originating from gasses formed by the heating drums of insecticide, provided stalled motorists along the highway with a dazzling display of cascading sparks and leaping varicolored flames.

Four rural fire departments were unequal to the fight against the flames in the frame buildings but they saved a nearby residence.

The origin of the fire was not determined. An estimate of loss was not immediately available.

Township Sees Rapid Growth

BRISTOL, Pa. (AP)—The population has increased somewhat in Bristol Township since the last census—more than 350 per cent, in fact.

Township fathers arranged for a new count, knowing they could claim additional state highway fund benefits on increased population figures.

They found the township now has 56,293 residents—an increase of 44,109 over the 12,184 who lived there during the 1950 census. An influx of industry and the new residential community of Levittown is Responsible. The township is a few miles northeast of Philadelphia.

New Appliance Mart Will Formerly Open Thursday

Appliance Mart, Inc., designed specifically as a model appliance store, will have its formal opening in Greenville Thursday from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m.

The new firm, a subsidiary of Carolina Sales Corp. of Greenville, is located at 324 Evans Street and will be managed by Dewey Barnes who has had more than three de-manager of the AAA Appliance Company of Fayetteville.

"We are extremely pleased with our new store in Greenville, and we are confident the public will be pleased with our store also," Barnes said today on the eve of the store's grand opening. "We have designed the Appliance Mart, Inc. as a model appliance store, incorporating the very latest features of the retail appliance business. We are confident the Appliance Mart, Inc. is the newest and most modern appliance store in the Carolinas."

During its opening tomorrow the new store will present a gift to each lady who visits the store and in addition will give away several grand prizes at the opening.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes will make

Plant Shutdown Said Beginning

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Alex Monroe, general manager of the East Rockingham plant of the Safie Manufacturing Co., said the plant has begun a shutdown because of economic conditions.

Monroe said the plant will continue operations most of this month but that the approximately 1,000 workers at the textile mill will be released by about Jan. 1.

Monroe said Joe Safie of the New York headquarters of the firm ordered the indefinite shutdown "until the market is better."

The plant here has a weekly payroll of about $60,000.

The roots of the licorice plant often reach 20 to 25 feet below the surface before they are dug up to make candy and seasoning.

their home in Greenville after January 1. They have one daughter. The Barnes attend the Methodist Church in Fayetteville.

Agriculture Dept Denies Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Agriculture has denied a charge by Sen. W. Kerr Scott (D-NC) that the department "is deliberately trying to show that farm income is increasing when the facts are very much to the contrary."

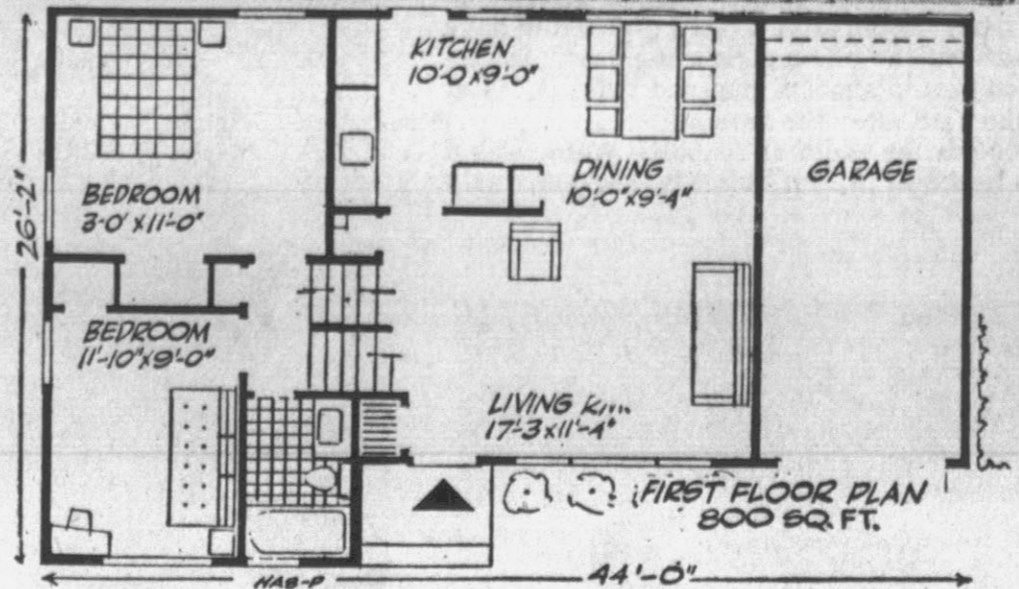

A spokesman for the department said yesterday it has no intention of misleading anyone. Scott, in his weekly Washington report, accused the department of "putting out badly misleading and distorted figures and statistics on this year's overall farm income situation."

Scott said figures on North Carolina farm income in the department's recent quarterly report "are a good illustration of how the public is being boldly handed false information."

The report said North Carolina farmers had received more than three million dollars more in cash marketings during the first nine months of 1957 than in the same period last year.

Scott declared "The most conservative estimates show that farm income in North Carolina this year will be about 150 million dollars less than what it was last year. To imply from this that farmers are really better off is dishonesty."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

A VALUE-PACKED SPLIT LEVEL, this seven-room house has 800 square feet on the first floor plan. It has three bedrooms, one and a half baths and a den or a family room. A large outdoor living terrace is in the rear. The design, HAB-P, is by Architect Samuel Paul, 89-51 164th St., Jamaica 32, N.Y.

Will Confer On Highway Dispute

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — The question of where a proposed new interstate highway should enter North Carolina from Virginia was to be discussed near here today. Representatives of the North Carolina and Virginia highway departments planned to meet at the Virginia-North Carolina line on U.S. Highway 62.

Chief State Highway Engineer W. H. Rogers Jr. said the group would "exchange ideas on possible points of entry" of the highway. The proposed new route will run from Canton, Ohio, through West Virginia and a small section of Virginia to Charlotte.

WHERE THERE'S SMOKE

FRANKLIN, Ky. (AP) — Dropping burning cigarettes in bed isn't restricted to people.

Firemen called to extinguish a blaze in the eaves of a business building traced the fire to a cigarette a bird had picked up and carried to its nest.

Educators Argue Faults, Merits

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Modern day education, its faults and merits, was the keynote here today as the annual meeting of the Southern Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools and several related organizations reached into high gear.

Separate discussion groups have explored the fields of secondary and college education since the meetings got under way Sunday. The first general session of the convention will take place tonight. Two general sessions Thursday wind up the concave.

The threat of Soviet education outstripping the free world was a prominent theme during yesterday's talks.

Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, told the association's commission on secondary schools one of the major responsibilities of today's educator is to elevate American education to the pre-eminence it deserves if the United States is to survive "in a mad, insane race with destiny."

Dr. Gaines said "The training of the gifted and the promising has got to be emphasized and the content of our education must be worthy of our boys and girls."

A scorching attack on the organized "waste of time in the public school systems" was delivered by Roland M. Frye, English teacher at Emory University, before the conference of Church-Related Colleges in the South.

At a session of the Conference of Academic Deans of the Southern States it was the consensus of discussion groups that despite rising enrollments, public institutions should, can and will maintain academic standards.

The issue of American race relations was the focal point of the opening of the conference of the Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the Negro counterpart of the Southern Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Dr. Buell G. Gallagher, president of City College of New York, said the issue cannot be satisfactorily solved until people of different races and religions are willing to live together in the same neighborhood.

'Garbage King' Indicted Again

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Vincent J. Squillante, under fire on several fronts as the kingpin of the New York Metropolitan garbage disposal racket, was indicted again today on extortion charges.

Indictments of Squillante and five other men were disclosed in the early morning hours after a night session of an extraordinary Nassau County racket grand jury sitting in this Long Island commuter suburb.

Squillante, 40, already was in jail in New York City on a year-old federal income tax charge.

He refused to talk in Washington before a Senate committee investigating rackets in the fields of labor and management. The committee was inquiring into mobster control of a large segment of the 50-million-dollar-a-year garbage carting industry in the New York City Metropolitan area.

Squillante was indicted three weeks ago on another extortion charge.

The waters of the Dead Sea in Palestine contain about eight times as much salt as does ocean water.

SOPHIA in the SAHARA

After eight long, grueling weeks on location in the Libyan desert, Italy's Sophia Loren was still able to laugh, play practical jokes and keep her co-stars and crew amused with her Neapolitan exuberance.

For Sophia the "Legend of the Lost" was her first desert picture, and perhaps the toughest she's ever played in. It was eight weeks of breathing sand, digging sand, scratching sand out of hair, eyes and ears. The acting was just as tough. There was one fight scene that took a full week to get on film. Generally, a stunt girl would have been employed to take Sophia's part, but there was no other girl in the cast. Sophia went through with the scene. She even learned how to shoot a gun, and twirl it. "I'm now ready for an American western movie," she said after the lesson.

The company worked out of an oasis town 400 miles south of Tripoli. Water was a great problem. Thousands of gallons had to be flown in. "It didn't bother me," said Sophia. "I like wine with my meals."

The desert enfolds Sophia (Dita) and John Wayne (Joe January) in love scene from the new picture.

Movie crew sweeps desert as Sophia Loren and Rossano Brazzi stand ready for shooting of scene. Reason for the neatness: Cameramen had to photograph a virgin, untrampled desert.

Sophia and crew line up for lunch. Meals were brought to location by truck from Ghadames.

Drum gets workout from Sophia during tent party given for Sophia, John Wayne and Rossano Brazzi.

Resting against pile of rocks in ancient Roman ruins of Leptis Magna on fringe of Libyan desert, Sophia takes a siesta and sun bath during lull in shooting of the film.

After strenuous scene, Sophia gets massage from wardrobe woman. Sophia had difficult time in keeping skin in good condition because of fierce sun and sand.

In village of Ghadames, Sophia gets ride in bike rickshaw with John Wayne doing the work. Ghadames was headquarters for cast and crew during filming.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers farm price 15, a few sales at 16. Eggs, prices paid by distributors for clean, sized 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte steady, 47 1/2; Durham steady, 47 to 50. Prices paid to producers on graded out basis: Asheville, unsettled, 47 to 50 mostly 47.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was higher in early afternoon trading today, benefitting from a strong demand for aircraft-missile and shipbuilding issues. Shipbuilding stocks ran their gains up more than 2 points but aircraft - missiles stopped at around 1 point. Steels, motors and oils did not show much change. Metals gained about 1 point.

Best prices were attained around mid-morning, after which a slight backing away developed in relatively quiet trading. Prospects of about a two billion dollar increase in defense spending in the next fiscal year, concentrated on missiles and anti-submarine devices, provided the background for demand in missiles and shipbuilding shares.

The missile group also benefited from approach of the time when the United States will attempt to put a baby moon in orbit around the earth. This was scheduled for today.

Among special issues Polaroid again raced into new high ground for the year, spurring more than 3 points. Steels did very little. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem holding around previous closing levels while Youngstown and Lukens added small fractions.

Leading rubber stocks, helped by prospects of a good replacement tire business, added about 1/2 point to their gains of yesterday.

At noon the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was 30 cents higher at $159.00 with the index trials up 90 cents, rails down 30 cents and utilities unchanged.

Balloon Flying From Colorado To S. C. With Instrument Cargo

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP)—A balloon from Denver, Colo., gathering research information was to drop a container of instruments near here today.

The control tower at the Douglas Airport in Charlotte said the balloon was released from Lowry Air Force Base at Denver. The tower reported a message from Denver said that the free balloon would float at unknown heights and carried a container of instruments.

The advisory followed several reports from South Carolina cities that a "silvery object" identified as a balloon were sighted during the morning.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Columbia said it received reports that a "plastic balloon moved over the area at a height of between 70,000 and 100,000 feet.

An Air National Guard pilot, Lt. Frank Boatwright of Cayce, pursued the balloon in an F80 jet from the Congaree Air Base.

Funeral Friday For R. E. Ballance

Raymond E. Ballance, 31, died in Tayloe Hospital in Washington Tuesday night at 6:10 following five days' critical illness.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. at the Washington Free Will Baptist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Charles Keith, assisted by the Rev. Paul Russell, Baptist minister of Chocowinity, and the Rev. Mr. Laughlinhouse, Free Will Baptist minister of Washington. Burial will be in the Wesley Cemetery near Chocowinity. The body will remain at the home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of services.

Mr. Ballance, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ballance of Chocowinity, was reared in Beaufort County and lived in Chocowinity about 14 years before moving to Washington four years ago.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Woolard Ballance; two daughters, Betty Elizabeth and Rita Ballance of the home; his parents, and three sisters, Mrs. J. L. Campbell of Chocowinity, Mrs. J. T. Williams of Anthony, Fla., and Miss Janet Ballance of Chocowinity.

Pitt Teachers To Meet Tonight

Pitt County school teachers will hold the second of four scheduled in-service training meetings tonight at 7:30 in McGinnis Auditorium on the East Carolina College campus.

Principal W. C. Berry of Bethel Elementary School will preside over the meeting. Topics of interest to teachers at all grade levels are expected to be discussed, as well as other phases of the county's professional services program.

Rev. P. H. Mumford wishes to express his thanks to all of the members and friends, both colored and white, for their unstinted support during the 12 years he has served as pastor of York Memorial A. M. E. Zion Church. At the reading of appointments last week in Kinston, Rev. Mumford was given a new assignment with the Metropolitan A. M. E. Zion Church in Washington, N. C.

Griffton Board Fills Two Posts

GRIFFTON—In a continuation of the November meeting Monday night, Griffton's Commissioners acted on the tentative resignation of Records Court Solicitor Jimmy Brooks.

Brooks, Kinston attorney, recently announced that he would resign his present position due to a schedule change in the meeting time of the town's Records Court. The court, currently meeting on Monday, will begin holding sessions on Wednesday afternoon beginning Jan. 8, 1958.

The Commissioners appointed W. A. Evans, local attorney, to fill the Solicitor's post. He will officially take office on Jan. 8.

According to Town Clerk Mrs. M. C. Harris, the Commissioners also appointed Edward L. Sutton as chairman of the Civil Defense Program for Griffton and immediate surrounding communities.

Mrs. Harris stated the continuation meeting Monday night was held at the request of Mayor Gover who was sick at the time of the regular meeting last month.

McLeod Appeals Conviction, Is Freed On Bond

Wayland McLeod, handed a 12-month road sentence Monday in City Court on charges of fornication and adultery, has appealed his conviction to Pitt County Superior Court.

The 26-year-old Rocky Mount man was released from County Jail late yesterday afternoon following his appeal. He posted a $300 bond and is scheduled to be tried during the Superior Court's January term.

Police arrested McLeod last Friday along with Marie Thelma Reeves, 24-year-old Negro woman. Officers testified they found him in the Reeves woman's apartment on Bonner's Lane. Both were charged with fornication and adultery.

The woman, sentenced to Woman's Prison in Raleigh for 12 months by Judge Charles H. Whedbee, has not appealed.

Firemen Called To Burning Car

Firemen were called to an automobile fire on the Washington highway around 3:45 yesterday afternoon.

The car was owned by L. R. Gladson. Firemen reported wires burned on the auto's battery. The blaze was out when firemen arrived.

"It was like a balloon, but not like a balloon," Mrs. Smith said. The object also was seen at Bennettsville in late morning. The silvery object, high in the sky, attracted much attention.

Sister Of Greenville Woman Died Today

Mrs. E. A. Griffin, Sr. of Goldsboro, sister of Mrs. D. J. Whitchard of Greenville, died in University Hospital at Chapel Hill at 2 a.m. today following several days of critical illness.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the First Methodist Church of Goldsboro.

Surviving are her husband, one son, E. A. Griffin, Jr. of Goldsboro, one daughter, Mrs. George Riverbark of Oak Ridge, Tenn., one sister, Mrs. D. J. Whitchard of Greenville, one brother, John Suther of Durham, and four grandchildren.

Lengthy Docket Heard In City Police Court Monday

By CHESTER WALSH
In Municipal Recorder's Court in Greenville Monday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of 29 cases, and the charges ranged from drunkenness in public places to possession of non-tax-paid whiskey.

Edward B. Garris, 407 W. Fourth Street, careless and reckless driving, 30 days, suspended on payment of $50, costs deducted, and he is not to drive for 60 days. He was not guilty of drunken driving.

Zebedee Moore, Negro, Clark Street, driving while drunk, six months, suspended on payment of $100 and costs and he is not to drive for a year.

Arnold L. Nash, 806 Fairfax Street, worthless check, was called and failed to answer. An instant capias was issued for him.

Possession of non-tax-paid whiskey: Gladys Maye, Negro, 30 days, suspended on payment of $30, costs deducted. The judgment also provides that she is to behave for two years, be placed on probation for two years and not possess intoxicating whiskey.

Louis Smith, Negro, 1172-A Clark Street, 30 days on the roads, Charles Moore, Negro, Clark Street, 200, costs deducted.

Fornication and adultery: Wayland McLeod, address unknown to the police, 12 months on the roads, and Marie T. Reeves, Negro, 405 Bonner's Lane, 12 months in Women's Prison.

James R. Lowry, Negro, Ayden, failure to keep lookout, prayer for judgment continued on payment of costs. This cause was retained for further order.

Jasper T. Parker, Negro, 1504 Clark Street, larceny, six months, suspended on payment of $25, costs deducted, and he is to behave for two years and he was placed on probation for two years.

Wilbur E. Hardee, Grimesland, was found not guilty of failure to give hand signal.

William Mercer, Negro, 517 Boyd Avenue, six months, suspended on payment of $10 before release and pay $10 per week beginning December 7, 1957, for child's support.

Raymond Fleming Jr., 1810 S. Greene Street, paid $5 for operating to left of center line.

Charlie Fields Jr., Negro, Farmville, failure to yield right of way, prayer for judgment continued on payment of costs. This cause was retained for further order.

William E. Mathews, Negro, 622 Albemarle Avenue, prayer for judgment continued on payment of costs, and this order was retained for further order.

James E. Adams, Negro, 107 W. 14th Street, 60 days in jail, suspended on condition that he not harm Mary Adams, and pay $28, costs deducted.

Jerry M. Dempsey, P. O. Box 55, Greenville, passing at an intersection, prayer for judgment continued on payment of costs.

Leach Williams, Negro, damaging state property, pay $5 court costs and $5 to State Highway and Public Works for sign.

Bruce Reddick, Negro, 307 E. First Street, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, failed to answer and an instant capias was issued for him.

Drunk: Walter Daniels, Negro, 1719 McClellan Street, $16; Jim Boyd, Negro, Route 5, city, $16; Joe A. Credle, Negro, Winterville, $16 costs and $20 for property damage; Edmond Phillips, Negro, Winterville, 30 days, suspended on payment of $16 costs and $20 property damage.

Activities are governed by the Underwriters requirements for certain classifications.

Blaxam also pointed out that there is a difference in equipment used for rural fire fighting and that used in cities.

"Most city equipment is not designed to pump against a heavy suction lift because of its connection to a hydrant which normally has 50 to 60 pounds pressure. On rural trucks these pumps are designed for high lift operation."
