View Churchill Illness As Minor

NICE (AP)—Ailing 83-year-old Sir Winston Churchill was reported by a member of his household to have passed a good night. A staff member at the villa where Churchill is vacationing said the former Prime Minister had suffered a chill and required rest. He insisted that the aged statesman's condition is not serious.

The informant also used the word "flu" in describing Churchill's sickness. Britons employ that term to indicate anything from a cold to influenza.

School Supt. W. D. Payne said the loss was covered by insurance but he was unable to estimate the damage immediately.

North Carolina's Deep Freeze Claims Eleven Lives

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS North Carolina's deep freeze weather may lose up to 11 lives, closed public schools over nearly half the state, and draped an ice mantle from mountains to coastal waters.

The unseasonable cold, the worst and most prolonged in 50 years, threw thousands of migrating snow geese into reverse. They normally migrate north from their refuge, but cold weather elsewhere chased them back. They found feeding grounds and waterholes iced.

Temperatures will average 10-15 degrees below normal. Slowly rising temperatures through Monday, little or no precipitation. Average high and low for the coastal plains: 59-37 degrees.

Warmer

It was warmer last night, but not much. Greenville Utilities Commission's Weather Station reported a low of 17 last night, six degrees warmer than Monday night's reading of 11. At 8 a.m. today, the temperature had moved up to 19 and was expected to climb slightly above yesterday's high of 25.

Despite the extreme cold, there is little ice in Tar River, weather station officials said. The river, which has a present depth of seven feet at the measuring station, is running swiftly and the only ice reported thus far is in sheltered areas along the bank.

Violently Cold Spell Relaxing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The season's coldest and stormiest weather in the Eastern half of the nation appeared easing in some sections of the mid-continent today but the over-all picture was not bright.

There was no letup in the big task of snow removal in the storm-battered Northeast and other areas hit by record falls over the weekend.

Business and industry, dealt staggering blows by the violent weather, worked to restore operations to normal.

Relief work continued for the countless thousands who suffered misery and inconvenience. In Eastern areas there were isolated rural villages, marooned farmers, fuel and food shortages in the wake of the worst snowstorm in years in many places.

County Will Seek Surplus Items As A Relief Measure

Pitt County is going ahead with plans to obtain surplus government commodities to help needy families, chairman of the County Commissioners, Woodrow Wooten announced today.

Wooten said he had contacted all members of the commission and they are in agreement with the plan. He said he had instructed City School Superintendent J. R. Rose to proceed with the application for federal commodities.

The county commissioners' chairman said he understood it would take three or four weeks for the application to be approved. The county will have to provide storage space for the commodities and might have to transport the food stuffs here.

The supplies would be distributed through the County Welfare Department. Rose said this morning he had contacted State Secretary of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine concerning the surplus federal commodities.

A representative of the State Department of Agriculture, Jay P. Davis arrived in Greenville at noon today. He consulted with Rose, Wooten and Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West concerning the application.

Rose told a group of Greenville citizens who gathered yesterday to consider the relief problem, that he had discussed the matter with Beaufort County authorities, who have been distributing the food stuffs for about two months. Some 20 tons of food were given out in Beaufort County during the month of January alone.

Local Program Meaning a local program of relief for cold-stricken families had gotten underway this morning. "We have plenty to do," Capt. Bennie Lewis of the Salvation Army said.

The Salvation Army in cooperation with the Welfare Department is in charge of distributing items to needy families.

City fathers declared a state of emergency yesterday so that city equipment and labor, idle during the cold weather, could be used for distributing supplies to needy families.

Mayor West called a meeting of interested citizens following the special council meeting. A Winter Relief Emergency Fund was established at that time to aid needy families during the cold wave.

Already contributions have begun to come in. Mayor West reported the Jaycees have contributed $100 to the fund. It was also reported this morning that the Greenville Oil Distributors have contributed 2,400 gallons of fuel oil for distribution to needy families.

Cash donations for the fund may be turned over to City Clerk H. H. Duncan at City Hall or they may be mailed to P. O. Box 499.

the mayor of Dunn asking for information so that a similar program can be instituted there.

Capt. Lewis said there had been an increase in requests for assistance today. The requests for assistance were already running considerably ahead of last year prior to the present emergency.

Those who work outside — farm laborers and those in construction-type work — are suffering the most, the captain stated.

Schools Not Used Three schools which were left open last night for those who might be without fuel, were not used School Superintendent Rose said.

There are no plans for opening the schools tonight "unless we get some requests," he declared.

"Our teachers and principals are listening and if we find it necessary we will open them, of course," Rose said.

Figures indicate our number of Tarheel unemployed has decreased from last year, he noted. "Despite this fact, overall employment in Pitt County is down," the ESC manager stated. "The situation is not as alarming as some think, however."

"Since we don't have large industrial plants in this area, we are not affected to any degree with the present national situation," Dillingham explained. "The problem has not actually reached us yet."

Pitt Employment Picture Regarded Not Discouraging

W. B. Dillingham, manager of the local Employment Security Commission, feels Pitt County and surrounding areas, in a sense, are lucky.

"We are not totally dependent on industry here," Dillingham explained. "In areas where industry is dominant, numbers of unemployed men and women are being found."

Figures indicate our number of Tarheel unemployed has decreased from last year, he noted. "Despite this fact, overall employment in Pitt County is down," the ESC manager stated.

The second factor governing the drop in the Commission's figures is said to be operation of two tobacco factories which are presently processing burlap tobacco.

According to Dillingham these factories are employing between 300-500 men and women who might otherwise not have worked during this "off-season" time of the year.

"It certainly has been a help," he commented. "In addition to cutting down on the number of new and continued claims, this work will enable many to become eligible to file for unemployment insurance."

The increase in the number of job placements last month was also due to these two tobacco factories processing burlap tobacco, Dillingham noted. "We placed most of this number in work with them," he said.

Ice Choking Big River Traffic

CAIRO, Ill. (AP)—Powerful towboats crunched their way slowly through ice gorges on the Mississippi River today and traffic on some tributaries was blocked.

At places the mighty Mississippi was 90 per cent choked by the slowly but steadily building ice. The Ohio River was reported entirely blocked.

More than 100 boats and their strings of barges pulled in for shelter at Cairo, where the Mississippi and the Ohio meet. Others retreated to wait for a break in one of the area's worst cold waves in more than 20 years.

The St. Louis Weather Bureau forecast temperatures well below freezing through the weekend.

Three towboats were trapped in an ice gorge near Cairo. They were in no apparent danger. Towboats still moving down the Mississippi were guided by radio instructions through sections where channel markers were torn loose. Nearly half the marker buoys are out of position.

Near Havelock in Craven County, two 11-year-old boys fell through ice on a marsh hike. One of them, Fred Kempster, crawled home to summon aid for Billy Ray Chadwick. Both were reported in good shape last night.

Mrs. Spilman Discusses Mental Health At Sans Souci Club Meet

Mrs. J. B. Spilman, guest speaker at the Sans Souci Book Club meeting yesterday, gave a talk on North Carolina Mental Health.

She pointed out that the state office was located in Greenville on March 1 and there are 15 local associations over the state.

"The greatest need is for more clinics and psychiatrists in North Carolina. It is generally agreed that the number one health problem confronting our country is that of mental illness; but the chances of recovery with the modern methods are far greater than they were just a few years ago," said Mrs. Spilman.

"Mental disorders which were once considered hopeless, have been taken out of that category and the majority of patients are restored to their homes and jobs."

During the short business session the club voted to send a check to the Winter Relief Fund for local needy families.

Mrs. W. M. Scales and Mrs. W. H. Dall were hostesses for the club which met at the home of Mrs. Scales. Guests were Mrs. A. M. Moseley, Mrs. J. C. Butler and Mrs. Spilman.

An arrangement of red roses centered the dining room table and other floral arrangements were placed throughout. After books were distributed, a salad course with cake and coffee was served by the hostesses.

The approximately 50 guests were greeted upon arrival by the hostesses and honoree and invited into the living room where a red and white color theme was used to carry out a Valentine motif.

Guests were invited into the dining room to an appointed table covered with a linen, imported cut-work cloth and centered with a floral arrangement of red and white carnations heart shaped.

Mrs. Rufus Mills and Mrs. Lester Mills, mothers of the hostesses, served homemade cake, icecream, and assorted nuts. The hostesses assisted in the dining room.

Besides being showered with many gifts, the honoree was presented a steam iron and a dinner plate in her chosen pattern as gifts of the hostesses.

Elmhurst Garden Club Selects New Officers

Mrs. Howard Wilson was named president of the Elmhurst Garden Club for the coming year when the club met Monday at the home of Mrs. Woodrow Finlay.

Other officers will be Mrs. Dave Fowler, vice president; Mrs. Marvin E. Hill, secretary; and Mrs. B. M. Whitehurst, treasurer.

Mrs. F. F. Hendrix spoke to the club on "Garden Borders" saying "First make a plan on paper of your border. It is best to have it at least three feet from front to back."

She explained, "Plant in groups of three or more instead of rows and consider the blooming season when planting. Try to include some early mid-season and late flowers in every section."

"Be sure to allow space for the adult plant so that it will not be crowded; also consider color in your plan. The stronger (purer) a color, the less compatible it will be with neighboring colors. Avoid using purple, scarlet, or orange together unless toned down with white, grey, or green."

In discussing perennials she noted that they should be divided every three or four years or new cuttings rooted to keep good stock.

"Perennials should be pruned for stronger plants and larger flowers," she added.

The president, Mrs. James M. Grulke, presided over the business meeting.

Mrs. Robert S. Masten, secretary, read a letter from the Lakewood Pines Garden Club inviting the Elmhurst Garden Club members to participate in their spring flower show March 20.

The annual State Conference of the Garden Club of North Carolina will be held April 22-25 in Raleigh at the Hotel Sir Walter.

It was announced that for the first time in the history of any country, a postage stamp honoring gardening and horticulture will be issued by the United States. The three-cent stamp will be released March 15 at Ithaca, N. Y. as part of the 100th anniversary celebration at Cornell University of the American horticulturist, Liberty Hyde Bailey.

Mrs. Tom Brown, member of the beautification committee, reported that work will be started on the entrance to Elmhurst as soon as weather permits.

Mrs. W. L. Green Jr., conservation chairman, said Mr. James Grulke had seen several Grosbeaks in his backyard. The male Grosbeak is dull yellow with black and white wings and the female is silver gray and yellow. She urged everyone to put food out for the birds.

The club members were invited by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Howard Wilson, into the dining room where punch and assorted accompaniments were served. The dining room table was centered with an arrangement of red carnations.

Mrs. Ed. C. Harris, Mrs. Gene Skinner, Mrs. Carl Kinlaw and Mrs. Carlton Taylor were guests.

"Every American should leave his own country for at least a little while to learn to appreciate what we have here," said Miss Ann Mayo, recipient last spring of the first foreign-study scholarship of the Greenville American Association of University Women, in speaking to the AAUW.

In spite of the bitter weather some 30 members of AAUW were present Monday night to transact their regular business and hear the speaker's report of her experience.

Miss Mayo, a 1957 graduate of E.C.C., now teaching history in high school and French in the seventh grade in Edenton, was presented by Mrs. Austin Perry, member of the college Foreign Language Department, who is chairman of the AAUW Foreign-Study Scholarship Committee.

Mrs. Perry spoke of Miss Mayo's study at the Sorbonne last summer and reminded the group that they had heard scholarship winners on other occasions, but never their own winner before.

Miss Mayo talked with enthusiasm of her summer in France, explaining in some detail the academic work she was engaged in, giving her chief impressions of French family life, and telling of the things that impressed her most.

From her opportunities to visit informally in a French family she was most impressed by the amount of time spent together by the family—the many activities they engage in as a family, and the closeness of the family ties—and by the excellence of the meals and the long hours the housewife must put each day on shopping for groceries.

She spoke, too, of the French love of beauty she saw on every side—in the beautiful parks of every small village as well as large cities, in the marvelous cathedrals, which she called the most awe-inspiring thing in France, and in the great museums, which she visited again and again.

In closing, Miss Mayo once more expressed her appreciation for the scholarship by which the AAUW had made her "wonderful learning experience" possible. She spoke under the auspices of the Fellowship Committee, of which Miss Lela Brown Stancill is chairman.

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, president, conducted the business meeting of the evening. Hostesses for the social hour were Miss Lella Higley, Miss Virginia Herrin, Mrs. S. A. Sewall, Miss Kathleen Stokes and Miss Ruth Kenney.

Customers Vie With Models In Europe

By CELE WOHL
FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—All the interesting clothes at Europe's fashion openings aren't worn by the models. Just look at the customers!

They are the international buyers and the ladies of the press, who follow the high fashion circuit from Rome and Florence to Paris and London.

In this country the best dressed of the clothes critics are those who've pried out the secrets of the new line in time to whip up wardrobes of sacks or whatever for the shows. These are the Italian Giornalisti, on the scene and with clever little dressmakers ready to make them look chic at a moment's notice.

A well-known Italian fashion editor has been observed in four different outfits in one day. She rushes home between shows to change and always appears in something along the lines of the presenting house. She wouldn't be caught dead in a sack to congratulate a designer who has just shown a form-fitting collection.

tingent of "alta moda" experts is attired to the teeth in last season's line. Into this category fall American buyers and ladies of the formidable English fashion press corps.

These English journalists from the big London papers get clothes allowances. With know-how and pounds sterling they can't miss. In their swing around the Dublin-Rome-Florence-Paris-London circuit, they pick up the choicest cloaks and suits of four countries. Women Hear Mrs. Koonce Tell Church's Nature, Mission

Mrs. Bruce Koonce continued the study of the nature and mission of the church by discussing "The Church—God's Servant" when the Women of Presbyterian Church met in the ladies parlor of the church Monday night.

The purpose of this program was to show the church has been called and continued by God, solely for the purpose of making Him and His love known to the world and of claiming all of life for Him, pointed out Mrs. Koonce.

Adding, "There is a tendency prevailing today of regarding the church as God's privileged people instead of His tools to reach the nations of the earth."

The World Mission Chairman reported the Week of Prayer and Self-Denial is February 23-March 2. This week will be observed by the following activities: prayer meetings Tuesday at 10:15 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Fred Webb, 529 Longmeadow Road; Thursday, Mrs. Howard Moyer, 308 Eastern Street; Friday, Mrs. O. R. Waters, 107 Woodlawn Avenue.

A report from the Home Mission Chairman noted an immediate appeal for clothing and especially coats ranging in sizes for 8-14 year olds for both boys and girls in the city who cannot attend school because of the lack of warm clothing. Those who have clothing are urged to bring them to the church immediately.

The Christian Education Chairman announced a meeting which will be held Sunday from 4-8 p.m. for the Primary Department. The Leadership Training Class will be held March 2 and conducted during Sunday school hour.

Mrs. Walter Cox gave a report of the District IV Conference held January 30 at the Meadowbrook

Canadian Recipe Ideal For Lent

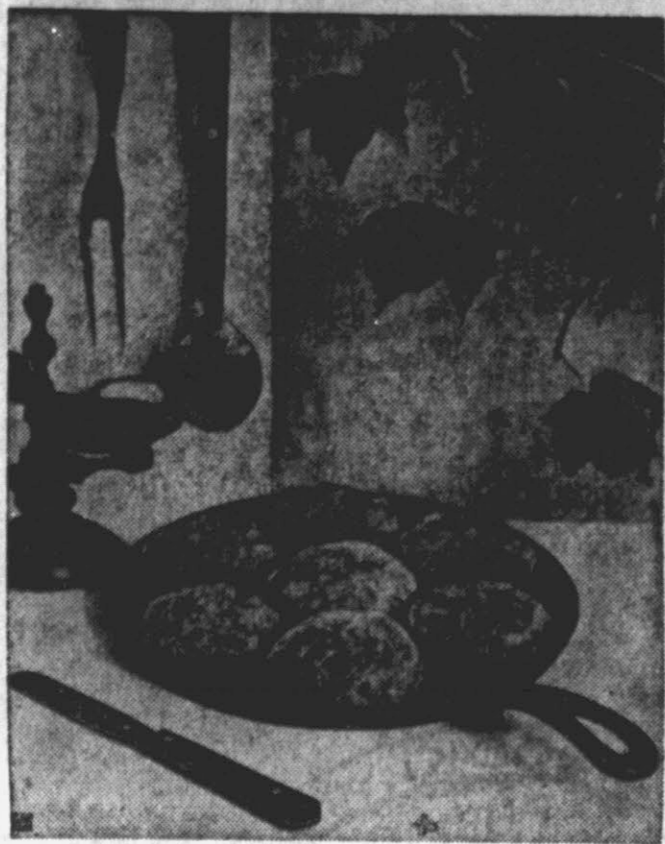

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Forty-below weather, in my Canadian childhood, sometimes meant that lunch and supper dishes were made exclusively from provisions in what my mother called the "larder." On those snowbound days my sisters and I would often beg for Salmon Patties—brown and crisp on the outside, flavorful and soft inside.

But much as we liked salmon, I suspect that one reason we welcomed the patties was because of the inexorable rule in our household that they be served with the tiny sweet gherkins we were mad about. Other accompaniments to the patties were old-fashioned pan-fried potatoes, creamed green peas, buttered carrots. For dessert, that old Canadian winter standby—cut-up oranges and bananas—would probably turn up.

Nowadays you might enjoy serving salmon patties with Tartar Sauce and a salad. If you have an electric skillet, you can cook the patties right at the table.

My other used to use dry bread crumbs in the salmon patties she made but nowadays fresh bread crumbs seem to be in favor and so here's a rule using the latter.

SALMON PATTIES, a Canadian favorite, fit into Lenten meals.

SALMON PATTIES
Ingredients: 4 eggs, 4 cups (8 slices) fine fresh bread crumbs (crusts included), 1 can (1 pound) salmon, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 4 tablespoons minced parsley, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 medium-sized onion (chopped), flour, 3 to 4 tablespoons butter.

Method: In a medium-sized bowl beat eggs enough to combine yolks and whites. Stir in bread crumbs. Add salmon including liquid in can, salt, mustard and parsley; mix well, breaking up salmon. (It is not necessary to remove bones—they provide calcium.) Melt 4 tablespoons butter in a small skillet; add onion and cook slowly, stirring often, until transparent and tender but not brown; stir into salmon mixture. Rinse hands in cold water and shape mixture into flat patties, using about 1-4 cup for each. (Mixture may be quite soft.) Spread about 2 tablespoons flour on a large piece of waxed paper; place patties on flour to coat, using a wide spatula or pancake turner to turn. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a skillet (about 10 inches); add half the patties or as many as the pan will hold without crowding. Fry slowly until hot through and browned on both sides. Add 1 or 2 tablespoons more butter if necessary to fry remaining patties. Makes 14 to 16 patties.

LENTEN AND FRIDAY COOKBOOK
A recently published cookbook, "52 Fridays, Meatless Menus and Recipes" by Ethel M. Keating (Bruce) is worth looking into for ideas for Lenten meals. Although the author emphasizes fish, she has developed such fine recipes that this book is definitely worth having for all-round use. Her excellent recipes include ones for vegetables, breads and desserts and they are written in a fairly detailed manner except for an occasional omission of a pan size.

Exchanging Washington By-Line For Fishing Line

Editor's Note: Jane Eads, who has covered Washington from the woman's angle for 29 years, is swapping her typewriter for retirement in Florida. Her final column will appear Feb. 21.)

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Most newsmen consider Washington the great news town in the world. Many are willing to trade a pay increase for a Washington by-line and the challenge and prestige that accompany it.

The opportunity to cover the capital is not easily come by. The men and women hired by the major wire services and large metropolitan dailies to staff their Washington bureaus must be more than experienced news reporters. They must have a broad awareness of what's been going on in the world outside their home town beat, who's who in international as well as national affairs, the mechanics and many-faceted aspects of the federal government.

A colleague of mine who had been trained in politics from grassroots up—covering county seat, city hall and state legislature back home—was raring to "show 'em" how he could take Capitol Hill.

"We don't expect a story from you, my boy, for at least six weeks," said his new boss, cooling him off. "It'll take that long to get the hang of things."

When I first arrived on the scene back in 1936, covering the capital wasn't so difficult, complicated or specialized as it is today. Finding your way around was fairly simple and it was easier to gain entree to the inner councils of the big wigs and drawing rooms of socialites.

In those days, there were fewer than a dozen accredited women correspondents and little "women's news" was filled from Washington. When Eleanor Roosevelt started holding her regular White House press conferences, Washington news bureaus were forced to hire women, for men were not admitted and Mrs. Roosevelt made copy.

Only recently returned from three years abroad, I hardly knew a politico from a Riviera playboy. "Where's Congress?" I asked a doorman at the Capitol building. "Which side do you want—House or Senate?" he asked.

"Oh-h," I exclaimed, "aren't they all together?"

Newsmen have to work hard to keep that capital by-line. The difference in capital reporting from any where else is the emphasis on background. Almost every story consists of about 10 per cent of something new and 90 per cent explanation of what's happened before—just how the new developments affect what's gone before.

A capital career is a stimulating, rewarding experience. I wouldn't dream of exchanging my Washington by-line for any other, except the one I'm about to switch to—a fishing line.

Fountain HDC Holds Workshop

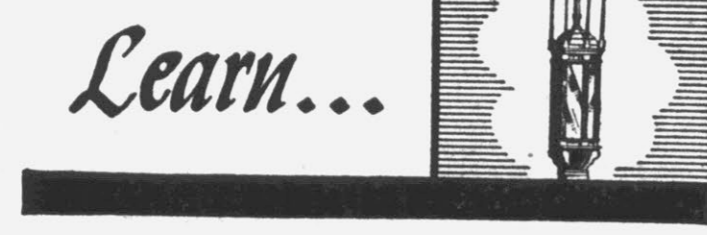

FOUNTAIN—A Craft Workshop held Wednesday in the Fountain Community Building was led by Mrs. Albert Bell, arts and crafts leader of the Pitt County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs.

Members of the Fountain Home Demonstration Club attended the workshop where aluminum trays from plain circles of aluminum were made.

During the day, class members traced designs on the aluminum circles, selected the portion to be etched and painted the rest of the tray with a masking paint. While waiting for the paint to dry, before continuing to the next process, Mrs. Bell instructed the group in Swedish weaving on huck towels.

At the end of the working period, each member had a 16-inch serviceable aluminum tray and a woven hand towel.

In the future the club is planning to have a workshop on copper, ceramics, wood fiber or copper enameling crafts.

An Inquiry In The Interests Of All

A thorough inquiry into the million-dollar public housing transaction in Goldsboro is imperative both for the protection of the Eastern Carolina Housing Authority and for the individuals involved in the transaction.

No, A Fire Couldn't Destroy His Labors

"I'm destroyed. I'm destroyed. All my years of work are lost."

Those were the words of one of North Carolina's most prolific writers, Harry Golden, editor of the North Carolina Israelite. The two-story house in Charlotte which was Harry's home and the office for his one-man newspaper was destroyed by fire Monday. In the house were his books and personal papers which represent a life's work.

But Harry Golden's many years of work were not lost in that fire even if all his books, papers and permanent files of the North Carolina Israelite were lost. The one-man newspaper, composed entirely of editorials, that Golden has published for years from Charlotte stand as a monument to the scholar, writer and publisher. Those who have read the Israelite regularly or occasionally will attest to its outstanding contribution to journalism in North Carolina and the nation.

One tragedy, regardless of other consequences, cannot destroy the humor, the philosophy, the satire, the praise and the condemnation contained in the millions of printed words that have come from Harry Golden over a period of years.

State's Policy On Retirement

By LYNN NISBET
PORTS — Several things have developed during the recent furor over selection of a director of North Carolina State ports activities that have more than usual interest.

First is that while the State of North Carolina is permitting retirement of a number of people at age 60, and forcibly retiring many employees at 65, the ports authority has gone outside the state to hire a director who is 61. Suggestion had been made that the Authority was looking for a younger man who might have a good many years to devote to the job.

Bringing in an outsider above 60 for an important job at the highest salary paid any State employees, raises questions about the sanctity of the State retirement policy which tends to bump off experienced workers when they reach the three-score year point.

Further, Ports Authority members say they knew nothing at all about the Georgia legislative investigation of activities. Ports Director Leon Williams and others in Georgia, before they offered Williams the $18,000 job in this state. Fact is, the Georgia ports deal has been widely publicized throughout the nation during the past three years, and since the Georgia legislature convened early in January there has been a lot of newspaper stuff about the deal. Furthermore, Edwin Pate, chairman of the SPA which was replaced by the present board a few weeks ago, says his board considered Leon Williams in 1953 and marked him off because of reports from "contracts" in Georgia at the time.

LIBRARIES — When folks stand around on street corners and in hotel lobbies and talk about Federal aid to education, they nearly always are thinking exclusively about congressional appropriations for public schools. A few of the talkers probably recognize to colleges and universities. Only a very few realize that money spent for libraries is just as properly credited—or charged—to public education. Yet this is the one place where Federal aid to education can be accepted and utilized with least possible chance of involvement in controversial issues. And the Federal government shows signs of backing off from library support.

An act has already passed the Congress calling for $7.5 million a year for library aid. Out of that amount North Carolina would get $302,331. The full amount has never been approved.

and there is pressure now to hold the appropriation to $3 million. That would mean only $85,000 for North Carolina. This would seem to be one place where North Carolinians could agree that Federal aid to education would be administered impartially.

TARHEELS — The prestige of the Honorary Tarheels, an unofficial but valuable organization of people who have done things for and accepted honors from North Carolina, is growing. The original concept of Honorary Tarheels, as nonresidents who had contributed to North Carolina because they loved the State, and who had to prove such love by certain ritualistic compliances, is not strictly enforced. But, there are still some requirements for designation as an Honorary Tarheel.

PROBLEM — It ought to be easy to get a design that could be used in woven neckties and other textiles, and also in costume jewelry. But try to get a design that looks like a footprint with tar on the heel, and you'll very quickly find it isn't easy. It just happens that the folks who run the State advertising division and the textile school at State College like to buck up against and solve problems that are not easy. So, sometime within the next few weeks they'll come up with the answer to how to use the "Tarheel" design to best advantage on publicity gadgets and dignified souvenirs.

PRESIDENTIAL SUCCESSION — Sen. Sam Ervin in his current report to his constituents reiterates his belief that the Congress should be the sole authority to determine when the President is unable to perform the duties of his office. He does not approve suggestions that the cabinet or the Supreme Court take this responsibility. He notes that the President and Vice President are elected by all the people. Members of the Congress also are elected by the people, although on a local rather than nationwide level. Members of the cabinet and of the Supreme Court are appointed by the President. It might be charged that their judgment on capacity of the President to serve would be warped by personal ambitions or loyalties. The legislative branch, the Congress composed of the Senate and the House, should have the final word. And the final word, according to Senator Ervin, should rest upon simple majority vote in the House and at least a two-thirds majority vote in the Senate.

make a huge profit in transactions with the government or a quasi-government agency, questions immediately arise in the minds of a good many people. It is not until the matter has been carefully studied and the facts in the case have been made public that the questions of irregularities concerning the transactions are dispelled or confirmed.

The official inquiry into "possible irregular transactions" in connection with the proposed sale of Seymour-Johnson Homes to the Eastern Carolina Regional Housing Authority should be instituted as quickly as possible. It should delve thoroughly into every facet of the transaction and let the chips fall where they may.

The mere calling of the investigation has cast a shadow of suspicion upon those involved in it. Whether such suspicion is justified or not, it exists at this moment. Only by a speedy and thorough inquiry can the questions which have been raised be resolved.

It is in the interest of all the people of North Carolina that the investigation leave no unanswered questions when it is concluded.

Respond Generously To This Big City Appeal

The success of efforts to provide relief for hard-hit families of Greenville during the extremely cold period will depend largely upon response citizens of the city make to appeals for aid.

The City Council has declared a state of emergency exists in Greenville. It has established a special winter relief fund that will be used to provide fuel, food and clothing for families suffering during this extreme weather.

In its action, the City Council noted that agencies which normally take care of relief and hardship cases have been severely taxed in recent months. The number of appeals for aid have increased sharply over those of recent years, indicative of both economic conditions and the unusually severe weather conditions here this winter. Unless the more fortunate people of the community lend a helping hand to their less fortunate neighbors, the human suffering in our midst will continue.

The Reflector urges Greenville citizens to respond generously to the winter relief appeal made by the local board. Unless food, clothing and fuel are provided immediately, a number of families in this community will lack for these necessities during this most severe cold period in more than quarter of a century.

A $50 Billions Program Drags

By ELMER ROESSNER

People ask: "Why doesn't the Federal government's $50 billion highway program cure the slump?"

There are several reasons. These are the chief ones:

1. It's a $50 billion program only by extension; this year's Federal allocation is only $1.7 billion.

2. Rising costs are slowing it down.

3. States have been slow in meeting conditions for Federal funds.

4. It is a little short of momentum by red tape.

Here's an expansion of that run-down:

The program is big, but the size has been distorted by a confusion of figures. Congress authorized $25 billion for the Interstate System. State contributions and Federal funds for other systems and public domain roads will bring the total up above $33 billion. Colateral spending by counties, cities and private industry is expected to bring the total up to $50 billion.

OVER 13 YEARS

However, these expenditures are spread over thirteen years, from 1957 into 1969. Interstate funds for the year to end June 30, 1958, are $1.7 billion. With other Federal and state and local spending, including repairs, total highway expenditures in this fiscal year will be little more than $5 billion.

That's a slight gain over the last fiscal year and not enough to cure the slump if the money flowed like water.

It is not so flowing.

Rising costs have been a drag. Most projects have an estimated cost but, when they are initiated, the costs are much larger. Costs of rights of way have far exceeded earlier estimates. Land values have increased once in actuality and again in sellers' eyes. Steel, concrete, machinery and labor all cost more than they did when the program was voted.

STATES LAG

Partly because of soaring costs, and partly because voters feel that local taxes should be used for local roads instead of interstate programs, many states have delayed in passing enabling legislation and in voting their share of funds for Interstate roads.

Although states pay only 10 percent of Interstate Highway System costs, many people say, "Why should my tax money make it easier for people to drive from Chicago to Miami, or from Boston to Los Angeles when I need a shorter road to the shopping center?" This attitude influences state legislators.

But, as Dr. Louis Berger, a highway consultant, points out, red tape is the greatest entanglement of all. Dr. Berger, who has worked on many highway projects since he left a professorship at Pennsylvania State five months ago, has headquarters in Orange, N.J.

"If the work could be expedited, it would cut into unemployment," he said.

He pointed out that in one eastern state, 600 state and consulting engineers are turning out plans for new highways. These are reviewed by 15 state engineers who, in turn, submit them to the Federal Bureau of Public Roads Administrator for the state. If he works 24 hours a day for 7 days a week he could still never catch up.

Such work started so far, Dr. Berger said, has been on plans developed many months earlier. Once the backlog of prepared plans is used up, he said, it may be months before further contracts can be awarded, not selling material and machinery suppliers and engineering firms to lay off workers.

Thus red tape typing up the highway program may serve to worsen, rather than relieve, the present slump.

Strength For Today

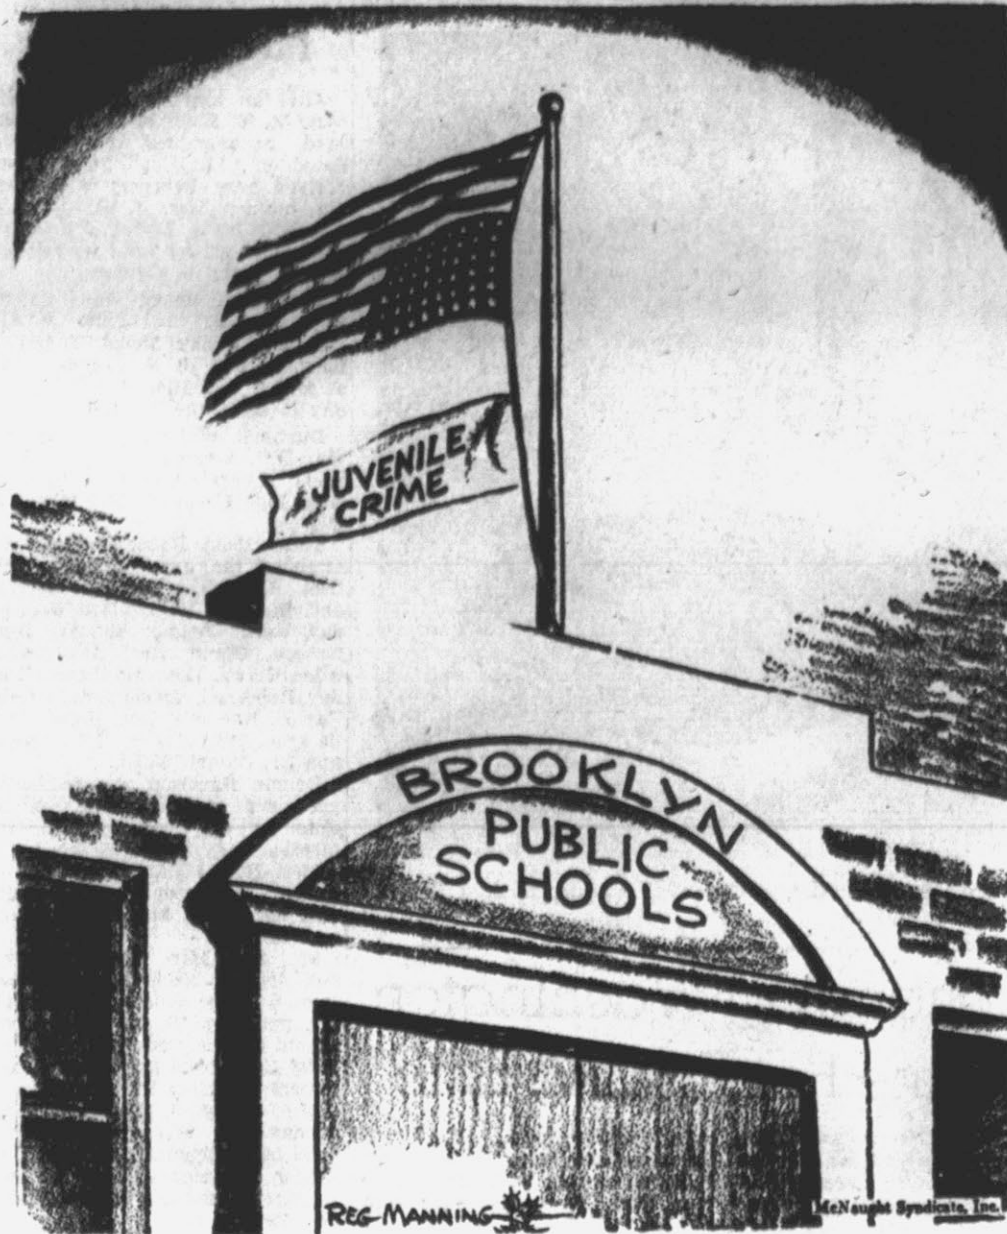

By EARL L. DOUGLASS COMPLETE AND FINAL REVELATION

Who is Jesus Christ? The Bible tells us (Heb. 1:3) that he is "the express image of his (God's) person," and the striking thing is that the Greek word signifying "express image" and the striking thing is that the Greek word signifying "express image" is "character." From it, of course, we get our English word "character." What this verse from Hebrews says, therefore, is that Jesus Christ is the character of God.

In other words, Jesus by what he did, said, and 'vas demonstrated to humanity all this it is possible for the human mind to understand about God. There is probably vastly more to the power and wisdom and majesty of God than is revealed in the Bible, and supremely in Christ. But all that we need to know about God, all that we can understand, is shown forth in the pages of the Bible and in the life and words of Jesus Christ. He is "the express image" of God—God's "character."

God could set forth his teachings on the pages of a Book, and this He did through a revelation which took thousands of years. But the only way this truth could be brought into sharp focus, made relevant to life as man lived it day by day, was to have the truth finally shown forth in the character of a man. Christ was this Man. In him we see set forth the character of God.

Oh Say Can You See?

Tales Spoken In Jest

Last Friday, a long line of people were waiting in line to buy their license tags. A lady came by, looked at the long line and appeared amazed by the crowd.

She asked a young man near the entrance what the people were waiting for, and he told her the store was having a sale. Immediately the woman walked to the end of the line to take up her place.

One of Pitt County's foremost duck hunters is the source for the following:

A duck hunter down near the coast caught and trained a mallard to help him hunt. The hunter trained his duck to serve as a live decoy.

The duck would swim out to the water and call other ducks down to him. When the ducks would land on the water, the trained duck would submerge the hunter fire his gun and shoot the wild ducks. . . then the trained duck would surface. Everything worked fine until one day the duck attracted some wild geese and they landed on the water.

As usual, the little duck submerged so the hunter could shoot the geese.

The hunter raised his gun to shoot, and it jammed. The poor little duck drowned.

The place was moderately busy, and this waiting listener observed a middle-aged and distinguished looking gentleman get out of the barber's chair and proceed to put on his coat to leave.

But then, one of the other barbers spoke to him; the customer went over to the barber, shook hands and began inquiring of his health and business.

The third barber stepped into the conversation, moving over to shake hands and evince interest in the gentleman.

They talked about mutual friends, farming conditions and such. . . all three appearing to be friends of long standing, meeting again after a long separation.

Finally, farewells were said and the man left. The two barbers turned back to their work. A minute of silence followed as both attended to their tasks; then the barber on the left turned to his companion and said "Who was that man?"

The other looked up in some surprise. "I don't know; I thought you knew him."

It all took place in a men's clothing store.

The owner and only salesman in the store had been looking for another salesman for several weeks. At last a young man came in the store and asked the owner for a job. The owner viewed the prospective salesman with disdain but the man pleaded so earnestly for a job that he decided to give him a chance.

He told the man that if he could sell a particular suit he would give him the job.

The owner then went into his storeroom and brought out a suit that was at least fifty years old. It was the most outlandish creation that had ever touched a tailor's needle. The young man was so surprised that he took the suit (if you could call it that) and without saying a word walked out of the store. The owner thought he would never see the young man again.

Just before closing time the young man returned to the store. He was out of breath from running, he had several scratches on his face and arms, his shirt was torn, and the seat of his pants was missing.

The owner asked him why he had let the buyer beat him up.

"I didn't have any trouble at all with the buyer," he replied, "but that seeing-eye dog almost ate me up."

Other Editors Saying --- Poor Investigative Job

(Henderson Dispatch)

Somewhere along the way there must have been a mighty poor job done of investigating the record and status of D. Leon Williams, who has been selected as director of the State Ports Authority. Any measure, or even casual, examination of Williams' fitness for the office should have turned up the smelly situation that now has developed in Georgia, where he was holding a similar office.

Even the name of Georgia's Governor Marvin Griffin has been linked with allegations of political connections with operation of ports in that State. It is charged that officials benefited in private services obtained by those in position to command them. Williams says he began negotiating for the job here before the investigation in Georgia started, and that there was no connection between the two developments.

There are two phases of the situation that have not been satisfactorily elucidated. One is as to why the State Ports Authority couldn't have made its own investigation, and the other is as to why it was necessary to hire a group of professionals to obtain the facts. Why, in the first place, couldn't a North Carolina concern have made the study, if the Authority decided not to do it, and, secondly, why was not a North Carolina man chosen for the position?

Are members of the Ports Authority so unfamiliar with their duties that they cannot come to a conclusion as to fitness and qualifications? Moreover, are we so bankrupt of brains and statesmanship in North Carolina that no one in the State has the ability to manage the terminals at Wilmington and Morehead City?

Any board serving the State should be sufficiently acquainted with conditions and needs here to be able to make its own inquiry. When $18,000 jobs are to be passed around, must they go to outsiders instead of North Carolinians? If members of the Ports Authority do not have the time and are not capable of attending to details of their responsibilities, they ought not to be entrusted with the duties of office. It would seem that Governor Hodges would have made sure of his appointees before naming them.

If there have been political maneuverings of any description in Georgia involving the new director, they should be cleared up before he is finally confirmed and given the job. It might be found necessary ever to shift the appointment, and if that shall be done a North Carolina man ought to be entrusted with the office, assuming that one can be found who is in every sense qualified. Surely there is such a person, and one who would find the $18,000 salary attractive. In any event it appears at this juncture that a poor job of investigating has been done.

Knowland's Race And The GOP

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The success or failure of Senator William Knowland's campaign for Governor of California may have a great effect on the Republican Party's future course. It may decide whether the GOP in 1960, and future years, will embrace President Eisenhower's "modern Republicanism" fully and permanently, revert to Taft conservatism or veer to a middle-of-the-road course. At the moment it seems to be drifting.

Knowland's try is admittedly the most spectacular political spectacle of the current political year, as well as a test of present-day sentiment in this vast and increasingly influential area. Every politician of the two parties, from President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon down to city aldermen, will await the outcome.

The Senate Minority Leader faces two struggles. He must defeat Mayor George F. Christopher of San Francisco in the June primary. If he wins that contest, he must face a strong vote-getter in Attorney General Edmund G. Brown in November.

THAT CALIFORNIA GUBER-

NATORIAL CONTEST Brown is leading Knowland in current newspaper polls, but the Senator's friends dismiss that as unimportant. The popular and affable Brown, they argue, is on the scene and getting around. Knowland believes that he can overcome Brown's lead when he returns to California at the close of the session in July or August.

The intense interest in Knowland's fate derives from the fact that, although he is Senate Minority Leader, he has opposed the Administration on several important issues. It is also recalled that, had the late Senator Taft been nominated in 1952 instead of Eisenhower, he would probably have selected Knowland as his running mate, not Nixon.

When Taft became too ill to attend sessions, he designated the Senator as his replacement.

NOT AFRAID TO SPEAK HIS MIND Knowland's support of the Administration's legislative program has been far more regular than that of many of his colleagues, as he frequently notes. Nevertheless, he has not been afraid to stand out against the White House. He explains that he did not agree to sacrifice his conscience or the interests of California when he became the Administration spokesman.

He favors right-to-work legislation, which bars a closed union shop, whereas the Administration is silent or negative on this question. He opposes many budget cuts, including the plan to start no new reclamation or public works projects. California needs more water and electric power.

He will also fight the Budget Bureau's decision to cut back Federal financial aid to school districts in areas where there are large government installations, such as airplane factories, Navy yards, atomic laboratories. This kind of economy would impose onerous taxes and burden the already strained educational facilities of too many California communities.

NATIONALIST CHINA'S STRONGEST FRIEND, Knowland steered through the Senate the Administration's requests for funds for solid, West European Allies, but he is skeptical about similar assistance for such suspect nations as Poland and Yugoslavia. He also thinks that the State Department has been too

Takes To His Couch

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright Tennessee Williams has joined the legion of those who seek on an analyst's couch an answer to their tensions.

"I had two kinds of tranquilizers this afternoon," he apologized as, shirt-sleeved and yawning, he opened the door of his apartment. "I'm still sleepy."

Five times a week, Tennessee, a small graceful man with a brown mustache, goes to a psychoanalyst who has helped iron out the lds and firms up the ego of a number of celebrated theater folk. At $50 an hour this is a mental comfort Williams couldn't afford during a poverty-ridden, second-class childhood. But now he thinks it's well worth the money.

"I find it immensely stimulating," he said as he sat down in a sofa across from a large bust of Lord Byron.

"My tensions had accumulated to a point where I felt I wanted to do something about ending them. It's an exciting adventure. You discover new things about yourself; gradual revelations, some of which you fight—and there is a mysterious change in your behavior."

"I have always suffered from claustrophobia and a fear of suffocation, of not being able to breathe. It was so bad that for a long time when I went for a walk I couldn't walk down a street unless I could see a barber, because I wanted a drink, not because I wanted the security of knowing it was there."

That panic fear of being crowded or suffocated, he said, had been at least partly relieved.

"It also has made it much easier for me to be with people on a friendly basis, relieved me of social uneasiness. I used to blush when I thought anybody even was looking at me. In school I could never recite," he said.

But psychoanalysis, so far as he can tell, has affected his work. Two of his plays are currently on the boards at an off-Broadway theater. Tennessee also gets up as early as 5 a.m. to put in two or three hours on his latest play before going to see his analyst.

It deals with "the corruption of a young man, the corruption of an older woman, and the corruption of an entire community by a political boss," he said.

To some critics, Williams is one of the most gifted and forceful playwrights of the 20th century. To others, outraged by his use of dramatic themes ranging from cannibalism to homosexuality, he is a twisted writer whose idea of a holiday is to go rowboating in a sewer.

"Not all my plays, by any means, are violent," he said, "and they are more concerned with morality than most plays."

"All plays that explore evil and the roots of it in people, and the conditions that produce it, are moral. But some people will always regard them as immoral."

To Williams, the biggest problem in the world is fear.

"The fear of a threat to his personal security is at the root of every person's violence and hatreds," he said.

"Evil is merely a sickness—a psychic distortion. Education has to be revamped so as to cope with a student's basic psychic problems, and not merely teach him trigonometry or Latin."

"These problems begin early and if caught in time can be corrected—but not after they explode in violence. Then it is too late. Evil matured is hard to cure."

"The main evil of our time is overpopulation — people having more children than they can care for properly, because they are so harassed by the mere task of making a living they don't have time to give proper love."

"I don't understand," said Tennessee, who is a bachelor, "why nothing is done to stop this spawning of children in families that can't even afford to have one. It is a crime — an awful crime."

Miami Manhunt

A NEW SUSPENSE NOVEL BY WILLIAM FULLER

CHAPTER 8
"You've admitted you made a date with Maria Blanding," said Lieutenant Wade. "For 2:30 a.m. in her cabana."

"Why do we have to go through all this again, Lieutenant?" I said. "I've told you all I know." And I had. All but three things: The money she'd told me about; the fact that I'd been in Maria's cabana and had seen signs of violence there; the scrap of envelope I'd found on the floor with the name Jack Forbes on it — and Forbes' address. Before I'd left the cabana I'd decided to call the police. Then I'd conned myself into thinking I wouldn't get involved in this thing if I didn't poke my neck out. As nearly as I could remember, I'd left fingerprints in three places: the front porch doorknob, one end of the sliding glass door, the light switch — in reverse order. I didn't expect to become involved, but just in case I did I took my handkerchief and wiped the surfaces I remembered having touched.

I hadn't been very smart. A cabana boy had discovered the wreckage, the bloodstain, early this morning. He'd told his boss about it. The boss had reported it to the manager. The manager had had the foreman call Maria's room to see if she was all right. There had been no answer. He and the hotel dick had gone to Maria's room. Her room had been ransacked. Even the bed had been torn apart. There had been no way of determining what, if anything, was missing.

The manager had called the police. Shortly after that I'd been picked up.

The lieutenant spoke slowly now, emphasizing his words. "Let me explain your position to you, Dolan. You're on a spot. It's pretty evident that there's been violence — an abduction, maybe even a murder. You're a man with a pretty vague — I might even say shady — background. Yesterday you came to town. Maria Blanding referred to you as her fiancé. You admit having made a date with her for 2:30 a.m. Sometime between 2:15 — when she was seen leaving her dressing room at the Gulf Stream Room by the wardrobe girl — and 6:15 this morning, when the cabana boy found signs of violence in her cabana, she met with foul play of some sort. In the meantime her room in the hotel was ransacked. We're giving you every chance to write yourself a clean ticket on this. Up to this point you haven't been very convincing. That's one reason why we're going over this thing so thoroughly. To give you a chance to clear yourself. I think there must be something you haven't told us, Dolan."

I was tempted then to admit I'd gone in Maria's cabana — at 2:42, if I remembered correctly — and had discovered signs of violence, fresh bloodstains, then. But, for my own protection, I hadn't come clean on that the first time around. It would weaken my story if I admitted it now.

The lieutenant was going through those papers on his desk again. "Joseph L. Matthews," he read. "Bartender on duty last night at the Gulf Stream Room. The guy answering the description you give me sat at my bar at maybe 1:10, 1:15, alone in there. He orders bourbon over ice. He seems like a friendly enough guy. We get to shooting the breeze some. Just kicking it around, beating our gums. Ramez, the ex-Coronado, strongboy, he's there with a party. They're freewheeling, this bunch, they got three, maybe four of them beautiful dolls Ramez always has around him. Dolan asks me who they are. Just a normal question, the way I look at it. I tell him who they are, or who Ramez is, because he's the only one I know. Maria Blanding comes on. The conversation ceases, like always does when Maria's on. That babe's got it! Okay. Then Maria finishes. Dolan buys another drink. He nurses it until maybe 2:20, 2:15. He signs his bill, leaves my bar, and I don't see him since."

The lieutenant pu: the paper on his desk. "You went right from there to keep your appointment with Maria in her cabana, Dolan?"

"Straight away."

The detective settled back in his chair and rubbed his forehead. "Let's go back to the man you said was following you last night. Let's see." He leaned over his desk and peered at a paper. "You saw him first in the barber shop. Then, when you stopped to look in the window of some jewelry shop, you noticed that he'd stopped behind you and was looking in the window on the other side of the entrance. He was a fat man. You'd noticed the band of his hat in the barber shop. That's how you first recognized him, when you saw him again, right?"

"Right," I said. "You say here you then went to a steak house. You figured the thing had gone on long enough when he followed you in. You sent the waitress to ask him to come to your table. He came. You say you figured the man was working for the girl, Maria. What's your reasoning there, Dolan?"

"I told you I figured Maria was working some sort of racket. I hadn't bought her story about somebody following her. I figured she planned to shake me down some way. She'd put the fat guy on my tail to make sure I kept the appointment. Or didn't go to the police with my suspicions. "You thought all this and still you showed up to keep a date with her?"

"Sure." "Didn't you think that would be asking for trouble? Dangerous?" I grinned. "Maybe I like to live dangerously. It's good for tired blood." He sighed. "You said you told the fat man he was waiting his time. That you'd see Maria in her cabana at 2:30, right?"

"Correct. And after Maria didn't show up, and while I was still waiting for her, it occurred to me that that might be why Maria was standing me up: she figured I was wise to her act and would make trouble for her. This morning, when I was told that Maria had disappeared, that there was evidence of violence, I sincerely wished I'd kept my mouth shut. I'd let the fat guy know where Maria would be, alone, for at least a few minutes between the time she left her dressing room and the time I showed up to meet her. You told me earlier the wardrobe girl saw Maria leaving her dressing room at 2:15. The way I see it, she went right to her cabana to wait for me. The fat guy, or somebody he'd tipped off, was waiting for her. She was taken over then."

"You're quite a detective Dolan," the lieutenant said. "Thanks," I said as I stood. "I think I'll run along now, if it's all right with you, Lieutenant." The mildness left his voice completely. "Sit down, Dolan!" I sat down.

He reached in a desk drawer and came up with a flat tin of aspirin. He took three or four from the tin, slapped them in his mouth and drank from the half-filled glass of water on a tray on his desk. He put his hands behind his head, leaned back in his chair and fastened a milky eye on

You Gotta Be Tall If A Western Star

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How to create a Western star? Find a big fellow—6 feet 2 and a well-built 190 pounds, 33 years old with some stage training and a little movie experience, born in the western United States, though not on a ranch. Teach him how to draw a gun fast and how to sit a horse. Have him move slowly unless provoked—and say his lines without much expression.

That's all there is to it! Of course, it's not that easy. Those are merely some conclusions I have reached after studying all the adult Westerns on TV and averaging the specifications of 15 top gunslingers on the home screens.

There is no such thing as an average Western star, of course. They range from sagebrush veteran Ward Bond, 52 (Wagon Train) to 24-year-old Pat Conway of Tombstone Territory. West were born west of the Mississippi, though Scott Forbes (Jim Bowie) hails from Capetown, South Africa.

Four of the Western stars were born in Los Angeles, of all places. Only Dale Robertson, the Oklahoma Kid, appears to have an authentic Western background. He stars in Tales of Wells Fargo. One thing is certain: you gotta be tall. Maybe not as tall as Jim Arness (Gunsmoke) and Clint Walker (Cheyenne), who scrape the barroom ceilings at 6 feet 6. But you can't be less than six feet and expect to cut the mustard.

These Western heroes have shot down their opposition with deadly accuracy this season, the most notable being Maverick's riddling of both Steve Allen and Ed Sullivan. Why has this been so? I reviewed all the shows in search of an answer—and podner, that's a lot of gunplay.

The fact is that the Western is

New Storm Of Unhappy Business Statistics Seen

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—A new storm of unpleasant statistics and a falling trend in many business barometers is adding today to the general February dreariness. Businessmen take what comfort they can from the knowledge that February often is the low month—with better days usually lying ahead.

Barometers that businessmen watch aren't always infallible. But so far most point to a continuing downward swing. Here are a few: Machine tool orders point to what industry expects to do about expansion several months ahead. Orders have been falling for some time—and are now far below the amount of shipments of tools ordered months ago. Output of paper and paper board are always watched because they tell how much factories are shipping and how much they expect to ship. The American Paper and Pulp Assn reports production off from a year ago and the industry's profits averaging about 18 per cent lower than in 1956.

ideally suited for TV. You have a background that is immediately recognizable—no buildup necessary. You have colorful characters and the basic struggle of good vs. evil. You have wide open spaces, a refreshing change from the cramped sets of live dramas.

The stories are well done. Even the New Yorker magazine has admitted that the caliber of drama on the Westerns is above that of other kinds of shows.

Furthermore, the producers have come up with an attractive and convincing crop of Western stars, most of them entirely new to the public.

What makes them so convincing? A man like Arvo Ojala helps. Ojala is a ruddy-faced young man from the Yakima Valley of Washington who is deadly with a gun. Not that he ever shoots anyone. But he helps the TV gunslingers look as rapid on the draw as Billy the Kid.

Guns have long been Ojala's hobby and now they are his business. As an actor in Westerns, he recognized that a good many Western heroes were clumsy on the draw. He designed a new kind of holster, metal-lined for quick withdrawal of the gun.

"The barrel and the chamber don't touch the sides of the holster," he explained. Ojala (the name is Finnish) has supplied holsters and coaching to James Garner, Hugh O'Brian, Wayne Preston, Clint Walker and dozens more.

"First I teach them gun safety," he said. "You can hurt yourself badly, even with blanks. The important thing is to start the draw from a relaxed position with the thumb out to pull back the hammer as the gun is drawn up. I favor the single-action Colt .45." Tomorrow—a rare interview with the screen's first Western star.

since February 1955—that month again. Cut back most were the schedules in factories making durable goods. There, too, were the greatest number of layoffs.

Metals form one of the better barometers. Some steelmen think orders should pick up in March, but whether more than just the usual gain from dreary February they don't venture to guess.

Consumer buying habits show up in the statistics of retail trade. But they also reveal themselves in the trend of installment buying. Latest reports show the rate of repayment of installment loans growing apace, while the rate of new installment buying is slowed almost to a walk.

This particularly disturbs the auto industry which has come to be looked upon as a prime barometer in itself. Auto making now dominates much business thinking. When Detroit has a good year everyone feels better. When c. sales slump, most folk feel as dreary as the weather.

CECILTON, Md. (AP)—Three Delaware National Guard tanks crossed into Maryland early today, plowed through mountainous snow drifts and rescued eight Girl Scouts and their adult leader stranded since Saturday.

The nine had been living the past two days on canned tomato soup and dry cereal. None suffered any ill effects.

Delaware's Gov. J. Caleb Boggs ordered the tanks to the rescue after getting permission from Maryland authorities to cross the state line.

Maryland state highway officials had tried unsuccessfully to reach the scouts with a snow plow.

New Bern Edges Phants, Wins NEAC Championship

Bears Win 45-43 On Last-Second Shot By Gillikin

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

A last-second one hand push shot by Robert Gillikin from about 30 feet out netted New Bern the Northeastern Conference basketball title here last night.

Gillikin's shot—it flicked the net a split second before the final buzzer sounded—gave New Bern a 45-43 victory over second-place Greenville before an overflow crowd of 1400 at Rose Gymnasium.

It finished the Bears with an 11-1 season record and left the Phantoms with an 8-3 mark. Coach J. F. Hockaday's crew automatically notched the loop crown with the victory and also became the conference's representative in the State Class AA playoffs.

Gillikin was the man of the hour. The pint-sized New Bern guard walked away with high scoring honors for the night with 21 and was the Bears' outstanding defensive performer as well. It was by no means a one-man victory, however. Jon Burwell, Gillikin's All-Conference teammate at guard, added 10 points, while Dickie Quirk, Jean Earl Worthington and Roger Toler aided with good defensive play.

Torrid Finish

It was a torrid finish for a game that had seen both teams go for three full quarters at breakneck speed, with the lead changing hands often.

With 1:27 remaining in the game, Greenville grabbed a 43-41 lead on a pair of free tosses by Steve Noble. Burwell tied it up on a long shot with 44 seconds to go. The Bears stole the ball as the Phants headed down court and held onto it for one final shot. Gillikin turned his shot loose at the last possible second.

Bedlam broke out as the buzzer sounded and the New Bern stands overflowed with excited, screaming fans. In the confusion, Greenville was cheering, too. Later, many of the Phantom fans were crying. The crowd swept onto the court, hoisted Gillikin on their shoulders and New Bern fans cut the nets from both baskets.

New Bern had clinched its first Northeastern Conference championship in almost 15 years.

Close Game

The contest was nerve-rackingly close all the way. Both teams scored 14 points in the first period, with ball players of both sides shooting with fine accuracy. New Bern's defensive play more than equaled Greenville's domination of the backboards throughout the game. The Phants would snare the rebounds, but had a difficult time getting the ball from one end of the court to the other without losing it to either Burwell or Gillikin.

A foreshadowing of the final outcome presented itself at the end of the first half. A shot in the last few moments pushed New Bern to a 30-29 lead at intermission.

In the third quarter, Greenville scored 11 points to New Bern's six, and picked up their biggest lead of the evening. They were ahead by four points as the quarter ended.

It didn't last long, however. Coach Bo Farley's crew managed to score only three points in the final period—on free throws—while New Bern picked up nine.

Next game on the Phantom card will be at Kingston Friday night, and will round out the season for both clubs.

Panthers Play East Carolina Here Tonight

Earlier in the season when the two teams met, East Carolina used High Point as a stepping stone to a 7-1 record and a tie with Lenoir Rhyne for first place in the North State League.

Tonight High Point journeys to the Pirates' den with a 10-3 mark and a grip on second place, while EOC is ranked 11-point underdogs with a miserable 6-8 record.

A lot can happen in a few weeks. Just about everything has happened to the Pirates since that earlier 79-66 Buc victory over the Panthers at High Point.

Since that time, Conference Commissioner C. R. Hinshaw (of High Point, incidentally) has charged the Pirates of using an ineligible ball player and has taken away three ECC wins by forfeit, the Pirates have lost to Western Carolina, Lenoir Rhyne, Catawba and bottom-place Elon; they have fallen from a tie for first to sixth position in the league; they have blown their position as the No. 9 team in the nation in scoring, having long ago lost their 83.7 average.

High Point, on the other hand, has made pretty good advancement since that first game. The Panthers were one of the three teams who were soundly thrashed by the Bucs, but who were awarded a win by Hinshaw (of High Point, incidentally) due to the forfeits. At present, they are ranked second in the loop beyond Lenoir Rhyne. The league-leading Bears have a 13-1 slate, while HP is 10-3.

In this final week of North State action, there is a possibility that High Point could tie the Bears for that lead spot. The present situation is this: Should Lenoir Rhyne win any of its games this week and should High Point lose any, the Bears are automatically in first for keeps. It is unlikely that the Bears will lose any, for they have Elon and High Point at home on the 20th and 22nd.

Panthers Could Fall

With that being the situation, it is probable that the Panthers will drop at least one game, thus knocking them out of it for first place and resigning them to their second-place slot. They will be picked underdogs to Lenoir Rhyne Saturday for certain, and some observers are not completely sure that they will win tonight over East Carolina.

The odds favor them, however, due to the circumstances already named above. The Panthers are rated 11 points over the hosts.

The Panthers will invade Memorial Gymnasium with a flock of good talent, despite a loss of several stars from last year's team. Bill Hugel, Bobby Pharr, and Mury Beauchot will work at guard positions Danny Sewell, Phil Crockett, and Ken Williams will divide the center duties! Bobby Dunbar, Steve Afendis, and Ken Black will alternate at forward positions. All these are returnees.

Along with these, Coach Virgil Yow will bring a bunch of newcomers who have seen considerable action this season, including Harold

Brennan Seems Certain To Win Scoring Title

GREENSBORO — North Carolina's Pete Brennan, recently voted by Atlantic Coast Conference sports writers and broadcasters as the ACC's No. 1 All-American candidate, appears a virtual cinch to win season scoring honors in the ACC.

Brennan, a senior, is averaging 20.5 points a game. He leads second-place Herb Busch of Virginia by almost three points a game and third-place Tommy Kearns of North Carolina by exactly four a game, according to latest ACC Service Bureau figures. With only three games left before the ACC's championship tournament, it would take a complete collapse by Brennan for him to miss the point-making crown.

Busch, hot on Brennan's trail a month ago, now has dropped to 17.6 points a game and Kearns No. 3 for a month, now is hitting an average of 16.5 points per contest. Sophomore Dave Budd of Wake Forest, 16.2, and sophomore Dick Prater of South Carolina, 15.2 round out the ACC's top five scorers.

Brennan, who also tops the conference in rebounding with 12.5 recoveries per game also presents an outstanding form chart showing although he is not the ACC leader in either shooting department. He has averaged 44.4 per cent from the floor and 71.7 per cent from the foul line.

Grifton Girls Upset Grimesland; Chicod, Farmville Claim Wins In Tournament Play

TONIGHT'S SCHEDULE
(Games at Rose High Gym Tonight Only)

6:30—Belvoir-Falkland vs. Stokes-Pactolus (boys)
8:00—Stokes-Pactolus vs. Belvoir-Falkland (girls)
9:30—Ayden vs. Winterville (boys)

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS
Farmville 48, Ayden 38 (girls)
Chicod 53, Farmville 40 (boys)
Grifton 80, Grimesland 45 (girls)

The Grifton girls provided the third round of the Pitt County Basketball tournament with a stunning upset—perhaps the biggest of the tourney thus far—by whipping Grimesland 50-45.

The seventh-ranked Grifton club knocked the No. 2 Grimesland outfit out of the race easily, as Lou Rae Mewborn and Sandra Price combined to outscore the favored club.

Mewborn notched 18, while Price walked away with top honors and 26. Nelson added 6. Coward, Wilson and Taylor were guards on the winning club and did outstanding work in holding down the high-scoring Grimesland forwards.

Singleton got 24 for the losers.

In other games of the night, Farmville trounced Ayden 48-38, in the first contest of the night, and the Chicod boys downed Farmville, 53-40.

Rouse, Sumrell, Braxton, and Everette did all the scoring for the Ayden girls but it was not enough to outshadow Farmville. Farmville's scoring was done by Little, Baker, Beaman and Letchworth. Guards on the winning team were Allen, Hobgood, and B. Baker. Gagnon was a strong defender for Ayden.

In the boys tilt, Jimmy Fornes picked up 25 points in his usual fine style to lead Chicod to a 53-40 win over Farmville. He was aided by teammates Smith (12) and Barber (10) in scoring.

Sonny Mall notched 18 for the losers.

The fourth round of the tourney gets underway tonight at 6:30 with the slate as listed above. Semifinals will be played Thursday night and the tourney champions will be decided Friday.

Jayvees Defeat New Bern For Third Victory

Coach Bud Phillips' Rose High School Jayvees won their third ball game of the year last night by defeating New Bern, 53-29, in the preliminary to the varsity meeting between the two schools.

Paced by the shooting of Charlie Taft and Irky Duff, the Baby Phants rolled up an early 11-8 first-quarter score and advanced it to 26-12 by halftime. They outscored the visitors in each succeeding quarter to post a 24-point victory, their most impressive of the year.

Taft tossed in 22 points to lead both teams in points. He notched nine field goals and four of six from the free toss line. Duff added 12.

Other Panthers who scored were Clapp 2, Felton 8, Davenport 4, Stocks 1, Henderson 2, Brewer 2, Greenville 11, 15, 14, 13-53, New Bern 8, 4, 10, 7-29.

Clippers Subdue Last-Place Club

CHARLOTTE — The first-place Charlotte Clippers scored a 6-2 victory over the last-place Clinton Comets in an Eastern Hockey League game here last night.

The Clippers play tonight at Washington.

Tar Heels Aren't Dead After All

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Maybe those North Carolina Tar Heels, defending NCAA champs in major college basketball, aren't dead after all.

After playing only 500 ball in eight games—and tumbling to 16th in the week's Associated Press rankings—the Tar Heels perked up and smacked old rival North Carolina State, ranked No. 9, 81-69 last night in the Wolfpack lair.

It could be the turning point for the Tar Heels, who can still grab a return berth in the NCAA playoffs by winning next month's Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

North Carolina, now 16-0 overall and 9-3 in the ACC, took second place behind idle, seventh-ranked Duke in the conference while N.C. State (15-5) slipped to fourth at 9-4. Maryland, rated 14th moved into third with an 8-3 ACC record by smacking Virginia 69-56.

Tennessee, (No. 20) came on in the second half for an 84-65 victory over Georgia Tech that gained a second-place tie in the Southeastern Conference with idle Auburn and Alabama.

Texas Tech gained a first-place tie with idle Arkansas in the Southwest by whipping Texas 93-66, and Southern Methodist joined Rice in third place by defeating the Owls 70-59. Last-place Baylor knocked off once-hopeful Texas Christian 70-64.

North Carolina, which had split two earlier games with the Wolfpack, won this one from the foul line. Outshot 25-22 from the field, the Tar Heels canned 37 of 46 free throws, with Pete Brennan hitting 18 of 20 and taking scoring honors with 32 points.

Maryland (15-4) missed its first seven shots from the field and trailed 10-0, but had a 36-24 half-time bulge and wound up with a 400 shooting mark. Tom Young was high scorer with 19 points.

Tennessee, down 33-31 at the half, took charge early in the second half for its 11th straight home victory and a 16-4 record.

Playing The Citadel Aids Generals' Cage Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If lowly Washington and Lee could play The Citadel's third-ranked Bulldogs every night, the Generals would be certain of gaining a berth in next month's Southern Conference basketball tournament.

Washington and Lee has won only three of 10 conference starts this season and two have been at the expense of The Citadel, which has lost 10 times to the Generals in as many tries.

The Generals' latest victory—one that moved a game ahead of Furman in the battle for the eighth spot in the league tourney—came last night by a 72-66 score as Dom Flora poured in 28 points and Jack Daughtrey added 15.

While W&L was bushwhacking the Bulldogs for the second time,

"TAKE A LETTER"

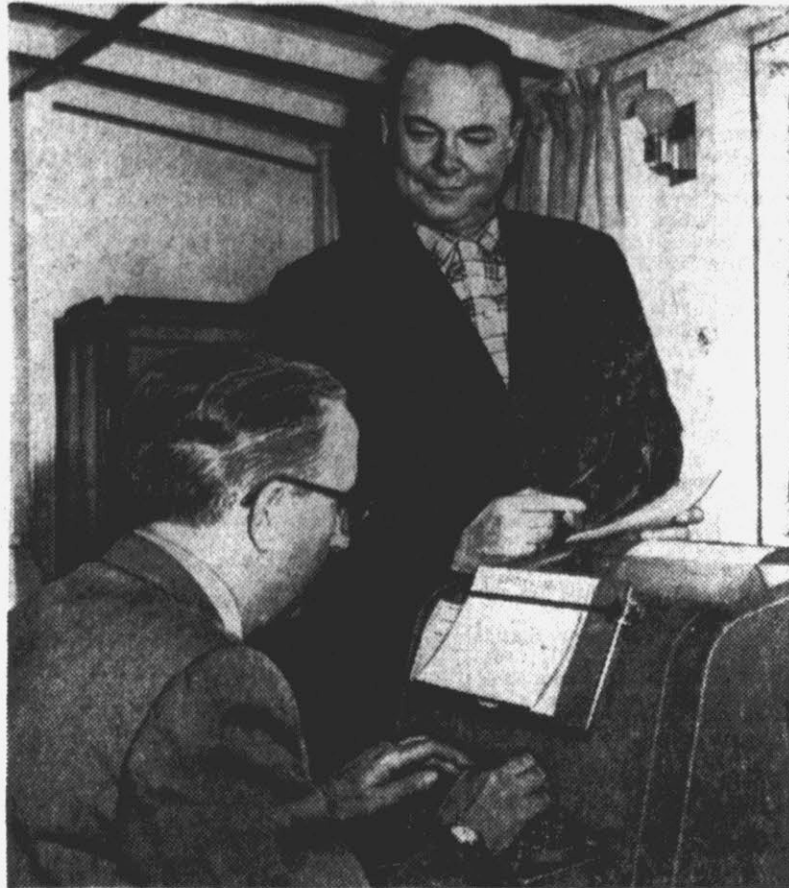

Briefcase in hand, Victor Muscat walks up gangplank to board his yacht, the North Star, at Jacksonville, Fla.

Victor Muscat, a Greenwich, Conn., businessman, combines yachting with business.

The head of a large aluminum tubing company, Muscat uses his 63-foot-yacht, the North Star, as his floating business office. During the winter, he cruises along Florida's intra-coastal waterway with side trips to the Bahamas and Cuba. He is constantly in touch with his key executives when at sea. In addition to a ship-to-shore telephone, he employs a special teleprinter circuit which can be plugged in at any yacht basin in the country. This circuit hooks up with his various plants around the country.

In summer, Muscat cruises closer to home, on Long Island Sound and along the New England coast. Three aides are constantly on board: a captain, cook and personal secretary. The secretary, Miss Vanessa Carter, has long since acquired her sea legs and can take dictation in the roughest weather.

"I wouldn't trade my job with any landlubber at twice the salary," she says.

Muscat dictates telegrams over teleprinter circuit. Operator is called in at each docking point to take messages.

Work must go on, even when Muscat is at the wheel of his yacht. He dictates a letter to his secretary, Vanessa Carter.

STONE "ZOO"

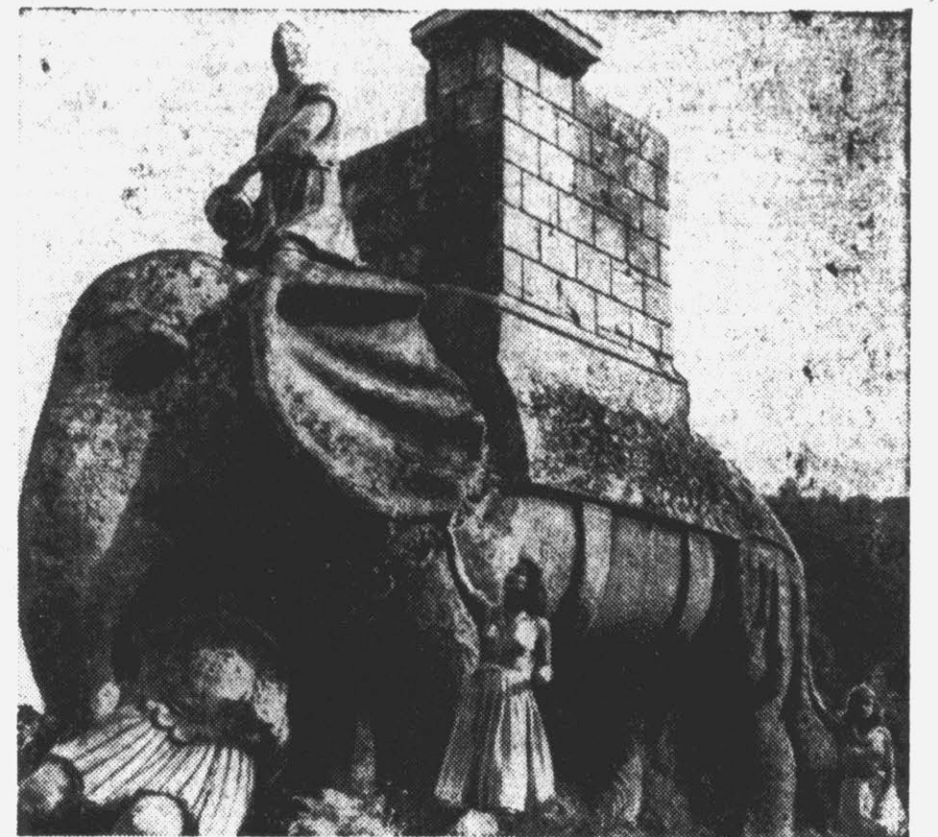

Mythological winged dragon goes on hunt with his favorite dog, two of stone animals in "zoo" near Bomarzo, Italy. Visitor, Agostina de Michelis, studies creatures.

There's no bark or bite to the animals that "live" in a meadow outside the mountain village of Bomarzo, Italy, some 65 miles northeast of Rome. They're made of stone.

The animals have been standing there for more than 400 years on what was once a fabulous estate. They're a weird lot. Some look real, others like creatures out of mythology. A 16th century sculptor and architect named Vignola is said to have carved them.

After long years of neglect, the "zoo" has now a brighter look. Dense overgrowth has been removed and the animals have been cleaned and restored to their original state.

Stone elephant represents one of herd which Hannibal used to invade Italy. Dying gladiator is being carried in trunk.

Strange mythological beast, part lion, part ox, attracts attention of Agostina de Michelis.

Eggs — prices paid by distributors for clean, sized, minimum 80 per cent A quality; Raleigh and Charlotte, farm large 43; Durham, farm, large 40; prices paid producers on graded out basis; Asheville steady, A large 41.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed signs of thawing out early this afternoon as prices moved a bit higher with turnover moderate.

Gains of fractions to a point were posted by key stocks in a number of major groups. Business news remained mixed and there were some unfavorable corporate items. Technically, the market had some encouragement through Wall Street rumors that the new short interest figures, due after the close today, would show an increase. If the rumor turns out to be true, a big cushion would be placed under declining prices. Great Northern Paper Co. cut its dividend to 15 cents from 60 cents and the stock dived more than 2 points. A reduction in dividend by Curtiss-Wright, to 62 1/2 cents from 75 cents, was apparently a pleasant surprise to some traders who might have expected a larger cut. The stock traded at a 2-point premium for a while before settling back to a gain of well over a point.

Chance-Vought was ahead more than a point, resuming yesterday's rise on favorable statements in financial circles. United Aircraft was another 1-point gainer.

Steels, motors, radio-television chemicals, base metals, oils and airlines showed a higher tone. Rubbers were mixed. Leading rails, farm implements and mail orders showed some change.

Gains of about a point were posted for Johns-Manville, U.S. Gypsum, Zenith, Allied Chemical, Phelps Dodge and Texas Co. Lorillard and Polaroid dropped fractions. The stock traded at a 2-point premium for a while before settling back to a gain of well over a point.

Draw Suspended Terms For Attacking Officers

Two Greenville Negro women, Marie Whitehurst, 25, and Georgia Joyner, 23, received identical sentences in City Court yesterday after being convicted of assaulting Pitt County ABC officers.

Both were charged on four warrants as a result of an affray in the home of Oscar Cherry, 51-year-old Negro of 521 Sheppard Street, January 11. During the commotion, ABC officer James Ross received a facial laceration and bruises about the arms.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee sentenced the pair to six months in Woman's Prison for resisting arrest but suspended the term upon payment of court costs. In making the suspension, the Judge further stipulated that each woman remain of good behavior for two years and be placed on a two-year probation.

On charges of hindering an officer, Judge Whedbee handed down another six-month sentence in the Woman's Prison. The sentence was suspended upon payment of $25, costs deducted. Each woman was directed to pay one-half of Ross' medical bill, remain of good behavior for a two-year period and placed on a two-year probation.

Charged on warrants for assault with a deadly weapon, both women were given two separate sentences of 60 days in County Jail. The second sentence is to run concurrent with the first 60-day term.

Both women appealed their cases to Pitt County Superior Court. They were released under a $200 bond each.

Twenty-Four Of Ship's Crew Are Swept To Death

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Twenty seven crewmen who had abandoned the sinking Italian freighter Bonitas were pitched into the stormy Atlantic when their lifeboat capsized last night as a rescue ship tried to pluck them to safety.

Three were saved and 24 were swept away by 20-foot seas. The freighter President Adams, which rescued the three; Navy destroyer escorts and the French ship Cavalair searched without success for the other crew members. Visibility was poor.

The stricken freighter's crew abandoned ship in one lifeboat shortly before 6 p.m., several hours after the ship had sent an SOS from her position 120 miles east of Cape Lookout, N.C. The President Adams reached the Bonitas about 8 p.m. The rescue vessel informed the Coast Guard in Norfolk that she had gotten to the lifeboat because of high seas, blinding snow-storm and gale winds.

The Bonitas' crew tried to bring their lifeboat alongside the Adams but the heavy seas and the roll of the ship caused the boat to capsize.

Due to darkness and snow-storm, the other men drifted away, the Adams reported. The rescued men were identified as the Bonitas' skipper, Capt. James Marini; deckboy Alfredo Contesti; and fireman Giovanni Barbato.

In her first distress message, sent at 2:30 p.m., the Bonitas said she was taking water and was in danger of sinking. Later in the afternoon she radioed, "Sinking more and more. Ready to leave."

A Coast Guard plane dispatched from Elizabeth City, N. C., reported at 5:52 p.m. the freighter was abandoning ship in one lifeboat. The plane reported the Bonitas was down by the head, her well deck was awash, and her propeller was turning slowly.

The Bonitas was bound for Baltimore. She is of 5,636 gross tons and is 447 feet long.

Merchant Directors Vote Organize Credit Collection Division In City

The directors of the Merchants Association have voted to organize and operate a Credit-Collection Division here.

Details of the new division are to be worked out by the Board in the near future. One member said he expected it will be in operation within the next 30 to 60 days.

J. D. McGlohon, Jr., newly elected President of the Merchants Association, stated, "We think this collection division will afford members of the Association an added service which, in my opinion, is greatly needed."

The primary purpose of the collection division, McGlohon explained, is to aid local merchants in collecting delinquent accounts. He noted that a number of Greenville business firms had requested that such an agency be formed.

At the Monday night meeting, the directors went on record as complying with the request made by the Greenville Council of

School Preference Plan Hits Obstacle

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Efforts by the Nashville School Board to use a three-school, parents' preference plan and the state's new pupil assignment law in school desegregation have been blocked in U. S. District Court.

Judge William E. Miller ruled that neither proposal would meet his order for desegregation beyond the first-grade level. He directed the board to submit an acceptable plan by April 7.

Series Of Fire Calls, But None Proved Serious

There was a series of fire calls yesterday but none of the blazes proved to be serious.

An alarm was sounded from Greenville Tobacco Co. yesterday morning when a sprinkler froze and burst.

A call came from 1508 E. Fourth St. when fire developed underneath the house where plumbers were thawing a water pipe. Firemen reported damage light. The house is owned by Mrs. A. W. Baker.

Advices Pushing Gifted Students

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—It's better to give a gifted student a stiffer work schedule than to let him race through school in less than normal time, a District of Columbia educator said today.

S. Harry Baker, director of education in the District of Columbia secondary schools, said the question is still a "hot potato" in junior and senior high school circles. But, he said, more and more speed-up plan is being abandoned in favor of an enriched type of study program.

Denies Motion To Acquit Scales

GREENSBORO (AP) — Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan today denied a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal in behalf of Junius Irving Scales, one-time leader of the Communist party in the Carolinas and Tennessee.

In moving for a directed verdict, defense attorney Telford Taylor had argued that government evidence was insufficient to warrant the Smith Act case's going to the jury.

France Reported Ready To Give Up Tunis Bases

WASHINGTON (AP)—France was reported ready today to give up five small Tunisian air bases and convert its Bizerte naval base into an Atlantic Pact installation to ease tensions in the area.

American and British diplomats pushed backstage arrangements to help France and Tunisia settle their dispute.

The U.N. Security Council met to consider the dispute but turned it over to the conciliators, who said they had affirmative proposals in mind.

Responsible diplomats said France was ready to consider, as part of any peace plan, substantial reductions in the 15,000-man force it maintains in Tunisia.

They insisted, however, that if Bizerte is converted into a North Atlantic Pact base, French forces must be allowed to man the installations. France would not object, however, they said, to including personnel from other Atlantic Pact countries too.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba has demanded that France withdraw all her troops and abandon the Bizerte base. He acted after French planes bombed and strafed a village France said was an Algerian rebel stronghold.

To demonstrate their view that France is prepared to be reasonable, the diplomats reported that Premier Felix Gaillard's government also was ready to:

1. Create a corps of French-Tunisian observers to watch the border with Algeria and check frontier violations by either French or Algerian rebel forces.
2. Create a five-kilometer-wide "no man's land" on the Algerian side of the Tunisian border. This probably would be an extension of the present electrified barbed wire fortifications the French have erected along 700 miles of the 1,200-mile frontier.

Optimist
FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP)— This is what might be called "The Story of the Optimistic Bandit."

But first, one sentence to provide atmosphere for this story: Fayetteville had a low temperature of seven degrees yesterday, a low of 15 degrees this morning.

This scene: the office of the Colonial Ice plant at 3 a.m. today. Two Negro employees are on duty.

A white man, masked with a handkerchief and carrying a pistol, enters. It's a holdup. He wants all the money from the cash register.

One of the employes turns to the cash register and its open drawer, points to the empty till, and announces in a strong, emphatic stage voice: "There ain't none."

The bandit relieves both men of small amounts of change they have in their pockets.

Exit the bandit, cursing dirtily, into the freezing night. Curtain.
