Reports $26,000 Lost To Bandits This Morning In Rocky Mount

Used Car Dealer Is Overpowered By Assailants Who Flee In Virginia Car

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) - A husky ex-policeman said two or three men overpowered and robbed him of just over $26,000 at his used car lot here early today. Jones said he fired two shots from a revolver as the men fled in a car headed north on U.S. 301, but did not think that he hit the vehicle, which bore Virginia license tags.

"I hadn't been in my place more than 10 minutes," Jones said, "and was coming out into the showroom when a young man in a sailor's uniform entered the front door."

"I asked him what could I do for him and just as I said that I was jumped from behind. I never saw the man who hit me from behind or anything after that during the struggle."

The man, or men, who jumped him from behind, twisted a wire around Jones' throat and took the money from his person. Jones said it included $24,000 in cash, plus $2,075 in checks and money orders.

Jones said he sold several late model automobiles at an automobile used car sale at Windsor, Va., last Thursday, and had intended depositing the money here Saturday but that the bank closed before he could get there. The money taken from his desk today was in a bank deposit bag and the deposit slips had been made out.

Jones said he knew definitely that two men participated in the holdup and that possibly there was a third. The used car dealer, who operates two lots here, had been a Rocky Mount policeman before entering private business about seven years ago.

Rocky Mount police said they did not think the robbery was planned and that it was chance that the holdup men caught Jones with such a large sum of money.

Melvin West's Deadline Today

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) - When disc jockey Melvin West departed from here in an outboard motorboat bound for Bermuda, he told his friends not to worry for 12 days.

His own deadline fell today and there were no reports of the fate of the 28-year-old boating enthusiast or his 16 1/2-foot "Empress of North Carolina."

There have been no reported sightings of West since he sailed Jan. 29 on the 80-mile trip. West tried the voyage, in another boat, several months ago. He was picked up, out of fuel, short of his goal by the Coast Guard last Oct. 12. West said he undertook the trip to prove that "motorboating had come of age."

Many men have pioneered in such Atlantic ventures over the years. In 1866, two men sailed a 26-foot boat from the United States to France to promote Ingersoll's Improved Metallic Life Boat Co. Two years later, three men sailed a schooner-rigged life raft from New York to England.

Probers Meet To Discuss Firing Counsel Schwartz

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House subcommittee investigating the Federal Communications Commission meets today with all signs pointing to the probable ouster of its controversial counsel Bernard Schwartz.

The firing of Schwartz in a dispute over his expense vouchers could lead to a lengthy delay in the group's probe of the FCC and other regulatory agencies. This investigation has aroused considerable dissension within the subcommittee, chiefly over Schwartz's handling of hearings on the FCC last week.

In advance of the subcommittee meeting, Schwartz denied there was anything irregular about certain of his expense accounts totaling $400. But he predicted, "They are going to fire me." He said he would not resign. Two subcommittee members, one a critic and the other a backer of Schwartz, agreed he was probably on his way out.

Schwartz contended he is being ousted because he wanted public hearings that he said would go into some cases of White House influence.

The Washington Post quoted him as saying "we have actual evidence" that Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's top aide, "has played a part in cases involving several (regulatory) agencies."

Without going into details, Schwartz also said the hearings would have touched on Secretary of Commerce Weeks; Col. George Moore, Mrs. Eisenhower's brother-in-law; former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York; former Undersecretary of Commerce Robert B. Murray Jr.; an unidentified FCC member; and "possibly" Vice President Nixon.

There was no immediate comment from the White House or from any of those mentioned by Schwartz.

The 34-year-old subcommittee counsel said that "powerful interests... will stop at nothing" to halt the probe of the FCC. He said the issue raised over his expenses is "an attempt to divert the investigation which... will succeed."

The Post quoted Schwartz as saying Chairman Harris (D-Ark) of the parent House Commerce Committee was using his disputed expense account as a means of forcing his resignation just as the subcommittee was due to open hearings tomorrow on what Schwartz termed an FCC "pay-off" in the granting of a TV license. He did not elaborate on this.

The FCC probe has centered so far on allegations — based on a memorandum prepared by Schwartz — that some commission members improperly accepted favors from the broadcasting industry. These favors allegedly included travel and other expenses when FCC members attended radio-TV trade meetings.

The memo was classified as confidential, but its contents leaked to newsmen. The transcript of a closed-door subcommittee session on Jan. 30 showed Schwartz was the source of the leak.

Questions about Schwartz's own expenses arose over the weekend when the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune published a story saying the counsel had received $400 in expense money for four weekends in New York. The Tribune story, filed from its Washington bureau, said part of the money was tagged for hotel expenses. However, the dispatch said Schwartz had his own apartment in New York.

In Paris, Premier Felix Gaillard came under attack for allowing military men to embroil the country in a serious diplomatic battle. He called a special meeting of his Cabinet.

called in French Ambassador Herve Alphand yesterday to express concern and seek further information, a State Department statement said.

The State Department was expected to try (1) to get the French to minimize their use of "hot pursuit" against Algerian rebels fleeing into Tunisia, and (2) to get the Tunisian government to tighten border regulations so as to reduce rebel traffic into Tunisia.

The French said the attack was to wipe out an anti-aircraft French plane. The attack was only against military objectives, they claimed, adding that aerial photographs showed that nine tenths of the village remained intact.

Nehi Ladgham, Tunisian state secretary, said at a funeral for 58 of the victims that schools and homes had been bombed. Goesta Heuman, a Swedish Red Cross official who watched from the town's outskirts as the 25 French warplanes bombed and strafed for an hour, said, "I will never forget the horrible sight of Sakiet. Women and children lay dead and bleeding."

The attack came at the height of the market hour while the market squares were crowded. Communist opponents of the United States were expected to make propaganda capital out of the fact that 17 of the planes the French used in the attack were American-made — 11 twin-engine B26 bombers and 6 Navy Corsair fighter-bombers.

American and British officials were openly fearful that the French action had been a serious new blow to the Western position in the Arab world.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba, regarded in Washington and London as heretofore a good friend of the West, demanded that the French immediately withdraw the 20,000 troops that remained in Tunisia after the protectorate gained independence from France in 1955. He also demanded that the French give up the big naval base at Bizerte, a vital NATO position.

Tunisian National Guard troops took up station around all French military posts in Tunisia and French military vehicles were banned from all roads.

The Tunis newspaper L'Action, an organ of Bourguiba's ruling Neo-Destour party, accused the French of an act of war and asserted: "The hard reality teaches us every day that hanging out the shirt tails of the West brings us only insults and humiliation."

"One thing is clear: to be respected in 1958 one cannot remain a friend of the West. To be treated with consideration and courtesy one has to be a Nehru, Tito or Nasser."

Post was one of eight scientists of AEC's "Project Sherwood" — the program aimed at peaceful use of the H-bomb — called to describe selected aspects.

The subcommittee is starting the second week of hearings on the status of basic, or fundamental, research in various fields of nuclear and related science.

The testimony of the Sherwood scientists appeared likely to be personal exposition of technical reports released by AEC on Jan. 24. At that time, both the United States and Great Britain jointly reported fruitful and promising results in the quest for industrial power from the H-bomb reaction.

Both countries made it clear however that any attainment of the objective is many years away.

Post's prepared testimony said that as far as now known, the only avenue to fusion power is through the confinement of a very hot ionized gas — "plasma" — by means of intense magnetic fields.

Standing in the way of achieving these conditions today are some unusual technological problems such as handling of huge, momentary electrical power flows and currents, and the problem of achieving high purity in the hot gas, he said.

Tunisia Considers Asking Security Council Action On French Aerial Attack

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - Tunisia deliberated today whether to ask for U.N. Security Council action on the French bombing of a Tunisian frontier village. Both the United States and Britain voiced concern over the explosive situation, but expressed hope it could be smoothed over.

In Paris, Premier Felix Gaillard came under attack for allowing military men to embroil the country in a serious diplomatic battle. He called a special meeting of his Cabinet.

The Tunisians said 78 persons were killed and 84 wounded in the daylight raid Saturday on Sakiet Sidi Youssef.

Expert Predicts Harnessed H-Bomb Will Be Achieved

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Atomic Energy Commission scientist predicted today the goal of harnessing the H-bomb reaction for electrical power eventually will be achieved.

But the scientist, Dr. Richard F. Post of AEC's University of California radiation laboratory at Livermore, Calif., cautioned that though technical problems remain to be solved.

Margaret Fleming, Dan Morgan Pledge Vows Saturday Morning

A double-ring ceremony Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at the Immanuel Baptist Church united in marriage Miss Margaret Elizabeth Fleming and Dan Ralph Morgan of Farmville.

The Rev. Irbly B. Jackson officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Claude Tatum Fleming and the late Mr. Fleming of Greenville. She attended Greenville City Schools and is a graduate of East Carolina College. At the present time she is a member of the faculty of the Raleigh City Schools.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. David Ralph Morgan and the late Mr. Morgan of Farmville, attended Darlington Prep School, Atlantic Christian College, University of North Carolina, and studied two years in Philadelphia.

Music was rendered by Miss Ann Montgomery, organist, and Mrs. Moye Dail, soloist. The altar of the church was banked with emerald wedding greens, seven branch candelabras, and wedding baskets of white chrysanthemums.

Given in marriage by her brother, Claude Tatum Fleming Jr., the bride wore a gown of chantilly lace fashioned with a fitted bodice, circular neck, abbreviated sleeves, a full ballerina skirt with a large bow and satin panels to the hemline. Her veil of pure silk illusion fell from a chantilly lace coronet.

She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid and stephanotis. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Carolyn Clapp, wearing a full skirted dress of red crystalettes with three-quarter length sleeves, carried a cascade bouquet of green cyripediums. She was maid of honor.

Dr. Ray Miller of New Bern was best man. Ushers were James Barker Fountain of Chapel Hill, Zeb Whitehurst of Burlington, Shelby Roebuck and Bob Darden of Farmville.

The mother of the bride wore a pink trimmed Dior blue suit, matching hat and brown accessories. Her corsage was a white purple throated orchid.

The bridegroom's mother wore a steel blue dress with a yoke overlaid with pearls, and matching accessories. Her corsage was identical to the bride's mother's. For her wedding trip the bride selected a open blue costume suit, black accessories, fur cape, and the white orchid lifted from her prayer book.

After their northern wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Raleigh.

Cake Cutting
Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Fleming Jr. entertained the Morgan-Fleming wedding party and out-of-town guests at a cake cutting at the Woman's Club Friday evening.

A bridal motif accented by magnolia leaves were used as decorations throughout the club. Guests were invited to the appointed table which held the three-tier wedding cake at one end and a silver punch bowl holding lime punch at the other. A white carnation arrangement with hearts and bells interspersed centered the table which was covered with a white outwork cloth. Silver candelabras holding burning white tapers flanked the centerpiece.

After the couple cut the first traditional slice of wedding cake, Mrs. W. A. Sermons served the cake and Mrs. S. B. Tucker poured punch. Guests helped themselves to other party accompaniments.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming greeted the approximately 30 guests and invited them into the hall and front living room.

Proceeds will be used to increase the scholarship fund of the chapter, which annually provides financial assistance for a Pitt County student attending the college here.

The event will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the North Dining Hall at the college. Games of bridge and canasta are being planned for the entertainment of these present.

Valentine decorations will be used. Mrs. E. R. Carraway of Greenville, president, Mrs. Susie Webb, chairman of the reservations committee; and other members of the chapter are completing plans for the tournament.

Mrs. Davis Named President Of WCUNC Alumnae Chapter

The Pitt County Chapter of the Alumnae of Woman's College met in Farmville Saturday at 12 noon for their annual luncheon meeting.

Mrs. Thomas Davis and Mrs. Charles P. Adams of Greenville were presented as the nominating committee's choice for president and vice-president of the chapter by Miss Margaret Stevens, member of the nominating committee. The 40 alumnae present unanimously accepted Mrs. Davis as president and Mrs. Adams as vice-president.

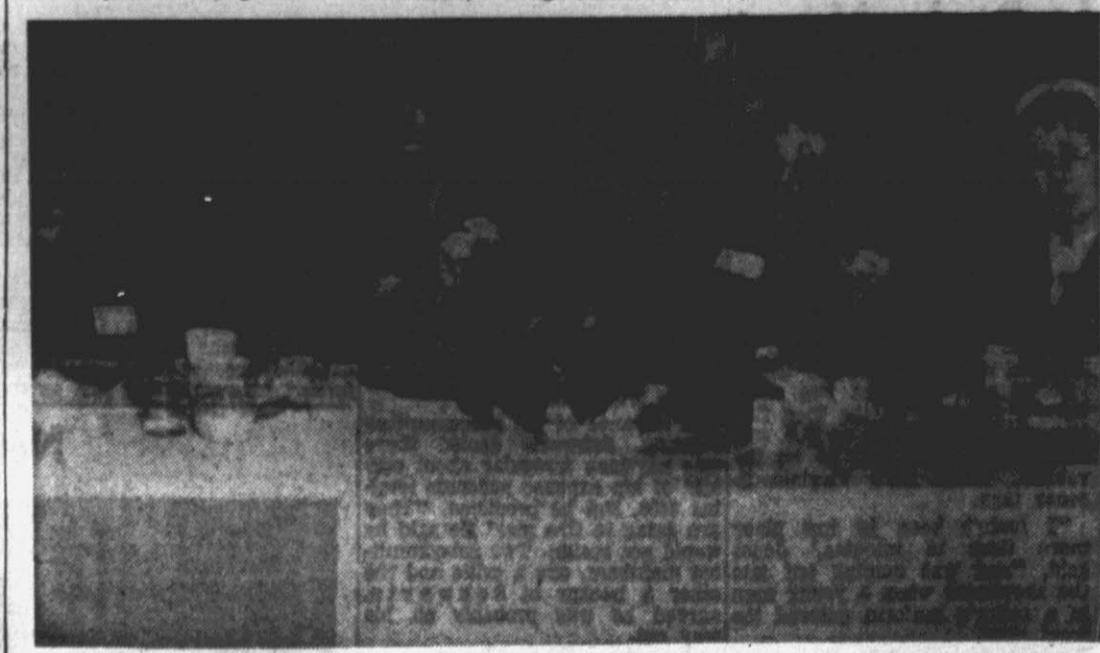

Mrs. Howard Mims introduced Miss Sayde Dunn, graduate of Woman's College 1957 and field representative of the college, who told the group that their duty as alumnae lay in encouraging students of quality to attend a quality school, such as Woman's College. "Although Woman's College is a girl's school during the weekdays, on weekends it is definitely co-educational," she added as encouragement to the future students.

Miss Dunn is a native of Bladenboro and received her Bachelor of Science degree in physical education. Her work for the college is with the alumnae, parents, teachers, and high school students.

Mrs. Herman Baker, outgoing president from Farmville, gave the welcome and presided over the meeting. Mrs. Luther Herring gave the invocation and Mrs. Mary Irma Moore, secretary, read the minutes. Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, member of the Board of Trustees of the Greater University, was unable to attend, but sent a message by her daughter, Mrs. J. K. Proctor Jr.

The group voted to remember Mrs. J. C. Wooten with a card and an autographed program. Mrs. Wooten is a graduate of the class of 1896 and her class is celebrating their 60th reunion this year.

Professor Discussion Leader For Annual Parents' Institute

Dr. George A. Douglas, faculty member of the East Carolina social studies department and director of the Danforth Project at the college, is acting as discussion leader of the Third Annual Parents' Institute in Washington, N. C. The topic to be considered at a series of meetings is "Family Living."

The Institute will be in session at the Brown Library in Washington from 7:45 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. each Monday from Feb. 17 through March 17. Mrs. Rodney Latham Jr. is chairman of the Institute Committee. The series of discussions is sponsored by the Washington Parent-Teacher Association.

Dr. Douglas, who joined the East Carolina faculty in 1957, came to the college from Charlotte, N. C., where for several years he acted as coordinator of family life education in the public schools. The program there became so successful under his guidance that observers from many sections of the country came to Charlotte to study its operation and effectiveness. In an article in "Home Life" magazine for December, 1957, Dr. Douglas' work in Charlotte is discussed by Claude U. Breach.

Afternoon Nuptials Unite Miss Branch, Mr. Story

Saturday afternoon at four o'clock Miss Betty Sue Branch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Branch of Greenville, became the bride of Leon Otis Story of Richmond, Va., son of Mrs. E. T. Story and the late Mr. Story of Branchville, Va., in Memorial Baptist Church.

The Rev. Percy B. Upchurch officiated.

The altar of the church was banked with oregon palms and seven-branch candelabras. The floor baskets were made of oregon ferns interspersed with white carnations and centered with three cathedral tapers.

Mrs. Claude S. Kidd of Greenville was organist and Miss Courtney Kennemur of Roanoke Rapids was soloist. Organ selections rendered were "Evening Star" by Wagner, "Call Me Thine Own" by Halevy, "Cantilene Nuptiale" by Dubois and "The Swan" by Saint Saens. Miss Kennemur, former student of the bride, sang "Through The Years" by Youmans and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte as the benediction.

The traditional wedding marches were used.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an original full length gown of rosepoint lace over bridal satin. The long sleeves of the bodice extended to poiffs over the wrists and the full skirt fell into a circular court train. Around the self-scalloped neckline and points of the sleeves the delicate pattern of lace was outlined with seed pearls and iridescent sequins.

Her two-tiered fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of iridescent sequins and seed pearls which matched those on the bridal gown. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses centered with a purple-throated white orchid. Streamers of white satin accented the cascade of the bridal bouquet.

Miss Carolyn Branch, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a waist-length dress of light pink taffeta fashioned on princess lines with the fitted bodice flaring into a full skirt. Her head-dress was a half-hat matching the dress. She carried a cascade bouquet of aqua feathered carnations. Matching streamers of imported satin completed the bouquet.

Bridesmaids were Miss Martha Ann Branch, sister of the bride, and Miss Faye Branch, cousin of the bride. Their dresses and head-dresses were aqua and patterned identical to that of the maid of honor and they carried similar bouquets of pink feathered carnations.

Miss Janice Ann Cordell, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Her dress and flowers were like those of the maid of honor.

Norwood Paige Story of Branchville, Va. served as best man.

Ushers were L. Woodrow Story, brother of the bridegroom, E. Selton Story, brother of the bridegroom, of Richmond, Va.; Chief Petty Officer Joe L. Thompson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom of Annapolis, Md., and William Knox of Bolivia, N. C.

Mrs. Branch chose for her daughter's wedding a fallow rose silk dress fashioned with organza. Her accessories were white and she wore a lavender orchid corsage with matching tulle and Swiss satin ribbon.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a dress of Dior blue lace with matching accessories and a lavender orchid corsage.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride wore a blue costume suit complimented by a set of mink scarves. Her accessories were black and white and at her shoulder was the white orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Story will make their future home at 1515 Glenside Drive, Richmond, Va.

The bride was educated at Greenville High School, and was a member of the 1954 graduating class of East Carolina College. She received the Business Education Department Award, was a member of Pi Omega Pi, national honorary business fraternity, and was elected to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." The bride was a member of the Roanoke Rapids High School faculty for three and a half years. She has recently joined the faculty of the Thomas Jefferson High School, Richmond, Va.

The bridegroom was educated at Hargrove Military Academy, Chatham, Va., graduating as a Cadet Major, highest ranking student in the class. He served five years as pilot in the United States Air Force. He is at present employed by the First and Merchants National Bank of Richmond.

On Friday night following the rehearsal, Mrs. L. W. Story and Mrs. E. S. Story entertained the wedding party and guests with a cake cutting at the home of the bride.

A green and white color note was carried out in the decorations. The bride's table was covered with a crocheted lace cloth made by her grandmother and centered with a floral arrangement of carnations flanked by three-branched silver candelabra with white tapers. The table was graced with the traditional three-tiered wedding cake at one end and a punch bowl at the other.

Back To The Source Of Troubles

When parental guidance is lacking in a home situation, it often becomes the responsibility of some agency of government to afford children the guidance they need but are not getting.

guidance and determine their own courses. They will seek their own activities to fill the hours formerly taken up by school. They will be influenced by whatever guidance, good or evil, crosses their path.

One Indication Of Tight Money

By LYNN NISBET DANGER — A decrease of $600,000 in income tax receipts and $100,000 in sales taxes for January as compared with the year before does not mean the State is going broke, but it is a definite danger signal that Money may be getting tight.

It was also expected that the big drop in this item would occur in February, because the car owners who have difficulty in finding money for license plates usually are among the last to buy the tags.

More Numbers For Your Check

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of these days your paycheck will have a row of figures, in heavy ink, along the lower right edge.

Because you have an honest face — and, gee! you do, don't you? — you are told the check will be honored. The teller will feed it into a machine and, before he has finished counting out your money, the $1,000 will be charged to your account.

One month is not as fair basis for comparison, because delay of a day or two in a big check can make a big difference in balance. The first seven months of the current fiscal year showed slight gains in both income and sales tax yield.

Officials still hope, and many of them really believe, that in the long run the effect of the new tax and insurance laws will mean increased revenue for the State. All the signs no point to necessity for tightening belts during the next few months — and perhaps for further adjustment in tax laws by the next General Assembly.

The Public Forum

To The Editor:

Farmers are hearing a lot from Washington and Mr. Benson in regard to our Farm Program. The time is at hand when Washington and Mr. Benson should hear from the farmer.

HOW IT WILL WORK Instant banking will work this way: You have an account in a Haverhill, Mass., bank and you are in Hollywood. Because you have a date with a movie star, you present a $1,000 personal check at a Hollywood bank.

The beverage tax showed decline both for the month and for the year, indicating that the increased levies put on alcoholic beverages by the two recent Legislatures may be tending to price the product out of the market. That danger is further evidenced by reported increase in moonshining and bootlegging operations through the state.

These books are different from the usual run. The stories deal mainly with human interest, folklore and traditions of the people rather than with physical geography. In a foreword to the second volume Sharpe reminds that the spread of some ten years makes comparison of population and industrial statistics unfair and unreliable. It must be noted, too, that some of the historic facts (?) are questionable. But the "New Geography" is a veritable treasure-trove of fable and romance, preserving in written form many of the delightful folk-lore stories which, regardless of historic accuracy, have exerted tremendous influence upon the habits and the thinking of the people.

When a check is completely coded — that is, when that bottom line is filled with amounts as well as bank identification — when a check is cashed it will be stuck into a machine and, faster than you can say Nelson Rockefeller, machines will deduct the total from the payer's account and reckon the balance.

AUTOMOBILES — There was also a decrease in highway revenue for the month. Gasoline tax collections shows a drop of $82,561, bus and franchise taxes a drop of more than $300,000. Title fees for automobiles were off more than $7,000. The item of automobile license plates went up more than $16,000, but there is a gimmick in that figure. The increase in dollars was about 1.7 per cent. But there was an extra dollar added to the license plate for driver training program. That meant for most passenger cars an increase of 10 per cent, for some big cars 7 per cent to 8 per cent, and for trucks and buses perhaps one percent or less.

These books are different from the usual run. The stories deal mainly with human interest, folklore and traditions of the people rather than with physical geography. In a foreword to the second volume Sharpe reminds that the spread of some ten years makes comparison of population and industrial statistics unfair and unreliable. It must be noted, too, that some of the historic facts (?) are questionable. FAST WITHDRAWALS When a check is completely coded — that is, when that bottom line is filled with amounts as well as bank identification — when a check is cashed it will be stuck into a machine and, faster than you can say Nelson Rockefeller, machines will deduct the total from the payer's account and reckon the balance.

Why Read News To Baby?

Rails Ailing Today

By ROGER BABSON BABSON PARK, Mass. — The recent suicide of Mr. Robert Young, Chairman of the New York Central Railroad, brings to your attention the problems of the whole railroad industry.

One of the main reasons given for the railroads' troubles is that commuter passenger business does not pay, and is provided only at a large loss to the railroads. This is the business of bringing great numbers of people into a big city every morning, and out again at night, all within short periods of time.

Your local stockbroker will tell you whether this situation applies to the railroad whose stocks you now hold. With the Union Pacific and Santa Fe, the proportion of commuter business is very small in relation to the total passenger business. On the other hand, with the Pennsylvania or New York Central, the proportion of commuter business is very large. Every railroad must be judged independently. We should not generalize about them.

Woman Banker's Views

NEW YORK (AP) — If you can trust the feminine intuition and business judgment of one of America's top women bankers, the present recession will be short-lived.

When her husband — wealthy Siegfried Roebling, member of the family that built the Brooklyn Bridge — died in 1935, she took his place as a member of the board of the Trenton Trust Co. Two years later she was elected president.

The bank then had assets of 17 million dollars. Today it has 70 million in assets, and has climbed to a rank among the top 350 of the nation's 14,700 banks.

Other Editors Saying More High School Grads (The Raleigh Times) The State Board of Education got double-barrelled news yesterday, one barrel good, one bad.

One way the State can do that is by the type teachers it gives that child in the public schools. Really good teachers can put so much of hope and faith in a child's heart that he'll not allow himself to be stopped anywhere short of the real pearly gates of education.

Women millionaires, like men millionaires, have their own success formulas, and when they get on this subject there is absolutely no sex difference between them.

Other Editors Saying More High School Grads

Of course, not every high school graduate should go to college. Some people just aren't equipped for college, and any time they spend there would be wasted for both the student and the college. But, every child who is equipped for the kind of training available in college should have impressed upon him the desirability and the almost absolute necessity that he take advantage of the opportunity to acquire further education.

That college education will be of great importance to the child himself. It will be of even greater importance to the State of North Carolina, for a citizenry educated to the highest possible level is the State's best opportunity for progress to the highest possible level.

Here, for example, is Mrs. Roebling's recipe for getting ahead: "Hard work."

WASHINGTON — Creation of the United Arab State through the political merger of Egypt and Syria threatens new and serious trouble for the United States in the boiling Middle East. It may force Washington to intervene more actively, aggressively, and expensively in that key area.

Another way for the State to get more of its youngsters into the higher education they need and deserve is to maintain at all times a climate favorable to education. A man named Aycock did that once for North Carolina. Other men have done it before Aycock and to a lesser degree perhaps, since Aycock.

LABOR UNION STRANGLATION One of the greatest handicaps of the railroads is the arbitrary and useless rules of the labor unions.

Middle East Volcano Rumbling

A COUNTER TO DULLES VISIT Egypt and Syria, to the surprise of their respective peoples and even high officials announced their marriage on the eve of the Ankara conference. It was their counter to the Dulles visit and to the effort to nullify Jordan and Lebanon in the "northern tier" grouping.

Should these two countries fail to respond favorably to the Nasser bid, diplomats expect renewal of earlier attempts to topple King Hussein in Jordan and to oust the pro-West regime in Lebanon. Such an offensive may force Washington to modify its present stand-offish attitude with regard to METO.

Such a showdown may reveal the basic weakness of the Eisenhower Doctrine. For the only encouraging aspect of the Egyptian-Syria merger is that Nasser promised it in order to check Communist influence and infiltration at Damascus. Syria must disband all political parties under the terms of the union agreement, including the powerful Communist group.

Even the Son of God had to renounce certain things. Particularly he had to renounce ambition and the inclination that all people of decided character have to do things their way. God made it very plain that in matters pertaining to the kingdom of heaven, things would be done His way. Even Jesus found this fact hard to face.

It is significant that Moscow has offered no comment, favorable or critical, on the Cairo-Damascus coup. But it is generally believed that the Kremlin prefers to keep the Arabian states weak and separate. Disunion has always been a weapon employed by the Communists

Finally, and most spectacularly, the union gives these anti-Western politicians and nations a death grip on Middle East petroleum, which is so vital to the Free World in peace or war.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS RENUNCIATION If there is one thing which makes many people shy away from religion, it is the fact that religion involves renunciation.

Even the Son of God had to renounce certain things. Particularly he had to renounce ambition and the inclination that all people of decided character have to do things their way. God made it very plain that in matters pertaining to the kingdom of heaven, things would be done His way. Even Jesus found this fact hard to face.

Sow Farrowed 53 Pigs In Less Than Year

WINTERVILLE — Tyree Stox, who lives on the Billy Branch farm near Winterville, lays claim to a busy hog.

His Red Jersey sow has farrowed 53 pigs in less than a year's time.

On Feb. 15, 1957 the non-registered sow farrowed a litter of 13 pigs. In that group nine lived.

On September 1, 1957 another litter of 20 came along. Eleven from that litter lived.

Then just this month, on February 1, the sow farrowed another litter of 20 pigs. Seventeen of that group still survive.

From the first two litters, 16 were sold when they were four months old. Average weight of the pigs was 180 pounds. Stox kept enough of the pigs for home consumption and the rest were sold for $450.

The fruitful sow weighs about 400 pounds.

Stox lives about three miles west of Winterville.

Utica Portrayed As Vice Center Of Underworld

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Investigation of last November's nationwide underworld convention at Apalachin has pointed to this industrial city in the Mohawk Valley — population 101,531 — as a vice center.

Official reports portray Utica as a "wide open" city, with widespread gambling and many houses of prostitution — at least one within shouting distance of City Hall.

The chief of police, Leo Miller, told a legislative hearing Thursday that brothels had operated in the city for 20 years to his knowledge. But he said he was never able to get evidence against them.

Last Nov. 14, state police flushed 60 surprised mobsters and their friends from Joseph Barbara's palatial residence near Apalachin, about 100 miles southwest of here near the Pennsylvania state line.

They were questioned and released after identifying themselves. A dozen police agencies have sought since then to learn the purpose of the gangland meeting. Their questions have met for the most part with a wall of silence.

One trail led to Utica. State police said Joseph Falcone and some of his cronies from Utica attended the crime conclave. Falcone, 55, operator of a liquor store is reported to be the rackets king in Utica. He took the Fifth Amendment when asked about this at a legislative hearing.

Dist. Atty. John M. Liddy told the State Legislature's watchdog committee Friday that he had sent a secret memorandum on conditions in Utica to the superintendent of state police in 1956 and that Falcone learned of its contents almost word for word.

Liddy quoted Falcone as telling him: "My boys in Albany and New York took care of me."

The committee asked Chief Miller how he went about investigating vice complaints. Miller said he sent city detectives but they never managed to gain entrance.

"That was like sending a brass band, wasn't it?" asked Assemblyman Joseph Corso. Miller agreed it was a little like that.

Miller said he had a "speaking acquaintance" with Irene Burke, whom he described as "the best known madam in Utica." He said she was "almost an institution."

The price of vice in Utica is said to have risen sharply since the official investigation began. According to one report, girls in the cheapest part of town, who had been charging from $2 to $5, now are asking for $20.

Hi-Fi LP Records Outdated By Stereophonic Tape? It May Happen

By LOUIS J. KRAMP
AP News Features

with a small but good list. About 1,000 tapes are available now and about 100 new ones are coming out monthly.

Most tapes are re-issues of discs. Most cost about twice as much — $10 to $15 compared to $4 or $5 for a 12-inch long play record. The playing time is about the same.

It doesn't mean that the LP records or single channel high fidelity systems are either old fashioned or on their way out. It's too early to tell whether tape will supplant or only supplement discs. Certainly at this stage the discs are far cheaper.

But many high fidelity buffs are jumping on that stereophonic bandwagon they heard parading across show rooms of tape makers and tape recorder firms at demonstrations across the nation in recent months.

About 40 companies, including Audiofidelity, RCA Victor, Columbia, Capitol, Mercury and Westminster, already are issuing stereophonic tapes. Many are newcomers, such as Sterophony, Inc.,

Of course, stereophonic tape requires special equipment to reproduce it. If you have a one-channel record system, you may be able to convert it to a two-speaker and amplifier. Of course, you also must add tape unit. This can mean spending $200 to $1,000 more for new hi-fi equipment. So the new trend is booming equipment sales, too.

So far tapes and tape equipment have been sold chiefly in high fidelity shops. But packaged units are on the market, ranging from about $300 to $2,000. These usually permit not only the playing of pre-recorded tapes, but also the taping of your own recordings.

If you already have a monaural tape recorder you can convert to stereo for as little as $100 additional cost.

Heard in Movies

The shift to stereo equipment has been developing for several years. But it became widespread in recent months. Some public interest is traceable to stereophonic sound heard in movies such as "Cinera-

ma" and "Around The World In Eighty Days."

Most interest, however, comes from the hi-fi buff who has gradually improved his hi-fi rig to the point where he has an investment of $500 to $1,000 or more invested. Then he hears a stereo demonstration. He isn't happy until he gets into tape.

No one knows how many stereo units are now in operation. Sales are estimated at 5,000 to 10,000 a month, with 75,000 to 100,000 units in operation. This compares with the several million phonograph units which are playing the 30 million or more discs sold in the nation each year for about half a billion dollars.

The discs will continue. In fact, there already are stereophonic discs on the market. They require only a special stylus and, of course, the separate amplifier-speaker for the second channel of sound.

There is also the possibility of stereophonic FM radio, through a method called "multiplexing."

It all adds up to happy days ahead for sound fanciers.

Movie Premier At Washington

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Movie stars, government officials, and leaders from the aviation field are on the guest list for the world premiere here of the movie, "The Lafayette Escadrille," Feb. 28.

Special guests of honor for the occasion will be living members of the Escadrille, a group of American flyers who fought for France in World War I before the United States went to war. The U.S. Air Force has offered to fly them to Washington, N.C., for the event.

Tab Hunter stars in the movie version of the Escadrille's exploits. He and other members of the cast, along with director William A. Wellman, have been invited.

Washington was the home town of Jim Baughman, at 17 the youngest member of the Escadrille. He was killed early in the war. His relatives still living here include a sister, Mrs. Harry McMullan, widow of a former state attorney general.

Swinging Visit To Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — John D. Yoon, a Korean telephone engineer studying U. S. methods, recently visited Gov. George M. Leader of Pennsylvania.

"Why did you come to Pennsylvania to make your observations?" the Governor asked.

"I heard the song 'Pennsylvania 6-5000' so much in Seoul that I wanted to see what Pennsylvania actually was like," Yoon answered.

Runaway Boy Is Found-Barefoot

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Searchers last night found a 10-year-old boy who had run away barefoot in the North Carolina mountains five hours before because he feared punishment at home.

The whining of his dog, Brownie, led one of the 100 searchers to Gary Burnett, who was shivering in a farm shed in 20 degree weather.

Gary was taken by ambulance to Memorial Mission Hospital here and put under observation for exposure. Attendants said further observation was necessary to determine whether he had suffered injury.

The search started when he fled from a neighbor, Earl Justice, who had come upon him in the Reems Creek area. His parents said that he evidently feared punishment because he had slipped off without permission.

Justice told the parents that Gary apparently "ran out of his shoes" and disappeared with his dog into a wooded area.

The boy had a different story. He said he took off his shoes and sock so he could run faster. Gary also said he crossed Reems Creek on ice and wandered around until he came to the shed, where he went into hiding.

OSSINING, N.Y. (AP) — A veteran Maryknoll missionary in China, the Rev. Thomas J. Bauer, reports that only three American priests remain there, all in prison or under restriction in Shanghai, and that Communists now are exerting pressure to promote a church independent of Rome.

unions. These rules were made years ago before the use of diesel engines, automatic signaling, and the various electrical appliances which now provide safety. The worst of all is the so-called "featherbedding", whereby the railroads must pay for time which is not used in any productive manner while they are largely forbidden to introduce labor-saving equipment.

During the past few months, I have interviewed several railroad presidents. When I asked them the main reason for the difficulties of the railroads, they replied — "because of the foolish, useless, and expensive rules of the labor unions." Unfortunately, it takes much courage for Congressmen or Senators to try to curb union labor.

WHAT ABOUT THE FUTURE OUTLOOK?

A large amount of railroad track should never have been laid. Certain railroads were built, not to carry passengers and freight, but rather to sell stocks and bonds. Such railroad trackage should now be discarded and thousands of railroad stations should be closed. I feel that conditions may go from bad to worse until our whole railroad system collapses and has to be reorganized. Such reorganization could eliminate the useless duplication.

On the other hand, so many railroad bond issues are secured by so many different kinds of assets that each railroad would have to be reorganized independently. This would be sure to take a long time; but most first-mortgage and certain other railroad bonds should come out in the end worth par and interest. Therefore, my conclusion to holders of railroad securities is this: If may be better for you to sell your railroad securities now and reinvest the money in some new and growing industry. Otherwise, reinvest in these railroad bonds later, when they will sell for half their present price. I now see little hope for most railroad stocks.

The Sports Reflector

By BILLY ARNOLD

Wayne Bishop, a favorite son shared by Greenville and the University of North Carolina alike, made a lot of people proud with his performance in the VMI Track Meet this week-end.

The tousle-haired ex-Greenville high school standout runner won the two mile in 9 minutes, 40.9 seconds and ran for a winning UNC four-mile relay team. Bishop was making a bid to set a new record in the two-mile event and finished a lap ahead of everyone except the second and third place runners. The field included 37.

Besides being one of the top tracksters in the Atlantic Coast Conference, Bishop is an A student at UNC and is strong in extra-curricular activities, including journalism.

The amazing thing about Bishop's emergence this year as a threat to ACC runners is the fact that he has been plagued throughout his college athletic career by a worrisome knee injury that just won't quit. It struck last year and cut his season short; it hit again this season and the word was that his career as a runner was finished for good.

On his last visit to Greenville some weeks ago, Wayne told us that he had been working out with foot and leg weights in an effort to strengthen the knee. Three weeks ago, just before entering the Knights of Boston tournament, he told us by phone that his knee was "holding up pretty good."

Evidently he was right.

Tournament Nearing

With only two weeks remaining in the regular season before the North State Conference Basketball Tourney begins, the teams are still battling for positions.

Very few of the slots are cemented as yet and there could be some drastic changes made in two weeks' time.

At present, Lenoir Rhyne and High Point are struggling for supremacy, with the Bears a shade ahead. They have a 10-1 mark; The Panthers are 10-2. Western Carolina seems firmly entrenched in third with an 8-5 record. Atlantic Christian is fourth at 7-6.

East Carolina and Catawba are tied for fifth place with 6-6 slates. Both would like to make that step into the top four. When tourney time rolls around, the top four clubs will be matched against the bottom four.

One of the nine clubs in the loop will drop out when tournament play begins, traditionally the bottom team. At present, that is Elon, which has a 1-11 mark.

Tough This Year

The North State Loop is a tough one this year. There is little difference in most of the eight top teams, given the right mood on the right night. The season has been chock full of close games and many of them between widely-separated clubs (statistic-wise).

Lenoir Rhyne, for instance, just barely whipped Appalachian, the No. 7 club this past week, 50-48. Atlantic Christian, the No. 4 team was soundly whipped by ECC earlier. And Western Carolina, the No. 3 club, has been beaten by both ACC and ECC.

Actually, Lenoir Rhyne is the only team in the loop that has stayed over neck-high out of the water thus far. High Point, in second place with a 10-2 mark, isn't quite as powerful as it seems, for East Carolina soundly thrashed the Panthers on the Panther home court. The decision was reversed on the much-ballyhooed ruling by Commissioner C. R. Hinshaw.

That decision, by the way, made the league what it is right now, in large part. Had East Carolina not had three games taken away by forfeit, the Pirates would have a 9-3 mark now and would be tied with High Point for second position.

Tourney Will Decide

It is the North State Tourney which will decide the league champion in the end, anyway. Though the forfeited games knocked East Carolina out of the race for the regular-season top prize, it hasn't managed to discount them completely.

When February 26 rolls around and the clubs congregate in Lexington, ECC will start with a clean slate, as will the other seven.

East Carolina journeys to Salisbury Wednesday night to break a fifth-place tie with the Catawba Indians.

With only two weeks remaining in North State Conference play before the tournament at Lexington, both East Carolina and Catawba are on the outside looking in. The clubs have 6-6 records and both desire a place in the top four.

Odds favor East Carolina to improve their mark. The Pirates putted off an easy 86-64 victory over the Indians on December 9, at Greenville's Memorial Gym. The locals have dogged top-ranked teams all year and have lost only to Lenoir Rhyne (twice) and Western Carolina. The Conference ruling that ECC used an ineligible player cost the Bucs three more games to make the record what it is.

The score isn't expected to be anything like the earlier 86-64 however. The Indians have improved since that first game and will have an added lift in playing on their own court. It is expected that the Pirates will come home with a 13-point win.

They won't be home for long. They hit the road again for Elon on February 15. If the oddsmakers are right, that one will be win No. 8 for the Bucs. They crushed Elon 79-43 on the Pirate court on January 11 and the Christians have won only one game since that time. They are 1-11 in conference play.

Of course, Coach Howard Porter is hoping that his club will be able to claim two victories this week. A win Wednesday night will secure his club of the fifth place slot and it is possible that the Pirates may even move up another step.

Atlantic Christian, the No. 4 team, must battle Appalachian tonight and leader Lenoir Rhyne Tuesday at Lenoir Rhyne. The Bulldogs are rated definite underdogs in that last one.

Then, on Wednesday, High Point will be at Western Carolina, and it is entirely possible that the Catamounts could cut a notch off the Panther record with a win Saturday. At present, East Carolina is ranked the No. 9 team in the nation in scoring by the NIA. They are averaging 83.8 points per game. They are head and shoulders above any other North State club in team scoring. High Point, the only other league team mentioned in the statistics, is 20th with a 79.5 average.

Responsible for that ranking are the seven boys who will probably carry the brunt of the ECC attack to Catawba Wednesday and Elon Saturday; Jessel Curry and Ike Riddick at guards; Don Smith and Harold Ingram at forwards; Joe Plaster at center, and reserves Charlie Adams and Guy Mendenhall.

ACC Has Become Topsy-Turvy In Past 3 Weeks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS They play basketball for keeps in the Atlantic Coast Conference. And they love nothing better than upsetting the apocryph.

North Carolina, the ACC's top nationally ranked team, No. 7, currently is fourth in conference standings. Maryland, No. 8 in the nation, is No. 3 in the conference; North Carolina State, No. 9 in the nation, is No. 1 in the conference; and Duke, No. 13 in the nation, is No. 2 in the conference.

It's a topsy-turvy league with four teams neck and neck for the leading spot and the other four capable of springing an upset almost any time.

On Saturday Duke defeated North Carolina, 91-75; North Carolina State trounced South Carolina 86-55; and Maryland edged by Wake Forest, 74-67. Clemson and Virginia didn't play.

No games are scheduled tonight, but tomorrow Duke is at N.C. State and North Carolina at Virginia.

North Carolina coach Frank McGuire, whose Tar Heels won 32 straight and the national championship last season, said after the Duke loss: "Well, we're the underdogs again. Let somebody else be the favorites from now on."

And Duke Coach Hal Bradley, whose team had lost five consecutive games to the Tar Heels before Saturday, said, "This makes it all seem worthwhile again."

Both McGuire and Bradley agreed that the key to Duke's seven-game winning streak was the right combination of players.

Bradley attributed it to "playing the same boys 90 per cent of the time and changing our defense (to a zone)."

McGuire explained, "Basketball is a five-man game. When you find your five best, you got to go with them. Duke found its lineup and that's why it has been playing so well lately."

The week's schedule: Saturday—Duke at N. C. State, Carolina at Virginia. Wednesday—Furman at South Carolina. Thursday—North Carolina at Wake Forest, Clemson at Maryland. Friday—Clemson at Virginia.

Saturday—Maryland at N.C. State, Wake Forest at Duke, North Carolina vs. Notre Dame at Chicago, Ill.

Bishop Wins Outstanding Award At VMI Tourney

Won Outstanding Award

WAYNE BISHOP . . . top UNC runner in VMI relays.

LEXINGTON, Va. — Wayne Bishop, University of North Carolina runner, turned in his best performance of the track season here this weekend, winning the two-mile jog, helping his club claim the four-mile relay, and claiming a share of the Outstanding Competition Award.

Bishop and VMI Art Brandriff were tied in the voting for the award.

The slender Tar Heel runner, who was an outstanding trackster for Greenville high school three years ago, ran the two-mile event in 9 minutes, 40.9 seconds, four seconds better than the record set by Carolina's Jim Beatty in 1955. Bishop finished a lap ahead of everyone in the race except the second and third finishers. There was a field of 37.

He also ran a leg of the North Carolina four-mile relay team, which won that event.

Eight records fell in the seventh indoor track and field carnival here Saturday night—five of them marks which had been established only one year ago.

Host VMI, Navy and Georgetown each won three events on Saturday night's 19-event program which drew stars from 22 area colleges and three high schools. Only Georgetown, however, set more than one record.

George Berdisco of Georgetown, finished the freshman three-quarter mile run in 3:15.1 to clip more than a second off the 3:16.4 record set a year ago. Dave Proctor, Jim Kelly, Frank Trautline and Tom Cowley teamed in the two-mile relay event and posted a clocking of 8:10 that shaved 3 1/2 seconds off the mark set by William and Mary last year.

Dave Tork of West Virginia was voted the outstanding performer in the field events thanks to a record pole vault of 13 feet, 7 3/4 inches in the night's final competition.

Brandriff won the 60-yard dash in 6.4 seconds and was part of the VMI team that won the 880-yard relay in 1:35.5 and the sprint shuttle relay in the record clocking of 25.2 seconds.

Winners in the relays, with records noted, included: Sprint medley relay — Duke (Bazemore, Cobb, Bollman, Wiesiger), 3:41.8. (new record).

Four mile relay—North Carolina (Arthur, Lipford, Whitley, Bishop), 18:49.5.

Northeastern League Makes Drastic Change

A Northeastern Conference meeting held here last week, bringing together the heads of the seven schools involved, resulted in a drastic change in the league's policy toward the championship.

In concurrence with a request by the State High School Athletic Commission, the Northeastern heads voted to accept the winner of the regular season play as that conference's entry in the State playoffs.

Heretofore, a Northeastern team was required to win both the regular-season title and the Northeastern tourney title to be named entry to the State playoffs.

In the past, if two separate teams won the regular-season and tournament titles, a playoff game was staged and the winner of that tilt represented the league in the State games.

Under the new method, the winner of the season crown, based on won-lost percentages, will automatically go to the state playoffs.

The Northeastern Conference tournament — held annually in Greenville—change the representative, regardless of the outcome.

New Bern is presently leading the loop with an 8-1 record. Greenville is second with a 6-2 total.

Another matter handled by the school heads and coaches was concerned with setting a date, approved by all schools, for exams, so that no games will be scheduled during that time.

There was some talk of the Northeastern Conference Tourney, scheduled for February 27, 28, and March 1. Pairings will be made at the next conference meeting.

Ron Delany Has Track World In Confusion

NEW YORK (AP)—Ronnie Delany, the rollicking but always reluctant Irishman, had the track world in a state of complete confusion today—so much so that some fresh talent is being imported for his next race.

Statistically, Delany, the Olympic 1,500-meter champion from Villanova now has won 19 mile races in a row indoors, including his 4:04.6 effort last Saturday in the Millrose Games.

When his 30-year victory over George King in the Wanamaker Mile was complete, most coaches and officials were scratching their heads. Ron simply refused to attempt to break Gunnar Nielsen's 4:03.6 world indoor mile record; even though it was virtually set up for him.

He had said in the past that he expected the record might fall if someone were to run the three-quarters in somewhere between 3:02 and 3:04. Burr Grim of Maryland accommodated him by hitting the three-quarters in 3:03.5.

But reluctant Ron said Grim's pace was too fast. And indeed it probably was. Delany certainly ignored him.

The New York Athletic Club, which is sponsoring the meet this week, has issued a call to Jim Grelle of the University of Oregon, the runner — up to Delany in the NCAA mile last June. He has a 4:07.1 effort to his credit.

The failure of Ira Murchison, Dave Sime and the Occidental two-mile relay teams were the main surprises in the Millrose meet.

The 60-yard dash was supposed to be a battle between Murchison and Sime. Instead, Murchison was shut out in the semi final and Sime could do no better than fourth in the final. Lt. Ken Kaye of the U.S. Army won it in 6.2, after tying the world record of 6.1 in the semi.

Accidental, which is having the usual trouble getting used to the boards, now has failed twice in its announced intention of wiping the 7:33.8 world record set by Seton Hall off the books.

Other Millrose winners included Dave Scurlock of North Carolina in the 800 (1:52.3). Elias Gilbert of Winston-Salem Teachers in the 50-yard hurdles (7.2). Charles Jenkins of Villanova in the Mel Shepherd 600 (1:11.7) and Deacon Jones of Iowa in the two — mile (9:01.3).

Crawford After Gonzales Next

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Mickey Crawford, 23-year-old Baginaw, Mich., boxer, hopes to continue his climb toward a national ranking tonight by making Rex Gonzalez his second 1958 victim. They meet in a 10-round match at St. Nicholas Arena in New York.

In his only 1958 start, Mickey moved up to the middleweight class to whip favored Chico Vejar. As a writer, he lost only once in 11 bouts last year, that one to Ralph Dupas.

Gonzalez, 24, is a South Orange, N.J., fighter recently discharged from the Army. He had time for only one scrap last year, winning a decision over Jay Anderson.

Crawford's record is 19-2. Gonzalez's 24-6-1.

Deadliest Gunman In Texas

By MALLORY STORM

Cal Langtry, notorious gun sliker, and was on the porch. The balcony hired by a group of ranchowners to kill Ed Stow, a ruthless cattle king, who is trying to drive the ranchmen from their lands.

Marshal Paul Kogan, on Stow's side, and Stow's men surrounded the ranchmen at their meeting place and demand Langtry's surrender, precipitating a gun battle. Inspired by Langtry, the ranchers repulse the attackers. The attackers depart. Langtry, who prefers the name Devlin, and Jim Cavanaugh, spokesman for the ranchers, head for town and Stow's place . . . to square accounts.

CHAPTER VI

Of the horses in the barn, they found that two had been wounded and then dispatched by the attackers. They saddled a pair and loped off down the road toward Pomeroy. Devlin wore his two .44's. Cavanaugh carried a rifle.

An hour later they were on the outskirts of the town. They pulled up.

"Dead, ain't it?" Cavanaugh said.

The town seemed deserted. No one walked the short, main street. What shutters there were had been closed and barred. Cavanaugh stared at the shabby little village and got the impression of a dog, crouching, waiting to be whipped — then he thought of a mountain cat waiting to spring. There was something sinister in the unnatural emptiness of the place.

"Everybody's hiding out," Devlin said. "They heard about the war and figured it would maybe spread to town. They've holed up 'til it's over."

Cavanaugh nodded.

"Which is the Pomeroy?" Devlin asked.

Cavanaugh indicated a large building with an imposing porch and a sign hanging over the street — hanging motionless under the blazing noon sun.

"Let's go in on foot," Devlin said.

"They walked up the dusty street. No sounds. No movement. They skirted the Pomeroy side of the street and came up beside it. I'm going in the front door," Devlin said. "You try this alley and maybe find a window. I'll see you."

He moved on, vaulted a railing

"lived, Devlin."

"How come you were so long legged then? I was always right after you. Why didn't you stop and draw?"

Kogan's eyes were on Langtry. They blazed hatred. "You side-winder! You didn't say anything about his being a Ranger, you said—"

"You're starting your lies too early," Devlin said. "Wait for the circuit judge we'll send up. You know all about it. You figured we'd all be dead out there and there'd be no witnesses. With nobody to testify against it your claim of mistaken identity would hold. You'd get away with slaughtering all the nesters. Looks as though you're heading for a hangman's noose now."

Kogan was sweating. Langtry's face was twisted. "Lucky we didn't meet gun to gun, Ranger — that's all."

Devlin's eyes went thoughtful. He turned to Cavanaugh. "I'll show you something about this Langtry you didn't know. Something maybe you ought to know."

Devlin turned to Langtry. "On your feet," he snapped.

Langtry got up. "Going to shoot me down in cold blood? That's about your speed."

"Turn your back this way."

"I'll take it in front."

"Turn around!"

Langtry turned slowly. When he was facing the other way, Devlin stepped up and pushed one of the .44's into Langtry's empty holster. Then Devlin backed away across the room.

From near the front door he called. "All right, killer. Keep your hands in the air and turn back."

Langtry came around to find himself facing Devlin. Devlin's hands were also in the air. He stood spreadlegged, waiting, a grin on his face. He said, "Any time you're ready, Langtry — just reach it. It's a good gun and it's loaded. You're on your own!"

Cavanaugh stared in silence. Kogan seemed dazed, unable to comprehend what was going on.

"If Langtry gets me he goes free. Cavanaugh. You understand that?" Devlin said.

Cavanaugh croaked an affirmative answer. He pulled the rifle back.

Langtry's face had gone white. His mouth was twisting.

"Come on," Devlin said. "Let's see that fast draw."

Langtry opened his mouth and forced out some words:

"I — I ain't drawin' against you — Devlin. I ain't drawin'."

Devlin's answer was a sneer. "The great Langtry Pull that gun out of your leather. Slow."

Langtry's hand went down. He pulled the .44. It hung loose in his grip.

"Now you've got an edge. Throw down!"

"I ain't drawin' against you, Devlin." He threw the gun toward the bar and folded his arms.

Devlin turned his head toward Cavanaugh. "See what damn fools you nesters were?"

"I see. I sure do see," Cavanaugh said, slowly.

'Explorer' Help To Map-Makers

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The satellite Explorer is giving map experts a big hand in correcting errors of distance on the earth's surface.

Over vast areas such as the Pacific there now may be a large variation between the actual distance of two points and that shown on the most accurate maps.

A department of the Army release discussed the use to which the satellite is being put. Map experts will improve their calculations by using the Explorer as a reference point instead of the moon. The satellite was launched Jan. 31 from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Dr. John O'Keefe, Army Map Service geologist, is working with Dr. Charles A. Lundquist, missile agency physicist.

O'Keefe said the Explorer will help reduce mapping errors in the Pacific region from three quarters of a mile to 300 feet and ultimately will lead to precision "on the order of 30 feet throughout the world."

Returned, With No Opposition

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — President Alfredo Stroessner and members of Congress have been returned to office in a nationwide plebiscite. They all ran unopposed in balloting yesterday.

Named for a five-year term starting Aug. 15, Stroessner also ran without opposition in a special election July 11, 1954, after gaining power through a brief military revolt which ousted President Federico Chaves.

He is leader of the Colorado (Red) party, Paraguay's only legal political group. All others were outlawed after an unsuccessful revolt in 1947.

Bigness In Business Again Raised As Debating Point

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The question of bigness in business and what if anything to do about it is up again today on several fronts.

1. A small maker of autos tells Congress that General Motors and Ford should be made to split up into several smaller units—and he takes a swipe at bigness in labor unions, too.

2. United Fruit, top banana in its field, accepts a court view that it should set up a rival firm with which to share its banana business.

3. A bill before the House of Representatives would tax corporate incomes according to size—just as individual incomes are grouped in progressive tax brackets.

4. And various persons in and out of government are suggesting that Detroit be told to cut the size of its cars to help out the traffic problem.

Attacks on big business in general and bigness as such usually are stepped up during business slumps.

Small firms who may be having a hard time keeping afloat note that the giants in their industry can ride out the storm in comparative ease—especially if they are in several other fields, one or more of which may be doing all right.

George Romney, American Motors president, says his smaller company is doing very well this year, but he thinks the Big Three in the industry should be made to spin off some of their divisions for the good of the industry and the nation. GM, Ford, Chrysler and Walter Reuther aren't likely to be in accord with Romney's views on the dangers of bigness.

But Romney cites the encorced split up in 1911 of the old Standard Oil trust as benefiting all concerned. Romney told a Senate group: "Standard Oil stockholders, executives, employees and customers benefitted greatly from the creation of 34 companies out of what was previously a single enterprise. General Motors and Ford stockholders, executives, employees and customers could reasonably be expected to benefit as did those of Standard Oil."

Romney sees monopoly or competition as a major economic and political issue. Many congressional spokesmen for small business have echoed this.

Big business has been quick to deny that its growth harms the nation. It contends that the nation has grown even faster and that increasing needs of consumers have led business to expand to fill them at as low production costs as possible.

The tax proposal in Congress to discourage business growing over large by setting up a progressive income tax on corporations and thus favoring small business draws fire from the Tax Foundation, a private research organization. The top corporate tax now is 52 per cent. The proposal goes as high as 75 per cent on profits over one billion dollars, as GM once had.

The foundation argues that only 15 per cent of businesses are incorporated and the problems of

Babysitter With Knife On Guard

DETROIT (AP) — A brave girl is Nancy Hope, 15.

The telephone was dead when a masked man interrupted Nancy's baby-sitting at a neighbor's home.

Nancy got a butcher knife from the kitchen and sat with it in her hands for an hour and a half until the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Quart, came home. The man had gone by then.

Police said they found the telephone line had been cut and a garage window opened.

NEW YORK (N)—Stock market losses widened in slow trading early this afternoon. Key stocks were off fractions to about 2 points for some. The market declined from the start but the early losses were mostly narrow. As trading progressed there was a general slipping of prices in most major groups. Steels, aircrafts, rubbers, chemicals and rails took sizable losses. Motors, oils and building materials were not so hard hit. Utilities showed only a slight downward tendency. The market backed away last week from its penetration of a resistance area, and this caused some disappointment among Wall Street technicians. Based on the decline in the Associated Press average at noon, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange was down an estimated $1,400,000 from the Friday close. Youngstown Sheet, selling ex-dividend, was off more than a point at the start and deepened its loss to around 2. U.S. Steel was off around a point, Republic Steel a major fraction. Goodyear was clipped for a 2-point loss and Goodrich for a point or so. Paramount Pictures was down more than a point, biting into its gain of 2% on Friday when news came of its $50 million dollar film deal. Losses of more than a point were taken by Douglas Aircraft, Phelps Dodge and Allied Chemical. Down about a point were Union Carbide, Du Pont, Southern Railway, Baltimore & Ohio, General Electric and Eastern Air Lines. American Cyanamid was up slightly at the start following its good earnings report but later showed a net fractional loss. Boeing, United Aircraft and General Dynamics dropped good fractions.

A Mouse Named 'Oscar' Is Martyr To New Space Age

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP)—Oscar the white mouse has become a martyr to the space age. The ejection machinery in a rocket shot to 3,000 feet by teenagers failed to work. Instead of floating down in a tiny parachute Saturday, Oscar rode to death as the eight-foot rocket buried itself in a muddy field and telescoped to six feet. "We aren't haphazard or irresponsible," said 16-year-old Stewart Priddy, one of five boys who built the rocket powered by a sulphur-zinc mixture. "We're doing what we do in a scientific manner" added the youth, who plans to enter the University of North Carolina next fall to prepare for the rocket-missile field. He and his colleagues, who call themselves the Lumberton Rocket Society, have launched, or tried to launch, four rockets in the last three and a half months. Another member of the society, Byron Ballou, 16, backed up Priddy's contention that they are going about it scientifically. He pointed to the steel and concrete launching area on a farm owned by his contractor father, and said: "Anybody who would try to fire it... things with only a turned-over picnic table for a barricade is asking for trouble." At Winston-Salem, 15-year-old William Joseph Fix Jr., who lost the index finger of his right hand when a homemade rocket exploded in his hand last week, said yesterday that he has learned to leave homemade rockets alone. Fix and his two companions shot rockets by building a fire in a hole in a field and putting the rocket in the fire. He, ever, Ballou and Priddy fired theirs by remote control from a bunker whose roof was covered with heavy steel plates. They used triangulation to figure out how high the rocket goes, and their tracking stations are well away from the firing point. Ballou's father said, "I believe that with supervision this sort of thing is no more dangerous than turning a boy loose with a high-powered automobile." He said that he plans to suggest to Gov. Luther Hodges that his farm be officially designated as a launching site for rockets built by amateurs. "Who knows, this sort of thing might help to save all our necks one of these days," he added. He has seen all four launchings or attempted launchings by his son and the other boys, James F. Starling, 16; Jimmy Poole, 15, and Frank Biggs, 17. Their first rocket blew its top during a static test firing. The second exploded because the exhaust nozzle was too small. The third went up to 6,000 feet.

Crash Program Sought Against Juvenile Crime

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman has called for a crash program to cope with juvenile crime in the city's schools. He said he was willing to help devise one with Mayor Robert F. Wagner and the Board of Education. The mayor was receptive to his offer. Last Friday 644 pupils were suddenly suspended from the schools by the Board of Education. The action followed a series of rapes, knifings and other disorders involving both white and Negro students in or near schools. James E. Allen Jr., state commissioner of education, upheld the legality of the suspensions. He pointed out, however, that the board is still responsible for educating all children under 17. Other new developments in the school situation included: A call for a "real survey of the educational system from the top to the bottom to see what's wrong" by State Sen. Walter J. Mahoney (R-Butte). Mahoney is majority leader of the Senate. An attack on Wagner and top school authorities by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-N.Y.), who denounced the suspensions as "a form of nazism forced upon the people of New York City." Powell, a Negro, is also pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church. A denial by Stanley Lowell, a Wagner assistant, that racial tensions are the basic cause of troubles in the schools. Harriman's offer to work with city officials was made at a news interview after he appeared on a local TV program. The governor offered several suggestions for dealing with school delinquents, including expansion of state training schools and of probation service and child guidance.

California Will Again Line Up Top Contenders

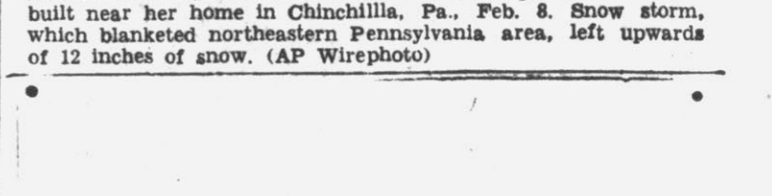

WASHINGTON (AP)—California Democrats are arranging to get an advance look at a dozen possible presidential contenders between now and 1960. National Committeeman Paul Ziffren, disclosing the plan in an interview, said results of the California primary may be decisive in the fight for the 1960 nomination. Ziffren said he plans to organize a series of dinners, beginning this summer, at which the top men of the party will be asked to speak. "We want to get a look at these men close up, let the people see them and hear them in anticipation of a wide open primary in 1960," he said. "For all practical purposes, the California primary decided the nomination in 1956 and I think history may repeat itself in 1960." In the June 1956 primary Adlai E. Stevenson defeated Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), his chief rival for the nomination for vice president. Stevenson was nominated and was beaten by President Eisenhower in the general election. Ziffren said Stevenson, who has said he won't be a candidate again, will be invited to speak, along with others like Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who has said they aren't seeking the nomination. "We want everybody who is mentioned as a candidate, even if they themselves say they aren't running," Ziffren said. "They won't have to sign any papers that will put them in the race if they don't want to." Ziffren said that he has in mind as potential speakers several governors, including Govs. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey, G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, George M. Leader of Pennsylvania, A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky, Averell Harriman of New York and Frank G. Clement of Tennessee.

Human Endurance Test Begins For Spaceman

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Man's chances to conquer outer space were on trial today by a blond airman in a narrow steel cabinet at Randolph Air Force Base. Airman Donald G. Farrell, 23, a six-footer from the Bronx, squeezed into a 3-by-5-foot experimental space cabinet yesterday morning at the School of Space Medicine for one of the most fantastic voyages in history. For seven days he will pretend—both physically and psychologically—that he is aboard a space rocket headed for the moon. Next Saturday morning—if everything goes well—he will climb from the instrument-jammed space barrel a weary but unharmed veteran of the mysteries of space travel. As he climbed into the space cabin, Farrell commented calmly, "Well, here goes." The 185-pound guinea pig wore a pair of light blue, loo-fitting hospital pajamas plus several pounds of wire taped to various parts of his body to relay his physical condition constantly to the scientists outside the steel cabinet. The same air inside the cabin is being used over and over with chemicals removing carbon dioxide and new oxygen being added. The heat inside the cabin is kept at 85 degrees or lower. Explorer, the first U.S. satellite, has radioed that its interior is around 85 degrees. All Farrell's food for the seven day trip is inside the cabin. Most of it is in concentrated and dehydrated forms. An electrically heated cup near one elbow will furnish hot soup. Moisture from his breath, perspiration and other waste moisture is purified for reuse as drinking water. Other wastes are taken care of chemically. He can push a button and deodorize his space cabinet. Another button increases or decreases the humidity. At carefully scheduled intervals the experts outside the cabin flash instructions to Farrell on a television screen a few inches before his eyes. He may be asked to twiddle his thumbs to test muscular reactions or he may be given a complicated problem in working the controls of his make-believe space ship. A portable TV camera inside the cabin relays all Farrell's movements to monitor sets outside. In an emergency, coverings could be ripped off the portholes and Farrell could be seen directly through thick glass windows. In moments of relaxation he hears hi-fi music piped into the cabin from a special selection of records.

Good Start For 1958 Building

Construction locally got off to a good start for 1958 as permits for 12 dwellings and three commercial buildings were issued during January. Building Inspector J.W. Wilson reported that new construction authorized during the first month of the year had a total valuation of $254,045. The 12 dwellings authorized during the month were valued at $107,885. Also approved during January were a super market valued at $39,000, a service station with a value of $18,625 and a storage building valued at $7,940. Also approved were three additions and three alterations valued at $76,795. Inspection fees totalling $404. were collected last month. Wilson reported he also made 30 plumbing and sewer inspections in January.

Willing To Try Summit Parley

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan says he is willing to take part in summit talks with the Soviets—but only if they have "a reasonable prospect" of some agreement. As President Eisenhower and other Western government chiefs have, the British Prime Minister also called for careful preparations in advance of any top-level meeting. Laying it on the line to Soviet Premier Bulganin, the Conservative British leader replied to the Soviet leader's earlier requests for a summit meeting by saying: "There must be a reasonable prospect of achieving concrete results on specific issues. Otherwise we should run the risk of a fruitless meeting which might make matters worse and not better." In his note delivered in Moscow Saturday and published today, Macmillan outlined two ways to lay the groundwork. One method—and the one Macmillan said he prefers—would be a foreign ministers' conference. Moscow has regularly turned this down with accompanying blasts at U.S. Secretary of State Dulles. Only yesterday Pravda accused him of being a "mouthpiece for a handful of American billionaires." The other method suggested by Macmillan would use "confidential diplomatic exchanges," presumably via the ambassadors in Moscow, London and Washington. Moscow radio endorsed this general idea Friday by backing the U.S. view that adequate preparation is necessary for a summit meeting. With careful planning, Macmillan emphasized, "it ought to be possible for us to have a useful meeting and obtain positive results." U.S. State Department reaction to the note was favorable because of Macmillan's insistence on preparations. The British Prime Minister set only one other condition: any nation which sits at the conference table must have an equal right to submit its own agenda items. As for the agenda items, Macmillan endorsed President Eisenhower's suggestions for a discussion on limiting the U.S. and Soviet veto power in the U.N. Security Council and a Soviet-American agreement to insure the peaceful use of outer space.

Officer Backs Down On Charges Against Frat

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—A state liquor control officer charged last night that a University of North Carolina fraternity held a "pajama, drinking and dancing party" at a drive-in. Then he backed down on his charges after meeting with the university's administrative head. John Buck, an inspector for the Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) Board, said at first that 20 to 25 couples "in various stages of undress" poured their liquor on the floor when he and two deputies surprised them at 3 a.m. yesterday. Buck said that he received a complaint of too much noise at the drive-in, which had a place for dancing, and asked the deputies to go with him. State law forbids liquor to be drunk in a public place. Members of Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity denied any misconduct or intoxication. They said the shortie pajamas were favors given to girls at a dance for fraternity pledges Saturday night, and that anyone wearing them was properly attired beneath their coats. Buck later met with University Chancellor William Aycock and issued a statement saying he "saw no student involved in misconduct" or anything "that indicated any immorality." The statement also said "Two deputy sheriffs were with me and no arrests were made because no violation of the law... was observed." Proprietor Jack Hopkins said the group paid him $50 to hold the breakfast party at the drive-in. He added that he saw nothing going on "that I wouldn't want my daughter to do."

At Least One Death Due Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Freezing weather which already has brought at least one death to North Carolina will stretch again tonight from the mountains to the Atlantic. W. F. Williamson, 48-year-old Greensboro Negro, died early Sunday. Investigators said exposure killed him. Low temperatures last night were mostly in the teens. Mt. Mitchell had a low last night of one degree below zero. That area of the Black Mountains, where Yancey, Buncombe and McDowell counties converge, is still under a 20-inch blanket of ice and snow that has covered the region for 10 days. Mt. Mitchell this morning had a 50-mile-an-hour wind from the northwest. Engineers in radio station WMTT's transmitter building atop Clingman's Peak, near Mt. Mitchell, were able to leave their snowbound home Saturday by walking seven miles, then riding in a jeep to Marion for supplies. The outlook for tonight is for low temperatures of about 10 degrees in the mountains and of 15 to 20 degrees elsewhere. Tomorrow is expected to bring increasing cloudiness and continued cold weather with a chance of light rain or snow in the southern section of the state. High-low temperatures for the 24-hour period that ended at 7:30 a.m. today included: Asheville 26-12, Charlotte 39-19, Greensboro 34-17, Raleigh 34-18, and Wilmington 38-23. A low pressure area in the lower Rio Grande Valley is causing rain in Texas and snow in the Central Plains. This low is moving eastward and is expected to be off the Georgia coast by Wednesday. The Weather Bureau says that if winds aloft become more southerly today and tonight there is some chance of rain or snow in the southern counties during Tuesday and probably in the coast sections early Wednesday. The state's outlook for the rest of the week is for continued cold.

Ordered To Face Liquor Charges

Wiley Anderson, a 65-year-old Negro resident of Route 1, Grimesland, has been ordered to appear in Pitt County Recorder's Court tomorrow to face charges of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey. Anderson was charged Saturday night after county ABC officers found a small quantity of non-tax-paid whiskey in his home. He was recognized for appearance in court.
