Reuther Agrees Unions Should Join In Seeking Cure For Abuses

WASHINGTON (AP)—Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, agreed today with Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass.) that organized labor should make concrete recommendations for legislation to curb union corruption.

"I agree we ultimately must get out of the area of noble generalizations," Reuther told the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

This was Reuther's second day of testimony at committee hearings into violence during the four-year strike by the United Auto Workers, headed by Reuther, at the Kohler Co., Wisconsin plumbing fixture firm.

Sen. Kennedy, chairman of a Senate Labor subcommittee now considering anti-corruption laws, said organized labor is not helping Congress much when it refrains from making recommendations.

Reuther said he favors giving labor the maximum amount of freedom to clean out its own house, but agreed with Kennedy and Sen. Ives (R-N.Y.) that some legislation is needed. He said he will have concrete recommendations when he testifies later before Kennedy's subcommittee.

Reuther said he agrees generally with AFL-CIO President George Meany's comment that the recent rackets committee report on hearings held last year was "a disgraceful example of the use of sensationalism in an effort to smear the trade union movement."

Reuther said he thinks Meany meant there was overemphasis in the report on headline material rather than sober comment on the corruption problem.

Reuther said the kinds of abuses turned up by the committee have no place in the labor movement. Neither, he said, have "the Beck's and Hoffas." He referred to former Teamsters President Dave Beck and his successor, James R. Hoffa, both subject to rackets committee corruption charges.

Reuther cautioned the rackets committee not to forget that unions are made up of human beings and "none of us is infallible."

Reuther's criticism of strike violence and mass picketing in the Kohler strike eased tensions on the main point of Reuther's testimony—the Kohler strike.

"We made mistakes," Reuther told the special Senate investigating committee, "but the record shows that we are trying to find our shortcomings."

Advance predictions of sharp clashes between Reuther and Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz.), who have been feuding for years at long range, did not materialize.

Reuther disarmed questioners in a surprise move when he conceded that some of his union's members did engage in "improper" violence and mass picketing in the UAW's bitter, marathon strike against the Kohler Co. in Wisconsin.

Reuther said this violated UAW policy and that he personally abhors violence, because he has experienced it at the hands of "company goons" himself. His testimony was a change of pace from that of prior UAW witnesses, who had defended their conduct through nearly five weeks of the hearings.

Reuther charged that the violence was provoked by what he called "illegal" conduct by the company, but he said it "hurt our union no end" and that he does not defend it.

Thirty-Six Cuban Rebels On Hunger Strike... In Jail

By BILL GIBSON
BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Thirty-six Cuban rebels from New York, charged with conspiracy to violate the U. S. Neutrality Act, continued their hunger strike in jail today. Four Ecuadorians also were accused.

"I think they'll come around," Dep. Sheriff F. H. Deven said after the men all refused breakfast. "They just think they've been deprived of their rights," he said of the fired-up group.

A Coast Guard cutter rammed their 85-foot vessel about five miles off the lower Texas coast in the Gulf of Mexico. All the New Yorkers were uniformed and heavily armed.

The vessel halted only after U.S. agents pulled alongside and boarded her. The men surrendered without resistance.

Arnoldo G. Barron, who described himself as leader of the group, said the men purchased arms and ammunition from an undisclosed source in the United States with $20,000 which they had saved over a period of months.

He said he was a friend of Cuban rebel leader Fidel Castro and that the United States had no right to seize his men and weapons.

The arms were those "with which we were going to defend freedom—the freedom not only of Cuba but of the world," Barron said.

The group protested by going on a hunger strike. All refused food and coffee ordered to prisoners in Cameron County jail last night.

Barron claimed the United States was shipping arms to Cuban President Batista and that the fast would last until such shipments were halted. He said none of the group had eaten since Wednesday night.

Tom Wagner, U.S. customs agent in charge of the Brownsville office, said authorities had been working on the case for several weeks.

He described the El Orion as a converted snapper boat sailing under Nicaraguan registry. The captain, Jose Solivar Medina, and the crew of three also were arrested. All identified themselves as residents of Ecuador.

All but one of the 36 said they were New York born.

Candidate

BEN D. FORREST, JR.

Contest In Sheriff's Race Set

Ben D. Forrest Jr., constable of Chicod Township for the past six years, announced today as a candidate for Sheriff of Pitt County.

Forrest is the second person to announce for the office. Incumbent Ruel W. Tyson, who has held the job for the past 15 years, announced last Saturday that he will seek a fourth term in the office.

The new candidate is a native of Pitt County and graduated from Winterville High School in 1937. He attended Louisburg College. Forrest is presently farming in Chicod Township and recently resigned as Assistant Fire Warden for Pitt County, a post he held for four years.

He is married to the former Ernestine Hardee. The Forrests have three children, Louanna, 9, Deborah, 5, and Ben, III, 2.

Forrest is a Sargent of Shawnee Tribe 62, Improved Order of Redmen; Grimesland Masonic Lodge 475; Greenville Post 39 of the American Legion; and the Free Will Baptist Church. He is a veteran of World War II service with the Air Force from 1941 until 1944.

In announcing his candidacy, Forrest said, "If I am elected, I will give to the people of Pitt County clean, honest and efficient law enforcement, with emphasis on a program of crime prevention."

Nominations for the Sheriff's office will be subject to the Democratic Primary May 31.

Appropriations Committee Urges Farm Income Props

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee said today lagging farm income is a major reason for the recession.

The committee voiced disappointment because, it said, no proposals are being made to bolster farm income at the market place.

It did so in sending to the House for debate next week a bill to provide $3,216,988,539 to finance Agriculture Department activities for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

In another action, the committee approved $750,000 for the new Civil Rights Commission in the fiscal year. The step was taken over opposition from Southern members of the appropriations group and is certain to provoke a battle.

The committee acted a day after the House voted 9 1/2 billion dollars in new funds to run two major departments and 17 federal agencies in the coming fiscal year.

In approving the agriculture money bill, the committee said reduced farm income "is one of the major reasons that there are an estimated five million unemployed workers walking the streets of our major cities today."

"Elimination of the small farmer is no answer to the farm problem, the committee said. It accused the Agriculture Department of directing its principal efforts toward "urging farm families to obtain off-farm employment and to move off their small farms."

Such a program, the House group said, would only swell the unemployment rolls.

The committee cited statistics which it said prove that the economic status of farmers has been lowered substantially since the Eisenhower administration took office. "The take of the middleman between the farmer and the consumer has continued to increase and the consumer has received no cash benefit," it said. Per capita farm income has declined from $702 in 1952 to $694 in 1957, it said.

"Every economic recession in this country has started on the farm," the committee said.

Financing recommended by the committee includes:

1. Direct appropriations of $1,456,588,653 for regular departmental activities. This is $103,900,000 less than Eisenhower requested, but 100 million dollars of the cut was in the soil bank conservation reserve program which the committee said would be restored if more farmers sign up.
2. An appropriation of $1,760,392,886 to reimburse the Commodity Credit Corp. for its price support and related activities. This was the amount the President requested.
3. Authorization for the Rural Electrification Administration and the Farmers Home Administration to make loans for farm improvements, including installation of electricity and telephones. These loans are repayable over 35 years with interest. The amount recommended is 18 1/2 million dollars more than the President requested, with 154 million of the increase earmarked for the REA.

18 Servicemen Die In Collision Of Two Aircraft

BRIDGEPORT, Tex. (AP)—Two Air Force planes rammed together at dusk yesterday and the crippled craft fell "like flakes of sheet iron." All 18 servicemen aboard died.

In a strange turn of the cards, the planes apparently were seeking greater visibility and safety by dipping below an overcast.

They were so low the occupants had no chance to parachute.

One was a huge C124 Globemaster based at Hill Air Force Base, Salt Lake City, Utah.

The other was a C119 cargo plane based at Carswell Air Force Base, the great Strategic Air Command installation at Fort Worth, 45 miles southeast of here.

The Globemaster carried a crew of 10, and five passengers picked up at Kelly Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex. The C119's crew numbered three.

The Globemaster was en route from Kelly Air Force Base, San Antonio, to Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma City.

The C119 took off from Sheppard Air Force Base, Wichita Falls, Tex., for Carswell AFB.

The planes fell within about 600 yards of each other in rugged scrub oak country cut by ravines and gullies.

The C124 burned fiercely. Pools of molten metal glimmered around the wreckage. The C119 did not burn.

Bill Carlton, Bridgeport, saw the falling wreckage from his car.

"It looked like great big flakes of sheet iron falling. You couldn't tell it was a plane," he said.

C. L. Hill, also of Bridgeport, said, "The plane coming from the south hit the wing of the one from the east (the C124)."

Hill said the C119 "fell straight down" but that the C124 came on and it looked like he tried to pull out. Finally it came to pieces on him."

Doyle Hood, a Bridgeport High School athletic coach, said an explosion occurred in one plane.

The C119 struck a plowed field, missing W. J. Mann by only a few feet. It ricocheted into a wooded area. Mann was plowing with a tractor.

Batista May Get Extra Powers

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Congress was reported today considering granting extraordinary emergency powers to President Fulgencio Batista to crush Cuba's rebels.

House and Senate leaders conferred with the president after rebel leader Fidel Castro announced he would call a general strike at any moment as the final blow to overthrow Batista.

The government has authorized the armed forces to do whatever necessary to smash any attempted walkout.

A rebel publication, Resistencia, today told Cubans to stay off the streets after next Monday.

Rebel forces have stockpiled reserve food supplies. It advised Cubans living near police stations or military establishments to move elsewhere.

The publication declared Batista and other government chiefs already had prepared private planes to leave the country "but none will escape."

Most factories and stores will close next Thursday afternoon for the Easter weekend. Some Cubans thought Castro might try to get his general strike off to a flying start by declaring it effective next Thursday.

Police visited stores in Havana and told owners to ignore rebel threats. Business establishments in Havana reported trading was slow.

Rebels launched new terrorist attacks in Pinar del Rio Province. They burned buses, a chicken farm and exploded bombs damaging property.

Rebel bands threw egg-shaped bombs filled with red ink into public schools.

The Cuban Federation of Labor, with 1,200,000 members, has trouble shooters into factories to weed out strike agitators.

Castro said the strike will be called "at any moment." Many Cubans expect the call in about a week. The guerrilla leader said Cubans who do not join in will be tried as traitors after the downfall of President Fulgencio Batista, Castro's goal.

Eusebio Mujal, secretary general of the confederation and a staunch Batista supporter, said he had new pledges of loyalty from most of Cuba's workers. Any strike would be crushed quickly, he said.

Reports Filters Not Much Value

GREENSBORO (AP)—Filters on cigarettes don't serve any particular purpose, says a researcher, except to make smoking a little neater. But that's all right, he declares, because there is no conclusive evidence that use of tobacco causes lung cancer.

Dr. Clarence Cook Little of Bar Harbor, Maine, told the Greensboro Academy of Medicine last night that he was answering "repeated sensational and fear-arousing statements" on the "lethal nature of tobacco smoke."

He declared that independent scientists have found no specific substance in tobacco smoke that can account even for the limited reports of biologic activity of skins of some laboratory mice. He added that laboratory animals exposed to inhalation of massive doses of cigarette smoke did not develop lung cancer.

Dr. Little, scientific director of the Tobacco Industry Research Committee, is a pipe smoker.

He declared that tobacco tars have been absolved of any dangerous effects and that about the only advantage to filters is that they do not get in the mouth and the cigarette doesn't stick to the lips.

About 200 doctors attending the academy's 11th annual symposium also heard a talk on cancer by Dr. James Krieger of Cleveland, chief of gynecology at the Cleveland Clinics.

Teacher Beaten By 2 Students

NEW YORK (AP)—A junior high school teacher was beaten and his arm broken yesterday by two students who had disrupted his class.

George Moore, 32, said two Negro boys were out in the hallway cutting up and flirting with girls in the room through a broken door pane in the James Fenimore Cooper Junior High in Harlem.

Moore, who is white, left the classroom and caught up with the fleeing boys. He demanded an explanation for their behavior, he said, and the boys attacked him. They grappled and all three tumbled down the stairs to the first floor.

The two boys, Peter Thompson, 13 and Melvin Harris, 15, were booked as juvenile delinquents and on charges of felonious assault. They were released in custody of their parents.

In another incident, Peter Schwende, 16, a white student in Brooklyn, said three unidentified Negro youths forced him into a car at knifepoint and drove him two miles when he was unable to give them 25 cents. He said they released him unharmed after taking two of his textbooks and saying he would have to pay for them if he wanted them back.

Grim Prospects For Young Boy

WOODWARD, Okla. (AP)—Twelve-year-old Robert Smith today faced the prospect of being tried for murder or armed robbery.

Robert was ordered by County Judge James Young to face criminal charges in the shooting death of Floyd Blair, a Woodward grocer, last Sunday. No charges have been filed against the boy, who is jailed here.

Judge Young said the youngster was old enough to know right from wrong. Robert's brother David, 10, was sent to a boys' ranch near Perkins. David was shot through the heart and two other men wounded. The boys said they intended to rob the store.

Objections Are Put Into Rhyme

WASHINGTON, N.J. (AP)—When the N.J. Power & Light Co. asked its women office employees if they'd choose a sack dress for Easter, typist Dolly Rush replied:

"When I am in my Easter duds
No sack dress will you see.
Sacks look better filled with puds
Than they do filled with me."

May Go Beyond Ike's Plan On Extending Jobless Pay

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Democrats opened the door today to consideration of emergency unemployment compensation benefits going far beyond proposals sent to Congress by President Eisenhower.

As the House Ways and Means Committee began three days of hearings on expanded federal unemployment relief, Chairman Mills (D-Ark.) said the committee would consider plans to pay benefits to jobless workers who are not now entitled to benefits of any kind.

This would apply mainly to farm workers, employees of little firms exempted from the federal-state unemployment insurance program, and other types of employment not now covered.

Of the 5,200,000 estimated unemployed in mid-February, about two million are not covered by state laws and are ineligible for any benefits.

Some members of Congress, among them Rep. McCarthy (D-Minn.) and Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass.), also want to write permanent revisions into the unemployment compensation program including uniform state standards and wider coverage.

Kennedy, urging passage of his bill to make permanent changes, told the Senate temporary legislation "would do very little good and may do very great harm" through what he called "a mere facade of action."

Both the administration and House Democrats have put forward plans for additional emergency jobs pay for qualified workers who have exhausted benefits under state laws.

Both plans would be effective only for about a year—the Eisenhower program ending April 1, 1959, the Democratic plan July 1, 1959.

President Eisenhower has asked Congress for a program providing a 50 per cent increase in the number of weeks jobless workers may draw benefits. The period varies from state to state, up to 26 weeks.

The federal government would be reimbursed by the states for the cost of the additional relief. The Democratic program, sponsored by Mills and House Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass.), would provide an additional 16 weeks of benefits with the federal government footing the entire bill.

More Activity By Soviet Subs

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The chief of NATO's Atlantic naval forces says Russian submarine activity in the Atlantic and along the east coast of the United States has picked up in recent months.

But what the reason may be, Adm. Jerauld Wright, USN, told newsmen here yesterday, "I don't know."

Wright said the Russian submarines have operated "along the Atlantic Coast, where a fellow might make some observations."

"There has been a step-up in the frequency of reports of submarines, requiring more investigation by surface units and aircraft," said the NATO Atlantic commander. "Whether it's due to increase interest (by Russia) or just what, I don't know."

Wright declined to pinpoint spots where the activity of the Russian subs has been greatest. "They have been reports one of their favorite sectors has been off Cape Canaveral, Fla., this country's test center for missiles and satellite launchings."

The admiral said the Russian submarine fleet is "tops" and poses a threat not only to his Atlantic defense base but also to the continental United States.

Gromyko Nuclear Talk To Soviet Is Postponed

MOSCOW (AP)—Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko apparently will delay until next week his report to the Soviet Parliament on banning nuclear tests and Premier Nikita Khrushchev expected to announce his new government to Parliament at the same time.

Both events are expected at a joint session of the Council of Union and Council of Nationalities, probably Monday or Tuesday.

In his speech on banning nuclear tests Gromyko may announce that the Soviet Union, without waiting for the United States and Britain, is suspending its own H-bomb tests.

The move would be intended to overshadow President Eisenhower's invitation to foreign scientists to witness tests in the Pacific this summer to show how far the United States has advanced in reducing radioactive fallout.

The Council of Nationalities met for only four hours today and Khrushchev left an hour before the meeting ended. It will meet again Monday. Only parliamentary groups are scheduled to meet tomorrow and there are no sessions on Sunday. Thus it appeared the joint session would be pushed back to Monday or Tuesday.

The Council of Nationalities turned to discussion of Khrushchev's plans to reorganize Soviet machine and tractor stations and sell the machines to collective farms.

Khrushchev has labeled the plan part of his drive to surpass U.S. agriculture.

Speaker after speaker, each allowed about 20 minutes, praised the Khrushchev plan. Some complained that under the present system collective farms did not get the use of machines and tractors from the stations when they needed them.

Premier Nikolai E. Avkhimovich of White Russia said Khrushchev's reorganization plan was "as revolutionary as collectivization" which got under way in 1932.

Cop-Killer Is Caught By FBI

BALTIMORE (AP)—A tattooed cop killer who posed as a male nurse was nabbed by the FBI last night, only a few hours after he made the 10 Most Wanted list.

Eugene R. McCracken, 43, was unarmed and gave up without resistance when authorities acted on the tip of an alert citizen who saw the fugitive's picture in the Baltimore News-Post.

McCracken, described earlier as a "dangerous felon," had been known by the name of Richard George Kirkman. He had worked as a male nurse for an invalid doctor for several months.

McCracken was convicted of slaying John Mills, a Kingsport, Tenn., police officer in 1940. Mills had come across McCracken and a companion in a thicket two days after a jailbreak at Bristol, Tenn.

Hodges Puts Queries To State Employment Security Group

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges today asked the State Employment Security Commission to answer the following questions regarding current unemployment insurance proposals advanced in Washington:

- (1) Should North Carolina send a representative to participate in congressional hearings on the proposals?
- (2) What position should the state take on the proposals?
- (3) "What, if anything, should be done with our state program both now and for our 1959 General Assembly to be sure that our state program is fair to all our people?"

The administration proposal, introduced in the House this week,

Tributes Heaped On Snowy Head Of Sandburg

RALEIGH (AP)—White-haired Carl Sandburg has fond memories of a glowing tribute heaped upon him yesterday by North Carolinians.

The state doffed its hat in a big way for Sandburg, 80-year-old literary figure, at a luncheon attended. More than 200 persons attended.

A host of speakers, headed by Gov. Hodges, paid tribute to the noted poet, biographer, singer of songs and teller of tales.

Sandburg, who lives on a farm in the mountains near Flat Rock, was touched by it all. At one point he turned to a speaker and said, "Now don't make me cry."

It was Carl Sandburg Day throughout the state by official proclamation of the governor.

State Treasurer Edwin Gill described Sandburg as "An original—something that has never happened before—something new under the sun! And how does this come about?"

"Those schooled in science might call it a mutation. Those steeped in religion will call it a miracle. Of course, after making a bow, both to heredity and divine intervention, Mr. Sandburg might add that he had something to do with the results in terms of the sweat of hard work and the toll of patient effort."

Sandburg expressed his appreciation for Gill's speech and said, "I'll see that it doesn't perish. I am going to take it out (Do you have an extra copy?) and read it on days when I feel unimportant."

Gov. Hodges appointed Sandburg an ambassador of good will for North Carolina. Hodges called Sandburg the "realist" American poet and told him he had come to the "realist" Sandburg moved to North Carolina 12 years ago from his native Illinois.

The idea of the observance was conceived by Henry Belk, publisher of the Goldsboro News-Argus. He formerly inducted Sandburg into the "Kissing Cousin Clan" of Eastern North Carolina.

Other speakers included Mrs. Inglis Fletcher, novelist of Edenton; Jonathan Daniels, editor of the News and Observer; and playwright Paul Green of Chapel Hill.

Daniels said, "I love Carl Sandburg."

Cape Canaveral Will Be Ready For Moon Shots

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—When moon rockets are available, the Air Force Missile Test Center will be prepared to launch them.

That's the assurance from Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates, test center commander.

Yates said, in answer to a query that the testing range here is "ready to launch anything—within reason—that the missile manufacturers send down to us."

The Pentagon announced that the Air Force had been ordered to undertake three moon survey vehicle projects, and the Army to try one or two.

The Air Force will use this combination: a Thor missile for the first stage, the second stage of the Navy Vanguard rocket for the second stage, and a rocket as yet undeveloped for the third stage.

The Army will use a Jupiter-C, modified somewhat from the four-stage rocket that launched Explorers I, II and III and that will be used to put up two or three more Explorer satellites.

The unmanned vehicles, equipped with radio and recording instruments and, in some cases, a type of television or mechanical ground scanning device, will seek to conduct exploration in the vicinity of the moon but may not land on the moon itself.

Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., said the United States now has rocket engines powerful enough to reach the moon.

Nikita Expected To Write Notes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is expected to take up Russia's letter writing where Nikolai Bulganin left off. He may exert new pressures on President Eisenhower for a summit conference.

U. S. officials said today that Khrushchev may be willing to offer Eisenhower slightly more attractive terms for a summit meeting than Bulganin ever proposed. However, there is no way of knowing in advance what the Soviet Communist party boss, who took over the Soviet government post position from Bulganin yesterday, may do.

Some diplomatic experts have thought it might be a smart idea for Eisenhower to beat Khrushchev to the punch and get off a reply to the last letter he received from Bulganin. It came in early this month, dealt with summit conference issues, and is still unanswered.

Executive Session To Consider Extension Of Unemployment Insurance

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Employment Security Commission will hold an executive session to consider the extension of unemployment insurance payments to workers whose benefits have been exhausted. In North Carolina, where unemployed persons are eligible for 26 payments, the new bill would increase benefits by 13 weeks.

Under existing laws, Hodges explained, a state whose unemployment insurance funds were threatened with exhaustion may borrow from a 200 million dollar fund.

It seems, Hodges said, that the states "who need help most" are waiting for federal grants, rather than loans. "The big problem," he added, "is that the states having the most trouble don't want to face up to it."

Easter Cards Lead Double Life Now

AP Newsfeatures
Children's Easter cards lead a double life this year. Small fry always have loved the gaily decorated cards that come at Easter time, with their brightly colored bunnies, baby chicks and ducklings. But after the cards were set on the mantel, they offered no further play value. This year children's Easter cards come in cutout form, so that the child may cut out paper dolls to be dressed in Easter outfits, or make a gay nursery menagerie of Easter card cutouts. Greeting card manufacturers suggest also that Easter traditions and symbols give parents many opportunities for story-telling. The bunnies, chicks, lambs, lilies, dogwood and Easter eggs all have interesting histories, which will add to a child's appreciation of the religious significance of Easter.

Buffet Supper, Morning Party Entertain Bride Of Saturday

A couple party feted Miss Dottie Elks of Grimesland and Bonnie Singleton of Washington, who will be married Saturday at 5 p.m., last night in Washington at the home of Mrs. Caleb Allgood.

Mrs. Allgood and Miss Elizabeth Allgood were hostesses at the buffet supper which carried out a bridal motif.

The 12 couples were greeted on arrival by Miss Allgood and her escort, Lester Woolard.

Wearing a navy blue wool sheath dress with navy accessories, Miss Elks was presented a white carnation corsage.

The buffet supper was served from a table covered with a white crocheted cloth and centered with a white and yellow floral arrangement. Miniature wedding bells hung in a cluster over the buffet table.

An honor gift, the bride- and bridegroom-elect were given pieces of crystal in their chosen pattern.

Coca-Cola Party
Twenty-three friends of Miss Dottie Elks of Grimesland attended a Coca-Cola party Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. L. A. Elks in Grimesland honoring the bride-elect. Mrs. M. L. Buck was co-hostess at the affair.

A white carnation corsage was given the honoree to compliment her black chemise dress which she wore with matching accessories. During a social hour the hostesses served soft drinks and party accompaniments from a table centered with an arrangement of yellow and red flowers.

A white bow designated the honoree's chair. Multi-colored spring flowers were used to carry out a spring theme.

Goodbyes were said to the hostesses and Miss Elks.

Informal Coffee Fetes Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Cathcart

GRIFTON—Mrs. W. L. Daws entertained Tuesday morning at her home at an informal coffee hour honoring Mrs. Foster Cathcart and Mrs. Joe Shaw who will be leaving in the near future to make their homes in Wilmington, Del.

Spring flowers adorned the rooms in which the guests were received. The refreshment table was overlaid with an embroidered linen cloth and centered with daffodils placed in silver epergnettes with tall yellow candles.

Mrs. L. O. Posey presided at the silver coffee service and Mrs. Fray Schutte assisted in serving coffee cake, ham biscuits, and other party dainties.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Joseph Harmon of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Ray Stewart and Mrs. Richard Pase of Kinston.

Mrs. Burnette Club Hostess

Early spring flowers decorated the home of Mrs. C. A. Burnette Tuesday night when she entertained the Semi-Centennial Book Club.

Mrs. H. W. Douglass, president, presided over the business session. New officers elected were Mrs. P. J. Smith, president; Mrs. H. A. Hudson Jr., vice-president; Mrs. C. T. Hudson, secretary; Mrs. C. E. Fleming, treasurer; and Mrs. C. B. Taff, librarian.

During the social period, Mrs. Burnette served lemon chiffon pie with coffee.

New Check Out Procedure Used At Library

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor
To keep pace with the large circulation at Shepard Memorial Library a book charging machine was recently installed. "Since we now circulate about 300 books a day at the library, the speed and efficiency which this machine renders was necessary," explains Mrs. Sally Mann, assistant librarian in charge of circulation.

At the present time the library staff is issuing cards to borrowers which must be presented whenever they check out library books. On each card is the name, address and special number of the borrower.

Must Bring Card
After a card is issued to a borrower, it must be used when checking out all books. These cards which are wallet-size are an advantage both to the owner and to the library staff, Mrs. Mann points out.

Now, when a book is borrowed the procedure is to stamp the personal library card in the new machine. This system records the date due and the borrower's special number. A date-due card is also placed in the back pocket of each book. This method, which has been in operation approximately three weeks, has proven to be quite successful. "Within the three-week period we have issued 604 juvenile cards and 703 adult cards," says Mrs. Mann.

In order to eliminate possible loss of the juvenile cards, they remain in a special file at the library. Juvenile cards will be issued to borrowers who are under 16 years of age.

The time saved and the efficient manner in which books can be circulated are just a few of the advantages this new system offers.

Mrs. Mann notes, "By using this machine and newly adopted procedure we have a thorough check on registration, because now all borrowers must be registered before they can be issued a card. Also the confusion resulting from similar names is eliminated, because each card has an individual number."

Library staff members also mention that the old signature-check-out system has been completely eliminated at the library. Once all borrowers are issued cards, the ease and speed of circulation will be increased many times.

Tough Age For Parents

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

No wonder parents are afraid of today's children. After all, how can you spank a small genius who can explain the inner mechanism of a guided missile and track the orbit of an earth satellite?

The other day I attended a meeting of a Toy Guidance Council. Educators and psychologists were inspecting, grading and judging the new crop of 1958 toys. When I walked into the big display room, with thousands of toys from Santa's atomic workshop, I thought at first I had blundered into a top secret military installation.

The first thing I examined was a rocket launcher designed for moon exploration, complete with three rocket stages, fuel for each, and oxygen containers for the three men in the nose of the rocket. The whole thing, I was told by Melvin Freud, head of the council, was constructed from blueprints furnished by Uncle Sam's experts.

Then there is a blue plastic satellite slightly smaller than a basketball, containing a battery powered radio which gives off a scientific sounding beep.

Also included is a radio ready for installation in a satellite. I think it is solar powered, but I am not sure. I will have to ask a 6-year-old friend.

Satellite launchers are complete with radar tracking screens and realistic sound effects.

It is a tough age for parents. The newest toyland missile and such as I, who don't even understand how television works.

BSU Installation Service Sunday

The Installation Service of the incoming Executive Council of the Baptist Student Union will be at Immanuel Baptist Church Sunday at 5 p.m.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, Dean of East Carolina College, will be principal speaker. All friends and interested persons are invited to attend.

Lobster Tails Saucy Lent Dish

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Frozen rock lobster tails, available all over the country, make a saucy dish for ladies' lunch during Lent.

The tails are boiled first, then the lobster meat is removed, diced and marinated in herb vinegar. Finally the lobster is added to a creamy sauce, colored a faint pink with paprika, and served with steamed rice.

If you like, you can pile the lobster meat and just a little of the thin sauce back into the shells, cover with tiny buttered bread cubes and broil until flecked with brown. The sauce and any lobster that remains should be served piping hot atop the rice. Or forget about the shells and serve the heated lobster and sauce as is over the rice; we like this way best because it's easiest to eat.

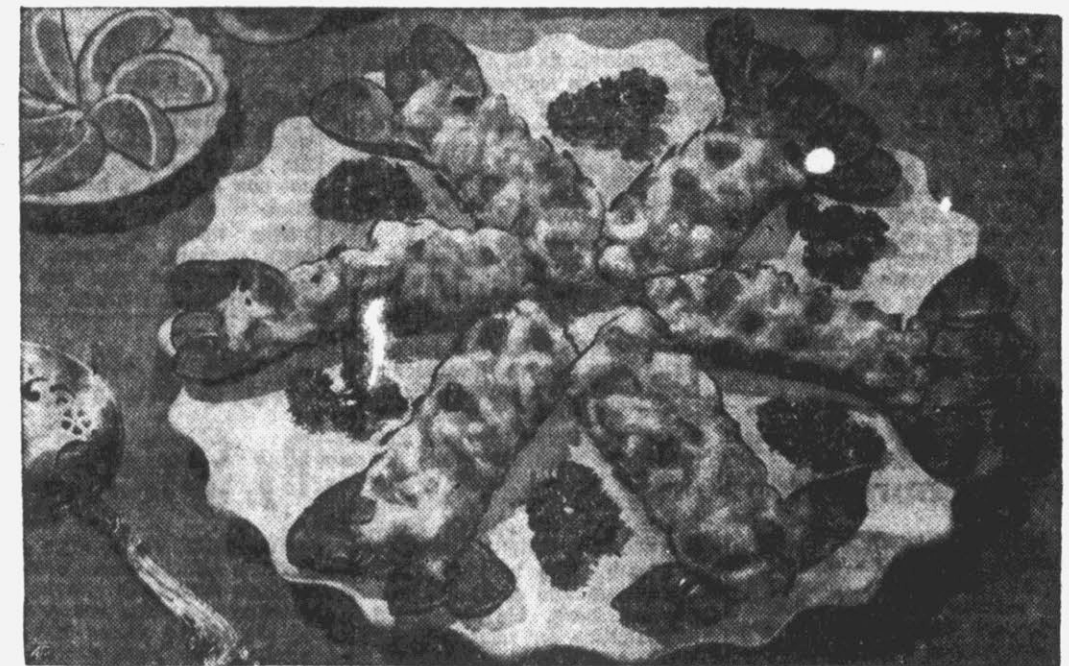

LOBSTER PIQUANT
Ingredients: 6 South African rock

lobster tails (or 5 ounces each), 1½ quarts boiling water, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons fresh garlic-flavored red wine vinegar, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1½ cups homogenized milk, 1-4 cup heavy cream.

Method: Place lobster tails, boiling water and 1½ teaspoons salt in a kettle over high heat until water begins to bubble; if tails are thawed continue to boil gently 5 to 6 minutes or until meat is opaque through; if tails are frozen add 3 minutes more to the boiling time. Drain and rinse with cold water. With kitchen scissors, cut down both sides of soft under-shell. With thumb inserted between shell and meat at top of tail, pull lobster meat away in one piece. Dice lobster; sprinkle with wine vinegar. Melt butter in 2-quart saucepan over moderately low heat; stir in flour, ½ teaspoon salt and paprika; add milk all at one time. Cook and stir constantly until bubbly and thickened. Stir in cream and lobster meat, including any of the wine vinegar not absorbed. Reheat slowly; do not boil. Serve with hot steamed rice. Makes 6 servings.

Note: If you wish to serve the lobster in the shells, reheat lobster in sauce as directed, then fill the shells with the lobster meat, draining it lightly with a spoon, so as to add only a little of the thin sauce; if you add too much sauce it will run over. (Serve remaining sauce, and any lobster, separately.) Melt 2 tablespoons butter in an 8-inch skillet and mix with 2 slices of bread that have been cut into tiny cubes. Sprinkle lobster with the buttered bread cubes and place on aluminum foil about 5 inches from medium broiler heat until bread cubes are lightly toasted.

ROCK LOBSTER TAILS teamed with a piquant sauce make a saucy dish for a Lenten ladies' lunch.

Social Notes

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Stroud have gone to Maiden, N. C. to attend the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Susie Setzer. Mrs. Setzer was the widow of Rev. A. W. Setzer, former pastor of Memorial Baptist Church.

Chester Walsh is a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

BUILT-IN BEDBOARD

Newest mattress available for persons with back trouble is an orthopedic-type mattress, featuring a built-in bedboard. The first mattress of its kind to contain a built-in bedboard in its inner construction, the board is sandwiched between a double-deck construction of upper and lower layer springs.

The corrective action exerted by the bedboard keeps the spine properly aligned providing greater support to the back where it is needed.

Bride Shower Honoree

Mrs. Robert K. Williams Jr., recent bride, was honored at a miscellaneous floating shower Wednesday night by Mrs. G. B. Jones, Mrs. Edwin Guirkin, and Mrs. John Daly at the home of Mrs. Jones.

Mrs. Jones, Mrs. R. K. Williams Sr., and the honoree greeted the 94 guests and invited them into the living room where yellow and green floral arrangements were placed.

Mrs. Milan Brickhouse, Mrs. Joe McCoy, Mrs. Josephine Saad and Mrs. Dewey Carroll presided in the dining room where lime ice punch, bridal cakes, and other party accompaniments were served.

Miss Helen Craft assisted in the dining room.

A green cloth covered the table that was centered with a massive yellow flower arrangement which was flanked by burning green tapers placed in silver holders. Wearing a white full-skirted dinner dress, the honoree was presented a pink carnation corsage.

By the hostesses. Besides being showered with gifts, Mrs. Williams received silver in her chosen pattern from the hostesses. Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Guirkin and Mrs. Daly.

CHOCOLATE CREAM CAKE

Ingredients: 2 cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon baking soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup (1-4 pound) butter, 1-4 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 large eggs, 3 squares (3 ounces) unsweetened chocolate (melted and slightly cooled), 1 cup milk, raspberry preserves, 1 cup heavy cream, 1-4 cup instant chocolate-flavored drink mix, ½ teaspoon vanilla, salt.

Method: Grease bottoms of two round layer-cake pans (each 9 by 1½ inches); line bottoms with waxed paper; grease paper. Sift together the cake flour, baking powder, baking soda and ½ teaspoon salt. Cream butter, sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla; beat in eggs thoroughly, one at a time. Beat in melted chocolate. Stir in dry ingredients, alternately with milk, in 4 additions; begin and end with dry ingredients; stir only until smooth. Turn into prepared pans. Bake in moderate (350 degrees) oven 23 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Turn out of pans at once onto wire racks; strip off paper; invert so cakes will stand right side up on racks. Cool. Spread one layer with raspberry preserves; top with other layer. Beat together cream, chocolate-flavored drink mix, ½ teaspoon vanilla and a dash of salt until very thick. Spread over sides and top of cake. Refrigerate until serving time. Makes 12 servings.

Newcomers Meet For Cards, Lunch

The Greenville Newcomers Club met for cards yesterday at the Woman's Club. Luncheon followed at Quinerly Manor.

Canasta high score prize was won by Mrs. Virginia Baker. Mrs. Pat Lynch won high in bridge; second high went to Mrs. Billie Waddell.

Guests were welcomed by Mrs. Virginia Baker, vice-president, and the door prize was won by Mrs. Lynch.

All members were urged to attend a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Baker, Jefferson Drive, at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Revival Prayer Service

The Greenville Free Will Baptist Church will meet Saturday, March 29, from 10 p.m. until 12:10 a.m. to pray for revival. Rev. Bobby Jackson will be the evangelist for revival services that begin March 30, 11 a.m., through April 12. Rev. R. B. Crawford, pastor of the church, invites the public to attend this prayer service and the revival.

Mesdames E. W. Harvey and J. H. Rose were joint hostesses to the Round Table on Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Rose. The atmosphere of the home was fragrant with the perfume of spring flowers. Beautiful baskets filled with pear and peach blossoms added a note of charm suggestive of the arrival of spring. Mrs. W. C. Vincent presided over the business meeting. The subject of the literary feature of the program was "Indian Songs and Folklore." Mrs. Wiley Brown gave a carefully prepared paper delineating many characteristics of the American Indian. Mesdames Rose and Harvey, assisted by Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, served most tempting refreshments, a frozen salad course with hot coffee.

S-t-r-e-t-c-h-i-n-g Dollars

By PEGGY SMITH
Reflector Staff Writer

Easter time, only a week off, calls for bright colors not only in clothes but in foods as well. Homemakers in Pitt County can blossom forth at Easter time with new foods and new combinations of foods in good supply at the local market.

Food Plan

Planning to have many guests for the holiday season or special meals in the home? If so, a food plan is most important to insure good eating.

A food plan always helps in stretching the food dollar. As always, the wise food shopper and menu planner will take advantage of foods that offer the most money and still give plenty of meal satisfaction.

Among the most popular main dishes served at Easter are ham, leg of lamb, fryers, roasts, and turkey. In view of current food prices, food shoppers might consider choosing between the different types of food to avail themselves of the traditional Easter foods at the most economical cost.

Fryers have held low price levels for the past month. In addition to fryers, large turkeys from storage will be specially featured.

On a price per serving basis poultry offers the most economical protein food during this season.

Remaining a popular choice is ham. There are a few key points in buying a ham, such as: read the label for type of ham and instructions for use and select the one best suited to your need. (For safety's sake, uncooked or regular, ready-to-eat, and fully cooked hams should be kept refrigerated.)

Beef, Fish

Although most beef prices are higher this season than last year this time, food shoppers will find choice grades of their favorite chuck, rib, rump or tenderloin roasts available for Easter menu planning.

In view of the meat price conditions fish merits attention for happy Easter eating. Frozen types of fish will give shoppers the best selection of fish products.

Among fish choices are frozen fillet of cod, halibut, ocean perch, and haddock. Besides the frozen types of fish available, steaks of salmon, swordfish and halibut are available in good supply.

Eggs are a real bargain these days; they cost less than they have for a long time. If the family is going to hard cook them for coloring and for eating later, then grade A will be most satisfactory.

Supplies of fresh vegetables are scarce this Easter. Greens, cabbage, celery, radishes, carrots, potatoes are in plentiful supply.

Other choices will be found in frozen and canned varieties. Vegetables are inexpensive vitamin-filled foods for tasty meal planning.

Apples, grapefruit, grapes and bananas are good quality fruits and reasonable in price.

DESSERT HINT—try fresh fruit and ice cream combinations. They will give the family high food values at a small cost.

General Food Situation

Food costs and the over-all cost of living have risen to all-time highs despite current economic conditions and the unemployment situation.

Esther Williams Expected At Festival Today

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Movie star Esther Williams was expected to arrive here late today, her arrival delayed by illness, to reign over a nearly flowerless Azalea Festival.

Meanwhile, the Azalea Open golf tournament, feature of the festival, was to open today.

Miss Williams, who was first expected yesterday, notified officials here her physician had ordered her to rest in bed. Nature of the illness was not announced.

Infra-red lights have been rigged up around some azalea plants in Greenfield Gardens—where a new footbridge over a lake is to be dedicated—in hopes the heat from the lights will cause the buds to bloom. The cold weather has retarded blooming of the flowers.

John Bromfield and Scott Brady, kings of the annual festival, were present yesterday. The program included folk music, harness racing, a fireworks display and a street dance.

Can Parents Play God?

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.

The door of my office opened and a man entered carrying a little boy about 5 years old. The child was crying, obviously in considerable pain. He was muddy and disheveled. He had been in an accident. The father was ahen white, trembling and scared.

We put the child on the examining table and got the story that he had fallen off a swing at the playground. The father worked nearby and had been called immediately. He rushed the boy up to me—the nearest doctor. I had never seen either the father or child before.

The little boy, Eddie, had a broken leg, a break in the thigh bone on the right side. Other than a few minor scratches this was the extent of his injury—bad enough, of course, but quite repairable. The father calmed down when he was assured that his boy would be all right.

The kind of break Eddie had required that the leg be held in traction until the bones knit together. That means the foot and lower leg had to be pulled down and kept stretched out so the ends of the fractured bone would heal in a straight line. This kind of a break cannot be properly treated with a cast.

I explained this to Eddie's father and made all the arrangements for Eddie to go to the orthopedic hospital. I put a temporary splint on the leg and the father still quite shaken up, took the child to the hospital, where the leg was x-rayed, then set and the necessary traction applied.

The break was clean, it would heal well in time and Eddie would be in the long run be as good as new. When a child's leg is in traction he must of course stay in bed—he cannot get about with that much apparatus attached to one leg!

Next day the doctor at the hospital called me in great distress. Eddie's father had come to the hospital and insisted upon taking the boy home. A hospital is not a jail; you cannot keep a patient against his will, not a child against the will of his parents. Doctors can advise strongly against removing the patient, can make the responsible person sign a statement that he is removing the patient against medical advice, but more than that we doctors cannot do.

The father belonged to a religious cult that did not believe in medical care nor in hospitals. When he saw his injured little boy his fear won out over his religion and he brought the child to me. However, later, when he realized his boy would not die, his religious beliefs took over.

Eventually Eddie's leg healed but it is crooked. It is shorter now than his left leg, and as he grows it will be increasingly shorter than the unbroken leg. Eddie is doomed for life to lameness.

If Eddie had had smallpox or anything that would endanger others we could have forced his remaining in the hospital, but since the only damage was to Eddie himself, we could not protect him.

Has the parent the moral right to do this to his child?

Sewing Fans Go For Chemise

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

All over the country women are sewing chemise dresses like mad. This is the final test of a new fashion. When the home seamstress accepts it, you can be sure it's here to stay for a while.

Sales of chemise patterns are booming, says Albert Chaiken, one of the country's top pattern designers. Within less than two months, a chemise dress made the "top ten" list of best-selling patterns.

"There are several reasons behind this mass acceptance of the new chemise style," says Chaiken who, as head designer for McCall's Patterns, has guided home seamstresses through such major style changes as the "new look" of 1947 and the Empire silhouette of 1954. "It's easy to sew, for one thing, and fitting problems are cut to a minimum. Also, it gives women a chance to try out the new style without ruining their clothing budgets."

Most pattern companies are including increasing numbers of chemises in their spring lines. The styles are spread through all age groups, including misses, juniors, teens, children and toddlers.

The chemise silhouette appears in several versions. Most widely accepted in the loose-fitting shift, tapered at the hem and accented at the neckline. The middy look is part of the same fashion story, and is represented in either the classic two-piece middy or the semi-fitted dress with hipline cuff or belt, giving it a two-piece look. Also popular is the bloused-back dress or suit.

"The middy," says Chaiken, "is unquestionably the easiest of the new styles for the average woman to wear. The bloused back and the shift are good on tall, slender women and on slim junior figures. However, all the new chemise patterns are offered in several versions, and all include a belt for the timid."

Local sewing center experts advise that if you plan to sew a chemise, it's best to select a true chemise pattern. Don't try to make a chemise from a standard sheath. There is considerable difference in the cut, in addition to the relaxed waistline. The skirt is tapered toward the hem and style emphasis is placed at the neckline.

How to Fit
In order to insure correct fit, select your proper pattern size, going by the bustline measurement. Although the chemise allows two inches extra at the waistline, the ease allowance at the hipline is one inch less. Baste waistline darts in place and try on before stitching. Be sure the widest part of the dart falls at your natural waistline. Even if you are daring enough to try a completely unfitted chemise, you'll find that a suggestion of waistline curve is becoming.

When making the chemise it is particularly important to do all fitting over the foundation garment you will wear with the dress. A longer girdle often is advisable to give extra control at the thigh area and add sleekness to the silhouette. A rounded bra is important for the gently defined bustline.

When making the hem of the garment, be sure to wear the shoes you plan to wear with it, as heel height makes a difference in the hang of the skirt. The chemise should be considerably shorter than last year's fashions, coming just below the knee.

The home seamstress will have a wide fabric choice for her new chemise. Soft fabrics such as jersey, sheer wool or silk will require linings in the back of the skirt, to retain the slender look. Crisper fabrics such as linen need no lining.

Chaiken offers a final word of advice: "Pay particular attention to the neckline and shoulder fit. When a dress fits only in that area, it must be perfect."

state health officer, with the medical society, but we had no weapon but moral suasion and that didn't work.

Eventually Eddie's leg healed but it is crooked. It is shorter now than his left leg, and as he grows it will be increasingly shorter than the unbroken leg. Eddie is doomed for life to lameness.

If Eddie had had smallpox or anything that would endanger others we could have forced his remaining in the hospital, but since the only damage was to Eddie himself, we could not protect him.

Jane Fuller from Greenville is the new Training Union president at Memorial and Bobbie Pruden from Roxobel heads the Training Union at Immanuel.

Christian Science Society
God's supremacy and all-power will be explained in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Reality" at Christian Science services Sunday.

From the Bible will be read the following (I Chronicles 29:11): "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all."

Correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (47:24-25): "All reality is in God and His creation, harmonious and eternal."

The Golden Text is from Psalms (33:11): "The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations."

Series Of Parties Fete Bride, Bridegroom-Elect

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Miss Grace Dodd Elks and B. E. Singleton Jr., whose marriage is to be solemnized March 29 in the Proctor Memorial Christian Church of Grimesland, have been recently honored at many social events in Washington.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Hal Wilson entertained the bridal couple with a dinner at their Honey Pod home.

Dinner was served by candlelight in the dining room where red camellias graced the center of the table, surrounded by white tapers in silver holders.

Miss Elks was presented a camellia bloom corsage, taken from a bush the Wilsons gave the honored couple for the lawn of their home. Their wedding gift was in chosen china.

Hamburger Fry
On March 22 the couple was honored with an informal hamburger fry. Hosts and hostesses for the pre-nuptial celebration were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Singleton and Mr. and Mrs. "Skets" Howard.

The event took place at their homes on Tar Heel Drive. Approximately 40 friends attended this event.

Dessert Hour
Miss Betty Lou Whitley was hostess at a dessert hour on March 21 honoring Miss Elks.

The Whitley home in Washington Park was arranged for the social event, featuring a mass arrangement of red gladioli on an auxiliary table in the living room, while the coffee table held a flat bouquet of camellias.

Miss Elks was given a wrist corsage of white carnations and a gift in her chosen pattern of flat silver.

Twelve guests attended this evening party.

All In The Same Boat, Together

As Pitt Countians consider establishment of a tax-supported Industrial Development Commission, they might keep in mind advice Governor Hodges offered in his address here Tuesday:

"Industrial development is everyone's responsibility, not simply the task of the few professional people and volunteers who serve our local organizations. We must enthrone our people throughout Eastern North Carolina with the opportunity available to us to do for ourselves what is patently our own responsibility to create a favorable climate for industrial growth and encourage the establishment and growth of new enterprise. Further, each town or county should have its own industrial organization set up to get new industries, using a full-time expert where possible."

Pitt County's plan for a county-wide tax supported organization offers a logical solution to the situation faced here. It will afford on a county-wide basis sufficient funds to hire an expert in the field of industrial development to guide and coordinate development efforts throughout the county. It will afford the county an active organization to seek outside industries to locate here, and to push the development of home-grown industries applicable to our particular situation.

Every industry gained for Pitt County—whether it be an imported industry or a home-grown industry—will benefit all the people of the county. There is certainly no reason to believe that any one community will benefit more than any other from the efforts of county-wide tax supported commission. The day has passed when large industries will be located within the corporate limits of any town. In the first place, land is not available within the corporate limits of the towns of Pitt County. Even if it were, industry has shown its overwhelming preference for being located outside the corporate limits of municipalities.

The economic tide of every community in Pitt County rises and falls as the economy of the entire county moves up or down. From the standpoint of the welfare of its people, no community in Pitt County is isolated from the others. All are in the same boat. The amount of economic progress which Pitt County makes will depend to a great extent on whether the people of the county pull together or against each other in the endeavor.

Through the county-wide tax supported development commission, all of Pitt stands to receive the greatest gain.

Science Fiction Is No Longer Mere Fiction

Talk as we do about the rapid pace at which life is being lived and advancements made, we often wonder whether we fully appreciate the rapidly changing conditions.

This week chief planners for the nation's space development program outlined in general terms future goals to be accomplished in the years ahead. Among these is the proposed flight of unmanned rockets to the moon, and flights around the moon televising pictures back to earth.

The report is generally accepted as a realistic, practical plan for the development of our space program. It offers encouragement that we are moving ahead toward worthwhile goals, goals that certainly should be within reach in a reasonable length of time.

But what reaction would this report have received had it been made six months ago?

Remember September, 1957? It wasn't long ago. And yet it was before the time of the first man-made satellite; before man had succeeded in launching a vehicle that could shake loose from earth's gravity and spin in space. Then came October, 1957 and Sputnik I that staggered the imaginations every nation of the globe. Then it was November and Sputnik II with its expendable pouch, doomed to a lonely death far out in space. Shortly after the era began there came in quick successions Explorer I, Vanguard, and just this week Explorer III.

The feat that six months ago seemed to most people an accomplishment for the distant future has now become commonplace. Earth satellites are an accomplished fact; accepted as a part of our lives as are the electric light, the automobile and jet airplane. Moon rockets, considered in the realm of science-fiction a scant six months ago, now are looked forward to as the really next big step.

Have we yet fully grasped the significance of the changing times in which we live?

Not Much Time For Khrushchev

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's last pen-pal, Nikita Khrushchev lost a traveling companion and Prime Minister Bulganin lost a job. With another full-blown one-man dictatorship replacing the Soviet Union's vaunted collective leadership, the future is anyone's guess.

What happened yesterday — when Communist party boss Khrushchev bounced Bulganin and became prime minister too — was simple political realism. The party ran the Soviet Union. Khrushchev ran the party and the country. Bulganin was strictly a front man. So Khrushchev became boss of everything in name as well as in fact.

The question is: Why did he have to bounce Bulganin at all? Bulganin was only window dressing. He didn't have a shred of Khrushchev's power. He looked like an oversized Santa Claus who made a genial traveling companion for Khrushchev on his frequent trips abroad.

It's possible Khrushchev — playing the role of world peacemaker — wants to make some sudden and dramatic proposals that will have a greater appearance of newness and a break with the past if the new boss man is doing the talking instead of talking through his Charley McCarthy, Bulganin.

In the world's mind all Soviet policies and proposals so far have had to be identified with both Bulganin and Khrushchev. Bulganin, meanwhile, may drop back into a deputy premier's spot, with nothing to do. There are, however, other possible courses Khrushchev can take.

For the time being he may continue his policy of sweet reasonableness and peaceful intentions, but switch it when he feels the Soviet Union has enough muscle not to be so peaceful. The Soviet Union still isn't in a position to outmatch this country thoroughly in a military way. It's trying hard. If it succeeds Khrushchev may drop his trying-to-get-along tactics for threats and intimidation. He doesn't have a lot of time to wait. He's 64. But the Soviet Union is moving fast. So is Khrushchev, and has been since the old dictator, Stalin, died in 1953.

For a while after Stalin's death the Soviet Union supposedly was run by the collective leadership of his heirs. One by one Khrushchev got the most important of them — at least those who didn't agree with him or might have been a threat to his ultimate seizure of power — out of the way.

But Khrushchev years ago broke away from the rigidity of Stalin and, although a thorough Communist, has been far more flexible in both domestic and foreign affairs than the old tyrant.

If, in the five years since Stalin died, the Soviet Union can be said to have moved in any direction it was towards the right a little bit. It wouldn't be surprising if it moved more that way.

It will be increasingly difficult in a highly industrialized and educated society — such as the Soviet Union is striving mightily to be — to retain the rigidity imposed on the country by Stalin when it was still trying to get on its feet and illiterate was the rule and not the exception.

In time it seems likely the educated Soviets — the scientists, engineers and managers — will whittle away at the absolute party dictatorship and demand more say in the government. It may not turn out to be the kind of democracy this country has. But the Soviet Union will have to change since nations, like animals, are in the stream of evolution. The best this country can hope is that the Soviet evolution will take a turn further to the right. In the meantime the Western countries, because of their own evolution and economic pressures, may turn more to the left.

COST OF REAL FREEDOM
Income Tax:
Every three months the bill comes in, and every three months we pay it with considerable grumbling. Yet why should we grumble? This is the price we pay—and a very low price it is indeed—for living in a free country. The Communists do not tax; they take over. They do not require their victims to pay part of their earnings in order to keep the government going. The Communists lords give their slaves enough to live on and to be sufficiently healthy for good driving work. And then the leaders manage the rest to their own interests.

The blessing of living in a free country is too often taken for granted. We and our forebears have never known anything else but freedom. All over the world,

Public Interest In Att'y General

By LYNN NISBET
DIFFERENT — Ordinarily it is futile, and often unkind to all parties, to discuss prospective appointees by the Governor to important offices. The forthcoming vacancy in the office of attorney general is an exception. Because of enhanced public interest in this office, both from the viewpoint of curiosity and because it occupies a position of tremendous influence upon matters of vital concern to the people, more than usual attention is being given to the type of man likely to be named.

Moreover, to maintain continuity of policy it is advisable that the appointee be acceptable to the Democratic executive committee for the party nominee and to the people in the November election. These conditions place this appointment in a different category from the naming of a commissioner of revenue, a director of highways, or almost any other administrative or judicial officer.

There is further reason for public interest in the office of attorney general. He occupies a unique position, in that he is not directly affiliated with any one of three major branches of government. He is not in the legislative branch, although his department supervises bill drafting in the Legislature and codification of the General Statutes. He is not a member of the Council of State and has no vote there, but the constitution designates him as the legal adviser of the executive branch of State government. He is not a member of the judiciary, although he heads the constitutional Department of Justice, and it is his duty to prosecute all criminal appeals to the Supreme Court in behalf of the State. In that connection it is his duty, exercised more often than many people realize, often to ask for reversal of convictions or new trials when it appears that the lower courts have been unjust in judgments.

QUALIFICATIONS — It is obvious that the people not only have the right but have some obligation to let their wishes be known as to the type and caliber of man to be appointed to this post, including his political philosophy. Of all the offices in State government this is the only one that requires a good lawyer. And of all the offices this is the one where personal and factional political status should count the least.

There are dozens, perhaps hundreds, of people in North Carolina who can qualify under the specifications set out in the foregoing paragraphs. From the names most often and prominently mentioned four stand out in popular discussion. Two of them represent the philosophy of conservatism and carrying on along traditional lines. Two would indicate a new approach to reorganization and a concept of the attorney general's office as an adjunct of the executive branch of government.

NAMES — In the first category are Ralph Moody and Joe Branch. In the second are Spencer Bell and Robert Giles. Moody is a career man in legal aspects of government. From chief counsel of the Employment Security Commission he came to the post of assistant attorney general, then to Utilities Commissioner and back to the Department of Justice as assistant attorney general. He prepared major part of the briefs and argued issues before the U.S. Supreme Court in many of the school racial integration issues. He has served as assistant attorney general under Harry McMullan, William Rodman and George Patton, a total of about twelve years.

Joe Branch, four times member of the Legislature as representative of Halifax county, legislative counsel for Governor Hodges in the 1957 session, is regarded as a very able lawyer, conservative but a political liberal. He advocates changes that oldtimers regard as revolutionary.

Giles, administrative assistant to Governor Hodges, apparently is as far to the left as Ralph Moody is to the right. His intellectual and legal ability and moral integrity are unquestioned. Only questions raised are about his philosophy of government and the increasing influence of the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill on the State administration. Many people think that would make for more efficient government, but a lot of the voting citizens are wondering if they are sacrificing too much on the altar of efficiency.

Bell, incumbent State senator from Mecklenburg and chairman of State Bar Association committee on reorganization of the judiciary, is rated an economic conservative but a political liberal. He advocates changes that oldtimers regard as revolutionary.

From the names most often and prominently mentioned four stand out in popular discussion. Two of them represent the philosophy of conservatism and carrying on along traditional lines. Live It All Over Again?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk scrawls of a pavement Plato: Some people say that, if they had the chance, they'd like to live their life all over again — repeating it step by step.

Such people do not impress me as being either happy or wise. They do not even impress me as being human. They impress me as being merely vocal photograph records, too dizzy from their circular rut to make common sense.

A man who insists that, if he had it to do all over again, he'd do it in exactly the same way is either a perfect saint, a simoniac or an insufferable egotist.

If I had this chance, believe me, there'd be some changes made.

For example: I'd inherit money. A man born to money is like a duck in a pond. But a man who has to fight for wealth is like a hen in a brook. He never feels entirely comfortable.

I would learn to play at least two instruments, so I could make music of my own, and not have to choose always between Beethoven and Elvis Presley.

I would read fewer fairy tales as a boy and read more poetry, history and biography. Many of a man's greatest mistakes in life come from believing fairy tales.

At the age of five I would start brushing my teeth regularly three times a day and seeing my dentist at least twice a year. Then if I still had to buy store molars before I was 50, I'd know whether to blame it on myself or heredity.

I would not quit the boy scouts at 13 just because a pretty red-haired girl moved into the house across the street. If you stay with the scouts you will learn to find your way out of any forest. But once you get interested in red-haired girls you never get out of the forest.

I would learn to ride a horse, drive a car, fly an airplane. These abilities, for some reason, make you a more interesting conversationalist than if you journey through life on your own two feet, noting bud and bird with a quiet eye.

I would never pursue romance with a girl who refused to lend me money first. Women are most aware of the value of money. If they won't invest their cash in you, they won't invest their heart either.

I would make it an inflexible rule to get eight hours sleep every night and always get to bed by midnight. Most of the mistakes a man regrets are made when he's sleepy — or it's after midnight.

I would forget geometry and study public speaking in school. It is better to be an after dinner speaker boring an audience than to be among the audience, bored.

Finally, I would build bigger daydreams while young. The greatest cure of middle age and old age is to be the prisoner of small, nonelastic daydreams.

If I did all these things, my second life might not be any better than my present one, but at least it would be different — and I'd know the difference. That's something.

And how would you re-live yours?

Businesses On-The-Mall

By ALVIN TAYLOR
An old dream popped up at the Planning-Zoning Commission meeting Tuesday night but it got no further than the dream stage. It was that plan, which has been mentioned almost jokingly from time-to-time, to bar automobiles from Evans St., break up the pavement and plant trees.

Commission Chairman Frank Little brought the idea up by pointing to a municipal magazine that told of two cities which had done just that.

A survey in one town, according to the article, has shown the plan gained the favor of the overwhelming majority of shoppers. More than half the merchants on the affected street were happy with the new set-up.

Surprisingly, merchants whose businesses are located off the new mall were unhappy with the new set-up.

With that information the planner began to wonder how Evans St. from Five points to Third St. would look if a similar plan was carried out here.

City Manager Leonard Bloxum pointed out that a similar plan is being carried out in Mooresville where the long-range plan is to close off a block at the time until the job is completed.

It all set Mayor S. Eugene West to wondering just how it would be to sit in front of a certain Evans St. drug store sipping a cuppa coffee under the shade of a Magnolia tree.

The commission members offered no motion to recommend such a plan locally and as the conversation ended all the planners had a rather dreamy look in their eyes.

Now just a minute fellas, maybe that isn't such a bad idea after all. Instead of Magnolias maybe we could plant peach trees along Evans. On a hot summer afternoon all a tall man like myself would have to do is reach up for the refreshing fruit.

Talk about leisurely living. Mayor S. Eugene West awoke around 4 o'clock the other morning to the howls of a dog outside his Tenth St. home.

The mayor was in favor of rolling over and returning to slumber but his wife, an animal lover, urged him to investigate.

He donned trousers and a coat and plunged into the rainy night. Mayor West found a dog had either fallen or been thrown into the small pond beside his home and the animal couldn't climb the walls to freedom.

So the mayor reached in to drive a car doesn't need financial aid, Whitman College of Walla Walla, Wash., has decided. Dr. Chester M. Moxey, president, explained, "Students of the horse- and buggy age would not have thought themselves entitled to financial aid if they could afford to whirl around in a surfer with the fringe on top." Or, if they did, the college officials would have laughed at them. Grants are for education, not luxuries. — Anderson (S.C.) Independent.

New Light On Competition Right

By ELMER ROESSNER
If somebody starts a new kind of business, such as manufacturing hot dogs with a built-in vein of mustard, it's all right for you to start a similar enterprise, judging from a decision in Newark, N.J.

Of course, if the somebody has a patent on mustardized franks, you'll run into trouble. And you can't imitate his trade mark or his business name. But beyond that, you are free to set up shop next door to his and compete like crazy.

The decision did not involve hot dogs, but concerned a shoppers' club. Several years ago Sidney Girard and Grosvenor Ansell organized the International Gift of the Month Club. They discussed their plan with Maxwell Sackheim, a veteran advertising man, and he offered some ideas but was never formally appointed their advertising agency. Later Mr. Sackheim, with David Margulies, organized the Around-the-World Shoppers Club.

Mr. Ansell and his associates sued for $1,950,000 charging Mr. Sackheim learned the confidential and secret operational setup of a client and conspired with Mr. Margulies to compete with them.

After several days trial, Judge Reynier J. Wortendyke Jr. dismissed the case. He found the International Club had never been a client of Mr. Sackheim and there was no conspiracy. His findings on the second point are of significance in the entire field of competition. Judge Wortendyke said that even if one assumed, for argument's sake, that Mr. Sackheim had said to Mr. Margulies, "This fellow Ansell has a good thing. His cost is X dollars but his gross is X plus Y dollars and his return is beautiful. Why don't we get in on the ground floor?" it still would not have been an illegal conspiracy.

THE RIGHT OF COMPETITION He continued: "The privilege to compete with others includes the privilege to adopt their business methods, ideas or processes of manufacture. Were it otherwise, the first person in the field would have a monopoly which would tend to prevent competition." The judge also said, "Competition can be very harsh. Under the capitalistic system which we have in this country, as soon as one evolves a novel idea in the business world, there are hundreds of others that are just waiting to seize and capitalize upon it.

"This is inherent in competition. It can't be avoided. Competition is not only recognized but is encouraged statutorily."

So go ahead and start selling mustardized hot dogs. If you can't figure any other way of getting the mustard in, get a thin metal tube, sharpen one end and attach a rubber bulb full of mustard at the other.

That's too much trouble, organize a shoppers' club.

INCOME TAXES MISCALCULATED BY $141,000,000 LAST YEAR
If you have a child in high school, it might be wise to have him or her check the calculation on your income tax return before you file it on April 15.

On the other hand, if the youngsters find out how much you really make, you may be hit for an increased allowance.

Nevertheless, Commerce Clearing House reports that last year 1,090,000 taxpayers underpaid taxes by an average of $90 each, and that 615,000 overpaid an average of $70 each. Lousy arithmetic.

The government assessed the underpayers $98,123,000 and sent refunds of $42,979,000 to the others.

Total miscalculations may have been larger, since the government didn't check the arithmetic on about one-twelfth of the returns. However, these returns were largely in the lowest income group.

POST-RETIREMENT JOBS SOUGHT FOR PROFESSORS
Trades and other professions might learn from college professors.

Many colleges retire professors at fixed ages, regardless of whether they are still able and regardless of whether they can live on their retirement pay. So the Association of American Colleges and the American Association of University Professors, with the help of the Ford Foundation, have established a Retired Professors Registry at 175 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington 6, D.C. It puts professors in touch with colleges interested in hiring them. Researches indicate that about half of the retired professors can find full or part-time jobs in colleges other than those that turned them out to pasture.

Quote...
"There just aren't enough rich people to pay the tax bills, or even to make a sizeable dent in them. Government is removed its money from where the money is — and most of it is in the hands of people of small and moderate means." — Industrial News Review.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
Literary news of the week hereabouts is publication of WAR CRY OF THE SOUTH, a historical novel by Frank Landing, who lives right here in Greenville and teaches English at Junius Rose High School. Aside from the fact that it's written by a local lad, the book can stand on its own as well worth reading, especially for those who hail from eastern N. C. The story centers around the building and action of the Confederate battleship "Albemarle," a steel-hulled ram that bottled a lot of Yankee ships into the bottom of Plymouth (N.C.) harbor before President Lincoln sent a special mission of bluecoats to sink it. WAR CRY OF THE SOUTH deals with a little-known but heroic episode of the Civil War, and with a ship whose fame has been overshadowed by the "Monitor" and the "Merrimack." But the "Albemarle" had plenty of fuss made about it while it lasted, and the fuss was around here in the waters bordering our own region. We recommend Mr. Landing's book heartily, both as a first rate war and adventure book and as an account of events of particular interest to eastern North Carolinians. . . . Local book emporia (that's bookstores to you) in Greenville and throughout this area have it in stock, or will order it for you. And if you want a copy right quick—as we say—get in touch with This Column and we'll get it for you—but not wholesale.

April Futures
Besides April Fool's Day—and you know when that comes—Shakespeare's Birthday—the 26th, approximately—and Easter Holidays, April will bring some spring breezes—we hope—and three books about The South from Bobbs-Merrill. . . . "From the Hills to the Sea" will be about legendary events that happened—or didn't happen—in the Carolinas, and is by the famed poet and story-teller, Archibald Rutledge. The new series consists of short stories about mysterious or inexplicable happenings, and looks like a fascinating bet. . . . "Gift From the Hills" tells the story of Miss Lucy Morgan's unique Penland School of Handicrafts up in the western hills, and about how she revived the dying art of native weaving and other handicrafts in this area. It's written with LeGette Blythe, author of "Miracle in the Hills" and other books dealing with Tarheel lore. . . . For the kiddies, "Virginia Dare, Mystery Girl" provides a simple, readable account of the childhood of the first white child born in the new world—a "Lost Colony" baby whom nobody really knows much about. But Augusta Stevenson has woven a good story out of the fragments of facts at her disposal, and we recommend it as something special for eastern N. C. small-fry. . . .

Scoreboard
A few weeks ago, when Anya Seton's novel came out about a New England Puritan who wasn't puritanical enough, called "The Winthrop Woman," we prophesied it would hit the best-seller lists, but pronto. It did, and is now running third. "By Love Possessed" is second, kicked off the top rung by a sleeper, "Anatomy of a Murder," by Robert Traver. . . . But John Cheever's "The Wapshot Chronicle," which won the National Book Award for fiction, isn't on the list at all. And Betty Smith's new effort, "Maggie—now," which got very indifferent greetings from the critics, and James Jones' "Some Come Running," which got unanimous disapproval, both are doing nicely. . . . So who reads the critics? . . .

Today's Review
Mrs. Anne Singleton, Woman's Editor of THE REFLECTOR, contributes her comments on a recent novel about marital problems. . . .

THE MARRIAGE. By Mona Williams. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1954.
The inside of a modern marriage is revealed in this fast moving novel in an open but not indecent manner.
Amy Styron, a talented and sensitive woman with three almost-grown children, was so submerged in the dominance of her husband, Sam, that divorce was inevitable. Sam, although attractive and devoted as a father, held a savage hold on Amy even after her separation and the presence of Eric in her "free" new life.
Each of the children is touched by the separation in a different way. Diane, the oldest, even commits an act totally foreign to her usual behavior.
A certain element of suspense is evident in the final chapters when the plot races toward an ending of surprise and necessity.
Mona Williams skillfully projects each character's inner emotions in comparison to Amy, the heroine, and her strength and weaknesses as a mother, an artist, and a woman make the book a fascinating account of feminine emotions.
San Francisco, California, and suburban life are the settings for this modern, enjoyable book.

Will Talk Enlargement Of Dismal Swamp Canal

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A proposal to widen and deepen the Dismal Swamp Canal from here to Elizabeth City, N.C., at an estimated cost of 40 million dollars will be discussed here today by a joint North Carolina-Virginia Committee and Army engineers.

The proposal apparently has the backing of North Carolina's Gov. Luther Hodges, its two senators, civic interests in Elizabeth City, and several railroads.

Object of the enlargement of the canal would be the attraction of industry to deep-water sites along its banks. Several members of the Dismal Swamp Industrial Canal Committee said Thursday that certain industries already have shown interest in the proposal and that one of these was a steel company.

A resolution backing the proposal has been endorsed by Norfolk County, South Norfolk, Virginia Beach, Elizabeth City, and two counties in North Carolina, Camden and Pasquotank.

Today's meeting will be to discuss the possibility of a study of the proposal. L. S. Blades Jr. of Elizabeth City, chairman of the committee, and Harry E. Brown, state engineer of North Carolina, will be present.

The next step, according to Blades, would be the appropriation of funds to make studies of the proposal.

Rep. Herbert Bonner (D-N.C.) last night said in Washington he would be "all in favor" of such a project should Army engineers find it practical. He would meet

W. C. Handy, Famed Composer Of Jazz, Dies In New York Hospital

NEW YORK (AP)—W. C. Handy, 84-year-old composer of "The St. Louis Blues" and other jazz classics, died today at Sydenham Hospital.

The blind Negro song writer was taken to the hospital Sunday night from his Yonkers, N.Y., home. He had been under treatment for pneumonia and complications.

At his bedside when he died were his wife, two sons, William Jr. and Waverly, a brother, Charles; a daughter, Mrs. Catherine Lewis; and a grandson, William Handy III. The children are by Handy's late first wife. He married Mrs. Irma Louise Logan when he was 81.

Handy suffered a stroke about three years ago and had been confined, with rare exceptions, to his suburban home since.

He had hoped to fly to St. Louis April 7 for the premiere of the movie "St. Louis Blues," the story of his life.

The son and grandson of Methodist preachers, Handy became a professional musician against parental objections. His father denounced such people as sinners. He wanted his son to be a minister.

Young W. C. compromised. He would be a teacher. And so he reluctantly traded his first musical instrument, a guitar, for a dictionary.

But he was not long without an instrument. He got his hands on an old cornet and mastered it.

He passed a teacher's examination and set out from his home in Florence, Ala., where he was born Nov. 16, 1873.

He became voice and music instructor at a Negro college in Alabama. He remained there two years before he resigned to devote his time to composing. Thus the "blues" were born.

"The songs of the South were plinned" to be written," he explained.

Handy said his love for the blues developed from hearing Negroes singing—on the streets, in railroad yards and in the iron foundries of the South.

The Negro, he said, finds music in the ripple of a brook . . . from the winds moaning through the trees. From such poetry comes the tempo of the blues, he said.

Handy's most famous composition, "St. Louis Blues," was written in 1914, based on a theme he composed some years earlier but never published. He wrote both the words and the music. It netted thousands of dollars in royalties.

He turned out 60 other blues melodies, including "Memphis Blues," "Beale Street Blues," named for the famous Negro street in Memphis, and the "Mississippi Blues."

He sold the "Memphis Blues" for $100.

Handy in his early years had trouble in finding publishers, so he founded a music publishing house in New York—the Handy Brothers Music Co., Inc.

His autobiography, "Father of the Blues," was published in 1941.

Sum Up Case Of Marine On Trial

KINSTON, N.C. (AP)—Summations by lawyers began here today in the case of a Camp Lejeune Marine charged with the capital offense of raping an 18-year-old girl.

The case of Pfc. Edward A. Keltner, 22, was expected to reach a jury late today.

Shelby Waters, 18, charged that a marine jumped into her car as she stopped for a traffic light Nov. 24. She said he forced her to pick up a second Marine a block away and the second Marine drove the car to an isolated spot where she was assaulted.

Keltner denied on the witness stand that he attacked the girl and said he and a fellow Marine, Cpl. Ralph Osborne, 20, of Cherry Point, argued on the night of Nov. 24 in Kinston and he (Keltner) left Kinston.

Osborne pleaded guilty as an accessory after rape when the trial opened and Judge W. J. Bundy said he would sentence Osborne after Keltner's trial.

President Warns Against Lapse In Trade Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower says letting the administration's international trade program lapse would jeopardize the jobs of many Americans and build up the "deadly peril" of communism abroad.

It also would mean a return "to the law of the jungle in trade relations between nations," the President said last night in addressing a bipartisan dinner here and a coast-to-coast television radio audience.

Eisenhower plugged hard for his request that Congress extend the Reciprocal Trade Act for five years. He also wants authority to cut tariffs as much as 25 per cent.

The program faces rough going at the Capitol and is under fire too from some businessmen—100 of whom staged an opposition rally in Washington.

The 1,200 diners Eisenhower addressed gave him warm ovations at the start and conclusion of his talk and interrupted him seven times with applause.

The dinner, sponsored by 128 organizations backing the administration program, climaxed a day-long conference at which Democratic and Republican leaders joined Eisenhower in calling trade extension vital to United States interests at home and abroad.

Adlai E. Stevenson, twice the Democratic nominee for president, led the list of Democrats providing a bipartisan touch.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) in a speech read for him because he had a conflicting engagement out of town, sounded a note similar to Eisenhower's in saying the Soviet challenge to the free world in economic competition is "unrelenting and deadly." Rayburn added: "It will profit us nothing if we gain the moon and lose the earth to the Russians."

The President hit hard at both the global and the home front aspects of the trade program.

Alluding to the U.S. business slump, he said: "World trade makes jobs for at least 4 1/2 million American workers. At a time of slack in the economy like the present, these jobs should not be placed in jeopardy," by crippling our trade program.

Rejection of the program, he added, would "destroy far more jobs and job opportunities than it could possibly preserve."

As for the danger from communism, Eisenhower said the Kremlin is seeking to lure developing free nations into a "spider web" through economic penetration. The great goal of the Reds, the President added, is "economic encirclement of the United States."

Rites Saturday For Mrs. A. J. Flanagan

FARMVILLE—Mrs. Arch J. Flanagan, 55, the former Gayle Cheek, died at her home last night at 11 o'clock following an extended illness.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 11 o'clock from the Farmville Christian Church. Interment to follow in the Forest Hills Cemetery here.

Mrs. Flanagan was the daughter of the late Noah Cheek and Mattie Martha Cheek of Goldston. She had been a member of the Farmville Christian Church for more than 30 years and was president of the Farmville United Daughters of the Confederacy. She was always active in the affairs of her Church and community until declining health forced her to limit her participation.

Surviving are: her husband, Arch J. Flanagan; two daughters, Mrs. Harvey L. Davis Jr. of Goldsboro and Miss Sue Flanagan of the home; two sons, Jay Flanagan of Butler, Alabama and Harold Flanagan of Farmville; three sisters, Mrs. Archie D. Craig of Wilmington, Mrs. Quenton Smith of West End, and Mrs. George E. Rives of Goldston; five brothers, Troy and Samuel, both of Goldston, Hurley of West End, Jim of Rockwell and Bill of Chapel Hill; and two grandsons.

The family requested no flowers.

LeMay Flies To New Zealand

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP)—Gen. Curtis LeMay, leading American advocate of long-range strategic bombing, conferred with Commonwealth air officers and lunched with government officials today after a 15-hour nonstop flight from Castle Air Force Base, Calif.

The U.S. Air Force vice chief of staff came to attend the 21st anniversary of the Royal New Zealand Air Force, being celebrated tomorrow.

Wasn't As Bad As Anticipated

ST. LOUIS (AP)—City officials said fewer families than expected have signed up for distribution of free government surplus food in St. Louis.

City Comptroller John Poelker estimated 4,000 to 5,000 persons would register for the food program, prompted by unemployment that has reached more than 70,000, a 16-year peak in this area.

Only 1,214 persons applied yesterday, first day of a three-day registration program.

The low number of registrants for the surplus food, Poelker said, indicated that many families still have some member working.

Missing Diesel Turns Up Again

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—A missing diesel switching locomotive of the Pennsylvania Railroad turned up yesterday—right smack in front of an oncoming freight.

The crew of the Reading Co.'s freight stopped the train with only yards to spare.

It wasn't until the near accident that PRR found out it was missing one heavy-duty shifter from its assembly yards at Trainer, south of Chester.

Railroad detectives figure it had to be a railroader who moved the engine through the maze of switches. They haven't found who it was.

Peron Vanishes From His Abode

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Juan D. Peron has vanished from his hotel here and diplomatic sources in Buenos Aires say the former Argentine dictator has gone to Europe.

Some of Peron's associates also are missing from their hotel rooms here. One of those remaining, Americo Barrios, said Peron was on a tour of the Dominican interior, but he refused to say where.

It All Caught Up With Him

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—An 8-year-old learned a boy just has to grow up for some things.

Juvenile officer Phillip York explained:

The boy found a half-filled wine bottle and drank it.

Then he found a half-smoked cigar and smoked it.

He walked into a variety store, grabbed a can of small change and started to run.

Then everything, including the store manager, caught up with him.

He got awfully awfully sick.

And sore, too, after he was turned over to his mother.

Azalea Golf Open Begins Today With 123 Entries

More At Stake Than $15,000 Prize Money

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—There's considerably more at stake than just another of the weekly golf tournaments in the $15,000 Azalea Open getting under way here today.

This is the last call for qualifying for the two berths still vacant in the blue ribbon Augusta Masters opening next Thursday. The Professional Golfers Assn. has a point system whereby two players doing the best on the winter tour and not already in the Masters field qualify for the vacancies.

Twenty-five points are given a player for a tournament victory, 24 for a second place and so on down to one point for finishing 25th. In addition, a tournament victory carries a 10-point bonus. Currently, four pros are contending for the places. Bo Winger, silver-haired Odessa, Tex. entry, is the leader with 106 points. Dave Ragan of Orlando, Fla., follows with 91 1/2. In third place with 78 is Bob Rosburg. Pudgy Napa, Calif., pro who has been in a slump this month. Dave Marr of Cedarhurst, N.Y., is fourth with 62.

Winger figured in a minor automobile accident earlier this week, but was expected to be among the 123 entries.

The three-day tournament ends with two rounds Sunday over the 6,600-yard, par 72 Cape Fear Country Club course. Cool weather, frequent rain and lack of sunshine have left the course a bit below par for the 10th staging of the tournament.

In addition to the Masters possibilities, there is other incentive for the circuit wanderers.

The Wilmington and Masters tournaments are the last of a series in which a pro may earn a bid to the Las Vegas, Nev., Tournament of Champions April 24-27. A pro has to win one of the PGA-sponsored events to gain a spot at Vegas.

Dow Finsterwald, who averaged 73 strokes last year and was third money winner with more than $32,000 in official earnings, has not yet qualified for Las Vegas. He hasn't won since February of last year at Tucson. He has finished second or tied for second 15 times since January, 1956, winning only twice.

Last Sunday at St. Petersburg, Fla., he tied for second back of Arnold Palmer, whose closing 73 for 276 gave him top money of $2,000.

Palmer, winner here a year ago, is in the field that includes 16 of the top 22 money makers this year.

No. 1 man Ken Venturi is sitting this one out just as he did at St. Petersburg when he finished fifth. His absence gives runner-up Billy Casper a chance to take the lead. Casper's $11,455 earnings trail Venturi by only $57.

Two Added

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Two more $300 tournaments have been added to the 1958 schedule of the Carolinas PGA.

Dugan Aycock, Carolinas PGA president, said yesterday that an 18-hole pro-am will be played July 21 at the Hillcrest Golf Club in Winston-Salem, and a similar event July 20 at Blair Park Course in High Point. In each of these, $300 plus entry fees will be at stake.

Sky Open Begins

ASHEVILLE (AP)—Leading Carolinas amateurs and some of the top U.S. women golfers will take part in the $5,000 second annual Land of the Sky Open tournament here May 22-25.

The tournament will be played over three courses, the Beaver Lake, Biltmore Forest Country Club and the Country Club of Asheville.

Bassey Confident Of Retaining Title

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—The friendly little fellow with the quaint name of Hogan (Kid) Bassey, from distant Nigeria, spoke softly but rather confidently about the title fight coming up Tuesday night in Los Angeles.

Bassey, 25, is the featherweight champion of the world, the first Nigerian to attain such fame, and he faces a severe test from challenger Ricardo (Little Bird) Moreno of Mexico.

"I will do the best I can," he said, "and I hope to win."

George Biddles, his manager from London, bustled into the dressing room of Hogan's training quarters here. He was waving a letter advising that Biddles had become a grandpoo for the third time.

Biddles didn't tarry long. He was off, he announced, "to wet the baby's head."

Hogan grinned broadly as another member of the entourage, Harry Ormesher, explained the English custom of celebrating such an event by downing a drink, "or wetting the baby's head."

Bassey thought of his homeland, and the spontaneous welcome he received when he went home last year after winning the championship.

Three ACC Players On South Five

RALEIGH (AP)—North and South all-star basketball teams meet here tonight in a match of speed and shooting by the South against the size and rebound strength for the North.

Three Atlantic Coast Conference players, Tommy Kearns of North Carolina, Jim Newcome of Duke and Nick Davis of Maryland, will be in the starting lineup for the South.

Everett Case of North Carolina State, coach of the South squad, also plans to start Joe Hobbs of Florida and Temple Tucker of Rice.

Joe Lapchick of St. John's, coach of the North, announced his starting lineup will have Wayne Embry, Miami of Ohio; Arlen Boekhorst, Dayton; Jack Parr, Kansas State; Don Ohl, Illinois, and either Rudy Finnderson of Brandeis or Hal Greer of Marshall.

The two squads wound up practice yesterday in Reynolds Coliseum, scene of tonight's game at 8:15.

Others on the South squad are Whitey Bell of N.C. State, who was expected in last night from New York where he has been playing AAU ball; John Nacincik of Maryland, Dom Flora of Washington and Lee, Pete Gaudin of Loyola of New Orleans, Dave Kehler of Morehead State and Wendell Carr of Wake Forest.

Lapchick's North squad also includes Jack Quiggle of Michigan State, George Kline of Minnesota, Tom Garberin of LaSalle and Tink Van Patton of Temple.

Case said his South squad has "a lot of talent," adding "we've got a good running team." Lapchick said the North squad has "a lot of rebound strength."

Celtic, Hawks Clash For Title

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The setup was a bit different this year, but the result is the same—the Boston Celtics and St. Louis Hawks will meet again for the championship of the National Basketball Assn.

The first game of the best-of-seven series gets underway Saturday afternoon in Boston before a national television (NBC) audience. Both teams won their respective division titles last night.

Boston, which won the title last year, skipped by the Philadelphia Warriors 93-88 at Boston to take the best-of-7 final Eastern Division series 4-1. The Hawks defeated Detroit 120-96 at St. Louis to win the Western Division final by the same margin.

Last year the championship final was a nip and tuck affair with the Celtics finally winning the seventh game 125-123 in double overtime.

Charlotte, the regular season champion, plays at Washington tomorrow and Sunday. The fourth game will be played at Charlotte, April 1 and other games, as necessary, the same week at Charlotte.

IBC Records Investigated By Frank Hogan

NEW YORK (AP)—Under lock and key in Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan's office today were a memorandum book, 16 bulky folders and other papers belonging to Herman (Hymie) the Mink Wallman. By Monday Hogan will have in his possession all International Boxing Club records from 1956 to date.

Through these records and other information, Hogan hopes to find out whether there have been crimes of conspiracy, violation of laws relating to unlicensed managers, promoters and matchmakers, and bribery of participant in the sport of boxing.

Hogan's representatives, headed by Asst. D. A. John Bononi, obtained Wallman's records after getting a search warrant from General Sessions Judge John A. Mullen.

Bononi advised Judge Mullen that such alleged crimes as conspiracy, violation of unlicensed managers, promoters and matchmakers, and bribery of participant have been committed by Paul John Carbo, also known as Frank Carbo, and other persons whose identities are not as yet ascertained.

Bononi also advised Judge Mullen that past investigations by the district attorney's office had established Carbo as "an undercover manager of professional fighters through various front men."

Wallman, 57, manager of heavyweight contender Alex Miteff of Argentina, featherweight contender Ike Chestnut of New York and lightweight Orlando Zulueta of Cuba among others, was described by Bononi as the "front man" for Carbo.

Harry Markson, IBC managing director who along with Wallman was served with a subpoena for a grand jury appearance, was ordered to produce all of his organization's records from 1956 to date by Monday.

Ft. Wood In AAU Semifinals

DENVER (AP) — Ft. Leonard Wood's five iron men, who went all the way in overturning Wichita last night, are the only outsiders in the semifinals of the national AAU basketball tournament tonight.

The sturdy soldiers, surprised 49-45 victors over Wichita's favorites, match their ball handling skill against Denver's rugged rebounding club that finished third in the National Industrial Basketball League, the AAU's top circuit.

Bartlesville, Okla., co-champion of the NIBL with Wichita, is paired in the first semifinal game at 9:30 p.m. (EST) against Peoria, Ill., another NIBL team. Denver and Ft. Leonard play at 11 p.m.

Denver advanced with a second-hand rally that conquered the defending champion U.S. Air Force All Stars, 74-63.

Bartlesville dominated Seattle, 71-61. Peoria's superior height and manpower enabled it to pull away from the stubborn Lake Charles, La., team in the second half for a 70-59 victory.

Lassiter Leading

The winner meets world champion Willie Mosconi.

Went Up, Down For 150 Hours

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Two University of California students ended a marathon teeter-totter stunt last night and claimed a new world record of 150 hours. But they were too tired to attend a dinner in their honor.

"We're going straight to bed and sleep for a week," said Val Peterson, 21, Santa Maria, Calif. He and Jeff Snows, 18, Santa Monica, Calif., had been going up and down steadily since 4 p.m. Friday.

The old record of 148 hours was set by two other California students last April. Peterson and Snows were drenched by rain squalls and exposed to wind and cold. Fellow students fed them.

They took a five-minute break each hour.

East Carolina Opens Net Season Today Against WF

Coach Bill McDonald and the East Carolina tennis team left Greenville early this morning for the toughest opposition in the United States and also went to the opening tennis match of the season against ACC's Wake Forest there.

The Pirates, who amassed a 14-3 record last year, played Wake Forest in 1957 and came away with a split. This season, the Bucs field a team that is virtually the same as last season and Wake Forest is again rated strong.

Pacing the Pirates will be senior Maurice Everette, four-year No. 1 man for the Bucs and twice the North State Conference Singles Champion. Everette, a native of Robersonville, is heralded as the state's top netter this season. In McDonald is a graduate of ECC.

Last year, the Bucs' 14-3 record was the most successful in the school's history. The team went undefeated against North State Conference opponents, but were snubbed out of the title because of High Point's refusal to meet the Pirates, High Point won the crown on that point, having played more loop games than the Bucs.

This season, McDonald has expressed hope that the same kind of situation will not arise again. The Bucs schedule has not yet been released, but it is thought that the Pirates will meet all of the North State teams in home-and-away arrangements.

Barring rain, the ECC - Wake Forest net match is scheduled to take place this afternoon on the Demon Deacon courts.

Boston Leads Exhibition Baseball Standings Now

BY SHELDON SAKOWITZ The Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox, bolstered by some excellent spring pitching performances, are "streaking" along atop the exhibition baseball standings.

With a 10-4 record, they've won their last five games. During that span Boston hurlers have allowed just 11 runs.

Willard Nixon, winning pitcher in the Red Sox streak-starter against the world champion Milwaukee Braves March 22, turned in another formidable showing yesterday as Boston edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

Nixon went the first five innings and received credit for the victory, although touched for the loss. He yielded four hits and struck out five.

The Red Sox, held to four hits, capitalized on seven walks and squeezed out the triumph. Boston scored both runs in the opening inning off Danny McDevitt.

Herb Score was back in form as the Cleveland Indians broke a four-game losing streak with a 13-7 triumph over the Chicago Cubs. Bothered by a sprained ankle and a stiff shoulder most of the spring, Score out loose and pitched four hitless and scoreless innings.

The Indians scored six runs in the eighth inning to break a 7-7 tie after they had jumped ahead with a seven-run fourth frame up-rising.

The San Francisco Giants blanked the Baltimore Orioles 10-0 behind Andre Rodgers' pair of homers and Ramon Monzant's six scoreless innings. Willie Mays slammed his third circuit clout in two days.

Aided by Mickey Mantle's two-run triple, the New York Yankees tallied three times in the bottom of the ninth to shade Kansas City 5-4.

In other games Harry Anderson and Stan Lopata walloped four-batters to spark the Philadelphia Phils to a 6-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox; Dee Fondy produced three hits—including a homer and Brooks Lawrence limited Pittsburgh to three hits in seven innings as the Cincinnati Reds whipped the Pirates 9-1 and Bob Mabe walked pinch hitter Herb Plews with the bases full in the last of the ninth to ogive the Washington Senators a 2-1 squaker over the St. Louis Cards.

Ted Kluszewski Plans Two-Week Trial Run To Test Injured Back

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Big Ted Kluszewski is giving himself a two-week test to see how much he can help the Pittsburgh club this year. So far, his bad back, which has been diagnosed as a slipped disc, hasn't bothered him.

"I feel a little stiff all over," he said yesterday after playing against his old Cincinnati teammates in Tampa. "But it is just the normal stiffness of spring training. It isn't my back."

"I've been doing a lot of batting practice and I played a squad game Tuesday. Then I played five innings against the Dodgers in my first regular game. This was my third game."

"So far, I am very optimistic."

But I want to give it a good trial, 10 or 12 games or about two weeks. My back feels so good now it almost scares me."

Much has been written about the special support Kluszewski wears. He dug a strange-looking piece of paraphernalia out of his uniform bag. It resembled a girder with extra attachments.

"It works like a two-way stretch," he said. "It gives me extra support and it feels good. Maybe it's mostly mental. Anyhow, if it helps me I will wear it."

Kluszewski scored from first base on a double in the game against the Dodgers. He had an Cincinnati hit had two straight Cincinnati hits he had two straight ground singles to center.

Supposing the two-week trial didn't work out. Would Kluszewski on playing?

"It all depends whether I could help the club," he said. "I would not want to sit around and the club would not want to have me around if I could not play."

Demos Push Big Highway Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressional leaders pushed today for quick action on the highway construction speedup bill to try to get it to President Eisenhower's desk next week. The Senate passed the big anti-recession measure 84-4 and immediately asked for a speedy conference with the House on it. The House may take up the request today. The bill would pour an additional $1,800,000,000 in federal-state funds into the nation's roadbuilding program this year. It would make available 5 1/2 billions over-all for the roadbuilding program this year, although much of the actual spending would come later. Passage of the bill is expected to provide 88,000 new jobs this year, and its sponsors say more than 500,000 eventually may be added. The measure also for the first time would set up federal incentives to the states to regulate bill-

Supreme Court To Get Bond Issue Test Case

LOUISBURG, N.C. (AP)—A case questioning the legality of issuing $350,000 in Louisa Township school building bonds is headed for the State Supreme Court. The decision will be watched with interest by state school authorities since some 60 school districts in the state have held elections and issued bonds under laws similar to the local law.

Judge Heman Clark of Fayetteville yesterday ordered that a temporary court order restraining the issuance of the bonds be dissolved. He ruled that the local school bond election was constitutional. Judge Clark also held that the Franklin County commissioners have authority to issue $350,000 in Louisa Township bonds and that the bonds would be a valid obligation of Louisa Township. Anti-bond forces had contended the bonds would be an obligation of the entire county and that this is in violation of a provision of the state constitution which regulates the debt limit of local governments.

Notice of appeal was filed by Dr. I. Beverly Lake of Raleigh, attorney for anti-bond forces. The case concerns a local law which permits a school district in a county to vote to issue bonds for school construction and to levy taxes to finance the bonds.

Edward F. Yarborough, county attorney, said it was hoped the Supreme Court could hear the case "out of order" in the spring term. Normally, appeals from this judicial district are heard in the fall. Yarborough said he presumed the county commissioners would take no further action toward issuing the bonds until a court ruling is made.

The Franklin County law was modeled after a Buncombe County local act which permits the creation of a special school district within a county school administrative unit and permits these districts to vote the issuance of bonds and taxes. The Buncombe law has survived a Supreme Court appeal.

Attorneys made several objections yesterday to testimony and evidence offered, and Judge Stanley allowed most of the testimony to stand but admitted as evidence only a canceled check made out to the defendants.

The defendants are M. Sgt. Leroy Thomas Eure of Durham, a 19-year Air Force veteran with the Duke University Air Force ROTC unit, and his wife. They allegedly were given the $59,510 by Miss Mangum who was convicted of embezzling more than a million dollars from Commonwealth Building and Loan Assn. of Norfolk, Va.

Federal Savings and Loan Assn., trying to retrieve the money from the Eures, is the plaintiff as trustee for Commonwealth. The association's general manager, John A. O'Brien, testified his firm never had made any demand of the Eures for any of the money until the suit was filed against them in federal court.

Charles Carter, assistant chief examiner for the Fourth District of the Savings and Loan Examining Board, testified he had investigated to determine whether the firm received any considerations in return for the money Miss Mangum allegedly gave the Eures. He said that he found "no evidence any considerations were received" except for deposit of $7,085.14 made in the form of two checks on Feb. 17, 1955.

Miyoshi Umeki Couldn't Sleep After Oscar Night

By PATRICK MCNULTY HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the wee hours this morning a tired Miyoshi Umeki took a drag on a cigarette, a sip of coffee and said: "It's all like a dream but I hope I never wake up." Miyoshi, the button-eyed doll from Japan said she hasn't slept since winning her Oscar as the best supporting actress for Wednesday night's Academy Awards. Sitting in her night club dressing room, kimono-clad Miyoshi said: "I was so surprised, I didn't think I had a chance." Her Oscar has meant success, Hollywood-style: a flood of television and movie offers, strangers greet her like an old friend, and agents who curled their lips at the husky-voiced singer a few months ago now beat at her door. However, her swift climb hasn't swelled the pretty head of Miyoshi, who learned English in her native Japan by memorizing American jazz lyrics. She began seven years ago singing at a U.S. Army service club near her village of Sapporo on the island of Hokkaido. A job with a band in Tokyo followed. There, in night clubs, she told homelick GIs in song that they went to her head, or that she, too, was dreaming of a white Christmas. Miyoshi became a recording star in her homeland. She made five movies. But she dreamed that magic land her American friends talked about — where pretty girls can become movie stars overnight. Two years ago she came to the United States. And began singing in night clubs. A studio executive spotted her and decided she was perfect for Katsumi, the Japanese girl whose marriage to an American GI ends so tragically with "Sayonara." The movie industry thought so, too, and proved it with an Oscar.

Canada's Premier Got To The Top 'The Hard Way'

By MAX HARRELSON OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister John Diefenbaker got to the top the hard way. The rangy onetime country lawyer had to try three times before he won a seat in the House of Commons. And it took him 16 years and three more tries to power after 22 years of Liberal party rule. In becoming Canada's 13th prime minister last June, Diefenbaker advanced a notch higher than his college classmates predicted 40 years ago. The 1915 class book at the University of Saskatchewan forecast he would someday become leader of the opposition in the House. He fulfilled that prophecy in December, 1956, and then astounded Canadian political experts by defeating the venerable Louis St. Laurent, one of the great vote-getters in Canadian history. His background stands out in sharp contrast to that of the wealthy St. Laurent, although not so much to that of the present Liberal leader, Lester B. Pearson, who also was born in modest circumstances. Diefenbaker was born Sept. 18, 1895, in Neustadt, Ont., a farming center. As a child he moved westward with his family to a frontier homestead. He began to practice law eventually in a tiny village in Saskatchewan. He took over the Conservative leadership under what appeared to be hopeless circumstances, but he never accepted the situation as hopeless. Victory came after 20,000 miles of travel and more than 100 speeches across the country. He is now waging a similar campaign for next Monday's national election. Diefenbaker—pronounced Deef-en-baker—has the physique of an athlete. He is tall and carries no surplus weight. He has curly greying hair, deep-set pale blue eyes and a prominent nose. He loves to tell stories and his speeches are punctuated with anecdotes. He also has a passion for reading and a tremendous capacity for retaining detail. He is an

Palm Leaves Are In Short Supply

OKECHOBEE, Fla. (AP)—Florida's heavy winter rains are blamed for the short supply of palm leaves for the observance Sunday of Palm Sunday. "We just couldn't fill all the orders," said B. P. Abney, who supplies much of the nation's palm leaves. The leaves come from the heart of the tough and fibrous cabbage palm, which grows deep in the Everglades. Only Seminole Indians will brave the stagnant water, snakes and other wild life to reach the palms, cut them and bring them out. Heavy rains since Christmas killed the Indians much of the time and caused high water in the Everglades during the normally dry season.

More Road Work Is Given Approval

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The State Highway Commission today gave its approval to another big batch of highway construction projects it hopes to undertake during the next three years or so. The list of projects was in addition to a long list of proposed jobs which the commission approved in a meeting at Winston-Salem several weeks ago. Major projects on today's list included: Construction of a by-pass around Winston-Salem to the north connecting the interstate highway with U.S. 52. Reconstruction of U.S. 52 from Lexington to Winston-Salem. Construction of climbing lanes for U.S. 23 from the Buncombe-Madison County line to the Tennessee line. Construction of a southern by-pass for Charlotte from U.S. 29 to U.S. 74. Improvement and possible relocation of U.S. 29 from the vicinity of Ruffin to the Haw River, bypassing Reidsville. Others included: Bypassing Hertford on U.S. 17; improving U.S. 17 bypass at Elizabeth City or building new bypass; constructing four-lane facility on N.C. 11 from Kinston to Grifton; widening U.S. 70 from Havelock to Craven Carteret line; bypassing Newport on U.S. 70; dual laning U.S. 17 from Dixon to point near South-west Creek; relocation of U.S. 74 from Leland to U.S. 17 with bridge over railroad at Leland; improvement of U.S. 117 in and around Jacksonville; relocation of U.S. 64 from Raleigh to Zebulon; adding two lanes to U.S. 70 from Garner to Clayton.

Also, two additional lanes on U.S. 1 near Raleigh from U.S. 401 to I-4 intersection; widening and improvement of U.S. 158 from Warrenton to Littleton; improvement of stretch of U.S. 78 in Columbus County; general reconstruction of section of U.S. 220 in Rockingham County; reconstruction of N.C. 18 from Morganton to Caldwell County line; reconstruction and relocation of N.C. 212 from White Rock to Tennessee line; reconstruction of U.S. 64 from Franklin toward Highlands; 8.4 miles; relocating U.S. 19-A at Great Smoky Mountains Park gateway bypassing Cherokee business section; reconstruction of N.C. 11 from Greenville city limits 7 of a mile; construction of new facility from N.C. 33 from Cox's Crossing to Aurora, relocation through Edwards and bypass of Aurora.

Also, construction of Ward Boulevard, U.S. 264, in Wilson; widening and improvement of U.S. 70-A in Burlington from Church and Main streets to city limits; widening and improvement of Graham-Hopedale road from U.S. 70-A to Main Street in Graham; improvement and widening of U.S. 311 north of High Point; grading and improvement of Mebane and Street in Burlington; widening and reconstruction of N.C. 16 in and around Charlotte; widening and improvement of N.C. 27 in Charlotte from Morehead Street to U.S. 29.

Mickey Cohen Is Back In Court With Black Eye

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dapper Mickey Cohen is back in the courts again, this time sporting a very black eye. The round gambler-turned-florist was arraigned yesterday on a complaint that he assaulted a 220-pound federal narcotics officer. Howard Chappell, head of the Federal Narcotics Bureau here, said Cohen came into his office Wednesday and charged that federal officers were trying to frame him on a narcotics charge. Chappell denied this. After some punches were thrown, Chappell told police, "I then took him under control." Chappell has scratches on his hands and wrists, Cohen a shiner and puffed lips. U.S. Commissioner Theodore Hook, freed Cohen on $1,500 bail and set preliminary hearing for April 18.

Really Speeding, Case Dismissed

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Luther B. Little whizzed his taxi toward the hospital along busy streets so fast last week that even pursuing traffic officers feared to follow at such a pace. In the back seat of the cab was Mrs. Grace Ida Hillard. A few minutes after she arrived at the hospital she gave birth to twins. With Mrs. Hillard at his side, Little went into court. He admitted he might not have had his cab completely under control. Judge Ray Grimaldi gave Little a stern lecture about safe driving — then smiled. He said he once had made it to the hospital with only six minutes to spare when he was outrunning the stork in his own family. The traffic charge against Little was dismissed.

Hard Words For Company Rules

BALTIMORE (AP) — A University of Maryland psychologist warns that rigid company rules can cause frustration, bitterness and inefficiency among employees and even desertion. Dr. Allen R. Solem told a human relations seminar at Johns Hopkins University that here are the kind of things that cause resentment: Gongs terminating coffee breaks. The caste system. For example, the executive dining room and the junior employes' cafeteria. King Henry VIII of England passed a law which made it illegal to use hops in the making of beer. Too many burps.

Also approved was a project to acquire right-of-way on U.S. 117 from Wilson County line to Goldsboro. The commission said a by-pass of Lincoln and bypasses of Cheh-87; Sand Waco on N.C. 150 would be considered. Bridge projects of the list of future construction jobs included: new bridge over Newport River on U.S. 70; reconstruction of bridge on N.C. 127 over Catawba River; underpass on North and East 20th streets in Newton. Resurfacing and minor improvement projects on the list for future action included: Resurfacing U.S. 258 from Me-herrin River to Virginia line; improvement and resurfacing of N.C. 98 from Durham to Oak Grove; resurfacing U.S. 15-501 from Pittsboro to Orange County line; resurfacing U.S. 421 in Wilkes and Yadkin counties; resurfacing and improvement of U.S. 15-501 from Carthage to Lee County line; resurfacing and improvement of U.S. 74 from Hamlet to Scotland County line; resurfacing N.C. 18 from Morganton to Catawba County line; resurfacing U.S. 221 from Sevier road to Avery line; widening and resurfacing N.C. 26 from Sunshine Road to Cleveland line; resurfacing U.S. 52 from Salisbury to Cabarrus County line; surfacing U.S. 70 from Treddell line south 9.3 miles; widening and surfacing N.C. 27 from Cabarrus-Stanly County line to Alexander's Store; surfacing U.S. 321-N.C. in Caldwell County.

Big New Space Venture Thought Set By Russians

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Foreign News Analyst A mammoth Sputnik? ... What's next in the heavenly cold war ... What does the Kremlin have up its sleeve in the Soviet space program? Vague hints suggest Soviet scientists are working on something spectacular. There also are hints that Soviet politicians would like to see the next venture to something new in the cold war: a offensive. It's been almost five months since the Soviets launched their second artificial earth satellite, Sputnik II. Perhaps the Soviets have been trying and failing with new launching attempts. Or perhaps they plan to time their new shoot for a propitious moment. Just in advance of a summit meeting, the next space venture would have enormous propaganda impact. Speculation on Soviet plans runs all the way from manned devices or space platforms to "just another Sputnik."

Group Will Seek Attention On Three-Year Road Study

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—A Rockingham-Wadesboro delegation was expected to ask the State Highway Commission today to give sympathetic attention to a three-year study plan for reconstruction work on U.S. 74 in Richmond and Scotland counties. The commission opened a two-day meeting here yesterday to hear suggestions from various groups on highway projects. The three-year study plan—for which no money has been voted—includes reconstruction of U.S. 74 from Rockingham to Hamlet; the possible relocation of U.S. 74 at Laurinburg; and conversion of all bridges on the route in the Richmond-Scotland area to four lanes where necessary. The commission also was to receive a request from Onslow County commissioners that plans be dropped to build an island in the middle of U.S. 17 at Jacksonville. The reason pleaded was complications in movement of roadside shrubbery, etc. The contract for the work already had been let. The Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce, with Joe Tally Jr. as spokesman, proposed yesterday that the interstate highway to be built through Fayetteville, Charlotte and Salisbury be linked to Wilmington. He said it would afford swift troop conveyance in time of emergency from Ft. Bragg to the port city. The interstate route is to be called I (for Interstate Highway) 95 and is to hook up with 79 running from Charlotte to Canton, Ohio. State Rep. Ashley Murphy of Pender County asked for a new highway to run from Burgaw on U.S. 117 through the Holly Shelter game refuge to U.S. 17 at Topsail Beach. The East-West Development Commission urged bypasses to eliminate traffic bottlenecks on U.S. 74, with a four-lane highway

Lively Campaign For Maryland

BALTIMORE (AP)—Even if this year's crop of Maryland politicians had nothing else to offer, the voters could hardly complain about a dull campaign. With the May 20 primary still 53 vote-shopping days off, they've already seen: Fernando Bertalo filing as a candidate for a Democratic state senatorial nomination, withdrawing, renouncing the withdrawal, then asking everybody to forget about the whole thing. State officials insisted that he had to stay in the race, so he made a campaign promise—to vote for somebody else.

Louis W. Collier, a Republican congressional aspirant ruled off the ballot on a technicality, threatening to go to court to get back on. James B. McCloskey, a lawyer running against him, agreed Collier had a good case and offered to represent him free of charge. Collier accepted the offer. E. Arthur Hurd, basking in Florida sunshine with dreams of political retirement as a Baltimore Republican ward executive, learning to his dismay that he was an official candidate for re-election. He protested, touching off an investigation which disclosed his name had been forged to a candidate's certificate. He is no longer a candidate. No charges have been filed against anyone for forgery. All this happened after Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore campaigning for the Democratic nomination for governor, publicly called opponent J. Millard Tawes "an old nag" who couldn't get elected in the November general election. A few weeks later he withdrew and entered the campaign for nomination to the U.S. Senate—as Tawes' running mate.

President's Aide To Be Speaker

RALEIGH (AP)—E. Frederick Morrow, an aide to President Eisenhower, is scheduled to address members of the North Carolina Teachers Assn. tonight at their 77th annual convention. More than 3,500 Negro teachers gathered here yesterday for the opening sessions of the convention which winds up at noon tomorrow. About 2,000 additional members are expected before the convention adjourns. Election of officers is scheduled tomorrow. C. J. Barber of Clarkton, current vice president, will be elevated to the presidency. James A. Harper of Kinston and A. B. Reynolds of Winston-Salem are candidates for the vice presidency. Mrs. Armetta G. Wallace, president of the Tennessee Education Congress, told members last night she felt the U.S. Supreme Court's desegregation decree would stand because it is right. She touched on what she termed the various "ridiculous" laws which have sprung up in an effort to circumvent the decree. The constitution, she said, is the law of the land, but the Supreme Court is the conscience of the land. She declared wise and proper use of the ballot box is the most potent factor toward a solution of desegregation in the schools.

All Hands Anxious To Believe 'Bottom' Hit

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—All hands are anxious to believe that President Eisenhower is right in saying we may be seeing the worst of the recession right now. That things are worse today than they were just a short time back is easy to prove. Ask any of the five to six million persons out of work, if you doubt it. That the bottom is near or at hand isn't easy to prove yet. The statistics on that are still to come. That the economy in general will get impressively better soon is difficult for many persons to foresee—it calls rather for an act of faith. But a few signs that the slump is nearing bottom—frail as they may later prove to be—can be found. While most barometers of business still point to stormy weather, a few respected ones are wavering toward the fair side. The one most businessmen greet with the greatest cheer today is the report from Cleveland by the National Machine Tool Builders Assn. that new orders may top those in February, when they rose 18 per cent above January and 23 per cent above December. The final 1957 month saw orders sink to an eight-year low. They are still 61 per cent behind last year's figure, but the pickup conceivably could spell the end in the long decline in an industry whose up-and-down swings often foretell those of the general economy's pendulum. Another indicator of business thinking and planning are bank loans to business. For some time they have been weak. But the latest figures show a rise of more than half a billion dollars. Businessmen put little stock in the week-to-week swings—but at least they can hope that the pickup shows reviving confidence. The banks themselves are expected to add bright notes to the profit song in the next week or so. While most industrial firms are expected to report first-quarter earnings showing declines from the first three months of 1957, many of the banks are expected to announce gains, some around 10 per cent. This should please their stockholders who have been watching the demand for loans decline while interest rates weakened. The rates are still higher than a year ago, and so are returns on most other bank investments. Most retailers report that consumer spending is just about as high as a year ago. This isn't true in regions hit by unemployment. But chain stores, and especially the mail order houses, have seen a pickup in orders—possibly from consumers turning away from higher priced retail outlets. When stores put on sales at prices that shoppers consider bargains they do good business. Some industries haven't felt the slump. Life insurance sales continue to rise. The drug and tobacco companies continue to prosper. So does the beverage industry. The food industry as a whole looks for increased sales and profits Year. The travel industry has high hopes. One airline reports its April bookings for Europe nearly two thirds higher than a year ago—a new service with cheaper fare is doing the trick. And amongst the reports of more layoffs in industry can be found a few announcements of workers being recalled. This may not be the bottom of the dive—but we can hope, can't we?

Film Stars Can't Say No To All That Gold

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ever wonder why movie stars make the pitch for commercial products on TV? If so, Eva Gabor has the answer: "The money was so good, I couldn't pass it up. I could work a year on the stage and not earn as much as I did for a one-minute commercial." This sounds a little exaggerated—the Gabor girls are exaggeration-prone—but it gives you an indication of the gold to be found in celebrity testimonials. Eva's case is an extreme example. Last week she costarred with Noel Coward in a Saturday matinee of "Present Laughter" here. She hopped a sleeper plane for New York, rested on Sunday to be fresh for shooting. She spent all day Monday shooting the one-minute soap ad, flew back here that night and was on stage again Tuesday. Oh, yes, en route she studied the script for an hour drama she did on NBC's Matinee Theater today. You can be sure that Eva is being paid royally to so disrupt her life. She wouldn't say how much, but it is obvious that the whole thing was a big production. "When I got to the studio, there was a big crew waiting for me," she said. "They had a big selection of lovely gowns cut down to hems, but somehow it didn't seem right for me to be wearing one in the kitchen. I settled for my dressing robe. "The morning's work was terrible. I got everything right but the name of the product. Finally, we had to quit for lunch and I worked until 5 before I got it right." She said that exposure from such commercials is good publicity-wise, if not overdue. She has done only one other—a cigarette ad "which I did because I needed some extra cash to finish a building I was putting up."

Besides getting the initial salary, actors who make the product pitch get a payment every time the commercial appears on TV. This can amount to thousands of dollars for one day's work, as in the case of Eva. The New WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER Thriller

THE LONE DEPUTY

© 1957, Wayne D. Overholser. From the novel published by The Merrilum Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED Price Regan, town marshal of Saddle Rock, Colo., and deputy sheriff of Tremaine county, has more on his mind than Laura Madden, even though she has announced to him that he is marrying her. Price would be willing enough to marry Laura if he wasn't the man in the middle in a struggle of money, power and pride between two determined men. One is Laura's father, Barry Madden, Saddle Rock's banker. Price suspects that Madden isn't the strong man he appears to be, but is or can be dominated by Cole Weston, a cattleman whose riders do not respect any laws.

Madden thought he owned Price. He found out differently when, offering Price a house as a wedding present, in return for running storekeeper Walt Cronin out of the country, Price refused. Word traveled fast that Price was his own man. One of Cole Weston's gun-slinging cowboys, Curly Blue, picked a fight with Price and came out second best. It remains to be seen who'll be the next challenger.

CHAPTER 4
Below Saddle Rock the road paralleled Elk River, and Price noticed that the water was high and roily and over the banks in many places, lapping at the base of the willows that ordinarily grew high above the edge of the stream. Two weeks of hot, dry weather had brought much of the snow out of the mountains and it would not be long before the pass was open. When it was, Price would ride over the range and have a talk with Ralph Carew.

The old sheriff had held his job for a generation. He had been elected shortly after the Thornburg fight and the Meeker massacre had given the politicians an excuse to drive the Utes out of Colorado and open the western slope for settlement. Within a few years he had tamed the east half of Tremaine County while the west end was still a wilderness, with Cole Weston and his Rocking C crew the only inhabitants.

Price rode on, glancing at the Rocking C buildings across the river to the south. A sprawling stone house, big barns, corrals, sheds; all set on the slope above the river with hay meadows above and below the buildings.

The range to the north belonged to the Mohawk boys' Broken Ring. Price had never been to the headquarters ranch, but he knew it was several miles from the river. On west of the Yellow Cat lay Red Sanders' Bridlebit. Both were smaller spreads than Weston's Rocking C. Still, they were big outfits, dwarfing the little ranches that clung to the tiny valleys in the foothills or lay far to the west in the arid badlands that stretched on to the Utah border and beyond.

All of this, Price thought, was an old and familiar pattern in the cattle country. The first man to reach a new range took what he wanted, and if, like Cole Weston, he was smart, greedy, and unscrupulous, he grew with the years.

Weston was shrewd enough to include the Mohawks and Red Sanders in a sort of unofficial cattleman's council. Barry Madden was part of it, too, because he had the bank, and a bank was an essential part of Weston's broad scheme of holding Elk River country and keeping settlers out.

Price turned his thoughts to the possibility of a split between Madden and Weston, as he often did, but he had never been able to make up his mind how far Madden would go in backing the cowmen, and he couldn't now.

When Price reached Cronin's store he tied his roan at the hitch rack in front. On the other side of the road from Cronin's store was his woman's cabin. She was called Rose. The fact that Cronin had survived for better than a year was proof of his courage and fighting ability. He'd been shot at and hit twice; he'd shot back and killed at least one man. He was still here, a constant thorn in the side of the cowmen; but judging from what had happened this morning, the end was near.

A light fence behind Rose's cabin held a bunch of calves, all carrying Cronin's WC brand Rose was no puzzle. She was a simple-minded woman. But Cronin was a mystery. He was plainly a man who lived on hate and fire and fury, and sometimes he gave Price the impression he would actually welcome a fight with Cole Weston.

When Price entered the store he found Rose sweeping behind the dry-goods counter. Cronin was on the opposite side, a cracker barrel on one hand, the end of a counter on the other. A shotgun lay across the cracker barrel within inches of his right hand. Cronin had seen him coming. Price thought, and was ready.

"Morning, Deputy," Cronin said belligerently.
"Howdy," Price said.
Rose leaned her broom against the counter and straightened up, her hands on her ample hips. She was not a good-looking woman. She was too plump and her features were rough.

"You looking for somebody, Deputy?" Rose asked.
Ignoring her, Price turned his gaze to Cronin, who stared at him with pure hostility. Cronin said, "You ain't welcome here, Regan."

"So I've heard," Price said. "I've wondered why. Looks like you'd welcome the protection of the law."
Cronin snorted derisively. "Protection of the law, he says. Well, I can tell you might quick why you ain't welcome. You belong to Weston and the rest of them cow nurses."

"You're wrong," Price said. "I don't belong to anybody."
"You're a liar," Cronin shot back. "You won't be wearing that star if you didn't belong to 'em."
Price rolled a cigarette, taking his time to answer. Cronin was a tall man with long legs and inordinately wide hips and narrow shoulders. He had red-flecked green eyes and a fat blob of a nose, and a meaty-lipped mouth.

A long scar, probably made by a knife, curved down the side of his face giving the left end of his mouth a down twist. When he smiled, which was seldom, only the right side of his mouth curled upward. He was the ugliest man Price had ever seen, and one of the most vicious.

"You're still wrong," Price said finally. "I got the star from Ralph Carew in the county seat."
Cronin shrugged his shoulders. "Well, what do you want?"
"I'm curious about some things," Price said. "Looks like you've got a few more calves than you had the last time I was here."
"Got any proof?" Cronin demanded. "You ain't no fool, Regan. If there was any proof, you'd have found it."

Rose giggled. "How do you know he ain't a fool, Walt?"
Price continued to ignore her. He said, "I never have savvied your setup, Cronin. Your business comes from the settlers on the Yellow Cat, but if they put all their money together they wouldn't have enough to buy a handkerchief to blow their nose. How do you get off?"

"You're under Madden's hide, anyhow," Price said. "This morning he told me to run you out of the country."
Cronin picked up his shotgun and pointed it at Price. "All right, Deputy. Start me running."
"When and if I get the evidence I need," Price said. "I'll take you over the range to the county seat and you'll stand trial. That scattergun won't stop me, so don't count on it."
"Maybe I'll give you the evidence just to see if you can do the job," Cronin jeered. "I said you belonged to the cow nurses. Looks like this proves it."

Price shook his head. "No, it doesn't prove anything. I told you I'd arrest you when I had the evidence and no sooner. But it might be smart if you took Rose and sloped out of the country. I can't keep you from getting killed, Cronin. I figure something's about to blow or Madden wouldn't have talked to me the way he did."
"Regan, you're looking out mostly for yourself, ain't you?" Cronin said irritably. "Save you some trouble if we left the country, wouldn't it?"

"That's right."
"Well, we ain't leaving," Cronin jerked his head at the door. "Go on Git."
Price walked out, knowing he had accomplished nothing. He had n't learned anything. Trouble was on the way if Cronin stayed. Price could smell it coming, the kind of trouble men would later be ashamed of.

Price continued to ignore her. He said, "I never have savvied your setup, Cronin. Your business comes from the settlers on the Yellow Cat, but if they put all their money together they wouldn't have enough to buy a handkerchief to blow their nose. How do you get off?"

Cronin did grin then, his mouth curling up on one end and down on the other. "Regan, I don't give a damn how I come out as long as I get under Weston's hide. reckon I have or you wouldn't be out the road from Cronin's store was

GETTING ANGRY

LAS CRUCES, N. M. (AP)—Mel Holguin, a city police officer, is beginning to take a personal interest in some local thieves. Recently they stole all four hub caps from his late model car. Three weeks later, after he had replaced them, two more were stolen. He has sworn to get the culprits dead or alive.

THIS IS IT!

FAR MORE THAN A "REGULAR" YET YOU PAY ONLY REGULAR PRICE!

A better Esso for more cars than ever before in gasoline history!

When you fill up with new Esso, you will get a tankful of the best gasoline your Esso Dealer has ever sold at regular price. You'll get far more than a "regular" — more cars than ever before will not only get knock-free performance, but better mileage per dollar than most premium gasolines can give. And you get this better gasoline at no increase in price! So no matter what brand of gasoline you use, premium or regular — no matter what price you pay — you owe it to your car and your pocketbook to try a tankful of new Esso. Stop at the familiar sign of "Happy Motoring" today... first, last and always your best buy — because Esso Research works wonders with oil!

NEW YORK (AP) - Oils and non-ferrous metals recovered slightly in a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Leading issues showed fractional gains and losses. The market was a bit higher at the opening but soon turned irregular. Copper shares were firm as a big Belgian producer raised copper prices for the second time this week. Aluminums steadied after their fall yesterday on news of a cut in price for that metal.

Some big international oils edged higher, having digested yesterday's news of tightened import controls. The industrial section showed no overall change, however. Many stocks were trading near yesterday's closing prices. A slight downward tendency was visible among steels, chemicals and motion pictures. Rails and utilities were firm on average. Anaconda and Kennecott rose fractionally. American Smelting was steady. Alcoa gained a major fraction as it followed yesterday's lead of Aluminium Ltd. in cutting prices for the metal. Aluminium was steady.

United States Steel Corp. and International Paper took small losses - Safeway was down 1/4 at 30 on a block of 13,100 shares but reduced its loss. Various issues of Allegheny Corp. were off. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 20 cents to $162.70 with the industrials unchanged, the rails up 10 cents and the utilities up 20 cents.

Speaker Cites Anticipated Cancer Toll For The Year

By EVERETTE PARKER Reflector Staff Writer

In a city the size of Greenville, Dr. Frank H. Longino stated 35 men and women will die of cancer this year and 60 more will develop the dreaded disease.

Dr. Longino, who is First Vice-President of the Pitt County unit of the American Cancer Society, spoke to other members of the Society and volunteer workers for the 1958 campaign last night. The occasion was the kick-off worker's meeting for this year's cancer drive.

According to the speaker, about 5,000 people who live in Greenville or a city of comparable size will contract cancer at some time in future years unless a cure is found or proper precautions are taken.

"At the present time," Dr. Longino explained, "one patient out of three is being cured." He noted that several years ago the cure rate was one of four.

"We feel that, with our present knowledge and techniques developed today, half of those who develop cancer can and should be saved," the speaker stated. "With early diagnosis and treatment it is felt that one patient out of six who is now being lost because of inadequate or late treatment can be saved."

He stressed the importance of early diagnosis further and gave seven danger signals which might signify symptoms of cancer. They were: unusual bleeding or discharge; a lump or thickening in the breasts or elsewhere; a sore that does not heal; a change in bowel or bladder habits; a hoarseness or cough; indigestion or difficulty in swallowing; and change in a wart or mole.

The present methods of treating cancer are primarily those of surgical removal of the cancer, X-ray or radio-isotope treatment or treatment by drugs or hormones. Dr. Longino explained the preferred method of treatment varies with the type of cancer and its stage of growth.

Lung cancer is now the leading cause of cancer death in men and during the past 20 years this disease has increased eight-fold, the most rapid rise ever reported for a non-infectious disease. Dr. Longino said it is estimated that 33,000 Americans will die of lung cancer this year.

According to the speaker, the American Cancer Society has supported a 44-month study of the smoking habits and fate of nearly 200,000 men from 50-70 years of age. This study, he said, has shown that death rates from all causes rise "very markedly" with the number of cigarettes smoked per day, as compared with non-smokers. Lung cancer deaths were said to be ten times higher among regular cigarette smokers than among men who had never smoked.

For people who smoked two packs a day, the death rate was 64 times higher than for non-smokers. Dr. Longino noted that over six million dollars has been spent by the American Cancer Society in the past ten years on cancer research. "This year," he stated, "more than 10 million dollars will be spent by the Society who is sponsoring the work of approximately 1,000 scientists working at 12 universities and medical centers."

Quota Announced Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, County Chairman for this year's campaign, announced at the meeting that the 1958 quota has been set at $6,000 for Greenville and Pitt County combined. "Forty per cent of the amount raised during the drive," he noted, "will remain in this county for treatment of cancer patients and for an educational program."

The drive will begin on April 1 and end on April 30. Dr. Monroe said the speaker, about 5,000 people who live in Greenville or a city of comparable size will contract cancer at some time in future years unless a cure is found or proper precautions are taken.

Two Bound Over For Grand Jury

A local white man and a Negro woman, charged with a crime against nature, have been bound over for grand jury action.

The two have been identified as Paul Manning, 26, of 1113 Evans Street and Edith Suggs, 21, of 1213 West Fifth Street. Both were arrested last night at Manning's home by local Police investigating a disorderly conduct complaint.

In addition to the crime against nature charge, Manning was cited for disorderly conduct by arresting officers. Following the preliminary hearing before Greenville Recorder Court Judge Charles H. Whedbee this morning, he was released under a $1,000 bond.

Judge Whedbee also set a $1,000 bond for the woman who has a criminal record, and she had not posted bond at 1 o'clock and is scheduled to be transferred to the Pitt County Jail, according to Chief S. G. Gibbs.

Neither defendant entered a plea at this morning's hearing.

Seven Suffocate In House Fire

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Seven persons, three of them children, died of suffocation early today when a fire trapped them in an apartment house.

Fire Capt. Joseph J. Nalore said the fire apparently broke out on the front porch of the 2 1/2-story building near downtown Rochester and swept upward, burning the front of the house and cutting off all exits.

Six of the dead were Puerto Ricans. Three persons were hospitalized. Neighbors reported seeing occupants jumping from the second floor.

The Monroe County morgue tentatively identified the dead as: Mrs. Mercedes Pino Garcia, her daughter Wanda, 2, and her son Juan, 3; Juan Colon, 29; Mrs. Aide Orengo, 21, and her son Luis Feliciano, 5, and Harry Talford, 62.

The morgue said all died of suffocation. Firemen had not determined the cause of the fire.

PT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) - Rock 'n' roll king Elvis Presley, now a 78-month Army private, is scheduled to leave for Ft. Hood, Tex., today.

He will join the 2nd Armored Division for eight weeks of basic combat training. After that the Army will give him a permanent assignment.

The 23-year-old celebrity was inducted Monday at his home town of Memphis for a two-year period of service.

Reopen Probe Of Soldier's Death

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) - Officials at Watertown, N.Y., today reopened their investigation of the death of a soldier who was asphyxiated in a fire in 1953. A Miami detective reported a man held here confessed starting the blaze.

District Atty. Angus Saunders said at Watertown the death of Pfc. Jack Winchester, 19, of Monroe, N.C., had been considered accidental. The fire at Camp Drum near Watertown was blamed on a cigarette.

Detective Warren Holmes said here Billy Watkins Mood, 27, an ex-convict and a church organist, admitted setting a long string of fires including one which burned down his own house when he was nine years old.

Dr. James Goodman, psychiatrist called in by Holmes to examine Moody, said the man's ability to tell truth from wrong was "operating under severe stress and could be said to be impaired."

Moody was brought here to be questioned Monday after he completed a six month jail term for theft at Key West.

Superintendent J. W. Mays announces that Sunday School will begin at 9:30 a.m. Sunday. B. T. U will meet at 6 p.m. Sunday, with Director S. D. Sledge, at which time a general discussion on the duties of Church executives will be held.

At 7:30 p.m., a Missionary program is scheduled. President Mrs. Fannie Gorham will preside.

Hold Prisoner For Questioning

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) - A service station attendant who surrendered to county police last night was held at an undisclosed jail today for questioning in the rape-slaying of a Hendersonville high school girl.

James Stanley Allison Jr., 35, came to the Henderson County sheriff's office with a brother and two ministers. He had been sought since March 17 in the strangling and assault of 18-year-old Lula Bell Robinson in a rooming house where they each had rooms.

Allison also was charged with first degree burglary, for allegedly breaking into another Hendersonville rooming house the night of the slaying and assaulting a tenant there.

Allison was bareheaded and wore a short reversible jacket and blue pants when he surrendered. Officers said his arm apparently had been slashed with a razor but was unbandaged.

Police said the lanky, way-haired prisoner indicated he had been staying in a small vacant house off N.C. 191 in the Rugby section, about five miles northwest of Hendersonville.

Allison took a room across the hall from Miss Robinson, a part-time waitress, the day before the slaying. Officers found in his room a bloody razor and bloody bedclothes, and a despairing note saying in part, "I done what she wanted me to do."

Hendersonville, Henderson County and state authorities had issued a 19-state alarm for Allison Wednesday.

With him when he surrendered were a brother, William; the Rev. W. H. C. Huntley of Balfour Baptist Church and the Rev. Boyd Haynes. Officers said Allison had gone earlier in the evening to the home of a sister at Balfour.

Job Pickup Possibility Noted From Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Labor Department report indicates the possibility of a slight employment pickup between mid-March and mid-May.

But it says the increases are expected to be "considerably smaller" than those in the corresponding period last year and that they will be centered largely in seasonal nonmanufacturing activities.

This estimate was based on hiring plans of employers as reported to local public employment offices.

It was included in a report which said joblessness rose between mid-January and mid-February in four fifths of the 149 major employment areas in the United States. The report said the rate of increase slowed after mid-January.

Seventy of the 149 major areas now are classed as having substantial labor surpluses. This means that in each of these 70 areas, more than 6 per cent of the total labor force is out of work. Looking ahead until mid-May, the Labor Department report said seasonal increases may bolster factory employment in some areas "but durable goods employers in most centers look for very significant changes over the next two months."

It said some additional employment losses are expected in a number of important auto and aircraft manufacturing centers. But the report added that if employers' hiring plans materialize, "gains in the construction industry should be an important factor in increased employment as warmer weather makes work possible on many building projects."

Soaring Satellite Plan Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Air Force is studying industry proposals for a soaring satellite to be capable of carrying a man through space and returning him safely to earth.

The long-range project has been named "Dyna-Soar," from the words "dynamic soaring." Lt. Gen. Donald L. Putt, deputy chief of staff for Air Force development, told about it before a House Appropriations subcommittee.

Press Attack In Mythical War

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) - U.S. troops pressed the attack today to liberate mythical American oil interests in the mythical country of Scarlet, center of war games nearing their end at this Marine base.

Enemy forces from Scarlet's fictitious neighbors, pro-Communist Orange and Violet, resisted strongly yesterday as the U.S. troops pushed to complete their mission.

The American forces evacuated U.S. nationals at the outset of the games last week. The exercise, called Lantphibex 1-58, will end Monday.

Taking part have been troops of the Marine 2nd, 6th and 8th regiments. A Navy supporting unit which landed the troops in amphibious assault on Onslow Beach Sunday withdrew this week, having completed its part of the exercise.
