Farm Price Support Freeze Vetoed, As 'Ill-Advised Action'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today vetoed the farm price support freeze bill, calling it "ill advised from the standpoint of both the nation and of our farm families."

earnest consideration to the arguments for and against the bill, but that it is his judgment that to approve the measure "would be ill advised, from the standpoint of both the nation and our farm families as well."

Another Turncoat Returning

HONG KONG (AP) — The return of another American turncoat from Communist China aroused speculation today that more soon would follow.

LaRance Sullivan said after crossing the border that he wanted to be the first of the three Negro turncoats to go home.

"I went to China with the skin and heart of a Negro," Sullivan told newsmen. "I lived happily with the people in a spirit of peace."

Dressed in a blue suit and looking healthy, he said the Peiping government treated him well during 4 years and 2 months in China, found him a job as a factory worker in a provincial city and paid him a subsidy while he worked there.

"I went to China to work and study and to add my voice to the cause of peace. I did work and study and I was very happy among a soul-stirring people, a peace-loving people, but I thought it was time to come home," he said.

Sullivan said he studied "the international situation, which today is really a state of hysteria caused by warmongers."

Sullivan is expected to sail for home Saturday. His exit left 11 other turncoats in Communist China. The two other Negroes are Clarence C. Adams, Memphis, Tenn., and William C. White, Kansas City.

RUSSIA PROCLAIMS A HALT TO THEIR NUCLEAR TESTS

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today it is halting all hydrogen and atomic weapon tests but warned it will be free to resume them if the West does not follow suit.

A resolution introduced in the Supreme Soviet — parliament — asked the Cabinet to take steps to halt the tests but set no date.

"If other countries possessing hydrogen and atomic weapons continue their tests," the resolution said, "the Soviet government will be free to act in the same manner in the interests of the security of the Soviet Union."

The long-expected announcement of the suspension was made to a joint session of Parliament by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

There was tremendous applause as he announced this decision of Premier Khrushchev's new Cabinet.

When the unilateral decision became effective — once it is approved by the Supreme Soviet — and how long it would remain in effect was not immediately clear.

It was the impression of those who heard Gromyko that the ban would be applied at once.

Gromyko said the Soviet Union hoped that the United States and Britain would join in the suspension of tests.

Gromyko said the Soviet Union considers itself free to end the suspension if the other powers did not join in. He did not indicate how long the Soviet Union would wait.

"We realize that ending of tests does not avert the danger of war," Gromyko told the 1,378 deputies. "When one side tests a series of bombs, the other side tries to catch up."

The foreign minister ridiculed U. S. claims to having produced clean bombs relatively free of radioactive fallout.

"They write about them touchingly but all this is simply to divert people from the main problem — a choice between peace and an atomic war," he said.

"They do the same as did former President Truman, trying to justify the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. They are trying to make it seem that atom bombs are for the good of the people. But this conception is alien to the interests of peace and mankind."

"The opponents of banning tests fear that this will bring an end to the production of nuclear weapons. This is the strong point of the test ban. If the test ban turns out to be a cold shower for the hotheads in NATO, then that alone is a good point."

Gromyko recalled that last year the Supreme Soviet appealed for an immediate cessation of nuclear tests.

"If other powers possessing such weapons continue their tests the Soviet government will consider itself free to resume its tests in the interests of the security of the Soviet Union," he said.

"We sincerely hope that the initiative of the Soviet Union will receive the necessary support of all other parliaments of governments possessing such weapons," Gromyko said.

"We are convinced that if other governments possessing such weapons also abandon all tests it will be an important step forward in the establishment of a secure peace and security for all peoples."

"The Soviet government expresses the hope that other governments possessing nuclear weapons will do everything possible to see that such tests are stopped by them."

U. S. Questions Reliability Of Kremlin's Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today questioned the reliability of the Soviet Union's one-country stop order on H-bomb tests, and called on the Kremlin to operate in that field in an "orderly" manner under the United Nations.

A State Department statement noted that the United Nations recently approved overwhelmingly "a comprehensive first-stage disarmament proposal and called on the nations concerned to begin at once technical studies as to how these proposals might be carried out."

The quick response to today's Moscow announcement said: "The Soviet statement comes on the heels of an intensive series of secret Soviet tests."

Those tests themselves, it added, "should arouse world opinion to the need to deal in an orderly and dependable way with the testing and related aspects of the disarmament problem."

Moscow's announcement had been anticipated, and the U. S. statement obviously was ready in advance except perhaps in minor detail.

It said Soviet official propaganda "incessantly seeks to create abroad the image of a peace-loving Soviet government."

"But that same government openly defies the United Nations with respect to both the substance and the procedure of disarmament," it said.

That was a reference to the Kremlin action in boycotting the Disarmament Commission set up by the U. N. General Assembly.

Moscow still boycotts that procedure even after expansion of the commission to a membership of 25 in an effort to meet Soviet objections that the earlier smaller commission had been stacked against the Communist bloc.

The U. S. statement said the U. N. proposals include the studies needed for a supervised suspension of nuclear testing.

"The United States stands ready instantly to respond to that resolution," the statement said. "But the Soviet Union refuses to comply."

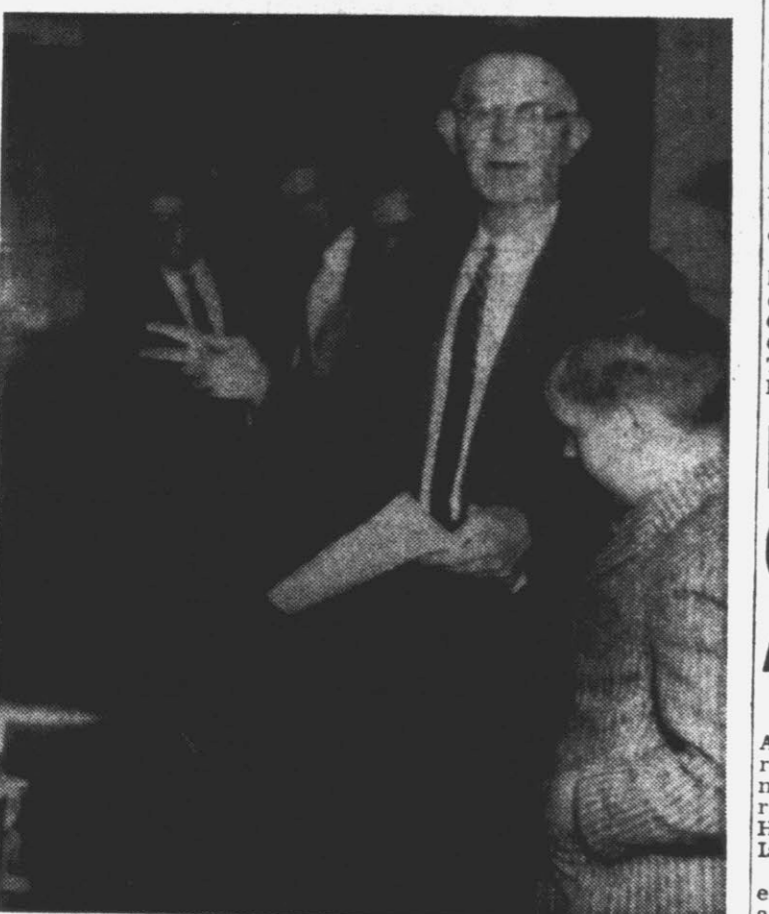

The statement accused the Soviet government of preferring elusive formulations of its own on the disarmament issue.

"It is elemental that free nations which want to remain free will not, and should not, forego their indispensable collective capacity to deter and defend against aggression merely in reliance of a Soviet statement of intentions for which there is no system of verification, which can be evaded in secrecy and altered at will," it said.

"The United States again calls on the Soviet Union to deal with the vital problem of disarmament in an orderly way, in accordance with the United Nations charter, to which the signature of the Soviet government is affixed."

"That charter constitutes a solemn agreement. If it is nullified by the Soviet Union, why should the world place confidence in new Soviet engagements?" it said.

Disappointment At Bicycle Auction

YOUNGSTER AT BICYCLE AUCTION... he was disappointed. (Reflector Photo).

By EVERETTE PARKER The young boy, who looked to be 10-12 years old, came into the Police Station with his father about 30 minutes before the bicycle auction was scheduled to begin Saturday morning.

As he walked through the door, an unrivaled smile broke out all over his face. A smile that reflected his thoughts and it was fairly obvious he had not come to town with the idea of going back home empty-handed.

Down the hall he came until he and his father mingled with the crowd. It didn't take long for him to begin looking over the prospects. Up and down he wandered among the bicycles, until he finally spied his choice of the lot. There he pitched "stakes" with his father beside him.

While waiting for the City Attorney R. B. Lee to begin the auction, his father began talking to the other men who had come alone to "shop" for their urchins. Seemingly unconcerned with what they were saying, the youngster only looked at the bicycle. His eyes seldom strayed from its shiny frame.

Presently the auction began and the boy's unconcerned look changed to one of anticipation. "His" bicycle was the first one to be put up for sale.

"What am I bid for this nice bicycle", the auctioneer asked.

In the background someone bid $15.

His father raised the bid. Beside him an elderly man bid a dollar higher and again a dollar higher than the following bid.

While his father considered the next bid, the youngster busily tugged at his arm. It wasn't hard to figure out why. He took the "hint" and bid $20.

Again the elderly man beside him went a dollar higher.

The youngster's face beamed upward trying to catch his father's eye. No longer did that face radiate anticipation alone, it showed anxiety.

spoke as he looked down into his son's face.

The bidding appeared to be over for a few fleeting seconds until another bid was entered and then another up to $25. While the bids exchanged around him, the father only smiled thoughtfully as his son again tugged at his arm.

Just then the bicycle was sold and the new owner rolled it away, unconscious of the fact he was being watched and obviously envious.

After that the youngster just stood there in the hallway beside his father while several of the other bicycles were being auctioned off. It appeared he was uninterested with the proceedings.

Finally he tugged at his father's arm and apparently told him he was ready to go. Both left hand-in-hand, the same way they came. The auction continued.

Tragedy Follows Birthday Party

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Tragedy followed a birthday party here Saturday night when five persons met death in Virginia's costliest traffic crash of 1958.

The five died when a head-on collision at the crest of a hill on U. S. 58, seven miles east of here, turned two automobiles into awkward clumps of twisted steel in a matter of seconds.

The victims were the Rev. Willie Stafford Coone, 50; his wife, 48, and his mother, Mrs. Edna B. Coone, 66, all of Spray, N. C.; Robert Lee Hirston, 27, and James T. Spencer, 30, both of Martinsville.

The Coones had left Martinsville only a few minutes before the accident, bound for their home in Spray for a birthday party honoring Mrs. Edna Coone at the home of one of her daughters.

New Aggression Charged Israel Along Frontier

JERUSALEM (AP) — The United Arab Republic today accused Israel of new aggression after a 75-minute tank-mortar battle on Israeli-Syrian frontier near the Lake Huleh reclamation project. The Israelis issued countercharges.

There have been repeated clashes in the area. The Arabs oppose any work on the reclamation project since it signifies the Israelis are solidifying their hold in the sector claimed by Syria.

An Arab army spokesman in Damascus warned that "it is high time for Israel to realize that the U. A. R. army of Egypt and Syria will defend the lives of U. A. R. citizens and their lands against any aggression aimed at murder and usurpation."

The spokesman said two Syrians were killed, two wounded and an Israeli tank was knocked out. The U. N. Armistice Commission achieved a cease-fire after 75 minutes of shooting.

The Syrians claimed Israeli tanks shelled two Arab villages and said the Syrians resorted to mortar fire only after Israel ignored a cease-fire ultimatum.

Israel fired off her own complaint to the U. N. Syrian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission. An Israeli spokesman charged the Syrians fired from strongholds near the truce line when Israeli laborers moved in to work on the reclamation area.

Israeli tanks fired back at the strongholds, the spokesman added, and the Syrians replied with mortars, hitting Tubil village, east of Huleh.

Bulganin Named Head Of Soviet State Bank

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev today appointed former Premier Nikolai Bulganin head of the Soviet State Bank and announced most of Bulganin's old Cabinet members and key executives had been retained.

These included Anastas Mikoyan as first deputy premier. Gen. Ivan Serov was renamed to his old post as chairman of State Security, and Andrei Gromyko reappointed foreign minister.

The supreme Soviet approved these nominations unanimously. Bulganin's new job is one he held many years ago. When Khrushchev replaced him as premier last Thursday there was much speculation Bulganin would be given the more important position of a deputy premier.

Khrushchev appointed as first deputy premiers Mikoyan and P. R. Kozlov, and four additional deputy premiers, Alexei N. Kosygin, Demitri P. Ustinov, and Josef Kuzmin from the old Bulganin Cabinet; and former economic plan member Alexander Zasyadko.

Zasyadko was made minister of the coal industry in the Cabinet of Georgi Malenkov in March, 1953, and was relieved of the job after Malenkov resigned as premier.

Khrushchev announced no changes in the heads of the 19 government ministries. The appointment of Kozlov as a first deputy premier is new proof that the Leningrad Communist party leader is on the way up.

Kozlov won a seat in the 15-member Communist party Presidium after last June's shakeup and subsequently was appointed premier of the Russian Federation.

Khrushchev disposed of the appointment of his new government in a matter of three or four minutes, racing through the list of names without time for applause between them.

There was loud and long applause as he finished. As he stepped down Gromyko arose immediately to speak on the cessation of hydrogen and atomic tests.

Speaking deliberately, he repeated the long history of hydrogen and atomic development and warned of the growing dangers as more and more nations acquired these weapons.

U. S. 'Hottest Place' In World

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States is "the hottest place in the world" in terms of radioactivity in the atmosphere, says Dr. Willard F. Libby of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

"A major fraction" of the fallout in the United States, according to Libby, is of Soviet origin. Libby, science member of the AEC, was one of several scientists on the CBS-TV program See It Now.

He contended in a filmed interview that continuation of nuclear weapons tests is "a risk that we can and should tolerate."

Find Cache Of Explosives In Bombed Town

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Army demolition experts examined a cache of explosives today, trying to link it to a series of mysterious blasts which terrorized residents here last week.

Prosecuting Atty. E. M. Pike also disclosed that two brothers being held on arson charges were being questioned about the blasts.

Pike identified them as Monte D. Moore, 21, and his brother Dennis, 20, both of Idaho Falls. He said they were arraigned Saturday on charges of arson in connection with the burning of an insured car here some time ago.

Pike reported that officers had discovered two cases of dynamite and 125 caps and fuses. He refused to say where they were found.

A series of seven blasts occurred Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The only person injured was Mrs. Roene Gasser, 24, whose car was dynamited Thursday night.

Adlai Says U.S. Missed Chance Of Leadership

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States missed a chance at world moral leadership by not unilaterally suspending nuclear tests, says Adlai E. Stevenson.

Asked about reports that the Soviets may suspend the tests on their own, Stevenson said such action "would deprive us, I'm sorry to say, of any shred of moral leadership in the matter."

"Unhappily," he added, "it would even deprive us of the hope of taking advantage of the possibility of instituting a reciprocal inspection system."

As the Democratic candidate for president, Stevenson proposed in 1956 that the United States suspend tests unilaterally.

Interviewed on NBC-TV's Look Here, the former Illinois governor said that if the United States had followed his suggestion it would have "vastly increased, I believe, our moral influence and respect among the terrified bystanders, the nonnuclear powers."

Five Ill Among Hunger Striking Rebel Backers

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Five of 35 hunger-striking Cuban rebel sympathizers were in a hospital today suffering from the effects of four days without food. The other 30 again refused their breakfast in jail.

Three of the men were taken to Mercy Hospital last night and two others today.

For the first time since being jailed, food was taken to the prisoners' cell block. Previously they were marched through the chow line at mealtime. An officer said none wanted to go through the line and some didn't feel like doing so.

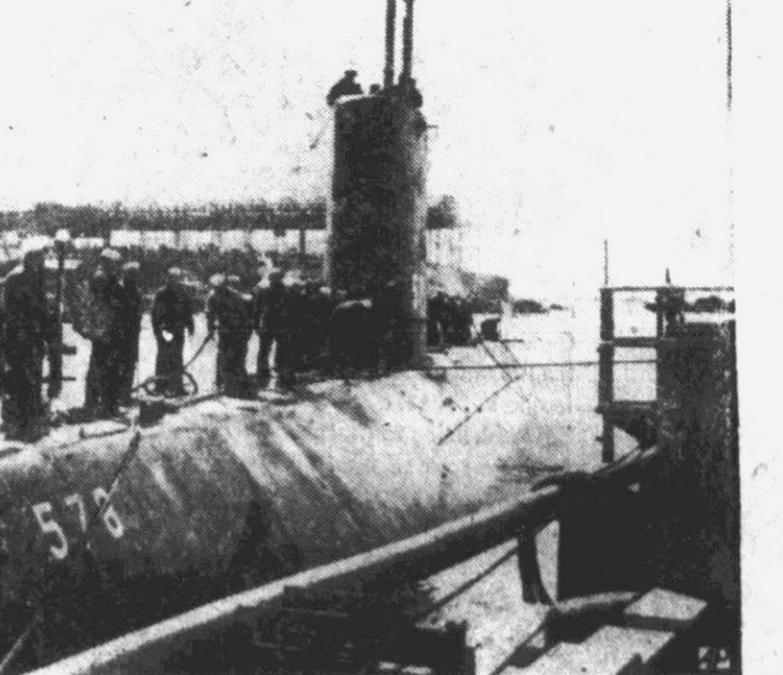

The prisoners, all New Yorkers, were seized aboard a small vessel off the lower Texas Gulf Coast early Thursday. They have spurned jail food since their arrest, protesting U. S. intervention in the case.

They are charged with conspiring to violate the U. S. neutrality laws. Held on the same charges are an individual named as their contact man and four Ecuadoran crewmen of the boat.

U. S. authorities seized the vessel, the El Orion, and a quantity of arms and ammunition about five miles off shore. The boat is of Nicaraguan registry.

The men identified themselves as Cuban sympathizers going to the aid of rebel leader Fidel Castro. A New York construction worker, Arnaldo Barrow, 34, claimed to be the leader.

Ladies Defend Their Men

By VIVIAN BROWN
 AP Newsfeatures Writer

A recent column that questioned whether the modern boy is the gentleman his daddy was, has brought a barrage of replies—and are the ladies emphatic in their defense of the male!

"I am a shoe saleslady," writes one reader from Toledo, who says: "I wait on all ages, boys and girls every day. Believe me, the men are still gentlemen but most of the women have never been taught to be ladies."

She goes on to list her reasons: "Although men will take but a few minutes of my time, they never fail to thank me, whereas women think nothing of taking a half hour of my time, asking to try on every style in the store and perhaps one out of 10 will thank me for my time and some of them are very rude."

Male Manners

"I have never seen a woman hold the door for an elderly man or woman, or for another woman with a baby in her arms. Men and teen-age boys do this."

"I was a guest at a small gathering where two congressmen were guests of honor. Do you know that these ladies did not even stand up when they were introduced personally to each congressman?"

"Observe women drivers for yourself. They block side streets stopping for a red light, they block drives of fire stations."

"If a woman would give her seat to an elderly man or woman, or to another woman with a baby, there would be 10 gentlemen on their feet to offer their seat to that lady."

"A woman must act like a lady before she is treated like a lady."

A Minneapolis lady who signs herself "Old-Fashioned" writes: "I heard a sailor say, when asked if he was going to give up his seat to a lady, 'Why should I?' They smoke, drink, work and earn money, so let 'em stand up!"

"A few more old fashioned girls in our country would be wonderful, and maybe they'd earn the respect of men."

An Oakland lady writes in to complain that women are "disturbing shoppers." She adds: "They squeeze every squeezable article in my store—tomatoes, oranges and melons. They toss the stuff around like it was free. We have to throw out perfectly good merchandise because it has been made unsalable. Boys and men have a respect for these foods, but girls are impossible."

Boys Win

A theater ticket cashier in Tennessee rises to the defense of the young men, too, saying: "I sell movie tickets, and I can tell you right now that it's the boy who waits for the girl, who takes her time showing up. She has a nerve to saunter along 40 minutes late, acting as if she were on time. I don't know why these boys wait for these illbred girls."

A school teacher offers a final word: "If you want to know why a boy doesn't offer to carry a girl's books, why don't you eavesdrop and find out what they talk about. Chances are you'll hear the girl using bad language, telling off-color jokes and generally conducting herself in an unladylike fashion. If a girl wants to be treated like a lady, she should act like one."

Florida Trip Follows Singleton-Elks Wedding

GRIMESLAND — Miss Grace Dodd Elks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Elks, and Bonnie Elwood Singleton Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Singleton of Washington, N. C., were united in marriage Saturday at five o'clock in the afternoon in the Grimesland Proctor Memorial Christian Church.

The Rev. David Conway Blackwood performed the double-ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with a massive background of areca palms, emerald and huckleberry greenery. Large standards of white gladioli were placed between seven branched candelabras with myriads of cathedral candles.

At the altar was a decorated Prieu Dieu with white silk cushions. On either side were single candelholders with tall cathedral candles decorated with sprays of white gladioli. Pews were marked with satin bows.

The wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Bill Taylor and Milton Mann sang "Because," "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of magnolia satin with long lines bodice and butterfly sleeves with self covered buttons down the back and chantly lace edged the scalloped neckline.

The full skirt fell into a chapel train and was punctuated with a long tailored bow. The bride wore mits to match. Her fingertip veil was three tiered French illusion attached to a crown of nylon tulle. She carried a satin covered prayer book topped with a pure white orchid and showered with French-ed carnations.

Miss Elks chose her sister, Mrs. M. L. Buck of Norfolk, Va., as her matron of honor.

Mrs. Buck wore a waltz length dress of Perveche blue chiffon, styled with a fitted shirred bodice, scoop neckline finished in satin and accented with a long satin back bow. Her headpiece of flowers, with half veil, matched the dress. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations tied with pink satin.

The bridegroom's father served as best man.

Ushers were George G. Howard, brother-in-law; Marshall Todd Singleton, bridegroom's brother; J. C. Singleton, bridegroom's brother, and Bill Keel, all of Washington, N. C.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a street length dress of delphinium blue nylon lace with sequin trim and matching hat and gloves.

The bridegroom's mother wore a light blue rayon and acetate crepe dress with tucks and a circling skirt alternated with bands of delicate lace and matching hat and gloves. Both wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Two of the bridegroom's grandmothers, Mrs. Singleton and Mrs.

Marshall, and Mrs. Elks, the bride's grandmother, wore white carnation corsages.

The bride, bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Elks, Mr. and Mrs. Singleton and the matron of honor received in the back of the church following the ceremony.

After the wedding, the bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip to Florida. The bride wore a navy and white checked suit with navy accessories and a white orchid corsage. Upon their return they will make their home at 409 Telfair Street, Washington.

Mrs. Singleton is a graduate of Grimesland High School and attended Salem Academy in Winston-Salem for two years. She also attended Peace College, Raleigh, where she was a member of Rho Seta Chi Sorority.

Singleton graduated from Washington High School and attended Campbell College for two years. At present he is employed by his father in Washington.

Cake Cutting

Saturday night following the rehearsal for the Singleton-Elks wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Bonnie L. Singleton of Washington, N. C. entertained for Miss Grace Dodd Elks and Bonnie L. Singleton Jr. and the wedding party, and friends at an after-rehearsal party at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mann greeted and welcomed the guests upon arrival. The home was decorated with bouquets of spring flowers throughout.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Overton directed the guests into the dining room to the refreshment table. On one end of the table, punch was served by Mr. and Mrs. Singleton and on the opposite end the wedding cake was served by Mrs. Lela B. Hoell, after the bridal couple cut the first slice.

Assisting in serving were Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Buck, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Wilson, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Keel.

Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Cabell Allgood and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooms.

Sandwich - Style Easter Eggs

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

SANDWICH-STYLE EASTER EGGS

Ingredients: 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, 1-3 cup milk, 1 1/2 cups finely-packed finely-chopped (with a knife) cooked ham, 1-3 cup undrained sweet pickle relish, 1/4 cup mayonnaise or mayonnaise-type salad dressing, 6 soft oval rolls (each about 4 inches long), red food coloring, extra cream cheese and milk (if needed), 3 radishes, 18 thin strips green pepper.

Method: Have the 8-ounce package of cream cheese at room temperature; mix with a spoon and gradually beat in the 1-3 cup milk until smooth. Refrigerate until firm enough to spread easily. Mix together the ham, pickle relish and mayonnaise. Cut a thin slice from the top of each roll and scoop out the bottom halves. Fill rolls with ham salad, using about 1-3 cup for each. Replace tops on rolls, pressing down. Spread the tops and sides of the rolls with the softened cream cheese mixture using 2 tablespoons or more for each one. If there is enough cream cheese remaining, add a few drops of red food coloring or enough to tint bright pink and mix well; if you have used all the cream mixture, mix extra cream cheese with a tiny bit of milk and tint it pink with the red food coloring. With a decorating tube, pipe the colored cream cheese around each egg. Cut each radish in half lengthwise; with small sharp knife peel back red skin in three places for the tulip effect. Place a radish tulip on each roll; add 3 green pepper strips to each for stem and leaves. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Have about 1/2 pound cooked ham on hand and chop enough of it to give the 1 1/2 cups needed for the filling.

CANDY EASTER EGGS are usually a must for small fry, but big beautiful sandwich-style Easter eggs are fun for the whole family and guests of all ages.

We find these Easter eggs are made most successfully from soft rather than crusty oval-shaped rolls because they have a soft frosting and must be eaten with fork and knife. Filled with ham salad, they make a main course for lunch or a late evening supper. They are covered with soft white cream cheese, then some of the cheese is colored a bright pink and piped around them for a real fancy Easter-egg effect. A radish tulip with green-pepper stem and leaves top these amusing holiday offerings in a delightfully attractive way.

You can buy soft oval rolls at many bakeries although you may have to order them ahead. Or if you enjoy yeast-baking, you can make the rolls at home. They should be shaped as you would small frankfurter buns. Other fillings besides ham may be chosen to go into the baked rolls; salads of hard-cooked eggs and seafood are excellent.

Future Problem Of Local Govm'ts

The same increased enrollments that will necessitate greater state expenditures for school operations in North Carolina during the coming biennium are also going to require greater outlays by local governments if schools are to keep pace with the growing number of students.

In projecting school needs for the 1959-60 and 1960-61 fiscal years, the State Board of Education noted a daily attendance increase of 22,000 students for the first year and an additional 21,000 increase the following year. If these estimates are correct, it means the state will need 789 additional teachers during the first year of the biennium and 720 new teachers during the second year.

It follows that if 43,000 students are added to the enrollments of North Carolina's public schools during the biennium, and 1,509 new teachers are needed to teach them, local governments throughout the state should begin making arrangements for facilities to be used by these additional students and teachers.

Figuring roughly 30 students for each teacher, these estimates mean some 1,509 new classrooms will be needed in the state's public schools just to handle the influx of additional students. That number of new classrooms will not relieve the overcrowded classrooms North Carolina already has. It will merely mean the crowded conditions which already exist will not become worse with the influx of new students.

While state officials concern themselves with the number of new teachers which must be hired, local school administrative units should be concerning them-

Pretenders Who Are Bothersome

By LYNN NISBET

VOLUNTEERS — A major source of worry for public officials at top level are the numerous volunteers who pretend to speak for the Governor or the Senator. On the other side of the coin, high-placed officials frequently call upon friends to send up trial balloons. If the idea clicks the big man can claim credit. If it proves a dud he can disavow any responsibility. It is always difficult, and often impossible, for the rank and file of citizenship to determine whether statements by friends are authorized or even known to the top man.

As the primary campaign gets underway for the nomination of members of the General Assembly, the public should be prepared for claims and denials of top level support for this or that candidate. That happens every election year, but this time there are peculiar conditions which make it more likely — and more bothersome. The 1959 General Assembly will be in its own right one of the most important in more than a quarter century. Despite that, impression is general that the 1958 primary and election campaigns are preliminary to the main bout in 1960 — when a Governor, a U. S. Senator and a President of the United States must be elected, along with all other State officials and a General Assembly which will have to face up to reapportionment of legislative and congressional representation.

Candidates for the 1959 assembly are already being tagged as "Hodges men" or "Scott men," or with labels identifying them with one of the prospective candidates for Governor in 1960.

At a recent news conference Governor Hodges took cognizance of "nasty inferences" in newspapers that he was intervening in the legislative race in Iredell county.

STRAW MAN — He denied any participation, and said one of the oldest devices in politics was to "set up a straw man and then knock him down." He said so far as Iredell is concerned there is no straw man. Jay Huskins, in his editorial column "Down in Iredell" appearing daily in the Statesville Record & Landmark, agrees that there is no straw man. He continues: "That was no straw man who approached at least three prospective senatorial candidates urging them to get into the race before the choice finally settled on Judge Winberry, Judge C. B. Winberry of the county court had just announced against Senator C. V. Henkel." No straw man, but a highly placed state official appointed by the Governor.

"And that was no straw man who has been calling on local political leaders urging them to support McKnight and Winberry. No straw man, but the head of a highly sensitive state department, again appointed by the Governor."

Editor Huskins concedes that the Governor cannot know everything that is said in his name, and undoubtedly is completely honest in saying he is taking no hand in Iredell affairs. But the effect locally is the same as if he were. Iredell is the first county in which the issue has been raised. There will be others. It might be well for citizen voters to ask those who purport to speak for the Governor to show credentials authorizing them to do so — or to call the Governor and double check authenticity of the commitments made in his name.

Senator Scott is in somewhat the same position as Governor Hodges, but to less degree because he does not have a General Assembly to contend with next year. Some direct checking with him might be wise, in view of numerous claims by would-be spokesmen that they are talking for the Senator.

ENTERTAINMENT — Folks in the mountain county are going all out to provide entertainment for visitors this summer to supplement the scenic attractions. The famed outdoor dramas — "Unto These Hills" at Cherokee and "Horn in the West" at Boone — are planning new devices to make attendance pleasing. The equally famed "Vagabond Players" theatre at Flat Rock and the Burnsville theatre will offer their usual inducements.

In addition to these long established features, summer theatre attractions at Asheville, Black Mountain and other points are contemplated. Hendersonville is coming up with perhaps the most ambitious project of all. The internationally famous "Passion Play" of Oberammergau will be presented nightly for a period of six to ten weeks during June, July and August, with most of the native cast of characters and under direction of the same people who have handled the project in Europe.

The play will be presented in the high school auditorium admittedly not the most appropriate setting but the best the community can offer for the first year. It is expected to draw patronage from the numerous religious centers in the surrounding area, such as Don Clarks, Kanuga, Junaluska, Montreat, Ridgecrest, Blue Ridge and others.

The Passion Play is a realistic portrayal of the agony suffered by Jesus during his trials and crucifixion and will afford striking contrast to the lighter entertainment of the historic dramas and comedy skits of the summer theatre programs.

selves with the matter of providing these new classrooms. As in the past, the lion's share of funds for constructing additional classrooms must come from local rather than state funds. Unless there is an abrupt departure from past practices it will mean local bond issues throughout the state to secure funds for the construction program.

Efforts at the state level to provide for the new teachers needed to instruct the increased number of students will mean little unless efforts at the local level throughout the state provide facilities for housing the larger number of students.

The coming biennium poses a two-fold problem for local school units throughout the state. First is the problem of continued efforts to alleviate the overcrowded school conditions which already exist. Secondly there is the matter of providing sufficient additional classrooms for the 41,000 additional students who will be in our public schools by 1961.

They are problems which can only be solved by careful advanced planning on the part of local government units.

Preventive Measures Are The Surest Way

Formation of a council in our neighboring town of Washington to curb juvenile delinquency in that community may provide a pattern for similar action by other communities in this part of the state.

Washington is a nice town. It probably has no more or no less problems with its young people than any other community. Yet citizens of Washington are facing up to the fact that truancy, vandalism, and disrespect for authority among people demand the attention of adults of the community. Ignored by citizens of the community, these trouble signs might develop into a real juvenile delinquency problem.

Composed of representatives of the schools, courts, law enforcement agencies and city and county officials, the council will seek on the community level removal of the cause of its juvenile problems.

There is hardly a community anywhere that could not profit by giving more attention to the problems of its young people and thereby remove some of the factors which tend to contribute to juvenile delinquency. Most communities usually wait until a real juvenile delinquency problem exists before any effort is made to cope with the situation. Preventive measures, such as that being taken in Washington by the formation of the new council, are the surest way to see to it that a community does not have a serious juvenile delinquency problem.

If more communities devote greater efforts toward preventing juvenile delinquency from getting a foothold, they would avoid the costly process of dealing with the difficult problems which juvenile delinquency poses to a community.

Irrigation Also Posing Problem

(This is another in a series of articles prepared by the State Board of Water Commissioners for the purpose of familiarizing the public with results of the recent statewide inventory of water problems.)

The rapidly increasing popularity of irrigation in North Carolina plus the tremendous quantity of water required for supplying minimum irrigation needs has presented this state with one of its major water problems. Simply stated, the problem is to provide irrigators with the water they need at a time when water supplies are normally low — and to do so without infringing on the water needs and water rights of downstream consumers.

The problem is complicated by the fact that the number of acres being irrigated in North Carolina has risen from around 500 in 1951 to between 30,000 and 40,000 at the present time. During the past summer irrigators took more than 250 million gallons of water from our streams and lakes each day. Evidence of the effect this consumption is having on the state's water resources can be seen in the fact that municipalities, industries, sportsmen, dairymen and other irrigators have, within the past year, attributed water shortages to upstream irrigation.

Add to these facts the knowledge that North Carolina has no effective means of regulating the installation or use of irrigation equipment and the potential seriousness of the problem becomes apparent. The only present state law relating to irrigation simply requires that an irrigator obtain a permit if he plans to take water from a public stream. The law provides no penalty for non-compliance and a recent study indicated that less than a quarter of the irrigators in the state have obtained permits.

In the recent water problems inventory, conducted in 43 counties by the Board of Water Com-

THAT SCHEDULE PUSHER
 There are two types of people designed to send their families and associates straight to the psychiatrist and the observation ward. The first is the person who has no schedule, is never on time, never knows when to go home, and in general is under everybody's feet — and for a lifetime. The other is the person who has a schedule which yields neither to God nor man. This fearful creature plunges through life like a snow plow going down the avenue. The Ten Commandments are nothing compared with the sacred and inviolable schedule this person sets up for himself, and for which he will fight to the last ditch and to the last drop of blood — his own and everybody's else's.

What Is Really Wrong?

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Bread lines which have now sprung up in some of our cities only six months after prosperity was booming last summer suggest that something is pretty radically wrong with people's economics! What, really, is the matter?

For several years, I have been warning that we could not continue to live it up forever without one day paying the piper. I often wonder when I am driving around in an eight-year-old automobile how the average factory worker could afford his one or two shiny new cars.

Strong appetites have been whetted for housing and cars and appliances and luxuries; and consumers have jeopardized the family finances by overbuying. Don't get me wrong. I am all for as many new homes and TV's and cars as the family pocketbook can stand. All these represent a higher standard of living. But I am for these things only after the worker has first set aside a portion of his weekly pay check in some form of liquid savings.

When are you spending too much and not saving enough? When you have extended yourself to the point that you don't know where next month's rent is coming from if you lose your job this week, then you have obviously overextended. Unemployment insurance, or tax-cutting, or any form of "pump-priming" is like relieving pain with a mustard plaster when a surgical operation is really needed.

From the stories of bread lines in places like Detroit, Michigan; Saco and Biddeford, Maine; Long Island; the West Coast; and a number of other areas where major industries have slowed down, it seems that consumers have greatly overextended themselves. Frankly, this kind of situation scares me. I have talked with merchants in some of the areas.

One, a typical hardware store operator who gives the outward appearance of being very successful, says that he could be folded up very easily. All that has to happen is for a few of his creditors to press him for the payment of a few bills and he is done. The situation in many areas of our country parallels the game used to play with dominoes. Remember how you used to stand the dominoes on end next to one another in a long line, then knock the first one down, and away went all? A business depression is like many an illness; only a change in our habits and attitude toward life can permanently cure it.

Without doubt much of our current recession was precipitated by our labor leaders. I believe in labor unions and once was Assistant to the Secretary of Labor in Washington. We could count on full employment as long as wages and production kept in balance. When, however, wages were dragging behind production, we had severe strikes; but when production did not keep up with wages, we had recessions. Both labor and management will now take a licking until prices again come down and we consumers get a fair deal. This is nature's cure; government plasters will not help to stave it off.

It is easy to blame our present difficulties on Mr. Eisenhower, or the Republicans, or the Federal Reserve for their attempts to balance our economy. But I personally believe our problem goes back to further than the Eisenhower Administration. It started when labor leaders were exempted from the Anti-Trust Laws. Economic trouble was also spawned for us all at the point back in the thirties when we demanded "womb-to-tomb" security. When we shrugged off the responsibility for our own welfare and held the government accountable for our jobs, we headed for trouble. We have lost our sense of values and justice. We don't save for that "rainy day" any more; we don't bother about a nest egg for the education of our children; we don't purchase adequate life insurance, but depend instead upon social security. Perhaps this present reversal in business conditions could turn out to be a blessing in disguise for many. Let us all do a little soul searching into the question of how we got into this situation, both individually and collectively.

Under this doctrine, municipalities do not qualify as riparian owners and, therefore, they have no right to remove water from a stream. Similarly, irrigation is not classified as a beneficial use of water, a fact that makes the use of water for this purpose illegal. This, of course, is a strict interpretation of the doctrine that has governed water use in this state since colonial days. Water planners have long recognized the inadequacy of this doctrine but, impracticable as it may be, efforts to adjust the doctrine to modern times have met with little success in the past.

By ELMER ROESSNER

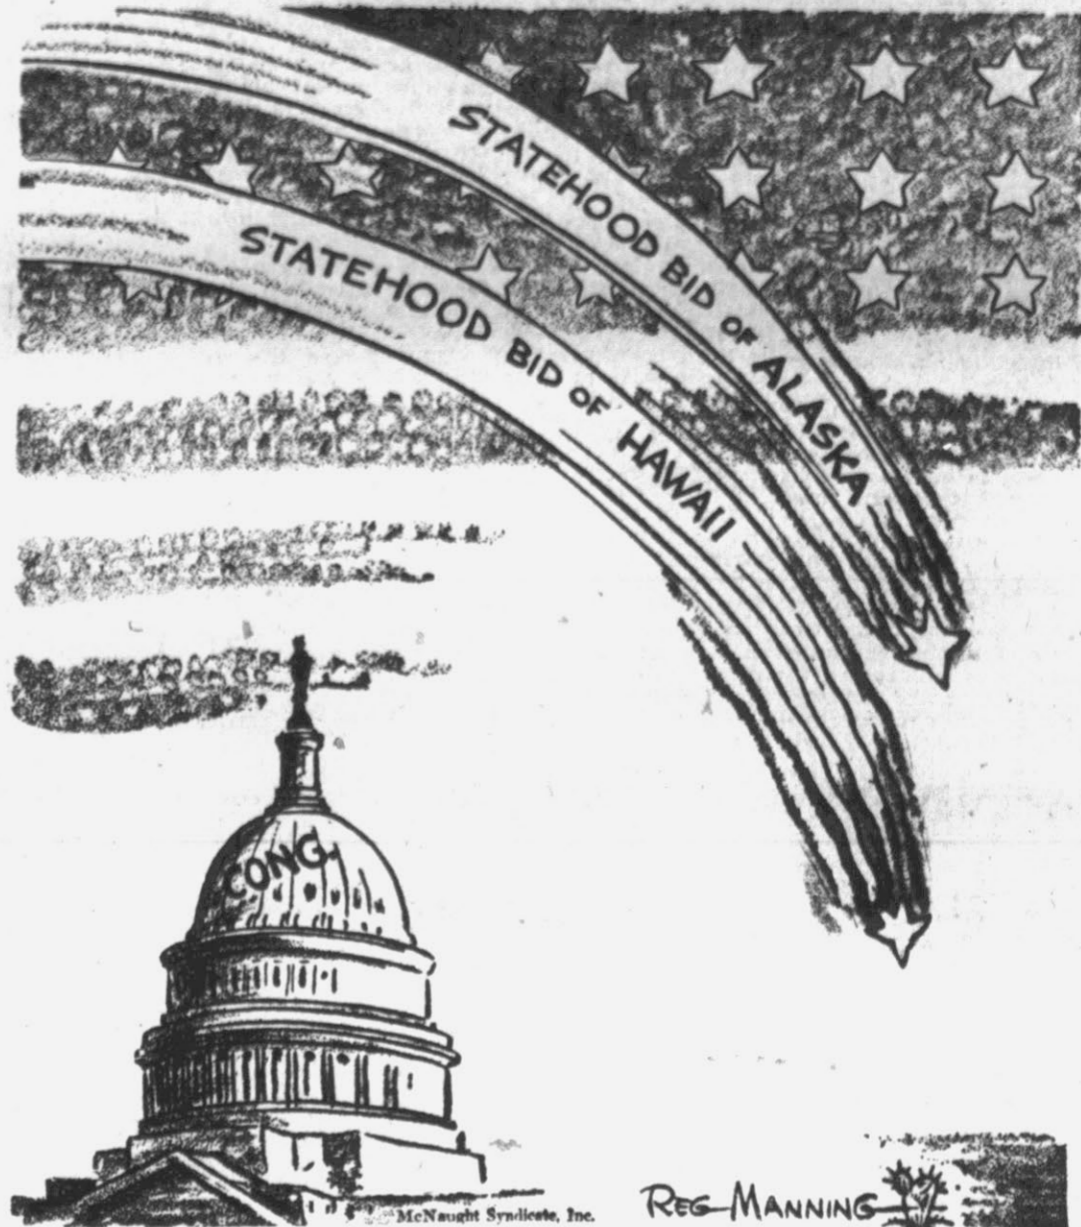

Here's a play to end the recession: Levy a special tax to raise billions of dollars and use the money to create jobs. That will end unemployment, increase spending and put us back on prosperity road.

It will have to be a very special tax because people are complaining about all the present taxes. But it can be a hidden, almost secret tax on life insurance policies, savings accounts, bonds, annuities and pensions. It would shock the old folks hardest but that's all right because many of them are feeble and none of them are organized.

Nutty? Yes. If Congressman Ruddibottom introduced a bill levying such a tax directly he would almost be laughed out of Washington.

Yet such a tax is exactly what the leaders of both parties and the White House itself have been advocating for several weeks. A CLANDESTINE LEVY They don't call it an Old Folks'

Notes On Memory Lane

NEW YORK (AP) — Whoever said "nothing ever changes" must have had his head stuck in a barrel.

Anyone who has his head out of a barrel knows just the opposite is true: everything is always changing. As soon as you get used to something, you find it is different. What was near and familiar a moment, a month, a year ago, now is strange and far away and long ago.

Every tomorrow becomes a yesterday, linked to today only by the magic bridge of memory.

Remember, as a kid, what fun it was to go out at night and watch for falling stars, instead of falling rockets?

Remember when a woman didn't feel well dressed unless she had a silver fox frapping her by the throat?

Remember when a fat man was regarded as jolly, not frustrated?

Remember when small boys, instead of teenage girls trying to look like ballet dancers, wore long black stockings?

Remember when what the country needed most was just a good five-cent cigar?

Remember when you opened a package of breakfast cereal and threw the box top away because there wasn't anybody to mail it to who wanted to send you something back for it?

Remember when a woman's place was in the kitchen, and a man helped with the dishes only if he was a visiting relative and unemployed?

Remember when everybody was mad because the dollar was worth only 54 cents? What's it worth now?

Remember when people went to cocktail parties just for fun?

Remember when bars served every fourth drink on the house? If you tipped the bartender it was a sure sign you were from out of town.

Remember when the soprano in an opera had to have a foreign accent and outweigh the tenor, or her voice was no good?

Remember when the only people who went on diets were those who were in bed sick?

Remember when the only places you could see wall-to-wall carpeting were in movie lobbies and funeral parlors?

Remember when you could buy something in a dime store for a dime?

Remember when a man didn't have to waste his youth and strength lighting cigarettes for women because no nice girl smoked — at least no in public?

Remember when the most popular girl in the neighborhood was the one who could cook the best fudge?

Remember when a guest who didn't ask for a toothpick after dinner was felt to be criticizing the food?

Remember when a criminal was regarded as someone who had erred against society, not as someone society had wronged?

Remember when a boy was given a big pocket watch as a sign he had reached manhood, and anyone who wore a wrist watch was a sissy?

Remember when — long before blue suede shoes and the era of the gutter dandy — a real dude wore spats?

Remember when a girl risked her good name if she rode behind a boy on a motorcycle?

Remember when no careful housekeeper thought it neat to leave the same piece of flypaper hanging from the kitchen ceiling more than two days in a row?

Remember when young people courted alone on a front porch swing, instead of at a public drive-in theater?

Other Editors Saying --- May Be Buyers' Strike

(Hertford County Herald)

What is the cause of "recession" in the United States? Or is there such a thing?

Of course, thousands of economists are delving into this problem, and we would not attempt to steal their thunder. Nor do we think there is any one pat answer for "why" or any pat remedy for the thing.

But maybe it is because we customers aren't getting the products we want to buy at the price we think they are worth. Some recent trends in our own Roanoke-Chowan point up the fact that this is a strange "recession" in many ways. For example, the goods we buy — and this is true across the country — still are at a record high. The most recent retail price index was up from a year ago. The most recent "food basket" check which The Herald runs as a regular thing showed food prices up.

Another thing, in every Roanoke-Chowan county last year sales of government savings bonds exceeded what the Treasury Department estimated. This indicates that people not only have money to spend, they have money to save.

Again, while farm prices are a particular problem and we do not doubt our section has suffered because of a falloff in our predominant agricultural income, it is still true that there have been few layoffs here. There have been no salary cuts that we know of, and earning power is still at an all time high here.

The "recession" seems to be mostly in those areas where manufactured items are the product. Detroit, of course, leads the list, with one in five unemployed in that city of the automobile. Other unemployment mostly shows up in midwest and western cities where such things as toasters, refrigerators, and vacuum cleaners are made.

The things that people must have to live — and that includes a lot of items once considered "luxury" — are still moving off the shelves, not even with the high-powered advertising. Production slumps, unemployment grows, steel production drops, and the American economy — geared to this great Detroit industry — goes in "recession."

The same thing seems to be happening in appliances. Recently, several big appliance companies got so desperate they went out of the "fair price" business, which was really a monopolistic deal to keep prices up despite demand. Whenever the appliance prices fell to where folks thought they were fair, sales perked up.

Of course, this is perhaps only one part of the show. But maybe the "recession" is more a buyer's strike than a depression. Maybe with a good line of smaller cars — geared to the average American pocketbook — the "recession" will be only a memory.

At least, it is worthy to note, we think, that the American buyer is coming into his own as the final arbiter of his own needs.

How Not To Tax The Taxpayers

Tax or a Savers' Tax.

They call it an income tax cut or a public works program. The income tax cut would reduce tax collections without reducing government spending. The public works would increase spending for roads, houses, post offices, schools or what-will-you-have? with money that isn't in the Treasury or doesn't really exist.

To finance an income tax cut or step up spending without increasing taxes, the government has to create additional money.

But governments can't just print more paper money. Well, they can, but after several thousand years the common people of the world have become wise to the racket. Just as they got wise to the practice of alloying or clipping gold and silver coins years ago. People balk at money with nothing more than a printing press behind it. They know it leads to national bankruptcy, as it did in Germany after World War I which may have been a factor in starting World War II.

VEILED INFLATION Governments have a smoother racket today. It still fools most of the people. It consists of borrowing money. Governments print bonds instead of currency.

Borrowed money does not inflate the money supply quite as fast as printing press money. For one reason, it draws interest, thereby having an earning power printing-press money lacks.

But it is inflationary. The United States financed World War II largely on borrowed money, which was probably the only satisfactory way to do it. It financed the Korean War in the same way and now it proposes to finance the war against the recession by that method.

For many inflation tends to increase wages, dividends and profits as it pushes up prices. But for those living in fixed incomes, inflation pushes up prices without increasing their resources. In recent years, the buying power of the dollar has been cut in half.

Inflation has therefore taken away half of the value of insurance, savings and pensions. It has had exactly the same effect as a 50 per cent tax on those resources.

Perhaps it's necessary to reduce taxes or spend money we haven't got to get out of the present economic rut. But as we do, we ought to realize that money is not created by the wave of a Congressman's cigar and that inflating the monetary system with borrowed money is a tax on most forms of savings and all fixed incomes.

NEWSPAPERS CAMPAIGNING FOR MORE ADVERTISING

Newspapers have embarked on a long-term campaign to get a large share of advertising expenditures, according to Charles T. Lipscomb, Jr. president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association's Bureau of Advertising.

The program involves working with 1,000 large advertising agencies, helping them to use newspaper space more effectively. It also involves working with newspapers to help them get more and better local advertising, he said.

Running Exit When ABC Enforcers Made A Raid

"They were moving just like greased lightning," J. M. Ward, Chief Pitt County ABC officer, stated. Officer Ward was describing the Negro men who ran out of the home of Connie Tyson, 33-year-old Negro of the Bell Arthur section. "They were running so fast I couldn't tell whether there were four or five of them," he said. The commotion started when ABC officers raided Tyson's home late Saturday night in search for illicit whiskey. Tyson reportedly met the officers at the door, recognized them and threw a half-gallon of non-tax-paid whiskey against a heater in his living room. Ward said the jar broke and the whiskey caught the floor on fire. In the meantime, with all the hollering and screaming and fire-fighting going on, the "boys in the back room" were roused. According to Ward they piled out of the door, through the living room and out into the night "without the slightest hesitation." One or two of the men lost their hats and two fell down in their haste. None of the "escapees" were identified or caught. "Apparently they were gambling," Ward stated. "We found some cards and a small amount of change on a little table in the adjoining room." When the "smoke" finally cleared, Tyson was charged with possession of non-tax-paid whiskey. The hats left behind on his living room floor remained unclaimed.

Ford Motor Co. And UAW Go Into New Round Of Pact Parleys

DETROIT (AP) — Ford and the United Auto Workers go to bat in the second of the new and vital labor contract negotiations in the auto industry's Big Three. By tomorrow, with Chrysler then to start talks, all three of the major firms of the industry will be at the bargaining table with the union over the UAW profit-sharing demand and other proposals.

Two Accidents During Weekend

Except for a five-minute interval yesterday afternoon, city police had a quiet weekend from a traffic standpoint. During that time, however, two accidents occurred on local streets.

In the first collision, Willie Little, 47-year-old Negro of Greenville Rt. 2, was charged with following too closely. Little's car was involved in the mishap on 14th Street with Bertman M. Burris Jr. of Southport. Damage to both automobiles was estimated to be $175. There were no personal injuries.

Five minutes later, at 2:25 p.m., police were called out to investigate an accident on North Greene Street involving a Greenville Utilities truck and an automobile. The drivers were identified as Ernest Thomas Buck of 1209 N. Pitt Street, who was driving the truck, and Bobby Ray Harris of Greenville Rt. 6. Harris was cited for careless and reckless driving. Investigating officers reported $250 damage to both vehicles. Neither driver suffered injury.

General Motors talks began last week. They are now recessed until April 8 when the company is expected to come back with answers or proposals of its own. Like the GM negotiations, Ford's opened against the background of mounting unemployment in the car industry because of production cutbacks tied to a car sales slump. Ford took note of conditions in a public statement. John S. Bugas, vice president in charge of industrial relations, said the decisions from the negotiations would have "widespread economic effects in the critical months ahead."

He called on both sides to "fulfill their responsibilities" in order to stabilize the auto industry and in turn "benefit the nation's economy." "I think it is the obvious duty of labor and management to reach a sound, fair and realistic agreement as quickly as possible," Bugas said.

UAW President Walter Reuther, just home from the stormy Senate Rackets Committee hearing in Washington, was slated to sit in on the initial Ford talks today. Tomorrow he will help to open the union's side in the Chrysler negotiations. DETROIT (AP) — A big, tall man with a deceptively easy-going manner will head Ford Motor Co.'s bargaining team in opening negotiations with the United Auto Workers today on a new labor contract. John S. Bugas has given a diplomatic touch to Ford's labor relations since replacing old Henry Ford's right-hand man, hard-boiled Harry H. Bennett, 14 years ago. Bugas brought to the post of director of industrial relations the suave manner of a Philadelphia lawyer from Wyoming, where he got his law degree, and the aggressiveness of an ace FBI sleuth.

Bugas left a $6,500-a-year job as FBI chief in Detroit to join Ford, first as Bennett's assistant, early in 1944. He is now a millionaire with the title of vice president for industrial relations and group vice president. He has an income in salary and bonuses of $235,000 a year.

FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, praising Bugas for the way he ferreted out spies, saboteurs, Bundists and pro-Nazis in Detroit during World War II, said, "There is no limit to his ability. He grows with any job."

Friends say Bugas is modest, almost to the point of being shy. Bugas insists it was teamwork of his fellow FBI men that made him look good as head of the Detroit office. Bugas learned teamwork back in his native state of Wyoming. He played on the University of Wyoming champion basketball teams of 1932-33-34. He still keeps himself fit as an athlete. He is 6 feet and weighs 182 pounds. He plays golf and likes duck hunting. Bugas was born April 26, 1906, at Rock Springs, Wyo. He was graduated with a bachelor of laws degree from the University of Wyoming in 1934. The university gave him a doctor of laws degree in 1946.

Bugas practised law at Cheyenne before joining the FBI in 1935.

Bugas drives himself hard without worrying and getting ulcers. Besides taking part in many civic and charitable activities, he is mayor of his home suburb, Bloomfield Hills. Last April when the UAW began beating the drums for a shorter work week, Bugas commented, "The smoke signals — or should I say smoke screens — are going up in the hills and apparently the 'softening up' process is under way on a number of fronts."

Bugas said he wasn't going "to joust with smoke signals" and adds he is in no mood to join UAW Chief Walter Reuther in any "pioneering" this year.

The smoke signals are clear that Reuther is going to get a firm no from Bugas on profit sharing under Reuther's terms.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — State Senator Earl Fitzpatrick noted that the men, many in advanced years, who serve as State Capitol police, were keeping motors in automobiles running so they could climb in and get warm.

Anti - Recession Debate Gone Into Political Feud

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democrats say things they have done and are doing "will in all probability bring the Eisenhower administration through its second recession."

Amid the political jockeying, the House moved toward passage of an administration-sponsored bill to authorize a speedup in purchases of 840 million dollars in civilian items for the government.

Members of Congress offered new recovery proposals and pushed for action on pending anti-recession legislation.

There was new talk of tax cutting. Dr. Gabriel Hauge, President Eisenhower's top economic adviser, said the administration is neither for nor against a cut at this point. He said it will make its decision, perhaps in several weeks, after a broad study of how the economy is faring under the spur of recovery measures already taken.

Some Democrats continued to press for tax reduction soon, contending the recession will last for some time longer.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California and House GOP Leader Martin of Massachusetts put out a joint statement noting 29 anti-recession steps the Eisenhower administration has taken by itself and 21 more it has asked Congress to approve.

Knowland and Martin said stepped-up spending actions involve more than nine billion dollars and that as these actions "make themselves felt across the nation, the dollar impact of the impetus will be immeasurable."

The Democratic Digest, in its April issue, spoke of what it called "the strange spectacle of administration leaders and Republican congressional members saying 'me too' to the Democratic anti-recession programs."

The Digest, official publication of the Democratic National Committee, said Congress has been "submerged in Democratic proposals to ensure full employment, to neutralize the long harmful effects of the administration's tight money policies and to put the full potential of the American economy back to work on badly needed public works projects."

On Capitol Hill, 18 senators—17 Democrats and one Republican—urged early hearings by the Senate Finance Committee on a bill they are sponsoring to provide broad improvement of unemployment compensation benefits and to extend coverage to about 1,800,000 workers not now eligible.

The 18 senators argued that their measure, which would increase permanently the amount and duration of jobless payments—was preferable to Eisenhower's emergency proposal for a temporary 50 per cent extension of the benefit payment period. The Eisenhower plan, which would run until April 1, 1959, is intended to help eligible workers who have used up their jobless pay rights under state laws.

An Associated Press survey showed that Eisenhower's program was getting a mixed reception from the states, where benefit amounts and payment periods vary. Some state officials voiced approval in differing degrees, some stated outright opposition. And a number of officials indicated they would much prefer federal grants for extra benefits, instead of the repayable loans Eisenhower proposes.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) sought to stir interest in a bill to broaden to two billion dollars a present authorization of 100 million dollars for loans to cities and towns for public works projects. Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) proposed establishment of a 150,000-member Youth Conservation Corps.

Rumors in Air Of A Royal Rebuke
LONDON (AP)—Rumors flew today that Queen Elizabeth gave Princess Margaret a royal dressing down for seeing Peter Townsend last week. But as usual with rumored royal rows, nobody who really knows is talking.

All that is known publicly about yesterday's two-hour meeting between the royal sisters is this: Looking pale and worried, Margaret returned from a weekend visit to Germany after gaily dancing all night with officers of a British regiment of which she is colonel in chief.

A car was driven up to the plane ramp at the London airport to avoid news men. Margaret was driven straightaway to Windsor Castle to see the Queen.

There was no doubt that the sisters talked about Margaret's reunion with the ex-RAF hero she renounced in 1955 because he was divorced. "People close to the royal family," declared the Laborite Daily Herald, "say the Queen is cross because the meeting took place while she was out of the country on a state visit to Holland."

The tabloid Daily Sketch said the Queen was primarily upset over the "world publicity" given the reunion.

Townsend dropped out of sight over the weekend. He is expected to return early this week to the Continent.

General James Gavin Will Retire From Army Today

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, 51, an ex-paratrooper and critic of what he charged were holdbacks in the Army's missile program, will retire from the service at formal ceremonies today.

Gen. Gavin will review his old outfit, the 82nd Airborne Division, with whom he gained the nickname "Jumping General." An estimated 200 of his World War II combat paratroopers will be among troops passing in review.

Gavin, then chief of Army research and development, testified before the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee that he thought the United States ranks behind the Soviet Union in missile development. He charged that the Army's missile program had deliberately been held back.

He then announced his retirement, declaring he believed he could "do the Army more good from without than within."

Gavin was a colonel and was the first man to jump when the 82nd entered World War II combat over Sicily. He also made the division's other three combat jumps, at Salerno, Normandy and Nijmegen, Holland.

At Nijmegen, where he was division commander, he was described by British Lt. Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey as "the commander of the finest division in the world today."

"His name meant airborne," says paratrooper veteran Sgt. Paul Pavlick, "and still does." When Gavin became division commander he succeeded Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, who later commanded the 18th Airborne Corps and was Army chief of staff. Ridgway, retired, was to attend today's farewell ceremonies.

The list of distinguished guests expected to attend included: Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, Third Army commander; Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, Gavin's successor as chief of Army research and development; Maj. Gen. John P. Daley, director of special weapons of the Office of Research and Development; Maj. Gen. Crump Garvin, deputy commander, Third Army; Maj. Gen. Robert J. Wood, deputy chief of research and development; Maj. Gen. Frank H. Britton, director of developments, office of the chief of research and development. Also, Maj. Gen. Robert H. Wiencek, deputy assistant chief of staff for Army intelligence; Maj. Gen. Chester E. McCarty, commander 12th U.S. Air Force; Maj. Gen. Theodore J. Conway, director of research, office of the chief of research and development; Brig. Gen. Toddy H. Sanford, assistant chief of staff, G-4, U.S. Continental Army Command; Brig. Gen. Paul R. Weyrauch, commander of the U.S. Army anti-aircraft, artillery and tank training center, Ft. ### Ike's Grandson Has A Birthday

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—A birthday party for grandson David, who is 10, precedes President Eisenhower's return to the White House today. David, son of Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, is the President's only grandson. The chief executive delights in roaming his country estate with David, or helping him brush up on golf or fly casting when occasion permits. The boy's parents and three sisters also were visiting. With Eisenhower scheduled to get back to Washington by noon or a bit later, a morning birthday party was arranged for David. What gifts the president and Mrs. Eisenhower had picked out for their grandson was a private, undisclosed, family matter. Over the weekend, a White House official said, Eisenhower studied reports from interested government agencies on farm and housing measures and talked three times by long-distance telephone with Secretary of State Dulles about America's position on a summit meeting. Sometime during the week he is scheduled to act on the $1,850,000,000 housing bill, designed as an economic shot in the arm for sagging business, and the bill to freeze farm price supports at 1957 levels for another year. Eisenhower is generally expected to sign the housing bill, but a veto of the farm bill is considered likely. Official business received minimum attention over a Friday-Monday weekend the chief executive spent at his Gettysburg farm. For the most part it was a weekend of relaxation. The duel lasted only a few minutes and the disputants kissed each other on the cheek, their 10-day-old feud settled according to the code of honor. "I was astonished to find such a strong foe in front of me," said Lifar, who learned to handle a sword as a cadet in Czarist Russia. "I was deeply moved to see my marquis thrusting his spear at me." "I was terribly moved," commented the marquis, whose knowledge of spears had been limited to stage props but who bankrolls a ballet company, his wife being a granddaughter of the late John D. Rockefeller. The duel, which strongly resembled a scene from somebody's ballet, was supposed to be secret since such things are illegal in France. There were only 100 spectators on hand, many of them news photographers and reporters.

American Study Of Oceanography Falling Behind; Largely By Default

By EVERETT S. ALLEN, New Bedford Standard-Times (Written for The AP) The United States may be losing to the Soviet Union the biggest and most important sea battle in mankind's history—the contest to unlock the ocean's secrets for use in peace or war. Principally by default, top U.S. scientists say, American oceanography is surrendering the lead in half a dozen marine science fields to a country that is better equipped and spending more money on ocean study. Soviet research vessels are bigger, better and newer; they spend more time at sea, accommodate more scientists, and are gathering more vital data faster than those of the United States. Ten years ago Soviet oceanography was provincial. Today, American experts concede, it has worldwide scope and is progressing rapidly. The U.S.S.R. seems to have initiated a "crash program" comparable with the rocket-outer space effort that produced Sputnik. These are the composite views of some of America's leading oceanographers, qualitatively among the world's best, who were interviewed by the Standard-Times to find out how the United States stands in a scientific race on which the free world's survival could hinge. The vast importance of the sea, and efforts to learn more about it, has a military and an economic side. Barring a shooting war, the latter may prove decisive in the East-West contest. Here are some of the major elements in the picture:

1. In the modern concept of nuclear war, the oceans provide the best hiding place for either defense or offense. The atom-powered missile sub prowling the ocean depths may play a key role if World War III should come. 2. Mankind appears on the threshold of weather control, in which the oceans are expected to play a prominent part. Should the Soviet Union first develop an effective technique in this field, the outlook for the West could be gloomy indeed. As Dr. Henry G. Houghton, director of Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Laboratory of Earth Sciences says, "An unfavorable modification of our climate in the guise of a peaceful effort to improve Russia's climate could seriously weaken our economy and ability to resist." 3. Man needs to know soon whether he can dispose at least part of his poisonous radioactive wastes produced by industrial use of atomic power in the deep sea; how it would affect marine life, and whether oceanic circulation will result in too rapid a transport of dangerous material to sea levels from which food supplies are derived. 4. The world's swiftly increasing population will mean greater dependence on marine food resources. This suggests not only the need for practicable methods of large-scale "ocean farming," but also efforts to utilize some of the sea's basic foodstuffs like plankton (tiny marine animals and plants.) Here, then, are some critical fronts of oceanography, a sudden breakthrough could mean incalculable advantage for the nation which scores it—whether through military application or through political use, as in assistance to underdeveloped nations. The United States has three major oceanographic institutions with deep-sea research facilities: Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Massachusetts, Columbia University's Lamont Geological Observatory in New York, and Scripps Institution of Oceanography in California. Woods Hole has two ships, Scripps four, and Lamont a three-masted schooner, the Vema. That's the total fleet since the Navy abandoned its deep-sea program three years ago. The Vema stays at sea 300-plus days a year, longer than any of the other research ships. The vessels range from 300 to 600 tons, with 6 to 10 scientists each and a cruising range of 3,000 to 6,000 miles. The Soviets began their big oceanographic effort in 1949 with the construction of the Vityaz, a 6,500-ton ship accommodating 70 scientists and a cruising range of 25,000 miles. She stays at sea as long as the Vema. This year, the Soviets commissioned the Monomoshoff, a 7,500-ton ship operated by the Soviet Institute of Oceanography. The Soviet jobbreakers Ob and Lena, each of 12,500 tons, carry scientific staffs comparable with the other two vessels and work in arctic and subarctic waters. The Soviets, as U.S. scientists say, are going places in oceanography. Tomorrow: The Military Implications.

Aluminum Industry Is Fighting For New Uses

By SAM DAWSON NEW YORK (AP)—In the battle of the metals aluminum has slugged hard — and heavily. Price cutting today is but one of its weapons. Aluminum was fighting vigorously for new markets in the days when it was in short supply and old customers were standing in line. Now, spurred by general recession and over supply, it's eyeing new fields with what producers call confidence instead of cockiness. Some predict that new uses will raise total consumption by 750,000 tons within the next three years. Lower prices could help. But there are sales problems too. Long the darling of the airways, aluminum now is shaping up to the day when many planes will go so fast that more heat resistant metals must be used. Aluminum is making a big bid for wider use in ground transportation. With some 1,500 U.S. rail passenger cars using as much as 32,300 pounds of aluminum each, a big push is now going on for more use in freight cars. Aluminum cars are said to be cheaper to operate because of their lightness, and cheaper to keep in repair. Aluminum Co. of America figures the average home now uses 40 pounds, thinks this can be raised to 1,000 pounds. Its metal also is going into a hi-fi band shell built by Overly Manufacturing Co., Greensburg, Pa., said to let full tones reach the audience with minimum of amplifying equipment. Aluminum foil is making bigger inroads in cooking techniques and

'Kissing Cousins' After Duel's End

PARIS (AP)—The Marquis de Cuevas and ballet master Serge Lifar were kissing cousins again today after a duel that ended with De Cuevas pinning Lifar's arm. The 73-year-old marquis and the 52-year-old ballet master met on the field of honor outside Paris after Lifar had challenged his friend for putting on an unauthorized version of his "Black and White" ballet. The duel lasted only a few minutes and the disputants kissed each other on the cheek, their 10-day-old feud settled according to the code of honor. "I was astonished to find such a strong foe in front of me," said Lifar, who learned to handle a sword as a cadet in Czarist Russia. "I was deeply moved to see my marquis thrusting his spear at me." ### Provide A Dial For Summing Up

PITTSBURGH (AP)—There is something new under the sun — it's a "sum dial." The sum dial is a pocket-size computer introduced by the Fidelity Trust Co. of Pittsburgh. It figures, in less than 30 seconds, the amount of money a person should deposit periodically in saving for a specific goal. It even takes into consideration compound interest. The operator sets the indicator at the amount of his savings goal, then locates on the dial the savings period to be used. Opposite that figure is the amount of the periodic deposit. ### Heavy Smokers More Energetic

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A heavy smoker tends to be energetic and independent, a nonsmoker is likely to be stable, dependable and quiet. This difference in personality is pointed out in a study of Harvard men, first as students from 1938 to 1942 and later, through questionnaires, in 1953. Results of the study were published in the February issue of the Archives of Internal Medicine. The author is Dr. Clark W. Heath, professor of hygiene and director of health services at Tufts University, Medford, Mass. The five heaviest smokers were compared with five nonsmokers picked at random from the group. "The heavy smokers, the study said, "showed great energy, restlessness, seeking for danger, and a kind of independence which keeps them actively engaged in some enterprise which appeals." The report adds that "they had difficulties with marriage." On the other hand, nonsmokers were "steady, dependable and hard workers, with stable marriages." The report adds: "They led rather quiet progressive lives." The author commented that the data suggests strongly that smoking is more than a superficial habit. It might have some origins in personality and physiology.

Find New Chemical To Dissolve Blood Clots

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE AP Science Reporter BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Dangerous blood clots are safely melted away by shots of a newlyfound chemical scientists reported today. It has done a good job in dissolving clots blocking blood vessels in the legs of 35 patients. Next it will be tested against clots blocking arteries bringing blood to the heart muscle. Such blockage causes coronary attacks. This chemical is a normal part of human and cow blood, and is known as Plasmin. RPMI 10, RPMI means Roswell Park Memorial Institute. It works against clots which are no more than five days old. Dr. Julian Ambrus told science writers on an American Cancer Society visit to major cancer research centers. It's much less effective against older clots, or fails altogether to dissolve them. (The new agent is different from another chemical recently reported in Boston as a promising anticlot drug. That chemical was derived from molds.) RPMI 10 was found during tests of 50 plasmin preparations. Radioactive blood clots were created in arteries of dogs and monkeys, then the drug was injected. Geiger counters measured how fast the radioactive clot disappeared. Heart attacks and brain strokes often come from blockage of arteries by clots. The new agent might dissolve them quickly, to minimize the long-term damage, but it could not prevent the initial damage done when a clot halts the blood flow. It might well prevent later and more serious or fatal clots. The research was conducted by Dr. Ambrus, his wife, Dr. Clara Ambrus, and Doctors J. E. Sokal, C. Markus, N. Beck and G. E. Collins.

Whooping Crane Does It Again

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Whooping crane Josephine did it again. She produced her second egg of the season last night. The new avocado-sized prize aroused speculation that the world's captive whooping crane population may be hiked to seven by April 29. Josephine became famous last year when she produced two eggs and the whooper chicks survived. There are five whoopers in captivity and 30 are known to exist.

Homemade Plane Kills Its Maker

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP)—A land plane he had built caused the death of Paul Sitzman, 19, during its first test run. Sheriff Paul Kober said the propeller-driven craft lost a front wheel while Sitzman and a cousin, Walter Sitzman, were guiding it on a rural road near here. It was powered by a 72-horsepower airplane engine. The craft rolled end over end, flipping Paul Sitzman into the air. He came down into the whirling propeller blades. His cousin, tossed clear, was not seriously hurt.

Will Orbit Long Enough For Job

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The United States' newest satellite will remain in orbit long enough to complete its job of gathering cosmic ray data, says one of the men who helped build it. Dr. Henry Richter of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Explorer III should last "several months." Its orbit, which carries it 2,000 miles from the earth at one point, overlaps regions in which high-altitude rockets have made readings, he added, thus providing scientists with a valuable check on data already received. Rockefeller Center in the center of Manhattan measures about 13 acres.

Two Dogs Helped Save 2-Year-Old

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Mrs. George Davis says the family's two dogs helped save her 2-year-old son Glen from drowning. Mr. and Mrs. Davis and Glen were visiting at her father's farm near Mercer, Mo., Friday when Glen wandered away from the house. Davis noticed his son was missing and then saw the two dogs at the edge of a pond about 50 feet from the house. The dogs were intently watching ripples in the water. Davis pulled the boy out and revived him in about two minutes.

The New WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER Thriller THE LONE DEPUTY

© 1957, Wayne D. Overholser. From the novel published by The Macmillan Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 6
Cole Weston was a very pleased man. Regan could be put out of the way any time. Now he had Barry Madden exactly where he wanted him. Red Sanders and the Mohawks would be easy to handle. He would the storekeeper, Max Harker.

He crossed the street to the livery stable and got his horse, Barny De Long treating him in the same obsequious manner that John Farmer had. He rode out of town slowly, thinking ahead to what must be done after what would be a fruitless and perhaps unpleasant session with Regan.

He hated a man like that, anyhow, and he hated Ralph Carew for sending him here as deputy sheriff. That brought his thoughts to the letters Ralph Carew had received. He wondered who had sent them and how much information they contained. He'd find out, someday, and he'd deal with him when the time came. Or them. He had no idea how many people had written to Carew.

He rode slowly, making his plans as he rode. He glanced at the rolling hills north of the river. Broken Ring range that belonged to the Mohawks. He found satisfaction in the thought that they were here on Elk River only because he permitted it. He had let them stay because he could use them, tough, ruthless men who would not hesitate at a killing any more than he would. Red Sanders on the other side of the Yellow Cat was weak, but he'd go along because he had no choice. He had a young wife and small children. That was good, adding something that he and the Mohawks lacked.

With Barry Madden, he had everything. No need to worry about the changing times. He'd make time hold still here on Elk River for as long as he lived, and he sure didn't care about anything that happened afterward.

Suddenly his thoughts went sour. He was only fooling himself, and what was the sense in that? He had gone a long way, coming here in the days when the Elk River country belonged to the Utes, and he had no business on this side of the mountains. He had stayed because he knew how to handle the Indians. He had given them beef when they were hungry and when the government supplies had failed to come in from Rawlins. He knew the chiefs: Douglas, Captain Jack, Colorow, Piah, Johnson, and even some like Ouray and Shavano, who remained along the Uncompahgre to the south.

When the Meeker and Thornburg trouble had come, he'd been successful in walking the tightrope and had kept out of trouble. Even after the Utes had been sent to Utah and marauding bands had come back across the border, he still had been let alone because the Indians remembered he had been their friend.

Through these years he had ruled the Elk River country by one method or another, even murdering when necessary, and he had kept the settlers out of the fertile land along the river. He had waited for the Mohawks and Sanders to take care of Walt Cronin and the nesters on the Yellow Cat, but they hadn't done anything, though he had been after them long enough to do it. He'd waited, and waiting wasn't his way. Maybe he was getting a little soft with age. Well, he was done waiting now. Twelve hours. No more.

Turning off the road, he crossed the bridge and followed the lane to the headquarters ranch, fine buildings, the best in the country. He tried to admire them as he had in the past; he tried to think of his wealth, cattle and horses and cash in Barry Madden's bank, but somehow there was no real satisfaction in anything today. He asked himself what he really had, what he would leave when he died, and he swore aloud. Nothing! A wife who had never given him a child, a wife who had been scared of her own shadow from the day they were married. Satisfactions that were part of the daily life of a man like Red Sanders, who would never amount to anything, had been denied him.

He put his horse into a run, digging him hard with his spurs. He reined up in front of the corral gate in a cloud of dust and turned the animal over to his choreman. As he strode toward the house, Pete Nance appeared from the bunkhouse.

"Curly lit out," he said. "Didn't say where he was going, but he was sure madder'n hell."

Weston stared at the gunman, hating him as he hated everything and everybody at this moment. He said, "I've held back on Regan because of Madden, but it won't be much longer."

"Good," Nance said. "I'm getting tired of this country." Weston went on, thinking he'd feel better if he told Nance he was tired of having him around, but there was no sense in that. Nance had come at a high price and he hadn't earned his wages yet.

Weston went across the dusty yard into the house, slamming the door behind him, and looked around at the fine mahogany furniture and the high-piled Brussels carpet and the red silk drapes at the windows. There had been a time when his social ambitions had run high and he had put out good money for these things, and not once had his wife entertained anybody unless he had nagged for weeks, and then she made a poor show of it.

"Lily!" he bellowed. "Where the devil are you, Lily?" She came running out of the kitchen, wiping her wet hands on her apron. "What is it, Cole?" She never looked at him. She always looked past or over him or at the floor in front of him. "Dinner ready?" he demanded.

"No, it isn't noon yet. I didn't know when you'd be here, Cole."

"Get it!" he shouted. "Damn it, get it!" "Yes, Cole," she said, and ran back into the kitchen. He dropped down into a leather-covered chair, feeling empty and a little sick and washed out. Sixty years old and here he was with nothing. He should have married a woman who could have children. He could even have adopted a boy. But it was too late, too late for anything.

He thought of Price Regan, then of Walt Cronin and the lice on the Yellow Cat who called themselves farmers. They wouldn't be there much longer, he told himself. They'd been there far too long now.

Suddenly the emptiness was gone from him and he was filled with a strange, quiet fury that fastened on Walt Cronin because Cronin was responsible for the settlers staying, and so Cronin represented everything that Weston hated.

Not Regan, because Regan was a man he could respect, but no one respected Walt Cronin. He'd hang him, and every settler on the Yellow Cat would be out of the country by sundown. He felt better now that he thought about it. Hanging Cronin would settle everything.

Adolph Menjou Back On TV; Proud Of His Series

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP)—Adolph Menjou is as proud of his new anthology dramatic series, "Target," on TV as any performer could be. "Money," is his answer to anyone asking why he returned to TV. Everybody in TV is in it for money, but to hear some of them talk it's all for art.

A Dog's World In Acting Field

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's a dog's world as far as the animal stars of movies and television are concerned. The annual acting awards bestowed by the American Humane Assn. on Hollywood's animal cologne went this year to Spike, star of the film "Old Yeller," and Lassie, who has her own television show. Only noncanine to break into the top awards was Beauty, a horse who got second place in the movie division for her performance in "Wild Is the Wind."

"I'm not positive," said Menjou, who has made more than 250 motion pictures, "but I don't think I could make a living out of pictures at the moment—if I had to, which I don't. They just aren't making enough pictures these days. If they want you badly enough they'll get you, but they don't want most actors that badly."

In fairness to Menjou, however, it must be pointed out that he is currently, or was recently, visible in movie houses playing in "Paths of Glory," "The Ambassador's Daughter," "I Married a Woman" and "Bundle of Joy." Let's always keep the record straight for an honest man. Menjou is the host and plays frequently in "Target." Each self-contained drama is characterized, he says, by "a lot of emotion and action, whether their theme is a western, law enforcement, crime, drama or comedy. Who is the target? It varies each week. Sometimes the villain. Sometimes the hero. As with life, it changes all the time."

As everyone knows, Menjou is one of the world's most impeccably dressed men. That is, to sloppy sacks he always looks as if he's going to a wedding. The other morning while transacting a day's normal business, he was wearing striped trousers, double-breasted vest, stiff white shirt,

W.R. Grace, founder of the Grace shipping lines, was twice elected Mayor of New York City, in 1881 and 1885.

Idaho To Harvest School Opinions

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Lights will burn in schoolhouses all over the state tonight as Idahoans attend town meetings to swap views on education. It's a unique effort by Idaho to get some grass-roots opinion on what Gov. Robert E. Smylie calls "the educational questions that press for decision." Some of these questions have been posed by the accent on science prompted by Soviet and American satellites. Views expressed at the sessions will be summed up and passed on to a statewide conference in Boise April 21. Milan Ryder of Weiser, president of Idaho Citizens for Education, said: "We think we have about 98 per cent coverage of the entire state. There will only be a few small school districts that will not hold meetings tonight. Some of these districts will have meetings later."

Two Detectives Were Watched

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP)—Leon Dishlacooff and Bob Cardillo, Denver detectives, locked their police car while here on business. When they returned, the lock wouldn't turn. While one fished with a wire through the wing window, a highway patrolman walked up.

Six People Die In Head-On Crash

SALMON, Idaho (AP)—Six persons died in a head-on crash that injured three others yesterday. One car carried a nursing home proprietor and four elderly patients. The other bore a woman and her three children. Critically hurt were Flora Cassell, 65, and Kirk Walchli, 4. The third survivor, Lynn Walchli, 6, was seriously injured. The Walchli children were riding with their mother, Cecelia, 31, and brother Raymond, 12, both of whom were killed. Mrs. Cassell was the lone survivor in the car driven by William H. Silbaugh, the nursing home proprietor. He was killed, as were Gertrude Cockrell, 72, Josephine Trowbridge, 70, and Alice Kirtley, 70.

A home owner in Petersfield, England recently won a reduction in his real estate taxes because he successfully claimed that a ghost haunted his 500-year old house.

At Least Eight Die Of Accidents Over State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A jet training plane crashed near a fog-shrouded airport and skidded into a house where nine people slept. Two automobiles collided near Shelby. A man was stabbed because he allegedly paid too much attention to another man's new wife.

The resultant deaths were among at least eight caused by violence during the North Carolina weekend.

Surprisingly, the jet crash near the Charlotte airport resulted in only one death, that of the pilot, and no injuries. First Lt. Wendell Ritchie Miller, 24, a Salisbury native, died trying to make an emergency landing.

The house into which his plane crashed burned, but the nine occupants escaped unhurt.

Mrs. Liza Hamrick and Jerry Hamrick, Negroes of Ft. 1, Blacksburg, S.C., and James B. Bridges, 20, of Shelby, died in the crash of two cars near Shelby. Officers said the Hamricks' car pulled into the highway into Bridges' path.

Richard Leon Mobley, 20, Ft. Gordon, Ga., soldier, died when the car in which he was riding struck a tractor-trailer on U.S. 401 near Raeford.

Lee Roy Owens, 22, Negro of Rt. 1, Morganton, was stabbed to death in a Burke County night spot, police said. They held Henry Booker, 21, of Morganton. Officers said Booker had protested Owens' attentions to his bride of one week.

John Dix, 35, of Asheville, died from three pistol wounds after an altercation on a road near Black Mountain. Arnold Boyd, 23, of the Lytle Cove section, was treated for razor blade lacerations on the throat and police said he would be held without bond pending an inquest. Another man, James Long, 31, was hit by a stray bullet and slightly wounded.

Roy Ussery, 27, was shot to death at his father's home in the North Brook section of Lincoln County. Sheriff Frank Heaver charged the man's father, Levi Ussery, 50, with murder, and Marshall Phelps, a friend of the son, with aiding and abetting. The sheriff said he was told that the son slightly wounded his father with a pistol after a family argument and that the father returned fire with a shotgun.

Plan Brief Look At Violent '55 Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Rackets Committee today opened what its staff hopes will be a highly abbreviated hearing on violence in Indiana's bloody Perfect Circle Corp. strike in 1955.

Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said testimony on the United Auto Workers strike against the Indiana piston ring manufacturer might be concluded by tomorrow evening.

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark.) expressed similar hopes and Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz.), one of those who voted to hold the hearings, said if it takes more than two days "we ought to just give up."

The committee spent five weeks on hearings into a UAW strike against the Kohler Co., Wisconsin maker of plumbing fixtures. That hearing ended late Saturday.

Kennedy said the new hearings would stick to "violence on both sides" in the strike that became headline news when strikers and non-strikers engaged in a pitched gun battle outside Perfect Circle's New Castle, Ind., foundry.

A UAW contract for the New Castle foundry was negotiated in Chicago late in 1955, ending the strike. The union earlier had lost its bargaining rights for the employees at Hagerstown and Richmond.

UAW President Walter Reuther's testimony ended the hearing into the Kohler strike. Concluding on an emotional note, he urged an end to name-calling "for the sake of America." He called for a show of "democracy in depth" to show the Communist world that "we can argue out our differences without name-calling."

Interpersed in his testimony were verbal clashes with Goldwater and Senators Mundt (R-SD) and Curtis (R-Nebr.).

In a concluding statement, Mundt said there was no evidence of corruption or racketeering in the UAW, and the union had taken effective steps to rid itself of Communism and to keep democratic processes in the union.

But on a fifth point, violence, Mundt added, "Your record is not as good in recent years as you indicated in your statement."

Jehovah's Witnesses Gather At Weekend Assembly In Kinston

The presiding minister of the Greenville South Unit, Mr. Charlie Moore, reported the assembly in Kinston began at 6:45 Friday evening. Mr. Thompson, the district supervisor, opened the Christian Assembly with the talk "Fulfilling Our Ministry." This was followed by the model session in the Ministry School on the subject, "Vellum Manuscript." They next featured a discourse and demonstration on how to study.

Saturday's evening session highlighted Home Bible Education. The highlight of Sunday's session was the public discourse on the subject, "Facing the Future Without Fear," given by Mr. James A. Thompson, district supervisor. At the onset of his talk he defined fear as "a feeling of dread, cause for alarm, danger, to feel a painful uncertainty." He next outlined the present cause for fear, such as modern weapons, economic crisis, and instability, moral degeneracy. He outlined from the Scriptures God's promise of a New World without fear, quoting from Revelations 21:1-5; Micah 4:4 showing that fear will give way to Isaiah 11: 5-11; Romans 8:28, a climate of love and peace. Isaiah 11: 5-11; Romans 8:28.

The assembly was concluded by two discourses on the subjects, "Safeguarding the Heart With Wisdom" by the Circuit supervisor, James Elliott and "Keep Watching the Ministry That You Fulfill It," by James A. Thompson.

Youth Held On Assault Charge

BETHEL—A 19-year-old Negro has been charged with assault with intent to commit rape as the result of an alleged attack on a 46-year-old Negro woman around 10:30 Saturday night.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said Tom Howell, of Rt. 1, Bethel, has been placed in Pitt County Jail under a $1,000 bond as a result of the charge. He waived preliminary hearing.

He is accused of attacking Elaine Powell, Rt. 1, Bethel, as she walked along a road on the outskirts of Bethel Saturday night.

The woman claimed she was grabbed and thrown to the ground. A tussle ensued. The woman's screams attracted neighbors in the area and the woman's attacker was said to have run as neighbors approached.

Sheriff Tyson said the Powell woman had scratches on her neck but suffered no major injuries.

Plenty Of Rain For Carolinas; Clear Tomorrow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Black clouds dumped uncounted tons of rain across the Carolinas Sunday night and today, but the Weather Man said the northeastward air movement would leave the sister states clear tomorrow so that a bright sun finally would be visible.

The rainfall for the 24-hour period which ended at 7:30 a.m. today included these measurements: Charleston 2.38 inches, Columbia 99, Greenville 1.59, and Myrtle Beach 6.1.

Asheville 66, Hickory 1.57, Charlotte 54, Greensboro 84, Raleigh 30 and Wilmington 1.17.

The hard winter freezes and the late winter rains have thrown farm plowing plans far behind schedule.

Forecasters said the Carolinas tonight would have continued cool but clearing weather and that by tomorrow there would be clear weather with milder temperatures and, finally, sunshine.
