Scouts Hold Annual Banquet

RECEIVES AWARD—Ashley Dail, Senior Patrol leader of Winterville Troop 200, receives the Attendance Award from Activities Chairman J. Knott Proctor, in behalf of his unit at last night's banquet. Looking on is O. D. Barnes, Scoutmaster of the Winterville Troop.

A SCOUT AND HIS FATHER . . . Vernon Cox of Winterville and his son Ted—point to future.

Pitt Scouts Hold Father-Son Event

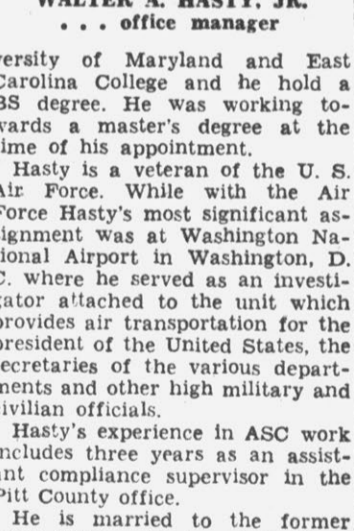

By EVERETTE PARKER

One of the highlights of the banquet was a quarterly Court of Honor, conducted by Charles H. Whedbee, District Scout Executive. Carl Knott, serving as a BS, assisted Whedbee who is chairman of the District Court of Honor.

Georgia Kluxers Seek Entry Into North Carolina

RALEIGH (AP)—A Georgia-based Ku Klux Klan group is seeking a certificate of authority to "conduct affairs in this state."

Assumes Duties In Pitt ASC

Walter A. Hasty Jr. has assumed his duties as county office manager for the Pitt Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, it was announced today by the ASC committee.

Percy Draws Prison In 'Contempt' Case

RALEIGH (AP)—An insulting threat to a Negro federal agent has brought the punishment of the law down on J. Percy Flowers, alleged bootleg liquor baron.

Flowers also faces trial during the two-week court term in Smithfield on charges of assault and liquor violations.

The contempt charge arose from remarks made Jan. 31 while Flowers and 13 other defendants were being tried on liquor conspiracy charges. This trial ended in a mistrial when the jury reported it was hopelessly deadlocked.

Suspend 644 In School Clean-Up

NEW YORK (AP)—The Board of Education's new policy of ousting violent students to protect the innocent resulted yesterday in the suspension of at least 644 pupils.

Allen said it was "very clear that there is present authority" for school authorities "to do what they want to do."

Flowers, who has had many brushes with the law over the years, served two prison terms. Many years ago he served a term in the Atlanta Federal Prison for assaulting a federal agent.

Pentagon's Outer Space Agency Is Now Shaping Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense McElroy has picked a boss for outer space projects and handed the new Advanced Research Projects Agency its assignment of developing weapons of tomorrow.

McElroy, replying to that question at a news conference, said: "In my judgment, the operation of manned flight vehicles seems very naturally to fall within the scope of Air Force responsibility."

McElroy said Johnson's salary has not yet been decided, that Johnson hadn't discussed the matter and that it didn't seem "particularly important" to Mr. Johnson.

Explaining the action is intended to give the Army greater field mobility, McElroy said it could be assumed the Army would not "stretch this out to get into a strategic mission."

Florida Cattle Suffer In Cold

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Florida is enduring its worst winter in history. It braced itself today for new assaults of cold weather on resort and farming industries.

$2 Million Atlas Missile Fails Finish Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A two-million-dollar Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) blew up after less than four minutes of flight yesterday.

Birthday Cakes Mark Seventh Anniversary Of Pitt Hospital

Visitors at Pitt Memorial Hospital today found birthday cakes, each with seven candles, at the main desk and at the nurses desks.

Patients whose diets permitted found a slice of cake with one candle squarely in the middle on their dinner plates.

Plans are being formulated now for an expansion of the building. Since the hospital first opened a total of 37,774 patients have been admitted.

WARD, DIETICIAN MRS. HARRIETT PAGE . . . cake served to patients on hospital's birthday.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG

In line with all the interest being shown in National Library Week—coming up March 16 to 22, in case you didn't know—we were interested in some of the figures in the current Publishers' Weekly about comparative figures in U. S. and England concerning the production of books. The grand total for 1957 in U. S. was 13,142 titles. In England the grand total was 20,719—which surprised us some, and made us wonder why a little place like England, with a population about one quarter of ours, should produce one third more books than we do. We guess it's the same old story—people read more over there than they do here. The National Library Week—and let's hope we can get more people to read more books so they'll get more educated, which certainly seems to be what we are needing, these days. . . .

HIRSHBERG

tinual references to royal families. Maximilian of Austria uses his beautiful daughter Margaret as a pawn in the political game of "marriages of convenience." Margaret's marriage career begins with her betrothal as an infant to Charles VIII of France, then to the son and heir of Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain and, finally, to Philip II, Duke of Savoy, her "true love." After his death, she ends her career as Regent of the Netherlands.

Miss Hill assumes her readers are familiar enough with the history of the period to recognize names and places, without any clarification or elaboration on her part. It appears that she wrote this novel mainly to display her knowledge of 15th Century history in minute detail and, in doing so, neglected to develop a plot. Her characters never materialize. Unfortunately, they fall to be characters; they are just names. The book is dull because it is obscure, though a devout student of European history might enjoy it. Perhaps Miss Hill could succeed as a history lecturer rather than as a historical novelist.

Debate in Back Bay

Back Bay—again in case you didn't know—is a section of Boston where Culture rules Supreme—or it used to, anyway. Biggest landmark of Culture in the Back Bay section was the Boston Opera House—note that we said "was." Our friend Mrs. Susie Webb called our attention this week to a tragic account in the Christian Science Monitor of the dismantling—nay, the wrecking—of the famed "Lyric Temple," where grand opera greets once sang their stirring arias to packed and glamorous houses. The last time we were there, if we remember aright, was back in the '30s, when we went—as a babe in arms—our parents couldn't get a sitter that night—to see "Hamlet" from the second balcony. We don't recollect much about Hamlet—the action took place about a mile away from our perch—but we do remember the Opera House, and we hereby are shedding a wistful tear for another glory that is passing—for the great Temple to Culture is giving way to an addition to Northeastern University—a new nuclear physics lab, no doubt. . . .

Alcoholic Father

In a couple of months Lippincott will be publishing a book called "Prodigal Shepherd," about a Catholic priest's triumph over alcoholism. The book was written, we're proud to tell you, by Al Hirschberg, our author brother, in collaboration with Father Ralph Pfau, whose experiences it relates. Of more immediate interest is that this account will run as a featured serial in Look Magazine during the third and fourth weeks of this month—so look for Look, and learn about how Father Pfau overcame his folly. . . .

Mishap at Harvard

Harvard is now hitting up educated—or uneducated—America for $82,000,000 to make much needed improvements to what we like to think is the country's foremost institution of learning. Through an unfortunate oversight, mailed solicitations to one hundred lucky Harvard Business School graduates contained nothing but a book—"Embalming Chemical Trade Name Directory"—which has little or nothing to do with getting money for Harvard. Here's the most mystifying entry under "First Aid": "If the Patient is Conscious. . . . Embalming fluid for Harvard, anyone? . . ."

Local Scene

Over twenty Greenvillians are slated so far to go over to Chapel Hill to participate in the World Affairs Conference to be held February 13, to be held under the auspices of the Federated Women's Clubs. Greenvillian to get in touch with if you want to join the fun: Mrs. Michael Luskin, who tells us the program will be terrific. . . . Watch future announcements for another Greenville Little Theatre show sometime this Spring (if it ever comes).

Today's Review

Mrs. Claude Garren, actress, writer, student, mother, contributes her comments on a brand new historical novel. . . .

HERE LIES MARGOT, by Pamela Hill, New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1958.

"This is a novel based on the life of Margaret of Burgundy, who knew all the rulers of Europe, and married three of them." This sentence, which appears on the jacket of "Here Lies Margot," aptly summarizes the contents. Margot not only knew all the rulers of the 15th Century; she knew their brothers, sisters, illegitimate children, parents, grandparents, and infirmity. In fact, Margot could be called a name-dropper, 15th Century style. Her three marriages are submerged under con-

Maintain Vigil Over 5 Victims

MUNICH, Germany (U)—Doctors kept a vigil today over five critically injured victims of Britain's soccer air disaster while investigators probed snow-covered wreckage of the plane that crashed Thursday, killing 21.

Physicians issued regular bulletins reporting "no change" in the condition of Manager Matt Busby of the Manchester United team and the four others.

But an intern said Busby smiled for the first time this morning and said, "I am feeling a little better."

The chances of survival remained at 50-50 for Busby, team forward John Berry, halfback Duncan Edwards, London sports writer Frank Taylor and copilot Kenneth G. Raymond. Nine others of the 23 survivors were in the hospital with lesser injuries.

Investigators trying to find out why the twin-engine Elizabethan airliner went down were hampered by steady snow. In addition to officials of the airline, British European Airways, German authorities probed the twisted wreckage.

The chartered plane, carrying the championship team home from a soccer match in Yugoslavia, hit a two-story house and a gasoline-filled shed just beyond the end of the runway on its third takeoff attempt from Munich-Reim Airport.

Seven of Britain's top soccer stars and eight British sports writers were among those killed.

The LIMITED...

There's a tingle of excitement in that word limited as long as we're describing a train.

But if we were speaking of the boy—describing the effect which spiritual neglect has on the development of the character of a child—that's a different matter! There's nothing thrilling about a soul that has been limited in its opportunity for religious expression and growth!

The churches of our community are here to give ALL our children religious training . . . to help ALL our families foster a spiritual atmosphere in their homes.

As we make use weekly of the opportunities our churches provide, the potential Christian growth of the child, the family and the Nation becomes UNLIMITED.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

NFL Conference Held; Tippy Returns Again

By MARTHA PIERCE
Reflector Teen Writes
Students from Kinston, Belvoir and Greenville assembled yesterday at 1 o'clock in the city courtroom for an interscholastic congress that was sponsored by the Greenville National Forensic League.

Tommy Mallison and Nat Van-Nortwick presented a bill on drag strips. Andrew Kilpatrick presented a bill advocating that the United States cut down on its foreign aid. Anne Briley had a bill about what should be done if the President becomes disabled, and Buddy Murray advocated that the American people should use jazz as a means of winning foreign friends.

Mary Alice Gibbs and Alvin Bass acted as pages for the congress. Jane Reynolds and Iona Jones were clerks and Naomi Gibbs was timer.

The student congress ended today at 12 noon. Out-of-town guests stayed in the homes of N. F. L. members.

Half-Day Holiday
Mrs. Pick's homeroom collected $111 for the March of Dimes and received the half-day holiday given to the homeroom bringing in the most money. William Landing's homeroom came in second.

Fashion Show
The Future Homemakers of America met Wednesday morning in the gymnasium for their regular meeting and a fashion show. Camilla Henderson modeled a sheath dress in the fashion show. Ann Green and Milly Overton modeled pajamas and a gown. Beverly Stator and Lois Tunnell wore skirts. Carol Gaskins wore a tweed coat, and Carolyn Mazingo modeled a Sunday sheath. Mrs. Rebecca Smith, home economics teacher, modeled a brown suit. All of the clothing shown by the models was made by them. Joanne Eagles was the narrator for the show.

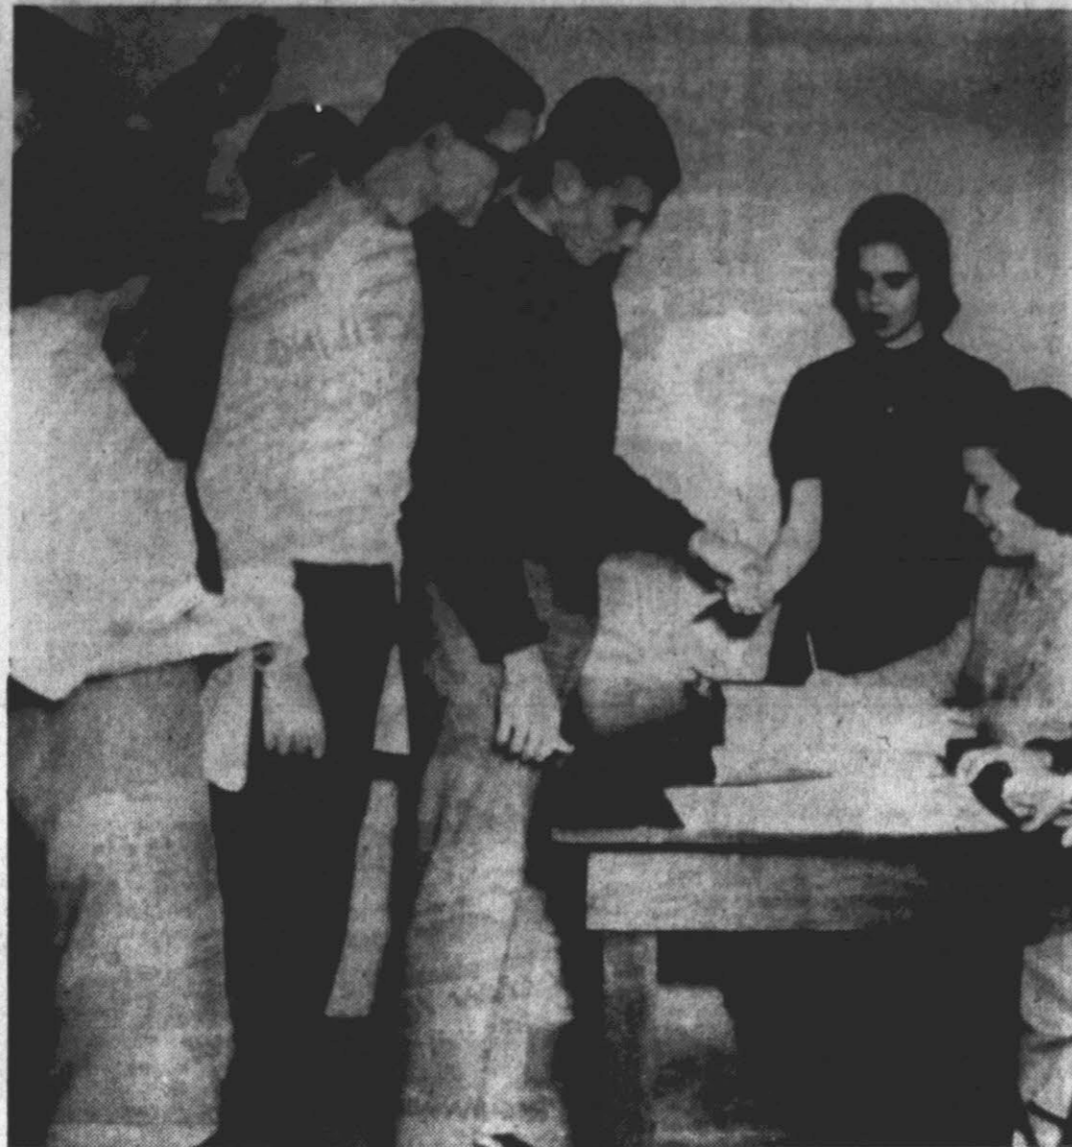

Parties, Trips
Julie Dodson and Linda Harris were hostesses last night to a semi-formal dance for about 90 guests at the country club. The guests were served punch, cake, popcorn, and peanuts.

Ginger Lang, Stuart Bost, and Margaret Ruffin were guests of Marietta Northrup last night for a supper and pajama party. The get-together was in honor of Marietta who is 18 years old.

Carol Tadlock and Martha Lee Moye left Friday to spend the weekend in Raleigh visiting Jeanne Moye and Doris Davenport at Saint Mary's College. Mrs. Howard Moye accompanied the girls.

Joyce Sutton is spending the weekend in Raleigh taking tests to enter Watts Hospital for her nurse's training. Ruth Young went to the Duke School of Nursing Thursday for interviews.

Four girls from Junius H. Rose went to a luncheon sponsored by the alumni of Woman's College of the University of North Carolina this morning. Dot Davis, Catherine Moore, Betsy Whedbee, and Martha Pierce went with Mrs. Howard Mims. Mrs. Thomas Davis and Mrs. Odell Weiborn were also at the luncheon.

APPROXIMATELY 50 STUDENTS attended the student congress Friday afternoon and Saturday morning in the city courtroom.

Godfrey Oakley and Bob Bilbro went to the Roanoke Country Club in Williamston Wednesday to be interviewed for the Morehead Scholarship.

Always Returns
Martha Lee Moye's cat Tippy, a little worse for wear, arrived home last night after being gone for six months.

During the summer months the Moyes usually take Tippy down to the river with them. On one trip, however, they left Tippy in Greenville, and they returned to find her gone. The Moyes presumed that the cat had gone to the river in search of them and would probably get killed.

It is a long way to Pamlico River where the Moye cottage is located, but several years before they had given the cat to a family in the country and she had walked the eight miles home in two months.

When Tippy returned Thursday night she had an infected bone in one of her paws which the vet said had probably been frozen. Tippy is now at the animal hospital where the veterinarian plans to operate to save her paw.

Jr. Woman's Club To Sponsor Spaghetti Supper February 20

Final plans for a spaghetti supper to be held February 20 at the Woman's Club were made when the Junior Woman's Club met for its monthly business meeting Wednesday evening.

Dinner will consist of a relish dish, rolls, spaghetti, coffee, ice cream, and cookies to be served from 5:30-7 p.m.

All tickets are available from members now. Some tickets will be sold at the door that evening. Persons are invited to dine at the club house, or take their dinner home.

Mrs. Gordon Goodman will represent the club at the annual World Affairs Conference to be held February 13 at Chapel Hill. Mrs. Herbert Wilkerson announced that 3,192 articles of clothing were delivered to the Welfare Department during the Fall of 1957.

The members voted to send contributions to the Eye Bank For Restoring Sight, Inc., and to the March of Dimes.

Mrs. T. R. Jones Jr. was appointed chairman to assist in the Red Cross Residential Canvas Drive in March.

Guest speaker for the evening of February 19 will be M. E. Cavendish, attorney, whose topic will be "The Importance of Making A Will."

Mrs. Eudelle Brown and Mrs. Bob Kittrell were presented as new members. Mrs. Joe Miller was welcomed as a visitor.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. C. T. Fleming Jr. and Mrs. Quentin Avery.

Miss Porter Feted Guest

Miss Sandra Porter, bride-elect, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the Eastern Pines Community Building Thursday night by Mrs. Harry Lee Stokes and Mrs. Rose Smith.

Wearing a light blue sheath dress, the honoree was presented a corsage of pink carnations to complete her outfit.

The hostesses, honoree, Mrs. J. L. Porter, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Rufus Mills, mother of the prospective bridegroom, greeted the 65 guests and invited them to the appointed table which was covered with a lace cloth.

Miniature wedding bells highlighted the table. From the all-white carnation arrangement centering the table wedding bells peeked out and each corner of the table was marked by bells. Mrs. Stokes served the fruit punch with lime ice while Mrs. Smith assisted in serving the guests mixed nuts, party sandwiches, and mints.

The hostesses remembered Miss Porter with a waffle iron-grill combination. Mrs. Smith directed the bridal games during the evening.

Goodbyes were said to the honoree, Mrs. Porter, and Mrs. Mills.

Public Invited To Tomorrow's Tea
The public is invited to attend a tea tomorrow afternoon from 3:30-5 p.m. at the Woman's Club when Miss Elizabeth Hyman will be honored and presented an Oscar by the Woman's Club for recognition as the Outstanding Teacher in the Greenville public school system for 1957-58.

Society To Meet
The Woman's Missionary Society of Immanuel Baptist Church will meet February 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the church. A business meeting will be held from 7:30-8 p.m. and a mission study will be conducted from 8-8:45 p.m. Miss Ruth Lasater, Baptist Student Union Director of ECC, will be guest speaker for the mission study.

30 Years Ago Today

February 8, 1928
Announcement comes from Tarboro that a delegation of its citizens will be in Greenville on the twenty-third for the public meeting to be held with government engineers with a view of making transportation on Tar River possible. As stated before, the present is probably the last opportunity we will have to secure water transportation to Greenville, and lack of interest in the matter at this time would surely make it much harder in the future even should the government again decide to take the matter up. Water transportation with its accompanying lower freight rates affects every business in our city and community.

Parental Role In Pre-School Training Told By Mrs. Wolff

"You may have tangible wealth untold, Caskets of jewels and coffers of gold; Richer than I you can never be: I had a mother who read to me."

With this poem Mrs. Helen Wolff, Elmhurst School principal, forcefully pinpointed her theme "The Parental Role in Pre-School Training" when she spoke to the Pickwick Book Club Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Tom Rowlette was club hostess at her home on Elm St. Flowering quince and evergreens adorned the living and dining areas.

Upon arrival the members and special guest, Mrs. Wolff, were served a congealed salad course with party sandwiches, nuts, and coffee.

Following a short business session, Mrs. Rowlette introduced the speaker of the afternoon.

Mrs. Wolff began her talk by discussing the two types of education, progressive and formal. She quoted recent newspaper editorials which indicate a strong swing back to the latter type of education. She maintained that effective teaching combines the good features of both.

Mrs. Wolff said that the parents can help the child make a happy and satisfactory adjustment to school. They can lay a good foundation at home in human relations. Children should assume responsibilities in the home, and parents should guide them in thinking through their own problems and questions. Consistent discipline, without anger, is important. A happy attitude toward work should be cultivated by example.

The speaker emphasized that a child should be given an opportunity to develop his creative abilities to the fullest. At this point, Mrs. Wolff displayed inexpensive educational toys which she had found by experience to be very constructive.

According to Mrs. Wolff, a child's powers of concentration can be developed by reading to him and questioning him on the content of stories.

She stressed the importance of parents beginning early to recognize special abilities and limitations.

As an aid, the speaker passed out mimeographed copies with suggestions for a good home for boys and girls.

Mrs. Wolff then used a Scottish Rite prayer as an effective closing to her talk.

A Valentine drawing and exchange of books concluded the meeting.

Couple Married Today Honored

Miss Margaret Fleming and Dan Morgan, who were married this morning at 11 o'clock at Immanuel Baptist Church, were honored last night by Mrs. G. H. Clapp and Miss Carolyn Clapp at a wedding rehearsal dinner held at Quenery Manor.

Upon arrival the bride-elect was presented a corsage of miniature white orchids which complimented her light blue satin full-skirted dinner dress.

The honored couple were also remembered by the hostesses with a dinner plate and a steak set in the bride's chosen patterns.

Each of the 14 guests was greeted by the hostesses and honorees and invited to the sun porch where a green and white color scheme was carried out.

Green place cards featuring bridal motifs marked each person's place at the appointed table which was covered with a white cloth and centered with an all-white floral arrangement of carnations flanked by burning green tapers placed in silver candelabras.

Of focal interest at each end of the table were miniature bridal couples tied to the base of single silver candleholders with white tulle. Burning green tapers were used at each end of the table.

Out-of-town guests attending the turkey dinner were Mrs. D. R. Morgan of Farmville, mother of the bridegroom-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Howard, Shelby Roebuck, and Bobby Darden, all of Farmville, and Dr. Ray Miller of New Bern.

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Clapp, Miss Clapp, Miss Fleming, and Dan Morgan.

Mrs. Starling Shows Slides At Mother-Daughter Banquet

The annual Mother-Daughter Banquet of the Future Homemakers of America was held Thursday night in the Winterville School cafeteria.

The room was appropriately decorated with the PHA colors, red and white predominating. The theme, "Mothers, the Heart of the World," was displayed across the back of the room.

The invocation was given by the Rev. E. G. Cole and was followed by a welcome to all by the president, Sandra Hunsucker. The following toasts were given: toast to mothers, Irma Sue Worthington; response, her mother, Mrs. Durood Worthington; toast to special guests, Pave Stokes; response, Van Jackson, F. F. A. president; toast to Miss Ailya Ray Taylor, advisor, Elizabeth Carroll; response, Miss Taylor.

"Bless Our FHA" was sung by Joyce Jackson.

After the dinner, the guest speaker, Mrs. Robert B. Starling, was introduced by Mary Ann Worthington. Many slides were shown by Mrs. Starling as she narrated her recent trip around the world.

The 12 PHA members recognized by Miss Taylor for their outstanding selling ability were: Joe Ann Hathaway, Gloria Cox, Betty Ann Hardy, Mary Ann Worthington, Willie Jean McLawhorn, Eliza Olive, Angela Tyson, Rose Avery, Sandra Avery, Margaret Jane Case, Dorothy Evans and Linda Fleming.

The members acknowledged for their eligibility for their Junior Homemaker Degree were: Rose Avery, Linda Fleming, Annette Haddock, Dolly Ann Harris, Mary Ellen Mills, Eliza Olive, Eloise Norma, Sudie Marie Sutton, and Norma Worthington.

Those eligible for the Chapter Degree were: Margaret Jane Case, Elizabeth Carroll, Shirley Churchill, Jo Ann Hathaway, Sue Elgin Hunsucker, Barbara Manning, and Mary Ann Worthington. Concluding the program, Shirley Churchill presented a red rose to various guests.

Approximately 165 members and their guests were present.

Potentially A Dangerous Action

Few times in the history of North Carolina has there been into law a more ludicrous, and yet a potentially more dangerous proposal than the plan for censoring literature offered for sale on newsstands of the state.

Passed by the 1957 General Assembly, the censorship law has meant little in the state simply because the officers who were given authority to enforce it have chosen not to. In the hands of an ambitious and unscrupulous small group of men, however, the authority of censorship which has been given the sheriffs of North Carolina could become a threat to the freedom of thought of the entire population of the state.

The law which was heralded by its proponents as a means of cleaning up the literature available to youngsters of the state has been rendered almost useless by its ambiguous wording. Some members of the North Carolina Sheriffs' Association have taken it upon themselves to provide their fellow officers with a list of publications which should be blacklisted under the law. For the most part, however, the sheriffs across the state have stood by the position that they do not have the qualifications to determine what the people of their county should see or read. In short, they are unwilling to set themselves up as censors. We admire them for their position.

After all, the law doesn't require them to censor material offered for sale on the newsstands. It merely gives them authority to do so if they desire.

We hold no brief for any of the blacklisted publications, or the other questionable literature which is offered for sale throughout North Carolina. We do list of publications which should be blacklisted under opinion are the best forms of censorship for sex and crime magazines and other questionable publications offered for sale in North Carolina.

So long as the present censorship law remains on the statute books of North Carolina it stands as a dangerous precedent, and poses a threat to the citizenry of the state. If, indeed, legal standards for reading materials are to be set by state law, some group more qualified than the sheriffs of North Carolina should be assigned the task of determining what is fit and what is unfit reading for the people of the state.

Few Signs Of Repercussions

By LYNN NISBET

REPERCUSSION — Reports filtering into Raleigh from counties throughout the state indicate that the recent Jefferson-Jackson dinner occasion had milder repercussions in political circles than many people had expected. There had prevailed before the dinner a sort of general belief that the political atmosphere might be clarified, that trends might be established, and that this or that candidate or faction might show decisive strength in the contest for control of the Democratic party machinery.

Despite a lot of conversation, confidential and otherwise, the exchange of ideas and hopes among supporters of potential rival leaders, the overall situation is as uncertain now as it was ten days or ten weeks ago.

Reaction to the main address delivered by Governor Leroy Collins of Florida is typical. Comments on this address range all the way from commendation as one of the most scholarly and appropriate speeches ever made at a J-J dinner in North Carolina (an appraisal in which this reporter concurs) to the criticism that it was a nice talk, eminently appropriate for a high school commencement but utterly inadequate as a party rally speech.

The county chairmen's conference failed to develop any real fighting spirit. The chairmen adopted a resolution asking for more representation on the state executive committee, and discussed without taking action their desire for more recognition in selection of members of county boards of elections and in connection with executive appointments to State jobs — administrative and advisory.

NEUTRAL — The county chairmen heard a short talk by Governor Hodges and gave him a rising ovation of applause. Then they adopted without dissenting vote a resolution commending State Chairman John Larkins for his cooperation and service. Yet every county chairman was fully aware of the lack of complete harmony between the Governor and the official leadership of the Democratic party organization in the state.

Treatment given the news story about the county chairmen's conference by the newspapers indicates the general attitude. Several papers headlined the resolution commending Chairman Larkins, while others featured the fact that Governor Hodges was applauded, Chairman Larkins criticized by the county leaders. The main point sought to be made here is that both headlines were justified by the facts, but that neither attitude was sufficiently dominant to indicate a definite trend in sentiment.

Right much the same kind of thinking developed with respect to relationship between the State and the National Democratic organizations. It is generally understood that both Governor Hodges of North Carolina and Governor Collins of Florida are "available" for a place on the National Democratic ticket, possibly for President, more likely for Vice President. Yet this was one of the few times in history of Jefferson-Jackson dinners that no representative of the National Democratic organization, except the North Carolina members of the national committee, were present. It is somewhat paradoxical that when the North Carolina Plan of Organization is being revised to include recognition of the national organization, no representative of that group showed up for the big money raising dinner.

CANDIDATES — Those who had hoped that the J-J dinner occasion might give impetus to the candidacy of some individual aspirant for Governor in 1960 were disappointed. There were a dozen or more potential candidates in evidence, and an even larger number of willing Larkinses who would not have to be hunted in hay stacks in event of a movement to draft them for the nomination. But if any of them gained appreciable boost or suffered appreciable loss in prestige, your reporter was unable to detect it.

There was in the conversation during the day of the dinner and in reports from over the state since clear evidence that a great many people are not happy with the prospect of having to select a Governor from the list of avowed aspirants. There is more than usual belief that this time the office should seek the man, and that the man should be one of proven ability.

Which gives significance to the comment of a politically minded business man from the Piedmont area, who has had considerable influence in selecting nominees for high office in the past. He was talking in the hotel lobby with your reporter when Hunt Parker, associate justice of the State Supreme Court, walked by. "There's the man I would like to see in the governor's office," he said. "And if somebody can persuade him to run, I will underwrite his campaign expenses."

Judge Parker, now 66, has a record of legal, legislative, military and judicial service of more than 40 years — without ever losing an election in which he was a candidate. He served as solicitor of the third district for nearly nine years, as resident Superior Court Judge for 20 years and as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court since November of 1952.

Growing Pressure To Take Realistic View

Governor Hodges' plea to the President to retain 90 per cent parity supports for tobacco and other basic agricultural crops adds weight to the rapidly mounting pressure for the Republican administration to look more realistically at the nation's farm problem.

For the welfare of the farmer and the national economy as a whole, it is imperative the present administration take a more realistic view of the agricultural problem than it has since coming into power. Agriculture, though it has suffered economically in the past several years, is still an important segment of the national economy. It is in a very real sense the backbone of the nation's economic well being.

If agriculture is allowed to suffer while other segments of the economy feast on defense contracts and federal spending, there can be neither balance nor soundness in the nation's economic structure. As surely as agriculture is allowed to sink to depression levels, the rest of the nation's economy will follow the same downward course.

Gov. Hodges in his telegram to the President pointed out that 66 per cent of North Carolina's farm income is derived from six basic price-supported crops. He also has pointed out that tobacco farmers have made continual sacrifices to keep their products in line with demand as nearly as possible. They have not flooded the markets with negligent overproduction to dig deeper into Uncle Sam's pockets. They have carefully abided by acreage controls as a part of their obligation for receiving price supports for their crop.

We trust Congress will have the wisdom to resist the administration's recommendation that authorization be given for reducing price supports to as low as 60 per cent of parity.

Advance Peek Into Business

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are more business look-aheads, based on analyses of current trends, deductions from recent developments and occasional bits of advance information:

Costlier fine cigars. About half of the Cuban crop of fine wrappers has been destroyed by weather and disease; rebel activity may ruin more. This will force up prices of brands using Havana wrappers.

More passed dividends. Many other corporations with adequate earnings are considering skipping dividends in order to have cash on hand for eventualities. One eventually may have in mind: a chance to buy a distressed competitor at bargain prices.

Plenty of apples. Government surveys see shortages of oranges, grapefruit and pears for the rest of the year, with consequent higher prices. Apples are abundant, inexpensive.

MORE PORK, NEW HOUSEWARES

Abundant pork. The spring pig crop may be 6 per cent higher than a year ago, and, with cheap corn available, the ultimate pork production may rise more than that.

Cheaper plastics. A new method of injection molding for plastics, known as the "value gating method," is said to reduce cost of plastic housewares and industrial items by 25 per cent. W.R. Grace & Co. is licensing manufacturers to use the method.

Still more oil cuts. Those cuts in fuel oil prices, long predicted here, have taken place, but others are still to come. Inventories have been increasing and demand slackening despite previous price cuts. There may be still another winter cut in gasoline prices in some regions because of the lag in the spring pickup.

More tax-cut clamor. While a general cut in income tax rates may not come unless the slump gets nasty, there's strong sentiment in Washington for helping small businesses. Any recession quite naturally hits weak businesses first, and these are usually the small ones. Those being hit right now are crying for help and their political friends are talking up tax concessions—though goodness knows what benefit a tax cut will be to firms losing money.

LOVE THOSE CANS!

New pushes behind canned foods. The food-canning industry has come to the realization that it has been letting food freezers gain a tempo on it. Many packers will step up promotions during the year, with some emphasis on the fact that there are fewer seasonal fluctuations in canned food prices and almost no seasonal shortages.

New cigarette sales record. The cancer scare is subsiding; filters seem to offer assurances to those who demand them. Meanwhile, business jitters are affecting many, causing them to reach oftener for a cigarette. These factors, added together, may total the biggest year in cigarette sales so far, with a total of 450 billion ciggies sold.

Bagasse hardboard. An economic problem of the tropics may be near solution: a new process promises many new commercial uses for bagasse, the sugar cane fiber. In Cuba, a new plant is about to produce hardboard, softboard for insulation, medium-density board for furniture uses, and simulated tile and grain-wood board, all from bagasse. The unit has been built by The Girdler division of National Cylinder Gas. If successful, it will provide a market for a material now usually waste.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THESE BASIC PRINCIPLES

The physicists tell us that the physical work is built out of ninety-two elements. These are the building blocks out of which everything capable of being seen, touched, heard, or in any way experienced is made. These ninety-two elements lie at the basis of the whole of natural creation.

There are basic moral principles also which undergird life. We may very well call these principles the building blocks upon which superstructures rest. The basic principles of honesty, fair dealing, purity, love, courage, and faith are the building blocks out of which every-day living is made and upon which the superstructure of life must be built. If we do not build on these, we build upon the sand.

One of the most demoralizing sights is a genius without moral character. There are few geniuses in the world, but often we see people of remarkably fine capacities who spoil everything for themselves and every else by weaknesses of moral character. They are unreliable. They cheat and cut corners. They cannot be trusted to live upright, moral lives. They are hard and unfeeling. Nothing makes up for deficiencies of this variety.

The basic principles out of which we make life and upon which the superstructure of our genuine achievement must rest are few and simple. But they are basic.

Pipe-Smokers To Arms!

Every time I see a tobacco industry report my sunny disposition takes a nosedive.

It isn't because of any concern for growers and sellers of the flue-cured stuff; for cigarettes are obviously here to stay. Rather, this is a personal matter: pipe tobacco sales keep going down and down... there seems to be no bottom (until they get to me).

If you were a dyed-in-the-wool pipe smoker (and odds are, you aren't), long ago you settled on one particular brand of tobacco. It may have been you liked the fragrance; to it was the flavor; or it was just strong enough; or perhaps the cut smoldered at just your speed.

Anyway, you settled on one tobacco and all others were just substitutes until you could get the mixture you wanted.

With the passage of years the pipe and that one tobacco brand have become the big consolation of living in this vale of tears. Then you learn pipe tobacco sales are slipping; with mounting concern the smoker sees year-by-year declines in pipe tobacco demand.

Glumly it is recalled that when sales of certain commodities or brands get to an unprofitable low point, that item is taken off the market.

This presents a problem for the future.

Other Editors Saying --- Explorer Is Not All

(Henderson Dispatch)

The space object Explorer which the United States has just put into orbit around the earth has lifted morale immeasurably in this country and elsewhere in the free world. But let no one for a moment suppose this is the answer to our troubles. We are by no means out of the woods; we're only beginning to see some light. The full brightness of day has not dawned yet, and may not burst in full brilliance even with the score or more of such objects in the formative stage, nor with the reaching of the moon, if that should be achieved.

Moscow sent a message of congratulations. But that was probably more a gesture aimed at quieting nerves and lulling us into complacency than a sincere satisfaction with this scientific triumph. Russia can well afford to speak thus after having been herself the first to perform this unrealistic and almost inconceivable feat.

There is no letup on the part of the Communists in the effort to get ahead and stay ahead. Even now, according to the current U. S. News and World Report, they are making intricate, and well laid plans to strike the first blow in the destructive and devastating missile conflict the Kremlin is relying upon as the means of mastering the world.

So convinced is Washington that this is the Soviet strategy that grave concern is felt in official circles over potential events of the not too distant future. Moscow strategy is that of surprise. Strike the first blow, and then, if enough is left here for retaliation, be prepared to ward it off when it comes. All the odds are on Russia's side. They know the United States will not initiate the destruction, humanitarian as it is. They can wait for good weather, then send off the missiles in sufficient numbers and with enough power to paralyze as many American cities as possible. Russia has the tremendous advantage of absolute secrecy. If an experiment fails, the world knows nothing about it. Only the successes are revealed. Here in America, if the skies are cloudy, if a bolt drops out of place, or if there is abject failure, as with Vanguard a few weeks ago, not only America but all the world knows about it in a matter of minutes, or at least hours. We parade too many of our secrets to all onlookers. Then suffer as the result.

This is where we stand as of today. This is our great handicap. It is the mortal peril that confronts this country.

Success of the Explorer is not all. It is scarcely more than a firmament of hope and encouragement. Whatever of triumphs may follow, a strategy of desperation could be the logical answer. And progress has not moved to such a status as yet to permit of that. But the answer could well be one of survival, of defense, of self-preservation. The world situation is as delicate as that just now. To view it as such is not panic but stark realism.

Geneva Spirit Is Over

By ROY ESSOYAN

MOSCOW, (AP) — It may be a reflection of the times, but the Russians have revived a violently anti-American ballet, "The Red Poppy."

It stars Russia's aging prima ballerina, 47-year-old Galina Ulanova, in the role of Tao Hoa, a young and beautiful Chinese dancer and friend of the suffering Chinese masses.

The masses, from a Communist point of view, are suffering because the setting is China in the '20s, long before the country's so-called liberation by the Communists.

Despite her age, Ulanova is still as light and graceful as a feather — when she's dancing. But except for a few brief and breathtaking sequences, Ulanova has little time for dancing in "The Red Poppy."

She's too busy registering loathing and adoration in doses more appropriate to a burlesque stage than the ballet.

The loathing is directed against the villains of the piece, an American with the interesting name of "Mr. Boss" who is described in the synopsis as one of the foreign "masters" of China, and his obsequious reactionary Chinese henchman, Li Shan-fu.

The adoration is beamed at Ma Li-chen, a wharf coolie turned labor leader and revolutionary, and a Soviet sea captain, the holds of whose ship are bulging with grain from the emancipated workers of Russia for the downtrodden coolies of China.

The "ballet" has been in storage since the Geneva summit conference of 1955, which is not surprising. It's not in the "Geneva spirit." Its spirit, if anything, belongs more to the Sputnik or rocket age.

The "ballet" opens with a dock scene, showing burdened coolies unloading heavy crates marked "cigarettes" under the lash of brutal overseers.

One coolie, exhausted and starving according to the synopsis, stumbles and falls. His crate bursts open revealing — not cartons of cigarettes — but American rifles.

The workers immediately declare a protest strike. At this point a Soviet merchant ship, complete with red banner proclaiming Soviet-Chinese friendship, pulls into the harbor.

The ship provides a startling backdrop to several ballet scenes, but then the ballet scenes themselves are somewhat startling.

Creating maliciously, Li, the reactionary Chinese henchman, informs the Russian sea captain his grain cannot be unloaded because the coolies are on strike. The sea captain brushes Li aside, orders his own crew to unload the ship — and Soviet-Chinese friendship is born.

As a token of this friendship, the sea captain gives Tao Hoa, the beautiful dancer, a huge red poppy.

From a propaganda point of view the poppy, symbol of China's opium scourge, was an unhappy choice as a token of Soviet aid to China.

The producers of the current revival have apparently realized this because the ballet is now called simply, "The Red Flower." All reference to poppies has been deleted.

There are many more high-links before the curtain comes down on the three-act, 13-scene ballet — dream sequences of the bright Communist future ahead, sketches of the "Charleston" from a bawdy foreign nightclub, a poisoning attempt, riot scenes, scenes of the "foreign masters" fleeing and, finally, the revolution.

The last scene brings all hands on deck and all the coolies onto the dock, fists uplifted in victory. The backdrop of the giant stage at the Bolshoi Theater is filled with a giant red flag, probably the biggest, reddest flag displayed on any stage, any time.

Opinions In Brief

"Let us tell our congressmen that, beginning now, they can gain more votes by devotion to their national responsibilities than by pleasing little pressure groups at home. Let us tell them their political future rests more in the ability to save money for vital expenditures than to get a little dribble back to us from the pipeline of taxes we are sending to Washington."

Zaroubin's Machiavellian Move

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — "Why," asked Mrs. T. L. of Miami, Fla., "did the Russian Ambassador, Zaroubin, call on Vice President Nixon and Harold Stassen before his departure for Moscow? Why didn't he pay his respects, as is customary, to President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles?"

Answer — Zaroubin, in Washington's opinion, set out deliberately to raise the question which Mrs. T.L. has asked. His was a trouble-making stunt, and typical of the Communists. His strange farewell visitations reflect, too, the fact that the new regime at Moscow, Khrushchev and Bulganin, are far more cold, calculating and shrewd than Stalin was.

Had he submitted his request in time, Zaroubin could have seen both President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles. But he deliberately withheld his bid for an interview at the White House and the State Department until it was too late for him to be received by the President or the Secretary of State. Therefore, he should have left Washington quietly and diplomatically.

SOVIET TRICKERY Instead, he chose to visit the two most controversial figures at the Capital and in the Republican Party. Zaroubin's was a Machiavellian move.

As the prospective Republican Presidential nominee for 1960, Vice President Nixon had both supporters and enemies within the GOP. By his visit, Zaroubin helped to increase Nixon's stature, but also to foment controversy within the Republican ranks.

In effect, the Russian Communist helped Nixon with his friends, who regard the visit as acknowledgement of the V.P.'s importance. But Nixon's opponents will use the tete-a-tete against him.

QUEER RUSSIAN DIPLOMACY Zaroubin's Vice Presidential visit has another ironic aspect. The Russian Ambassador apparently did not know that it was the Californian, then a Member of the House, who tracked down Alger Hiss as a Communist courier. Of course, if Zaroubin did know of Nixon's role in that tragic affair, the fact makes his visit to the V.P. all the more puzzling.

There is, of course, no explaining his call on Stassen, who has been so reviled by Communist delegates at the disarmament conferences, where the Minnesotan showed up as President Eisenhower's expert on this problem. Stassen is no longer an important figure at Washington, and he may soon be dropped as a member of the official team.

MUDDLED COMMUNIST THINKING However, like Nixon, whose renomination he tried to block in 1956, Stassen is also a controversial and disturbing figure within the Administration and the GOP.

He is campaigning for the gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania, hoping that a victory will qualify him for a 1960 or 1964 Presidential nomination.

But, the Keystone State political bosses have no use for him, and will not accept him.

In view of these Nixon-Stassen considerations, it is quite obvious that Zaroubin was simply trying to make trouble. There is no other explanation for his diplomatic and political shenanigans.

PRESS PRODDING MAY HAVE HELPED LAUNCHING OF EXPLORER Washington writers' notes K.G., of Waterbury, Conn., "have been having a field day in criticizing the Administration for its lag in launching a satellite. What do you say now?" Answer: Our "field day," as well as general national and editorial concern over our technological delinquencies, may have prodded the Administration into more intensive activity in this field. I think that there is no question of the effect of adverse publicity on this problem. I will say, however, that the success of "The Explorer" has lifted our chins and hearts, including Washington columnists'.

G-Men Whip R. Rapids 71-60 For Sixth Loop Victory

Three Phantoms Hit In Double Figures To Lead

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Greenville's sharp-shooting Rose High School Phantoms took an early first quarter lead over Roanoke Rapids here tonight and carried on to an impressive 71-60 victory over the Yellow Jackets.

The win gives Greenville a 6-2 record in the Northeastern Conference standings, and secures them in second place.

Three Phantoms scored in the double figures to pace what Coach Bo Farley calls "one of our best games of the season." Francis (Peanut) Nunn sank eight field goals and five free tosses to lead with 21 points. Dick Evans added 14 and guard John Wesley Hudson threw in 10.

The rebounding of Steve Noble, Mack Roebuck, and Nunn kept the G-Men in possession of the ball throughout the game and made it possible for the Phants to keep a continuous edge over the hosts.

Slow Start
Roanoke Rapids started the first field goal to take a 2-0 lead, the only time during the game they headed the Phants. Steve Noble dashed in six quick points and Nunn added five to move the visitors ahead and they stayed there throughout the first period. At the end of one quarter, it was 12-14.

The Yellow Jackets roared back on the shooting of Reid and Ingram in the second quarter to whittle the lead to within two points, but Greenville was moving into high gear. Nunn fell into a hot streak that resulted in 11 points during that period, and Mack Roebuck helped with six to put Greenville back ahead by a long margin. At halftime, it was 43-28, after a 25-point second period by the visitors.

Jackets Rally
Paced by Reid, Matthews, and Zuker, Roanoke Rapids rallied in the second half, throwing in 19 points in the third period, while holding the Phants to 16. But the Green lead was too big to whittle down to the danger mark.

Nunn, Evans, and Hudson scored all but three of their team's points in that third period, to keep the Phantoms ahead.

In the fourth period, Coach Bo Farley practically cleared his bench and used many of his reserves. They managed to net 12 points, while the Jackets did little better at 13. It ended 71-60, an eleven-point spread.

The game left Roanoke Rapids with a 3-7 league mark. They are ranked one notch above Elizabeth City, the bottom-placed club. Coach Bud Phillips' junior varsity club took a 63-40 licking from the Baby Yellow Jackets in the preliminary. Leading scorers for the losers were Charles Tart with 11 and Irky Duff with 12. King got 21 for the hosts.

Next game on the Greenville card will be played at Jacksonville Tuesday night.

Lopes Is Happy Over TV Triumph

By BOB POWELL
SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Joey Lopes was a happy little boxer today, not necessarily on the basis of his 10-round performance against Cuba's Damaso Collazo last night, but because he scored his first television triumph.

"It was the happiest moment of my life," the lightweight said after scoring a unanimous decision over Collazo.

"That was my eighth television bout and it was the first I ever won.

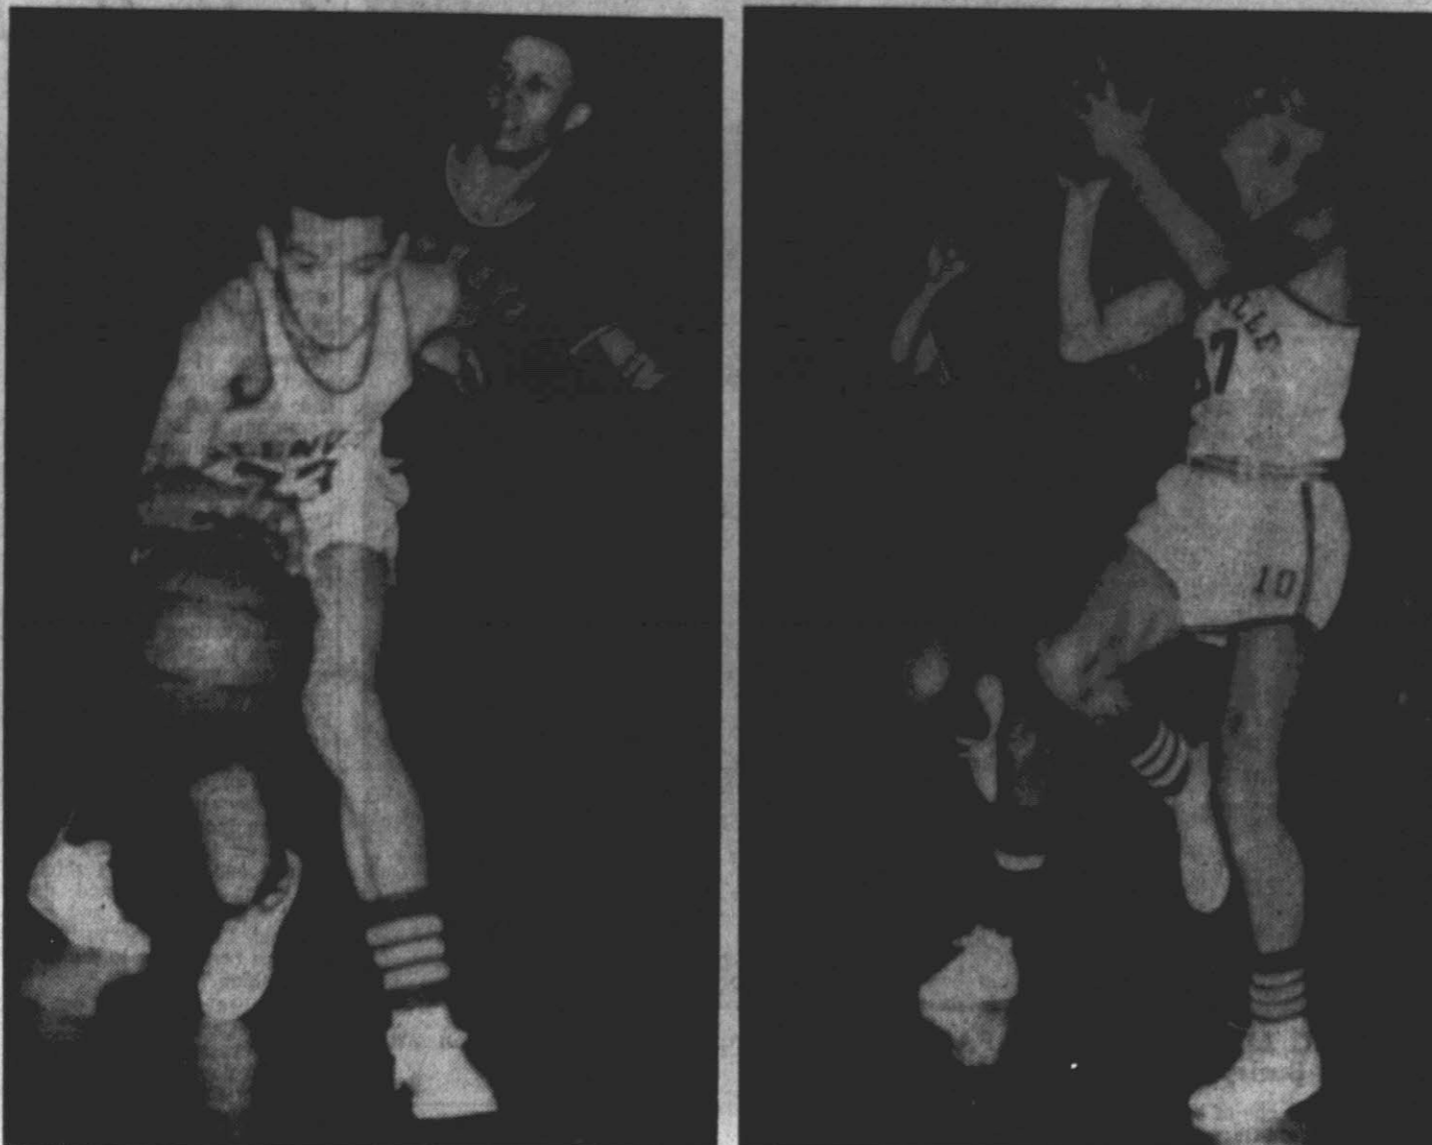

The 5 foot 5 slugger said he was hopeful a match could be arranged in March with Paolo Rosi, ex-Italian lightweight champion, who was to have been Lopes' opponent last night. Rosi was scratched because of an injury.

The defeat was the first in the last 16 outings for the Cuban. He has a record of 42 victories, 10 defeats and two draws. Lopes' record stands at 43-14-3.

The smallest fight crowd in the War Memorial's history, 784, paid $1.376 to watch the dull affair. Judge Harold McGrath scored it 6-3-1. Judge Dick Albino saw it 7-3 for the Sacramento, Calif., resident. Referee Joe Palmer scored it 6-2-2 and The Associated Press had Lopes winning, 8-1-1.

SKATER HURT

LONDON (AP)—Peter Firstbrook of Toronto, one of the stars of the "Winter Wonderland" ice show at Wembley, was slightly injured while skating.

GET IT, WESLEY . . . Greenville's Hudson goes after a loose ball in last night's Northeastern Conference tilt at Roanoke Rapids.

WILKERSON SHOOTING . . . Don missed, but his club took a 70-61 win from the Yellow Jackets to move the Phantom record to 6-2.

Norris And TV To Experiment

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP)—A hint of things to come can be seen in the new agreement between Jim Norris, president of Madison Square Garden, and the International Telemeter Corp. for experimental pay-as-you-see TV.

At the present, this is strictly an experiment. A group of men in a Chicago hotel room will watch a fight from the Midwest Gym in Chicago on Tuesday night. The Telemeter or coin-in-the-slot system will be used.

The agreement between Norris and the TV system is supposed to cover "important programs not now shown on free TV such as amateur basketball games, ice shows, the circus and others," according to the announcement.

Norris stated the experiments would not interfere in any manner with the regularly scheduled Wednesday and Friday fights shown on free home television.

But Champion, publicity director for Paramount Pictures of which Telemeter is a subsidiary, said a "sample town," probably in the Midwest, would be set up "very soon, perhaps by June" to test the system. Movies and local sports programs would be used, he said.

Champion said the system transmitted its pictures by wire and claimed approval by the Federal Communications Commission was not necessary. The FCC and Congress currently are considering the entire pay-as-you-see TV field.

"It probably will cost about $100 a home to install the system," said Champion. "It would work something like this," said Champion. "You would turn a knob to some channel not used by regular TV. You would see a trailer of coming attractions. If you wanted to see the fight at 10 o'clock, then you'd put a dollar or whatever the price called for into the slot of the box attached to your set."

Looks Like Riot In ACC For Top Four Outfits

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Did you ever step in front of one of those three-way mirrors they have in cloth stores and swing your arms a few times? Look like a riot breaking out?

That's probably the way things look today to any of the four top teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race. Everyone jammed in together, and everybody out to get everybody else.

The situation, with three significant games on tap today and tonight, is this:
North Carolina, No. 7 team in the nation, plays a regionally televised home game today with Duke, No. 3 nationally and riding a six-game winning streak. The teams are tied for second place in the conference with 6-2 records.

Tonight, North Carolina State, the nation's No. 9 team and the ACC leader with a 7-2 mark, is host to downtrodden South Carolina, loser in 11 of its last 12 games. And Maryland, No. 8 nationally, 87-66 winner last night over Virginia, plays at Wake Forest, which has a 5-10 season record.

Only Maryland, in fourth place with a 5-2 mark, can be certain it won't worsen its position. But the week could end with either North Carolina, N.C. State or Duke in the ACC lead, depending on today's games.

Last night, Nick Davis bagged 27 points and Charlie McNeil 22 for Maryland, which drove Virginia still farther into the ACC's second division. The Cavaliers, now 3-6 in the conference and 7-9 overall, cling to fifth place in the ACC.

Paul Adkins had 23 points and Herb Busch 19 to lead Virginia. High Point College of the North State Conference defeated Newberry of South Carolina's Little Four, 85-79 last night. The Panthers, matched shot for shot during the first 10 minutes of play, finally ran up a big lead and let the subs take over for the last minutes of the game.

Danny Sewell had 22 points and Bill Huegele 18 for High Point. Charlie Gallagher scored 29 for Newberry. It was High Point's 14th win of the season against three losses.

Playing Again

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Charlotte Clippers, who took a 5-4 beating in overtime from the Washington Presidents here last night, play the Presidents here again tonight in an Eastern Hockey League game.

Roger Hayfield, making his second goal, rapped the puck off the stick of Clipper defenseman John Muckler and into the net at 2:36 of the overtime period.
The loss ended an eight-game home winning streak for Charlotte, the league leader.
Other Washington scores were by Vip Palladino, with two, and Steve Kuzma. Clipper goals were by Gerry Sullivan, Doug Adam, Chucky Stuart and Herve Lalonde.

W. Virginia Is Shooting For 30th In A Row

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Top-ranked West Virginia shoots for its 30th consecutive Southern Conference basketball victory tonight on the Richmond Arena Court, where it suffered its last conference defeat two years and four days ago.

Viewed realistically, the chances for a duplication of Richmond's 84-78 victory of 1956 seem dim, indeed.
For one thing, the 1958 West Virginia club with its 16-1 record is a better one than the 1956 outfit which at this stage of the season was 13-5. For another, Richmond, 10-6 for the season, seems weaker. Even more significantly, the Arena Court, once a place of terror for the Mountaineers, now frightens them not at all.

Since their licking two years ago in the arena, West Virginia's "Country Slickers" have raced to eight straight victories there—three of them over Richmond. They have won the last three conference championships in tournaments at the arena.
"The court doesn't bother us at all," says West Virginia Coach Fred Schaus, "but Richmond sure does. Records don't seem to mean a thing to them. They always give us a fit."

Schaus, cautious, to the core, points out Richmond carried West Virginia into overtime before losing a 76-74 decision to the Mountaineers Dec. 17 at Morgantown.
West Virginia carries an 8-0 conference record into the game and by winning, virtually can nail down first place in the 1957-58 standings and top seed in the championship tournament next month at this same arena.

The Citadel's Cadets, 6-2 in league play and seeking manfully to hold second place, entertain Washington and Lee (1-5). VMI (1-5) is at Davidson (3-5) in another game counting in the standings. William and Mary, 7-10 for the season, has a non-conference date with Navy at Norfolk.

Vastly improved George Washington won its fourth game in a row and upped its conference record to 5-2 last night by snapping Virginia Tech's five-game winning streak 70-54 on the Tech court.
The Citadel clipped VMI 77-63 in a game marred by 47 fouls. Top scorers were the Cadets' Art Musselman with 20 points and VMI's Chuck Cotton with 17.

Dom Flora popped in 28 points as Washington won, finally got a conference victory by downing Davidson 61-55. Semi Mintz had 16 for the Wildcats.

Crash Program
ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — It was a minor fire, but you should see the fire trucks.
The pumper was hit by a skidding car as it pulled out of Central Fire Station onto an icy Zanesville street. The aerial truck was rammed by another car as firemen backed it into the garage after the fire.
And a police cruiser, hurrying to the fire, was hit by a third car.

Local Tobacco Factory Is Processing Burley Leaf

WOMEN WORKING CONVEYING LINES AT LOCAL FACTORY . . . approximately 250 men and women being employed to process Burley tobacco. (Reflector Photo).

The busy chains of the tobacco sueloneer has died down from a dull roar to a faint memory. Local warehouses are bare and cold at this time of year, months having passed since they were graced with baskets of tobacco.

Despite this fact, there is activity on the tobacco front in Greenville. For the first time in six or seven years the Person-Garrett tobacco factory is processing Burley-type tobacco here.

As a result of this move, a number of people are happy; the owners and operators of the factory and approximately 250 local men and women, mostly Negro. The "off-season" work is affording them the opportunity of earning money which would not ordinarily be in circulation in this area.

IBM Official To Address Class

L. M. Collins of New York City, an official of the International Business Machines Corporation, will address students majoring in the department of business education at East Carolina College Monday. Discussing the topic "Keeping Alive in Business," he will speak at a departmental convocation scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

Christian Church Announcements

At the Sunday school lesson hour there will be a continuation of the study of the history and the doctrines of the Christian Church. The high school and adult departments are invited to sit in this class and opportunities will be given for questions concerning any phase of the life and teachings of the church.

The Christian Women's Fellowship will hold its February session on Monday evening at 8 in the ladies parlor and the subject of the program is "For Better Or For Worse." This of course deals with the expectations and problems of married life. Mrs. J. D. Wilson Jr. will tell what a woman expects of her husband and the pastor will tell what the husband expects in the wife. The husbands are all invited to this program. Circle No. 10 in charge of the program and the fellowship.

On Sunday evening, February 23, at 6:30 there will be an evangelistic conference for Christian visitors from several of the churches in the immediate area of Greenville. Supper will be served at 6:30 and Dr. David McNelly of Indianapolis, Ind. will be present for the instruction. Dr. McNelly is national secretary of evangelism for the Disciples of Christ.

According to one of the factory's officials, Person-Garrett currently has a weekly payroll of around $11,500.

The plant began processing Burley tobacco here on December 31st and is scheduled to finish the season around March 1st. For the nine-week period, the payroll will amount to approximately $103,500.

At the present time the processing factory is operating 16 hours a day, running two eight-hour shifts.

Speech Expert To Address Meet

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk By Tom Willis

"Our one common denominator in East North Carolina is economics, and economics means men at work or out of work."

Tom W. Willis, director of Farmville Industrial Council, declared last night at the Greenville Kiwanis Club.

Referring to the section's dependence upon the old system of agriculture as its principal industry, the speaker reminded that the depression of the 1930s, with its great unemployment problem, was the cause of many turning to Communism. He pointed to India with its millions of unemployed people and lack of planned industry and declared that "a free and profitable business is needed to maintain our free enterprise and to fulfill our task of providing jobs for people."

Willis declared that the agriculture situation in Eastern North Carolina looks as bad as the integration problem and that the unemployment situation is increasing to such an extent that we have got to do something about it. "It is time for us to get our payroll back on the road, and we can improve the situation by developing our own industries. The handwringing is on the wall and we must change our method of thinking if we want progress and development," he declared, and suggested that "the conservative mind-set must come over to the new way of thinking."

The speaker pointed out that if Eastern Carolina is to keep pace with the rest of the country it must begin to develop its own industry. "Eastern Carolina is the weakest link in North Carolina's condition," he said, and pointed out that there are only four towns in Eastern Carolina with full-time industries and they are Farmville, Goldsboro, Tarboro and Fayetteville.

Willis suggestion in conclusion that since Greenville has a farm office, why not have an industrial office?

Kiwanian J.A. Collins, Sr., introduced the speaker. President J.D. McGlohon presided. City Councilmen Lester Turnage and Wesley Harvey and Chamber of Commerce Manager Willard B. Kyzer were guests. Other guests were Circle K members Bucky Monroe and John Spone, Barney Bland and Ben Atkins of Farmville, Joel Mawhon and Clarence Tugwell.

Proclaims Week Of Brotherhood

Mayor S. Eugene West has proclaimed the week of Feb. 15 through 23 as Brotherhood Week locally.

"The president of the United States has again designated the week of Washington's birthday as Brotherhood Week," the mayor said.

"This is the 25th annual observance of Brotherhood Week sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. "Again as during the past quarter of a century, Americans of all walks of life, in schools, churches and synagogues, civic and service organizations, will rededicate themselves to the old ideals of brotherhood, fair play and justice which have been the proud tradition, the beauty and the strength of our country."

"The 25th observance of Brotherhood Week takes place under ominous circumstances. The challenge to our religious and humanitarian ideals by a relentless and powerful foe is felt by all good Americans — which means by all of us in this city of Greenville."

In proclaiming the week, Mayor West urged local citizens "to meet the challenge of Soviet Sputniks and missiles by an untiring and courageous effort to build, here in our own community, the spiritual American unity in brotherhood as the foundation of our material strength."

This House Of God Is Transformed

JARVIS MEMORIAL'S NEW SANCTUARY . . . great wooden beams add beauty to structure.

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector City Editor

One Sunday in January, just a year ago, the Rev. W.M. Howard, Jr. pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, told his congregation that the last services were being held that day in the church's old sanctuary.

Beginning the next Sunday, services would be held in Austin Auditorium, the minister said.

The move was being made, he explained, so that workmen could begin the job of rebuilding the church's old sanctuary.

There were great plans for renovating the building. The sanctuary was to be more than doubled. In addition, a chapel would be added, along with other improvements.

So, singing, "Lead On O King Eternal" the congregation took its leave of the old sanctuary. The next day builders moved in and began tearing out fixtures and the back wall of the structure.

Last month, a year after the reconstruction job was begun, the last of the contractors completed their work in Jarvis Memorial's new sanctuary.

It was announced that first services would be held last Sunday and the new building was placed in readiness for the event.

Sunday morning hundreds of worshippers filed into the sanctuary as the huge organ, installed as a part of the rebuilding, filled the structure with sacred music.

Then at 11 o'clock, the usual hour of services, a procession, made up of the junior and senior choirs and the minister filed in from the rear of the sanctuary singing the same soul-stirring hymn which had closed the last services — "Lead on O King Eternal."

Impressive House of God
Thus was opened one of the most impressive Houses of God in Eastern North Carolina.

Outside, the church appears practically the same. There have been very few changes to the general overall appearance of the historic old church.

To be sure, the sidewalk has been widened, a flagstone wall added around the front, new doors built and there's been a face lifting for the bell steeple.

But to the casual observer the church's front world appear the same as that which has graced Washington St. since 1907.

Inside the new sanctuary it is a different sight, however. The old design and for that matter, a considerable portion of the old structure have been retained.

Yet the entire interior appears new. Walls have been replastered and repainted. New lighting fixtures have been installed, all pews and other fixtures are new and thick green carpet covers the entire floor.

An elaborately carved altar stands at the front of the sanctuary perfectly framed between two great arches.

Old Familiar Portions
Old familiar portions remain, however. In the old sanctuary three roof supporting wood beams reached the width of the church. The old beams are still there and four new ones have been added to exactly match the old ones.

A large number of smaller stained glass windows have been newly installed. But the big stained windows at the rear of the church and one at the side were left in place, the increase size of the structure giving them additional magnificence.

Modern innovations will assist the minister in conducting even more impressive services. The new lights which hang from the great wooden beams can be controlled by special switches located in the pulpit. The minister with the flip of a switch can dim the lights as he begins his sermon or increase the lighting when it is needed.

The latest in sound equipment has been installed.

A new three-manual organ has been installed in the new church, one of the largest in this area. The organ's console controls three organ lofts, one on each side of the altar and a third located at the rear of the church. There is also a keyboard for the Carillon bells at the console.

A smaller chapel, for small weddings and other church activities has been built alongside the sanctuary in the section formerly known as the Sunday School annex.

Included in the chapel is an organ console which will play only the organ loft at the rear of the sanctuary. Thus organ music can be provided in the chapel.

The church's sound system includes the chapel so that overflow crowds seated there might still hear the services.

Finally, behind the chapel a ladies parlor has been included. The parlor has been completely furnished. A kitchen has been built near the parlor.

It was an impressed congregation which gathered in the church last Sunday to hear the Rev. Mr. Howard declare the church open "for the worship of God and service of man."

The church has stood for many years and the minister said "if nothing happens it will be here 100 years from now."

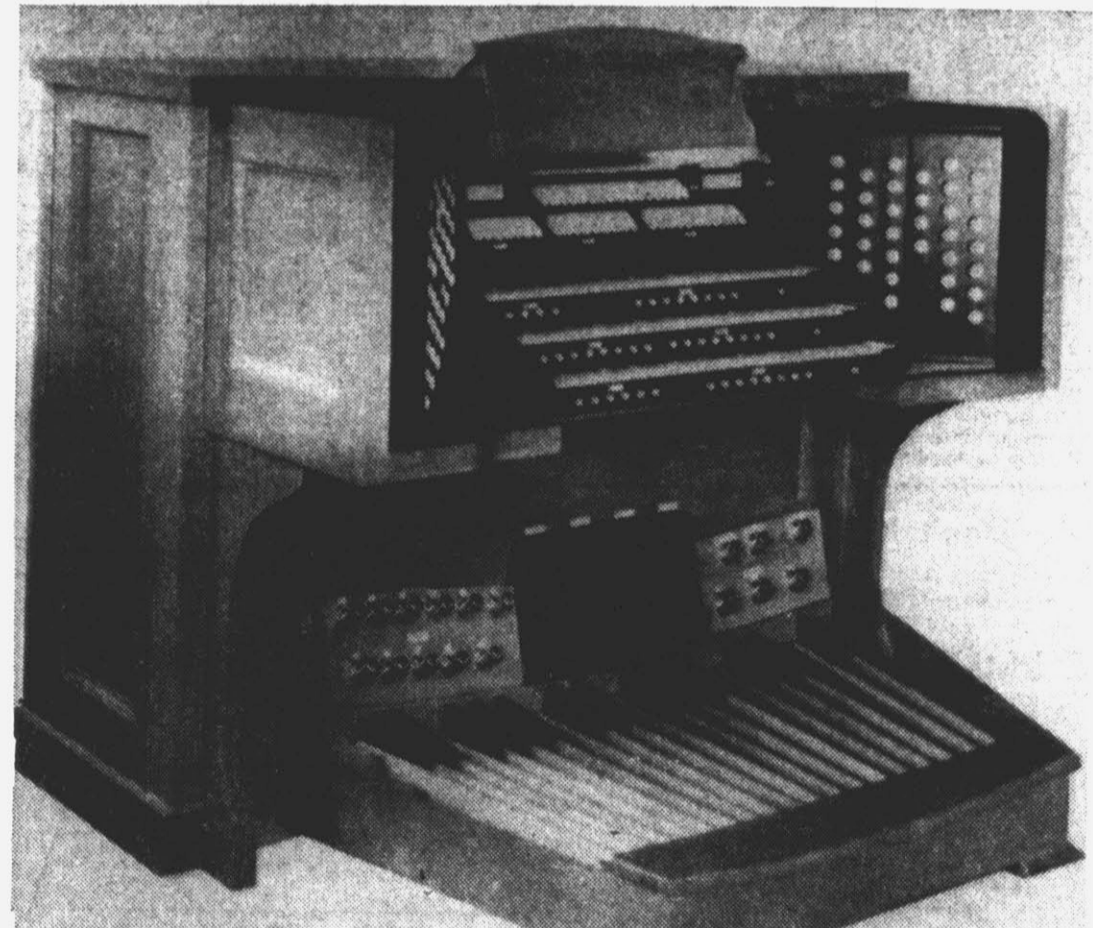

The sturdy look of the great beams supporting the roof appeared to insure the prediction.

HAND CARVED ALTAR . . . perfectly framed between two arches.

LADIES PARLOR . . . fire place and portion of furnishings.

ORGAN CONSOLE . . . three-manual console controls three organ lofts.

CHURCH'S CHAPEL . . . includes console for portion of main organ.

STAINED GLASS WINDOW . . . larger sanctuary adds magnificence to old windows.

Jet Airlines Will Be Another Facet Of The Transportation Revolution

By WILLIAM FERRIS
Associated Press Writer

"You will be able to cross the continent in scarcely more than an hour, span the Atlantic in less than two hours and the Pacific in scarcely four hours."

This is Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, chairman of Eastern Air Lines, talking. He is not talking about the distant future. He is talking about the day after tomorrow.

The airplane and the private automobile are revolutionizing transportation in the United States. This revolution will accelerate in the next decade.

In two years, Rickenbacker says airplanes "will be cruising high above the weather with silent, vibrationless comfort, initially in the speed band of sound, or about 600 miles an hour. Continuing advances in the development of jet power will move these speeds up to 2,500 miles an hour."

On the ground, millions of private automobiles will travel new, high-speed highways.

Within the next 13 years, 9 out of every 10 cities with a population of 50,000 or more will be linked by new superhighways. The federal government will finance construction of 41,000 miles. Estimated cost: more than 37 billion dollars.

Today, toll highways amount to only a little more than 2,000 miles. If the cities are strangled in traffic jams as drivers hunt for parking spaces, if they are losing passenger train service, if they cannot solve the problems of mass transportation—if all these things are true, and they are, there is one thing they can do. They can build airports. Look around.

In Salt Lake City work will start in July on a 10-million-dollar project to accommodate jet airplanes. Travel at the Salt Lake airport has increased an average of 19 per cent each year for the past 10 years—"probably one of the highest increases in the nation," says Joseph Bergin, airport manager.

New Orleans recently acquired Mouton International Airport at Kenner, La., 15 miles west, and is engaged in a two-million-dollar renovation program. A monorail system to downtown New Orleans is being discussed. Indianapolis is building longer runways (for jets) at its new air terminal, completed in 1955.

New facilities at Boston's Logan Airport will cost 23 million dollars.

Last December Oklahoma City passed a seven-million-dollar bond issue which, with matching funds from the federal government, will modernize the municipal airport to accommodate jets.

A two-million-dollar improvement program is scheduled to start this year at Des Moines Municipal Airport.

Kansas City has constructed a new airport 17 miles north of its downtown area. Toledo has a new airport. St. Louis completed its modernistic Lambert-St. Louis Field only two years ago, finds it is already taxed to handle trafairlines last year totaled 25,800,000, compared with only 6,313,312,000 ten years earlier.

In the same period the number of domestic passengers rose from 12,890,000 to 45,000,000.

Yet the airlines are not happy. Stanley Gewirtz, vice president of the Air Transport Assn., says, "While doing twice the business the domestic trunk (airlines) now make half the profit they did in 1952."

The airlines claim their passenger rates have been frozen by the Civil Aeronautics Board, which regulates the lines, since 1939—and, of course, cost, have mounted.

The airlines are petitioning the CAB for a rate hike of around 17 to 20 per cent. The CAB has said it will permit a temporary hike of 6.5 per cent, if the airlines ask for it, while studying the requests for the larger increase.

But problems aside, air travel prospects look bright. We can go soaring with Eddie Rickenbacker: "In the span of the next century of aviation, space ships will become commonplace for interplanetary travel. With luxurious accommodations for 1,500 to 2,000 passengers, they will use atomic power to develop speeds up to 5,000 miles an hour or better, and will have a practically unlimited range."

This may solve the problem. You can park on the moon.

Eddie Fisher Says 'Team' Breaking Up

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Last fall, Eddie Fisher and George Gobel started an interesting experiment in TV.

The shy singer and the droll comic proposed to conduct hour-long variety shows in the same Tuesday night time slot on alternate weeks. Plus which Eddie would be a guest on the George Gobel show and vice versa.

The results have been a mixed blessing. Some of the Fisher-Gobel shows have been among the best in the variety field this season. Some have been downright dull. The ratings have been capricious. Some weeks, the boys have amassed a respectable total, but most of the time they have been shot down by the gunslingers on opposing networks.

Eddie Fisher, a no-nonsense kind of a guy, talked frankly about the results of the experiment:

"I think we've done pretty well, but I don't think we'll ever beat the cowboy shows. That's what the audience seems to like most these days.

"George and I have made out pretty well, I believe, considering the fact that we aren't the best chemistry in the world. I don't mean we don't get along personally; I love George. But I don't think we're the best combination of talents.

"We're both the shy type of entertainer, and that doesn't go too well together. In a team, you've got to have one who is predominant, an extrovert.

"I don't think we'll continue with this format next season. It was worth trying, but I believe it is too much exposure for any one performer. It's also too much work. I work hard enough on my own show, then I have to turn around and work on George's."

Eddie is NBC's boy and his services have already been reserved for next season. How he will be used is not decided yet. The singer himself yearns for less exposure and foresees the day when TV will be more like the movies, with stars doing a handful of well-prepared shows a year. But he has no regrets over this year's experiment.

"I've learned more in these past few months than I have in my whole career," he said.

World Affairs Institute Set For March 13

East Carolina College's Fifth Annual World Institute, scheduled for March 13, will bring to the campus as speakers Vice Admiral Charles B. Momsen, U.S.N., retired, and Ernest K. Kindley, noted journalist and Washington director of Newsweek magazine.

John C. Metcalfe, Washington news analyst and commentator, will serve for the fifth consecutive year as moderator at meetings held during the day.

Dr. George Pasti of the college social studies department is chairman of a committee in charge of arrangements for the day's program. He has announced that meetings open to the public are tentatively scheduled as follows: college assembly with talks by the three visiting speakers, 9 a.m. in the Wright auditorium; an informal discussion by Admiral Momsen and Mr. Metcalfe at 2 p.m. in the Y Hut; a television program by Mr. Kindley at 2 p.m.; and an analysis of current problems by Mr. Kindley and Mr. Metcalfe at 7 p.m. in the Austin auditorium and a talk of scientific interest by Admiral Momsen at 7 p.m. in the McGinnis auditorium.

Admiral Momsen retired in 1955 after 41 years of service, largely in submarine duty, in the Navy. The "Momsen Lung," submarine rescue device, was invented by him with the help of several colleagues and bears his name. In 1948 he became Assistant Chief of Naval Operations for Undersea Warfare and in 1951 was ordered to command the Submarine Force of the U.S. Pacific Fleet. He was joined in 1954 as Commander of Joint Task Force Seven, charged with the conduct of nuclear weapons tests in the Pacific.

One of America's greatest journalists, Mr. Kindley has covered the Washington scene for the last quarter of a century and has traveled extensively around the world on important news assignments. Widely known for his political and economic interpretations of national events, Mr. Kindley writes a signed column "Washington Tides" for Newsweek. Since 1938 he has discussed both national and international affairs in a syndicated column. As a radio and television commentator, he has appeared on various networks.

Mr. Metcalfe, one of the more prize-winning journalists in the nation, has had more than a quarter of a century of reporting experience on some of the outstanding newspapers in this country. As an interpreter of American foreign policy he has established a reputation for outstanding ability.

First Presbyterian Announcements

"What Presbyterians Believe" is a topic of interest, especially during this year in the Presbyterian Church. The Nature and Mission of the Church. Dr. J. G. Joyce will deal with this thought when he preaches a sermon on "What Presbyterians Believe" during the eleven o'clock service Sunday morning at the First Presbyterian Church.

Circles of this Church will meet this week as follows:

Circle 1—Mrs. J. T. Barnhill, Chmn., Monday 3:30 with Mrs. Dink James, 600 E. 9th St., with Mrs. Austin Bond as co-hostess.

Circle 2—Mrs. S. L. Daughtridge, Chmn., Monday 3:00 at her home 1800 E. 4th St.

Circle 3—Mrs. W. E. Roseveare, Chmn., Monday 3:30 with Mrs. John Clark, 2007 E. 5th St.

Circle 4—Mrs. Virginia Basnight, Chmn., Monday night 8:00 with Mrs. T. L. Broadrick, 200 Warren St.

Circle 5—Mrs. Dan Johnston, Chmn., Tuesday night 8:00 with Mrs. Robert Elks, 306 Elm St. with Mrs. Douglas Daley as co-hostess.

Circle 6—Mrs. Walter Cox, Chmn., Tuesday night 8:00 at the church.

Circle 8—Mrs. W. W. Brown, Chmn., Monday 10:00 with Mrs. Bancroft Moseley, 427 4th St.

Circle 9—Monday night 8:00 with Miss Christine Johnston, 1706 E. 4th St.

Circle 7—Mrs. Fred Webb, Chmn., meet Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Thomas M. Davis.

At 7:30 Sunday evening there will be an important meeting of the Board of Deacons, and also a meeting of the Session at the same hour.

Next Sunday evening at 6:00 there will be a "covered-dish" supper at the Church, and the showing of a film "This Is Japan."

The nursery is open during the morning worship hour, and parents with small children are invited to take advantage of this courtesy.

Students Added $295 To Drive

By SHELBY JEAN BARROW
Grimesland School Reporter

Students at Grimesland School completed their work on the March of Dimes during the past week, with a total of $295.23 for the county drive.

Mrs. Arthur Lee Moore's high school class led other classes in the school with a total collection of $45.50. The class received a prize for taking first place in the competition among classrooms.

Other classes and totals they reported during the drive include: Miss Katie Earl Owen, $7.15; Mrs. Mary Holden, $13.00; Mrs. Julia Venters, $2.16; Miss Oma Bliss Lewis, $27.61; Mrs. Minnie Tucker, $20.00; Roland G. Brinson, $13.30; Mrs. Eleanor Mills, $23.10; Mrs. Virginia Brown, $16.00; Mrs. Emily Harvey, $16.56; Mrs. Nannie Fleming, $8.60; Mrs. Bettie Forrest, $20.00; Mrs. Beatrice Little, $29.00; Mrs. Jessie Watson, $23.40; Mrs. Clara Carr, $13.85; and James E. Hudson, $16.00.

Funds collected in the drive will be turned over to the Pitt County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Senior projects, made in connection with a study of "Macbeth," have been on display in the exhibition case in the library. The projects illustrate various parts of the story.

Final copy for the 1956 yearbook was sent to the publishers Monday. The books are expected to be ready for distribution in April.

DEAD DOCUMENTS

MONTREAL (AP)—The Municipal Law Department has been authorized to burn 514,000 dossiers dealing with traffic infractions, as late as 1954, to make room in the new court house for new files.

School Menus

School lunchroom menus for the coming week, as announced by the supervisor of city school cafeterias, are as follows:

Monday—hot log in roll with chili, buttered corn, tomato salad, fruit cup and milk;

Tuesday—roast pork with dressing and gravy, mixed greens, pickle relish, baked sweet potato, cheese biscuit and butter, cookie, milk;

Wednesday—dried lima beans with ham, string beans, carrot strips, homemade roll with butter, ginger bread with honey and butter icing, milk;

Thursday—chicken pot pie, crowder peas, pickled beets, bran muffin and butter, sliced peaches, milk;

Friday—vegetable chicken soup with crackers, cheese and egg and jam and peanut butter sandwich, lemon pie, milk.

PITT THEATRE . . . Starts FRIDAY!

Marlon Brando and Miiko Taka are starred in "Sayonara," a filmization of the James Michener best-seller. Red Buttons is also starred!

STRAW TOP—Painted Italian milan straw is used for this draped turban by Miss Mary. The white straw is touched at intervals with shades of orange, brown and tan. Topaz velvet trimming accents the accordion-like drap.

New Elementary School Construction In Final Phases

Finishing touches are being put on a new Negro elementary school at Bruce, which house students from the Bruce, Falkland and Arthur areas, is being built by East Carolina Construction Company of Dunn at a contract price of $100,500. Construction was begun last spring.

Work which is presently underway includes final construction of water and power facilities, finishing work on the heating facilities, placement of some tile and laying-out of roads and parking areas. Furniture is also being assembled for use by the students.

No Alarm Over School Incidents

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Supt. Virgil Blossom says he feels no alarm over an outbreak of racial incidents at Little Rock Central High School where nine Negroes attend classes with 1,900 white pupils.

Three separate disputes involving Negro and white students flared at the school Thursday. A Negro girl and a white boy were suspended and a white girl withdrawn from school after the incidents.

Blossom said yesterday that these occurrences were part of a program of harassment sparked by opponents of school integration.

Both sides in the integration to blame, he said, but did not elaborate on this statement.

The superintendent said 98 per cent of Central High's student body carry out their study programs normally despite occasional flareups of racial tension.

He also said that none of the Negroes has ever requested withdrawal from Central High.

Traffic Cases Dominate County Court's Docket

Traffic violations accounted for 27 of the 35 cases cleared this week from the docket of Pitt County Recorder's Court.

Eight of the cases involving traffic violations resulted in fines of $25, costs deducted, and ten-day suspensions of driver's licenses for defendants who entered pleas of guilty in absentia. Eight others who entered pleas of guilty to speeding had judgment suspended for ten days upon payment of costs and surrender of driver's licenses to the Clerk of Court.

The defendants who entered pleas of guilty in absentia included Buck Manning, Route 1, Williams-ton; James Anderson Hicks, Graham, N.C.; Donald Edward Wilson, Cherry Point; Charlie Franklin Emory, Kinston; George F. Lewis, Morehead City; Herman Ira Potter, La Grange; Ada Newell Johnson, Arlington, Va.; and Joseph Lee Knight, Roper.

Defendants who had judgments continued for ten days upon payment of costs and surrender of driver's licenses included Seber Franklin Cobb, 2605 Crockett Drive, Greenville; George Smith Haislip Jr., Hamilton; Willie Ray Moore, Negro, 211-B West 14th Street, Greenville; Samuel Davis, Negro, Box 218, Greenville; John Arthur Hudson, Route 2, Greenville; Willie M. Stanley, Negro, Route 1, Tarboro; Charlie Little, Negro, Route 3, Washington; and Marvin Eugene Norris, 1112 Ward Street, Greenville.

Judgments which returned in other traffic cases included: David Henry Ross, Washington, N. C., speeding with a truck and driving on the wrong side of the road, $10 and costs; George Buster Vines, Negro, Route 3, Bethel, speeding, costs and driver's license suspended for 30 days (not taken on a charge of no operator's license).

Mack Cherry Jr., Negro, Route 1, Bethel, driving under the influence, no pros; Harvey Lee Carr, Negro, Route 1, Tarboro, driving under the influence, hit and run, six months suspended upon payment of $100 and costs, driver's license revoked for two years and

Popular Writer Dies Of Cancer

SEATTLE (AP)—Mrs. Betty MacDonald, 49, whose first writing effort, "The Egg and I," became an overnight best seller 13 years ago, died last night after being ill many months. She had cancer.

"The Egg and I," a story of life on a chicken ranch in the rugged backwoods country of the Olympic Peninsula, quickly became a best seller, was turned into a motion picture and was the basis for the "Ma and Pa Kettle" movie series.

Mrs. MacDonald later added to her list of fictional successes with such books as "The Plague and I," "Anybody Can Do Anything," "Onions in the Stew," "Nancy and Plum," and the children's "Mrs. Piggleswick" series.

In 1951, she and her publishers were sued for $975,000 by the Albert Bishop family and Raymond H. Johnson, who contended they were libeled by being portrayed as the somewhat shiftless Kettle family. A Superior Court jury unanimously rejected the claim and the presiding judge denied a motion for a new trial.

She married Donald C. MacDonald, a real estate operator, here in 1942 after divorcing her first husband, Robert E. Heskett. Her two daughters, Joan and Ann, who figured prominently in her "Onions in the Stew," were by her first marriage.

Restitution By Somebody's Boy

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A chain department store here, which doesn't handle charge accounts, received a letter with a dollar bill in it.

Said the pencilled letter: "Last Mothers Day I changed some price tags when I got my mother's present. This is the dollar (sic) I owe you. Yours truly, A Boy."

Prince Bertil of Sweden will visit Minnesota in May when the North Star State celebrates the 100 anniversary of statehood.

Cyanide Supply Lost On Highway

LIVERPOOL, England (AP)—A barrel containing enough cyanide to kill half a million persons has been lost along a 14-mile road. Police said today the cyanide is in pellets that children might mistake for candy.

The barrel rolled off a truck sometime during a trip from the Liverpool docks to a factory at Widnes. A yard-by-yard search of the road failed to discover it.

Police warned that the finder should not even touch the barrel. "Your fingernails could carry enough to kill you," an officer said.

WET AREA

HATFIELD, England (AP)—Families wanting a house near a tavern have been offered an ideal site in this Hertfordshire town—there are 28 public houses within a few minutes' walk.

Potent Mixture Called 'Coffee'

HOMINY, Okla. (AP) - Fellow Iasons aren't sure they're going to let J. H. Jacobs do any more cooking at his meetings. He made the coffee, which turned out a little strong. After several gulps, and screams, members found Jacobs' formula was a pound of coffee to a gallon of water. About 90,000 tourists from the United States have booked passage to Sweden in 1958. # Deadliest Gunman In Texas

By MALLORY STORM

Cal Langtry, notorious gun slick, is hired by a group of ranchowners to kill cattle king, Ed Stow, who is trying to drive them from their lands. Marshal Paul Kogan, on Stow's side, demands Langtry's surrender, precipitating a battle. Kogan and Stow's men surround them, but, inspired by Langtry, the ranchers repulse the attack. A new onslaught is imminent.

CHAPTER V

The action around Stow was spirited. His gunmen were in an ugly mood. They waved their arms and made threatening gestures under Stow's nose. Stow was talking fast. He had probably never talked faster. After five minutes of it, the men dispersed.

"Look," Cavanaugh said. "There comes Kogan again waving his handkerchief again. He's riding in close."

Devlin grunted. "How stupid do they think we are?" he asked. "I'm giving you men a last chance," he shouted. "And you'd better take it. Otherwise we'll kill you like rats. If you come out with your hands in the air, what I said before still holds. You'll get a fair trial."

Devlin had opened the door and was standing there with his hands on his hips. "You mean we'll be easy ma. for your gunners. We're doing all right. Let's cut this out and get back to work."

"These killings will be held against you unless you give up now."

Devlin was laughing. "You mean if we give up they won't be?" Kogan revealed his desperation. "Yes."

"Why you lying lard bucket! We wouldn't get five feet off this porch if we walked out and I can prove it."

"How?"

"This way: We'll agree to surrender if you'll give us hostages."

"Hostages?"

"That's right. You and Ed Stow walk in here unarmed and march out with us. We'll all come out then, without our guns. All except me. I'll carry one six-gun trained right between your ears and if anyone starts shooting you won't be around to see who gets hit. Fair enough?"

Kogan let out with an explosive oath. He was holding the gun erect with the handkerchief tied to it and Devlin could see that he was struggling to keep from using it.

"We'll kill every stinking one of you squatters! And you too, Langtry!"

Devlin laughed harshly. "You intended to kill us anyway so you'd better offer your gun hands some big bonuses. The going will be pretty rough from here on."

Kogan reversed his horse and started away as Devlin yelled, "Why don't you try leading a charge right through the front window?" Then he went back inside and closed the door.

His face was grim and somber. "Get ready for anything, men. Just remember that you've got nothing to lose and everything to gain by fighting."

"Lee's dead," Cavanaugh told him. "That's too bad. We're about ten up on them. Let's make it twenty."

The men crouched at the windows, waiting. There was activity out in the fields. Suddenly Devlin fathomed it. "They're going to try and burn us out. Look at that!"

Cavanaugh looked. At two points—the southeast and the southwest, a pair of horsemen were getting set. At a given signal each man was handed a flaming gunny sack.

"They'll come by the front and try to toss the fire in against the house," Devlin said. "Give me a rifle and open the door."

He dropped to one knee and waited. "Those boys are riding for at least a thousand bucks apiece, and if they get that fire in here we're through."

The nesters were silent. They were moving toward the front room. "Get back there," Devlin barked. "Watch your windows!"

The men scurried back. Outside a signal of some kind was given and the two riders spurred their horses and started toward the house at a wide angle. The house was halfway between them. They would pass close to the front yard at the same time, if their plan worked. They hung low on the far sides of their mounts, thus offering no targets.

"Those are nice horses," Devlin sighed. "Too bad."

His long gun spoke and the west mount went down, sliding along on its neck. Its rider went off and got tangled with the burning sack. He screamed and rolled away on the ground, slapping at his face, tearing at his hair.

Devlin turned his attention to the east rider, but that one had swung sharply away from the house and was riding toward Stow and Kogan.

"Going back to ask for two thousand," Devlin said dryly. "He figures the trip's worth it and he's right."

The incident of the fire brought a sharp change in the morale of the attackers. Again they began converging on Stow and the marshal. Faint sounds of what were obviously bitter recriminations drifted toward the embattled house.

Sue To Prevent Church Building

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Construction of a church next door to their $90,000 home would lower property values and "create disturbances" in the neighborhood, a Phoenix couple contends.

Mr. and Mrs. David Keith filed a request for a temporary restraining order in Maricopa County Superior Court to prevent the Mountain View Church of Christ from building a new church next door.

"We just don't want anything would collect lots of people and noise in the neighborhood," Keith, an investor, said. "We have nothing against the church."

BY THE NUMBERS
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Jeweler Max Moses said he asked the obvious question when a man ordered a special wrist watch made with the numerals all sixes. The customer explained: "I never take a drink before six and I want to be ready."

THAT'S GRATITUDE
DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa Parole Board records include a story of the parolee who made good in such a big way that he hired his former parole agent for more pay than the agent made with the state.

Netted $100,000 From Forestry

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—A full-time forestry program here and at neighboring Camp Mackall netted the government an estimated $100,000 last year.

And the post forester, Turner S. Davis, predicted: "Judging from our progress in the past years in all phases of our operation, the government's annual profit from timber here should reach nearly $150,000 in another year."

In addition, the forestry program cut timber fire losses from an estimated $175,000 in 1951, when the program began, to an estimated $1,000 last year.

Davis heads a 13-man forestry crew which manages the post's 136,000 acres. Most of the timber stands are in range and maneuver areas. Five hundred miles of fire lines reduce the fire dangers and thru-lookout towers are manned during times when fire is a danger.

Davis, explaining the post's 10-year timber cutting cycle, said, "We leave all timber stands properly stocked for maximum growth and cut only trees that, because of age or condition, would deteriorate if left standing."

This winter the forestry crew planted more than 200,000 trees, mostly pines.

Last Of Combat Units Are Gone

TOKYO (AP)—The last of the U.S. Army combat troops who once packed into Japan's overcrowded islands by the hundreds of thousands are now gone.

The Army said today an Honest John rocket artillery battalion sent to Korea was the last to go in fulfillment of a pledge last June to Japanese Premier Nobusuke Kishi.

Kishi's pro-Western government had been under leftist pressure to get the Americans out, although some leftist-led labor unions have since regretted the loss of employment provided by the troops.

Figures made public last June indicated some 50,000 U.S. airmen and 20,000 sailors were stationed in Japan, and no change has been indicated. An estimated 15,000 Army supply and administrative troops remain also.

Had A Blackjack, 'Going Hunting'

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Police arrested Domenic V. Rizzella, 36, of suburban Wilkensburg, when they found a .38 caliber revolver, .22 auto. anti. blackjack and long knife in his possession.

When Rizzella faced Allegheny County Court he said he had the weapons because he planned to go hunting.

The judge sentenced him to 18- to 36-months in the county workhouse on a charge of possessing deadly weapons.
