President Will Have Physical Check Saturday Kentucky School Bus With 40 Children Plunges Into River; At Least 20 Dead

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower had a cracked tooth extracted today at Walter Reed Army Hospital, and stayed there for a physical checkup tomorrow. The White House reported the extraction "normal and successful." The examination will be a follow-up to the minor stroke Eisenhower suffered last Nov. 24. It will be conducted by three of the neurological specialists called in at the time of that illness. The tooth extraction took only about 15 minutes. Eisenhower went to the hospital from the White House after sitting in at a Cabinet meeting. Arrangements for the extraction had been made earlier, it was disclosed by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty. He told newsmen the tooth, a back molar, was split recently when the President bit down on some hard substance. After the extraction, Hagerty read this statement to reporters at the hospital: "The President had a simple extraction of an upper molar tooth that he had split previously while eating. 'The extraction was normal and successful.' In response to questions, Hagerty said the anticoagulants which the President has been getting regularly since his heart attack in September 1955, were halted temporarily yesterday because of plans for the tooth extraction. The purpose of an anticoagulant is to keep the blood from clotting. Clotting time tests this morning showed the blood in satisfactory condition for extraction of the tooth, Hagerty reported. Hagerty said Eisenhower probably would just lounge around the rest of the day. He expects to return to the White House by tomorrow afternoon. The extraction was finished less than an hour later. So far as is known that will be Eisenhower's first check-up by such specialists since last Dec. 10. At that time the doctors pronounced him sufficiently recovered—less than three weeks after he was stricken—to attend the Paris NATO conference later that month. The White House said in December there would be another examination by neurologists about mid-January. At his news conference two days ago Eisenhower was asked why the checkup had been delayed. He replied that he had been wondering about that himself and added he would make some inquiries. Neurologists scheduled to examine Eisenhower Saturday are Dr. Francis M. Forster, professor of neurology and dean of the Georgetown medical school; Dr. Houston H. Merritt, professor of neurology at Columbia University medical school; and Lt. Col. Roy E. Clauser Jr., chief of neurology at Walter Reed. This was the first day back on the job for Hagerty himself, after a Walter Reed check on his stomach ulcers. His doctors reported him "in fairly good condition." Hagerty entered the hospital Wednesday.

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. (AP)—A Floyd County school bus carrying some 40 youngsters collided with a truck, sidwiped an automobile, then plunged into the rain-swollen Levisa Fork of Big Sandy River today. State police said more than 20 children, and the bus driver, may have died in the accident which occurred three miles south of here. Ten youngsters escaped by climbing through a rear door before the vehicle sank. State police were unable to furnish the names of the drivers of the other vehicles. They said the bus skidded to the edge of the bank, then rolled into the water. Ten youngsters scrambled through a rear door and got ashore. The last girl out managed to save herself by grabbing the foot of a man on the bank. The bus was carrying students to elementary and high schools in Prestonsburg from the Cow Creek area in southern Floyd County. Rescue workers began dragging the river but were unable to locate the bus, which sank in about 30 feet of water. Principal James Boen of Prestonsburg High School said the bus driver, John Alex Derossiet, about 28, had been with the county system more than five years. He said the youngsters were coming in from rural homes covering a 15-mile area in this coal mining community, about 82 miles southwest of Huntington, W. Va. State police quoted one of the rescued children as saying at least 19 children and the bus driver were still on the bus when it submerged.

FCC Prober Tells Mack He Should Resign His Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—A member of the House subcommittee investigating the Federal Communications Commission told Richard A. Mack to his face today the greatest service he could render would be to resign from the commission. Mack made no immediate reply to this suggestion from Rep. Moss (D-Calif.). It came during the second day of questioning in the commission, central figure in charges of influence surrounding award of television Channel 10 in Miami. Mack has insisted that he has done nothing wrong, and he told reporters that of course he would not resign. Under questioning by Moss, Mack testified that he took the word of Thurman A. Whiteside, his childhood friend, as to arrangements Whiteside made to provide him with an interest in the Stembler-Shelden insurance agency of Miami, and with the sole ownership of Andar Inc., a holding company. He said he did not question or check the amounts paid him as due on the participating interest he owned in the agency. And he said he did not ask for details when Whiteside, a Miami attorney, told him about a year ago they would handle it through ownership of Andar. Mack said he knew nothing of information Moss said he had received that a man identified as "your assistant, Mr. Barber" had been made vice president of Andar Inc. Each of the FCC commissioners has a lawyer-assistant. Mack's is Earl Barber of Miami, who has told reporters he was once sort of a law clerk with Whiteside. Moss told Mack: "This is incredible to me. As a member of the Federal Communications Commission you accept ownership of a holding company authorized to go into almost any kind of activity. 'You don't know who the officers are.' 'You have no knowledge of the scope of its activities.' 'You are willing to accept whatever others tell you is due you from your ownership.' 'Mr. Mack, the greatest service you could render the Federal Communications Commission would be to submit immediately your resignation.' 'On this testimony, if no other, you are unfit to serve on a group having the grave responsibilities of the Federal Communications Commission.' When Mack did not reply, Moss turned to other questions. Mack said yesterday the more than $10,000 he has received in loans and advances from Miami Atty. Thurman A. Whiteside, a long-time friend, had nothing to do with his vote on the awarding of TV Channel 10 in Miami. The FCC commissioner said he has repaid most of the money he borrowed from Whiteside over many years. He testified Whiteside "never in his life attempted to use any financial obligation of mine" to influence his actions. Mack said he was contacted by supporters of rival applicants for the TV channel, but that he based his vote on the evidence in the case. The FCC voted a year ago to grant the Channel 10 license to Public Service Television, Inc., a subsidiary of National Airlines. Mack voted with the majority in the 4-2 ruling that overturned an examiner's recommendation that the license go to A. Frank Katzentine, a Miami radio station operator. In all, there were four applicants for Channel 10. Mack, a Florida Democrat, was named to the FCC by President Eisenhower in July 1955. Under questioning, Mack testified that nobody at the White House ever contacted him about the Miami TV channel contest after he came on the FCC. He replied "No, sir" when asked by Rep. Hale (R-Maine) if he had been contacted by a number of persons, including Sherman Adams, chief presidential aide; Vice President Nixon; or Col. Gordon Moore, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Eisenhower. A previous witness had testified of hearsay reports that Moore was "engineering" the application of Public Service for the TV channel.

J. H. Paylor Files For Solicitor

John Hill Paylor, former Assistant Attorney General for the State of North Carolina, has filed for the Democratic nomination for solicitor of Pitt County Recorder's Court. Paylor is a Farmville attorney who returned to Pitt County February 1 to resume the private practice he left in 1942. He will be seeking the post held by James G. Lanier, Jr., since January 1, 1955. Lanier, who will complete his second term as solicitor on December 31, announced a week ago that he would not seek a new term. A native of Laurinburg, Paylor opened his law practice in Farmville in 1921, a year after he graduated from the University of North Carolina. He represented Pitt County in the North Carolina General Assembly in the 1935 and 1937 sessions, but left the county in July, 1942, to become an enforcement attorney with the Office of Price Administration. After five years with OPA, Paylor began a two-year tenure of being an attorney for the North Carolina Utilities Commission. He left that job eight-and-a-half years ago to become Assistant Attorney General assigned to the Utilities Commission, a post he held until he returned to Farmville in February. Paylor is an Army veteran of World War I, a member of the American Legion, 40 and 8, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, Sudan Temple, Woodmen of the World, and the Masonic Order. The 61-year-old attorney is married to the former Alice Flynn of Pitt County. They have two sons, John Hill Paylor, Jr., and Robert J. Paylor, both of whom live in Charlotte.

Murderer Dies In Gas Chamber

RALEIGH (AP)—Convicted killer Julius Bunton, his eyes staring glassily, died today in Central Prison gas chamber. The slightly-built Negro, wearing only a pair of white shorts, was led into the small chamber at 9:58 a. m. A stethoscope was strapped to his chest. The prison chaplain read from the Bible as Bunton was strapped into the brown, wooden, high-backed chair. He did not struggle. Bunton, his head bowed, stared at the ground, raising his eyes once to the window with its one-way glass. Witnesses can see in, but the prisoner cannot see out. A prison official slipped a leather mask over Bunton's face, leaving only his nose visible. The deadly cyanide pellets were dropped into the container of sulphuric acid at 10:01 a. m. Bunton's chest rose and fell in short, hard breaths. His hands curled. At 10:05, his head twitched. He slumped in the chair, his movements stopped. At 10:18, he was pronounced dead. The prison warden said Bunton's body would be taken to his home in Bennettsville, S. C., by his father later today. He was condemned to die for his part in the robbery-murder of a High Point taxi driver. The State Supreme Court upheld the death sentence Bunton received in Guilford County Superior Court. After a 30-day reprieve to study the case, Gov. Hodges announced two days ago that he would not act to prevent the carrying out of the sentence. Bunton, 22-year-old illiterate Negro and John Kollock Jr., both of Bennettsville, S. C., were convicted of first degree murder in the death of Clifford W. Phillips in a robbery which netted $15. The Slaying occurred Jan. 5, 1957. Kollock received a life sentence when the jury recommended mercy. There was no such recommendation for Bunton, who had been identified as the actual slayer. Prison Chaplain William H. R. Jackson said Bunton received an acceptance of impending doom only after flashes of bitter anger. The governor's failure to intervene, the chaplain explained, was a keen blow. The Rev. Jackson said Bunton could not understand why he should die and his accomplice in the murder live.

Three Men Die In Wilson Wreck

WILSON, N. C. (AP)—A car and a tractor-trailer slammed together at a highway intersection, taking the lives of three Wilson businessmen near here early last night. Killed in the crash were Thurston Lafayette Anthony, an insurance man; Charlie Farris, a department store operator; and Bruce W. Morgan, a cafe owner. Officers said the driver of the tractor-trailer, identified as Bobby Ray Hill of Benson, would be charged with manslaughter. Highway Patrol Cpl. N. E. Merritt said Hill, who was hospitalized with head injuries, failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection. A heavy rain was falling when the accident occurred during twilight hours. The scene was the intersection of highways N. C. 581 and 42 in Western Wilson County. Dr. R. E. Goudy, Wilson County coroner, said weather conditions at the time was "treacherous." The car, driven by Anthony, was thrown into a ditch and pretty well demolished, the coroner said. Anthony was a former coach at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson and a graduate of Southeastern Christian College in Georgia. He had taught at the University of Georgia. Survivors included his wife and two sons, Claude A. and John, all of Wilson; three brothers, Clarence J. the Rev. Elmer N. and Carl F. Anthony, all of High Shoals, Ga.; and two sisters, Mrs. C. O. Landers of High Shoals, and Mrs. O. L. Lindsay of Decatur, Ga.

Festivities For Film Premiere

WASHINGTON, N. C. (AP)—A day-long program of festivities got underway today for the world premiere of a new motion picture—"Lafayette Escadrille." A parade, boat regatta on the Pamlico river, and picnic were on the program preceding tonight's premier which was to be followed by a dance. The roster of special guests for the festivities included Hollywood stars Susan Oliver and James McArthur; Herve Alphonse, French ambassador to the United States, and Rep. Herbert C. Bonner (D-N.C.). The premier of the World War I picture about a group of Americans who flew and fought for France before the U.S. entered the war is being held in Washington because it was the home of James Henry Baughman, the youngest and one of the most decorated members of the original Lafayette Escadrille. The 18-year-old Baughman was killed in action after he had shot down four German planes. Plans call for the eventual erection of a community youth center to be named in honor of Baughman. Funds raised by the premier will be used for this purpose.

Conclusion: No Leg On The Hook

GLENCOVE, N. C. (AP)—Wild excitement swept this little mill village yesterday when someone reported two human legs in the Haw River at the foot of a dam. Police and firemen struggled in vain to get a boat near the spot where the rain-swollen river crashed over the dam. Finally Fire Chief Roma Fortune threw a grappling hook, caught the dimly-seen shapes and hauled. The hook pulled out straight. Logs, not legs, Fortune decided. Nothing was missing from the shop. The building was entered through a rear door, forced open and extensively damaged. Assisting Chandler in his investigation are SBI agent Clyde Pentress of Washington, members of the Greenville Police Department and the Pitt County Sheriff's Department. No arrests have been made.

Small Tornado Crumples Barns

LUMBERTON, N. C. (AP)—A small tornado struck a farm four miles northeast of here late yesterday demolishing two tobacco barns and damaging a new house. The storm hit the farm of Doc Locklear. There were no injuries reported. A member of the Locklear family who was in a nearby field said she saw the "black rolling cloud" hit the barns and the house which received about $2,000 worth of damage. Utility lines and trees were blown down. There were no other reports of a tornado in the area.

Pitt Republicans Re-Elect Manning

Pitt County Republicans, reminded last night that the county gave President Eisenhower more votes in 1956 than any other First Congressional District county, laid plans last night to insist on a big voice in district and state party operations. X. E. Manning of Bethel, re-elected to another two-year term as county Republican chairman, will be offered as a candidate for the Republican Congressional District Executive Committee next Friday in Washington, N. C. Manning was named as one of the delegates to the district meeting and as county party chairman will be eligible for a place on the district committee. Manning's election as county chairman by the 11 party members who attended a biennial convention here continues his service in a job he has held since 1952. Mrs. Frances Butterworth, also of Bethel, was named vice-chairman and secretary-treasurer of the county organization. H. R. Mumford of Greenville, John H. Dall of Winterville, John Scarborough of Grifton, Henry T. Smith of Fountain and Mrs. Mae Abrams of Farmville were re-elected to new terms on the county organization's Executive Committee. Manning is an ex-officio member of the Executive Committee. Delegates to the biennial meeting also heard a call for efforts to bring more young members into the county organization, particularly from the organized Young Republicans Club at East Carolina College. "There are many young Republicans at East Carolina," Manning said, "and we should make some effort to get them into our county organization. We should have a meeting with them to make ourselves known and to make the Republican Party's efforts in this area familiar to them." Delegates who were named to represent the county in the March 8 State Republican Convention in Winston-Salem are Manning, Scarborough, Mac Mumford, J. D. Mumford and John H. Dall. The delegates to the state meeting, as well as the district convention, were authorized to cast the county's full share of convention votes. In a report on activities during the past two years, members of the organization were told of party work with the state organization, appointment recommendations, and contribution of $60 to the Eisenhower Dinner in Winston-Salem.

Steering Wheel Off . . . Crashed

BURLINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Evelyn Pettiford was driving from here to her home in Greensboro with two women friends when her car hit a dip in the road. The trunk lid popped open. Evelyn turned to look and the steering wheel came off in her hands. The car charged off the road, tore up nine heavy guard posts, went over a 30-foot bank and smashed into a concrete bridge abutment. Highway patrolmen said the car was completely demolished, but the three women were unhurt. Police said the screw holding the steering wheel of the 1951 model car had given way.

Over $200 Missing In Ayden Safe-Cracking

AYDEN—Approximately $250 in cash was stolen from one safe here last night and another safe-breaking attempt was unsuccessful, Police Chief H. V. Chandler Jr. reports. Chief Chandler stated this morning that a full scale investigation is underway in connection with the break-ins at S. ad E. Motor Company on Third Street and Tripp's Blacksmith Shop on East Avenue. Both local firms were entered sometime last night, the law officer said. Following a preliminary investigation, Chandler said between $200 and $300 was stolen from a safe in the S. and E. Motor Company. Nothing else was reported missing from the automobile firm. Entrance was gained through a skylight in the rear of the building, Chandler noted that the safe,

Group Urges Acceleration Of Federal Expenditures

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate House committee says monetary action and stepped-up federal spending in a number of fields are needed to stem the recession. If these don't work, "tax reduction will be in order," the group says. In a formal report, the Joint Economic Committee urged acceleration of federal programs for highway construction, slum clearance, housing, school and health facilities, and provision of needed public buildings. It assigned a "high priority" to outlays for navigation and flood control, water and soil conservation, and reclamation. These programs, the report said, "have great merit . . . both for the immediate employment opportunities they create and because of their contributions to long-run economic development." At the same time, Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the House Appropriations Committee called on Army and Interior Department officials to come up with what he called "a more realistic program and revised estimates" for spending on public works in the fiscal year starting July 1. Postponing committee hearings on public works appropriations, Cannon said the programs proposed by the two departments are "completely inadequate," especially in view of the economic slump. The Senate-House committee said that "if monetary action, expenditure measure and other ac-

NAACP Unveils Its Voter Drive

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People, with a goal of 250,000 more Negro voters in North Carolina by 1960, will aim its voter registration drive at six major cities and nine Eastern North Carolina counties. Kelly Alexander of Charlotte, state NAACP president, said yesterday city targets will be Asheville, Charlotte, Durham, Winston-Salem, Greensboro and Raleigh. The nine counties, known as the "black belt," are Bertie, Edgecombe, Gates, Halifax, Hertford, Hoke, Martin, Northampton and Warren. Alexander said there are about 135,000 registered Negro voters in the state and that the goal of 250,000 more would leave an estimated 170,000 unregistered Negro voters in North Carolina. The drive is set to begin after the NAACP's Southeast regional meeting in Greensboro March 6-9. "We don't anticipate any resistance to registration in the six cities," commented Alexander. "Possibly we will encounter some in the counties, where the Negro population equals or exceeds the white. However, we will present the facts of any resistance to the U.S. Department of Justice. 'Our main point is that this is a nonpartisan campaign,' politically, Alexander declared.

Close Hospital; Patients Scarce

GREENSBORO (AP)—The Central Carolina Convalescent Hospital, operated for polio victims since 1948, will be closed by Sept. 30 because of declining number of patients, say hospital trustees. The trustees board said in a letter yesterday that "if there is any interested group with a proposal, it will receive full consideration." The hospital was set up 10 years ago when Greensboro was in the midst of its worst polio epidemic. Shriners spearheaded the fund-and-materials-raising effort. Hundreds of laborers and skilled workers donated services. ANOTHER FIRE GASTONIA, N. C. (AP)—The second floor of a downtown Gastonia office building was gutted by fire last night in the second main street fire in two weeks.

Close-Up View Of Road Damage

ASHEVILLE (AP)—State Highway Engineer W. H. Rogers Jr. apparently has first hand knowledge of just what the winter has done to mountain roads. On an inspection tour of mountain counties, Rogers was due here today. But he telephoned from North Wilkesboro and made arrangements with 13th Highway Division Engineer W. M. Corkill to meet him in Spruce Pine. "I thought you were coming on down this way," Corkill said. "Humph," Rogers said, "I've been stuck in the mud of time."

Benson Remains Favorite Target

WASHINGTON (AP)—Midwestern Republicans kept up their political fire at Secretary of Agriculture Benson today in the expressed hope of forcing him to reconsider his refusal to resign. Rep. Weaver (R-Neb.), who carried GOP protests to President Eisenhower yesterday, told newsmen, "The President is not going to fire him and is not going to ask him to resign." He said some 30 rebellious GOP Midwestern House members, worried by what he called a grass roots political uprising against administration farm policies, plan to appeal to Benson to tender his resignation for the good of the Republican party. "I told the President it was the opinion of the group that it may mean 20 to 30 House seats, a few Senate seats and governorships in the farm belt," he said. Benson, discounting any thoughts of resigning, told a news conference his policies would be political assets rather than liabilities to Republicans who got out and worked for them. He contended his policies are fair and sound, and are gaining more and more support from farmers. They are designed not to drive prices down, he said, but to let prices reach levels at which the products will sell. Other Republican House members defended the secretary. Rep. Gussner (R-Calif.) sent a letter to Eisenhower today calling for retention of Benson as "a man of integrity, foresight and courage," and asking Eisenhower to announce that the government is getting "completely out of the price support business."

Outstanding Young Farmer Of State To Be Announced Here

North Carolina's Outstanding Young Farmer will be named from among 39 county winners here tonight. The banquet will be held in the Moose Lodge Auditorium beginning at 6:30. State chairman for the project Milton C. Williamson, said the award will be presented to the man chosen for the state-wide honor by Jack Sharpe, North Carolina Jaycee president. The invocation will be pronounced by the Rev. John Drake, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church and member of the local Jaycee club. Local club president Bill Taylor will welcome the guests. Special guests are to be introduced by J. B. Smith, a club national director. "Humph," Rogers said, "I've been stuck in the mud of time."

Do You Like The Sack? No! Wear It? Yes!

Survey Proves Again Women Are Complex

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

More than two out of three American women say they dislike the new sack—or chemise—fashions. But almost half of them say they'll probably wear them, anyway.

This, despite the fact that only one husband in seven has expressed himself as pleased with fashion's most recent rearrangement of the female form divine.

The Associated Press made a sack survey of women from San Francisco to New York, from Maine to California. Housewives, spinsters, society leaders, professional women, career girls, working girls and teen-agers were among those polled. The survey may not have proved much about the fate of the chemise silhouette, but it does seem to reinforce the mise. Eighty per cent, however, merrily reported husbandly reactions ranging from "What have you got on—a laundry bag?" (Greer Garson, actress) to "He would completely ignore me—and I'm serious." (Mrs. Robert McCann, Bismarck, N. D. housewife.)

Overwhelmingly (75 per cent), the women expressed a permanent preference for simple, classic clothes. And well over half insisted that the revolutionary new silhouette will be no more than a passing fancy except for women who go in for high style.

Singer Patti Page, for instance, says she likes the new dresses very much—but not for television, where the chemise is ignored as studiously as off-color jokes.

"Television clothes," she said, "are different from street wear. A chemise might look good, in person. But the camera wouldn't help the dress at all."

Defenders of the sack, generally, seemed to cluster in the larger cities, to be high-style conscious—and slender. St. Louis housewife Mrs. Pat Saxon gave a typical answer: "I like it. And I plan to wear sack dresses because they are a high fashion item. Actually, they aren't sack when they fit correctly."

Fashion-plate Ina Claire, former stage star and now Mrs. William Wallace, San Francisco social leader, insists that a well-made chemise, like her favorite Balenciaga, is subtle and delicately curved "so you can see there is a human body in it."

Sack-haters, however, were more colorful in their attack. A woman physician in Atlanta, Ga., Dr. Irene Phrydas, remarked that she thinks it's "terrific for women in an early stage of pregnancy; this season is a wonderful time even to know with the sack look."

St. Louis receptionist Catherine Noerteman just thinks "it stinks," and New York writer Janice Devine sees in it "a conspiracy by designers to make women look silly." Mrs. June Laird of Topeka, Kan., finds sack dresses "utterly ridiculous," and Mrs. J. Glynn Frost of Gardiner, Me., just said, "No swear words allowed—I think it's awful."

Stage and TV star Mary Martin is a veteran of the sack: she wore one in a comedy routine six years ago in her television debut.

"They laughed at me when I wore a sack in 1952," she said. "And I don't blame them. It was funny then and it's funny now."

Miss Martin, however, is broadminded about the new silhouette. "These are tense days and it's good, for a change, for men to have a good laugh. Why shouldn't we women give it to them?"

Although Miss Martin insists that her husband finds the sack funny, it is apparent that large numbers of husbands do not.

"He wouldn't take me out if I wore such a thing," said Mrs. James Snow of Topeka—and her husband's sentiments were widely echoed by married males all over the country.

"He'd be absolutely right in burning every one of the fool things I brought home," said San Francisco's Mrs. Frances E. Johnson, secretary.

Many style conscious women, like Greer Garson, however, urged patience in judging the new vogue.

"In the past fashions of the newest high style always looked a little comic at first," said Broadway's current Auntie Mame. "But women have managed so far to look charming in every day and every age, and I am sure they will not be defeated by the sack."

Hawaiian Muumuu Granny Of Chemise

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

HONOLULU (AP)—The muumuu is an Hawaiian dress that looks like a nightgown, is built like a tent and has as much glamour as a potato sack.

For reasons unknown to men, women are crazy about them.

Every woman in Hawaii owns at least one muumuu. Most women have three or four.

They wear these drapery shapes to go shopping, as house dresses, sports dresses, for the beach and for lounging.

The muumuu also makes an excellent maternity dress. Women here wear them to parties and dances.

It is an old tradition to wear nothing beneath the muumuu. (There are no reliable statistics on how closely this tradition is observed. There are no unreliable statistics either.)

College Fad

The muumuu vogue is said to be spreading to the American mainland, especially among college coeds and in the Hollywood movie colony, ever since a film troupe was on location in Hawaii last year to make "South Pacific."

The muumuu dates back 138 years. It is an adaptation of the Mother Hubbard brought to Hawaii in 1820 by the wives of New England missionaries.

One legend says these women were shocked by the nude Polynesian girls and quickly covered them up with the sack-shaped Mother Hubbards.

Another tale—and take your choice—says the Hawaiian queens of the day were entranced by the free-flowing garments worn by the missionary wives and asked them to help make muumuus for their own use.

Hefty Queens

Because Hawaiian queens sometimes weighed as much as 300 pounds, the missionary wives fashioned Mother Hubbards of tent-size proportions. Once the other island women saw their queens in muumuus, the story goes, they rushed to make their own.

The present-day muumuus are all floor length and come with a variety of necklines. They are usually made up in bright Hawaiian prints. They range in price from $5 to $30.

Muumuus are usually worn with sandals on the feet and flowers in the hair. (Flowers worn behind the left ear indicate the girl is married or spoken for and behind the right ear, she's available and looking. Flowers worn on top of the head mean she's spoken for or married but looking anyway. No flowers mean a tourist.)

Polynesian men are said to prefer the muumuu to conventional, form-fitting dresses.

One Hawaiian says: "The muumuu keeps you guessing. It adds a touch of mystery to a woman and works on your imagination."

A somewhat different view is taken by Society Editor Betty Wilder of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin. She says: "Some people spell it moonoo. That's not surprising because it's big enough to cover a cow."

Before Paris

Miss Yoshi Sameshima, a fashion designer, says: "Hawaii is showing the fashion world that the islands had the chemise before Paris fashion experts came on the scene."

Jack Gillet, president of an organization known as the Waikiki Unmarried Bachelors' Association, says:

"The muumuu is charming and has its place."

He did not say what place.

A sampling of opinion in the U. S. Navy at Pearl Harbor boils down to this:

"The muumuu will never replace the grass skirt."

Because Hawaiian queens sometimes weighed as much as 300 pounds, the missionary wives fashioned Mother Hubbards of tent-size proportions.

HAWAII OUTSACKS THE SACK—Eleanor Tuckman and Auntie Elizabeth, a lei lady of Waikiki, wear Hawaii's favorite all-purpose costume, the bright, voluminous muumuu.

LAST LAUGH—Mary Martin fractured televiewers in 1952 with this silhouette. What was laugh-bait then is close to high fashion now.

average male's conviction that dames are inconsistent, would wear a burlap bag if fashion so dictated, and that—whatever they do dress for—it isn't the men in their lives.

Statistics turned up are impressive but, no matter how closely studied, they just don't make much sense. For instance:

What Women Think

To the direct question, "What do you think of the sack silhouette?" 26 per cent of the women vowed they liked it, they loved it, it was fun! Another 54 per cent remarked with varying degrees of violence that they disliked it, they loathed it, they wouldn't be caught dead in it. Twenty per cent made cautious, qualified answers—maybe for slender, hipless, young ones, but not for me. One woman, a factory worker in Illinois, said, "I never heard of it."

The next question was "Do you plan to wear it?" Thirty-eight per cent (and some of them were those who said they disliked it) announced they already were or would. Fifty-five per cent (and some of them were women who said they liked it) announced they would not, ever, wear it. A mere 7 per cent were undecided.

Seventy-two per cent of the survey group were married women. Fourteen per cent of them reported their husbands liked the che-

You may have your gripes against the home builder, ladies. But 'tain't nothing compared to the headaches you give him.

Take a quiet-hearted Irishman-like Dan Grady of Brookville, Long Island, for instance. Do you think he's in business to keep women from buying homes? Absolutely not. He just wants you to think before you come to see him. He puts it this way:

"What happens when a woman wants to buy a house? It runs to a pattern. She has spent six months or six years clipping beautiful pictures from the VERY BEST home magazines. She takes the best feature out of every $100,000 home, and wants it incorporated into one for $20,000. She beams when she shows me the notebook pasted up with pictures of her dream house, and reveals that she has saved me trouble."

It's always loaded with glass, beautifully patterned floors, a bathroom so luxurious it would put ancient Rome to shame, and the kitchen invariably rivals anything seen at the Waldorf Astoria or the Cordon Bleu. Grady says she wants built-in units to replace pieces she has seen at $500 or more. Only she wants them for $10 additional cost.

The fact that women cannot face, Grady says, "or choose to ignore" is that lovely things cost money. "You must provide smelling salts when you tell her the entire cost of the home." He builds in the $40,000-and-up range.

But does she give up? No. She thinks if she lops off a few things, she'll get the house $10,000 cheaper, Grady continues.

His system is to go down the list with his customer. But, out of 25 expensive items she has insisted on, 23 of them, she invariably says, "I can't live without."

That, he insists, is the crux of the situation. Women cannot live without beautiful things, even when they can't afford them.

What's the solution?

"Magazines and TV programs directed to women, showing alluring things, should give a gentle hint that they cost money. A woman will read Vogue or Glamour and admire a Dior dress, realizing she can never afford to own one, buying a fashion copy, perhaps. But when it comes to housing, she thinks the high style magazines are showing homes a notch below what she should have. So she even improves on them."

Miss Hyman Recognized By District, PTA

Miss Elizabeth Hyman, Greenville's "Teacher of the Year," received the district award of "Oscar for Teachers" at the Junior High School P.T.A. meeting last night.

The Oscar was awarded by District Fifteen of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs and was presented to Miss Hyman by Mrs. R. P. Rogers, district president.

Mrs. Rogers stated that one aim of the Women's Club is to promote better education, and it was with this in mind that the education department of the General Federation started their new project of honoring outstanding teachers.

On February 9, Miss Hyman received the local Women's Club award which placed her 50-year record of dedicated teaching up for consideration in District Fifteen, composed of clubs from 23 cities.

Teachers considered at district level had to meet five objectives of the Woman's Club Federation, and were judged on their record as a school teacher and on their activities beyond their job of teaching.

Receiving district recognition automatically makes Miss Hyman eligible for the State award, the winner of which will be announced at the Woman's Club State Convention in April.

Jr. High Recognizes Teacher
The Junior High School P.T.A., represented by Mrs. William H. Taft, presented Miss Hyman with a gold lapel pin incrustated with three small pearls as a gift of appreciation for her years of devotion to her profession and to her students.

During the evening an educational film, "Preface To A Life," was shown by Dr. C. R. Frewitt of East Carolina College. The film portrayed three types of home environment which influences a child in three entirely different ways.

Dr. Frewitt stressed the importance of environment by saying: "No one develops by himself alone, but develops his personality from those around him."

Mrs. M. P. Bailey Jr., president, presided and in the course of business appointed a nominating committee composed of J. E. Waldrop, chairman, Mrs. Robert Powell, and Mrs. A. H. Van Dyke.

Mrs. Hartwell Campbell reported the teacher's lounge almost complete and invited everyone to visit the room.

Robert Youngblood, principal, requested help from all P.T.A. members in securing a sponsor for a Junior High School baseball team.

The meeting opened with a thought provoking devotional by the Rev. Tom Davis of Albemarle Presbyterian Church.

Youngblood's homeroom won the attendance count.

Bloxam Says Area Has Water In Abundance

"Many other sections of North Carolina do not have the abundance of water that is found in this location," said Leonard Bloxam when he addressed the League of Women Voters general meeting Wednesday night.

Bloxam reviewed water practices on the local and state levels while Mrs. Robert Forney discussed water problems in the Federal government.

Geographical studies show that adequate treated ground water is available in Greenville, for the present, and for future industrial growth, explained Bloxam.

The one well already developed supplies 60% of Greenville's water supply in the winter, while the Tar River furnishes the other 40%. During summer months when the load is exceptionally heavy, the percentage is reversed.

Regarding water pollution in this area, five towns, with Tarboro the closest and including Green-vile, dump raw sewage into the Tar River. However, even at the river's low in October, 1954, the amount of sewage that could be detected was of no consequence. No controls have therefore been placed on the disposal of present industrial waste, as yet, said Bloxam.

The State Stream Sanitation Committee, established in 1951, works for abatement of stream pollution by classifying the streams.

After studying present water stream water quality, the stream is classified depending on how the water is to be used. This state agency approves any municipal water project in the state for which federal funds are used, and whether federal funds are used or not, it issues permits for any such installation in the state.

At the present, the agency is in the process of studying the Tar River Basin, which affects Green-vile. In expectation of population growth and industrial development, preliminary plans have been made for a sewage disposal plant. Engineering work on the plant is awaiting the Stream Sanitation Committee's classification of the Tar River Basin, he noted.

Bloxam concluded by saying that in 1955 the Board of Water Commissioners of North Carolina was set up to advise the Governor and the General Assembly; to make long range plans for the use of the State's water resources; to make public information concerning water resources; to allocate water in case of emergency conditions.

On the federal level, Mrs. Forney maintained, the biggest problem was how to reach agreement among government agencies, the Executive, the Congress, and the pressure groups, all operating "in the public interest."

She stated, "Unfortunately, on the federal level, there are 25 principal agencies with a major concern in water resources and power; 18 others that are concerned to a lesser degree, plus an independent corporation (TVA), and two international commissions. The situation is serious, but still there is just much talk, but little agreement."

"The 1956 Report of the Presidential Advisory Committee on Water Resources Policy directed its main attention to sorting out what was acceptable in earlier studies (Hoover Reports, etc.). Most critics rightly attack its omissions more than its proposals."

This most recent report does recommend a Water Resources Committee to study a given drainage area, an Interagency Committee, and an overall coordinator, she pointed out.

S-t-r-e-t-c-h-i-n-g Dollars

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Staff Writer

One of the brightest spots on the local market this week is improved supply and quality of head lettuce at lower prices.

Other fresh vegetables holding at relatively low price levels with plentiful supplies are carrots, potatoes, onions, cabbage, and sweet potatoes.

Frozen green vegetables that are available include green beans, spinach, broccoli, cauliflower, and turnips.

Processed vegetables will give the answer when fresh ones are not available or priced too high.

Apples are heading the list in the fruit picture. Banana prices are lower and the quality variable.

Orange supplies continue to be weak and their prices are going upward.

Fancy fruits are coming to the markets—prices higher than regular fruits. Grapefruit's quality is considered good at moderate prices.

Eggs, Meat Go Upward

Eggs are excellent protein food at most economical prices. The price went up slightly from last week on all sizes.

The margin remains narrow between large and medium sizes, making large the better buy.

Broiler supplies are adequate for the consumer demand at last week's price level. Hens are scarce.

Generally, all meat prices are up from last week.

Recent weather conditions have reduced the number of livestock being marketed which is due in part to the increase in meat prices.

Both beef and pork prices are up from last week. Veal and lamb prices continue to increase.

Processed and canned meats lend variety to menus and should be considered in menu planning.

Milk and milk products are protein-rich as well as calcium-rich. Prices do not fluctuate and supplies are plentiful.

During the Lenten season milk and cheese dishes give a wide variety of economical and different dishes. Ice cream products are good for desserts, snack time and entertaining.

Sappho Club Hears Mrs. Fisher

"Painting" was the topic of Mrs. Earl Fisher's program which she presented to the Sappho Book Club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Aubrey Taylor.

After showing many paintings she had created, beginning with her earliest efforts up to the present work, Mrs. Fisher told the story that prompted her to paint a majority of the pictures.

At the conclusion of the program, club members questioned Mrs. Fisher on steps and methods of painting.

Mrs. Taylor presided over the business meeting and welcomed the guests, Mrs. Fisher, Mrs. Claude S. Kidd, Mrs. Raymond Smith, and Mrs. J. D. Gilliam.

On arrival members and guests were served a dessert course with coffee.

Chop two hard-cooked eggs and add with a couple of tablespoons of minced parsley to a cup of thin hot white sauce. Serve with fish.

The theme of the lesson of the Women's Auxiliary of Grace Feik Will Baptist Church meeting Feb. 24 was "Our Ministry Among the Spanish Speaking People."

Those participating on the program were Mrs. Samuel Johnson, Mrs. Frank Wagner, and Mrs. J. B. Worthington Jr.

During the business meeting delegates to the District Convention in March were named. They will be Mrs. Richard Gregory and Mrs. Worthington Jr., representing the Marie Hanna Circle, and Mrs. Frank Wagner and Mrs. Sue Taylor from the Mabel Willey Circle.

Members decided to bring items to each Auxiliary meeting in order to help the needy. It was announced that a Pre-Easter Week of Prayer will be observed March 24-April 4.

Mrs. Herman Cannon called the meeting to order after the opening hymn. Mrs. James Paige read the scripture and Mrs. Elton Reel led the group in prayer.

The group was dismissed with a song and a prayer given by Mrs. Willie C. James.

Speaker Explains Hi-Fi Recordings For Cosmos Club

Donald Hayes of the ECC music department, assisted by Pete Oglesby, presented a musical program at the Cosmos Book Club meeting February 18.

Opening his talk with an explanation of high fidelity recording, Hayes stated, "Hi-Fi gives a true reproduction of sound and now all classifications of music are available in high fidelity."

"Choose the kind of music you and your family will enjoy hearing for a long time. Expose your youngsters to some of the good music, instead of allowing them a steady diet of the fad music."

After playing excerpts from records which illustrate the trends of today's musical recordings, Hayes answered questions asked by club members.

Indian Dinner To Be Main Dish At Moose Lodge's Sunday Buffet

This Sunday the cooks of the local Moose Lodge will see if they "can-do, like the Hindu" as they provide an Indian curry dinner for the visit to India by the members and guests at the weekly buffet.

Chicken Curry will be the main dish, with Dal and East Indian rice being served with the chicken. Dessert will include Halwa, an Indian pudding. Other dishes more native to East Carolina will be included, such as grilled ham steak, beef stew, string beans, tossed salad, and ice cream.

Entertainment will be provided by the showing of a motion picture entitled "Kumson Hill," a story of life in part of India. The film and flag of India, together with the menu, recipes, and literature, were furnished by P. C. Govil, Registrar of the Information Service of India, at the Embassy of India in Washington, D. C.

An outstanding feature of the display this week will be the showing of a personal collection.

The president conducted a short business meeting following the program before books were exchanged.

Mrs. George Lautares, hostess, served a dessert course with nuts and coffee on arrival of the 22 members and two guests.

of dolls, ivory, wool, wood and other memorabilia by Mrs. James E. Rodgers.

She collected this material during the war years, when she was in India for two years. Mrs. Rodgers will also be present to answer questions and describe the costumes and customs of these people.

With only a few more weeks left of the tour around the world, the group now heads into the rising sun and next week will visit in China and Japan.

Fair Enough As A Stop-Gap Plan

It is reassuring to learn that President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon have a clear understanding of what steps are to be taken to carry on top level government functions if the President becomes disabled.

We wonder if the conditions or stipulations set forth in the agreement should not be known by more people than just the President and Vice President and a few close advisers at the White House.

If a time comes when the agreement would be used, quite obviously Congress as well as members of the administration would be immediately concerned in its provisions. It is quite possible that a great deal of misunderstandings and controversy at the top level of government might be avoided if terms of the understanding are made known immediately to ranking members of Congress, both Democrats and Republicans.

It is possible also that provisions of the understanding may prove valuable to Congress as it sets about the matter of drawings legislature or a constitutional amendment to clarify the situation on a permanent basis.

The fact that the President and the Vice President have an understanding matter should not cause Congress to delay in making some clear provisions for the course of action to be taken if a President becomes disabled. At best the understanding between Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Nixon is a temporary, stop-gap measure meant only to exist until Congress makes more permanent arrangements.

The sooner Congress can set forth that permanent arrangement, the better off the nation will be.

Made To Order For Anti-U.S. Campaign

Inexcusable treatment of a Korean boy by American military personnel in Korea should bring maximum punishment for those responsible for the act.

The uncalculated incident in which the 13-year-old boy was nailed into a tiny box and then taken for a 25-mile helicopter ride is a reflection upon American armed forces stationed around the world. It will be used by Communists to mount another smear campaign at the United States. It cannot help but reduce the prestige enjoyed by the Americans troops in Korea and lessen the respect of the Korean people for their allies from across the Pacific.

In all probability the boy was due some punishment for stealing from an Army base. Proper channels exist for such punishment to be meted out. But when people take the law into their own hands—whether it be a few childish military personnel or a civil mob—no good is accomplished.

If the Army fails to punish those responsible for the treatment of the Korean boy, it will degrade itself in the eyes of the Koreans and in the eyes of the American people as well.

A Trend Toward 'Robin Hoodism'

By ELMER ROESSNER
A curious aspect of our trend toward a Robin Hood state is the spread of the principle of damage liability.

A Robin Hood state, of course, takes from the rich and gives to the poor. The United States has tended in that direction for more than a quarter of a century. Collective actions by rich corporations is punishable conspiracy; collective actions by poor working people has the benediction of the government. The rich are left to the mercy of landlords' greed; the moderately poor can get cheap government-assisted housing. Excises are levied heavily on the things the rich buy but only lightly on the things the poor need—except perhaps beer, which is taxed beyond all reason.

And the income taxes do a much more thorough job than Robin Hood and his merry men ever did. They take as much as 90 per cent of the incomes of the rich and only 20 per cent or less on the incomes of the poor.

SOCIALISTIC?
Some call this a trend to socialism. Others say we are on the road to Big Brotherism. But it's much more fun—and less provocative of ulcers—to consider it Robin Hoodism.

The idea of taking from the rich and giving to the poor has increased both legislation and awards in the area of damage liability. The defendant usually has money (otherwise, why sue him?) and the plaintiff is poor, or insists he is.

The increase in the size of awards in auto accidents has been phenomenal. Juries, it may be supposed, know the insurance companies pay most judgments and insurance companies are rich. So it's bingo! on every card in many courts. This has caused enormous rises in liability insurance rates for everybody—including jurors.

Several states now have compulsory auto insurance laws. Pursors there know the plaintiff is sure to be insured and sometimes juries consist of twelve Robin Hoods.

SPREAD IN OTHER FIELDS
—Marcus L. Plant, law professor at Michigan University, recently pointed out that in the last thirty years manufacturers have become liable for damages to people who use their products. The principle, he said, is now being extended to builders, contractors and even architects.

In a case in California a builder was held liable for damages when a porch railing broke eighteen years after it was built. In Washington, D.C., a contractor was held liable in another porch case eight years after he had repaired a railing.

Liability for damages to unborn children is increasing, he said. In 1940, authorities were virtually unanimous in declaring an unborn child had no right to be free from the direct injury. Now nine states have repudiated this doctrine, he said. Immunity enjoyed by government agencies and get out a system of ethics on Monday based not on the Christian gospel but on expediency and use that twenty-four hours a day until the next church service.

Is this too severe? Maybe; and yet again, maybe not severe enough. Certainly it is true that God pours love and light into our world and life, and we on the whole are never more than mildly loyal to Him, and often downright ungrateful.

Yet he loves us. He strives to have us as sons and daughters and so to share with us his tasks that we become fellow-workers with him.

Truly he has said: "As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts higher than your thoughts."

"The heart of the fool is in his mouth, but the heart of the wise man is in his head."—Benjamin Franklin.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
GOD AND HIS CREATURES
Are you greatly inspired as you look on humanity as a whole? Personally the writer of this article is not. He finds it hard to understand how God can be interested in a creature that makes as many mistakes as man does, and keeps making them over and over again, apparently learning nothing from experience. It is also hard to understand why God goes on loving us who return so little of his love. From time the sun rises in the morning until it sets in grandeur in the evening. God strews our paths with continual evidence of his love for us. And what do we do? Go to church Sunday (perhaps), and then dust off our religion and put it away in a cellophane bag until the next Sunday

I Might Use You, If He Slumps

By EVERETTE PARKER

Some Scraps And Pieces

For those who are interested, this year is the 45th anniversary of Federal income tax. On February 25, 1913, the 16th Amendment to the Constitution authorized same.

Sometimes I wonder if it is a profitable venture for a poor man to keep on living in this perfect Utopia of ours.

Not long ago while filing for county taxes, I learned it would be necessary for me to also pay city taxes. I have until April 15 to file Federal tax and a similar length of time to file for State tax.

It is necessary for me and every citizen of this country to pay luxury tax, gas tax, sales tax and state tax on just about everything but air and I am sure that politicians will figure out something on that score.

Many years ago when I was in grammar school we used to sing a song about about America, the Land of the Free. It seems to me it has been a long time since I have heard this song, written before taxes.

I am sure when Horace Greeley coined that old expression, "Go West young man," he had in mind that might be one place where the tax-collector would not be able to follow for fear of his life.

Speaking about filing tax returns and the "fix" of the world today, Staffer Jimmy Ellis has a story to tell about the man who wanted to end it all.

According to Jimmy, this man decided to climb the Brooklyn Bridge and jump into eternity. With him he took a piece of rope, a pistol, a knife and a bottle of poison.

When he got to the top of the bridge he tied the rope to a girder. To be absolutely sure that he would not fall, he put the bottle of poison to his lips, placed the pistol to his temple and with his free hand he planned to slash his wrists with the sharp knife.

He took the poison and the shock was so great that he jerked his hand, causing the knife to cut his hand instead of his wrists. As a result of the pain he jerked the pistol and shot the rope into as he fell.

When he fell into the water the salt caused him to vomit and lose the poison. Minutes later he was lifted from the water unharmed by a fisherman who saw him fall from the bridge.

"The current 'business recession' is worse than the government thinks," a Raleigh newspaperman says.

He reports seeing two bankers go into a sandwich shop and buy one sandwich which they split between them.

"And they're the ones that lend money!" he added.

"If all power is concentrated in the State, it is of no importance, in the long run, whether that State represents communism, fascism, British socialism or Welfare Statism, carried to its logical conclusion, or any other 'ism'."—Towner Phelan in The Freeman.

Opinions In Brief

Street of 80 years ago was subject to the influence, if not the domination, of a few individuals may be difficult to realize, since it differs so markedly from the present. Today, no one man could run the market ragged for even a few days or stabilize it by a telephone call."—Bernard Baruch.

partially to counteract their escapades.

Although logic and normal diplomatic factors and considerations must be shelved in any discussion of Middle East passions, politics and economics, it is quite conceivable that the current ferment in this area will operate favorably for the West and for Israel in the long run.

MIDDLE EAST NATIONS DIVIDED
The last 10 years have demonstrated that deep and basic cleavages divide the Arab nations. The events of that decade recall that they had never been united except during the period of fierce Islamic conquest more than a thousand years ago, and when under the stern dominion of strong Western powers like Britain and France.

In short, an Arabian gang-up against the West. All of this is still an Arabian Nights' dream in the face of these realities. Never-the-less, it is a situation which should bear watching by the United Nations and the United States. Their apparent joint indifference to recent happenings here disappoints our Allies, and encourages our enemies, especially the Russians.

West policy would be to cut off this revenue of several hundred millions a year. For King Saud it would mean curtailment of royal expenditures on his extravagant household, his harem and his $35,000 made-in-the-United States trailers.

SQUALOR OF EGYPTIAN MASSES
For Iraq and Iran, which make some pretense of spending a small portion of their oil riches on their miserably poor population, it would mean reversion to an economy and state as tragic as the conditions which prevail in the land of the Pharaohs. In describing conditions there, an experienced Middle East reporter for the London Observer recently made this comment:

"The real strength of the Egyptian economy is based on the indescribably poverty of the Egyptian masses."

Israel Not Too Concerned Yet

By RAY TUCKER
Ray Tucker is visiting Israel, which will soon celebrate its tenth anniversary as a sovereign State. Mr. Tucker will report on the progress the young republic has made during that turbulent decade.

It is extremely pertinent to Middle East diplomats, as well as to Western representatives, that his seeming successes—the Suez Canal incident, the arms deal with Russia, the union with Syria, and now the threat against the Sudan—have not yet enabled him to attain his basic and long-range objective, which is the sole and recognized sovereignty of the Arab peoples.

NASSER'S NAPOLEONIC POSTURING
Nasser has not yet convinced the Arab world that, despite his Napoleonic posturing, he is the man to lead them to unity, greatness and orderly progress.

King Saud of Saudi Arabia, the wealthiest potentate in this area, wants no conflict with the West. Neither do Iran or Iraq, which share with King Saud in the vast income they receive for oil from Anglo-American firms.

To embrace Nasser's anti-

Middle East situation. Egypt and Jordan are, in Middle East terminology, just a couple of "poor relations" in the Arab family, despite Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser's several attempts to seize the leadership of the Arab peoples.

In short, an Arabian gang-up against the West. All of this is still an Arabian Nights' dream in the face of these realities. Never-the-less, it is a situation which should bear watching by the United Nations and the United States. Their apparent joint indifference to recent happenings here disappoints our Allies, and encourages our enemies, especially the Russians.

Pupils Kindle Hopes

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN (AP)—Three traveling salesmen for better teaching of science and mathematics think the nation is well on its way to regaining the lead in worldwide science education.

"The students themselves that make you feel good about the whole thing," says Wayne Taylor, director of the Science Teaching Improvement Program at the University of Texas.

He and two colleagues traveled 70,000 miles during the past year trying to help Texas teachers give better math and science instruction. Their traveling, however, was not without a certain instruction of its own.

Football Moments
"Cities and towns all over Texas are building monuments to football spectators which are used maybe half a dozen times a year while their gifted youngsters daily struggle along in inadequate laboratories where they can't even lift a test tube without bumping into somebody else's Bunsen burner," says the outspoken Taylor.

"I have yet to see a football team go on the field without adequate equipment, yet every day we see science teachers laboring to teach our children without proper or even adequate facilities."

In addition to working with teachers and school administrators, Taylor's center is making big plans for the addition of a science incentive contest to the annual Texas Interscholastic League competition in the spring of 1959.

"Last year Texas schools held more science fairs than any other state," Taylor said proudly. "Ten per cent of the entries in the national science fair came from Texas and we had 10 per cent of the winners."

Such response keeps Taylor and his partners bubbling about the educational wares they peddle.

They are not promoting a "crash program" to turn out millions of "smooth dome" prodigies. For instance, they do not encourage backyard rocket launching experiments.

"In fact we have asked some local papers not to publish rocket fuel formulas," said Alan Humphreys, a member of the team. "There are plenty of creative activities in science without taking up the dangerous ones."

The science teaching improvement center here is completing its second year of operation, with funds from a two-year grant by the American Assn. for Advancement of Science. The association also supports similar programs in Oregon, Nebraska and Pennsylvania. Even though the science association grant will end this year, the program will continue in Texas because 19 participating schools have agreed to share its cost.

Duties of a science counselor include explaining and encouraging the use of visual aids, planning experiments, advising advanced students, and giving expert counsel on everything from planning a new laboratory to staging science fairs.

One of their most important functions, according to John Wagner, another team member, is working with teachers with no previous experience in science instruction.

These "retreads"—teachers converted from one job to another—are a big problem. In 24 Texas schools last year 10 vocational agriculture teachers were converted to science or math teachers. The science or math population has cut down the demand for agriculture instructors while the need for science and math teachers is almost unlimited.

Jesus in Prayer

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 9:49-50; John 17:20-26; Ephesians 4:1-16.

John told Jesus that they saw a man casting out devils in His name. They forbade him because he was not one of them. Christ said: "Forbid him not: for he that is not against us is for us."

Facing death on the cross, Jesus prayed earnestly for the Apostles He loved. He asked that these men might become one, "as We are one;" that they might be with Him in the hereafter, and behold Him in glory.

Paul in prison wrote to the church members in Ephesus, asking them to be lowly, meek, forbearing, endeavoring to keep the unity in the church, as "There is one body, one Spirit . . . one Lord, one faith, one baptism."

God has given each a talent, Paul wrote, but one Spirit. One may have the gift of prophecy, some as preachers and teachers, some evangelists to speak the truth in love. MEMORY VERSE—I Corinthians 8:6.

One in Christ

THERE IS ONE GOD, FATHER OF ALL, AND ONE CHRIST, JESUS

Scripture—Luke 9:49-50; John 17:20-26; Ephesians 4:1-16.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

IN THE first verses assigned to the lesson today, we find John telling Jesus that he and the other apostles had seen a man casting out devils in Christ's name. They had forbidden him to do so because he was not one of their number, although he was a convert to Christ.

Jesus' answer may have surprised John and the others, for He said, "Forbid him not: for he that is not against us is for us."—St. Luke 9:50.

Jesus is facing the crisis of His life on earth. Death on the cross is ahead of Him, and He, the sinless one, prostrates Himself before His heavenly Father and pleads for His close companions on earth whom He loves.

In two verses not assigned to our lesson but, it seems to me, belonging to it, are the words, "As Thou hast sent Me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world. And for their sakes I sanctify Myself, that they

"the prisoner of the Lord," beseeching them to "walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, with all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love; endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

We have commented before in these lessons of the bitter quarrels over religion in many churches. No wonder that a man might say that he would not join a church unless unity and peace through love had been attained.

"There is one body, and one Spirit, even as you are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and in you all."

Each one is given a gift, even if some of us do not recognize what has been bestowed on us. In the church (any church) some have had the gift of being apostles. Paul writes that some have a gift of prophecy; some are evangelists, and some preachers and teachers—as we will rememalso might be sanctified through the truth.—John 17:18-19.

"Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on Me through their word; that they all may be one: as Thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me."

"And the glory which Thou gavest Me I have given them; that they may be one, even as We are one: I in them, and Thou in Me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that Thou hast sent Me, and hast loved them, as Thou hast loved Me."—John 17:20-26.

We have not space enough here to quote the remainder of our Lord. It should be read by the older classes, at least, in its entirety.

Now we turn to Paul's epistle to the church members at Ephesus. He is writing from prison.

ber a previous lesson—"For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: Till ye all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

Henceforth, "speaking the truth in love, we may grow up into Him in all things, which is the head, even Christ."

Meekness, humility and long-suffering are virtues which help us to control our tempers and to love with one another in love. This is easy to say and believe, but we all know how difficult it is to practice.

Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests that teachers of the younger classes might illustrate the unity desirable in a church or Sunday school by mentioning the many different parts of our bodies.

The body is one, and if one part suffers, all do. So it is with the life of the church.

Panel Discussion To Feature Meet

AYDEN—A panel discussion on "Public Relations in Public Schools" and an elementary-grades Science Fair will highlight a meet here Wednesday of the Pitt County unit of the North Carolina Education Association.

David W. Mosier, publicity director for television station WNCN; Ray Wilkinson of Rocky Mount, state educational director of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and a representative of the North Carolina Citizens Committee for Better Schools; and David J. Winchard II, managing editor of The Daily Reflector, will participate in the panel discussion.

The Science Fair will feature an estimated 200 individual and group projects from sections of grades four through eight in each of the county's elementary schools. Projects which will be displayed will be those selected as section winners in each of the grades and each will be eligible for group and individual awards to be made in each grade category.

Dr. Austin D. Bond of the Department of Science, East Carolina College, will judge entries in the Science Fair.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

Sunday will be observed as "Foreign Missions Day" at Red Oak Christian Church with the pastor preaching on "Christ For The World." The Adult Choir will sing "Heralds of Christ" by Coppenhaver.

Flowers will be provided for the service by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jenkins Allen and Mrs. Lucy Allen. A Pre-School Nursery will be held during the morning worship hour. At 6:00 p.m. the School of Missions on Japan will be held. A color filmstrip entitled "Customs and Traditions of Japan" will be shown during the assembly period. At 8:20 p.m. everyone will go to the 4 age-level classes including: Adult, C.Y.F., Chi Rho, and Chi Rhoettes.

Functional committees under the Official Board will convene at 7:30 p.m. Milton May, chairman, will preside at the regular monthly meeting of the Official Board. Final plans for the revival to be held by the pastor, Howard James, beginning on March 30, will be announced.

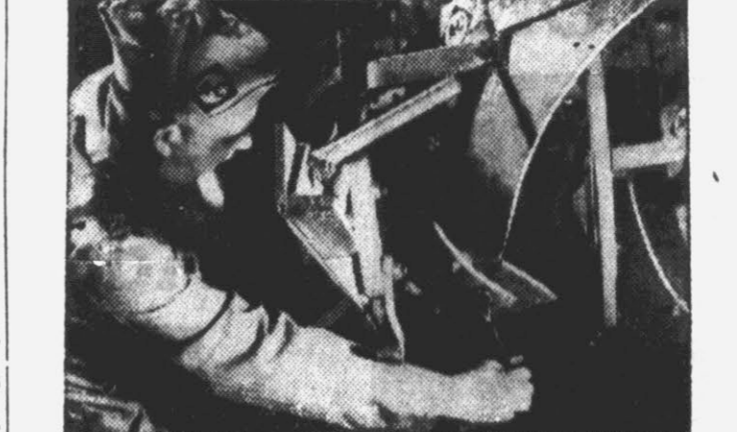

Adult choir rehearsal will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. Officers of the choir elected at this week's rehearsal are: president, Bruce Thigpen; vice-president, Mrs. Roland Cannon; secretary-treasurer, W. E. Morgan; and choir librarian, Mrs. B. Leon Tyson. Mrs. Jarrvi Tripp Sr. was appointed to serve as Choir Mother.

On March 15 at 7:30 p.m. the Adult Choir will sponsor a Musical Show at the Red Oak Community Building. The public is invited to attend this program of entertainment.

Khrushchev Wins Fight For Less Bureaucracy On Farm

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Foreign News Analyst Communist boss Nikita Khrushchev, Moscow announced last night, has put over his latest proposal for Soviet agriculture. But his victory may be temporary, a pale reflection of a deeper struggle agitating Communists in the Soviet Union and abroad.

From the dreary gobbledygook of Communist statements emerges an outline of party dissension over where Soviet-brand socialism will go in the next decade. The conflict has important meaning for world peace. Scraps of evidence indicate that Khrushchev is trying to fight Stalinism at home and to sustain it in the satellites. He reasserts Moscow's total mastery over world communism and all phases of Soviet and satellite life. But he also makes bright promises to the home folk, reminiscent of the nervous 1953 days after Stalin died. Strong popular pressure may be responsible.

A clue to the Khrushchev dilemma may be found in the Communist Central Committee's approval of Khrushchev's plan to "reorganize" the machine-tractor stations. These stations had the power to allocate or withhold machinery from collective farms and thus were a potent control weapon. But this sort of bureaucracy got in the way of farm production.

Harry Cohn, Tycoon Of Movie Industry, Dies In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Who's going to run Columbia Pictures now that Harry Cohn, most absolute of all movie tycoons, is dead? A worried industry, reeling from television's potent punch, today pondered the question. Columbia, under Cohn's iron-fisted rule, long has been regarded as an industry giant—and one of the most financially successful operations in town.

Significant, too, is that Mrs. Cohn, voting her own and her three children's shares, will name Columbia's next studio boss. Their holdings, already willed in trust, total more than 200,000 shares—a majority.

GHS Advances, To Meet Kinston Tonight In Tourney

Phants Down RR; Washington And Kinston Triumph

The Greenville Phantoms edged Roanoke Rapids 52-44 last night at East Carolina's Memorial Gymnasium to work their way into the Northeastern Conference Tournament's second round play. Tonight the G-Men tackle Kinston at 7:30.

Scoreboard for Greenville vs Roanoke Rapids: Greenville 52, Roanoke Rapids 44. Includes FG, FT, PF, TP stats for both teams.

Washington will meet top-seeded New Bern at 9:00 in the other game of the two-tilt schedule at the gym.

Scoreboard for Washington vs New Bern: Washington 59, New Bern 50. Includes FG, FT, PF, TP stats for both teams.

Greenville, Washington, and Kinston earned the right to compete in the tournament's second round play with wins last night over Roanoke Rapids, Jacksonville, and Elizabeth City, respectively.

Wilmington And Whirlies Meet In AAA Tourney

Tonight's games feature Greenville vs. Kinston at 7:30 and New Bern vs. Washington at 9:00.

By KEN ALYTA GREENSBORO (AP)—The Greensboro Whirlies, long remaining Western hope in the state triple-A high school basketball tournament, will be confronted by a formidable foe and a tourney jinx tonight when they meet Wilmington.

The Greensboro-Wilmington game will be followed by a 9:15 contest between Durham and Raleigh.

The tournament is 11 years old and the home team never has won. Only once, in 1950, at Durham, did the host city representative so much as gain the finals.

The Greensboro-Wilmington contest is anybody's. They are rated even tonight. New Bern is given a shade of an edge over Washington in the second tilt.

Wilmington, winner of the tournament the last two years, has won three titles and twice been runner-up.

Scoreboard for Wilmington vs Greensboro: Wilmington 59, Greensboro 50. Includes FG, FT, PF, TP stats for both teams.

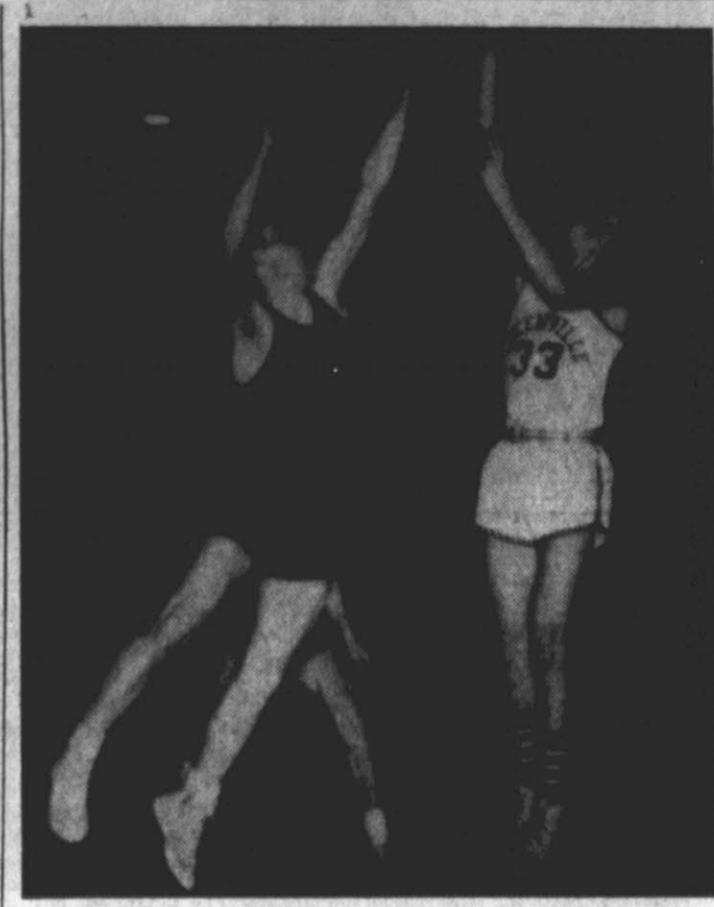

The Port City Wildcats have won seven straight at the senior high gymnasium over three tournaments and Greensboro hasn't been beaten here this season.

Scoreboard for Kinston vs Elizabeth City: Kinston 69, Elizabeth City 49. Includes FG, FT, PF, TP stats for both teams.

Key, 6-7 Durham center, flipped in four fouls in the final 40 seconds to beat an upset-minded Salisbury team that had to beat Winston-Salem in an overtime playoff game last week to qualify for the tournament.

Varsity-Alumni Grid Game At East Carolina Saturday

Basketball is raging full blast here up for one more loud gasp, but football is going to stick its in this area before it goes.

East Carolina's 1958 football team will butt heads with an alumni team, at ECC Stadium, March 1.

The game will be a fund-raising affair for the East Carolina varsity club, which is sponsoring the affair. It will feature Coach Jack Boone's tentative 1958 squad against a whole list of former ball players who saw duty at the school in years past.

Among the returnees who will face Boone's outfit, are Dick Cherry, Lou Hallow, George Tucker, Garry Mattocks, Ray Pennington, Bob Maynard, Paul Gay, Algy Faircloth, Dick Monds, Ken Burgess and many more.

Returning from Boone's 1957 club and probable starters on the '58 team, will be Lynn Barnett, Ed Emory, Charles Cook, Horse Howell in the line and James Speight, George Turner, Tommy Nash in the backfield. Also making up a large part of Boone's team will be a host of newcomers, fresh from high school and prep school football.

Carolina A&T In Semi-Finals

DURHAM (AP)—Top-seeded North Carolina A&T College faces fourth-seeded Morgan State of Baltimore at 9:30 tonight in the feature semifinal game of the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Assn. basketball tournament here.

Lenoir Rhyne, WCC Win Easily In Second Round

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Only the fit survived the first round of the North State Conference basketball tournament, and tonight's semifinal games find the top four seeded teams paired off to decide who'll play for the championship.

ECC gained the semifinals Wednesday night, edging Appalachian 78-77, and High Point defeated Atlantic Christian 74-51.

Tonight's winners play tomorrow night for the conference title and the right to represent the North State next month in the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics regional eliminations.

Lenoir Rhyne, as holder of one of the better small college records (19-3), already has been awarded a berth in the regionals.

The defending champion Bears, who took a 7-6 lead and never were headed again, split their two-game regular season series with Western Carolina, their opponent tonight.

New Disarmament Team Is Slated To Seek Showdown

By WARREN ROGERS JR. WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States sent in a new team today to drive for a showdown with Russia on disarmament.

James J. Wadsworth, now deputy U.S. delegate to the United Nations, replaces Harold E. Stassen as chief negotiator. Backing him up are four citizen-advisers: Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Robert A. Lovett, John J. McCloy and Walter Bedell Smith.

Secretary of State Dulles named them with President Eisenhower's approval.

Meanwhile the Atomic Energy Commission reports Russia set off two nuclear test bombs yesterday, making three this week.

Stassen left his disarmament post to seek the Republican nomination for governor in Pennsylvania. Stassen reportedly contended the United States should offer more concessions to Russia and Dulles disagreed.

Wadsworth, a 20-year veteran of government service, represented this country in disarmament talks in London in 1955. The following year he was chosen to negotiate a world atoms for peace agency which since has become a reality.

The new team lineup signaled a U.S. move to pin down Russia and America's allies—on just where everybody goes next.

The United States favors negotiations inside the new and untested 23-country U.N. Disarmament subcommittee. But full Allied agreement on this as the next step apparently has not yet been reached.

The subcommittee was enlarged after Russia contended the original group, including the United States, Britain, France, Canada and Russia, was stacked 4-to-1 against Russia. But Russia also refused to agree to the bigger group, saying it too was stacked.

The NATO allies suggested a foreign ministers' meeting, but again Russia said no.

Last night's U.S. statement deplored this Soviet attitude as obstructionist. I made no mention of he new Russian bomb tests, which indicated no let-up in Soviet atomic tests despite steady "ban the bomb" propaganda from the Kremlin.

'Fair Trade' Issue Has Again Blown Its Top

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP) — One of the hottest disputes in the retailing world — whether the manufacturer should fix prices under fair trade laws — has popped onto front pages again.

General Electric, one of the foremost proponents of such price setting, is throwing in the towel after a long and costly battle in the courts against merchants who flaunt its policy.

It says retailers can now set their own prices on all its small home appliances except flash-bulbs. Several years ago the company stopped suggesting retail prices for its large home appliance.

Price wars already started among some stores — with consumers picking up bargains, just as they do in gasoline price effects in the appliance industry.

The battle over fair trade has been particularly hot since the rise of the discount houses. But it has flared in the courts, in Congress and in various state legislatures for years.

Fair trade laws still exist in 32 states. A number of manufacturers are still staunch advocates of fair trade and GE's action may or may not affect their policies.

After a series of defeats in state courts, advocates of fair trade — notably the National Assn. of Retail Druggists — are urging Congress to pass a federal law sanctioning the policy.

Most state fair trade laws permit the manufacturer to force all retailers in the state to sell its products at fixed prices, if such a practice has been fixed in a contract with at least one retailer in the state. Courts in 11 states have held this provision unconstitutional.

Advocates of fair trade argue that the manufacturer has the right to protect his brand from being downgraded through price wars. They also say that such laws protect the small business man against being undersold by large firms and thus being driven out of business.

Foes of fair trade say that it is only a price-fixing scheme that squelches competition and that the consumer suffers. They hold that a free market system is far more just to all concerned.

Fair trade got its big boost in the depression of the 1930s when most states set store price floors to protect small business firms. Only Vermont, Texas, Missouri and the District of Columbia have never had fair trade laws.

A federal law passed during the depression was held unconstitutional in 1951 by the U.S. Supreme Court as applying to goods moving in interstate commerce.

Price-cutting wars broke out that summer and in 1952 Congress passed the McGuffey Act permitting states to set up their own fair trade laws. Thirty-five did, but three dropped them last year.

Sharp wars with discount houses recently have led to court battles. Last October the Supreme Court refused to review a lower court ruling that the Masters Mail Order Co. of Washington might advertise and sell by mail GE goods at cut prices.

This refusal, plus the costly court battles, may have caused GE to throw in the towel. Trying to enforce its fair trade prices has cost the electrical equipment firm about half a million dollars a year.

Westinghouse abandoned its fair trade battle in September 1955. Among leaders in the fair trade fight are makers of drugs, cosmetics, hardware and tobacco.

Westinghouse's defection didn't budget them. It remains to be seen if GE's will.

Slow Start, But Hope For 'Raintree' Rising

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie shop talk—

New MGM expects "Raintree County" to bring in five or six million dollars in this country, and the company appears to be surprised. It shouldn't be.

Film companies have a tendency to become panicked by early misgivings and poor reports of a movie. That was true of "Red Badge of Courage," which MGM virtually scuttled. The film was slashed to ribbons and thrown away on the bottom half of a double bill. In the original John Huston version, it surely could have made a good return on the art circuit and later done at least fair in general release.

MGM seemed almost afraid of "Raintree." The studio skipped the usual post-premiere party at its opening here. Mike Todd stepped into the breach and tossed an affair for the leading lady, a girl named Taylor.

The picture did poorly in its initial run here, being overpriced and opening at a time when movie business was in the doldrums because of Asian flu, etc. A cruel joke was making the rounds about the man who called the theater to ask what time "Raintree" was going on. "When would you like to see it?" was the answer.

But now the picture is proving itself. It is doing fine business in subsequent runs, and at more reasonable prices. Every night I see big crowds at my neighborhood house, the Encino, where it is still running after three weeks.

MGM had nothing to be ashamed of with "Raintree." It is no "Gone With the Wind" but what is, except GWTW? It gives a good picture of the Northern side of the Civil War, so seldom seen in films. It has some great photography and good performances, including the best one Liz Taylor ever gave. Lee Marvin also does a job that merited Academy recognition.

Drawbacks of the film were the lack of plot surprises and Montgomery Clift's performance. Clift's trouble was physical, since he was in a serious auto crash in the middle of the film. With his jaw wired together, he wasn't up to the exhausting demands of the leading role.

Hunt Rat That Grounded Plane

CHICAGO (AP)—A tricky rat that grounded a 44-passenger airliner at Midway Airport, since Tuesday had officials of United Air Lines up in the air today on how to catch him.

The rat, named Rudolph, has upset the best efforts of mechanics and an exterminator to get him out of the fuselage. He has stolen cheese set out to bait him and has avoided all other traps.

"This Convar will not leave the ground until he is captured," said a UAL spokesman.

"He's not in the passenger compartment proper. We could probably poison him, but then it might mean taking the whole plane apart finding him after he died."

Charles W. O'Hare, a professional exterminator called in to catch Rudolph, got a permit to use a special .22-caliber target pistol which fires scatter shot.

O'Hare said the shot wouldn't damage the fuselage.

But the UAL spokesman said that O'Hare's search for the rat might have to be carried out without a single shot being fired.

"We're not so sure of that fuselage business," he said.

No one knows for sure how Rudolph got aboard, but the best guess is that he climbed up when the passenger steps were left down while the $500,000 twin-engine plane was being serviced.

Entertained By Two Parakeets On The Loose

CHICAGO (AP) — Two parakeets, escapes from their cage, fluttered around the big waiting room of the La Salle Street station for hours yesterday, entertaining commuters as they eluded efforts of workmen to capture them.

After the birds got out of their cage — no one knew how — they perched on a pillar 25 feet above the floor and the job of capturing them started. The birds, one blue and the other green, ignored their cage which was placed, door open, atop a vending machine.

Commuters joined in trying to catch the birds. One man tried a series of bird calls, without success. Finally a crew of workers brought in a big wheel-mounted hydraulic hoist and two men climbed on the platform with a long-handled net.

After more than an hour's chase the birds were netted, put in their cage and sent on their way to their owner, Corene Speller of Battle Creek, Mich.

A NEW SUSPENSE NOVEL BY WILLIAM FULLER

CHAPTER 16

I remember very little of what I thought or did in the next few minutes after I discovered Joan Morris' body. I remembered running through the French doors to the little patio beyond them to the murderer must have come across that — and thrashing uselessly and stupidly around in the banks of foliage that choked it on three sides. I remember leaning on the wash basin in the bathroom and staring at my reflection in the mirror above it, seeing the greyish pallor of my face, the thick puffy shadows beneath my eyes.

And then — as incongruous as it might seem, with Joan's once lovely body turning stiff and cold a few yards away from me, with her murderer perhaps still in the immediate vicinity, perhaps even waiting for me — I stood under a steaming hot shower and scrubbed myself viciously with a wash rag, as if by so doing I could scrub away all connection with the horrible thing that had happened.

The hot water at least snapped me out of my shocked numbness. Emotions swept me in waves. The first one was a mixture of grief and pity for what had been this laughing girl who had a great love of life. My second emotion was one of a cold, hard, sustaining anger at the person or persons who had done this thing. And a breath-taking, muscle-hardening, all consuming desire to lay my hands on the person or persons who'd done it.

My third emotion — the one that had perhaps been clamoring for attention ever since I'd walked into the bedroom with the drinks — was one of fear. Fear for myself. Of what might happen had I not been there. The instinct for self-preservation may at times — and this was one of them — be a shameful thing. They say a man who deliberately sets out to drown himself will fight for life to the last ounce of his strength. The instinct for survival now dominated my thinking processes completely. Joan was dead. Murdered. And, unless I did something drastic, and that very quickly, I was a leader-pinch to take the rap for her murder. I was already under suspicion for Maria Blanding's disappearance. I wouldn't have a chance to beat this rap. They would have everything they needed on the except motivation. And I knew they could dream that up without much trouble, hang it on me and make it stick. My detective friend Wade loved this. He'd rush into it with his sleeves rolled up and when he'd finished I would have had it. Everything was in their favor. In their eyes I was a punk. There were four people who'd seen me here tonight — plus another who'd known I was coming. The four of them knew I was staying here with Joan after they left. My fingerprints were all over the place. I finished dressing. I purposely avoided looking into the bedroom at Joan. I went to the patio. What could I do? I paced back and forth and tried to think. Once I started toward the telephone to call police headquarters and tell them what had happened. For a split second it had seemed the only sensible thing to do. Halfway to the telephone I stopped. I wouldn't have a prayer if the police laid their hands on me. I'd be held without bail, for a grand jury indictment. The best I could possibly hope for was an outside chance that some evidence would be uncovered that would enable me to beat the rap at the trial. There wasn't the slightest doubt in my mind that I would be indicted and tried for first degree murder.

And what could I do to shake clear of this mess if I were in jail awaiting trial?

But what could I do out of jail? I packed the floor. I could hide the body. Go rent or buy a car, come back and get the body and then hide it somewhere. Even better that thought had become completely formed, I knew that it was ridiculous. Outside of a voluntarily delivered confession the surest way to have a gull sign around my neck would be to try and hide the body. Bodies have a way of not staying hidden. And besides that nothing in the world would have induced me to move that body.

What could I do? Where could I go? My brain whirled. I couldn't stay here. What was all this I'd gotten into? I tried to line it all out, hoping that the various segments of things that had happened in the past thirty-six hours would, like the segments of colored glass in a daleidoscope, settle into some sort of a balanced design.

Maria Blanding knew, or had known, something about a huge sum of money.

Maria had disappeared. Violence was indicated. She was probably dead.

A man named Jack Forbes had died, been murdered, not quite three months ago. His name and address had been in Maria's possession when violence had overtaken her. This same Jack Forbes had been Joan Morris' boyfriend. And now Joan was dead. And so there were three of them. Would I, I wondered, be the fourth?

I didn't know where to go, but I couldn't stay here. When I'd come to Joan's house I'd made a mental note of the service station and the all-night cab stand on a corner near Joan's house. I walked on stiff and unwieldy legs to the front door. I tried to erase the mental image of Joan, as I'd last seen her, from my mind. It was impossible. The memory screamed for attention. I told myself — I think I was mumbling aloud — that there was nothing I could do not to help her. I tried to convince myself that it was not my fault she had died. But wasn't it? What had happened to Maria had happened just after she'd met me. Would Joan be alive now if I hadn't contacted her?

It was too much for me. I shook my head to clear it. It didn't help. It didn't help. My thoughts squirmed and muddled in futile convolution. I walked through the front door, half-stumbled down the steps and the staggered path to the sidewalk. I turned toward the filling station I'd remembered.

Halfway down the block, pulled up at the curb behind trees, I saw a dark sedan. My shocked nerves failed to flash warning signals.

I was opposite the car now. The front left door opened and a man stepped out. Another man squirmed out of the back seat. The two men stood side by side not more than five yards from me. Moonlight filtered through the leaves and branches of the tree beside them and bounced off the shining muzzle of a gun in the right hand of the man who'd been behind the wheel.

"I'd be a sitting duck if I tried to run. So I just stood there, feeling empty."

"Why?" I asked, though I didn't much care. At least I wouldn't have to labor my numbed mind for a decision any more. The decision was being made for me. It was easier that way.

"Never mind why. Move!"

The arrogant and overbearing tone of his voice snapped me out of my lethargy. I wouldn't be shoved around without at least paying lip service to resistance.

"You talk real rough," I said.

"I am real rough," he said.

"Thanks, anyhow, but I think I'll walk."

"Now?" the second man asked. The first man nodded.

The second man stepped toward me, his body slightly crouched, his hands in front of him, like a fighter. There was enough moonlight to show me the sap in his hand.

"Your naivete appeals me," Donald is told. "You were not abducted!" He is made to realize worse things can happen to him. Continue "Miami Manhunt" here tomorrow.

Maria Blanding knew, or had known, something about a huge sum of money. Maria had disappeared. Violence was indicated. She was probably dead.

A man named Jack Forbes had died, been murdered, not quite three months ago. His name and address had been in Maria's possession when violence had overtaken her. This same Jack Forbes had been Joan Morris' boyfriend. And now Joan was dead. And so there were three of them. Would I, I wondered, be the fourth?

I didn't know where to go, but I couldn't stay here. When I'd come to Joan's house I'd made a mental note of the service station and the all-night cab stand on a corner near Joan's house. I walked on stiff and unwieldy legs to the front door. I tried to erase the mental image of Joan, as I'd last seen her, from my mind. It was impossible. The memory screamed for attention. I told myself — I think I was mumbling aloud — that there was nothing I could do not to help her. I tried to convince myself that it was not my fault she had died. But wasn't it? What had happened to Maria had happened just after she'd met me. Would Joan be alive now if I hadn't contacted her?

The parents and teachers were also told that they must assist the students in choosing what is best for the schools and what is suitable to meet the needs of the individual students.

Talk Balancing Pupil Activities

FALKLAND — Methods of balancing in-school and out-of-school activities to provide maximum benefits for students were discussed by Falkland parents and teachers in a two-day workshop at Falkland Elementary School this week.

Mrs. Edna Earle Baker, supervisor for the Pitt County Board of Education, and Dr. Keith Holmes, of the Department of Education, East Carolina College, led discussions for more than 40 persons who participated in the workshop. Dr. Holmes concentrated his remarks on methods of teaching spelling in present school curriculums and also led a discussion on how to provide curriculum needs for non-academic-minded students.

Mrs. Baker assisted Dr. Holmes in a period of discussion of questions from the participants and also discussed current trends in curriculum planning. She said present curriculum ideas in Pitt County schools are geared to individual students in an effort to provide for physical, mental and social development.

The parents and teachers were also told that they must assist the students in choosing what is best for the schools and what is suitable to meet the needs of the individual students.

Governor Works At Lobbying Job

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — Gov. James T. Blair for a second day led reporters on an unprecedented chase in and out of committees to head for recommendations he has placed before a special session of the Missouri Legislature.

Came a lull and the reporters twitted him about being the state's No. 1 lobbyist.

"Sure, I'm a lobbyist," he said. "The people elected me to represent them because they have no lobbyists and that's what I'm going to do."

Wants To Bring 1,000 Witnesses Into U. S.

HONG KONG (AP) — U.S. Atty. Gen. L. W. Powell said today he will ask the American court trying John M. Powell on a sedition charge to provide $250,000 to bring 1,000 witnesses from Red China. Powell arrived in Hong Kong today after spending eight weeks in Red China gathering evidence for Powell's defense at a trial in Federal District Court in San Francisco. The lawyer said he found evidence and witnesses which, "if presented and admitted in the court trial, would acquit Powell." Powell, editor of the China Monthly Review of Shanghai during the Korean War, is charged with sedition for printing accusations that the United States waged germ warfare in Korea. His wife Sylvia and an associate editor of the review, Julian Schuman, now of New York, also have been charged in connection with the case. Powell said he interviewed "about 50 scientists, Chinese political leaders and eyewitnesses, and on the basis of the interviews I estimate at least 1,000 witnesses are available." The lawyer said he "found the evidence and testimony of witnesses much stronger than I anticipated." Evidence, he said, included "bombs, insects and rats which the Chinese claim were used in U.S. bacteriological warfare." Before he entered China Powell said he would move for dismissal of the indictment against Powell if the State Department refuses to let witnesses from Communist China appear. He plans to leave for Los Angeles tomorrow, traveling via Tokyo.

Funeral Set For Judge McKeithen

DURHAM (AP) — Superior Court Judge Leland McKeithen, 48, died last night in Duke Hospital, five days after he was admitted because of complications from a kidney operation performed recently in his home town of Pinehurst. One of the most active of the special judges, he was appointed by Gov. Umstead in February, 1954 and reappointed by Gov. Hodges in 1956. Before his appointment he practiced law many years in Pinehurst, had been solicitor 14 years of Moore County Recorder's Court and a member of the State Bar Council.

He was an Aberdeen native, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. McKeithen and descendant of hardy Scottish pioneer stock which settled the Sandhills before the Revolutionary War.

McKeithen graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Davidson College in 1933, received his law degree from Duke in 1936 and began practice at Pinehurst, where he was associated with John D. McConnell of Southern Pines.

Entering World War II as a private in the field artillery, he attended officer candidate school and Judge Advocate School. He served in the Judge Advocate's Department until his discharge as a captain in January, 1945.

From 1950 until his appointment to the bench, he was chairman of the Moore County Democratic executive committee and helped organize the Moore County Young Democrats Club.

Survivors include the widow, the former Janet Wiggins of Middletown, N.Y.; one son, John Leland, 9; his parents, who live in Aberdeen; a twin brother, Edwin, of Old Greenwich, Conn.; and a young brother, Jere, of Aberdeen.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Pinehurst Community Church with burial in the Old Bethesda Cemetery. Officiating will be the Rev. R. L. Prince, the church pastor, assisted by Dr. Adam Weir Craig, of the Pineville Chapel.

Television Shows Using Mostly 'Canned Music'

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — Did you know that with a few exceptions the only television programs using live music these days are quiz shows and, of course, musical varieties? Do you care?

If you have observed the fact or at least noted the tinny and repetitious quality of some of the canned music heard on television then you'll delight the heart of every musician—and especially of Paul Taubman.

Taubman currently is the musical director of three quiz shows on NBC-TV—Twenty-One, Tic Tac Dough and Dough Re Mi—and of the CBS-TV daytime serial, "Edge of Night."

"The producers of quiz shows realize what an integral part an orchestra plays in creating the mood of a program," he said the other day. "Can you imagine on 'Twenty-One' for example, how deadly that 15-second trek forward of a contestant would be without music?"

"Supposing, after Charles Van Doren won that $129,000, he'd just turned around and walked out without a heraldic fanfare of trumpets. It would have fallen flat."

"It's too bad that the producers of more dramatic shows don't waken up to the beneficial dramatic effects of an orchestra instead of taped music."

U.S. Steel Hour is the only regular dramatic show now regularly using live music, says Taubman. Jack Benny "is a man of great know-how, wouldn't be caught dead using tape on his show."

Besides the variety and musical programs, Wide World and the Jack Paar Show are two that enhance their entertainment value, Taubman believes, by using music that's fresh instead of from a can.

Despite the many arguments that can be raised for live music as better than taped music on television, it's unlikely that the pattern will be drastically changed in the near future. The reason is simply this: it's cheaper in the can than fresh.

Revivalist

The Rev. Charles Keith will be conducting a revival in the Grace Free Will Baptist Church in Greenville, beginning March 2 through March 8, at 7:30 each night.

Rev. Keith lived in Greenville a number of years and began preaching in 1952. He has been pastor of the First Free Will Baptist Church in Washington, N.C. since 1953. He serves as secretary-treasurer of the Central Conference Mission Board and is in great demand among the churches for revival meetings. The Grace Church gives everyone a hearty invitation to visit with us in these days of revival.

Rev. Keith will be with the pastor on WGTC morning devotions at 9:35 each day next week.

Contribution To Atom-Smasher

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The 500 billion electron volt atom smasher planned by the Mid-western Universities Research Assn. has received a financial boost from an unexpected source.

M. Sgt. Norman F. Perry, stationed in the Mediterranean area with the Corps of Engineers, sent $10 to MURA headquarters here.

"This donation upsets my budget," Perry wrote, "but for my family's sake and for every American's, let's be first again."

The smasher is expected to be 50 times more powerful than the largest currently operating — a Russian unit. Estimated cost of the MURA project: 75 to 100 million dollars.

'Vice President' To Lose His Job

ATHOL, Mass. (AP) — Richard III, an 8-year-old horse known affectionately by fellow workers as vice president of Swift River Box Co., will be seeking a new job tomorrow.

Richard donned his harness for the last time today hauling lumber from the yard to the company plant, Swift River, one of 30 box manufacturing plants in New England, was the last to retain a horse in preference to a more modern type of power.

The 84-year-old Swift River plant, which employs 35 men and the horse, will be absorbed by a Winsted, Conn., firm.

Hoover Would Cut Non-Defense Spending, Taxes

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Herbert Hoover urged a slash in government spending for non-defense purposes and an accompanying tax cut as the best way to achieve economic recovery.

Addressing a New York Chamber of Commerce dinner last night Hoover said: "There are some old and proved wonder drugs useful both to prevent inflation and to speed recovery from recessions. The most useful of these economic wonder drugs is the elimination of waste and the reduction of non-essential federal spending until we have a balanced budget."

"We should cut government expenditures, not only to provide for additional weapons and balance the budget, but also to the point where we can have a tax reduction. This would be the greatest possible stimulant to recovery."

Hoover urged labor and industry to declare a moratorium on wage and price increases to help the nation shake off what he called the current "minor slump in business and employment."

Hoover said present economic conditions differ substantially from the depression starting in 1929 that marked his presidency. In those days, he said, the country was on its way out of a normal recession when it was struck by an "economic cyclone" from Europe, and countries there stopped buying American goods.

He saw no such storm on the horizon today, provided this country keeps "our great enemy intimidated" from making war.

The dinner was given to honor the Hoover Commission, which he headed. Nine hundred persons attended.

NEW YORK (U. S. S. T)—The stock market nudged slightly to the upside in early afternoon but showed little vigor.
Changes were small in most cases. Gains outnumbered losses about two to one, a reversal of the picture in early trading.
Volume was at around the same slow pace as yesterday.
Steele, chemicals, motors and tobaccos were a shade higher. Oils and aircrafts were mixed and metals down slightly.
Lorillard, a favorite earlier this week, opened up a point, then cut its gain to a fraction. Lewis Gruber, Lorillard president, disclosed the company earned more in the fourth quarter of 1952 than in all 1952.
American tobacco also rose a fraction after announcing 1952 earnings of $8.28 a share vs. $7.45 in 1951.
U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, and Republic Steel were up a shade. Lukens extended its gain of yesterday.
Chrysler and Ford advanced a little, while General Motors held fairly steady.
In the metals, International nickel and Kennecott eased. Anaconda and Phelps Dodge were about steady. Numerous metal stocks declined yesterday following dividend cuts and a foreign price reduction.
Raytheon opened off 1/4 at 2 1/2 on a block of 15,000 shares, then held about steady. Maytag lost a fraction after opening on a 10,000 share block.
Small gainers included Douglas Aircraft, Zenith, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, Royal Dutch, Baltimore and Ohio, and Eastern Air Lines.
The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 30 cents at noon to $158.80. Industrials gained 60 cents, while rails and utilities both were up 10 cents.

Driver Injured In Traffic Mishap
WINTERVILLE (U. S. S. T) — An 22-year-old Negro of Winterville, Rt. 1, suffered a fractured left arm and possible head injuries in a traffic mishap near here, late last night.
According to Highway Patrolman H. R. Winslow who investigated the wreck, Cradle lost control of his automobile on a wet rural paved road about a mile east of here. Another occupant of the car escaped uninjured, Winslow said.
Damage to Cradle's vehicle, that ended up in a roadside ditch, was estimated at $300. The patrolman reported his investigation has not been completed.

Ferry And Yacht Are Run Aground
NORFOLK, Va. (U. S. S. T) — The Coast Guard sped to the aid of Herbert C. Bonner and Lovely Lady.
But they were boats, not people.
The Oregon Inlet ferry Herbert C. Bonner, named for North Carolina's veteran congressman, ran aground yesterday. A 30-foot boat from the Oregon Inlet Lifesaving Station removed four passengers in rough water and thick fog.
An effort to refloat the ferry was scheduled today.
The yacht Lovely Lady ran aground in the Neuse River a little earlier but had freed herself by the time a 40-foot Coast Guard boat could reach the scene.

Mostly Afraid Of That Needle
DETROIT (U. S. S. T) — Frank Mallia, 21, told Federal Judge Frank A. Picard that he never registered for the draft because he was afraid of getting shot — in the arm.
He said he had received shots for typhoid fever as a boy in Malta.
"I just never got over it," he said. "Every time I see a doctor with a needle I faint."
After Mallia promised to register, Picard ordered him to appear in court in 30 days and released him on $1,000 personal bond.

Giant Bomber Crashes In Texas
EL PASO, Tex. (U. S. S. T) — A big intercontinental B47 bomber plowed in to the ground just before landing last night, killing the navigator.
Three other crew members walked away from the smashed six-jet plane, which was scattered over a half-mile area.
Dead was Lt. Samuel G. Hardin, whose wife Lucia lives at Salina, Kan., where the B47 was stationed at Schilling Air Force Base. Escaping with minor injuries were Lt. Col. Hilding L. Jacobson Jr., instructor pilot; Capt. Gerald Weimer, plane commander; and Lt. Donald Maisel, copilot, all of Salina.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.
Temperatures averaging near or slightly above normal with only small daily changes through Wednesday. Rainfall will run about three-fourths of an inch, occurring mostly Sunday through Monday and again about Wednesday. Average high and low temperatures in the coastal plains: 68-37 degrees.

Thor Missile Apparently Successfully Fired Today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (U. S. S. T) — An Air Force Thor missile roared toward space today carrying a new, more stubby, nose cone to protect its starboard plume on target.
The 1,500-mile range missile—destined for installation in Europe within a year—left its launching pad at 8:08 a. m.
It climbed slowly at first in an enormous billow of flame and smoke and then moved quickly upward, trailing brilliant yellow flames.
The Air Force would say only: "The nose cone used in today's test differed from those previously used."
"It was believed that the last Thor launching Jan. 28 was the first time a nose cone had been tested in flight with the entire vehicle.
From Cocoa Beach, six miles distant, it appeared to be a fine launching and a good flight. The missile bore through several light clouds, disappeared in a big one higher up, then reappeared much higher in bright sunlight.
It angled out to the southeast in the direction of the missile test range across the Atlantic, still climbing. It put out the customary vapor trail when it reached chill temperatures of higher air and the trail lasted about a minute.
Then the Thor could be seen through binoculars, streaking

Size Of Pay Raises In Postal Work Studied

turns today to the question of how big a pay raise to give the 500,000 postal workers after finishing most of its argument over postal rate increases.
Sen. Carlson (R-Kan.), administration spokesman on postal legislation, said he would make an effort to hold the postal pay raise to a figure he believes President Eisenhower will sign. He proposed a 7 1/2 per cent increase effective when the bill becomes law.
Democrats are pushing for an average boost of about 12 1/2 per cent, retroactive to last Oct. 1. It would include about a 7 1/2 per cent raise plus cost-of-living adjustments of up to $240 a year for employees in the lowest seven grades of the postal service.
Carlson's proposal would cost 195 million dollars a year as compared with 320 million for the Democratic plan. Eisenhower had proposed a 6 per cent increase costing about 160 million.
The Senate rejected yesterday a Democratic move to reverse its

Percy Flowers Again In Court

WILSON, N. C. (U. S. S. T) — Federal Judge Gilliam and J. Percy Flowers faced each other again in court today.
Flowers, Johnston County merchant-farmer and alleged bootleg operator, was called before the judge for another in a long series of court hearings.
"The exact xxx to be present," Judge Gilliam said he was holding the hearing to allow Flowers and 14 co-defendants to plead guilty or innocent to charges of conspiracy to violate federal liquor laws.
Flowers arrived here in custody of U. S. Dep. Marshal John Dixon. The 15 men were tried on the charges several weeks ago. All were present here today.
Judge Gilliam presided at the trial in Raleigh early this month. A mistrial resulted when the jury failed to agree on a verdict. The jurist also was on the bench last summer when a case in which Flowers was charged with income tax evasion also ended in a mistrial.
It also was Judge Gilliam who sentenced Flowers to 18 months in federal prison for contempt of court. Remarks made by Flowers to a witness during the liquor conspiracy trial resulted in the contempt sentence.
A notice of appeal from the contempt sentence has been given by Flowers' lawyers.
In addition to the federal sentence, which has kept Flowers in jail for nearly three weeks, Flowers was sentenced in Johnston County Superior Court at Smithfield to 18 months on state charges. These included assault, illegal purchase of firearms and liquor law violation charges.

Faulty Assembly Found In Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (U. S. S. T) — The Navy has discovered faulty assembly of some crucial parts within the second stage of the Vanguard test rocket now awaiting launching, it was learned from reliable sources today.
The pipes leading to and from a small tank containing liquefied propane gas were discovered in reverse position.
The strange error apparently overlooked in the inspection process at the manufacturing and assembly plant in Baltimore.
There was no suspicion of sabotage.
The embarrassing error contributed to the postponement of a Navy satellite launching attempt this week and led to a Vanguard propane gas test that produced further delay.
The difficulty reportedly has been corrected, and a Vanguard launching attempt may come any time next week, weather permitting.
It has been learned that the Vanguard passed inspection at the Martin Co. plant in Baltimore.
Only after it was erected in its launch stand here was it found that the two pipes had been switched. To avoid cutting into the propane tank, it was necessary to install a roundabout, Rube Goldberg arrangement of piping. Then the new plumbing had to be tested.
The testing so depleted the supply of liquid propane for the Vanguard that replenishment was essential before there could be another launching of that rocket.
An extra supply was rushed here by truck.

Driver Ordered To Inquest Over Two Fatalities

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (U. S. S. T) — A 32-year-old Burlington, N. J. truck driver has been ordered to appear here March 6 for a coroner's inquest into a traffic accident that killed two persons this week.
Richard Ingling, the truck driver, posted $2,000 appearance bond. He was driver of a tractor-trailer struck by an automobile Wednesday at the intersection of U. S. 301 and N. C. 102.
Willie J. Jordan, 65, Negro of Richmond, Va., an occupant of the car, was killed instantly. Caesar Harrison, 45, Negro of New York City, also in the car, died at a hospital here yesterday of injuries.
A truck passenger, 45-year-old Nicholas Conca of Highstown, N. J., remained in a hospital here for treatment of injuries.
It was at the same intersection last June that 22 migrant farm laborers were killed in a two-truck collision.

General Relieved For Lavish Taste

WASHINGTON (U. S. S. T) — A penchant for extensive redecorating of his living quarters has cost Maj. Gen. John B. Ackerman his job as the top Air Force commander in the Philippines.
Ackerman was relieved yesterday as commander of the 13th Air Force on grounds he undermined morale by overlavishly refurbishing four sets of living quarters—three for himself.
He left Manila by plane today to return to the United States. Officials at Clark Field, Manila, declined comment.
The 48-year-old West Pointer was recalled to Washington for "exercising poor judgment."
An Air Force spokesman said Ackerman will be given an opportunity to explain his actions to the chief of staff, Gen. Thomas D. White, and that his future in the service will be determined after Air Force headquarters has investigated fully.
The Air Force said Ackerman's poor judgment involved the refurbishing of two successive sets of temporary quarters while his permanent quarters were being refurbished to a mountain lodge for VIPs, military parlance for very important persons.
Ackerman's recall all the Air Force noted, came in the wake of an investigation of his activities last fall by staff members of the House Appropriations Committee. The congressional probes reported Ackerman had spent "no large sum of money," and that used came from the proper funds and was properly reported. But they added that the successive remodeling set tongues wagging at every military installation from Manila to San Francisco and was "destructive of morale."
Ackerman, a native of Auburn, N. Y., has commanded the 13th Air Force since August 1952.

Plane Loaded With Arms Is Detained In Algeria

BONE, Algeria (U. S. S. T) — A Flying Fortress loaded with arms and the four crew members, including two Americans, still were detained here today four days after being forced down by engine trouble, a police officer said.
Reports here and from Israel and Paris agreed the plane was on a flight from Israel to a Latin-American country.
The news of the incident had been bottled up here since the plane landed Tuesday while the French investigated whether the arms were intended for Algerian rebels.
The French Foreign Ministry in Paris said earlier today that the plane is at liberty to leave when it wishes and the crew members are not under restraint.
But the officer on duty at the local police station said the crew—two Americans, a Briton and an Israeli—was still there and that the plane had been impounded by French customs. The B17, lacking any license number of national identification.
The Flying Fortress messaged last Tuesday during a storm: "We are in trouble. Right engine down. Asking approval for landing."

Local Examiner Wins Promotion

James A. Grady, a North Carolina license examiner here for the past four years, has been promoted and will assume his new duties on March 2.
Grady has been promoted to Senior Examiner in the North Carolina Driver's License Division and has been transferred to the Division's Rocky Mount office. The promotion was effective February 1.
The Lenior County native will be in charge of the Rocky Mount office, covering 12 examining stations in that immediate area. In addition to his supervisory capacity, he will conduct special investigations for the Driver's License Division and handle special examinations and re-examinations.
He has been with the Division for five years.

Mandatory Jail Term Has Foes

RICHMOND, Va. (U. S. S. T) — The mandatory jail sentence-drunk driver bill neared the end of the road in the Virginia General Assembly today.
The House Courts of Justice Committee moved to take final action on the bill, and all forecasts from committee members meant this action would be the death of the measure.
