Pitt Hospital 'Evaluated' By Four-Member Team

A four-member team from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare was in Greenville yesterday to study, appraise and evaluate Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The inspection was part of a follow-up study of hospitals built under the Hill-Burton Act and is designed to determine overall quality of the planning under the Hill-Burton program.

terday during the inspection included the hospital's effect on the community, effect of the community on the hospital, comparison of the original building design with present utilization, initial equipment procured and demonstrated need for additional equipment, current activities of the hospital, and effectiveness of guide material for planning the hospital.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Military and scientific personnel planned today to conduct a series of conferences to find out what caused the failure of this country's giant Vanguard test rocket.

mechanical and was not caused by any fault in basic design. Hagen also emphasized that yesterday's failure was only one of a series of tests of the Vanguard, preliminary to larger scale satellite launchings, for scientific purposes, to begin next March.

CHRISTMAS SCENE FROM GRIFTON PARADE YESTERDAY ... One of 12 floats entered—won honorable mention.

GRIFTON — Santa Claus made his first appearance yesterday afternoon before the largest crowd ever to witness a parade here.

The jolly old man clad in traditional dress rode into town on the Grifton fire truck. He appeared to enjoy the wintery weather and the festive activities going on about him as much as the spectators, numbering around 5,000.

prize was won by the Grifton Free Will Baptist Church float also depicting a religious scene. The float entered by the Grifton Garden Club received honorable mention.

Police Nab Five For Dynamitings

GAFFNEY, S.C. (AP)—Police disclosed today the arrest of five alleged Ku Klux Klan members — that three separate attempts had been made to dynamite the home of a Gaffney physician whose wife had written an article advocating a moderate approach to the racial problem.

assault and battery specifications were lodged because there were four people in the house when the explosion occurred.

Ten Boys Face Juvenile Court

GREENSBORO (AP)—Police said ten white boys who admitted a series of break-ins and larcenies here in the past two months will be turned over to Juvenile Court.

"All this and more has been done by Mrs. Barrett who has done her deeds without thought of reward or personal gain."

Names were withheld because of the ages of the defendants, from 13 to 15 years. Police said merchandise was taken from a number of businesses, gas tank caps and other articles were stolen from automobiles and three unsuccessful attempts were made to break into a branch bank.

ELIZABETH SEIBERT'S NEW NOVEL
The Doctor's Husband

CHAPTER 17
During the following week Tracy had ample time and opportunity to watch the clinic in operation. As she recuperated from the appendectomy, her opinion changed from doubt to agreement, and then progressed to enthusiasm.

Tracy met about half of the associated doctors and liked most of them. From her bed she could look out of the window at the pretty college town settled into a fold of the New England mountains.

She met a Mr. Faraday, an attorney, who was on the clinic board, and she found him charming. The Danas were the Nisbet's closest friends, and they came often to the farm.

Dr. Dana, a pompous little man, had come to see Tracy in her room at the hospital, introducing himself to her as a close friend of the Nisbet's, and he continued to be attentive.

From his own stories, and from those she heard while in the hospital, she learned that Dr. Dana had been a general practitioner in the district for a matter of thirty-five years.

He'd been a good doctor, the sort of whom patients say, "If Dr. Bob told me I needed my head cut off I'd let him do it." In the hospital, Tracy was told many instances of his devotion to his patients, of his astuteness in overall diagnosis and treatment.

It seemed that Dr. Dana had small respect for women, their minds, their judgment, their sense of fair play. He was fixed in certain theories about women and their effect on men. If a man developed a stomach ulcer or a heart condition, Dr. Dana declared that his wife must nag him to death, or drive him ruthlessly.

Lately, Tracy discovered—with in the past five years—Dr. Dana had sought to confine his practice to cases connected with the heart. His friends and his patients were against this specialization; the hospital and clinic were not happy about it.

"He's so much better as a g.p.," declared Dr. Girard. "There's no one in our group can do a cystoscopy like Dana. Why he wants to call himself a heart specialist, I'll never know!"

"But it takes so much more than to call himself a specialist!" Tracy had said quickly, then, remembering her non-professional status here, she added, "I mean, don't you have to train in a certain way?"

"Everybody does but Dana," growled the pleasant Dr. Girard. "I don't see how he gets away with it, though Tracy. And decided on her last Saturday with the Nisbet's, her hosts arranged a 'little party.' They were going to invite the Danas for supper. . . . I thought, Tracy, that we'd eat down by the run."

"Oh, yes!" agreed the girl happily. "I love it down there. So it was planned, and so it was done. Card tables, chairs, and food were transported to the stretch of grass at the end of the garden; there ran a placid little stream, no more than ten feet wide, and shallow enough to ford on foot. On the far bank was a meadow sprinkled with golden daisies and a few blue flowers. The far hills rose, dark with trees and toward evening little white clouds gathered prettily about their summits.

An old apple tree, snaggle-branched and bowed, leaned toward the water; one of its limbs had broken off and lay upon the ground, the wood bleached silver from rain and sun.

"You ought to take that tree down," declared Dr. Dana to his host. "It's an eyesore."

"I like it right where it is," declared Howdy's father. "The tree and all make a good composition."

"You and your paintings!" snorted the doctor. "If you can turn yourself into a heart specialist at sixty-two," demanded Mr. Nesbit, "why can't I become an artist?"

Behind every structure, whether large or small, intricate or simple, there's a blueprint. And behind every blueprint there's a vision. Someone has a dream. He explains it to an architect. Using the tools of his trade, the architect makes a blueprint—a plan to show workmen how to build what was first conceived in a dream. Centuries upon centuries ago God had a vision. He made man in His image, then gave him the tools to fashion a blueprint. The Bible was the result—a blueprint for right-living for every man who breathes. God is the Supreme Architect. Under Him today churches work to show man how to use the Bible as a blueprint for his own life. When that plan is followed, life is good. When it is ignored, confusion and disaster result. Let the church of your choice show you and your family how to follow the blueprint for peaceful living.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Cotton Vote Dec. 10
Pitt cotton growers will join other cotton farmers Dec. 10 in voting on whether to continue cotton marketing quotas. J. Lyman Edwards, chairman of the Pitt Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee said today. It will be the 12th time growers have registered their choice on how they want to market their crop. Marketing quotas have been in effect continuously for the last four crops. The first vote on cotton marketing quotas was held in March, 1938, and the last previous cotton referendum was in Dec., 1956. In the last vote, 92.4 per cent of the farmers voting expressed approval of using the quotas for the 1957 cotton crop. At least two-thirds of the farmers voting must favor quotas before they may continue in effect. Under legislative provisions, the Secretary of Agriculture must proclaim a national marketing quota and a national acreage allotment for cotton whenever he finds that the total supply exceeds the normal supply. Prospective supplies of cotton for the 1957-58 marketing year are estimated at 25.2 million running bales, including an Aug. 1, 1957, carry over of almost 11 million bales, 1957 crop of 12.2 million bales (the October Crop Report) an estimated imports of 50,000 bales. The "normal supply" figure of 17.8 million bales included estimated domestic consumption of 85 million bales and exports of five million bales, plus a 30-percent "carryover" reserve of 4.1 million bales. Thus the prospective total supply for 1957-58 exceeds the normal supply by about 5.6 million bales, and quotas had to be proclaimed for the 1958 crop of cotton. CELEBRATED BIRTHDAYS... Gene Hemby and Robert Johnson celebrated their birthdays last night at a dance. (Photo by Lee Rowland).

Celebrated Birthdays At Dance Last Night

About 65 Junior High School students helped Gene Hemby and Robert Johnson celebrate their birthdays last night at a formal dance held at the Moose Lodge.

A Christmas theme was carried out in the red and green decorations and the sparkling arrangement which centered the appointed table covered with a white lace cloth.

Mrs. Emily Johnson and Mrs. Bruce Hemby, mothers of the honored guests, were hostesses. Chaperons were L. D. Hemby and Bill Johnson, fathers of the birthday celebrants.

Mrs. Johnson poured the lemon punch and the birthday cake was served by Mrs. Hemby. Guests helped themselves to nuts and mints.

During the evening the couples danced under a multi-colored balloon ceiling.

Books which hold the answers for Christmas decorators, home-sewers, party planners, and amateur artists are now being featured at Sheppard Memorial Library in a novel display.

This exhibit which opened yesterday, includes a host of books attractively arranged against a red and green background.

Some of the informative books included in this selection are—"The Christmas Cookie Book," "Dress Accessories and Gifts You Can Make," "Decorating For Joyful Occasions," "How To Build Children's Toys and Furniture," "Gifts From Your Kitchen."

"Make Your Own Greeting Cards," "The Art of Wrapping Gifts," "The Book of Table Arrangements," "Holiday Candy and Cookie Cook Book," and "Dolls and Stuff Toy Making."

In addition to this special group of books for homemakers, the library has recently added other displays which highlight old and new Christmas stories and books which explain the various Christmas customs.

Now, Burden Is On The Student

Is my youngster going to be able to get into a college when he finishes high school a few years from now?

The question has been pondered by countless American parents. They are well aware that expansion of college facilities in recent years has not nearly kept pace with the increased number of youngsters applying for admission.

In the minds of most parents, the answer to the question hinges on the ability of a college to take the child—not the ability of the child to take college work.

Out of the meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools there has come the suggestion that in the future the shoe will be on the other foot. The burden will be on the student to prove himself worthy of college training; not upon the colleges to provide room and instruction for every person who wants to attend. Competition between colleges for students will decrease, and competition between high school graduates for acceptance by a college will increase.

Roy W. Armstrong, director of admissions at the University of North Carolina, told the association:

"I believe that we must select the talented and give them the training that will make the most of them. We need different types of programs for different types of students. We cannot afford to teach a freshman for a year when that freshman is not prepared. Colleges have got to be selective."

As the shortage of college facilities become more acute, these institutions of higher learning will be more selective in admitting students. The best student coming up from high schools will be admitted by the colleges. Other students whose high school grades are lower may find the colleges do not have room or time for them.

We must expand our college facilities and utilize to a greater extent those facilities we already have. We must also give greater emphasis to the responsibility of the individual youngster who wants to go to college. He must apply himself while he is in high school in order that he will be prepared for college. He must realize that a college admission is not his for the asking; he must show, through scholastic achievement in high school, that a college which accepts his application will not be wasting its time on a student who will not make the grade.

The parent who is concerned about his child getting into college a few years from now should also be concerned about the youngster's scholastic achievement in public school work today.

This Disappointment Could Be A Blessing

Disappointment over the dismal failure of efforts to launch an American earth satellite cannot be minimized. Neither can its effect on American morale or that of our allies overseas be accurately measured at this moment.

Disappointing as the results were, some good—perhaps of more lasting quality than a successful launching on this first try—may come out of them.

The failure has jolted the American people out of their complacency with more force than the announcement two months ago that Russia had launched a satellite. It has pointed up the stark fact that we as a nation are subject to human, scientific and technological failures. We have failed where someone else has succeeded. It has impressed upon the average citizen that the road to catching up in missile development will be a long, hard road for the United States. It is a feat that will not be accomplished with ease.

As the attack on Pearl Harbor 16 years ago today welded Americans together in a common effort for a common goal, so has this failure of operation Vanguard fused the nation's determination to meet a new challenge to its security.

Many have asserted since yesterday, they should have kept the launching effort a secret. We'd all have been better off.

But would we? The world knows that our efforts to launch a satellite ended in failure. But more important, the American people know it too. Perhaps we cannot fully appreciate what it means to this nation, but we are certain now it means a great deal more time, more effort and more money must be devoted to missile and other scientific development.

Were we ignorant of the failure, we would also be more vulnerable if for no other reason than a false sense of security.

More Interest In New Products

By ELMER ROESSNER
Management's interest in new products, always strong, is now intensifying.

Corporations across the country are stepping up pressure on their R & D management shorthand for "research and development"—departments. Executives are taking older proposals off the shelf. Management conferences on research, development and new products are attracting heavy advance registrations.

No more than one in five products ever pays off. Often the ratio is one in ten, or even less.

Even at longer odds, new products may be good bets today. New products are usually means to expansion. Now they may be means of survival, with many sectors of the economy showing considerable weakness.

Even before the current quavers in business, many companies had stepped up new product development. Gray Manufacturing, for example, brought out five new products at the recent Business Show in New York, with new items at both ends of its product mix. One was a three-pound dictating machine; the other and improved telephone dictation system whereby up to more than a thousand executives can use phones at their desks to dictate correspondence. This system involves such improvements as: an executive's voice starts the machine; the executive can play back his own dictation but, even though 1,000 others are using the system, no one else can hear his play-back.

Du Pont has noted that 40 per cent of its sales are now made of products unknown 15 years ago. About 60 per cent of the drug products sold today were not on the market 12 years ago. And General Foods, according to Benjamin M. Hines, one of its new-product specialists, now makes 35.6 per cent of its sales from products not on the market 10 years ago.

Many companies today face extinction unless they can meet the challenge of new-product development. Mr. Hines recently told a New York management conference.

Product development involves more than just turning out brand new products, he said. It includes new packaging ideas that give an old product a new personality; the expansion of existing product lines, and finding new uses for products facing new market conditions.

Concern over new products has been indicated by interest in the American Management Association's special three-day conference next month on planning products that sell. More than 500 executives are expected to attend the sessions.

A slide film presentation on "Pioneering Products" has been prepared, and case histories will be described by executives from Stromberg-Carlson, Dictaphone, Hamilton Watch, Bell & Howell, American Radiator & Standard Sanitary, Westinghouse, American Machiner & Foundry, du Pont, and other corporations.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
DOWN TO BRASS TACKS

A young man addressing a religious convention recently brought down the house with the statement that many people pray the following prayer: "Lord, I am willing to do whatever thou wouldst have me do, but thou knowest I work best in an advisory capacity."

Have you ever noticed the fellow who, when three or four men are grunting and sweating as they move a piano, tags along behind carrying the piano stool? There are many people who love committee meetings. As long as plans are being discussed or moral questions are in the delightful realm of the abstract, these people are on hand, taking a prominent part in the proceedings. But when questions suddenly become concrete, when plans mean ringing doorbells and climbing stairs, signing checks or jumping in and doing a piece of hard work, these people are on the list of absentees.

It is easy to advise people about their problems; it takes selflessness and sacrifice to get down where they live and help them solve their problems.

We can do a lot of weeping at the movies over imaginary tragedies, and five minutes after we leave the theater we can step right over a tragic situation in someone's life which is calling stridently for help.

Jesus said, "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

Big Show In Wee Hours

Memo to early-risers who have little to do in their first few hours out of bed:

The Post Office in Greenville puts on a big show every morning, a show that should be interesting to persons who are curious about when the big mail deliveries are made. Cast members, all postal workers, stage the big production at 4:30 a.m. when big trucks bring the biggest delivery of the day to the Post Office.

From what I can gather, there is an enormous amount of mail in those early morning deliveries, and postal workers are anticipating sharp increases each morning from now until Christmas.

Of course, these little comments on the size of the early morning deliveries aren't based on personal observation. I haven't quite gotten as far as the Post Office at that particular time of day.

I do plan to take the grand tour some morning, however, when Wee Urchin sends forth a call in the night and we both sit up to hear the first sounds of a new day. I also plan to take Wee Urchin with me, for, after all, he should be taught early in life to have a respect for the Post Office and to value a warm bed in winter.

Such a trip might be valuable, also, to members of certain other groups, particularly the lost souls who never think of the work that is done in the Post Office before the sun peeps over the horizon.

Then, there's also the group that waits until the last minute to mail Christmas cards and other items. An early morning trip to the Post Office should give them a new appreciation of the work done there.

Incidentally, while on this subject, don't forget that Christmas cards for out-of-town delivery should be mailed before December 10. Those for local delivery should be mailed prior to December 15. Mailing cards before those dates will insure prompt delivery by postal workers.

It would be a good idea, too, to deposit Christmas cards and other mail in the Post Office itself, or at least in street collection boxes. Don't try to give them to the carriers, because they'll have just about all they handle from now until Christmas Day.

Another memo, this time to Mayor Charles S. Edwards of Farmville:

Mr. Mayor, are there facilities in your good town for an outsider to file for citizenship papers? I have spent so much time in Farmville this week, I'm beginning to feel as if I've moved away from Greenville.

Public Forum

To the Editor:

Your readers doubtless are interested in the state's new Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act which becomes effective January 1, 1958. This new law, commonly known as the compulsory insurance law, will concern nearly every one of us who owns or drives an automobile.

An employee of the Department of Motor Vehicles, perhaps it would be in the way of public service for me to point out several very important facts about the new law.

First, the Motor Vehicles Department cannot issue a new license plate until requirements of the new law are met.

This means that every person seeking a 1958 license plate will have to furnish evidence of financial responsibility. For most of us this means insurance. However, as an alternative a person may deposit in cash $11,000 or post a $15,000 bond.

For those of us who have a liability insurance policy, or plan to purchase one, we also must have at the time we go to buy license plates, a certificate of insurance, or a form "FS-1" as it is called. Our insurance companies will give us this FS-1.

It is necessary that purchasers have their FS-1, either when writing for or buying their tags in person.

This is one point that cannot be overemphasized. The Motor Vehicles Department is mailing 1958 registration cards to owners now. Enclosed with the card is a leaflet describing in detail the new Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act. I suggest all Pitt county motorists read it carefully.

Yours truly,
James A. Grady

Up To A Democratic Congress

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON — The Administration has suddenly switched its Sputnik budget policy. It will put it up to a Democratic Congress to effect the economies needed to catch up with Russia's military and scientific superiority.

President Eisenhower's original idea was to submit to the Rayburn-Johnson Congress a fairly liberal budget from $72 billion to $75 billion. As he then said, cutting this figure so as to provide at least $40 billion for defense and expanded Sputnik research, would be the "hardest and most distasteful task" before the legislators.

Democrats on Capitol Hill reacted violently and angrily to this maneuver. They noted that it was the President's Constitutional duty to say where reductions should be made. Any worth-while economy, of course, will antagonize large groups of voters, especially farmers, veterans, labor and free-wheeling liberals.

Democrats provide funds for a

Sputnik defense and for all the other popular and vote-getting projects, they will be accused in the 1958 and 1960 political campaigns of extravagance and financial irresponsibility.

KENNEDY'S PROPOSAL LABELED MEDDLING
Senator John F. Kennedy was severely criticized for his Senate speech proposing that the United States use its influence to arrange an amicable settlement between France and the Algerian rebels. His suggestion was denounced by the State Department and the French Foreign Office as another example of "unwarranted American meddling."

At the time, it was regarded as the Massachusetts Senator's first serious blunder in his quest for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1960. Although he disavows such ambitions, he is looked upon as a likely candidate.

Assuming that his religion will not hurt him, he has the youth, the ability and popularity on Capitol Hill. A race between don't know, Mr. Mayor, why don't we explain that I was in Farmville Monday, Wednesday and Thursday (afternoons.)

The Monday visit was to cover the Santa Claus parade, and to explain myself to a few toe-tapping friends. The Wednesday visit was one to the home of Dr. David S. Morrill, and the Thursday visit (to the high school) was the last step in what was fast becoming a private Grand March.

Taken in a lump sum, the time spent in Farmville this week amounts to a considerable bit and, Mr. Mayor, I'm beginning to feel as if I'm one of your constituents. I would like to make it formal and official, however, so where do I file my first papers?

Others Say...

Lynchburg (Va.) News

Here we go again tilting like the modern Don Quixote that we are against one of our pet peevish without the slightest prospect of success. This time it is our old enemy the word "escapace" as familiar to any of our readers who are interested as Cervantes' wind mill.

We have told all and sundry who use the word time and time again, and are corroborated by Mr. Webster, that the suffix "ee" has a passive significance.

It is used to indicate the one to whom an act is done not one who performs the act. The suffixes "er" and "or" are obligingly provided us by our language to denote the one who performed the act. An employee is one who is employed while the one who does the employing is the employer. The donor makes the gift; the donee, if anybody but a lawyer wants to use that outlandish word, is the one who receives the gift. So an escapee can't be the one who escapes he is the one who has been escaped, perhaps the sheriff or the posse that is pursuing the escapee.

There are too many this or that "ees" anyway, but if the suffix has to be used why not use it correctly? Why go out of the way to cook up an excuse for using it? But, it may be asked, why quarrel about it when quarrelling is going to do no good at all? The answer is we don't know; it's just one of those irresistible impulses.

Behind That Beard

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

AP Newsfeatures Writer
Paunchy, bearded, florid-faced Santa Claus, the benevolent bag-man who makes a business out of dropping down people's chimneys on one night of every year, has remained one of history's most mysterious, elusive characters.

Thousands upon thousands of words have been written about him, but he has never submitted to an interview.

Artists, sculptors, cartoonists and window dressers by the hundreds have attempted to capture his likeness for posterity, but no recognizable photograph is known to exist of him.

Children by the million have witnessed his incredible sleight of hand feats on Christmas morning, but he has never been apprehended in the act of breaking and entering or distributing the wares of his workshop.

The exact location of this workshop, a massive underground toy factory operating night and day on year-round basis somewhere in the frozen wastes of the arctic, has never been discovered, despite repeated polar expeditions by Peary, Amundsen, Ellsworth and Byrd.

Books Never Examined
Where does Santa recruit his help? Are they union or non-union? Who supplies the raw materials for his immense foundries and assembly lines? Has this top-of-the-world Christmas cartel long ago mastered the secrets of the atom? Or does it run on solar energy in a land where half the year there is no sun?

What right does he have to monopolize the minds and hearts of people for one whole day every year, depriving them of their long treasured hates and prejudices? Who gives him safe conduct down the chimneys of the world?

These are questions that never have been answered but will crop up again as he sets out on his nocturnal mission once more this Christmas Eve.

Traveling under aliases like Kris Kringle, Jolly Old Elf, Good St. Nick and just plain Santa, this shy, retiring virtually unknown undercover man has tested the patience and erudition of millions since time immemorial.

Does he really exist? Will he come again this year?

The known facts about this most wanted and most sought after character are slim and sketchy.

He has been described as being short (perhaps a midget), fat (some liken his abdomen to a gelatinous substance), rosy cheeked; is given to fits of prolonged and immoderate laughter, drives his eight reindeer sled in a reckless fashion, and has been occasionally observed smoking a Dutch pipe.

The latest reports are that he wears gaudy red trousers, jacked at the ankles, trimmed in white fur, a black leather belt with gold buckle, and black patent leather boots. His most distinguishing characteristics are a long flowing white beard and a ruddy, blubbing nose. He is said to be about middle aged, and has been occasionally observed smoking a Dutch pipe.

Has Ultimate Weapon

He is known to be armed (with a bottomless bag of presents) and dangerous (in his insistence on speaking good cheer in every direction even where none is wanted).

An all points bulletin has been broadcast for his speedy apprehension, and this year steps are being taken to trace his movements as he crosses the radar network of the Distant Early Warning system in Canada.

Object: to wish him a Merry Christmas.

Persons having information as to his whereabouts are urged to hang their stockings by the mantle, try not to panic, get a good night's sleep and await further developments.

Club Officers At Supper Meet

President-elect J.D. McGlohon and Director Robert L. Elks were hosts to 30 officers, directors and committee chairmen of the Greenville Kiwanis Club at supper at the first Presbyterian Thursday night. President Charles E. Blair presided over the routine business session.

McGlohon conducted a training school for Kiwanis club officers and committee chairmen who will take office at the first meeting in January.

Retiring Lt.-Gov. John T. Barnhill briefly reported on training schools for international, district and local Kiwanians.

Past President J. Ed Waldrop gave an outline of Kiwanis International and local objectives and declared that "Kiwanis provides opportunity for consecrated service as good citizens."

President-elect McGlohon welcomed the Kiwanians, commended them for faithful service and reminded that "an organization progresses when its officers and committeemen function efficiently."

The Underprivileged Child Committee, Dr. Allen Taylor, chairman, has completed plans for providing Christmas cheer to a dozen or more families and numerous welfare institutions at Christmas. The Kiwanis Club had a musical program at Friday night's supper meeting, with President-elect McGlohon presiding.

Kiwanian Charles Gaskins directed a musical program. Steve Farish, Ayden graduate of East Carolina College, sang several selections, with Miss Anna Montgomery as accompanist.

The club had the largest attendance of the year last night.

Police, Trash And Fire Trucks

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Christmas shoppers in downtown Charlottesville were peeped—and curious — yesterday when a strange procession whizzed down the street.

First came a police car, siren screaming. Right behind it was a smoking garbage truck. Third in line was a fire engine—more sirens.

The explanation wasn't complicated. The police car was leading the garbage truck out to the city dump so it could get rid of its smoldering cargo, set afire by live ashes. The fire engine went along to put out the fire after the cargo was dumped.

Constable Found 5,120 Firecrackers

FALKLAND — A Nash County resident is $200 poorer and in trouble with the law, all because he tried to sell the wrong man the wrong thing yesterday.

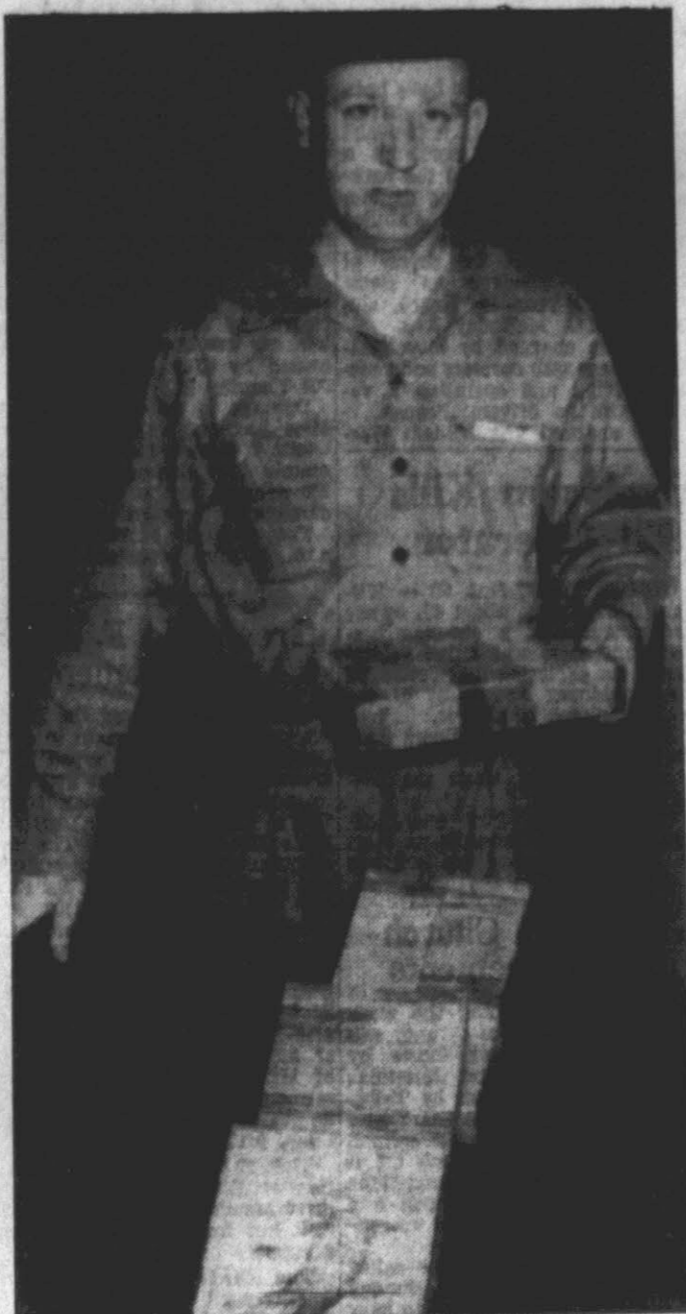

According to Falkland Township Constable J.P. Stancil, Shelby Earl Baker, 45, of Rocky Mount Rt. 4 came into his store yesterday morning and made an attempt to sell him some firecrackers.

Stancil stated he talked to the stranger, who said he was taking orders for the illegal merchandise, for a few minutes and then excused himself while he went to the telephone. During the time he was gone Baker reportedly asked a customer if he "was the law".

Upon getting an affirmative answer to his question, the Rocky Mount man left in what the Constable described as a "mighty big hurry."

Coming back into the room and finding him gone, Stancil said he gave chase and caught the fleeing salesman after a distance between Falkland and Belvoir. It was reported that 5,120 firecrackers were found in his late model pickup truck behind the seat.

Baker was charged with possession of fireworks for the purpose of sale. After waiving a preliminary hearing he was released under a $200 cash bond and is scheduled to appear in Pitt Records Court on Dec. 17.

CONSTABLE J. P. STANCIL OF FALKLAND ... got sizable firecracker haul yesterday.

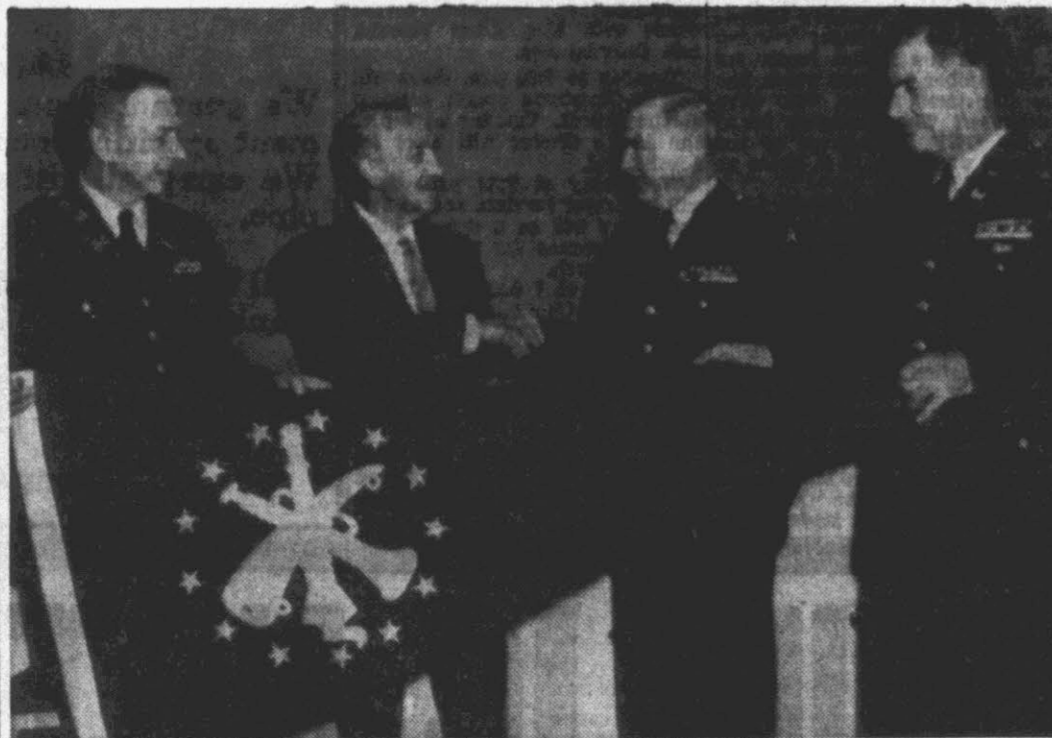

Train Hit Auto, Mother Jumped

SODA SPRINGS, Idaho — A 27-year-old mother of four jumped from her car yesterday at a railroad crossing in this southern Idaho town just before a freight train ground the vehicle into scrap.

Mrs. Eldon Perkins of Soda Springs saw the freight approaching an intersection near the town. She slammed on the brakes, but they didn't hold on the icy street. The auto slid onto the tracks and Mrs. Perkins jumped.

The train demolished the car and carried it nearly 200 feet down the track.

ECC Writers At Press Meeting

Five staff members of the "East Carolinian," weekly student newspaper at East Carolina College, attended this weekend at Catawba College in Salisbury the fall meeting of the North State Conference Press Association. Eight other colleges in the state were represented at the session.

Martha Wilson, junior from Winstonsalem and editor of the feature section of the "East Carolinian," acted as student leader of a panel discussion Saturday morning at which feature writers discussed their craft.

Others from East Carolina who represented the student newspaper at the conference are Carolyn Smith of Wilson, business manager; Claudia Todd of Ashokle and Purvis Boyette of Raleigh, members of the Executive Committee; and Patricia Reynolds of Wilmington, columnist.

WET RECORD
MEMPHIS, Tenn. — A long day of rain washed out an 80-year-old record last night. At 8:45 p.m. the year's total rainfall passed the mark of 73.50 inches set in 1877.

Dutch Banks In Jakarta Seized

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesian employees took over the three largest Dutch banks in downtown Jakarta today despite a government ban on unauthorized seizures of Dutch enterprises.

A union leader said the Dutch Public Library and Dutch Diplomatic Mission libraries in Jakarta were also taken over this morning.

Other reports came in from across this sprawling island republic of 174 seizures of property belonging to Dutchmen who once ruled Indonesia and stayed on to run its economy.

The Indonesian government has ordered most of the 46,000 Dutch residents to get out immediately, leaving behind most of their property. The order was issued yesterday as part of a campaign to wrest West New Guinea from the Netherlands.

A source close to the government said diplomatic relations with the Netherlands would be broken off very soon. He added "This is definite." A rupture in relations has been expected for several days.

The source, close to the nation's top leaders, said Indonesia intends to expel "only those who are not working" among the 46,000 Dutch residents. A government spokesman said yesterday all but a few key workers were being told to leave.

Two Fugitive Convicts Caught

The two Pitt County convicts who escaped from a road gang near Galloway's Cross Roads Thursday were apprehended last night after leading law enforcement officers on a merry chase for two days.

John Richard Buck and Jessie Whitehurst were picked up by Sheriff Raymond Rawls near Oak City in Martin County. The Sheriff said the two offered no resistance when he arrested them.

He stated they were walking down the shoulder of the highway, barefooted with their shoes and other articles of clothing were identified as those taken forcefully from Buck's half-brother Thursday afternoon.

Superintendent Paul Crawford of Pison Camp 206 reported today that the two will be charged with escaping and larceny of an automobile used to make their successful getaway.

They were picked up around 11:30 last night and returned to the Pitt Prison Camp early this morning by Sheriff Rawls.

Unlicensed, In Accident And Expensive Trouble

An automobile said to have been driven by a non-licensed driver, struck a sign, climbed a two and one-half foot embankment, hit a parked car and knocked the parked vehicle into a dwelling damaging it at Fleming and Pamlico Ave. early this morning.

Police identified the driver of the vehicle involved as Betty Fleming, 18-year-old Negro student of 617A McKinley Ave.

She was charged by investigating officers with careless and reckless driving and operating a vehicle with no driver's license.

Also charged was William Warren, 22-year-old Negro of Cherry Point. He faces a charge of allowing a non-licensed operator to operate a vehicle.

Police said the vehicle operated by Miss Fleming went out of control as it rounded a corner. He struck the sign and crossed the street to climb the embankment. Then it struck a parked car, belonging to Joseph Arthur Daniels, Negro, at 708 Fleming S. Daniels' car was knocked into a house owned by Clay Poole Dudley at 704 Fleming St.

Damage to the car operated by Miss Fleming was set at $1,000. Daniels' vehicle received approximately $500 damage. There was $50 damage to the house and $15 damage to the sign.

The accident occurred at 1:50 a.m., officers reported.

Explosion Kills Mill Operator

GIBSONVILLE, N. C. — William Earl Burke, about 45, owner and operator of a one-man hosiery mill here, was killed yesterday in an explosion that destroyed his machinery and most of the frame building housing it.

Fire Chief Jack Childers said the blast probably was caused by gasoline used to clean the machinery.

One-man hosiery operations gave the textile industry its start in Alamance County and still are fairly common in the area.

Christian Church Announcements

A Doctor For 59 Years, He's Still Going Strong

THE DOCTOR AND HIS GRANDFATHER

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — In 1898, 25-year-old David S. Morrill came home from the University of Maryland.

He was a doctor, as his father was, and he was home from his studies to take his place with the people and in the land he loved. He hung his shingle in Marlboro, beside that of his father, and set out to do that which he had chosen as his life's work.

When he began his practice, Dr. David S. Morrill, as all young men must, looked forward to a long and successful practice. He was confident, optimistic and hopeful about his prospects.

He was also correct. Today, 59 years after he first nailed up his sign, Dr. David S. Morrill is still going strong. The pace isn't as fast as it once was, but he's still in business as one of the oldest practicing physicians in North Carolina.

The "secret," if there is such a thing, to being able to keep going in a job that demands constant study and personal improvement is in Dr. Morrill's mind, simply an ability to adjust to the challenge of changes that will come naturally. That the doctor has met them successfully is answered by the simple fact that's still here.

Dr. Morrill has had his share of challenges. First of those came in 1905 when his father died. Marlboro was losing its importance, which it had gained as a station on the old "plank road," to Farmville, a mile away. The doctor met that challenge by building a house in Farmville and moving there with his widowed mother.

Farmville in those days was not much. Dr. Morrill remembers it in his first days there, as a crossroads community that had 12 houses, a church, a school known as "The Institute," three stores and two bars. It was, he says, a town "dominated by hogs, cows, chickens and dogs."

The town was a challenge to the young doctor. He wanted to see it grow, but it was hard to see growth in a place that held court in a blacksmith's shop and spent most of its time dozing in the warm sun of Pitt County's mild climate.

Dr. Morrill did his share to help the town grow, serving three different times on the Town Board, including a final term when the present Municipal Building was opened in 1928. He and others worked hard, but they got their greatest help from a railroad.

The East Carolina Railroad, Dr. Morrill remembers, gave the town its first boost. "Everybody but me," he says, "turned out when the East Carolina came in to town and they all took the train to Tarboro."

As important as the East Carolina Railroad was in those days, however, the biggest boost was given when the Norfolk Southern Railroad line from Washington to Raleigh was completed in 1907. It opened up the area, "and it has been growing since," Dr. Morrill says.

Perhaps the biggest challenge the doctor has had to face in his years of practice has been simply that of change itself.

"There has been a complete change in everything since I started my practice. Good roads and automobiles make it easy for people to get to good hospitals and clinics in just a few minutes. People depend on each other less, and demands for outside calls and night work have diminished with the passage of time.

"Diseases have changed in importance, and we never see epidemics anymore. Women go to hospitals to have their babies, and they get better care in the process. Eighty per cent of my work used to be out of the office, but that's all changed and if I used my automobile for nothing but medical work it would last me 15 years."

Despite those changes, and the adjustments he has made to meet them, there are some things that will never change for the doctor.

For instance, he still uses the same typewriter he bought 52 years ago. It's an old "Oliver Number 9" and is, the doctor claims, "the only one I could ever use."

He also continues to hold forth in the same house he built for himself and his mother in 1905. The house is a landmark in Farmville, and its big holly tree is just as well known, and perhaps even more so.

The holly tree was planted before the house was ever built. When workmen carted lumber onto the lot the house and stables, the little tree was trampled and left for dead. It sprang back to life, however, and is now a big, bushy looking tree that hides the right side of the house from the street.

Something else that will also never change for the doctor are certain elements of his personal life.

Pitt County was not the native land of the Morrill forebears. Dr. Morrill's father, tired of the cold and darkness of New Hampshire winters, moved to Marlboro in 1852 to set up his medical practice in a milder climate. The elder Morrill left behind a distinguished New England family life that included a governor of New Hampshire shortly after 1800.

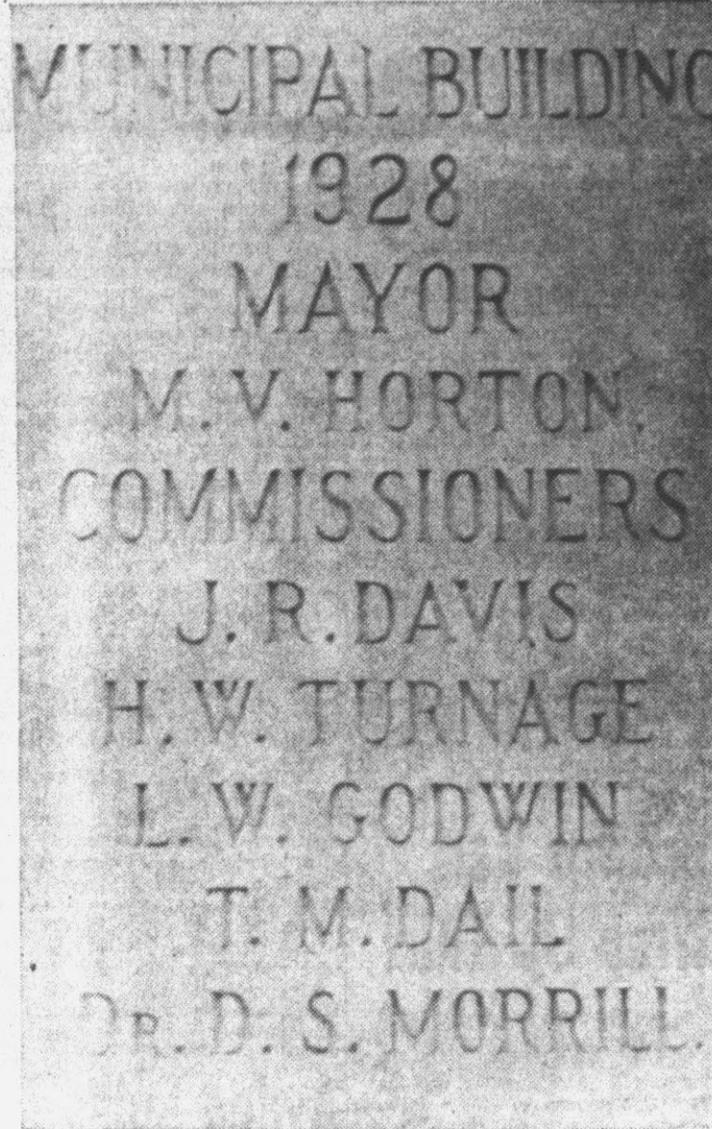

There is also the unchanging truth of the doctor's married life, and the faith and help of his housekeeper, Mrs. Laura Keel, who was Mrs. Morrill's nurse when the doctor's wife died in 1954. Mrs. Keel has been with the doctor since then, taking care of the big house and helping in the upkeep of his medical practice.

In addition to those, the doctor has the memory of the only vacation he ever took, a vacation he claims is the only one he ever wanted. That was a three-months trip to Europe, Africa and the Middle East in 1913, and which is simply described as "the best time I ever had."

There are other things that won't change in the life of a man who will be 85 years old on February 22. Included are the memories of more than 2,500 babies he has seen take the first breath of life; his own baptism by an Episcopal minister, remembered only as "Comfort" Atkinson because of the minister's desire for the easy life; and the thoughts of wearing out horses and buggies and sleighs before the days of automobiles and good roads.

There's also one other unchanged thought the doctor has kept since he first became what he is. That is the simple desire to keep going as long as he can, never to retire or sit by and watch others do the things he has been trained to do.

He has no idea of changing that pledge to himself. And he keeps his telephone handy and his driver's license valid to back it up.

Honor Writers For '57 Contributions

RALEIGH (AP)—Literary award winners were feted today as final readings were held in the week-long series for cultural societies and organizations.

Archibald Henderson of Chapel Hill, winner of the Mayflower Cup for his book "George Bernard Shaw: Man of The Century," was guest of honor at a breakfast meeting of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the state of North Carolina.

Another breakfast honored Mrs. Doris Betts of Sanford, who received the fifth annual Sir Walter Raleigh award for fiction with her book, "Tall Houses in Winter."

The breakfast was given by the Historical Book Club of North Carolina, which gives the award.

Dr. Henderson and Mrs. Betts received their awards last night at a meeting of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Assn.

At the same time, the Jefferson Standard Broadcasting Co was given the first annual Corporate Citizenship award, in recognition of its cultural contributions.

The North Carolina Poetry Society of the County and Local Historical Societies held their annual meetings today, closing out "Culture Week" activities.

The series of meetings began on Tuesday with a program by the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs. Other organizations which met during the week included the North Carolina State Art Society, the North Carolina Society for the Preservation of Antiquities, the Roanoke Island Historical Assn., and the North Carolina Folklore Society.

Henderson's award for the year's best volume of non-fiction was the third he has won in the state for works on Shaw, the Irish playwright and wit. He received the Patterson Memorial Cup in 1911 for "George Bernard Shaw: His Life and Works." His first Mayflower Cup came in 1932 for "Bernard Shaw: Playboy and Prophet."

T. V. Smith, formerly of Syracuse University, was the principal speaker at the evening meeting of the Literary and Historical Assn.

Jupiter Project 'Ready To Go'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, said yesterday the Army's Jupiter project is "ready to go" but would not guess how soon the Army could launch a satellite if given the go-ahead.

As for the Navy's ill-fated test run of the Vanguard yesterday, Taylor said this nation should not necessarily suffer further loss of prestige.

Taylor said he thought "we can assume" that the Russians had similar troubles in launching Sputnik I.

Catawba Rated 7-Point Favorites Over Bucs Tonight

League-Leading Indians Seeking Third NS Win

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Catawba's Indians—fresh from their 79-47 victory over Atlantic Christian last night—will come to East Carolina's Memorial Gymnasium tonight as the North State league-leader and a favorite over the hosting Pirates.

Last night's win over the Bulldogs gives Coach Earl Ruth's Indians a 2-0 conference record and the oddsmakers are giving them a better than even chance to walk up number three tonight.

The hosting Pirates are not crying over the pickings, however. They've won two straight ball games thus far, have an average of 99 points per game, and will be playing on their own court. They will go into tonight's game as close to being at full strength as they have been all year.

And, of course, the Bucs have been rated underdogs in each of their earlier games, which they won by 103-66 and 91-69 scores.

Two Returns

Returning to the lineup for this game will be Charlie Adams and Marion Hales, both of whom were injured earlier with twisted ankles. Adams, a veteran forward played some last week against Guilford, and should be in top shape tonight, according to reports. Hales, too, is in playing condition.

The addition of these two veterans to the EOC squad will put Coach Howard Porter's outfit at close to top strength. At least, as close to that condition as the Bucs have been thus far this year.

Porter is expected to use Ike Riddick and Jessell Curry at the guard slots, Guy Mendenhall or Joe Plaster at center, and Don Smith and Harold Ingram at forwards. Hales and Adams are expected to play.

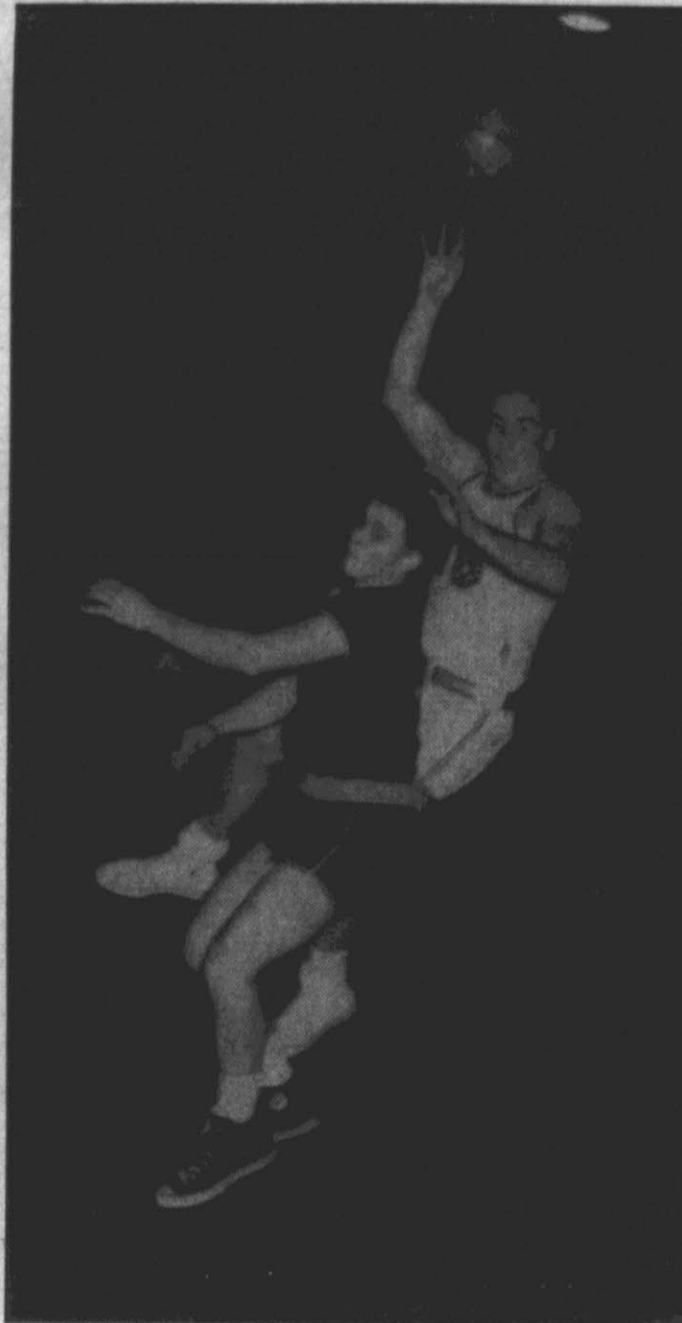

On the strength of their last night's victory over ACC, Catawba has been given a seven-point edge over East Carolina tonight by the oddsmakers. Coach Ruth's club is a veteran outfit, sparked by Woody Helfrich and Sonny Clayton.

Jinx Gym

Invading Catawba will face more than just a high-scoring undefeated team tonight when they scrap East Carolina. The Indians will be playing in EOC's celebrated jinx gym, which has been a stigma to the North State Conference ever since its erection, six years ago. Only on five occasions, during that stretch of time, have conference clubs been able to whip East Carolina in the gym.

The Pirates have run up an amazing record of 55 victories against only six defeats here. The other loss came at the hands of Frank McGuire's North Carolina Tarheels in the dedication game, six years ago.

Catawba has never whipped an East Carolina College team in Memorial Gymnasium, and this fact could influence the game in some way tonight. The Indians are in a better position to do that tonight than at any other time in the six years, according to the oddsmakers.

CHARLIE ADAMS . . . Back in the Buc lineup.

UNC, & Clemson Open Cage Play

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

North Carolina's Tar Heels, national college basketball champions, make the plunge into the 1957-58 season today looking for their 33rd consecutive victory but no longer armed with Lennie Rosenbluth or Joe Quigg.

The Counterfeit Confederates—most of 'em are from the New York area—go against Clemson at Chapel Hill, N.C., in the inaugural of the Atlantic Coast Conference's Saturday afternoon regional TV series.

Even without Rosenbluth, the graduated All America, or Quigg, sidelined by a fractured leg, the Tar Heels don't figure to have too much trouble. They have six let-terms back, and Clemson figures to be pooped.

The Tigers were scheduled back on the court less than 24 hours after their 79-66 defeat by Duke last night.

Two other members of the semifinals in the 1957 championships make their second appearances.

Kansas (1-0), beaten in triple overtime by North Carolina for the title last March, is at Northwestern tonight, and San Francisco, which defeated Michigan State for third place, plays West Texas State. The Dons also are 1-0.

Michigan State made it 2-0 with a comeback 71-59 victory over Detroit last night, while in other action Rice defeated Oklahoma City 53-45 with a late rally. Texas Christian whipped McMurry 75-50. Utah got started with a 73-64 decision over Baylor Missouri; got past Marquette 56-56, and Cincinnati ripped Indiana State 105-49.

Rice, heir apparent to Southern Methodist's Southwest Conference title, trailed for 30 minutes before Tom Robitaille's tip-in gave the Owls a 42-41 edge.

TCU, a second-ranked favorite in the Southwest, matched Rice's 2-0 record. Texas, another Southwest entry, had a breezy 79-59 time with Trinity (Tex.). Brigham Young had it tougher, defeating Washington 45-43 on a pair of free throws by Mel Wilkes after the final gun.

Pittsburgh rapped Furman 83-45 and UCLA, co-favored with Washington in the Pacific Coast Conference, defeated St. Mary's (Calif.) 70-64.

A jump shot from the corner by Don Schwall in the last 16 seconds broke a 66-66 tie and gave Oklahoma a 70-66 victory over Southern California.

ACC Passes On Grants - In - Aid

By KEN ALYTA
GREENSBORO (AP)—Football coaches in the Atlantic Coast Conference who long had argued for passage of grants-in-aid legislation, heaved a collective sigh of relief today.

The ACC surprisingly voted to honor letters of intent binding prospective student athletes to play for the conference school of offering them assistance.

The action resulted after an hour's deliberation at yesterday's annual meeting, coming after it appeared the grants proposal would fall again as it had so many times in the past. Coaches have sought its passage to relieve much of the recruiting pressure.

Six votes are required for passage of changes in the constitution and bylaws. The measure never had five affirmative votes heretofore.

Virginia, South Carolina and Maryland were the last holdouts. As a counter-measure a year ago the other members, Clemson and North Carolina's "Big Four" of Duke, North Carolina, North Carolina State and Wake Forest, had set up their own informal agreement to honor their grants.

North Carolina State and North Carolina had sponsored identical measures calling for the honoring of commitments but it appeared they were doomed to the fate of similar proposals.

Then, M. M. Caplin, Virginia faculty chairman, touched off the spark when he said his school would be interested in certain changes in the original proposal.

As passed, 6-2, with Maryland and South Carolina still on the other side of the fence, the rule declares that if a prospective student tentatively has been admitted to an ACC school and his application for financial aid has been certified to the conference commissioner on or after July 1, his application will be accepted as final by other conference members.

Should the student "in good faith" request that he be excused from his commitment and his request is approved by the commissioner, the student may take part in athletics at any other ACC school.

This unexpected development highlighted a day that saw the conference open to other members, making it possible for more than one team from the league to play in a holiday attraction.

But when it was evident that there was some division of thinking on the proposal, it was withdrawn to allow more study before the spring meeting.

Basketball coaches had advocated allowing a second ACC team to play in a post-season cage tournament. But Clemson withdrew its proposal when it was apparent it would not pass.

The basketball committee felt that the conference should continue to stress the NCAA tournament, to which it sends its tournament winner. Should the regular season winner not go on to take the ACC tournament and gain the NCAA bid, it could have been eligible to accept a bid to the National Invitation at New York under the Clemson plan. But the committee felt, under these conditions, it would be sending its No. 2 team to the NCAA tournament, which it regards more highly than the NIT.

San Francisco State and its No. 1 team to the NIT.

Six conference football games will be the minimum required in 1961, with the figure increased to seven the following year.

Action on proposals to limit a school to 30 athletic scholarships to all freshman athletes annually and to determine the number of football scholarships to be allowed was delayed. Committees will study the matters and report at the Fall meeting.

Freshman football teams will continue to play five-game schedules if desired, rather than three under a proposal offered and then withdrawn by Clemson.

Conference football and basketball television plans for 1958-59 will await developments at next month's NCAA meeting at Philadelphia.

G-Men Finish Tonight Against Camden Cagers

WILMINGTON—Bishop England high school of Charleston, S. C. licked Coach Boley Farley's Phantoms here last night, 48-45, in the opening game of Wilmington's invitational practice tourney.

Tonight, the G-Men tackle Camden, S.C. to wind up their play in the mock tourney.

Wilmington dumped Camden by a long 78-42 score in the second game last night. The AAA North Carolina team will scrap with Bishop England tonight in the second tilt of the evening.

Coach Farley's team, picked by most of the Northeastern Conference experts as one of the leading clubs in that loop this year, got its first taste of actual combat in last night's game. It marked the opening of their season, although the games will not count officially on the card.

Close Ball Game

The Phants played the South Carolina team toe-to-toe throughout most of the ball game and held a 25-20 lead over the visitors at halftime. In the third quarter, however, Bishop England recorded a hot 15-point period, while the G-Men were held to only eight. They never managed to catch up after that.

The first quarter of play was a rather slow one, with both teams showing the raggedness that is usually apparent at the first of a season. Bishop England tallied 13 points, one better than Greenville.

In the second period, the Green club snatched a spark and forged ahead in the scoring race, pumping in a total of 12 points, while their opponents could muster only eight. Pacing the Phantom floor attack during this spurt were John Wesley Hudson and Walker Allen, along with Mack Roebuck and Bobby Edwards, who came in as substitute guards. Dick Evans and Peanut Nunn were the top rebounders and also did their share of the scoring here.

No Rebounds

"The thing that beat us," said Coach Farley this morning, "was not getting our share of the rebounds in that third quarter." The Phants went for a stretch of five or six minutes without nabbing a rebound or making a point.

"There was a stretch there, when Charleston got hot and came from five points behind to five points ahead, before we could even get started," Farley said.

This happened at the beginning of the disastrous third period.

After this brief but decisive flurry, the Phantoms managed to get back into the ball game and almost matched Bishop England in the final period's scoring. Greenville tallied 12; BE got 13.

Robert Radcliffe, a 6-4 center for the Bishop England quintet, took high scoring honors with 21 points. Dick Evans was high for GHS with 11.

The Bishop England outfit was a tall club, taller even than the Phants, who average close to 6-2. The South Carolina team included two boys at 6-4 and one 6-5 player.

Tonight

"We're having a tough time scoring," Farley said, summing up his team's play thus far. "And we're not getting any points from our center position all night."

"I'm hoping that we're just in a slump. We certainly can't keep this up all season. Maybe the boys are having their slump now instead of later."

Farley stated that the Camden team, which lost to Wilmington 78-42, was even bigger than Charleston on tonight's tactics, Farley said, "We're going to keep shuffling them around in there to see who can score. Maybe we'll hit the right combination tonight."

Next week, December 10, the Phantoms play host to Wilmington in the new Junius H. Rose high school gymnasium for the first home tilt of the season.

Harold Bullard Among Top Small College Scorers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Harold Bullard of Lenoir Rhyne and Lou Biacchi of Catawba ended the 1957 football season in the top offensive rankings among small colleges, according to National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics statistics.

Bullard, whose team won the North State Conference race for the third straight year, was third in individual scoring nationally with 102 points.

Biacchi ranked 10th in passing yardage, gaining 760 yards for an average of 109.8 yards a game. Lenoir Rhyne as a team placed third in rushing with 418.2 yards a game.

South Carolina State, ranking high in both passing and rushing defense, was fourth nationally, allowing opponents 122 yards a game. North Carolina A&T was seventh at 144.2.

Richard Branch of Elizabeth City, N.C. Teachers was ninth in individual statistics with an average of 110.1 yards gained per game.

Eion as a team was 10th in pass defense, allowing opponents 46.2 yards a game.

Browns Can Wrap Up Title

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
The Associated Press

The Cleveland Browns, occupying the driver's seat in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League, can wrap up the division title Sunday with a tie or victory over the Detroit Lions.

The Browns-Lions game at Detroit highlights a weekend in NFL circles with intriguing possibilities offered if Detroit can upend mighty Cleveland. The Browns probably will be without the services of their injured first-string quarterback, Tommy O'Connell.

The Detroit players also will be awaiting the outcome of the Baltimore-Cincinnati game at Baltimore today. The Colts, leading the Western Conference, can clinch at least a tie for the championship by winning even if Detroit keeps pace with them.

On the other hand, Detroit and San Francisco victories can throw the race into a triple tie. All three teams would have 7-4 records.

The New York Giants hoped to keep their Eastern crown hopes alive by defeating the Pittsburgh Steelers today. If the Giants lost, they would be eliminated no matter what Cleveland does against Detroit.

A Giants' triumph and a Browns setback would call for a championship showdown contest a week from Sunday when the two teams clash in New York.

In other games Sunday the Chicago Bears meet their cross-town rivals, the Chicago Cards; the Green Bay Packers visit the Los Angeles Rams; and the Washington Redskins entertain the Philadelphia Eagles.

These encounters involve the bottom three teams in each conference with nothing at stake except prestige and a chance to improve their positions in the standings.

Winterville Is Winner Of Two

FARMVILLE—Winterville invaded Farmville high school last night for a pair of Pitt County basketball games and racked up two impressive victories over the just-starting Red Devils.

Delayed by conflicting sports, the Devils went into the game with only nine days of practice, according to reports.

Winterville, on the other hand, brought two strong clubs here. The girls, one of the top-flight sextets in the County, made easy work of their 50-35 victory. Dorothy Evans, Winterville sharpshooter, topped all scorers for the night with 32 points.

Farmville's next game will be played Tuesday, December 10, at Ayden and will be a Pitt County tilt.

Ayden Splits 2 Tilts With Bath

AYDEN—The Ayden Tornados, playing their second ball games of the season, split a pair of games here last night with Bath. The local boys took a 52-46 victory (their second) and the girls were defeated, 65-40.

Edwards and Norris paced the scoring for the winning boys, with 14 and 13 points respectively.

In the girls game, Woolard and H. Brooks paced the winners.

Next week, Tuesday, Ayden plays host to arch-foe Farmville in a Pitt County Conference tilt.

Pitt, Miami Get One Last Chance

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Pitt and the University of Miami get a last chance today in the Orange Bowl to salvage some measure of prestige from disappointing football seasons.

The Pitt Panthers rule seven points favorites.

Outweighed 20 pounds per man, the Hurricane has been working on its passing attack and with little to lose may switch from its usual ground game.

The game, beginning at 4 p.m. (EST), will be televised by NBC.

Miami gained its 4-4 record with victories over Baylor, Florida State, Kansas and Villanova; losses to Houston, Maryland, North Carolina State and Florida; and a tie with North Carolina.

Complaints Turned To Joy

CINCINNATI (AP)—How about a home with a drive-in motion picture theater thrown in?

Home owners in one block of the Oakley section of Cincinnati have one just off their back yards.

They complained when the drive-in theater opened just behind them. Their complaints turned to joy, however, when the theater operators provided each home with a sound box so they could hear the show as well as see it from back porch or yard.

New Hospital Addition Also Hinges On 'Other Folks'

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

"Other folks" are going to have a lot to say about any addition to existing facilities at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

What's more, they'll have their say before the idea is even formally presented to Pitt County voters. As a matter of fact, what those "other folks" say will determine largely the questions the voters will be asked to decide in a special election which was authorized by the Board of County Commissioners in its meeting Monday.

The situation is not unusual for construction projects involving use of public funds, particularly when those funds are to include state and federal appropriations in addition to local money.

Action by the commissioners was the first part of a five-phase program that should eventually bring the bond issue before voters. In authorizing the election, the commissioners gave the hospital's Board of Trustees authority to make a formal application for approval of the work by the North Carolina Medical Care Commission and federal agencies.

The Federal Care Commission and federal representatives will follow-up the application by sending an inspection team to survey and inspect the hospital. After the inspection, the team will make its recommendations regarding expansion and if the recommendations are favorable the hospital board will authorize its architect to complete construction plans in keeping with the inspection team's recommendations.

Recommendations by the Medical Care Commission and federal agencies will swing a lot of weight in the architect's planning, because they will set forth exactly what the state and federal government will support in the way of an addition. Under present circumstances, the financial support is expected to equal at least 50 per cent of costs of the addition.

When the architect completes his work, the hospital trustees will study his plans, make whatever adjustments are necessary (with approval of the state and federal agencies) and finally determine the size of the bond issue and tax levy to be presented for voters' approval.

As things stand now, ballots which the voters will use are a long way from the printing press.

For one thing, the hospital board can't set any definite cost estimates until the state and federal representatives have their say about the need and size of any addition. Then, too, the board can't authorize the architect to go ahead with final ideas until they get the go-ahead from the out-of-county people.

Although there is a sort of vagueness of tentativeness about the situation now, the idea of the need of an addition to Pitt Memorial has been accepted by hospital officials since at least 1954. That was only three years after the 130-bed structure was built at a cost of more than $1,400,000.

Under present arrangements, the 130-bed title the hospital has is misleading. There have been few occasions when there were more than 130 patients in the hospital, but the facilities are becoming increasingly cramped.

For instance, the 130-bed total is divided in 29 private beds, 42 semi-private beds and 49 ward beds. There are other divisions among those accommodations, with certain areas set aside for various medical classifications, areas for female patients, areas for male patients, and similar situations.

Under that set-up, there can be empty beds in female patient areas while areas set aside for male patients are overflowing. And the idea of mixing such patients is as remote as putting a patient to a room with a "clean" patient (one whose illness is such that it offers no danger to anyone else).

Hospital Administrator C. D. Ward, citing operating figures at the hospital, says that when the per-day patient level goes above 90, the hospital's facilities are taxed. When the daily census is over 100, it's crowded—and the average number of patients treated during the month of November was 105, including babies in the maternity section. Without including the babies in the November daily average, the average was 103.

The November daily average set a record for the hospital, but it represents the general trend in the use of facilities there. In 1951, the hospital averaged 64 patients per day. By 1954 the average has climbed to 79.2 and for the first 11 months of 1957, the daily average is 95.2 patients per day.

It is a natural condition to have all facilities in the hospital swamped when the beds are filled. That is the condition they are in now, the hospital officials say.

The officials believe, however, they can ease the whole situation with at least 70 more beds. They plan to ask the state and federal people for that much space in a four-story addition to be placed at the rear of the existing building.

In addition to increasing the number of beds, the proposed expansion would provide increased facilities in surgical operating rooms, X-ray rooms, laboratory space, and new rooms for medical, surgical and pediatric patients.

First formal call for the expansion program was made in March 1955 by a committee headed by Dr. Fred P. Brooks. The committee's study, which was submitted to the hospital's Board of Trustees, cited marked increases in all phases of the hospital's services and the need for an expansion program "before overcrowding becomes a serious hazard to the proper functioning of the hospital".

Trustees of the hospital have conducted further studies since the report of the Brooks committee and their action in requesting authorization of a bond election is the result of those studies, Ward said. The resolution presented to the County Commissioners said, in part, "... the hospital had reached the danger stage due to overcrowding, overflows and excessive use of services ... at the plant."

When the trustees set the resolution to the commissioners, they were frank to admit they could not estimate costs of the addition for reasons cited above. There is a general attitude, however, that the costs will not be as much as they might be if the hospital were starting from nothing.

Completely new hospital construction now is pegged at about $15,000 per bed, which includes cost figures for rooms and auxiliary services such as operating rooms, labs, heating plant, dietary sections, and similar services.

There is some speculation that the cost might run between $12,000 per bed, which was what the original Pitt Memorial Hospital cost, and the new figure but it might be less depending on what the architect comes up with in his final plans.

Churchmen Concerned By Rising Shortage Of Clergy

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Writer

A number of church denominations are becoming downright alarmed about a shortage of clergymen that promises to become more acute as the years go by.

The Very Rev. Francis E. Moriarty, president of Roman Catholic St. Michael's College in Vermont, took note of the situation at a recent President's Day Mass at the college.

"In the age-old archdiocese of Sens, France," he said, "there are 520 parishes and only 220 priests. In our own North Carolina ... two of our priests have to cover 2,000 square miles."

"This is a problem to which we must address ourselves."

Two Protestant denominations already are addressing themselves to the problem.

The Lutheran Church of Finland has reduced by one year the period of study required for ordination in an effort to fill 80 pastoral vacancies, most of them in sparsely settled areas.

Henceforth, students at the faculty of theology of the University of Helsinki will be eligible for degrees after 4½ years of study. Present term is 5½ years.

The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) has inaugurated an experimental program aimed frankly at the recruitment of ministerial students.

Two pilot guidance and recruitment conferences were held recently in California with 155 high school students, who had expressed interest in church careers, being tested for psychological fitness.

High scorers on the tests will receive church guidance in planning their scholastic careers with a definite commitment being sought when they are college juniors.

The Rev. Jay R. Calhoun, director of the Christian Church's United Christian Missionary Society, figures the present complement of 3,400 full-time ministers must be increased to at least 4,500 by 1975 "to maintain the present proportion of ministers to church members."

There are rumors that both the opposition NBC-TV and CBS-TV were fearful that Sinatra would clobber them in the audience ratings. At present, however, Mr. Adams and Eve on CBS-TV is running ahead of Sinatra in the nationwide Trendex ratings. On NBC-TV M Squad is only slightly behind him.

What is wrong with the Sinatra show?

Before his fans start writing nasty letters, let me say that I'm a Sinatra fan too. I think he's a fine singer. To my mind he's one of the best actors visible.

Unfortunately, Sinatra has not yet sufficiently displayed his acting talents on his weekly TV show.

Without knowing anything about his TV production schedule, I get the impression from watching his shows that they have been put together in great haste. A regular weekly TV variety show is almost a full-time job for any performer; care and diligence pay off when the show goes on the air.

I also get the impression that Sinatra is doing something he never has done in the movies or in his outstanding guest appearances on Dinah Shore's TV show: He is condescending to his audience.

Perhaps that impression of disdain is created by his opening spot, in which he hands his hat to one person, his coat to another, and steps upon a pedestal. Jimmy Durante used to handle the hat and coat routine with great warmth in his TV show; it's wrong for Sinatra.

Let's hope Sinatra makes the improvements he reportedly will try to achieve.

Sinatra To Strive For A Better Show

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Sinatra will try to improve his weekly Friday night ABC-TV show.

He plans to do more musicals and more live shows. Finding that he works better before an audience, he will so perform all his musicals on television.

Thus far, his weekly program has been a disappointment to many viewers. It held great expectations; it was one of the most widely publicized of the season's new programs.

'Lost Colony' In Financial Crisis

RALEIGH (AP)—"The Lost Colony" pageant is faced with a financial crisis after winding up the 1957 season with a net loss of $13,391.71.

To meet the situation, the Roanoke Island Historical Assn. voted yesterday to increase reserved seat admissions for the drama from $2.50 to $3 each, and to push a campaign for life memberships at $100 each.

Despite financial woes, the outlook is for the pageant to be "bigger and better" than ever next season, according to Paul Green, author of the drama. In suggesting the increase in reserve seat rates, Green noted that other outdoor dramas charge a $3 top.

R. E. Jordan, general manager of the drama, said unfavorable weather, the mosquito problem and the attraction of the Jamestown Festival in neighboring Virginia were factors which contributed to the poor season. He told the association approximately $19,000 must be raised to open the 1958 season debt free.

Under state law, the drama is eligible for $10,000 in state funds since a loss occurred. This was not mentioned at the meeting. The pageant showed a profit during the 1956 season.

Robert Lee Humber of Greenville was re-elected chairman of the association. Miles Clark of Elizabeth City was named vice chairman to succeed Russell Grumman of Chapel Hill. The group named U. S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. of Morganton as an honorary vice chairman.

Elected to the board of directors were George Ivey of Charlotte, Watts Hill Jr. of Durham, James A. Gray of Winston-Salem, and George Geoghegan of Raleigh.

Courses On Tax Returns Planned

A short course covering the preparation of farm and small business income tax returns will be conducted here Dec. 12 and 13, Farm Agent S. C. Winchester announced today.

The course, to be conducted by the Extension Division of N. C. State College, will be given in the Fellowship Hall, at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

"This course will be of particular interest to those farmers and small businessmen who prepare their own tax returns and to others who do this work on a part-time basis during the tax season," Winchester said. "A feature of the course will be the evening session on Dec. 12 when these officials will participate in a panel discussion of problems presented by those attending the course."

Representatives of both the State and Federal Internal Revenue Departments and the Social Security Administration will be present to answer questions.

Winchester said that advance registration is encouraged because of the interest in the course throughout Eastern North Carolina.

Application blanks may be obtained from the Farm Agent's office or directly from Eugene Starnes, assistant director, Division of College Extension, N. C. State College, Box 5125, Raleigh, N. C.

Handcuffed, And Had No Keys

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—While toying with a pair of old-time, Navy-type handcuffs, Patrolman Roy Sneed of suburban River Oaks idly hooked one of the loops over his wrist.

Sneed had no key. Frantically he called the sheriff's office, the FBI, U. S. marshal, Fort Worth police, state highway patrol, Naval Reserve and air police.

Air police had a key that would fit, but before they could get the key to Sneed, State Highway Patrolman Henry Cornelius picked the lock and freed him.

Surgeon Thinks Infection Fears Are Dwindling

By FRANK CAREY
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The rise of the wonder drugs has made doctors less careful about germ precautions in hospitals and operating rooms, a Philadelphia surgeon said today.

Dr. H. Taylor Caswell of Temple University Hospital told the closing session of the American Medical Assn.'s 11th annual clinical meeting: "The medical profession has come to regard the problem of infection much less seriously than it did prior to the development of antibiotics. We are now in an era when this attitude must be changed."

Declaring that certain strains of staphylococci germs have become resistant to most of the wonder drugs and that they present "a serious problem in hospitalized patients," Dr. Caswell said: "A return to the most strict hospital techniques (of sterilization) is essential. Unless this is done, successful control of infections in hospital patients with antibiotic resistant staphylococci is doomed to failure."

The surgeon said, "One of the most important means of spread of the organism is by direct contact with personnel or patients with active infection or by direct contact with heavily contaminated surfaces."

These wily bugs, he said, have been reported as sources of infections in newborn babies as breast abscesses in the respiratory tract as a form of pneumonia; and in severe types of stomach or intestinal inflammation in postoperative surgical patients.

He indicated that sharp reductions in such infections is possible.

Circled Island On His Unicycle

HONOLULU (AP)—James Crockett, a 20-year old sailor stationed here, rode around the island of Oahu on a unicycle. He did it on a bet.

The trip, some 94 miles, took him 27½ hours, with rest and eating stops. One friend led the way on a regular bicycle, another followed in a car.

Dr. James G. Joyce will preach on Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service, beginning his term as Interim Pastor for First Presbyterian Church. The Sunday School will be conducted at 9:45 A.M., and there is a class for every age group.

The proposed budget for the year 1958 has been completed by the Board of Deacons, and approved by the Church officers. A copy of this proposed budget will be presented at an annual congregational meeting to be held after a covered dish supper at the Church at 6 P.M. on Sunday, December 8. Also, at this meeting, the nominating committee will present a slate of elders and deacons for election. Nominations will also be accepted from the floor.

Jessie R. Moyer is chairman of the nominating committee. Serving with him are Dr. J. O. Reynolds, C. K. Beatty, Jack Gates, and Mrs. I. B. Boone.

Youth meetings at the First Presbyterian Church have been changed for Sunday evening, December 8 in order that the young people may attend the fellowship dinner which will be held at the scheduled hour of regular youth meetings.

In an impressive service conducted last Sunday morning during the worship service, the superintendent and teachers in the Sunday School were installed. F. Richard Atkinson and M. P. Bailey as superintendent and associate superintendent will succeed Macdonald Carr and Harry Allen. The visiting minister, the Rev. Tom Davis conducted the installation.

Although they look similar, ravens are twice as large as crows.
