Civilian Study Group Says U.S. Strategy And Armed Forces Are Behind Times

WASHINGTON (AP) — A civilian study group says the nation's strategy and military forces are out of step with the tempo of the missile age and need big changes and billions more in money.

opments in technology" and "the United States is rapidly losing its lead in the race of military technology." The lag in missiles and space machines "reflects our national complacency."

Defense spending should be increased about three billion dollars each year for the next several years, said a special 21-man panel of the Rockefeller Brothers Fund.

The White House declined comment on the Rockefeller group's recommendations.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty said the State of the Union message President Eisenhower will submit to Congress Thursday "will present the President's thinking on defense security."

In reply to questions, Hagerty said he assumed a copy of the group's recommendations had been sent to the White House, but he added he did not know whether Eisenhower had had a chance to study the recommendations.

Summing up findings in a study which began in 1956, the panel concluded among other things that: 1. Strategy "lags behind development in technology" and "the United States is rapidly losing its lead in the race of military technology."

2. Strategy, as evolved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is "a patchwork of compromise" among the rival armed forces. The Joint Chiefs of Staff "functions too often as a committee of partisan adversaries engaged in advancing service strategic plans and compromising service differences."

3. Combined commands should be created, in which land, sea and air units would come under a single commander with the composition of the combined force determined to the mission it would perform.

No longer would the chiefs of staff of the services direct military operations of their services. The departments of the Army, Navy and Air Force would become agencies for recruiting and training men and procuring and distributing equipment and supplies.

Even more startling to the observers of military tradition was the group's proposal that all officers above one-star rank cease to be identified with an individual service, becoming officers "of the armed forces of the United States."

This nongovernmental assessment of what's wrong with defense, issued last night in a 15,000-word report, became available to the public while the White House kept secret the report of its own presidentially picked Gaither committee.

The 21-man panel, headed by Nelson A. Rockefeller, included scientists, former diplomats, former defense officials and military officers, industrialists, economists, educators, publishers and a labor union representative.

The Rockefeller study group says that perhaps the most difficult thing for this nation to accept is "the reality of our peril."

An attack on 50 of the most important metropolitan areas would fall upon 55 per cent of the nation's population and 75 per cent of its industry, the report says.

The report concludes that the casualties in such an attack might be 10 to 15 million dead, 15 to 20 million injured, and 25 to 35 million caught in radioactive fallout.

To help reduce the possible toll, the group said "civil defense must be part of our over-all strategic posture" with a program including warning systems and fallout shelters.

Funds from Pitt County communities for the fight against telephone rate increases are beginning to come in, City Manager Leonard Bloxam reported today.

Bloxam said Farmville has already remitted their portion of the funds to support the fight.

The county commissioners approved their portion at their regular monthly meeting today. It came to $157.40.

The item will appear on the Greenville City Council agenda Thursday night. Actually the council has already tentatively approved financial support of the rate increase fight.

Winterville has been requested to approve their portion at their regular monthly meeting.

Only Grifton in Pitt County has refused to go along with the rate increase fight, according to Bloxam. In a letter to Robert I. Powell, chairman of the executive committee, the town stated:

"The mayor and the commissioners agreed at their last regular meeting, December 9, 1957 that they could not go along with the East Carolina phone fight at this time."

Bloxam, who is a member of the executive committee, said at a meeting of the committee last week it was reported that commitments have been received from two-thirds of the cities served by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph. On Thursday of last week funds had been received from 10 per cent of these communities.

"The committee was very pleased with the progress being made and feels that a very successful program is underway," Bloxam said.

The various cities and counties are being asked to appropriate 20 cents per telephone in their respective areas. The money will be placed in a fund to hire attorneys and take care of other expenses incurred in opposing the rate increase when the matter comes before the State Utilities Commission.

Financial Business Takes Much Of Pitt Commissioners' Meet

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Staff Writer

Financial matters, including an appropriation to fight a telephone rate increase, occupied most of the time in the morning session of the Pitt County Commissioners' monthly meeting today.

The commissioners voted to give $157.40 to assist in the protest against a rate increase already put into effect by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The action, which passed unanimously, was a follow-up to the board's action in December when it pledged its support of the protest.

Surplus funds were tapped for $7,000 to purchase a house and lot on Washington Street to expand the county's real estate holdings on the block in which the Court House is located.

A report from D. R. Hollowell that an audit of the county's financial records would be available today was accepted.

Fountain School District's Current Expense budget was enriched by $1,080, paid in by the Fountain Parent-Teacher Association.

A resolution to transfer the 1956-1957 fiscal year balance of the Dog Fund to the General Fund was approved.

The balance of $4,362.66 in the Dog Fund to the General Fund under provisions of Chapter 840 of the North Carolina General Assembly's Session Laws of 1957.

The new law authorizes such transfers six months after the close of the fiscal year.

County Auditor H. Reginald Gray was authorized to vote the county's stock at the January 15 meeting of stockholders of First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Other business conducted this morning included approval of a road petition, which requested that a half-mile road in the eastern portion of the county be added to the state system, and approval of an application for license to sell malt beverages by Walter Joyner of Route 1, Grimsland.

The road petition will be forwarded to the State Highway Commission. The application for the malt beverage license will be returned to the State ABC Board which requires approval of county commissioners for such applications.

Jury lists for February 24 and March 3 civil terms of Superior Court were drawn and approved.

The morning's session marked the first full meeting presided over by new Chairman Woodrow Wooten who was elected in December to succeed B. Alton Gardner. Other members of the board who were present this morning included Vice-Chairman Robert Little, Robert L. Martin, J. Vance Perkins and Gardner.

Inc., was presented to the board and accepted. The analysis, which includes annual reports from 1951 through 1957, showed expenditures and receipts of the show, including an annual appropriation of $300 by the commissioners.

Also accepted was a report from three freeholders who recommended that W. A. Barrett be compensated in the amount of $43.12 for the death of a hog which was killed by stray dogs. The freeholders, Marvin Spathway, Lynn Eason and Clayton Spathway, were appointed in December and their recommendation will be placed with other claims against the Dog Fund.

A request for a refund on a license permitting sale of wine was deferred for further study. The refund was requested by J. B. Nichols who said he purchased the license on December 2, 1957, but had since found he did not need it.

Chairman Woodrow Wooten and Tax Supervisor Harold Allred were authorized to investigate the situation and settle it for the board.

An analysis of the use of funds by the Pitt County Fat Stock Show, including the city's dentists and doctors, strongly advocated the process. They presented facts and figures to show that fluoridation reduces tooth decay greatly in children who began receiving it at an early age.

Opponents protested that fluoridation causes various diseases among adults and a can of rat poison, manufactured from the chemical, was placed before the city fathers as a ploy against the plan.

However, following the testimony members of the Council stated that they were convinced the majority of local citizens were in favor of fluoridation and it was passed unanimously.

Since that time the work of installing the equipment needed for the process has been underway.

Bloxam said the equipment has been tested by the North Carolina State Board of Health.

It will place one part per million of the chemical in the water processed at the plant.

Washington (AP) — Congress gets back to work tomorrow in an atmosphere of urgency far different from the mood of last year's pre-Sputnik session.

Things are a lot different than they were last Aug. 30 when Senate and House adjourned after chopping 3 1/2 billion dollars from defense and foreign aid appropriations and passing the first civil rights legislation in about 80 years.

In the interim, Russia launched two earth satellites and the United States failed in its first launching attempt.

Rep. Wright (D-Tex.) summed up the new mood this way: "There is an uneasiness to get on with the job, a sense of urgency."

"The two Sputniks have cast weird and grotesque shadows completely out of proportion to their actual scientific or military significance. Their real significance has been psychological."

"There has been a lot of talk about this being the American century. Is it? And to the extent that it is, what are we going to do about it?"

Any subordination of political jockeying under the stress of the times may wear off under later pressures as the November elections approach. All 435 House seats and 32 of the Senate's 96 seats are up for voters' choice this year.

More than 40 committee hearings are planned during the opening week. Among them, the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee and the House Armed Services Committee all are delving into the missiles question.

President Eisenhower's anticipated 40-billion-dollar defense budget, his science-centered education aid program, foreign aid and other proposals will be involved in the Sputnik debate. And already there is talk of revamping the military setup.

Other happenings since Congress quit in August also will have their effect.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty, asked today for comment on Gavin's move, replied that it was a matter "entirely up to the general." Hagerty added that President Eisenhower knew nothing about Gavin's plans to retire until he read about them in the newspapers.

Gavin's announcement brought expressions of concern from numerous members of Congress.

Sen. Symington (D-Mo.), a Preparedness subcommittee member, also told newsmen he wants to know whether Gavin was "coerced."

Symington said he wished the committee knew as much about the still-secret Gaither report as it does about the Rockefeller study which was released. But as to whether he agreed with the latter group's recommendation for a three-billion-dollar-a-year increase in defense spending, Symington asserted:

"I don't think this is a question of money. We've got to decide what the danger is, and then get a program to meet that danger at the least possible cost."

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.), a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, although not a member of the subcommittee, said the Rockefeller report of the nation's defenses, coming on the heels of the still-secret Gaither report, pointed up the necessity for speeding the Senate inquiry.

"It should dispel all question of considering half-way measures to meet the military threat," Jackson said.

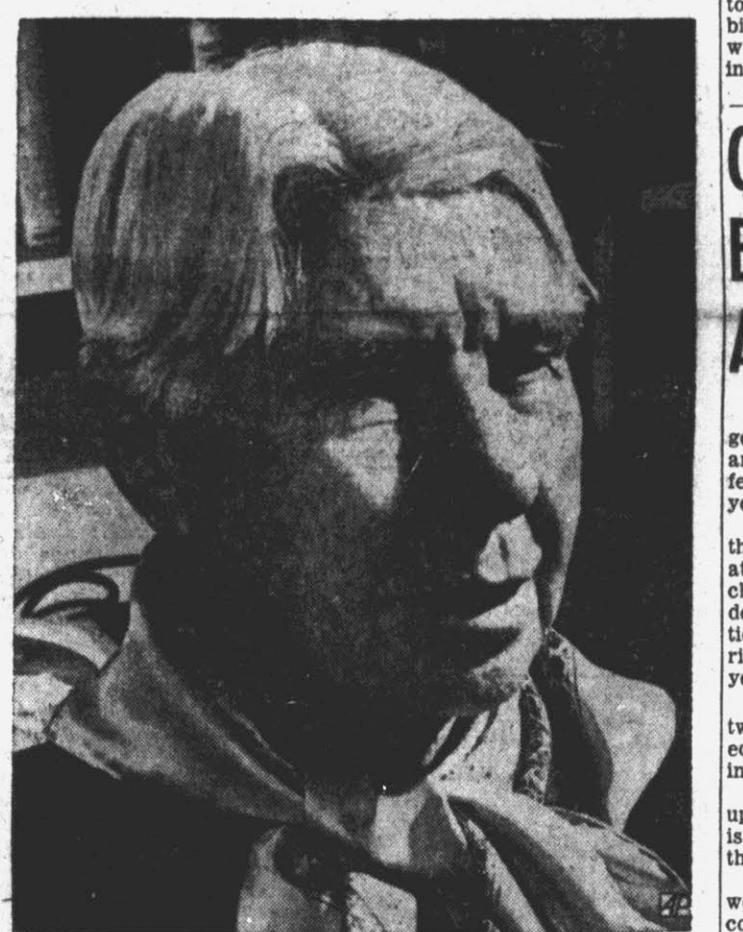

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said Gavin's statement emphasizes what he called a need for Congress to consider overhauling the present military setup.

Gavin said that "I haven't been able to get much done, the system being what it is." Without elaborating on this, he said he is "not doing any good" inside the Army "so I'll take a cut at it on the outside."

As a civilian, Gavin said, he would be freer to "recommend, to apply creative thinking to national defense."

Both Gavin and Secretary of the Army Brucker denied that Gavin's testimony had anything to do with his decision to retire.

Not-Too-Serious Poet Is 80 Today

Carl Sandburg . . . "Age is all relative."

FLAT ROCK, N.C. (AP) — Lincoln biographer and poet Carl Sandburg today observed his 80th birthday at his farm home here amid not-too-serious thoughts on the nature of life and death.

"Age is all relative," he told a newsmen last week regarding his approaching anniversary. "I've got a younger heart than most of the poets. Three-fourths of the poets we have nowadays were born old."

He predicted waggishly that he will live to be 88 years old, maybe 89. "It's inevitable, it's inexorable, it's written in the book of fate," he said, "that I die at an age divisible by 11." He pointed out that two of his great-grandfathers and one of his grandfathers died at ages divisible by 11.

The white-haired author, who has produced more than 1,000 poems and several books, said it seems to him very curious that people inquire about his well-being only when another birthday is coming.

"They don't give a damn about your health on the Fourth of July," he observed.

Currently, said Sandburg, he is rereading the Lincoln-Douglas debates, which took place 100 years ago, and writing a foreword for a book by Harry Golden of Charlotte, editor of the Carolina Isrealite.

Early this month he will be given a testimonial dinner at the University of Illinois, where a "Sandburg Room" has been established at the university library, and on Jan. 20 will receive a gold medal award from a Phi Beta Kappa group in Chicago.

Argument Over 25 Cents Ended With A Shooting

An argument over 25 cents resulted in a shooting near Ballard's Crossroads yesterday afternoon.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said J. Bullock Jr., Negro, received minor injuries from a shotgun blast. Pellets struck him in the face and leg, the sheriff reported.

Charged with assault with a shotgun is Green Lyons, also Negro, of Greenville Rt. 2. He posted bond and was released. Lyons will be tried in County Court tomorrow.

The two were arguing over 25 cents, the sheriff said.

Grand Jury Is Hearing Wetzel Indictment Today

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Frank Edward Wetzel, 37, who once boasted to New York state police he would break out of confinement and free his younger brother from the Mississippi Death House, himself faced the prospect today of going on trial for his life.

A Richmond County grand jury was to receive a bill of indictment accusing Wetzel, an escapee from a New York state mental institution, of murder in the Nov. 5 slaying of Highway Patrolman Wister Lee Reece.

He is a native of Illinois, but he and his wife, a sister of famed photographer Edward Steichen, have lived here about 12 years.

Wetzel, a New York state native with a long criminal record, is charged on two murder counts. The other is in the shooting of another highway patrolman, J. T. Brown, also slain Nov. 5 but in nearby Lee County.

John T. Page Jr., Rockingham lawyer who was appointed to defend Wetzel, had not indicated before the opening of the superior court session whether or not he would seek a trial postponement.

Wetzel has been confined in a death row cell at Central Prison in Raleigh since he was arrested in Bakersfield, Calif. last month and returned here to face charges.

The arrest brought to an end a 16-day manhunt that led police and FBI agents through Tennessee and Kentucky, where leads grew cold.

There was one witness to the Reece slaying, Robert Terry Jr., 30-year-old Norman, N.C., Negro lay preacher, who hitchhiked a ride with the killer earlier that night. Through his descriptions the police were able to identify the killer's car, found abandoned in Chattanooga, Tenn. The FBI, which named Wetzel chief suspect shortly before his arrest, said Wetzel's fingerprints were in the automobile.

Wetzel, arrested in New York state in September on a fourth felony charge, and facing life imprisonment there, told police he intended to go to Mississippi to free his younger brother William.

The brother is under death sentence, scheduled to be carried out Jan. 17, for the slaying of a fellow prisoner.

Frank escaped Oct. 21 from a mental institution in Willard, N.Y., where he had been under observation. Doctors there found him sane and of average intelligence, and North Carolina officers who brought him here from California said he was a neat dresser, a non-smoker and was courteous, intelligent and cooperative.

At a police lineup, the hitchhiker slaying witness, Terry, pointed out Wetzel as the slayer.

Wetzel denied being in North Carolina at the time of the slaying and told Terry at the arraignment: "I never talked with you before in my life."

Styles Return To Flapper Age Making Allowances For Curves

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—Americans may as well accept the idea that we are entering a second flapper age in 1958.

From chemise dresses to short hairdos, fashion harks back 30 years, to the period of feminine revolt when women threw away girlish, shortened skirts, rolled stockings and danced the Charleston.

That was the era generally considered to have ushered in the most unflattering fashions in history—the era of the flat chest and the boyish bob, of exposed knees and belts around the hips.

The fashions of spring 1958, as unveiled today by New York designers at the opening of a week of advance showings for the nation's fashion press, hark back to the sack silhouette and the short-cropped hair of the 1920s but they manage to avoid some of the more harrowing features.

It no longer is necessary to appear flat-chested in order to be in style. The new versions of the chemise make due allowance for feminine curves, and are carefully shaped to provide normal bust room. Skirts are only slightly shorter, and no knobby knees need be exposed. Girdles and bras are still advisable for wear with the new dresses, which must fit perfectly in order to look their best. The slim hipline is important, and foundation garments are designed with this in mind.

Though the silhouette ignores the waistline, it accentuates graceful curves elsewhere, directs attention to necklines and hemline and dramatizes beautiful fabrics and workmanship.

Suits for the 1958 Easter parade will be smart, wearable and varied. The most popular silhouette features the short, unfitted jacket, just reaching the hipbone, with slim skirt and overblouse the same length as the jacket, often of fabric to match the lining.

There also are brief jackets, ending at the waistline, and bloused jackets, usually with back fullness drawn into a snug line at the hips. The Chanel suit, with box jacket and pleated skirt, also is important in the spring lineup, particularly favored by the young.

Fabrics are more elegant than in many years, with beautiful, chiffon-weight wools in the ascendancy, many textured silks being shown in suits and costumes.

As usual, navy is the first color choice for spring suits and coats, with lighter grays and beiges also important. Vivid colors are seen in silk print dresses and costumes and in cocktail and evening gowns.

Bon Voyage Party Success

A nautical theme was carried out in the decorations at the Moose Lodge last night when 200 members and friends celebrated at a Bon Voyage Party.

Last night's dinner was the beginning of a 14-country "eating" trip which will conclude with a "Welcome Home" buffet on March 23 when an all-American menu will be served.

Each Sunday music from the country being featured will be a highlight along with displays and exhibits concerning points of interest and facts about the country being visited.

George Evans, food serving chairman, arranged a display for last night's dinner of educational material from the United Nations.

Letters from interested members were displayed along with a personal letter to the Moose from Mike Todd, producer. Mayor West of Greenville also sent his "well wishes" for a "pleasant journey," as well as taking the opportunity to thank the Moose Lodge for the active part they have taken in civic affairs.

Club Discusses Business Centers In Homes Today

Mrs. Lois Freeman, assistant home demonstration agent, gave the demonstration on "The Home Business Center" and slides were shown depicting various ways that business centers could be built and their convenience in a home when the Belvoir Home Demonstration Club met Thursday.

Eight members and one visitor were present for the meeting which was opened by Mrs. D. M. Hollowell giving the devotion. Mrs. H. L. Lewis gave a report on food conservation.

Games were led by the leader before the hostess served fruit cake topped with whipped cream and coffee.

Cotten Skinner Feted In Tarboro

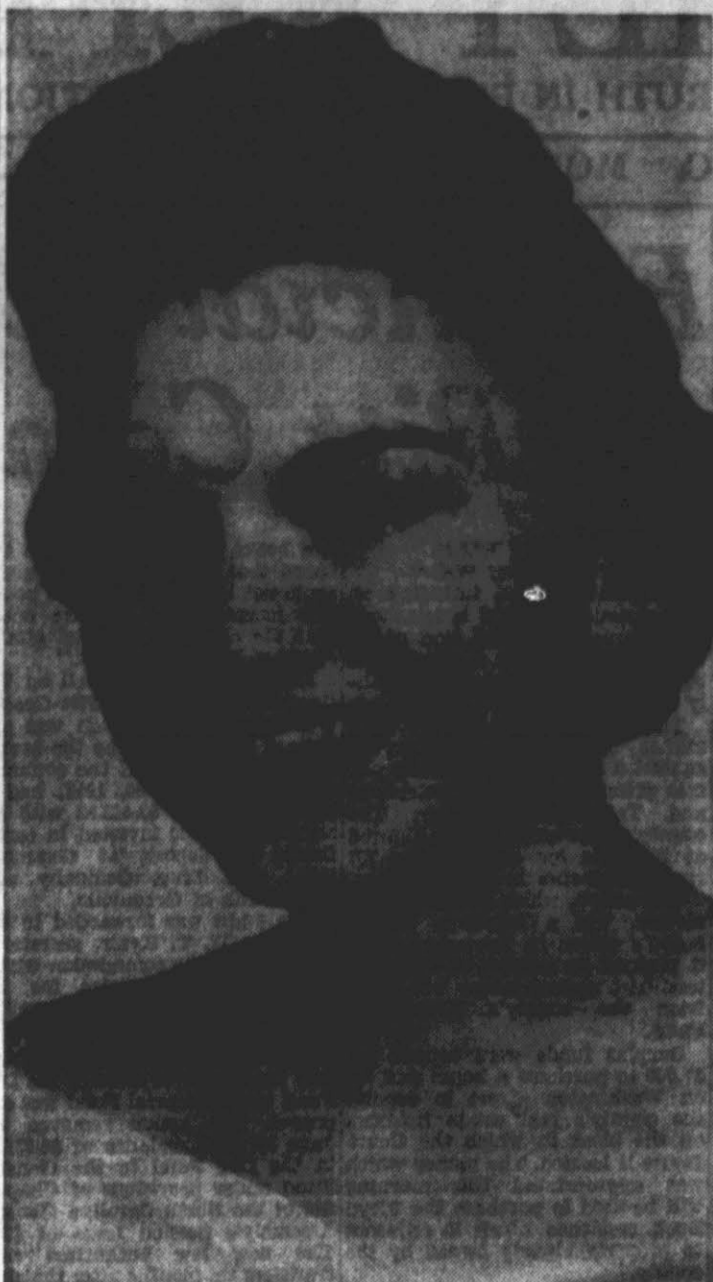

Miss Cotten Skinner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Skinner, spent the weekend in Tarboro with Katrice Howard. The girls attended the dance for the young Ballroom Class at the Country Club Friday night.

Miss Sally Carlisle entertained for Cotten with a Coca-Cola party Saturday morning and Mrs. H. H. Phillips and Mrs. Margaret Ferguson were hostesses at a luncheon Saturday for their niece, Miss Skinner.

Following the afternoon schedule, Mary Jarvis Mitchell invited the group to the afternoon movie and Cynthia Simmons entertained with an after-movie get-together. Saturday night Miss Howard had a dinner party for her guest at the Country Club.

Now Is Time To Thank All Who Gave Gifts

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeature.

The repercussions from a simple gesture like giving a gift can be terrific. Most people like to look a gift horse hard in the face. A verbal or written thank you is in order for any gift, welcome or unwelcome.

Gifts fall into many categories:

- (1) The true giver who means it
- (2) one who gives because it is expected
- (3) one who gives to pave the friendship path
- (4) one who feels the gift is required.

You do not need to accept a gift from one. But you do have to acknowledge it with thanks, and assume the gesture was sincere even if you return it.

Some gift recipients, even in our own families, are likely to bring out the worst in us (and you may be one). These are the types:

1. One who looks crestfallen after opening the gift, tries to be brave about it all, fighting back the tears.
2. Gushy Gertie whose effusiveness over a little present makes you want to say "aw, turn off the oil."
3. The type who rushes right off to the store to exchange anything for new color, different style. They believe they have better taste than anyone.
4. The cruelly critical type who says "what's this supposed to be anyway?"
5. The sister who says plaintively "Mary was the one who wanted this."
6. The spoiled type who says "couldn't you get the watch with diamonds?"
7. The outright-disappointed-don't-care-who-knows-it type. "I'm never going to say what I want for Christmas again. Nobody pays any attention to it."
8. The I-like-this-but-type who squeals with: "You should have seen the skirt Joan is getting from her parents."
9. The jolly girl who laughs hysterically saying "ho, ho, here's a sear again, I'll bet" before she even opens the box.
10. The little martyr who has spent a year's allowance on everyone's gifts, who sits quietly estimating that she has been far too generous for what she got back.

If one of these types fits your own personality, sit down and write a letter to everyone who gifted you, telling them how much you are enjoying your gift, and how much you appreciate their efforts in picking just that for you.

It doesn't cost anything to be appreciative of another's attempts to please you. And if you think you can reform people by

Expert Tells Men All About Women

By EDWARD S. KITCH
CHICAGO (AP)—Men, if you want to know why women act the way they do, listen to Susan M. Rogers.

She obtained her facts about women during two years of research for three books about women. One due soon is titled "The Fine Art of Supervising Women."

Why are women the $64 question?

"Let's face it," Miss Rogers says, "men are afraid of women. We are the unsolved equation as far as men are concerned. It used to be that a woman was the homebody and the man ran the whole show. Now he asks: 'Please, may I go out with the boys?' The reason is that the patriarchal tendency among women is stronger today."

In her analysis of women, Miss Rogers says the female character revolves around security. This is composed of four parts—mental, emotional, financial and social.

"She may want to be the brainy one because it means security. She may feel insecure in her emotions because of a shaky love life. She may think finance is the key to security. She may be a social climber and believe that unless she is on the social register she is destitute."

"A woman," says Miss Rogers, "is given to fantasy. She identifies herself with everything she sees. It may be a heroine in a play or a wife in trouble in a soap opera. It may be a new hat she saw in a store window or a new chair in a furniture shop."

"She constantly is cramming her mind with experiences, either actually or vicariously received to establish an emotional and mental bank account for use at some future time. She withdraws these valuable nuggets of fantasy like money from a bank as her emotions dictate."

Intuition?

Putting them in their place in a situation of this sort, you are mistaken—it never works.

Any more questions, men?

"I am the greatest believer in the world in a woman's intuition. It is absolutely unbelievable," she says. "Women go by inner perception."

"Another basic thing about woman, besides sex, pride and security, is that she doesn't have to feel glamorous as long as she feels she is needed."

"This is the reason an advertisement will say, 'You are the very air he breathes.' She thus associates soap and cosmetics as a need."

Miss Rogers says she champions the working girl. But career girls are another matter.

"I question a woman who doesn't have the fundamental instinct as a homemaker," she says. "The 100 per cent career woman who cuts herself off from vital forces of life is lopsided—mentally and emotionally."

"If she has a man in her life it makes a big difference in her thinking process. The career woman bent on having the best may achieve success, but she will never be a woman."

Another thing that worries men is how to criticize women without a blow-up. How can this be overcome? Says Miss Rogers:

"Go around the back door. Praise her first. Say, 'Why, dearie, how did you do this? It's wonderful!'"

SUSAN M. ROGERS . . . She tells men all about women.

Swabbing The Deck

For normal cleaning, don't use water on hardwood floors. Dust them with a soft brush, dry mop or cloth. When a floor is soiled or spot stained, rub it with a mop or cloth slightly moistened with penetrating sealer, turpentine or furniture polish. Tight grained hardwoods, maple and birch especially call for this method.

Beware of high pressure door-to-door salesmen who make unusual claims.

Jr. High Board Plans For Year

Board members of the recently organized Junior High School P. T. A. met in the school library Friday night to formulate plans for the remainder of the year with all committee chairmen.

The Project Committee under the direction of Mrs. A. H. Campbell suggested the P. T. A. adopt for its main project the furnishing of books for the school library. In order to secure funds for such a project, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Hadley and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Zeh of the Ways and Means Committee recommended a P. T. A.-sponsored Junior High School basketball game, and a sponsored Book Hop for Junior High students upon approval of the organization.

Mrs. D. W. Mosier, chairman of the Membership Committee, reported plans to complete a membership drive before the P. T. A.'s next regular meeting January 23.

Mrs. M. P. Bailey, president, announced the four-hour Study Course to be held on January 16 in the Wahl-Coates auditorium and stated that Dean Leo Jenkins, Study Course chairman, would be assisting the City P. T. A. Council with this program.

Other officers and chairmen attending the meeting were: Mr. J. E. Waldrop, vice-president; Harold Thomas, secretary; James Joyner, treasurer; Mrs. F. R. Atkinson, budget and finance; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Parkinson, hospitality; L. P. Bloxam, juvenile protection; Mrs. W. H. Taft, library; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Waldrop, program; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Guice, publicity; Mrs. L. P. Bloxam, room representative; Miss Virginia Guice, student representative; and Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Bennett, welfare.

The next board meeting date was set for January 23 at 7:15 p.m. in the Junior High School Library.

Acid Test Under Way For The Law

The acid test has begun for the state's most controversial piece of highway safety legislation since the ill-fated mechanical inspection law.

When auto license plates went on sale January 1, the state's compulsory insurance law likewise became effective. How it will be received by the citizens of the state in the months ahead depends in a large measure on how the law is administered.

At the time the measure was guided through the legislature under the leadership of Rep. Walter Jones of Farmville, there was no doubt about the overwhelming support the measure had from average citizens of the state. Neither was there any doubt that the insurance companies doing business in North Carolina were dead set against the passage of the legislation.

The new compulsory liability insurance law for motor vehicles is successor to the ineffective financial responsibility act which was passed by the 1955 General Assembly. This new legislation offers much greater protection for people of the state who venture out on the highways. It puts into actual practice the long accepted theory that the individual who owns a motor vehicle has a responsibility to afford protection to anyone who might be injured through improper use of the vehicle.

These advantages of the new law, recognized as benefits by most North Carolinians, were responsible for the public sentiment in favor of the legislation. It must be realized, however, that improper administration of the law may make it too great a burden on the people of the state. Improper administration of the law could turn the people of the state against it in spite of the obvious benefits it affords them.

Whether insurance companies will continue their campaign against the new law now that it is in operation remains to be seen. Whether it will be accepted by the people of the state as well as support of the proposal a number of months ago indicated also remains to be seen.

The law is sound. It affords the people of North Carolina the kind of protection they need and deserve. It should be preserved, and we are confident it will prove itself if given a reasonable chance to do so.

There's A Peril, Too, In Undue Secrecy

It is hardly in the interest of national security for the White House to continue the veil of secrecy around the Gaither report while one congressional committee after another attempts to make its own evaluation of the nation's degree of preparedness in the missile field.

Sen. Stuart Symington has challenged as "only a partial truth" last week's statement from the White House that the Gaither report does not indicate the United States is in a position of weakness. He has reiterated the assertion the "people have a right to know what conclusions the Gaither committee reached."

Even the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee under the chairmanship of Democratic Senate Leader Johnson has so far been denied access to the report. Pressing its own investigation, Johnson says his committee is making progress toward "substituting action for tranquility" in the defense field.

So long as the report remains secret, responsible Congressional leaders will be denied information which is vital to decisions they will be called on to make during the session of Congress which opens this week. So long as conclusions reached by the Gaither committee remain secret, the American people will not know the degree of peril their nation faces.

It is indeed difficult to see how the best interest of the nation is to be served by White House orders that no part of the Gaither report is to be available to anyone except members of the National Security Council.

Things To Come In Year Ahead

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here is another haul of predictions, shaken out of analysts of developing trends and stirred with a stick of advance information:

More contests. The year 1958 may go down as the Year of Prizes. When sales start to sink, as they are now doing, the first remedy is usually a contest. Many companies and their advertising agencies plan contests in boom times to have them ready for use in slumps. Right now a few big ones have been launched, more are planning stages.

Dip in exports. Canada and Venezuela — have been hurt by our restrictions on petroleum imports. These nations' buying power has been cut and, worse, they are getting their dander up. Some Canadian and Venezuelan buyers may turn to Europe.

OLD PROMOTER WOULD MAKE PESTS A DELICACY

The old promoter walked in today and began, "If you want to go down in history — 'Not us!' we said. 'We want to stay alive!'"

Unruffled, he went on — just invent a way to make grasshoppers a delicacy, like caviar, anchovies or lobsters. Hoppers are edible, you know. I've eaten them. They aren't as good as lobsters, but I like them better than fish eggs. The only problem is to develop a tasty way to serve them and to convince the public they are delightful. Perhaps we should invent 'Cigales au Champagne' or 'Sauternes au Sheraton.'

PARTISAN SHENANIGANS

Political violence. Rarely has the scene been set for more ferocious politics. The Twenty-Second Amendment forbids Mr. Eisenhower to run for President again, and Adlai Stevenson has announced he won't be a candidate. Leadership of both parties invites savage intraparty and interparty strife. Only the fact that foreign enemies will capitalize on the situation will keep conflicts within some sort of bounds.

Softening of civil rights battle. Proponents of integration know that campaigns for civil rights this year would strengthen Southern segregationists in Congressional elections this fall. More is to be gained by campaigns in 1959, when they may influence the Presidential election in 1960. Hence there will be some postponement of show-downs.

An Algerian hangover. North African troubles, plus declines in exports, are pushing France toward a new economic crisis. Because disaster would strengthen French Communists, the U. S. will be forced to help. But American aid must be given without offending the Arab world. That's difficult. But unless we find a way to do it, we'll lose another diplomatic battle with the Communists.

More chimes. When sales drop (which has happened) many merchants turn to house-to-house selling if they can find salesmen (which the downturn in employment has made possible). The present outlook is for a sharp rise in door-to-door selling.

Bargains in turnpike bonds. Few toll roads have revenues originally predicted. While collections recently showed promising increases, the current dip may cut trucking and pleasure driving — and toll collections. This will weaken pipe bonds. Because bond values will eventually turn up, many will be attractive investments on declines.

A machine-tool boom. Before missile and satellite production can spark a new economic rise, manufacturers will have to tool up. Hence tool and machine makers will be the first to feel the upward push. For cues to turning points ahead, keep an eye on toolmakers' new orders.

His proposal, naturally, caused a furor around the room for several minutes. After we had quieted down, we asked, "Why? Or pourquoi?"

"I've just been reading a government report," he said. "Grasshoppers have infested 18,700,000 acres of range land in sixteen states. I know that as soon as something is desired, or has commercial value, it becomes scarce. So all we have to do is to make grasshoppers a luxury and they cease to become a plague."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SOMETHING TO TRUST

All over the world thousands of people have stared into the sky to see the Russian satellite go whirling by. Other artificial moons, it seems likely, will soon be launched also. Perhaps within a few years such satellites will be so common as to excite no notice at all.

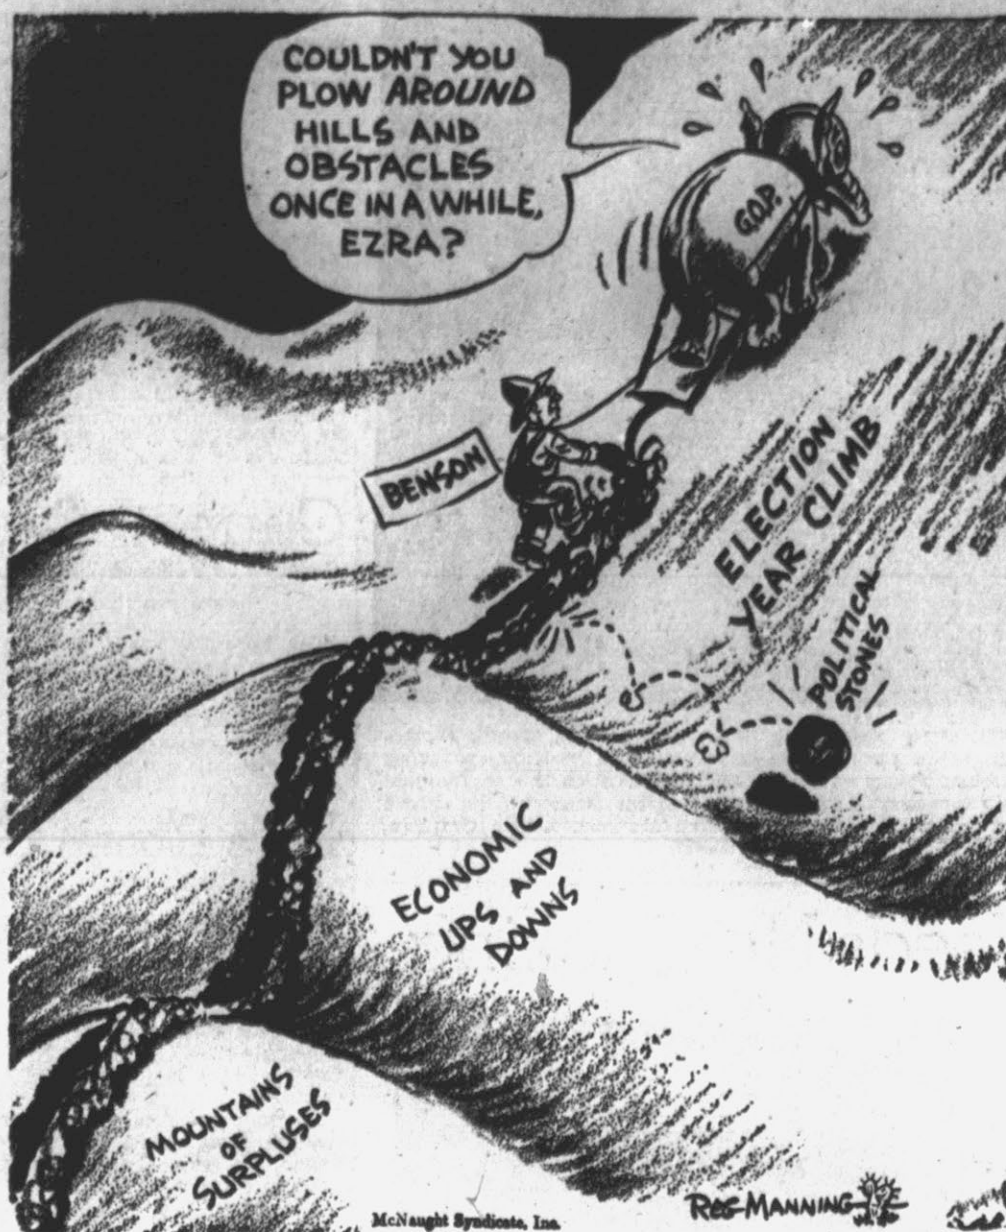

But turn back the clock fifty years. Last month's newspaper accounts of Sputnik would have been regarded as the fantastic imaginings of a writer of science fiction. Turn back another fifty years. The automobile, the airplane, the submarine, and the electric light would have seemed equally impossible.

Every century produces new things at which even the best and most respected minds of the previous century would have been incredulous. Our own most widely accepted laws of chemistry and physics may well be invalidated by the year 2000. In material concerns, it is closer. Today's wisdom is merely tomorrow's folly.

Is there nothing left, then, in which a man may trust with some confidence that he will not someday find it obsolete or untrue? Yes, there is much. Man's wisdom may be transitory folly, but God's wisdom is eternal truth. The words of Jesus have remained unshaken for nearly 2000 years. Religion is still the stable center of an unstable world, the only value never inflated or deflated, man's one quest undisturbed by the wheeling of centuries.

The Things You Learn

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

That life will be better if we can just hold out until 1975. A poll of 50 top U. S. business leaders predict that by then the work week will be down to 35 hours, and average family income will be $7,500 compared to $5,500 last year.

That 39 per cent of persons over 45 complain of one form or other of back trouble.

That more than 100,000 kinds of sea shells have been identified.

That on Broadway they tell of the popstar at his first rodeo who, bug-eyed, watched a cowboy wrestling a steer. "Man," he exclaimed, "What a crazy way to order a steak!"

That in 1800 it took nine men on a farm to produce the food for themselves and one other person. But today one farmer raises enough for himself and 17 others.

That a psychiatrist says there are only a million normal people in the United States. Wonder who the other 999,999 are?

That an old-timer is someone who remembers when the first letters a child learned were abc. Today they're TV.

That there are 182,573 street lamps in New York City, proving that this is one town where you can lean on something besides relatives.

That Frank Pipal, an Omaha, Neb., consulting forester, found a poison ivy vine more than 50 feet tall with a trunk more than five inches thick. P. S. It is not for sale.

That insects from behind the Iron Curtain are fighting to save American timber. Some 1,600 specimens of Aphidoletes Thomsoni were imported from Czechoslovakia to attack woolly aphids that infest silver fir trees in Oregon and Washington.

That American hunters fire almost three times as many shotgun shells at the lowly cottontail rabbit as they do at duck and geese. And — shades of Davy Crockett — it takes 15 shots for the average Nimrod to bag one duck.

That you should never steal a man's pet zebra because he can always prove it is his. The reason: Just as no two human beings have the same fingerprints, no two zebras have exactly the same markings.

That Lisa Kirk says a fellow in Hollywood has the world's softest job. He's Yul Brynner's hairdresser.

That the pony population of the Shetland Islands is falling. The supply is dwindling because of the increased demand for them in America.

That Belgian actress Monique van Vooren, hailed as one of the most glamorous of the current crop of lovelies, came to this country as an exchange student to study for a law career.

That you probably have 4 to 5 million red corpuscles per cubic millimeter of blood in your body, but a goat has 9 to 10 million. No wonder old goats are so active.

That it was Spinoza who observed that "Those who are believed to be most abject and humble are usually most ambitious and envious." — Richard Nixon.

Other Editors Saying --- Demo Hopes Justified

(Henderson Dispatch)

Democrats who are jubilant over prospects for retaining control of both House and Senate in this year's congressional elections are abundantly justified in their outlook. And if they make substantial gains now, they will almost certainly elect a President in 1960. Their optimism is matched by the pessimism which is permeating the ranks of Republican leaders over the country.

A crisis in the nation's foreign relations would hardly react against De...ocratic prospects next fall. Outbreak of major war, however, could become a factor in the presidential contest two years hence.

The record is that in almost every election since President Eisenhower was returned to office by so overwhelming a vote in 1956 the Democrats have come off the winner. That is an unmistakable evidence of the country's thinking, and it appears to be growing.

Gains in House and Senate are about as certain as anything politically can be thus far in advance of the election. Decision of five or six staunch Republican senators not to stand for reelection this year adds to the worries of the GOP in those States involved as well as in the country as a whole. Many of the Democratic senators who will face the electorate this year are from the South, and if they weather the storm in their primaries will certainly win in November. Moreover, the dissatisfaction evident over loss of prestige in the missiles and earth satellite struggle with Russia is aimed largely at the Eisenhower administration, although the responsibility must inevitably be shared by the Truman regime as well. Voters will not get that far in their analysis, however, but will take out their anger by turning against the party in power.

The Republicans will have no Eisenhower to lead them two years hence. That's for two inescapable reasons, namely, the constitutional ban against a third term and the state of the President's health. He will be fortunate indeed if he can hold out the remaining three years of the term he is now serving. Nixon, who seems assured of the GOP nomination in 1960 has his enemies in his own party as well as among the opposition.

That element of the public so desirous of a more sober and conservative management of national affairs, both at home and abroad, will have little choice. There is scarcely more than a mere shadow of difference in the outlook and policy of the two parties. The independent voter will be confronted with the necessity of determining which, from his standpoint, is the lesser of two evils. Chances are that he will favor a change in the feeling that almost anything is better than what we now have.

Democrats will be on their toes to make hay while the sunshines. And for them the prospects are bright indeed for a bumper crop, come next November.

Premature Start For A Feud

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The over-enthusiastic friends of Representative Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas have needlessly and prematurely stirred a new North-South feud among the House Democrats on the eve of the opening of Congress. Only fulfillment of the wishes which Speaker Sam Rayburn got on his New Year's cards — "A long and merry life" — can still it off for long.

As a result of the death of Representative Jere Cooper of Tennessee, Mills has become Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which is, perhaps, the most powerful body on Capitol Hill. It originates all legislation affecting taxes, tariffs, social security and kindred financial matters. It has its hand in every American's pocketbook.

Its 15 Democratic members constitute a so-called Committee of Committees. As such, they name the men who shall represent the Party on all House committees, which gives the 15, and especially the Chairman, enormous power.

Besides building a personal machine through distribution of favorable committee assignments, he can actually affect policy by the kind of men — conservatives or liberals — whom he selects to frame legislation for presentation to the House.

MILLS BEING BOOSTED FOR SPEAKERSHIP In short, Mills' new position makes him possibly the third most influential legislator on Capitol Hill, after the Vice President and the Speaker. In any event, depending on the ability and forcefulness of other House-Senate leaders, he ranks among the top six. And Mills is both able and forceful.

His new post and his qualifications immediately inspired his friends to boost him for the Speakership, whenever "Mister Sam" retires. With a fanfare of publicity, they have advanced him as the "logical choice."

But they have reckoned without the ambitious and aggressive "Boston boy" and his supporters — House Majority Leader John W. McCormack. He has been working and politicking for the Speaker's job for many years, and he stands in direct line of succession. Moreover, he is a 26-year veteran, whereas Mills has served only 18 years. SIGNED SOUTHERN MANIFESTO Northern Democrats, including men not too friendly to McCormack, concede that they might find it difficult to vote for Mills in such a contest. They cannot forget, or they will not be permitted to forget, that he signed the famous Southern Manifesto against the Supreme Court banning racial segregation in the schools.

Inasmuch as the "Yankee liberals," including McCormack himself, rely on various racial elements for election victories, it would be bad politics for them to back such a vigorous and outspoken opponent of desegregation as the relatively young Arkansasian.

In future fights on legislation touching this controversial subject, the Speaker's influence and parliamentary rulings could have affected the outcome in the House. NORTH WANTS SPEAKER'S OFFICE Finally, the North begins to feel that it is time

Snake Pit In Cellar

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Man's best friend may be his dog, but 16-year-old Kraig Adler is partial to pythons.

In fact, he's probably the only high school senior in the country who could be late for school and get away with the excuse: "I was sitting up with a sick snake."

Young Adler's interest isn't limited to pythons. His live pets run the whole range of reptiles. Included are 30 specimens of snakes, lizards and turtles. They're kept in glass-front cases lining the walls of the basement in his home. New "faces" appear from time to time as the young herpetologist (student of snakes) buys or sells specimens. His collection presently is valued at about $1,000.

Started with Chameleons

When Kraig, at the age of 10, bought some chameleons at a circus, it's doubtful his family realized it would lead to such additions as a four-foot python (non-poisonous), a Gila monster (the only one of his poisonous pets kept at home), a boa, a viper from the Tartar steppes of Russia, a skink (water lizard), and possibly the only monitor lizard (2½ feet long) in the United States.

"The main reason I keep my poisonous reptiles at the Columbus Zoo is to protect the people who come to see my collection," Kraig explains. He keeps a snake bite kit around the house, but neither he nor his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Adler, and his brothers, Gary 14, and Bruce, 11, have had to use it.

Reptile collecting has led Kraig into a number of sidelines. He studied foreign languages to keep up his extensive correspondence with a growing number of collectors all over the world, including Russia. He regularly teaches the reptile phase of biology at his high school.

With the addition of bit-known reptiles to his collection, he has had to read all available material and then experiment in their care and feeding.

And he has to arrange food for his specimens. This includes raising his own insects — meal worms — to feed some, and finding lettuce, mice, eggs, hamsters, birds and meat for others.

Skillful Importer

His collection has also made Kraig something of an expert on U. S. customs regulations. He has even lectured to customs inspectors and post-office employees about some of the specimens shipped to him from abroad.

At 16, Kraig is among the youngest members of such organizations as the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science, the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists, the Herpetological League, and their British counterparts.

Despite this interest, he will give up his live reptiles collection in June when he graduates from Arlington High School here. Already graduated as a cadet first lieutenant from Culver Military Academy in Indiana, Kraig intends to study medicine, with the hope of becoming a surgeon.

"Maybe after I become a doctor, I'll start collecting live reptiles again, at least on a limited scale," he says. In the meantime, Kraig won't be out of the "business" entirely. He'll keep his collection of preserved specimens, about 200 in all.

Opinions In Brief

"Sure we failed. We have before and we will again. But we need to keep our sense of proportion. We haven't overnight lost our scientific know-how, our ability to get things done. Let's get away from our weeping walls and act like Americans. We've got work to do. Let's get on with it like Americans." — Richard Nixon.

for a man from that section to occupy this position. Only one non-Southerner has held it since the Democrats began their comeback from the Smith slaughter in 1928 with a victory in the 1930 Congressional elections. He was Rainey of Illinois.

The others have been Garner of Texas, Byrnes of Tennessee, Bankhead of Alabama, and now Rayburn of Texas. In addition, the South, and especially the State of Arkansas, possesses a majority of the important committee chairmanships in both House and Senate. Few states have such illustrious and influential members as Arkansas.

John McClellan, J. William Fulbright, Wilbur Mills, Oren Harris, James Trimble and Brooks Hays.

Other and strange political folk may control the White House and the Supreme Court, but Congress belongs to Dixie. And other sections — New England, the Middle West, the Far West and the Northwest — have started to grow restless, even before the Mills-for-Speaker campaign got under way during the holidays.

CHAPTER 41

Within the hour, John Faraday was at the clinic to see Michael; he acknowledged the still well-filled waiting room. "Not hard to distinguish your patients, Mike," he said, slipping free of his overcoat. "No, though some out there may be threats for Daugherty, I hope," Faraday stood regarding the dark man in the white coat. "I have a matter which concerns the clinic and the hospital," said the lawyer when he took the chair beside Michael's desk. "But I'll be as brief as possible, by asking if you still feel strongly—"

saw me bundled up to take penicillin and stuff to a bunch of tow-headed kids out at the end of a logging trail, she said. "Maryland Avenue should see you now." Meaning that the sick clientele I served in St. Louis would be amazed at the change in me. Well—Maryland Avenue should also hear me now, but this is the way I feel concerning my position on Dana. Or as I would feel toward any doctor in his less-than-clarified position. He sat thoughtfully for a second, then he looked earnestly across his desk at John Faraday. "I feel," he said deeply, "that if a man has earned his M.D. and is accorded the things that go with it—dignity, and certain privileges, the protection of certain laws—in his turn he is obligated to set up certain personal standards to fit the prestige accorded him. If there is one man in our group who is below the level of qualifications we have set for our clinic staff of doctors, he weakens each one of us in-"

John Dana can't see the wrong he is doing, and so he may be excused if he does nothing to correct it. But we do see it, I do—and therefore... "Hey!" cried John Faraday, leaning toward Michael. "Wait a minute, boy. Before you say one more word." He was excited, and Michael looked at him in wonder, for John was generally a smoothly self-controlled person. But now he got up from his chair and put his fists on Michael's desk. "Mike Loren," he said loudly, "if somebody came in here and asked you to serve as the Administrator of the hospital and the clinic, would you take the job?" Michael drew a deep breath, then puffed his air slowly out between his lips. His eyes were shining. "With an attractive salary," John continued, "and comprehensive jurisdictional powers." "I think those powers are very definitely written out by the organization of hospital administrators," said Michael tightly. "But would you take on such a job?" He'd have no trouble cutting Dana down to size; it would be merely a matter of requiring that each doctor and every doctor be certified as a specialist in his field. He couldn't see Dana doing the required residencies—though if he did—"Yes, I'd take it," he told Faraday. "Good! We'll call a joint Board meeting at once." John reached for his top-coat. He was feeling good, and showed it. "I'll let you get back to work now."

Clean-Up After Mighty Blast

LITTLE VALLEY, Utah (AP)—Heavy earth-moving equipment began churning today at the side of a cliff leveled by the biggest non-atomic explosion in history. While teams of seismologists listened with delicate instruments, 2,138,000 pounds of dynamite and nitrate fertilizer were set off yesterday at 10 a.m. to get fill material for a causeway being built across Great Salt Lake. Engineers figured the blast would loosen 3.8 million cubic yards of dirt and rock, which will be carried by big barges and dumped into the water as the foundation of the causeway. The causeway will replace 12 miles of wooden trestle on the Southern Pacific Railway's Lucin cutoff across the lake. The 49-million-dollar job, being handled by Morrison-Knudsen Construction Co., is about half finished. The seismologists, some located as far away as Elko, Nev., measured the time it took for the jar caused by the explosion to reach them, hoping to get information about the depth of the earth's crust.

Hold-Up Men Are Happy To Escape Their 'Victims'

MERCED, Calif. (AP)—Two men told Merced County Sheriff John Latorraca they are thankful to be alive in jail after two free-swinging women beat one and chased off the other from a holdup attempt in a bar. Latorraca said Louis Walter Winchester, 35, and Paul Greer, 37, told him they entered Ernie's Bar Thursday night and related: "This is a holdup," Winchester said, leveling a revolver at Mrs. Frank Zimmerman, who operates the inn with her husband. Mrs. Zimmerman reached beneath the counter and came up swinging a heavy club. She struck Winchester over the temple, smashed him in the face and took another swing at the head. Greer fled. Mrs. Mickie Blankenship, a patron, grabbed Winchester's gun and started after him. Winchester managed to retrieve the revolver as he ran to the car. A few minutes later the two were arrested on a highway. Latorraca said the two men freely admitted their attempted holdup.

Tot's Bones Just Break Too Easily

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP)—Kim Dobbs, a cute 2-year-old girl from Auburn, Ala., was in St. Francis Hospital here today with fractures of both arms and a possible fractured leg. The experience is old stuff to Kim's father, Mr. and Mrs. George Dobbs. This is her seventh hospital visit for treatment of broken bones. No bone disease has been diagnosed," Mrs. Dobbs said. "Her bones just seem to break easily."

Pulled Trigger, It Was Loaded

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Edward Hastings Kilburn, 21, yesterday was toying with a .44-caliber revolver and remarked to a friend: "I wonder what would happen if I pull the trigger." "I'll just pull on it to show it's not loaded." It was. A bullet tore through Kilburn's head, killing him.

ECC Overcomes Appalachian, 86-65, For Loop Victory

Plaster Gets 21 Points, 14 Rebounds To Lead EC

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

BOONE, N. C.—Led by the shooting and rebounding of center Joe Plaster the East Carolina Pirates forged to an 86-65 North State Conference victory here Saturday night against a scrappy but inexperienced Appalachian quintet.

Plaster, a 6-8 junior, scored 21 points and nabbed 14 rebounds to lead his team in both brackets. He had deadly accuracy from the floor, sinking 10 of 15 shots and dropped in one of three attempts from the foul line.

The lanky Virginia import received plenty of help from guards Jessel Curry who got 13, Ike Chick who got 13, Charlie Adams with 18, and Hal Ingram, who sank 12. Regular forward Hal Mendenhall did not make the trip.

For the Bucs, it was the first of a good second-half job, in conference play. Porter also cited the fact that the Pirates played a "good second-half" game. "Appalachian had a pretty good ball club," Porter said, summing it up, "but they were using three freshmen in the starting lineup and they were inexperienced. When the put the pressure on, they made mistakes."

The victory, coupled with Lenoir Rhyne's 72-48 conquest of Elon Saturday night, pushed ECC into second place in the North State rankings. The Bucs battle Pfeiffer Wednesday night in a non-loop game, then play host to Elon next Saturday as they jump back into conference competition. Lenoir Rhyne battles Newberry tonight and Western Carolina Thursday, keeping a step ahead of the Bucs.

Pfeiffer Wednesday Wednesday night, ECC journeys to Meisenheimer for a return match with Pfeiffer. In the season's opener, the Bucs downed the non-conference team, 107-68, in Memorial Gymnasium.

Coach Porter expects Pfeiffer to be "tougher than they were in that first game. We're looking for them to be at full strength."

The Pirates, however, will still be minus Guy Mendenhall, unless the Cary Senior's ankle does an extra-quick job of healing. If there is any question, Porter has said, he will leave Mendenhall in Greenville.

In the second half, East Carolina's fast-break brand of ball began to pick-up and the Pirates put the pressure on the inexperienced Appa. With Jess Curry quarter-backing and doing a good job of feeding to Adams, Plaster and Riddick, the Greenville club began picking up points.

With a little less than nine minutes left in the game, the minutes fell out for Appalachian, and East Carolina started hitting in rapid-fire manner with the fast-break. By the final buzzer, Coach Porter's club had racked up a 21-point margin, 86-65.

Porter had praised for Charlie Adams, whom the Fox said "played his best ball game of the season so far," and for Don Smith, forward, who did an outstanding job on defense during the second half.

Bucs Move Into Second Place; Guilford Wins

By JOHN CHANDLER
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Notre Dame, a team that won only two of 10 games in 1950 but rebounded to halt mighty Oklahoma's 47-game winning streak and post a 7-3 record for 1951, was voted the Comeback Team of the Year today.

The annual year-end poll of the Associated Press gave coach Terry Brennan's Fighting Irish an overwhelming total of 105 first place ballots as Notre Dame beat out the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

In the nationwide balloting, 211 sportswriters and sportscasters cast ballots, and the 105 firsts for Notre Dame helped roll up a total of 423 points. A first place vote counted three points, with two for second, and one for third. Cleveland had 23 firsts and 131 points.

The Browns, who won only five and lost seven games in 1950 after six straight Eastern Division titles and three world championships, won their conference crown this fall with a 9-2-1 record. In succeeding the world champion New York Giants, the Browns whipped the New York club twice and had clinched the title as early as Dec. 8.

Little southpaw Bobby Shantz, plagued with a bad arm and assorted injuries in recent years, received 11 first place votes and 99 points to take third place over Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox slugger who led the American League in hitting. Williams received 14 firsts, but only 81 points.

Shantz, who won 11 games and lost 5 for the New York Yankees after he was obtained from the Kansas City Athletics, had the best earned run average in the American League, 2.45.

Other teams and individuals sharing in the points were the St. Louis Cardinals, 66; Sugar Ray Robinson, 40; U. of Texas football team and Milwaukee Braves, each 31; Hank Sauer, 26; Roy Sievers, 18; San Francisco 49ers, 12; Notre Dame coach Terry Brennan, Stan Musial, Don Hoak, Baltimore Colts, and Auburn football team, each 11 and the Ohio State football team, 10.

Notre Dame's 1950 record was the worst since the Irish began football in 1887. The Irish managed to defeat only Indiana and North Carolina. The team, which had been voted the national championship eight times—the last in 1949—usually was among the top 10 of the land each season until 1950.

In contrast, Notre Dame in 1957 defeated Purdue, Indiana, Army and Pittsburgh before dropping two in a row to Navy and Michigan State.

Then the Irish did it on Nov. 16 at Norman, Okla. The Sooners, national champions in 1951, 1955 and 1956, were an 18-point favorite to defeat Notre Dame. In 1956 Oklahoma drubbed the Irish 40-0.

In the closing minutes, Notre Dame smashed 80 yards for the only touchdown of the game, Dick Lynch skirting his own right end for the final three. Monty Stickles, who beat Army with a field goal, converted and Notre Dame won 7-0. It was the first time Oklahoma had failed to score in 123 games, another national record smashed.

Iowa then defeated Notre Dame 21-13 the following week, but the Irish wound up the season by routing Southern California 40-12 and Southern Methodist 53-21. The finale was the biggest score rolled up by a Notre Dame team since its 1947 team whipped Tulane 59-6.

Three Teams Get Chances To Upset UNC This Week

Phantoms Invading EC Court Tonight

Fresh from a hotly-disputed loss to Washington Friday night, the Greenville high school Phantoms takes to the road tomorrow night to improve their 0-1 Northeastern Conference record.

The Phantoms invade Elizabeth City—a club rated the possible dark horse of the Northeastern loop this year—seeking a win to put them in the 500 bracket.

Coach Boley Farley is expected to have his club at top strength for the game, which will be an extremely important one for GHS.

After their 62-58 overtime loss to Washington last week, the Phantoms are in somewhat of a hole, as far as conference standings are concerned. It is speculated now that GHS will have to win every one of its Northeastern tilts and beat Washington, too, in order to get back into the loop race.

Expected to start for the Phantoms tomorrow night are Wesley Hudson and Walker Allen at guards, Dick Evans, Peanut Nunn or Mack Roebuck at forwards, and Steve Noble at center. Others who will undoubtedly play are Albert Crawford, Don Wilkerson, Bobby Edwards, and Billy Cox.

Coach Bud Phillips' wireless Jays will battle the Baby Jackets in a 6:30 preliminary contest to start off the night's action. Varsity game time is set for 8:00.

Chicod Moves Up After Two Wins

STOKES—Chicod's boys moved into second spot in the hectic Pitt County Conference basketball race today after a Friday night 53-38 victory over Stokes-Factolus.

Coach Leroy Pittman's cagers, with a 4-1 record, jumped next to Belvoir-Palkland, which has a 5-1 mark.

Sharp-shooting Jimmy Fornes, the Pitt County league's greatest scorer to date, chipped in 23 points to lead his outfit to the 53-38 win. Phillip Smith aided the cause with 18 and Ayers threw in seven. Conleton netted 13 for the losers.

In the girls' game, Chicod pulled a 46-32 upset win over the hosts, Wallace, Hudson and Mills combined their efforts to do most of the Chicod scoring. Billie Angle Stokes' usual high-scorer, was held to only 11 points.

Cards Seeking 19th Head Coach

CHICAGO —The Chicago Cardinals, tops in the National Football League for coaching changes, are now seeking their 19th head football coach.

Ray Richards, who held the post for three successive seasons, resigned Saturday night for "the best interests of everyone concerned."

The expected action by the 50-year-old coach followed a disappointing 3-9 season climaxed by a 27-2 defeat at the hands of Pittsburgh.

The Cardinals had a 4-7-1 record in 1955 when Richards took over from Joe Stydahar and then won 7 of 12 games in 1956 and were tabbed likely title contenders for 1957 campaign. However, the team fell apart after an opening 20-10 triumph over San Francisco.

Tied for second in the ACC are North Carolina State, which is 11th nationally, and Virginia. The Wolfpack has a 3-1 league record and is 9-2 overall.

Virginia is 3-1 in the league and 5-4 all games.

Maryland, No. 7 in last week's Associated Press poll, is 2-1 and 7-2.

Duke, which plays at Maryland on Wednesday, is 1-1 and 5-4.

Next in order are Clemson 2-3, 5-6; South Carolina 1-4, 3-8; and Wake Forest 0-4, 3-8.

This week's schedule: Tuesday — William and Mary at North Carolina, Virginia Tech at Virginia.

Wednesday — Duke at Maryland.

Escape from Hollywood

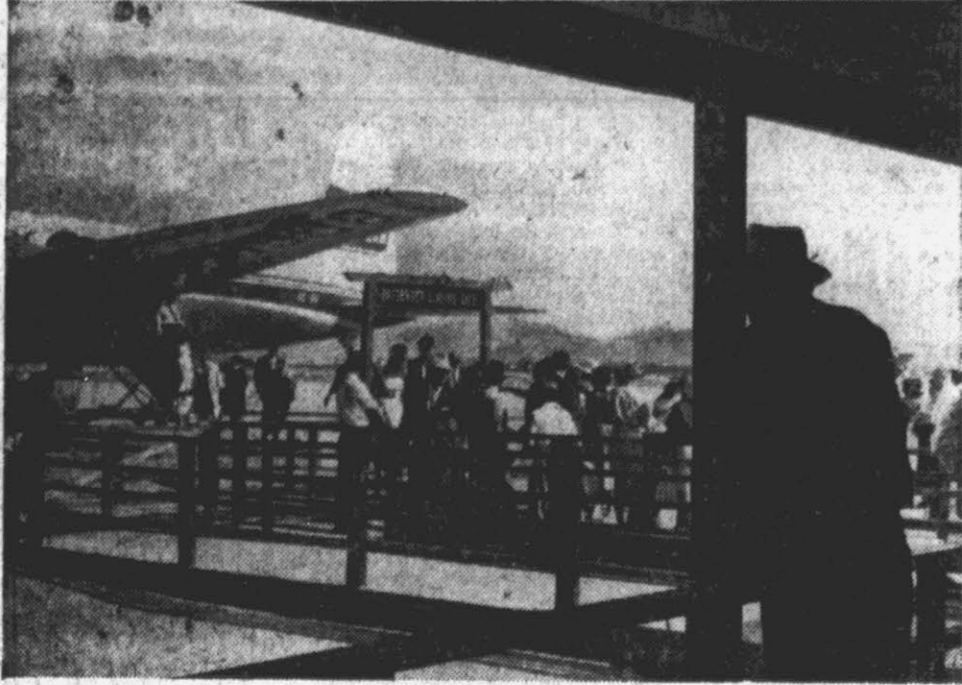

Palm Springs, Calif., a desert oasis 110 miles southeast of Los Angeles, has been described as a seaside resort without an ocean. Some call it Las Vegas without gambling. To many well-heeled individuals it is winter's Garden of Eden.

Hollywood celebrities who want a touch of the film city's Sunset Strip without the smog and congestion flock there between pictures and on weekends.

They find Palm Springs a snow-free playground where you lunch on the patio, wearing a playsuit as you look at the snow-capped mountain peaks, then sleep under three blankets as the chilly desert darkness sets in.

The resort has a fixed year round population of some 13,000, but the winter population is many times that.

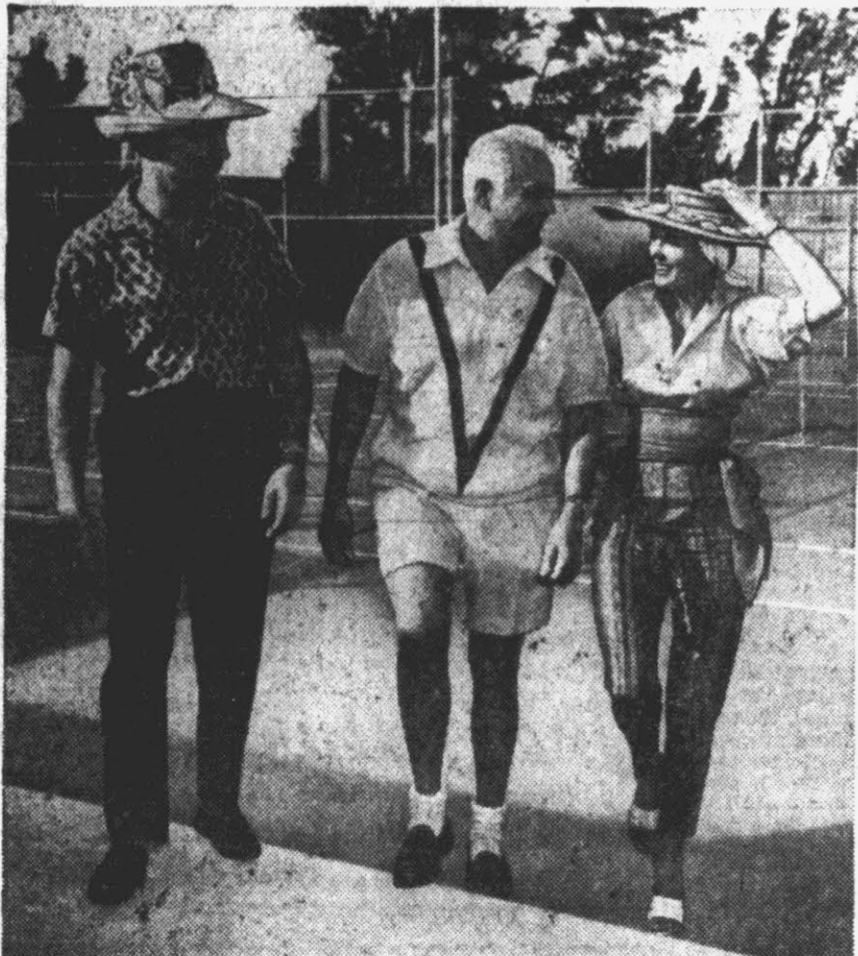

Shorts and playclothes are the thing to wear on the main village street, Palm Canyon Drive. Five golf courses dot the resort area. Once a plaything of millionaires, the backyard pool now is almost a must in the design of even a medium priced Palm Springs home. There are more swimming pools per capita in Palm Springs than any city in the United States.

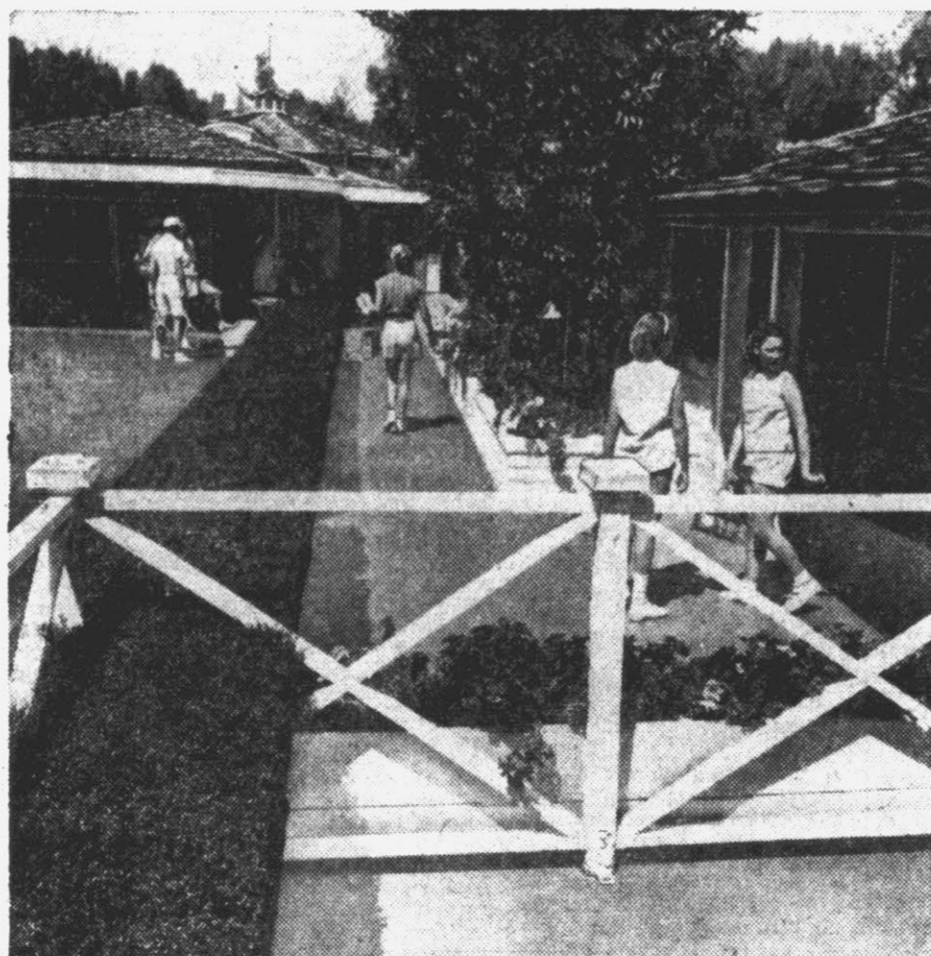

Planes bring hourly the Hollywood celebrities, the rich Easterners and others who find Palm Springs a choice spot for winter fun and relaxation.

Vocational Education System Gets New Boost As Aftermath Of Soviet Russia's Advances

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN WASHINGTON (AP) — World War I gave impetus 41 years ago to establishment of the federal-state vocational education system to improve the nation's military, industrial and economic preparedness.

emphasis on science and mathematics. The new four-year plan was outlined by Eisenhower administration officials last week. A major difference between the Smith-Hughes Act of 1917—which has resulted in a successful nationwide vocational education system—and the currently proposed program is that the earlier plan was long range in concept from the beginning. The present proposal is basically a plan for only four years. The current proposal is for 225 million dollars the first year, and a total of about one billion over the full four years. A major part of the new program would give the states more than 100 million dollars a year, to be matched dollar-for-dollar by the states or local communities, to improve teaching of science and math. Administration spokesmen said this would be operated under a plan similar to the vocational system. The states and communities could use the federal aid, matched with funds beyond those already being devoted to such purposes, to provide additional science and math teachers or raise the pay of such teachers, or to purchase materials and equipment. The question of states rights is a factor in discussion of the administration's new program, which would take priority over the previously proposed school construction bill. Administration spokesmen say the measure will stimulate state action. Secretary of Welfare Folsom said in a memorandum to Eisenhower that the emergency education program had been developed "to help stimulate the state, local and private action necessary to meet the critical security needs." He added: "As these national needs are more fully met through increased state, local and private action, federal support would no longer be needed. The program will therefore contain specific provision for its termination at the end of the fourth year, except for certain scholarship and fellowship activities which must be phased out gradually." Folsom has also said Russia's progress in education and in science demands a new look at the world of today in the interest of America's security.

NEW YORK (U)—Profit taking early this afternoon sliced away a good part of the gains of an early stock market upsurge. But the market remained on the upside. Many gains which originally ran to well over a point were clipped. An increasing number of small losses appeared.

Airplane and steel forged ahead in the initial advance. The ticker tape fell behind floor transactions for 9 minutes in the opening rush.

Then trading slackened and prices backed away. A weekend news of a build-up in missile spending and recommendations by the Rockefeller Bros. Funds survey that defense spending be boosted about three billion dollars were factors in the advance.

Wall Streeters also were keenly conscious that congress reconvenes this week and that it is expected to demand greater spending to meet Russian competition and to combat the business recession.

Chrysler, helped by news of $51,800,000 in contracts for its Jupiter and Redstone missiles advanced around 1 1/2.

The early advance was pretty general except for losses among rubbers, farm implements and some other issues. As trading progressed radio-televions, nonferrous metals and oils also were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 40 cents to $159.40 with the industrials up 40 cents, the rails up 40 cents and the utilities up 20 cents.

Find Color Ads Can Sell Better

NEW YORK (U)—The advertising manager of a Birmingham, Ala., department store today said color advertising in newspapers can have 30 to 50 per cent more selling power than straight black and white advertising.

O. William Spoor, sales promotion and advertising manager of Love's, talked about his store's experience at a demonstration of run-of-paper (ROP) color advertising at the opening of the annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Assn.

"Our store is in agreement that the additional costs to our daily newspaper is a solid investment that does produce definite and traceable returns," Spoor said.

About 5,000 retailers from all parts of the country were on hand for the convention, which continues through Thursday night.

A survey of 2,000 stores showed that ROP color is now available to 60 per cent of them in their local newspapers, and that 88 per cent of these use it. Fifty-four per cent reported they get "fair" results, 38 per cent get "good" results and eight per cent get "poor" results.

ROP color means color advertising in the main sections as opposed to the rotogravure or comic sections. ROP ads can be printed in a continuous process, without stopping the press run.

Scheduled for the demonstration were talks by Robert Drew, national advertising manager of the Milwaukee Journal; Robert Weed, promotion manager of the Minneapolis Star & Tribune; Spoor, and a representative of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. (ANPA).

In Municipal Recorder's Court Friday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of the following cases: Walter P. Smith, Negro, 1302 West Third Street, discharging firearms in the city, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $20, costs deducted. The judgment provides that the pistol shall be confiscated and sold according to law.

Boy Rocketeers Meet Red Tape

GREENSBORO (U)—Five Greensboro Senior High School students today begin the countdown of red tape in their efforts to get permission to shoot a homemade six-foot rocket.

The Guilford County commissioners, meeting today, were to get the boys' request to stage a launching sometime in the future from a site at the Guilford Wildlife Club.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration, which likes to keep the air relatively clear where airplanes usually fly, also must be consulted.

The boys — all 16-year-olds — have been assembling the rocket made of steel tubing 1 1/2 inches in diameter. It will be powered, they say, with zinc dust and sulphur, which will burn for 1-1.5 seconds.

What happens after that they don't know. But they figure they'll be out no more than a couple of dollars, the approximate cost of the project. The basic plans came from Scientific American Magazine. Milton W. Sharer, their chemistry teacher, gave them encouragement and chemicals for tests.

The boys are Bob Boyd, Bob Cunningham, Frank Starmer, Michael George and Fred Welder.

A banquet will be served in Fred M. Stokes dining hall at 6:30. The installation ceremony will begin at 7:30. All Master Masons from other lodges are invited to attend.

Three Mothers Cross Into Red China To Visit Sons

HONG KONG (U)—Three American mothers crossed apprehensively into Red China today to visit their imprisoned sons — at most three years after the Communists first invited them to come.

The three mothers are: Mrs. Mary Downey, New Britain, Conn., mother of John Downey, 27. He is serving a life term. She is accompanied by her 25-year-old son William.

Another American, Los Angeles Atty. A. J. Wirin, crossed the small bridge into Red China shortly after the mothers. Traveling separately, he is seeking information to defend John Powell, former American editor of a Shanghai newspaper who is now charged with sedition. The judge told the government he would dismiss the case unless Wirin was allowed to gather information in Red China.

On Jan. 21, 1955, the Communists first invited the mothers to visit their sons, who are imprisoned on spy charges. The State Department refused to let them go under its policy of banning all travel to Red China by U. S. citizens because the United States has no diplomatic relations with the Peiping regime.

The department suddenly reversed last month, about three weeks after Wirin got his passport.

Traded under the ticker symbol "MLN," the stock opened at $9.12 a share. The first 600 shares were bought by Paul P. Davis, president of the company which operates more than 2,000 mobile units in 17 states and the District of Columbia. The firm serves the Eastern Seaboard and the Midwest.

Revivalist

The Rev. George D. Voorhis, (above) formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y., is conducting a week's revival at the Church of God on Skinner Street at 7:30 each night. He has had extensive experience in youth and evangelistic work in several places, the pastor, Rev. Glenn Eason, stated. The public is invited to attend the services.

Judge Sharp, who has presided over courts in almost all of the 100 counties since her appointment to the bench by Gov. Kerr Scott in 1949, said she voted against the proposal for robes. But she added that "They outvoted us."

Judge J. Will Pless of Marion, president of the Superior Court Judges Assn., said that at least 32 of the 39 judges had bought the $5 robes by last month.

The state has 32 regular judges, four special judges and three emergency judges.

Judge Sharp Is Against Robes

HIGH POINT, N.C. (U)—North Carolina's Superior Court judges today, for the first time, donned black robes. And of all people, the judge who kicked up the biggest noise against the old English court custom was the state's lone lady jurist — Judge Susie Sharp of Reidsville.

When a reporter approached her, attired in her first flowing black robe, in permission for picture, she gave an emphatic "No."

"It's all right for Federal and District courts," said the attractive jurist, "they stay in one place. For us (the Superior Court judges), it's absurd and ridiculous."

Judge Sharp, who has presided over courts in almost all of the 100 counties since her appointment to the bench by Gov. Kerr Scott in 1949, said she voted against the proposal for robes. But she added that "They outvoted us."

Cases Heard In City Police Court

In Municipal Recorder's Court Friday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee disposed of the following cases: Walter P. Smith, Negro, 1302 West Third Street, discharging firearms in the city, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $20, costs deducted. The judgment provides that the pistol shall be confiscated and sold according to law.

Paul Casey, 402 Holly Street, possession of lottery tickets, case not pressed.

Thomas A. Worthington, Fayetteville, driving drunk, 90 days, suspended on payment of $100 and costs and he is not to drive on a N. C. highway for 12 months. The court recommended that Worthington's driver's license be revoked for 12 months.

Roland A. Mayo, 305 Raleigh Avenue, was found not guilty of driving drunk.

Drunk: Robert F. Hurst, Goldsboro, $16; Tom McLawhorn, Rt. 2, city, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $35, costs deducted. Speeding: Harry G. Keighley, Beaufort, S.C., $16; James L. Kilgus, 2608 Jackson Drive, paid costs; Edwin E. Rawls, 1048 East Rock Spring Drive, paid costs.

Willie J. Moore, Negro, 1918 East Pitt Street, assault on a female, 30 days, suspended on payment of $20, costs deducted, and he is not to harm his wife.

Both Drivers In Wreck Charged

Two automobiles collided at the intersection of Dickinson and Boyd Aves. early yesterday morning.

One driver said he had the green light. The other driver said he had the green light. Investigating officers charged both with failure to stop for a red light.

Charged were: William S. Moyer Jr. of 2611 Dickinson Ave. and J. D. Dillard, 32-year-old Negro of 1408 Ward St. Neither sustained injury.

Damages to the front of Moyer's car were estimated at $700. Officers reported $400 to the left side and right door of the Dillard vehicle.

James O. Bateman 72, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital Sunday. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Mr. Bateman came to Ayden in 1917 from Plymouth to work for the Wilkes Vencer Company. He was a son of the late Joe and Elizabeth Pierce of Washington county and a member of the Missionary Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife, the former Lula Manning; one daughter, Miss Rena Bateman of Burlington; two sons, James A. of Riviera Beach, Fla., and Bertrum G. Bateman of Port Walton Beach, Fla., and one sister, Mrs. Lee Hollowell of Henderson.

McLean Stock Is Entered On N. Y. Stock Exchange

NEW YORK (U)—Common stock of McLean Trucking Co. of Winston-Salem, N.C., was admitted to trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. It was the first trucking line to be listed on the exchange.

Traded under the ticker symbol "MLN," the stock opened at $9.12 a share. The first 600 shares were bought by Paul P. Davis, president of the company which operates more than 2,000 mobile units in 17 states and the District of Columbia. The firm serves the Eastern Seaboard and the Midwest.

Gets Road Term For Breaking In

Edward M. Harris, 30, of Greenville, was sentenced to 90 days on the roads this morning in City Court by Judge Charles H. Whedbee on charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

Harris pleaded guilty to entering the home of Mrs. Alice Proctor at 204 Colanache St. yesterday morning and taking a radio valued at $25.

Mrs. Proctor, who discovered the radio missing when she returned from church, reported the larceny to Police yesterday afternoon. The defendant was arrested last night after he had pawned the radio to a taxi driver for $6.

One Bootleg Still Razed, Several ABC Arrests
Pitt County ABC officers spent a busy weekend, destroying a still in the Fountain Township and arresting three local Negroes on illicit liquor charges.
The still, according to Chief ABC officer J. M. Ward, was discovered approximately one mile north of Fountain and was not in operation when raided Saturday afternoon. No whiskey was found at the site, he said.
In addition to the 60-gallon distillery complete with cap and copper coil, officers destroyed one 55-gallon cooler, barrel, one two-gallon doubler and 100 gallons of fermented mash.
Saturday night, Ardenia McCain, 23-year-old Negro woman of 1504-B Fleming St., was arrested and charged with illegal possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale. Officers reportedly found five gallons and five pints of illicit whiskey in her attic.
John Randolph Jr., 23-year-old Negro, of 1308 Short St., was also arrested at the same address on identical charges. He was released under a $500 bond. A $300 bond was set for the McCain woman.
Charged with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, Lola B. Arthur, 33-year-old Negro woman of 404 W. 12th St., was released under a $200 bond. Ward said a small amount of illegal whiskey was found in her home.
Participating in the raids were Ward, H. B. Lilley and James Ross.
