Miss Harris, Mr. Pollard Say Vows; Leave For Nassau Trip

FOUNTAIN—The marriage of Miss Anne Fountain Harris and Frederick Pollard was solemnized Saturday evening, December 7, at 8:00 o'clock in the Fountain Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Roderic Harris of Fountain and Mr. Pollard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Fleming Pollard of Bethel.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Phillip M. Gory, pastor of the bride.

The vows were spoken before a large sunburst arrangement of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and carnations. Flanked on either side of the rostrum were two smaller arrangements of the same flowers. The choir rail was festooned with white chrysanthemums and southern smilax. Floor candelabras holding white burning tapers with Areca palms and native southern smilax were used in the background.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Haywood Smith, organist, of Farmville and Wilber Harris, soloist, of Tarboro. The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. She was wearing a dress of white silk taffeta, fashioned with a bateau neckline appliqued with Alencon lace, embroidered with seed pearls and sequins, and long sheath sleeves ending in calla points. The skirt, styled on princess lines, formed a chapel train. Her circular veil of imported illusion fell from a scalloped cloche of matching lace embroidered with seed pearls.

Her cascade bouquet of lilies of the valley was centered with a white orchid, showered with tulle and French bridal laces.

Mrs. Julius Fleming Pollard of Bethel, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Maid of honor was Miss Carolyn Harris, sister of the bride. They wore floor length dresses of ruby taffeta featuring off-the-shoulder necklines and flared skirts with bustle backs.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. James Eugene Hodges of Greenville, Miss Mary Louise Hunt of Daytona Beach, Fla., Mrs. James Barker Fountain of Chapel Hill, cousins of the bride, and Miss Suzanne Towse of Hertford. Their dresses and flowers were like those of the honor attendants.

Ginny and Jaye Barnhill, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Barnhill Jr. of Williamson, wore dresses of bluish pink taffeta with crushed cummerbunds and carried small muffs and flowers with a cut-work cloth and certain carnations and gypsophelia. Smaller tables in the dining room and in the living rooms were centered with arrangements of pink carnations.

The luncheon menu consisted of turkey, dressing, gravy, yams, beans, hot biscuits, assorted pickles, coffee and lemon tart.

Around 40 members of the Pollard-Harris wedding party and out-of-town relatives and friends attended the luncheon.

Mr. Pollard was his son's best man, and the ushers were William M. Whitehurst of Bethel, John H. Woolard III of Williamston, William B. Gardner III of Edenton, Stanley D. Leggett of Rocky Mount, Milton J. Moye Jr. of Tarboro and Harry R. Smith of Rosemont, Pa.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Harris chose a floor length gown of sky blue lace with matching accessories. Mrs. Pollard, mother of the bridegroom, wore a blue gown of chiffon and lace with matching accessories. Both wore pink orchid corsages.

For her wedding trip to Nassau the bride was wearing a black cashmere suit trimmed with mink, matching accessories, and the orchid from the bouquet. Upon their return they will be at home in Tarboro.

Mrs. Pollard was graduated from Salem Academy, Winston-Salem, and attended St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh.

Mr. Pollard is a graduate of Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., and attended the University of North Carolina. He has recently completed his tour of duty with the U. S. Army.

After the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in their home. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Fountain Sr., grandparents of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Foster D. Finch introduced guests to the receiving line which was composed of the bride and groom, their parents, and the honor attendants.

Directing guests to the dining room were Mr. and Mrs. Sam M. Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Leman H. Barnhill. The dining room table was covered with a cut-work cloth trimmed with Point de Venise lace and was centered with a silver five-branched candelabra holding white burning tapers and an all-white clustered arrangement of carnations and chrysanthemums showered with French lace and ribbons. Mrs. Vernon Bunting and Mrs. Ernest Hunt served wedding cake and punch from either end of the table. Assisting in serving were Miss Martha Hardy Johnson, Miss Eleanor Glenn Newton and Miss Mary Lou Edmondson.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Smoot and Ernest Hunt directed guests to the bride's book, presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Fountain Jr. and James Lane Jefferson received in the den and invited guests to the gift room where Mr. and Mrs. Larry Eagles received.

Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. E. C. (Edwin) Newton.

Among the out-of-town guests for the Pollard-Harris wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hunt, Mary Louise and James Hunt of Daytona Beach, Fla., Woody Hunt of Davidson College, Mrs. E. P. Whitaker, Mrs. J. W. Staples and Miss Sally Staples of Kernersville. The above persons were also guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Fountain. Miss Ellen Parker and Mrs. Frank A. Moss of Washington, N. C., Mr. and Mrs. Sam Harris of Wilmington, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Finch of Zebulon, and Miss Suzanne Towse of Hertford were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Harris. A Simple Matter Of Arithmetic

Every state and local government sees its counterpart reaping benefits from federal aid funds. Each seems compelled to try to get a larger share of the ever-growing money pie.

The result has developed into a grab-bag scramble by state and local governments . . . each seeking to be sure it gets what's coming to it from Uncle Sam before some other government unit does.

For the most part state and local governments have been so busy passing their plates back for more helpings of Uncle Sam's money pie that we lose sight of the fact they are the providers as well as the consumers of the pie.

After all, rich Uncle Sam has only one source of money, and that is the individual and collective pocketbook of his citizens. If billions are to be paid out in federal aid funds, more billions must first be collected in federal taxes from local citizens. If Uncle Sam collects these billions, state and local governments can't collect them too.

It's really a simple matter of arithmetic, appropriately encased in bureaucratic red tape. But back to our money pie and the second helpings.

Every state and local government knows that its citizens are providing the pie by sending to Washington tax dollars which should be collected at home. If the state or local government is to provide its citizens with any benefits from these tax dollars, it must keep asking for more helpings. If one state or local government fails to get its slice, it is quickly gobbled up by some other.

Thus state and local governments find themselves whizzing at a breath-taking rate in an orbit around Uncle Sam's federal aid money pie. If one shakes itself loose from the orbit it either roasts in blistering public indignation, or slowly freezes in the outer space of financial distress.

If the house Intergovernmental Relations subcommittee would make a real contribution to state and local governments, let it devise a workable means by which Uncle Sam's federal aid money pie is dissolved and each state and local government allowed to establish its own money pie to take care of more of its own needs.

Anyway, Princeton U. Now Knows It Too

Most Southerners have long been aware that their area is destined to become more urban, more industrial and perhaps, in time, more desegregated.

For decades they have witnessed a gradual, yet startling decrease in the farm population of the South. They have seen crossroads of a few houses and a store grow into towns. They have seen towns grow into cities. They have seen cotton patches changed into business locations, corn fields become industrial sites. They have seen the farm youngsters migrate from rural to urban areas where plows were replaced by lathes, drills, and machines as tools of the trade.

While leaning heavily on its agriculture, the South has exhibited its hunger and industry, mounting through the years a vigorous program to attract new plants, create new industrial jobs and payrolls.

Southerners have been aware of all these things. They have known the direction in which they have faced their area in that direction in quest of a better balanced economy, increased per capita income and higher standards of living.

After three months of conducting research with a panel of Greensboro's leading citizens, the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs of Princeton University has come up with a report which says:

" . . . barring unforeseen catastrophes, the South will become more urban, more industrial and more desegregated."

It took a special survey by Princeton University to inform Southerners of that fact?

Perhaps the purpose of the report is to enlighten the citizenry north of the Mason-Dixon Line on what's going on down South.

At any rate it is comforting to have the assurance of Princeton University that we in the South are making progress in our industrialization and urbanization.

Do It Yourself Idea Promoted

By ELMER ROESSNER

American cities, designed for streetcars and horse-drawn vehicles, will have to be extensively rebuilt if they are to survive, Morris Ketchum, Jr., New York architect, has been telling industrial designers.

"A change in shopping habits is threatening the country's downtown business districts with severe trade losses," he pointed out in a recent address. The growing popularity of suburban shopping centers and the increase in consumer mobility are changing the face of America, he declared. "There are more than 1,000 regional shopping centers in operation and at least 2,000 are now under construction or in the planning stage," he added.

One way to rebuild cities is by creating "pedestrian islands" in downtown shopping centers, he declared. In Boston, Philadelphia and Fort Worth are now planning such alterations, he said.

SHOPPING PARKS

Plans call for sealing off the central cores of those cities from motor traffic, encircling the cores with belt highways and redeveloping them for pedestrian traffic.

"Small electric buses will be used to carry the weary, laden and infirm," he said. "The hearts of these cities will become pleasant and attractive business and shopping districts."

"With all motor traffic gone, each street would become a walk. Planting islands, covered walkways, kiosks, little shops and frequent rest areas will convert the heart of each city into a public park."

CONFESSING OUR SINS AND MISTAKES

Very often we read and say that confession is good for the soul.

Why is confession good for the soul? It is good, in the first place, because it relieves the tension of a troubled conscience. As long as we are one kind of person while those round about us believe us to be another kind of person — and a better person than we really are — we are filled with a haunting feeling of unworthiness and deceit. There is no other burden a man or woman can bear which is so burdensome and devastating as the burden of unconfessed evil. Few things rack the mind and body more than a suppressed sense of guilt. Confession is good for the soul, in the second place, because it is the prelude to forgiveness. God never lets us go forward in the spiritual journey of life until we have checked in, as it were, at certain points and cleared everything which lies behind us. Or, to put it more bluntly, God can't forgive unless we confess. To die unrepentant is life's greatest tragedy, and one which almost equals it in the intensity of its suffering is to live an unrepentant life.

There are all sorts of ways of making confession, but regardless of the way one actually achieves a renovating sense of liberty and new life, duty and responsibility of confession is the privilege of everybody.

A Broken-Field Runner

Driving on Greenville's Main Street poses such a problem. It's not that traffic can't move along at a fairly lively pace most of the time.

It's just those occasions when certain drivers mistake the two lanes down the middle of the street for parking lanes that cause me trouble.

Take just yesterday for example. I was headed north on the city's main drag and things went just fine — until I hit Five Points.

From then on it took all the skill of a broken field runner to keep moving on the two lanes allotted to traffic.

Hardly had I passed the Five Points intersection when this big baby blue Cadillac stared me in the face. I faked to the right and then roared around his left flank. But hardly had I shook the Cadillac when this two-tone green Ford looms up in the left lane. Remembering all the coaches had ever taught me I came almost to a complete halt, checked for bicyclers on my right and then sailed around the Ford as if I were sitting still, which it was.

Then there was a hole big enough to drive a box car through and I took full advantage of it. The advantage was enough to carry me through the Fourth St. intersection but another problem arose. There was a 1947 Chevrolet unloading four ladies squarely in my path.

A quick spin of the steering wheel and I squeezed into the next lane — just ahead of a 1955 Plymouth which was bearing down at my rear.

For the next half block only a couple of jaywalkers stood in my path and I managed to avoid both.

As I moved through the Third St. intersection only clear sailing appeared ahead. But there was this Rambler which roared out of a parking space at the Post Office with which to contend.

I haven't attended countless football games for nothing. I faked a pass into the parking space and suddenly I moved to the Rambler's right, taking delight in the look of disappointment on its driver's face.

Then there was only this Pontiac parked in the right lane in front of the liquor store. I took that one with ease just before the Rambler plugged up the other lane.

As I halted for the stop sign at Second St. there was a grin of triumph upon my face. I had a feeling much like that a football player must have when he completes a 90-yard run for a touch down.

DWINDLING DAILY WORKER (New York Herald Tribune)

The troubles of "The Daily Worker," which the editors of that forlorn newspaper ascribe to the "harassment of the Left," actually stem from the moral bankruptcy international communism has suffered in recent years.

Nikita Khrushchev's famous speech to the 20th Party Congress against Stalinism produced splits and cleavages in international communism which are far from healed today, and last year's Soviet aggression in Hungary was a shattering blow.

The departure of the fellow-travelers in the wake of these events was perhaps to be expected. But even the hard-core Communists fell to wrangling among themselves and there have been resignations with the ranks.

If staff members of "The Daily Worker" have found it necessary to quit, it seems no surprise that the readers thereof have been taking their trade elsewhere, too. Consequently "The Daily Worker" has now announced that it will come out four days a week instead of five, and that it will consist of four tabloid pages instead of eight. And it warns that even this drastically reduced publication will not be able to continue unless financial aid is forthcoming.

At best, the "Worker" was never much of a newspaper, and in its new state it will be even less of one. It is fading today not because of suppression or persecution but simply because the party line is finally strangling it.

A Fish Has No Chance

By HAL BOYLE

ANDROS TOWN, Bahamas (AP)—For years I've been saying that fishing isn't much of a sport because it's too easy.

Now, at the risk of enraging the nation's 20 million anglers, I think I've proved my point.

Sportmen travel from all points of the compass to try their luck here at catching bonefish, one of the world's finest game fish.

Their scientific name stands for "White Fox" and they are also known as "The Phantoms of the Flats."

"Let's see what we can do," suggested my wartime buddy and vacation companion, Don Whitehead, author of "The FBI Story."

"I don't think it's quite fair," I replied. "What chance has a poor dumb fish got against a grown man with charm, character, two college degrees and a receding hairline?"

"Save the small talk," said Whitehead, who has fished since he was a tadpole, "and get in the boat."

We climbed into the small skiff and Rudy, our native guide, bumped-bumped us over 15 miles of azure sea to a favorite creek further down this largest of the Bahamas Islands.

After hanging a chunk of crab on the hook, I remarked: "I still feel like a criminal. What chance have they got?"

"Fish or cut bait," remarked Whitehead.

Well, reluctantly, I made my first cast. Believe it or not—there was a silvery surge in the water, and the reel groaned as a big bonefish hit the bait and raced with it 75 yards.

Five battling minutes later I reeled him in. My hands ached.

"Like I said," I told Whitehead, "the fish hasn't got a chance."

"Try again," he suggested. His mouth fell open as I made another cast—and immediately got another strike. Then he got a strike himself. For the next hour we reeled them in steadily.

"I got a blister on my thumb," I said. "Let's quit."

"Quit now! Are you crazy?" said Whitehead. "We may never get fishing again like this the rest of our life."

After another hour of continuous and successful struggle, I was weary of pulling in the bonefish, each of which put up a desperate scrap. My hands were red and nearly raw.

"This is too easy—it bothers my conscience," I told Whitehead. "I'm going to take a siesta."

He watched in disbelief as I stretched out in the prow, put my head on a pillow, and fell asleep. He kept on fishing—but with less luck—until I woke up and suggested we go home.

"Not until we get at least a couple more," he said.

"This is all so unfair," I murmured, tossing out my line. Zing! A strike. Whitehead shook his head and cast himself. Zing! Another strike.

We headed home — wumpety-bump-bump over the bays. At the pier we counted our fish and found we had 25 — not counting four we had tossed back — a record catch from a single skiff here in one day. We distributed them among the natives who find them choice eating.

"Let's go out again tomorrow," said Whitehead.

"No, me," I replied. "I feel ashamed. It's all been so unfair. I feel sorry for the poor fish."

Now I know millions of anglers who would bet me a hundred dollars I couldn't go out and duplicate my feat the next day. But remember the duffer who stepped up to his first tee, belted a hole-in-one and threw away his club saying, "this game is too easy?"

Well, nobody could ever prove he was wrong—so long as he didn't step up to the second tee. That's why I'm hanging up my fishing pole. The time to quit is when you've made your point.

Fishing is just too simple. I'm going back to croquet. That's a game of real skill.

Troubles In Science Emphasis

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON Federal educational experts have discovered that establishment of a virtually new and expanded Department of Science in the nation's schools and college will be a far more difficult and costly task than had been imagined. They must actually start from scratch to repair years of neglect and to catch up with the Communists.

Russian recently, or since the Russian Sputniks invaded the heavens, have Washington officials begun to attack this problem at all. Marion Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, has been conferring daily with educators, scientists, engineers and mathematicians.

They have agreed upon a broad general program and purpose in accord with the plans proposed by President Eisenhower and Secretary Folsom. It is to persuade and to aid specially gifted students to specialize in studies that will strengthen the nation's scientific base and structure.

SELECTION OF QUALIFIED INSTRUCTORS In fact, it is hoped that the system will enable teachers to discern and to select pupils with special capabilities in these fields as early as the grammar grades. They will then be in a position to direct and divert them into specialization in the physical and related sciences.

Although no definite figures have been set, it is probable that the Federal government will establish about 20,000 scholarships a year, subsidizing each student, at the rate of $750 for each year of study, whether it be four or six or more. It is expected that many states will set up their own scholarships, as some do now.

In order to avoid any suggestion of Federal control or interference, a fear which has made Congress reluctant to pass school construction bills even, the selection of the students and the award of scholarships will be left to the States' Departments of Education. Agencies like the College Board of Examiners will prepare the test, rate the students, and certify them for financial help. Need as well as ability will be considered in making the selections.

SCARCITY OF QUALIFIED INSTRUCTORS It is in the working out of a practical system and organization that the difficulties appear. In the first place, there are not enough qualified teachers to guide this new crop of students, especially in the many strange paths of technical learning that the atomic, the rocket and the Sputnik age have opened up.

Government secrecy has prevented the diffusion of this knowledge. Teachers may be required to take special or refresher courses on Saturdays and during their normal vacation periods.

Nor are there the physical facilities, especially in grammar and high schools. As only a visit to neighborhood schools will disclose, they are entirely lacking in laboratory equipment. The materials now available for easy courses in chemistry, physics, geology, astronomy, etc., are mostly elementary.

Many structures will have to be rebuilt to provide space for larger classes in science, mathematics, engineering, etc. It is probable that areas now devoted to gymnasiums, auditoriums and other recreational forms will have to be taken over. Schools which have been criticized as "palaces" and "country clubs" will undergo a Spartan reconstruction, coming to resemble Russia's factory-like institutions. CROWDED EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS Other difficulties have cropped up during these preliminary explorations. Grammar, high and college institutions are so crowded now that they are doubling up their classes, or, in the case of universities, turning deserving applicants from their doors. Where will the expected influx of science students be placed?

Expense, of course, has become a minor consideration in view of the national emergency. But aside from the technical problems listed here, the financing of this novel educational undertaking—scholarships, higher teachers' salaries, expensive laboratory equipment and textbooks, new school buildings—will run into several billion dollars, or as much as we spend on liquor and cigarettes.

Finally, many educators warn that this experiment may result in neglect of the humanities—art, literature, music, languages, history, etc. Despite the current crisis, they do not wish to over-emphasize the sciences to the detriment of studies which contribute so richly to a cultural and civilized society of Americans.

Jury Clears Deputy Of Fatal Shooting Charge

WILLIAMSTON, N. C. (AP)—An all-white jury last night acquitted a special deputy sheriff in the fatal shooting of a Negro college student suspected of trying to make a date with a white woman by telephone.

The jury deliberated 15 minutes before freeing Dallas Holliday, 37, of a second degree murder charge in the shooting of Joseph J. Cross, 21, near Williamston the night of Sept. 7. Cross was a senior at A&T College in Greensboro.

Sheriff R. W. Rawls told the Superior Court jury that Cross was shot during a tussle with Hol-down U. S. Highway 64 near Jamesville, N. C., and that a car would pull behind her, blink its lights three times and blow its horn as it passed. She was told to follow the car to the rendezvous area.

Rawls and Holliday hid themselves on the floor of Miss Roberson's car. Sheriff Rawls testified that about two miles from town a car pulled up behind Miss Roberson's vehicle, blincked its lights three times, sounded its horn and passed.

The waitress identified the vehicle as one that had followed her from time to time. The lead car proceeded to the rendezvous area and stopped. Rawls said a Negro man got out and started walking back to the Roberson car.

Holliday got out of the car. Rawls said he heard Holliday say, "Halt! This is Dep. Sheriff Holliday."

The sheriff told the jury he saw the man brandish a shiny object, which in his opinion was a knife, and tussle with Holliday. Rawls said he heard four shots. The wounded man then ran to his car and drove off. About 155 yards away the vehicle ran off a bank near a bridge.

The officers pulled Cross from the car. He died before reaching a hospital.

Three Marines Are Acquitted In Slaying Case

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Three Marines won acquittal here yesterday and the state decided not to prosecute seven others in the roadhouse slaying of a Wilmington man last September.

A Superior Court jury deliberated about 3 1/2 hours and returned verdicts of innocent for Paul H. Faust, 18, of Baltimore; William T. Powell, 19, of Cincinnati; and Wilbur Carter, 20, of Annapolis, Md.

Immediately thereafter, Solicitor John J. Burney announced that the state would not prosecute against the seven other Marines charged in the slaying of Charles E. Sullivan, 23, during a brawl at the roadhouse parking lot.

Powell grinned and Carter wept when the jury announced the verdict, but Faust displayed no emotions. Relatives of the defendants surrounded them and some cried.

Mrs. Sullivan, the 21-year-old widow, could not be seen in the courtroom.

Sullivan died of a bullet wound from his own .22 caliber rifle during a melee involving a group of Marines after he had struck one for grabbing his wife's arm.

After the jury had been out about three hours, Judge Henry L. Stevens called it back to the courtroom to determine how it stood. The foreman reported an 11-1 division, but did not say which number stood for acquittal.

Stevens instructed the one dissenting juror to try to agree with the majority and sent the jury back into deliberation. Twenty minutes later the acquittal was reported.

The state's not pros concerned charges against:

William L. Johnson, 20, North Jacksonville, Fla.; Harry D. Jackson, 20, Athens, Ala.; John Frangle, 18, York, Pa.; Daniel F. Rice, 18, Worcester, Mass.; Paul Joseph Dunn, 21, Springfield, Mass.; Bobby L. Mullins, 20, Lebanon, Ky.; and Richard Citchall, Altoona, Pa.

County Teachers Hear Talk By Dr. Utterback

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the East Carolina College English Department was guest speaker Monday night at a meeting of English teachers in Pitt County schools.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Lou Nelson of the Belvoir-Palkland School faculty. Mrs. Nelson was assisted in conducting the meeting by Mrs. Edna Eark Baker, supervisor of instruction for Pitt County Schools.

Dr. Utterback discussed "What Students Need When They Come to College", including knowledge of spelling and punctuation, correct use of verb forms, proper word endings, correct use of third-person singular forms, and knowledge of agreement between pronouns.

Also discussed by Dr. Utterback were needs for stressing vocabulary, oral reading, backgrounds in classical literature, composition, and organization in writing.

Figured South Pole Call A Joke

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—Mrs. Rose Hutchings thought it was just a bum joke when she answered her telephone at 1:0 a.m. and a voice said: "South Pole calling."

Then she heard the voice of her son-in-law Gerald Dubois, who is serving with a naval unit in the South Pole area.

A ham operator in St. Clair Shores had contacted Dubois' group by radio and then put through a telephone call to bring Mrs. Hutchings into the hookup.

Cotton, Rice Quotas Are Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—By lopsided margins, the country's cotton and rice growers have okayed imposition of marketing quotas on their 1958 crops.

In referendums yesterday the farmers voted to continue for another year marketing quotas which have been in effect the past few years.

Approval means a continuation of government loans to support prices of the two crops at somewhere between 75 and 90 per cent of parity — probably at or about the 75 per cent level.

The Agriculture Department already has announced that in 1958 rice will be supported at 75 per cent of parity, as it was this year. It hasn't yet announced a decision on the level for cotton, which was supported this year at 87 per cent of parity.

Parity is a standard designed to provide farmers a fair return for their crops in relations to their costs.

As tabulated by the Agriculture Department, the votes in yesterday's referendums showed:

Upland cotton (21 states) — 209,829 for quotas by 15,822 against, or a "yes" percentage of 93.

Extra long staple cotton (six states, 1 territory) — 1,091 for and 148 against, and 88.1 percentage for quotas.

Rice (13 states)—6,048 for and 609 against, a "yes" percentage of 91.

In each case there was a slight decline from last year in the number of farmers voting, but the "yes" percentage was about the same. In referendums a year ago upland cotton growers approved quotas by 92 per cent, extra long staple cotton growers by 94.5 per cent and rice farmers by 91.4 per cent.

Until the Eisenhower Administration farm program became effective a few years ago, support prices were fixed at 90 per cent of parity. Under the Eisenhower program supports can range from 75 to 90 per cent of parity.

To be eligible for support loans a farmer must not plant in excess of his acreage allotment. His marketing allotment is his production on his allotted acreage.

Had quotas been rejected, support prices would have dropped to 50 per cent of parity and only farmers planting within their acreage allotments would have been eligible for the loans.

Had quotas been rejected, support prices would have dropped to 50 per cent of parity and only farmers planting within their acreage allotments would have been eligible for the loans.

Upland cotton farmers in North Carolina approved that referendum 1,063 votes to 1,127 votes against marketing quotas. The South Carolina tally was 19,576 yes and 94 no.

Only two votes were cast in North Carolina on the rice referendum — both for quotas. Five favorable votes on the rice referendum were cast in South Carolina.

Neither of the Carolinas voted on the extra long staple cotton referendum.

Good Turn Cost Him His Life

PRATT, Kan. (AP)—William Roy Shafer, 25-year-old trucker, stopped to do a good turn and paid with his life.

He was driving by Everett Carr's farmhouse when he noticed a fire had broken out. He stopped to help fight it.

After the fire was out, Shafer pointed out to Carr a bare spot on a wire leading into the house, apparently the cause of the trouble.

An electric charge jumped six inches from the wire to Shafer's hand and knocked him down. He got to his feet but collapsed and died a few minutes later.

Army's Redstone Rocket Flies High

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army, successful last night in launching a modified Redstone test rocket, pushed on today with its program to put up a baby moon. Top engineers of the Army Ballistics Missile Agency from Redstone Arsenal at Huntsville, Ala., were here and the Army launching area at the Air Force Missile Test Center bristled with interrelated weapons of the Redstone family, waiting for firings. Additional launchings may be expected almost daily until the climactic attempt to put up an instrumented satellite, and to succeed where the Navy Vanguard attempt of last Friday failed. The Defense Department said the Redstone test vehicle launched last night was in the Army Jupiter program. The program also includes the Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile, capable of distances of 1,500 miles, and the Jupiter C research rocket, which already has been fired a distance of 3,500 miles and to an altitude of 600 miles. Top defense officials visiting the Army Jupiter missile production line at Huntsville were shown a sample of the Army's satellite. It will weigh about the same as the 21-pound sphere which the Vanguard project hopes eventually to put into orbit. Unlike either the full-scale Vanguard or the miniature version—the 6.4-inch, 3 1/4-pound aluminum ball which the Navy intends to launch with the 72-foot Vanguard rocket—the Army satellite will consist of the final stage of the rocket itself. This will be a cylinder about three feet long, rounded at the forward end like the nose of a bullet. The metal casing of the last rocket stage will remain after the propellant has burned out, while the vehicle is traveling at about 18,000 miles an hour. It will contain automatic radio reporting instruments for sending information back to earth. The Jupiter C uses the liquid-propelled Redstone missile as the primary first stage power plant, and has smaller solid fuel rocket engines for its second and third stages.

Rivalry Invades Presentation Of Nobel Prizes

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—East-West rivalry invaded the nonpolitical atmosphere of the annual Nobel Prize banquet and ball last night when a Chinese-born physics prize winner took a public stand for the West. Standing before King Gustaf Adolf VI of Sweden and 2,000 other guests, Dr. Chen Ning Yang said, "I have dedicated myself to science which is born out of Western origin." Yang, of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N.J., and Dr. Tsung Dao Lee of Columbia University, New York, shared the 1957 prize in physics. Both are American-trained and did their prize-winning work in the United States. The guests included diplomats from Britain, France and Italy, whose citizens won the other prizes of $42,000 each presented yesterday by the King. But the Nobel committee sidestepped Red China's efforts to claim the two young physicists by not inviting diplomats from either Peking or Washington. Both the physicists are citizens of Nationalist China but have applied for American citizenship. In a brief speech, Yang recalled the Boxer uprising of 1900 in China to throw out foreigners. A combined military force of foreign powers quelled the uprising and extracted indemnities from China. "The United States returned her share immediately, the money to be used for the education of students," Yang said. "This was typical of the United States. I was a direct beneficiary of this and so I have dedicated myself to science which is born out of Western origin." The other prize winners also spoke briefly to the crowd in the gold-leafed halls of Stockholm's City Hall. The other winners were Albert Camus of France, literature; Sir Alexander Todd of Britain, chemistry; and Daniel Bovet of Italy, medicine. The Nobel Peace Prize, awarded by a committee of the Norwegian Parliament, was presented yesterday in Oslo to Lester B. Pearson, former Canadian foreign minister.

Seek Identify Slain Woman

BOLIVIA, N.C. (AP)—Police have forwarded fingerprints to the FBI in Washington in an effort to identify a woman killed in a highway accident near here last night. The State Highway Patrol said the woman, a hitchhiker, jumped from a truck into the path of an automobile. The patrol identified the truck driver as Dave McKeithan of Bolivia and the driver of auto as William K. Milligan of Bolivia.

NO 'MAN OF YEAR' WOONSOCKET, R. I. (AP)—The Woonsocket Kiwanis Club has decided not to make a "Man of the Year" award for 1957. The club said no one merited it.

Textile Firms Face Shortage Of Long Staple Cotton Today

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Cotton textile manufacturers now are convinced they must contend with an acute scarcity of higher grade longer staple cotton until the 1958 crop is ginned. The December cotton crop estimate issued by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture confirmed the worst fears of the cotton manufacturers and of the cotton shippers—the 1957 cotton crop is short not only in the total yield but also in the desirable qualities of staples. So far as the total of bales of cotton is concerned, there is abundance. This year's crop now is estimated at eleven million bales. There is a surplus of around five million bales in prospect for the end of this crop year. The really severe detail, however, is the great volume of cotton consumed annually in American mills is inch and longer staples in the medium and better grades. The above conclusions were published today by J. A. Daly, business editor of The Charlotte News. Even the government's reports regarding the cotton trade emphasize that the shippers and the domestic mills are showing little interest in the extremely low grades. These grades and shorter staples, unsuitable for use in most domestic mills, are described as "distorting cotton statistics." This still developing situation for cotton has kept the market for better qualities in a rather strong uptrend since early October. Middling grade cotton of inch and one-sixteenth staple now is costing Carolina mills, delivered, about 40 cents a pound, or about three cents a pound more than it cost a year ago. Adding complications to this situation is the government's report that only eight million bales of this year's eleven million-bale crop had been ginned prior to Dec. 1. That means three million bales still are in the fields and accumulating damage consequent to low temperatures and wet weather. Meantime, there is a good demand from the domestic mills and cotton shippers for better qualities of surplus cotton held by the Commodity Credit Corp. All this and more is happening to the South's once "king cotton" at a time when the cotton manufacturers are caught tightly in a squeeze between high cotton costs and low selling prices for fabrics and yarns. Until a week or two ago, the average price of unfinished cotton fabrics was down to the lowest level of the post-war years. Through recent days cotton prices have added to their gains and moderate advances have been made effective for some de-

Diplomat Urges Cyprus Partition

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—The Turkish ambassador to the United States has asserted that if Cyprus gains independence it will become "a prey to international communism." Ambassador Suat Hayri Urgulu said that a shortage of foreign exchange is the most serious of Turkey's economic problems. "May I add parenthetically here that the generous American aid, both military and economic, has of course been of great help to us. However, it was not the cause of our economic development. Nor was it the initiating factor, as it is sometimes believed to be. "United States military aid has been, and still is, a great contribution to our defense effort. (and) when I say defense, I do not only mean the defense of Turkey itself, but rather our contribution to the defense of the free world as a whole, including the United States 1/2 defense against aggression, defense of peace." Rep. Cooley (D-NC) introduced the ambassador. Turning to other matters, Urgulu said that a shortage of foreign exchange is the most serious of Turkey's economic problems. "May I add parenthetically here that the generous American aid, both military and economic, has of course been of great help to us. However, it was not the cause of our economic development. Nor was it the initiating factor, as it is sometimes believed to be. "United States military aid has been, and still is, a great contribution to our defense effort. (and) when I say defense, I do not only mean the defense of Turkey itself, but rather our contribution to the defense of the free world as a whole, including the United States 1/2 defense against aggression, defense of peace."

Pakistan Loses Another Premier

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Prime Minister Ismail Chundrigar resigned today as the Republican party toppled the government for the second time in two months. President Iskander Mirza immediately asked Chundrigar, 60-year-old leader of the Moslem League, to form a new government. The National Assembly then was adjourned. The Republicans, Pakistan's largest party, withdrew from Chundrigar's coalition in a protest over the Prime Minister's proposal that elections be held under a separate poll system for Moslems, Hindus and Christians. Republicans and the Moslem League agreed when the coalition was formed on Oct. 18 that they would support the proposal. Then leading Republicans reneged. Descriptions of cloth and yarns. Cotton and textile statisticians figure that the recent raises in cotton textile prices have failed to actually improve the average profit margin for the mills because of the new strength in raw cotton prices. So that profit margin continues at the smallest figure in seven or more years. Cotton growers of the Carolinas were fortunate as a whole this autumn as they succeeded in harvesting their crops, which totaled around 50,000 bales for the two states. The crop of these states last year was 70,000 bales. Generally, Carolina staples are of qualities desired by the mills and these ginnings have found a ready market at prices attractive to the farmers. In other important areas of the cotton belt, however, the unusually late crop has been beset by adverse weather ranging from hurricane winds to flooding rains and severe freezes.

Wilmington Crushes Phantoms In Gym Opener, 72-48

Gabriel Paces New Hanover With 19 Points

Greenville's Phantoms officially opened their new gymnasium last night, but New Hanover High School's Wildcats got most of the pleasure out of the proceedings.

The Wilmington team, 1957 Class AAA champions in North Carolina, beat the Phantoms 72-48. A pair of football stars who recently turned to basketball led the Wildcats to the victory.

Center Roman Gabriel, an All-State quarterback in football, led the scoring with 19 points, two more than Jackie Bullard, one of Gabriel's football team mates.

Little Wesley Hudson, a second-unit guard, led the Greenville scoring with 12 points.

It was largely Bullard's work that put the Wildcats ahead early in the game and opened the first big gap between the two teams. He scored Wilmington's first seven points, including a three-point play that broke a 2-2 tie after a minute and a half to send the Wildcats ahead for keeps.

Gabriel got most of his points in the second half when the Wildcats were building up a lead that at times was 20 points ahead of the Phantoms. He and Bullard were not the whole show, however, since two other starters hit the double figures in scoring, and the first unit played only a little more than half the game.

Hudson's biggest side in the Greenville scoring was forward Peanut Nunn, who got 11 points. None of the Phantoms, however, got much of a chance to shine offensively because the taller Wildcats dominated rebounding and played a close defense against the Greenville attack.

The loss was the second in three games for Greenville. Wilmington remained undefeated after three games.

UNC Wins; State Upset By Tigers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Little (by basketball's yardstick) Tommy Kearns, a 5-11 senior, led the nation's No. 1 team, North Carolina, to a 68-53 victory over George Washington last night.

It was the Tar Heels' 34th consecutive victory and Kearns contributed 22 points to the cause.

As North Carolina romped over the Southern Conference team, an Atlantic Coast Conference game saw 12th-ranked North Carolina State beat Clemson 59-53. Those two games were the only action involving ACC teams.

North Carolina State travels to South Carolina for an ACC game tonight while another conference member, Wake Forest, is host to visiting Texas A & M of the Southwestern Conference.

Kearns' scoring spree duplicated his performance in the Tar Heels opening game last Saturday when he dumped in 32 points as North Carolina beat Clemson 79-55.

Senior Pete Brennan, who had a 20-point night, put North Carolina ahead with a goal 45 seconds after the game started. George Washington tied it up, but the Tar Heels took over and raced to a 40-28 halftime score and the victory. Sophomore Lee Shaffer also scored 20 points for the Tar Heels.

Gene Guarilia led George Washington's pointmakers with 18. Clemson, unranked nationally, fought N.C. State a see-saw battle midway in the second half. Going into the game State held a 3-0 record and Clemson, 0-3.

Walter Gibbons with 21 points and Ed Brinkley with 14 paced the victors, while Bob MacGillivray with 15 and Whitey Bell with 14 led State.

In other games involving North Carolina teams last night, Lenoir Rhyne won a North State Conference victory from Guilford 79-77. Appalachian defeated Carson-Newman 76-72, and Pembroke defeated Pfeiffer 96-68.

Lenoir Rhyne held a 15-point lead midway in the last half then had to backfire in a hurry to stop a Guilford rally led by Don Hemrick who hit six straight field goals. Johnny James led the victors with 18 points and Hemrick paced Guilford with 27.

Appalachian, trailing 42-39 at halftime, came from behind to defeat the Tennessee team. King with 21 points and Wyatt with 16 led Appalachian's scoring.

Suggs Divides

FARMVILLE—H. B. Suggs High School boys basketball team, in its opening game Monday night, against Bethel, 73 to 36. Scoring honors went to Bethel's William Smith with 21 points. Joseph (Jumpshot) Rogers with 16 points was high scorer for Suggs High with 16 points.

Bethel High School girls won from Suggs High, 27 to 22. Louise Linnery of Bethel and Sadie Monk of Suggs High shared scoring honors, each having 11 points.

Panthers Picked To Win On Home Court Tonight

House Of David Wins By 68-62

A crowd of 600 turned out to see the bearded House of David basketballers edge a group of College All-Stars at the ECC Gymnasium last night, 68-62.

Both clubs will enter the game with 2-0 conference records and the winner of tonight's tilt will have a tighter grasp on the lead spot.

High Point has recorded wins over Guilford, 109-80, and Atlantic Christian, 85-77. East Carolina has whipped Guilford 91-69 and Catawba, 86-64.

Coach Virgil Yow's club is rated to win tonight over the invading Bucs for one or two good reasons. To begin with, oddsmakers are favoring the Panthers because of a definite home court advantage. Then, too, Yow's outfit turned in a better performance against Guilford than did the Pirates of Coach Howard Porter. A potentially strong team in the scoring department, the Panthers have a two-platoon system that has thus far offered them plenty of depth to go along with their first string skill.

Though Yow lost three regulars from last year's quintet, he still has Bill Hueghe, Bobby Pharr, and Maury Beuchot at guards; Danny Sewell, Phil Crockett and Ken Williams at center; Bobby Dunbar, Steve Afendis and Ken Black at forwards. All are veterans.

The hosts will also show a group of promising newcomers.

Coach Howard Porter's team is also a strong club in the scoring department. They downed Pfeiffer 109-68 in the season's opener and tallied 91 and 86 points in their two conference tilts. They are averaging 95 points per game.

Sharing the scoring spotlight for East Carolina are the first six players on the squad. Ike Riddick and Jessell Curry are the guards, Don Smith and Harold Ingram are the forwards, and Joe Plaster and Guy Mendenhall have been working the center post. All six have been constant scorers, as the team scores show.

Also seeing action for the Bucs will probably be Charlie Adams, Jimmy Hall, Marion Hales, Craig Reid.

If the Pirates can overcome the favored High Point club here tonight, they will be back home for their Saturday match with Lenoir Rhyne in the favored spot for the first time this year.

Lowly-rated by pre-season pickers, the Bucs have been counted the underdogs in all three of their games thus far. They assume that role again tonight. A victory over High Point would shove the Bucs out of the "uncertain" bracket created by the oddsmakers, and label them as definite threats to Lenoir Rhyne's crown.

Wonderful' Says State Grid Coach

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State football coach Earle Edwards told his team last night "I think you're wonderful."

The Wolfpack, which won the Atlantic Coast Conference title, was honored at a banquet. The 18 senior members of the squad were awarded wrist watches and letters by Edwards. All the varsity members were given the pins with "ACC Champion" inscribed on them.

Luggage gifts were presented to members of the coaching staff. Dr. Carey Bostian, State College chancellor, presented Edwards his luggage and said: "We're presenting this with the understanding that it will be used only for round trips."

Knicks Too Hot For Bostonians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Knickerbockers haven't really set the world on fire this year in the National Basketball Assn. but to the Boston Celtics they're "too hot to handle."

The Knicks handed the Celts their third loss of the season against 19 wins last night. It was the second time the New Yorkers turned the trick in four games with the Celts. The Knicks won 106-103 in the second game of a Madison Square Garden double-header, after the St. Louis Hawks (bounced) the Cincinnati Royals 102-90 in the opener.

At Detroit, the Syracuse Nationals hung it on the Minneapolis Lakers 114-104 and the Philadelphia Warriors beat the Detroit Pistons 109-97, also in a double-header. There were the only games scheduled.

Day is director of city recreation here and has been executive secretary of the North Carolina Amateur Softball Assn. since 1943. Barrier, who was affiliated with the softball program for 21 years, predicted:

"The softball program in North Carolina will continue to increase in participation and popularity and Jim Day has the interest, initiative and contacts to make it the state's No. 1 summertime player and spectator sport."

Board To Decide On U Of C Today

By LEIF ERICKSON

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—The issue of University of California withdrawal from the Pacific Coast Conference goes before the Board of Regents for decision Friday in Los Angeles.

Dr. Clark Kerr, chancellor, and Dr. Glenn Seaborg, PCC faculty representative, will report to the regents on conference developments.

These include what Dr. Kerr and Dr. Seaborg regard as rejection by the PCC's San Francisco meeting last week of most of the five-point program of intercollegiate sports standards proposed by the regents in June.

In actions of the last 48 hours, two groups with policy influence over Berkeley campus sports competition directly urged in official resolutions that California quit the nine-school league effective July 1, 1959.

These were the Executive Committee of Associated Students of the University of California, which administers the athletic program, and the school's Athletic Advisory Board, comprising student, alumni and faculty members.

Declaring a faculty view, the Berkeley school's Academic Senate did not directly urge withdrawal but endorsed sports competition with schools of equal admissions and scholastic standards.

The Academic Senate backed a so aid for athletes on the same basis as other students, on a basis of need.

These were key points in the regents program of standards. The board last June instructed the Berkeley and UCLA administrators to try to achieve the proposed standards "whether within the PCC ... or outside of it."

The PCC meeting last week voted down the California proposal to raise eligibility grade requirements and also voted to grant athletes aid beyond limits wanted by Cal., UCLA and Stanford.

President Readies Paris Trip Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, pronounced in excellent condition after a new medical examination, today rounded out plans to fly to Paris Friday in an effort to shore up the Western Alliance he helped forge.

The President still has a faint speech impairment and he still is not discharged from medical care stemming from the mild stroke he suffered 16 days ago.

This word came from the White House after three specialists in brain and nerve ailments examined him and consulted with three other doctors.

The six physicians reported the President was "his usual alert self and discussed in detail and with enthusiasm the coming meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

After their hour-long examination the doctors said Eisenhower's "general condition was excellent."

"There was no evidence of cerebral hemorrhage (bleeding in the brain) or any serious lesion of the cerebral vessels," they said.

"The difficulty in speaking has continued to improve and in ordinary conversation was almost impossible to detect except by trained observers."

The medical report said, "The consultants unanimously agreed that the President's recovery to date is such that it permits him to attend the Paris meeting."

Minutes after the medical report was prepared, a smiling James C. Hagerly, White House press secretary, announced Eisenhower expected to leave by plane for Paris Friday afternoon and would remain there until the following Thursday. This will give him a day after the NATO summit conference ends to confer informally with other Western leaders.

His personal physician Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder will accompany him.

Hagerly said the chief executive will carry on exactly as he would have done if he hadn't suffered his slight stroke. This will involve attending all the scheduled business and social functions of the NATO conference. The meeting will bring together the chiefs of state of the 15 NATO powers in an effort to strengthen the alliance in the light of Soviet advances in the military and scientific fields.

Eisenhower will take along with him, among others, Dr. James R. Killian Jr., president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Killian recently was appointed a special presidential aide in charge of coordinating this country's scientific programs.

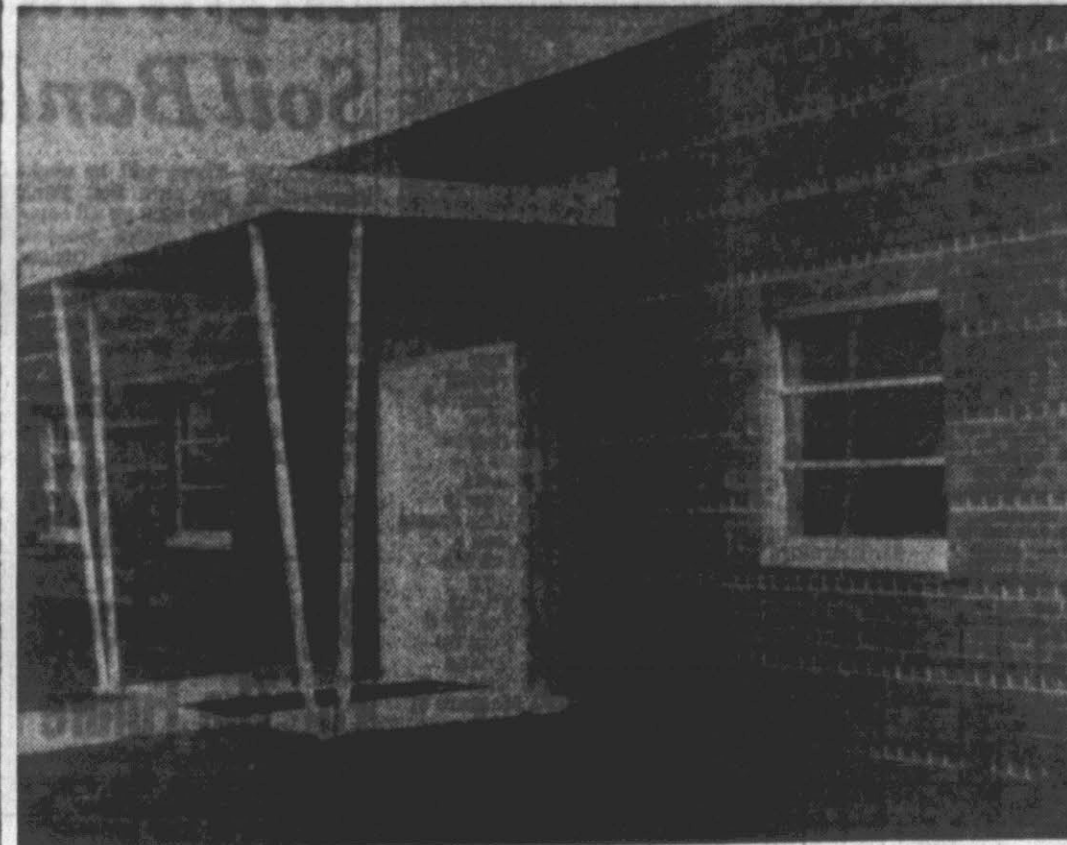

Others in the American delegation will include Secretary of State Dulles, Secretary of Defense McElroy and Secretary of the Treasury Anderson. McElroy already is in Europe.

Eisenhower is scheduled to address the opening session of the Paris meeting Monday.

This will be his first public address since he suffered the stroke Nov. 25.

The doctors who examined the President were Houston H. Merritt, professor of neurology at Columbia University Medical School in New York; Francis M. Forrester, professor of neurology and dean of the Georgetown University Medical School here; and Roy E. Clausen Jr., chief of neurology at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Dedicate New Grifton Lodge Tonight

NEWLY-CONSTRUCTED GRIFTON MASONIC LODGE
... dedication ceremonies scheduled for tonight.

GRIFTON — Dedication ceremonies for the newly-completed Grifton Masonic Lodge will be held tonight.

Much history will be reviewed by the more than 120 active members, many of whom have witnessed a number of changes in the town's history.

The first local lodge, the Roundtree Masonic Lodge 243 was chartered on Dec. 6, 1866. In 1892 the Grifton Lodge 452 was chartered. Both Lodges consolidated on April 5, 1930. The Lodge number 243 was retained due to the fact it was chartered 26 years earlier.

The Lodge meeting hall was located in an old two story wooden building where a local service station now stands. In 1915 the organization bought the second floor of the Cox Building at the corner of Queen and Gordon Sts. which was used for 43 years prior to the building of the new building.

The first meeting in the new building, complete with dining room and kitchen, was held last Wednesday night. Sam McLawhorn, Jr. presided as Master. J. W. Gilbert served as Secretary, a position he has held for the last 25 years.

Charlie Grubbs, born Aug. 29, 1874, is the oldest living member of Lodge 243 AF and AM. He has been a member of this organization for 58 years.

Brief Program For Dedication New Gymnasium

Short ceremonies before last night's Greenville - Wilmington basketball game officially opened the gymnasium in Greenville's Junius H. Rose High School.

Charles Gaskins, a former Greenville High School athlete, made principal remarks during the ceremonies. He cited the new gym as "a far-cry from warehouse floors or the old high school auditorium" where Greenville teams formerly played their basketball games. A crowd of about 1,000 people attended the ceremonies and the game, which was won by Wilmington, 72-48.

Also speaking during the program, which was presided over by Principal O. E. Dowd, was the Rev. John Drake, who read the 91st Psalm and offered a dedicatory prayer. School board members who were present for the game were also introduced, as were former GHS athletes who attended.

Music for the program was furnished by the Greenville High School band under direction of James Rodgers.

Coach Bo Farley and members of the 1957-1958 basketball team were also presented in their first home appearance. Members of the squad are Walker Allen, Bob Bilbro, Merrill Bynum, Billy Cox, Albert Crawford, Bryce Cummings, Bobby Edwards, Dick Evans, Howard Garner, Wesley Hudson, Joe Moyer, Francis Nunn, Steve Noble, Mack Roebuck, Howard Summerville, James Ward and Don Wilkerson.

Sentence Three In Meter Theft

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A former city bookkeeper, a former parking meter collector and a grocer drew fines and suspended prison sentences yesterday for a conspiracy to take parking meter collections.

Judge L. Richardson Preyer sentenced the bookkeeper, William E. Flynn, 33, and the collector, Harvey C. Stanfield, 22, to 5-7 year prison sentences, suspended on condition that they each pay the city $1,500.

The men, who pleaded no contest to the charges Nov. 4, implicated the grocer, Homer Davis, 66. They said he exchanged the coins for bills and took a 15 percent "cut."

Judge Preyer sentenced Davis to 5-7 years, suspended on condition that he pay the city $1,000.

Flynn and Stanfield were fired by the city after their arrest by detectives Oct. 24. The detectives said they were carrying $200 in small change in a shopping bag from the City Hall.

Just One Ticket After Another

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Dr. Robert H. Miller, a dentist, went to City Hall to pay a traffic fine.

When he returned to his car it had been tagged for illegal parking.

Miller took the new ticket across the block to police headquarters and explained his troubles to Sgt. James Newman of the Traffic Division.

While he was talking another patrolman tagged his car again and had it towed away.

Miller said his plight really stemmed from the fact he was thinking about something else all the time. It was his 30th wedding anniversary.

Legal Wrangling In Beck Case

SEATTLE (AP) — Lengthy legal wrangles, in the absence of the jury, yesterday marked the grand larceny trial of Dave Beck, president of the powerful Teamsters Union.

The jury spent a mere 65 minutes in the jury box during the day. The remainder of the time the court was in session the jurors were closeted in the jury room while defense attorney Charles Burdell and Deputy Prosecutor Laurence Regal argued points of law.

Beck is charged with misappropriating $1,900 from the sale of a union-owned automobile in January 1956.

The defense won two important points yesterday in the legal arguments before Superior Judge George H. Revelle.

Judge Revelle ruled (1) the state could not cross-examine Mrs. Marcella Gulry, Beck's secretary, on testimony she gave before the grand jury that indicted Beck and (2) the entire transcript of her testimony before the grand jury must be made available to Burdell.

CHAPTER 20

Michael drained his glass of fruit juice and looked across the breakfast table at Tracy. "You know I'm short-tempered all the time lately. Here at home, in the office."

Tracy leaned her elbows on the table, her chin on her clasped hands. She still wore her housecoat—a blue gingham job in which she looked about fifteen. A single curler bobbed upon her forehead. "It's adjustment, Michael," she assured him. "Your nerves are on edge. Why, the climate change alone would account for some of it. St. Louis and Greenland, there's considerable difference."

He put his napkin on the table, rose, buttoned his coat, and came around to kiss her cheek. He had to make a surgery schedule at Barnes. "Thank you, but I'm pretty well sold that I'm a heel," he told her, bobbing the curler with his finger.

"Well, I'm not!" she assured him.

And meant it. She did think his trouble was a matter of adjustment, and perfectly normal. Of course the period was unhappy for him, and she wished she could help him get through it more quickly.

It was too bad that she should, on that day, have to do a job which brought about the first of a series of showdowns with Michael. When Tracy arrived at the office the appointment clerk buzzed her phone and asked if she could take care of an emergency.

A mother had brought a child in, a little girl of five who had fallen on the cinder ground of a parking lot. The supermarket manager had insisted that the child be taken to a doctor, thinking of damages, naturally, and because a neighbor of the woman took her children regularly to Dr. Vaughan.

The little girl was brought in to Tracy, not critically hurt, but with bits of cinder ground into the flesh of her chin and hands and knees.

Tracy decided that they should be removed at once, for cosmetic reasons, and to avoid possible infection.

No, she didn't think it would hurt; she'd use a local anesthetic if the mother wished.

The child was very good; her name was Margaret, and she was five.

The nurse removed her dress, and had the child lie down on the table; she set the instruments ready for Tracy who was preparing a syringe. "I'll have to stick you two or three times, Margaret," she said, with a reassuring smile at the mother.

A few minutes after Tracy gave the shot, she glanced at the assisting nurse. "Take the mother to the waiting room," she said softly. For the little girl—the doctor massaged the child's throat, her eyes getting bigger and darker.

The nurse came back. "Reaction?" she asked.

"Yes, they do—sometimes."

For the briefest second, her eyes lifted to the nurse. "Ask Dr. Nisbet to come in, please."

Even as she talked she was slitting the child's lip, and reaching for a scalpel.

The little freckled face was turning blue, the throat rattled under constriction—What if she dies? Tracy must remember so much open the chest—to reach the heart—to massage—

But, absurdly, among the things she remembered was Dr. Dana in College Mount, the "heart specialist." He had, she said, once opened the chest of a patient to massage the heart—and the patient died. He'd have died, anyway—

So would Margaret—if—There! The heart—in her hand—Now, gently, gently—

Howdy was at her shoulder, oxygen was being forced into the lungs; at his direction the nurse injected a drug into a vein. "Relax it, Tracy," he told the red-haired girl, "let me get some of my dope in—don't want the two pressures to fight each other—now—squeeze!"

They worked, tense, alert, unconscious of anything but the child upon the table. It seemed forever. It was actually thirty minutes before they felt the first flutter—and then another—and another—

Soon the stalled heart resumed its own rhythmic pumping.

"Good girl!" said Howdy then. "Now you must close the incision, doctor, and take your patient to the hospital."

She didn't think she could do it, but she did do it. Margaret went safely to the hospital, and Tracy turned her over to the surgeons there. They said she had done a fine job; the mother said Tracy had saved the child's life.

"But I keep remembering," Tracy told Michael that evening, "that I also used the anesthetic which caused her throat constriction. That keeps my pride in check. In fact, I give prayer and luck the whole credit."

"Mmmmm," agreed Michael from behind his newspaper. "Because of course you're not a surgeon, and—"

"No," she said breathlessly. "No I'm not a surgeon!" she felt sick, she looked sick. "But I had to be one, today! And I'd do the same thing again, under the same circumstances."

"Without testing?"

"Michael—Tracy sat erect, and faced him, her cheeks red. "If you're saying I should have sent Margaret to the hospital to have those cinders out, I'll agree with you. But if you are saying I should have let that child die because I'm not a heart surgeon, I'll have to say no! And no, again."

"You took a terrible chance, Tracy."

"What would you have done under those same circumstances?"

"They wouldn't have been the same for me. I've done surgery, and plenty of it. As you would have done, had you served a residency or two."

He was right, and yet—

Before she could do more than consider it, however, another crisis arose, and again it concerned a child and his heart. This was no coincidence. A fixed percentage of a pediatrician's cases are children afflicted by some sort of heart irregularity.

It was such a case that Michael had, and of which he talked to Tracy one evening when he helped her set things in readiness for some expected guests.

"I have a child coming to my clinic," he began, lighting a cigarette, "with a hole in his heart. In the ventricular wall."

"That means surgery, of course."

"It also means taking the child to Rochester or Boston."

"Yes. Until we get a heart-lung machine. Is money an item?"

"Stupidity is the item I have to combat." He spoke angrily.

She sighed and wished he had not brought up the subject ten minutes before their party, the first she'd given as a wife. The arrival of any of their guests would interrupt a discussion, just as surely, Michael would resent a suggestion that the discussion be postponed.

So she sat down on the couch, and spread her skirts. "Tell me about it," she invited, "or at least start..."

Tracy solves a difficult case for Michael and unintentionally hurts his career. Don't miss tomorrow's emotion-packed installment of "The Doctor's Husband."

Slight Increase In Per Acre Soil Bank Payment Rates

RALEIGH—There will be slight increases in per acre Soil Bank payment rates for 1958 on all commodities involved except tobacco, State ASC Administrative Officer H. D. Godfrey has announced.

The Soil Bank Acreage Reserve Program will be in effect during 1958 on tobacco, cotton, wheat, corn and rice.

The national average per acre payments put in the acreage reserve are as follows:

Crop	1958 Rate Per Acre	1957 Rate Per Acre
Wheat	$ 20.88	$ 20.04
Cotton	58.95	54.15

Corn 44.46
 Rice 67.79
 Plus-cured tobacco 255.42
 Burley tobacco 295.74

has an interest and share in the crop.

According to Godfrey, the sign-up under this program in North Carolina will open on January 13, 1958 and close March 7, 1958.

Army Is Getting Housing Units

GREENSBORO — Army and federal housing officials meet here today to turn over 200 housing units to the Army at Ft. Bragg. Also scheduled to attend the meeting at the Federal Housing Administration offices here were contractors building a 1,500-unit project at the Army base.

The 200 units turned over today make 41 which have been completed.

Big Farm Seen For The Future

RALEIGH — The dean of agriculture at Michigan State University says he feels agriculture's future lies in the direction of the larger, commercial-type farmer rather than the "small farmer who has 17 cows."

Dr. T. K. Cowden admitted here yesterday that this posed the question of what happens to the farmer who has 17 cows but needs 75 to operate efficiently and economically.

Dr. T. K. Cowden admitted here Dr. Cowden was one of the speakers at the North Carolina State symposium "Planning for the Future in the School of Agriculture."

Boy Says He Set $1 Million Fire

FAIRBANKS, Alaska — Investigators said last night a 14-year-old boy admitted he started the million-dollar fire which destroyed most of the Lathrop Building in Fairbanks Nov. 23 and killed Dr. Druska Schaible, professor of biological sciences at the University of Alaska.

The boy's name was not disclosed.

Fire Inspector Robert Hartwell said the boy told him he started the fire in a box of trash in the second-floor hall. He returned several minutes later and reported the fire to the building superintendent. He gave no reason for his action.

Mother Planning Visit Red China To See Her Son

LYNN, Mass. — Mrs. Jessie Fecteau today is awaiting a passport to travel to Red China to see her son, Richard, 30, held prisoner there since 1952.

Mrs. Fecteau, born in Newfoundland, became an American citizen yesterday in Boston when immigration officers, State Department officials and U.S. Judge Francis J. W. Ford teamed up to process her papers in near record time.

The fact Mrs. Fecteau was not a citizen was discovered when she applied for a passport.

Fecteau was a passenger in a military plane which was shot down on a flight between Japan and Korea in 1952. He was a civilian employe of the Defense Department. The Red Chinese tried him as a spy and sentenced him to 20 years.

The State Department office here said the Washington passport division promised to send the passport out immediately.

The only inhabitants of Jan Mayen Island, about 300 miles east of Greenland, are those working with the Meteorological Institute.

RALEIGH (N.C.D.A.)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers, steady, farm price 15 to 16 mostly 15.

Eggs, prices paid by distributors for clean, sized 80 per cent A quality; Raleigh and Charlotte, weaker, large 44 1/2; Durham about steady 42 to 44.

Prices paid to producers on graded out basis: Asheville, about steady, A large 45 to 47 mostly 45.

NEW YORK (N.Y.S.E.)—The stock market drifted lower early this afternoon in quiet trading.

Declines of key stocks were mainly fractional but some losses stretched to around a point.

Steels and several leading motors and rails continued their drop of yesterday but there was no apparent selling pressure. Oils, chemicals, nonferrous metals and chemicals also slid to the downside.

Most airlines were firm and electrical in a usual pattern held steady. A good assortment of stock showed little or no change. Gainers of any size were scarce.

News of additional layoffs by Ford Motor and forecasts of auto industry production cutbacks provided no spur. World copper prices were lower. Public predictions were made of a drop in capital spending and of a recessionary trend in early 1958.

News that President Eisenhower is physically fit to attend the NATO Conference in Paris failed to provide the stimulus some had hoped for.

Leading steels, motors and rails continued to scrape new bottoms for the year.

Southern Railway was down about a point to a new low. New York Central recouped a little and Pennsylvania Railroad steadied.

The losing column included International Nickel, Phelps Dodge, U.S. Rubber, Du Pont, Union Carbide, American Cyanamid, Gulf Oil and Chesapeake & Ohio.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 20 cents to $155.70 with the industrials down 20 cents, the rails down 40 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Near Unanimous In Saying Federal Control Disliked

RALEIGH (N.C.D.A.)—A congressional subcommittee, headed by Rep. L. H. Fountain (D-N.C.), prepared to wind up a regional hearing today on intergovernmental relations.

The two-day hearing was called to obtain the views of officials from a seven-state area.

Those who testified yesterday were almost unanimous in their expression that the states welcome financial aid from the federal government but they dislike being told how to use federal funds.

North Carolina's Gov. Luther Hodges was among those appearing before the subcommittee.

Three other governors, Marvin Griffin of Georgia, Leroy Collins of Florida and Thomas B. Stanley of Virginia—were unable to attend and sent statements to the subcommittee.

Gov. Griffin indicated Georgia was pretty well satisfied with federal aid programs as they now stand, but strongly opposed any extension of federal controls.

In his statement, Griffin said Georgia is "most grateful" for Federal aid being received. He added, however, "We certainly do not intend to vest the control and operation of our school system in

First Snow Of Winter At Noon

Greenville's first snow of the winter began today as the sun was crossing the meridian at noon. The wind was from the northwest.

At 8 a.m. today the temperature was 35, only two degrees above freezing.

The precipitation followed heavy rain yesterday and last night, and the fleecy flakes showed no tendency to stick.

The first snow last year occurred in late November.

Ten inches of snow is equal to one inch of rain, the weather record books state.

The fire fighters also re-elected Stuart Savage secretary and Dixie Smith vice president.

Mount Camera On Pilot's Helmet

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Getting flight pictures for test purposes of the B58 Hustler bomber in the air was proving difficult.

But photographers at Convair's plant here solved the problem by mounting cameras in the helmets of the chase pilots.

The jet interceptors used to chase the bomber on its test flights are single-seaters, no room for a photographer. Planes which can carry both a pilot and a photographer just weren't fast enough to keep up with the hustler.

Chase plane pilots had their hands full flying.

So a regular gun camera was stripped and mounted on the pilots' helmets. It is operated by pressing a button on the airplane control stick. With the trigger down, the pilot photographs whatever he looks at.

One Freed, One Loses Freedom In Court Cases

A man who did and another man who didn't found themselves on opposite ends of the stick in Pitt County Superior Court yesterday.

Louis Green, 26-year-old Negro resident of Route 2, Ayden, was released from custody for complying with terms of a previous judgment. Alfred Horace Eason, a white resident of Route 1, Ayden, went to jail for failing to abide by rules of probation officers.

Green had been sentenced to 12 months in jail at a former term of Superior Court, but the sentence was suspended under a number of conditions. One of the conditions was that he pay $350 to Pitt Memorial Hospital before the November, 1956, term of Superior Court.

According to court records, Green paid only $200 by the time limit, but he drew an extension of the period. The balance of $150 had remained unpaid until the present term of court and Judge Walter J. Bone signed an order committing Green to jail for the 12-month term he had originally drawn.

Green was released from custody after the court was informed that the $150 balance had been paid.

Eason, on the other hand, was found to have violated one of the provisions of his probation by getting convicted of being drunk and disorderly. His original 12-month sentence, which was imposed during the October 4, 1955, term, was ordered put into effect because Eason was supposed to have remained of good behavior.

Eason drew a 30-day sentence Monday on the drunk and disorderly charge. The order revoking his probation came from Judge Bone yesterday.

Another judgment was returned by Judge Bone yesterday afternoon. The judge, in that action, suspended judgment against William Henry Bass of Grifton upon payment of court costs by Bass. The Grifton man was found guilty of speeding 65 miles-per-hour.

GRIMESLAND—Engineering for a municipal water system was authorized by the Board of Aldermen last night.

Representatives of the Henry L. and Thomas W. Rivers engineering firm of Greenville appeared before the board to discuss plans for a municipal water system.

Following the discussion the board approved the engineering survey to determine the cost and type system needed for the town.

When the survey is completed the proposal will be placed before the people for a vote on whether or not to install the water system. Presently the town has no water system. Water is obtained only from individual pumps and wells maintained by property owners.

The board also went on record as opposing the rate increases put into effect by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. this month. The company has asked the State Utilities Commission to grant the increases.
