

Massive Evacuation Said Only Answer To A-Bombs

RALEIGH (AP) — Evacuation would be the key to survival in the event a North Carolina area was the target of an atomic attack, state officials were told today.

State Sen. Wilbur M. Jolly of Franklin County, director of a Civil Defense survival plan project, said movement of people from densely populated areas would be the only alternative in the absence of "massive" underground shelters for protection.

Jolly outlined work thus far on the survival plan at a briefing for state and local officials, conducted by state and federal Civil Defense leaders.

In opening the briefing, Gov. Hodges warned that the United States, for the first time since assuming leadership of the free world, now is "negotiating with Soviet leaders from an apparent position of weakness."

Launching of the Russian satellite has demonstrated, he said, "that the Soviet Union has the means to produce the intercontinental ballistic missile."

Brig. Gen. Edward F. Griffin, state Civil Defense director, conducted the briefing. Thomas H. Goodman of Thomasville, Ga., regional federal Civil Defense administrator, reported on the status of survival planning in southeastern states.

North Carolina is the first state in the southeast and the fourth in the nation to hold a briefing on the progress of its survival plan.

The project, financed by the federal government, has been under way for some time.

Much work remains to be done on the North Carolina plan, Jolly said. A major project in the next few months, he pointed out, will be preparations for the removal of state government from Raleigh to another county in the event of an attack.

Preliminary evacuation plans already have been completed, Jolly reported, for the state's seven likely "target areas" of Buncombe, Guilford, Mecklenburg, Durham, Wake, New Hanover, and Forsyth counties.

"We now know how and where we will evacuate our people, but we must yet plan for their food requirements, lodging, clothing, and medical needs, and for the reuniting of dispersed families," he continued.

Construction of bomb shelters and "a detailed accounting of our statewide supplies and where located, which would include every item from drugs and medicines to bulldozers" are things for future planning, Jolly reminded.

In the event of an attack, state Civil Defense channels of command would be set up directly from the governor, through the state director, down the line to area, county and city directors, Jolly reported.

Earlier, Hodges had asserted that until the United States proves her strength "by successful launching of an intercontinental ballistic missile, her position of world leadership has been shaken and will continue to be insecure. "It is only common sense to assume that the greatest deterrent to enemy aggression ... is to achieve a state of total readiness," he asserted.

"The survival of our nation depends upon the ability of state and local governments to continue to carry out their responsibilities in the event of massive nuclear attack," Gov. Hodges added.

Gov. Hodges said the "possibility of attempted conquest of the free world by a coldly calculating dictator of a totalitarian government has been with us for some time. Recently, it seems that such aggression could be started, adventurously or inadvertently, by a dictator who is not only capable of cold calculation, but who could be given to irresponsible and reckless acts."

Hodges outlined the goals of Civil Defense and asserted its two major aims are: One, "to prepare for continuity of government in emergency ... and two, 'to prepare for sound and effective radiological defense against nuclear attack, particularly upon people, animals and crops.'"

The governor noted that North Carolina was the first state in the southeast and the fourth in the nation to schedule a briefing of government officials on the progress of its survival plan. Preparation of the final survival plan for the state will begin shortly after Christmas, he asserted.

'Probable Cause' Found To Hold Wetzel For Trial For Murder

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP)—Judge W. A. Leland McKeithan today found there was probable cause to hold Frank Edward Wetzel for trial on a murder charge in the slaying of a state highway patrolman last Nov. 5.

The Superior Court judge, sitting as a committing magistrate at a hearing here, ordered the 36-year-old escapee from a New York State mental hospital held without privilege of bond for trial in the slaying of Patrolman Wister Lee Reece, 39.

Among the three witnesses who testified at the hearing was Robert Terry, 30, Negro from Norman, who hitchhiked with Wetzel and identified him as the man who shot Reece.

It was the second time today that Terry had identified Wetzel as the slayer. Earlier, he had picked Wetzel out of an eight-man lineup at Central Prison in Raleigh.

Wetzel, arrested in Bakersfield, Calif., two weeks ago after a nationwide search, is charged with murder in the pistol slaying of both Reece and another highway patrolman, J. T. Brown.

Brown was shot an hour after Reece at Sanford, 60 miles from Ellerbe in central North Carolina.

Terry said he jumped from the car and hid in a roadside ditch after the Reece slaying.

Wetzel, who has not yet obtained a lawyer, questioned Terry at the hearing.

Then Wetzel was taken back to Central Prison to await trial in Richmond Superior Court here. Solicitor M. G. Boyette said he expects to prosecute the case at the term of court opening Jan. 6.

Wetzel said that right after the slaying Terry was quoted in newspapers as saying the gunman was 24 to 25 years old, about 135 pounds, and of Latin descent. Wetzel weighs about 160 and is 36 years old.

Terry answered Wetzel that his description of the age and weight were only approximations.

In regard to the Latin descent, Terry said: "I tried to describe you complexion as it appeared to me."

Wetzel asked Terry: "What nationality would you say I am now?"

"White," Terry replied. Wetzel asked Terry if he positively identified him, and Terry nodded his head in assent.

Terry testified he was picked up at Asheboro about 7:30 p.m. and the motorist drove at a very high speed. He said they were stopped by a patrol car, and the man who had given him a ride got a pistol out of the glove compartment.

"I started begging please, please, please don't do that," said Terry. "The man replied, 'I've got to do it.' Then, after I had jumped out of the car and hid in a ditch, I heard the pistol fire one time."

Boyette asked him: "Do you see the driver of that car now?"

"I do, sir," said Terry, and when asked to point him out, pointed at Wetzel, who showed no emotion.

Dr. C. L. Ingalls testified that Reece was dead on arrival at a Rockingham hospital with a bullet wound in the upper abdomen. State Highway Patrolman H. L. Covington testified that on the night of the slaying he was visiting his mother-in-law about 300 feet from the scene.

"I heard a siren blow. I looked out the window and saw two cars come to a stop," Covington said. He continued: "I heard a shot and went toward the scene. As I was going out of the house, the other car left the scene at a very rapid rate of speed, so fast its tires were screeching on the highway."

He told of finding Reece lying on the highway about four feet from his patrol car, which was on the shoulder of the road.

"He had a hole in his stomach, a very clean little hole," Covington said.

The Richmond County courtroom, which seats 580, was jammed with a standing-room-only crowd estimated at 750.

Terry, a lay preacher, told newsmen that at the very start of the prison line-up he eliminated six men. He went on: "At first glance I was pretty sure I recognized Wetzel. I asked him and another man whether they read the Bible. Wetzel said he never had very much. The other man had read the Bible and knew the Ten Commandments. I recognized Wetzel both from his appearance and from the sound of his voice."

Terry also told newsmen he was helped in recognizing Wetzel "by his shifty eyes, and because he looked like a child who had done something wrong."

Terry said he "hated to point the finger at Wetzel because I have a feeling of sympathy for him, he is undoubtedly feeling sorry."

Wetzel was whisked to the lineup in Central Prison immediately after his arrival here by train from California, where he was arrested two weeks ago.

Brisk Business

City collections continued at a lively pace during November and nearly two-thirds of the anticipated revenue for the fiscal year was reported in by City Clerk H. H. Duncan.

Total general fund and city debt service collections for the month were $52,510.11, Duncan reported. That brought the totals for the first five months of the fiscal year to $435,903.02 and it leaves a balance of $289,554.79 to be collected.

Duncan listed the following collections during November: current taxes, $17,354.05; prior years taxes, $681.09; beer tax, $15,775.23; privilege license, $466.40; court cost, $1,329.50; parking meter, $1,710.95; building-plumbing permit, $318.50; rents, $405; fingerprint service, $37; cemetery lots, $907.50; Utilities Commission turnover, $12,500; miscellaneous, $525.26.

Film Tells Cause Of Rocket Flop

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Vanguard experts think they may have found exactly what went wrong with the big satellite-bearing rocket that burned on its launching stand Friday.

They believe the cause of the trouble is quite clearly indicated in 20,000 feet of motion picture film, taken at many different angles, and in pictures from still cameras. But they are giving no hint as to the nature of their discovery.

The film has been flown to Washington for analysis by the Naval Research Laboratory. That is the agency in charge of Project Vanguard, the U.S. program to put artificial moons into orbit around the earth.

It was learned that the motion picture films included some of the most dramatic footage of its kind ever made—several hundred shots, all in color, of the rocket before it was ignited, during its fruitless struggle to launch itself, and to its destruction by fire.

The black and white footage of this sequence reportedly was lost because those particular still cameras went up in smoke.

throughout the weekend to clean up the launching area and assemble data that may help explain the failure and prevent a recurrence.

One party of Vanguard engineers reportedly returned to Washington Saturday with fairly well-fixed opinions as to what had caused the accident.

The film developed after they left probably will change their minds, one source said.

The original Defense Department announcement of the rocket failure attributed it to loss of chamber pressure in the first of the three rocket stages. The General Electric Co. built the rocket motor for the first stage.

In Cincinnati the day after the accident, Louis Michelson, manager of GE's rocket engine section, said films of the launching attempt showed clearly that "the engine operated correctly and that the cause of the failure was elsewhere in the missile."

Michelson added that most of the GE engine parts were recovered, and an examination confirmed that the first-stage engine had not been at fault.

Another Escape At Prison Camp Sunday Morning

A two-county search has been instigated for a Pitt County convict who escaped early yesterday morning.

Assistant Superintendent Howard Warrick identified the escapee as Jimmie Cahoon 35-year-old white man whose address is listed as New Bern. Cahoon was serving a seven to ten year sentence on charges of worthless checks.

At the time of his successful escape Cahoon was an honor grade prisoner serving as a cook in the camp's kitchen. Warrick stated, "From all indications he just walked out of the kitchen."

Warrick stated a guard said he saw Cahoon around 3 a.m. in the kitchen preparing breakfast. The guard said he made another check a half-hour later and could not find the convict. He has not been seen since that time.

A two-county search has been formed by the Prison Department, members of the Pitt Sheriff's Department and the Highway Patrol.

The escape was the second in four days at the Pitt Camp. John Richard Buck and Jessie Whitehurst who escaped from a road gang near Galloway's Cross Roads last Thursday afternoon were apprehended late Friday night and returned to confinement early Saturday.

Ailing Prison Officer Improved

The condition of Capt. Paul Crawford, Superintendent of Pitt County Prison Camp 208, was described as "improved" this morning.

Crawford suffered a mild stroke early Saturday afternoon while at work in his office. He was transferred to Pitt Memorial Hospital shortly after his attack.

He has been afflicted with the North Carolina Prison Department for over 20 years, having served 18 years as Superintendent of the Pitt Prison Camp.

Argentine Plane Crash Killed 62

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—An Argentine airliner taking holidaymakers to an Andes mountain resort crashed yesterday in a thunderstorm 180 miles southwest of here. All 62 persons aboard were killed.

Heavy storms interrupted communications and blocked roads near the crash. A four-man police patrol reached the wreckage and confirmed the disaster, worst in Argentine aviation history.

The DC4 of the state-owned Aerolineas Argentinas left Ezeiza Airport on the outskirts of Buenos Aires with 55 passengers and seven crew members. Their destination was San Carlos de Bariloche, a small Andes resort town 700 miles southwest of Buenos Aires.

The four-engine plane apparently crashed and burned after the pilot tried unsuccessfully to make an emergency landing at a ranch, in the cattle country near Bolivar. Removal of the bodies was delayed by storms which lashed a large part of the country. Trucks could not move on the muddy roads and helicopters were requested for work at the scene.

The airline said it could not determine the nationality of all the passengers immediately because many had not given that information when they booked passage. It appeared likely, however, that all aboard were either Argentine citizens or persons living in the country.

Several other planes caught in the storm were forced to return to airports, and the Buenos Aires city airport halted takeoffs.

Play The Game Of Santa Claus, Says Psychologist

DURHAM (AP)—Christmas is coming. And what shall you teach your toddler who is just beginning to hear about Santa Claus?

The answer is given by a Duke University psychologist: Play the game with your child as long as he has a completely innocent delight in his magic; then, as he grows older and more critical in his judgments, answer his questions honestly but point out the fun of pretending.

Dr. Gelolo McHugh told an interviewer here that "children who know the spirit of Christmas will enjoy it much more than those who think some magic (Santa Claus) is going to dump a load of toys in their lap."

The child, he added, eventually should begin to participate "in the adult joys of sharing with and loving other people."

Army, Navy Rocket Scientists Step Up Pace To Match Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army and Navy rocket scientists intensified their efforts today to match Soviet achievements in space in the wake of Friday's satellite launching fizzle.

There were strong indications that efforts would be made to keep the glare of worldwide publicity off the projects until a U. S. satellite is fired into the skies where two Russian Sputniks now are whirling around the earth.

There has been no official confirmation that the Army will move actively into the satellite-launching effort, but an informed civilian source said the Army has been given firm orders to go ahead.

Heretofore the U. S. satellite program has been under exclusive direction of the Navy, now preparing for a new launching attempt after the test failure at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Officially, the Army has been under somewhat vague orders to prepare for a satellite launching. Army missilemen will use their Jupiter-C test vehicle—a rocket device they have claimed could have beaten the Russians into space by six months.

Target dates for new launching attempts by either the Navy or the Army appeared unlikely to be announced in view of the controversy over the wide publicity which preceded the Navy Project's failure.

President Eisenhower was expected to receive a full report on the Navy's Vanguard test failure within the next couple of days. He already has received a brief preliminary report, not made public.

Vice President Nixon called for Americans to abandon a "defeatist and self-deprecating attitude," he said he found after Friday's satellite fizzle.

Stressing that Vanguard is a scientific and not a military project, Nixon said Americans should leave their "weeping walls" and get on with a missile program that will top the Russians. "Sure we failed," he said. "We have before and we will again. But we need to keep our sense of proportion. We haven't overnight lost our sense of proportion, or ability to get things done."

At Cape Canaveral, meanwhile, a bustle of activity appeared to signify a busy week ahead in other missile fields. Newsmen observing the American missile test center speculated that launchings might include both the 1,500-mile Jupiter and the Air Force Atlas—a 5,000-mile-range weapon.

There also were signs of preparations for firing an Army Redstone 200-mile range rocket and an Air Force 1,500-mile Thor, observers said.

Newsmen watching the test stands from nearby beaches saw no indications of Army preparations to launch a satellite-bearing Jupiter-C, or of another Navy attempt to put an earth satellite into space.

Spokesmen at Cape Canaveral ended their briefings for newsmen with an announcement that further information would have to come from project headquarters in Washington.

Announced success in test-firing a Thor late Saturday lightened the gloom over the Vanguard failure. The Pentagon called the Thor firing a success, but later qualified the announcement by saying the missile had fallen short of its assigned target—how much short it didn't say.

That Thor was said to be the first U. S. missile with an inertial guidance system—a technical marvel permitting extreme accuracy in flight control.

The A-C Sparkplug Division of General Motors Corp. announced in Milwaukee that Air Force orders had been received for volume production of such guidance systems for the Thor missile. Martin J. Caserio, manager of A-C's Milwaukee operation, said his division has been building Thor guidance systems on a limited production basis for some months, and that the new orders will "boost output tremendously as ballistic missile production grows." Saying that "gigantic strides have been made," Caserio added that "accuracy of our guidance can be described only as fantastic."

... If a plane equipped with A-C guidance was flown from Milwaukee to Los Angeles, it would arrive over the runway without the pilot once touching the controls.

Kennan said that short of an intrusion by Soviet troops in the Middle East, "there is nothing that could happen there that would be worth the risk of a world war."

LONDON (AP)—George F. Kennan, former top State Department policy planner, last night urged the West to reduce its dependence on the Suez Canal and Middle East oil. Speaking of areas susceptible to Red penetration, Kennan said: "Until we learn to live without these people, we shall find it hard to live with them."

AFL-CIO Leaders Attack Stress On Corrupt Labor

By NORMAN WALKER

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Union leaders aimed an AFL-CIO convention blast at the Senate Rackets Committee in Washington today for allegedly concentrating on labor corruption and going light on management sins.

These views are contained in a resolution drafted by federation leaders for expected convention approval.

It says the year long investigations conducted by the group headed by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) are one-sided, and it calls for equally ardent exposure of management malpractices.

Firemen Rally To Save Dog House

Firemen, who've been called to everything from chicken coop blazes to burning house trailers, came up with a new one during the weekend.

A dog house fire brought out the big red fire trucks shortly before 6:30 Saturday evening.

It was located at the home of James R. Crawford at 121 A. St. Fire department records showed that an electric wire leading from the dwelling to the dog house shorted out causing the blaze.

The dog apparently wasn't burned out of house and home, however. Firemen reported damage light.

McClellan's committee has exposed some alleged employer sins at its hearings, particularly in connection with the operations of Nathan Shefferman, a Chicago management consultant on labor relations, but hearings have been mainly concentrated on wrongdoing of labor leaders.

AFL-CIO convention sessions, in recess over the weekend after the Friday expulsion of the Teamsters Union, get under way again today with another expulsion action due against the Bakery and Confectionary Workers Union.

Federation leaders were reported to have decided to make the Bakery Union's expulsion effective next March 15 unless the union ousts union President James G. Cross by then. A special Bakers convention is scheduled for March 3-5 at Cincinnati to elect officers.

Cross has refused to quit his union post, despite testimony before McClellan's committee that he had compromising ties with employers and misused his union's funds and powers.

James R. Hoffa, president-elect of the Teamsters, similarly was implicated in the Senate hearings and like Cross refused to accept an AFL-CIO mandate to get out of his union.

AFL-CIO leaders said the resolution on the conduct of the McClellan committee's hearings will make clear they want and welcome aid in exposing labor corruption but feel there are plenty of management practices that need exposing too.

"We feel the hearings have been one-sided," said one top AFL-CIO leader privately. "We don't think labor should be singled out. There are 10 cases of business corruption for every one in labor. There shouldn't be one standard for labor and another standard for business, not in a democracy."

Leaders said that squads of internal revenue agents are presently examining union leader expense accounts for possible income tax violations, but that there is no similar drive on businessmen's expense accounts.

Safe Turned Up At Picnic Table

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—Highway patrolman W. C. Saunders was cruising on U.S. 29 three miles east of here yesterday when he saw a safe near a picnic table.

The safe had been opened, but Saunders found inside some $700 in checks made out to the Atlantic Coast Life Insurance Co.

Investigation showed that the safe had been stolen during the night from the firm's office in Spartanburg. S.C. Police at Spartanburg said the safe had contained some $700 in cash.

The firm didn't know the safe had been stolen until notified it had been found 60 miles away.

Transforms School Project Into Business

By MARTHA PIERCE
Reflector Teen Writer

When Christmas lights go up and the Yule spirit begins to take over, young people in the city of Greenville start looking around for money-making projects to buy presents.

In addition to the usual ways of making money, such as taking a job in a downtown store, or selling Christmas cards, some of them come up with ingenious schemes.

Turning a grade school Christmas project into a Christmas business for himself shows the good business sense of Mac MacKenzie, a freshman at Junius H. Rose High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray MacKenzie of Circle Drive.

Frosted Candles

By giving his consumers a product that they want, several sizes of frosted Christmas candles, Mac says that he has no trouble selling his Christmas decorations.

"The price is reasonable, especially considering the amount of time it takes to make them. I have sold as many as eight candles to a person. I've had about 30 orders so far this year and delivered a large batch of them last week."

Beginning capital came from Mac's father and the first profits went to pay him for the materials. This is the second year that Mac has made money selling candles. "Last year most of the money was taken to pay for the materials, and I didn't make very much, but things are turning out better this year," comments Mac.

Process

"The candles are fairly simple to make. If you have the time and patience. First I melt the paraffin body of the candle together with hot paraffin. Then I fix the base of the candle in the same way. I use a popcorn popper to melt the paraffin, and I make the frosting outside by mixing hot paraffin with an electric mixer."

Mac makes the candles and keeps his materials in a workshop in the backyard of his home.

Student Edits Pi Omega Pi Nat'l Yearbook

Publication of the PI OMEGAN, yearbook of the national business education fraternity Pi Omega Pi, has just been completed on the campus of East Carolina College. Copies of the book have been sent to chapters of the fraternity located at 103 colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Olivier Williams of Rocky Mount, national student representative of the organization, with the assistance of members of the Beta Kappa Chapter of East Carolina, edited the annual publication. He is a senior at East Carolina.

The yearbook includes information about the activities of the various Pi Omega Pi chapters, the national organization, and the 1956 delegate convention held in Chicago. Also included is a picture and article about East Carolina's Beta Kappa Chapter, which was acclaimed the outstanding chapter in the country in 1957.

Copies of the book have also been reserved to be sent to colleges where prospective chapters of Pi Omega Pi are being organized. Included in this list is the University of Hawaii, which plans to install a chapter during the Christmas holidays.

This is the third national yearbook of Pi Omega Pi. Two other issues of the book were published by student representatives from the University of South Dakota and Iowa State Teachers College. An added feature of the current yearbook is an article on the history of Pi Omega Pi which includes pictures of the past national presidents of the organization.

Williams was elected to serve as student representative of Pi Omega Pi at the biennial convention held in Chicago during 1956. His other duty besides publishing the national yearbook is to represent student interests on the national council. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Williams of 1805 Bedford Rd., Rocky Mount, North Carolina.

ECC Teacher To Present Recital

Paul Hickfang, bass-baritone, who is a faculty member of the department of music at East Carolina College, will appear in a program of songs ranging from Mozart to Gershwin and from operatic arias to spirituals Wednesday, Dec. 11. The recital, sponsored by the college department of music, will be open to the public and will take place at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium.

Opening with Mozart's "Mentre ti Lascio," the program will include a group of leader by Brahms, "Ave, Signor" from Boito's opera "Mefistofele," "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen" in an arrangement by Burlingame, and songs by Gabriel Faure, Robert MacGimsey, and other composers. Closing number will be "It Ain't Necessarily So" from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

Mr. Hickfang, a faculty member at East Carolina since 1954, is a Texan who received his music education at the Universities of Texas and Michigan and at the State Academy of Music in Munich, Germany, which he attended as a Fulbright scholar from 1955 to 1957. While abroad, he studied also with Frau Professor Kammerangerin Hedwig Pichtmueller, contralto formerly with

Manning
Born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Manning, Rt. 1, Winterville, a daughter, Patricia Ann, December 8 at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Howard
Born to Mr. and Mrs. George Earl Howard, 1503 Halifax St., a son, Steven Earl, December 9 at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

At East Carolina he appeared as soloist in 1954 in the annual presentation on the campus of Handel's "The Messiah" and will sing bass arias in this year's performance, scheduled for Dec. 15 at 3:30 p.m. in the Wright Auditorium. While in Europe, he appeared in opera at the Bavarian State Opera's Gartnerplatz Theater Opera House.

As a member of the East Carolina department of music, Mr. Hickfang teaches voice and directs the college Opera Workshop. In February, 1958, the workshop group will present its student members in scenes from Smetana's "The Bartered Bride" and in the Pergolesi opera "La Serva Padronna."

Laura Lee Hickfang, the singer's wife, will accompany him at the piano in Wednesday's recital.

Proof Of Good Food Lies In Proper Cooking

RALEIGH—When they say, "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," they can't be far from wrong. And the proof of the eating lies in the cooking.

All foods don't develop their fullest and truest flavor unless they have been cooked properly. Pork has its fullest flavor when cooked to the well-done stage. However, this doesn't mean that hours of preparation are required. In other words, don't cook it to death—because it may lack that "proof" when it comes time for the "eating."

According to Ruby P. Uzzle, Agricultural Extension Service consumer marketing specialist, pork is roasted preferably at 325 degrees in an uncovered shallow pan, fat side up so it will be self-basting. No water is added, though seasonings may be added before or after cooking. She recommends that you allow extra cooking time for meat that is frozen or very cold.

Low cooking temperatures for pork are suggested by Mrs. Uzzle to help conserve nutrients and minimize loss of weight during cooking. She points out that if pork is simmered or braised, keep the cooking temperature just under boiling.

If you homemakers want your family's "eating" show the "proof of the pudding" one of the easiest ways to serve pork is as a pork loin roast, for the meat requires little attention during cooking. You can dress it up with fruit, watercress, or parsley.

Mrs. Wilkerson Honored At Recent Coffee

Mrs. T. I. Wagner poured coffee when Mrs. Steve Wilkerson, recent bride, was feted Saturday morning by Mrs. Leonard Bloxam and Mrs. T. H. Henderson at the home of Mrs. Bloxam.

Upon arrival the 30 guests were greeted by the honoree, Mrs. Stephen Lindsay Wilkerson Sr. and the hostesses and directed into the dining room where a pink, white and silver color theme predominated.

A silver cloth overlaid with lace covered the appointed table which was centered with a unique arrangement of pink carnations and baby's breath interspersed with miniature silver stars.

The color theme was carried out in the dainty refreshments consisting of party sandwiches in the shapes of bells and stars, bridal cakes, mints, and party shells.

filled with lemon butter and topped with whipped cream. Assisting in serving in the dining room were Miss Joyce Lynn Bloxam and Miss Martha Henderson, daughters of the hostesses.

Wearing a tan tweed suit with brown accessories, Mrs. Wilkerson was presented a white corsage flecked with gold which complimented her gold scarf.

An honor gift of an informal tray was presented to her by the hostesses. Following a social hour, goodbyes were said to the honoree, her mother-in-law, and the hostesses.

30 Years Ago Today

December 9, 1927

The Country Club was the scene of a lovely party Saturday afternoon when Mrs. F. M. Park entertained at bridge and rook, honoring her sister, Mrs. F. G. Wingfield, of Richmond, and Mrs. William Blount of Durham, who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. James Picklen. The club house was elaborately decorated with Christmas greens and lighted candles. Miss Jane Lyerly was given bath salts for high bridge score. Mrs. Wingfield and Mrs. Blount were remembered with attractive gifts. Mrs. Sidney Caswell of New York, Mrs. Herbert Bateman of Wilson and Mrs. Arch Jones of Roxboro were given appropriate gifts. Following the game the hostess served a tempting salad course.

Miscellaneous Shower Honors Holiday Bride

Miss Leytha Mae Brewer, bride-elect, was honored at a floating miscellaneous shower Friday night by Mrs. Billy Wells, Mrs. Frank Brickhouse and Mrs. Charles Reid in the home of Mrs. Wells.

Miss Brewer and William Claire Mobley will be married December 27.

For the occasion, the honoree was wearing a brown taffeta dress with an oval neckline and three-quarter length sleeves and fashioned with a bouffant skirt. The hostesses presented her a corsage of white daisy pom poms.

Mrs. Wells greeted the guests at the door and presented them to the receiving line composed of the honoree, Mrs. Linwood Brewer, mother of the honoree, Mrs. C. T. Mobley, mother of the bridegroom-elect, Mrs. I. J. Broadhurst, maternal grandmother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Lillie Mobley, paternal grandmother of the bridegroom-elect.

A floral arrangement of white carnations, green gypsophelia and fern, flanked by burning green candles, decorated the table which was overlaid with a white lace-trimmed cloth.

Mrs. Billie Ray Lyerly poured coffee which marked one end of the table. Served buffet style were miniature cup cakes, salted nuts and mints.

Miss Ann Brewer presided in the gift room.

Mrs. Brickhouse and Mrs. Reid said goodbye to approximately 45 guests.

Of the 16,695,000 pounds frozen ground beef recently purchased by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for the school lunch program, North Carolina's share amounted to 861,000.

Hospital Work Behind Schedule

At best it will be a year, maybe two years, before the proposed addition to Pitt Memorial Hospital can be utilized even if no long delays occur in the process of planning, financing and construction of such a facility.

Pitt County has not begun too soon work toward the addition which is proposed to add 70 beds to the present 130-bed hospital. If use of the hospital continues to grow in the next few years as it has since 1951, present facilities may be outgrown even before the new addition can be completed.

The County Commissioners have given approval for the hospital Board of Trustees to formulate plans for construction of the addition and to call a bond election on the money needed to finance the addition. But that action by the Commissioners does not mean that in the next few months construction work can begin at the hospital. At best it will take a number of months for the formal application for state and federal financial aid to clear through all the necessary channels. After that there will have to be a referendum on the bond issue to finance the county's part of construction begins. After that it may take six to 18 months to complete the expansion program after actual construction commences.

In view of these circumstances, it immediately becomes apparent the 70-bed addition to the county's hospital will be sorely needed before it can be completed. As a matter of fact Pitt County is already behind schedule for its hospital expansion if that facility is to keep pace with the demands upon it from the people of the county.

The huge amount of preliminary work which must be done before construction of the addition can be started should be done as rapidly as possible by those officials responsible for it. County officials should lend every possible aid in expediting this important phase of the project. Otherwise Pitt County may face a serious shortage of hospital space before the proposed addition can be put into use.

Farmers Might Well Review Tax Returns

A campaign launched by the Internal Revenue Service in seven North Carolina counties should provide a warning to other counties of the state that they can expect similar efforts to reach their areas in the future.

Last week the Greensboro district office of the Internal Revenue Service announced it had begun a county-by-county campaign to find farmers who have not been filing income tax returns. Delinquent tax forms, the office said, have been mailed to some 2,000 to 2,500 farmers in Edgecombe, Davidson, Guilford, Randolph, Robeson, Wake and Wayne Counties.

It is quite possible that a number of farmers who have received these notices failed to file the income tax returns simply because they did not realize they were required to do so. Their gross incomes may have been sufficient to require the filing of a return, but their net income was such that they had no taxes to pay. Result was that they did not think it necessary to go to the trouble to file the return.

We, of course, have no way of knowing how many farmers in Pitt may have followed the practice of not filing income tax returns because they owed Uncle Sam no money. In view of this campaign launched by the Internal Revenue Service, however, it would be wise for farmers of Pitt and other counties to review carefully the practices they have followed in respect to their income tax returns.

Bureaucracy To Rule On Ethics?

By ELMER ROESSNER

There's a ruckus in Washington over the question of whether the Patent Office should prevent patent attorneys and agents from advertising.

Behind the dispute is a bigger, more basic question. It is: In a democracy, do the people establish standards of ethics, or does the bureaucracy impose them on the populace?

At present — and it has been true since the founding of the republic — patent attorneys or agents can advertise. Those who practice before the Patent Office are either attorneys or agents.

Attorneys are those lawyers who have been admitted to practice before 1939. Since then nonlawyers have been recognized only as "agents."

DENIAL OF LIVELIHOOD
The Patent Office now proposes to prohibit attorneys or agents from advertising. It has drawn a new regulation, providing: "The use of advertising, circulars, letters, cards and similar material to solicit patent business, directly or indirectly, is forbidden as unprofessional conduct, and any person engaging in such solicitation, or associated with or employed by others who so solicit, shall be refused recognition to practice before the Patent Office, or may be suspended, excluded or barred from further practice."

In other words, a patent agent who hands out his card can be barred from his livelihood for the rest of his life.

The proposed regulation has a lot of support from lawyers. They are barred from advertising, usually by state laws or by their own associations, and they are eager to impose this disability on others. At a recent hearing, many legal luminaries urged the adoption of the regulation.

OTHERS OPPOSED
On the other hand, the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the American Association of Advertising Agencies opposed the rule.

The A.A.A.A. said that "such a prohibition against advertising would be a disservice to the public and to the Department of Commerce itself."

"We believe the Federal government should never take a position of labeling truthful advertising as unprofessional conduct. This is the voluntary prerogative of professional groups. If they so wish to do so, and experience shows that they are able to maintain their codes of ethics without recourse to Federal statutes." It added that few if any members of the A.A.A.A. handled advertising for patent attorneys.

However, the A.A.A.A. as well as the other protesters, missed the bigger point. In a kingdom or dictatorship, the government decides what is moral and what is ethical, and imposes those decisions on people. In democracies — at least up until now — those decisions are in the hands of the people themselves, and their chosen leaders.

A curious facet of the current dispute is that the Patent Office is a part of the Department of Commerce, headed by Secretary Sinclair Weeks, a free-enterpriser if there ever was one, and a man not likely to assume ethical dictatorship.

He will have the final decision in the matter. After both pro and con arguments are digested by Patent Commissioner Robert C. Watson, he is to make a recommendation to Mr. Weeks.

ELECTRONIC SCALE KEEPS TRUCKS ON ROAD
An electronic scale is saving money and trouble for a trucking company with a terminal in Brooklyn.

Tractor-trailer combinations are automatically weighed before leaving, thereby assuring the company that trucks will not be stopped at state lines and forced to unload, wait for another truck, or return to the terminal. The scale was built by Teller & Cooper, which built scales for the Indiana Turnpike. Loaded trucks can be weighed without slowing down on these scales.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
BACK TO GOD'S LOVE AND MERCY

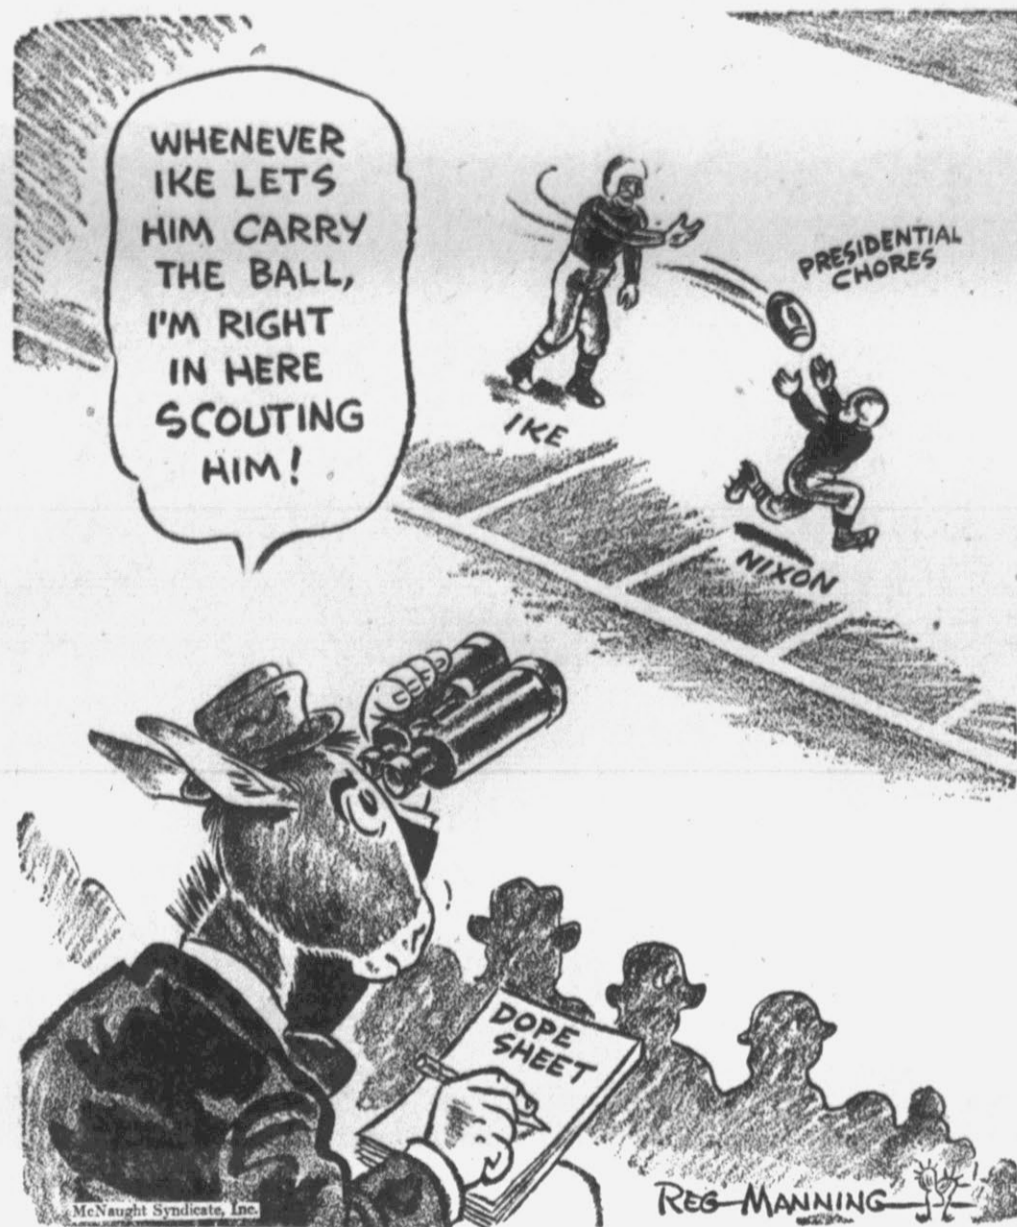

This column continually emphasizes the fact that we are spiritual beings and points out the duties, responsibilities, and privileges accruing therefrom.

But it needs also to be pointed out that we very decidedly are physical beings living in a material world. Climate, water supply, and geographical location play a tremendous part in making us the kind of people we are. The fact that England is an island and must rely upon trade for her life sets the quality and objectives of her people's ideals. The American, living in a vast continent of undeveloped resources, bears the mark of this physical circumstance on everything he says and does. One of the most important problems in the world is that of water supply. With two thirds of the earth's surface covered by water, it would seem that there is plenty, but America may be crying out in terror twenty-five years from now, if the water problem is not solved.

We humans are a strange combination. On one side we are divine, heavenly, children of God. On the other side of our lives we are creatures depending upon the forces of nature to keep us alive, having no power within ourselves for self-preservation. Everything we are and have and hope to be goes back to the love and mercy of God. In that we trust—or perish.

Philosopher Murgatroyd

WASHINGTON (AP) — "A man," said Murgatroyd suddenly, "is only as old as his wife feels."

"Then I'm getting you a wheel chair for Christmas," said Mrs. Murgatroyd, laying aside her embroidery. "If this is going to be one of those evenings when you're in your philosopher mood, I think I'll address those Christmas cards you were going to do last night."

"Procrastination," mused Murgatroyd, "is the thief of time. Yet time is money. Therefore procrastination is the thief of money, which is ridiculous. Most men make their money while putting off the things they really want to do."

"That's one mistake you never made," murmured Mrs. Murgatroyd, busy with stamps, cards and envelopes. "You didn't bother to make any money in the first place. I wonder if last year's address is still right for the Nibbicks, or did he take that job in Pasadena?"

"Just address it in care of his psychiatrist," said Murgatroyd. "A psychiatrist is a man you can afford to go to because you worked so hard you need a psychiatrist."

"Some people," said Mrs. Murgatroyd with dark emphasis, "would go to a psychiatrist simply for the chance to lie down on a couch. The least you could do is get up and stamp these envelopes."

"A human being," said Murgatroyd, wriggling comfortably, "is too complex and valuable an organism to undertake what a bit of sponge and a saucer of water could do better. Have you ever wondered how many woman-hours you have wasted in licking stamps? Think of the books you could have read in that time — the walks in the snow you could have taken."

"The last time you and I walked in the snow," said Mrs. Murgatroyd, a trifle grimly, "was all the way to the corner mailbox. You wore those old boots that are too small for you, and got blisters on both heels, and took to your bed for three days."

"Suffering," meditated Murgatroyd, "refines the soul. If not the heel."

"There are some heels I know," said Mrs. Murgatroyd, jabbing a fairly savage period to a jolly Yuletide greeting, "who could do with a little refinement, if you get my meaning."

"Meaning," echoed Murgatroyd. "What is meaning? A snowflake, a child's tear — both drops of moisture, and yet —"

"And yet," re-echoed Mrs. Murgatroyd, "you'll have tears streaming down the cheeks of a perfectly good nephew if you don't soon get off thatavenport and buy the electric train you promised him."

"Punctuality," sighed Murgatroyd. "The thief of pleasure. Why must Christmas gifts arrive by Dec. 25? Why must everybody celebrate Christmas the same day anyhow? Why not a dozen Christmases? A hundred?"

"You still wouldn't be organized for any of them," said Mrs. Murgatroyd. "I am now composing a Christmas message to our old friends, the Klingheisers. Is there any tidbit of wit and wisdom which you wish to contribute?"

"Tell them," said Murgatroyd drowsily, "that Scrooge wouldn't have thrown in the towel so soon if he'd had Christmas cards to write."

"If he had them to write!" shrieked Mrs. Murgatroyd. "Well, I like that! Here I sit, writing my fingers to the bone, while you —"

"Z Z Z Zzzz," came from Murgatroyd. Which is, after all, the only way to end a conversation with a woman.

It will be interesting to see if there is not some return to the system of telling students what to take within reason instead of letting them choose in great measure.

Illness And Its Impacts

By ROGER BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass. — The news about President Eisenhower cast a gloom over general business and the stock market. It has also made us all wonder, and realize that things like this may happen at any time. Believing that readers would appreciate some remarks from a friend of the President, I venture the following:

THE STOCK MARKET OUTLOOK
Those who have followed the stock market the past few days know how jittery it has been. It will go up ten points and down ten points in a given day. Therefore, it would be meaningless for me to discuss it in detail.

However, I will record that the Dow-Jones Industrial Average on the morning of Tuesday, November 26, was 442.97, and closed that night at 435.34. As I am writing this release, the Industrial Average is 446.03. Readers can look up the latest figure in their daily papers when receiving this release. As to the future, we fear no crisis or panic in business or the market, but there will be a gradual sagging off. People will wait until they see what develops.

POLITICAL OUTLOOK
I feel certain that President Eisenhower's illness will tend to make the opposing parties unite on his foreign policy and on defense. The President never pretended to know much about money affairs or agricultural or many other domestic problems. The President, however, probably knows Europe better than anyone in Washington, and it is too bad that he has had such a struggle to put through his recommendations. With his Army record, the President should have his feet on the ground when making recommendations as to defense problems. Of course the situation has been changing so fast, from bombers to short-distance missiles to long-range ballistic missiles and now to satellites, that no one knows what the future will bring forth. Nevertheless, I repeat that any political bitterness which has existed during the past few months should now be buried and we should approach a coalition government. This could be a silver lining to the dark cloud.

WHAT MAY HAPPEN TO KHRUSHCHEV
We must not forget that the Russians have their troubles as well as we. Khrushchev is not only vulnerable to similar misfortunes at any time but is also liable to be shot, a possibility which our political leaders need not fear today. These are not pleasant thoughts for any nation, but it is well to remember them and not think that all the misfortunes will befall America.

I personally have great confidence in Vice President Nixon. If he handles himself well during the next few weeks, as I believe he will, this should be of some advantage to the Republicans in 1958 and 1960. It should give Nixon an advantage over possible candidates of both of the large parties. As to whether the present misfortune will help either party in the Congressional elections next year, no one would dare forecast at the moment.

AWAIT OPENING OF CONGRESS
There is more or less talk about Mr. Eisenhower's resigning. As to his physical situation, I have no right to judge or forecast. I cannot, however, imagine him quitting now. He himself will want to wait through the Christmas season and until Congress opens the first week in January. If he decides to resign, he will probably include such a statement in his message to Congress at that time. Personally, I sincerely hope he will not resign.

In closing, let me say that President Eisenhower was trained at West Point to give his life for his country. He was always prepared to die on the battlefield. I know that when his time comes, he will be proud to die at his work or "with his bag on." The fact that he went over to the airport to meet his foreign visitor on a stormy day is true testimony to his courage, patriotism, and fundamental beliefs.

Foreign Aid Best In U.S. Hands

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — "The present subject for debate at the Mexico High School," writes B. C. of Albuquerque, N.M., "is: Resolved that all United States foreign aid should be administered through the United Nations. He asks for suggestions for the affirmative or negative side.

Answer: I would prefer the negative stand in this debate, although there would be excellent arguments for the affirmative. If the United Nations had proved to be the ideal and peace-promoting institution which it was designed to be in those early postwar days of Anglo-Russo-American friendship. Now, even the major Western Allies and U. N. members are squabbling among themselves.

WOULD LEAD TO MORE BITTERNESS However, now that the U.N. has degenerated into a quarrelsome debating and hair-pulling society, such delegating of money and authority over its disposal — distribution — would be extremely disadvantageous to the United States and to the Free World generally. There would be endless bickering as to which nation would get what, and the result would be even more bitterness and division than exists today at New York headquarters.

Moreover, with the recent enlargement of the U. N. to 82 member nations, the United States can be outvoted by the Russian, her satellites, the Asian and African blocs. Sometimes a few South American delegates join with them to make an anti-American majority.

With such a lineup, this unfriendly group could vote to allocate the American taxpayers' money to an outright Communist and American-hating nation, or to the few dictators who control its affairs. We would be giving material aid and comfort to potential enemies, which is near-treason. Our only reason for current loans to Poland and Yugoslavia is the dubious hope that this aid may encourage them to break from Russia, fully or partially.

RUSSIA SHELLS OUT LITTLE Russia is doing it in the manner now with respect to international philanthropy. Moscow pays only a small part of U.N.'s expenses, while the United States contributes one-third, and extends diplomatic immunity to the delegates of foreign nations at New York. And, despite Khrushchev's lamentations over the plight of the 900,000 Arabian refugees in the Middle East, he has not put up a single ruble for the U.N.'s relief work among those victims of Middle East anarchy.

Finally, no President would dare to recommend such a diversion of the taxpayers' money, and no Congress would vote for such a program if he did. Congress has frequently expressed irritation and condemnation even over White House handling — or what it regards as mishandling — of Congressional appropriations.

BIPARTISANSHIP NOT NEW "Is bipartisanship in the conduct of foreign affairs a recent development?" Inquires Mrs. T.J. of Waterbury, Conn. "I am thinking of the late Senator Vandenberg's co-operation with the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations, and the late Senator George's service under President Eisenhower."

Answer: No. In times of crisis, with only a few exceptions, the politicians have generally forgotten and shied Party differences. It is true that the more radical Democrats heckled even Abraham Lincoln on his conduct of the Civil War, and his generous attitude toward the Confederate states.

However, to offset the snarlings of the extreme abolitionists, both Democratic and Republican, there is the generally unknown fact that Stephen A. Douglas, Lincoln's illustrious opponent in politics and debate, "consulted" with the President, and promised him any aid in the conflict to restore the Union. And Douglas subsequently delivered many pro-Union speeches in the Middle West, although he was then a dying man.

With only a few exceptions, the Democrats today are giving the same kind of co-operation, especially the Rayburn-Johnson leadership on Capitol Hill. And they are doing so in the face of charges by a few Administration members — Sherman Adams and Harold Stassen — that former President Truman was responsible for our military and scientific backwardness.

Celebrate 25th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Parker . . . cut their anniversary cake.

ROBERSONVILLE - A silver theme was carried out when Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Parker celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon at an open house.
The more than 80 guests were greeted by Mrs. John Henry Roberson and directed to the receiving line composed of Mr. and Mrs. Parker and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. S. Everett Parker Jr.
The two-tiered decorative cake was served by Mrs. Nathan Robinson of Enfield, sister-in-law of Mrs. Parker, from a table covered with an imported lace cloth and centered with an all-white arrangement of carnations and baby's breath flanked by silver candelabras holding burning tapers.

EC Orchestra Going Through Transformation, Notes Perry

By GEORGE E. PERRY
I am not sufficiently clairvoyant to give what might be called positive reasons, but something genuinely encouraging, something approaching transformation, has happened to the East Carolina Orchestra. It was shown in ample evidence at the concert yesterday afternoon in McGinnis Auditorium; specifically, it was the almost uncanny improvement that has taken place within its ranks since its last concert last spring.
This was noticeable from the opening measures to the last, and with the exception of a few spots, was consistently present throughout the concert. One of course expects improvement in any organization of this kind, otherwise its disintegration is more or less certain; but to witness such an "overnight" betterment, the leap to a much higher plateau of performance, makes what we heard yesterday almost unbelievable. This was not just my reaction, either, but that of everyone to whom I talked.
Specifically, this improvement was manifest firstly in the intonation—that devilish trick of some 50-odd players keeping themselves in tune with each other. In past years it was principally this which prevented the concerts from being as good as they otherwise might have been, but it seems certain that this prior problem is well under control.

Precision Improved
Another noticeable improvement was in the precision of the attacks and releases, and they were nearly always intact. Only occasionally did a straggler start too soon, or finish too late. Thirdly, the smoothness of the dynamic changes was much improved over past years. This was in evidence generally, and then more so at times when the music itself demanded it.
Three such important changes must have been the result of something, and I can only speculate as to the real reasons, but I sincerely suspect it is because the Department of Music, of which I am proud to be a member, is becoming stronger by the year. Better and better students are enrolling, and the orchestra is, for the most part, made up of the best instrumentalists of the department, both students and faculty. Then, too, I suspect that the necessary process of screening for the better players has had no small part in the orchestra's current quality.

So now the long struggle for a credible orchestra has shown fruition. At last its untiring conductor, Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert, has a group which can respond with conviction to his baton of precision, and I know it is with a feeling of understandable pride that he conducted Sunday's concert. A conductor needs a responsive and reliable orchestra in the same way that a pianist needs a responsive and reliable piano; and I think that finally he has a group for which he has been so anxiously hoping.
Horns Blended
To narrow it down, I think the horns showed the biggest improvement so far as separate choirs is concerned. This was evidenced convincingly every time they had solo work to do; the blend and the tone individually and collectively was excellent. And when underlining or giving a foundation for a surrounding orchestration, the effect was one of commendable musicianship, for it takes a musician to blend with another. Comment must be made, too, on the outstanding work of the tympanist. I suspect he has the makings of a one-day professional, for his playing certainly was noticeable for its ability to stand out or blend, whichever the instance demanded.

Well-Chosen Soloist
Barbara Harris was the well-chosen soloist for the afternoon. She showed good stage-presence, and a voice which sounded well with the orchestra. Her main number, the aria from "La Favorita," was appropriately dramatic, and displayed her opulent voice to good advantage. The recitative lacked the emotional depth it might have had, but the aria itself was excellent.
She seemed to immerse herself completely in the music, making good use of her face, and her hands. Of course she used her voice well, and in the cadenza she floated seemingly effortlessly to the top B flat. The orchestra's support was good, not too much, and not too little.
Miss Harris' other number, though, did not show such balance, and only as the end was approached did her voice seem to again soar out to the audience. Her final pose at the conclusion of this was a sign of good training as well as a feeling for good showmanship. She left with us the feeling that we heard and saw not merely a singer, but a musician.

Chose Program Wisely
I feel that Dr. Cuthbert chose his program wisely, with good knowledge of the ability of the orchestra which was to play it. No tricky Mozart, no dramatic Brahms, no overwhelming Wagner, but rather an excellent selection of music which came off well, reflecting credit upon the conductor, the players, the Department of Music, and even upon the entire College.
The "Procession of the Sardar" which opened the concert contained some good pizzicato work, well-graduated dynamics, and a good build-up from the start to the finish. The "Water Music Suite" showed off the horns many times, and the string work was especially good in parts 3 and 6. The "Espans," while rhythmically edgy at times, contained many evidences of precision, as well as a good balance and blend in not only the quieter sections, but in the tutti passages as well. All in all, it was quite a thrilling performance.

Mrs. Turnage, a member of the Farmville Garden Club and the Ballards Home Demonstration Club, displayed novel ideas as well as arrangements in the traditional red and green Christmas colors. Articles for children, as well as grown-ups, were featured.

Club members and special guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr. Mrs. Charles Jackson, vice-president, served a chilled juice appetizer from an auxiliary table covered with a red cloth and appointed with milk glass.

Mrs. F. L. Allen, immediate past president, invited the guests to the buffet table laden with silver trays of sliced turkey, dressing, and individual congealed salads. Cranberry relish, a variety of vegetables, pickles, rolls and coffee completed the main course. A green cloth with white fringe trim and a snow white Christmas tree furnished the background for the buffet table. The tiny white tree, decorated with red stars, and four red tapers in silver candle holders completed the centerpiece.

The 36 guests found their places at tables decorated with Christmas greenery and red berries. Mrs. W. T. Page offered the invocation and Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr., president, welcomed the group. Christmas carols were sung while the dessert course of ambrosia and candy cane cookies was served. Following the luncheon, Mrs. James Allen, retiring secretary, introduced Mrs. Turnage. Immediately after the demonstration Mrs. Charles Jackson called attention to the crafts exhibited in one end of the Community Building. A novel game provided a way to distribute the array of attractive gifts to each person present.
Among the special guests were Mrs. L. E. Turnage, Mrs. Howard James, Mrs. Carl Crawford, Mrs. Max Joyner, Mrs. Lillie Little,

Postal Patrons Could Help Speed Up Service

Post Office patrons who envision prompt delivery of their Christmas mail are in a position to help themselves — and the Post Office.

Postmaster J. Knott Proctor said the help could come by getting Christmas mail into the Post Office as soon as possible, making certain that it is correctly addressed, and grouped according to local or out-of-town delivery.

The Postmaster suggested Christmas cards scheduled for out-of-town delivery be placed in the Post Office prior to December 10, and similar mail for local delivery be placed there prior to December 15. He also requested that the mail be separated according to its delivery point, and added that the Post Office has perforated notices to identify each group.

"The notices, which can be placed with each group of envelopes, speed handling of the mail after it gets into the Post Office," Proctor said. "It enables us to quickly identify it for local or out-of-town destinations, and it makes it possible to handle the mail in groups instead of having to handle each piece by itself."

The notices are being distributed throughout Greenville by carriers, with extra quantities available at the Post Office.

Proctor also asked that mail patrons make certain that names and addresses are correct.

"We recommend that patrons use first-class mail for all Christmas items, with a return address on the envelope. We also ask that proper names be used, instead of nick-names, and that our patrons check the addresses of receivers before placing mail in the Post Office."

"It would also help," Proctor said, "if patrons would place their cards and letters in either street collection boxes or in the Post Office instead of asking route carriers to take them. We would prefer that they be placed in the Post Office itself because we can handle it faster there despite the heavy increase in volume we expect."

Nine special Post Office workers will be added to the regular staff for the Christmas season. Six of them will go on routes in the city and the other three will work inside the Post Office to speed the flow of mail through the building.

Present plans for the rush season call for postal workers to process all mail the day it is received in the office. Special schedules are being set up to handle the greater volume the Post Office expects.

Eisenhower Solution Solves Nothing If He Were Disabled

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's plan for deciding how a vice president would take over if a president is disabled would solve nothing if Eisenhower is disabled before his term ends.

Eisenhower's plan — offered earlier this year after two of his illnesses but before his third — is in the form of a constitutional amendment. It would take years to complete approval by Congress and ratification by at least 36 states. Eisenhower's term will end in a little more than three years.

But Eisenhower's plan is only one of a number of proposed solutions on presidential disability facing Congress when it returns in January.

On this subject, everyone seems to have his own idea, with no two ideas alike.

Here are some of them:

Let the vice president decide. Let the Cabinet do it. Let it be done by Congress or a mixed commission, including Supreme Court justices, or a commission of private citizens or medical experts.

Some proposals call for constitutional amendments, some for a simple act approved by both houses of Congress.

Any answer for handling a complete Eisenhower disability before 1961 would have to be in the form of an act.

In the past Congress has considered many proposals and done nothing with them. It may do nothing again this year, although the scare after Eisenhower's third illness in 26 months is plain evidence Congress has been ducking the issue.

The Constitution has been fuzzy on this point from the beginning. It simply says that if a president resigns or can't carry out his duties, the vice president shall take over.

It would be no problem if a disabled president resigned. Nor would there appear to be any if a president, unwilling to resign, recognized his disability and told the vice president to take over until he recovered. But these are the unanswered questions:

Who decides if a president is unable to do his job but won't let the vice president step in? And what if a president for some reason does not recognize his disability?

Should the vice president decide? That's what Eisenhower thinks. He proposed to Congress that in such a case:

The vice president would make the decision—provided a majority of the Cabinet approves—and act as president until the President recovered.

Former President Hoover thinks the Cabinet should make the decision. His reasoning is that if the executive branch was in the hands of one party and a majority of the opposition party controlled Congress—and Congress could decide on disability—the opposition would be in a position to nullify the previous election results by ruling out the ability of the chosen president to function.

Rep. Keating of New York, senior Republican member of the House Judiciary Committee, wants action on his own proposal next year, not Eisenhower's.

Keating suggests a simple congressional act creating a 10-member commission on presidential disability. The commission would be composed of members of Congress, the judiciary and the Cabinet—with the vice president as a nonvoting member.

Conductor Tells Theory Of Music's TV Success

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — "The music you see with your eyes is different from the music you hear with your ears," says Howard Barlow.

It would be difficult to find a better authority than Barlow on the visual as well as the auditory effects of music. He has just begun his 30th consecutive year of conducting a regular weekly program on radio and television. His program, presented each Monday evening over ABC-TV, is the only one of straight music on network television.

"With the advent of television came more serious. Then came the era of Nelson Eddy and Lawrence Tibbett singing with Barlow's orchestra, the age when the name was the thing.

After the program went on television it was found that the novelty of seeing prominent performers wore off relatively quickly. Barlow discovered the well-known TV danger of over-exposure. He, personally, never appears on camera for more than one minute of his 30-minute show.

He has an interesting theory of what makes popular singers so successful: "Their utter sincerity. The most popular are those who believe utterly in the song, they're singing. Often, when a classical singer does a popular song, his scorn for it comes through."

An outstanding exception, says Barlow, is Patrice Munsel.

Eight Children Killed In Blaze

PARK FALLS, Wis. (AP)—Eight little children died in a cauldron of flames early yesterday when a fire caught them asleep in their parents' four-room frame house.

The mother, Mrs. Ardetta Klein, 38, was held without charge in the Price County jail at Phillips.

The fire was beyond control when it was discovered by neighbors about 5:30 a. m.

Sheriff Andrew Pilch said Mrs. Klein had been in a tavern at Park Falls, three miles east of her home, until the bar closed at 1 a. m. He said she was about a fourth of a mile from home when she saw the flames from a hilltop.

Authorities said she had to be restrained from entering the burning house. She fainted and was carried to a neighbor's home and revived.

"I'm sorry I wasn't burned up with the children," she told authorities.

The father, Harvey Klein Sr., 40, a lumberjack, was at a lumber camp about 30 miles north of Park Falls. He had been working there several days.

The bodies of the children were recovered from the rubble. Firemen said the children, ranging from 1 to 10 years old, never had a chance to flee from their beds.

Cause of the blaze was not determined immediately, but firemen said it may have been fed by fuel oil from drums stored outside the 1½-story, 20x20-foot house.

ECC Defeats Catawba 86-64 To Grab NS League Lead

TWO FOR IKE—East Carolina's sophomore guard from Greenville, Ike Riddick, cuts past Catawba defenders in Saturday night's North State contest at Memorial Gym, to deposit two points in the ECC till. Riddick netted 11 points in the 86-64 Pirate victory. It was the 56th triumph in the Jinx gym for an East Carolina team.

GOING UP!—Joe Plaster, 6-8 junior center for Coach Howard Porter's East Carolina Bucs, goes up to basket-level to snare a rebound, while friend and foe alike stand by helpless. Big Joe and teammates Harold Ingram and Guy Mendenhall controlled both backboards in Saturday night's 86-64 victory over league-leading Catawba. Also in the pic are Catawba's Fleming (34) and Meaford (44) and ECC's Ingram (12) and Riddick (23). (Reflector Staff Photos by Billy Arnold).

Capacity Crowd At Third Buc Victory

East Carolina College's Pirates put on a relentless last-quarter shooting exhibition Saturday night to thrash Catawba's Indians, 86-64, and win their third straight basketball game. The victory put the Pirates into a tie with High Point for top spot in the North State Conference standings. It also attached a new significance to the ECC-High Point game scheduled for Wednesday night in the Panthers' new gymnasium.

Although the Pirates held a lead for all but 42 seconds of the second half, it took their fast-paced finish to provide the decisive margin of victory.

The big drive started with six and a half minutes left in the game. The Indians had closed the gap at that point to 68-59, but East Carolina's Harold Ingram, Joe Plaster and Jessel Curry went to work to make it 80-59 before the Indians scored again. By that time, however, it was too late for Catawba to do much of anything. Ingram, the senior who plays as if every minute is the last one, and Curry, a flashy transfer from the University of Kentucky, shared the scoring honors with 18 points apiece. Plaster, a 6-8 junior whose work has been a pleasant surprise in the three games thus far, had 13 points and Ike Riddick and Guy Mendenhall followed him with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Woody Helfrich and Sonny Clayton led the Catawba offense that kept threatening to break the game open until the Pirates' last big rush. Helfrich scored 16 points before he was dumped and shaken up on a rebound play late in the game, and Clayton followed him with 15.

Early minutes of the slow-starting ball game were almost confined to a semi-private shooting duel between the Indians Helfrich and Clayton, and the Pirates' Curry, Ingram and Plaster. The lead saw-sawed until the eight-minute mark when the Pirates got a six-point splurge that sent them ahead, 26-23. The Indians never got the lead in the first half again, although they did manage to close the gap to a single point at one stage, and went to their half-time rest with the score 36-33.

In the early minutes of the second half, Clayton and Bob Flynn rang in a couple of quick shots that put the Indians ahead, 37-36, but that was the last time the Pirates were behind. Plaster dumped in a lay-up shot and added a free throw, Guy Mendenhall popped in a long jump shot, and the Pirates were on their way.

East Carolina used its last time-out with only three and a half minutes gone in the second half, and Catawba put four guards in the game in an effort to step up the pace, but it didn't work. Plaster and Mendenhall, who played the boards as if they owned them throughout the game, dominated the rebounding, and the Pirates got hot on their offensive patterns to take the play away from the visitors.

The Pirates have two important conference games scheduled for this week. They make a trip to High Point Wednesday and then return home Saturday night for a Carolina, Pfeiffer at Elon, West game with Lenoir-Rhyne. The Bears, who won the conference

Early Leaders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS It's beginning to look as if East Carolina and High Point are going to make things tough for the rest of the basketball teams in the North State Conference.

Both are coasting along with two league victories and no losses and are 3-0 in all games. But something has to give Wednesday night. That's when the two clubs meet.

East Carolina had a 6-10 record last season, but has started strong this year. The Pirates dumped Catawba, 86-64 Saturday night in their latest conquest.

High Point has whipped Guilford, 109-80, and Atlantic Christian, 85-77.

The East Carolina-High Point game is the feature attraction of the North State schedule this week.

Tonight, Catawba is at Davidson and Atlantic-Christian is at Presbyterian.

The remainder of the week's schedule: Tuesday: Appalachian at Carson-Newman, Guilford at Lenoir Rhyne.

Wednesday: Davidson at Catawba, East Carolina at High Point.

Thursday: Pfeiffer at Appalachian, Elon at Guilford.

Friday: Western Carolina at Rollins, Lenoir Rhyne at Atlantic Christian.

Saturday: Lenoir Rhyne at East Carolina, Pfeiffer at Elon, Western Carolina at Stetson, High Point at Newberry.

Phants Dedicate New Gym With Wilmington Here

G-Men Enter Game With Win, Loss On Their Card

By BILLY ARNOLD Reflector Sports Editor Greenville high school's Phantoms with a victory and a loss to their credit thus far, will make their first appearance before home fans tomorrow night in a dedication game with State AAA champ Wilmington.

A capacity crowd of close to 2000 is expected to jam Junius H. Rose high school gym for the contest and dedication ceremonies.

Coach Boley Farley's quintet will be making its third appearance of the season tomorrow night, and all three of the games are in the practice or exhibition bracket.

They have just returned from Wilmington where they met AAA teams from Charleston and Camden. South Carolina, in the Wilmington invitation practice tournament.

In their first game, Friday night, the Phantoms dropped a 48-45 decision to Bishop England (Charleston). Saturday night, they came back to topple Camden, 55-46.

Coach Farley used the two-day tourney as a testing ground for his club, which is rated one of the strongest in the Northeastern Conference by pre-season pickers this year. In the Saturday night win, the club showed surprising strength against the Camden club, but "still isn't ready yet," according to Farley.

Lame on rebounds and scoring power, too, in the opening game, the G-Men came back against Camden to grab their share of the rebounds and turn in a good scoring performance.

The Phantoms started off with a 14-point first period that gave them a three-point edge. By halftime, the South Carolinians had closed the gap to 34-33. Greenville went into a slump and managed only four points in the second period, while Camden threw in 22.

A good last-half surge by GHS, sparked by Mack Roebuck and Peanut Nunn, moved the Greenville club to a 55-46 win. It was the starting five is below 6 feet tall and three of them are over 6-0. Wilmington's big gun is Roman Gabriel, a 6-3, 210-pounder who is rated one of the best shots and top rebounders in high school basketball in the east.

Layne 'Would've Been Better Off In Jail'

DETROIT (AP)—A Cleveland player's remark that "he'd have been better off in jail" after quarterback Bobby Layne's second-period injury was credited today with keeping the Detroit Lions in the Western Conference football title chase.

The Detroit quarterback suffered a broken right ankle late in the first half of yesterday's National Football League game and the Lions went on to defeat the Cleveland Browns, Eastern Conference champions, 20-7. Layne will be out the rest of the season.

The Detroit players and coaches said after the game that Don Colo, the Browns' 250-pound defense tackle, made the remark that "he'd have been better off in jail."

Layne won an acquittal Friday in Detroit Traffic Court on a drunk driving charge. His arrest, the subsequent delays in the trial and finally the court test itself kept him in the headlines for weeks.

Coach George Wilson, whose Lions led 3-0 at the half, told his squad in the dressing room at intermission that "you have to go out there and win one for Bobby."

"I know it may sound corny," said Wilson, "but I was steaming—and that's just the way I felt. We beat 'em good in the second half and it was for Layne."

Pitt Teams Divide Up Conference Contests

BETHEL — Bethel and Chicod, divided a pair of Pitt County basketball tilts Friday night, with the Bethel boys and the Chicod girls emerging the winners.

In the first game, Chicod's girls finished with a 57-33 victory over the hosts. Malese Mozingo was high for the losers with 20 points. Janet Mills recorded 21 to pace Chicod.

In the boys game, Chicod's fabulous Jimmy Fornes pumped in 29 points but couldn't pull his team to a win. Bethel won out 68-55. Jimmy Hardy was high for the Bethel club with 15 markers.

Redskins Crush Eagles, 42-7, To Nab Fourth Slot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Washington Redskins put on their highest scoring show and one of their best defensive performances of the season to trample the Philadelphia Eagles, 42-7, yesterday and take over fourth place in the National Football League's Eastern Conference.

49'ers Are Like Some Christmas Shoppers—

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN
The Associated Press

The San Francisco 49ers are like a lot of Christmas shoppers. They wait until the last minute to get things done.

They waited until the last 46 seconds yesterday before rookie quarterback John Brodie tossed a game-winning touchdown pass against Baltimore. The 49ers whipped the Colts 17-13 and threw the title race in the Western Division of the National Football League into a triple deadlock.

The West Coast result gave the Colts and 49ers each a 7-4 record. The Detroit Lions climbed into the tie with them by whipping the Cleveland Browns 20-7. The Browns clinched the Eastern title when Pittsburgh upset the New York Giants 21-10 Saturday.

Elsewhere in the NFL yesterday, Washington raked Philadelphia 42-7 at Washington. The Chicago Bears fended off their cross-town rivals, the Cardinals, 14-6; and Los Angeles polished off Green Bay 42-17 at Los Angeles.

The 49ers pushed the Western race into a last-minute affair. Each contender has one game remaining. All play next Sunday.

San Francisco meets the Packers, last place team in the West, at home; Baltimore plays the Rams in Los Angeles; and the Lions will be guests of the Chicago Bears.

The Lions stayed in the race but lost Bobby Layne, their quarterback, for the rest of the season. Layne broke his right ankle when he caught his cleats in the mud at Briggs Stadium. Tobin Rote directed the team the rest of the way.

Milt Plum of the Browns, filling in for the injured Tommy O'Connell, accounted for the lone Cleveland touchdown on a 58-yard pass play to halfback Ray Renfro in the third quarter.

Don Bosseler scored three touchdowns and quarterback Eddie LeBaron threw for two others as the Redskins moved past the Eagles into fourth place in the East.

Willie Galimore raced 67 yards for a touchdown against the Cardinals when the game was five minutes old. The Bears marched 80 yards and scored 24 seconds before the first half ended to insure their victory. Lamar McHan passed 10 yards to Gern Nagler for the Card score in the fourth quarter.

As Close To The Action As He Can Get Nowadays

BIG NICK WATCHES FROM THE SIDELINES—Carvel (nick) Nichols, who was last year's top scorer on the East Carolina basketball club, sits with Coach Howard Porter at every Pirate ballgame this season. # McGuire May Have A Long Wait Before Carolina Loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Coach Frank McGuire has indicated from time to time that he almost would like to see his University of North Carolina basketball team lose, to take the pressure off his defending national champions.

But from the looks of his new edition, which started its season with a 79-55 victory over Clemson Saturday, he may have to wait some time despite the loss of three squad members through injuries this season.

Danny Lotz, 6-7 junior from Northport, Long Island, N.Y., the first substitute in the Clemson victory, suffered a broken foot in a spill, X-rays showed yesterday. He will be out for several weeks.

Before the season opened, Joe Quigg, 6-9 star on last year's team, broke his leg and was lost for the campaign. Earlier, York Laresse, a sophomore of promise, suffered a knee injury that will keep him out for at least another month.

Despite all this, since you win them one at a time, the Tar Heels have started along the path that brought them through an undefeated 32 games last year. Also on the bright side, Tommy Kearns scored 32 points in the victory over Clemson.

The Tar Heels are tied for the lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference with North Carolina State, which also won its only league game, 62-51 over Wake Forest on Thursday, and with Duke, which defeated Clemson 79-66 Friday.

N.C. State's Wolfpack is undefeated in three games, whipping Penn State 80-62 Saturday night after opening with a 72-44 breeze over Atlantic Christian last Monday. And beating Wake Forest 62-51.

In its only other game last week, Duke lost its opener to Kentucky on Monday, 78-74.

South Carolina and Maryland, which make their league starts this week, each won a pair last week.

South Carolina defeated two Southeastern Conference teams, Georgia 95-87 last Monday and Georgia Tech 70-64 Saturday. Ray (Cookie) Pericola scored 19 points for the Gamecocks against Georgia Tech.

Maryland, also undefeated, whipped an Eastern Independent, Fordham, 61-58 Saturday, helped by Tommy Young's 16 points. The Terrapins opened Wednesday with a 64-55 victory over George Washington of the Southern Conference.

Virginia has been beaten by Southern Conference clubs in its two games so far. The Cavaliers lost to Richmond 64-51 Saturday and to William and Mary 73-69 last Monday.

Wake Forest has lost its only league game and split two others. The Deacons lost to Auburn 78-61 last Monday, and lost to State 62-51 on Thursday.

Maryland meets Kentucky in tonight's only game for ACC teams. The rest of the week's schedule:

Tuesday — North Carolina State at Clemson, North Carolina at George Washington.

Wednesday — North Carolina State at South Carolina, Texas A&M at Wake Forest.

Thursday — North Carolina vs. Furman at Charlotte, N.C.

Friday — Wake Forest at Maryland.

Saturday — South Carolina at North Carolina, Villanova at Duke, Eastern Kentucky at North Carolina State, Wake Forest at Virginia.

WEEKEND FIGHTS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
BUENOS AIRES — Pascual Perez, 108½, Argentina, knocked out Young Martin, 112, Spain, 3 (Perez retained world flyweight title).

MARSEILLE — Alphonse Hallmi, 121, Algeria, outpointed Tanny Campo, 122, Philippines, 10.

HOLLYWOOD — Billy (Sweetpea) Peacock, 117½, Los Angeles, 8, defeated Frankie Campos, 118, Los Angeles, 8.

House Of David To Play All-Stars Here Tuesday

Cage Tests Are Getting Tougher Early This Year

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

It's only the second week of play in college basketball, but already the tests are getting a little tough. This could be a make or break week for the likes of Kentucky, Cincinnati, Bradley, Purdue, and Indiana.

And it will give a better line for sure on Kansas State, Rice, Texas Christian, St. Louis, Temple and maybe even defending champ North Carolina and North Carolina State.

The only prospective powers who appear to have it easy are Kansas, Notre Dame, Michigan State and West Virginia.

The toughest job of all falls to Kentucky, which plays at Maryland tonight and then runs into St. Louis Saturday. The Wildcats are unbeaten in three, but look as though they can be had after fairly close calls against Duke and Ohio State, and then a three-over-time 85-83 decision over Temple. Maryland is 2-0 with a good defense, while St. Louis, showing sophomore strength, got off to a running start with a 96-41 victory over New Mexico A&M.

Cincinnati gets the big test tonight at home against Temple. Bradley, the NIT champ ranked with St. Louis and Cincinnati as Missouri Valley kingpins, scarcely used its regulars, led by Barney Cable, in its opener against Illinois Normal, and probably could do without 'em tonight against Arizona. But come Saturday, the Braves may have to hustle against Seattle and Elgin Baylor. Seattle opens against Portland State tonight.

Purdue (2-0) may be a late entry in the Big Ten race after surprising Missouri 76-49. The Boiler-makers may find out for sure tonight at home against Kansas State. The Wildcats (2-0) considered a possible threat to Kansas in the Big Eight, won at Indiana (usually tough at home) 66-51, but had to hustle to do it. Purdue plays at Nebraska Saturday.

K-State finishes the week at home to Iowa, which won its 77th consecutive non-conference game at home Saturday by whipping Arizona 80-63.

Indiana, judged a title contender along with Michigan State and Ohio State in the Big Ten, now is 0-2, losing both at home. The Hoosiers play at Missouri Saturday. Ohio State, beaten in overtime by Butler 77-73 (Michigan State cracked Butler earlier 74-55), also is 0-2 and meets Texas

MAURICE EVERETT, E

A&M in a regional TV game Saturday. Rice, heir apparent to Southern Methodist's Southwest crown, meets Louisiana State tonight, while Texas Christian, pegged No. 2 in the race, tries Oklahoma City tonight and then meets Auburn in the first round of the Birmingham Classic Friday.

North Carolina, rapping Clemson 79-55 in its opener, now has won 33 straight. The Tar Heels go against George Washington tomorrow. Furman Thursday and then South Carolina in an Atlantic Coast Conference TV game Saturday.

Yvon Durelle, that busy fisherman from Canada, takes on another free-swinging opponent Wednesday at Tampa in Jerry Luedee of New Haven. The bout tops a Babe Zaharias Memorial Cancer Fund show.

The fabulous House of David basketballers will visit East Carolina College's Memorial Gymnasium tomorrow night to scrap against the ECC All-Stars.

A team composed of outstanding Pirate athletes will compete against the bogged cagers.

Maurice Everette, a veteran cager from Robersonville, will pace the collegians. Others on the club will be Bucky Dennis, Waddell Solomon and Roy Dennis. The rest of the club will be filled out with top intramural, former varsity cagers.

Sparking the House of David will be veteran funnyman and the nation's top long shot artist, Bobby Roth. Moose Cooley, 6-9 giant, is also a featured attraction of the club.

The House of David is composed of only five traveling ball players. Game time is at 8:00.

Lightweights Are In Limelight Now

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The lightweight division rules the roost tonight with Kenny Lane, a foremost challenger for champion Joe Brown, boxing Luke Easter in San Francisco and Frankie Ryff facing Frank Ippolito in an all-New York bout at St. Nicholas Arena in New York.

The Ryff-Ippolito contest will be seen in some sections on DuMont TV.

Ryff beat Ippolito a little over a year ago but he was stopped in his only two 1957 fights by Lane and Gene Butler. Ippolito has lost his last two to Orlando Zulueta and Tommy Tibbs.

Yvon Durelle, that busy fisherman from Canada, takes on another free-swinging opponent Wednesday at Tampa in Jerry Luedee of New Haven. The bout tops a Babe Zaharias Memorial Cancer Fund show.

ELIZABETH SEIFERT'S NEW NOVEL
The Doctor's Husband
 © 1957 by Elizabeth Seifert. Reprinted by permission of the novel's publisher, Dodd, Mead & Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 18
 Dr. Dana brought his plate to the table. "What does your husband do, young lady?" he demanded of Tracy.
 "Why, he's a doctor. Just now he's with the Air Force in Thule. In civilian practice, he's a pediatrician. In the same office with Howdy."
 "Why pediatrics?" demanded Dana.
 "Why heart?" Tracy countered. "Of course Mike hasn't qualified yet, though he's about ready." Her eyes asked the rest of the question.
 Dr. Dana fielded it. "Hope when he has, he doesn't just rest on the fact that he's been certified," he said sternly. "I maintain a man's a specialist only so long as he keeps studying and learning, not by virtue of the fact that he's known enough at one specific time to pass their exams."
 Tracy opened her lips to reply; then she closed them again. After all, there was nothing to be gained at all by antagonizing Dr. Dana. The next day when the Nisbets drove her to the train which would take her to New York, she told them wistfully that she'd like to stay in New England, and work, "I don't see why Howdy doesn't."
 "Gets too cold. He hates winters such as we have."
 "Well, I knew there must be some reason. I think the whole set-up here is exciting. Scenery, climate — and especially the medical set-up. I'd enjoy working in that clinic group, I know."
 The train roared down upon them, and Mr. Nesbet helped Tracy to the platform. "Keep between the fences, girl!" he called to her as the train slid her away, from their smiling faces.
 Howdy met her plane; the next day in the office he stopped several times between patients to talk to her, to ask her more about "home," about her operation, about his parents. Would she eat dinner with him that night?
 Tracy tipped her head to look up at the tall, fresh-faced man; his hair was beginning to thin, but he was very attractive. And she liked Howdy's honesty, his ability to work hard; if it weren't for Michael, she could like Howdy very much!

 As things were, it soon became evident that her place in the office was going to be more difficult to fill adequately because of Howdy's quickening interest in her and his intensified attentions to her. It complicated her work tremendously to have one of the associate doctors in love with her.
 She protested to Howdy on the afternoon she consented to go for a hike with him. It was a brisk, cool Sunday at the end of September; they drove north of the city, parked the car, and walked along the river bluffs, their faces whipped by the wind and splashed with the sunlight falling between the gold and crimson leaves of the trees. Tracy had twisted an orange scarf about her hair; she wore a brown sweater, a tweed skirt and sturdy shoes.
 "You look like a school kid," Howdy told her fondly.
 "Oh, dear, I was thinking it was time you did some remembering that I am a married woman," Tracy told him sternly.
 "Let's not remember things like that today, Tracy."
 "I am married, Howdy."
 "I'm turned to look directly at her, his chin stubbornly. "It doesn't seem to me that you have much of a marriage, Tracy, with Mike Loren in Thule."
 "But Howdy!"
 "I know, I know. He's being patriotic and all that sort of thing. He's up in the land of ice and the midnight sun, and—" he shot her a glance "before that he exposed himself to the even greater dangers of Carol Ramey."
 Tracy tried to protest. She could n't quite make it. Anyway, Howdy was still talking. "There's just not very much for you, Tracy, darling, in such a marriage as Mike rigged up for you. Not even pride."
 Tracy took a deep breath. "My pride seems to be a bit different from other people's," she told the young man at her side. "At least, it seems to be unique. Now it's only three more months till Mike comes back, and — well — I think I want to go on doing what I consider honorable and right."
 "Virtuous but lonely," growled Howdy. He got to his feet, and held his hand down to Tracy. "All right, kid, I guess that's why I love you."

"Now! What was going to suggest was that you might want to stay on here with us."
 "But Michael . . ." she said in a troubled tone.
 "Yes, Michael is coming back and will be welcome. He's a brilliant man. But you're a good doctor, too, and I think you could work right along with him. There need be no additional investment."
 She sat frowning. Except as an intern she never had worked with Michael — would he like this arrangement?
 Dr. O'Connell was watching her quizzically. "Wouldn't you like to continue with us, my dear?"
 Tracy took a deep breath. "Oh, of course I would!" she cried. "I love my work here. It's just that I look for granted that Michael would come in here when he got out of service, and that I'd have to move elsewhere."
 "If he had never gone into the service—"
 "I'd about be finishing my second residency."
 "And would have to make some decision about what work you would do, where you would do it."
 "I know."
 "You've done very well with us, Tracy."
 "You've all been wonderful to me."
 "I was thinking more of your contribution to us. You've built up a list; there's plenty of practice here for you and Michael both. By dividing the work, you could serve at another clinic and take on another staff position. I am sure I could place you at the new County Medical center. Or you could narrow your field to polio and other virus diseases and make a real go of that."
 "What I'm saying, Tracy, is that you are a good doctor!"
 "Michael's a good doctor, too," she said, somewhat on the defensive. For Michael.
 "He is a brilliant man, and he brings that brilliance to his medicine. Perhaps that explains his aloofness from his patients, which to my way of thinking is regrettable, both for the patient and for the doctor."
 He was right, and Tracy knew that he was right. But maybe all things would be changed when Michael returned. And if they worked together, combined their methods . . .

Since Michael's return would require certain changes, in October Tracy took up with Dr. O'Connell the question of what she should do when no longer needed in the offices.
 "Should I apply for a residency at Children's — or some hospital here in the city? I wouldn't want to leave town. Of course this is a bad time of year to locate within a hospital service, and I can't quite see myself not working."
 Dr. O'Connell watched her as she talked.
 "There's still another possibility," he said mildly.
 Tracy frowned. "I don't have the money or the experience to go into practice for myself!" she said. "Or perhaps you think I could go in with some other doctor? Well, maybe."
 "Don't tell me what I think!" said the older man testily.
 "I'm sorry." She wasn't too afraid of the great and wonderful Dr. O'Connell.

Michael is coming home! What will he think of Tracy now? Find the answer in tomorrow's emotion-packed installment of "The Doctor's Husband" in this newspaper.

Fire Losses Now Near $126,500
 Fire losses for 1957 now amount to $126,491.44. Fire Chief George Gardner reported.
 Of that amount $46,750 was attributed to the Scott's Motor Sales fire, the chief reported.
 Chief Gardner said six box alarms and 17 telephone calls to fires were answered during November. There were also six false alarms. Firemen stood by while five lots were burned off and there were 19 rescue calls during the month.
 Volunteer firemen's payroll for November totalled $127.50 and for the fiscal year the total is $329.50.

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD (U)—Twelve years ago, Mickey Rooney walked off the MGM lot at the end of his contract.
 There was no ceremony. He didn't even get a gold watch for having once ruled there as the No. 1 attraction at the box office. He just packed his things and left.
 Today, Mickey is negotiating with MGM to return to the lot—this time writing his own ticket. He'll return with his own production company to make "Andy Hardy Goes Home," bringing the famous Hardy Kid up to date.
 Basking in a newfound success, Mickey can afford to look back on those gray days of a dozen years ago and reflect.
 "You have your ups and downs in the acting business," he commented. "When I left Metro, I was down. Nobody wanted to use me. It's a pretty tough thing to face, you know, after you've been on top."
 But he faced it with his usual burst of energy. He did whatever pictures came along. Most of them were quickies, made by producers who were anxious to cash in on the Rooney name.
 Fortunately, Mickey was still an entertainer, and when nothing was moving for him in Hollywood, he hit the road and played nightclubs.
 Now his career is in fine shape, thanks to the expert planning of his new manager, Red Doff. The big news is "Babyface Nelson," which Mickey made for his own company at $275,000. It is grossing better than some multi-million-dollar films—stands to earn

YESTERDAY A BRIGHT IDEA

TODAY A BRIGHT NEW COLORED TELEPHONE IN THE KITCHEN

Today's modern homemakers are good for bright ideas. And one bright idea that's growing more and more popular with them each day is that of having EXTENSION telephones located in handy places. In kitchens, dens, bedrooms and upstairs, you'll find EXTENSION telephones in up-to-date homes. They save so many steps . . . cost less than your daily newspaper.

CHRISTMAS GIFT IDEA . . . perhaps a handy extension in color would be just the thing for grandmother's bedroom, or mother's kitchen. Choose from eight modern decorator colors. Wall sets available in black.

WAY PLAN

At the Pentagon, Special Policeman Richard Burke checks credentials of T/Sgt. F. G. Kelley, USMC, as he leaves closely guarded offices of Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Uniformed guard stands watch on a catwalk overlooking the atomic pile at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

SECURITY

Pentagon secretary Josephine Gerardi checks files in Department of Defense Security Review branch. All filing cases are locked with combination locks. When the cabinet is open a large red sign reading "OPEN" must be placed in the top handle.

Whatever the Russians may be up to with their sputniks, missiles and rockets, the United States is keeping a close watch over its own weapons secrets, and saying not much about it.

Since sputnik, the government has been pressed for more military information. Some has been given. But security regulations are as strict as ever. Guards keep watch on civilian and military installations, such as the Pentagon, atomic plants, missiles launching sites, army and air force bases, navy yards, and the headquarters building of the Atomic Energy Commission. Visitors and employees are screened. Credentials are examined carefully. Confidential data is burned after use. Secrets are locked tight.

How these security regulations are carried out is pictured here.

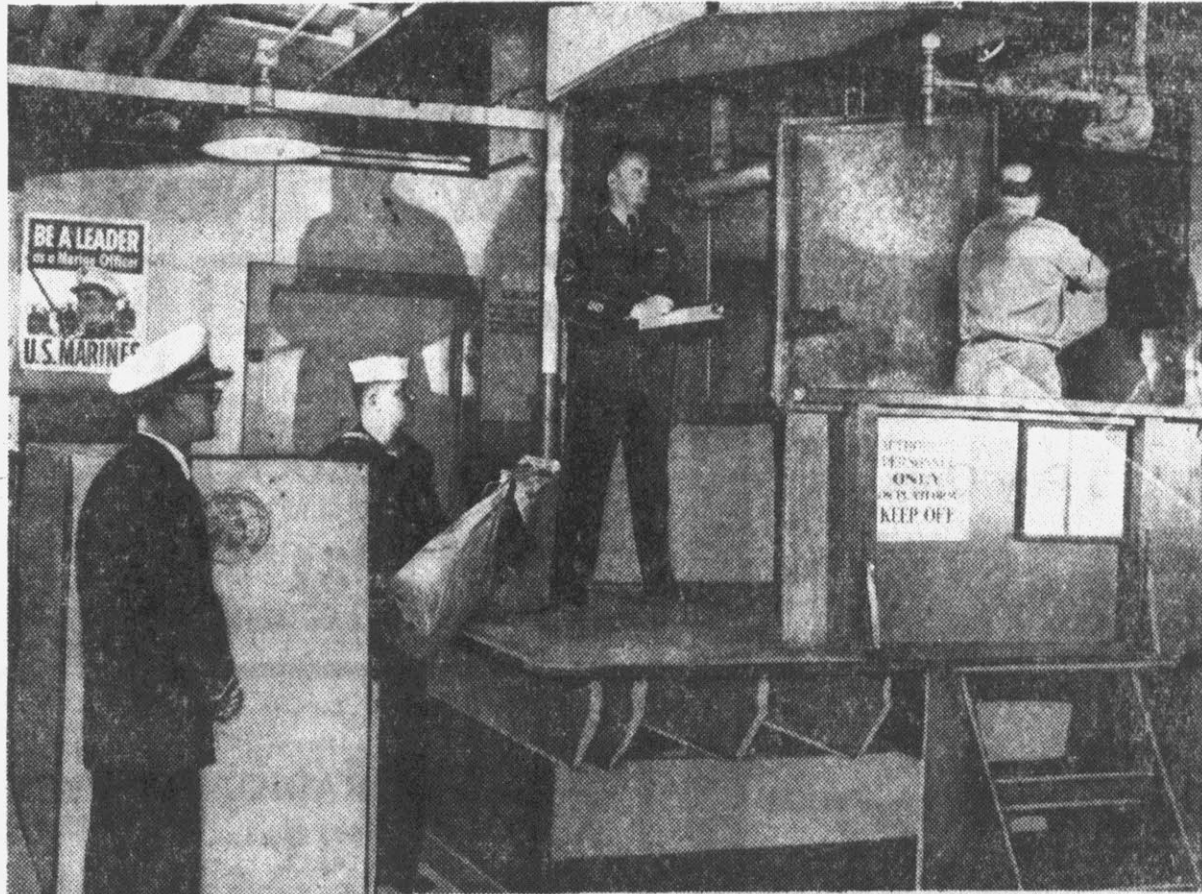

Truck stops for inspection at gate to the H-bomb plant across the Savannah River from Augusta, Ga. Signs at right speak for themselves.

Pentagon policeman J. L. Trollier checks employee's pass. Doorway is guarded by photoelectric unit which rings bell when anyone enters or leaves.

Control room of Pentagon's police department. When guard checks his post, this electronic equipment records it. When something goes amiss automatic warning device alerts operator.

Classified scrap material is destroyed in basement of the Pentagon by tossing it into a steam and hot water vat. The vat disintegrates the paper into an indistinguishable mass which is rolled into mats called "wet lap" and sold to paper manufacturers.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (U—NCDA)—Hog prices today were 25 to 30 higher. Tops of 18.00 to 18.75 at Tarboro, Enfield, Winterville, Scotland Neck, Bethel, Murfreesboro; 17.75 to 18.75 at Hillsboro; 18.00 to 18.50 at Clayton, Kinston; 17.75 to 18.50 at Rocky Mount; 17.75 to 18.25 at New Bern, Benson, Nahunta, Angier, Lillington, House's Mill; 18.50 at Castle Hayne; 18.25 at Clinton, Fayetteville, Elizabethtown, Pine Level, Blackman's Crossroads, Mount Olive, Whiteville, Dunn, Bailey, Newton Grove; 18.00 at Lumberton, Goldsboro, Shallotte; 17.75 at Rich Square.

RALEIGH (U—NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers, farm price 15 to 16, mostly 15.

Eggs—Prices paid by distributors for clean, sized, minimum 80 per cent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte about steady, large 47; Durham steady, large 46 to 47. Prices paid producers on graded out basis: Asheville, about steady, A large 47 to 50, mostly 47.

NEW YORK (U—Aircrafts)—Advanced but rails, steels and most other industrials sagged in an irregular lower stock market early this afternoon.

Aircrafts were spurred by the increasing demand for more spending and intensified efforts on missiles following last week's failure of the Vanguard satellite test. Steels were sold in fair activity as reports were that the steel mills face the sharpest cutbacks in output since 1954.

Motors, chemicals, oils and radio-television shares were mostly lower as declines stretched generally to around a point but in some cases closed to 2.

Aside from the aircrafts there was an assortment of gainers in selected issues. The advances ran to around a point most; but went to better than 2 points at best. Trading was fairly active. The opening was mixed. Early trading was quiet but turnover picked up as the session continued.

Among aircrafts, Lockheed was ahead around a point, Martin Co. snapped back with a fractional gain after the heavy selling this stock Friday on news of its Vanguard rocket failure.

Paramount spurred around 4 points in a sudden buying wave. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 70 cents at $157.80 with the industrials down $1.30, the rails down 80 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

Wasn't Afraid To Die, And Did

BOCTON (U—Jimmy) Foster, 14, who said he wasn't afraid to die, succumbed yesterday to a congenital kidney ailment, two weeks after receiving a healthy kidney from his twin brother in a transplant operation.

Jimmy was the first fatality in a series of six operations at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in which identical twins donated healthy kidneys to their ill twins. Jimmy's case differed from the others. He suffered a kidney defect from birth. The others had developed diseases of the kidneys.

The Foster boys came from Pocatello, Idaho, for the Nov. 25 double operation. The donor twin, Jerry, has recovered.

A hospital bulletin said the donated kidney failed to function in Jimmy, and that an artificial kidney machine made only slight and temporary improvement.

Jimmy was told three days ago that the operation had failed.

"I'm not afraid to die," he told his mother Mrs. Juanita Foster.

"I know that the best of all human power was done by save Jimmy," Mrs. Foster said yesterday.

"I'd do it all over again. I hope others will not be disheartened by this experience."

Four earlier kidney transplant operations—which doctors say can be performed only on true identical twins, have been pronounced successful.

In the fifth case, Delores Huskey, 14, DeSoto, Mo., who received a kidney from her sister Doris, was reported in critical condition from an infection which invaded her new kidney from the intestinal tract.

Six Trapped In Cave Found Alive, Unhurt

KETTLEWELL, England (U—)—Rescue workers splashing through a flooded cave today found six college students—including two girls—who had been trapped for 45 hours in a maze of chambers and tunnels 400 feet underground. All were alive and well.

The first student brought out, Peter Clough, 18, said the group clung to ledges to stay clear of waist deep water swirling through the passages. They had lost all track of time, he said, and thought this was midday Sunday.

Clough told rescuers his companions were quite well. They were being led out, a task expected to take about five hours.

The students went into the cave Saturday. Heavy rains fell, and loosened stones blocked one possible exit. Water rushing into the cave made it impossible for them to reach another exit. Their rescue became possible when the water level receded.

The students, all from the Bradford Technical College, are Joan Smith, 19; Christine Woodward, Michael Gazale and Robin Turner, each 16; Peter Blackburn 20, and Clough.

A 200-man rescue operation was organized when parents of the girls reported they had not come home Saturday night.

Prowling through caves—called pot-holing in Yorkshire—was a hobby of all six students.

Clough said the party had dropped its plastic bag holding watches and batteries and swift-running water swept the bag away before it could be retrieved. Only the light from helmet lamps was left, and there were no more batteries.

Water kept rising and the group clung to ledges and straddled streams which ran at times waist deep.

Charge Kinston Driver In Wreck

A Kinston resident was charged with failure to stop for a red light as a result of a two-car collision at the intersection of Dickinson Ave. and Memorial Dr. early last night.

Officers charged Henry Clay Koonce of 409 Mitchell St., Kinston, following their investigation. The driver of the second vehicle involved was identified to be Louis Stocks of Grimesland. Neither driver sustained personal injury.

Damage to the right side of Stocks 1949 vehicle was estimated at $150. Officers reported $100 in damages to the front of the automobile operated by Koonce.

No injuries were sustained in a traffic mishap late Friday night on 10th St.

Involved were: David Carl Perry of 213 Patrick St., Elizabeth, operating a 1950 car and Cecil Swann Williams of Washington Rt. 3 Williams was charged with failure to keep a proper lookout.

Officers estimated damages to both cars at $300. The accident took place at 11:05 p.m.

Manslaughter charges against a 16-year-old rural Greenville boy were continued in Superior Court this morning.

Kinney Harvey Worthington of Route 1, Greenville, was granted the continuance after his attorney presented the court with a doctor's statement that the boy has mumps. Solicitor Robert D. Rouse, who will prosecute the case for the state, did not contest the motion for continuance.

Worthington was charged with manslaughter, racing, careless and reckless driving, and speeding in excess of 65-miles-per-hour after an October 23 traffic accident that resulted in the death of Sterling Hardee Jones, 16-year-old Greenville high school student. The manslaughter warrant, signed by investigating Patrolman W. E. Whitehurst, was issued October 28.

The other charges were filed shortly after the accident occurred on a rural road near Winterville.

Approval of the motion for Worthington highlighted the opening session of a one-week mixed term of Superior Court which was convened this morning by Judge Walter J. Bone.

Also convened this morning was the Pitt County Grand Jury which sits during each criminal term to rule on bills of indictment.

Six Trapped In Cave Found Alive, Unhurt

KETTLEWELL, England (U—)—Rescue workers splashing through a flooded cave today found six college students—including two girls—who had been trapped for 45 hours in a maze of chambers and tunnels 400 feet underground. All were alive and well.

The first student brought out, Peter Clough, 18, said the group clung to ledges to stay clear of waist deep water swirling through the passages. They had lost all track of time, he said, and thought this was midday Sunday.

Clough told rescuers his companions were quite well. They were being led out, a task expected to take about five hours.

Boys In Hands Of Juvenile Court

Police have arrested a 14-year-old Negro boy in connection with the robbery of a Wade St. grocery store last Thursday.

The unnamed juvenile was charged with breaking and entering and larceny. Following his arrest he was turned over to the Pitt County Welfare Department for trial in Juvenile Court.

Officers who conducted an investigation of the Thursday night break-in at the R. S. Pollard Grocery Store reported that the building was entered through a rear door. The owner stated that between $13 and $14 was taken, $5 in pennies.

A 15-year-old Negro boy was arrested Saturday morning in connection with the larceny of merchandise from a wholesale truck Thursday.

The unidentified youth was attempting to sell the stolen merchandise at the time of his arrest, officers stated. According to their reports a box of candy, a quantity of chewing gum and a watch band was found in his possession. These articles, valued at $12, were reportedly stolen from a grocery truck parked on Albemarle Ave.

He was turned over to the Pitt Welfare Department for Juvenile Court and further disposition.

Boy Is Charged With Larceny Of Automobile

Charged with the larceny of an automobile late last night, an unidentified 15-year-old Negro boy had been turned over to Juvenile Court for disposition.

The youngster was arrested shortly after the 1949 car, belonging to Willie J. Dupree of Falkland, was reported missing. Dupree told officers the vehicle was parked on Albemarle Ave. at the time it was stolen.

A short time later Police found the car abandoned at the intersection of Pitt St. and Bonners Lane. The teenager was picked up later.

He was charged with temporary larceny of an automobile and operating a motor vehicle without a license.

New Gymnasium Will Be Initiated Tuesday Night

Greenville high's basketball team will usher in the 1957-58 season tomorrow night in the brand new 1200-seat gymnasium at Junius H. Rose high school, against State AAA Champion Wilmington.

The game, an extra on the Phantom card which will not be included as a regular season-ticket performance, will mark the first appearance of GHS before local fans.

Principal O. E. Dowd said today that a total of 1,400 seats will be made available for the expected capacity turnout. He also stated that there will be ample parking space for all.

A brief ceremony before the tip-off will serve to officially open the gymnasium on a new season for the Phantoms. According to cage experts in the Northeastern Conference, the ceremony may well mean the opening of a new era for GHS, also. Greenville is being tabbed as one of the favorites in the conference race for 1957-58.

The brief ceremony is expected to include a welcoming by a former GHS athlete, a prayer led by a local minister, and the presence of as many former Phantom basketball players as can possibly attend.

The Greenville high school band will also be present to perform. Prizes, special for this game only, are one dollar for adults and fifty cents for students.

In the Wilmington invitational practice tourney, Friday and Saturday, the G-men battled AAA high school teams from Charleston and Camden, South Carolina. They defeated Camden 55-46 and

The meeting will begin at 7 o'clock.

President Ed Harris will report to the group on the operation of the 1957 Fair. The officers and directors will also hear a financial report from Treasurer Larry Averette.

New directors are to be elected at the meeting. The group will also elect a president, three vice presidents, a secretary-treasurer and manager. An executive committee will be named from the directors of Greenville, Farmville and Ayden.

Officers Find Big Cache Of Bootleg On Premises

Pitt ABC officers made one of their largest single hauls in recent months Saturday night, finding 21 gallons of bootleg whiskey in the home of a local Negro man.

J. M. Ward, Chief ABC officer, identified the owner of the whiskey as Carlye Smith, 51, of 1503 Railroad St. Smith was charged with possession of non-tax paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

Presently on probation for a previous liquor violation, Smith is scheduled to be tried during the Spring term of Federal Court in Washington. He was released under a $500 bond.

Jasper Harris 36-year-old Negro of 610 Pamlico Ave. was also arrested Saturday night when officers reportedly found one pint of non-tax paid whiskey in his possession.

He was charged with possession and released under a $200 bond to be tried in City Court.

A 68-year-old Negro, Louis Corey of Ayden Rt. 2, was arrested over the weekend and charged with possession of non-

Forecast Change In Southern Way Of Life Ahead

PRINCETON, N.J. (U—)A Princeton University report, based on research with a panel of leading citizens from Greensboro, N.C., says that "barring unforeseen catastrophes, the South will become more urban, more industrial, and more segregated."

The report, issued yesterday, also says that urbanization and industrialization will change the South's social structure far more than de segregation, but that Southerners view de segregation as the "fundamental distorter of the traditional way of life."

It is part of a survey being conducted by the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.

Before releasing their findings, interviewers spent three months conducting research with the Greensboro group.
