School Bus And Car Wreck Near Stokes

THERE'S A BRIGHT SIDE . . . only two hurt in school bus wreck yesterday afternoon.

Young Driver Is Charged In Wreck Of Heavily-Loaded Pitt School Bus

A young Negro girl and a man were injured when an automobile plowed into the side of a heavily-loaded school bus yesterday afternoon near Stokes.

The injured student has been identified as Shirley Williams, 16, of Stokes Rt. 1. According to reports from Pfc. W. K. Chapman of the State Highway Patrol the youngster suffered a slight concussion.

James W. Reavis, 31, of Greenville Rt. 1, the driver of the automobile involved, sustained lacerations of the right knee, abrasions of the left knee and left elbow, a broken left kneecap and a torn arm muscle.

Both victims were transferred to Pitt Memorial Hospital by a passing motorist minutes after the collision occurred. The girl, who was standing near the front of the bus when the wreck happened, was reportedly unconscious. Following emergency treatment she and Reavis were admitted for observation.

The accident took place at the intersection of N. C. 903 and the Oakley Road approximately five miles west of Stokes, between 4 and 4:15 p.m.

George Kelly Mitchell, 17-year-old Negro of Stokes Rt. 1, was identified as the driver of the bus, loaded with students from the Stokes Elementary School. He was charged with failure to yield the right of way. Mitchell was quoted as saying he stopped for the stop sign and did not see the approaching automobile, which was traveling east on N. C. 903. He stated he proceeded and did not have time to avoid striking the oncoming car.

The school bus driver further explained that it was necessary for him to peer around a number of students who were standing between him and the door, obstructing his view. At the time of the mishap, he said there were about 80 boys and girls riding in the bus. Later in the afternoon, Pfc.

Chapman stated he was told by a school bus maintenance representative there were only 57 students on the bus when the collision occurred. The investigating officer explained that he had not completed his investigation along this line and did not comment on the number of students the bus was carrying.

Damage to the right front of the school bus was estimated to be $300. Chapman reported $600 damage to the front of Reavis' 1958 automobile.

Assisting in the investigation were Cpl. C. E. Whitfield and Pfc. W. E. Williams of the Highway Patrol.

TWO MEN CRITICALLY INJURED . . . automobile totally demolished.

Two Critically Injured As Car Goes Out Of Control, Wrecks

Two men were critically injured when the automobile in which they were riding went out of control on N. C. 11 last night.

Injured were: Roy Lee Ross, 33, of Greenville Rt. 2 and Edward Coleman Stox, 19, of Winterville Rt. 1. Both were admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital shortly after the accident in critical condition.

Ross, according to an attending physician, suffered two broken thighs, a punctured lung and other chest injuries, a mild concussion, lacerations and abrasions. He is reported to be still in critical condition but "slightly improved."

The only other occupant of the demolished automobile, Stox, sustained a broken left leg and extensive lacerations. His condition was described as "critical but improved" this morning.

Pfc. R. E. Taylor of the State Highway Patrol, who investigated the accident, stated that Ross was the driver of the automobile. He said that he has not been charged but added his investigation is incomplete.

The mishap occurred near the intersection of N. C. 11 and the Reedy Branch Church Road about three miles south of Greenville about 9 o'clock.

Taylor stated the automobile, apparently moving at a high rate of speed, left the left side of the highway, struck an embankment and ended up back on the highway. The car was said to be a total loss.

Nags Head Will Have Radar Unit

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army plans to build a radar transmitter at Nags Head, N.C., in Dare County, Sen. Ervin (D-NC) said today. He added the Army advised him 10 acres were transferred from the General Services Administration to the Army for the project.

Ross was reportedly thrown from the automobile. He was found about 20 feet away in a roadside ditch. Taylor said Stox was pinned in the wreckage for about 15 minutes before he could be freed.

"It was one of the worst wrecks I have investigated," the patrolman noted.

Someone Forgot Make Deduction; Board In A Jam

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP)—Back in 1921, someone in charge of making out school payrolls forgot to deduct a small pension contribution from a new schoolteacher's salary.

The error was apparently never rectified, and the teacher, Gladys V. Markus, continued getting her checks through the years without contributing to the pension fund.

Last night, the Board of Education received a letter from the state teachers pension and annuity fund saying that someone owes the fund $14,791.

The letter added that unless Clifton pays up, the state may withhold school aid from the community. The board said Miss Markus should be required to pay the tidy sum. The teacher, who plans to retire in July, was not available for comment.

Churchill Flies Back To London

NICE, France (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill flew off to London today after a 2 1/2-month Riviera vacation marred by an attack of pleurisy and pneumonia.

A drizzling rain fell as the 83-year-old statesman boarded the plane. He was bundled in a black overcoat and wearing a grey hat. He waved aside assistance after being helped from the car but he walked slowly, with a cane in one hand and a cigar in the other. He looked pale and his face lacked its old fullness.

About 300 persons saw him off. Churchill was accompanied by his wife, Lady Churchill; his personal secretary, Anthony Montague Browne; and his Scotland Yard bodyguard, Sgt. Edmond Murray.

Sources close to the Churchill household said Sir Winston had been offered a special military hospital plane but turned it down, saying "I want to return the same way I came here."

Churchill, staying at the Villa Paqueta at Roquebrune, had little time for his favorite hobby of painting during this vacation. The weather has been spotty ever since he arrived Jan. 15, and for the past month of his illness and convalescence he has hardly been allowed outdoors.

His return home was approved by his doctors, and is considered a good sign that the wartime leader has recovered.

Pleads Innocent In Killing Wave

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—A New York-born woodcutter, 31-year-old Peter Manuel, today pleaded innocent to murdering three teenage girls, three women, a man and a boy.

Accused of a wholesale killing wave in the Glasgow area stretching back over two years, he was ordered tried later this month.

Manuel was born in New York City of Scottish parents but was returned to Scotland when still a child. He was arrested in January at the home he shared with his parents in a Glasgow suburb.

Larger Vanguard 'Moon' Prepared

NEW YORK (AP)—A new Navy Vanguard satellite being prepared for launching at Cape Canaveral, Fla., is a 20-inch, 2 1/2-pound sphere designed primarily to measure X rays in outer space. The specifications were disclosed by Dr. John P. Hagen, head of the Vanguard program.

He did not say when the launching would take place. The Navy satellite now orbiting the earth measures only 6.4 inches in diameter and weighs 3.25 pounds.

Pentagon Reorganization Plan Submitted Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today sent Congress a six-point Pentagon reorganization plan. He said it would give the secretary of defense authority for truly unified military operations. In a 7,000-word special message

Rock 'n' Roll Loses, 3-1

COLUMBIA (AP)—The rock 'n' roll craze apparently is on the wane — at least in Columbia.

The Columbia Record said today a poll among hundreds of its readers showed a 3-1 decision against the thumping beat of the musical style that launched Elvis Presley to fame.

"Popular" or "standard" selections led the list of types of music preferred. Votes were cast also for classical, semiclassical, dixieland, sacred music and even progressive jazz.

Several answered that their favorite music was "any kind other than rock 'n' roll."

Rock 'n' roll opponents named more than 100 singers and orchestras among their favorite artists. Preferences ranged from the late Al Jolson to the currently popular Pat Boone.

Others high on the list were Perry Como, Doris Day, Eddie Fisher, Dinah Shore, Tennessee Ernie Ford, Bing Crosby and Nat (King) Cole.

Presley won "hands down" as the favorite rock 'n' roll singer. Second was Fats Domino.

Tornadoes Take Heavy Toll In Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)—Tornadoes poked three deadly funnels into this northwest Texas city and its suburbs yesterday. One man was killed and damage estimated at $750,000 resulted.

Hospitals listed 13 injured in this vicinity and at least one near the Stoneburg community, where a separate twister struck two hours later. It is about 40 miles southeast of Wichita Falls.

Two men reported missing in Wichita Falls turned up unharmed.

Wiley Taylor, 55, a dairy farmer, was killed in the Deandale community 8 miles east of here. His home collapsed, leaving only the walls.

The damage was estimated by George Clevenger, director of the Red Cross chapter here. Twisters wrecked or damaged 175 homes and business places here.

To the southeast at Stoneburg, 8 miles north of Bowie, Tex., there were unofficial estimates of $75,000 to $100,000 damage. At least eight homes were uprooted, 15 farm buildings were destroyed and 15 to 20 were damaged.

Communications were crippled in that area. Hail as large as baseballs in some places added to the loss.

In Wichita Falls, sirens wailed a warning that was largely ignored.

Hundreds stood in the streets amid torrential rain and hail to watch the writhing funnels approach. Many waited until the twisters passed before upon them to diving for shelter.

One funnel struck from the northwest, counter to the path generally taken by tornadoes, and narrowly missed the downtown area. A second hit a residential area west of the city and the third struck suburban Deandale, eight miles to the east.

At the same time, twisters dipped around north Texas and set off alarms at a number of towns. There was some damage, but no injuries. Much of Texas and Oklahoma was under a tornado alert during the day.

Bill Hunter, Wichita Falls Record-News reporter, said of the downtown funnel: "It looked like a curtain had been lowered to just below the horizon."

"Then the funnel poked through the clouds. It was dark, dusky colored, charcoal black," he said.

Delaware Bans Death Penalty

DOVER, Del. (AP)—Capital punishment is banned in Delaware after being in effect for 320 years. Gov. J. Caleb Boggs signed a bill outlawing the death penalty yesterday. It had been permitted in the state since 1638.

Another Delaware law passed during Colonial times permitted lashing at whipping posts. It continues in effect.

The bill outlawing the death penalty was introduced April 4, 1955. It passed the Senate last June and was sent to the governor last week after receiving House approval. It has been 11 years since Delaware's last execution by hanging.

Eisenhower said: "We must remove all doubts as to the full authority of the secretary of defense."

Eisenhower said that separate ground, sea and air warfare is gone forever.

He proposed that the Joint Chiefs of Staff be continued, but said that in the future they should serve as a staff assisting the secretary of defense in his exercise of direction over unified commands.

Strategic and tactical planning must be completely unified, combat forces organized into unified commands, each equipped with the most efficient weapons system that science can develop, singly led and prepared to fight as one, regardless of service," the message said.

Even before the message reached Congress, there had been doubts voiced by some influential legislators as to whether the secretary of defense should have greatly increased power. Eisenhower's program would strip the civilian heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force of direct authority over military operations. In effect, they would be left as merely executive agents.

Eisenhower also proposed—despite opposition in Congress—that in the future all appropriations for the three services be earmarked for handling by the secretary of defense, instead of being channeled by Congress to the three services.

Eisenhower suggested that procedure go into effect July 1, 1959. The message set forth these main points:

1. "We must organize our fighting forces into operational commands that are truly unified, each assigned a mission in full accord with our over-all military objectives."

2. "We must clear command channels so that orders will proceed directly to unified commands from the commander in chief and the secretary of defense."

3. "We must strengthen the military staff in the office of the secretary of defense in order to provide the commander in chief and the secretary with the professional assistance they need for strategic planning and for operational direction of unified commands."

It was under this point that Eisenhower said that in the future the Joint Chiefs of Staff would have the role of assisting the secretary of defense in his direction over unified command.

A presidential aide, Bryce Harlow, said in reply to questions at a news conference that this is not a move toward creation of a general staff such as that in the old German military establishment.

4. "We must continue the three military departments as agencies within the Department of Defense to administer a wide range of functions."

But, Eisenhower added, under the new plan the civilian heads of the three services will be relieved of direct responsibility for military operations.

5. "We must reorganize the research and development functions of the department in order to make the best use of our scientific and technological resources."

6. "We must remove all doubts as to the full authority of the secretary of defense."

Eisenhower said the authority of the secretary of defense has been circumscribed and hedged about in a number of ways which not only make the burdens of his office far heavier than they need to be, but also work against the efficient and effective direction of national security activities.

Batista Decrees Right-To-Kill In Anti-Strike Step

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—President Fulgencio Batista's government today authorized workers to kill if necessary to stay on their jobs when rebel leader Fidel Castro issues his long-threatened call for a general strike.

The order—one of three of the harshest decrees in the history of the Cuban republic—was issued by Batista and his Cabinet after an all-night meeting.

A second decree barred any judge from issuing a ruling against a government official or agency or against any government or legal opposition leader. Judges who failed to obey would be immediately dismissed.

The third order said any employer who ordered a work stoppage of any kind could be jailed up to six months.

All government ministers were authorized to issue licenses to bear arms to Cuba's 160,000 public employees and all other workers. The decrees absolved workers of criminal responsibility for any steps they thought necessary—including killing—to prevent being forced into joining a strike.

The government also decreed that anyone joining a general strike would lose his job permanently. When this penalty was first applied in 1935 it quickly broke a general strike.

Despite solid support of labor union leaders for Batista, Castro claims that workers are secretly organized to follow him. He has threatened that if his rebellion succeeds, he will try for treason any officials who keep working after his strike call is issued.

Two columns of Castro's rebels were reported moving toward Santiago, attacking communications as they advanced.

A rebel communique said one column of guerrillas was approaching Santiago, Cuba's second largest city and the capital of the easternmost province of Oriente, from Castro's mountain headquarters to the west in the Sierra Maestra.

Another force led by Castro's brother Raul destroyed communications around the sugar mill city of Sagua de Tanamo and apparently moved on toward Sancti Spiritus, 50 miles to the southwest. In contrast to the small bands which previously had swept down from the mountains, the rebels claimed 1,000 persons were in this column.

Both columns shot up and wrecked motor and rail transport as they advanced.

The communique said thousands of armed men from the Oriente countryside soon would march on Santiago. President Fulgencio Batista's army reinforced its 5,000 or more men in Oriente, and officers expressed confidence they could defeat Castro if he risked an open battle. So far in his 16-month campaign to overthrow Batista, the rebel leader has stuck to hit-and-run guerrilla tactics.

Clashes between government troops and the rebels continued on a small scale. The army said 12 rebels were killed 60 miles northwest of Santiago and three more near the city. Rebels killed three members of an army patrol at Bayamo, another report said. The air force bombed suspected rebel hideouts in Oriente.

Police arrested 18 men in a series of raids in Havana. Fears that the government would use its emergency powers to freeze private bank accounts sent thousands to Havana banks. They drew out millions of dollars worth of savings, forcing the National Bank of Cuba to distribute 20 million dollars to meet the run. Batista's Cabinet denied any intention of acting against private funds, saying they were "untouchable."

So far most rebel activity was confined to Oriente. There Castro's forces have cut most telephone lines and driven rail and road transport to cover. Transport workers fled their jobs despite government threats to fire them. Troops were put aboard buses, trucks and trains in an effort to keep communications moving in and out of Santiago.

The driver and conductor of a bullet-scarred bus arriving in Havana from Santiago described the situation in the city of 120,000 as "very critical." Sandbagged machine guns guarded major buildings and streets were deserted by 6 p.m.

Three Youths Attack Chaplain With Knives

BOSTON (AP)—Rabbi Benjamin L. Grossman, 67, Jewish chaplain at state prison and Boston City Hospital, was attacked by three-knife wielding Negro youths last night and later helped police round them up.

Held by police were youths aged 13, 15, and 17. No charge was placed against them immediately.

The rabbi was confronted by the three youths near a Roxbury district park in which Rabbi Jacob I. Zuber, 54, was beaten to death by hoodlums on New Year's Eve 1953.

Rabbi Grossman conducted the final rites for Rabbi Zuber. Rabbi Grossman said one of the youths held a knife against his chest while another demanded his money. He said he told the boys truthfully that he had no money with him.

The trio was frightened away by noise in a nearby apartment hallway. The rabbi called police and toured the neighborhood with them until the boys were rounded up.

House OKs Revised Road Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House passed and sent to the Senate today a compromise $1,800,000,000 anti-recession highway construction bill.

The Senate seemed likely to approve the measure promptly and send it to the White House before Congress starts a 10-day Easter recess later today.

House passage was by roll call vote.

Previously the House defeated 222-109 an attempt to send the bill back to a Senate-House conference committee for further consideration.

Major difference between the original Senate and House versions was inclusion by the Senate of a provision intended to curb erection of billboards along interstate highways. This provision was retained in the compromise.

House rejection of the compromise would have precluded further action on the measure until April 14, when the congressional Easter recess starting later today ends.

Senate passage was considered certain, because the conferees on Tuesday largely accepted the Senate provisions.

Eisenhower signed the session's first antirecession bill, a $1,850,000,000 housing measure, Tuesday. Highway bill opposition in the House appeared to center on the provision for regulation of billboards along the 41,000-mile network of expressways now being built — the interstate system.

One House member told a reporter, "I've never seen any lobbying like this since the Volstead Act. On one side you have the garden clubs, on the other the outdoor advertising industry."

The billboard provision would give incentives to the states to control advertising signs along the interstate system. For signing agreements to regulate billboards, they would be paid a bonus of one half of 1 per cent of the cost of the interstate segment covered by the agreement. This would be in addition to the 90 per cent of the cost already borne by the federal government.

Davidson Student Shot To Death By 'Unloaded' Gun

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—A Davidson College student was shot to death in his dormitory room early today by another student demonstrating what he thought was an unloaded pistol.

Mecklenburg County police identified the victim as William A. Redding, 20, a junior from Asheboro. Police said James B. Hambricht, 21, a senior from Burlington, was named on a technical charge of murder.

Hambricht, a pre-medical student, was released under $1,500 bond and will receive a preliminary hearing Monday in Charlotte in County Recorder's court. Officers quoted Hambricht as saying he was showing his .38 caliber pistol to Redding and two other students in Redding's room about 12:30 a.m.

Hambricht told officers he believed the pistol to be unloaded, aimed it at Redding, and began snapping the trigger. After the second snap, police said the gun fired, the bullet striking Redding in the neck. He was dead of arrival at a hospital.

Police quoted Hambricht as saying he attempted to stop the bleeding but when he saw that Redding was hurt seriously, he telephoned for an ambulance.

The shooting occurred in Redding's third floor room in Belk Dormitory. Also present were Charles Peacor, Hambricht's roommate, and George Rhyan of Belmont.

How To Freeze Time, Money Topic Of Meet

Hints on how to freeze yourself some time and money are to be given the adults in Greenville at the Homemakers' Meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Home Economics Department of the J. H. Rose High School.

Making better use of the freezer as built in maid service will be stressed instead of basic methods of freezing.

Don't Overdo Praise Or Criticism

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.

When children reach their teens, they begin to take a pretty realistic view of themselves. There is nothing more important for the truly mature person than to be able to evaluate himself honestly, and further to be able to accept that evaluation without fears, doubts and recriminations.

It's the job of the wise parent to tread that narrow path between praising and urging on to greater accomplishments on the one hand, and accepting real limitations on the other.

Kurt had always been a good student in the lower grades but as he went on into senior high school the going was harder. One evening he told his dad he was going to drop out of the debating club before they kicked him off the team. Dad was shocked, and he began with remarks to the effect that of course he could do it, but there was something in the boy's face and manner that pulled his dad up short. The boy wasn't asking for encouragement, he was stating a fact.

"I'm sorry, Dad," he said, "but I know I can't do it."
"Well, son," replied dad thoughtfully, "nobody can do everything and maybe it is better you get off the team gracefully." Relief dripped from the boy.

"I hoped you'd understand, Dad," he said.
Kurt felt better because his dad could accept him even if he wasn't the ball of fire it would be nice to be. But if dad had brushed off the boy's worries, given him a pat on the back and told him of course he could do it, the boy would not have been convinced. He would have felt resentful and guilty and a good bit more inadequate than he had need to be.

Anne was talking to her younger brother.
"All right, Dick," she said, "you and I are bright. Let's face it without beating around the bush. We are probably above average but neither one of us is the genius Dad is, nor the genius he thinks we are. Dad's a genius at engineering but he's a dumbbell when it comes to knowing anything about people."

"Dad wants me to go to engineering school."
"Yes, I know," said Anne, "and he wants you to go to M.I.T. because he went there."

"Anne, I know I can't be as good an engineer as Dad and besides I don't want to be an engineer anyhow."

"Ambitious Parent
"Don't let him force you, kiddo. I don't think you'd make a top-flight engineer either but you're bright enough to do what you want and what's more you're bright enough to know what you can't do."

Anne had fought her battle with dad. She was close to the problem and could give her kid brother the understanding he couldn't get from his father.

It's very hard for many parents to see their children as they really are.

The parents' hopes and dreams of the future becloud their judgment. All too often their subtle pushing, their ready and unrealistic encouragement only breeds hostility and rebellion in their soon-to-be-grown-up children.

How Students Study Abroad

AP Newsfeatures

Did it ever occur to you that your growing-up son or daughter might study abroad for a year? Perhaps if the idea did graze your consciousness you brushed it aside as one of those things only possible to the moneyed class to which you definitely do not belong. But that's where you are wrong.

Last year there were approximately 126,000 students studying in countries other than their own and of these 74,000 were being partly or wholly subsidized by a scholarship or a fellowship. If so many young people can do it why not one of yours?

A year spent in another country can be a tremendous experience for any youngster. The value is not only in the actual studies pursued but in coming to understand another country, in living as one of them, in learning to feel as they feel. After such a year the student's attitude toward "foreigners" is forever changed.

Under the skin we are all human beings. We work and play, love and hate, strive for a better life or give up in despair pretty much the same whether we do it in the U.S.A. or in Timbuctoo. Knowing this because it is part of you is one of the things this old world of ours needs if we are ever to achieve that dreamed of world peace. Governments can fight over frontiers, over imports and exports, over who's going to run the canal, but when the people of the world truly know each other it will be much harder to whip up any country into a war hatred of another.

How to Begin
Since World War II there has been a great increase in exchange students throughout the world. The United Nations has compiled a book called "Study Abroad" in which all the various study programs are listed. This book can be obtained from the United Na-

City Electric Company, 202 West 2nd Street, Ayden, N. C., will hold its Grand Opening on Good Friday, April 4th, at 10 a.m. The first door prize, given at 8 o'clock Friday night, is a $50 credit certificate on a Maytag Automatic Washer. Other prizes: Zenith and RCA radios, 8 long playing high fidelity albums and other free gifts.—(Adv.)

tions for $1.50. Obtaining this book is the best place to begin if one of your children is interested. In this book you will find the names and addresses of all the organizations sponsoring foreign study, their requirements for a student's eligibility, and the amount of financial assistance available.

There are so many different programs and projects it is difficult to make generalizations; however, the majority are for students who have completed high school. You can study almost any subject. There is a fellowship for an American to study mural painting in Rome, another to study education of gifted children in France, or agricultural problems above the Arctic Circle or at the Equator. There are many fellowships for general courses in the liberal arts, in natural science, in social science, etc.

In some cases knowledge of the language is essential before the student is accepted; in others, the student spends several months living with a family in his country of choice where he concentrates on gaining proficiency in the language before he starts on his study program.

One of our sons is spending his third year of college in Sweden. His college in U.S.A. will give him a year's credit for his work abroad. He had reached lesson three in Swedish before he sailed. By Thanksgiving he wrote us that only poetry and slang gave him any trouble and by Christmas he had mastered the language so that he could hold his own completely. We have been greatly impressed with the human values this boy of ours has acquired in his year completely on his own in a foreign land.

Our College Plays Statewide Role

There was a time, not too many years ago, when East Carolina was looked upon as a small institution of higher learning serving a small area in the Eastern part of the state.

Though the college has far outgrown such a concept, there are still those in North Carolina who look upon ECC as a small school which serves a small area of this state.

Enrollment at East Carolina now ranks the school as the fourth largest institution of higher learning in North Carolina, outranked enrollment-wise only by the University at Chapel Hill, Duke University, and State College. A look at the geographical breakdown of the counties from which ECC students come likewise indicates the broader scope of influence the college has come to have. Of the 100 counties of North Carolina, 89 are represented in the student body of East Carolina College. Of the 3,947 individual students enrolled on campus during the 1957-58 school year 3,734 are from North Carolina and only 213 are from out-of-state.

In addition to its on-campus enrollment for the current school year, East Carolina College lists 1,436 students in extension classes held in 16 different counties.

These enrollment figures immediately take East Carolina out of the small college class. They also refute the long-standing concept in some circles that East Carolina College serves only a small area of the state. ECC has risen to a position of considerable importance to the state's system of institutions for higher education. While it draws the majority of its students from the eastern half of the state, it is of vital importance to the state as a whole. The rate at which its enrollment has grown is indicative of its increasing importance to higher education in North Carolina year after year. Percentage-wise there is no other state-supported college in North Carolina which has experienced such rapid growth in the past decade.

In the school year of 1945-46, East Carolina had an enrollment of 1,076 students. Today its on-campus enrollment is more than three times that number, and even its enrollment in off-campus extension classes is one-third larger than the total enrollment for 1945-46.

East Carolina continues to render vital service to the eastern section of the state, but it can no longer be considered a small college of importance only to one section of North Carolina.

Progressive Farming Has Lost A Spokesman

Agriculture in North Carolina has lost an effective spokesman for progress in the death of William D. Poe, 42-year-old editor of the Progressive Farmer which circulates in the Carolinas, Delaware, Virginia and Maryland.

For more than 15 years Bill Poe wrote about agriculture for The Progressive Farmer, advocating diversification and pointing the way for farmers of North Carolina and adjacent states to increase their incomes. In recent years he had begun to see his state reaping benefits of the kind of farming he had been talking about and writing about.

Quiet, personable, mild-mannered, Bill Poe was a young man wholly dedicated to the dream of progressive farming in the South. His contribution to agriculture in this and other states will not soon be forgotten.

Our Future Has Dangerous Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — You are going to live for a long, long time — in a world where both the United States and the Soviet Union hold in readiness hydrogen bombs that can blow each nation, and perhaps humanity, off the map.

That's the reality you face, so you can listen with one ear to the jockeying, the propaganda and the arguments now going on about stopping the tests of nuclear weapons.

That much is clear — although he didn't say it in so many words — from Secretary of State Dulles' news conference, one of the most revealing and productive conferences he's held in a long time.

This country suffered a propaganda defeat this week — and Dulles admitted it — when the Soviets announced they would stop testing nuclear weapons themselves.

This didn't have much practical meaning since they left themselves an out: they said they'd feel free to resume their tests if this country continued testing. Since this country will, no doubt the Russians will.

And Dulles not only reaffirmed the American decision to have nuclear tests this summer but indicated the United States was thinking of more tests.

He said this country has been willing to stop its tests as part of a program leading to the elimination of nuclear weapons but that the Soviets don't show any inclination to do that far.

Brisk Future In Pools

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The oil swimming hole has come to town! Many a barefoot lad of yesterday, who trudged miles through dusty roads to paddle in a creek, now has a son who can dive into the family's private pool from his back porch.

For the swimming pool industry today is in the midst of an amazing boom, a boom comparable — but on a smaller scale — to the rapid postwar growth of television and air-conditioning.

Typical of the rising young businessmen in this rapidly expanding field is Jerry Rudolph, 27, of Springfield, N.J., an ex-Army private and law student.

Three years ago during a vacation he learned that one of his father-in-law's neighbors had spent $9,000 on a backyard swimming pool.

"Why, I could build one for a third that," he told his father-in-law.

"If you can, you and I are in business," replied the father-in-law.

Rudolph went to the public library and read everything he could find on swimming pools. He decided that if he made a swimming pool of molded glass wool he could produce it cheaply enough to appeal to a mass market.

He quit law school and 10 days later formed a corporation on $30,000 of borrowed capital.

"At that time there were only 20,000 privately owned swimming pools in the country, and 90 per cent of them were in California," he said.

There were only 250 pool builders in the nation. Today there are more than 2,000. They expect to install some 75,000 pools in 1958.

"Within another decade one out of every 10 families in America will have its own pool," predicted Rudolph, who feels sure the industry will hit the billion-dollar-a-year level by 1960.

He grossed $300,000 in 1956, $400,000 in 1957. He has his own plant in Paterson, N.J., and is hopeful of hitting the million-dollar mark this season.

He has 700 advance orders — with deposits — for the 1958 season, exactly 70 times the number he had at this time a year ago.

The new-type swimming pools can be made from anything from concrete blocks with a vinyl plastic covering to steel, aluminum or glass wool. Rudolph's models include one 12-by-27-foot do-it-yourself model which a homeowner can buy for $795 and put into the ground by himself.

"If you move," said Rudolph, "you can dig it up, put it on a truck and cart it to your new home."

What explains the surprising surge in the industry? Partly it's a matter of keeping up with the Joneses. Partly it's the fact people are weary of fighting traffic to drive to a beach. Partly it's because pools are now sold on the installment plan and ordinary workers can enjoy a luxury once known only to millionaires and movie stars.

Rudolph himself likes the explanation given to him by one of his customers.

"Well," said the man, "I've bought all the electrical gadgets my house'll hold, and I've got two cars in my garage. What else is left for me to buy — except a swimming pool?"

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS THURSDAY-DAY OF FELLOWSHIP

Jesus was a loyal Jew. He entered with great sincerity into the religious rites of his people. This was the day of the Passover Feast, and he indicated that he desired to eat it with his disciples.

They kept the feast; and when the meal was finished, Jesus instituted a sacramental rite which he commanded his followers to observe through the ages. He took bread and wine, and declaring that they were his body and his blood, he told his friends that they were to eat the bread and drink the cup in remembrance of him. Paul in later years was to declare that as often as

The Big Spelling Issue

My East Carolina campus informant tells me that an English instructor was "simply aghast" at the misspelling of a word on a sign in a local store window recently.

This instructor said she was crossing a downtown street when she spotted the sign which read: "Children's Shoes".

"If I hadn't been in a hurry I would have gone in and taught them a spelling lesson," she

"We can also learn about the ineffectiveness of public works to halt a recession by our experience during the depression. My good friend, Harold Ickes, was then Administrator of Public Works. But it was found that it took so long to get public works under way that they were inadequate as recovery measures." —Sen. Paul Douglas.

teacher told her class. I don't blame her one bit. Even a child knows how to spell children.

Speaking of spelling lessons, the proper way to spell the "Green" in Greene Springs Park came up for critical discussion in the Reflector office as a special feature on the park was in preparation the other day.

The copy went back to the composing room with an extra "e" on "Greene".

Lin-o-typer Jeter Cox questioned that. It seemed to him that the "green" referred to the color of the park in the spring and summer, he said.

That sent the news department to checking. City Manager Leonard Blogam was consulted and he, too, thought the green should be spelled without the "e".

Then it was remembered that a lady called several years ago to rebuke a reporter for spelling Greene St. without the "e".

Appointment Is Surprise To All

By LYNN NISBET SEAWELL — Governor Hodges has done it again. Surprised the whole state with a top level appointment — and proved the absurdity of smart newspaper boys trying to outguess him or predict his course of action. In Judge Malcolm B. Seawell he obtained a successor to Judge George B. Patton as Attorney General who carry on and add to the prestige of that high office. Seawell's name had not appeared in any of the speculative stories. Yet when the Governor came up with it the reaction was unanimously favorable.

When Seawell was named as first resident judge of the newly formed 16th judicial district comprising Robeson and Scotland counties most frequent comment was that the appointment would please more people and offend fewer than any other that might have been made. This is the popular reaction to his appointment as Attorney General. There is no shadow of doubt that he will be enthusiastically accepted by the Democratic state executive committee as the party's nominee in the November election.

Another evidence of Governor Hodges' foresightedness is that he could not have obtained Judge Seawell for this position any more than he could have gotten Judge Patton to accept it two years ago, without the assurance that the same retirement features which have long applied to judgeships would include service as Attorney General.

It now becomes necessary for the Governor to appoint a resident judge of the 16th district to serve until the November election. The judicial district executive committee will nominate a candidate to be elected this fall to finish out the term expiring at midnight December 31, 1964. The appointment and the nominee, almost sure to be the same person, must come from the bars of Robeson or Scotland.

NOMINATION — The nomination most likely will not be made until after the state convention when a new committee will be named, consisting of three members from each county. That poses serious question about need for further revision of the plan of organization of the Democratic party. The idea of six persons nominating a candidate who must be elected by and serve all the people of the state is not democratic or reasonable. In the case of every other office for which nominations are made by the district election also is confined to the district. Representatives in the Congress, members of the State Senate and solicitors are voted upon both in primary and general election only in the district where they reside.

Judges are voted upon only in the district in the primary, but by the whole state in November.

There are several one-county judicial districts now, which means that under the plan of organization three persons can actually "appoint" a superior court judge. In many instances these members had been named to the judicial committee as a sort of political honor or recognition, without serious regard to the responsibility they might face in case of vacancies on the general election ticket.

HARPER — Another change in secondary level personnel is the appointment of Walter W. Harper as "Industrial Development Administrator" succeeding John J. Appleyard. It is a new title but the same job as chief of the division of commerce and industry in the Department of Conservation and Development. Appleyard, who has been acting head of the division since last summer, is going to Wilmington to replace Harry W. Clark as executive director of the Committee of 100, a special industrial promotion group at Wilmington.

TURNOVER — Turnover in the position of chief industrial promoter for North Carolina has been unusually high during the past three years. When the industrial development acceleration program was inaugurated by Governor William B. Umstead in 1953, Dallas Daily was recruited from the Seaboard Air Line railroad to replace Paul Kelly, who had headed the commerce and industry division for several years. After some two years Daily was replaced by Al Grant, who resigned after about one year's tenure to go back into private employ. He was succeeded some eight months ago by Appleyard, who is now being replaced by Walter Harper.

The turnover and lack of continuity in direction of the industrialization program has been unfortunate. The hope is held now that the situation may be more stabilized. For one thing the title of Industrial Development Administrator carries a bit more prestige than just listing as head of a departmental division. Furthermore, Walter Harper comes to the post from the ranks with six years split tenure as a member of the division. He worked there from 1950 to 1953, and from 1955 until now. Despite his more elaborate title he has no illusions of grandeur or ideas that he can overnight revolutionize procedure and get a factory for every community in North Carolina. And, perhaps most important of all, the fellows with whom he has worked and now must lead like him and respect him.

Curious, Near-Incredible Items

By ELMER ROESSNER Here's a roundup of strange, curious and sometimes almost incredible items that pop into a business columnist's life, often when he's not looking:

To test transistors, General Electric has fired some from a 12-gauge shotgun into a telephone book. . . A Leicester, England, furniture store, admitting it is hard to find, offers to pay taxi fares of customers who get lost.

Small autos are given cheaper rates at two Chicago parking lots.

Prohibited by law from cutting liquor prices, a Massachusetts package store attracted women with ladies' electric razors at half price.

A New York bank put on an Easter fashion show in its lobby. . . The town of Irvine, Scotland, losing a government ordnance factory, is seeking a branch of an American manufacturer. . . Of wines consumed in the U.S., 95 per cent are domestic, calculates Franz W. Siebel, distributor of Christian Brothers wines.

BUILT-IN PRICE CUT The maker of a miniature refrigerator advertises to dealers that the list price is $129.50 and the fair-trade price is $99.50.

Dominican Republic has opened a shipyard at Rio Haina, on the run between North and South America, to compete with Florida shipyards. . . Most distillers are off the holiday decanter kick, reports Beverage Media magazine. . . Only a third of all Madison Avenue Advertising men take a brief case full of work home at night, Tide Magazine says. . .

Most of them, it adds, never open up the case at home. . . When a customer phones in an order to a Chicago department store, order takers always suggest a daily special, thereby swelling add-on sales.

A miniature metal Christmas tree for wearing on a lapel is taxable as jewelry, but corsages of artificial flowers of fabric are not, the Internal Revenue Service rules.

Institute professor, reports hearing the president of a famous corporation say, "When any plant or branch wants to spend more than $100,000, it has to have the approval of the board of directors. . . However, the resignation or firing of a foreman in whom the company has invested more than $100,000 in 10 years rarely comes to the attention of top management."

Fortune reports that more management men are seeking new jobs and, at the same time, corporations are searching more frantically than ever for top executives. . . Although Hess Bros., Allentown, Pa., is opposed to giving trading stamps, the department store serves as a redemption center for one brand.

Linda guarantees argon gas of 99.995 per cent purity. Say That's better than soap! . . . Termites damages are deductible as a casualty loss under certain circumstances, says David Lutsky, tax adviser of the New York Pest Control Association.

EXECUTIVES SNUB OTHERS WHO WORK TOO HARD It has been well established that workers dislike eager-beavers, and the employer that produces to much may find himself ostracized or penalized by fellow workers.

But bosses, too, resent other executives who do too much work, says Stanley Seashore, of the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research. Big producers are sometimes subjected to "social restraints," he says, which may mean that they aren't invited to join the bridge game at the country club.

It appears two me, that their is some pore spellin bein pased off in this ole world.

Humpty Dumpty Does Easter Bow

What has Peter Cottontail got up his sleeve for this year's Easter basket? Eggs, of course, and maybe a special one like Humpty Dumpty, the nursery rhyme favorite. Any youngster should be charmed with the idea of adding the dapper egg to his collection.

Perhaps Mom can set the wheels in motion for creating Humpty Dumpty by assembling the youngsters and the equipment needed—eggs, vegetable dyes, cotton swabs to serve as tiny paint brushes, cardboard for Humpty's support, and a bit of yarn for his top knot.

A clever Mom should parlay this egg session into a project that will keep the children occupied for several hours. First, cook the eggs. A good method is to put them into cold water, bring the water to a rapid boil. Then turn off heat and let the eggs stand in the water for about 25 minutes. This should avoid dark spots on the eggs. If a good idea to prick the end of the egg, too, with a pin before cooking to keep the egg from cracking when it boils.

When decorating the egg, use the end of the egg for the face and the wide part of it as the base. Before painting it, rough it up with some scouring powder, then rinse it carefully. The eggshells are more receptive to the vegetable dyes if they are a little on the rough side. They'll hold the color more evenly, too.

Paint the base of the egg a solid color. Stand the egg in an egg cup and go to work. You can get a good, deep color tone by putting several drops of food color in a small amount of water—about two thimbles full should do it.

While the egg is drying, make the cardboard support. Give the egg a firm foundation, making it about an inch wide, and the legs an inch and a half long. Cut it from a piece of shirt cardboard or a dress box. Then paint it the same hue as the base of the egg. When dry, fasten it to the base of the egg.

Arms, too, are small bits of cardboard. Each is about a half-inch long and a quarter of an inch wide. Paint them to match the feet. When they are dry attach them to the egg with bits of cellophane tape.

Give Humpty Dumpty a merry face. Use a cotton swab as a paint brush, just dot on the eyes, nose and a cheery smile. Make a bow of bright colored yarn or dye a piece of string for the topknot.

Tar Heel Club Honors Mrs. Murphy At Dinner

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Mrs. Mary Colvin Murphy of Snow Hill, N. C. and Washington, who will fly to Tokyo, Japan, in a few days, was the honor guest at a buffet supper recently given by Mrs. Selma Carson Moore of Greenville, N. C. at Mrs. Moore's apartment at Cathedral Courts.

Mrs. Murphy, former State Democratic Vice Chairman and a Federal public servant in Washington for many years, will visit her daughter, Mrs. James Griffin, whose husband is an attaché at the U. S. Embassy in the Japanese capital.

Assisting the hostess were her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin G. Moore II. Moore is with the Central Intelligence Agency and his wife, Mary Belle, is assistant to Wendell Barnes, Small Business Administrator.

Mrs. C. A. Robertson of Greenville, a house guest of Mrs. Moore, was also honored at the supper.

Greeting guests as they arrived were Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Erwin, formerly of Raleigh, who with Mrs. Moore are among charter members of the Tar Heel Club of Washington.

Guests included the State's two Senators, Samuel J. Ervin Jr. and W. Kerr Scott, their wives, and Jack Spain of Greenville, administrative assistant to Senator Ervin, and Mrs. Spain.

The honor guests and the senators' wives were remembered with gifts from the hostess. The group plans to entertain Mrs. Murphy again when she returns in six weeks.

The Tar Heel Club's official contingent was represented at the supper by Charles Hackney Jr. of Lexington, club president, and his immediate predecessor in the office, William A. Crech of Smithfield.

Try To Fool Yourself Into Dieting

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP)—The proper way to stay on a diet is to nibble between meals, eat luscious desserts and never allow yourself to become ravenously hungry.

Ridiculous and impossible? Not at all, insists sometimes dieter, good cook and happy eater Poppy Cannon. It's just a matter of fooling yourself, taking some extra pains—and learning to count calories.

"Nothing," says Miss Cannon firmly, "can substitute for calorie-counting. You have to develop a sort of sixth sense about them." Miss Cannon, who writes extensively and appetizingly about foods, recently set about creating a book designed to take the curse off desserts. It is her theory that too many diets fail because the dieter—tired and irritable from lack of sugar and craving something rich and sweet—dives off the calorie wagon into a double fudge sundae topped with whipped cream and pecans.

The result of her cogitation is "Unforbidden Sweets," a collection of good-looking, good-tasting desserts ranging from chocolate mousse to cheesecake and often topped with a palate-fooling simulation of whipped cream. And not one of them run over 100 calories a serving.

The magic ingredients which substitute for sugar (49 calories a tablespoon) and fats are non-nutritive sweeteners (sodium cyclamate preparations and improved saccharines); wine, nut and flower flavorings which do not carry the caloric penalties of alcohol or vegetable oils—and air.

The best illustration of self-fooling is her recipe collection of "whipped toppings" which open the book. Her "approximation" of whipped cream involves one-half cup of water, the sodium cyclamate equivalent of 2½ tablespoons of sugar (quantity needed varies among the brands), a teaspoon of vanilla, a teaspoon of lemon or lime juice, and one-half cup of nonfat dry milk. Whipped stiff and chilled, it contains five calories per tablespoon: 10 calories if you use sugar as the sweetener.

"The wise dieter is flexible," adds Miss Cannon. "If you're hungry for something sweet at 5 in the afternoon, go ahead and eat your dessert then. It will take the edge off your appetite and keep you from becoming ravenous. Just remember not to eat another one at dinner."

She believes in "nibbling" as long as the nibbler remembers to count her calories in the process. "I think bread sticks are good—provided they aren't salted. Other good things are cottage cheese, buttermilk, yogurt and even a bit of sour cream which contains half the fat (20 per cent) of whipping cream."

Art Notes

The Art Gallery has just received, with the author's compliments, a new book from Geneva, Switzerland, written by Emile Schaub-Kock, and published through the International Institute of Arts and Letters.

This new book is entitled "Vie and Modelage of Anna Hyatt Huntington."

Mrs. Huntington is a well-known animal sculpturer. Her statuary is found in many American and foreign museums. One of her pieces, "Nanny Goat and Kids," she gave to Greenville Gallery sometime ago.

Many of her noted statues may be seen at "Greenbrook Gardens," the Huntingtons' home near Myrtle Beach, S. C. which was given to the state of South Carolina.

Some two hundred of her finest sculptured pieces are pictured, present owner named, and present location given in this new book. Greenville's possession is pictured on page 152. A picture of the original "Nanny Goat and Kids" is also included in the book.

Fine Arts Ball
The Fine Arts Ball, the big feature of the Greenville Fine Arts Festival, will be held April 11 in Wright Auditorium. It will present a background for an array of artistic characters as they might step out from the pages of literature, or drama, or pages of music.

Small Pictures
Large canvases showing this week have given way to tiny-to-middle-sized pictures by masters of deliberate method and precise ideas in New York City.

Paintings and drawings by Georges Seurat, France's late 19th century master of painting style called pointillism (because it employed countless confetti-like objects seen in vibrating light) will be included in this group which will go on tour.

Paintings and drawings by Charles Sheller, American contemporary, and paintings and drawings by Jose Albera of rectangles within rectangles will complete the scheduled tour.

Notes On Artists
The artist Frank Roth's showing at the Artists' Gallery in New York is a series of dark mystical abstractions which show sensitivity, maturity and exceptional beauty. Many art critics say, "Watch this 22-year-old painter."

One of Texas' ablest artists is Bill Bromar, who now is exhibiting his latest water colors. He paints landscapes and figures, giving them emphasis and understanding of much Oriental art.

Greensboro Art Show
April 25-26, approximately 30 selected paintings of Greensboro artists of past and present will be assembled as an exhibition in its V.W.C.A.

Swelling World Population Will Have To Find New Foods In Ocean

By EVERETT S. ALLEN
New Bedford Standard-Times
Written for The AP

If the world's population—about 2 1/2 billion—triples during the next century, and it is expected to, humanity must turn to the oceans for new sources of food to maintain its living standards.

The land masses of the world are being rapidly depleted of basic resources. The sea is still a bulging storehouse, not only of minerals and metals that improved techniques could pry from the ocean bottom—but of enormous quantities of foodstuffs.

In terms of food, the sea can actually outproduce the land. A New England harbor, properly cultivated, could produce nine tons of clam meat per acre annually—three times the amount of comparable food an Ohio farmer could produce on one acre.

Eventually, marine scientists say, the oceans may be stirred artificially to bring up nutrients from the bottom so sunlight can get at them and so increase the sea's productivity of foodstuffs.

Here's one way in which this process is envisaged:

In most areas, a vertical pipe shoved down into the sea would carry a stream of water either up or down, once it was started, and if uninterrupted would go on indefinitely.

This is because ocean surface water is saltier and, therefore, heavier, than deep water, when the two are at the same temperature. As surface water goes down the pipe, it tends to be cooled to the same temperature as the water outside the pipe—but being heavier because of its salinity, it keeps on flowing downward.

It works in the opposite direction. If bottom water is started up the pipe, it tends to get warmer. But because bottom water is slightly fresher, it also is lighter than the surface water surrounding it, so it tends to rise and flow out the top of the pipe.

The French government is experimenting with a system of such pipes. In this instance, it is trying to produce fresh water from the ocean by applying the salinity differences to a distilling process. But the operation would serve very well to "stir" the sea for increased food production.

Presently, man is neglecting great areas of the ocean's nutritional potential. Of some 15,000 species of marine life, only a dozen or so are used commercially to any significant extent. Thousands of others, including such unlikely sounding candidates as barnacles, could make valuable contributions.

Some steps toward more intense exploitation of the sea are already being taken. The British are seeking to utilize the nutritional properties of seaweed in commercial quantities. The South Africans have a fish meal project providing an inexpensive protein source for human consumption.

A vital step in making the most of the ocean's food resources is finding way to make fish less expensive. Virtually all modern developments in fishing—packaging, filleting, freezing—are keeping fish from going where they're needed most, to hungry people without much cash.

It is possible, marine scientists say, to make money with a fish product selling for as little as 1 1/2 cents a pound; ways could doubtless be found to convert food fish into some form, perhaps like sausage meat, that could be stored and shipped without canning and freezing.

Further, in the ocean, the absence of fences or lines of ownership makes it difficult to introduce the element of systematic cultivation even though this is highly desirable from the standpoint of increased marine productivity.

But it is only a question of time before a marine-minded country in search of cheap foodstuffs will start a large-scale marine agricultural station.

All this leaves apart the possibilities of plankton, the microscopic marine animals and plants which make up the ocean's basic food form. The fish men eat are at some distance from plankton, which has passed through the digestive systems of half a dozen animals feeding on each other.

Most significant is this: at each step of this process in the blood-cal chain, there is a 90 per cent loss in food value. As the world's need for food increases, oceanographers seek a way in which man can consume the basic food at first hand, without sustaining these interim losses.

As Dr. Robert Menzies of Columbia University's Lamont Observatory put it: "The world population will outgrow its food supply unless something is changed at a great rate; but we are not eating the primary producer, phytoplankton (the plant variety of plankton); instead, we eat a product five times removed.

"The whale is the only vertebrate close to eating the primary producer, and we must study the whale to see how he does it."

Tomorrow: The ocean and radioactivity.

New Drug Born To Fight Against Cancer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—A new drug born for its job is fighting against human cancers with some success here.

It is not a cancer cure.

It has kept a couple of far-advanced cancer patients alive for a year or more, and helped some others. It has made some cancer shrink, and some disappear for a while.

It has failed to help other patients. It usually produces harmful and undesirable reactions while it is producing its good effects on cancers of the breast, intestines or some other organs.

Still in early stages of human testing, it might later be administered more effectively. Chemical tailoring might make it safer and more potent against cancer.

A significant fact is it was intentionally designed from the start to strike back at cancers. And it was a fine example of modern cooperative research of scientists and physicians.

The drug, named 5-fluorouracil, was described today to science writers making an American Cancer Society tour of research institutions.

Father of the drug is Dr. Charles Heidelberger, biochemist of McArdle Memorial Laboratory of the University of Wisconsin.

He had observed that cancer cells use up a chemical, uracil, faster than healthy cells. His idea was this: create a poisonous form of uracil which would kill cancer cells.

This was done in collaboration with Dr. Robert Duschinsky of Hoffman-La Roche, Inc., Nutley, N.J.

When it proved successful in mice, the next step was human trials, now under way.

Firemen Called To Burning Boat

GALILEE, R.I. (AP)—Fire fighters were called to put out a blaze aboard a fishing boat tied up at a pier and had more trouble with a fish net than they had with the fire.

A big net became entangled in the wheels of a fire truck. For two hours the firemen tugged and hauled to no avail. Finally, they jacked up the truck, removed the wheels and unsnaffled the net.

The fire was not serious.

The actress, now married to actor Mickey Hargitay, previously had asked permission to take the child out of the country.

A hearing was set for April 16.

River-Drifting Loses Its Glamor

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Huckleberry Finn has faded a little farther into the past.

Floating down a river was just good, clean fun in the day of Mark Twain's hero. But in Municipal Court yesterday three teen-agers learned that, legally, it's "loitering and trespassing."

Their lesson will cost them $75 each, payable within a year.

The Los Angeles River, unlike Huck Finn's, is paved, sides and bottom. Except during heavy storms it carries a trickle that will just about float a dead leaf.

Swollen with runoff Tuesday, the channel became a raging sluiceway temporarily endowed with some of the glamor of Twain's Mississippi—an adventurous challenge to George Hamlin, 19; Peter Van Dunwyk, 18; and Don Pullen, 19, all of suburban Reseda. They set sail on a rubber life raft, "just for fun."

It wasn't so funny when they lost their paddles.

Observers on shore reported their plight to police and fire departments. A helicopter used the windstream of its rotors to blow them to the bank. Police pulled them out, wet and disenchanted.

Any remaining appeal of the escapade may have vanished when Judge Parks Stillwell told them: "The fines you must pay won't come close to the amount spent in the rescue."

"I guess they wanted to re-enact a little of the Huckleberry Finn days," said the judge. "It's too bad they're in the wrong area, and the wrong era. They were abo 50 years too late."

Bitten Mailman Collects $9,000

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—A mailman who says he has been bitten by 18 dogs in 17 years received a $9,000 out-of-court settlement yesterday for bites inflicted by a French poodle.

Charles E. Serven, 43, charged in State Supreme Court here that he was bitten four times by a poodle owned by Mrs. Simone Sampson of New York City, who is on Serven's route.

Serven, who lives in Great Neck, said he also suffered back injuries while fighting off the dog Sept. 24, 1956. He asked $100,000 damages.

Serven now makes his rounds with a battery-powered stick, known as a dog-training cane. The batteries activate a vibrator at the tip, which causes dogs to keep their distance.

Hardly A Surprise That TV Station Won Award

By CHARLES MERCER
PITTSBURGH (AP)—Serious-minded television viewers in this area are not surprised that station WQED-TV yesterday received the annual George Foster Peabody Award for outstanding television education.

The award falls on the fourth anniversary of this independent, nonprofit station which was founded to serve the community and is supported by voluntary contributions of money and effort.

It is a healthy example of what a community can do if it wants its own station with a large amount of programming directed toward education of the younger generation.

WQED is now presenting about 90 hours a week of programs Monday through Friday and on Sunday. Daytime programs are aimed primarily at serving schools in the area.

Specially trained teachers are using the television facilities of the station to transmit to 350 school classrooms in Pittsburgh and seven western Pennsylvania counties. The subjects are sixth-grade reading, seventh-grade English, ninth-grade science and high school physics.

Its evening shows are 55 to 60 per cent live—probably the largest proportion of live evening programming of any local station in the country.

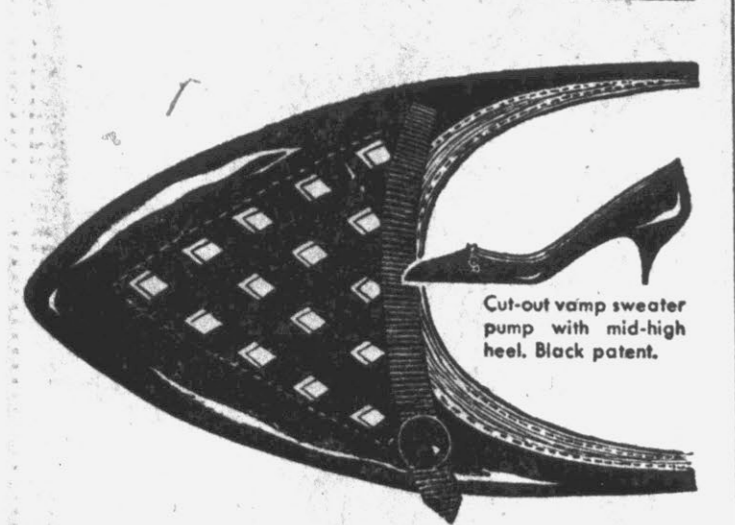

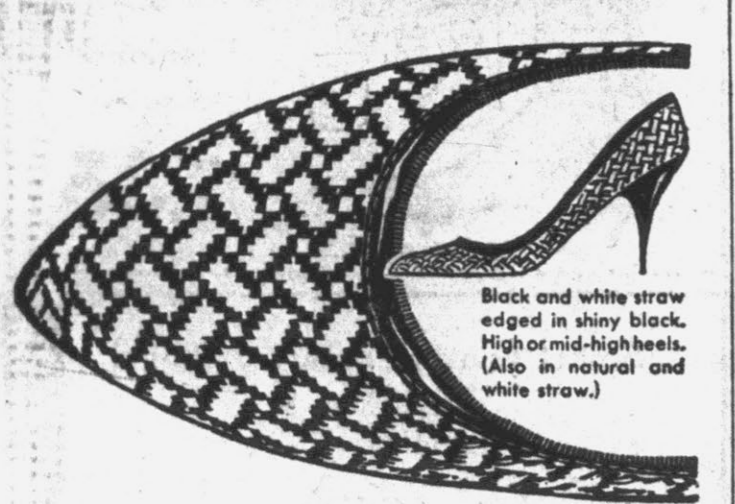

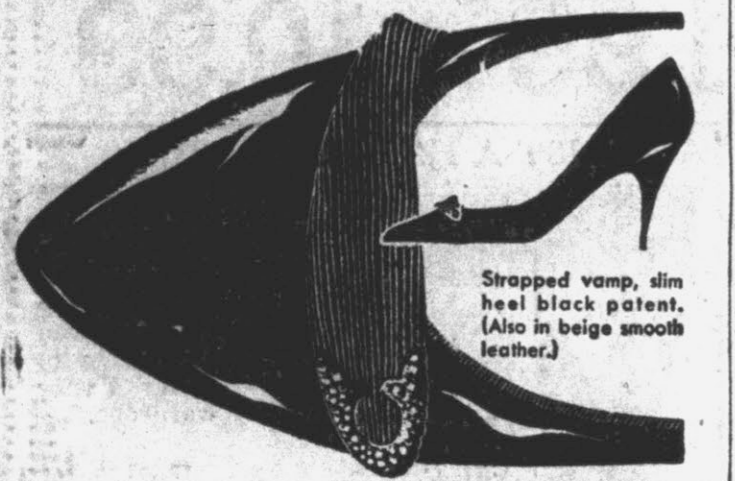

The Peabody Award specifically cites WQED, in addition to its educational programming, for its "Heritage" series of interviews with a variety of prominent persons which was distributed to other educational stations throughout the country.

John F. White, general manager of the station, recalls that the "Heritage" series began more than a year ago with an interview between Dr. Jonas Salk, discoverer of the polio vaccine, and Robert Frost, the poet—who returned last weekend to participate in the station's anniversary observance.

"We expected the interview would run an hour," said White, "but it was going so well that we kept right on. We ran for an hour and 50 minutes. Why not? What more absorbing thing could television be presenting than a fascinating conversation between a great poet and a great scientist?"

That pretty well summarizes the programming creed of WQED: present what it considers the most worthwhile program at the time.

Falls 18 Feet In Circus Accident

NEW YORK (AP)—A tight-rope walker performing without a safety net spun off a flaming wire and plunged 18 feet to the floor of Madison Square Garden last night at the opening of the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus.

The accident—during the next-to-last act of a gala multidisplay program—cut deeply into the carnival mood of the 10,000 spectators.

The performer, Harold Alzana, 39, suffered a broken wrist, a broken ankle and a mild concussion. He was taken to St. Clare's Hospital, where his condition was listed as satisfactory.

The circus opened its 88th season with a five-day preliminary run in Charlotte, N.C., before coming to the Garden for a six-week stay.

Outlandish clowns frolicked merrily. Dressed chimpanzees monkey-dressed around in the center ring looking too human for comfort as they rode bicycles, danced, beat drums and hammed it up.

Daring aerialists, mocking gravity, flung themselves among bars and trapezes high above the Garden floor. Tumbler and acrobats leaped and bounded with abandon. Lions and tigers snarled at whip-snapping trainers.

The Campaigningest Candidate In Western N. C. Is Just 'Warming Up'

By JAMES M. ROGERS, Managing Editor, The Asheville Times

WAYNESVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Campaigningest political candidate that has beat a bush in Western North Carolina in many a day allows he's just warming up.

Last October Heinz W. Rollman, an international industrialist who has some ideas about world affairs, stimulated a few raised eyebrows when he announced he was then and there a candidate for Congress on the Democratic ticket.

Oldtimers figured he was out of season. The World Series wasn't even over.

But Rollman went right to work. Eight to 10 hours a day six days a week he was out calling on the people...mostly the little people...shaking hands, asking and answering questions and telling them what Rollman stands for.

He's been doing that ever since. First he opened fancy headquarters on Waynesville's main street. Television, thick carpets, fancy furniture, books, new magazines, a Bible or two, pretty hostesses and even a smoke-filled back room.

Just to accommodate baseball fans, he even unlocked the front door a few days before his formal announcement so neighbors could watch the Braves and Yankees on TV. Served them coffee, too.

Rollman does his stumping in a 1956 Buick sedan that's equipped with air conditioning, radio telephone, complete sound system, with turntable and microphones, a coffee maker, maps, compass, electric back massager and a lot of other gadgets.

Since last October he's opened headquarters in Asheville and in Hendersonville, and he has what he calls co-ordinators helping him in every county of the 12th District. They are volunteers. And all this is only the beginning.

Along the campaign trails there will be Rollman advertising gadgets such as chrome tooth picks, pencils for the school children, snuff, chewing tobacco, cigars etc.

There'll be a campaign song, and comic books depicting Rollman in action.

He added a few twist New Years. Instead of kissing the babies he gave every child born in the 10 counties of the district on New Years Day a pair of infant's slippers.

He spends a lot of time preparing the full page advertisements he runs regularly in all newspapers in the district—weekly and daily. Some of them don't even mention that he's a candidate for Congress.

He's a stickler for details. His most recent ad: "Mommy—Must We die soon?...came out to his taste after 18 drafts. It dealt with peace.

The $1,500 it cost him to get it printed was to him "a good investment." Tear sheets were made available to all who wanted them and arrangements have been made to have the message of peace published in all languages for distribution abroad.

Incidentally, Rollman, a German refugee, is president of Wall-co Shoe Corp. of Waynesville and Ro-Research Inc. Some 60 foreign firms, in all parts of the world, derive all their technical knowledge from them.

He likes to be called a shoemaker, and admits that being a German of Jewish descent with a pronounced speech accent doesn't help him politically.

Over his office door at the Well-

co plant is a sign: "Are you prepared to meet Rollman?"

Cee employe who asked for a couple of minutes to discuss business found he wasn't.

When the two minutes were up—by his watch with an alarm on it—Rollman politely excused the employe. "Next time make a better estimate of your needs," he told the man. "I'll give you all the time you ask for, but no more."

Rollman isn't mad at anybody. He loves America, thinks the country has been exceedingly good to him even donating $5 to one of his opponent's campaign fund; divides a third of his company's income with his employes in salaries and bonuses, figures another third goes for taxes he's glad to pay and the rest to the owners.

buys space in the Asheville Sunday Citizen-Times every week to publish a column, "Mankind, he says, is his business."

Proposed that he and his incumbent opponent, Rep. George Shuford of Asheville, set up a fund of thousands of dollars to be used in advertising appeals to get the people to register and vote, and to provide transportation to the polls on election day for all those who want to go, regardless of their political beliefs.

He believes the little man and the farmer have to be protected.

He's a business man who thinks workers in his factories should share the profits.

He is a German refugee who feels America has been good to him and he wants to offer his services in humility and gratitude.

So, if you live in Western North Carolina, prepare to meet Rollman. He says win or lose, he'll be running again in 1960 and every two years thereafter until he's too old to get around.

Right now he's busy with his campaign, and doesn't talk win or lose. Says he'll move into second gear soon, saving a burst of speed for the homestretch.

The only detour he's struck was at the General Electric plant near Hendersonville recently. One morning early he was on hand to greet workers, but a company guard put a stop to his handshaking.

Later a company official telephoned to express his regrets. Walico is a customer of General Electric, but Rollman concedes he was chased off as a candidate, not as a customer.

Last Of Those With Homey Air

OTTAWA, Ohio (AP)—An era ended in nearby North Creek when Miss Grace Ball retired after 36 years as postmaster. Her homey little post office was closed up forever under a reorganization program.

The post office, in a building owned by Miss Ball, had knotty pine paneling, lounge chairs, rugs and curtains and was a favorite gathering place for the villagers.

SPOILED HER GAME

DENVER (AP)—Mrs. Love C. Day claims a fall on the polished floor at Willis Case Golf Course last year spoiled her golf game.

In a District Court suit she asks $25,456 damages for the impairment, claiming she can't approach par golf like she once could.

Mrs. Day is 72.

Heavy Rain, Snows And Floods Bring Damage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Northern California and the mountain region reeled today from heavy rains, snow and floods while sections of Texas and Oklahoma surveyed widespread damage from tornado winds.

California was declared a disaster area by Gov. Goodwin J. Knight as fresh storms hammered the coast, blizzards pounded the Sierra Nevada area and flood dangers appeared increasing. An estimated 5,000 persons have been evacuated from their homes by the floodwaters. Earth and snow slides added further damage and stranded two trains.

Tornado winds whipped across northern Texas and southwestern Oklahoma around sundown Wednesday. Three funnels hit the Wichita Falls area, demolishing or damaging 175 homes and business houses. One man was killed, two were missing and at least 13 injured.

In California, where four deaths were blamed on the stormy weather, the Southern Pacific Railroad's City of San Francisco with 97 persons aboard was stranded in a snowdrift near Donner Summit in the Sierra, 165 miles northeast of San Francisco.

A 26-car mail train on the track ahead had been buried by two avalanches of snow, stalling the westbound passenger train. The 26 of the mail train escaped. Two were injured.

Stranded in the mountain chain that runs along California's western boundary were some 200 persons, including 150 at Donner Summit Lodge. Many were skiers. Flood dangers threatened in Santa Clara County, south of San Francisco, and at Stockton in the Central Valley and National Guardsmen were alerted. However, the flood threat appeared lessening a little with only light rains indicated today.

The tornado funnels in Texas and Oklahoma were part of the storm pattern over most of the mid-continent as warm Gulf air collided with cool Pacific air.

Report Dictator Being Opposed

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Reports from neighboring Paraguay say demonstrations were staged against President Alfredo Stroessner's dictatorship yesterday and rebels captured four villages in the south.

Travelers arriving in Argentina said student leaders were arrested after rallies throughout Asuncion, Paraguay's capital.

The Paraguayan government said at least three persons were killed during a guerrilla attack Tuesday on Coronel Bogado, a town of 12,000 in the south. Reinforcements drove the attackers from Coronel Bogado, but informants said rebels held onto four other places.

Stroessner's government charged disgruntled Paraguayan politicians led the attack on Coronel Bogado from Posadas, across the Parana River in Argentina.

Paraguayans living in Posadas said exiles were not involved and blamed the attack on farmers discontented with wheat payments from the state bank.

Communications with Buenos Aires were severed by Stroessner, who has ruled Paraguay as a one-party country since 1954.

There are now 1,600 technically trained foresters serving as inspectors for the American Tree Farm System of growing timber as a crop on taxpaying lands.

Twice Survived Tragic Crashes Of Sky Giants

LAKEHURST, N. J. (AP)—Giant dirigibles are as extinct as dinosaurs in this space age.

The Akron, one of the most famed of the airships, plunged into the sea 25 years ago tonight, killing 73 Navy men and hastening the end of the dirigible era. Only three men survived.

At that time, the Akron was the world's largest aircraft and her crash was aviation's most costly disaster.

The sleek 788-foot ship took off from the naval air station here at 7:30 p.m., April 3, 1933, on a routine flight.

An hour later, she hit a storm some 30 miles south of Philadelphia and turned toward the sea in search of calmer weather.

By 12:30 a.m. April 4, her rudder wires had been torn away by wind in the storm's center. The Akron dropped stern first into the sea 20 miles off Beach Haven, N.J.

The survivors included Lt. Cmdr. Herbert V. Wiley, New Britain, Conn., the executive officer. Water rushing into the cab under the dirigible washed him out a window. He held onto a board in the water until picked up by a German tanker.

Wiley's radio report from the tanker told of the Akron's final moments.

"On impact, lightning flashes, saw many men swimming and wreckage drift rapidly away. Discipline in control car perfect." The Akron cost $5,375,000. She was in service less than a year and a half.

A sister ship, the Macon, was commissioned a short time later. But the Macon also met disaster, crash-landing off the Pacific Coast Feb. 13, 1935. Two died, Wiley was in command at the time and again survived.

Train Is Rammed By Loaded Truck

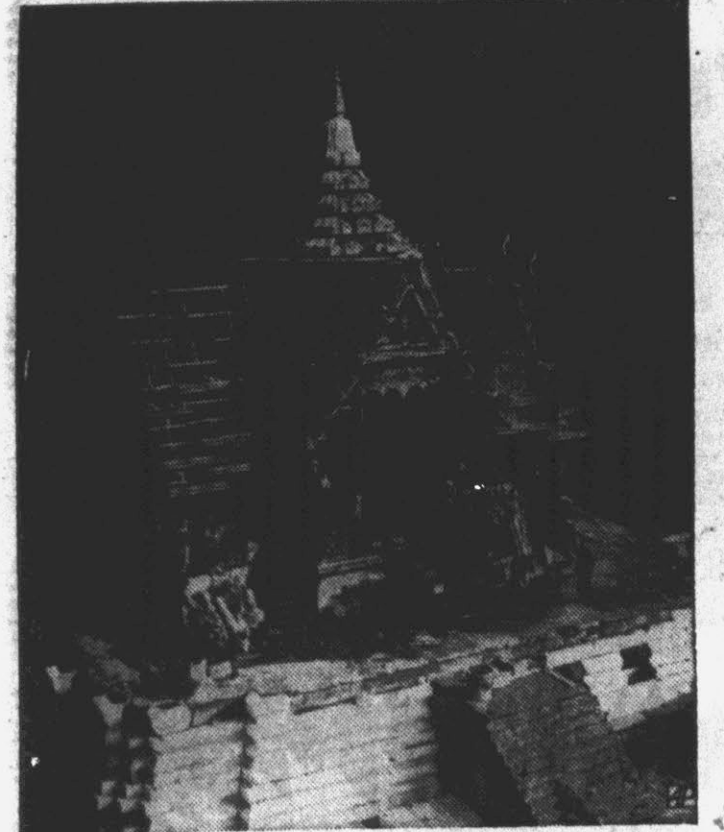

MEDINA, Ohio (AP)—A loaded coal truck rammed into the side of the Baltimore & Ohio's Chicago bound Capital Limited just south of nearby Lodi today, derailing 13 cars and injuring at least eight persons.

The derailed passenger cars remained upright, and the locomotive and first two cars were not derailed, Marshal M. M. Chapman of Lodi said.

At Lodi Hospital, eight persons were brought in and six received emergency treatment and were released, a hospital spokesman said. The other two were reported in fair condition.

Marshal Chapman said the loaded coal truck, pulling a loaded trailer, was on a downgrade northbound on Ohio 76 when it struck the locomotive. He said that when he arrived, the truck driver and his helper were walking along the tracks, bleeding severely. He took both to the hospital.

CHAPTER 9

Price Regan had no choice. Rose had an ugly look on her face as if she would just as soon pull the trigger of the shotgun as not.

Cronin said, "Better do what she says, Regan. I don't want to see you shot, but she'll do it if you make her."

Price glanced at Rose. Again. She said, "Hurry up. Get out of that saddle."

Price stepped down, wondering if he had any chance if he pulled his gun. But Cronin was unarmed, and shooting a woman even under these circumstances went against the grain.

"Take off your gun belt," Cronin said. "Hang it over the saddle horn. Then tie your horse." He motioned to the hitch rack in front of the store.

Price obeyed and stepped away from his horse. Then Cronin was on him, swinging a great fist from his knees, and Rose shrieked, "Kill him. Kill him!"

Price tipped his head to one side, Cronin's fist rapped his ear. He caught Cronin with an up-swinging right that jarred him but didn't stop him. The man was bigger than Price, and stronger; he was like a bull. He kept boring in, striking with his left and then his right.

Backing up, Price took the blows on his shoulders as much as he could, or on his arms. He knew if he was hit any more, he couldn't win a fight by blocking the other man's punches, and when he did connect, his blows seemed to have no more effect on Cronin than a gnat buzzing in his ear.

The trouble was, he couldn't land a solid punch. He was always off balance, ducking and feinting and pivoting in a desperate effort to keep from being knocked out by one of Cronin's roundhouse blows. It would have taken only one, for Cronin's fists carried the authority of a mule kick.

The pattern of the fight was set. Price steadily retreating and circling so that now they had returned to the place where they had started. Like Curly Blue earlier today, Cronin was not an imaginative man. He didn't vary the pattern; he seemed satisfied to keep pursuing Price, to keep throwing punches, confident that sooner or later he'd nail Price on the jaw and that would end it. He did get a blow through that was partially blocked, but still had enough steam behind it to knock Price and hurt him, and for a moment Cronin's face was a blur.

That one blow verified what he already knew, that he had to change tactics. He did, suddenly and without warning. He waited until Cronin was slightly off balance, having missed one of his tremendous uppercuts; then Price reversed himself and, bending low, charged headlong into Cronin, his head hitting the man in the belly.

Price heard wind go out of Cronin, a long oof, and for a short moment Cronin seemed paralyzed as his empty lungs searched for breath. His mouth was open, his eyes distended. Price brought his head up in a savage thrust. He caught Cronin square under the chin; he heard teeth snap together, and as he stepped back he saw blood run down Cronin's chin.

Price swarmed all over him, hitting him hard and fast with both fists. He nailed Cronin on the temple, on the opposite side of the head, on the nose and on the chin. Cronin floundered, badly hurt, fists clubbing at Price but doing no great damage. He sledged Cronin with a straight right to the jaw, and Cronin's legs went rubbery and he fell.

He wasn't knocked cold, but as Price got to his feet and backed away Cronin showed no inclination to get up. Rose pointed the shotgun at Price again. She was crying, tears running down her face. "Get up, Walt." She wiped a dirty sleeve across her face. "You can whip him, Walt. Get

Warn Recession In U.S. To Run Through Autumn

GENEVA (AP)—The U.N. Economic Commission for Europe predicts the recession in the United States probably will run at least through autumn and Western Europe had better start doing something to help itself.

But the United States downturn was not blamed entirely for the European economic outlook. The commission reported the West European boom has been losing strength for two years, due in part to the tight money policies of most West European governments.

In its annual survey, the commission said the U.S. business downturn is bound to affect Western Europe through most of 1958 because American businessmen and consumers will be buying less all over the world.

Not only will this result in fewer U.S. purchases in Europe this year but Asian, African and Latin American countries will buy less in Europe because their own income will be curtailed by fewer orders from the United States, it said.

For the United States itself, the commission forecast lower personal income and less money to buy things. An upturn "seems unlikely before autumn at the earliest," the report said.

In London, the U.S. Embassy's top economist, Edwin M. Martin, told the American Chamber of Commerce that he believes the U.S. economy will level off by summer or fall and start an upturn by December. He added that "a depression with wide international impact is not in the cards."

The 400-page report suggested that European governments with strict credit controls could relax them as one way of softening the shock of the U.S. recession.

Rebel Sympathizers End Seven-Day Hunger Strike

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Brownsville. Authorities said Thirty-five Cuban rebel sympathizers have ended a seven-day hunger strike called to protest American arms shipments to President Batista in Cuba.

Only 17 of the original 35 were in the Cameron County jail when the strike ended. Eighteen others were in a hospital because of their weakened condition. All were fed bouillon. During the night they received milk, toast, crackers and fruit juice.

The 35 are charged with conspiracy to violate the U.S. Neutrality Act. Federal Judge James V. Alfred set a habeas corpus hearing for them Friday morning in District Court here.

McKinnon To Be Successor To M. B. Seawell

RALEIGH (AP)—Henry A. McKinnon Jr., attorney of Lumberton, will become resident superior court judge of the 16th Judicial District succeeding Malcolm B. Seawell, effective April 16.

His appointment was announced yesterday by Gov. Hodges, who said McKinnon "has all the qualifications for doing an outstanding job."

Seawell has been named attorney general to succeed George B. Patton, who has resigned, effective April 15, to campaign for the superior court judgeship in his home district.

McKinnon, 38, a native of Maxton, graduated from the Duke University Law School in 1947. Since then he has practiced law with his father, H. A. McKinnon Sr., in Lumberton. He received his A. B. degree at Duke in 1943 and served in the U.S. Army from 1943 to 1945.

Price Cuts Are Appearing Today, At Retail Level

By SAM DAWSON
 NEW YORK (AP) — A few price cuts are appearing here and there today even at the retail level. In general, prices have defied the recession. The cost of living goes on rising although in many lines industrial output has tumbled. This makes this one a very costly recession. Producers say their high costs make it preferable to try to bring supply into line with present demand by cutting back production rather than to try to boost demand by cutting prices and thus keep factories and mines working near to capacity.

But some industrial materials did fall in price — copper, lead, zinc and now aluminum. The big Canadian producer of aluminum says frankly that it is cutting the price in the hope of finding more

Little Impact From Change In Corporate Taxes

RALEIGH (AP) — State Revenue Commissioner James S. Currie says the net effect of the change in the state's corporate income tax law enacted by the 1957 Legislature "is not as great as anticipated."

He said this yesterday in reporting to Gov. Hodges that another decline was shown in the state's general fund revenues during March. Collections of $47,000,831 for the month were off 5.3 per cent or $3,113,548 from March last year.

Currie pointed out that "one should be careful not to misconstrue these decreases to indicate an over-pessimistic collection outlook. Despite the fact that February was a month of bad shopping weather, sales tax collections... were only 3.04 per cent below the same month last year."

When the General Assembly was considering the new corporate tax law, it was predicted the changes would cause a net loss of about seven million dollars annually.

Currie noted a bright side to the March revenue report. Highway fund revenues totaled $8,207,060, an increase of $704,773 or 9.25 per cent over March last year.

Sales tax collections for the month totaled $5,072,153, a drop of $139,058 in comparison with March, 1957. Income tax collections amounted to $32,977,083, as compared with $4,881,028 during March last year.

Individual income tax collections were down by 1.54 per cent, Currie said, and collections from corporations declined 8.26 per cent from March last year.

For the fiscal year to date, individual income tax collections are running 649 per cent above last year while corporation collections are down 4.24 per cent.

For the fiscal year, general fund revenues are running slightly ahead of last year. The nine-month total is $162,087,734, a gain of $10,970 over the same period a year ago.

customers in those fields where aluminum competes with other metals.

The consumer cares very little about the manufacturers' costs of fluctuations in the price of industrial materials. He's interested primarily in the final price to him.

Lower prices at retail are still quite spotty and inconclusive, outside of the usual clearance sales and the running battle between the discounters and the department stores.

But now two large mail order houses are out with new catalogues, showing in a number of instances price cuts of some 15 per cent since the start of the year. A third says it is readying some price cuts too.

Dropping of fair trade restrictions on retail prices by some makers of small home appliances has brought bargains — and sales — in these lines.

Surpluses in the oil industry have caused gasoline prices to fall in a number of localities, although the industry has cut back production of crude oil to the lowest point in a long time.

Car buyers are getting trade-in deals that are well below the suggested list prices of the car makers.

The latest big jump in the government's cost of living index was blamed largely on higher food prices.

But the index went up for other reasons too. The charge for services still increases. Transportation costs tend to go higher here and there. And rents haven't stopped their long slow uphill climb.

But the current popular theory that prices must always rise and that nothing can bring them down is far from proved. The consumer can hope at least for a few more price cuts from time to time.

Not Much Choice In Buying Ring

GREENFIELD, Ind. (AP) — Young Janet Blue didn't have much choice on which ring to buy in a Greenfield jewelry store.

"I believe I'll take this one," she told the clerk.

The clerk asked if she wanted it wrapped.

"No," Janet replied casually. "I'll just wear it. As a matter of fact, I can't get it off my finger."

Anachronism In Business World

BUTLER, N.J. (AP) — Charlie Anderson is a merchandising anachronism, a personification of historical romanticism and a link with America's colorful past.

He runs a store in which you might find: spinning wheels, bird seed, foot warmers, 1893 newspapers, and 1958 garbage cans.

Charlie's ambition: To move "away out" from the hustle and bustle and run "a nice, friendly general store."

Spain To Give Up Protectorate

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Spain has agreed in secret talks to turn over to Morocco the 15,000-square-mile Spanish protectorate of Southern Morocco, a Spanish Embassy spokesman said.

The almost barren area of desert nomads has been in dispute between the two nations since Morocco won freedom from France in 1956 and Spain then handed over her protectorate in Northern Morocco.

Foreign Ministers Fernando Maria Castella of Spain and Ahmed Balafrej of Morocco agreed to formal transfer April 10.

Desperate Tone In That Draft

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — Edwin C. Beares, historian at Vicksburg National Military Park and avid researcher, has turned up another Civil War story, this one about the Confederate manpower shortage of 1864.

The story, found in a diary, tells about Gen. Jubal Early who was attending church services near Lexington, Va.

The fire-and-brimstone preacher posed this question to his congregation: "What would you do if you saw your dead come marching back by the hundreds and thousands?"

During the pause that followed, Gen. Early whispered to an aide: "Conscript every damned one of them."

U. S. And Russia Will Match Cultures At Brussels

By EDDY GILMORE

BRUSSELS (AP) — A close-range, cultural cold war between the United States and Russia will begin April 17. And the United States is in danger of losing.

The defeat—if it occurs—will be at the Brussels World's Fair before 35 million people who are expected to throng the exhibition before it closes Oct. 19.

The United States has plenty of cultural evidence to exhibit and knows how to show it. But the trouble is money — money to mount the American effort and keep it going in style.

The United States has a cramped budget for the fair. The Russians are spending lavishly. They also enjoy another advantage.

The U. S. S. R. has only to order its state-paid artists to perform at Brussels and they perform. No questions asked and no union troubles.

Russians Quiet

The Russians will show magnificent works of art from the Hermitage Museum near Leningrad and into a half-dozen Brussels theaters.

"We plan to swamp the city with our artists," said one Soviet spokesman.

Dollar-shy American officials are asking the country's top singers, musicians, and other performers to give their services free. They've turned to the movie industry and show business for other help.

There has been a cheering response.

Opera Premiere

The United States cultural program will include two art shows, movies, opera, theater, ballet, and performances by individual artists and orchestral groups.

High on the list of American contributions to the fair will be the world premiere of Gian Carlo Menotti's opera "Maria Golovin." Opening date for this work commissioned by the National Broadcasting Company for the NBC Opera Company will be Aug. 20.

Menotti will stage the work. Peter Herman Adler will conduct and Samuel Chotzinoff will be producer.

rick; soprano Eleanor Steber; baritone Robert McFerrin; baritone William Wakefield; pianist Rosalind Turek; soprano Blanche Thebom; pianist Leon Fleisher; violinist Berl Senesky; and pianist John Browning.

The list of contributors to the American Folk Art section is massive. Paintings will include such pictures as: De Kooning's "Gotham News" (valued at $5,000), Marin's "The Old Salt" ($2,750), Hoppers' "New York Movie" ($8,000), Shan's "Avenue" ($10,000), Tohey's "Voyage en Blanc" ($6,000) and Roszak's "Firebird" ($25,000). And these American owned paintings by foreign artists: Mondrian's "Victory Boogie-Woogie" ($100,000), Picasso's "La Femme d'Albion" ($150,000), Chézy's "La Montagne Sainte Victoire" ($100,000) and many more.

The Martha Baird Rockefeller Fund has contributed $60,000 towards transporting the Julliard Orchestra to Brussels.

The Ford Motor Co. has given $200,000 towards the super modern movie theater that will show spectacular scenes of the United States.

On Easter Sunday, Community Will Assist A Blinded Friend

CENTERVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The light of day has been lost to Mrs. Eva Doty for 13 years, but the light of love and faith burns brighter than ever with the approach of this Easter Sunday.

The advent of spring has always meant much to Mrs. Doty, because it heralded the footsteps of Centerville youngsters bringing flowers for her to "see" with her hands.

But this year there's a special reason: for the first time in more than a decade, Mrs. Doty will attend Easter services at the tiny Primitive Baptist Church where her husband Elijah is pastor.

It wasn't her blindness with kept her away. Despite the handicap, Mrs. Doty has served as telephone operator for the local rural exchange—linking 140 farm families—for the past 17 years.

This Sunday, however, a neighbor will take Mrs. Doty's place at switchboard, which can't be left unattended. The telephone subscribers all know Mrs. Doty wants to go to church Sunday and there won't be any calls except in an emergency.

Mrs. Doty lost the use of her left eye when she was 11, hit by a rock in the schoolyard. Later, she married farmer Elijah Doty, who became a minister. They had four sons and a daughter. In 1941, Mrs. Doty took over the Centerville telephone switchboard.

Three years later, tragedy struck again.

Her son Robert, then 10, was playing with a silingshot in the yard. He shot a rock which struck his mother in the right eye, rendering her totally blind.

Undaunted, Eva Doty still faced life with a smile. Her sight was gone, but she could still "see" the telephone switchboard, her house and its furniture, the flowers in her back yard—and those which Centerville youngsters brought her knowing her fondness for plants.

A visit to the Doty home tells the story. Mrs. Doty sits at the little switchboard beside a front window, her fingers unerring as she answers calls. The house is tidy, and she does her housework with sure steps.

"When I leave the switchboard," she explains, "I turn on a bell system. This way I can do my housework."

Although the exchange "closes" at 8 p.m. in winter and 9 p.m. in summer, the Dotys answer calls regardless of the time they come in. On some nights there are bound to be emergencies among 140 families.

"I remember when we stayed up all night once trying to get a doctor to a dying man," the Rev. Mr. Doty says. A blizzard was raging and in the sick man's home "the telephone battery was low—we could hear a frantic voice only faintly. But we finally found out what was needed."

The doctor who started out from a nearby community got stuck in the snow, and it was daylight when he finally arrived in a truck. It was too late, but it wasn't the Dotys' fault.

The job, with its confining demands which keep Mrs. Doty close to the switchboard, pays $120 a month, but "it's helping others that counts," Elijah Doty says.

"We get a wonderful feeling of satisfaction out of serving people day and night," says Mrs. Doty.

On Easter Sunday, the little community in the southern Illinois hills will serve Mrs. Doty by seeing her to church.

Wages, Benefits Freeze Rejected

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers has rejected American Motors' suggested two-year freeze on wages and fringe benefits for the firm's automotive workers.

The union said it "deplored the fact that American Motors seeks to put the whole or major cause of its competitive disadvantage on the shoulders of its workers."

The company told the UAW earlier it will seek new contracts to eliminate further cost-of-living allowances and the built-in annual pay raise of 6 cents an hour based on increased productivity.

The union will open contract talks with AMC April 15. The present three-year pact, covering 10,000 union members, expires June 15.

Edward L. Cushman, AMC vice president for industrial relations, told a news conference his firm has "higher wages, more costly benefits and plant practices" than its Big Three competitors, General Motors, Chrysler and Ford.

He said a wage freeze would permit the other three firms to catch up with AMC in labor costs.

The UAW accused AMC of "distorting, misrepresenting and exaggerating its labor costs."

The union recessed its bargaining talks at Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. after completing presentation of its profit sharing and other contract demands.

Negotiations will be resumed at Ford April 11 and at Chrysler April 15. Talks at General Motors are in recess until Tuesday.

Payne's Revenge Got Those Girls

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (AP)—The average cool fool in the U.S. platter-chatter biz may have it made for moles, but how's he fixed for dignity?

Now dix us, cats: with a deejay in the U.K. money is strictly secondary, or even tertiary, but you call him a square with fair hair and it's fountain pens at 40 paces. In the United Kingdom, if a disc jockey's alive, he won't take that jive.

This is why four of the gone gals at Wisbech High have been slinking about lately with their knees in the breeze, a sight which will go down in school annals as "Jack Payne's Revenge."

Payne is the platter-spinner on the British Broadcasting Corp.'s television show Off the Record. Not long ago he made some aside remarks about the modern school of popular singers.

This irked four of the 17-year-old chicks in the sixth form at Wisbech, and they composed and mailed a mild letter of reproof. Among other things, they told Payne:

"Your program is out of the groove.

"Cut the cackle. If you don't like modern music, get your face off the screen.

"If there is a vacancy in a kid's program, you are invited to apply for it."

In this country, without dignity a man is nothing. So Payne quickly fired back a letter of complaint to the school headmistress, describing the firming four as "rude and vulgar."

The headmistress, Miss D. M. Leonard, took prompt disciplinary action. She ruled that the offending quartette would have to wear their gymnasium slips—a kind of short-skirted blue serge play uniform—throughout the school day for the rest of the term.

This was real punishment, for nobody this side of Marilyn Monroe is ever going to give off glamor in a gym slip.

Said Payne: "I thought that the letter, coming as it did from youngsters, was rude and ill-mannered."

"I'm sorry that the girls were punished, but dash it all, these modern youngsters — well, you know what I mean."

Said one of the letter writers from the solid sixth: "I'm a big girl now and it wasn't nice having to wear a shapeless gym tunic two inches above the knee. Jack Payne? I think he's a bigger square than ever."

$1.8 Million Is Granted To City

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—A $1,875,000 federal grant has been set aside for this city's urban redevelopment program.

The Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency announced the grant approval yesterday and said it had given the city $39,920 to plan the slum clearance and redevelopment of a square-mile area in East Winston.

The grant will be turned over to the city upon completion of formal application, which Mayor Marshall Kurfess says is assured.

The federal money covers about two-thirds of the project's first phase, which totals $2,250,000. The city must cover the rest.

Reps Threaten To Take Action In Boxing Picture

Unless Westerner Gets Title Bout

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two representatives today threatened congressional action unless one of two Western boxers gets a crack at the world heavyweight title.

Reps. Engle (D-Calif.) and Udall (D-Ariz.) agreed in a joint statement that the winner of the April 9 Eddie Machen-Zora Folley fight in San Francisco will be the only logical contender for the heavyweight crown held by Floyd Patterson of New York City.

They accused Patterson's manager, Gus D'Amato, of refusing to let the champion fight either Machen or Folley. They called it "Eastern city slicker tactics."

"D'Amato was not available for comment. He is enroute to New York by ship from London."

Machen, undefeated in 23 fights, is from Redding, Calif. Folley, with only 2 losses and 1 draw in 42 bouts, is from Chandler, Ariz.

"If big Eastern promoters continue putting a freeze on small-town Western fighters, we believe Congress should act to prevent such monopolistic conduct," the Engle-Udall statement said.

"If the last Western country-boy champion had been given the run-around Patterson and his handlers have been giving logical contenders today, Jack Dempsey might still be stranded in Manassa, Colo., waiting for a title fight."

Engle and Udall said the winner of the San Francisco fight should get a title shot some time this summer. In event of a draw, they said, they'll be satisfied if Patterson fights either Machen or Folley.

Unless there is such a title fight, the congressmen said, they will prepare legislation "to set up bona fide national standards and a national supervisory commission which will result in real national championships—not regulated titles controlled by a few New York manipulators."

Rose Tracksters Crush Roanoke Rapids Team

Robert Howell and the Rose High school track team posted their second win in three meets here yesterday, crushing Roanoke Rapids, 96½-16½. Greenville took every single first place. The meet—a 12-event affair—was a Northeastern Conference match. It was held at Guy Smith Stadium.

Howell, the leading Phantom point man, took four first places to pace the Greenville club to their most decisive triumph of the season thus far. Howell nabbed first in the broad jump, 100-yard dash, 180 low hurdles, and 220-yard dash. Taking other first places for Greenville were Roebuck in the shot (he also tied Bilbro for first in the high jump. Both are from Greenville), Crawford in the discus, Nunn in the pole vault, Everette in the mile run and the 120 high hurdles, Noble in the 880, and Duff in the 440.

Besides grabbing all the firsts, the G-Men had scattered positions among the second and third place slots.

The mile relay team of Everett, Owens, Ross and Roberts also took that event.

Next meet on the card for Coach Odel Welborn's defending Northeastern Conference champs will be at Nw Bern on April 16.

Braves Break Camp; 'We Are Ready'—Haney

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—The world champion Milwaukee Braves broke their Florida training camp today. Manager Fred Haney said the team would be ready if the season opened tomorrow.

"The players I am counting on are in good shape," he said. "The weather hasn't been too good, but we have pushed every chance we have had and from now on the fringes will have to get in what work they can in batting, pitching and fielding practices."

"Our club is set for the opener at practically every position."

The Braves headed for Jacksonville, where they were matched against Los Angeles with left-hander Warren Spahn slated to make one of his infrequent starts against the Dodgers. Bob Rush was scheduled to work the late innings.

The assignment of Spahn to the starting role means that Haney has established his pitching rotation. Others who will appear in turn are Lew Burdette, who may turn out to be the top winner on the squad this year, and Bob Buhl, who still needs more work to reach his peak.

While his starting rotation is set, Haney still has an abundance of pitching talent, including Carlton Willey, brilliant curve ball hurler who has been picked as a candidate for Rookie of the Year honors.

Haney hinted the young right-hander has earned a place on the roster when he said Willey, Ernie Johnson and Bob Trowbridge are his "long men"—early relief pitchers who figure to produce four or five good innings and then leave for a pinch batter.

Skowron Always Starts To Worry In Clean-Up Slot

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

It seems Bill Skowron always starts to worry whenever he's pushed into the cleanup spot in the New York Yankees' batting order during the regular season. So Manager Casey Stengel decided he'd put him there in the spring exhibitions and let him get his worryin' over early.

If Skowron still is worrying, this kind of worry could put the guys who make the tranquilizers out of business.

The Moose—not Mickey Mantle—leads the American League champs with a .415 batting average, seven home runs and 20 RBI. He rapped two homers again yesterday as the Yanks beat Washington 7-5.

Skowron helped push Yankee starter Johnny Kucks into a 6-0 lead with his slam off Camilo Pascual in the second. But the young righthander blew most of it and the score was 6-5 after the fifth when Neil Christley drove in three with a double. The Moose got a solo homer in the ninth off Bud Beyerly.

Best pitching was at Sarasota, Fla., where Boston beat Pittsburgh 2-0. Both runs were scored in the eighth on a pair of wild pitches by rookie southpaw Joe Gibbon. The Red Sox had just one hit, Don Buddin's first inning single, through seven off Ron Kline and Bob Smith. Ike DeLoach and Leo Kieley combined for the shut-out for Boston.

Jim Bunning went all the way for Detroit and allowed Cincinnati to score in the eighth.

Expected to start for Greenville on the mound will be either Joe Moyer, Ronnie Finch, or Merrill Bynum.

Phantoms Play Washington

WASHINGTON—It was announced this morning that the Greenville Washington high school baseball game originally scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, will be played today here.

The change in the schedule is connected with the Easter holidays, according to school officials.

Expected to start for Greenville on the mound will be either Joe Moyer, Ronnie Finch, or Merrill Bynum.

only three base runners over the last six innings, but by then it was too late. Gus Bell homered in the first and Smoky Burgess slugged one with a man on in the second to beat the Tigers 3-2. Brooks Lawrence, Charley Rabe and Jay Hook shut off the Tigers with five hits.

The Tigers bought outfielder Stan Palys from the Redlegs for an undisclosed price. This may mean Cincinnati has decided to go with outfielder Vada Pinson, the rookie phenom up from Class C. But also it might mean the Reds are ready to swap Burgess for an established outfielder.

Philadelphia caught up late on Harry Anderson's eighth-inning homer, matched a Dodger run in the 12th and finally won 4-3 in 14 innings on a bases-loaded single by Willie Jones. Shortstop Andre Rodgers scored a two-run homer in the ninth that gave San Francisco a 9-8 win over Baltimore.

The Chicago Cubs whipped Cleveland 8-2, scoring three in the first two innings off Mike Garcia, and socking away four in the ninth off Hal Woodeschick on Bob Speake's homer and Lee Walls' bases-loaded double.

Snider Recovering, Back In Baseball Game

Centerfielder Duke Snider of the Los Angeles Dodgers is flying out to centerfield in an exhibition with the New York Yankees at spring camp in St. Petersburg, Fla. Yogi Berra is the catcher. Snider is recovering from a knee operation. He made his second start of the season in an exhibition game.

Ken Venturi May Be Too Eager To Complete His Masters Mission

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Ken Venturi is a young man with a mission in the Masters Golf Tournament, but the question is: Is he too eager?

"That is the danger," Byron Nelson, Ken's long-time tutor, said today, prior to the first-round tee-off.

"Venturi is playing beautifully. He is hitting the ball like a rifle shot. He is on fire with determination."

"I only hope he is not too intense. I don't think he is. But he is dying to win this tournament."

Winning the Masters title has been a driving ambition of the good-looking, 26-year-old San Franciscan since he blew it with a last-round 80 two years ago, when Jack Burke Jr. won.

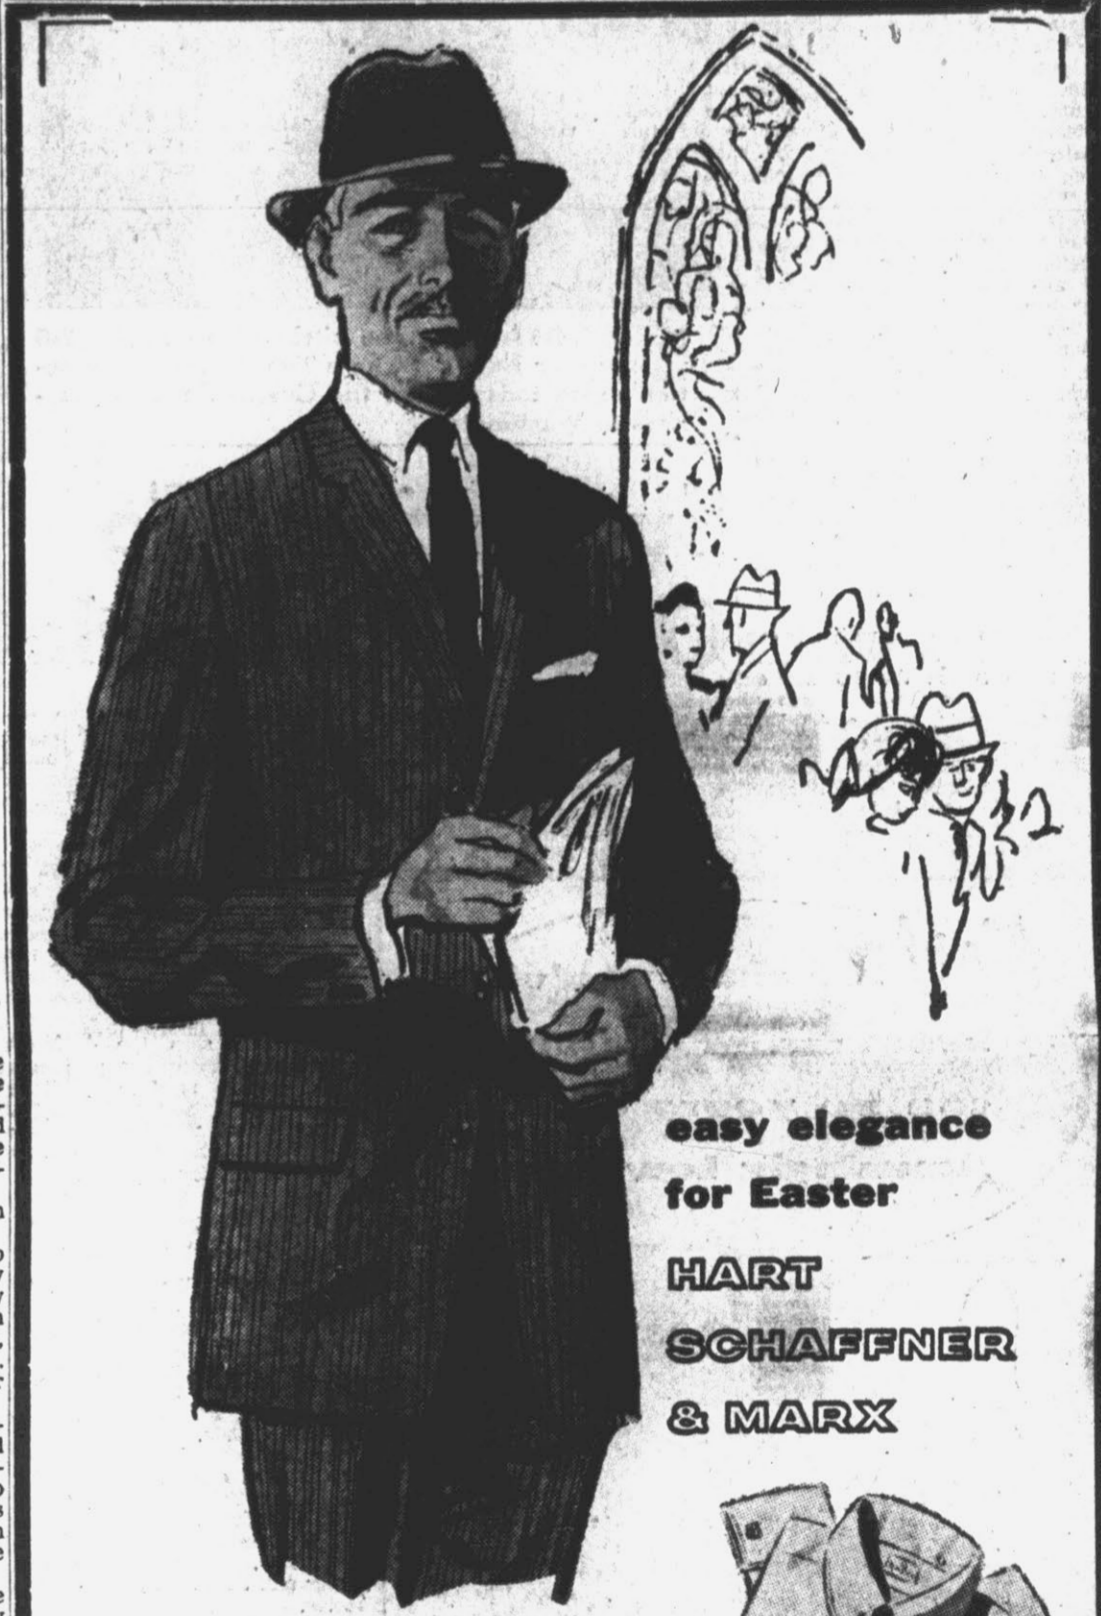

"I aged 20 years in those four hours," Venturi said. "Ever since that day every shot I have made has been aimed at redeeming myself."

Venturi and Sam Snead have been tabbed cofavorites at 4-1 in an unofficial "book" which has spread over the 6,980-yard Augusta National course.

Venturi is the new hotshot of the rugged professional tour, leading money winner, victor in three winter tournaments and one of the most respected craftsmen among the pros themselves.

Snead is the ageless wonder from the Virginia Hills, at 46 still a superb athlete with a flawless swing who drives the ball like a cannon blast. He has won more golf tournaments and probably more money than any man alive but he is still followed by the ghost of dubbed putts and missed opportunities.

The starting field numbers 86 and includes most of the golf masters of the world. Seven countries in addition to the United States are represented.

Dixie Classic Is In Final Round Today At Raleigh

N.C. State And Carolina Play For Championship

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The third annual Dixie Baseball Clinic goes into its final round today, with Atlantic Coast Conference rivals North Carolina and North Carolina State vying for the championship held previously by Wake Forest.

North Carolina's Tar Heels scouted Connecticut 12-3 and State's Wolfpack beat Wake Forest 5-1 in last night's second round. In afternoon games, Massachusetts set-back Lafayette (Pa) and Duke beat Princeton 9-6.

The Classic ends its three tournament days with Lafayette playing Princeton for seventh place and Massachusetts meeting Duke for fifth position this afternoon.

In night games, Wake Forest takes on Connecticut before the State-Tar Heel contest. All games are at Winston-Salem.

Meanwhile, the ACC's Clemson plays host today to Michigan State.

The Wolfpack dropped Wake Forest's Deacons out of contention on Danny Casteen's two hit-ter. The 6-3 soph righthander allowed the Deacons to take a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning, but his teammates rallied for three runs in the fifth and added two more for insurance in the eighth.

The Tar Heels, sending 14 men to bat in the first frame, knocked across eight runs and coasted to victory. Connecticut staged a two-run seventh inning rally, but the fire went out.

Duke, the only one of the four ACC hosts to lose in the first round, found Princeton's Ivy Leagueers making a scrap of it for a 5-5 tie after five innings. The Blue Devils pushed three runs across in the decisive sixth.

Princeton answering with only one run. Another Blue Devil tally in the ninth sealed the 9-6 win on nine hits.

Massachusetts, with a 4-0 lead going into the fifth, saw Lafayette smack out a three-run challenge in the sixth inning. The Bay State squad pulled ahead in their end of the frame with another run and the 5-3 winning margin.

Rubarb Over High Schooler's Built-Up Shoes

BIG SPRING, Tex. (AP)—A rubarb developed today over whether Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian and Dave Sims of Duke, two of the world's top sprinters, should be allowed to wear built-up shoes in the AB relays. Thornton's coach, Delmer Brown, says if his boy is ruled out he will pull his entire team from the meet.

Thornton won the Texas Relays high jump using a strip of rubber beneath the sole of his regular shoe. Brown said it was an orthopedic measure, Thornton having sprained his ankle arch while in high school.

Coch McAdoo Keaton of Southern Methodist, whose high jumpers—Bertil Holmgren and Don Stewart—were defeated by Thornton in the Texas Relays, protested the use of the built up sole, pointing out that track and field authorities looked with disfavor on a high jumper wearing shoes with built-in soles. Russians, using these kind of shoes, did some 7-foot high jumping last summer and the NCAA will decide in June if built-up shoes can be used.

The question was put up to the ABC Relays committee and it was decided at a meeting yesterday that the coaches of college teams in the track meet would vote on whether Thornton can wear the shoes. The vote is supposed to be taken tomorrow when the meet opens with preliminaries in the high school division.

The rubarb over the shoe edged in on the principal topic of discussion surrounding the track meet Saturday—a dual between Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian and Dave Sims of Duke, two of the world's top sprinters, should be allowed to wear built-up shoes in the 100-yard dash.

Suggestions To Outlaw Ballparks

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick today shrugged off a suggestion that he refuse to allow any ballparks which may be set in the stop-gap Los Angeles and San Francisco ball parks this season.

"I don't see how you can outlaw any park where major league ball is played," he said, "but I don't think the home run is going to be that much of a problem in either park anyway."

A national sports magazine said such players as Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants and Duke Snider of the Los Angeles Dodgers each would have chances of playing 88 games in the two parks and suggested Frick take steps to prevent a "joke home-run record."

"I haven't seen the Coliseum (where the Dodgers will play their home games until a park is built)," Frick admitted, "but I don't think it will be any more of a home run haven than the Polo Grounds, for instance."

"Most of the home run hitters have their best power to right and left center or dead-away-center anyway."

In converting the Coliseum, the Dodgers decided to erect a 40-foot screen between the field and the seats down the left field line, which runs some 250 feet. The left field foul line trickles a little farther—300 feet—before running into the stands.

The Coliseum layout offers 440 feet to dead center, 425-430 to left center and 390-420 to right center. Seals Stadium, where the Giants will play, measures 355 feet down either line, 375 to left and right-center and about 410 or so to dead center.

Bob Thompson Traded To Cubs

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The San Francisco Giants today traded veteran right handed hitting outfielder Bobby Thomson to the Chicago Cubs for left handed hitting Bob Speake and cash.

Thomson, whose home run in the ninth inning of the final playoff game with Brooklyn won the 1951 National League pennant for the Giants, had rejoined the club in mid-1957. He had been traded to Milwaukee prior to the 1954 season.

Striving to obtain more left handed hitting, the Giants got a 27-year-old outfielder who hit 2.32 for the Cubs last season, including 16 home runs, 5 triples and 14 doubles. He hit .300 for Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast League during 1956.

Thomson had a 240 average last season as he divided his time between Milwaukee and the Giants. The 34-year-old outfielder hit .300 for the Giants in 1949 and .293 in 1951 for his best years. He has hit .325 in the spring training games this year.

The amount of cash involved in the deal was not disclosed.

Calhoun Scores Sixth-Round KO Over Pompey

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Rory Calhoun scored a sixth round technical knockout over Yolande Pompey in a televised fight here last night that sent Pompey to a hospital for about an hour.

Dr. John Ambach halted the fight after Calhoun connected with a hard right to Pompey's jaw in the fifth. Pompey subsequently couldn't move his neck.

Physicians at St. Joseph Infirmary here said Pompey had suffered a spasm of the neck muscles. The fighter from Trinidad said he suffered a similar injury two years ago in England.

He was released from the hospital after doctors put 10 stitches in a cut over his left eye which Calhoun had opened in the third round.

The happy Calhoun, who now has a 34-3-1 record, said last night was the first time in a long time I felt strong and ready to punch.

He was never in trouble in the bout, televised nationally (ABC) from Freedom Hall. Calhoun-pummeled Pompey for the first two rounds and continued hitting away at Pompey's cut eye after the third.

Calhoun, sixth ranked middleweight according to Ring Magazine, went into the fight at 161 1/2, 3 1/2 pounds lighter than the scaled-down Pompey.

Pompey, Ring's third ranked light heavyweight, now has a 34-5-3 record.

Lassiter's Lead Is Whittled To Only 247 Points

CHICAGO (AP)—Jimmy Moore of Albuquerque, N.M., has cut the lead of Luther Lassiter, Elizabeth City, N.C., to 247 points in their national championship pocket billiards match.

Moore defeated the national title 223 to 150 last night in 12 innings of their 3,000-point series. Lassiter had an unfinished run of 99 to win the afternoon block, 150-118, in four innings. He leads 2,100 points to 1,853 after seven days of competition.

Lassiter has won eight of 14 blocks played thus far.

Hawks, Celtics Still At It

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Boston's chances in the National Basketball Assn. championship playoffs well may rest on how quickly Bill Russell can recover from an ankle injury.

The 6-10 Russell injured his ankle last night in the third game of the series between Boston's Celtics and the St. Louis Hawks. St. Louis won the game 111-108.

Russell was removed from the game and taken to Jewish Hospital. X-rays showed his ankle was badly sprained.

He said Russell "might be ready for Saturday and probably will be in the game" April 9 at Boston.

Last night's game, which put the Hawks ahead 2-1 in the best of seven series, was as tough a battle as the first one. The first game was won by St. Louis 104-102. Last Sunday the Celtics won 136-112.

Villagers See No Need To Hold Annual Election

HARRIETTA, Mich. (AP) — This farming village of 200 hasn't had an election in three years. Village Clerk George Lipar says "The Council felt they'd get elected anyway, so why waste the money?"

Under state law a village election should be held annually the first Monday in March.

"What's the use? The same old bunch is always re-elected," said Councilman Louis Lipar, 70-year-old dairy farmer and father of the village clerk. "If anyone wanted an election they could sure get one—if we had the money."

Disuse of the village's franchise came to the attention of state election officials when a resident complained. Wexford County Prosecutor James Herring said he would seek a court order for a special election.

The elder Lipar said the last time a village election was held was in 1955.

"Nobody wanted the election then, but we hadn't had one in three years and we just held one," he explained. "Didn't get much response—only 20 persons cast ballots."

Harrietta has 55 eligible voters. Lipar said all the village officials have been in office 20 years or more and the feeling is that everybody here is happy with the way things are run.

"Besides," he said, "it costs $200 to hold an election. That is more than our $158 general fund budget."

The only two paid officials are the clerk and treasurer. Each gets $75 a year.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A revolutionary change has taken place in the 4" x 5" press camera field. The familiar Speed Graphic, long the symbol of the newspaper photographer, has reached the end of its trail. In its place emerges the all new "Super Graphic 45" in a heroic effort to maintain the position of the 4" x 5" camera to counter a trend toward smaller cameras.

The new look and drastic changes start with the basic box of the Graphic and affects almost every working feature of the camera. The body is now made of aluminum to give lightweight durability and is finished in charcoal and gray for a two-tone smart look.

The old focal plane back has been completely eliminated and in its place is a revolving back which goes a full 360 degrees in any direction with click stops for proper positioning. This will appeal to left-handed photographers and make it easy to change horizontal or vertical format while the camera is on a tripod.

Gone is the distance scale at the front end of the focusing track. It has been replaced by a focusing scale on the top of the camera for easier visibility. In addition, a flash calculator has been combined and coordinated with it so that the act of focusing on the subject automatically gives the correct lens opening for a flash photo. It is first necessary to set a dial to the correct guide number for the flash and film being used.

Internally, the Super Graphic has an electric disposition. It has a built-in BC circuit with self-contained batteries and internal connections to the lensboards and for flash synchronization. When any of the interchangeable lensboards are locked in place, the electric hookups are completed. A button on the camera, located under the thumb when holding the camera, trips the shutter electrically. Or it can be operated from the flash accessories which are connected with the camera and fired in synchronization either on or off the camera.

To assure proper connections, a new "V" cord is provided with a 3-prong polarized plug at one end which fits on the camera body in only one position. At the other end, the two 2-prong plugs are marked for insertion in the proper outlets on the Graflex battery case. No other wires are necessary or can dangle in front of the lens or viewfinder and the camera can be closed with the flash cord still connected.

Greater flexibility has been engineered into the front lensboard. It tilts forward and back, rises and falls, swings right and left and shifts to either side. Either singly or in combination along with a drop in the track bed, these activities accommodate extreme wide angle lenses, correct optical distortion, maintain parallels and increase the depth of field when shooting from an extreme angle. They are especially valuable to the commercial or architectural specialist.

In handling, the camera seems to have a nice balance and "feel". And one notices other touches of precision engineering—like opening and closing the camera by turning either of two knurled knobs. Actually these are the focusing knobs and a slight movement of the focusing track in what closes or opens the camera.

Then there is the quick slide-off release of the focusing panel of the revolving back to accommodate other accessories. These, like the film pack adapter, roll film holder, Grafmatic magazine and Polaroid back, slide on and click into place and become part of the revolving back.

The focusing hood can be snapped off to reveal the full groundglass for critical study with a magnifying glass. It snaps back into position. A metal clip across the bottom of the focusing hood holds the dark slide conveniently while a picture is being shot with cut film.

Another clever convenience is the Preselok tripod mount. This fits any tripod permanently yet a simple, two-finger pressure either mounts or unlocks the camera instantly. Two pins on the accessory fit into two key-hole locks on the Super Graphic to assure safety and rigidity.

Broncho Billy Is Talking A Return

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—His neighbors in the Silver Lake district of Los Angeles have been dropping in to see if it's true.

It's true, all right. They have only to look on the mantle of Mr. Anderson's cluttered little living room to see the shiny, golden Oscar.

Though his neighbors know him as a wise-cracking, slightly eccentric oldster who lives alone in a red frame bungalow, film historians recognize him as Broncho Billy Anderson, leading player in the first story film, "The Great Train Robbery." Because he pioneered the film industry and created the movie Western, the Motion Picture Academy gave him an honorary award last week.

I dropped by to see how he survived the experience.

"I feel 30 years younger," he said. "No more mothballs for me."

Billy, 78, admitted that he was nervous over facing the 2,500 guests at the Pantages Theater. (The Oscar show ran overtime, so the honorary awards were given after the telecast.)

"Fess Parker helped me a lot," he said. "He kept talking to me in whispers. 'Don't be nervous; you can make it.' That fellow Hugh O'Brian helped too. They're both very nice fellows."

The two modern gunliners helped Bette Davis make the award to Broncho Billy. It was a heart-warming moment and proved that movie people can remember the builders who created the business.

The Broncho Billy revival started a month ago when I did a series of columns on the Western. After much negotiation, I landed an interview with Anderson, his first in many years.

It seemed odd to me that the Academy had never honored him, since it had given Oscars to D. W. Griffith, Mack Sennett and others for their contributions to the medium. So I made the suggestion to Academy President George Seaton. He took it up with the board of governors and the Oscar was voted.

Broncho Billy's life has been exciting since. He has had offers to go to New York for TV appearances, make movies, attend a celebration at Niles, Calif., where he founded his Essanay Studios.

What about the offers?

"It's kinda hard to start a new career at my age," he said. "You've not so sure your mind is going to fire real bullets and not just come up with blanks. But I might do a few things. They'd have to be worthwhile, though, nothing undignified."

He reflected on his career: "I suppose I did help build the movie business. But if it hadn't been me, it would have been someone else. Shucks, there was no stopping the motion picture; it had to grow no matter what anyone did to it."

ABC Inspector Fired By Board

By RALEIGH (AP)—James E. Taylor of Charlotte was dismissed as an inspector for the State ABC Board's malt beverage division.

The board announced yesterday it had fired Taylor because his actions had resulted "in confusion and embarrassment" to the board in its efforts "to enforce the law fairly and impartially."

The board said it had questioned Taylor and had conducted a careful investigation into several complaints about him. The board said that "the information before the board established beyond a reasonable doubt" that Taylor "has been guilty of the excessive use of intoxicating liquors on various occasions."

"During the last two or three weeks," the board added, "Taylor had deliberately violated instructions of his office in that he has informed sellers of soft drinks that it is a flat violation of the rules of this board to sell soft drinks to curb customers."

Just how many people have to be out of work before we have a 'serious' situation? Barbee said. He declared that Gov. Hodges "has adopted the Hoover Republican philosophy that the current depression is a myth that will disappear if we close our eyes to the facts and ignore that it exists."

The union official attacked Hodges' opposition to extension of the federal unemployment compensation program. He said the fact that North Carolina's unemployment insurance fund is still solvent "doesn't give one piece of bread or one bean to those who have exhausted their benefits, nor does it give their babies a bottle of milk."

Barbee added, "Behind the worn cloak of so-called 'states rights,' the governor and his Employment Security Commission director are betraying the unemployed workers of North Carolina."

His Explanation Proved Hollow

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP)—When a 20-year-old man was found hiding behind the bar in a locked tavern, he explained: "I'm supposed to clean up the place."

But the persons he told this to were a man and wife hired for that very purpose. A District Court judge put him on probation for three years.

ON THE HOUSE

AP Newsfeatures
CONSIDER THE LAY of the land, literally, in picking a site for your future home. Because, says one of the nation's top site developers and planners, the site or plot is the factor most neglected by home buyers.

A. Carl Stelling, whose New York site engineering firm has won national awards for planning subdivisions, offers this down-to-earth advice to prospective home owners:

"The plot's location in the community, its shape, size, topography and facilities are more important than closets in the house—but they get far less attention.

"Alterations, even additions, to houses can almost always be made, but it is rarely feasible to change the lay of the land."

As a guide to potential home buyers in their evaluation of sites, Stelling's firm has prepared a nine-point checklist. The list ranges from taxes and municipal facilities to future zoning prospects and so-called premium price corner lots.

This is Stelling's checklist:
 1. If possible, pick your home site in or near an established area. If the surrounding community has "aged" gracefully—that is, if its homes have been well maintained and landscaped—you can be fairly confident about the future of the neighborhood.

Look for Shopping Areas
 2. Determine what municipal facilities apply to the site, keeping in mind that those not currently existing may be the basis for future assessments. Seek a neighborhood with as many of these facilities as possible—paved streets, street lights, snow removal service, adequate fire and police protection, adequate schools, sanitary sewers, storm sewers, public water, refuse collection and mail delivery. Look also for a nearby shopping area, houses of worship, parks, theaters and transportation.

Good sources for this type of information are local real estate agents, banks and builders. Also talk to families already living in the neighborhood. Their opinions and knowledge can prove invaluable.

3. Check the taxes on the potential site—and find out from the local planning board or your attorney if new schools, or other locally-financed improvements, are planned. They are apt to boost taxes on your property in the future.

4. Look toward the future. It would be profitable to visit the local town-planning commission to find out about zoning, or the lack of it, in the area of the site. Find out, too, about any plans for highways or other projects which would affect the value of your prospective property. If the community has a master plan, find out what it holds in store for your selected neighborhood. Your attorney will be a good source for this information.

5. In evaluating the size of a lot, think in terms of usable space as well as total area. Generally, the space behind the house will be used for family activities, and it should be adequate. In most cases for your needs. But be certain the site allows room for future expansion—for example, for the addition of a garage, a workshop or an extra wing. If the lot is not served by a public sewer, it should be no less than half an acre in size. In such a case, to be completely safe, try to find a site of an acre or more. Septic tanks sour the soil, and the more land you have the safer you will be where there is no public sewer.

The Function of Frontage
 6. In evaluating the shape of a site, remember that the primary function of the lot's frontage is to provide access to the road. Also remember that frontage in most communities determines the assessments for sewers sidewalks and other municipal facilities. A frontage which is one third the depth of the plot generally provides a proper proportion. If your site is wider at the back than at the front, you're in luck because it will give you a higher proportion of usable space.

7. Avoid sites which are below the level of surrounding streets. Such sites are subject to many annoyances, such as poor drainage and extreme automobile headlights glare from roads and highways. Low-level sites also create difficulties in tying into public sewer systems.

8. Always be wary of water on or near site. There is a possibility of flooding and wet cellars. Lakes and streams also represent a danger to young children. Water in heavily populated areas tends, too, to become increasingly polluted and therefore less useful for recreational purposes.

9. Think twice before paying a premium price for a corner lot. While such lots usually are upgraded on the basis of "prestige," the facts seldom justify the added cost. In many communities, both frontages of a corner lot are subject to assessment. More important, a second "front lawn" takes the place of usable space behind the house. Also, traffic noise and headlight glare come from two sides instead of one—and privacy is reduced.

Special Venire In Double Killing

GOLDSBORO, N.C.—A special Greene County venire has been ordered in Wayne County Superior Court for the murder trial of tenant farmer Gilbert Jones in the deaths of his wife and father-in-law.

Judge William J. Bundy ordered the special panel of 100 prospective jurors yesterday after conferring with Solicitor W. Jack Hooks. The solicitor asserted that publicity of Jones' earlier trial and acquittal in the death of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rebecca Evans, would make jury selection difficult.

Jones' wife Christine and her parents were slain by shotgun blasts at a farmhouse near here last Nov. 1.

Another Service By Lady Mayor

SOUTHPORT, N.C.—Relieved of a gift plug of chewing tobacco, the lady mayor of England's Southport dons colored three-cornered hat and gold badge of office today to render another service to this coastal community of 2,500 persons.

Mrs. Mae Bamber, whose own balliwick of 85,000 is also a shrimp fishing center, will preside over the board of aldermen and put her approval on the first police station. It will house two officers and a tourist information center, but no jail.

She arrived yesterday by plane from Washington, and promptly handed over the tobacco plug that Sen. Scott (D-NC) asked her to give Southport Mayor Eugene B. Tomlinson Jr.

Hundreds of townsfolk motored the 30 miles to Wilmington airport to greet Mrs. Bamber, who last visited here in 1950.

She was guest of honor at a dinner and showed a motion picture of her city.

Her itinerary include a beach tour with Brunswick County officials before leaving tonight for Washington, her mission completed of visiting Southports in Maine, Connecticut and North Carolina on her tour for the British Travel Assn.

MYSTERY SOLVED

DALLAS—Mrs. Roy Lowry, 50, was baffled by three thefts in eight weeks. Rare lace dollies on an overstuffed chair in her living room had been vanishing.

Police could not find a trace of the thief. Then Mrs. Lowry caught the culprit in the act. She spotted a squirrel snatching a fourth dolly and scurrying up the chimney.

FCC Probers Quiz A Former Member

WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators, told yesterday that the White House has had only routine contacts with the FCC, today called a woman Democrat who formerly served on the Federal Communications Commission. Mrs. Frieda Hemlock Simon, an FCC member from 1948-1955, was listed as the final witness in a House subcommittee's current probe of alleged efforts to influence the commission. More hearings on the FCC and other federal regulatory agencies are expected later. For nearly two months, the subcommittee has been looking into allegations of improper pressures and charges that FCC commissioners have accepted favors from the broadcasting industry. The commissioners have denied any wrongdoing. Testifying yesterday, former FCC Chairman George C. McConaughy of Columbus, Ohio, was asked if there had been "a great deal of contact" between White House officials and himself, other than routine referral of letters. "That has been about it—other than security matters," said McConaughy, a Republican lawyer who served on the FCC from 1954 until last year. He said Secretary of Commerce Weeks had nothing to do with the award of a license for Boston's TV Channel 5. Told of reports that Weeks had intervened in the case, McConaughy said he knew nothing of any such intervention by the secretary, who hails from Massachusetts. Weeks never talked to him about the Boston case "in any manner whatsoever," McConaughy said. However, the former FCC chairman said two rival applicants for the Boston channel discussed the case with him before the FCC awarded the license to a subsidiary of the Boston Herald-Traveler Corp. a year ago. McConaughy also said several representatives of the Boston Globe called him and "just read the riot act to me for even considering voting for the Traveler." The Globe was not an applicant for the channel, but objected to any award of the license to the Herald-Traveler newspaper subsidiary.

Note Sales Rise For Tobacco Co.

FLEMINGTON, N.J. (AP)—The American Tobacco Co. reports January and February sales substantially higher than in the same 1957 months, despite a drop in dollar sales. Company President Paul M. Hahn, at the annual stockholders meeting here yesterday, said a radically new filter for cigarettes would be introduced soon in an effort to increase sales.

Signed Marshall Plan Ten Years Ago Today

By JOHN SCALI WASHINGTON (AP)—The President of the United States scratched his name on the bottom of the document. He looked solemnly at the congressional leaders and Cabinet advisers around him and said: "This is a momentous step in the world's quest for an enduring peace."

With these words 10 years ago today, Harry Truman launched the famous Marshall Plan. His signature set in motion perhaps the most massive aid program the world has ever known. Its immediate aim was to save Western Europe, still wracked by the wounds of war, from chaos and communism. It got its name from Gen. George C. Marshall, then secretary of state, who had outlined the plan in an address at Harvard University June 5, 1947. Immediately foreign aid experts rushed the first shipments to Europe. They cut enough corners to move the first shipment—wheat for drought-stricken Austria—to East Coast ports within six days. Even before Paul Hoffman was named Marshall Plan chief April 6, emergency food and raw materials shipments had been arranged for Italy, where Communists were making a big bid for an election victory April 18. The Communists were beaten overwhelmingly. At that time the flow of food, machinery, raw materials and fuel was figured to cost 16 billion dollars in four years. This estimate proved far too optimistic. By June 30 of this year economic and military aid provided overseas countries will total $48,993,600,000. Since the Korean War in 1950, military aid has represented the biggest share of this assistance. If it hadn't been for this surprise Communist attack on Korea, most officials believe the task of helping Western Europe could have ended on schedule in 1952. President Eisenhower joined former President Truman last month in crediting the Marshall Plan with achieving its goal. Eisenhower, appealing for Congress to continue foreign aid for an 11th consecutive year, summed it up this way: "Mutual aid has repeatedly played a major part in keeping free world countries from losing their freedom. It has thwarted the Communist hope of encircling and isolating us."

OTTAWA (AP)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, who won a landslide victory in Monday's national elections, expressed confidence today that Canada and the United States can settle any differences between them. The Conservative leader, who had been in his home province of Saskatchewan since the end of the campaign, returned to the capital to face a barrage of questions about his plans. He was asked by reporters to comment on Secretary of State Dulles' remark that any U. S.-Canadian differences can be erased easily. "I have never said anything else, and anything he said in Washington is entirely in keeping with my own views," Diefenbaker replied. The Diefenbaker plan to shift 15 per cent of Canada's purchases in the United States to Britain was assailed during the campaign by Lester Pearson, leader of the Liberal party. He warned that Diefenbaker might hurt Canada by unnecessarily antagonizing the United States. Diefenbaker predicted an early conclusion of an investigation into reports that Ford Motor Co. of Canada was prevented by U.S. trade policies from exporting passenger cars to Communist China.

Extortionist In $5,000 Demand

CHICAGO (AP)—Police hunted today for an extortionist who they said had demanded $5,000 from a Roosevelt University faculty member, who is a grandson of a New York multimillionaire. The writer threatened harm to his daughters if the money was not paid. Police disclosed that Frank Untermeyer, 42, an assistant professor of political science, his wife and three children have been under police protection since Untermeyer received the extortion threat Monday. Untermeyer is the son of Irwin Untermeyer, retired New York Supreme Court justice and grandson of Samuel Untermeyer, New York corporation lawyer and multimillionaire who died in 1940. Two elaborate police traps were set Monday and Tuesday nights to seize the writer of the extortion note. But police said the extortionist failed to appear at the designated time to meet Untermeyer. Untermeyer and his wife have two daughters, Alice, 8, and Amy, 6, and a son, Frank, 4.

Find $1,000 Bill

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A $1,000 bill, wrapped in a small roll of cloth, was found in the room of May L. Sheeks, 86, who died at the Jackson County Home for the Aged Tuesday night. Miss Sheeks entered the home March 19, 1957, as an indigent person. The money was turned over to the woman's guardian.

Police Round Up Young Loiterers

DETROIT (AP)—Police continued their crackdown on school ground loiterers today after four acts of violence in two days. Two teachers were attacked and three youths stabbed in the outbreaks. Three youths were held for questioning after Richard Christian, 31, a white teacher at Washington Trade School, was pelted with rocks and roughed up by four young Negroes on the school's playground. The day before, Mrs. Ethel Tinscher, 45, a teacher at Denby High School, was beaten by two youths she found loitering in the halls during class hours. She is white and identified her assailants as white. She said she did not think they were Denby students. Andrew Jones, 15, was stabbed twice in the back and Robert King, 17, was slashed on the side of the head in a fight with another youth, Eric Roby, 15, in the basement of McMichael Junior High School near downtown Detroit. All are Negroes and students at the school. Police reported Shelby Hereford, 14, was stabbed in the side and injured seriously. He said he and another boy were playing with knives on the playground at Jacoby School. He identified his companion as Robert Garton, 14. Both are Negroes. Clarence Sailor, William Chisholm and Thomas Hill, all 18, were arrested for investigation of felonious assault a few hours after Christian reported that four Negro youths attacked him. He said he had sought to question them when they walked into a baseball game he was refereeing. The three youths are not students at the school.

EATS POISON BUT SURVIVES—Betty Sue Caughron, 5, of Sevierville, Tenn., had a close brush with death but survived after eating a deadly poisonous hemlock root. Her father, Gene Caughron, holds the hemlock root in one hand and holds his daughter with the other at Knoxville hospital. Betty Sue's playmates, Mary Jane Cole, 7, and Beulah Mae Caughron, also ate hemlock root. Mary Jane recovered quickly and Beulah Mae was believed to be out of danger Monday. (AP Wirephoto)

German Economist Says Recession Psychological

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—is reacting with a buyer's strike." Erhard, principal architect of West Germany's postwar economic recovery, said that everywhere he went in the United States, people regarded him as an economic medicine man who could cure almost everything. He said his recommendation was more government spending, but said antirecession measures should not be allowed to weaken the dollar. "The U. S. dollar," Erhard declared, "is the standard for all things. We circle like satellites around the sun. What happens to us if the sun no longer stands been reached and the consumer still?"

The Easter Story

The story of Easter is one that never grows old. One of the many great artists who helped make vivid this story was Paul Gustave Dore, French painter and sculptor who was born in Strasbourg, and died in 1883.

When Paul was just a young boy his father took him to Paris to be educated in the sciences. But the lad, an art prodigy, wanted only to draw. He was 15 when he began earning his living as an artist. He illustrated many books, and won world fame.

Dore's religious works are among his best known, and here are some which tell the Easter story.

It was foretold by the prophet that the King would come to Jerusalem. Many people who crowd city for Passover Feast go to meet Him.

The last supper is eaten with His disciples in celebration of the Passover. Jesus blesses the unleavened bread and wine, gives them to disciples saying: "This is My body and blood."

THE RESURRECTION. Came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre... The angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. And the angel said, He is not here; for He has risen. (Matthew 28: 1-2-3)

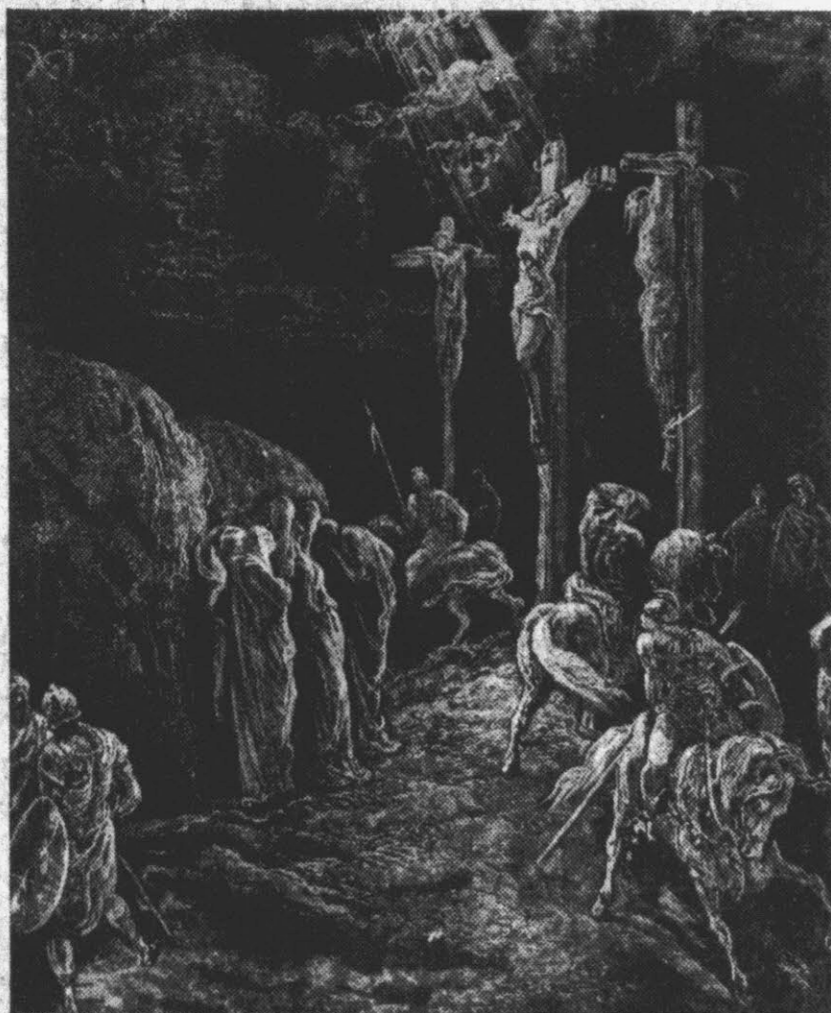

Judas Iscariot betrays Jesus with a kiss in Garden of Gethsemane after agreeing with high priests to point out Jesus for 30 pieces of silver.

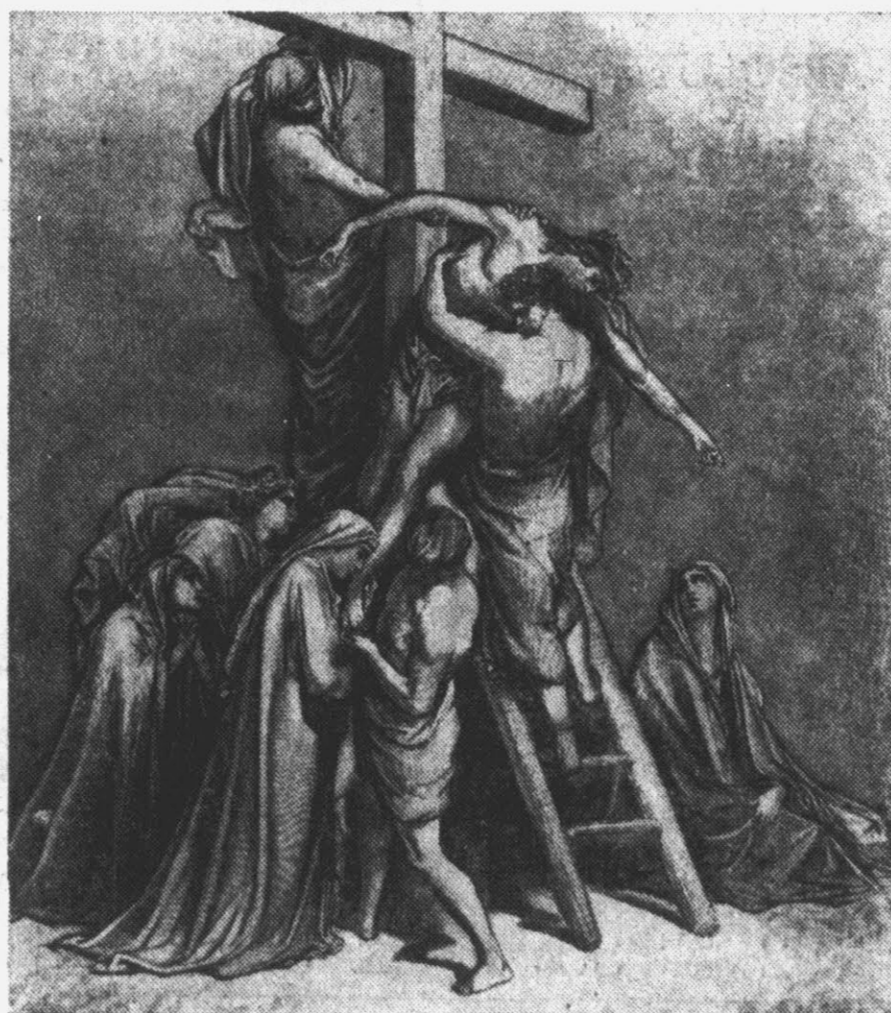

Pilate, the Roman governor, condemns Jesus to be crucified. Roman soldiers take Jesus out, strip Him, garb Him in a cloak and put a crown of thorns on His head in mockery.

Jesus faints as He is made to carry the heavy cross to Calvary. He falls three times, weak from loss of blood. Soldiers finally force Simon of Cyrene to help Him carry the cross.

Jesus is nailed to the cross, with two thieves alongside Him. After three hours He gave up His soul.

Descent from the cross. Faithful followers remove Jesus' body after soldier pierces His side with lance to make sure He is dead. Among followers is His mother, Mary.

Joseph of Arimathea gets permission to bury Jesus. He takes the body and wraps it in clean linen cloth, then lays it in new tomb and rolls a great stone over the door.

'Honor' Is Safe, Village Didn't Betray Deserter

PARIS — The honor of Mont D'Origny has been saved. None of the villagers gave away Wayne Powers to the gendarmes. It was an accident, in more ways than one.

When the ex-GI from Chillicothe Mo., was arrested last week on charges of deserting from the U. S. Army during World War II, everyone wondered how he had been caught.

Everyone in the village had known he had hidden for 13 years with dark-haired Yvette Belouse and their increasing family—now five healthy children who speak French and English with a Midwestern twang. But no one told on the man newspapers say deserted the Army but was loyal to a woman.

A Paris reporter finally revealed that Powers trapped himself. Watching the street one day from a curtained window, he was the only eyewitness to an accident. He gave the investigating police short and furtive answers about it.

Later, officers began to wonder about this mysterious man. They checked the records and today Powers is in a U. S. Army stockade at Verdun awaiting court-martial.

Gavin Gets Job In Research Post

NEW YORK — Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, storm center of a Pentagon controversy over guided missiles and satellite research, took a civilian job in private industry today.

Three days after his retirement, the Army's former research and development chief announced his election as vice president and director of Arthur D. Little Inc., Cambridge, Mass., research and management advisory firm.

Gavin, 51, had been the Army's youngest officer of three-star rank. Before announcing his decision to retire, he had blasted the Army's missile development program, saying it had been hampered by Pentagon policy and inadequate funds.

Arthur D. Little Inc. was established in 1886. It is engaged in many different forms of research, usually on a contract basis with large industrial corporations.

Gavin will assume his duties as an administrative officer June 1 at Acorn Park, the company's Cambridge, Mass., research center.

Can Easily Set Up Civilian Space Agency, -- McElroy

WASHINGTON — Non-military space projects can be transferred quickly to the new civilian agency proposed by President Eisenhower once the organization is set up, Secretary of Defense McElroy said today.

McElroy, testifying on the military's measures to meet problems of the missile-space age, told a watchdog Senate Defense subcommittee the services will go ahead with four or five scout-rocket shots to or near the moon which the White House has authorized. The job is being directed by the Advanced Research Projects Agency which McElroy set up in the Defense Department.

But the defense secretary quickly added that as soon as the new Aeronautics and Space Agency proposed to Congress yesterday by the President is in operation, it will take over non-military projects.

"If it is decided to handle space matters in a different organizational fashion the transfer of purely scientific projects can be accomplished expeditiously," he added.

Congressional spokesmen gave general approval today to the presidential proposal, but some wondered if the Atomic Energy Commission would get as prominent a place in the set-up as they would like to see.

There have been suggestions that space development work should be turned over to the AEC on the theory that nuclear engines are likely to power far-traveling rockets of the future.

Eisenhower made no direct mention of the AEC in proposing to Congress the establishment of a new National Aeronautics and Space Agency to develop "an imaginative and well-conceived space program."

"That is the explosive angle," said Sen. Mundt (R-SD), a member of the newly created Special Senate Committee on Space and Aeronautics.

Four members of the Senate space group—senators Anderson (D-NM), Bricker (R-Ohio), Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) and Russell (D-Ga.)—also serve on the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee.

"I believe there is a place for consideration of atomic propulsion in our space program," Hickenlooper said in an interview. "I'm studying the presidential space message now."

Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass) said he expects efforts will be made to give the Atomic Energy Commission an important place in the new program, adding: "There are certain to be differences of opinion. It will be interesting to hear them."

Eisenhower said details of his program will be sent to Congress later.

Eisenhower picked the existing National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics as the foundation for the proposed aeronautics and space agency.

He proposed a civilian director, backed by a board of scientists, technicians and experts, to operate the new unit.
