WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are drafting a 10-point anti-recession program which party leaders plan to give a speedy start through Congress.

As Johnson views the program, it would shape up like this: 1. A comprehensive housing bill aimed at getting this limping industry going full blast.

2. Legislation to permit Federal Reserve banks to make loans to small businesses which certify they can't get credit in ordinary channels.

Schwartz May Face Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Harris (D-Ark) said today a House committee probing federal regulatory agencies may ask the Justice Department to prosecute Dr. Bernard Schwartz, ousted committee counsel.

Harris told a reporter Schwartz may have violated a law which he removed what he called "personal working files" from the committee's offices after his discharge Monday.

The files were delivered by Schwartz to Sen. Morse (D-Ore) who returned them to Harris at Harris' request.

Harris said the files were official files and were the property of the committee. He said some committee members also have raised the question of whether Schwartz could be cited by the House for contempt.

Winter Finally Leaves A 'Calling Card' With Pitt

Weather Bureau officials in Raleigh predicted that some sections of Eastern North Carolina would continue to receive light snow mixed with rain into the late afternoon.

Except for a light fall 12 days ago, the early-morning storm which moved across the county was the first measurable amount of snow of the season.

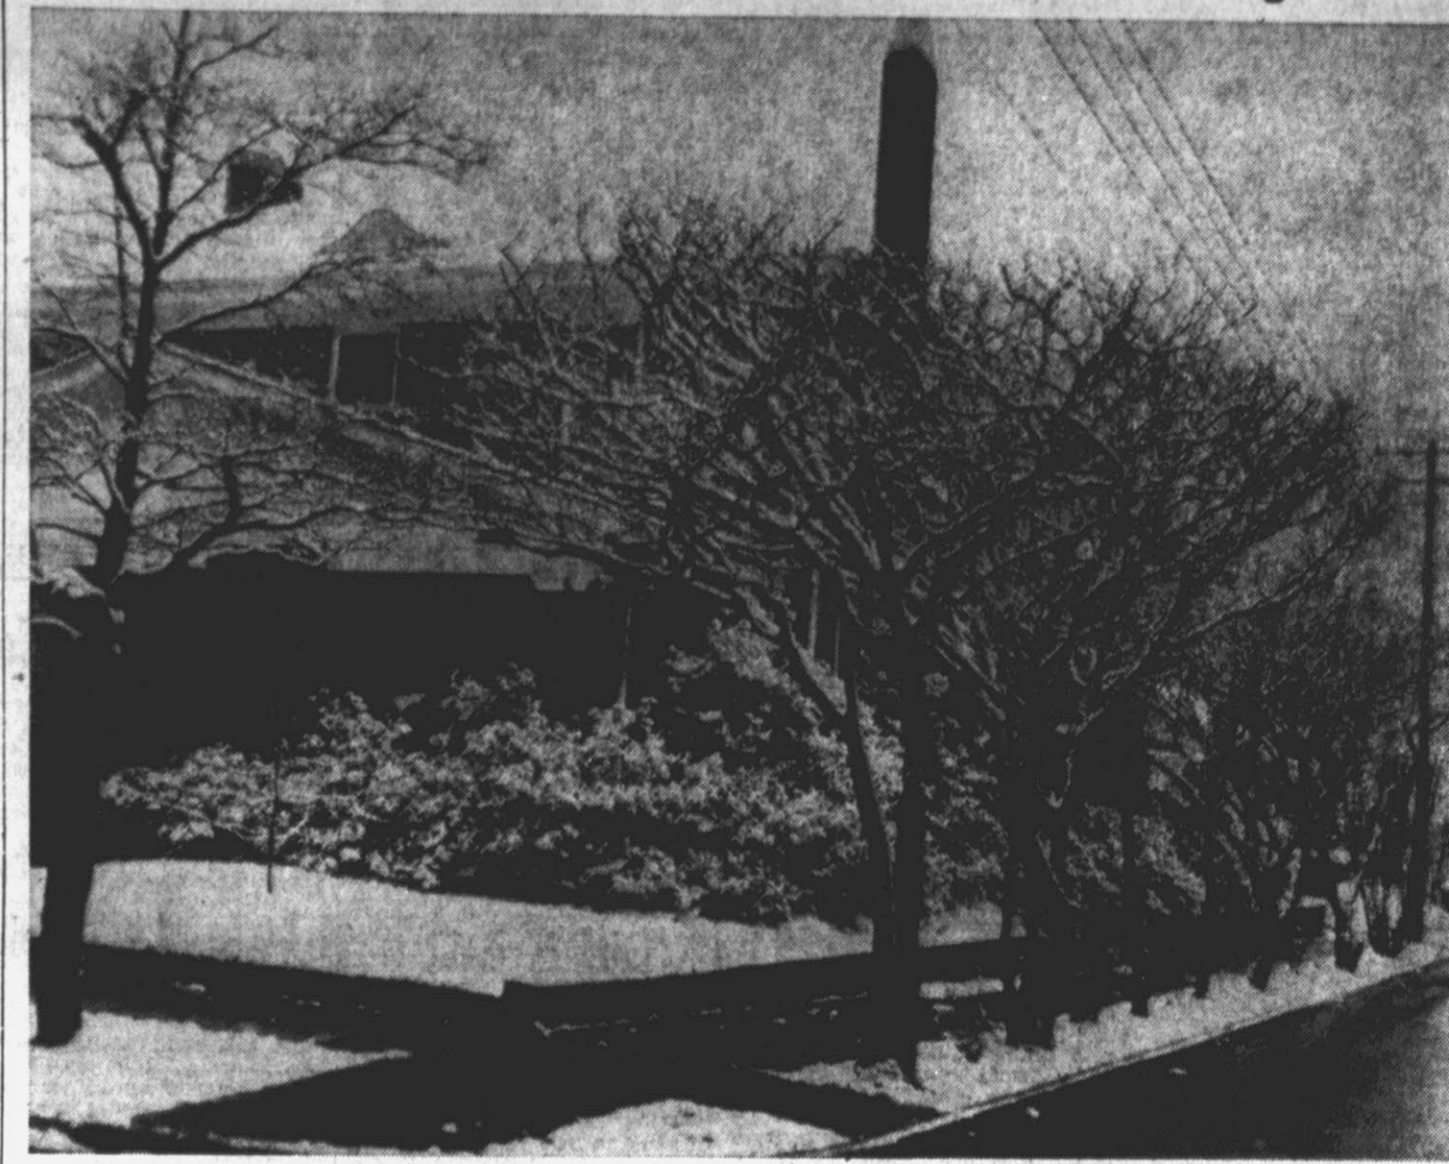

The weather station reported a 24-degree temperature reading at 8 a.m., 11 degrees lower than last night's lowest reading.

School officials in Greenville and Pitt County reported normal attendance today.

Schwartz did not elaborate then. Later Schwartz's attorney Herbert M. Wachtell said the committee had all the files.

Those files came back to the committee yesterday in a large beige suitcase monogrammed "B.S." a large suitcase and a carton. Harris himself got them at the home of Sen. Morse (D-Ore).

Winter Finally Leaves A 'Calling Card' With Pitt

By JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer

Old Man Winter, although not a stranger to Pitt County, finally got around to leaving a calling card today.

In his heavy-handed way, Winter dumped an inch-and-a-half of snow on Pitt this morning.

Weather Bureau officials in Raleigh predicted that some sections of Eastern North Carolina would continue to receive light snow mixed with rain into the late afternoon.

Reports from Bethel, Farmville and Grifton showed that the early morning snowfall was general throughout the county.

Reports from the county persons who commute from those towns to Greenville said none of the highways were hazardous except for scattered patches of ice in sheltered areas.

Rouse, Wooten Reveal Re-Election Candidacy

ROBERT D. ROUSE, JR. . . . Solicitor

District Solicitor Robert D. Rouse, Jr., and Representative Frank M. Wooten, Jr., both announced today they would be candidates for re-election to their offices.

Rouse, Farmville attorney who has been Fifth District Solicitor for four years, and Wooten, a one-term veteran of the General Assembly, will seek nominations as Democratic Party candidates in the May 31 primary.

Neither has paid filing fees but Rouse is expected to file officially with the State Board of Elections within the next few days and Wooten will file with D. S. Spain, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Wooten is one of two Pitt County Representatives in the General Assembly. He and Walter Jones of Farmville were the top vote-getters in a three-man field in 1956 and both attended the 1957 General Assembly and a special session in July, 1956.

In the 1957 Assembly, Wooten introduced a resolution authorizing a Municipal Government Study Commission of which he is now a member.

The commission is reviewing needs of municipalities and ways in which they might improve their welfare.

Wooten was also a member of the House of Representatives' committee on Judiciary II, Conservation and Development, Agriculture, Appropriations, Banks and Banking, Corporations, Drainage, Elections and Election Laws, Higher Education, Local Government, Penal Institutions and Senatorial Districts.

A native of Greenville, Wooten is a graduate of Greenville High School, East Carolina College and the University of North Carolina Law School. He has been a practicing attorney in Greenville since his graduation from UNC in 1941.

He is not married. In announcing his candidacy, Wooten said, "The next session of (Continued on Page 16)

Florida Has Big Snow, New Freeze

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Snow whirled by chill winds gave a freakish gleam to the Deep South today. Subfreezing temperatures were a dime a dozen.

In Florida, 3 inches of snow fell at Tallahassee, 2 inches at Panama City on the Gulf of Mexico and an inch at nearby Pensacola.

Miami braced for temperatures expected to fall almost to freezing. The fall at Tallahassee, possibly the heaviest in the capital's history, continued past midnight.

New Orleans, Mardi Gras throngs tossed snowballs, a rare sport that far south. The inch fall was New Orleans' heaviest in 59 years.

Western Louisiana reported a heavier blanket. Snow dropped a thin coating on white sand beaches at Biloxi and Gulfport, Miss.

Mobile, on Alabama's coast, had more than an inch in a 7 1/2-hour fall. Ft. Morgan at the mouth of Mobile Bay said the deposit amounted to 4 inches.

Throughout the Gulf Coast area, azaleas and camellias drooped and sagged. Palm fronds wilted. Snow covered the ground at Thomasville, Ga., where President and Mrs. Eisenhower were expected today as guests of George Humphrey, former secretary of the Treasury.

Humphrey owns a plantation near that south Georgia town.

At the usually balmy southeast Georgia port city of Savannah, an inch of snow fell the heaviest in 68 years. Children made snow men and had snowball fights.

Someone resurrected a sled and a bevy of girls rode it. An inch of snow also fell at Augusta, Ga., a favorite vacation spot of President Eisenhower.

Jacksonville, Fla., took a triple beating. Rain turned to sleet and the sleet in turn changed to snow early today.

The tourist trade and crops suffered in many Dixie areas.

Most schools closed at noon at Baton Rouge and throughout central Louisiana.

Editor Robert Lodmell of the Daily Highlander at Lake Wales started a drive to send food and clothing to Seminole Indians hit hard by the inclement weather.

Seek Action On Phosphate Deal

RALEIGH (AP) — Leaders of a group of private landowners in Beaufort and Hyde counties interested in phosphate deposits called on Gov. Hodges and officials of the Department of Conservation and Development yesterday.

John A. Wilkinson, Washington, N.C., attorney, said the group, known as "Joint Venture," is seeking "to get an equitable contract" for any privately-owned land leased for phosphate mining.

The group, he said, is seeking to bring in a phosphate mining firm that will treat landowners fairly.

New Party Squares To Be Introduced At Tournament

A relatively new party snack—"Nuts and Bolts"—will be introduced in Greenville Friday night at the Greenville-Pitt County Chapter of the East Carolina College Alumni Association annual games tournament.

These crunchy squares were named "Nuts and Bolts" by Mrs. Ed Rawl Sr. who usually makes a batch of them in her turkey roasting pan—in order to have enough.

From Mrs. Rawl's cookbook we borrowed the recipe: 6 oz. pkg. pretzel sticks 1 lb. salted peanuts 1 pkg. crisp rice cereal 1 pkg. crisp oat cereal 1 1/2 c. margarine

1-4 c. Worcestershire sauce 1 teaspoon each of garlic, onion, and celery salt Start over at 225 F. (very slow). Break pretzel sticks into small pieces and mix with other dry ingredients in a large size pan.

Heat butter or margarine until melted and stir in sauce and salt. Pour over cereal mixture and mix thoroughly. Cover and bake one hour. Remove cover and bake another hour. Stir occasionally. Makes 4 quarts.

Tournament To Benefit Besides the "Nuts and Bolts" which will be served while the games are in progress, dessert and coffee will be served in the North Dining Hall at the college at 7:30 p.m.

Proceeds from this event will be used to increase the scholarship fund of the chapter which annually provides financial assistance for a Pitt County student attending the college.

Games of bridge and canasta are being planned for the entertainment of those present. Valentine decorations will carry out the theme.

Vegetables Get Scarcer Good quality quality fresh vegetables are scarce items on produce counters during this season—and they may even get scarcer.

Limited supplies of fresh vegetables have resulted in increased prices and often inferior products at the retail stores. During this season most vegetables are either shipped in from southern growing areas or brought out of storage from previous crops.

Fresh vegetables, besides being out of season in this area, were severely damaged by rains and freezing temperatures in the growing areas.

This has resulted in a drastic reduction in the quantity and quality of fresh vegetables available on our markets now.

To compensate for the shortages of fresh vegetables, the food shopper must turn to other forms. Frozen and canned vegetables are the answer to the widespread problem.

With Farm Women

By VIRGINIA M. NANCE
Civil Defense
The Washington County home demonstration council has patriotic plans for projects for 1958, according to reports from Mrs. Frances M. Darden, home agent.

Home demonstration club women throughout North Carolina are certainly doing their part in trying to learn about weight control. Home Agent Jane B. Davidson, Ashe County, says that club women were particularly interested in her recent demonstration on "Eating to Control Weight."

As one Ashe County club woman expressed it, "No wonder I can't lose any weight. All the foods I have been eating are so high in calories."
Mrs. Davidson reports that it was a big surprise to many club members to learn that all foods have more calories than they had realized. They became more aware, as a result, that it's the total amount of food eaten in one day that affects one's weight.

"Credit - A Friend in Need" may sound to the general public like a loan company making a sales talk, but to home management leaders in the Lee County home demonstration clubs, it meant leadership training.
According to Home Agent Monica Brown, leaders were trained to present the February demonstra-

PTA Workshop To Be Held In Falkland

Plans were announced for a P. T. A. workshop entitled "School Curriculum Versus Outside Activities" to be February 25 and 26 in the Falkland Elementary School at the Belvoir-Falkland P. T. A. meeting Monday night.

C. W. Moye's eighth grade presented a program on Safety, in which first aid methods were discussed and illustrated.
Principal E. N. Warren reported that the school cafeteria was awarded a 94 rating during January. He announced the beginning of a series of adult classes conducted by Mrs. Hazel Tripp, home economics teacher, for the school district.

Tentative plans were outlined for a basketball game to be played between members of the Senior Class, Faculty and P. T. A. on February 24.
Warren urged parents to continue keeping their children in regular attendance at school in order to maintain high academic standards.

By-laws governing the P. T. A. have been sent to Raleigh for state approval as a preliminary toward national membership.
Announcement was made that the Falkland Ruritan Club will be host at an annual Ladies' Night Banquet on March 6. Members of the Belvoir-Falkland faculty and their husbands and wives will be among the special guests for this occasion.

On March 7 the Ruritan Club will sponsor a donkey ball game in the school gym at 7:30 p.m.
Roy Stancill, president, called the meeting to order and led the group in singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." Attendance prizes were won by the first and eleventh grades and Mrs. Durwood Pollard was the recipient of the door prize.

ECC Faculty Member Suggests Music Teaching Improvements

"The plan by which music is being taught in the majority of elementary schools in the United States today is at best a second-rate substitute for effective music teaching," Beatrice Chauncey, of the East Carolina College music faculty says in this month's edition of "Music Journal," nationally circulated educational music magazine.

"I refer," she explains, "to the self-contained class-room plan in which the class-room teacher handles the special subjects with the aid of a specialist consultant."
Music educators, she says, should lead an effort to place more specialists in the elementary schools to serve as teachers, not merely as consultants. Progress already made in getting classroom teachers to participate more actively in the music program should be continued, she states, and these teachers should continue to do all they are capable of doing musically for pupils.

There is great need, however, she points out, for "direct contact between children and a specialist."
Miss Chauncey has taught vocal and instrumental music on the elementary and high school level in Wyoming, California and Florida. Since 1949 she has served as

Widow Watches Fires

LUCEDALE, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi's only widow fire watcher is a 51-year-old widow who spends an average of 10 hours a day keeping an eye on George County woodlands.
And when forest fires are raging, Mrs. Mae Price stays on the job as many as 24 hours at a time, dispatching fire fighting crews and making decisions that determine the fate of 70 square miles of timberland.

It's a solitary existence for a woman, but Mrs. Price keeps busy even when there are no fires to report.
Not only must she maintain her office, but she also must keep daily weather records of temperature, wind velocity and direction and rainfall as part of the Mississippi Forestry Commission's program to predict, prevent, detect and extinguish forest fires.
Her office is only 110 feet from her living quarters but it's 110 feet straight up and she must climb the 131 steps several times a day as she moves about her duties aloft and below. The only entrance to the office is through a counter-balanced trapdoor.

Her living quarters are similar to any housewife's home, but her office would make the average housewife cringe. Aside from its lofty perch near the central community six miles west of here, the office is a mass of necessary clutter.
Crowding the glassed-in cubicle are radio transmitters and receivers, weather instruments, plotting boards, direction finders, maps and other tools of the fire fighting trade.
Mrs. Price must evaluate every wisp of smoke rising from the dark green tree tops, deciding whether it is a harmless campfire or the beginning of a devastating forest fire that could leave the land scorched and devoid of life.

Inland Waterways Can Help Ports

North Carolina's two deepwater ports are getting considerable public attention these days if for no other reason than the conversation created some months ago when Gov. Hodges named an entirely new State Ports Authority.

Since that time there has been repeatedly emphasized by both the SPA and the Governor that promotion of the ports at Morehead City and Wilmington must be increased and that the ports must be operated for the benefit of the state as a whole.

While these things have drawn attention to the deepwater ports, they should likewise have drawn more localized attention to the lazy rivers that wind through Eastern North Carolina.

If North Carolina is to realize the potential of its two deepwater ports, the rivers of the East which were once thoroughfares of commerce should also be developed as transportation arteries. Indeed, if the deepwater ports are to reach their potential, it is necessary that inland water transportation be given more attention in North Carolina than it has in the past decade.

In short, development of the deepwater ports and development of inland water traffic and shallow-water ports should go hand-in-hand. Each will help the other. While the State Ports Authority will take the lead in promoting continued development of the state's deepwater ports, it is going to be up to individual communities along the rivers to promote the development of shallow-water ports and river freight traffic. We do think, however, that the SPA is missing a good bet—if the best interest of all the state is to be served—by not lending more encouragement to the development of more traffic on North Carolina's rivers. Flourishing inland water terminals could be important factors in supplying greater quantities of goods to be handled through the deepwater ports.

If idle river port facilities like the Tar River Port Terminal could be re-activated, they would lend an appreciable boost to the state's deepwater ports. The SPA, however, cannot be expected to do the whole job. The major burden for re-activating North Carolina's inland river ports rests upon individual communities. So long as a community is content for its facility to remain idle, we may be sure it will.

Piece By Piece, City Streets Are Bettered

Street-widening projects undertaken by the city of Greenville in and near its business district in the past few years are nearly negligible when the projects are considered individually. It is difficult to see how such a piece-meal program will eventually be worth its cost to the city.

Yet, in the long run, if Greenville can be widened enough of its streets in and adjacent to the business district, its traffic situation can be much improved.

Work now being done on Cotanche Street can be cited as an example of this piece-meal program:

One block of Cotanche Street between Third and Fourth Streets is being widened by three feet. It's just one block, but it adjoins one block of the same street which was widened two years ago by the city. If the program of widening this particular street can continue block by block over a period of years it will in time be a distinct asset to the city so far as downtown traffic is concerned.

The same thing is true of any number of other streets where a few extra feet of width have been added in a block here, another there.

Recognizing the traffic and growth problems faced by Greenville, the city's governing board several years ago considered establishing set-back lines for commercial property in and adjacent to the business district. After considerable study, the plan was abandoned.

Since that time the city has quietly gone about the matter of widening a block of one street here and another there as the opportunity presented itself. It will take a good many years to get streets in and near the business section widened under such a program. But the small amount of progress with the program is bringing about is better than resigning the city to horse-and-buggy width streets forever.

More Ideas For Small Retailers

By ELMER ROESSNER
Here are more ideas for small retailers to help them maintain profits under current business conditions. First, accept, handling and getting payment for manufacturers' coupons is a nuisance and costs time and money. But now, if ever, is the time to do it with a smile. Many customers now welcome the penny savings coupons represent; cheerful redemption builds good will and keeps them coming back. Besides, sales of coupon items help swell profits.

Play contests. When manufacturers give you contest coupons to distribute, play them all they are worth. Don't just let them lie on the counter; give them to people with wishes for winnings. And don't sequester the coupons and will them out in names of relatives, either! Chances of winning a prize are small, but chances of increasing sales by giving them to customers are large.

ROLL YOUR OWN
Consider a contest of your own. Local contests are often more effective than national contests because all the entrants know the winner, or can look him in the eye if they wish. People right now are eager for something for nothing and contests with even modest prizes will attract a lot of attention. Just make sure you obey Federal, state and local laws.

Promote the contest. The chief value of any contest is the opportunity to interest new people in your establishment. So if you do hold one, advertise it. Use space in local publications, if practical. Use handbills, banners. If you get your prizes from local merchants—always a wise procedure—get them to display them, with signs, in their windows. Invite local celebrities to be judges.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
FULL OF MUCH DANGER
The age in which we are living is by all odds the most wonderful age humanity has ever experienced.

It has a number of serious drawbacks. More people have been killed in battle since the year 1900 than in any corresponding fifty-year period in history. Although much of the world today is educated, sophisticated, and highly mechanized, there are nations which are living as primitively as did their ancestors centuries ago.

Eighty-five per cent of the possessions of our country belong to fifteen per cent of our people. There is still abject poverty in this land of plenty. We have scourges today which are almost as bad as the fearful plagues through which humanity passed in dark centuries which lie behind.

Faulty Meters Unusual

So you think those water, light and gas meters run faster than they ought to, at times. When the bill comes at the end of the month you know the meters have run wild.

With the water meters it just isn't so, says Utilities Superintendent Leonard Bloxam. The things are so constructed that they can't run fast, he points out.

Over a period of time wear and tear may affect them so that they run slow, but in that case the loss is all on the Utilities side.

The same is true of gas meters. Their design is similar to that of water meters and it is impossible for them to run fast.

With electric meters it is possible for a speed-up to take place. A lightning surge on the line or other trouble could affect the magnets in the meter. But such a thing is unusual, he says.

"Only one time out of 20 will we find a light meter which is running too fast," he notes.

City Hall folks are out of the dark finally. Some weeks ago workmen completed the job of installing five banks of fluorescent light fixtures in the main lobby replacing the original indirect lighting.

Fluorescent lights have also been installed in the various offices along each side of the lobby.

by. The mayor's office, city clerk's office and city bookkeeping department now have the newer and brighter lights.

New fixtures have been placed in City Manager Leonard Bloxam's office. The difference was immediately apparent at the Utilities Commission meeting which was held in the city manager's office Tuesday night.

Workmen are progressing on the installation of warning signals at the Norfolk and Southern Railroad crossing on the new U.S. 13 bypass.

Blinker lights are being set in the lane separation islands to guard the crossing. In addition there will also be blinker lights at the sides of the road and crossing guard arms which will lower across the roadway as a train approaches.

After the 1956 disaster, with no action in 1957, a new try was to be made this year. On Monday night Rep. Joseph Martin, House Republican leader, was given a $100-a-plate dinner in Houston, Tex. Martin was the speaker at what he said was "just another one of those Republican fund-raising dinners."

It was put on by J. J. (Jack) Porter, Republican national committeeman and an Eisenhower supporter from away back.

But the Washington Post brought to light a letter written by Porter Jan. 30 to boost the sale of tickets for the dinner.

The letter said it would be up to Martin, described as a friend of the bill, "to muster at least 85 per cent of the Republican votes in order to pass the gas bill this year." And the letter added: "The dinner must raise substantial amounts of money for the Republican party as part of these will go towards the election of Republican congressmen and senators." The Post estimated the dinner raised $100,000.

After this letter appeared in the Post Tuesday, the Eisenhower administration and the Republican party leadership began denying any knowledge of it. Eisenhower's press secretary James C. Hagerty said no one at the White House had known.

Meade Alcorn, Republican national chairman, said the same, plus this: "The Republican National Committee will not accept any funds from the proceeds of the Houston dinner."

Martin, too, denied any knowledge of the letter but said he would vote for the bill.

Another Republican, Sen. Alben W. Barkley, said: "It's odd that people who can amass millions of dollars show so little political judgment."

This whole episode gave support to opponents of the bill.

Other Editors Saying --- More '600' Schools

(Wilson Times)
The question of the best way to handle the deplorable situation in the Brooklyn schools is not as simple as "putting all the rotten apples in one barrel." But to take care of the present emergency this is the only solution, to increase the number of special schools for problem children.

Already there are five of the so-called "600" schools. The immediate answer to the present crisis is contained in a six-point program, submitted to the authorities. It calls for six additional "600" schools, additional corrective facilities for pupils "who require removal from normal society," expansion of attendance guidance and counseling staffs, and strict enforcement of disciplinary measures.

The six additional schools are the long range plans, the other points, immediate measures. The entire program is designed to contain juvenile delinquents, as the MacIver report says, the two year study ordered by the city and released last December.

The MacIver report came out against expansion of the problem schools. It advocates a five-point program for testing and improving the capability of these schools to rehabilitate children before committing them to the streets.

The MacIver report on the present "600" schools were ordered because of the recognized school juvenile delinquent problem. The report calls for an educator to coordinate the special schools.

The meat of the MacIver report calls for remedial reading teachers to counter the high retardation among pupils, licensed principals and qualified administrators and the use of one of the schools for demonstration or the testing of the new methods, objectives and the results.

About 75 per cent of the pupils in the "600" schools are Puerto Ricans and Negroes. The explanation for this is because both groups are comparative newcomers to the city. The report says "These two minorities are in a social and economic position comparable to that of the early immigrant generations."

The situation has not just broken upon the people of Brooklyn and New York. It has been serious enough to have commissions appointed and reports turned in. Special schools have been set up. But conditions worsen daily and violence is the order of the day.

The time has passed for reports and commissions. Action must be taken at once in order to save the schools in the sections of New York and Brooklyn where the problems are acute. Separation is the quick answer. But you must agree with the report it is not the constructive answer. A way must be found to rehabilitate some of these boys and girls. This is a long process.

But in the interim what is to become of the now 900 who have been expelled from school. Are they to be left to roam the streets and cause additional trouble? This is the immediate problem, that must be faced and solved today.

Opinions In Brief

"Once again the news has appeared that income taxes have been cut — but once again the date has been Canada.

"Which brings to mind the wry comment of Utah's famous tax crusader, J. Bracken Lee: "Death and taxes are said to be unavoidable, but we are lucky that death does not get worse every time Congress meets." — Elk Grove (Calif.) Citizen.

"The worst mistake that the American people could make would be to let the government take over the public schools." — Cleveland, O., News-Enterprise.

"Pure science covers research for knowledge that may not be used immediately. Without it, none of the great advances since the dawn of the atom age would have been possible." — Norwalk (Conn.) Hour.

"To make up for the lack of facility with the Three Rs, colleges such as LSU are forced to take up valuable faculty-student time in remedial teaching which may extend into the second year. The waste of having to teach in college what should have been learned in the normal course of elementary and high school education, unfortunately, is not new." — New Orleans Times-Picayune.

American money and brains have made possible this recovery — and competition. It explains why there is unprecedented Congressional opposition to President Eisenhower's proposals for additional foreign aid and new trade concessions.

The American-Olean Tile Company's vice president minced no words in his letter and phone call to N. E. Philpot of the International Co-operation Administration, who had requested permission for Japanese specialists to "study your operations." Phillips wrote:

"As mentioned to you over the phone, we feel very strongly that to permit this group of Japanese to visit our plant would be utterly unfair to our people, who have been working short hours, and to the people who should have jobs with us but do not — due to a great extent to the fact that Japanese tile has been making such inroads into our domestic market.

GIVES I. C. A. OFFICIAL LESSON
In his two-page, single-spaced letter, Phillips then gave a lesson in practical economics to the I. C. A. official. He pointed out that Japanese labor cost only one-eighth or one-tenth of what he has to pay to union employees. And Tokyo even then sells tiles in the U. S. at less than his wage bill alone, after profits, transportation and insurance charges to the manufacturers and importers.

"A view of the above," he continued, "I am sure that your organization cannot blame us for feeling very strongly that we do not want to co-operate with the Japanese manufacturers. With the low prices at which their products are being sold in this country, they do not need any other tools, such as knowledge of our quality standards, methods or anything else, to get enough of our domestic market to make them a menace to our industry."

Making Hobby Of It

By JAMES MARLOW

Some people cut their throats once, and that's enough. But the natural gas people are beginning to make a hobby of it.

They spend a lot of money trying to get through Congress a natural gas bill which will free them of government price control and mean millions for them.

Then, by primitive tactics, they wreck their chance. They did that in 1956. In Texas this week they just about ruined any hope for passage of a gas bill this year.

They were going well in 1956, with President Eisenhower favorable toward a natural gas bill and the Democratic and Republican leaders in Congress behind it.

Then suddenly Sen. Case (R-S.D.) shocked the country by telling the Senate some lawyer he didn't know had dropped $2,500 into his re-election campaign fund. And Case said he thought it was done to influence his vote on the bill.

Democrats and Republicans teamed up anyway to pass the bill. But by now there was an odor from this piece of gas legislation and Eisenhower vetoed it.

After a Senate investigation of Case's charges, two lawyer-lobbyists — John M. Neff and Elmer Patman, both employed by the Superior Oil Co. of California, pleaded guilty in court to lobbying without registering as lobbyists.

The were fined $2,500 each and given suspended one-year jail sentences. The company was fined $10,000 for "aiding and abetting" the failure of Neff and Patman to register as lobbyists.

Neff said he put the money — which he said he got from Patman — into Case's fund without any intention of influencing his vote. Patman said he got the money from Howard P. Keck, president of Superior Oil.

There are about 8,000 producers of natural gas, many very small operators who own the wells. They sell to the big oil companies, which move the gas through their pipelines to utility companies, which sell to consumers and factories.

Congress passed a law giving the government control over the price of gas moving across state lines. The gas-oil people have been trying to get a new law canceling out the old one.

After the 1956 disaster, with no action in 1957, a new try was to be made this year. On Monday night Rep. Joseph Martin, House Republican leader, was given a $100-a-plate dinner in Houston, Tex. Martin was the speaker at what he said was "just another one of those Republican fund-raising dinners."

It was put on by J. J. (Jack) Porter, Republican national committeeman and an Eisenhower supporter from away back.

But the Washington Post brought to light a letter written by Porter Jan. 30 to boost the sale of tickets for the dinner.

The letter said it would be up to Martin, described as a friend of the bill, "to muster at least 85 per cent of the Republican votes in order to pass the gas bill this year." And the letter added: "The dinner must raise substantial amounts of money for the Republican party as part of these will go towards the election of Republican congressmen and senators." The Post estimated the dinner raised $100,000.

After this letter appeared in the Post Tuesday, the Eisenhower administration and the Republican party leadership began denying any knowledge of it. Eisenhower's press secretary James C. Hagerty said no one at the White House had known.

Meade Alcorn, Republican national chairman, said the same, plus this: "The Republican National Committee will not accept any funds from the proceeds of the Houston dinner."

ON THE HOUSE

By JOHN O.B. WALLACE

AP Newsfeatures

Don't throw that marble top table away just because it's scratched! It can be made to look almost like new. And don't move out of your home just because the fireplace is smoking. Chances are, there's a simple solution to that, too.

A New York woman asked us about the marble top table. From the week's mail, we take up her problem first. Mrs. Charles H. Miller of Rochester, writes:

"I have a table with a marble top and it has some deep scratches. Can you tell me in your column what I can do to eradicate them? If nothing can be done that will eradicate them, is there any place where I can get it polished? I want to cut the table down for a coffee table but there's no use in doing so unless the top can be renewed.

An almost-new coffee table is coming up for Mrs. Miller. Soap, beeswax and a little effort are all that is required. The soap should be mild and not a detergent. The beeswax should be "white."

First, go over the marble with the mild soap suds, cleaning it thoroughly. Rinse the marble and wipe it dry. Let it dry overnight. Now, melt the beeswax in a double boiler.

After removing the melted wax from the stove and away from any open flame, mix gum turpentine into it until the wax is about the consistency of thin cream. Now with a clean, dry cloth apply the wax evenly and carefully over all of the marble.

U. S. President John Quincy Adams was a man who changed his mind often. He was first a Federalist, then Republican, then Whig, then Abolitionist.

Allow the wax to dry, then buff it with a clean dry cloth. This will fill in the cracks, will polish the whole table and will protect the marble from most kinds of stains.

The smoky fireplace is in the home of G.H.K., who writes: "We purchased a relatively new house two years ago and have found that the fireplace does not always draw properly. Can you please tell me the possible causes for this and if there is a remedy?"

This problem can be corrected easily, provided there is no structural fault or obstruction in the chimney. Smoking fireplaces often are caused by the fuel supports being too low within the fireplace. Thus the burning wood is not caught in the updraft of the chimney.

Try this: raise the grate or fuel basket in your fireplace by about two inches. Do this by sliding bricks, turned sidewise, under the supports. Then crumple several sheets of newspapers and place them on the grate. Put a match to the newspaper and see how the fireplace draws.

If smoke still pours into the room from the fireplace, the fuel basket or grate needs to be lifted still higher. Do this gradually, inch by inch, repeating the newspaper experiment each time until you find the exact spot at which the fireplace draws properly.

Other correspondence—T. I. Quill, of Waterbury, Conn., writes:

"Will you please give instructions on how to paint a stucco house and what kind of paint, and oblige?"

There are a number of good masonry paints on the market.

Any reliable paint dealer can help you with your selection and can give you detailed tips on applying the paint to a stucco surface.

Mrs. E. R. Ahrens, of Lyndhurst, N.J., sends in this house-hold hint to "On The House" readers:

"Do not throw away teenagers' bobby socks. Use them for applying polish and for polishing furniture or for applying wax cleaner on windows and wiping them off. Put them on your hand like a glove."

B. M. Carlson, of Ft. Dodge, Iowa, writes:

"I would like to know if anything can be done about the smears around the nail holes from filler mixed by the paint company. Woodwork is birch and fir. The first coat applied was a 50-50 shellac and alcohol. The second step was the filler. The third step, a gloss varnish. Our woodwork is quite light in color."

The filler should have been applied first, then sanded after drying, and then the thinned shellac which serves as a sealer before varnishing or painting. However, do this: Wrap fine sandpaper over one end of a cork and sand the smears down to the raw wood. Then mix a solution of two parts of alcohol to one part of shellac and apply two to three coats, allowing each coat to dry thoroughly. This thin shellac solution is recommended so you can feather out the edges properly.

Now dampen a cloth with light machine oil and dip it into powdered pumice. Go over the spots carefully with this and the smears should be cleared up. Use paste wax as a final coat.

Fabus Revokes State Franchise Of NAACP

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus revoked the state franchise of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People yesterday.

Two new reports of racial incidents came out of integrated Central High School.

And Supt. Virgil Blossom recommended the expulsion of a Negro girl from the trouble-ridden school. He said she violated an agreement not to fight back against white students' harassment.

Faubus signed a proclamation taking the NAACP and about 300 other corporations off the roll of chartered organizations because they failed to pay 1957 franchise taxes by a Feb. 1 deadline.

His action had the effect of dissolving the NAACP in Arkansas. Under a 1953 state law, the NAACP could regain its franchise by paying delinquent taxes and applying for reinstatement.

The Little Rock school board heard Blossom's recommendation for expulsion of 16-year-old Minnie Jean Brown in a closed session. Blossom also extended a three-day suspension that she got Friday to two weeks.

Only the school board can expel a student but it usually follows a superintendent's recommendation.

Minnie Jean got the suspension—her second—for her part in a scuffle with a white girl student. The white girl quit school.

Last December Minnie Jean was suspended for throwing chili on two white boys in a cafeteria incident. She has been involved in several other racial clashes at Central High.

Minnie Jean is the only Negro who has been suspended since Negroes entered Central High Sept. 25 under the protection of federal troops.

A white girl and a Negro boy reported they figured in separate incidents at Central High yesterday.

Florence Callaway, 15, told news-men that she was kicked in the knee by the heel of a Negro girl's shoe as they climbed a stair.

The white girl said Thelma Mothershead, 16-year-old Negro, laughed and continued on her way. The Negro girl later offered to apologize, the white girl said, but she refused to accept the apology.

Jefferson Thomas, 15, Negro, reported that a unidentified white boy seized him by the throat near the school gymnasium and threatened him. The Negro boy said the white student accused him of "bumping into me in the hall."

Principal Jess Matthews said he had no details on either reported occurrence.

Minnie Jean's enrollment at Central High has been interrupted by her account, because of two words: "White trash."

The Negro girl said she hurled the invective at a white girl she contends was harassing her.

School officials sent a letter to the girls' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Brown, which said in part: "Minnie Jean Brown was reinstated on probation Jan. 13 (from a previous suspension) with the agreement that she would not retaliate verbally or physically to any harassment, but would leave the matter to school authorities."

After provocation of the (white) girl student she called the girl "white trash" after which the girl threw her purse at Minnie Jean.

Minnie Jean showed a newsman the letter. For five months, Minnie Jean said, the situation for her has been almost unbearable.

"I don't think people realize what goes on at Central," she said. "They throw rocks, they spill ink on your clothes, they call you 'nigger,' they just keep bothering you every five minutes."

Minnie Jean said she and the eight other Negroes who still attend the 1,900-pupil school were ordered to be humble to white pupils.

Minnie Jean has been the main target of segregationist students. Several white students have been suspended at different times for harassing her.

Rural Telephone Project Begins

Telephone company construction forces began work last week on a some 30 rural applicants in the Bell Arthur vicinity as well as project which will provide to provide higher grades of service to those who desire on West Fifth Street and Memorial Boulevard.

This was disclosed today by Frank Harrington, Manager for Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, who stated that the project will involve an estimated expenditure of $40,447.00. Service is expected to become available to the applicants during the second quarter of this year.

Accomplishment of the project will involve placing 7½ miles of aerial cable and 3 miles of open wire facilities with associated poles and anchors. The new facilities will be placed along the BellArthur Highway west of the Greenville Exchange.

This is one of many such rural projects being undertaken by the telephone company to provide service to the rural areas in its 41-county operating territory.

ABC Cracks Down On Private Club Drinking

RALEIGH (AP)—A crackdown has begun in North Carolina on the serving of whiskey in private clubs in counties where ABC stores are located or where beer and wine are legally sold. William S. Hunt, new chairman of the State ABC Board, leveled his sights yesterday on these clubs. He said that in his opinion the locker system under which whiskey is kept and served in private clubs is illegal. Hunt reported he had instructed beer inspectors to contact operators of private clubs in ABC counties to determine "if the law is being violated." They are to report back to him on "what they find." The inspectors were not instructed to enter the clubs, Hunt explained, because they have no right to do that without search warrants. They are simply to contact those in charge. "If such clubs permit whiskey to be served, he declared, "they are not entitled to keep a beer permit." Country clubs, veterans clubs, fraternal clubs and similar type clubs are covered in Hunt's instructions. He said, "We're not singling out any group to enforce the law against." Presumably Hunt referred to private clubs that serve members mixed drinks from the members' own bottles which are stored in individual lockers provided for that purpose. Hunt cited a state law which says, "No corporation, club, association or person shall directly or indirectly keep or maintain, alone or in association with others, a club or other place for the keeping or maintaining a clubroom or any other place where intoxicating liquor is received, kept, or stored for barter, sale, exchange, distribution, or division among the members of any such club or association or aggregation of persons."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is going to give the Soviet Union a chance to make good on its new ambassador's call for "lifting all kinds of restrictions" — including those on travel. Amiable Mikhail Menshikov swept through town yesterday like a one-man peace crusade. He paid two get-acquainted visits to the State Department and one to Vice President Nixon. "I'm in favor of lifting all kinds of restrictions," he said in a loud, happy voice on Capitol Hill, waving his arms. "That would be better for everybody." He gave short shrift to reporters' questions about a three-month-old formal U.S. note to the Soviet Union suggesting an end to off-limits areas in both countries. "I haven't yet studied that question," he said. "But the restrictions are being removed all the time." Actually, they are being added to.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner and Gov. Averell Harriman have agreed on using four existing schools to accommodate problem children in an effort to cut crime in the city's schools. After the mayor and governor conferred for 2 1/2 hours, Harriman said he is prepared to draw up a supplemental budget providing further state aid, with an eye toward buying or leasing facilities for additional state correctional institutions. The city now has five special schools. The new "specials" would be opened within a month in old buildings now vacant or only partially used, Wagner said. Two other special schools are planned for use next September. Wagner said the four extra schools would be able to care for 600 to 800 students. He said it would cost the city about $125,000 to get each of the schools in shape. The Board of Education has suspended 644 students who had been charged with insubordination or acts of violence. In recent weeks, a number of the city's 900 schools have been the scene of rapes, assaults, stabblings and delinquency. The incidents have involved both Negro and white students. Among other proposals advanced at the conference, Harriman said, was a "work-activity program" whereby pupils would be permitted to work part-time during regular school hours. Harriman said he would veto any measure which would change the state law requiring compulsory education up to the age of 17. Students included in the mass suspensions last week will get individual hearings to help decide whether they return to a regular school, a special school, or an institution.

Eisenhower is doing as much as they think the present recession requires. It took a while to determine Hoover's optimism was wrong. It will take a while to determine whether Eisenhower's optimism is right. But in his statement Eisenhower pointed to a number of steps the government already has taken to nudge the economy back up the ladder. And this country has more government weapons for fighting recession than in Hoover's day. But Dr. Marcus Nadler, economist of the Hanover Bank and New York University, looked dubiously at Eisenhower's prediction that next month will be a possible turning point for business and unemployment. He said: "I question that very seriously. So far the government has been talking but not doing anything." The latest remedial step by Eisenhower was a proposal to Congress for a two-billion-dollar program — spread over three to five years — for modernizing the postal service. This would include some new post offices, repairs on old ones, new machinery, and so on. It would mean contracts for business and jobs for people. Under this plan private investors would put up about 1 1/2 billion dollars and the government the rest. Spread over five years that would come out at about 400 million dollars a year. It sounds big. But stacked up against total construction in this country in 1957 — around 48 billion dollars — it's a drop in the bucket. Nevertheless, Eisenhower, pointing to steps already taken, said: "If other measures are needed, I assure you they will be proposed — and in time."

Burglar Really Worked For $37

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A burglar here really worked for his $37 lot, to all indications. Police say he apparently squeezed through bars eight inches apart on the basement window of a tavern, removed a door panel to get upstairs, climbed into the attic, cut a hole in the ceiling of a room where the safe was, and dropped down. They said he then tried to push the 500-pound safe to the tavern door, but gave up. He got the $37 from a cash register and crawled out through a rest room window.

Rightist Named New President

GUATEMALA (AP)—Rightist Gen. Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes finally has the presidency of Guatemala after trying since 1950. He also appears to have the majority of the incoming Congress behind him. The outgoing legislature elected the 62-year-old leader of the Conservative Reconciliation party to a 3-year term yesterday. The congressional choice between Ydigoras and Jose Luis Cruz Salazar was necessary because Ydigoras did not get a majority in the Jan. 19 election, although he ran well ahead. The democratic Nationalist Movement of the late President Carlos Castillo Armas backed Cruz Salazar and held 56 of the 68 seats in the old Congress. But Cruz Salazar, fearful that the country would continue on its recent unstable political path, called for his opponent's election. Ydigoras needed two ballots to win, because several deputies voted twice on the first one. The first time he got 44 votes, the second time 40. Ydigoras has vigorously denied charges in the last election campaign that he plans to set up a dictatorship. He also has promised to continue close cooperation with the United States. The new President will be inaugurated March 2.

Judge Proves A Friend In Court

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Luther Edward Creech, unhappy after receiving a speeding ticket when he was checked going too fast in a radar check zone, decided to get even with the cops. He circled the block and went through the zone at 10 miles an hour, waving a sign warning officers of the trap. The miffed officers arrested Creech again — on charges of driving too slow, and disorderly conduct. However, in court, Creech found a defender in Judge James Demoplos. The judge told police, "He slowed traffic down, didn't he? That's what the radar was for, wasn't it?"

Four Scout Exhibits Awarded Ribbons

SAFETY EXHIBIT IN CONJUNCTION WITH NATIONAL SCOUT WEEK

Four local exhibits depicting Scouting scenes were awarded blue ribbons by judges yesterday afternoon.

Receiving blue ribbons were: a safety scene by Cub Pack 205, sponsored by the Memorial Baptist Church, located at the Appliance Mart, Inc.; a camping scene by Troop 30, sponsored by the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, at J. C. Penny's; a project display, by Cub Pack 330, Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church at J. C. Penny's; and a navigation display by Explorer Post 433, of the Hooker Memorial Christian Church, in old Hill's Clothing Store.

These displays were set up in conjunction with the National Boy Scout Week, being observed by the Pitt Scouting District. According to Jim Mallory, Camping and Activities Chairman, the number of displays this year greatly outnumbered those of last year or any other previous year in Pitt. This year's contest is the first conducted in connection with the Scout Week displays.

Five other towns in this district have reported having displays in business areas. Mallory said these displays would be judged this week.

Bethel Troop 15 and Cub Pack 15, sponsored by Rotary Club has reported having two displays. The Cub display is located at Whitehurst Cleaners and the Scout's scene is on display at W. K. Whitehurst Store.

Two displays have been made by Patrols of Winterville Troop 200, sponsored by the Ruritan Club. The Flame and Arrow Patrol has a display in the Scout Hunt and the Panther Patrol's is located in the Winterville Grocery Company. Farmville Troop 25, sponsored by the Rotary Club, is displaying a Scouting scene at the Turnage Company.

Mallory said he has received word that two exhibits are on display in the Roy L. Turnage Store in Ayden. One scene by Troop 34, sponsored by the Rotary Club and the other by Explorer Post 334, of the Lions Club.

Two Scouting exhibits are also on display in Grifton. Mallory noted. Troop 24 and Cub Pack 24, sponsored by the Grifton Lions Club, constructed the scenes.

Mallory stated there are possibly other exhibits in the Pitt District but he has not received information as to their whereabouts. "In the event we find others," he explained, "we will also judge them."

Blue ribbons are being awarded to units having the best exhibits. Units having an exhibit, not receiving a blue ribbon, will be awarded a red ribbon, according to Mallory.

Scientists Surprised Over Reactions To Space Flight

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Air Force scientists showed optimism today as Airman Donald Farrell passed the halfway mark on his simulated moon flight.

The blond, six-foot airman from the Bronx, after theoretically flying over lunar wastes, was speeding earthward again in his make-believe flight in a compact space cabin.

The airman, still bright and chipper, completed the halfway mark at 9:35 p.m. last night. His seven-day flight is scheduled to end Sunday.

"We are constantly surprised," said Lt. Col. George R. Steinkamp, "at Farrell's continual alertness, lack of fatigue, and especially his lack of boredom." Steinkamp is head of the department of space medicine, School of Aviation Medicine, at Randolph Air Force Base here.

Steinkamp and other scientists show guarded optimism over man's ability to withstand the strains and stress of air travel. But he said, "We've got to run other tests." He let it be known that Farrell is just the first Air Force guinea pig for space flight tests.

It was announced at Austin, Tex., that the Air Force had contracted with the University of Texas to set up biochemical tests for pre-selecting space pilots. The preselections will be made at Lackland Air Force Base here.

Dr. Roy B. Mefferd Jr., University of Texas biochemist, said the Air Force had granted $24,900 for the tests.

Farrell, living in air pressure usually encountered at 18,000 feet, was subjected to three emergency summons. He has no way of knowing whether or not there is a real emergency.

But he continued high-efficiency performance. He made extra quick time in responding to all of them, Steinkamp said. Once he had his emergency gas mask in place in 19.5 seconds.

Air Force scientists said the many instruments attached to electrodes taped over Farrell's body show no significant changes whatever. They measure respiration, heart action, blood pressure and other physical conditions.

Only once has the 23-year-old son of a Wall Street accountant shown signs of irritation. He can have either radio music or taped music channeled into his space cabin. He signaled for radio music.

Taped music was turned on. He snapped his signal switch but was ignored. Displaying aggravation, he snapped it on and off several times. Finally, said Steinkamp, raucous hillbilly music was turned on. Farrell flipped it off and his shoulders.

He amazes his watchers with his lack of boredom. Cozy and warm, he ate a turkey dinner with evident relish. He takes copious notes on his feelings and thoughts as part of the experiment.

His watchers say he stays busy and call him "a great chow hound."

Electrician Probes Enigma Of Bottles

SEAFORD, N.Y. (AP) — An expert electrician today enters the case of the bouncing bottles which blow their tops — a 10-day enigma which has the Herrmann family in a tizzy.

On Feb. 3, the first of all sorts of bottles mysteriously began popping. His capsizing or literally blowing their screw-type tops, the detonating containers have held liquids of all kinds, ranging from perfume to washing bleach to holy water, in all parts of the six-room ranch house.

Suggestions as to the probable cause of the phenomena have poured in on the Herrmanns — James; his wife Lucille; a daughter, Lucille, 13; and a son, James Jr., 12.

Mrs. Herrmann planned her hopes of ultimate solution on another test scheduled for today. She said: "A man from the Long Island Lighting Co. is coming with some kind of testing machine to check all the wiring in the house."

The bottle business, she added, "doesn't scare me because there has to be a reason for everything."

But at this point, she continued, "I don't even want to know what the reason is. I just want to get it over with."

The family's home in Nassau County on Long Island has been overrun with television crews, reporters, photographers and detectives since the bottle bedlam broke out.

Some of the theories advanced thus far point toward mysterious radio waves, vibrations from planes, an underground stream setting up undetected vibrations, and a magnetic field set up by the electric wiring.

Virginia Demos Caught Off Balance By Sen. Byrd

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia organization Democrats, recovering from their surprise at the retirement announcement of U.S. Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, turned today to the practical political matter of who might be his successor.

They expected the atmosphere of uncertainty to begin to dissipate in the next two weeks as one or more of the potential candidates make their intentions known. There are expectations too that the situation may be fairly well resolved by the time of the Democratic State Central Committee meeting, Feb. 28.

Informed political sources put the spotlight on four names as standouts in a long list of probabilities to succeed the man who has been the dominant political force in Virginia for the past quarter century.

These were veterans of the Democratic political wars — former Gov. John S. Battle, a member of the federal Civil Rights Commission; former Gov. William M. Tuck, now congressman from the Southside 5th Dist.; and two younger party leaders, Atty. Gen. Albertis S. Harrison and Rep. Watkins M. Abbutt of the 4th Dist.

Others mentioned as possibles included the senator's son, State Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr.; Rep. Howard W. Smith of the 8th Dist.; dean of the Virginia delegation; Rep. Porter Hardy Jr. of the 2nd Dist.; former Gov. Colgate W. Darden Jr., now president of the University of Virginia; Speaker of the House E. Blackburn Moore; and Rep. Burr P. Harrison of Byrd's home 7th Dist.

In his retirement announcement, Byrd cited the fact that his wife "has suffered a crippling illness and is an invalid."

New Industry Prospects For East Are Analyzed

Opportunities for industries to locate and grow in North Carolina were pointed out and analyzed at East Carolina College Monday night, by Gerald F. Albright, head of the Small Industries Section, Department of Conservation and Development, Raleigh.

Albright addressed a convocation of students majoring in geography at the college and of faculty members in the geography department. His talk was one of a series of lectures being presented monthly during the school year with the purpose of acquainting students in the department with opportunities for service and employment in their field.

Since organizing the Small Industries Section in September, 1954, Albright has served as its head. During the past several years he has been influential in bringing 134 new small industries to North Carolina.

Speaking before geography majors and staff members, he reported that there are many opportunities for new industries in North Carolina. He stressed the idea that men trained in geography can do valuable work on maps, graphs, and statistics, which are important in locating industries.

In looking for a new location, he said, every industry has a reason, such as market, natural resources, labor, materials, or transportation. Here in North Carolina market seems to be the major factor in locating new industries, he stated.

Graphic materials on the southeastern United States are desperately needed to sell location in North Carolina, he continued. Emphasizing market geography, he explained how marketing and geography form a practical combination that is fast becoming recognized by both industrial organizations and industries.

Competition Is Being Probed

CINCINNATI (AP) — A committee of the Ministerial Assn. of Greater Cincinnati is investigating reports that Sunday meetings of high school sororities and fraternities are cutting into church attendance.

A spokesman for the Cincinnati public schools says that some social clubs sanctioned by the schools hold Sunday afternoon meetings and that attendance at Sunday evening meetings of church youth groups might be affected.

Pneumonia Death Ruled A Suicide

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Mrs. Geraldine Mahathey, 46, was critically burned Feb. 2 when an explosion rocked her home, blowing out an entire wall.

She died yesterday — of pneumonia — but Jefferson County Coroner Ken Rayne ruled the death a suicide.

Doctors at Denver General Hospital said Mrs. Mahathey developed pneumonia as a complication of her burns.

Law officers obtained a written statement from the woman several days ago claiming she had attempted to kill herself by turning on the gas in her home and lighting a cigarette, setting off the blast.

'Missing' Girl Was Found Safe

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — When Edith Camodeca failed to return on time from grade school, a two-hour search was conducted involving highway patrolmen, firemen, sheriff's deputies, high school boys and men from nearby Mineral Ridge and Niles police.

Edith was found in a beauty shop getting a permanent wave. The 6-year-old had changed the day of her appointment Tuesday without telling her parents.

'Rochester' Ill During Rehearsal

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Eddie Anderson, better known as Jack Benny fans as Rochester, collapsed during a television rehearsal last night.

A doctor said Anderson had suffered a stomach upset.

"He's talking and he says he's feeling fine," the doctor reported after examining the 52-year-old actor.

Age Of A Crime Is No Handicap

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — When farmer W. A. Moon reported a two-month-old theft of a dinner bell and anvil, the sheriff's office didn't let the age of the crime hamper it.

Hours later two men were arrested and charged with grand larceny. Moon got his dinner bell and anvil back.

Now he remembers a couple of other thefts: four buggy wheels taken in 1915 and seven pigs which disappeared in 1922.

GOT TOGETHER

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Youth and adult really did get closer together at the Governor's Youth Conference. The director of the California Youth Authority, Heman G. Stark, said his son Charles, 19, a college student, told him: "Dad, somehow you don't seem as square as you usually do."

Harvey Speaks At Bethel Club

BETHEL — C. W. Harvey of Greenville discussed the organization of the Lions Club before local Lions here last week.

Harvey is a member of the Greenville Lions and a past deputy district governor for the club. He is also a Greenville city councilman.

There was a general discussion of business during the meeting. Oscar Roebuck read a note of thanks from a family to whom the Lions had sent a load of coal.

Two new members, Jack Wynn and Jule Pollard were added to the club.

Members were served a barbecue supper at the meeting which was held in the Fellowship Hall of the Methodist Church.

The next meeting will be Feb. 21 and a program on scouting will be presented at that time.

Something New In The 'Overworld'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As if the underworld weren't enough of a problem, Dist. Atty. William B. McKesson has come up with something new to worry about: "the overworld."

"The overworld," McKesson explained at a Crime Prevention Week luncheon, "is a sinister segment of society seeking special favors because of wealth, position, party, influence, standing, or whom one knows."

He said it is "corruption in control of our economic life, working under a cloak of respectability, but still living off ill-begotten gains of patronage and special interest."

He cited no specific cases.

Oriental, Fragile And Sexy; That's Actress Yoko Tani

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP) — "I never do a love scene with all my clothes on," said Japanese actress Yoko Tani. "I make a point of wearing nothing under my dress."
Sipping champagne from a long-stemmed glass, as fragile looking as her delicate features, Yoko thought for a moment before adding:
"With stockings, with a girdle, I feel all tied up. You mustn't feel all tied up in a love scene. You must feel just the reverse."
Yoko Tani is the J. Arthur Rank Organization's answer to Warner Brothers' Miiko Taka, the girl who made "Sayonara" with Marlon Brando.
Miss Tani is making "The Wind Cannot Read," with Dirk Dogar-de, recently voted Britain's top box office star for 1957.

Bogarde, who ought to know, says that with the exception of the gifted Mai Zetterling of Sweden, Yoko Tani is the most exciting actress with whom he has worked.
Extreme sensitivity, her directors say, is one of her biggest assets.
Yoko Tani was born in Paris. Her father was employed at the Japanese Embassy. Her mother was Japanese, too.
"But," explained Yoko, "she was part Chinese."
The mixture works well for an actress performing Oriental roles. "People never seem to know if I'm Japanese, Chinese, Korean, Indonesian, or what."

She was a professional dancer five years ago, touring with the Scandinavian Ballet Company. But she began getting letters from her father, who had returned to Tokyo, ordering her to come home.
At last her father thought she had agreed. He sent her money to return home. Disobeying Papa, a very naughty thing for a Japanese girl, she decided to stay on in the French capital. With Dad's dough.
Early in 1954 she appeared in cabaret and then, as so often happens in show business, somebody saw her and offered her a part in Jacques Deval's play "Naimona."
Then came a good role in "Teahouse of the August Moon."
Her move up in the movies was a natural sequence. At first she played bit parts and then, in 1956, she had her first important film part in "Paris Mannequin."
By this time the Japanese movie makers showed an interest in her. So, she returned to the East and in six months made three films for Toho Pictures.
In 1956 Yoko was back on the European Continent with a solid part in "The Quiet American" with Audie Murphy and Michael Redgrave. In the meantime, she met French actor Roland Lesaffre at a Cannes Film Festival. They married.
At the end of a long day's filming, Yoko was wearing slacks, a bright red sweater with a turtle neck, a camel-hair jacket, highly rumpled, and a pair of boots lined with sheepskin.
A warm coal fire glowed in a spacious fireplace. She curled her 5-foot-1 curvy figure into a deep arm chair and confessed that she was very tired.
"All day long I have been dying," she said as she ran her flowering-stem fingers through her thick black hair.
"Dying?"
"Yes. It's the first time I have died in a film."
"Did you find it unpleasant?"
"No." Miss Tani seldom gives you the expected answer, possessing a quick mind as well as one that is not insensitive to publicity.
"Japanese are fatalistic about dying. I once saw a sign beside a volcano in Japan. It said, 'Suicides are not permitted.'" Yoko said she had been dying in a hospital bed.

most fluent and popular speakers on the American platform. He is scheduled to speak on the present European and Middle East situations.
According to Executive Club President Jack Edwards, Robert D. Rouse, Jr. of Farmville will be host. The meeting will be held in the East Carolina College cafeteria and is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Discovery Due Car Breakdown

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP) — A car's break-down led to the discovery of neomycin, one of the newest antibiotics.
Dr. Hubert Lechevalier, an associate of Nobel prize winner Dr. Selman A. Waksman, was driving past a manure-covered barnyard at the Rutgers University College of Agriculture when his car broke down.

While waiting for repairs, Lechevalier collected a soil sample. It was processed and neomycin resulted.
The drug is used to treat diarrhea in infants, in skin and eye ointments, and as an antiseptic preparation for bowel surgery.

Suburbanites Liked The Noise

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Residents of a Richmond suburb have solved one of life's small problems.
For years they were awakened by the 7 a.m. whistle of a train.

ferred for a week and then arranged with a bus driver to blow his horn continuously while moving through the suburb.
John Harvard left 400 books to the university that was named for him. This was the beginning of the largest university library in the world which now has 6,250,000 volumes.

WINTER WORK
WARMINGSTON, Va. (AP) — Last summer Henry E. Ballowe drew quite a bit of attention in local horticultural circles by growing a sunflower that measured 14 inches in diameter. But he didn't let the cold winter weather stop his sunflower work. He reports he counted the seeds in the head—all 2,100 of them.

THIS IS Yoko Tani, J. Arthur Rank's entry in the scramble to capitalize on the popularity of Oriental themes.

Catawba Nips East Carolina In Last Seconds, 78 - 76

Loss Drops Bucs Into Sixth; Journey To Elon Saturday

SALISBURY — A field goal by Catawba guard Gene Fleming with only three seconds left in the game...

The hectic Hollywood ending climaxed a game that sounds much as if it had been written by a cinema script writer.

East Carolina got off to a bad start, trailed through most of the game (by as much as 15 points), caught up with the Indians, passed them—and then lost by two points.

Catawba and ECC went into the game tied for fourth place in the North State Conference. The victory clinched the position for the Indians and East Carolina fell behind idle Atlantic Christian into sixth place.

All The Difference Despite East Carolina's hot and cold extremes and the fact that Catawba led through practically the whole game, it was almost an even contest statistically. Both teams sank 20 free throws and Fleming's last bucket was all the difference in the game. ECC got 28 baskets from the floor, Catawba hit on 29.

Catawba's Sonny Clayton nabbed high scoring honors for the evening with 24 points. Joe Plaster was tops for East Carolina with 23, followed by reserve forward Charles Adams, who had 17.

With Clayton, Fleming and Woody Helfrich leading the way, Catawba moved to an early lead over the visiting Pirates. With 5:13 remaining in the first half, the Indians had a 15 point edge, 35-20. East Carolina managed to fill the gap to eight points by halftime, 44-36.

Then It Was Close From there on out, the game was a close one, with ECC struggling to overcome the Indian lead. The Bucs caught up with their hosts with seven minutes to play and then pulled ahead, 64-63. Clayton tied it with a free toss, 64-64.

Pete Stout put his club back in the lead, 67-65 a moment later and Catawba enjoyed another brief stretch of leadership.

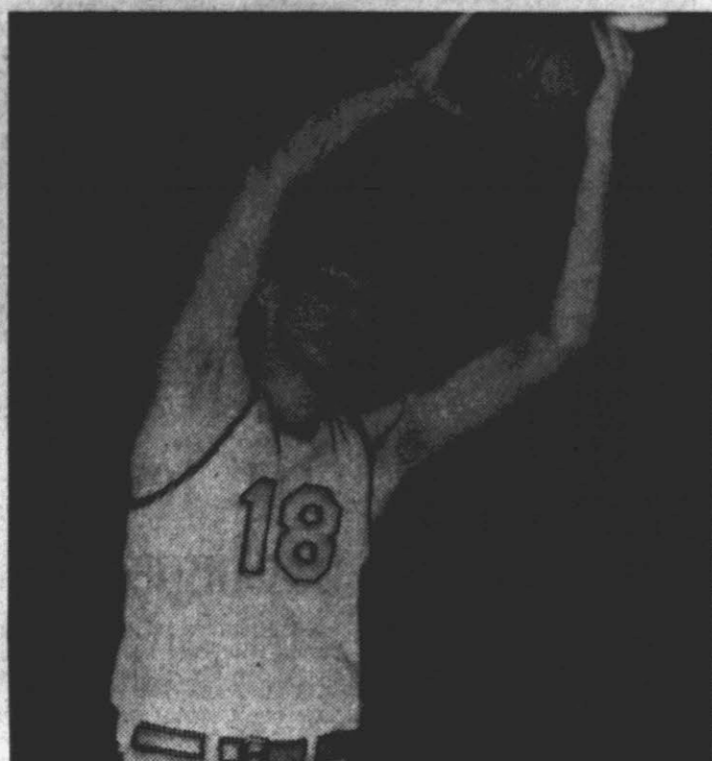

With 2:30 left, East Carolina came back on a shot by Adams, and tied it 72-72. Fleming made it 74-72 and Flynn added another shot to make it 76-72. Joe Plaster shot two straight field goals for ECC to tie the game 76-all with just seconds remaining.

Then Fleming dropped in his final bucket.

Though the Pirates trailed throughout most of the first half by a long margin, they hit on 14 straight free shots before missing one. They got 20-25 for the whole game. Catawba's foul shooting was not as accurate: the Indians sank 20-33. But Co-Captain Fleming's shot was all they needed.

East Carolina moves on to Elon Saturday night for another loop game, and the Bucs will go as 12-point favorites. They will be back in Greenville on February 19 for a contest with High Point. They wrap up their season with ACC in Memorial Gymnasium the following Saturday, February 22.

Maryland In 2nd Behind Duke

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS When the smoke of Duke's eighth straight win had cleared this week, the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race found Maryland's Terrapins quietly in second place behind the whirling Blue Devils.

The Terps, idle but coming up from their third spot on percentage with a 6-2 record outshining third-place North Carolina State's 8-3, are in a position to grab top spot in the standings. At the least, they can get in some mean blows at N.C. State Saturday, at Duke, Feb. 21 and at fourth-place North Carolina, the defending ACC champ, Feb. 22.

The four ACC squads rank nationally in the same series as they do in the conference: Duke No. 8, Maryland No. 9, N.C. State No. 10 and North Carolina No. 11.

Against loop competition, the Terps have lost only to second division Clemson (73 - 66) and the Wolfpack (57 - 48). They handed Duke its last pre-streak loss, 74-49. Both Duke and Maryland met tough non-conference Kentucky earlier in the season, Duke losing 78-74 and Maryland winning, 71-62.

The Terps play host to Clemson tonight. Clemson Coach Press Maravich says he has more than the usual away-game worries, explaining his squad goes into the game after nine days' idleness since their 73-57 loss to Duke at Charlotte, N.C., last week.

Tonight's other ACC game puts North Carolina at Wake Forest. Deacon Coach Bones McKinney says he still figures North Carolina is the team to beat in the ACC.

In the only action involving an ACC team last night, South Carolina dropped an overtime contest at Columbia, S.C., to Furman of the Southern Conference, 79 - 78. Furman's Byron Pinson bagged the final seven points for the victory, after the regular game ended 72-72.

The win-starved Gamecocks NBA Interest Is Shifting A Bit By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS If there is any interest left in the National Basketball Assn. race, it is in the battle for second place in both divisions, and which leader will clinch its division title first.

The Boston Celtics, Eastern Division leaders, need only a combination of nine wins or Syracuse losses to make it two years in a row, after beating the Nats last night, 119-101.

In the West, St. Louis needs the same combination, with Cincinnati the helper, after the Hawks beat the Detroit Pistons 122-105. The New York Knicks made it eight of nine for the season over the Minneapolis Lakers, 106-97 in the other NBA game.

Frank Ramsey, one of the Celtics "walking wounded" went on an 11 point scoring spree that brought the winners from an 80-78 deficit to a 91-84 lead which they never lost. Ramsey led Boston with 28 points, while Ed Conlin led Syracuse with 25.

Phantoms Host Kinston Friday

G-Men Capture First League Wrestling Title

NEW BERN—Coach Odel Welborn's Greenville high school wrestlers put together 106 points yesterday to take the first annual Northeastern Conference mat tournament here.

New Bern finished second with 79 points. Washington was third with 41 and Jacksonville followed with 2. Elizabeth City failed to tally.

The Phantoms took four matches in the first round of competition, one in the second, and eight in the final round.

Greenville winners were Bryant, Owens, Roach, Horne, Fountain, and Hardy. Hardy, Bryant, Taylor, Horne and Owens won two each. Fountain won three.

Though this was the first conference wrestling tourney ever arranged among the Northeasterners, several schools have had mat teams for the past three seasons. It is hoped that the tourney will become an annual affair, with all seven of the loop teams competing.

This season is Welborn's first at Rose High School. Besides handling the wrestling club, he assists in both football and basketball.

The box: First Round 98 pounds—Bryant (G) d. Brown (NB), 14-11. 115 pound class — Lewis (NB) pinned Ellington (W).

Second Round Morrow (W) pinned Gollub (EC). Fountain (G) d. Fisher (J).

Final Round 98 — Brown (G) pinned Sandy (J). 106—Anthony (G) pinned Kellum (J).

115—Arthur (G) pinned Lewis (NB). 123 — Krepps (NB) pinned Marshburn (J).

130—Taylor (G) pinned Puryfoy (NB). 136—Owens (G) pinned Youman (W).

Looks Like Big Oscar Is Best Talent Around By DON WEISS The Associated Press Looks more and more as if the Cincinnati Ohioans got away with the tidiest hunk of college basketball talent around when they latched on to 19-year-old Oscar Robertson from the Indianapolis, Indiana a year and a half ago.

Oscar, the brilliant Bearcat, startled 'em with Cincinnati's freshman team last year, excited the most blasé New York critics with a 56-point show a couple weeks ago . . . and last night? Well, Robbie just about cinched the Bearcats' first trip to the NCAA championships.

The former Indianapolis high school whizz scored 40 points as Cincinnati whipped Bradley 94-77 to open a 1½ game lead in the battle for the Missouri Valley Conference title. He scored 31 points in the second half, 18 of them in a five-minute stretch after Bradley, made the score 58-55.

While Robertson was letting himself go some of the nation's other bigwigs were improving their qualifications for post-season tourneys.

G-Men Rated 4 Over Visitors

Rose High School, ranked No. 2 compared to Greenville's 7-2. In sharp-shooter, but he has made the statement that "we may play him two or three ways. He's the kind of boy that can shoot in or out and that kind can give you trouble." Earlier in the year, Lewis notched over 50 points in one ball game and has maintained a high average throughout.

Coach Paul Jones' club will come to Rose Gym ranked four-point underdogs to the Phants, strictly on the basis of home court advantage.

Coach Farley will use his regular six or eight against the Red Devils. They are Walker Allen, Dick Evans, Steve Noble, Peanut Nunn, John Wesley Hudson, Albert Crawford, and Mack Roebuck.

A jayvee game is scheduled to open the night's action at 8:30 between Kinston and Greenville. The dual defenses for the Kinston varsity game will begin at 8:00.

It will be a life-or-death game for the local Phants, for should they lose tomorrow night, they will be out of the race completely.

As it stands now, New Bern is in the lead with a 9-1 record, as

The Red Devils, third-ranked now, since their 57-56 loss to New Bern Tuesday night, are out of the race, but cannot be discounted.

That is, they can't be looked upon as merely a step to a higher position by the Phantoms. The Devils are a green, inexperienced club, but capable of good basketball.

The biggest threat to Greenville tomorrow night is expected to be forward Charles Lewis, whom Coach Boley Farley says is "one of the best in the conference."

Woodling Isn't A 2nd-Baseman By ED WILKS The Associated Press "The only trouble between me and Gene Woodling," Frank Lane said today, "is that Gene is a left fielder and not the second baseman I'm looking for."

No feud? No blasts from Woodling over Lane's contract edict? "We 'feuded' all the way home from a father-and-son dinner we attended last night," said Lane, general manager of the Cleveland Indians. "Gene drove me home in his car."

"I'll tell you something else," added Lane. "Vic Vitez called me up and we agreed to terms for his contract. What's more, Vic said he wanted to report to spring training three or four days early."

This "feud" business started when Lane announced the other day that he held the Indians who hadn't accepted 1958 contract terms he'd trim $100 off his offer each day they remained unsigned after the official opening of spring training March 1.

That was followed by a report that Woodling blasted the edict as unfair. "Gene had a good year last season and we're offering him a substantial raise. We haven't arranged for a contract meeting, but I don't expect any trouble," Lane said.

All of the five Indians still unsigned are veterans—Minnie Minoso, Chico Carrasquel, Bobby Avila, Jim Hegan and Woodling. An Associated Press survey today showed that about 25 per cent of the players on major league rosters still are unsigned. That each day they remain unsigned, Ed Matthews, Lew Burdette, Red Schoendienst, Johnny Logan, Del Crandall and Bob Buhl of the Milwaukee Braves and Yankee Mickey Mantle.

The Braves, finding it's always difficult for a club to get its contracts filed after winning the world championship, have 18 unsigned players in all. That total is second only to the Boston Red Sox's 19.

Giardello Won But Looks Dull

By RALPH BERNSTEIN PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Joey Giardello won a fight here last night but the fourth-ranking middleweight will need to be a lot sharper if he plans to mix it up with tough Carmen Basilio or aging Ray Robinson in the near future.

The 27-year-old Brooklyn-born Italian won a unanimous 10-round decision over Franz Suzina, a tough German mauler. The verdicts of the referee and two judges read 48-44, 49-41 and 47-45.

After winning the first two rounds handily, Giardello seemed to crawl into a shell. Through the third, fourth and fifth rounds, Suzina, 27, banged Giardello with both hands and appeared on the verge of turning in a major upset.

He had Giardello bleeding from a cut above his left eye and another across the left cheek. But Giardello managed to find the range with long right hands and solid combinations in the late rounds. He piled up enough points for his 75th win against 13 defeats, 5 draws and 1 "no contest" decision.

The victory boosted Giardello's winning streak to 15 straight and kept alive his hopes of a summer title fight with the Basilio-Robinson winner. His manager Tony Ferrante said Giardello may fight

Practical Side To Book Choice

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — The scene was the children's department of the Roanoke Public Library. A mother was searching for a book suitable for her young daughter. Finally she pulled a vol-

Want Australia Adopt Dollars

PERTH, Australia (AP)—Speakers at the Australian Teachers' Federation here condemned Australia's currency system.

They supported a motion to introduce a system of decimal coinage in place of the present 12 pennies to a shilling and 20 shillings to a pound. The conference recommended that the present 10 shillings be made a dollar. The shilling be one-tenth of a dollar. The penny be one-tenth of a shilling.

Lawmakers Told More Data On Space Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department witness has told congressmen more should be learned about outer space before important rules on control of space can be laid down. Loftus Becker, the department's legal adviser, raised a question as to whether a satellite still belongs to the country which launched it once the satellite shoots out of control into space.

"Usually ownership relates to capability to grab hold of it, and I don't know what they (the Soviets) could do about Sputnik or what their remedy would be if we were to pick up this piece they said fell on the West Coast," he testified.

Becker said, however, that the United States would be at a disadvantage in staking out territorial claims on the moon if others get there and this country doesn't.

Becker, whose position makes him the top policymaker on these questions under Secretary of State Dulles and President Eisenhower, spoke out against various space control proposals during a closed session of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on national security.

Among others, he opposed any immediate action on proposals for a special conference on space regulation, establishment of a U.N. convention for the purpose, and giving the task to the International Civil Aviation Organization.

Becker said that really to prevent conflict in space, a view of space in international rather than national terms may have to be developed.

He said rules must be drawn up to protect people underneath space vehicles, to channel radio frequencies for space vehicle use, to govern space navigation and eventually probably to cover marriages and other legal relationships when people move into space.

But he cautioned against "too precipitate" action to set up detailed rules without more word from scientists on "what are the possibilities of controlling or doing anything in the area."

Grieving Parents Ask What Are Signs Boy Gone Wrong

NEW YORK (AP)—How do you know that something has gone wrong—really wrong—with a boy?

So wrong—in fact—that he lures a 7-year-old girl to a rooftop with a promise of 10 cents and a lollipop. Then flings her 13 stories to death, and says he doesn't know why he did it.

The question comes from the bewildered and grief-stricken mother of Francis Michael Medaille, 15, who has confessed the slaying of pretty little Kathleen Hegmann who lived in the same apartment house.

Margaret Medaille, 38, careworn working mother of nine, wondering asked newsmen if they could explain why her son Mike did such a thing last Tuesday.

"What is the sign?" she asked as she sat in the living room with her husband, George. "Tell me, I don't know."

Only a flight of stairs in the Bronx apartment house separated the families of Mike and Kathleen and their separate griefs. Neither family visited the other. But Mrs. Medaille's thoughts were on Kathleen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hegmann, as well as on her Mike.

"I would like to help pay the funeral expenses. I could borrow the money," said Mrs. Medaille. "They have eight children and only the husband works. They're poor. We're only medium poor."

Rita Hegmann said later that she and her husband would turn down their neighbor's offer.

She said: "I can understand a little how they must feel because they are parents, too. But this is our daughter, and we want to do this for her ourselves."

Relatives and friends gathered in the Hegmann apartment seeking to console Kathleen's parents. On another floor Mr. and Mrs. Medaille sat with seven of their children and talked of Mike.

The father had just come home from court where Mike was held on a homicide charge. Medaille had stood at his son's side as Magistrate J. Randall Creel ordered the boy sent to Bellevue Hospital for observation. He had heard the judge warn: "If it is determined that the boy knew the nature of the crime, he will burn in the electric chair."

As they sat in their six-room, $75-a-month apartment in a Bronx housing development, Mr. and Mrs. Medaille searched their souls of what led to Mike's crime on their own rooftop.

Weeping over the dead Kathleen, Mrs. Medaille said "She was a sweet, wonderful, innocent child. But Mike had never shown any particular interest in her. He had no reason to dislike her."

Telling about Mike, who was known in the neighborhood as "the professor" because of his boorish ways, his mother said: "He just couldn't seem to concentrate in school."

"You can't blame him on bad companions—he didn't have any," said Mike's mother. "I didn't allow him to. Perhaps I held too tight a rein on him, but children who are allowed to run loose in the streets seem to end up stabbing each other. I didn't want that to happen to Mike."

Mrs. Medaille said that a month ago Mike took $150 from her household money and ran away to Florida.

Mike's father commented bitterly: "He was an avid reader, but today any one who can pronounce four letters is regarded as brilliant. They built up that idea in his mind, until he began to feel he was brilliant everywhere except at home."

Medaille's take-home pay as a night hotel clerk is $68 a week. His wife is employed as a $73-a-week key machine puncher.

"I tried to be a good mother, and forsee things, but how could I foresee a thing like this?" Mrs. Medaille asked.

"My boy did nothing that a thousand other mischievous boys haven't done who turned out to be fine men."

A little while before, a detective had said that Mike—when asked why he played hookey—replied: "When there are eight children in the house and both your mother and your father are working, somebody has to take care of the kids."

Police said that in the past Mike had come to them to confess crimes that were only in his imagination.

It was brought out that Mike was expelled from school for truancy and failing in three subjects, and that school authorities suggested he be taken to a psychiatrist. He had been destructive in school.

The judge who committed Mike to Bellevue said: "The teachers should have brought the boy's action to the attention of the proper authorities. The whole wretched matter could possibly have been avoided."

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Supreme Court will be asked to rule on the legality of the state's new gasoline inspection regulations.

Crown Central Petroleum Co. says it will appeal a decision yesterday by Superior Court Judge Raymond Mallard who upheld the legality of the regulations.

Crown Central is seeking to prevent the Agriculture Department's gasoline and oil inspection board from interfering in its sales.

Under the regulations, gasoline companies are required to register their brand names and specifications and are responsible for their accuracy. The companies can substitute brand names for the usual "premium" and "regular" designations of gasoline.

Crown contended the state board had no right under the statutes or state constitution in threatening to prohibit its sales for failing to comply. The board had said it would ban sales of unregistered gasoline after Feb. 3. However, Crown had received a temporary court order pending the outcome of yesterday's hearing.

Atty. Gen. George Patton said the regulations were adopted to protect the public from "being duped by those who know the technical aspects of gasoline chemistry."

Robert Howison, attorney for Crown, said the purpose in bringing the suit was to protest "increased government control in the guise of public protection."

Smog Experts To Put Heat On Car Industry

By JACK LEFLER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thirteen experts, convinced that smog has become a nationwide menace to health and happiness, will meet in Washington Feb. 21 to put the heat on the auto industry.

The group is the Advisory Council to the U.S. Surgeon General on Air Pollution Problems, made up of scientists, medical men and air pollution specialists. Its contentions are these:

1. The automobile is the last, and so far uncontrollable, major source of the noxious fumes that regularly besmirch the atmosphere of American cities, bringing discomfort to millions.
2. Unless cut off, the fumes will certainly worsen smog in cities already affected and will ultimately create smog problems where air is now pure.

The experts intend to ask auto industry executives to go all out in developing a device to reduce or eliminate the automobile's contribution to air pollution.

They say privately that auto men have dragged their feet on working up an antismog device, apparently under the impression that the smog-car problem is peculiar to the Los Angeles region where the loudest outcries have been heard.

The facts are, say the experts, that half a dozen major cities—including auto headquarters Detroit—already consider auto exhaust a serious smog problem, and more than 200 cities deem it a factor in their air pollution picture.

The group's goal: a cheap — $25 to $50—device to be built into all new cars that will effectively filter, or burn, unconsumed gasoline vapors. It is these vapors, belched from auto exhausts, that change chemically in the air to form smog's irritants.

Sparkplug of the advisory council and perhaps the nation's leading antismog crusader is S. Smith Griswold. Calling the automakers in and trying to persuade them to launch a crash program for an exhaust control device is his idea. Such a device, Griswold is convinced, is the key to any further technical progress against smog.

Griswold, 49, is boss of the Los Angeles County Air Pollution Control District. Since taking over in 1955 he has guided completion of a program he says has brought under control 90 per cent of the nonautomotive source of smog.

He calls this a "substantial victory." But, he warns, the battle could easily be lost unless auto exhaust is cleaned.

"We have tested literally hundreds of devices," says Griswold, "but we haven't seen one yet that will do the job. I don't think we are close at all."

S. naval destroyer Elison (background) fires a salute as the "pirate" ship Jose Gasparilla sails up the bay in the annual make-believe invasion of Tampa, Fla. Pepping Up Their Selling As Antidote For Recession

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Companies are pepping up their selling efforts today as a cure—for their own firm at least—for the recession.

They are wooing the consumer with promotions and gimmicks from trading stamps to discount-type price cuts. They are looking to the colleges to turn out more good salesmen—and egging on the ones they have to try harder.

They are making pleas to the buying public to keep the purse strings loose in everyone's interest. George P. Hitchings, manager of the economic analysis department of Ford Motor Co., says buying at the normal rate can keep the slump from going deeper.

They are planning conferences to convince consumers they should upgrade their eating, clothing and housing standards.

Through their representatives they are urging Uncle Sam to come to their aid by cutting taxes to release more buying power and by increasing government spending.

In some ways it's an uphill job. In recruiting college students as salesmen there are a couple of snags. J. D. Staunton, director of training, headquarters staff, National Starch Products, Inc., says a survey of 31 colleges in 25 states shows that many college men look on a selling job not as a career but as a way to find out about a company in preparation for stepping into a management job.

College men also generally have wrong notions of what a salesman's job today includes, he says.

Businessmen ought to help change this, he says.

Or take the efforts to get people to upgrade standards — meaning, buy more or spend more. Some 40 farm and food industry groups are meeting in Washington soon. Aim: to try to reverse the "rising consumer indifference to the necessity for an adequate and balanced diet."

Homer R. Davison, president of the American Meat Institute and chairman of the planning committee for the conference, blames the trend on "food fads, self-prescribed diets and the American tendency to hurry and rush" which result in "meals lacking the nutrients essential for good health."

He says the conference is backed by farmers, processors, distributors and merchandisers.

In some other lines that the selling is getting harder. Rising prices have a big part in this. But economists point out, that there are other reasons.

For one, many consumers have had 10 years to buy the home and other gadgets denied them during the war. They might always want more of them, but their need may not be urgent.

And family needs change. The big baby crop of the 40s are entering the expensive school ages, with large families the style. Sending a boy to college takes a lot of discretionary spending money out of the family budget.

Today's salesmen, especially of durable goods, run up against this every day. A tax cut would make his job easier—but still not a cinch.

Needed Money, So They Made It

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Francis Warren Adams and Clifford P. Rowe needed money and so they made it. Trouble was the Secret Service caught up with them.

The pair of counterfeiters were seized when State Trooper Donald Gibbons stopped their car near Springfield because it had only one license plate. Gibbons saw Adams stuff something under the front seat.

Gibbons found $2,340 in bogus bills and $620 in genuine money under the seat. Both men signed written confessions. Adams told officers he made about $15,000 of bogus money in $10 and $20 denominations using a multilith process in a basement workshop.

Miami Manhunt

A NEW SUSPENSE NOVEL BY WILLIAM FULLER

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Venturesome young Brand Dolan, who is telling the story, came to Miami Beach with two weeks off from his charter-boat business, money in hand, and no strings attached. He was having difficulty obtaining a room at a hotel without an advance reservation, when a girl came to his aid. He had never seen her before, but she pressed to be waiting for him.

She is Marta Blanding, dancer in the floor show of the hotel's night club. Showing signs of fright over something, she went with Brad to his room to appeal for his protection against a man who has been following her menacingly. She did not want to appeal to police. Dolan is telling her about himself . . .

CHAPTER 3

"I've been a lot of things, Marta," I said. "But right now I'm nothing. I own a forty-two foot boat that goes into dry-dock tomorrow morning. I've got enough to get my boat out of dock with enough left over for a couple of weeks in Miami Beach. My last job — one of those mistakes you mentioned earlier — was down south of here, in the Caribbean. In the Republica d. Guajira, to be exact. I worked for a man who was too greedy to live. And so now he's dead. After my two weeks here, on during this time, something will turn up. It usually does. If worst comes to worst I'll take a 9-to-5 job. I'll be working stiff long enough to stake my boat and myself to a little blue water, sunshine, and a trip to a new place."

"You have no ambition, Dolan?"

I grinned. "Sure. Blue water, sunshine — and freedom. Isn't that what so many of them work themselves into ulcers and early coronaries for? So they can live as they please? Or could have lived as they pleased to live, maybe I should say. I'm living that way now, while I'm still young enough to enjoy it!"

Her eyes narrowed and there was a suggestion of hardness in the set of her mouth. "You've left out one important thing, Dolan."

"Yeah?"

"What do you do for money?"

I shrugged. "My needs are simple. Gas for the Jessie, food, a little booze. I make out. I'll admit I have to do a little scrounging around from time to time. Some of the things I do might even be said to shade the law to a slight degree."

I was talking too much and I knew it. But I didn't want this girl to leave me. I looked at her. "I don't know why I'm telling you all this," I said, "except for the fact that I think you speak my language. And that I know you've been around enough to know that fairly decent people are sometimes involved in slightly shady deals. I've put a few rifles and machine guns and rounds of .30 caliber ammo ashore on islands late at night, for instance. I've transported a few people around whose passports were either phony or non-existent. When you live like you do, you've got to do the best you can. You can't be too particular about these little things. I wouldn't deny the fact though, that I keep my eyes peeled for the one big killing. That's all I need. I've been pretty close to it several times before. Some day I'll find it."

She stared at me. "You know what I think, Dolan?"

"Shoot."

"I think you're trying to justify a pretty aimless sort of existence. You're a bum. A pretty attractive bum if one happens to have a weakness for off-beat characters. And you're trying hard to justify your bumhood by wrapping it up in a lot of cheap glamor and romance. This island-hopping jazz. Who cares? Why don't you wise up, Dolan?"

I grinned. She wasn't telling me anything I hadn't told myself late on sleepless nights. "Maybe you like bums, baby," I said. "Maybe that's why you picked me up in the lobby."

"I told you why I spoke to you in the lobby."

"And I didn't believe it."

She stood. I stood and faced her. Her eyes were wide, her mouth set, her jaw tensed in anger. And then, as suddenly as it had come, her anger passed away. She lowered her eyes. "I . . . I'm sorry, Dolan. I can't blame you for thinking anything you might choose to think about me." Her eyes met mine again. "I think you've been leveling with me. Now I'll level with you. I said I was being followed. I was. I was frightened out of my wits. I saw you standing at the desk. You were alone. You looked like an all-right guy who might help me. It was a spur of the moment sort of thing. An impulse. The man following me was right behind me. If you'd looked you would have seen him. It was a foolish thing to do, a risky thing. But I was alone. And frightened. I knew this man would leave me alone — at least for the time being — if he thought I had someone to protect me."

"Whoever was following you couldn't very well have harmed you there, Marta. In a hotel lobby. In broad daylight."

Her voice rose at least two notches. If she was spinning me a fairy tale she was doing a great job of acting. "You don't know what you're talking about, Dolan. You don't know these people!"

"You know them? And the character talking you was one of them?"

Her eyes were huge as she stared at me. She nodded.

I said quietly, "The guy wasn't mixing you up with somebody else, then, was he?"

"No," she said. And then suddenly she was in my arms. I could feel her body tremble. Her cheek was against mine and she was sobbing. "Help me, Dolan! There's no one else. You've got to help me!"

I put a hand on each of her shoulders and shoved her gently away from me. "Why don't you go to the police? You're being threatened, Marta?"

"I can't go to the police."

"Why?"

"Just take my word for it, Brad. I can't go to the police!"

"What are these people after, Marta?"

Her handbag was on the floor behind her. She turned away from me, reached for the handbag, dug into it and came up with a handkerchief. She dabbed at her eyes with it. She said nothing.

"You've asked me to help you. I'm not going to buy a blind pig in a poke. I've got to know something about this."

She turned and stared at me. "You said something awhile ago about keeping your eyes peeled for the one big killing. That's all I need," you said. "Some day I'll find it."

"Yeah," I said.

"And remember what I said? 'Money.' You're never really free unless you have money."

"I remember."

"All right, Brad. Maybe I'm a jerk. Maybe I scare you too easily. Maybe I'll regret telling you all this. I've known you for less than an hour, but I've somehow got a feeling I can trust you. Maybe we both think alike. Maybe that's why

Drama Editor Finishes Forty-Five Year Stint

HOLLYWOOD — Forty-five years is an awful long time to be reporting and reviewing the movies. But as Edwin Schallert brings his lengthy stint to a close this week, he still has the enthusiasm of a cub reporter.

"Does the movie business have a future?" says the retiring drama editor of the Los Angeles Times and dean of the Hollywood press corps. "I'm sure of it. The picture business has had troubles before and managed to survive them. They'll still be making movies—for one medium or another—many more years."

Ed Schallert and his vivacious partner in life and covering Hollywood, Eliza, have been on the beat since anyone can remember. Ed's career ranges from the Mae Busch ("an exciting person, always good for an interview") to the irrepressible Jayne Mansfield ("an interesting personality").

A large man with a kindly air unusual in a critic, Ed began reviewing concerts, plays and the embryo film business around 1913. I asked him what covering studios was like in those days.

"I could do it by streetcar," he replied. "The town was a lot smaller then, and there was an intimate, friendly atmosphere that is lacking today. You were on personal terms with all the stars, and it was unheard of for a publicity man to be present at an interview."

Ed has known all the big names, and he mused over some of them: "I knew Garbo very well, back in the days when she was giving interviews. She was always very friendly. It was Jack Gilbert who sold her on the idea of shunning publicity. . . . Charlie Chaplin and I have been friends for years. I always admired him as an artist, but he always made a fool of himself when it came to politics and women."

ST. LOUIS — Mississippi River boats are fighting through foot-thick ice from above Alton, Ill., to below the junction with the Ohio River at Cairo, Ill. Traffic is soon to be blocked entirely.

Gorges of ice piled up as high as three feet along the river and at locks.

The Mississippi has been frozen over in the St. Louis area for 10 days, the longest freeze of the winter.

I feel you'll understand. And help me. And I've got to have help Brad!"

"I'm listening, Marta," I said.

She took a deep breath, then spoke quickly, almost blurting the words. "There's a lot of money stashed away. It's almost — but not quite clean money. In a manner of speaking it might be said that this money really belongs to me. But some other people — the man following me today was one of them — don't think I have any right to it. They think the money should be theirs. But they don't know where it is."

"I interrupted her. 'And you do?'"

"I think I do. Anyhow, I know where it might be. But these other people have got a pretty good idea that I know, or think I know, where it is. They won't rest until they get that information from me."

Violations By Many Mothers

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — County juvenile officers Ed Nelms and Hollis Nichols, checking school zone speed violations, say they have reached this conclusion: Eighty per cent of the motorists violating safety rules in school zones are women — many of them mothers with children in school.

Age Of Movie Stars Poses Risky Chore

By CHARLES MERCER NEW YORK (AP)—Producers of Wide World (NBC-TV) have undertaken some dangerous assignments in their time, but none has quite equaled that of Ted Rogers in preparing "The House in Webster Groves" for next Sunday afternoon.

Rogers said that the only Hollywood star willing to cooperate in the project was Maureen O'Sullivan, the attractive Irish actress who played Tarzan's mate and who now is married to director John Farrow and the mother of seven children.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market snipped its string of daily declines at six and was ahead in moderately active trading early this afternoon.

Leading issues rose on a broad front, rising fractions to more than a point.

Drugs, helped by some reports of record earnings, were pacemakers as they continued their recent advance.

Tobacco, airlines, rails, steel and oil and rubbers also were well ahead.

A technical rebound was in the cards in view of the monotonous series of declines, market analysts said. At the same time they noted such encouraging items as a forecast of higher outlays for heavy construction, ICC permission for selective freight rate boosts and the two billion dollar plan for post office improvement.

The market was higher from the start and solidified its gains until profit-taking set in. Prices remained well ahead.

Record earnings by Schering added to those of Parke, Davis continued to spark the drug group. Parke, Davis rose well over a point. Schering added a good fraction to its 1½ gain of yesterday.

Gains of more than a point were made by American Tobacco, Alkali Chemical and Eastern Air Lines.

Ahead about a point were U.S. Steel, Goodrich, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Kennecott, Air Reduction and Royal Dutch.

Zenith scampered ahead around 4.

Southern Railway added a respectable fraction.

The Associated Press average of 80 stocks at noon rose 90 cents to $160.40 with the industrials up $1.10, the rails up $1.20 and the utilities up 20 cents.

Trucking Line Sues Teamsters

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The North-South Trucking Lines has entered suit for $400,000 against the Teamsters Union. The line contends its business was ruined because of union tactics.

The company, which seeks $250,000 actual damages and $150,000 in punitive damages, charges that a strike was called at the company in an effort to get the union recognized as bargaining agent for the line's employees.

The company contends the bulk of its business was destroyed when union members were encouraged to refuse to handle its goods in the interchange freight business.

Michael Wilding Is Wed Again

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Actor Michael Wilding and Mrs. Susan Nell, a London divorcee and interior decorator, eloped here by plane from Los Angeles and were married in a wedding chapel last night.

The British film player, 45, former husband of actress Elizabeth Taylor, and Mrs. Nell, 42, obtained a marriage license shortly after 10 p.m. at the marriage license bureau in downtown Las Vegas.

On the marriage license application she gave her address as West Los Angeles and said she was divorced in London last July. Wilding said he and Mrs. Nell had known each other 14 years and first met at a social gathering in London. Their romance started, he added, only about three months ago.

Wilding and Miss Taylor were divorced in June 1956. Miss Taylor now is married to showman Mike Todd.

Alonzo Edwards Is Again Vice President Of Bureau

RALEIGH (AP) — Delegates had returned home today but talk still lingered over an incident that livened the closing session yesterday of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Convention.

Alonzo C. Edwards of Hookerton, executive vice president of the farm bureau, was accused by State Sen. J. Vivian Whitfield of using the organization for political purposes.

This brought a stout denial from Edwards, who declared he had worked for the farm bureau for 20 years without using it for political purposes. "Why should I change and do it now?" he asked.

Whitfield asked Edwards to declare whether he had any political ambitions for the future. Edwards didn't reply to this, but asked the play politics in any way with the farm bureau?

There was a chorus of "no."

The incident developed just before the balloting for officers. Edwards implied he was drafted for the post of executive vice president last November, and would continue to serve if the members wanted him to do so. Voting delegates and other members gave him a rising vote of confidence, then re-elected him without a dissenting vote.

A. W. Nesbitt of Fairview was elected vice president of the western division to succeed Clay Brumfield after 12 years. Re-elected were W. Randolph Eagles of Macclesfield, president, and B. M. Lewis of Farmville and B. C. Mangum of Roxboro and Henderson, vice presidents.

Women's officers re-elected were Mrs. John B. Chase of Eureka, president; Mrs. Jessie G. Yates of Wilson, Mrs. Eddie Bryant of Bladenboro, and Mrs. Raymond Wall of Rural Hall, vice presidents; Mrs. A. H. McCall of Ellerbe, secretary, and Mrs. Harry Taylor of Hookerton, assistant secretary.

U. S. Envoy Reportedly Backs Tunisian Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. ambassador at Tunis reportedly has confirmed Tunisian claims of heavy civilian casualties in Saturday's French bombing of the village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef.

State Department officials were studying the official dispatch received from Ambassador G. Lewis Jones to determine whether any new action should be taken by this government.

United States policy has been to try to get the Tunisian and French governments to settle their differences quickly. Hope for the success of this approach is dimming.

If the argument over the bombing incident develops in the North Atlantic Council in Paris and the United Nations, as authorities here fear it may, the United States may be compelled to take sides. This could mean a split with France or loss of cordial relations with Tunisia and further anti-American hostilities in some sections of the Arab world.

Privately top officials believe the French made a bad blunder in bombing the village even though they claim it was a base for Algerian rebels operating across the nearby border.

Some hope remained, however.

Two Tots Left Behind; Authorities Hunt Parents

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Who are their parents, and where are their parents?

While Franklin County authorities try for the answers, two young boys—ages approximately 14 months and 3 years—wait in the medical center of the County Children's Home.

They were left with a baby sitter, Mrs. Lois Kapp of Columbus, almost three weeks ago. She had advertised for children to be boarded, and told authorities a woman brought the two youngsters in answer to the advertisement.

The baby sitter said the woman identified herself as Mrs. Dorothy Newsome, and first brought the youngest, said his name was Johnny and identified the boy as her son.

The woman returned a few days later with Mike, the 3-year-old, the baby sitter continued. He was said to be the son of the woman's roommate.

Mrs. Kapp said a woman telephoned a few days later to say that she was a friend of Mrs. Newsome's and that Mrs. Newsome would be in Dayton, Ohio, until Feb. 2 because of illness in her family.

The baby sitter said she heard nothing more until Feb. 5, when another woman, identifying herself as Mrs. Newsome's landlady, called for the children. Mrs. Kapp said she would not let the children go without word from Mrs. Newsome.

Mrs. Newsome called Tuesday from the Columbus railroad station, she said, saying she would pick up the children immediately. However, she did not appear.

Mrs. Kapp, who said she has not been paid for caring for the two youngsters, filed a charge of contributing to neglect against Mrs. Newsome.

YOUTH SILENT ON Slaying Motive

AHOSKIE, N.C. (AP) — A motive for the shotgun slaying of a pretty 16-year-old high school girl remained a big mystery today.

Bertie County Sheriff Thomas Joyner said Jan Rivers Hackett, 16, has admitted the slaying, but "he absolutely refuses to state why he did it."

Hackett, president of the junior class at Ahoskie High, was held in jail at Windsor without privilege of bond, charged with murder.

The body of Dolores Newsome was found beside a country road about two miles from Ahoskie Tuesday. She had been shot three times. An autopsy revealed that she had not been raped.

Hackett, an athlete and son of a highway patrol sergeant, surrendered to police at Wilson, about 40 miles from Ahoskie. Wilson police quoted him as saying the girl had "been worrying me with phone calls."

The girl also was a junior at Ahoskie high school. Friends expressed belief the two had been dating some time.

Hackett's family had lived in Wilson until the boy's father, patrol Sgt. John Hackett, was transferred here last summer.

Seven Kinston Boys Charged In Post-Game Fight

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — A ruckus that followed Tuesday night's Kinston-New Bern high school basketball game has resulted in issuance of warrants charging seven Kinston teen-agers with assaulting six New Bern youths.

Craven County authorities said warrants would be served on the Kinston youths today for trial in the Craven Recorder's Court Feb. 25.

The incident occurred at Cove City after the basketball game at Kinston in which New Bern scored a 57-56 last-minute victory over Kinston. Some of the accused were identified as members of the Kinston team, the state's defending AA basketball champs.

Kinston and Lenoir County authorities said today that the warrant from Craven County had not yet been received.
