TWO COLLEGE STUDENTS INJURED IN COLLISION LAST NIGHT... both reported in satisfactory condition.

Car Crashes Out Of Control; Two Seriously Injured

Two East Carolina College students suffered serious injuries when their car went out of control on N.C. 43 near Greenville and crashed into a building and two parked automobiles late last night.

Robert McCotter, 19, of Grifton and Keith Arden Starling, 22, of 219 Robinson Street, Fayetteville were identified as the wreck victims.

Dwelling Burns Near Grimesland

GRIMESLAND — A three-room frame dwelling was destroyed by fire near here around 8 o'clock this morning.

Greenville firemen who responded to the call, said the house was owned by Rufus Buck and occupied by Nathan Daniels, Negro.

The dwelling was located about one-half mile east of Grimesland. Firemen said it had burned to the ground by the time they arrived at the scene.

Daniels told the fire fighters that the flames originated from an oil heater.

A small amount of the furnishings were saved by the occupants. Firemen said there was no insurance on the furniture lost in the blaze but there was some insurance on the dwelling itself.

The house was constructed about four years ago, it was reported.

Driver Robbed At Roadblock

BELMONT, N.C. (AP)—A Cramerton textile worker who stopped to investigate an unfamiliar roadblock last night was held up by two armed men, police said, and robbed of $22.

G. R. Smith, about 60, told police the men tied and blindfolded him, drove him to a hostelry mill parking lot off Wilkinson Boulevard and warned him not to notify anyone for at least 30 minutes.

Employees of the mill found Smith after about 20 minutes.

AEC Officials Called To Explain Error In Report On Detecting Of Blast

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atomic Energy Commission officials were called to Capitol Hill today to explain the AEC's acknowledged error in reporting on detection of an underground nuclear test shot that caused a Nevada mountain to "jump."

The unusual Saturday hearing was arranged by the Senate-Atomic Energy Committee.

Rep. Durham (D-NC), committee chairman, said his group wants to know the background of an AEC announcement early this month that the Nevada test last September could be detected only 250 miles when seismological stations up to 2,320 miles away reported detecting it.

Acting AEC Chairman Willard F. Libby said the error "was entirely inadvertent." Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) had questioned whether the error was entirely accidental.

Libby, in testimony released yesterday by the Senate Disarmament subcommittee, gave some information about the underground test last fall.

He said it indicated the possibility of such benefits as new techniques for generating atomic power, tapping old oil fields for new oil, creating harbors and canals, and for producing radioactive isotopes for medicine, industry and farming.

The underground test shot, Libby said, involved the explosion of a "little, tiny bomb" with an explosive effort of 1,700 tons of TNT.

12-Month Farming Operations Urged By Agricultural Experts

A message calling for farmers to develop 12-months farming operations was beamed across Eastern North Carolina today by the state's top farm experts.

The experts participated in an eight-hour "Farm-A-Thon" carried by Television Station WNCT from 6 a.m. until 2 p.m. The unique production was the first of its kind ever held in the South and attracted more than 60 specialists who discussed all phases of farming operations.

Participants in the discussions said farmers must adopt the 12-months operations, adapt their farms to existing situations, expand into new areas of production, reduce the cost factors of their present products and increase the general quality of all their products.

"Opportunities for agriculture exist now, as they have always existed," according to Dr. C. B. Ratchford, assistant director of Agricultural Extension Service for North Carolina. "However, farmers are not making the most or best use of their land," he added.

Dr. Ratchford served as moderator for discussions conducted by ten panels. He was assisted by station officials and guest moderators for each of the panels.

In calling for expansion of over-all farming activities, experts on the program said, "The day is gone when a man can make a living from three or four acres of tobacco. There is a real need for working out a progressive year-round farming program, including adapting farms to crops which will bring additional income."

Operations which were cited as being "much in demand" were poultry, livestock, and fruits and vegetables. It was pointed out, however, that in order for North Carolina to assume a leading position in production of any of those crops farmers have to place a premium emphasis on improvement of general quality.

Farmers were also called on to change from negative to positive attitudes toward expanded farming operations.

In addition to Dr. Ratchford, guest moderators for the discussions were Bill Humphries, Farm Editor of the Raleigh News and Observer; Dr. Earl Hostetler, Farm Director of Raleigh radio station WPTF and a former School of Agriculture faculty member at N. C. State College; and Bill Poe, Editor of the Progressive Farmer magazine. Other moderators were A. Hartwell Campbell, Eck Wall and Dick Stokes of WNCT.

Panel discussions during the eight-hour program included tobacco, fruits and vegetables, oil crops, forestry, feed crops, poultry, livestock, banking, agricultural engineering, and a special service panel. The service panel included specialists in marketing, entomology, pathology, farm management, and the Agricultural Stabilization Corporation (ASC).

Hundreds Flee As S. C. Dam Breaks; No Lives Are Lost

BENNETTSVILLE, S.C. (AP)—A deluge of water swept through a broken spillway here early today forcing more than 300 persons to flee their homes. There were no deaths or injuries.

The overflow spillway of a 10-foot high wildlife reservoir dam gave way committing cascading water that inundated a quarter-mile area, almost entirely populated by Negroes.

Startled residents awoke in the chilly pre-dawn hours to find water swirling through their homes and rising rapidly beneath their beds.

Police Chief F. E. Davis said a division dam which runs down the middle of Lake Paul A. Wallace was in danger of breaking at one point. Water was lowered in this side and the weak link repaired by bulldozers which reinforced the weaker area with dirt.

With the spillway broken, the lake on one side of the division dam drained dry, flooding the area just below it.

Davis said the water reached a height of five and six feet in places but by late morning was rapidly receding as it was carried away by the swollen stream which feeds the 400 acre lake.

Davis predicted that many of the evacuees could return to their homes tomorrow.

The earth dam at the spillway apparently was undermined because of wet weather and gave way between 2:15 a.m. and 2:45 a.m.

The water swirled through the Shady Rest section. Frightened residents, awaking to find water in their homes and rising beneath their beds, seized their children and possessions and sloshed to high ground.

The 30-foot wide spillway was washed away and the water flooded an area about a quarter of a mile square. In many places the water rose to as deep as five feet. No houses were washed away and Chief Davis said the water was dropping steadily.

The flood refugees were housed in the National Guard Armory and in schools. Guardsmen rushed into action, helping in the evacuation and in the directing of traffic.

The dam, about 10 feet high and constructed of earth, fronts along a quarter-mile stretch of paved road. The lake itself, covering about 400 acres, has an earth division dam down the middle.

The South Carolina Wildlife lake is a game refuge and is used for recreation. It is fed by Crooked Creek which runs from the spillway into the Big Pee Dee River about four miles away.

Chief Davis said water from the creek was within 200 feet of the police station but that there was no danger or damage to other sections of Bennettsville.

Tax Cut Remedy Opposed By Byrd

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) said today he believes most Democrats in Congress prefer a sound public works program instead of tax cuts to combat the business slump.

Byrd, a leading economy advocate in Congress, made it clear in an interview that he would favor more spending to tax reductions if the economy does not turn upward.

"To some extent there will be wasteful spending in accelerating public works," he said. "But I am confident the majority of Democrats in Congress would rather follow that course than to reduce taxes now."

President Eisenhower, who has delayed any decision on taxes, asked Congress Friday for an emergency appropriation of 1254 million dollars to speed up river and harbor projects and $46,200,000 for hospital construction.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerly said the request for the funds, to be spent in the year beginning July 1, was aimed at helping lift the level of employment. Congressional approval was regarded as a foregone conclusion.

Amid indications that Eisenhower will postpone any final decision on taxes until some time in April, Byrd said it was his understanding that any reduction proposals would be advanced on a bipartisan basis.

Byrd said, however, that he has gained the impression that Secretary of the Treasury Anderson is opposed to a tax cut at this time. The administration is holding up any decision on tax reduction until it can find out whether the unemployment situation improves this month and until it can determine whether anti-recession steps it already has taken are having the desired effect.

Meanwhile, the Senate has turned back a drive by some of its members for quick cuts in personal income and excise taxes. These senators contend such cuts are the fastest way to revive the economy.

During two days of lengthy sessions, a small Senate group, numbering both Democrats and Republicans, tried without success to pack broad tax cut riders to a bill that would save life insurance companies 124 million dollars on 1957 taxes.

That insurance bill was passed by the Senate last night, 61-19, but most of the debate revolved around the efforts to slash individual income levies and excise taxes on such things as automobiles.

The Senate rejected by voice vote a proposal by Sen. Douglas (D-III) to reduce excise taxes by $2,200,000,000.

It also defeated, by a 64-19 roll call vote a proposed amendment by Sen. Yarborough (D-Tex.) to raise individual income tax exemptions from $600 to $800 for the remainder of 1958. He estimated this would provide a $3,750,000,000 reduction for taxpayers.

Just before quitting last night, the Senate passed, 76-1, a resolution calling on the Pentagon to expedite construction of $1,715,000,000 of military construction projects for which Congress already has voted funds.

In the house, 13 Republican members of the Banking Committee announced they had voted unanimously to ask for prompt action on a $1,350,000,000 emergency housing bill passed by the Senate. Backers of this bill say it would boost by 200,000 the number of new homes planned this year.

Atomic Sub Prowls Ocean Depths For Russian Craft

(Editor's Note: Elton C. Fay, Associated Press Military affairs reporter, was aboard the atomic submarine Seawolf on a training cruise along the East Coast. But a report that a Russian submarine might be lurking in the area sent the Seawolf on a hunt through the ocean depths. This was the first time a reporter had taken part in such a venture. The entire story can't be told. What can be told is related here.)

By ELTON C. FAY AP Military Affairs Reporter

ABOARD NUCLEAR SUBMARINE SEAWOLF (AP)—Somewhere in the sea around this atom-powered submarine may be a Soviet sub, lurking in deep waters off the Atlantic Coast.

job of trying to find that Russian submarine, if it is there. It's the first time the Navy has ordered an atomic undersea craft to conduct what is very much like a war patrol.

When the Seawolf started out from port, it was headed for a routine training cruise. But an order, radioed to the sub a few hours after it sailed, converted its mission into a hunt for an unidentified submarine—or submarines—believed sighted in this area.

There would be no great surprise if this search eventually should identify the reported unidentified submarine as Russian. The submarines of all major powers roam far. If they stay outside the territorial waters of a nation and commit no hostile act it would be difficult to drive them away or take action against them. Since about 1950 there have been repeated reports of sightings of unidentified submarines off the East and West coasts of the United States.

In recent days, there was a fresh flurry of such reported sightings. At Washington, the Navy said, without elaboration, that naval vessels had been sent out to check on the reports.

The Seawolf isn't working alone. She is serving as command ship of the search force, directing ships and aircraft. Cmdr. Richard B. Laning, skipper of the Seawolf and a man who knows undersea warfare from Pacific campaigns of World War II, sits at the nerve center of the search.

anti-submarine work. It has high speed underwater; it can dive far deeper than most conventional submarines; it can stay down for weeks; it is elaborately rigged with new detection gear; it is armed with target-seeking torpedoes.

For reasons of security, details on how the Seawolf's hunt has progressed to this point, or of the precise methods used, may not be disclosed.

For days, the search has been long and painstaking. There have been a few possible contacts, faint tracings on sonar screens which might or might not be a submarine. But the images were "soft"—they couldn't be classified in any way.

There is silence in the boat. Men speak softly. Stillness except runs on in a submarine where there is no day or night. The Seawolf had planned up near enough the surface to use her radio. From the air came a search report that it had glimpsed something.

The Seawolf dropped down. The command came: "Flank speed!" Atomic power poured in. The Seawolf was like a huge, swift fish, boring swiftly through the water.

for the electronic voice of the hunter, the ping-pong sound of sonar impulses questing into the black depths.

The high speed has been cut down. The Seawolf creeps, stalks stealthily, listens, looks with its electronic eyes.

Is that a contact? The echoing note bounces back, stronger and stronger. The blip of green light on the sonar screen seems to become firm.

It could be a submarine. The sonar indicates it may be one. But the machine might be wrong. It could be a fish or whale, even at these depths. Perhaps it's a track of temperature layers.

You can't be certain. This is the point where the story must stop.

Officers' Home Is Bomb Target

ASHEVILLE (AP)—City police were seeking clues today in the bombing of a police juvenile officer's home which caused about $50 damage here this week.

Police Chief A. R. Sluder said yesterday juvenile Officer J. E. Jarvis was not at home Thursday when the homemade bomb went off. Damage was done to the front door and porch wall, but Jarvis' wife and infant son were unhurt.

Sluder said the bomb probably was planted by a teen-aged boy involved in an arrest or investigation made by Jarvis. The chief added that it was the first such incident during his 21 years on the city police force.

Russia voiced formal objections yesterday against debating disarmament in the U.N. Security Council. But Western diplomats held hope the Soviets would attend such a session.

The Russian reaction came from the Soviet Foreign Ministry and Russian U.N. delegate Arkady Sobolev. The Soviets questioned the West's motives in bringing disarmament before the Security Council at this time and said it was a move to distract world attention from a summit meeting.

Books & Stuff

By Dr. Ed Hirschberg

Something which we have certainly been talking a lot about finally is breaking at this week's end—National Library Week starts March 16 and runs through the 22nd. Sponsored by the American Library Association and the National Book Committee, its objective is to emphasize to all and sundry the importance of reading. Books and libraries, and we course are all for it. If all the fuss about National Library Week will get you to go out and read one more book, or visit the library one more time, that's good. Hereabouts there will be programs, speeches and what-all to celebrate. Our "Look-In At Books" TV show over WNCN will combine with the Marine Showcase this Sunday at 1:30, when we'll be talking with Dr. J. G. Joyce, interim pastor at the First Presbyterian Church, Police Chief S. G. Gibbs and Marine Sgt. Runyon of Cherry Point—all about books and what good they do for these three very widely varying but still interested readers. We hope you get to listen, and also that you can take a look at Camera 9 on Monday at 1:15, when Mrs. R. E. Lee and Mrs. Earl Trevelyan will also be talking books over the TV waves.

Speaking of libraries and librarians, we want to call your attention to a wonderful article about them by Catherine Drinker Bowen in the March Atlantic. Mrs. Bowen, who, as you know, is a famous historian and writer of the recently best-selling "The Lion and the Throne," has this time in summarizing her feelings about the many librarians she has known through almost a lifetime of study for biography-writing: "I think their praises are not often sung; I am glad to sing them now. Love, I have heard said, is gratitude for favors received. And I am in love with librarians."

Reading in this Lenten season naturally turns toward thoughts of religion, and if you're looking for book titles the Sheppard Memorial Library—naturally—is the place to go. Available to all comers are two reading lists, one for Protestants and the other for Catholics, of outstanding books on religion. Dean James A. Pike and Jim Bishop—author of "The Day Christ Died." If you remember—are the compilers, and their suggestions will keep you busy with good Lenten reading if you really want some. In the March 8 Saturday Review there is also a whole section devoted to recent religious books, and we recommend your taking a good long look at it—labeled "Religion in a Nuclear World," it provides reviews and comments on recent books on all aspects of religion in today's complex society.

Local Scenes
This coming Monday, the 17th, is the date of the program on "The Arts in Contemporary Life," being presented by Dr. I. L. DeFrancesco at the E.C.C. Library Auditorium at 8 P.M. Dr. DeFrancesco is a well-known authority on art education, and will be here for three days as a feature of the Danforth Foundation Project at the College. Casting for "East Carolina's Spade: To Serve," the big parent coming in May to celebrate the 50th anniversary, same off successfully this week.

and rehearsals start soon. "Umberto D." another outstanding foreign film, comes to the local cinema March 20, starting the day after "Peyton Place."

Today's Review
Mrs. Emma Baanight, herself a living example of the best that remains of the "Old South," contributes her comments on a recent book about one of the Confederacy's greatest generals, THE GALLANT MRS. STONEWALL, by Harnett T. Kane. New York: Doubleday & Co., 1957. As the centennial of the Civil War approaches, an avalanche of research work about the Confederacy is being published. Harnett T. Kane has written a trilogy of books, about Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Davis, and this "The Gallant Mrs. Stonewall," about the wife of General Stonewall Jackson.

Born Anna Morrison, she grew up on a plantation near Charlotte. Her father, Dr. Robert H. Morrison, was a Presbyterian minister and founder of Davidson College. She had four brothers and five sisters and shared with them a hospitable and gracious home. She first met Jackson in '53, in Lexington, Va. When in '56 she decided to marry this obscure and austere military leader, her family naturally felt concerned. Her maid "Hetty," frankly spits her doubts: "Miss Anna you mus' ricollet dat eben you pa knowed to marry well—as jes' member-us Graham's is quality folks."

Through five years of marriage, schooled in "Stonewall's" rigid self-discipline and Christian living, Anna grew aware of the potential for greatness in this resolute figure, whose "Valley Campaign" of '62, made news around the globe, and has become a military textbook. Aroused concern brought foreign agents over to observe and report to an astonished and disturbed world this amazing performance going on in "old Virginia." When musket fire by mistake drove Anna and her children to drive armed invaders out of the South, and force a decision against the time and support favorable to the opposing force.

Anna Jackson lived quietly, reared her daughter Julia, and later her grandchildren. When a grateful state voted her a life-time monthly pension of $100, she requested that it go instead for welfare. The result was the Jackson Training School at Concord, North Carolina. Through the decades she became a legend, honored throughout the U.S. and abroad. In 1910, at age 79, she accepted President Taft's invitation to visit Washington. There, she acknowledged repeated tributes with tactful and gracious response. Her death occurred in 1915, and many "Tar Heels" now living remember this revered woman, as a friend and neighbor, and proud touch of Carolina's Spade: To Serve, the now big parent coming in May to celebrate the 50th anniversary, same off successfully this week.

FOUNDATIONS
You have to go down if you want to go up! That sounds like foolishness, but it isn't. If you plan to build a garage, you don't need to dig very much before you lay the foundation. But if you plan to build a modern skyscraper, you must start deep below the earth's surface. Foundations of great buildings must go down until they rest on bed rock. Not until then is it safe to start going up. So the next time you look up at a building which rises far above you, don't forget the foundation that makes it possible.

Our lives need such foundations, too. In the building of our lives, and those of our children, we are too often governed by what other people think or by our temporary wants and desires. But when life's storms come and its testing moments are upon us, it is the foundation that keeps us secure, or the lack of it that permits collapse. Only a life foundation that rests solidly upon faith in the eternal God is really adequate for the kind of character building we must do if we want our lives to be happy and successful.

As you've got to go deep as that, if you want to go up.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church: They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

'Twirp Week' Brings Laughs At Rose High

By MARTHA PIERCE
Reflector Teen Writer
Is it hard to ask someone for a date? The girls in the senior high will find the answer to this question during "twirp week" which began yesterday and will end next Thursday.

A twirp dance was given in the school gym last night by the student cooperative association. This was the opportunity for the girls to take advantage of this sudden reversal in dating procedures. Tonight the teenage club will be open for the twirp-minded girls and boys.

Twirp season has a two-fold purpose. One of its objectives is for the boys to be shown how the girls would like to be treated. Opening doors is one of the courtesies that will be shown to the boys by the girls during their week of model behavior.

The second reason for having twirp week is to help the girls see things from the boys' viewpoint.

Explains Honor System
Two representatives from the student government at the University of North Carolina explained in an assembly Friday how the honor system works at their school.

The honor system at Carolina governs the student's life on campus and off campus. "Although our system is not perfect, it makes the student government's job much easier when the individual student feels a responsibility for his conduct," commented Bill Franklin, UNC representative. This honor system is based on the theory that a student is responsible not only for his own conduct but also for his fellow classmates' conduct. If a student sees someone cheating or otherwise violating the code, he is obligated to tell the person that he has been seen. If the person does not turn himself in, it is up to the student who witnessed the cheating.

The Junius H. Rose executive student association has been examining the possibilities of an honor system for the high school.

Scholarship Finalist
Anne Parkinson was notified this week that she is a finalist for a Duke School of Nursing scholarship.

Gold Star Mothers Feted By Auxiliary Last Night

Gold Star mothers who attended the dinner given in their honor by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars included Mrs. Walter Cherry, Mrs. Roy Cox, Mrs. W. L. Davenport, Mrs. T. E. Dickerson, Mrs. Abe Gray, Mrs. W. L. Mayo, Mrs. H. R. Rogers, Mrs. Paul Vincent, Mrs. L. E. Meeks, Mrs. J. B. Spilman and Mrs. Margaret Tetterton.

The occasion was held last evening at the Eighth Street Christian Church.

Special guests included Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Haney, S. E. West, mayor, Mrs. West, Mrs. Alfred Kennedy, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, Mr. Kennedy, Miss Jane Murray and Miss Dottie Flynn.

Massive centerpieces of gold chrysanthemums interspersed with greenery were flanked by gold tapers on the main tables. Place cards were marked with gold stars to carry out the Gold Star motif.

Dr. H. G. Haney offered the invocation. During the meal, Miss Jane Murray sang, accompanied by Miss Dottie Flynn. The musicians are students of East Carolina College. Group singing ended the affair.

Mrs. Clem Garner was chairman of this event.

The program was concerned with personal development. "It Doesn't Pay To Be A Bargain," was presented by several members of the Winterville Future Homemakers of America club at the meeting Tuesday.

Shirley Churchill stressed the reasons why every one wants to be popular. Adaptability, which is in part being flexible in your approach to a problem, was emphasized by Mary Ann Worthington. "Sincerity and being honest with one's self and living up to high standards is an important point in personality development," said Joe Ann Hathaway.

Gloria Cox asked, "Are you trustworthy? This means doing what you promised to do yesterday—even if today you'd rather not." Norma Worthington explained that consideration for others is an important factor and acceptance of one's self and others was discussed by Barbara Manning. Judith Hardee concluded the program by pointing out the importance of competence, "the ability to do something well."

During the meeting activities to be carried out by the chapter during FHA week, March 23-29, were discussed. It was decided to honor parents with a tea at the Home Economics cottage on March 25 from 4-7:30 p.m. and attend a local church in a group on March 28.

The chapter voted to sponsor a "Twirp Week" the week of March 31-April 6. The highlight of this week will be a dance for the FHA members and guests.

Sandra Hunsucker, president, presided over the meeting which opened with a devotional by Margaret Jane Case.

Refreshments were served to members and Mrs. Glenn Worthington, parent, and C. A. Rhodes and T. S. Owens, student teachers.

Feather-Brain Wife Cracks Out-Of-Date

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

All those old cracks about the feather-brained wife and her scrambled checkbook are strictly out of date, says Iweta Miller, president of the National Assn. of Bank Women and assistant vice president of the First City National Bank of Houston, Tex.

Miss Miller, an attractive brunette who gave up a prospective career as a concert pianist for the thrills of high finance, says: "Women have been ably handling family finances for some time now, and those old jokes are several generations out of date. They're holdovers from the Victorian era when ladies weren't supposed to know anything about finance or business."

"Actually most housewives today have taken over the business of keeping the family accounts, and it's a rare instance indeed when a modern woman is baffled by a bank balance."

Miss Miller points out that there are 10,000 women bank officers in the United States today, and 153 of them are bank presidents.

"A large percentage of married women today are holding down responsible jobs in business, where they are highly trained in money matters," she says. "In many cases these women handle not only the financial records of their companies but the personal checking accounts of their employers as well. So it's hardly reasonable to think that they couldn't keep their own checkbooks balanced."

30 Years Ago Mrs. Jones Honored By Company Today

March 15, 1928

"With 12 residences going up in College View and four in Greenville Heights, it begins to look like Greenville is in the midst of a home-building boom," a prominent realtor mentioned today.

"There is nothing that more plainly depicts the growth of a town than the building of new residences. It shows that population is increasing and increased population has always demanded more buildings for people to live in. No one can dispute the fact that Greenville is experiencing healthy growth. Every day some new firm or industry is announced through the columns of The Reflector. With continued growth of this kind it will not be long before this old town will be numbered among the most populous of Eastern Carolina."

2 Women Give WSCS Program

GRIFTON—Mrs. Douglas Boone and Mrs. Ralph Epps gave talks on Bennett College and the life of Albert Schweitzer at the WSCS meeting Monday night.

Mrs. Cecil Cobb, spiritual life leader, presented the devotional using the "March of Missions in Healing" topic for meditation and prayer.

Mrs. J. C. Hooten presided over the business and recognized Mrs. John Schute of Kinston, sub-district president, Mrs. John Steiner, district treasurer, and Mrs. T. C. Lewis, district secretary of missionary education.

Mrs. Schute asked all members to attend the sub-district, district, and annual meetings of the WSCS.

After adjournment members and visitors were invited to the R. A. Nelson Classroom for refreshments served from a table covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a low arrangement of yellow spring flowers. White candles placed in silver holders flanked the centerpiece.

Lime ice punch was served by Mrs. Hooten. Guests helped themselves to dainty sandwiches, cookies, and potato chips.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. James Israel, Mrs. George Lehman, Mrs. William Waters, Mrs. Becky Worthington, Mrs. W. E. Rasberry, and Mrs. Ann Paul.

Mrs. Jones Honored By Company

Mrs. Edna Jones was honored by the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company on the occasion of her 25th anniversary with the telephone company at a dinner party held recently.

On arrival Mrs. Bertie Reed, chief operator, presented Mrs. Jones with a corsage of pink carnations embedded with a silver 25.

Guests were invited into the dining room where the color scheme of pink and silver was carried out. The appointed table was centered with spring flowers interspersed with silver leaves and a 25.

A fried chicken dinner was served to the 25 guests who included relatives and friends.

Following dinner, the honoree "Mid-Winter's Night Dream"

A cast of 50 people will present a musical extravaganza at the Red Oak Community Building tonight (March 15) at 7:30. Proceeds will be used to purchase choir robes. Everybody is cordially invited to enjoy an evening of relaxation and enjoyment.

Christian Science Services

The healing and saving power of faith, when it is advanced to spiritual understanding, will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

Scriptural readings in the Lesson-Sermon on "Substance" will include the following from James (2:14): "What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works?"

Among the correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following (323:13-18): "In order to apprehend more, we must put into practice what we already know. We must recollect that Truth is demonstrable when understood, and that good is not understood until demonstrated. If 'faithful over a few things,' we shall be made rulers over many; but the one unused talent decays and is lost."

There Will Be No Intimidation

Would-be Klansmen and terrorists by any other name have seen once again that North Carolina has no inclination to tolerate lawless attempts at intimidating any segment of its population.

Under terms of the sentence handed down at Lumberton by Superior Court Judge Clawson L. Williams, KKK Grand Wizard James W. (Catfish) Cole will spend 18 to 24 months in prison for his part in an armed rally of Klansmen at Maxton.

Cole's crime was of much broader scope than the mere charge of inciting a riot in which he was tried, convicted and sentenced. His efforts were aimed at intimidating a part of the citizenry of North Carolina. Had he succeeded, or had he been given only a token sentence by the state, others would have followed in his infamous footsteps. Their attempts at taking the law into their own hands through mob action could only lead to bloodshed and pitched racial feelings which would be detrimental to the entire citizenry of North Carolina.

Another Phase In Tree Farming

By LYNN NISBET
TREES — Colin G. Spencer of Carthage was one of the pioneers in promoting and developing the idea of "tree farming"—the concept that trees, particularly pine trees, could be cultivated and harvested in much the same manner as annual row crops like corn, cotton and tobacco. He is now pioneering in another phase, a sort of advanced step, in the same general program. He calls it insurance for the preservation of his forests and assured income for his children and their children.

He has leased some 4000-odd acres of land, not all in one or adjacent tracts, but all in the Sandhill country, to a big company which has contracted to pay an annual rental, all ad valorem taxes and to carry on a program of selection harvesting and reforestation for a period of 99 years.

Monetary considerations for harvestable timber and pulpwood on the land now and other details of the contract agreement are of no proper public concern. The general idea is susceptible to adaptation for larger or smaller acreages, and would seem to offer a solution to at least a part of the problem of what to do with land being taken out of annual crop cultivation by changing economic conditions.

Continental Can Company is the lessor of the Spencer forests. It is learned that International Paper, Reigel Paper and other large operators are doing essentially the same kind of thing. It is necessary that these big companies have large acreages in one lease in order to justify administrative costs. Offhand there would seem no reason why a number of small landowners could not pool their acreages for a co-operative lease agreement. So far as living owners are concerned a 99-year lease is equivalent to a sale. There is this vital difference: Under the rental agreement the owners can repossess the land if the agreement is violated.

PARTY INTEGRITY — Both the Democratic and Republican parties in North Carolina are having trouble with voters who want to play both ends against the middle, or eat their cake and still have it. Democrats have been worried about the fact that more than twice as many people voted for the Republican candidate for Congress in the tenth district and for the Republican President throughout the state than were registered as Republicans. Although registered as Democrats and participating in Democratic party meetings, thousands of North Carolinians marked their ballots for Republican candidates. For most part they are content to stay with the Democratic organization at state and local levels.

The other side of the coin and occasion for Republican worry showed up at the recent convention in Winston-Salem. The only contest over seating county delegations was inspired by a man who was forced to admit that he was not a registered Republican voter.

Ever since 1928, commonly designated as the "Al Smith campaign," the majority party organization has been bothered with registered Democrats voting for Republican candidates. There was a little of it for a long time before that, but the problem was not serious except in the first Hoover and both Eisenhower campaigns. In 1928, 1952 and 1956 throughout the state, and in several congressional districts and counties since 1944, Republicans have been laughing at Democrats because there were so many more Republican votes than voters registered in that party. The Democrats can laugh now—but not quite so loudly—because non-registered Republicans are moving in to take over control of that party's organization.

Recent developments tend to raise the question of whether North Carolina Republicans really want a two-party system as they have contended for years and whether the Democrats really want to retain a one-party supremacy—or whether both are heading for a no-party system of purely individual accountability.

PARKWAY TOLLS — Chances are better than even, but not yet a certainty, that the Blue Ridge Parkway will continue as a toll-free route. A decree of Federal authority has gone out proclaiming that tolls should be collected on and after June 1 of this year. Just who promulgated this decree is not known and is not important. Whether it was Secretary of the Interior Fred Seaton, Director of National Park Service Conrad Wirth or Superintendent of the Blue Ridge Parkway Sam Weems doesn't matter much. Such orders have been issued several times before and rescinded when popular opinion was manifested.

Not only public opinion but simple justice opposes the imposition of tolls on the Parkway. The land on which the Parkway is built was donated by the State of North Carolina, a goodly part of it given by citizens without cost to the State or the Federal government, with the understanding that there would be no charge for use of the road.

In normal process this would be a purely administrative decision. There are peculiar circumstances here which suggest that to prevent re-occurrence of the efforts of the National Park Service to try to make a profit out of the donated right of way, an act of Congress is necessary. Bills have been introduced or prepared for introduction in the Senate by Senators Ervin and Scott, in the House by Reps. Shuford, Jonas and Alexander with full support of the entire North Carolina delegation, declaring the Blue Ridge Parkway to be forever toll free.

A hearing has been set for March 19 on these bills. What is likely to happen is that a committee will work out a compromise measure embracing the main points of the several bills and everybody will get behind it and put it through. "That is the only way to prevent recurrence of this threat of tolls every two or three years, regardless of which party is in power," said Rep. Jonas.

Cole gone unpunished for his crime. Indeed, we would have been disappointed had the presiding judge not recognized as he did that the crime Cole committed demanded as severe punishment as the law would allow.

North Carolina, now as in the past, has wanted no part of the Klan or the philosophy of mob violence and intimidation which its misguided leaders advocate. Through the reaction of its citizens, through its law enforcement agencies and through its courts, North Carolina has indicated its dislike for the cancerous terrorism of Klan-like activities. It has shown its determination to stamp out such activities wherever they occur, and punish whenever possible those responsible for such activities.

The course followed by North Carolina is the only wise course any people can follow. Neither the state nor any of its communities must stray from this true course if the welfare of its people is to be served.

Shooting High, But A Mighty Poor Outlook

A Republican candidate on every ballot in every county in North Carolina?

That's a heap of Republicans for North Carolina. The Republican-on-every-ballot assertion by the new GOP state chairman, Sen. William Cobb, of Morganton, sort of reminded us of other GOP slogans that were heard about three decades ago at another party level. Remember the chicken-in-every-pot and two-cars-in-every-garage bits? Well, Republican candidates talked about those things, made a big fuss over the slogans, and probably gained some votes by them.

But after the election they never could quite get around to putting a chicken in every pot. They did manage to see that most cars stayed in the garages simply because a good many folks didn't have enough money to buy gas to run them.

Now this Republican-on-every-ballot is something else again when it comes to North Carolina. This state has a great many Republicans as is evidenced by the 1956 presidential election. But when it comes to state and local offices, most counties of North Carolina are solidly Democratic. In many counties there probably would be difficulty in finding enough registered Republicans to get a party candidate for every office. And we doubt the GOP would gain much support in North Carolina even if it found a candidate for every local office.

For the foreseeable future at least, this Republican-on-every-ballot tidbit probably will amount to no more than the chicken-in-every-pot, and car-in-every-garage slogans of another era.

Stimulants In Consumer Field

By ELMER ROESSNER
There are many ways to stimulate consumer buying, on which the Eisenhower Administration is counting to reverse the recession. But there are two ways that have the merit of directness.

One is to increase selling efforts by merchants and manufacturers; the other is to reduce taxes that directly restrict sales, such as sales and excise taxes.

In prewar economic dips, it was the practice of many businesses to cut advertising and fire salesmen — false economies that lengthened and deepened the dips.

However, business has been getting away from this idea and, while many companies are making cuts, most are keeping the axe away from sales and advertising departments.

A survey of fifty companies by Dun's Review and Modern Industry showed that while few companies are embarking on crash programs to revive sales, most are intensifying regular selling efforts.

CASE HISTORY
One metals manufacturer reported sales had gone up last year and were expected to go up a new high this year because it had built a program on the theme of "no cost reduction in the selling effort." While it has cut back in other departments, it began adding to its sales staff as soon as it sensed a downturn and the staff is now 15 per cent larger.

From the results of the survey, the Dun & Bradstreet magazine compiled an eight-point check list of sales stimulants now in use. They are:

1. Make everyone a salesman.
2. Seek out new distribution channels.
3. Conduct special promotions.
4. Move into growing markets.
5. Develop new products.
6. Keep advertising strong.
7. Turn the slowdown to your advantage.
8. Stimulate personal selling.

In a parallel survey of almost 1,200 manufacturers, the magazine found that 665 are making special efforts to build or maintain sales volume this year, while 527 are not.

RESTRICTIVE TAXES
Efforts to increase consumer buying are braked by both Federal excise and local sales taxes. Taxes usually exercise a prohibitive effect. That's one reason why taxes are so high on alcoholic beverages; the forces that once brought about prohibition by Constitutional amendment backed efforts to use high taxes to make liquor almost prohibitively expensive — at least for the working classes. Excise taxes also apply to autos, appliances, cosmetics and many other articles.

Taxes can be (and are) levied at any point in the stream of private wealth — when it's earned, when it's invested, when it's spent. In the long view, it doesn't matter much where they are levied. They come out of the pockets of the people in the end.

But in an economy so dependent on retail sales it seems strange and a little bit mad to impose taxes at the point of purchase. They tend to restrict the very thing we want to encourage.

In the past, we have reduced taxes on things we wanted to encourage, such as defense plants and some housing. We have spared charity and religious organizations from almost all taxes.

The Senate Finance Committee is now considering lowering some rates and is holding up action on the House-passed Forand bill, which would make technical corrections in excise tax laws. It would be a handy bill on which to tack an excise tax cut.

Cities and states with sales taxes are showing less inclination to act, largely because they are desperate for additional funds for relief and job-making projects. But they are learning the hard way that sales taxes can be dangerous: Just when slumps call for additional revenue, these taxes yield less.

CANADIANS WELCOME MINORITY SHAREHOLDERS
Some Canadians are worried about the rise of American investments in the Dominion. They fear that American capital may eventually gain control of the Canadian economy.

But a survey by the Committee of Canadian Investment Companies shows that there is one kind of investment all Canadians welcome: the portfolio investor, who buys a diversified package of securities in many companies, which keeps him from exercising control.

Strength For Today

THE THREE TRAGIC D'S
Here they are — drink, drugs, and dullness. You wouldn't think of fondling a cobra snake, but you would be a lot safer doing that than fooling around with any one of these three D's.

Sir William Osler, often called the greatest physician that ever lived, summed up the drink situation when he said: "Alcohol doesn't enable anyone to do anything better; it simply dulls him to the realization that he does everything so poorly." And yet they go guzzling it down—the most pathetic being the poor folks who fail to realize that their "moderate" drinking is keeping a dreadful servitude fastened on millions of unfortunate who fall victim of liquor and go down the drain.

Drugs. How about a national law which will inflict the death sentence on ANYONE who illegally sells habit-forming drugs? Oh, wait parson, I hear someone say: isn't that a bit harsh and unchristian? Why? Should men be allowed to live who make slaves out of their fellows and condemn their lives spiritually?

And as for dullness — well, live life to the very hilt, and you will never appear dull. The mood of dullness is the sure symptom of emotional illness.

A Man With Designs

By NORRIS LEAP
Of The Los Angeles Times
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Henry Dreyfuss is a designing man who at 54 can hardly enter a home, an office or walk down the street of any city without seeing something of his work.

He is the man who designed your telephone and quite likely your bathroom fixtures, your typewriter, your pen, your clock, your sewing machine, your TV, your air conditioner or any of a dozen other of your possessions.

One of the world's top industrial designers, he will tell you he got where he is by being a perfectionist, by having in his youth a little more than his share of brashness, and by marrying a woman with a flair for business.

He tells with a quirk of pride the time when at 17 he defied common sense and launched himself into the world of arts.

Perfection Denied
Graduating from a private school in New York with perfect grades in art, he had already won a college scholarship. However, when he took the New York regents' examination his work came back graded 99 per cent and bearing the notation, "No one is perfect."

That enraged him so that he abandoned the scholarship. Instead he got a job as a theatrical designer and skipped college. Dreyfuss' youthful brashness got him his second job. He was 18 and took a girl to a movie house, where the setting for the stage show was of execrable design.

He wrote as much to the manager. Back came an answer that if he thought he could do better come in and do it.

He did, and for each of the following 260 weeks he designed a different stage setting for the Grand Theater. He also began designing for plays and musicals.

Tired at 23
But at 23 he quit and went to Europe. "I was tired and there wasn't enough money in it," he said. Besides, he had a dream. He had been looking around the world he lived in and had seen it filled with things shaped for utility. Often they were downright ugly.

He thought something should be done about it. When he returned to New York, he decided to try.

He rented an office, hung up a shingle as an "industrial designer," and hired a secretary, Doris Marks, a slim brunette, soft of voice and a Vassar graduate in psychology.

Dreyfuss was 25 and in business in a brand new field just in time to find that his world had been paralyzed by the Black Thursday crash.

"I might as well quit," he told Miss Marks.

She disagreed. "What have you got to lose?" she asked. "The question proved valid, for he had nowhere to go but up."

But at first the motion was all but imperceptible.

Finally he found what he was looking for, a product he could design from the inside out rather than simply dressing up a manufacturer's mistakes.

It was the telephone. Dreyfuss had had the account ever since. Today this country uses 50 million telephones of his design.

That opened the floodgates. The list of ways in which he has changed the American scene could go into the hundreds, and possibly the thousands. His success lies in something more than cleverness with line and eagerness to find new and better materials. It is in his zeal for perfection, in finding exactly the right answer to a problem through endless studies.

Dreyfuss gives much of the credit for his own success to the woman he hired, the former Doris Marks. They were married two years after she became his secretary.

"From the start," he said, "she organized things. I never would have stayed in business without her."

Not Exactly A Handshake—

"The World loves a fat man" the old expression goes. For those who strive to shed the old blubber, and "not" be loved, follow this little piece of advice. Don't eat!

Sugar, spaghetti, thick soups, rice, bread, butter, candy, cereals, chocolate, crackers, cream, custard, jellies and jams, noodles, nuts, oil, pastry, gravy and cake; and don't drink bonded and non-tax paid whiskey.

Other Editors Saying --- Air Force's Tough Role

(Rocky Mount Telegram)
The U. S. Air Force in recent months has gone to great pains in assuring British resident that atomic bombs carried by planes over the British Isles offer no danger of nuclear explosion. Despite these assurances, the British Labor Party has noisily and persistently demanded that these flights be halted.

Monday an atomic bomb fell on Florence, S.C., and while there was no nuclear explosion the TNT charge that acts to trigger off the atomic section of the bomb exploded with resultant damage to several buildings and injuries to several persons. The device was released, according to Air Force officials, because of "malfunction of the plane's bomb lock system."

Naturally there was widespread reaction to the accident. Some one could have been killed. The damage could have been greater. The Air Force repeated its original statement that the odds were tremendous against a nuclear blast from such an accident. It did serve to give the British Labor Party more fuel for the fire.

No doubt Laborite members will bring up the accident in the House of Commons in their campaign to bring a halt to bomb-carrying flights by American planes based in Britain.

It is unfortunate the bomb was dropped. But such a thing cannot always be helped. We believe the Air Force has shown that it has taken every precaution humanly possible in an effort to prevent the setting off of a nuclear blast accidentally. The bombs are not armed. That is, they cannot be set off without attaching a final device just before the explosion is due to occur.

Had the bomb been of a conventional type, much less would have been made of the whole affair. But since the bomb was of a nuclear type, naturally it got a big play at home and abroad.

American planes carrying out training flights day and night across the country. They must do this in order to maintain a high degree of preparedness and efficiency. They must do this with real bombs, for the time may come when they receive orders to launch an attack, even while some of the planes are airborne and ostensibly on training missions. This is done to save time.

It is far better to adopt such a policy than to play it too cautiously. Bombs left at home can do little good. This nation's life depends on the Air Force and its defensive program of having atomic bomb-carrying planes aloft at all times. In such a vast program, there is bound to be an occasional accident. So far, the Air Force and the country have been lucky. We hope it remains so.

It is quite obvious that we cannot control the air up to 20 miles above the earth's surface and relinquish control of space above that altitude... and still survive." — Gen. Thomas D. Changing Sentiment Is Evident

By RALPH ROBEY
Administration leaders are changing their attitude on the current business downturn. The change may not be complete, but it clearly is in process.

It will be recalled that at the beginning of the year it was the contention of the Administration that the forces of recovery would soon get us back on the up-grade.

This conclusion was reflected in the President's State of the Union Message, in his Budget Message, and in his Economic Report. Since then it has been re-stated in one way or another by almost every Cabinet Member.

In a word, that was the official position of the Administration. There was no real deviation from it.

It still may be the official position of the Administration. At least it has not been repudiated. None the less, two events of the past few days make it appear that the number of persons holding such a view is declining.

First was the introduction of a resolution in the Senate by Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson. It had the endorsement of the majority of the Senate, including eighteen Republicans. It stated that Congress thinks there should be a stepping-up of expenditures on civil and military programs for which appropriations have been made. Back of this resolution had been a whole host of bills, from both sides of the aisle, providing for larger spending for roads, houses, watershed development, and just about everything else anyone could dream up.

Some of those bills, and some of those sponsoring the resolution, unquestionably were motivated by political considerations. That, however, does not provide a complete explanation. Some of the bills and some of the motivation reflect a genuine conviction that it is time government stepped in with positive action.

Second, two days after the resolution was introduced the President sent a letter to the Republican Minority leader of both the Senate and House. This letter, it was explained, was not an answer to the Johnson resolution, but it pretty well served that purpose.

In his letter the President took a side-swipe at "the sudden upsurge of pump-priming schemes, such as setting up of huge federal bureaucracies..." Then Mr. Eisenhower summarized what the Government has done up to this time and what it proposes to do. Among the latter are the following:

1. Accelerate where practicable the construction of projects for which appropriated funds are available.

2. Increase appropriation requests of $186 million for certain "water resource projects".

3. An additional $200 million has been released for the stimulation of moderate priced homes.

4. Within a few days the Congress will be requested to amend the Highway Act to suspend certain expenditure limitations. The amount involved is $2.2 billion for the calendar years 1958-61.

5. The military department has been instructed to place all possible contracts in labor surplus areas, with first priority to small business.

6. A program is under way to make funds available for more veterans homebuilding.

7. The Secretary of Labor has been requested to present a "proposal which would enable eligible unemployed individuals to receive weekly benefits for a longer period than is now permitted under state laws and thus enable them to continue to seek jobs with a greater measure of security." The most common State limitation on unemployment compensation at present is 26 weeks. It is reported that Congress enact Federal legislation to standardize and increase this to 39 weeks.

There are too many open ends in this program to put a definite dollar amount on it, but unquestionably the total would run into billions. And bear in mind this is just the new program—new in the sense that it covers, according to the President, only items which have been specifically developed since February 12.

It is worth noting, too, that President Eisenhower ended his letter with this sentence: "... other programs and measures are under study and, as circumstances may require, will be administratively set in motion or proposed to the Congress."

College Leaders Line Up In NCAA Regional Finals

Seven Favorites And A Darkhorse

By ORLO ROBERTSON
The Associated Press

Seven favorites and darkhorse Seattle square off tonight in the four regional finals of the NCAA basketball championship after a night of thrills that saw one game won at the buzzer on a 35-foot field goal and another—between two of the nation's mightiest teams—settled in overtime.

Here's how they'll line up for tonight's engagements to decide the four contestants for the deciding rounds at Louisville, Ky., March 21-22:

At Charlotte, N.C.—Temple vs. Dartmouth.

At Lexington, Ky.—Notre Dame vs. Kentucky.

At Lawrence, Kan.—Kansas State vs. Oklahoma State.

At San Francisco—Seattle vs. California.

Victories by all except Seattle were more or less expected. But the Chiefs came through as All-America Elgin Baylor, the nation's No. 2 individual scorer, let loose with a 35-foot shot at the final buzzer to down the San Francisco Dons, best defensive outfit in the country, 69-67.

Cincinnati's All-America Oscar Robertson, leader of the scoring parade, lived up to advance notices at Lawrence but missed a free throw in the final second that would have sent the Bearcats off the floor as the winner. Third-ranked Kansas State went on to down second-rated Cincinnati 69-50 in overtime.

Oklahoma State won the right to meet the well-balanced Wildcats from K-State with a routine 65-40 victory over Arkansas, Temple squeaked by Maryland 71-67 and Dartmouth dumped Manhattan 70-62 at Charlotte.

Kentucky had little trouble against Miami of Ohio at Lexington, winning 94-70, but Notre Dame was pressed before eliminating Indiana 94-87.

California joined Seattle in the West Coast finals with a 54-43 decision over Idaho State.

With the NCAA university competition down to eight teams, the organization's small college crown in the hands of South Dakota and the NAIA field reduced to two teams (unbeaten Western Illinois and defending champion Tennessee State), the NIT in New York moves back into the picture with four games.

In afternoon clashes, Niagara meets Xavier of Ohio and fourth-seeded Utah takes on St. John's of New York, in a nationally televised game (CBS) starting at 4:30 p.m. EST. At night Fordham plays at St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., and third-seeded St. Bonaventure goes into action against St. Joseph's of Philadelphia.

It will be a long time before the 16,363 fans who sat in on the doubleheader at San Francisco's Cow Palace forget the Seattle-San Francisco game.

There never was more than a four-point spread and the score was tied eight times. Baylor, who racked up 35 points, was almost unstoppable in the second half. He dropped in 23 shots, climaxed by his hair-raising, game-winning two-pointer.

But another 17,000 fans will swear that the best of them all was at Lawrence. Never more than six points separated Kansas State and Cincinnati.

Big Bob Boozer spearheaded an attack with 15 of his 24 points in the early minutes for K-State. The Bearcats led by Robertson struck back for a 40-39 halftime lead.

With less than a minute remaining, the Big Eight champions drew away from 69-69 deadlock after Cincinnati's Connie Dierking was sidelined by fouls. Robertson, who ended up with 30 points, narrowed the margin to one point, 74-73. He was fouled by Boozer and stepped to the foul line for two shots with one second showing on the clock. He tied the score with the first but missed the second.

Robertson fouled out a minute after the overtime started and from there on K-State held command with Roy Dewitz scoring seven of the Wildcats' nine points in the overtime.

All-America Guy Rodgers of Temple didn't have one of his best nights but the Owls again demonstrated they are not a one-man operation as they picked up their 24th straight victory.

Dartmouth caught Manhattan on a cold shooting night. The Jaspers made only 32.9 per cent of their shots as Dartmouth kept the nets hot. Charlie Kaufman led the Ivy League champs with 22 points.

Kentucky, seeking an unprecedented fourth NCAA title, capitalized on the outside shooting of Johnny Cox to overcome Miami. Cox dropped in 23 points.

Although Tom Hawkins and John McCarthy combined for 60 points, Notre Dame had to survive a late Indiana flurry. McCarthy tallied 29 and Hawkins 31. Indiana's Archie Dees contributed 28 in a losing cause.

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP)—The Wake Forest All-Stars, fresh from a surprising victory over Duke's regular season varsity, play the host McCrory Eagles here at 7:30 tonight in the finals of the Carolinas AAU basketball tournament.

The winner will be entitled to represent the Carolinas in the national AAU tournament at Denver.

Wake Forest, led by sharpshooting Jack Williams, came from a 15-point deficit in the second half last night to tie the game against the Duke All-Stars. Bill Cullen's hook shot put the Deacs ahead to stay and they built up their margin to ice the victory. Final score was 74-72.

High scorers for the winners were Williams with 19; Cullen, a transfer student who will be eligible for varsity play next fall, 14; Ken Cox 12 and Ernie Wiggins, like Williams a star in the 1956-57 season, 11 points.

For Duke, Bucky Allen had 19 points, Bob Vernon 16, Bobby Joe Harris 13, Jim Newcome 12 and Paul Schmidt 10.

McCrory, never in trouble with the High Point All-Stars, swapped baskets in the early minutes and then broke into a comfortable lead. Halftime score was 52-28 and the final was 95-75 for McCrory.

High scorers for the Eagles were Dee Atkinson with 28, Smith Landon 20, Don Herrick 18, Jim Jordan 12 and Ralph Hodges 11. Cliff Dwyer snared several rebounds. For High Point, Maury Beachout and Bill Huegele had 15 and 14 points respectively.

Tony Anthony Is Ready To Fight Floyd Patterson

NEW YORK (AP)—What a difference one fight makes! Six months ago Tony Anthony was knocked out by Archie Moore in a bid for the old gaffer's light heavyweight crown. Today the lean, young New Yorker was seeking a crack at heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson.

"We want Patterson," shouted Manager Ernie Braca after his 23-year-old punching protegee sloped awkward, wild-swinging Yvon Durelle of Canada in 31 seconds of the seventh round of a television thriller at Madison Square Garden last night.

Floored in the first round by a right and left to the head, Anthony came raging back to stagger the 28-year-old fighting fisherman repeatedly, floor him in the sixth and bomb him in the seventh. Referee Ruby Goldstein intervened while the game Canadian still was standing.

"Tony is stepping into the heavyweight class now," said Braca as Anthony nodded assent. "We only kept him down for this one fight. Durelle has been holding out that he won the first fight when they called it a draw. We wanted to prove something to him and Tony sure did."

"I think we have a good chance of getting Patterson," Braca added. "I spoke to Cus D'Amato (Patterson's manager) before he and Floyd sailed for England and I think we can work out something."

How about the International Boxing Club angle? Didn't D'Amato say he wouldn't have Patterson fight for the IBC or anyone co-operating with the IBC?

"I'd like to get Cus and Jim Norris (IBC president) together," replied the ever-optimistic Braca. "But if Cus doesn't want Jim to promote it, we're agreeable to having Teddy Brenner, Emil Lence (both New Yorkers) or some other promoter put it on."

Durelle, who outweighed Anthony 176 to 173, also plans to move into the heavyweight class. Ranked second in the light heavyweight division (Anthony is the No. 3 contender), the British Empire 175-pound kid saw his hopes of getting a title shot at Moore blasted to bits. He had gone unbeaten in 12 fights, including the draw with Anthony nine months ago, and only needed a victory last night to clinch the deal.

Duke Grid Drill Ending Today

DURHAM (AP)—Duke's spring football practice was scheduled to end today with the annual Blue-White intrasquad game, but football still will be king most of next week.

A three-day football clinic opens here Monday, with head coaches from the North Carolina Big Four schools doing the instructing.

These coaches are Bill Murray of Duke, Paul Amen of Wake Forest, Jim Tatum of North Carolina and Earle Edwards of N.C. State.

Sophomores were expected to get a chance to shine in today's game, set for 2 p.m., because injuries and illness had hampered many regular varsity performers.

Regular quarterback Bob Brodhead and halfback George DuThrow were excused from spring practice.

Delaney Sets New Mark For Indoor Mile

CHICAGO (AP)—Poker-faced Ron Delaney, irked at being regarded as "running machine that can be turned on and off," really was turned on last night as he sped to a new world indoor mile record.

Ireland's 1,500-meter Olympic champion electrified an International Amphitheatre crowd of 10,136 by winning the featured Bankers' Mile of the Chicago Relays in 4:03.4.

That shaved two-tenths of a second off the record Delaney has been flirting with for two years, the 4:03.5 mark set by Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen in New York in 1955.

Delaney started off in typical fashion, permitting the others in a four-man field to set the early pace.

"When I heard the field announcer call out a 3:05 time for Phil Coleman at the three-quarters, I decided this was it," the gaunt Irishman explained.

The Villanova senior certainly did open up, with a 58.4-final quarter that left the capacity crowd in a frenzy as he whizzed home some 35 yards ahead of Coleman.

Delaney, whose best previous indoor mile was 4:03.7 in the National AAU meet last month, said he wasn't particularly thrilled.

"I really wanted to win for my coach, Jim Elliott," said the serious-mannered Irishman. "He has done so much for me in four years at Villanova."

"People expected me to break the record all year. I'm not a machine. I can't be turned on and off, just night, just felt good at the end of three-quarters and I decided I could do it."

Hayes Jones, Eastern Michigan hurdlng star, won the 60 highs in 7.0 seconds flat. It was announced as a new world indoor mark. But Milt Campbell, former Indiana track great, had the same time for the 60 tall sticks in last year's Millrose Games in New York.

In the high jump, Villanova's Phil Reavis cleared 6 feet 10 1/2 inches to retain his title and miss the existing world indoor mark by a half inch.

Bob Gutowski, Occidental's superb pole vaulter cleared 15 feet to dethrone Don Bragg, former Villanova ace. Another defending champion fell when Arny Lt. Arnold Sowell, ex-Pitt star, was shaded in the Harry Gill's 1,000-yard run by North Carolina's Dave Scurlock.

Sprinter Ira Murchison retained his 50 sprint title and Charley Jenkins, Olympic 400 meter champion, repeated in the Frank Hill 600.

Iowa's Deacon Jones outlasted Southern California's Max Truxet to win a hot two-mile battle.

The game will be the windup of a triple header of championship games. West Southern Pines faces Shelby at 6:30 for the A title and Lincoln High of Chapel Hill plays Jordan Sellers of Burlington at 8 p.m. in Class AA.

Dudley dumped West Charlotte 71-39 last night, Washington High edged Williston of Wilmington 44-43; Jordan Sellers downed Jones High of Trenton 80-66, and Lincoln High defeated East Spencer 45-40.

Fifth Kiwanis Game Today

CHARLOTTE (AP)—North Carolina, with a decided height advantage, faced sharp shooting South Carolina today at 2 p.m. in the fifth annual Kiwanis basketball Classic at Charlotte's Coliseum.

Coach Art Whittinghill of South Carolina acknowledged yesterday his team wouldn't rate in the rebounding department, and said the main effort would be to outshoot the Tar Heels.

Coach Simon Terrell was to field this North Carolina starting squad:

Dave Albaugh, Greensboro Senior High, 6-0; Bill Hubbard, Needham Broughton High of Raleigh, 6-2; John Key, Durham, 6-7; Roman Gabriel, Wilmington, 6-7; Jackie Bullard, Wilmington, 6-3; Gabriel and Key were co-captains.

The South Carolina lineup as planned by Whittinghill was: Joe Laird, University High of Columbia, 5-11; Bobby Robinson, Camden, 5-11; Bob W. Drow, Taylors, 6-4; Rodney Rogers, Mullins, 6-3; Boyce Berry, team captain, Spartanburg, 6-2.

Also expected to see plenty of action for North Carolina were Jimmy (Wheaties) Whitfield of Durham and Jimmy Adams of Charlotte. South Carolina reserves included Doug Emory and Tony McCreigh.

Haney Has New Recipe For His Victory Stew

By BEN OLAN
The Associated Press

Milwaukee Manager Fred Haney has added some new and solid ingredients to a pitching recipe that helped carry the Braves to their first world championship last season.

The recipe: Take the strong starting pitchers, Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette, Bob Buhl and Gene Conley . . . sprinkle with a touch of fine relievers, Don McMahon and Ernie Johnson . . . add some exceptional youngsters, Juan Pizarro, Carleton Willey, Bob Trowbridge and Joey Jay . . . and sweeten the mixture with some components obtained from Chicago, Bob Rush and Don Kaiser.

Some National League managers and club officials hollered loud and long when the Braves acquired Rush and Kaiser from the Cubs in a five-player deal last Dec. 5. In Rush, they claimed, Milwaukee picked up a durable veteran right-hander who would make the Braves much tougher to beat in 1958.

And they probably knew what they were yelling about. For, the 32-year-old winner of 110 big league ball games is showing up well in the early exhibition games.

Yesterday, Rush gave up only one hit in three scoreless innings as the Braves trounced the Philadelphia Phillies 8-1. Spahn also worked three scoreless frames while Pizarro yielded the only Phil's tally on a home run by Harry Anderson.

The St. Louis Cards, another NL contender, also won. They turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-5, Joe Cunningham was the winners' big gun with four runs batted in on a 3-for-4 performance.

The New York Yankees, the Braves' victims in the last World Series, got help from regulars Bill Skowron, Hank Bauer and Gil McDaniel to defeat the Cincinnati Redlegs 5-1. It was only the Bombers' second victory in seven games—both against the Redlegs. Don Larsen allowed only two singles in a five-inning stint.

In other games, the Chicago White Sox beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 under the archlight; the San Francisco Giants trimmed Cleveland 7-2; Detroit beat Boston 11-8; Baltimore nipped the Cubs 7-6 and Kansas City defeated Washington 5-1.

An error by Don Zimmer, who tossed away a doubleplay ball, enabled the White Sox to pick up two second-inning runs for their margin of victory.

Rookie catcher Roger McCardell cracked two homers, one a grand slam, for the Giants. The winners got nifty pitching from Ramon Monzant, Stu Miller and Dom Zanni.

Temple Defeats Terps To Gain Finals Position

By KEN ALTYA
CHARLOTTE (AP)—Temple risks the year's longest major college basketball winning streak, 24 in a row, tonight against Dartmouth in the finals of the NCAA Eastern regional tournament.

The winner moves to Louisville, Ky., for the four-team national final next Friday and Saturday.

Temple squeaked by Maryland 71-67 and Dartmouth drubbed Manhattan 79-62 in opening games last night. They meet at 9 p.m. (EST) after a 7 o'clock game between Manhattan and Maryland for third place.

Temple, with four senior starters, has a 25-2 record. Dartmouth, starting only one senior, has won 22 of 26.

All America ace Guy Rodgers did not have one of his best nights, but Temple demonstrated it was not a one-man operation. The fast-breaking Owls still had enough to pull out the tightest game of their string.

Maryland had streaked from 11 points behind with just over five minutes left. The Atlantic Coast Conference champions trailed by 10 only one, 68-57 with 1:47 to go, and gave the overflow crowd of 12,000 its biggest thrill of the night.

After Rodgers missed a foul shot Maryland had the ball with 46 seconds remaining. The Terps ate up 26 seconds in a strategy aimed at one good shot before their big war, sophomore Charlie McNeil, lost the ball out of bounds. Rodgers was fouled with 18 seconds left and made good the first try for a two-point Temple lead.

Eight seconds later Rodgers missed another foul, but bulky Tink Van Patton dunked a layup to wrap it up.

McNeil was the scoring leader with 24 points.

Rodgers had 16 points, hitting only 7 of 25 floor shots and two of 11 free throws. But his skilled direction of the team helped pull out the game. Bill Kennedy had 18 points, hitting 8 of 11, and Jay Norman, a 6-3 jumping whiz, collected 14 points and as many rebounds for the Philadelphians.

Maryland Coach Bud Millikan observed that the Owls "murdered us on defensive rebounds and we missed several easy shots" in summing up the game.

It was a victory for the nation's fifth ranked team over No. 6.

Dartmouth caught Manhattan on one of its coldest shooting nights in winning handily.

The Jaspers, a 45 per cent shooting team for the year, hit only 32.9 per cent and were down 36-27 at the half.

Four Dartmouth starters scored in double figures. Charlie Kaufman was high man for the Ivy League champs, scoring 22 points. In the last half, Rudy Laruse crammed all his 13 into the first half.

John Powers and Don McGarty had 12 each for Manhattan, the erstwhile Cinderella outfit that had knocked off the nation's No. 1 team, West Virginia, last Tuesday.

Varsity, Alumni Teams Playing At N.C. State

RALEIGH (AP)—Varsity and alumni teams were to battle today in the annual event closing North Carolina State's spring football practice.

Scheduled to play for the Old Timers were Dick Christy, All America halfback for last season's Atlantic Coast Conference champions; and such former Wolfpack standouts as Alex Webster of the New York Giants football team, Eddie West, Tom Katich, George Marinkov and Wally Prince.

Earle Edwards said the 20-day practice was "a big success" and helpful in bringing along sophomores. Assistant Coach Al Michaels has been high in praise of halfback Claude Gibson of Asheville, the leading freshman scorer last season.

Colorful Fun In Mosaic Tile Hobby

WATERMELON PATTERN . . . designed by Mrs. Tabar in pink and gray for her kitchen receives a second coat of "grout."

Family fun with a definite reward is mosaic tiles.

With these tiles, discarded furniture or plywood boards can be transformed into art objects and room decorations of a durable quality at very little cost.

A beginner needs no special tools or training in mosaic work. Even a small child will find the materials easy to handle.

Possibilities of mosaics, which had their beginnings as early as 3500 B. C., are unlimited.

Once the base (table top, desk top, bowl, wood cut in cutting board or plaque shape or ash tray) has been selected and the tiles purchased only two other materials are necessary—cement water proof glue and "grout."

There are three types of tiles available—ceramic, glass, or porcelain and they are usually 3-4" square and come pasted on paper sheets about a foot square.

The first step in mosaic work is to soak each of the sheets of tile in warm water in order to loosen the tiles from the paper. After drying tiles, it will save future time if the various colors are separated and put in small, easy to manage, containers.

It is important that the area which will be covered with the tiles is completely smooth. Ridges or bumps will cause the tile to loosen and have an amateur appearance.

Tiles may be arranged loosely on the base in various ways to achieve the desired effect. After selecting the pattern, it is helpful to sketch this on graph paper as a future reference.

It must be kept in mind that approximately one-sixteenth of an inch must be allowed between each tile for the "grout" mixture which is a white powder consisting of marble dust and cement that secures the tiles.

With all the materials close at hand and the base smooth, you will be ready to begin!

Each tile must be fastened to the base with a generous dab of cement glue. First place the glue on the bottom of each tile and then press the tile in the position for a few seconds to insure its permanence.

After each tile on the entire area has been individually placed the "grout" should be mixed with water until it forms a heavy paste free of lumps.

With a spatula or the hands rub this mixture over the entire area being careful that it surrounds each tile. This will bind the tiles in place and prevent foreign matter from seeping through to the base and causing the tiles to loosen.

Later, when the "grout" begins to harden, a damp sponge can be rubbed over the tiles to remove the excess "grout." For a truly clean surface, an acid cleaner should be used.

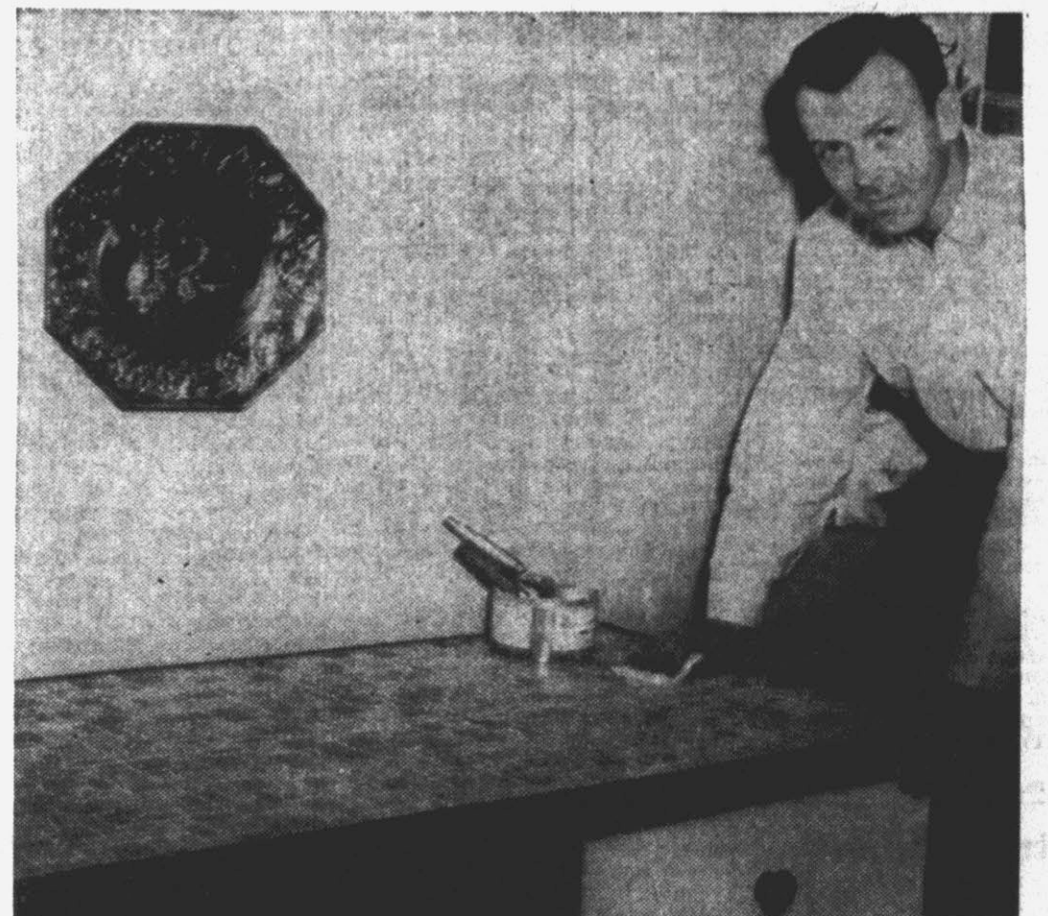

Explained above is the direct method of mosaic work. Various other methods can be used.

Tiles can be clipped with a hammer in order to create a more advanced design. When clipping tiles, it is recommended that either goggles be worn or the tile placed between two pieces of paper in order to prevent the broken pieces from flying into the eyes.

These tiles may be used on wood, leather, metal or glass bases and numerous articles can be made with them.

Shown on this page are just a few mosaic hobbyists who have been working with tiles which have been furnished by a local merchant for use by the Greenville Recreation Department.

USES ACID SOLUTION . . . Keith Kerr cleans excess "grout" off desk top he made using blending shades of blue tiles.

DIFFERENT EFFECTS . . . Mrs. Brooks, using a small hammer, breaks tiles for another tile-top table to be used in her home. Each table has an individual pattern.

ANTIQUÉ TABLE . . . is enhanced by pattern of clipped and square tiles Mrs. Garrison applied.

C-Of-C President Thinks Recession About Half Over

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The new president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce believes the recession is about half over and will be cured "primarily in the market place rather than on Capitol Hill."

He is William A. McDonnell of St. Louis, a well-built man of 63 who has a genial manner and keen sense of humor.

McDonnell, board chairman of the First National Bank of St. Louis, was elected chamber president Friday after serving as treasurer of the nationwide business organization. He takes over on April 29 from Philip M. Talbot, Washington department store executive.

Talking with reporters after his election, McDonnell summed up his views on the business slump.

Frowning on what he called "rash" or "panicky" cures which might be inflationary, he called for:

1. Labor and management to get together and "put an end to this wage-price spiral."
 2. A three-billion-dollar cut in individual income and corporation taxes to give business some incentive to risk expansion and to increase the "creative energies" of the people.
- McDonnell said if "we do not do anything rash, we ought to be coming out of this recession some time next fall." He said the recovery will be gradual, not abrupt.
- Stepped-up public works spending, he added, might do some good but the "benefits are overrated."
- McDonnell's views generally jibe with those of the chamber which not only favors tax reduction regardless of the recession, but wants about three billion dollars lopped off the Eisenhower administration's 74-billion-dollar budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

He and his chamber associates are dead set against deficit spending. That philosophy has been one of the strongest characteristics of McDonnell's adult life. He believes governments and individuals should live within their incomes.

Bill McDonnell was born in Altheimer, Ark., on Nov. 20, 1894, the son of a cotton merchant. Educated in the public schools of Denver, Colo., and Little Rock, he attended Vanderbilt University where most of his expenses were met by scholarships and campus business ventures. He graduated with high honors and a law degree.

McDonnell volunteered in World War I and served overseas as a field artillery captain. After the war, he practiced law for eight years in Little Rock and then turned to banking.

In 1944 he went to St. Louis as vice president of a bank and three years later went to the First National Bank there. He was promoted to president a year later and in 1957 was made board chairman of the 600-million-dollar institution.

McDonnell could not begin to count all his civic connections on the fingers of his two hands. He holds about as many directorships in finance and industry.

For recreation, he plays golf—and he does it so well he has three holes in one to his credit, along with a number of trophies.

In 1921 McDonnell married Carolyn Vandergift Cherry of Little Rock. They have two grown children—a son, Sanford, and a daughter, Mrs. David W. Black.

Mystery Death Of Intelligence Agent In Japan

TOKYO (AP)—The U.S. Army said today one of its intelligence agents whose body was found floating in Tokyo Bay may have been poisoned after handing his insurance policy to his wife and disappearing.

M. Sgt. Emmet E. Dugan, 39, of Crafton, Pa., left his wife Feb. 4 in a Tokyo hotel with the policy and personal papers.

"If I don't return, you'll need these," he said.

His body was found last Wednesday, five weeks later. The Army said there were indications he was dead before hitting the water more than two weeks ago.

Japanese newspaper speculation ranged from the possibility that Dugan was murdered while investigating Chinese Communists in Japan to a Japanese police report he had been undergoing psychiatric treatment.

As usual, the Army maintained a tight silence on Dugan's work as an intelligence agent. But a spokesman termed Dugan "a fine soldier" and denied he had any psychiatric troubles. The infantry veteran had finished Chinese language training last year.

The Army said Dugan and his wife, Maud, came to Tokyo Feb. 4 by train from Camp Zama near Yokohama.

That night he left his wife at a hotel, handed over his insurance policy and papers and told her to return to their home in Yokohama. His wife said they planned to borrow money on the policy.

Then, the Army said, Dugan went to an Army camp north of Tokyo, drew $40 in advance pay and sold his typewriter to a Japanese dealer for $22. He stopped at the camp's noncommissioned officers' club, lost $39 playing slot machines and vanished.

Dugan was first listed as AWOL, but on March 1 this was changed to missing because the Army was convinced he was absent through no fault of his own.

Mrs. Dugan, a former Red Cross worker he met in Korea, has returned to Crafton.

Sputnik II Visible In Next Few Days

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Russia's Sputnik II, scheduled to die a month from Friday, makes passages visible in clear weather to all parts of the nation in the next few days.

The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory predicts that by Monday Sputnik II will be showing up both before dawn and after sunset.

In its morning passages, it is crossing the United States about 450 miles high from north northwest to south southeast. In the evening it comes from the south southwest and disappears into the north northeast at an altitude of about 174 miles.

The United States satellite Explorer I is continuing to cross the Southern states in a wags to east direction. Due to its small size—80 inches as compared to possibly 25 feet for Sputnik II—Explorer can only be seen with telescopes or binoculars by sharp-eyed observers who know just where to look.

New England and many other sections of the country are in a position to see two successive passages of Sputnik II approximately an hour and a half apart. It will be visible up to 500 miles west of its overhead path and about 200 miles to the east.

Monday evening passages include 7:55 p.m., Gulf of Mexico, Western Florida, until enters earth shadow over Western North Carolina 7:59 p.m.

Explorer I, Saturday: 5:15 a.m. out of earth shadow over Central Louisiana, crossing to Southern South Carolina in next four minutes: 7:10 a.m. out of earth shadow off coast Southern California crossing to Eastern Texas; 9:05 a.m., entirely off California coast.

Sunday: 4:10 a.m., off North Carolina coast; 6:05 a.m., out of earth shadow Western Texas, crossing entire South to South Carolina in eight minutes; 8:01 a.m. off California coast to Southern Arizona in seven minutes.

Monday: 5:02 a.m. out of earth shadow over Central Alabama crossing to central North Carolina coast; 6:57 a.m., out earth shadow in Southwest Arizona crossing Southern New Mexico and central Texas to Louisiana; 8:52 a.m., entirely off Southern California coast.

Retired Priest Planning Safari

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—The Rev. Oswald T. McGinn plans a long hunting safari in Africa next year. He'll be 80 at the time.

Father McGinn is retired after serving Roman Catholic churches in Saginaw and Grand Rapids, Mich. He celebrated the golden jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood two years ago.

During those 50 years, he also distinguished himself as an explorer of the arctic, a lecturer, debater, scholar and a marksman of such prowess that he has been called "the world's greatest gunman and big game hunter."

Father McGinn began wintering in San Antonio three years ago. His room here indicates his personality. It contains holy pictures and holy water, seven boxes of cigars and a painting of a big bull moose.

At 73, father McGinn can flip a gun upside down or fire between his legs and hit a tiny target 50 yards away. He can place three bullets in a half-inch target at 100 yards with all shots piercing the same hole.

He has been known to split a bullet on a razor blade, causing the split pieces to hit small targets on either side of the blade.

All this without changing the position of his ever-present cigar.

"Better to smoke here than in the hereafter," he chuckles through a cloud of smoke.

Robert F. Inger, a man who knows snakes, says they were never driven out of Ireland by St. Patrick or anyone else.

Inger, curator of amphibians and reptiles at the Chicago Natural History Museum, says it was probably the last ice age—some 60,000 ago—that drove the snakes from the Emerald Isle.

"Snakes don't like the cold," he explains.

While it was still so chilly that no snake would even consider Ireland as a home, the ocean rose and separated the island. That was about 5,000 years ago.

Burned During Television Show

Miss Kercheval conducts a program at station KBTU under the name of Mary Kirk.

During the course of a demonstration on how to prepare the brandied dessert, another performer ignited the brandy. The flames flared up and caught Miss Kercheval before she could spring aside. She was taken to a hospital.

Gunman Took All Fish-Fry Money

The gunman also took a purse containing $3 from Mrs. Mary Slay, who was acting as cashier.

Stockholders About Ready For Big Annual Meetings

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP)—The nation's stockholders are about to have their big day. Annual meetings already under way will flourish like the green bay tree in the next 10 weeks.

This time what the owners ask management about the results of the recent past and the prospects of the immediate future may have more bite than in some jollier years.

Opening statements of chairmen of the board seem almost certain to stress the need in these times for confident thinking.

A few of the meetings are due for proxy fights for control. But the vast majority will start with the management having in its pocket all the votes it needs and to spare.

More stockholders than ever are expected to turn out. Attendance at annual meetings has grown steadily since the war.

The total number of stockholders has grown in the past year. It is now well over eight million. American Telephone & Telegraph has the most—3,600,000. General Motors is second with 718,000. Jersey Standard Oil third with 465,000. General Electric next with 380,000 and Ford Motors fifth with 280,000.

Some of the meetings should be love feasts. A nice handful of companies can report record earnings in 1957. Many can speak cheerfully about prospects for the months ahead. Stockholders in 229 of the 1,098 companies with common stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange know that the price of their shares increased in 1957. Some are at record highs now.

Other corporate situations may call for more explanation to the owners. Since New Year's Day some 150 corporations have cut or omitted dividend payments. But some other companies have much to brag about.

The Exchange, monthly publication of the N.Y. Stock Exchange says 648 companies listed on the big board have paid quarterly dividends regularly for 10 years or longer, with 45 of these boasting records of 50 or more years of unbroken payments.

Many of the stockholders at-

tending this year's meetings will be reporting much larger hold- ings than last year.

Thirty-two companies listed on the big board last year sold 33,363,355 additional common shares to their stockholders through its- uing rights for a total purchase of $1,522,752,420. And ATIT is tabulating results of its offering of convertible debentures to its stockholders—the largest offering ever made. In time these could be changed into common stock and further swell the total.

The N.Y. Stock Exchange also brags that its brain child, the monthly investment plan of sell- ing stocks on a pay as you go basis, in its four years of life has accounted for sales of 2,059,165 common shares for $90,600,000.

Direct sales of new issues to the public and new listings have brought the number of common shares listed on the exchange this year to 4,632,928,911, up 483,737, 538 in 12 months. The total is swelled by listings on other ex- changes: American Stock Ex- change in New York, Pacific Coast Exchange in San Francisco and Los Angeles, Midwest Stock Exchange in Chicago, and those in Cincinnati, New Orleans, Salt Lake City and Spokane, Wash.

Tranquilizers For Animals, Too

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Now come tranquilizing drugs for animals.

Two veterinarians, W. E. Snyder and S. C. Wasman, say the soothing pills result in happier cattle, more eggs and dogs that smile at mailmen.

Cattle who normally fret away valuable pounds while being shipped to market stay fat and happy with the drug, the veterinarians said at a symposium. Nervous chickens calm down and lay eggs with cheerful regularity.

Wasman, of Miami Beach, Fla., and Snyder, of Haddonfield, N.J., also reported that deer, tranquilized by being shot with darts, can be herded to new ranges without getting exhausted. Aggressive dogs can be made to keep their teeth out of the mailman, the doctors said, with similar injections.

RALEIGH (AP)—G. L. Whitley of Farmville is the new president of the Tar Heel Electric Membership Assn. succeeding Cutlar L. Ballance of St. Pauls.

crease the interest rate on federal loans to REA operatives. Representatives from the association will call on the congressional delegation next month.

William T. Crisp, manager of the North Carolina Electric Co., said the group also resolved to inquire whether "thousands of dollars" spent annually by some of North Carolina's power companies "for propaganda and advertising" are being "properly and legally disclosed and reported in connection with their rate bases and tax returns."

Nearly Perfect, Not Good Enough

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Weatherman George Brancato told the Optimist

Club he made almost perfect forecasts and yet failed to predict the two biggest snowstorms of the winter in St. Louis.

He had forecast rain in both cases but the temperature turned two or three degrees colder than he had figured, he said. The result was 11 inches of snow one time and 9 inches the other.

Brancato made his talk only a few hours after predicting 3 to 6 inches of snow. It never arrived.

Safecracker Is Planning Return

DALLAS (AP)—A burglar broke into a five and dime store and used a hammer, three chisels, a screw driver and a monkey wrench on the safe. He knocked off the knob and forced open the door only to find a second door between him and the loot. He left this note in an office typewriter: "Too bad. I will get in next time when I'm more prepared. Thank you and goodbye till then."

Miami Manhunt

A NEW SUSPENSE NOVEL BY WILLIAM FULLER

CHAPTER 29
"I knew Ramez men were here on this island because they told me they were," said Marta. "Weeks ago, just after I'd come to Miami, the fat man, Manuel, came to see me. He tried to find out what I knew about the money. I pretended to know nothing. He didn't believe me. He said he was prepared to offer me a large sum of money for the information—the exact location of the money. I still played dumb."

She paused, and then continued: "He lost his temper and said that I would never get the money because friends of his were on the island and they would stay until they found it! And that anyone who tried to land on the island would be shot! I didn't even know that Manuel worked for Ramez. "Later I went to Nassau and checked on Jack's purchase. He'd used a different name but I was able to check the thing through, with the help of a lawyer, by describing Jack and telling them the approximate date of the purchase. After all, I had a perfect right to do that. I was an — his widow. When things got straightened out in court I suppose the estate on this island will be mine."

She stared at the ground. "Anyhow, I was told that I'd give them that information they wanted or something terrible would happen to me. When I first saw you I was practically out of my mind with fear. I couldn't fight them alone any longer. And so, I got you mixed up in this mess, Brad, and I'm sorry. Truly sorry!"
I grinned at her. "Skip it, baby. I said, 'I asked for it! Let's go back a little bit. You say it wasn't you who flew in here in a seaplane, landed in the lagoon, saw Ramez' men and look a quick powder. If it wasn't you, who could it have been?'"
She shrugged and shook her head.

As I'd asked the question I'd come up with a couple of tentative answers. I could think of two people, right offhand, who knew more about this thing than they'd admitted. One of them had been close to telling me something important, but she'd died before she'd been able to talk! The other one was here on the island now. And it wouldn't have been necessary for him to charter an airplane because he was in the business of chartering them himself! Both of these people knew Ramez. And their relationships with him had been such that they could, possibly, have discovered what all the excitement was about. And more than that they had both known Jack Forbes! Just hunches. But every question has an answer. And to ask Marta.

And it was way past breakfast there were so many things I had to do.
I stood and started looking around for a sharp stone to use on a coconut. I found a wedge-shaped rock with a sharp enough edge and I found another rock heavy enough to drive it. I hated to make the noise but it was necessary. After losing skin off a knuckle and stifling a steam of profanity as a result of the loss, I managed to knock an end off the jull without losing too much of the milk. I passed it to Marta and went to work on another one.

Fifteen minutes later our throats had been pretty well quenched and we still chewed the cool, rich but rather tasteless meat of the coconuts. While we'd been drinking and eating Marta had given me the story of her abduction.
She'd gone directly from her dressing room backstage at the Gulf Stream Room to her cabana. The fat man and another man were waiting to take her over. She'd put up a struggle. But they had overpowered her and had taken her, with a gun in her back, down the beach to a waiting car. She'd been taken immediately to the Teresa. Ramez, who had of course engineered the whole thing, had been on the Teresa with several of the men who worked for him. They had gotten under way immediately and had come directly to this island, arriving the next night, after dark. She'd been questioned almost ceaselessly ever since.

She finished her story and looked at me; anxiously, as if she were wondering whether or not I'd believed her.
"But you obviously didn't tell them where the money was. The half million," I watched her eyes. "I know what you're thinking, Brad! You think I lied to you! About the sum, I mean. I thought it was a quarter of a million. I swear it! No, I didn't tell them about it. But Jack said it was a quarter of a million — not half a million."

Then your husband must have lied to you. Ramez would certainly know how much he gave him.
"I don't know!" She buried her face in her hands.
Silence prevailed for a while. Then I spoke: "Feel like telling me the rest of your story, Marta? How you traced up in all this?"
She traced little patterns in the sand with the tip of a finger. "It's a long story, Brad. I'll try and hit the highlights."
"Jack and I had been separated. We separated because I was sick of having a husband who wouldn't settle down. I wanted to get out of show business. I wanted a home, a family. But Jack kept jumping from one job to another. He was never satisfied. He was a tramp, Brad. A tramp pilot. He could never assume responsibilities. When things got a little rough he ran away."

She turned to face me. "Maybe I was just sorry for him. Anyhow, I put up with it for a long time, and then we separated. It was my idea. Almost a year ago he wrote me and told me he wanted a divorce. The latter was from Miami. There was another girl that he said he was in love with, though I doubt that it was in him to love anyone, really. He even wrote me the girl's name. Joan Morris."

She stopped talking and stared at me. She'd heard me tell Ramez that I'd been with Joan when she was murdered. I wondered now what was going on behind those huge, slanty, smoky-gray eyes. She knew very little about me. How much, actually, did she trust me?

"Go on with your story, Marta," I said.
She stared at the ground in front of her. "Then Jack wrote me that he had gotten a good job — the sort of a job he'd been looking for for a long time. In Coronado. I didn't hear from him after that for a long time. Months. And then, finally I had a letter from him from San Andres, in Coronado. He said he'd changed his mind about the divorce. That the girl hadn't been as wonderful as he'd thought she was; that he was no longer in love with her; that he was still in love with me. He wanted to see me, in Miami, to talk things over."

"I wrote him that I had a couple of weeks between bookings coming up and that I'd be in Miami then. I told him where I'd be. And then one night his call came. He sounded excited. He said things were finally working out for him and he had wonderful plans and he'd tell me all about them when I saw him. He said we'd start a new life together. He had it all worked out.
"I'd been through these things with him dozens of times before. But things never worked out as he'd planned them.
"I thought the least I could do was to hear him out. And besides that I had to explain my position to him, that I no longer loved him. So I made a date to meet him that night at his apartment in Miami."

"Before I could tell him that I no longer loved him he launched into his scheme," Marta continues, and suspense mounts in "Miami Manhunt" here Monday.
