Filing Books For Pitt Candidates Are Open; Little Activity So Far

All County Elective Offices Except Register Of Deeds Are At Stake

Filing books for candidacy for Pitt County offices have opened, but there has been little activity on the part of candidates to get their names listed, Board of Elections Chairman D. S. Spain said today.

Spain said the books will be open until noon, April 19. The county primary will be held May 31, followed by general elections in November.

Spain said all but one of the county's elective offices will come up for election this year. Mrs. Blair Cox Wheelers, Register of Deeds, was named to a new four-year term in 1956 and will not have to stand for re-election this year.

Offices which will be open include Sheriff, Clerk of Superior Court, Judge of County Record, Recorder's Court, Coroner, County Commissioners from the first, fourth and fifth districts, all Justices of the Peace, all Constables, State Senator and two Representatives to the General Assembly.

None of the present incumbents have announced their intentions thus far. Ruel W. Tyson is Sheriff, D. T. House Jr. is Clerk of Superior Court, Judge Dink James is Judge of County Recorder's Court, James C. Lanier Jr. is Recorder of County Recorder's Court and Griffin H. House is Coroner.

Registration of voters for the May primary will be held May 3, May 10 and May 17 in the voters' precincts. Challenge Day will be May 24.

Kill-Crazy Youth Admits Slaughtering Eleven Persons

SCOTTSBUFF, Neb. (AP)—Charles Starkweather, 19, has made an oral confession to 11 killings by gun, knife and clubbing while interjecting the remark "I always wanted to be an outlaw."

Starkweather is charged with first-degree murder in Lincoln, where 7 of the 11 persons were slain. Starkweather asserted his 14-year-old girl friend Carl Fugate, who was with him this week, had nothing to do with the killings.

Three members of Carl's family were among the victims. She too faces a murder charge at Lincoln. Starkweather, speaking freely and without a sign of remorse, told him: "I always wanted to be a criminal, but not this big a one. I didn't mean for it to be this bad."

"I wanted to be somebody. I wasn't mad at anybody." The sheriff said, "He told me that he just had a hatred that built up in himself and that since he was a kid he wanted to be an outlaw."

"I have never seen a more vicious mad killer who could talk so cool and collected," Karnopp commented. Karnopp did not give all the details of what Starkweather said in the 123-mile ride to Scottsbluff from Douglas, Wyo., where Charles surrendered under gunfire of officers.

The killings that police attribute to Starkweather began last Dec. 1. That was when Lincoln filling station attendant Robert Colvert was found dead on a side road on the city's outskirts.

Karnopp said Starkweather, in admitting the shooting of Colvert, said he had not intended to kill when he set out to rob the station. Starkweather's story was that he forced Colvert into a car, drove to the isolated road and that when he stopped Colvert tried to jerk away a handkerchief shielding his face. That, Starkweather was quoted as saying, led to the killing.

There followed this week nine killings, discovered in three days. On each occasion three bodies were found. Monday it was the family of Carl, her stepfather, her mother and her 2-year-old sister. The stepfather and mother were shot, the child clubbed. Karnopp said Starkweather would only say he had argued with Carl's stepfather.

Emergency Defense Bill Cleared By Senate Appropriations Body

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee today approved unanimously a $1,410,000,000 emergency defense money bill.

Only one major change was made in the measure as it passed the House last week. Chairman Hayden (D-Ariz.) said the Senate group knocked out all reference to the Advanced Research Project Agency the Pentagon is about to set up.

Hayden said, however, that 10 million dollars would be made directly available to Secretary of Defense McElroy for use by any such agency. Some Democratic senators have advocated voting as much as one or two billion dollars more now to step up missile and bomber production, but Hayden said the committee decided to go along with McElroy's request. "This secretary is an able man," Hayden said. "He's new on the job. He said he wanted to study things before asking more money for them."

Hayden said that if the Pentagon decides it needs more money before Congress acts on the regular appropriation for the fiscal year starting next July, "we are ready to give it to them."

Committee approval sends the money bill on to the Senate for action, perhaps early next week. Actual timing of a Senate vote may hinge, however, on how rapidly the House acts on a authorization bill which the Senate sent back to it yesterday. Some of the items in the money bill depend on authorizations in the measure which the Senate passed after changing some House provisions.

None of the changes involved money amounts, but the House must act on the Senate amendments before the bill can become law. As passed by the House, the money bill would provide $1,280,000,000 in new funds and authority to transfer to other uses another 150 millions previously appropriated. Of this, 910 millions would be for the Air Force for new missiles, ballistic missile platforms, enemy missile and airplane warning systems and dispersal of Strategic Air Command bombers. The other 350 millions of new funds is for the Navy, with 296 millions to go for construction of three atomic missile submarines capable of firing the Polaris ballistic missile.

Forty millions of the transferred funds—an addition to President Eisenhower's initial request—would go to the Army for missile programs and 10 million would go for a new Advanced Research Projects Agency in the Defense Department. The authorization bill provides for various Air Force construction projects, for which part of the Air Force money is to be used. Already passed by the House, it went through the Senate on a voice vote of the only nine senators present. Its total is $549,670,000.

Although the Senate accepted the exact authorization total voted by the House, it made two changes in the construction bill that require House approval or a Senate-House compromise later.

One of these would give the secretary of the Air Force authority to relocate some of the proposed bases for the Strategic Air Command. Sen. Stennis (D-Miss.) said the Armed Services Committee discovered that several of the proposed new SAC dispersal bases already are classed as "prime targets" for the enemy.

Knocked out by the Senate was a House floor change authorizing the secretary of defense to set up the research agency. Stennis said the agency is too important for legislation to be "enacted hastily."

U. S. Discloses Effort To Develop New Counterweapons For Missiles

By FRANK CAREY AP Science Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States disclosed today it is working on the development of nuclear counterweapons designed to destroy intercontinental and other aggressive missiles.

The disclosure came in the 23rd semiannual report of the Atomic Energy Commission to Congress. Referring to its previously announced weapons tests at Eniwetok next spring, the AEC said: "The forthcoming series will advance the development of weapons for defense against aggression whether airborne, missile-borne, or otherwise mounted."

The government previously has hinted at work on atomic rockets and anti-aircraft shells designed to pulverize airplanes, and has announced development of atomic depth charges to knock out submarines. This was the first official mention of efforts to neutralize missiles with nuclear warheads.

Presumably, in the forthcoming Eniwetok tests, the AEC would mount an A-bomb or an H-bomb as the warhead of an actual missile to test the effective scope of the blast at theoretically interceptive ranges.

On other phases of its work, the AEC reported: 1. "Important gains" were made in the last six months in the field of nuclear weapons, especially small weapons for defensive purposes, and weapons designed "greatly to reduce the radioactivity remaining after detonation."

2. Maximum exposure to radioactive fallout from last year's "Plumbob" tests in Nevada by localities near the site were all below the acceptable level. These localities included monitored stations in Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah.

3. Average levels of radioactive strontium—a potential producer of bone cancer—in the bone structure of Americans has increased during the past year. But the average is still far below the recommended maximum acceptable level, the report indicated.

4. The use of radioactive isotopes is saving industry an estimated 600 million dollars annually—a 7 per cent yearly dividend on the more than seven billion dollars in tax money that the federal government has invested on atomic energy plant and equipment between 1942 and 1958.

Radioactive isotopes are ray-emitting atoms which industry uses in the form of gauges, flaw detectors and other applications. 5. Also, in the agricultural use of isotopes, "gains continued to be made in broadened knowledge and improved management of crops and livestock, and of diseases and pests that afflict both."

"Research pointed the way," said the AEC. "To better use of fertilizers, insect and weed killers, and growth regulators, and benefits were in sight from widening experiments with plants and animals."

6. "Considerable progress" has been made in the diagnosis and localization of brain tumors with the use of radioactive iodine and more recently, there also have been encouraging results with certain other radioactive materials in this use. In these more recent studies, radioactive arsenic has shown particular promise.

Referring to the upcoming tests of nuclear weapons at Eniwetok, the report said: "An important objective of the tests will be the further development of nuclear weapons with greatly reduced fallout so that radiation hazard may be restricted to the military target. This principle was first proved in the Pacific test series of 1956."

Referring to new test methods used in the 1957 Nevada tests—methods in which some nuclear devices were suspended from a balloon or placed deep underground—the report said: "The use of captive balloons to lift the experimental device to an altitude sufficient to prevent the detonation fireball from reaching the ground appreciably reduced local fallout of radioactive materials."

In the underground technique, the report said, all radiation was kept from escaping.

Fugitive Plans To Fight Return

BALTIMORE (AP)—Fourteen years ago, says Jessie Griffin of Baltimore, he was sentenced in North Carolina to 15-20 years in prison for a crime he didn't commit.

Twelve years ago, says the 43-year-old Griffin, he escaped a prison road gang near Durham, N.C., but it wasn't his plan to do so—he ran only after seeing others make their escape.

Now, Griffin says, after his identity has been discovered as a result of a domestic argument, he will fight extradition to North Carolina.

Griffin has been living at nearby Parkville, Baltimore County police said yesterday, under the name of William David Stone, working as a carpenter. His wife, whom he married six years ago as a widow with four children, found out only this week her husband was a fugitive.

Griffin told a newsman he was convicted of manslaughter as driver of a car which struck and killed two girls on U.S. 17 near his home town of Washington, N.C. in 1944. He contended, however, he was not driving, but that two other men with him fled after the accident. After his conviction, he said, his wife in Washington, N.C. got a divorce. When he escaped, he related, he bought some surplus Army clothes and made his way to Baltimore.

Last Friday night he and his wife argued because one of her teen-aged daughters talked too long on the telephone with a boy. Griffin was picked up on an assault and disorderly conduct charge, and the FBI made a routine check of the fingerprints taken by Baltimore police. North Carolina authorities then identified Griffin as the escapee.

TEDDY COULDN'T ROCKY FORD, Colo. (AP)— Cecilia Zavala, 4, wondered if her teddy bear could smoke. She inserted one of her daddy's cigarettes in the bear's mouth, lit it and put the bear in a clothes closet. Firemen managed to keep the fire from spreading far, but Teddy was pretty much a ruined bruin.

Melvin West Is Trying It Again

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—A man, an open boat, the sea and the sky. A put-putting outboard motor, canned provisions, a few navigational aids. Destination, Bermuda—500 miles away.

The setting and the cast are the same as they were last October, when Jacksonville, N.C. disc jockey—28-year-old Melvin West—first tried to make the long journey alone in an open boat.

But this time, West—two days out of Morehead City—hopes to make the last act come out a little differently. Three months ago, after the Korean War veteran had been at sea for 12 days, he was running low on provisions and had a broken gas line. Then the impatient Coast Guard ran down the curtain by picking him up at sea, 160 miles short of Bermuda.

He said he had attempted the trip to show that the outboard motorboat has come of age. He insisted it still could be done and tried to talk the Coast Guard into giving him supplies, not picking him up. This time, West took a bigger boat—the 16-foot "Empress of

Hodges Suggests Transferral Of Leaf Allotments

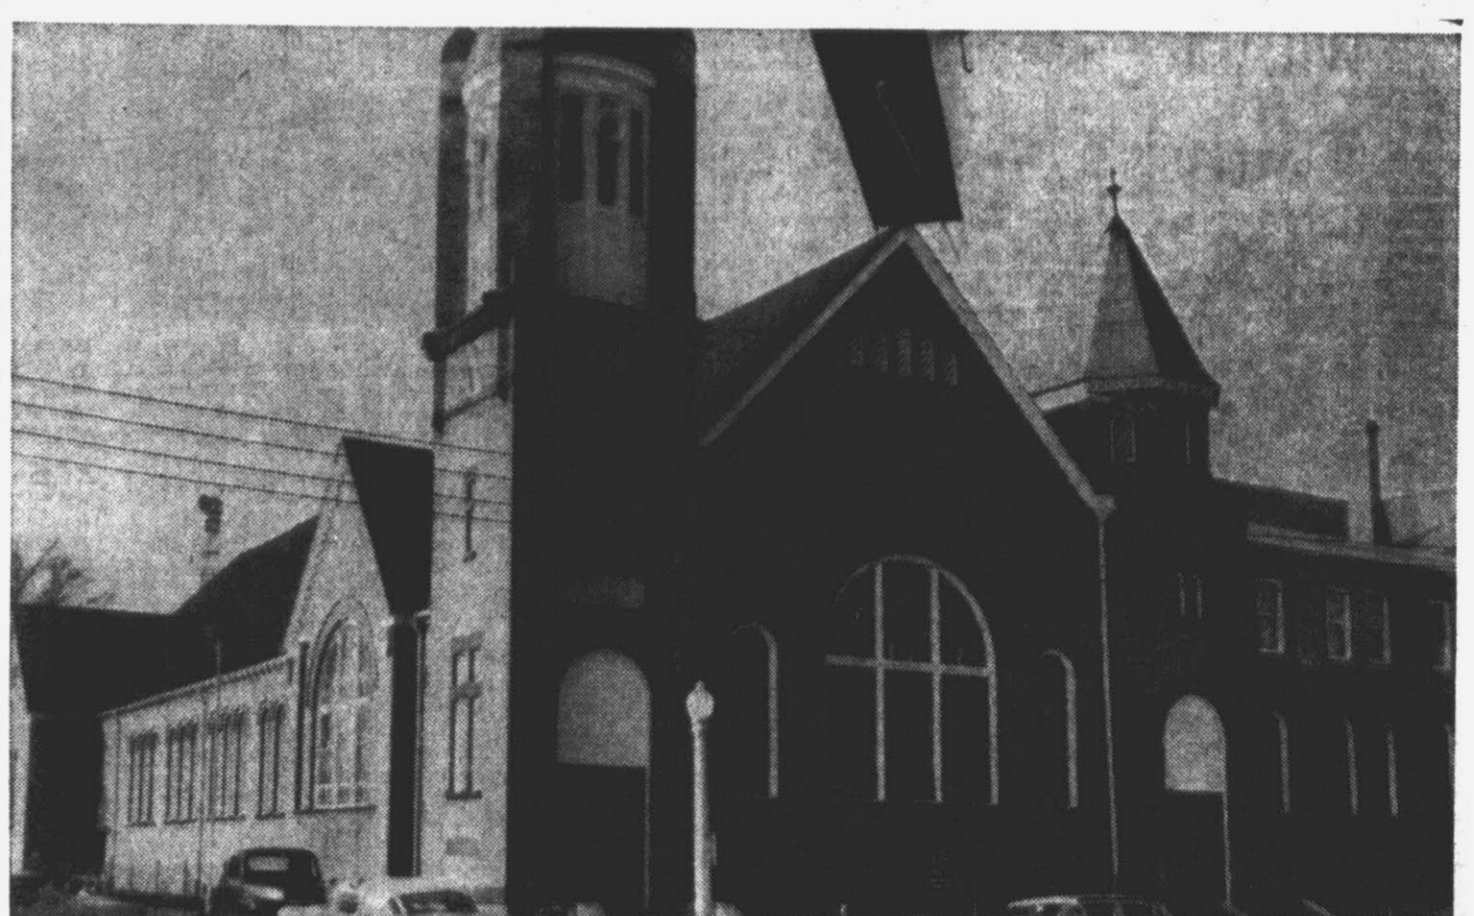

RAEFORD, N.C. (AP)—Gov. Hodges said last night it would seem something could be worked out so that tobacco allotments could be sold and transferred from one parcel of land to another.

Such an arrangement, Hodges asserted, would permit many of North Carolina's small tobacco farmers to obtain increased acreage. They could do this, he explained, "by purchasing from a neighbor the tobacco allotment which the neighbor would perhaps be willing to sell when he would not wish to sell his land."

Hodges told a Hoke County farm meeting here "some safeguards would have to be provided, of course, to make certain that the purchaser of a tobacco allotment would use it as part of his own farming operations, and that it would directly benefit him and his family."

The governor announced that he plans to appoint a 15-member Governor's Farmer Advisory Committee to develop farm policy. A state-wide meeting of the committee is planned to discuss agricultural problems. In his speech, Hodges struck back at criticism that his administration has subordinated the farmer in its drive for new industry. He declared the industrial progress has been achieved at the expense of no one, adding: "I am sure that every fair-minded farmer will agree that our program for industrial development fits hand in glove with the betterment of the farmer's lot."

First Service Sunday For Remodeled Church

JARVIS MEMORIAL METHODIST CHURCH . . . first services to be held in re-built structure Sunday.

Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church's congregation will occupy the rebuilt church sanctuary Sunday.

First services in the re-built church will begin at 11 o'clock. Preceding the services will be a program of music on the Allen W. Baker Memorial Carillon and the new three-manual organ which has been installed in the sanctuary. The Carillon program will begin at 10:30 and the organ prelude is to begin at 10:45.

Opening day services will feature the morning worship service led by the Rev. W.M. Howard, Jr., pastor of the church. An open house is scheduled for 3 to 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. At the evening services beginning at 7:30 Dr. A.J. Hobbs, superintendent of the New Bern District of the Methodist Church, will preach. Guests of honor will be the men and women who have gone out from the church, the former ministers, widows of former ministers and friends of the church. It was a year ago that Jarvis Memorial's congregation left the church and re-building was begun. Since that time church members have been worshipping in Austin Auditorium at East Carolina College.

The church's sanctuary has been more than doubled in length in the building program. A chapel has been constructed in the old Sunday school annex and a ladies parlor has been added behind the chapel. The big new organ which will serve the church is housed in three chambers and all can be played in unison. One of the chambers located in the back of the sanctuary, can be played separately from a console in the chapel. Jarvis Memorial traces its recorded history back to 1833 when a little frame church was erected on the present Cherry Hill cemetery site. The church was known as St. Paul's. Little remains of the history of this period but with the coming of Dr. L.L. Nash as pastor in 1878, the congregation began to flourish. He found a congregation of 20 members and a dilapidated building. When he left, there was a new church building and a greatly enlarged membership.

Corner stone for the new building was laid on Nov. 7, 1878 and the first service was held in the new St. Paul's on Feb. 7, 1880. Bishop Wightman preached the dedicatory sermon on the last Sunday in May of that year. In 1905 the congregation had increased in numbers and wealth to the point that a new building was projected on the corner of Dickinson Ave. and Washington St., the church's present site. The new sanctuary was renamed Jarvis Memorial in honor of ex-governor Thomas J. Jarvis, an honored member of the church. (Continued on Page 10)

Pitt's Mental Health Service Begins Third Year Tomorrow

Pitt County's Mental Health Service will begin its third year of operation tomorrow.

The service, a part of the Pitt County Health Department, first opened its doors for business on February 1, 1956. Since that time, a total of 653 patients from 28 Eastern North Carolina counties have been admitted for treatments by the service staff.

Dr. Joseph D. Franzoni, director of the service, said this morning that staff personnel had conducted a total of 5,105 interviews in its 23 months of operation. Of the total number of patients admitted, 478 had been released with only 12 of them returning for subsequent treatment after termination of their cases.

Winds Grounding Satellite Effort

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—High winds swirling 8 to 10 miles directly overhead grounded any plans for launching an earth satellite today and might continue to do so for several days to come.

Winds Grounding Satellite Effort

Winds up to 230 miles an hour surged across central Florida and the Bahamas area at altitudes of from 40,000 to 45,000 feet. They were part of a high-altitude jet stream, a river of high winds extending virtually all the way from the Pacific Coast.

Winds Grounding Satellite Effort

What missile men worried about was not so much the great velocity of the winds as the shearing effect of swift changes in wind direction and speed.

Winds Grounding Satellite Effort

The present case load of the service stands at 187 held over from 1957. Dr. Franzoni said. "During the time the service has been operating," Dr. Franzoni added, "the public has taken a more tolerant attitude toward the desirability of early detection and treatment of emotional disturbances before they become so clinically evident that they require long treatment or hospitalization."

March Collection, Cooperation Success

Mothers March on Pello held last night was termed highly successful by Mrs. Ruel Tyson, chairman of the March.

"We had the finest cooperation I have ever seen," Mrs. Tyson declared.

It was announced this morning that $950.30 has been received from the drive. This is not the final figure as there are still several collections that have not reached headquarters yet. Last year $701.23 was collected in the March.

Ten PTA groups throughout the city cooperated in this annual March. St. Raphael's group was the first to report in last night. As each of the PTA groups arrived at headquarters, their collections were tabulated and a receipt and a certificate of appreciation for their assistance was presented.

This year the Business and Professional Women's Club sponsored the March.

"The Business and Professional Women's Club of Greenville sincerely thanks every person who participated in Mothers March last night. We would like to urge all families of the city to take advantage of the Salk vaccine that is available. Contact your family physician or the Pitt County Health Department," said Mrs. Tyson today.

ECC Yearbook Goes To Press

I. K. Williamson of Princeton, editor of the East Carolina College student yearbook, the "Buccaneer," stated this week that all materials for the "Golden Anniversary" edition of 1958 have been submitted to the Taylor Publishing Co. of Dallas, Texas. The book should be ready for distribution in the spring, he said.

This year's "Buccaneer," Williamson said, develops the theme of the founding of the college and its growth during its first half century. The cover and an introductory section of 99 pages, as well as other materials, have been prepared in observation of the fiftieth "birthday" of the college.

Four sections of the annual, the editor stated, have been given special emphasis and, it is hoped, will add interest and variety to the yearbook. One of these will deal for the first time in an edition of the "Buccaneer" with departments of instruction at the college. Sections on student life on the campus, athletics, and fraternities, Williamson said, receive a new approach and more space than in former editions.

The "Buccaneer" is a member of the National School Yearbook Association.

ROBERSONVILLE—Miss Patsy Smith and the Rev. J. Malloy Owen who will marry in April were honored at an open house at the Teacherage last night by Miss Jesse Richardson, Miss Katherine Ingram, Miss Suzanne Hardison, Howard Whitehurst, and Derwood Bray.

Wearing a Grecian style black taffeta dinner dress, Miss Smith was presented a white carnation corsage upon arrival. Mrs. George W. Smith, mother of the honoree, Miss Jean Cargile, bride-elect, and the bride-elect, also were remembered with white carnation corsages.

The 175 guests were greeted by Derwood Bray and introduced to the receiving line composed of Miss Smith, Rev. Owen, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Miss Cargile, Jay Weatherington, bridegroom-elect, and Mrs. Cargile.

Candlelight and unique white floral arrangements were used throughout the entire first floor of the Teacherage.

Of focal interest in the living room was an impressive arrangement featuring a seven-branched candelabra encircled with white carnations and gladioli placed on the organ.

Guests were invited into the dining room where spiced tea and coffee was served at each end of the room and Mrs. Eugene Marrow appointed table by Mrs. Dixie Robinson and Mrs. Eugene Marrow from a table covered with a white organdy and ribbon cloth over green satin.

A massive white floral arrangement, the centerpiece, was comprised of gladioli, carnations, and pom poms. White burning tapers placed in silver candelabras flanked the centerpiece.

Guests helped themselves to bridal cakes and an assortment of party dainties. Miss Smith's business education students assisted in the dining room.

Mrs. Vincent Colombo presided at the register which was highlighted by an 18-inch bride doll placed on a white satin pillow which was encircled with burning white tapers.

Miss Smith and Miss Cargile were each given a gift of crystal in their chosen patterns as remembrances from the hostesses and hosts.

Goodbyes were said to Howard Whitehurst.

Mrs. Godwin Honored On 80th Birthday

On Sunday at 4 p.m. Mrs. Roxanna Godwin was honored on her 80th birthday by her three children, Mr. F. W. Godwin Sr., Mrs. G. C. Weston and Mrs. Hermon Norris, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Norris on East Fourth Street.

Upon arrival the honoree's corsage of white carnations was pinned on by her son, Fresh Godwin, while her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren and other relatives and friends sang "Happy Birthday."

Artistic arrangements of red roses were used in the living room with red and green plants in the den. A fruit bowl centered the buffet with white candles. On the dining table was a centerpiece of white and yellow pom poms.

The first piece of birthday cake with 80 candles was cut by the honoree.

Assisting in serving cake, green punch, nuts, mints, and dates were her granddaughters, Mrs. William French, Miss Joan Godwin, Miss Ann Norris, and Mrs. Jimmy Weston.

'Church Not Just Building,' Says McGowan At District Meet

"Essence of the church is not a building. Jesus came to establish one church which is to be the temple of God," explained the Rev. Matthew McGowan, pastor of the Rocky Mount Second Presbyterian Church, who spoke on "The Nature and Mission of the Church" yesterday at the District IV Conference of the Women of the Church of Albemarle Presbytery. This conference held at the Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church attracted 127 women representing the 16 churches in the district.

Mrs. H. H. Bryant of Greenville, chairman of the district, presided over the meeting which was opened by the group singing "The Church's One Foundation."

The Rev. Thomas M. Davis, general secretary for the Albemarle Presbytery, gave the devotional, reading the 42nd Psalm which was followed by a welcome from Mrs. W. G. Sullivan of the host church.

The Barium Springs Orphanage, church's financial objective, was discussed by Mrs. Colon McLean, synodical treasurer. There is no quota for this project. Love gifts are being received from every woman with every church in the Synod participating. This year's project is to furnish two cottages for the orphanage where 183 children live.

"The Birthday objective for this year is twofold," explained Mrs. H. M. Dalton, church extension chairman for the Presbytery. She told the group that the money will go toward establishing a scholarship fund for Oklahoma Presbyterian College and in the Presbyterian Chinese Mission in New Orleans, La.

Mrs. Dan Cratch, Presbytery chairman of World Missions, stressed the need of increasing seal and offerings for World Missions.

A highlight of the morning conference was an address by Mrs. Eric Rodgers, Presbytery president, who stated that there are 83 churches in Albemarle Presbytery and 16 churches in District IV.

She stressed the need of sending a Negro woman to the Conference in Winston-Salem in May. Mrs. Cratch related her experience while attending the Training School for Church Women at Peace College last year. "This will be held at Queen's College June 8-14 this year," she pointed out.

The attending women were also reminded of the Montreat training school which will be held later in the summer.

Special music was rendered prior to the meeting by Mrs. E. C. Thornburg. Following the general business, the group sang "O, Master, Let Me Walk With Thee." The Rev. Edward C. Thornburg, pastor of the host church, pronounced the closing prayer and blessing. Luncheon followed. District IV will hold their annual meeting in 1959 in Williamston with the Williamston Presbyterian Church as host.

ON THE NOSE—Paris designer Rose Valois was inspired by the racing world to create "Spurs," a red straw hat with red velvet trim extending down wearer's nose.

Social Notes

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Griffith are in Richmond, Va. for a retirement party for W. T. Blackmon, division sales manager of National Biscuit Company. Mr. Griffith is branch manager for Nabisco and worked under supervision of Blackmon. Mr. and Mrs. Griffith will return to Greenville Saturday.

Cabaret Supper
Mrs. Gerry Ricks will be showing comic films for the children on Saturday night, February 1, during the Cabaret Pancake Supper from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Moose Lodge.

Brubeck At EC Wednesday

Dave Brubeck's Quartet will appear in a modern jazz concert at East Carolina College Wednesday, February 6, at 8 p.m. in the Wright auditorium, according to an announcement by James W. Butler, chairman of the college Entertainment Committee.

Brubeck, who is considered the outstanding exponent of contemporary jazz, will present, according to indications, one of the most popular and well attended attractions to be included on the College Entertainment Series in a number of years. Tickets are in demand and may be obtained at the auditorium Feb. 6 or by mail order addressed to Mr. Butler, Alumni Office, East Carolina College. Admission charges are $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students.

The Brubeck Quartet presents a "novel blending of crew-cut and long-hair elements," according to Arnold Shaw, writing on "West Coast Jazz" for "Esquire" in September, 1956. Brubeck's music, he says, has "a distinct jazz feeling" . . . yet the "tart harmonies and contrapuntal dissonances . . . recall a Quartet recital of Bartok, Shostakovich or Schonberg."

Hearing the Brubeck Quartet is described by critics as a unique experience. Performances reveal "what happened when boogie-woogie meets Bartok," according to "International Musician."

The Quartet includes Brubeck at the piano, Paul Desmond on alto saxophone, Joe Morello on drums, and Norman Bates on bass.

Brubeck, born into a musical family, began his career on a jazz artist at College of the Pacific; played in army bands during World War II; and later studied with Darius Milhaud, noted composer, at Mills College. The Quartet, begun in 1951, was enthusiastically received first by college audiences and then by admirers from coast to coast.

Since 1952 his group, recording for Columbia, has become a top seller for jazz records. Some of his albums include "Jazz: Red Hot and Cool," "Brubeck Time," and "Jazz Impressions of the U.S.A."

Select Your Child's Cereal Foods With Care

Some cereals are not only highly milled, but they are sugar-coated as well. This adds nothing but calories to their nutritional value.

Whole Grains
Not only breakfast cereals but bread and flour should be whole grain.

Teach your children from the beginning to eat food that is good for them from the nutritional standpoint.

You will be well repaid by a healthy family and a lower food bill. If every bite of food that goes down the throats of your family carries a goodly supply of the "essential foods," the vitamins and minerals, you will not need to buy expensive vitamin pills.

If you use some white flour, as doubtless you will, add some wheat germ to the white flour food or to some other food. Wheat germ tastes good and adds lots of vitamins to the diet.

Buy your grain products for their nutritive value, not their pretty packages.

Nutrition Values
What really makes one grain product better nutrition than another?

Grains are all seeds of plants. Nature puts into seeds the food that both the plants and man needs to grow well. But nature separates the various food elements into different parts of the seed. The central and largest part of the seed contains starch, the outside covering contains mineral and B-vitamins. In the heart of small in total volume of the seed, but large in nutritive value. Here is fat, protein and vitamins.

Grains that are prepared for the market by grinding up the whole seed, starch outside covering and germ make foods of great nutritive value. But when only the starchy part of the grain is used the resulting food contains very little but calories. We need calories, of course, but if we eat a lot of food that contains only calories, we must supplement the diet with pills to make up for the good food elements thrown away in the milling process.

Starchy Cereals
Highly milled cereals that contain only the starchy part of the grain have become very popular in this country. People seem to like their pur white color and manufacturers like the ease of marketing. Grains that contain the fatty material of the germ spoil more quickly and therefore have to have more careful handling.

Learn to read the labels and understand them. Buy cereals that say they are made from whole grains. It makes little difference if a cereal is eaten hot or cold, but it makes a lot of difference if it is a whole grain cereal or a milled one.

BUSSETT'S

CANNED HAND
TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—It happened while she was cleaning fruit jars, Mrs. Estelle Drummer said. She put her hand in the canning jar and couldn't get it out.

She called the fire department for advice. They had some: Wait for a rescue squad they were sending. The rescue squad had the answer: A little oil around the wrist. Out came the hand.

Mrs. Callicut Presen Program

GRIFTON—Mrs. A. G. Callicut presented the program for the evening, "The Golden Door," at the Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist Church meeting Monday night.

Her program concerned the liberty and freedom of the Spanish, Chinese, Indians, Germans, and Russians.

The pin for the month went to the Leah Best Circle. Members were reminded of the forthcoming home mission study course March 3-7 at 7:30 p.m. in the church.

Mrs. Joe Hardison gave the call to order and conducted the business session. Chairman reports were heard and members discussed changing the club's name to WMU. A vote on this will be held at the February meeting.

Mrs. Roy Rumley made the cake for the evening refreshments and served it to the 23 members present.

Party Fetes Recent Bride

BETHEL—On Friday night Mrs. Robert Weeks and Miss Eleanor Ward Stator honored Mrs. Fred Pollard, recent bride, at dessert bridge in the home of Mrs. H. V. Stator, their mother.

Of focal interest in the home were potted azaleas and house gardens that were used for decorations.

On arrival the guests were served refreshments consisting of block ice cream, bridal cakes, mints and nuts.

After several progressions of play, iced drinks, nuts and cheese straws were served.

At the end of the game, Mrs. E. Dennis was awarded high score and Mrs. Don Carson Jr. was recipient of the low score award.

The honoree was remembered with a gift by the hostesses.

Christian Science Society
Divine Love's inexhaustible power and abundance will be brought out Sunday at Christian Science services.

Matthew's account (ch. 9) of the healing by Christ Jesus of the centurion's servant will be included in the Lesson-Sermon on "Love."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following (494:10): "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need. It is not well to imagine that Jesus demonstrated the divine power to heal only for a select number or for a limited period of time, since to all mankind and in every hour, divine Love supplies all good."

The Golden Text is from I John (4:7): "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God."

Hearts On Valentine's Table

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Put your hearts on the table on Valentine's Day. Nowadays various sizes of cookie cutters, cake pans and salad molds come heart-shaped, all ready for use in baking or filling.

To grace a buffet supper party table and beguile your guests, you might like a heart-shaped potato salad with a scarlet pimiento arrow. Directions for making this salad follow, but if you haven't a pan of the size and shape called for, use a bowl for molding and garnish with the arrow. Or spanish the top of the salad—after it is turned out—with pimiento cut out with a tiny heart-shaped cutter.

What to serve with the salad? We suggest smorgasbord fixings and here are dishes from which to choose.

Another salad—this time of marinated herring fillets, diced apple, cooked beets, celery and dill pickle.

Stuffed hard-cooked eggs with anchovy fillets added to their filling and caper-rolled anchovies used as a garnish.

Smoked fish such as eel, salmon or sardines. The salmon should be accompanied by a crust of olive oil and a tiny bowl of capers. The sardines will look pretty undisturbed in their open can, but ring the container with parsley. Lobster and shrimp also are appropriate served with lemon wedges.

For a hot dish, scrambled eggs and dill-flavored potatoes might be offered from an electric skillet or chafing dish. Brown breads should accompany all the dishes. Dessert might be fresh fruit, an assortment of crackers and some good rich butter cookies.

VALENTINE POTATO SALAD
Ingredients: 9 medium-sized potatoes (3 pounds), 2-3 cup real mayonnaise, 1 cup finely diced celery, 1-4 cup finely chopped pimiento, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon white pepper, minced onion, 2 cups coarsely ground cooked ham, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper, 1-4 cup real mayonnaise, salad greens, radish roses, extra pimiento.

Method: Cover potatoes (in their skins) with boiling salted water; cook rapidly until tender. Peel and dice fairly fine. While potatoes are still warm, toss with 1-3 cup mayonnaise. Allow to cool, then mix with another 1-3 cup mayonnaise, celery, pimiento, salt, pepper and onion to taste. Mix ham, green pepper and 1-4 cup mayonnaise. Line the bottom of a 6-cup heart mold with waxed paper. Pack one-third of the potato salad in the bottom of the mold. Press another one-third of the salad around the sides of the mold. Fill center with ham mixture. Pack remaining potato salad over ham. Chill thoroughly. Turn out on chop plate. Garnish with salad greens, radish roses and an arrow cut from pimiento strips. To serve, cut heart in half lengthwise; cut 4 to 5 wedges from each half. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Note: You may wish to add more mayonnaise and salt to the potato mixture to suit your own taste. The onion may be omitted if desired.

District II of Albemarle Presbyterian held its annual meeting at the Falkland Presbyterian Church on January 23 with the Women of the Church organization of the Falkland church serving as the hostess group.

Of the 14 churches comprising this District, the following 13, with a total registration of 146, were represented: Ballard's, Berea, Boyd Memorial, Carraway's, Grace, Farmville, Fountain, Pinetops, Westminster, and Wilson First.

The District welcomed as its new chairman Mrs. F. P. McCain, who has recently come to make her home in Wilson. Mrs. McCain's varied experience at Sanatorium, where her father, and later her husband, served as superintendent, and more recently her own service as Dean at Flora Macdonald College, Red Springs, made it possible for her to plan and conduct the meeting.

The theme of the meeting, "The Nature and Mission of the Church," was emphasized especially in the opening hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," and in the devotional.

The theme of the meeting, "The Nature and Mission of the Church," was emphasized especially in the opening hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," and in the devotional.

Mrs. Charles F. Baucom of Farmville, immediate past chairwoman of the district, reviewed the work accomplished in 1927. Mrs. Eric Rodgers of Scotland Neck, president of Albemarle Presbyterian, brought a message which outlined the objectives of work for the present year.

Mrs. H. M. Dalton of Kinston explained the Birthday Objective for women of the Presbyterian Church for the current year while Mrs. Colin McLean of Washington told of a special "Love Gift" to Barium Springs, planned by the women of the North Carolina Synodical. Mrs. Dan Crotch of Washington gave a message on World Missions. This was timely in view of the special emphasis the church will have on Missions in February.

Reports by the local presidents were followed by an offering and a discussion period concerning the Woman's Work in the Church. Then came another highlight of the meeting: "A Trip to the Holy Land," a personal account by Mrs. McCain of a visit to the Holy Land, illustrated with slides taken by herself or other members of her party. Following this the representatives adjourned to the Falkland Community Building where lunch was served.

Sew Up Your Bridal Gifts

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Every bride welcomes dainty lingerie cases which she can use for the honeymoon and afterward. Cases to hold lingerie, gloves, handkerchiefs, stockings and scarfs can make the difference between chaos and order in suitcases or bureau drawers. And every girl knows that nothing gives her such a feeling of ladylike well-being as fishing a dainty handkerchief from a scented satin-like case.

Such cases are so simple to make that there's no excuse for any woman not having enough of them. And they can solve all those problems of what to give at a bridal shower.

Local sewing center experts give a few tips on how to make them. They suggest using rayon taffeta for the outside of the cases, rayon satin for the lining and pella for the interlining. An effective trimming is nylon galloon lace, available in 16-cent stores.

You can get standard patterns for sets of lingerie and handkerchief cases, which give detailed sewing instructions. Start by cutting patterns from the taffeta, pella and rayon sections together and quilt in diagonal lines, using the quilting attachment on your sewing machine to keep lines straight and spacing even. Then applique diagonal strips of the nylon lace along the quilting lines. For an additional touch, you may use your favorite decorative stitch for the applique, if you own an automatic zig-zag machine or an automatic zig-zag attachment for a standard machine.

Next stitch satin section to taffeta-and-pella section, keeping right sides together. Stitch around three sides, leaving one end open. Turn to right side and finish open end by blind stitching. Then fold to form pocket and stitch together. You can make a dozen of these dainty cases in an afternoon, and be supplied with gifts for showers, bazaars or birthdays for months to come.

For an extra special gift, you might slip a dainty handkerchief in one case, a gay little chiffon scarf in another, and a pair of sheer nylons in a third. Add a sachet to each, and you'll have a gift that is sure to delight any woman.

Adhering strictly to the budget plan the city of Greenville during the last six months succeeded in reducing operating expenses exactly $6,186.97. This information was presented to the Board of Aldermen in regular monthly session last night at the city hall by J. O. Duval, city clerk. Operating expenses from July 1, 1926 to December 31, 1926 were given as $41,075.84. For the same period in 1927 they were estimated at $35,478.87. Five departments were involved in the estimate. J. B. Kittrell recommended that the appropriation of $150 a month to the city library be increased to $200 a month. After considerable discussion the matter was deferred until a later date. The order to open Pine and Third Streets in the eastern section of the city was rescinded following complaint of property holders against such action.

Methodist Men Entertain Wives

BETHEL—The Methodist men entertained the women of the church in the Fellowship Hall Monday night at a supper.

Harold R. Staton, president, presided and after all joined in singing "God Bless America." Harold asked the blessing. The Mary Lambeth Circle served.

W. C. Latham, master of ceremonies, directed the group in games and contests. Highlight of the entertainment was a debate on the subject, "Should or Should Not Rev. Carlos Womack be a Bishop?" Harold Staton, Mrs. Sam Dewar, Dr. C. G. Garrenton, and Mrs. W. C. Latham were the debaters.

At the conclusion of the debate the judges, the Rev. and Mrs. Carlos Womack, rendered the decision only that the debates were especially good.

Tips On Home Appliances Care

By VIVIAN BROWN

Americans have gone happy for portable cooking appliances. Bachelor and benedict, housewife and maiden lady are finding units such as electric fry pans, cookers, broilers, grills, griddles, indispensable to a busy life. The delightful advantage of the portable broiler unit, for instance, is that it is so much easier to clean than the stove. "Look, Mom, one hand" applies to the cleaning of the broiler tray and grill, whereas a good oven cleaning may take a couple of hours.

These table top appliances exhibited along with the best china-ware and silver must, however, be kept gleaming and immaculate. Fortunately, that is not a big chore.

Manufacturers of portable electrical equipment have developed some hints to keep appliances in tip-top shape, because as we take on a greater number of smaller appliances, we are likely to go service man mad, also. They advise:

1. Check your warranty and instruction book to determine if appliance can be immersed in wash water. Many appliances cannot be plunged into water without damaging the electrical equipment. Keep warranties and direction books in a sturdy envelope in a safe and handy place.
2. It's a good idea to keep these paper towels have wet strength that keep them firm, even when damp. If cooking several batches of popcorn, clean the popper in between with the crumpled paper towel to remove kernels and salt particles before adding fresh corn.
3. Electric coffee makers must be kept scrupulously clean for best results. See if a special cleaner is made for your make of appliance.
4. A sniff of rancid grease can ruin a delicate dish. Wipe out popcorn poppers and deep fat fryers with absorbent paper towels after every use. Scour frequently with fine cleanser on crumpled dampened towel. New units on a tray. Line it with absorbent mat of paper toweling. An electric toaster usually sprinkles crumbs beneath it, and splatters and dribbles from fry-pans or waffle irons can be a nuisance if not caught at once. This precaution protects a table or buffet surface from food splatters or spots also.
5. Sandwich grills and pancake griddles are either permanently treated at the factory or greased only before the first use. After the appliance has been treated, it needs only wiping with a crumpled paper towel after each using. Manufacturers also recommend the use of a pastry brush or small soft paint brush to remove crumbs from toasters and waffle grids. Clean the appliance while it is still warm.

Those Boys Should Have Known

Newspapers, without a doubt, are the world's greatest exponents of the value of advertising. We say, not because of immodesty but because it's true, "Advertise or be forgotten."

We crow to the world of our accomplishments in the field, and the value which is returned to the organization that will wisely advertise what it has to offer. We live for (and by) advertising, and we love it.

Despite all this, there was a tug at the heart and a real tear came to the eye after reading a small article tucked away in a corner of one of the inside pages of yesterday's paper.

It was a small article, indeed, and its message was brief: Casper, Wyoming, can no longer claim the title of bachelor capital of the United States.

Two years ago, the bold town let it be known to all the world that it had more single men per single woman than any other city in the nation. That announcement was almost brash in its very being.

And the boys should have known better.

Most advertising is aimed squarely at the women of this world. After all, the experts tell us, they're the ones who really wear the pants and spend the money; and while a man might be the head of the house, all the world knows who owns the neck that turns that head.

Casper, in itself, doesn't hold much appeal to many outside the storied territory of Wyoming. That air of braggadocio, however, had all the appeal in the world to the female (single) residents thereof.

The result of all that advertising, bragging and chest-beating by the strong men of Casper is told simply: Today, the town has 17,612 male occupants and 17,847 females.

Like we said, "Advertise or be forgotten." You might even get married.

An Understandable Ca Of Hiding A Face

These columns have dealt previously with the mania for secrecy pervading Washington's officialdom. And day by day more evidence of ridiculousness in the situation piles up.

Only yesterday, an unnamed authoritative source announced Soviet scientific publications would be removed from the "secret" classification.

The wonderful upside down world of Washington can never explain from whom the papers were being kept secret... without admitting to plain stupidity or animosity toward American scientific progress.

Small wonder the official who disclosed the switch in secrecy policy remains unidentified. We'd hide our face, too, under the circumstances.

Kluxers Should Know They're Not Welcome

Governor Hodges' stern warning to the Kluxers that North Carolina will not tolerate violations of law and order comes at a time of lull in the Klan's stormy recent history. Perhaps it is best that way, because during the hotter hours of bombastic verbiage voices of commonsense are drowned out.

In his warning against false and fraudulent leadership, the Governor reminded some so-called Klan leaders had criminal records; adding that many appear chiefly interested in the money or personal publicity they can gain.

Hodges left no doubts as to how he felt about the hooded terrorists, and we are sure most North Carolinians are in accord.

There is just no room for such organizations in the

Restrictions On The Oil Imports

By ELMER ROESSNER

You'll hear much about crude oil import restrictions in the next few months — in Congressional debates, news from Venezuela and troubles in the Middle East.

This is to rough in the background:

Some day America will run out of oil. Some conservationists say fifty years, some seventy-five, some a hundred. Back in 1925 some said he would exhaust petroleum resources by 1950. Seems they were wrong.

Despite the vast amount of petroleum products consumed by autos, ships, planes and furnaces, the oil potential has been increasing. Geologists have been discovering new pools faster than pumping exhausts old ones. Topping that, Yankee enterprise in Latin America, the Middle East and elsewhere in the world is developing additional sources.

RUNNING OUT OUR CARBURETORS

As a consequence, we have a surplus of crude oil. This was reduced when Gamal Abdel Nasser blocked the Suez Canal and we went to Europe's aid, but even before the canal was cleared the surplus was again a problem.

State boards and private companies cut production somewhat. It's a good idea to let oil remain in the ground until there is a market. Still the surplus swelled.

Congress dipped into the problem and found it sticky. Independent companies producing oil from U.S. wells demanded that imports be restricted. The Standards, and other giants bringing crude oil from abroad, objected. If the U.S. cut foreign purchases, it would turn friendly oil-producing companies to the Soviets. Besides, we ought to conserve our own supplies. So the arguments ran.

Some companies, engaged in both foreign and domestic production, found themselves sitting on a sharpened picket fence.

ON IKE'S DOORSTEP

The problem was bucked to the White House. President Eisenhower decided on voluntary restrict of imports. All but Far West companies were asked to reduce prospective imports by 17.5 per cent. This would have cut imports to an average of 771,800 barrels a day.

Most companies agreed. A few did not. However, the total reduction was close to the goal.

Now this voluntary program is about to burst at the seams. The surplus has worsened and the Far West companies have been asked to cut imports too.

The most vigorous protests are coming, not from these companies, but from Canada. The government has joined oil producers in warning that cuts in force Canada to buy fewer U.S. goods.

DISCONTINUED SPREADS

Meanwhile, Sinclair is protesting, charging the government itself is buying an excessive amount of foreign oils, thereby damaging the program. And Delta Refining has announced it intends to import oil from Venezuela regardless of quotas.

Speaking of Venezuela, the long-simmering discontent with the government may have been fanned into a flaming revolution by the people's fear that the government had not done enough to preserve its markets and income.

Now the independents are demanding that firmer action be taken; that quotas be mandatory, not voluntary. Congressmen from the independents' states are threatening legislative action to return control of imports.

This situation will soon reach a climax and when it does, you'll know what's behind it.

U.S. SCIENTISTS DEVELOP

A new kind of aerosol bomb is on the way.

Ethylene oxide has long been known as a fumigant and sterilizing agent, but it is so inflammable that it has been hazardous. U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists, however, have found ways of combining it with aerosol propellants to produce a safe, sterilizing mixture. It is nonflammable and can be used to treat materials that cannot stand steam, dry heat or liquid chemicals. The patent is being released to commercial manufacturers.

LIVING LIFE TO ITS FULL

Some people live a complaining life. You have met that kind no doubt in home, office, club, or factory. Still others are bitter about what the circumstances of life have done to him. There is the alibi type of person who can specify all the bad breaks which prevented his being a success. There is the whining, sickly type; doctors often examine such people and find them perfectly sound of body and mind. But they are really mentally and spiritually sick because they have to live with themselves. They have the type of disposition which tends to take all joy and wholesomeness out of life both for themselves and for others.

What Can Life Mean?

Mary Ann Bryant, a member of First Presbyterian Church, teaches Sunday school and is president of Albermarle Presbyterian Senior High Fellowship. A senior at J. H. Rose High School, she is co-editor of THE GREEN LIGHTS and a member of the National Honor Society.

I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. (John 10:10)

Why am I here? Does God have a place for me in His eternal plan? What can life mean to me? These are questions many teenagers ponder as they search for their own concepts of life.

Every Christian young person realizes that in Christ the meaning of life gains new perspective. No longer is life without meaning; no longer must we wander alone in its maze. Through His own perfect life here on earth, the Master has provided for us a road map for our journey.

God has a purpose for every individual He has created. Each

Other Editors Saying --- Some Old Principles

(Tampa Morning Tribune)

That constant clouds of controversy over farm problems sometimes obscure the fact that farmers themselves are not all agreed on the basic approaches to their troubles. As the battle lines are drawn in Congress again on agricultural issues, it is well to remember that many people on the farm, ranch and grove retain the pride of pioneers and don't believe that the government owes them total security because they till the soil.

Even though the Farmers Grange and the National Farmers Union are constantly looking for bigger and better price supports from Washington, the independent and sturdy Farm Bureau Federation keeps trying to get the government off the farm.

Even though six "basic" crops (somehow including tobacco) are upheld by government parity floors, many others are not. Florida citrus, for example, does not demand prices guaranteed in Washington. Nor have we heard of any citrus growers asking for any such supports.

But the freshest instance of agricultural independence was afforded in the news from Palm Beach County where, in the cattle raising hinterlands, 32 cattlemen at Belle Glade the other night and refused to accept an offer of free cattle feed from government surplus stocks.

The county agricultural agent, N. U. Mounts, said that "some of us possesses different talents and abilities; each can serve his Lord in a different manner. In order to determine His will for our lives, we must first completely dedicate ourselves to Him.

No person is too unimportant to fit into God's pattern; He is the God of all people. To consider oneself unable to perform a service is to doubt God's ability to accomplish His purposes through man. Faith allows no barriers whatsoever.

As we return our lives to God to live under His direction, we can learn the true meaning of life. We can discover a new joy in living which we had never thought possible. This is because we are living for a purpose—to serve our Lord and to help further His kingdom on earth. This is the life which Christ has given us.

PRAYER:
Draw Thou my soul, O Christ, closer to Thine;
Breathe into every wish Thy will divine;
Raised my low self above, won by Thy deathless love,
Ever, O Christ, through mine let Thy life shine.
Lead forth my soul, O Christ, one with Thine own,
Joyful to follow Thee through paths unknown;
In Thee my strength renew; give me Thy work to do;
Through me Thy truth be shown, Thy love made known.
Amen.

Ennui To Be Fought

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Have you come down with the "winter willies?"

This is a seasonal complaint that right now numbers millions more victims than Asian flu, the rheumatiz, and middle-aged athlete's foot.

It is an ailment caused by too much indoor living; too many cloudy days and too few sunny ones; too many frigid winds and too few warm ones; too many icicles on the trees and too few buds.

Man is homesick for summer, and aches for the sight of a rainbow. He is weary of snow. His spirit is as desolate as his garden. Everything is dull, duller, duller — one's job, one's mate, one's duty and, most of all, one's self.

Do you, too, suffer from cold weather boredom? Why? It is so needless. Anybody with a little gumption can make winter into one of the more rewarding periods of the year. All it takes is a little ingenuity, and a bit of old hip-hip-hurray!

Here are a few tips on how to whip your "winter willies":

1. Learn to hibernate. If a bear and a woodchuck can chuckle away a winter in happy sleep, you can too. Practice at the office as well as at home — to the envy of your fellow workers. Don't worry about the boss. No boss has the heart to fire a man who's asleep. And when you wake up, come spring, you'll have plenty of strength to look for a new job.
2. Since you can't grow anything in your garden, why not grow something else? A beard, for example. No man who has both a beard and a mirror is ever bored.
3. Figure out new ways to save money. Instead of bawling out your wife for her inability to stay within a budget, ask her "Frankly, honey, don't you think I'd have gone further in life if I'd remained single?" Then you can turn off the furnace and cut down the heating bill. Her answer will warm up the house for months.
4. Throw a different kind of party. Why not invite all the neighbors in for an old-fashioned popcorn ball and kitchen fudge fest? The neighbors may think you're crazy. But after they eat your popcorn fudge they won't. They'll be too sick at the stomach to think at all.
5. Change the world. Winter is the best time to write long indignant letters to your congressman about the global mess he is creating at the taxpayers's expense. This will transfer your boredom to him, but that's all right. He'll find a way to pass it on to someone else.

Encouraging Report On Teaching

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — An encouraging report on the status of the teaching system in the country's high schools has been presented by knowledgeable educational experts simultaneously with President Eisenhower's new program of Federal scholarships in the sciences, mathematics and related studies.

The report was presented at a recent meeting of the Amherst Alumni Association of Washington and of the famous Massachusetts college's trustees. The two experts were Charles Cole, president of Amherst, and Eugene Wilson, its dean.

Wilson passes on freshman requirements, and in that capacity he has recently visited many high and preparatory schools. As a result of his inspections, he says that even before the two Sputniks a parents' revolution against excessive "progressive education" had led to radical changes in the teaching curriculum and promotions.

"JOHN DEWEY PHILOSOPHY" INFLUENCE Until a few years ago, the influential Parent Teachers' Associations had been dominated by the so-called "Dewey philosophy" — Dr. John Dewey, not Thomas E. This emphasized the social sciences, and reflected the liberal, political and economic thinking which had its parallel in politics in the Roosevelt "brain trusters' New Deal. Among its ardent apostles were Rex Tugwell and Adolph Berle, Jr.

Dewey, for instance, criticized concentration on the "physical sciences" because he thought that it led to neglect of social and human values. Frequently, when carried to overenthusiastic excesses, the system resulted in soft and flabby courses, although that was not his purpose.

It did not turn out young men and women equipped for facing the hard realities of a grim and practical age — an age which has become even more stern since October 3, 1957, when Sputnik No. 1 shot into the sky.

PARENTS BECAME SKEPTICAL Parents became suspicious and skeptical and began to ask: "How good is our education?" This reaction had set in before the revelation of Russia's scientific and technological achievements, although both the Amherst men agreed that the Sputniks had sharpened interest and accelerated the new trend.

As a result, secondary schools are now accentuating the fundamentals — languages, mathematics, the sciences, history, literature. Interestingly, a grave need is to teach youngsters how to "spell" correctly, since precision and accuracy are essential in the vital fields of the sciences and communications.

Mr. Cole says that he has found "grave defects" in the secondary school system. He estimates that one-third are "very good," one-third are "average" and one-third are "poor."

SPLITTING CLASSES In accord with the Eisenhower plan for Federal scholarships for especially meritorious students, Dean Wilson said, teachers have begun to pay more attention to the more talented pupils. Insofar as possible, they are segregating classes into three divisions — the bright, the average and the slow — and advancing them in proportion to their capabilities.

They had hesitated to engage

Jesus, returning to Nazareth where He grew up, taught in the synagogue. The eyes of all the congregation were upon Him as He read from the Holy Book.

"Every man according as he purpeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver." Paul wrote the Corinthians.

"If a man be overtaken in a fault," Paul writes the Galatians, "restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted."

Writing to the Hebrews, Paul urges them to encourage one another in love and good works, assembling together in the church.

HOW WE CAN BE FELLOW WORKMEN WITH GOD

Scripture—Luke 4:14-21; II Corinthians 9:6-8; Galatians 6:1-5; Hebrews 4:14-16; 10:23-25; I Peter 2:9-10.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

ALL CHILDREN in the Sunday school will be interested in the picture Luke gives us of Jesus going back to the town in which He grew up and went to the synagogue to worship.

Many will have heard their parents or grandparents tell of their native towns and of their later visits to them.

Jesus was at the beginning of His ministry when He went to Nazareth. He went to the synagogue and was handed the book of the prophet Elijah where it is written, "The spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He hath anointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor; He hath sent Me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

sin should be corrected, but let us not do it in a manner that implies we are always righteous and would not yield to temptation. Self-righteousness is also a sin. To the Hebrews Paul writes: "Let us hold the profession of our faith without wavering. . . . And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching." Attending church services and Sunday School regularly is one of the most rewarding experiences of our week. To meet with fellow Christians to extend friendly greetings, to sing the hymns, to hear the preacher's (or teacher's) message, makes our Sabbath complete. Children who are brought up in the faith of their church and are taught of some services they may render to the church are much less likely to get into trouble than those who are not so trained.

To the Hebrews Paul also writes reminding us that if we are tempted we "have a great high priest . . . Jesus, the Son of God, who was tempted as we are and remained sinless. He will forgive and help us to resist temptation.

One of the most inspiring thoughts to this writer is the idea that we can be God's fellow workers, as recorded in I Corinthians: "For we are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building."

Even in the troubled world in which we live, if we live righteous lives, have faith and work—each one in his own way—toward peace and goodwill among men, we are truly fellow workers with God.

We are all tempted, so if one you know gives way to temptation, do not condemn, but consider your own faults and think how a temptation might come to you and you, too, fall. Those who

MEMORY VERSE "We are laborers together with God."—I Corinthians 3:9.

Then Christ closed the book and began to say to them, "This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears." All who had known Him were amazed at His gracious words.

Now about Christian giving, Paul wrote to the Corinthians that every man (woman or child) should give according to his heart, "not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver." Let us remember this when we make our gifts to the needy.

To the Galatians Paul wrote that if a man sins, "ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted. Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

We are all tempted, so if one you know gives way to temptation, do not condemn, but consider your own faults and think how a temptation might come to you and you, too, fall. Those who

Metal Industries Look Forward To Leveling Off

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—Many steelmen are hoping today that the sudden and unexpectedly steep drop in orders may level off soon. Their nonferrous brethren will settle for signs of an end to worldwide overproduction.

If so, this could bring a halt to the sharp pruning of employe rolls and to the dip in profits which hit most metal companies in the final months of 1957.

When steel, copper, lead and zinc orders will start to climb again is another matter. Optimists hope for a slight seasonal upturn in the spring and a healthier one after Labor Day.

Both ferrous and nonferrous companies face wage scale rises in the summer that will boost costs once more. For some time nonferrous prices have been falling. Steelmen have been finding it harder to maintain the higher prices they put into effect last summer, when steel went up an average of $6 a ton.

To keep from baking still more furnaces, some steel companies have taken to absorbing freight costs to win distant markets served by their rivals. Some steel warehouses have cut prices on hot rolled steel products, and other steel firms have cut prices on products for the export market.

Current production of steel is running 41 per cent below year-ago figures. Even the last strong-hold, structural steel, took a tumble in December, orders dropping 69 per cent below year ago figures.

U.S. Steel reports that its net profits after taxes in the last three months of 1957 fell 14 per cent from the fourth quarter of 1956.

But a booming first half of the year lifted total 1957 earnings to a record high. 20 per cent above the figures for strife-harassed 1956 and 13 per cent above the previous record year of 1955.

A much smaller firm, Jones & Laughlin, also reports profits in 1957, up 67 per cent from 1956. But Republic Steel earnings dipped 6 per cent and Youngstown Sheet & Tube dropped 1.5 per cent.

Of nine steel companies reporting so far, six lagged behind 1956. Thanks to U.S. Steel's records their combined profits ran 11 per cent above 1956.

Of 11 nonferrous firms reporting so far, eight fell behind 1956 earnings. Combined, the 11 show net income trailing 1956 by 43.2 per cent. The one big company to report, Kennecott Copper, lists profits as off by 49.5 per cent.

The domestic copper industry has been cutting back production as customer orders lagged and the fabricators lived largely off their inventories.

Hope in the industry for better times ahead is based on two things: (1) belief that customer inventory cutting has gone about as far as it can; (2) a 10 per cent cutback in output in recent days by most copper firms outside the United States.

Copper producers think fabricators must start reordering shortly, and this time they won't have a growing world glut of metal to draw on.

Neither ferrous nor nonferrous men are predicting a speedy turnabout in the situation. They are hoping they are at or near the bottom and that before many months an upturn will start.

Governor Urges Further Use Of Polio Vaccine

Pitt County health authorities today released a statement issued by Governor Luther H. Hodges on the advisability of inoculations against polio.

The Governor's statement said: "The State Health Director, Dr. J. W. R. Norton, has called to my attention that here is still time for individuals to receive two injections of polio vaccine before the beginning of our usual poliomyelitis season in early May."

While it is already too late this year to permit inoculation of the complete series of three shots to an individual before May, two injections will still provide a considerable amount of protection, according to Dr. Norton.

"I am deeply concerned to find that only 41 per cent of eligible individuals have received full protection under the Federal Poliomyelitis Vaccine Program now available in North Carolina. The life-saving vaccine obtained under the Federal Program is available to all persons under 20 years of age and to pregnant women."

"Physicians are permitted to administer privately purchased vaccine without age limitation and all persons under 40 years of age are urged to obtain this protection. Even though the younger age groups are more likely to get poliomyelitis, the chances for more severe paralysis seem to occur in the older age groups."

"It is encouraging to note that only 51 cases of paralytic poliomyelitis were reported in North Carolina in 1957; in 1956, paralytic cases numbered 162. For the five-year period 1952-1956, paralytic cases averaged 233. So, we have experienced a 68 per cent reduction from 1957 to 1956, and the comparison of 1957 to the previous five years is a reduction of 78 per cent."

"The onslaught of polio is always a tragedy in suffering, economic difficulties, family disruption, and often death. It is even more tragic today for any individual in North Carolina to be stricken by polio when there is now available a vaccine which offers such a high degree of protection against the disease."

"It is my hope that every family in North Carolina will take advantage of this protection through the local health department or their family physician. I urge that local civic organizations lend their influence and assistance in working with county health officers to alert everyone to the need for protection, especially in view of the oncoming polio season."

"Let's all join together in a campaign to eradicate poliomyelitis from North Carolina for all time."

Blonde Date With Murder

By WILLIAM P. MCGIVERN

Geoffrey O'Neill, Chicago detective, agrees to see Estelle Moran, a shapely blonde who fears for her life, safely out of town. He accompanies her to her hotel room where after several drinks the blonde's thoughts turn from fears to amour. O'Neill gives her the brush-off; calls in his friend Sam Spencer to stand guard. Spencer is killed. Estelle accuses a killer.

CHAPTER IV

Estelle Moran kept her eyes down, not meeting O'Neill's probing eyes.

"I can't think," she said. "All I can see is the house detective lying on the floor. He looked so pathetic there. Like he was just tired instead of being dead."

"Forget that," O'Neill said, looking at her still more sharply.

Inspector Logan came back into the bedroom then, looking satisfied.

"This thing seems air-tight," he told O'Neill. "Shapiro was seen in the lobby tonight. A couple of the boys have been downstairs talking to the hotel people and they found two or three guys who remember seeing Shapiro come in. Their identification is perfect. With those scars on his face you can't miss him. We should have this case cleared by morning."

Logan went out again, and O'Neill looked down at the girl. She was watching him with a tense and frightened expression.

"Are you going now?" she said.

"What made you think that?"

"You left before."

"O'Neill took out his cigarettes. "This time I'm staying. I won't be able to put you on the Santa Fe Chief tomorrow morning. You'll be held for the inquest, maybe the trial. If you are allowed to leave town, it will be with the stipulation that you are to return whenever the prosecutor's office wants you."

"That doesn't matter now. But," she began.

"I'll stick with you till they round up Shapiro," O'Neill interjected.

Her voice sounded thin and lifeless. "When they get Shapiro I'll feel all right." She paused and looked at him, then looked away. "Do you want to stay here?"

O'Neill looked at her and made a difficult choice.

"I'll be outside," he said. "This time I'll see that nothing happens. There'll be police around the hotel, too. Try and get some sleep."

He walked across the room and tried the windows. They were locked. He pulled the shades down and walked out. Leaving, he checked the windows in the front room just to be sure. There was no way anyone could get in those windows, but he tried them anyway. He went into the corridor, closed the door of the suite and made sure it was locked.

The police had cleared the hall except for a couple of cleaners working on the floor. They had gathered up all the photographs discarded flash bulbs and police and reporter cigarette stubs and had got most of the brown stain out of the pale gray rug. The bucket of water in which they had rinsed their rugs was a muddy shade of brown. About the shade of vinegar.

O'Neill looked at it without any expression on his face. But he was thinking that Spencer would have been a little apologetic about causing so much trouble for a couple of gray-haired women. The thought of Spencer made him mad and sick again.

He took a dollar from his pocket and held it out to one of the cleaning women.

"The job you've done is good enough," he said. "When it dries you'll never notice it."

"The manager is awful particular," the woman said dubiously. She looked critically at the foot-square stain and then at the dollar bill. Her conscience struggled briefly with cupidity. Or just plain indifference. "I guess you're right. It'll be all right," she said finally. She nudged the other woman and said, "Come on, let's go. I'm kind of shaky from the blood."

O'Neill watched them waddle down the corridor, lit a cigarette and leaned against the wall. His eyes were on the dark stain at his feet. He put out one look absentmindedly and pressed the damp spot, feeling it squish slightly under his shoe.

One thought nagged him insistently. Sam Spencer wasn't the hottest or toughest guy in the city, but he was an experienced cop. The way he was killed was the way it would happen to some green punk. He hadn't been taken by surprise, he'd seen Shapiro coming, had even argued with him, and it didn't seem right that he'd be stupid enough to let Shapiro get a gun out and shoot him. But that's what seemed to have happened. Why?

He lit another cigarette and shoved his hat off his forehead. He wasn't happy about missing his sleep and in a night guarding the girl's room. He wished he'd never seen the girl. And he knew he was lying to himself when he thought that. He wanted to see more of her. Because she set him on fire every time he looked at her.

As time dragged on, O'Neill finished his pack of cigarettes, crumpled the package and tossed it in a sand-filled vase beside the elevator shaft. His mouth was stale and parched and he knew he was smoking too much, but his hands went mechanically through the pockets of his clothes for another pack of cigarettes. He choked off a yawn and pulled out his watch. He was disappointed. Only a quarter to twelve. Hours before he could sleep. He wondered if Estelle was asleep. The picture this conjured disturbed him.

The thought was shattered by a sound that penetrated the door of the Moran girl's suite.

It wasn't a loud scream. It was a scream that sounded like a hand had cut it off before it could get loud.

O'Neill wheeled, grabbed the door-knob. The door was locked. He slammed his shoulder into the door twice before remembering the key.

O'Neill advanced through the door, half-crouched. There was no light in the suite, no sound now. He plunged into the bedroom without caution.

He felt a draft of cold air on his face and his eyes found vaguely the billowing shape of the curtains as a night wind whipped them.

The bedroom window had been opened. And there was just enough light in the room to let him see that the bed was empty.

He cursed and reached for the light switch, but before his hand found it, he heard, or rather sensed, a soft movement behind him.

That was his last clear thought for a while. There wasn't time to do anything about the movement behind him before something hard and heavy crashed into the back of his skull.

He went down heavily, fighting hard to hang onto the shreds of dimming consciousness. They became an immense searing pain that finally dissolved into blackness.

O'Neill came around slowly. There were voices afloat through a wall of silence. One said, "He's coming to," and another said, "Lucky he didn't get his head busted wide open."

He opened his eyes then, adjusted them to lights with difficulty and slowly recognized Logan and two uniformed policemen looking down at him. He was lying on his back. The back of his head felt like an abscessed tooth. He tried to sit up but Logan put a hand on his chest and pushed him back gently.

"Stay where you are," he said. "That wasn't catnip that leaked out of your head. You got to rest."

"So I'll rest," O'Neill said. He looked around, comprehended that he was in the girl's bedroom, and then he remembered everything.

"The girl's gone," he said. "She started to yell. I barged in and somebody batted me silly."

"What time is it?" Logan said. "A patrolman who made a check about twelve found you lying on the floor. Do you remember anything else that will help?"

O'Neill tried. "The room was dark when I came in. The bed was empty though. I know that." He frowned and wished his head would stop aching. He put his hand where it was worst and was surprised to feel a bandage like a turban around his head. "The window was open," he went on. "I saw the curtains blowing."

"Yeah," Logan said. "Somebody's put a foot through it. It opens on a fire escape from which a ledge can be reached. A guy could have come from another room down to here and broken in. But it doesn't sound right. Too complicated."

"Have you got Shapiro yet?" O'Neill asked.

Logan shook his head. "We're going over the whole town. We'll find him unless he's holed up good. But without the girl we haven't got enough to make a warrant stick." He lit a cigarette bitterly. "Ain't this hot? My boys let somebody steal my witness right out of her hotel room."

O'Neill smiled wryly.

"While O'Neill, the peerless investigator for the prosecutor's office gives an imitation of a notice-bright moran? That's the rest of it, isn't it?"

"I'm not blaming you," Logan said. "Anybody can get knocked over the head."

"Sure," O'Neill said. "But not everyone does it as prettily and thoroughly as I do."

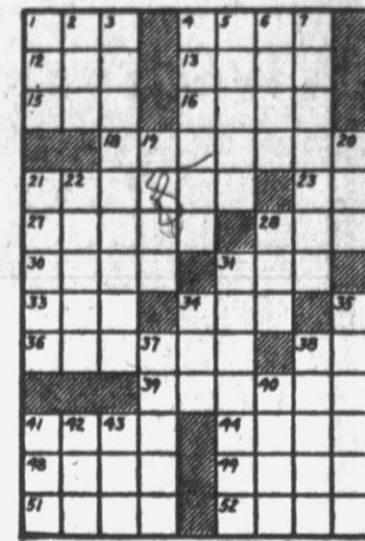

"The Doc said you should go home," Logan said, looking embarrassed. "He said you need rest. You sound like you could use a lot."

O'Neill swung his legs off the bed and sat up. He didn't care whether his head rolled off his shoulders or not. What did he need a head for anyway?

He looked around, found his coat, put in on, then perched his hat tenderly on top of his bandaged head. "The perfect sleuth," he said. "Witty and fearless to the end." He waved at Logan and the two coppers and went out. He went downstairs and got a bromide from the drugstore found-

Record Outlay For Advertising

NEW YORK (AP)—Advertisers spent a record 10 1/2 billion dollars to promote their goods and services in 1957, Printers' Ink magazine said today.

That was 5 1/2 per cent more than the previous high in 1956. It continued the upward movement that has taken place annually over the past 15 years.

Radio showed the biggest percentage increase of all media, up 14.3 per cent to almost 650 million dollars. Network radio made its first gain since 1948.

Newspapers still accounted for the biggest share of all advertising with 31.9 per cent of the total. Dollar volume of newspaper advertising—about 3 1/2 billion—was up 2.8 per cent over 1956.

Television rose 8.7 per cent to 1 1/2 billion.

Promises Solve Marital Trouble

CHICAGO (AP)—Eugene R. Taylor's promises dissolved his marital troubles in Circuit Court.

Appearing at his wife's hearing on a request for separate maintenance, Taylor 38, said he would:

- Turn his pay check over to Mrs. Taylor and allow her full rein on the family's financial affairs; go out with the "boys" only one night a week; permit his wife to go out with the "girls" one night a week; stop insisting she get a job and — stop talking about the state of his marital affairs with friends and in-laws.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—Hog prices steady to 25 lower. Tops of 18.75 to 19.50 at Tarboro, Enfield, Winterville, Scotland Neck, Bethel and Murfreesboro; 18.75 to 19.25 at Kinston, Smithfield, Clayton, Lillington, New Bern, Benson, House's Mill, Angier, Albemarle and Nahant; 18.50 to 19.25 at Rocky Mount; 19.00 at Clinton, Fayetteville and Elizabethtown; 18.75 at Castle Hayne, Spring Hope, Dunn, Mount Olive, Whiteville, Clarkton, Newton Grove, Goldsboro, Siler City, Pine Level and Blackman's Crossroads; 18.50 at Rich Square.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)—North Carolina poultry markets: Fryers and broilers, farm price, mostly 19 with few at 20.

Eggs—Prices paid by distributors for clean, sized, minimum 80 percent A quality: Raleigh and Charlotte, barely steady, large 42; Durham, steady, large 42; prices paid producers on graded out-basis: Asheville steady, A large 42.

NEW YORK (AP)—Sluggish trading and slightly lower prices prevailed in the stock market early this afternoon.

Declines of key stocks were mainly fractional. There were a few small gains.

Today's market was practically featureless as it milled without much conviction just beneath the November highs which it has penetrated on past occasions but never with much enthusiasm. Supplies of stock for sale at this level have offered resistance to a sustained rise.

Meanwhile, there was little in the news to stimulate buying. The background included Labor Secretary Mitchell's forecast of greater unemployment in February, lower prices for copper and tin in London and a drop in department store sales.

The steel section appeared indifferent to word of a stronger scrap market although a week ago it rose on similar news.

Motors, rubbers, chemicals falls and airlines drifted lower. Oils, steels and building materials were mixed. Coppers showed scant change.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 40 cents to $162.00 with the industrials off 60 cents, the rails off 40 cents and the utilities off 10 cents.

The building was enlarged in 1920.

Again, 20 years later the attention of the congregation was focused on the need for a much larger education building. During the pastorate of the Rev. Leon Russell, the building was completed and it was occupied on Feb. 3, 1952.

Attention turned in 1956 to the sanctuary of the church which had become inadequate for some time to accommodate the membership and the students of East Carolina College.

After considerable discussion and exploration, the plan was adopted to rebuild the sanctuary, enlarging it to seat more than 800 people and to make it modern in every way.

It is this rebuilt sanctuary that the congregation will be returning Sunday.

Jarvis Memorial has sponsored over the years the formation of several new churches and has sent into the ministry of the Methodist Church 12 sons. One daughter of the church became a deaconess in the Methodist Church.

Unready To Fill McMahan's Post

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges says it will be two or three weeks before he names a successor to Edward L. McMahan, who resigned as a member of the State Utilities Commission, effective tomorrow.

McMahan has accepted a position in Washington as legal advisor for a company. He was in Washington yesterday and unavailable for further information about his new job.

A native of Yancey County, McMahan was appointed to the $11,000-a-year position by Gov. Kerr last year. He was reappointed last year by Gov. Hodges to another four-year term.

Expecting Over 650 Demos There

RALEIGH (AP)—More than 650 Democrats from throughout the state are expected to attend the party's annual fund-raising Jefferson-Jackson Dinner here tomorrow night.

Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida will be the speaker.

A meeting of county Democratic chairmen is set for 4 p.m. to discuss party plans, fund raising and proposals to change the party plan of organization.

State Democratic Chairman John D. Larkins said the dinner should net around $30,000 at $50 a plate.

Superior Court Two Student Bands To Adjourns Today Be Playing In Concerts

Five judgments were returned in criminal actions in yesterday's session of Pitt County Superior Court. The court adjourned today after completing a one-week mixed term under Judge Joseph W. Parker of Windsor.

Judgments which were returned yesterday included:

Douglas McDowell Morgan, Route 2, Greenville, driving under the influence and driving on the wrong side of the road, not in passing, jury verdict of not guilty.

Alfred Edward Hardy, Box 579, Greenville, speeding with a truck, jury verdict of guilty, 90 days, defendant expected to the judgment and gave notice of appeal to the North Carolina Supreme Court, appearance bond set at $1,000 and appeal bond set at $100.

Jessie Ray Stewart, Negro, Route 1, Ayden, temporary arrest, plea of nolo contendere, 60 days suspended upon payment of costs and $40 as restitution to Ella Mae Stewart, and on further condition the defendant is of good behavior for two years.

John Randolph, Jr., Negro, 1308 Short Street, Greenville, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey and possession for the purpose of sale, two years on each charge, terms to be served concurrently.

Two outstanding student bands, presenting concerts at East Carolina College this weekend, will play selections chosen for their value as music and for their appeal to audiences. The performances will be events of the Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic which is in progress on the campus Friday and Saturday.

The East Carolina College Concert Band of seventy student musicians will play under the direction of Herbert L. Carter of the faculty tonight (Friday) at 8 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium. With Allan H. Bone of Duke University as director, a 125-piece Clinic Band composed of selected instrumentalists from thirty high schools in the eastern part of the state will appear in concert in the Wright auditorium tomorrow (Saturday) at 8 p.m. Both programs will be open to the public.

Don Jacoby of Chicago, nationally known trumpet soloist, will appear with the East Carolina band in Henry Bellstedt's "Napoli" and Alfred Reed's "Ode for Trumpet." With A. Cecil James of Manning, S.C., and Charles F. Myers of Thomasville, East Carolina students, he will play a trumpet trio from the "Carnival variations" of Jacoby-McRae.

Other selections by the East Carolina band will include the "Toccata Marziale" by Ralph Vaughan Williams, England's outstanding composer; "Victory at Sea" by Richard Rodgers, composer of "Oklahoma" and other musical plays; and selections by Bach, Rossini, Bizet, and other noted composers.

The Clinic Band will present as special attractions of the Saturday night program a suite of familiar and popular folk music, and an arrangement of the music for "My Fair Lady" by Bennett. Other numbers will include Bowles' "Burst of Flame" march; Buchtel's "Crusaders Overture"; and an original suite for military band by Jacob.

Church Sets Up New Scholarship

A special scholarship has been set up by the Arlington St. Baptist Church in honor of J. G. Gibbs, prominent lay leader of the church.

The Rev. Mark Owen, pastor of the church, said the scholarship fund has been established "for assisting those young people in our church who volunteer for full-time Christian service with their education."

A resolution recently passed by the church states:

"1. That a special day be designated in our church each year to receive contributions for this fund.

"2. That a committee on scholarship grants be elected by the church to execute the disbursement of the fund.

"3. That this fund shall be called and identified as the J. G. Gibbs Scholarship fund, in appreciation of the unselfish service of Mr. Gibbs as he has led us so well from the beginning of our church establishment in the capacities of Sunday School Superintendent, Chairman of Deacons, and Chairman of the Building Committee, and because of his abiding interest in the expansion of the work of Christ.

"4. That a plaque be presented to Mr. J. G. Gibbs as his own personal memento to this signal honor."

Gibbs is presently senior right-of-way engineer with the State Highway Commission stationed in Greenville.

However, it was announced yesterday that he is being promoted to assistant chief right-of-way engineer and will be transferred to Raleigh.

Report Russians Ready Launching

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times said today the Soviet Union is preparing to launch a huge rocket, probably in an attempt to lift its third artificial earth satellite, according to reports believed to be reliable.

The story said the Russians, in their preparations to launch the huge rocket, were reported to have begun at least one count-down.

In the count-down, begun long in advance of the established time for launching, every working part of the missile is checked.

The Times said it was estimated that the Soviet launching will be attempted within a few days.

Cosmetology Club No. 25 will meet Monday at 5 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Hattie Streeter, 402 Tyson St.

Mrs. Lillie Jenkins, 216 Center St., died at her home early today after a long illness. She is the wife of Henry Jenkins of Greenville. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Boys Charged With Vandalism

Two Greenville Junior High students have been apprehended in connection with vandalism at the West Greenville School on Chestnut St. Monday night.

Police did not identify the white boys due to their being minors, but did list their ages as 14 and 15. The youngsters were turned over to the Pitt County Welfare Department for proper disposition.

They were charged with damage to school property. According to Police the youngsters were alleged to have broken out a number of window lights on the west side of the school building. Damage was estimated at $15.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD EARLY THIS MORNING

Lillie Jenkins, 44-year-old Negro woman of 216 Center St., was found dead at approximately 4 o'clock this morning.

She had been in serious condition for a number of months, her attending physician stated.

Stream Pollution Program Is Advanced Another Step

RALEIGH (AP)—A program aimed at eventual control of pollution on two major river basins, the French Broad and Roanoke, has moved a step nearer completion. The State Stream Sanitation Committee yesterday adopted a comprehensive pollution abatement plan for the Roanoke. It also assigned water use classifications to the waters of the French Broad Basin.

E. C. Hubbard, executive secretary of the committee, said that between now and April 1 the committee will prepare a comprehensive pollution abatement plan for the French Broad.

"This plan will indicate to each polluter what their responsibility is in the pollution abatement program," Hubbard said. "In the meantime, industries and municipalities which discharge wastes into the river can begin studying what pollution abatement action they plan to take."

Hubbard stated that except for a few changes, the classifications for the waters of the French Broad Basin were approved as proposed several months ago.

Under the plan adopted for the Roanoke Basin, most municipalities along the river will eventually have to provide sewage or waste treatment facilities or improve their existing facilities.

In a progress report, Hubbard told the committee it has now studied and classified five river basins. The others are the Yadkin, White Oak and Cowan. Field studies have been completed, he said, in preparation for classifying the waters of the Cape Fear, Neuse and Catawba. Field studies of the Little Tennessee and Tar-Pamlico rivers are to be made this year, Hubbard added.

In approving classifications for the French Broad, the committee assigned an "E" classification to the lower portion of Hominy Creek, from the mouth of Moore's Creek to the French Broad. A "D" classification had been recommended.

The "E" classification would provide water suitable only for disposal of sewage and industrial or other wastes, while the "D" classification would provide water suitable for agricultural and industrial use.

Hubbard said the portion of Hominy Creek in question is used by the American Enka Plant and West Asheville for sewage and waste discharge. Considering cost involved, the committee felt the "E" classification would be about as high a standard as could be obtained in the foreseeable future, Hubbard explained.

Treatment facilities would be necessary, he said, to bring the stream up to class "E".

Another classification change was made in the Pigeon River drainage area of the French Broad. On the section between the Canton water supply intake and the bridge on U.S. 19-23, the committee approved a "C" classification, suitable for bathing, instead of a "B", suitable for bathing.

The committee retained a "D" classification for portions of the North Toe, South Toe and Nolichucky rivers, Hubbard said. Mining interests had requested an "E" classification. However, the committee reduced the classification on the lower portion of Crabtree Creek from "C" to "D".

The committee also retained a "D" classification for the French Broad where it flows into Tennessee. The state of Tennessee had requested a class "C."

Arrest Suspect In Break-In Case

City Police arrested George Willoughby, Jr., 21-year-old Negro yesterday afternoon in connection with the break-in at the Jones-Barrett Soda Shop Wednesday night.

Willoughby was charged with breaking and entering and larceny. Released under a $100 bond, he is scheduled to appear in City Court on Feb. 3.

According to William Barrett who reported the break-in yesterday morning, seven or eight silver dollars and several packs of cigarettes were taken from the soda shop.

Win Company Trip To Mexico

Mr. and Mrs. R. Troy Riddle, 202 South Elm Street, have won a six-day holiday in Mexico City as a major award in a year-long sales contest.

The contest was sponsored by the Unitary Equipment Division of Carrier Corporation and included sales of air conditioning, heating and refrigeration equipment. Winners were chosen from among distributors, distributor salesmen, dealers and dealer salesmen who exceeded their sales quotas by the widest margin between November 5, 1956, and November 1, 1957.

Mr. and Mrs. Riddle will travel to Mexico City with one of two groups of winners. The first group will arrive there on February 6 and leave February 11. The second group will arrive February 11 and leave February 16.

Riddle is associated with Riddle Brothers of Greenville.

Minor Damage In Auto Collision

Minor damage was reported in a two-car collision at the intersection of Fourth and Washington Sts. yesterday afternoon.

According to investigating officers neither driver received injuries. Damage to the automobile being operated by Mrs. Marjorie M. Barbour of 210 Rose St., Smithfield, was estimated to be $150.

No damage was reported to the automobile driven by Henry E. Griffin of 110 Grace St., Williams- ton.

No traffic violation was cited.

Minor Flu Wave Bypassed Pitt

A wave of short-term influenza which has affected attendance at several schools in North Carolina has apparently passed by Pitt County.

County Superintendent D. H. Conley and City Superintendent J. H. Rose both said attendance in schools in the county system and the Greenville city system is good. Both noted, however, that students are having "the usual number" of colds and some contagious diseases.

Little Damage In City Fires

Fire in the ceiling of an office brought firemen to Colonial Ice Co. on Ninth St. at 10:15 this morning.

Damage was slight.

Yesterday firemen answered calls to two grass fires. One was on E. Fourth St. and another near Millbrook St.

There was also a call to Barnes Motor Parts at 2217 Dickinson Ave. where a transformer shorted out. Damage was minor.

Kicked A Girl, Now Says His Life Is Threatened

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A 17-year-old white youth said last night that anonymous telephone callers threatened his family with death because he kicked a Negro girl pupil at integrated Central High School.

Richard Boehler told newsmen that he launched a kick at Minnie Jean Brown, 16, as she passed him near the school campus after classes were dismissed Wednesday afternoon.

He said she didn't try to fight back.

"She just put her hand to her face and cried like the baby she is," he said.

Prosecutor Frank Holt refused to issue a warrant for Boehler's arrest. The warrant was sought by Minnie Jean and her mother.

Holt said his office would investigate.

Boehler said he was suspended from Central High Wednesday morning for arguing with his home room teacher and for failing to pay a $150 school fee. He went back to take some other students to their homes in his automobile.

Boehler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth F. Boehler, said somewhat.

Greenville F.W.B. Announcements

February would be a good month in which to start to be faithful in attendance and work for the Sunday school. You are always welcome to share in the Sunday school at the Greenville Free Will Baptist Church. May we see you this Sunday at 9:45 a.m. At the 11 a.m. worship the Belfry Quartet will sing "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" and the Senior Choir will sing the hymn "Amen" "Awake, Put On Thy Strength" McKinney. The pastor's sermon topic will be "Forsaking All For Jesus" (Luke 14:33).

The League meet at 6:30 p.m. under the direction of Mr. Mark Case. At the 7:30 p.m. worship the pastor's sermon topic will be "Saved To See and Serve" (Acts 9:18).

Monday at 5:15 p.m. the East Carolina Free Will Baptist Student Fellowship meets at the "V" Hut for vesper services and a supper. Monday at 7:30 p.m. the Y. P. A.'s meet with Lula Hall, 501 East 2nd St. Monday at 7:30 p.m. a new Women's Auxiliary will be organized at the church. Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. there will be prayer services and evangelism classes at the church.

Thursday at 5:30 p.m. the G. T. A.'s will meet at the church. Thursday at 7 p.m. the Chorus Choir and Junior Choir will meet for their rehearsals, and at 8 p.m. the Senior Choir will meet for a practice session.

Saturday, February 8, at 9:30 a.m. the B. A.'s will meet at the church.

Mrs. E. P. Case and Mrs. Paul Dilds will be in charge of the nursery at the 11 a.m. worship. During the month of February the 11 a.m. worship services will be broadcast from the church through WGTC.
