President Hopeful Employment Picture To Brighten In March

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today expressed deep concern over unemployment hardship, and said he is confident the picture will start to brighten in March. In a statement, the President left open the possibility that unemployment — which climbed to nearly 4 1/2 million last month — will get worse before the situation does improve. Obviously troubled about the business recession, the President got out a special statement and also released a study reporting on government steps to combat it. "From the best advice I can get, and on my own study of the facts regularly placed before me, I believe that we have had most of our bad news on the unemployment front," he said. "I am convinced that we are not facing a prolonged downswing in activity. Every indication is that March will commence to see the start of a pickup in job opportunities, that should mark the beginning of the end of the downturn in our economy, provided we apply ourselves with confidence to the job ahead. As Americans we have a responsibility to work toward the early resumption of sound growth in our economy."

Second the firm policy of the government is to foster this recovery in every sound way." The President said everyone is deeply concerned over the hardships that the unemployment figures reflect "for the families of the additional breadwinners temporarily out of work, and those that have gone on a shortened work week."

$2 Billion Postal Modernization Program Unfolded

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, moving to shore up the slumping economy, sent to Congress today a two-billion-dollar program to modernize post offices and postal services. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty, disclosing plans for the postal modernization program, described it as one expected to "afford greater job opportunities in every section of the country."

Eisenhower proposed to finance it with revenues from an increase in postage rates. His request for a boost in postage on out of town letters from 3 to 5 cents faces an uphill fight in Congress. Hagerty said "I think it would be fair" to describe the postal program as part of the administration's planning to combat the economic slump. The announcement came on the heels of a Labor and Commerce Department report that the number of unemployed had soared 1,120,000 last month — biggest monthly rise since World War II — to a total of 4,494,000. The White House announcement said the postal program would operate over the next three to five years.

Morse Plans Urge Senate Take Up Probe Of Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Morse (D-Ore) said today he will demand a Senate investigation of federal regulatory agencies, on top of a House inquiry now bogged down in an internal row. He said he is preparing a resolution to set up a special committee for the job. Morse also said he would turn back files given him by an ousted House prober. He said the House can have them back any time it sends somebody for them. He added he had telephoned that advice to House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex). Dr. Bernard Schwartz, fired as chief counsel for the special House subcommittee looking into affairs of the Federal Communications Commission and five other regulatory agencies, called the papers his "personal working files" in disclosing they had been delivered to Morse. He said they could help show that some White House officials have influenced actions of the regulatory agencies.

Heavy Sale Of License Plates Here Yesterday

Yesterday's sales of state license plates here were the largest in a number of years, Mrs. A. J. Garris reports. Mrs. Garris, who is Clerk of the local Carolina Motor Club Bureau, stated this morning that yesterday's totals coupled with a sharp increase in license sales this week have brought this year's total sales near last year's figures. The bureau, during an eight-hour period yesterday, sold: 493 car plates, 183 truck plates, 32 farm truck plates, and 38 trailer plates. "These figures are the largest single day's total since I have been working with the bureau," she noted. "I cannot say it is the largest amount of tags ever sold here in one day however since I don't have earlier figures."

Cooking School Is Planned In March

Warm up the skillet, Maw, the Utilities Commission will hold a cooking school in the Spring. Utilities Commissioners approved such a school at last night's meeting. It was recommended by Superintendent Leonard Bloxam. Bloxam said Virginia Power and Electric Co. will furnish the school at no cost to the local Utilities. The school should cost no more than $200 or $300 at most, he said. "I think it would stimulate appliance sales so far as electric ranges, refrigerators, etc. are concerned," Bloxam declared. "A lot of Utilities have done this as a means of stimulating load building."

Coast Guard To Search For West

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The Coast Guard is going to mount another search for sea-going disc jockey Melvin West—but it warns that pure luck will play a large part in whether he is found. West left Morehead City, N.C., Jan. 29 in a 16-foot outboard motor boat for Bermuda, 580 miles across the open Atlantic Ocean. He carried no radio transmitter and has not been heard from or seen since he left. Capt. B. H. Brailleur, acting commander of the 5th Coast Guard District, said last night the service will conduct a search for the Morehead City disc jockey at the request of West's wife. But, Brailleur added, since West's location is not known, how effective the search "will be dependent on an element of pure luck."

Five Men Die As Car, Bus Collide

CONWAY, S.C. (AP)—An automobile and a bus collided head-on on a foggy road three miles east of Conway today and the impact killed five men in the car. Horry County Coroner Littlejohn Blanton said that bus driver Julius M. Gainey of Myrtle Beach told him that the car, headed east, was attempting to pass another and rammed into and under the westbound Trailways bus. The bus ran onto the wide shoulder on highway 501 and turned on its side. Gainey was slightly shaken up. The only passenger, a Negro woman, was uninjured, the coroner said. The crash occurred on a straight stretch of level highway. Coroner listed the five dead men, all of whom lived in or near Conway, as James Louis Hughes, 20; Mack Brown, 34; Clem H. Hudson, 25; Kenneth H. Causey, 22; and Roy Edward Brown, 27, a nephew of Mack Brown. All of the men were en route to work at Myrtle Beach when the crash occurred about 7:25 a.m. Their 1951 Ford car was demolished as it jammed beneath the front of the bus.

Sen. Byrd Will Not Run Again

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP)—Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and senator from Virginia for 25 years, announced today that he will not be a candidate for re-election this year. Byrd, 71, said he had promised his wife six years ago he would not seek re-election again. "Since then," a statement from his Washington office said, "she has suffered a crippling illness and is an invalid. It is our desire to spend our lives together at home in Virginia."

Patrolman's Son Held For Slaying

AHOSKIE, N. C. (AP)—Jan Rivers Hackett, 16-year-old son of a high-way patrolman, was being held under special guard here today while officers checked his story of the shooting of a high school coed. The body of Delores Newsome, 16, was found by the side of a road near here yesterday by a logging crew. She had been shot twice in the side with a shotgun. The girl's body was found at 11 a.m., just 30 minutes after she left school with Hackett to get some books. Hackett surrendered to police at way Patrol Sgt. John S. Hackett Wilson, about 40 miles from here, about 3 p.m. Police Chief Albert A. Privette said Hackett was "highly upset" and wept constantly as he told police he had shot the girl. Privette said he also surrendered a .12 gauge shotgun. Hackett and the girl both were in juniors at Ahoskie High School. Ahoskie Hackett was the starting fullback on the football team and a center on the basketball team. The body was found in Bertie County. The girl was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Webb Newsome. Hackett entered the police station at Wilson and said he had been driving for four hours in his father's car. Privette added, "I didn't know what to do," the chief quoted the high school junior as saying. The distraught boy, son of Highway Patrol Sgt. John S. Hackett Wilson, who was stationed in Wilson for several years, was put in a cell under guard in what the Wilson chief called a "precautionary measure." Meanwhile, Bertie County authorities said an inquest will be held. The girl's body was taken to Roanoke-Chowan Hospital in Ahoskie.

Want To Save Time? Try Business Center

By LOIS FREEMAN

As a Home Demonstration Agent How well is your farm and home business center organized? Do you spend valuable time hunting for receipts, the new address of a friend, a recipe you had clipped, or a bill that you thought you put somewhere? A simple filing system would have saved you all this worry.

With today's farming and homemaking, efficiency is absolutely necessary to carry on a successful program. Efficiency is important in recent years because of rising prices, taxes, social security, the Soil Bank, and other acreage allotment records that must be kept.

A large part of the family income is used for family living. Good money management is essential for happier family living. As the living standards and cost of living go up, more income will be needed. Records are necessary for both family living and farming in order to do wise planning to make best use of money and other resources.

Time and energy are often wasted by not having a comfortable, well-lighted place to write letters or to do book work.

Location

Where should the business center be located? The location of a business center in the home will not be the same for each family, because each family situation will vary. In some families one member will do most of the writing and other necessary bookkeeping. The location will also depend on the space available, the room location, family habits, home heating, and the type and size of farm and home business. If the farm is a large, commercial type, the business center may need to be in a separate room. For the small, family-type bookkeeping, the business center may be a table, desk, or built-in unit in the living room, kitchen or den. Some families who have a basement, and the heating system and lighting is conducive to bookkeeping, may want to set up a business center in the basement.

A business center may be planned and built in a wasted space such as an odd-shaped nook, a corner, between a chimney wall, or an unused closet might be converted into a built-in center.

Cost Small

The cost of a business center need not be expensive by using what is already available in the home. A small amount of repairing of an old desk or table could fit the needs of some families.

Cost also can be small by refinishing old furniture that is not serving any need in the home, or the purchasing of used furniture and converting it to fit the situation for a business center within the home.

Each family situation will determine the size and kind of business center needed in a home.

There are some necessary requirements for each business center, as listed below:

1. A writing surface.
  - (a) A desk or table 28 to 31 inches high.
  - (b) The desk should be sturdy, strong and comfortable.
2. A chair with good back support and seat 17 to 20 inches high.
3. An efficient light.
  - (a) Natural and artificial.
  - (b) Adequate place for current records and unpaid or unfinished bills.
4. Storage space.
  - (a) Filing cabinets, shelves, drawers, safe, or metal box.
  - (b) Necessary accessories.
    - (i) Pen, ink, pencil.

In today's home a good business center for the farm and home records is necessary. The family may carry on a small or a large business, but with a good record keeping system, much time and energy can be saved.

Don't spend your time looking for papers, receipts, or bills. Use your files and storage space to the most advantage.

Miss Hyman Feted By Woman's Club Tea

Miss Elizabeth Hyman, teacher for 50 years, received a silver bowl (an Oscar award) Sunday afternoon for being the most outstanding teacher in Greenville during 1957-58.

She was nominated by her fellow teachers and selected by a committee appointed by the Woman's Club.

Presenting the award was Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, honorary president of the club.

Preceding the award, Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr., president of the Greenville Woman's Club, presided and welcomed the honored guest, members and friends.

Mrs. Galloway stated, "The General Federation of Women's Clubs is distressed over the shortage of teachers and wishes to encourage more capable young people to enter the teaching profession. It also wants to reward and honor those who have served beyond the call of duty."

"Since the Greenville Woman's Club has always been interested in improving our schools and helping the teachers to get the recognition they deserve, they adopted the plan of the General Federation."

Following Mrs. Galloway's talk, Dean Leo Jenkins of East Carolina College, J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, Mrs. D. M. Clark, sixth grade teacher at Wahl-Coates Laboratory School, and Edward Harris, vice-president of the Christian Science Society, paid tribute to Miss Hyman.

Mrs. Moore expressed pride that the most outstanding teacher of Greenville was a former active Greenville Woman's Club member and had served diligently as chairman of the Literature Department.

After the many inspiring tributes paid Miss Hyman, she responded and Mrs. Galloway recognized Mrs. D. D. Davis, chairman of the "Oscar for Teachers Award" Committee.

Following the award ceremony a tea was given in honor of Mrs. Hyman.

Miss Hyman wore an orchid presented to her by the Elmhurst faculty.

Miss Hyman received with Mrs. Galloway.

Mrs. Moore directed guests to the tea table which was covered with a lace cloth over pink and centered with an arrangement of white and pink carnations flanked by white candles in silver candelabras.

Mrs. Hicks Corey and Mrs. Dink James poured tea and coffee from each end of the table. Guests helped themselves to nuts, mints, assorted cookies and candied grapefruit peels, assisted by Mrs. S. L. Daughtridge, Mrs. Harvey Tripp, Mrs. Michael Luskin, Mrs. H. P. Millstead, Mrs. A. A. Hines, Mrs. D. D. Davis, Mrs. Vance Perkins, Mrs. Linwood Worthington and Mrs. W. E. Roseveare.

Receiving at the front door preceding the program were Mrs. Corey, Mrs. Wardell Worthington and Miss Eunice McGee.

Out-of-town guests for the special occasion were Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hyman from Gaston, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hyman Jr. and children from Wilmington, and Mrs. Sue H. Bowden of Greenville, sister of Miss Hyman.

Mrs. Farley Speaks To Guild

Mrs. Margaret Farley spoke on "Christian Social Action" at the monthly meeting of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church held Monday night in the Ladies Parlor of the church.

She stated that the definition for Social was of or pertaining to the welfare of human society, especially welfare work for the benefit of the poor, and human beings in their physical contacts.

Mrs. Farley said the definition of Christian Citizenship is the state of being a citizen. "A citizen is a person regarded in the light of his relations to the community. A Christian is one who believes in Christ and strives to do His will. A Christian Citizen then is one who tries to carry out the principles of Jesus Christ in relation to community life."

"As a member of the Wesleyan Service Guild and a part of the WSCS, we have a rich heritage in social action," she noted.

She concluded by saying, "The problems of today are basically the same that church women have always faced, and Christianity's answer to the problems is the same as it has always been."

Mrs. Farley asked, "Are you a Christian Citizen? If so, what are you doing about the social issues that are prevalent today?"

A committee consisting of Mrs. Polly Dail and Mrs. Dorothy Johnston was appointed to secure prizes on a Silver Service for the new church kitchen.

During the business meeting presided over by Miss Sally Klingenschmitt, in the absence of the president, reports were heard from all the committee chairmen.

A letter was read from the Guild's orphan girl in Raleigh thanking the group for the Christmas package. Since this is Elsie Parker Month, a contribution for the Elsie Parker Fund was collected. Miss Klingenschmitt read a letter from Elsie Parker, missionary in Brazil who is now in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. Kemp Baldwin gave a devotion. The meeting closed with the hostesses, Miss Ella Sockwell, Miss Jane Hancock, Miss Thelma Exum, and Mrs. T. B. Brown, serving refreshments which carried out the Valentine theme.

Oleg Cassini Declares War On Sack Styles

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Nature's most magnificent creation is the female figure, says Oleg Cassini, and he, for one, doesn't intend to hide it under a sunnysack.

Pursuing his one-man war on the current sack silhouette, Cassini shows a spring collection of frankly fitted and subtly sexy dresses, which do full justice to all curves of the feminine form. Says this Italian-born designer: "I have too much respect for the beauties of nature to dare temper with the lines of a woman's figure. When a fashion had abolished feminine curves, it's time to stamp it out."

Cassini's collection for spring goes in for well-defined waistlines, revealing necklines, soft drapery, intricate cut and his well-known peekaboo cutouts, designed to attract the male eye—the real purpose of any successful dress, according to this designer.

He employs a number of new fabrics in linen knit, cotton knit and silk-and-wool petit point for day-time, but sticks to soft, alithery silk crepes and chiffons for evening.

Dress-and-jacket costumes usually consist of a demure cover-up jacket over a dress with daring neckline, a device of whim Cassini is fond of, says he.

"Dresses are designed to make a man look at a woman. And what man wants to look at a sack?"

Neglecting To Provide A Future

Every community looks upon its youth as its foremost hope for the future. It is the dream of every town and county that its young people of today will be its leaders of tomorrow, blazing the trail to greater achievements.

In Morganton not long ago a poll was taken among high school students to determine their choice of future vocations and professions. The results of this poll have set Morganton people to thinking, and Morganton's business leaders to carefully examining what Burke County offers its youth.

Out of the 494 Morganton High School students who returned the questionnaire, almost 400 at the present time have their minds on careers which would take them from their native county to other areas.

We are confident that a much larger percentage of Morganton High students than the questionnaire indicates will eventually settle in Burke County. Nevertheless it is apparent that Morganton's youngsters of today are looking beyond their hometown for the green pastures of life. We suspect the same thing is true of the youngsters in countless communities of North Carolina.

Do Greenville's youngsters think today in terms of settling here after their school days are over? Or do they have their eyes on brighter opportunities that beckon from other sections of North Carolina, other parts of the nation?

We have spent countless millions of dollars providing today's youngsters with educational facilities and other facilities to equip them for useful lives. Yet, we have neglected to devote sufficient time and money to providing them with opportunities for earning the livelihood they desire after they finish school.

A Routine Inquiry Is Becoming Big Issue

Whatever comes of the House Subcommittee probe of relationships between high government officials and broadcasting companies under FCC regulations, there are likely to remain a good many unanswered questions in the minds of the American public.

The subcommittee hearings began last week with a series of blasts as the committee's chief counsel leveled charges of accepting favors at members of the House committee, and suggesting improper exertion of influence over regulatory agencies by officials close to the President.

The counterblast came with charges of questionable items on the expense account of Dr. Bernard Schwartz, former faculty member of New York University Law School. The subcommittee which had hired Schwartz only a few months ago to head the investigation fired him. The chairman of the subcommittee has resigned, and it is apparent that members of the subcommittee are sharply divided over the action which has been taken.

Schwartz's charges the committee is seeking a whitewash in the investigation have been vigorously denied. Yet these charges, for the moment at least, probably have made a greater impression on the American public than subsequent denials.

The subcommittee's investigation will mean little if punches are pulled and investigators are not allowed to present the whole picture. On the other hand, the subcommittee members have the responsibility to see that ethical methods are employed in conducting the investigation and hearings. They should not retain the services of a chief whom they feel has employed questionable tactics.

What, if anything, the dissension-torn subcommittee can accomplish by continuing the hearings remains to be seen. One thing is certain. The uproar which began in the subcommittee's hearing room has echoed back and forth across the nation. There is no turning back from the investigation which has been started.

The subcommittee has a responsibility to the American people to continue a vigorous investigation and let the chips fall where they may. Anything less than that will be unworthy of the high places of trust occupied by members of the subcommittee.

Banks, Beaches And Other Items

By LYNN NISBET

BANKS — Almost every year there are changes in the status of commercial banks. Big institutions open branches and often buy out smaller banks and operate them as branches. A few years ago the Bank of Raleigh converted from a State to a National Bank, thus showing an increase in National bank resources and a decline in State bank assets for the same period—without in any way affecting the aggregate of resources among all banks. The same thing in reverse happened last year. The composite statement released by the State Banking Commission showed a substantial increase in State bank resources, and a decline in National banks. That was nearly all due to the merger of American Trust Company and Commercial National Bank in Charlotte. Both institutions technically went out of business and reorganized as the American Commercial Bank with a State charter. That meant a decrease in National bank resources of the amount in Commercial National resources, and an increase in State banks of the same amount.

DEVELOPMENT — Reports of activities and projected program for the next few years announced at the annual meeting of the South Eastern North Carolina Beach Association at Wilmington Saturday night represented a balanced development plan for the area. SENCBA was organized mainly to promote the beaches and fishing operations. After Hazel and her evil sisters visited the section, it was discovered that conservation and preservation of the beaches was an important factor. Result is that SENCBA now is dividing major attention between purely recreational facilities and the more basic matter of controlling beach erosion. And secondary emphasis is on cooperation with other regional organizations for agricultural, educational, health and industrial development.

PRIZES — Prizes were awarded for the best catches of fish in the area in a number of categories, ranging from a one pound spot to a 91 pound tarpon, and including several world records for catches. A little bit of boasting was indulged about the munity development during the past year. But the annual report of President James Bowman had more of challenge than of boasting. Among specific objectives are having the Fort Fisher park established as an official historic site or park, and to work for a waterways commission, that would function in developing water facilities comparable to the highway commission's attention to roads, and dedicating the marine gasoline tax to such purpose.

President Bowman recognized the importance of industrial payrolls to the whole area, and did not overlook significance of the military payroll at Sunny Point. He also urged New Hanover folks to support the upcoming hospital bond election and in all ways possible for the counties in the area to work together.

An important item in the long range program is for stabilization of beaches and prevention of beach erosion. Principal speaker for the association was Richard O. Eaton, chief technical adviser, beach erosion board, Corps of Engineers, USA. He traced the history of beach control movements through the centuries. Except for a few miles along the coast of Maine, and very short stretches elsewhere, the Atlantic shore of the United States is "alive and changing", he said. Stabilization will be expensive and will take a long time, but it is possible—and necessary. He predicted that within a century or so every inlet along the Atlantic coast will be closed or stabilized.

RIBBON-TYING — An inlet cut through at Long Beach in Hazel is being closed through cooperation of the Army Engineers, Civil Defense and State-local authorities. Col. Harry E. Brown, director of hurricane relief for North Carolina, says when the job is finished sometime next month there will be a "ribbon-tying" ceremony. Every time a bridge or a new highway is opened there is an official ribbon-cutting. The colonel thinks when an inlet is closed a ribbon tying will be appropriate.

PARADOX — The complexities and paradoxes of the farm problem were illustrated by several reports at the State Farm Bureau convention here this week. Prices of farm products were lower last year than for a long time, and yet in December the cost of farm production hit an all time high. The national farm land debt increased about $700 million last year, the non-land farm debt also increased, and yet the total net value of farm property was substantially higher. Most of the enhancement in value is attributed to higher prices for farm land.

Fewer people are working on the farm, there is more machinery on the farm and it costs more to buy, the farmer with all his investment in land and machinery gets a smaller share of the dollar the consumer pays for food and clothing than ever before. Furthermore, according to economists, the American farmer in the aggregate owes nearly a billion dollars more than he did a year ago—and yet has a net worth in excess of last year's figures.

of relationships between high government officials and broadcasting companies under FCC regulations, there are likely to remain a good many unanswered questions in the minds of the American public.

The subcommittee hearings began last week with a series of blasts as the committee's chief counsel leveled charges of accepting favors at members of the House committee, and suggesting improper exertion of influence over regulatory agencies by officials close to the President.

Ideas For Small Business Sales

By ELMER ROESSNER

Many small retail establishments are getting a slapping around in the present slump. For them, from various sources, are fourteen ideas for maintaining profits:

Stress guarantees. Many customers are apprehensive and uncertain these days. Guarantees can reassure them. When an article is guaranteed, the fact should be stressed in advertising, and salespersons should be trained to mention it.

Study customers' psychology. You may find them more price-conscious, more interested in utility models and less in packaging and frills. Let your findings guide stocking and pushing goods.

Re-examine displays. Make sure high-margin, fast-moving items are displayed at eye level and, when possible, in touching distance. You would be surprised at the number of low-margin items that have worked their way forward—where they don't belong.

STUDY THE OPPOSITION Drop unprofitable items. This is no time to play around with lines that are not paying their way, no matter how charming the supplier's salesman is.

Shop competitors, harder than ever before. Find out what stores larger than yours are doing to increase sales and maintain profits, then try to top them.

Re-examine advertising aids from suppliers. New in-store displays may brighten up the place. Mailing pieces may work, too. Remember neither you nor the supplier can tell if a mailing piece will work in your neighborhood simply by looking at it. Only a test will tell. Keep a test list of 50 names; then each new piece can be tested for a couple of dollars. When one clicks, use it as hard as you can.

Be realistic about deals. Eager, if not desperate, manufacturers are offering more of them. Weigh each one carefully. Remember that five standard clocks and one super de luxe model for the price of six standards may saddle you with the ultra-fancy model for a long time.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING Keep windows changing. Don't depend on suppliers' detail men. Keep adding fresh items; remove the tired ones. Still effective is the old practice of spotting "today's best buy" and changing it daily.

Keep the store clean. If you've had to fire the sweeper, do it yourself. A dirty store smells of failure; a sparkling store spells success.

Consider sidelines. A good sideline may materially improve profits. Beware of those that tie up working capital, or increase overhead. Sidelines a retailer can produce himself are often best. Take discounts. Paying cash within 10, 20 or 30 days may earn as much as 12 per cent a year net—which is more than most store operations pay.

SAVE ON STAMPS Re-examine mail practices. Avoid using airmail when it will not speed delivery, such as on letters mailed Fridays to points within 1,500 miles. Use postcards instead of letters when practical. Run spot checks on outgoing metered mail to make sure employees are weighing, not guessing, and are weights on outgoing merchandise; remember savings are possible if matter can be shipped in less than 8-ounce lots: third class; remember 16 ounces parcel post to zone 8 cost 32 cents and 17 ounces cost 51 cents.

SAYS LATIN AMERICANS MAKE OWN "BREAKS" "The slick Latins have it all over American promotion men," the Old Promoter remarked today. "Huh?" we hushed.

"They sold the United States the coffee break, didn't they?" he said. "As a consequence, they sell an extra half a million pounds of coffee a day." "But where were the walnut growers? Did you ever hear of a company having a walnut break? Or the prune packers? A prune break might be wonderful in some companies, but it's never happened. So would an apple break. What are people supposed to have with their coffee? Did the doughnut people even promote a coffee and — break. Or did Wisconsin ever promote a coffee-and-cheese-bun break?"

"American enterprise is great stuff," the old fellow concluded. "But it is largely Latin-American enterprise."

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

IMPORTANT CHRISTIAN TRUTH The average Christian believer thinks very little about the Holy Spirit. He remembers something about believing in the Holy Ghost as he takes part in a church service. But few people realize what the Holy Spirit (or the Holy Ghost) really is.

He is nothing less than the living and creative spirit of God operating in the lives of men. The Holy Spirit is our great guide. Without this powerful spiritual force in our lives we would get nowhere spiritually. The Holy Spirit inspires, guides, and directs. If one can imagine a physical world devoid of atmosphere, he has an idea of what the spiritual life would be without the Holy Spirit. This living, active creative spirit of God touches the hearts of individual believers, guides the life of the church, and makes possible spiritual growth and maturity. Although people—even very devout people—think little about the Holy Spirit, this Holy Spirit nevertheless constitutes one of the vital forces in the life of every human being. Even unbelievers benefit by the presence of this mighty spiritual power in our midst.

All we can do with reference to the Holy Spirit is to believe in Him and open our hearts to His power. Then this mighty spiritual force begins to operate on our growth and fulfillment.

He Takes A Bride—

—BUT WANTS A HAREM!

By EVERETTE PARKER

In The Scouts, You Know

"Where have you been?" "Out," the youngster said as he slowly made his way to his room.

"What did you do tonight?" "Nothing," he answered as he closed the door.

This could be the answer any parent might receive if he asked his son or daughter these questions. Are these answers adequate?

In recent months, in Greenville, not to mention other nearby areas, a considerable amount of vandalism has taken place. Things that would normally point to a youngster or a gang, several nights ago tires on two automobiles parked on local streets were cut with a knife. Almost every day someone reports a set of fender skirts stolen. Occasionally a battery is taken or something that isn't tied down.

It is common to see an automobile soaring down the highway at an extremely high rate of speed. Inside the potential death machine there are four or five fun-loving youth, seeking adventure.

After the light changes, spinning wheels send the automobile into the darkness. Drag racing is fun.

Parents naturally think their sons and daughters have nothing to do with this sort of thing and rightly so. But they never know until it is too late.

Tears come easy for a mother who sits in the courtroom while her son is being tried for stealing. A father's heart might find it hard to hold the grief of losing a son in an automobile accident.

Several months ago four boys were caught stealing hub caps from automobiles parked on a side street. Down at the Police Station they were asked why they were stealing. "Because we don't have anything else to do," one answered.

This being National Boy Scout Week I can think of no better time to laud the effort of every Scout and Scouter in Greenville and the Pitt Scouting District.

It is heart-stirring to see a group of disciplined youngsters have a good time. Having been a Scout once myself, I know the value of the movement.

Scouting is almost a seven-day part of every youngster's life. There always seems to be something to do. He goes camping, hiking, meets with his friends and does many other things too numerous to mention.

I doubt a peace officer ever has to ask a Scout why he was stealing. He usually has something worthwhile to do.

Adult leaders in Scouting are sometimes the forgotten men who have seen fit to donate their time which is taken for granted by many.

This is not the case for Scouters in the Pitt District. The adult leaders in Greenville and other communities in this area are just like a closely-knit family. They have a mutual feeling. They are proud of the accomplishments of "their" boys.

As a result of their work and the interest they have jelled, the Pitt Scouting District is the best district in the East Carolina Council.

These unselfish adult leaders have given of their time, not for personal gain, but for the satisfaction of guiding youngsters who might possibly take the wrong road of life.

Opinions

In Brief

"Show me that age and country where the rights and liberties of the people were placed on the sole chance of their rulers being good men, without consequent loss of liberty! I say that the loss of that dearest privilege has ever followed, with absolute certainty, every such mad attempt."—Patrick Henry.

Other Editors Saying --- Should Show Power

(Kinston Free Press)

Spokesmen for the American press in an urgent appeal to the House Government Information Subcommittee Thursday raised a stirring challenge to the Congress to lift the veil of secrecy from routine executive records and to assert its authority as elected representatives of the people.

Louisville Editor James S. Pope and a Washington correspondent, Clark R. Mollenhoff, declared that Congress has let government officials distort a 169-year-old law for preservation and filing of records into an instrument of withholding these records from the public. They suggested that a single sentence specifying that this law "does not authorize withholding information from the public" be enacted by the Congress.

Giving credit to Rep. John E. Moss' committee for some improvement noted in the problem of government secrecy the past two years, Pope took exception to the type of thinking he said was exemplified by the White House decision to keep secret the Faithful report, which is reported to have sounded dire warnings about the relative military positions of the U. S. and Russia.

Mollenhoff went further than Pope in his criticisms and declared that Congress had let itself become a third-rate branch of government — a "bunch of puppets" for the executive arm.

Scoring the Congress for allowing the executive branch to whittle its investigative power by "a doctrine of executive secrecy," under which it gets only the information the executive branch feels it should have, Mollenhoff appealed for corrective action.

"It is time," he said, "that the Congress stops being a third-rate division of government, and insists on the right to write the laws and have them properly administered."

Chairman Moss indicated he was in complete agreement with the news men. It is significant that the 10 executive departments of the government are opposed to the proposed amendment of the existing law, however. It will take a great deal of effort to set the record straight and give the people the explicit right to know what all their executives are doing.

Pope and Mollenhoff have raised the challenge to Congress in behalf of the press and the people. The unmistakable need is for Americans to have a free flow of information so they can better appraise the urgency of these days in which we live and seek to survive as free men. If Congress does not harken to this challenge it will indeed slip to the third-rate category of "puppets" in the hands of bureaucrats who seem to be afraid for the people to know the truth.

Certainly the time for action is late, but fortunately for the Nation it need not be too late if the Congress will move now to meet the challenge to end executive secrecy.

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON New and strong evidence of Communist hypocrisy on the problem of nuclear disarmament lies in the fact that Moscow propaganda lists Pope Pius XII as favoring the Russian position over President Eisenhower's attitude.

This persistent resort to misrepresentation of the Vatican's pronouncements has caused dismay for many months in White House, State Department and Church circles. There are millions of Catholics living behind the "Iron Curtain," and efforts to break their ties and loyalty to Rome have been unavailing.

The confusion has been compounded by Lord Cherwell, who was Winston Churchill's distinguished scientific adviser and atomic expert during World War II. Addressing the House of Commons some time ago, he criticized the Pope's reported position on termination of A-H tests. He suggested that His Holiness had been "duped" by Communist propaganda, and that he was aiding the Russians in this controversy.

RUSSIANS STILL SPREAD DISTORTIONS Although Cherwell has been rebuked several times by the official Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, a weekly magazine in this country published an article by the Britisher in which he repeated his criticism. The magazine refused to run a refutation written by the Reverend Edward A. Conway, S.J. He is professor of political science at Creighton University, Omaha, and a student of Papal disarmament teaching.

Current and official interest in the controversy flows from the fact that official Russian organs still spread these distortions of the Holy Father's attitude. Its strengthens the Administration's belief that the Communists seek only a psychological victory in the proposed "summit meeting."

CONWAY REFUTES MISREPRESENTATIONS Father Conway's article, which appeared originally in the Catholic Messenger of Davenport, Iowa, and was placed in the Congressional Record by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, refutes both the Kremlin and the Cherwell misrepresentation.

The Holy Father has appeared in numerous messages and speeches for termination of A-H tests, but not as a separate independent or unilateral action by any nation. He has asked for a "package deal" that would ban tests and the use of nuclear weapons in warfare. But he also called for "effective air and ground observation to insure compliance with the first two agreements."

"The sum total of these three measures as an object of international agreement," continued the Pope, "is an obligation in conscience of nations and their leaders."

A BLOCK TO "SUMMIT MEETING" It is Russia's refusal to consider an inspection or observation system, such as President Eisenhower demands, which has blocked any success in the disarmament negotiations. In fact, Eisenhower and Dulles doubt the

Sparks From Ustinov

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright Peter Ustinov is a man with no desire to put his plastic mind inside a plastic helmet.

"I am convinced that in opening up the space age we will take ourselves mentally back to the 11th and 12th century," said the author and star of the Broadway satire, "Romanoff and Juliet," which spoofs the cold war between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"It is only the lack of space that has forced man to become as civilized as he is.

"If people get the idea there is more space to be occupied, they may go back to the earliest forms of colonialism, and engage in religious wars with the natives of other planets. Why not?"

"There would be room to make again all the mistakes mankind made in the past.

"It might be a better thing if there were an invasion from space against us. That at least would consolidate mankind."

At 36 Ustinov, the London-born son of a Russian newspaperman, has become a literary enfant terrible of two continents. He bears a pudgy, bearded resemblance to Anton Chekhov. He talks like a mixture of Oscar Wilde, Bernard Shaw and H. L. Mencken.

As busy as he is unorthodox, Ustinov — he speaks five languages — has written a dozen plays and two revues, acted in ten movies and produced three. He is also a lecturer, a television star — and is currently turning out a novel.

"I work on it over weekends," he said. "It's difficult to say what it's about — except to say that it's about a man who learns how to survive by learning how to cheat and lie."

Personally one of the most charming imports from Britain in many a year, Pete — as the stage-hands call him — gives the impression of a chubby teddy bear that delights in airing out-of-the-ordinary views.

Here are a few random sparks struck during a luncheon interview.

"Most humorists are quite serious."

"In this day and age I very much distrust experts. If and when the world blows itself up, the last coherent sounds heard will be an expert saying, 'It can't be done.'"

"I dislike the military mind and politicians. The relative importance of politicians during their lifetime is out of all proportion to their importance in history. Who today can name the minister of finance in Austria when Beethoven lived there?"

"Much as I hate war I am not a pacifist. One of war's few charms is its utter confusion. That's why people wear uniforms in war — to canalize the confusion."

"I am not easily bored. Boredom actually fascinates me. What is a bore? To me a bore is someone who is embarrassed by silence."

I regard myself as an optimist. An optimist is a man who knows exactly how sad a place the world can be. The pessimist is a man who is forever finding out."

"History books around the world should be standardized. As it is now each country looks at history through its own lens. And there is no place in which prejudice can take a firmer grasp than in school."

"The biggest problem of the individual in the world today is to learn to think for himself. It was easier to do this in the 14th century, but, then you'd probably have been burned at the stake."

"Self-pity is the worst of all personal vices, and the most socially embarrassing of all sins."

"If I am afraid of anything, it probably is dogs. Even the most intelligent dogs, it seems to me, act like sergeants."

Ustinov, who also has a low opinion of most generals, has a basic reason to distrust sergeants. In four years in the British army in the World War II he rose to the rank of private.

Trained Police Dogs Play Role In Law Enforcement

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON — Britain's force of flat paws — its grown detachment of trained police dogs — has become a permanent, effective part of law enforcement.
 "The mere appearance of a police dog in a tough district," said a metropolitan police force spokesman, "has a salutary effect."
 In plain language he meant the terribles are afraid of the doggies. The nation's police departments started using trained dogs in 1938 when two Labradors were assigned to one London suburban division.
 The war came. For some reason lost in the whirl of history, out went the dogs. Unofficially it was reported that one of the dogs bit a cop.

 In 1945 Police Commissioner Sir Harold Scott started using them again.
 The Alsatian was introduced and the police moved them into some of London's tougher areas.
 One night a crowd of rowdies gathered on a sidewalk in Whitechapel and refused to move. They began to obstruct traffic.
 Renny, a tough Alsatian, was introduced to them. He put them to flight. Traffic flowed normally within five minutes.
 Word got around to other districts. More dogs were trained and put to work.

Then came the great Rex. He had been a watch dog at the French Embassy, but when the ambassador installed a set of burglar alarms, Rex was through on the diplomatic beat.
 The police took him and he proved to be the greatest flat paw hero on the force.
 He had 120 arrests to his credit. He was praised by magistrates. He was even presented to the late King George VI.
 He was so clever that he was the first police dog trained in London to detect dope. He was also the first canine to win a medal.
 When Rex died in 1956 his police handler, Constable Arthur Holman, said with tears in his eyes: "Ours was no ordinary master and pet relationship. When he died something vital went out of me."
 Holman retired in a few months. In 1956, London flat paws arrested 1,168 humans.
 Last October, the metropolitan police force issued a call for 100 more Alsatis. The commissioner, Sir John Knot-Bower, said he wanted to boost the police dog strength to 300 to patrol London's 750 square miles.
 A number of Londoners donated their dogs to the force.
 The police have established a training school at West Wickham. Here the doggy recruits are trained in tracking, following a scent, obedience and making an arrest.
 "The first thing taught is how to make an arrest," said a spokesman. "The dog is taught to seize the offender's right coat sleeve and hang on until the handler arrives to make the arrest."

Sideburns Gone, Elvis Is Looking Forward To Army

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD — That Army barber who yearned to scalp Elvis Presley's sideburns won't get a chance.
 The rock 'n' roll singer is sporting a normal haircut for his current and last pre-induction movie "King Creole." And it makes him look quite handsome.
 Producer Hal Wallis, who got an eight-week deferment from Elvis' draft board, finally let a reporter on the set to talk with Elvis. He said he didn't cut his sideburns off because of impending Army duty.
 "I've worn long sideburns in all my other movies," he explained, "so I figured I'd be a little different in 'King Creole.'" Elvis finishes the picture March 14, takes a train for his home town of Memphis and expects to be at Ft. Chaffee, Ark., by March 22.
 "I'm looking forward to going into the Army," he said. "I think it will be a great experience for me."
 He said he is not the least bit apprehensive about going in.
 "It doesn't bother me one bit but it's bothering some of the people employed by me."
 Does he think that some tough sergeants may give him a bad time because of his fame?
 "Well, if they do it won't be because of anything I do to provoke it. I'm going in to be a soldier and the Army can do anything it wants with me and send me any place."
 Is he looking for a job in special service entertaining the troops?
 "No sir," he answered. "I'm not going in on one of those six-month deals. I'm in for my two years."
 He did say that he would utilize furlough time to cut records to keep his name alive. Presley has sold 20 records that have each hit over a million sales.
 Does he have a favorite singer?
 "Well, I never have answered that question but since I'm going in the Army, I'll tell you."
 His choice, believe it or not, is his greatest rival for the bobby-sox trade—Pat Boone.
 "He has a fine voice and is probably the most versatile singer in the business. He's about as good as they come and I'm not picking him out of friendship because I don't know Pat."
 Then he added with a smile: "Besides, I heard the first sergeant at Ft. Chaffee is president of the Pat Boone Fan Club there."

Spring Set As Deadline For A Host Of Decisions

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK — Seldom has spring been awaited more eagerly than today. Its advent some six weeks from now has been set as the informal deadline for many business and government decisions.
 Spring is billed as the time we'll know whether the slow decline in the number of jobs will be halted—and, if not, whether a tax cut and perhaps a public works program will be tried to start a recovery in industry.
 All hands seem resigned to several more weeks of cold, dreary weather and of equally cold and dreary economic statistics. But hopes are high, even in the stock market, for spring's changing all that.
 Auto makers, discouraged by slow sales of the new models, are now pinning hopes on spring bringing a revival of the old American habit of flocking to dealers' show rooms when the weather warms.
 For the last few years this old custom was shelved. Motorists did their looking and buying when the new models came out in the fall.
 Oilmen are rejoicing in the cold weather that lowers the supplies of fuel oil in home and factory tanks. But they, too, are looking for spring to get the motorists back on the road and thus perhaps end the price cutting that has sprung from the glut of gasoline in the storage tanks. Tire men are also hopeful.

 Home builders are particularly anxious for the ground to thaw. Hopes are high for a plentiful supply of cheaper mortgage funds. With building costs apparently leveling off, contractors believe the return of the home seekers in numbers is just around the spring corner.
 Retailers are praying for a return of the buying yen to consumers who have turned a little cautious in recent weeks while they waited to see just how much of a recession we were entering. Merchants are reported holding down their spring and summer orders but ready to move quickly if the approach of Easter (two weeks earlier this year than last) rekindles the buying spree of a year or so ago.
 There are few sour notes too. One is that in late spring some labor disputes may begin to sizzle. Negotiations will be starting in the auto industry, with considerable fears now that a strike could be brewed.
 Another note is that automatic wage increases coming up may keep the price spiral rising even if the recession points the other way.
 And there are the overtones of the arms race with all it could imply for the world.

Returns Cash On Installment Plan

PHILADELPHIA — Mrs. Betty Gold, who lost her wallet containing $25 last month, is getting her money back on the installment plan.
 The loss was noted in the Philadelphia Inquirer Jan. 16. Since then, Mrs. Gold has received three dollar bills in the mail, all post-marked from Waynesboro, Pa., 140 miles west of Philadelphia.
 The first two envelopes contained only money. The latest had a little note asking Mrs. Gold to notify the newspaper the money was being returned.

TRAFFIC HAZARD

EVANSTON, Wyo. — Charles Carbut, 14, was run over and killed by a horse-drawn wagon 10 miles northwest of here.
 President Theodore Roosevelt lived dogs. He owned a rat terrier, a St. Bernard, a bull terrier and several mongrels.

PREDICTS GROWTH

SAN FRANCISCO — Charles T. Lipscomb, president of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publisher Assn., said in a speech that newspaper advertising would grow from a present $10,400,000,000 to more than 15 billion dollars by 1965.

FBI Agent Testifies As Sergeant Tried As A Spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prosecution called in an FBI agent today in support of court-martial charges that M. Sgt. Roy A. Rhodes sold information to Soviet spies.

Rhodes pleaded innocent to charges of espionage conspiracy and falsifying a loyalty oath at the opening yesterday of his military trial.

Maj. Winchester Kelso Jr. prosecuting attorney, said it will be proved that while Rhodes was assigned to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow from 1951 to 1953 he peddled information to the Soviets for a fee.

That, Kelso said, was after Rhodes went night clubbing and drinking with a Soviet mechanic and two Soviet women, and wound up in the apartment of one of the latter.

Subsequently, he said, Soviet agents told Rhodes the woman was pregnant and used this as a threat to extract information.

Rhodes is married and his wife says she is standing by him because she believes in his innocence. Their home is Eatontown, N.J.

The tall, lean, 40-year-old sergeant listened intently but expressionlessly as Kelso told the 10 officers on the court-martial that Rhodes met the Soviets five or six times in Moscow, gave them information about his training in code work at the Pentagon and information on the habits of U.S. Embassy personnel, and received some $3,000.

Kelso said Rhodes also told the Soviets where he could be contacted on his return to this country.

Involved in the American end of what Kelso contended was an espionage conspiracy were two Soviet officers, Col. Rudolph Abel and Lt. Col. Reino Hayhanen.

Abel was convicted of espionage in a Brooklyn, N.J., trial last October and sentenced to 30 years in jail. The conviction has been appealed.

Hayhanen turned against the Soviet Union and was a key witness in the Abel trial, as he apparently will be in the court-martial case against Rhodes. Kelso said Hayhanen reported that Abel talked with him about a Soviet agent whose code name was "Quebec" and whose real name was Rhodes.

The FBI stepped into the case when Hayhanen defected, Kelso said, and turned up what he said is "convincing evidence" of Rhodes' guilt.

Lt. Col. John F. Shummel, chief defense counsel, pronounced all this "a story that is rather fascinating" if Kelso could prove it.

Much of it is a playback of things that came out in the Abel trial. Rhodes was a witness then and admitted meetings with Soviet and receiving money from them, after a wild party involving a Soviet woman. If convicted of the espionage conspiracy charges, Rhodes could receive a maximum sentence of life imprisonment, dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of all Army pay and allowances.

The defense succeeded in knocking out 23 of 25 citations of alleged disloyal actions in each of two specifications in the espionage conspiracy charges. This was on grounds that there was a one-day break in Rhodes' military service in November 1955 between a resignation and honorable discharge and a re-enlistment and he could not be tried on alleged overt acts during the period before his re-enlistment.

Hodges Declares Ports Body Must Take Lead

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Hodges says the State Ports Authority must "take the lead in meeting the challenge of economic growth that is now before us."

"There is a great future ahead for our state ports at Wilmington and Morehead City," Hodges declared. "We must either take advantage of our deep water resources or be outstripped by our southeastern neighbors."

Hodges told the gathering that he and the SPA members also agree that the ports must be sold "upside" and "this includes an expanded solicitation program and a better public relations program."

"If the people, their representatives in the General Assembly, the businessmen, and the importers and exporters in the state are not sold on the ports, then we will have lost our investment," Hodges stated.

Other conclusions which the governor said he and the State Ports Authority agree on are: (1) "That there must be no bickering between the ports and the both communities get behind and support the entire SPA program." (2) That it be made clear that the state owns the facilities it controls and "must operate them for the benefit of the entire state."

(3) "That the port facilities owned by the state be put on a firm business foundation without prejudice and 'without regard to what has gone before.'"

(4) That an experienced ports director be engaged promptly.

Hodges noted "the fight against beach erosion has just begun and we must develop our engineering techniques to save our coast."

KINSTON — The local Du Pont plant is in the process of laying off approximately 90 short service employees, W. E. Gladding, manager, disclosed today.

Gladding expressed an optimistic view as to the long range outlook for "Dacron" polyester fiber. He said that the lay-off, expected to be of short duration, is required to bring production in line with current demands which have lessened somewhat in the face of a general "soft" market.

"The textile market," Gladding said, "has been in a depressed state for several months but only recently has this affected demands for our product to the extent that a production curtailment is necessary."

The plant currently employs approximately 2,000 people.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Those Cotton Carnival banners that flapped in the breeze last carnival season are going to be destroyed. They were made of rayon. The carnival's publicity committee made the decision. The new ones will be 100 per cent cotton.

Dog Applies For A New License

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Inky, a small black cocker spaniel, has made his annual trip to the police station for a new dog license.

Police Chief Fred Abrams said Inky appears about this time each year and refuses to leave until he is issued a new tag.

Abrams said Inky owned by Carroll W. Alcorn, sometimes visits the police station during the year, but only at license time does he whine and bark for a new tag.

 "One father fainted dead away while watching his child being delivered," Dr. Nixon said. "He smashed to the floor and was knocked for six (knocked out)."

Phantoms Defeat Jacksonville, 65-48

Overcome 24-24 Halftime Tie To Claim Win

JACKSONVILLE—A wild third-quarter surge by the Rose High School Phantoms broke a 24-24 halftime tie with a stubborn Jacksonville team, put the G-Men ahead, and ultimately upped their Northeastern Conference record to 7-2, with a 65-48 win.

The victory kept Greenville in the running for the Northeastern Conference championship with leader New Bern, who eked out a one-point win over Kinston last night, 57-56. It was New Bern's ninth win against only one loss.

Coach Boley Farley's Phantoms came close to dropping out of the running last night. Jacksonville took a quick 6-0 lead over the visitors in the first quarter and extended it to 12-10 by the end of that period.

In the second period, the Cardinals continued to press the over-cautious Phants; Greenville managed to net 14 to Jacksonville's 12. It was 24-24 at halftime.

Phants Get Hot

Then the bottom fell out.

Fired-up, the Phantoms came back in the third period to pour in a rapid 24 points, while Jacksonville got nine. With Walker Lee Allen and Dick Evans hitting their stride briefly, the G-Men racked up 16 points, while Jacksonville was getting only two still hot, they had accumulated 22 while the Cards had four.

During their hot spell, Allen whizzed off eight points in the first four minutes of the period and Evans threw in nine. Roebuck, Evans, and Crawford had almost complete control of the boards during the streak.

The fourth quarter was considerably watered-down. Greenville tallied 17 to Jacksonville's 15, but the Phants had rolled up enough points earlier to win by 13 points.

High scorer for both clubs was Evans with 18 points. Teammates

Phantomites To Play Tomorrow

Greenville's Junior High School Phantomites, boasting an 8-1 record, will finish up their 1957-58 season tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 against Kinston at the Junior High Gym.

Tough Road Ahead With New Bern's staiding of Kinston last night, the Bear's only competition from the league is in Greenville.

In order to win the conference, a team must be the regular season champion, according to new Northeastern rules. New Bern's 9-1 seems safe now, with only two games remaining on the Bear slate.

Greenville has a rough road ahead. They must win all three of their remaining games to tie the Bears. That means they must defeat Kinston twice and New Bern.

Red-Hot Duke Upsets State To Lead ACC

St. Francis' fifth-rated Dons were the only other top-ranking team in action last night. The Dons, beaten once in 18 starts, ran their winning streak to 13 in a 69-49 romp over St. Mary's of California, just about wrapping up the title in the West Coast Conference.

Arkansas bolstered its lead in the Southwest Conference, edging challenger Southern Methodist 65-63 on Fred Grim's two free throws with 28 seconds left. Gerald Myers' last-second layup capped a 71 per cent team field goal performance in Texas Tech's 74-72 victory over Baylor, and Rice hit half its shots to beat Texas A&M 67-57 in other Southwest features.

A couple of the East's tournament possibilities kept rolling. Niagara over Holy Cross 83-73 as Boo Ellis celebrated his 22nd birthday with a 30-point show, and St. Bonaventure (133) over St. Francis (Pa.) 85-69.

The Blue Devils, led by 6-2 Bucky Allen's 17 points, broke away in the last 10 minutes to snap State's five-game home winning string.

AN INTERESTING NOTE: Fick Arthur, a former Greenville high school trackster competed along with ex-Phantom Wayne Bishop in the VMI events this past weekend, to help UNC claim a win in the four-mile relay.

Arthur was a leg of the relay team, so was Bishop. About Greenville's Protest At long last, reports concerning Greenville's protest of a Rose High-Washington basketball game early this season, have been released.

EXECUTIVE MEETING JANUARY 23, 1958

The Executive Committee of the Northeastern Athletic Conference (Spears, Bender, Talley) met on January 23, 1958, to consider an official protest lodged by Greenville High School following the January 3 Greenville-Washington basketball game.

Five specific allegations were made in the protest, the first four concerning the conduct of Coach Sweel at the game, and the fifth concerned the result of his actions, namely the denial of any possibility of Greenville winning the game.

Evidence presented by the secretary included signed statements from the following people who stated their account of the controversy: Coaches Farley and Sweel, Principals Dowd and Korngay, officials Vaughan and Davis, and time-keeper Ratcliffe.

There was general agreement that: With scored tied, everyone excited, and very little time remaining, Greenville missed a basket; the referee called a foul on Washington; the buzzer sounded ending the game; Coach Sweel questioned the referee; the referee consulted the timekeeper and ruled that the buzzer sounded before the foul; that Greenville reluctantly agreed to the overtime period; that Washington won; and that during the melee that followed, the referee was the recipient of considerable abuse by fans of the losing team.

The reports differed in detail and in general impression. Three points of view were expressed: that of the two schools and that of the officials. The Executive Committee felt that each report was an honest effort of the writer to present un-biased facts, which was most difficult under the circumstances.

The committee felt that the officials handling the game followed the rules properly, and that their judgment on whether the buzzer or the whistle sounded first could not be questioned by the conference.

The committee felt that the matter of Coach Sweel's conduct, specifically protested, was controversial; and that upon evidence presented would not warrant action by the conference.

- While taking no action on the specific protest entered in this instance, the Executive Committee does feel that all possible precautions to avoid further affairs of this type should be taken by the conference. Therefore, at least two proposals will be presented to the conference at its February meeting. (1) That the director of our official's organization be instructed to insist on a more strict application of the rules of basketball as regards the conduct of coaches during a game. (2) That conference members re-examine their provisions for controlling unruly spectators at their home games; and to make additional provisions, if necessary, to insure law and order and safe conduct for visiting teams and officials at all times.

Auto Industry Product Scores Bigger Strides

By DAVID J. WILKIE AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry has made greater product improvement in the last decade than in any like period.

If you question this try switching from a 1958 model to a well-conditioned car built five or six years earlier.

The industry's latest cars have more efficient engines, smoother operating transmissions with quicker response to acceleration, better suspension systems, greatly improved air conditioning and a broader availability of power steering and power brakes.

And while fuel may cost more per gallon in many sections, the over-all miles per gallon has gone down little considering the distribution of power output. A steadily increasing percentage of the horsepower is being used for operation of a growing number of accessories.

Probably nothing the automotive engineers have developed since World War II has had as great a public acceptance as power steering and power brakes. In most instances they continue to be extra-cost options but many industry experts predict they will be standard equipment on all cars within the next few years.

Many motorists, becoming accustomed to these power assists, say they would rather forego some other item of comparable cost than give up power steering and braking.

Of course there have been basic improvements both in steering and braking since the power adaptation during the last decade. These would be immediately apparent to the motorist switching from a 1958 to an earlier model.

car.

The last decade also has seen major advances in automatic transmissions. There have been numerous variations of the original principle developed by General Motors engineers and presented shortly before World War II. In its original form the automatic transmission was a fear-shifting device.

Many transmissions now are a combination of gear shifting and torque conversion. Where gear shifting remains the basic feature the shift from one range to another now is scarcely noticeable to the car operator.

Brought out originally as a medium and high price car option automatic transmissions now are standard on most of the higher price models and available at extra cost on all others.

Power steering and braking and automatic transmissions probably have contributed most to the product improvement achieved by the auto industry in the postwar years.

In styling, two-tone exteriors and upholstery designed to match or harmonize with outside hues also came into their greatest development following World War II. Leather, simulated leather, mohair, jacquards and numerous synthetics and other materials are being given greater color treatment than ever before for use in car interiors.

Some makers currently are using finely woven nylon fabrics in varying color shades to enrich the interior appeal of their 1958 models.

Girl Thrown 12 Floors To Death Seniors Preparing Plans For A Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—A pretty 7-year-old girl was hurled to the roof of a Bronx apartment house yesterday with a promise of 10 cents and a lollipop and thrown 12 floors to her death.

Francis Michael Medaille, a 15-year-old boy suspended from a parochial school a month ago, surrendered to police and admitted: "I put my hands around her neck and choked her a little bit; I don't know why. And then I pushed her off the roof."

He was charged with homicide. Police said Medaille, son of a hotel desk clerk, vehemently denied that he had any intention to harm the girl sexually.

Killed instantly when she landed atop a first-story abutment on the building was Kathleen Hegmann, one of eight children of John and Rita Hegmann, who lived in the same apartment house as Medaille.

Medaille told Deputy Inspector John V. Halk that he had said to the girl: "I need a strong girl to help me bring a heavy box down from the roof. If you come up and help me I'll give you 10 cents and a lollipop."

The boy appeared at a police station shortly after the girl was found dead and told police: "I just threw a girl off a roof. I want to turn myself in."

Medaille was suspended four weeks ago from Cardinal Hayes High School after he flunked three subjects.

Members of the Senior Class have begun making plans for their trip to Washington and New York City, which they will take at the end of the school year.

Principal E. B. Bright met with members of the class Thursday to discuss highlights of the trip and also to announce that because of the limited number of seniors who will make the trip a decision has been made to let persons outside the school go along.

Persons who are interested in making the trip are asked to contact either the principal or Senior Class Advisor Adrian Brown.

The annual banquet jointly sponsored by Future Homemakers of America and the Future Farmers of America will be held Saturday night. A Valentine theme has been selected by the sponsoring clubs who have cooperated for several years in presentation of the banquet.

Millie is a transfer student from Richmond, Va.; Van is president of the Senior Class; Sandy is a sophomore and a member of the girls' basketball team; and Phillip is a freshman member of the boys' basketball team.

Two big steps in the high school's testing program were taken last week when the Kuder

The Kuder test was given to members of the Senior Class to assist students in their selection of a career or vocation. The Dunning test was administered to physics students to measure their ability in physics.

Natural Gas Bill Votes To Be Used As Campaign Ammunition

WASHINGTON (AP)—Self-styled Democratic liberals made it clear today they will be prepared to cite the Republican voting record on the natural gas bill both in Congress and in the fall election campaign.

Both proponents and opponents of the controversial measure agreed, however, that the bill's chances of passage were lessened by the furor over a Texas group's tying support of the measure to a Republican fund-raising dinner.

Texas Republicans raised $100,000 Monday night through a $100-a-plate dinner in Houston, advertised as an appreciation dinner for House Republican Leader Martin (Mass). H. J. Porter, Texas Republican national committeeman, urged contributors to purchase tickets because, he said in a letter, Martin had helped to pass a natural gas bill in 1955 and would need to muster support of 65 per cent of the GOP members to pass the bill this year.

Both the White House and the Republican National Committee disavowed any connection with the appeal and the national committee said it would accept none of the money. Porter and other Texas party officials said they did not know what would be done with the proceeds.

Martin said he also knew nothing in advance about the gas bill's connection with the dinner, which he said he considered "just another one of those Republican fund-raising dinners."

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler said in a statement that Martin's name was "used to give prestige and authority to the shoddy exercise in mass bribery."

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) predicted the bill will be defeated. He has contended the measure would result in an increase in gas bills paid by consumers.

Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore.) said he was amazed by the "brazen approach" he said Porter and Texas oil contributors had taken in efforts to get the measure through Congress.

Sen. Clark (D-Pa.) called on President Eisenhower to disavow the measure—similar to one Eisenhower vetoed two years ago because of the "arrogance" the chief executive said oil lobbyists had displayed.

"The event at Houston demonstrates that the oil men have lost none of their arrogance," Clark said.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.), an opponent of the measure said the bill is dead in this Congress, and Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.), who voted for the bill Eisenhower vetoed, said he doubts that any new measure will be passed.

"Those oil and gas men spend all of their time cooking their own goose," Flanders said.

Recall Songs Of Lincoln's Times

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—America has always sung about its presidents and Abraham Lincoln was no exception.

Musical Americana, an organization that collects songs of America's past, reports that some 400 songs were written about Lincoln, the nation's 16th chief executive whose birthday is celebrated today.

His 1860 campaign song "Honest Old Abe" contained this verse: "Ye Democrats list to my story, 'Ye Douglas-ites all give me heed."

"Though your candidate's running for glory 'He's not making very good speed 'But out on the wide rolling prairie 'A tall sucker has taken the course

"Who will wind up the race in a hurry 'And distance your stubby-tailed horse."

And on his death, a black-bordered song, "The Nation in Tears," was published. It was subtitled "A Dirge, in Memory of the Nation's Chief."

Testing Use Of Music For Future Travelers In Space

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Whether soft background music will help space travelers of the future stay in orbit is another problem that Airman Donald G. Farrell is helping scientists solve.

Farrell, 23-year-old native of the Bronx, passes his 72nd hour in the Force's experimental space cabin at Randolph Air Force Base today. That is three times longer than any other known human has spent in a hermetically sealed container breathing the same air over and over again.

If Farrell stays in the 3-by-5-foot tanklike cubicle until 9:35 a. m. Sunday scientists at the School of Space Medicine here believe he will have proved that a human can live in the crowded cabin of a space rocket for seven days.

Lt. Col. George R. Steinkamp, chief of space medicine, reported that Farrell was doing "exceptionally well." He revealed that a blond six-footer was following a 14-hour sleeping and wakefulness cycle in contrast to the normal 24-hour day and night cycle. Farrell sleeps 4 1/2 hours then has two four-hour work periods with half-hour periods of relaxation sandwiched in between.

During his work periods or relaxation he can request, by flipping a switch, that hi-fi music be piped into the steel cell.

"That's perfectly all right," Steinkamp said, "Kind of like a kid studying better with the radio turned on."

Steinkamp estimated that during Farrell's first full day in the space cabin, on Monday, the recorded music was played for several hours.

"We're watching the effect the music has on this man's work performance during the seven-day period and it might tell us whether background music would prove a means of relaxation in a regular space ship."

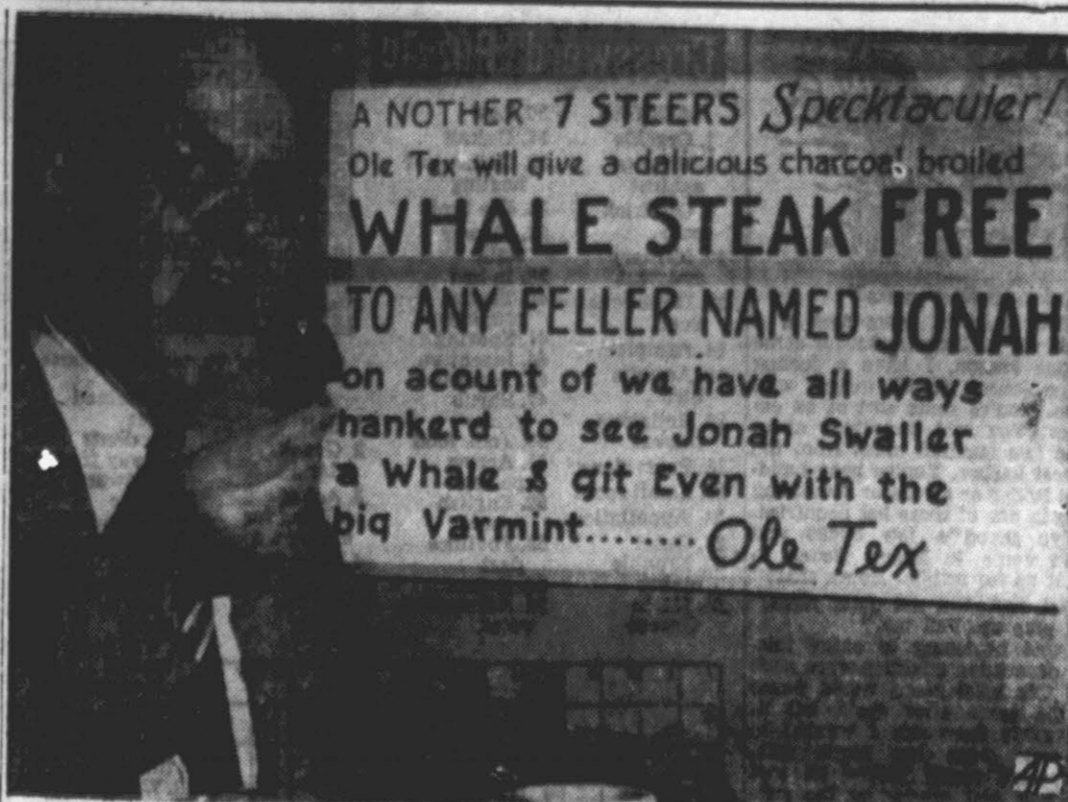

Scientists have said previously that it would be entirely possible for space ships orbiting around the earth to receive radio music broadcasts during at least part of their flight.

"He seems to like the light classics and popular songs of the ballad type most," said Steinkamp. "He definitely does not care for rock 'n' roll, thank goodness, because we listen to all of the music on a squawk box (loud-speaker)."

Steinkamp reported that Farrell was in excellent physical condition. "His alertness is exceptional and there are no signs of boredom."

He said the battery of instruments attached to electrodes taped over Farrell's body show "no significant changes whatever" in respiration, heart, blood pressure, or other physical conditions.

One Educator Is Against Pupil Suspension Policy

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn school official told three staff members of a special U. S. Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency yesterday that he opposes the Board of Education's mass suspension policy.

Dropping troublesome children from the schools en masse is no solution to crime in the schools, said Joseph C. Noethen. He is an assistant superintendent in charge of two Brooklyn school districts.

"The mass suspensions were a treatment of the symptoms and not the causes of the problem," Noethen told the staff members. He said the Board of Education's action was more political than professional.

The staff members came here with James Sullivan, chief counsel of the investigating subcommittee, to determine whether a congressional investigation should be made of the New York school situation.

Acting on a wave of violence in some schools, the Board of Education last week ordered the suspension of at least 644 pupils. Rapes, knifings and assaults have occurred on and near school property. Both white and Negro students were involved.

Noethen said suspensions should be left to the discretion of the principals or superintendents involved. He appealed for more funds for psychiatric and social staffs and special schools for problem children.

After the hearing, a reporter asked him whether racial conflicts are a factor in student crime.

"My best integrated schools are the one for delinquent boys," he replied. "There is no racial conflict at all."

In another development, City Council President Abe Stark urged that abandoned school buildings be used to instruct suspended children.

The city's five special schools that handle maladjusted pupils are filled to their capacity of 1,200. Six additional special schools are planned.

High Court Test For Pension Act To Fight Suit Against Merger

RALEIGH (AP)—A test case on the constitutionality of the Firemen's Pension Fund Act passed by the 1957 Legislature is headed for the State Supreme Court.

Superior Court Judge Susie Sharp yesterday ruled that the act is unconstitutional. She is scheduled to sign the formal order Friday which will bring out points of law on which she based her decision.

Under the act, a pension fund for firemen was set up to which each member contributes $5 a month. It also provided for a 1 per cent tax on premiums of fire and lightning insurance policies, with the proceeds also to be paid into the fund.

W. S. Bizzell, manager of the North Carolina Fire Insurance Rating Bureau, contended in the test suit brought against the Great American Insurance Co. that the pension act is discriminatory, class legislation, and state legislation which is not for a state purpose.

Bizzell argued support of a fire department is a matter for local government.

Judge Sharp also said she will sign an order in a related case. She held that Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold erred in two factors of a decision on a filing by the Rating Bureau proposing a plan for collecting the 1 per cent premium tax.

In his decision, Gold said the money for the firemen's fund should be computed in the fire rates. This would put the principal burden of accounting for the money on the companies. The judge held that the money for the fund should be an addition to the computed premium and should not be regarded as a part of the fire rate. Judge Sharp's decision would put the burden of accounting for the money on the insurance agents who object strenuously.

Gold also erred, the judge said, in ruling that the premium tax should apply on the fire portion of automobile policies. The judge agreed with the Rating Bureau that the premium on a fire policy is indivisible.

To Fight Suit Against Merger

RED SPRINGS, N.C. (AP) — The Board of Trustees of Flora Macdonald College has taken steps to vigorously oppose a court suit which seeks to prevent the college from merging with two other schools.

The board adopted a resolution yesterday calling for "prompt and vigorous action" to oppose the new suit brought by four college trustees.

The resolution stated that delay in carrying out consolidation of the three schools "is damaging not only Flora Macdonald College, but the entire program of higher education of the three Presbyteries and the Synod of North Carolina."

The resolution, offered by Fred Carlson of Greensboro, passed yesterday with only two dissenting votes. Two other trustees voted "present."

The four complaining trustees obtained a restraining order Monday to prevent the merger of Flora Macdonald, Presbyterian Junior College at Maxton, and Peace College at Raleigh to form a new consolidated Presbyterian college at Laurinburg.

The four trustees opposing consolidation are Mrs. Raymond Adams of Chapel Hill, H. D. Jones of Graham and Dr. C. T. Johnson and Mary Meeachern, both of Red Springs. They received a setback in their original suit when the State Supreme Court ruled their case did not constitute a cause for action.

Miami Manhunt

A NEW SUSPENSE NOVEL BY WILLIAM FULLER

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Brad Dolan is telling the story of what can happen to a venture-some unmarried man who, because he is taking a vacation, has time and money on his hands. Brad left his charter boat, Jessie, on which he lives most of the time, in a Florida shipyard for overhauling and went to Miami Beach for a whirl. He was having difficulty getting a room in a hotel without an advance reservation, when a girl he never saw before hailed him as a friend for whom she professed to be waiting.

CHAPTER 2

The girl latched onto me in the elevator and hung on all the way to my room.

She sat in a chair and stared out at the Atlantic while the bellhop fussed around. When he'd finished his chores he stood by the door waiting for his tip. When he'd left the girl stared at me.

"Thanks, Dolan," she said. It startled me to hear her use my name. Then I remembered she'd watched me register.

"For what?" I asked.

"I was on a spot. You helped me off it."

"A spot?"

"A . . . a man was following me."

"Why? Or is that a foolish question?" I grinned at her. "You were designed by nature to be followed."

Her lips curled downward at the corners. "You don't understand," she said.

If she wanted to play guessing games, I didn't mind. I sat facing her. "What don't I understand, baby?"

"My name is Marta," she said.

"All right, Marta. My name is Brad. You know the rest. Let me repeat myself: what don't I understand?"

"A man was following me. He thinks . . . well, he thinks I'm somebody I'm not. He's mistaken. And he's dangerous!"

I grinned. "My," I said. "The plot thickens. Now we got a heavy, already."

"Anybody can be a third-rate gag artist, Dolan!"

"Anybody can be a meatball, Marta. Look. Don't let this round haircut fool you. I cut my hair myself with clippers because the nearest barber was two hundred miles away. You glommed onto me. Fine. I'm not complaining. I'm very happy to be glommed onto by somebody who looks like you. But I think the fiction's gone on long enough and we ought to get down to facts."

She stood. Her eyes flashed danger signals at me. "A real hard guy, huh, Dolan? You've been there and you've come back and you know all the answers. Let me tell you something! I don't have to take that kind of talk from you! Or anybody else!"

"Now wait a—"

She said coldly, "Goodbye, Dolan." She started across the room. I stood and blocked her way. "Wait a minute, Marta. What's the gimmick?"

"There's no gimmick."

"Then sit down and finish your story. If I was out of line, I apologize. I think you owe me some sort of explanation for latching onto me the way you did. A guy was following you. Okay. But why pick on me?"

She looked uncertain for a moment. Then she went back to the chair by the window, tucked her skirt over her knees and looked at me. "I'm in the show downstairs," she said. "The Gulf Stream Room."

"You sing? Dance?"

Those huge, slanty eyes stared at me as if she were daring me to make something out of it. "I'm a specialty dancer," she said.

I grinned. "Get the chip off your shoulder, honey."

That brought a slight smile. "Okay. But I really am fed up. Then why keep at it?"

She shrugged. "It's a living. A real good living. I started out as a showgirl in the line when I was fifteen. Dolan. When your name is Kowalski and you've been born and brought up on the south side of Chicago you can pass for eighteen when you're fifteen. Showgirls don't have to have any special talent. All they have to do is walk good. And keep time. I've been a showgirl in class joints all over the country. A guy in Vegas talked me into trying a single. He gave me some figures that spun my head. He told me the field was wide open. He sold me a bill of goods. I'm making at least five times as much money now as I did when I was in the line, but I wish I'd never listened to the guy!"

"Like I said, you can always quit."

Her eyes were moody. "Yeah," she said. "But it's funny about that folding money. You start stashing it away and it gets to be a habit. I'd planned to quit, have a home, raise some kids. If I just didn't work out that way."

"Wrong kind of a guy, Marta?"

She didn't look at me. "You could put it that way."

"Marry the guy?" I asked.

"Yes, but he's dead now," she said flatly.

"I'm sorry," I said.

"Save it. He was no good."

"But you loved him."

"We're all entitled to a few mistakes in life, aren't we, Dolan?" She stared at the floor. Her mouth was unhappy. I would have bet my bottom dollar she was still carrying a torch for the guy, whoever he might have been. Now her eyes leveled at mine.

"And what's with you asking all these questions?"

"I never saw a woman yet who didn't like to talk about herself. Her lips had that downward pull at the corners again. "Well, you see one now."

I grinned at her. "Okay, Marta."

"I don't dig you at all, Dolan," she said. "There's something about you that doesn't fit. I can't classify you."

"We've been playing guessing games for fifteen minutes, Marta. See what you can do."

She shrugged. "I can start by eliminating the things you obviously aren't. You obviously aren't rich, for instance. If you were, you'd be wearing better clothes, you'd have a newer suitcase. As a matter of fact, you'd be at one of the fancier hotels."

"You're dead right," I said.

She stared at me for a moment. "You're no businessman. You've got a lean, hard, out-in-the-weather look that doesn't come from time spent in steam-heated office buildings."

"Now you're on the first plateau."

"Now I'll start with some of the things you could be. You could be a professional athlete—you're big enough. With that crooked nose you could be a fighter—but there's no scar tissue over your eyes."

"Take another guess."

"You could be some sort of a crook, for all I know. But for some strange reason, I have a feeling you're honest. So I'll take a wild guess. You're some sort of an engineer. You said something about being two hundred miles from the nearest barber. You've been building a bridge or a road or something down in one of those hot countries. You've saved a few bucks, and you've come to Miami Beach to live it up for awhile. How's that?"

"Not bad. But not quite right."

"I give up. Tell me."

I was beginning to enjoy this. Her decorative qualities were such that this hotel room would never be the same after she'd left it. And aside from this I wanted to find out what her angle was, why she'd really picked on me. She was real touchy on the subject. This time I'd lead up to it carefully.

ECC Schedule Set For Term

East Carolina College's schedule for the four quarters of the 1958-1959 term has been announced by the college administration. Major changes include the opening of the college a week later than in the past several years and the scheduling of commencement near the end of May rather than earlier in the month.

The new schedule marks September 26 as the first day and November 26 as the closing day of the fall quarter. The winter quarter will cover the period from Dec. 1 through Feb. 28; and the spring quarter, that from March 4 through Commencement Day, May 24.

Summer school will begin June 8. The session will include two terms, the first extending through July 14, and the second from July 15 through August 20.

Three holidays are scheduled for the fall, winter, and spring quarters—Thanksgiving, November 26 at noon to Dec. 1; Christmas, Dec. 19 at 5 p.m. to January 5; and Easter, March 26 at 5 p.m. to March 31. In addition, for the two-day period March 2-3 no classes have been scheduled so that faculty members may use this time to complete their records for the winter quarter. There will also be an interval of two weeks between the spring and the summer quarters.

The Tennessee Valley Authority operates 18 dams on the Tennessee River and its tributaries.

Skip Dancing To Talk Theology

By BILL W. DEAN

OMAHA (AP)—Will teen-agers pass up a Saturday night dance to talk about theology?

Yes, they do it every other week in Kansas City, says Dr. H. Dale Small, minister of education at the Second Presbyterian Church there.

His description of a young people's group he works with has attracted attention at a meeting of the National Council of Churches' Division of Christian Education.

Dr. Small's group is called "Comrades of the Way."

There are about 75 high school juniors and seniors in the group, most of them members of the fraternities and sororities, leaders in school activities, some of them athletes—"sharp kids" according to Dr. Small.

The organization itself meets on Sunday night with 97 per cent about par for attendance.

Every other Saturday night, from 8 to 10 p.m., some 35 to 40 will gather for "fireside chats." They are encouraged to bring dates. The talk is about theology.

Dr. Small, 42, said the "Comrades" answered a need for a church group to capitalize on the desire of young people to belong to a group, an organization in some way exclusive and not "just another organization."

It is meant to appeal to the desire of youngsters to think for themselves, Dr. Small explains. It is not "sugar-coated with social activities."

Does the theology really take in the case of the teen-agers?

"One of my problems now is that the kids know so much more theology than their parents," confides Dr. Small.

"He's now reorganizing adult education in the church to help the parents catch up."

Geiger Counter Caused Alarm

GARLAND, Tex. (AP)—A Geiger counter was hurriedly brought to the school. Ambulances rushed up. Then came police and the sheriff. Finally a three-man Atomic Energy Commission team rushed in from nearby Dallas.

Then the AEC team found that the Geiger counter was haywire and that the suspected lost radioactive isotope, for which a wide search is being made in the Dallas area, was only a harmless lead sinker, the kind boys use in fishing.

Movie Date Led To The Wedding

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—When studio executive Robert Rains, 36, first asked actress Julie Van Zandt, 27, for a date she told him, she recalls, that she didn't care one way or the other about meeting him, but she was very eager to see the movie.

So she went along. That was two years ago. Yesterday they got a marriage license.

Cubs Remember Hospitalized Children

ADMINISTRATOR WARD RECEIVES CHILDREN'S BOOK FROM CUB SCOUT . . . Mrs. Morgan, Carl Knott other members of Farmville Cub Pack look on.

Seven children's picture books were presented to the Pitt Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon for use in the children's ward.

The hard-back books were made by members of Den four of Farmville Cub Pack 25, under the guidance of Mrs. J. I. Morgan, Den Mother.

Members of Den Four are: Mary Tyson, Dixon Sauls, Tony Murphy, J. I. Morgan, III, Bob Monk, Ray Wooten and Pat Bundy. Each youngster presented a picture book to Hospital Administrator C. D. Ward.

Mrs. Morgan stated the books, especially designed for children confined in the local hospital, were made during the Den's last four weekly meetings. Each Club, according to Mrs. Morgan, designed and completed his own individual book.

Following the presentation of the books, Ward stated, "It is certainly a wonderful thing you so unselfishly made and brought to us."

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Farm Bureau was expected to adopt a flock of resolutions today, including one strongly urging continuance of 90 per cent of parity for basic commodities.

The Resolutions Committee was to present its report at the closing session of the 22nd annual convention.

Last night David S. Weaver, director of the State Agricultural Extension Service, was presented the Farm Bureau's annual award for "Distinguished service to agriculture."

Weaver was cited as a man whose greatest ambition is "to relieve human drudgery."

Dr. D. W. Colvard, dean of agriculture at North Carolina State College, told Farm Bureau delegates yesterday he would "recommend very strongly" that a one or two-year course in agriculture be established at State College.

Colvard also said he is considering a plan to appoint one person in the School of Agriculture to coordinate all research and extension work in the marketing and processing of farm commodities.

Alonzo C. Edwards of Hookerton, president of the organization, said that now more than ever before farm people need to keep informed and to "pull together" in behalf of agriculture.

He told the group that "farmers would be glad to get on a 'free

Father, 7 Children Are Killed By Blaze

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP)—Fire and smoke swirled through an old two-story frame house early today, killing a father and seven children. Firemen blamed an overheated furnace, stoked heavily in the zero cold.

Robert L. Lilly, 37, got his wife Barbara, 29, and their 5-month-old son Miles safely out of the house.

But when he tried to rescue the other children the heat and smoke must have got him, said Fire Chief Milo Sights.

"We found his body near the bathroom, between two bedrooms, and apparently he had tried to get to them," said Sights.

The children included twins, 5-year-old Robert and Roberta. The others were Gregory, 11; Marshall, 8; Clara, 7; Pamin, 4; and Cynthia, 3.

Three bodies were found in a clothes closet in the front bedroom, four others in a back bedroom — two under a bed and two on it.

"They probably died of suffocation before the flames got to them," Sights said. "There must have been a delay in turning in an alarm, with all the excitement. The flames were coming through the roof when our No. 1 engine company got there."

The surviving baby was admitted to city hospital. It was suffering from a cold. The dazed mother was treated for shock and released.

Mrs. Lilly said her husband awakened her not long after they had gone to bed, saying "I think the house is on fire."

She grabbed the baby from a crib at her bedside. On the way downstairs she saw a heavy chair afire, and thought that was the only blaze. The father started to help the others.

The tragedy was at 721 Reed St. in the Negro section of this northeast Ohio city. The six-room house was a total loss.

Storms Subside; Cold Lingers On

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Storms subsided but the season's coldest weather continued today in most areas from the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast.

No immediate general relief from the nearly weeklong cold wave was indicated. However, there was a slight moderation in temperatures in some Southern and Eastern sections yesterday.

Another morning of subzero cold chilled the Great Lakes region and the northern Plains. A slight warming trend in the upper Mississippi Valley kept the mercury above zero in most places. But it was cold, with readings close to zero.

One of the lowest early morning marks was 23 degrees below zero at Pellston, Mich.

More freezing weather plagued the Gulf Coast states, excluding Florida, which reported light rain over wide areas.

New York state reported 23 deaths attributed to the stormy-cold weather while the toll in other areas in the Eastern half of the country was 33, for a total of 56. Overexertion in snow or auto accidents on icy highways accounted for most of the deaths.

Two Days Left To Ask Service

Farmers who plan to have any of their allotted crops premeasured have only two more days to request this service. ASC Office Manager Walter Hasty said this morning.

Thursday and Friday are the last two days of the premeasurement sign-up period.

Through last Friday more than 500 producers had filed requests for premeasurement at the Pitt County ASC office. Hasty said.

During 1957, 600 farms were officially premeasured in the county. On 27 of these farms the producers elected to plant beyond the stakes. Therefore these 27 farms had to be remeasured and were found to be in excess of the allotments.

However, the remainder of the premeasured farms were checked and found to be planted within the premeasured area.

Find Their Own Fire To Fight

Greenville Fire Department's sub-station boys found their own little fire this morning without any help from the main station crew or the city's fire alarm system.

The sub-station truck extinguished a blaze, caused by shorted wiring, under the dash of a 1951 automobile on Dickinson Ave.

The sub-station firemen, as they do regularly, had been to the Main Station for fire fighting classes.

They were returning to the West End Station when they spotted the fire.

After extinguishing the blaze they informed the main station of the fire.

Redstone Rocket Successfully Fired Last Night

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army fired another Redstone last night. The missile's fiery flight may have solved more of the secrets of space.

Belching orange fire, the bullet-shaped missile blasted off from the test center here at 7:52 p.m. Just 52 seconds later, it vanished into a thick, coal-black overcast.

The Army announced only that it had made a routine test firing.

The test may have helped pave the way for the launching of big satellites and the eventual placing of manned stations in outer space.

Basically a 280-mile ballistic missile, the Redstone is so far advanced the Army says that by midsummer it will be in operational use and can be handled by troops in the field.

As the first stage of the Army's Jupiter-C rocket, the Redstone helped blast the 0.8-pound satellite Explorer into space Jan. 31. He Army hopes to use it to launch bigger "moons."

Young Joyrider Calls Father From Town Jail

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Highway Patrolman Pritchard Smith was maintaining a speed watch on the four-lane road between Waynesville and Clyde.

As a car whizzed by at 75 miles an hour, a beer can sailed out the window.

The officer arrested the 18-year-old driver on charges of speeding, improper tag, improper registration and no muffler. A companion of the driver was charged with littering the highway.

The officer noticed that the license plate was wired on. He inquired about that.

It was this way, said the young driver: His father had denied him use of the car, and to insure the order had removed the license plate. The youth said he went down town, found a 1957 plate, which had been discarded by an early purchaser of a 1958 plate, wired it on, picked up companions and went for a high speed joyride. He honored his father from jail.
