MADE-IN-AMERICA MOON NOW IN ORBIT

Last-Minute Rush For Listing Taxes

LONG LINES MARKED FINAL DAY . . . For Listing 1958 Taxes.

Pitt County's 1958 tax listing period ended yesterday with heavy business reported at most of the county's tax-listing points. Persons who failed to list before the points closed last night are subject to a ten per cent penalty on the 1958 tax bills. Most persons who were expected to list their taxes did so, however. County Tax Supervisor Harold Alfred estimated that more than 22,000 people would list taxes during the 31-day listing period. The total represents a slight increase over last year.

President Is Elated By Success

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—"That's wonderful!" That was President Eisenhower's elated reaction early today to word that an Army Jupiter-C rocket had rammed the United States' first satellite into orbit around the earth.

Then, after waiting up for that word until nearly 1 a. m. (EST), the happy President put out the first official announcement that the baby moon was racing around the globe.

Eisenhower, here for a weekend of golf and bridge, got the orbiting information by telephone from Washington about two hours after the satellite-carrying rocket was launched at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

At a dramatic news conference, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty issued this statement by the President:

"Dr. J. Wallace Joyce, head of the International Geophysical office of the National Science Foundation, has just informed me that the United States has successfully placed a scientific earth satellite in orbit around the earth.

"The satellite was orbited by a modified Jupiter-C rocket.

"This launching is part of our country's participation in the International Geophysical Year. All information received from this satellite promptly will be made available to the scientific community of the world."

The phone message from Washington that the satellite was in orbit was given to the President at the Augusta National Golf Club by Hagerty.

"He had just two words," Hagerty reported. And then he quoted Eisenhower as having told him: "That's wonderful!"

For old soldier Eisenhower, who spent 40 years in the Army, there was no doubt the successful launching and the orbiting amounted to a special thrill.

The Army, once just about ruled out of the missile development field, had stepped in to bolster U. S. prestige after Russia's launching of two Sputniks.

But at the Eisenhower vacation headquarters there was not even a hint of criticism of the Navy and its unsuccessful efforts to launch a Vanguard test satellite.

The Navy's first attempt Dec. 6 failed, and it had to give up temporarily again last weekend.

That cleared the stage for the Army.

Eisenhower flew from Washington to Augusta yesterday afternoon, and the word when he arrived was that weather conditions for an Army launching attempt at Cape Canaveral probably would not be right before early next week.

For the first time since he suffered a minor stroke Nov. 25 the President got in a regular round course and was settling down to a few rubbers of bridge with friends when Hagerty received the first of several phone calls from Washington. They all came from Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, White House staff secretary and Eisenhower's liaison man with the Pentagon.

More than 30 persons were stranded overnight at Monsanto Chemical Co. headquarters in St. Louis County.

Some 40 girl students had to spend the night at Villa Duchesne, a private Catholic school in suburban Frontenac.

Many retail stores, including the department stores, closed early—some by as much as five hours. Most public schools also closed early.

At least two persons collapsed and died while shoveling snow. The 11-inch measurement was at the municipal airport northwest of the city. The depth in the business district was measured at 8 inches. Unofficial readings of 12 inches were reported in suburbs.

The storm lost much of its punch as it moved eastward today. After bringing severe thunderstorm and tornado warnings to the Southeast during the night, storm activity diminished to mostly rain and scattered showers from Virginia to Georgia and westward through Tennessee and southern Kentucky.

Need 'Families' Of Satellites

WASHINGTON (AP)—If the United States is to survive it must develop whole families of satellites, including ones to intercept satellites, says Lt. Gen. James Gavin, retired Army research chief.

In closed-door testimony released yesterday by the House Armed Services Committee, Gavin forecast several benefits from families of satellites—in addition to protection from enemy attack.

These included worldwide television, prediction of weather patterns with unprecedented accuracy, and, possibly, ultimate control of weather.

Meanwhile, in testimony released by the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force deputy chief of staff, called for a shakeup in the Defense Department.

LeMay, former head of the Strategic Air Command, proposed "a single service, a single chief of staff, and a single staff to operate the armed forces."

However, he told the Senate group, "This is a very radical step . . . and I do not think you can get it right away."

LeMay, in the heavily-censored transcript of his testimony Jan. 21, said:

"I firmly believe that eventually we are going to have to have the single service and command."

He made the statement when asked his view on dividing development of an antimissile missile system between the Air Force and Army.

Army Preparing To Throw Second Satellite Into Sky

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States' first man-made satellite whirled around the earth today and the Army disclosed it is preparing to hurl another into orbit.

It was the Army's Jupiter-C missile that fired a 30.8-pound moon aloft last night, recovering some of the U. S. prestige lost when Russia boosted her two Sputniks into space last fall.

"That's wonderful!" President Eisenhower exclaimed when news of the Army's success reached him at Augusta, Ga., where he had gone for a weekend of relaxation.

With a huge burst of flame and a thunderous roar that could be heard for miles along Florida's east coast, the Jupiter-C blasted off from this top-secret firing base at 10:48 p. m. (EST) yesterday.

About an hour and three-quarters later, its satellite had completed its first journey around the world and tracking stations were receiving its radio signals.

It was so well established in orbit, said Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, head of the Army's missile test program, that it will remain aloft from 2 to 10 years.

It is unlikely the Army's satellite will be visible to the naked eye. In an announcement, the Army said: "It will appear in its orbit with about the brilliance of a one-fifth to one-sixth magnitude star, and a star of this brightness can barely be seen without some magnification."

There are no living organisms in the satellite, the Army said. The Navy plans to put yeast cells in one or more of its satellites in an experiment to provide data on the reaction of living matter to conditions outside the earth's atmosphere.

There was confusion in early reports about the altitude of the satellite, Medaris said. The distance from the earth in its elliptical orbit would range between 185 and 1,230 miles. Dr. Werner von Braun, designed of the rocket, said it would swing as high as 2,000 miles and as low as 230.

Von Braun said the 6-foot-long metal tube is circling the earth once every 113 minutes. Medaris said the time was 106 minutes.

They disagreed also on the baby moon's speed. Von Braun figured it at 19,400 m. p. h.; Medaris said almost exactly 18,000.

The satellite—christened the Explorer by its Army sponsors—has the only radio voice coming to earth from outer space. Sputnik I has disintegrated and the radio batteries of the dog-carrying Sputnik II have long been dead.

Two hours after the firing, Medaris told a news conference here that the Army "has been directed to fire one more (satellite) at the present time."

The date has been set, he said, but will be kept secret.

The Army received a go-ahead to launch its little space traveler after the Russians had fired their two Sputniks. Previously, the space program had been assigned exclusively to the Navy.

Efforts to get the Navy's Vanguard rocket off the ground have failed. The first Vanguard blew up on its launching pad here Dec. 6. The firing was highly publicized in advance and the failure was a severe blow to U. S. pride.

Last night's spectacular success was no surprise to the Army, which claimed it could have done the job long before the Sputniks if it had been given the chance.

Medaris was so confident that in a statement prepared several days ago he predicted "about a 90 per cent degree probability" for success on the Army's first try.

The great blast of orange flame that marked the Jupiter-C's departure from the earth indicated it was one of the most powerful rockets ever launched here.

Taking off more quickly than other big missiles, it gained momentum swiftly as its mighty engine thrust it high into the starry night sky.

Seven minutes after the blastoff, its satellite was in orbit.

The Army said the satellite, a metal capsule 80 inches long and 6 inches in diameter, contains no living organism. Its primary mission is to measure cosmic radiation.

Data picked up by the satellite will be relayed to earth by two radio transmitters. A high-powered transmitter, broadcasting on 108.03 megacycles, will send out information on temperatures, inside and outside the satellite. Another of lower power will broadcast impacts with cosmic rays and meteorites.

The bigger battery is expected to last two weeks. The other probably will operate about two months.

The launching of the Explorer came on the eve of the second birthday anniversary of the Army ballistic missile agency at Huntsville, Ala. Medaris told newsmen a celebration had been planned at Huntsville and "it'll be a whooper now."

Medaris went to nearby Patrick Air Force Base soon after the firing to meet with newsmen in a theater there.

After answering hundreds of questions, Medaris begged the reporters to end the conference "so I can get a couple of hours sleep and be in shape for that celebration."

Asked what the Army will do next, Medaris said it had made several proposals for other programs.

He declined to amplify but asserted that "When your Army runs out of resources, you'll be in a heck of a fix."

While Medaris and several scientists associated with the Jupiter-C program talked to newsmen here, Von Braun met with reporters in Washington.

The German scientist, who built the V-2 rocket with which London was bombed in the closing stages of World War II, smiled happily and answered all questions.

It might take scientists some time to figure out the exact schedule upon which his new satellite is operating, and the route it follows.

But the slender, rod-like space traveler passed high over the Southwestern United States and Mexico in its early orbits, and thereafter moved farther and farther west.

Launching Raises Spirits Of West

LONDON (AP)—The launching of the American artificial earth satellite Explorer lifted spirits in Western Europe today. The Russians extended congratulations—in a dispatch delayed three hours by censorship in Moscow.

The Soviet congratulations came from a spokesman for the State committee on Cultural Relations with foreign countries.

The only disappointment expressed over the U. S. satellite launching from Cape Canaveral, Fla., was good natured. Europeans were sorry the orbit might not carry the baby moon over their heads for a look.

The satellite's orbit extends about 35 degrees of latitude on either side of the equator, taking the 30.8-pound Explorer over southern Asia and Australia, most of Africa and Latin America, and the Southern United States.

Most Europeans got the news on breakfast-time radio newscasts, since it came too late for morning papers. Moscow radio carried the report in overseas broadcasts but made no immediate mention of it in early broadcasts to home listeners.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the launching without comment in a terse dispatch from Cape Canaveral.

Communist East Germany's radio station said the first U. S. satellite was launched "17 weeks after the start of the Soviet Union's first Sputnik." Sputnik I was launched last Oct. 3.

One of the first British scientists to get the news was Dr. Martin Ryle, director of the Cambridge Radio Observatory that tracked the Soviet satellites.

"It's a fine show they have got it up at last, a very good thing," Ryle commented.

Prof. Takeo Hatanaka of Tokyo University, one of Japan's top authorities on solar physics, said in Tokyo he was "certainly glad to hear of the launching" because the United States definitely did it by keeping its word as its project for the International Geophysical Year.

The satellite was sent up to obtain scientific data as part of the U. S. contribution to the world-wide IGY.

"I trust the American scientists who cooperate with us in its observations, unlike the Russians who failed to furnish us with enough information," Hatanaka said.

An American officer at Allied Headquarters outside Paris was relieved by the news. "I'm sure glad we got that thing up there," he said. "I've heard about all the jokes I can take" about earlier U. S. failures.

A West German government official in Bonn said: "The American people are to be congratulated on this great scientific achievement." He added hope that the launching "will introduce a new era of peaceful scientific work to serve the progress of the whole of humanity."

When the U. S. Navy Vanguard project failed to get a satellite up, the anti-Communist Vienna newspaper Neue Weltpresse carried a cartoon depicting President Eisenhower missing a golf drive at a Sputnik the size of a golf ball.

Today the same paper showed a smiling Eisenhower getting off his drive. The caption said: "Now it flies."

The pro-Communist Il Paese in Rome yanked out a front page story of earlier U. S. satellite difficulties and came out with an extra carrying the headline: "U. S. Baby Moon Launched."

The evening Abendpost in Frankfurt, Germany, ripped out a huge front page cartoon kidding earlier U. S. launching troubles and stuck the news into that space.

London's afternoon papers came out with big headlines telling the Cape Canaveral story.

The Saar radio station "Europe No. 1" picked up the signal and rebroadcast it to European listeners. The station described the tone as musical.

Patrolmen Report Run Off Highway

Two Pitt County Highway Patrolmen had a narrow brush with tragedy last night when their Patrol car was reportedly run off the road by a speeding automobile.

According to Cpl. C. E. Whitfield, the automobile in which he and Pfc. J. B. Surles were riding had to leave Highway 264 completely to avoid being struck by a car traveling at an extremely high rate of speed. The near-accident occurred near Chicod Creek about 10 miles east of Greenville. Whitfield said the patrolmen turned around and chased the speeding vehicle. They were finally able to catch up with it, but not until it had turned over on a rural dirt road. The accident took place on the Brick Kiln Road just off Highway 264.

The late model automobile, according to Whitfield, went into a curve on the dirt road, skidded, and overturned on its top. Both Patrolmen said they ran up to the car, turned it back on its wheels and freed the driver, who was pinned in the front seat.

Waverly Parrott, 24, of Greenville Rt. 3 was identified as the driver of the car. He was not injured.

Parrott was charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol, speeding in excess of 75 miles an hour, reckless driving and resisting arrest. He is presently in County Jail under a $500 bond, to be tried in County Recorders Court next Tuesday.

Flowers Case Is Near Jury Stage

RALEIGH (AP)—The liquor conspiracy trial of Percy Flowers and 12 other defendants is expected to go to a federal jury Monday after attorneys wind up arguments and Judge Don Gilliam delivers his charge to the jury.

The prosecution wound up its case yesterday. Attorneys then began their arguments to the jury. When Judge Gilliam recessed court until Monday, he warned jurors against talking with anybody connected with the defendants in the case.

He told them not to talk to anyone about the case, "except your wives."

Originally 17 defendants were under indictment in the case. One died, a mistrial was declared against Obie Parker of Wilkes County, and directed verdicts of acquittal were ordered yesterday by Judge Gilliam for two other defendants. Ralph Wilson of Mebane and Richard Butler of Johnston County.

Harry Lauderdale, an ATU agent, testified he went to Flowers' home in Johnson County with an unsuspecting bootlegger and gained Flowers' confidence. He told of making three visits to Flowers' domain and buying a total of 25 cases of liquor for $500.

Tar Heel Demos Converging For Annual Dinner

RALEIGH (AP)—A flock of Tar Heel Democrats have converged on Raleigh for the party's annual Jefferson-Jackson dinner tonight.

More than 600 party faithfuls were expected to pay $50 a plate—a total of about $30,000—to attend the fund-raising affair which will be highlighted by an address by Florida Gov. Leroy Collins.

Legislators and other Democratic bigwigs began arriving last night for the session.

Gov. Collins planned to hold a news conference this morning. Then at 12:30, state Democratic Chairman John Larkins Jr. was to be host at a luncheon for a big group, including Gov. Hodges, members of the Council of State and the Tar Heel congressional delegation.

County Democratic chairmen were scheduled to hold a meeting this afternoon.

Surprise Storm And Snow Ties Up St. Louis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A surprise snowstorm that continued without letup for 11 hours yesterday left hundreds stranded overnight in St. Louis factories and schools.

The snowfall was measured officially at 7 to 11 inches in various parts of the metropolitan area. It was the city's heaviest since November, 1951, when a 12-inch fall set a 38-year record.

The storm began at 8:10 a. m., less than half an hour after the weather bureau forecast light rain, possibly mixed with snow. By nightfall streets and highways were clogged.

Since the storm wasn't forecast, thousands went to work or school unprepared.

The McDonnell Aircraft Corp. dismissed 1,500 employees at its plant northwest of St. Louis early yesterday afternoon, but most had been unable to leave the plant last night. The company supplied coffee, doughnuts and movies.

More than 30 persons were stranded overnight at Monsanto Chemical Co. headquarters in St. Louis County.

Some 40 girl students had to spend the night at Villa Duchesne, a private Catholic school in suburban Frontenac.

Many retail stores, including the department stores, closed early—some by as much as five hours. Most public schools also closed early.

At least two persons collapsed and died while shoveling snow. The 11-inch measurement was at the municipal airport northwest of the city. The depth in the business district was measured at 8 inches. Unofficial readings of 12 inches were reported in suburbs.

The storm lost much of its punch as it moved eastward today. After bringing severe thunderstorm and tornado warnings to the Southeast during the night, storm activity diminished to mostly rain and scattered showers from Virginia to Georgia and westward through Tennessee and southern Kentucky.

Policeman Guards New York School

A New York City policeman keeps watch on things at John Marshall Junior High School in Brooklyn as students leave the building. The school has been the scene of two recent rapes and assaults on a policeman and a gym instructor. The principal of the school committed suicide recently by jumping off a tall building while a grand jury investigated conditions at the school. About half of the students are white. The others are Negroes and Puerto Ricans. The police department said patrolmen will be posted at 41 schools in the city. (AP Wirephoto)

Huntsville 'Wild With Joy' Over Big Success

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Huntsville citizens began a wild celebration last night as the United States' first satellite was launched by a Jupiter-C missile at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The Jupiter-C was developed at nearby Redstone Arsenal, site of the Army ballistic missile agency.

Sirens signaling the successful launching were sounded in Huntsville about an hour before President Eisenhower's announcement from Augusta, Ga., that the satellite was in orbit.

The sirens were a signal prearranged by Mayor R. B. Searcy and other city officials.

Crowds began assembling in the main square in downtown Huntsville shortly after it was disclosed the Jupiter-C bearing the baby moon was launched at 10:48 p. m. (EST).

Within an hour after the Jupiter-C was launched the crowd in the downtown section of this northeast Alabama town had increased to several thousand.

Searcy estimated the crowd at about 10,000. The city has a population of about 56,000.

The crowd waived placards, which said:

"Shoot for Mars . . . Move over Sputnik . . . Our Missiles Never Miss . . . Space is Ours . . . We Dood It!"

An effigy carrying a sign which read "Secretary Wilson" was burned on the courthouse square. The sign obviously referred to former Secretary of Defense Wilson.

Sky rockets were fired from street corners. Fire crackers exploded. The demonstration was likened to those that dotted the nation, marking the end of World War II.

Police drove along the main streets and blasted sirens on their way.

Mayor Searcy looked over the crowd, watching the sky rockets and ducking now and then as a fire cracker exploded.

"It's a great day for Huntsville," he said.

Former Germans Hatch Their Egg

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Werner von Braun and his 130-man team of former German scientists finally have hatched their egg—the satellite carrying Jupiter-C rocket.

For two years Von Braun's team at the Army ballistic missile agency at Huntsville, Ala., have been aching for an opportunity to prove the Jupiter-C could hoist an earth satellite into the heavens.

The Jupiter-C sat in the Army's machine shops while the Navy got the job of putting up a satellite using the Vanguard rocket, with its 27,000 pound thrust, as a launcher. The first Vanguard effort on Dec. 6 was a failure.

When the existence of the Jupiter-C first was reported by The Associated Press last June 6, Von Braun made this observation:

"It is a difficult thing for a team which has a lead in eggs not to get an opportunity to hatch at least one of them."

Last night was hatching time. Von Braun and his team of ex-Germans are the men who devised the V-2 rocket which nearly knocked London to pieces in the final stages of World War II.

The story of how Von Braun and his team came to the United States goes back to 1945 and the last days of Hitler's Third Reich.

Russians and the Western allies were sweeping through Germany. One of the major objectives was the missile base at Peenemunde on the Baltic Sea.

As the Russians neared the base the rocket scientists were faced with a choice: Capture by the Soviets or flight to the West.

The whole story may never be told, but there are occasional hints of a race by the Americans then to pluck a few of the scientists from the Soviet advance of American intelligence officers herding these scientists westward while others remained behind to blow up bridges and roads.

Most of the 130 scientists, now all American citizens, came to the United States under a one year contract with the U. S. Army.

They were assembled first at Fort Bliss, near El Paso, Tex., where they were kept under heavy guard. Their job here was to teach Americans about the V-2.

Each carried a passport as strange as any ever issued in this country.

Each passport bore a notation, addressed to all police authorities, that if the bearer became lost, injured or ill, he was not to be questioned and nobody was to be notified except the authorities at Fort Bliss.

The day arrived in 1949 when it became imperative to get the visitors into the United States—officially. One day they moved across the border into Mexico.

Six hours later, equipped with regular passports, they took a 20-minute ride by streetcar back into the United States. They were officially in the country and thus eligible for citizenship.

One reason for the move was that the Army had decided to set up the ballistic missile agency on a permanent basis at Huntsville.

Spanking Trouble

Miss Gayle A. Graner (above), 22-year-old Cincinnati school teacher, was summoned to appear in court Feb. 1 to answer a charge of assault of battery for spanking one of her pupils. The charge was made by Mrs. Lu Ann McGeirge, mother of the spanked boy, Roscoe McGeirge, 11. The day before the trial, other pupils held a party in honor of Miss Graner. (AP Wirephoto)

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
Preparations for National Library Week, coming up from March 18 to 22, got a strong send-off Thursday evening when Mrs. David Whitchard, chairman — or should we say chairgirl? — of the County Committee called her helpers together and started to make plans. We foresee an active and significant National Library Week for Pitt County, if the energy and goodwill of the Committee members mean anything — motto for the week is "Wake Up and Read," and we'll second the motion. . . . Especially when we hear about the findings of a recent survey showing that six out of every ten adult Americans have not read a book — not a single book — during the whole year preceding the date the survey was made. How can we expect our children to read — or even learn how — if we don't read ourselves? . . . Anyway, here are some new books that look good to us — and you can always get hold of any one of them from Sheppard Memorial Library, the Bookmobile, or your local librarian, whoever she may be. . . .

Thrillers
For those who like mystery, murder or just plain adventure, here are some new ones: "Sharks and Little Fish," the terrifying story of life aboard a German U-Boat during World War II, by Wolfgang Ott, former officer in the German High Command and a veteran submarine fighter. . . . "The New England Story" is a sort of modern Moby Dick about the career and adventures of an old New England whaling family — by Henry B. Hough, it's the February choice of The Literary Guild. . . . For history, combined with sex, liquor and violence in the land Way Down Under, get Robert S. Close's new novel, "Eliza Callaghan," about the mythical wife of John Batman, one of the founders of Melbourne, Australia.

Closer to Home
For those of you who might like to see what Tar Heel writers have been putting out lately, here are a few new titles from the trade listings of Heritage House, which publishes books by Carolina authors out of Charlotte. . . . "Moods and Memories" is a short book of poems by Paul Bartlett, former president of the N. C. Poetry Society, containing verse of a variety of commonplace subjects. . . . "Yes, Ma'am, Miss Gee" is by and about Mary Wilson Gee and her wonderful career as teacher of Latin and dean of women at Converse College. LeGette Blythe has done the writing with her, and tells her story "in the same uncompromising and witty manner that makes her a campus legend." Also by Mr. Blythe is "James W. Davis, North Carolina Surgeon," a biography of one of N. C.'s outstanding doctors and leaders in state and national politics — even though he was a Republican.

Life's Little Irony
Out of Lippincott comes the news that Barney Ross' dramatized autobiography, "No Man Stands Alone," was listed next to Bernard Baruch's "My Own Story" in the Year's Best Books listing of The Saturday Review. The irony comes in here: Baruch tells about how he made millions speculating on the stock market; Barney, among other things, talks about how he lost millions speculating on slow horses. . . .

Today's Reviews
In our eagerness to get you to read, we give you two reviews rather than just one, of recent and readable books. Miss Harrell reads — and writes — at Junius Rose, and already has achieved fame as a journalist. . . . Dr. Wolfe has achieved fame in many ways — among them, as owner, and, you might say, operator of a large German shepherd dog named "Rex." . . .

A NOISE IN THE NIGHT, by SELWYN JEPSON, Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott, 1957.
Selwyn Jepson's spine-chiller, "A Noise in the Night," is an adult sequel to such children's stories as "Peter Pan" and "Pinocchio." Although the characters and the settings are quite different in the two books, the elements of fancy and suspense are the same.

In Jepson's book James Page, an English banker, attempts to prove to his 18-year-old daughter, Althea, that her handsome fiancé, Grant Galvin, is a crook. After hearing a noise in the night, Mr. Page follows the couple to Paris, France. There he becomes involved in an affair concerning smuggled firearms and a national Algerian revolt. A banker's holiday does not usually signify sleeping in a damp cellar and proposing marriage to a gorgeous stranger; however, Mr. Page's trip to Paris means just that. "A Noise in the Night" is, in many respects, the craftsmanship of a romanticist. Though the settings are pictured realistically, the features of the characters are exaggerated. For example, all the women in the book are breathtakingly beautiful; the men are young and handsome. Even the villain is a dynamic nobleman. Jepson's style of writing makes the reader feel important. By making an ordinary banker become a national hero, he gives the reader the feeling that someday he too may become famous. For an evening of suspenseful entertainment, anyone who dreams big dreams and is young at heart should certainly read "A Noise in the Night."

LOBO, by MacKinlay Kantor. Cleveland: World Publishing Co., 1957. Illus. by Irene Layne.
How do you describe the unadmitted love of a dog for his master, the strange bond between a family and the dog that adopts them? The answer is in "Lobo." In a sense, MacKinlay Kantor has written the biography of a dog, a strange, wonderful wanderer, who was equally at home in the most expensive hotel dining room and in the poorest cottage of his native Andalusia. Lobo's meeting with the famous Kantor family, his decision (for there's no other way to explain it) to stay with them at all costs, including emigration to the United States, his lovable (and mischievous) doggy ways, make him the most unforgettable character you are likely to meet in the animal world. And when Lobo dies, as all dogs must, we, too, know the joy and sorrow of the love that lingers ever in our memories — "Adios, Amigo . . . strange and endearing . . . paws across the sea."

Wednesday night at 7:30 we are planning to finish our study of the book of Hosea. Come and join us in this period of fellowship and study.
The Adult Choir will practice Thursday evening at 7:30 and the Carol Choir Friday afternoon at 3:45.

Million-Dollar Error On Check
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Someone made a million-dollar error in a check sent to Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter for a $10.50 set of Illinois automobile license plates.

Romeo Rizzatto of Alton requested the Alton Banking and Trust Co. to make out a check for $10.50 but through a mistake the bank added a million dollars to the amount.

Carpenter said the check would be returned.

MAJESTY

Beyond the timber line rises sheer rock, towering above the clouds themselves. Looking at this great giant of nature we marvel at God's creations . . . and are aware of the comparative insignificance of man.

Yet, man is far from insignificant, save in physical size. For God, after all, made man in His image. And He gave man a brain, and a soul, with a sense of right and wrong. He gave him character and responsibility.

It is man who can progress to heights far greater than this mountain. But he needs help to do it—God's help, through the help of the Church.

You weren't meant to stand alone in this world. Remember that . . . and go to Church this Sunday.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake (2) For the sake of his community and nation (3) For the sake of the Church itself, literal support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

College Days Looming Closer For J. H. Rose Seniors

By MARTHA PIERCE
Reflector Teen Writer
Serious planning goes into the decisions made by the seniors on which college is right for them.

per cent of the class plans to attend East Carolina College.
After-Exam Party
After exams last week Judy Tucker and Donna Day Bissette invited about 50 guests to come over and dance in Donna Day's basement.

Some of the guests at this party were Jean Crawford, Sara Webb, Anna Taft, Erskine Duff, George White, Tommy Henderson, Jan Vincent, Jimmy Forbes, Billy Goodwin, Janice Bentley, Bill Clapp, Jean Trahey, Judy Page, Dallas Clark, Bill Wade, Lawrence Davenport, Myrtle Moon Bilbro, Julie Dodson, and Skip Wright.

At times during the antics of the game the Monogram Club had nine men on the floor. One of the star faculty players added laughs to the game by taking a nap in the middle of the court. Most of the students agree that it was worth 10 cents to see the weird costumes and the superb rule-breaking players.

Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James Ashley Bland were honored by their children, Miss Nina E. Bland of Tampa, Fla., with a reception on January 26 from three to five o'clock in the Ladies Parlor of the Eighth Street Christian Church in observance of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

The parlor was decorated throughout with the gold theme. The table was covered with yellow net over gold taffeta and the centerpiece was a two-tiered arrangement of yellow spring flowers flanked by candlesticks on each side holding yellow burning tapers. Yellow chrysanthemums were placed around the room.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. J. Roy Martin who introduced them to the receiving line composed of Mr. and Mrs. Bland and their daughters. Mrs. Bland's corsage was of yellow cymbidium orchids and Mr. Bland wore a yellow carnation boutonniere.

The first slice of the wedding cake, which was placed at one end of the table, was cut by the honored couple and from a silver service on the other end of the table the coffee was poured by Mrs. Myrtle E. Rosebaum of Raleigh. Guests then served themselves to party cakes, mints and nuts.

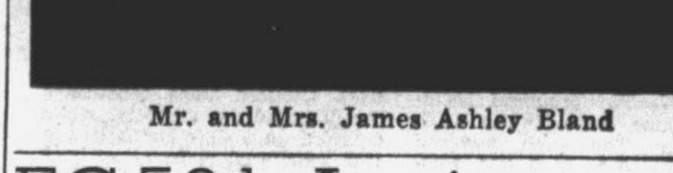

Miss Ruth Mumford presided at the guest book and the goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Carl D. Rosenbaum of Tarboro. Eighty-five guests called during the afternoon.

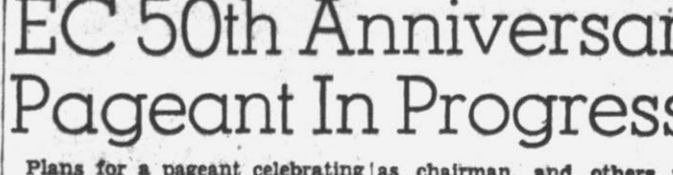

Out-of-town guests were here from Raleigh, Wilson, Farmville, Richlands, Kinston, Tarboro and Williamston.

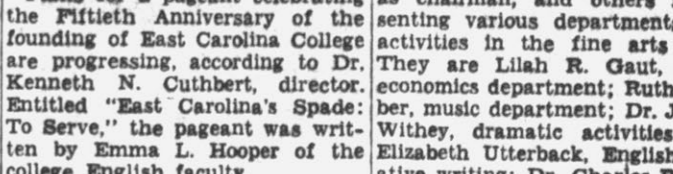

Mrs. Bland, who was the former Miss Martha E. Brown, and Mr. Bland were married at Everetts on January 29, 1908.

EC 50th Anniversary Pageant In Progress

Plans for a pageant celebrating the Fiftieth Anniversary of the founding of East Carolina College are progressing, according to Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, director. Entitled "East Carolina's Spade: To Serve," the pageant was written by Emma L. Hooper of the college English faculty.
Two performances are scheduled for Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, May 3 and 4.
Assisting with arrangements for the production are members of the Fine Arts Committee of the college, which include Dr. Cuthbert as chairman, and others representing various departments and activities in the fine arts field. They are Lillah R. Gault, home economics department; Ruth Graber, music department; Dr. Joseph Withely, dramatic activities; Dr. Elizabeth Uiterback, English creative writing; Dr. Charles Fisher, industrial arts; Dr. Wellington B. Gray, art; and Francis Lee Neel, art. Committees to handle various aspects of production are now being organized and will be announced in the near future.
"East Carolina's Spade: To Serve" includes four episodes, each of which focuses attention upon a period in the development of the school.

Club Appoints Two Leaders

The first, concerned with the breaking of ground for the first building of the school, is under the direction of Dr. James D. Allison of the English department. Episode two, dealing with the growth of the college under President Robert H. Wright, is directed by Dr. Withely.
The third episode, covering the history of the college from 1934 through 1947, will be directed by George E. Perry of the music department. The contemporary growth under "East Carolina's present administration, that of President John D. Mastic, is directed by Claude L. Garren of the English department.
The pageant calls for a large cast, which will include many students and staff members and a procession of the faculty in academic attire. Music will be furnished by the college band, orchestra, choir, women's chorus, and chapel choir.

A 'Happy Birthday' To The Service

As a general rule, birthdays of public organizations are passed by without comment except by the people who are directly concerned with the groups.

We think it is noteworthy, however, to observe that the Pitt County Health Department's Mental Health Service starts its third year of operation today. It is noteworthy because of the rapid rise of the Service and the job it is doing for a broad area of Eastern North Carolina.

Two years ago, Dr. Joseph D. Franzoni and Dr. Luciano L'Abate arrive in Greenville to open the Mental Health Service. They, and the interested Pitt County citizens who had worked for a mental health clinic, had little idea that it would develop into what it is today.

Dr. Franzoni's two-year report for the Mental Health Service shows that the staff has assisted 653 patients, and terminated case work with 487 of them since February 1, 1956. The staff has also conducted 5,105 individual interviews, and, in addition, has seen 182 people in 19 sessions of a group therapy program.

The group therapy program is one indication of the forwardness of the operation of the Mental Health Service. It is unique in North Carolina, and is usually found only in much larger metropolitan areas.

Activities of the Mental Health Service have gone much beyond individual or group programs, however. They are being broadened to include in-service training programs for Pitt's public health nurses, a training ground for graduate students in psychiatric social work, and there are hopes that the clinics can become training areas for graduate students in psychology.

Thus far, persons from 28 Eastern North Carolina counties have sought, and received, help from Pitt County's Mental Health Service. They know, first-hand, the good work being done and the progress that is being made.

We join them, and the rest of North Carolina, in wishing the Mental Health Service a happy birthday and wishes for continuance of their work.

He's Off Again, To Fame Or Oblivion

The Jacksonville disc jockey is off again to fame or oblivion in his attempt to travel from North Carolina to Bermuda in an outboard motor boat.

There was no fanfare this time as Melvin West set out to write a different ending to the modern sea saga which began three months ago. On that trip, after 12 days at sea, West was picked up by the Coast Guard which denied his request for additional fuel and provisions.

Most people considered him lucky to be saved from the open sea on that occasion. Most of us figured West had proved that a small boat could be seaworthy, which is what he said he wanted to prove. For West, at least, we supposed the trip to Bermuda would be forgotten; it would be left to someone else in the future to follow the trail across the Atlantic he blazed and perhaps reach Bermuda in an open boat.

Now West is at it again. His previous experience will be of value to him on his new trip; but the Coast Guard probably will not be as concerned about him this time as it was in October. If he misses his mark again, or runs into unexpected trouble as he did before, his chances of rescue are less than they were in October.

Uncle's Hand Is Still In Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

The popular conception is that the American business proprietor is a tough free-enterpriser, interested in profits for profit's sake, willing to take calculated risks and probably voting Republican.

That's an airy-fairy dream. One of the biggest business proprietors in the country is Uncle Sam. He runs about one hundred different kinds of commercial enterprises, ranging from beer counters in Post Exchanges to rope factories—or rope walks as they are generally known. Under the Eisenhower Administration, the number of these enterprises has been reduced. Many flourishes, however, competing with retailers, power companies and manufacturers.

GOVERNMENTAL LANDLORDS

States, highway authorities and other administrative subdivisions operate a large number of enterprises. In New York City the Transit Authority is conducting a vigorous campaign to lease space in subways to business enterprises. In so doing, it is competing with thousands of taxpaying landlords in the city. If a landlord loses a tenant to the Transit Authority, he'll be expected to keep on paying taxes just the same.

Toll roads lease sites for gas stations, restaurants and other establishments. While these enterprises are usually operated by private companies, the roll authorities are in the same position as department stores that lease watch-repairing and fur departments to others.

Almost every city competes with private enterprise. Many compete with landlords, bondholders, investors and other enterprisers by renting space for shops, markets, parking lots and other money-making businesses.

Some cities run their own asphalt plants; one city has had a salesman on the road selling fertilizer from its sewage plant, thereby competing with a dozen giant chemical companies and a lot of small retail stores.

COLLEGES, UNIONS

Colleges and other educational institutions freely compete with private enterprise in farm more than college book stores and cafeterias. New York University owns a spaghetti works that competed so fiercely with other plants that Congress ended the tax exemption of such commercial enterprises.

Unions are in all kinds of businesses: newspaper publishing, discount house operation, banking, steamship lines, apartment house operation, farms, cafeterias and other enterprises. Foundations operate many businesses. A New York State publisher complains that his potentials have been trimmed because a foundation established a competitive paper in his town. But, he added, he's licking the foundation.

Churches, charities and similar organizations compete with private business. Rummage sales, cake sales and similar events constitute small competition, of course. But some organizations run insurance plans, apartment houses, restaurants and an endless number of other businesses. There used to be a cult in San Francisco that underbid all other moving companies because members worked for blessings, not money.

CAPTURING CUSTOMERS

Schools often compete with neighborhood merchants. There have been cases in which pupils have been forbidden to leave school grounds to prevent them from buying candy bars at nearby stores instead of at school cafeterias.

In many cities there have been instances in which police and firemen operated their own enterprises, selling protective services during free hours, or appliances and other articles from discount catalogs.

In the United States, business is not a thing apart. It is all of us, and our governments, our charities, our institutions. Of course, now and then among the four million enterprises in the nation, there are some men who are purely businessmen, frankly out to make a buck, not to gain special benefits in the Hereafter.

Opinions In Brief

"If in the opinion of the People, the distribution or modification of the Constitution powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the Constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed. The precedent must always greatly overbalance in permanent evil any partial or transient benefit which the use itself can at any time yield." — George Washington.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

TO THINE OWN SELF BE TRUE Caught in the act of stealing money from a classmate's room, a student was expelled from college. It was not his first offense, and the evidence against him was clear and unquestionable. But the boy persisted in maintaining his innocence: he was not stealing; it was all a mistake; it was somebody else. A psychiatrist who talked with him said later that the boy was so unwilling to face the fact of his guilt that he had actually convinced himself that he was not guilty.

tells us we have no sins. If we want to overcome our deficiencies, it hides them from us. If we wish to increase our knowledge, it veils our ignorance. The second president of the United States, John Adams, once wrote, "Nothing in the science of human nature is more curious or deserving of critical attention than the principle referred to by moralists as self-deceit. This principle is the spurious offspring of self-love. It is, perhaps, the greatest source and worst part of the vices and calamities of mankind."

Self-deceit — how much trouble and sorrow it causes! There is almost no worthwhile aim which it cannot spoil. If we need to repent our sins, self-deceit

Other Editors Saying --- Let Them Fight Honorably

(Henderson Dispatch)

Governor Hodges has every right and reason to disgust and anger over the attempt made manifestly to discredit him by attacking his wife's party loyalty. It is cheap, dirty politics, and an underhanded blow. Should the instigator of the scheme become known, it might well backfire to his or their disadvantage and tend to build sentiment for the Governor.

The charge is that Mrs. Hodges registered and voted the Republican ticket in Westchester county, New York, when the family lived there a decade and a half ago while the present governor was in business in the metropolis. She said it was possible that a technical error by a registrar in the predominantly Republican community may have listed her wrongly. She declared herself to be a Democrat and that she has voted Democratic in every election.

Not too long ago a resident of Henderson who had moved here from up-State New York made the remark that he had been a Republican all his life but registered and voted the Democratic ticket when he came here in order to be able to vote at all in the selection of nominees for the November election.

The great Democratic vote-getter, Franklin D. Roosevelt, even while President, said more than once that he had in times past voted the Republican ticket in New York State, and offered no apology for it. Nor did any one dare challenge his democracy because of that ballot.

So that it is not heresy to have been a Republican formerly and to be a Democrat now. No one disputes the right of Mrs. Hodges to have voted her preference in times past. But whatever the facts may be as to her party affiliation 15 or 20 years ago that should not be used—if indeed it can be—against her husband, who is titular head of the Democratic party in North Carolina at this time and has done a good job of presiding over the destinies of the State government these past three years, with three more to go before his term expires.

We are not too familiar with New York State politics. Sometimes it gives a majority to one party and then again to the other. When the State goes Democratic, as often it does, it is largely due to the preponderant margin in the metropolitan area of New York City. Upstate, we imagine the Republican dominance is about in keeping with what the Democratic control is in North Carolina as a whole.

This is not a defense of Republican voting, although the ballot is a privilege of the individual which no one has a right to dispute. But if enemies of Governor Hodges are seeking to discredit him, let them fight honorably and not resort to blows below the belt in trying to get at him by citing his wife's voting record, whatever it may be, and which she says has been Democratic all the way. It can be hoped that this does not represent, this far in advance, the tenor of the campaign two years hence, whether Hodges becomes a candidate for the United States Senate or for the Democratic vice-presidential nomination, for both of which he has been mentioned.

tries of the world are suffering. Is it necessary? Their plight is one that no one would desire. In Japan the effects of the last world war are still seen in the badly wrecked homes, destroyed schools, and bombed churches. Would we like to trade places with these people?

In India the food supply is low and people are dying of hunger. Tuberculosis is one of the diseases which make their situation worse. Would we like to trade places with these people?

We say that we don't want to be in their places, but are these people our responsibility? The Bible says, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. We would want someone to help us if we were in this situation, so we must do something to help the people who are suffering. The suffering in the world is an opportunity for us. We have the chance as American youth to help these people and to witness for Christ in helping them.

Although we are only youth there are many things that we can do. First of all, we can pray for these people. We can pray for the missionaries who are trying to help people both physically and spiritually. As Alfred Lord Tennyson said, "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."

Secondly, we can help these people through our gifts. We can give of the many blessings that we have received. We have been taught that "It is more blessed to give than to receive"; so let us relieve some of the suffering of the world by our giving.

The last thing we can do for the many suffering people is to dedicate ourselves to the helping of the needy. May each of us consider seriously a church vocation that is in this area of Christian service.

Always A 'Hatchet Man' Around

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — "Do you think that President Eisenhower will get rid of Sherman Adams," inquires W. R. of Troy, N.Y., "because of his vicious attack on the Democrats' military record at the very hour when Eisenhower was insisting that the problem of defense should be kept out of partisan politics?"

Answer: I do not, although almost every Republican I know, on and off Capitol Hill, would be glad to see the last of the sarcastic Yankee in the White House. Adams' tirade against the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations has been condemned in almost every editorial I have seen, whether the newspapers were of a Democratic or Republican trend. CALCULATED STRATEGY The two different approaches — Eisenhower's and Adams' — were calculated strategy. The President is not qualified, temperamentally, for swinging a forensic meataxe. In fact, it would be injurious to his health, if he indulged in the heroics or dramatics on the stump.

But every Administration needs a "hatchet man." It would be beneath the dignity of the President of the United States to engage in oratorical fustifuffs whenever the opposition criticized him. Even F.D.R., who thoroughly enjoyed the rough-and-tumble of politics, frequently turned the job over to "Curmudgeon" Harold Ickes.

It is unfortunate, however, that this below-the-belt assignment should have been given to the White House Chief of Staff. For, although he denies it, he helps to formulate important national and international policies. He is a Presidential stand-in or understudy. Such an office needs a man of a kindlier mold, greater tolerance and human understanding than Adams displays.

INCIDENT OF "AL" SMITH DAYS A dramatic incident involving Alfred E. Smith and Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., in 1924, when they were opposing candidates for Governor of New York, illustrates vividly the Eisenhower-Adams strategy. I did Smith's publicity in that campaign, and was with him in a Buffalo hotel room when the Tammany board of strategy came there to review developments.

paid by almost 100,000 votes in a year when Calvin Coolidge swept the state.

S. N. of Mt. Jewett, Pa., wants to settle a betting argument. A says that only Democrat Senators have introduced measures to increase Social Security payments while B says that "it ain't so."

Answer: Measures for expanding Social Security have been sponsored by members of both parties in House and Senate. Smart politicians realize that the "old folks' vote" is becoming larger every year. REASONS FOR UNANSWERED MAIL Several readers have complained to me or to my newspapers that questions sent to the have not been answered. That is possible because there are three kinds of questions which I do not answer in this Saturday column: (1) Questions which are not of "general interest"; (2) Questions that smack of racial, religious or political bigotry; and (3) Questions which I have already answered or discussed.

Story Of The Effort

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The story of the first American satellite — which the military has been trying to launch since December — goes from "Now, let's see" to "What was that again?" to "hey, what hit me?" to "Boys, we'd better get moving."

This country was doing some looking into the idea of a satellite as far back as 1947. Or so it seems. At a Soviet spy trial in 1951 David Greenglass told of slipping Soviet agents atomic secrets and information on a sky platform in 1947.

Then in 1949 a routine annual report by the then Secretary of Defense Forrestal contained a single, unexplained phrase saying his department was conducting "earth satellite studies." But the government didn't do any talking about it.

In October 1954 at Rome, world scientists — including Russians — adopted a resolution that "thought be given to the launching of small satellite vehicles..." This was in connection with the International Geophysical Year which was to start in July 1957 and extend to December 1958.

But Secretary of Defense Wilson apparently wasn't impressed or, apparently, very much interested. On Dec. 12, 1954, his Defense Department, in answer to a query, issued a statement which said: "Studies relating to a satellite program as mentioned in 1949 in Forrestal's report are active... and... are being coordinated within the office of the secretary of defense (Wilson)." This was just a month after Wilson said he knew nothing about it.

At a news conference Nov. 16, Wilson, asked if such a study was under way, said: "In the space ship business? Oh, no." He was reminded Forrestal had written about it. Wilson said: "I don't know of any such study."

Then he was told that recently published stories had reported Soviet concentration on the space satellite. He was asked if he would be concerned if the Russians beat the United States into the air with a satellite.

He said, "I wouldn't care if they did." and added he'd rather have them going off to the moon than over here.

Finally on July 29, 1955, the Eisenhower administration approved plans for building and launching a satellite.

The administration action was taken some months after a Moscow paper on April 15, 1955, had reported the Soviet Union had a program to develop a satellite.

The Defense Department announced Oct. 6, 1955, that "work had begun" on building the satellite. The American idea was to launch a number of small satellites for strictly scientific reasons in 1958.

But on Oct. 4, 1957, the Soviets shot off their first Sputnik. President Eisenhower at his Oct. 9 news conference took it calmly. But Congress and the American public didn't, for the realization began to spread that the U. S. S. R. was ahead in missile development.

By mid-October pressures were growing within the administration to get a satellite aloft or do something to show American progress in science — as an effort to offset the fantastic propaganda gains made by the Soviet Union's Sputnik.

But on Nov. 3, 1957, the Soviets really upset the American apple cart by sending up their second Sputnik, which weighed 1,120 pounds.

In contrast, the satellites this country was first planning to launch didn't weigh more than 30 pounds. But that second Sputnik built a fire under the administration to get moving.

The American Navy had long been assigned the task of getting up this country's first satellite. But on Nov. 8-five days after Sputnik No. 1 — the Army was ordered to get into the satellite program.

Early in December — with an enormous publicity buildup — the Navy tried to send up its first satellite. It fell on its face, thus giving the Soviet Union more propaganda for free.

There was the smell of blood and tension in the air last night at East Carolina's memorial Gymnasium. It gave one the disturbing impression that he was watching a bullfight or one of the ancient Roman slaughters when the Christians were fed to hungry lions. The crowd, packing every available space, seemed to be hovering over the lighted court, their thumbs pointing down, indicating No Mercy, their voices raised together, shouting "Blood!"

The crowd was an angry crowd. Just before the game started, ECC Student Government President Jimmy Phelps read excerpts from a sports column that appeared in a recent Western Carolina newspaper. In a steady voice, Phelps read, over the Gym's loudspeaker, the angry report that denounced East Carolina's unsportsman-like conduct, rough-house tactics, and vulgar behavior in the earlier 92-85 loss at Western Carolina two weeks ago.

Fans Were Inflamed
The gym was packed with tension to begin with—left-over tension springing from the Conference's ruling to take three loop games from ECC because of an alleged ineligible foul, and additional losses to Lenoir Rhyne and WCC since the ruling. Phelps' reading inflamed the crowd.

As the teams warmed up in pre-game exercises, a loud buzz flowed through the gym; there was more talk about the first WCC-ECC game than the one about to begin. There was talk of how the Catamount's bruising, brawling tactics, combined with lenient referees, angry threats and curses from the WCC crowd made it rough for ECC that night. There was talk of how the Pirates had to be escorted—through ropes—off the court, because of the pushing, shouting WCC fans hovered close to hurl more insults, physical threats. ECC lost, 92-85.

Pirates Fight Back
Last night's game opened in explosive fashion, keeping the spark of tension alive. Western Carolina, a big team, a tall and beefy team, began to shove its weight around—as it had in Cullowhee two weeks before.

But East Carolina fought back. The Bucs are neither small nor fragile. In ferocious scrambles for the ball, both teams became all elbows and fists. The referees kept the game a shade beneath the riot stage and served somewhat as boxing referees.

Several times, ballplayers from both teams were literally slammed to the floor in vicious action that flared up beneath the baskets. The players, fists clinched, had to be parted more than once. The crowd, angry and demonstrative, screamed for it.

WCC Coach Jim Gudger came off the bench time after time in protest, and was hooted back by the crowd.

Has Happened Before
This sort of thing has happened before. In fact, reports have it that the Pirates encounter the rough-house treatment in almost every game that takes them on the road to the western part of the state.

It is, however, the first time the action has been so open and ferocious, here, on the Buc court. The crowd's actions were obvious: they were upset and angry at Western Carolina's treatment of the Pirates at Cullowhee and they attempted to take an eye for an eye.

What can be done to relieve such a situation is not known. But something should be done. Some form of pressure should be—had better be—enforced all around the league, before things get out of hand and someone gets hurt. It was only a few years ago that ECC guard Cecil Heath was slugged by a fan at Cullowhee and had to have four stitches sewed into his eye.

Adams Beats WC 62-61; Phants Win

By JIMMY ELLIS
East Carolina College's Pirates last night got a practical lesson in how to win the hard way. They beat Western Carolina College, 62-61, on a last-second shot by substitute guard Charlie Adams after blowing a lead they had held most of the game and which, at times, reached as much as 16 points.

Adams' shot not only won the ball game for the Pirates, but it also blew the roof off pent-up emotions in the partisan East Carolina crowd and took the edge off an outstanding rally by Western Carolina.

The wild celebration that followed the winning shot has never been equalled on the ECC campus. Adams was mobbed on the playing court by students and team mates, and rode off on the shoulders of the first to reach him.

Western Carolina, which held the victory in its own hands only three seconds before, couldn't do anything to stop Adams when he got a pass in from the half-court line with three seconds showing on the clock. The substitute guard bounced the ball once, turned and jumped from the left side line. The ball hit the back rim of the basket, banged back against the front rim and dropped through. There was one second showing on the clock when the ball fell.

While the Cats couldn't do anything with Adams' last shot, they had almost run the Pirates out of their own gym in the ten minutes immediately prior to the last play.

The Pirates went into the last ten minutes of the action with a 54-42 lead that melted like snow under a spring sun. Guard Harris Pryor led the offensive rally of the Cats that cut down the lead, and Swede Frauson and Randall Shields led the defensive rally that kept the Pirates from adding substantially to their own score.

Pryor sank a pair of field goals that cut the lead to eight points before East Carolina got a free throw from Jessel Curry with six-and-a-half minutes left. Jackie Teague followed that with a driving lay-up before Curry went to the line and hit another free throw.

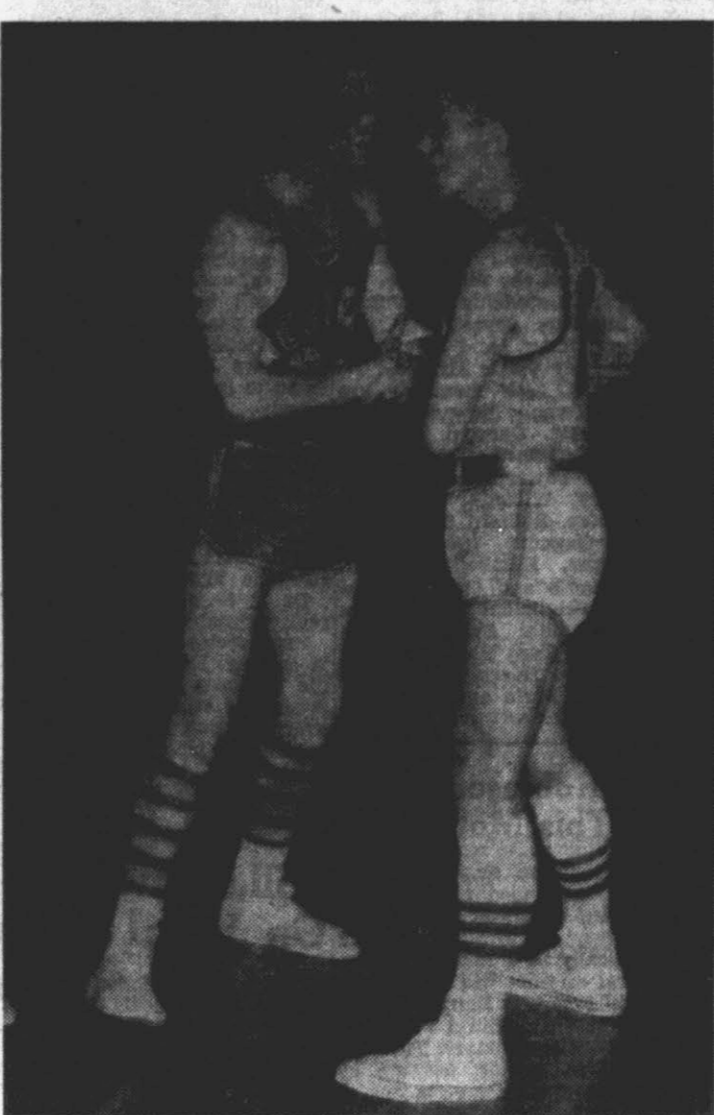

Teague and Pryor got another field goal apiece to cut the lead to 56-52 before Ike Riddick hit for ECC from the corner. Pryor got another jump shot, but it was matched by Guy Mendenhall at 3:41 mark before the Pirates went completely cold.

Frauson hit on a driving lay-up with 2:07 left and Pryor came through with two free throws 28 seconds later. Mendenhall missed a free throw for East Carolina with 1:33 left and the score at 60-58, and Western Carolina got the rebound.

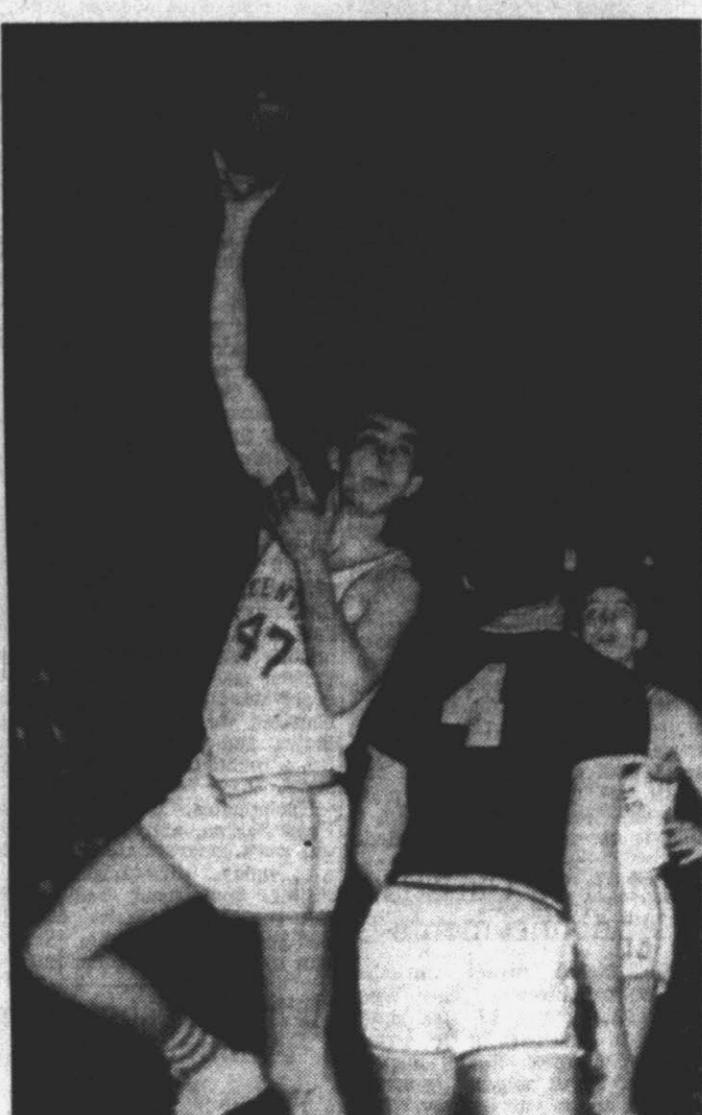

Pryor tied it up, 60-60, with 1:17 left, and the teams started jockeying for the advantageous positions on the court. Western Carolina's Frauson tied up Harold Ingram of the Pirates for a jump ball with 57 seconds to go, and when the Cats controlled the tip they called time-out.

Coach Jim Gudger ordered his team to play for one shot, which finally came with ten seconds left to go. Teague missed on the drive-in, but Shields got the rebound. He was fouled by Joe Plaster, who left the game with five fouls, and the 6-8 Cat center sank the first of his free throws with four seconds left to give WCC a 61-60 lead.

Shields, with the pressure telling, missed his second free toss and Don Smith got the rebound for the Pirates. ECC called time out to get the ball at half-court on the throw-in, and also to plan the strategy which would get the ball to the best shot on the squad, Adams.

HOOK SHOT . . . By Steve Noble

Greenville's Phantoms played slow but steady basketball here last night to wallop underdog Elizabeth City 70-53, chalking up their fifth Northeastern Conference tilt in seven tries.

Pat McDowell notched 27 points for the losers to take high honors but was not given enough help from his mates to overcome the Rose High strength.

Greenville's John Wesley Hudson nabbed high honors for the locals with 22 points, and Dick Evans added 17.

The Phantoms took an early lead in the first quarter, 16-12, and extended it to 25-16 before the half was over. At half-time, they had pushed it to 37-23.

Coach Bo Farley substituted early in the second quarter and the subs played much of the game. Peanut Nunn, Evans, and Mack Roebuck were the big men on the boards for the Phantoms. Albert Crawford also did his share of rebounding.

It was the rebounding of the G-Men that accounted for most of their advantage. The Phants were much taller than their foes.

In the third period, the Yellow Jackets—who are now winless in eight games—cut the Phant lead to only seven points, as the Phantoms fell into a lull. By manipulating the lineup, Farley managed to get his lead back and add more to it by the end of the game.

Coach Bud Phillips' junior varsity club notched its second victory of the season in the preliminary game, 51-37. The Baby Phants, decked out in new uniforms, ran up an early 15-5 lead and were never overtaken.

Charles Taft stuffed in 20 points to pace the winners. Other Phant scorers were Irvy Duff 19, Clapp 2, Felton 5, Stocks 1, and Brewer 4.

Tuesday night will be open for the G-Men and they will travel to Roanoke Rapids on February 7.

Everybody's After National Ranking

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press
With nary an undefeated team in the major ranks, the merry scramble for top rating, in college basketball started all over again today.

Five of the major show only one defeat — West Virginia, Kansas State, San Francisco, St. John's of Brooklynn and Dartmouth.

West Virginia, which tasted its first loss last Monday, jumped right back in the winning column last night by rolling over Florida State, 103-51.

So now the Mountaineers, who have been riding atop The Associated Press poll the past few weeks, show a 15-1 record, percentage-wise the best in the country.

They don't play again until Thursday when they meet St. John's in New York. The Brooklyn Redmen also went down to their first defeat the other day.

and tonight play Temple in Philadelphia.

San Francisco is right behind West Virginia in the won-lost column with a 14-1 mark, including a 52-38 triumph over Loyola of Los Angeles last night.

Then there is Kansas State with a 13-1 record. The Wildcats play Colorado tonight in a Big Eight game.

The other major power that has been whipped only once is Dartmouth of the Ivy League with a 13-1 record. The Indians play Brown tonight.

Featured Trumpeter Is 'An Amazing Virtuoso'

By GEORGE E. PERRY
Don Jacoby, the trumpet artist featured at last evening's performance by the E. C. C. Concert Band, is in my opinion all the leading trumpeters rolled into one. He possesses such an affluence of technique that it is nothing short of startling; his tonal production ranges from that of lush velvet to brilliant gold; his dynamic range goes from a mere murmur to a triple-forte. To put it into one sentence, he is the most amazing virtuoso I have ever heard on any wind instrument. He certainly demonstrated all of these characteristics in his two solo selections, and in the one in which he was part of a trumpet triad. His tonguings were clean, crisp, and the height of accuracy; his pitches the epitome of precision; and his total production virtually flawless.

The concert itself was marked by well-chosen and well-played program. Herbert L. Carter, the band director, chose wisely; he selected nothing trivial, but good solid material; he chose nothing beyond the band's potential, and yet the material unquestionably kept them on their toes and made them work perseveringly. Traditionally, the concert opened with a march, the "Apollo March" by Bruckner. The work was not representative of either Bruckner's nor the band's best work. Deems Taylor wrote in "Of Men and Music": "Bruckner had something, but humbly; he had it hastily and indistinctly, so that we lost something that we should have been the richer for having heard." This march, while an impressive one in several respects, did not say much, nor give the band a chance to get off to a really good start.

The Prelude and Fugue in G, Minor, of Bach, which followed, fared considerably better, even with some rather faculty work in the clarinet section. The tempo was good, the legato impressive, and the phrasing of the fugue exactly right. There were some very finely graduated dynamics, some exceedingly good work in the tuba section, especially in the figure, and carefully executed phrasing throughout.

The "Silken Ladder Overture" was one of the high-lights of the concert. This fiendishly difficult number taxed the band to the fullest, but the results were most commendable. When we remember that it was originally scored for orchestra, and that the clarinets were made to play the intricate violin passages in this transcription, we can forgive their couple slip-ups which were present. It seemed as if they were expected to play phrases of interminable length without breathing, and this was apparently what caused the difficulties. But one could not help noticing the consistent cleanliness with which the intricate passages were played, and the total effect certainly showed the high calibre of each member of the band.

To me "The Pearl Fishers Overture" was the high-spot of the concert.

Heavily Opposed To Pay-TV Idea

WASHINGTON (AP)—A check of North Carolina's House delegation today showed overwhelming opposition to pay TV.

Inquiries of 11 of the state's 12 House members or their offices brought a response that they opposed to pay TV.

Rep. Bonner could not be reached. But an associate of Rep. Barnden said he believed the entire delegation was opposed.

Rep. Jones, the sole Republican House member from the state, emerged from mountains of protesting mail from his constituents long enough to make clear that he, too, is against a change in the present setup.

Rep. Cooley put it this way: "I think that television in America has probably developed more extensively than anywhere else in the world. I would hesitate to hamper its progress."

The issue has been brought to a head by a decision of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to accept applications for limited pay TV operations for a three-year test period.

Opponents say pay TV would siphon off the best shows now offered free, thus reducing free TV audiences and advertiser revenue and cutting the quality of programs.

Honor Students At Ayden Listed

AYDEN — Twenty-seven Ayden High School students have been named to either the Principal's List or Honor Roll as a result of grades issued during the third marking period.

The group includes three Honor Roll students and 24 Principal's List students. The Honor Roll is reserved for students who make maximum grades on all subjects while the Principal's List is for those who made A's on at least half their subjects and nothing less than B on the remainder.

Ten Tracking Stations Are Tracing Path Of First U. S. Test Satellite

First U. S. Test Satellite's Radio Is A Chatterbox

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter
NEW YORK (AP)—America's first satellite is a true chatterbox gossiping about space.

Its radio voices talk continuously, not with the beep-beep-deep of Russia's first Sputnik. All this talk is in code, telling what the Explorer is learning about cosmic rays, meteorites, and temperatures hundreds of miles above earth.

This system is telemetering, a kind of telegram from space. Telemetering has long been done with rockets which soar up 50 to 200 miles, then fall down again. Instruments record information, code it, and broadcast in code. Ground stations record the signals on magnetic tape, then they are translated.

In a sense, your automobile gasoline gauge could be considered a telemetering device. The needle tells you how much gas you have—you don't have to put a stick into the tank.

In essence, here's how the little moon's system works: It is broadcasting on two transmitters, one on 108.03 megacycles, the other at 108 megacycles. Each one has four channels for telemetering information, from descriptions published in technical journals before the launching.

In one method of measuring meteors, a sensitive microphone detects pings from hits by these tiny space bullets. Signals from the microphone drive a counting circuit for continuous transmission of the cumulative number of hits.

Cosmic rays can be counted in similar fashion to meteor hits, and earthbound men can learn how serious a hazard this radiation will be to crews of future space ships.

Will Show Film On Vocal Cords

"High Speed Motion Pictures of the Human Vocal Cords," film made by the Bell Telephone Co. and sponsored by the American Medical Association, will be given three showings at East Carolina College Tuesday.

Dr. Frances V. Henry, speech pathologist in the college department of education, will be in charge of the programs, which are scheduled for the Flanagan auditorium, No. 317, at 4 p.m., 7 p.m., and 9 p.m. She will conduct an informal discussion of the film at the close of each showing. The public is invited to attend.

Minor Damage In Friday Accident

Minor damages were reported by officers who investigated the collision of two automobiles on Cotanche St. early yesterday afternoon.

The drivers of the cars were identified as Mrs. Ella Tucker Moore of 1049 Rock Springs Rd. and Jesse B. Jones of 118 N. Jarvis St. Mrs. Moore was charged with following too closely.

Police said the woman's car struck the rear of Jones' car, making a left turn off Cotanche St. into a parking lot. Damage to the left front of Mrs. Moore's car was estimated to be $150. Officers reported $25 damage to the rear bumper of the other vehicle. Neither driver suffered injury.

Gets Road Term In City Court

William "Tip" Taft 36-year-old local Negro man was sentenced to six months on the roads by Judge Charles H. Whedbee in City Court.

Taft received the sentence after being adjudged guilty of assault with a deadly weapon. Judge Whedbee also sentenced Taft to 90 days on the roads for a similar assault charge to run concurrent with the previous term. In addition concurrent 30-day sentences were handed down on charges of damage to personal property and discharging firearms.

Yesterday's session was the second of the week for Taft who has found the going "a little rough" in court. Monday he was given 60 days on the roads by Judge Whedbee for resisting arrest and 30 days for assaulting a police officer. The terms are to run consecutive with the six-month sentence.

The defendant was arrested early Saturday night following a disturbance on First Street.

Grifton Girl Is Contest Winner

AYDEN — The Homemaker of Tomorrow in the South Ayden School is Gladys Louise Kirkman of Grifton.

She received the highest score in a written examination on home-making knowledge and attitudes, administered Dec. 3, to senior girls in the graduating class. ## St. James Cancels Evening Service

The regular Sunday Night Bible Study of the St. James Methodist Church will not be held this week. Instead, the congregation is urged to attend the special Sunday Evening Worship service at the Jarvis Memorial Church.

"The newly rebuilt Sanctuary and Chapel of Jarvis Memorial is a structure of which all Greenville and all Methodism may be proud," St. James Pastor J. Malloy Owen declared last night in announcing the cancellation.

"Our Sunday morning service will be held at St. James as usual at 11 o'clock and Sunday Night Bible Study will be resumed one week from tomorrow, February 9 at 3:30 p.m.," Owen added. Sermon subject at St. James tomorrow morning is "The Meek," a study of Matthew 5:5, fourth message in a series of the Beatitudes of Christ.

Dahlias were first used as food by Mexicans. The flower contains a starchy food called inulin.

Pre-Registration For ECC Spring Quarter Will Begin On Monday

Pre-registration of students for the spring quarter of the current school year will take place at East Carolina College during the week beginning February 3.

Vice President and Dean of Instruction Leo W. Jenkins has announced. During this period all students now attending the college and planning to enroll for the spring quarter will hold consultation with their faculty advisors and plan their schedules in advance. These entering East Carolina at the beginning of the quarter and those who have pre-registered will enroll officially for their spring courses Wednesday, February 26. Class work will begin Thursday, February 27.

Final examinations for the winter quarter are scheduled for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, February 20-22. An interim of three days will be used by instructors to prepare grades for recording in the registrar's office.

The spring quarter will close with commencement exercises for 1958 graduates on Sunday, May 18. The summer session at East Carolina will begin Monday, June 2. The two terms into which the session is divided are scheduled as follows: first, June 2-July 8 and, second, July 9-Aug. 15.

Kiwanians Hear Singer At Meet Last Evening

Miss Jane Fuller, East Carolina College student, sang three songs at the Greenville Kiwanis Club's supper meeting last night.

She sang, "If You Were the Only Girl in the World," "Somebody Loves Me," and "Danny Boy" for an encore. Mrs. Lena Tyson was accompanist. Eli Bloom had charge of the program.

Funeral Sunday For W. W. Woodard

Funeral services for Woodrow W. Woodard will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at Reedy Branch Rev. Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Henry Melvin pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in the Winterville cemetery.

Mr. Woodard died in Yokohama, Japan, January 24, following a cerebral hemorrhage. He spent most of his life in Winterville and was a member of the Intelligence Department of the U. S. Government. He was a member of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in Washington.

He is survived by his wife, the former Joyce McGee of Memphis, Tenn.; a son, Randall E. Woodard; his mother, Mrs. M. A. Woodard of Winterville; a sister, Mrs. John S. Carroll of St. Augustine, Fla.; and a brother, Donald A. Woodard of Winterville.

St. James Cancels Evening Service

The regular Sunday Night Bible Study of the St. James Methodist Church will not be held this week. Instead, the congregation is urged to attend the special Sunday Evening Worship service at the Jarvis Memorial Church.

"The newly rebuilt Sanctuary and Chapel of Jarvis Memorial is a structure of which all Greenville and all Methodism may be proud," St. James Pastor J. Malloy Owen declared last night in announcing the cancellation.

"Our Sunday morning service will be held at St. James as usual at 11 o'clock and Sunday Night Bible Study will be resumed one week from tomorrow, February 9 at 3:30 p.m.," Owen added. Sermon subject at St. James tomorrow morning is "The Meek," a study of Matthew 5:5, fourth message in a series of the Beatitudes of Christ.

Dahlias were first used as food by Mexicans. The flower contains a starchy food called inulin.

Familiar Tobacco Cycle Is Beginning To Turn Again

F. BROOKS TUCKER OF GRIMESLAND, RT. 1, FINISHED SOWING HIS TOBACCO BEDS THIS WEEK . . . scenes like this are common all over Pitt County. (Reflector Photos).

THIS IS HOW THE TOBACCO BED'S SITE LOOKED BEFORE PREPARATION . . . transformation requires time and much labor.

WORKERS PUT TOBACCO CLOTH ON THE LAST BED . . . one phase of their work in tobacco is finished until next year.

Pitt County soil, a way of life for hundreds of families, is again being turned.

Farmers, anxious for the smell of growing green tobacco or the plant's cured leaf, are taking to the fields. They are beginning another cycle and another farming year, planting tobacco beds.

These are the beds that in weeks to come will yield infant plants whose grown leaves are destined to be smoked by people around the world.

Tobacco, king of the money crops in this area, is again beginning its reign. A reign that will not likely end until the latter part of October and even later for some families.

For the farmer work in connection with tobacco is never really over.

Planting tobacco beds is just the first step. The plants must be replanted, grown, harvested, cured and sold.

Generally speaking most farmers in the past have had their tobacco beds sowed at least by the third week in January. This year due to inclement weather the farmer has been unable to get his seed safely into the ground.

With a break in the weather this week has been a busy one in Pitt County. Many farmers have taken advantage of the break and have finished planting their beds while others are almost through. However some others are just beginning.

Many clods of dirt have been dealt with. A rest period has ended for those who are servants of King Tobacco.

SHOVELING A DRAINAGE DITCH . . . water could damage young plants.

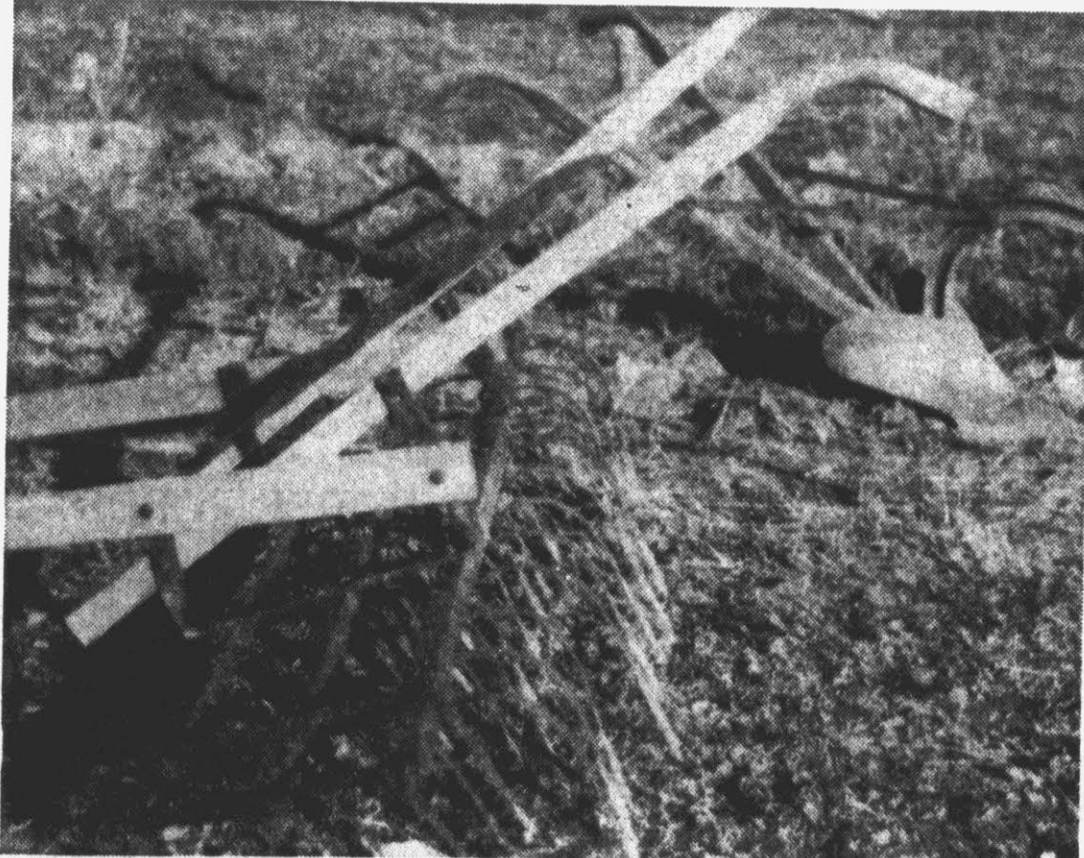

F. BROOKS TUCKER, LANDOWNER . . . he supervised the job.

BEDS MUST BE THOROUGHLY RAKED BEFORE SEEDS CAN BE PLANTED . . . soil should be free of troublesome foreign matter.

BEDS ARE ROLLED AFTER SEEDS HAVE BEEN SOWN . . . protection is provided for seeds that would freeze above the ground in winter weather.

A TURNING PLOW, A HARROW—THEIR JOB COMPLETED . . . these farm implements used for preliminary preparation.

WORKER LEVELS OFF THE SOIL . . . bed should be level for drainage.

CUTTING TOBACCO CLOTH OFF AT END OF BED . . . looks like it stretched a little since being used last year.

Preliminary Approval Is Given Frat

WHITE, RODDY JONES OF THE KAPPA SIGMA NU . . . they beam over significant telegram encased in glass. (Reflector Photo).

Last Monday was very significant for the 32 members of the Kappa Sigma Nu social fraternity.

This East Carolina College fraternal group received a telegram that read, "High Council voted preliminary approval of Kappa Sigma Nu petition. Congratulations. Letter follows." The telegram was signed by Richard R. Fletcher, Executive Secretary of the Sigma Nu national organization.

In reality the telegram meant that the local fraternity had received preliminary approval by Sigma Nu for national affiliation. The group is the first to receive such notice among the social fraternities at ECC.

President Charlie White stated his group sent in an informal petition for national affiliation approximately three months ago. "We have definitely committed ourselves to the national Sigma Nu fraternity," he noted.

In the event the local fraternity affiliates with Sigma Nu, it will be the seventh chapter in the national organization's Eighth District comprised of private and state colleges and universities in North and South Carolina. At the present time there are chapters at the University of North Carolina, University of South Carolina, Duke University, Presbyterian College and North Carolina State. White noted that a chapter at Davidson College will be formally initiated in April, with East Carolina College being next in line. Another North Carolina school is to follow White's group in the future, it was explained.

Famous Names On Side Of Law

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The names of famous badman Jesse James and famous jurist Charles Evans Hughes have been linked. But this time they're both on the side of the law.

A class at Southern Police Institute elected Charles Evans Hughes, Wilmington, Del., and Jesse James, Burlington, N. C., president and vice president of the class. Neither man is related to his class.

Assassination of President James A. Garfield in 1881 was by Charles Guiteau, a disappointed Federal office seeker.

Venters New Chairman Advisory Budget Body

RALEIGH (AP)—Rep. Carl Venters of Jacksonville is the new chairman of the Advisory Budget Commission. He succeeds Sen. Joe Eagles of Wilson who resigned. Venters was elected yesterday at a meeting of the commission. The group also approved several projects at state institutions. Eagles stepped down from the chairmanship when Gov. Hodges named him chairman of the Tax Study Commission. He will continue to be a member of the Budget Commission.

The commission approved "in general" a program submitted by the State Board of Education Committee for Expansion of Trade and Industrial Education. The 1957 Legislature appropriated $500,000 for the program.

The Board of Education plans to set up industrial education centers, which will offer an advanced curriculum in trade and industrial subjects. It was pointed out the courses will supplement high school training but will be below college level.

Among other actions, the commission: Approved salary increases for Revenue Commissioner James S. Currie and Nathan Yelton, executive secretary of the State Retirement System. Currie's pay was increased from $13,200 to $14,000, effective last Jan. 1. Yelton's salary was upped from $11,232 to $12,000.

Approved a $75,000 allocation from the contingency and emergency fund for the installation of a closed circuit for television instruction at East Carolina College.

Authorized the issuance of revenue bonds to finance construction of a girls dormitory at Western Carolina College at a cost of $475,000.

Authorized AIT College at Greensboro to set up a self-liquidating project for a girls dormitory to cost an estimated $475,000.

Granted the University of North Carolina permission to go ahead on a similar project for a $350,000 addition to the School of Nursing.

Pastor Leaving Farmville Post

The Reverend Z. B. T. Cox has submitted his resignation as pastor of the Farmville Christian Church, effective March 1, and will become associated with the clinical program of the National Council of Churches of Christ.

Cox, who has served the Farmville church for 12 years, will enter the Council's training program at Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta. The training period will continue for one year, after which he hopes to be assigned to a hospital as chaplain.

He came to the Farmville Christian Church following five years as an Army chaplain and has been a member of the Kiwanis Club.

A supply pastor will serve the congregation until the church calls a successor.

corner of Fourth and Elizabeth Sts. White stated his fraternity rented the two-story house some time ago although options have been obtained on several houses located near the college. Kappa Sigma Nu was the first local social fraternity organized at ECC, having been formed on Oct. 19, 1955. Since that time it has been active in campus activities. This year for the second consecutive year, the fraternity won first place in the Homecoming Parade float contest.

Officers for the current school year are: White, President; Lyle Cooper, Warden; Darrell Hurst, Secretary; Voyt Prichard, Treasurer; Billy Cozart, Social Chairman; and Harold Ruffin, Chaplain. Dr. James Steward, a member of the ECC faculty, is serving as advisor.

Interstate Commerce Is Bar To Enforcing Of Law

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's courts cannot enforce the so-called right to work law when an industry engaged in interstate commerce is involved.

The State Supreme Court said this in effect yesterday in handing down a decision in a Mecklenburg County case.

A group of labor unions at Charlotte appealed an order restraining them from picketing in a labor dispute with the Douglas Aircraft Co. missile plant at Charlotte.

The Mecklenburg Superior Court "was without authority to issue the restraining order," the Supreme Court declared.

Under the right to work law, no person may be required to join a labor union as a condition of employment.

Associate Justice William B. Rodman, who wrote the opinion, noted that the Charlotte case was similar to one in Tennessee with an identical situation. The Tennessee Supreme Court, Rodman said, "reached the conclusion that power remained in state courts to enforce its so-called right to work statute."

In an opinion last May, however, the U.S. Supreme Court reversed the Tennessee decision.

Rodman stated the U.S. Supreme Court, "having final authority to ascertain congressional intent has declared the law" and "upon that declaration of the law, the Superior Court was without authority to issue the restraining order."

Superior Court Judge J. Frank Huskins issued the restraining order. Following a hearing, Judge Dan K. Moore ordered it continued in effect.

In making his ruling, Judge Moore held that picketing in the Charlotte plant had been peaceful, but that it was intended to force Douglas Aircraft "to com-

Thoughtful Thief Had Light Touch

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Carl L. Whitman is looking for a thoughtful thief with a light touch.

Last December somebody stole a $7.50 string of Christmas tree lights from his front yard.

Whitman found the lights on his front porch Thursday night along with this penciled note:

"Dear friends:
"We are so indeed grateful of the fact that you were kind enough to let us borrow your tree light this Christmas. Our tree sure sparkled. Sorry we are so late in returning your lights; but just be thankful that you got them back (signed) Grateful"

Whitman welcomed return of the lights. But not this postscript: "P.S. See you again next year"

DANVILLE, Va. (AP)—Frank Allen Goff, 24, of Lynchburg got too excited at the wrestling matches here—and it cost him $10. Officers testified in Municipal Court Goff climbed to the apron of the ring and started a wrestling match of his own with one of the performers.

Queen Mother In New Zealand

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth of Britain landed at Auckland Airport in blazing sunshine today after a flight from Fiji.

Thousands of persons lined the route from the airport to Auckland town hall. The Queen Mother is beginning a visit to New Zealand and Australia during a six-week global tour. She left London Jan. 28.

The Kelly Clan Is Taking Over

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Hawaii (AP)—The Kelly clan is taking over the top jobs with the 27th Infantry Regiment, the Wolfhounds.

Col. John Kelly steps in to command the regiment Feb. 8. Standing beside him will be the adjutant Maj. James Kelly. And Woodrow Wilson Kelly is the outfit's sergeant major.

The Army said none of the Kellys is related.

U. S. Regaining Some Lost Prestige With New Moon

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States regained today with its orbiting Explorer some of the prestige it lost to Russia last October. But top officials acknowledged the nation still has a long way to go.

These officials said it would be foolish to underestimate the lead Russia holds as a result of its achievement in getting two Sputniks aloft months before the United States got its Explorer into orbit.

One of the early diplomatic results of last night's achievement may be a new U.S. move to press President Eisenhower's proposal to Soviet Premier Bulganin for an agreement pledging outer space to peaceful uses.

A new initiative on this proposal in the United Nations is possible, though no specific action has yet been decided on.

Secretary of State Dulles has suggested a U.N. agency might be created by East-West agreement to police a pledge to limit space missiles and space exploration to peaceful purposes.

Unless some such system is worked out, officials here foresee a long period of increasingly grim, costly and dangerous competition by the world's great powers for control of the skies.

As officials presently see the situation, the launching should strengthen this country's hand in negotiating with Russia for a summit conference.

There is no doubt State Department leaders were reluctant to approach a top level meeting so long as this country was completely behind in the satellite race.

Eisenhower and Dulles have insisted from the first Russia's ability to launch its Sputniks—despite implications of Soviet missile capability—had not upset the world's balance of military power.

But no one denied that it threatened to upset the balance in the future or that the diplomatic balance had shifted in Russia's favor and considerable damage had been dealt American prestige.

Part of the impact of Soviet successes on world opinion, authorities here say, was due to the fact that Russia had achieved spectacular accomplishments which many people had assumed the United States would take the lead in achieving.

When the United States finally did undertake its first effort to catch up by launching the Vanguard satellite rocket on Dec. 6, the operation turned out a highly publicized failure.

Authorities attributed considerable prestige loss to the failure because it raised doubts as to whether the United States was nearly as good in this field as people had assumed.

Meanwhile, the Soviets had followed up their satellite accomplishment with aggressive diplomatic action which quickly was tagged "Sputnik diplomacy."

This reached its peak in advance of the NATO summit conference at Paris in mid-December when Bulganin wrote European allied leaders warning against any agreement to base U.S. missiles on European territory.

In effect, Bulganin was making a bid for neutralism in NATO-Europe by implying that if the Europeans refused U.S. nuclear rockets they might have hope of escaping the devastation of any future great war.

In spite of worried public opinion in many sections of Europe's population the NATO Council voted that rocket bases and U.S. nuclear stockpiles should be established there. A showdown on the issue of which countries they should be established in was avoided. That issue is being negotiated by the NATO military command, but is still unresolved.

In replying to the Bulganin letter which he received, Eisenhower declared American readiness to go into an East-West summit conference if there was advance preparation and if this preparation gave good hope of successful agreements.

Despite considerable speculation that the United States is willing to soften these terms, high State Department officials insist there has been no decision to do so. They say a conference without careful preliminary planning and without reasonable prospects of success might make world conditions worse instead of better.

Nevertheless, officials privately concede that with the U.S. satellite in orbit they face the probability of a summit conference sometime this year with considerably less concern than they felt before the successful launching last night.

LATE MOVE
MORRISBURG, Ont. (AP)—At 91, Miss I. K. Farlinger is resigning to moving her home. The three-story frame house in which she was born, built by her grandfather in 1834, is being torn down as part of St. Lawrence Seaway work. She will live in a new bungalow.

Uncle Sam Making Use Of Easy Money Tide

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—Uncle Sam is taking advantage of the easy money tide to launch a less costly and longer term debt issue.

changes in demand and supply of money. As credit tightened and money became dearer last year in a move to check inflation, the yields on government bonds climbed and corporations and municipalities had to offer higher interest rates to lure the investment funds they sought.

time ago he was paying as high as 4 per cent to get needed funds, he is going into the money market next week with a package of offerings ranging from 2 1/2 per cent for one-year certificates to 3 1/2 per cent for a 32-year bond.

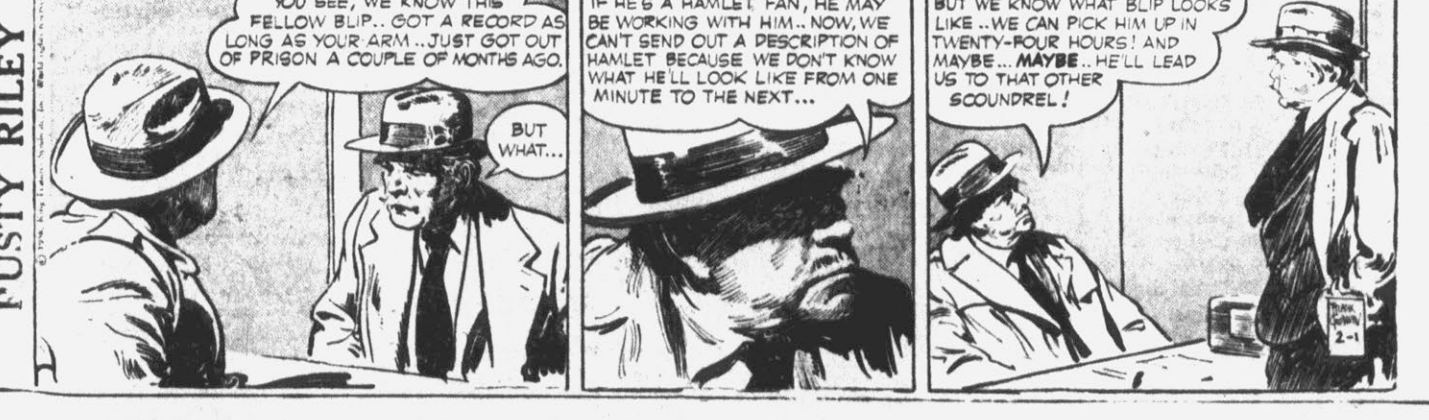

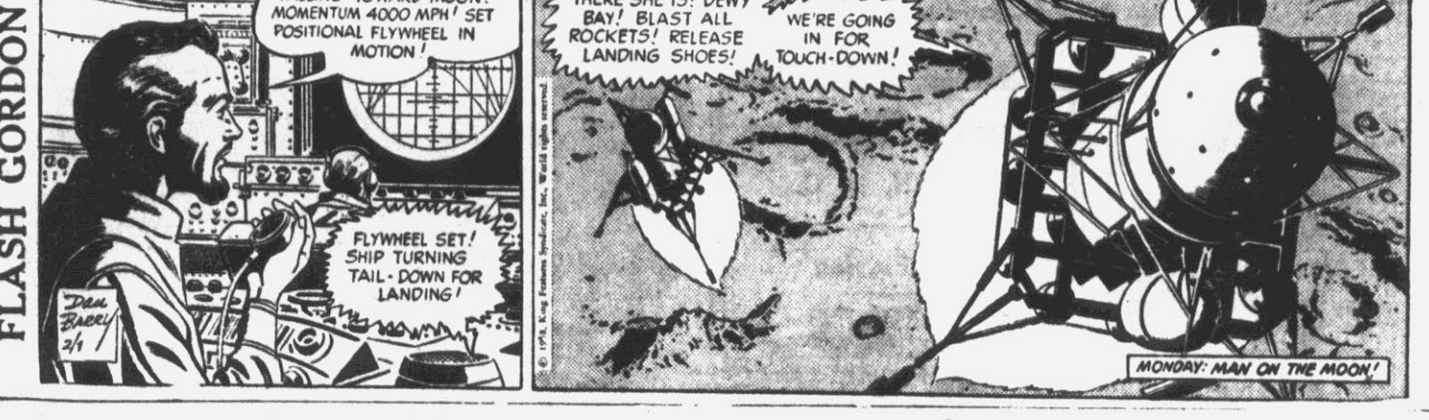

the Treasury has been waiting since 1955 for this chance really to stretch out the federal debt. It sold some 30-year bonds then. Demand by industry for funds has been so eager since that Treasury borrowing has been mostly short-term with a few medium-length bonds of around 10 years. Now it sees the time ripe for a 32-year issue.

must be refunded at short intervals. This sends the Treasury constantly to a fluctuating money market in search of funds—and for a couple of years its trips were always at the cost of steadily rising interest charges. Its total annual interest cost now runs around eight billion dollars.

Russia Ready To Discuss Control Of Outer Space In 'Package Deal'

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government has notified President Eisenhower officially that it will discuss fully the control of outer space as part of a package deal including the abolition of nuclear weapons and the reduction of armed forces.

man Leonid P. Ilyichev told a news conference today the Soviet government is ready to participate in a summit meeting based on either broad or restrict representation.

Department and the White House declined comment until the letter can be translated and studied.

Name Aldridge To Board Of Health

Dr. M. W. Aldridge of Greenville was elected to a four-year term on the Pitt County Board of Health at a meeting of the board this morning.

He succeeds the late Dr. F. E. Lamsche of Greenville and will become the board's representative of the dental profession.

Dr. Aldridge, a native of Vanceboro, has been active in Greenville's civic activities since opening his dental practice here in 1950.

He is a past president of the Greenville Lions Club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber of Commerce.

He is also a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, a former member of the church's Board of Stewards, and has been active in annual presentations of the Passion Play.

In civic work, Dr. Aldridge has held every office in the Lions Club, helped to organize a chapter of Demolay within the Masons, and has participated in membership drives of the Chamber of Commerce, Red Cross, Community Chest and Mental Health Association.

In 1956, when he won the Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award as Young Man of the Year, he participated in every project sponsored by both the Lions Club and the Jaycees.

He is presently serving as a member of the Board of Directors of the Merchants Association and

DR. M. W. ALDRIDGE

Other members of the Board of Health are Chairman Woodrow Wooten of Falkland, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners; D. H. Conley of Greenville, Superintendent of Pitt County Schools; Mayor S. E. West of Greenville; Dr. Charles Fitzgerald of Farmville; Snoddy Edwards of Ayden; and Vance Bunting of Bethel.

West Carolina In Blanket Of Snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Winter's heaviest snow blanket spread across North Carolina's mountain counties today, blocking and snarling traffic, forcing school closings, and causing countless minor accidents.

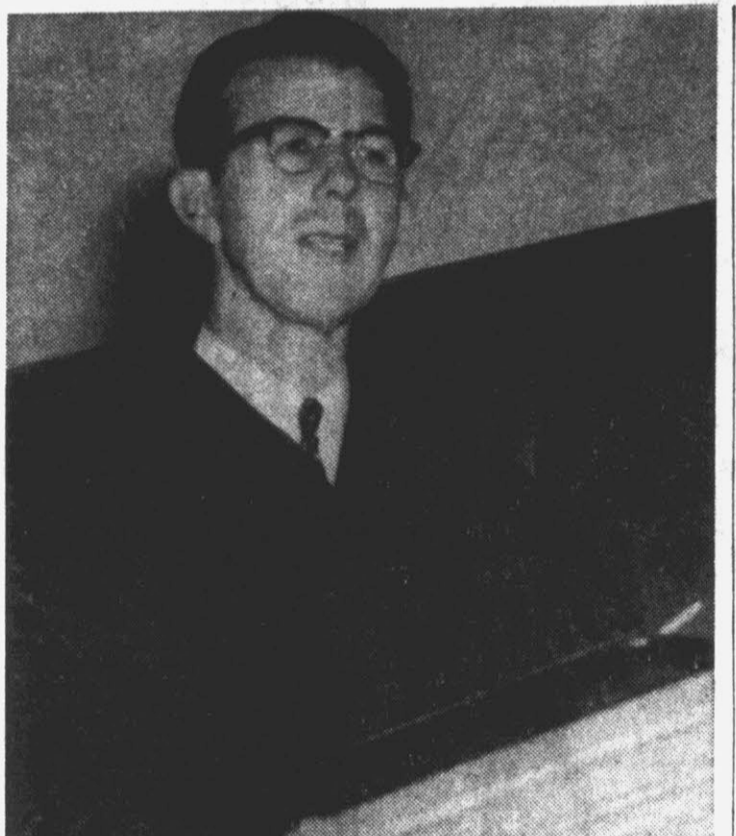

Snow drifts in a number of places were several feet deep. School sessions were canceled in at least eight counties.

The snow, which began falling Friday night was still thick and wind-driven in many areas late this morning.

Firemen fighting a Sunday morning hotel fire in Blowing Rock in 10-degree weather were almost helpless in combating the blazes.

Other snowfall reports included 24 inches at Maple Springs Gap, where drifts of six and seven feet were reported.

First Service Held At Remodeled Church

THE REV. W. M. HOWARD, JR. . . . delivers first sermon in re-constructed sanctuary.

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

"In the name of God and in the presence of this congregation, I now declare this church to be open for the worship of God and service of man," the Rev. W. M. Howard, Jr. said as first services were held in Jarvis Memorial's rebuilt sanctuary yesterday morning.

Nearly 1,000 members of the church's congregation and friends of the church attended first services in the more-than-doubled-length sanctuary.

The impressive ceremonies included an opening processional made up of the junior and senior choirs of the church and brought up by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Howard.

As the great new organ pealed out "Lead On O King Eternal," the processional entered the sanctuary from the rear with the choir singing the immortal words of the hymn.

Entering the altar portion of the sanctuary the two choirs took their places at each side of the altar. The congregation joined in singing the second stanza of the processional hymn.

"May it be a house of prayer of all people," the Rev. Howard declared in the church-opening declaration. "Upon you as a congregation there rests the solemn responsibility to see to it that all liability of a financial character resting upon this property be speedily lifted so that this church may be dedicated to God."

The opening services were not a service of dedication. According to the discipline of the Methodist Church a church cannot be dedicated until it is free of debt.

In his morning sermon, the Rev. Mr. Howard told his congregation: "The faith which you and I hold this morning is not of our making. It is rooted way back in years' past in our forefather's experiences."

"It is up to you and me to ground in the hearts of our children this faith that has come down from yesteryear. If we do not, it's going to die."

The minister said, "Here within these sacred walls are enshrined a lot of the experiences of you people. You might say they are not the same walls, but they are."

He pointed in the direction of the old portion of the sanctuary and said: "You will be able to say you were married right there or you were baptized there."

Members can connect the church building with events of 50 years ago and "if nothing happens it will be here 100 years from now."

He continued, "In days to come your children will hold it sacred because your hands have touched it."

But, the pastor cautioned, "Will you remember when you come in these sacred walls it is the House of God."

WORSHIPPERS ENTER JARVIS MEMORIAL . . . congregation returns after a year at Austin Auditorium.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles and Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson open today a survey of U.S.-Soviet relations and of chances for holding an East-West summit conference later this year.

With a new letter from Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin before them for study, they may develop a new U.S. challenge to the Soviets to undertake serious diplomatic negotiations for a top-level meeting.

Bulganin's 17-page letter, the newest in a series he has addressed to President Eisenhower, was delivered to the State Department yesterday. Both the State Department and the White House declined comment until the letter can be translated and studied.

At the same time, the department was informed that the new Soviet ambassador to this country, Mikhail Gromyko, is expected here Wednesday or Thursday.

These events, coupled with reports of a relaxation in earlier Soviet demands for a summit meeting before April, gave rise to speculation that Moscow may be ready for advance consultations through diplomatic channels.

An interview published in London last week quoted Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev that Russia was willing to wait a little while if the Western powers wanted more time.

Thompson, U.S. envoy in Moscow, came home for consultations last weekend. Dulles returned from a trip to the Middle East Saturday.

The United States, in launching its first earth satellite, recovered much prestige and strengthened its bargaining position with Russia, particularly in respect to proposals for outer-space control.

Commissioners Meet; Routine Items Taken Up

Routine business occupied most of the morning session of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners today.

Included in the business were acceptance of the Grand Jury report, approval of a road petition, drawing of two jury lists, appointment of a committee to investigate a report of damage by stray dogs, approval of investment of county funds in U.S. Treasury notes, and acceptance of monthly reports from department heads.

County Auditor H. Reginald Gray reported that minor repairs recommended last week by the Grand Jury had already been started and that others would begin as soon as possible.

The Grand Jury recommended the repairs at the County Home after an inspection tour.

The road petition which was approved and forwarded to the State Highway Commission calls for patching and hard-surfacing on a three-mile road in Chicof Township.

Jury lists which were drawn were for the mixed terms on March 17 and March 24. Each list contains the names of 48 jurors.

The claim against the Dog Fund was entered by J. L. Outlaw of Greenville who said the stray dogs killed a number of game birds owned by him.

Auditor Gray was given permission to invest $200,000 of county funds in 90-day treasury notes. The sum will be in addition to $200,000 which were re-invested after coming due in January.

Other business which was transacted include a reference to the resident Superior Court Judge W. J. Bundy, of a request from R. R. Cannon of Ayden that he be appointed a Justice of the Peace in Ayden Township.

Satterwhite, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Satterwhite of McCain, met his parents Saturday as he was being led to the courtroom for the hearing before Judge Stewart. He sobbed and collapsed.

Satterwhite later told the court she believed her son "didn't know what he was doing."

Satterwhite was a first year medical student at the University of North Carolina. University officials said he had a good scholastic record. His lawyer, John Manning, said his only previous police record was a speeding charge.

Police arrested Satterwhite Friday night in his dormitory room as the result of information given by Mrs. W. D. Carmichael Jr.

Scientists Hold Explorer Duplicate

Navy Preparing Vanguard For Another Space Effort

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy, beaten into space by the Army's Explorer satellite, was pushing preparations today for another try at getting its Vanguard vehicle aloft.

The 72-foot Vanguard rocket was visible at its launching tower at Cape Canaveral, Fla., pointing to a possible early firing attempt. But the Navy kept mum on its plans.

There was renewed talk of sending a rocket to the moon as the Explorer whirred through space on its mission of collecting and radiating back scientific information. The Explorer went into orbit Friday night.

Meanwhile, free world statesmen welcomed America's breakthrough, which some of them said should have a favorable influence on finding a formula for East-West peace.

Vice President Nixon said the American achievement "should have the effect of developing unusual support in world opinion" for President Eisenhower's proposal to dedicate outer space to peaceful uses.

Eisenhower made that proposal in a Jan. 12 letter to Russian Premier Nikolai Bulganin. A reply to that letter was delivered here yesterday, but its contents have not been made public.

Although there have been some congratulatory comments from Russian sources, one Soviet scientist noted that the 30.8-pound Explorer is much smaller than either of the Russian satellites.

However, the scientist, Kiril Stanyukovich, voiced the hope in a Moscow broadcast that "peaceful competition of satellites in the two countries will lead to enrichment of the world's scientific knowledge."

Eisenhower has said that all data collected by the Explorer will be shared freely with other nations, including Russia.

The Explorer, six feet long and shaped like a pointed tube, is sending back coded radio signals reporting on temperatures, cosmic rays and meteorites it is meeting in its 18,000-mile-an-hour journey.

Ernst Stuhlinger, chief of research projects for the Army Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., said it had been determined tentatively that the Explorer's egg-shaped orbit carries it to within 212 miles of the earth and to 1,800 miles at its outermost point.

Stuhlinger also said the American satellite is completing a trip around the earth once every 115-1/2 minutes.

The Army said a team of observers at Holloman Air Force Base, Alamogordo, N.M., had sighted the Explorer Saturday night. Word of this was relayed to Stuhlinger. Apparently referring to this same sighting, officials at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., said the New Mexico moonwatch team probably is the first to have spotted the Army satellite.

The Navy's Vanguard project, which had sole responsibility in the U. S. earth satellite program until November, failed in its first launching effort Dec. 6. Its rocket exploded on the launching pad.

A number of technical difficulties prevented another launching try last month. But informed sources at the Cape Canaveral test center said those troubles have been fixed.

These sources said the Vanguard rocket now has been repaired and is fully reassembled at its launching tower. They said the three-stage rocket probably would be ready for firing as soon as final checks have been completed and wind and other conditions permit.

In a launching tower nearby, observers could see a large rocket which they thought could be the first stage of another Jupiter-C, the type used by the Army in its successful launching of the Explorer.

Army scientists have said another Jupiter-C already has been prepared and will be fired sometime between now and April.

However, in Cincinnati, Secretary of Defense McElroy said, "I don't think the advent of the Explorer means any more acceleration of the earth satellite program. He said, "We already are emphasizing satellite and missile development."

Yemen Expected Join 'Republic'

CAIRO (AP)—The crown prince of Yemen was expected here today to associate his little medieval kingdom on the Red Sea with the new United Arab Republic of Egypt and Syria.

Student celebrations in the oil-rich sheikhdom of Kuwait, which is under British protection, called for that tiny area on the Persian Gulf to join the disconnected union also. The extent of Kuwait government support for the demonstration was not immediately apparent.

An Egyptian spokesman said Crown Prince Seif el Islam el Badr "will announce that Yemen will adhere to the republic."

Woman Slain At Roadblock In Hunt For Gunman

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP)—A woman was shot to death at a roadblock near here today as officers spread a new dragnet for an escaped gunman after his companion attempted suicide, and a kidnaped Missouri State Police trooper was freed, unharmed.

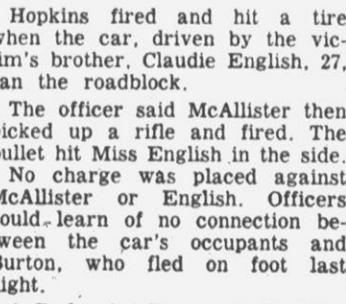

Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri officers joined in the new search for escaped gunman Carl W. Burton, 24, of Redwood City, Calif., after a tense 30-hour search for abducted Trooper William Little ended with his voice coming over the radio for his stolen police cruiser.

Miss Jewell English, 24, of Paducah, was shot when a car in which she was riding sped through a roadblock.

Missouri Trooper Vernon Hopkins reported she was shot by a civilian, Forest McAllister of Fulton, Ky., who was sitting in Hopkins' police cruiser.

Hopkins fired and hit a tire when the car driven by the victim's brother, Claudie English, 27, ran the roadblock.

The officer said McAllister then picked up a rifle and fired. The bullet hit Miss English in the side. No charge was placed against McAllister or English. Officers could learn of no connection between the car's occupants and Burton, who fled on foot last night.

He said he checked the men out and was about to let them go when he noticed the barrel of a gun sticking out of the back seat under a sack. He pulled off the sack and saw a sawed-off shotgun. At this point Burton pulled a pistol.

The men forced Little and Sheriff Snowden Dell, who was with him, to accompany them to a service station next door where they took $45 from the cash register, and were about to take a 19-year-old girl, Mrs. Evelyn Foster, as hostage.

Little said, "If you have to take someone, take me." They did, and left the girl behind.

The gunmen subsequently ditched their own auto and drove Little's police cruiser into Paducah, as police from four states, learning of the abduction, converged behind them. One of the area's biggest manhunts in history

Blonde Date With Murder

By WILLIAM F. McGIVERN

Geoffrey O'Neill, Chicago detective, responds to the fervent appeal of attractive Estelle Moran, to see her safely out of the city. In so doing, he unwittingly causes a friend to die and is himself clubbed senseless. The blonde disappears. Seeking an explanation of it all, O'Neill turns to an underworld stool pigeon for information.

CHAPTER V
After another silence, the voice said, "I can't help you. I don't know anything about it."
"Listen, Benny, and listen damn carefully," O'Neill said. His voice was sharp and low. "I want a line on Shapiro. And I want it quick."
"Are you crazy?" Benny said. "Or don't you read the papers? So does every cop in town. He's too hot to even talk about."
"You're going to talk," O'Neill said. "I'm in a bad mood. Somebody played me for a sucker and damn near split my head open. I don't feel good. I don't want mere double talk."
"You ain't got a heart, O'Neill. Coppers been buzzing around here all day and I didn't make a peep. Maybe they got the phone tapped now. What'll happen to me if I talk to you? And I ain't got no information anyway. Just because I'm in the same business with a guy don't mean I sleep with him. I haven't seen him in a week."

"This phone is okay," O'Neill said. "I know what I was doing when I chose it. And you know you can talk to me. I'll take care of you if there's any trouble. Now give me a line on Shapiro."
"Okay," Benny said. His voice was doubtful. "He's been chasing a broad for the last few months. She lives at the Fairmont Hotel on Wilson Avenue. He's kept her quiet, so his wife won't start asking for more alimony. She might know something."

"What's her name?" O'Neill said.
"Billie LaRue," Benny said.
"Thanks," O'Neill said.
"O'Neill," Benny said. "Do me a favor? Forget my telephone number. Pretend we don't know each other. I don't want to get mixed up in this thing. Let them hang Shapiro and get it over with. Why should they bother his friends about it?"

O'Neill grinned at the receiver without humor and dropped it back in place. He went outside the hotel and hailed a cab. He named the Fairmont Hotel and told the driver to hurry.
The Fairmont was a six story, brownstone building, with the name on a shiny black plate beside the entrance. A green canopy supported by shiny metal rods extended from the curb to the doorway. O'Neill paid the cab driver and went inside.

There was too much furniture in the small lobby, too many shiny metal ashtrays, too much perfume in the air. The gilt tables and tricky lamps only made it look worse. Like a prostitute with too much make-up on.

The pale young man behind the desk did not appear to consider O'Neill's bandaged head remarkable in a Fairmont guest or caller.
"I want to talk to Billie LaRue," O'Neill said.
The young man studied him non-committally.

"Is she expecting you?"
"No. What's her room number?"
"I'm sorry, but..."
"You'll be a lot sorrier in a minute," O'Neill said. He realized he was acting like some movie-writer's idea of a detective. But he didn't care. He was getting madder all the time. At himself and at everybody.

"Well," the room clerk said, looking uncertain, "I..."
"It's all right," O'Neill said. He was too tired to keep up the tough act. "I'm an investigator for the D.A.'s office. He took out his wallet and showed a card.
The clerk nodded and said, "It's room three-thirty."

O'Neill took the elevator to the third floor, walked about twenty yards along a carpeted corridor and knocked at the door marked three-thirty.
He heard light footsteps in the room, then a voice asked, "Who is it?"

"State's Attorney's office," he said. "I have to talk to you, Miss LaRue."
"Oh—" There was a pause, then the voice said, "Just a minute." Footsteps went away from the door, came back quickly. The door opened.

O'Neill knew about what to expect. The name Billie LaRue, the Fairmont Hotel and Eddie Shapiro all added up to a certain kind of girl. A girl with studied make-up and phony hair, white, shaved legs, and a mental outlook like a cash register. That was what he expected.

But the girl in the doorway was nothing like that. She was small, neatly built, with clear eyes and soft, natural looking hair. She didn't have any make-up showing and she looked worried and scared. She was the kind of fresh, wholesome girl you'd see on a college campus in the Middle West or behind a stenographer's desk in a reputable lawyer's office.

O'Neill took off his hat. She was that kind of a girl.
"May I come in?" he said.
"Of course," she said, and led him to a small living room that managed to look neat and clean, despite the furniture. There were fresh flowers on a table and pictures on the wall that he knew didn't come with the room.

"Do sit down, please," she said. O'Neill took the seat she indicated and lit a cigarette. The girl sat down facing him in a straight-backed chair. She was wearing a blue wool housecoat and blue slippers. She looked so young and clean that O'Neill felt embarrassed.

Finally he said, "You know about Shapiro?" He made it more of a statement than a question.
The girl nodded. "I heard it on the radio. But I don't think it's true. I don't think he killed that detective in the hotel. How did you find out I knew him?"

Her emphatic directness and poised grave O'Neill confused him.
"Let's go a little slower," he said. "When did you see him last?"
"Tonight," the girl said. "He was here about nine o'clock. He stayed about fifteen minutes, then left."

"You sure you haven't heard from him since the late news saying he was wanted by the police for killing a house detective at the Metropolitan Hotel. He hasn't been here and he hasn't phoned me," she declared, looking him steadily in the eyes.
"What's the set-up between you and Shapiro?" O'Neill asked.

"How did you get mixed up with him?"
The girl looked down at her hands and O'Neill thought she was going to cry. But she didn't.
"He's been kind to me," she said. "I know you think he's a murderer but I know better. Eddie isn't really bad. He's never had a break in his life that he didn't make for himself. His family threw him into the streets, he never had a chance to go to school, but he still has a better idea of right and wrong than most people. That's why I know you're wrong if you think he shot that man tonight."

"Well," O'Neill said, "let that ride for a while. How did you happen to meet him? You don't look like the type."
"My real name is Betty Nelson," she said. "I came from a small town in Michigan. I've only been in Chicago about three months. I want to dance and the agent who's helping me suggested I try another name. I met Eddie one night in a restaurant. We got to talking and he offered to help me in my career. He has. He has been wonderful to me. It may be hard to believe, but he's never tried to touch me. Which is a lot more than I can say for some pious young men I've met."

O'Neill smiled. "Watch the pious ones," he said. He knew how deceptive the conduct of mobsters could be sometimes. Real bad-bodys were nice to mothers and girls who reminded them of sisters. Eddie had apparently played the Galahad to Betty Nelson, and O'Neill realized that she'd probably been loyal to Shapiro regardless of what she was told about him. But he had to try. "Now look," he said. "Shapiro is in a bad spot now. He might get out all right, but don't do anything foolish. If he comes here don't let him in, don't even see him."
The girl smiled faintly. "Do you really think I'd turn him down now that he needs someone?"
"I guess you wouldn't," O'Neill said. He got up, put out his cigarette. "Can I use your phone?" The girl showed him where it

Growers Want A New Definition

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Wine by another name would not only taste as sweet, it also would bring in more money for Michigan.

That's the contention of the Co-operative Grape Growers of Michigan.

They want the Legislature to change the legal definition of wine in Michigan from "a liquid with an alcoholic content of up to 16 per cent" to "one made from any type of fruit by fermentation and not by distillation."

The grape growers say that out-of-state wines escape a 50-cent-a-gallon tax when they send in wine with more than 16 per cent alcoholic content.

Foreign tourists in Sweden can bring their automobiles duty-free for a period of one year.

Blinker Lights For Crossing

INSTALL SIGNALS—A Norfolk and Southern workman installs the concrete base for blinker lights at the railroad crossing on Memorial Drive. Warning lights are being installed in the islands of the four-lane drive and automatic gates are to be placed on each side of the road. The barriers will lower themselves to block the highway as a train approaches. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Big Snowstorm Moves Eastward

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A fast-moving storm spread up to six inches of snow in a belt from Nebraska to Illinois today and pushed toward the southern Great Lakes and northern Ohio Valley.

It was followed by a cold air mass which brought subzero early morning readings including 10 below at Devils Lake, N.D., and 4 at Rockford, Ill. Midwinter frost coated bare trees in the Chicago Area.

In the southern plains and along the Gulf Coast, it was windy. In West Texas, gusts of 50 m.p.h. blew dust from dry fields.

Mayan Indians achieved a high stage of civilization in Central America before the birth of Christ. Their temples were built mostly of limestone and mortar.
