Entry For Fat Stock Show

ONE OF ENTRIES FOR FAT STOCK SHOW AND SALE... Raised By John Vernelson Of Stokes-Pactolus FFA

New Event May Lose Home Added To Over $69 Debt Program

A meat-cutting demonstration has been added to the program of the Eighth Annual Fat Stock Show and Sale Monday and Tuesday at the Pitt County Fair Grounds.

The demonstration, to be conducted by a qualified meat-cutter, will follow sale of steers and swine entered in the show. The sale will begin at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Efforts will be made, through the demonstration, to show types of hogs Pitt County farmers must grow to get top prices, according to a spokesman for the Pitt County Vocational Agricultural Teachers Association, directors of the show and sale.

Hogs representing three grades will be used in the demonstration; and will be on display throughout the show and sale.

It was also announced this morning that Home Demonstration club members from Pitt County will be shown at 10 a.m. Tuesday and all animals will be sold Tuesday afternoon.

The two-day event will open Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock with showing of steers. Swine entered will be shown at 10 a.m. Tuesday and all animals will be sold Tuesday afternoon.

Through today, applications had been received from owners of 30 steers to be entered in the show and sale.

The show is sponsored by the Pitt County Farm Bureau and the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, with financial assistance from the Pitt County Board of Commissioners. The beef cattle division is open to any white male Future Farmer of America or 4-H Club member in the county, and the swine division is open to any white person farming in Pitt County.

Grand Champions and Reserve Champions will be named in both divisions of the show.

Will Talk Plans For United Fund

Final plans for organization of the 1958 Pitt County United Fund will be formulated Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in a meeting in the courtroom of City Hall.

Steering Committee Chairman A. Hartwell Campbell said today the meeting will be open to the general public of Pitt County, but that heads of 75 organizations within the county had been given special invitations to attend. John Sinkok, field representative for the Carolinas United Fund, will attend the meeting to discuss United Fund operations in other North Carolina cities and counties.

Plans for Tuesday's meeting have been drawn by Campbell and other members of his committee, including Sam Nelson of Grifton, Corey Stokes of Ayden, Bob Young of Bethel, Bill Monk of Farmville, and J. B. Kittrell, Jr., and E. E. Rawl, Sr., of Greenville.

Ike Leaving For Augusta Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower takes off today for a weekend of golf at his favorite vacation retreat in Augusta, Ga. Eisenhower is taking along the preliminary draft of a speech he will make in Washington next Thursday at a luncheon meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. It will deal with the President's controversial defense reorganization program.

Castro's Bands Elude Attempted Army Trap

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Rebel leader Fidel Castro's two main guerrilla columns appeared today to have eluded a government trap in mountainous eastern Cuba. There were scattered clashes there and some shooting in Havana. But the tempo of action fell off sharply after the futile rebel uprisings in Havana Wednesday and in Santiago yesterday. Cuban army headquarters said the group led by Castro "which had been isolated is still being pursued." A communique added that troops were chasing other rebels along the north coast of Oriente Province.

Show Interest In Phosphate Beds

RALEIGH (AP)—An Ohio chemical corporation is interested in finding out the phosphorous content of phosphate beds in Beaufort and Hyde counties.

H. E. Frederick, vice president of Shea Chemical Corp., Marysville, Ohio, said yesterday understands that the phosphorous content ranges from 8-31 per cent. "This," he added, "would be a larger content than we have in Tennessee."

Frederick said he had requested five or six samples from different areas of the phosphate beds but was informed the state could not supply the material.

Director William F. Saunders of the State Department of Conservation and Development, said the state does not have boring equipment with which to obtain samples of the phosphate beds.

Dr. J. H. Stuckey, state geologist, reported there is a possibility that federal government could supply the samples. He said the government secured some samples from the beds when it conducted a "ground water study" recently in cooperation with the state. The Ohio firm extracts pure phosphorous from rock and sells it for industrial uses.

Soviet Proposal Quickly Termed 'Unacceptable'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States quickly denounced as unacceptable today a Soviet suggestion for opening preparatory talks for a summit conference in Moscow next Thursday.

The U. S. reaction, one of the fastest on record, was announced from the White House while President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles were still discussing a note just received from Moscow.

The Soviet note was not immediately made public in full. It said in effect that an ambassador's meeting in Moscow and a later conference of East-West foreign ministers should concern themselves only with fixing the time, place and composition of a summit conference.

What the three Western allies suggested was preparatory negotiations through ambassadorial channels to lead to a session of foreign ministers and on to a summit conference.

The Russian note reportedly suggested a meeting of ambassadors on April 17 to talk only about setting up a foreign ministers meeting.

In their March 31 declaration to the Soviet Union, the three Western powers had said the main purpose of preliminary ambassadorial negotiations should be to "examine the position of the various governments on the major questions at issue between them and to establish what subjects should be submitted for examination by heads of government."

The Western note said the purpose of the preparatory discussions was not to reach decisions but to determine "the possibilities of agreement."

The West proposed that the foreign ministers get together afterward and determine the date and place for a summit conference and decide on its composition.

When a formal reply to the Soviet note might be forthcoming the full contents of the Soviet message.

The White House said: "The implications of the note will, of course, be carefully studied."

Eisenhower delayed his departure for a weekend at Augusta, Ga., in order to discuss the Soviet note with Dulles.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave out the first word here that the Soviet reply had been received, but disclosed no details. He referred inquiries to the State Department.

Informants there would say at the moment only that the Soviet Union had proposed that preliminary talks begin April 17.

The Soviet note was a reply to a March 31 proposal by the Western powers—that their ambassadors in Moscow should start preparatory work.

The Western powers called for a start of diplomatic exchanges in the second half of April.

Wooten had received a petition requesting that he introduce a bill in the State Legislature changing the method of election of mayor to allow a direct vote of the people.

Presently the people elect five councilmen and the mayor is elected by the councilmen from among their own number.

In the 1957 election, then Mayor W. L. Whedbee was elected to the council after a write-in campaign.

Dr. Blair reported that Scott slept well during the night, was comfortable, was suffering no pain in his chest, was experiencing no difficulty in breathing, and was in good spirits.

The doctor said Scott's temperature dropped during the night and was an even 100 degrees this morning compared with 101 1/2 last night and 100.2 yesterday morning.

Scott's wife, "Miss Mary" said the senator's chief complaint was that Dr. Blair has cut off his cigars and chewing tobacco.

In commenting on Scott's fever last night, Dr. Blair said it was nothing to be alarmed about.

This is what can be expected, he said, "when you have a heart attack." Scott is on a low-salt, soft diet.

Dr. Blair emphasized that the senator's condition remains serious because there is no such thing as a heart attack that is not serious.

The 62-year-old Scott, who was admitted to Alamance General Hospital Wednesday, is under an oxygen tent. The colorful senator was alert yesterday and talked and joked with his brother-in-law, Dr. George L. Carrington, chief surgeon at the hospital.

Called Twice For Revoking Parole

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Paroles Board twice urged California officials to revoke the parole of Kearney Leighton Hester of Lumberton, who is accused of robbing a bank at Lake View, S.C. Wednesday.

This was reported yesterday by George Randall, chairman of the State Paroles Board.

Randall said Kearney was paroled about a year ago from a California prison where he was serving a term for armed robbery.

He was allowed to return to Lumberton and placed under supervision of North Carolina parole authorities.

According to Randall, Kearney had changed jobs several times, and "in January, we recommended very strongly that the California authorities revoke his parole."

That promise was made after

Fire Prevention Bureau Adopted By City Council

By ALVIN TAYLOR Reflector City Editor

City fathers last night approved the establishment of a Fire Prevention Bureau to be operated within the fire department.

Fire Capt. Lyman Nethercutt will be in charge of the new bureau, according to City Manager Leonard Bloxam who recommended the plan.

Bloxam told the councilmen that the establishment of the bureau will mean no additional personnel or increase in the fire department budget at the present time.

He said that Nethercutt has already attended a Fire Prevention school in Greensboro.

With the council's approval, the city manager said, "It is our intention to start an all-out fire prevention program at this time with the personnel which we already have."

"This department would eventually be extended into a more active facility by allowing as the budget permits, Mr. Nethercutt to spend all of his time on fire prevention work and as the budget will facilitate expanding the department, add another regular fireman in his place."

Bloxam said plans are to have fire department personnel visit homes throughout the city this summer. The firemen will make fire prevention checks of the residences where the occupants will allow it.

"We believe, on the basis of the success other communities have had with this program, that many fire hazards and problems can be eliminated," the city manager declared. "We feel that it will go a long way towards reducing our fire losses in our community and in building a better relationship between the public and our fire department."

Public Hearing

A mass of public hearings concerning various zoning proposals faced City Councilmen last night but little opposition developed to any of the plans.

The city fathers also annexed College Court additions 3 and 4 at last night's meeting. The area was zoned residential along with other subdivisions which have been annexed in recent months.

City fathers zoned as residential areas: College Court 1 and 2, Coghill Additions 3 and 4, Oakmont, a section south of Elm-hurst on the U. S. 264 bypass, a small section on the west side of Drum Ave., several lots between Monroe St. and Greene Springs Park on the east side of Tenth St.

Councilmen followed Planning-Zoning Commission recommendations concerning the re-zoning of Edgemont subdivisions. The subdivision, proposed for the North Greenville area at the U. S. 13-Airport Road intersection, is located in an industrial area.

The Planning-Zoning Commission recommended that the area remain an industrial area.

City Manager Leonard Bloxam pointed out that if the zoning classification remains industrial, the subdivision could still be opened and dwellings built within it. However, there would be no restrictions on business or industrial structures being constructed in the same section.

A portion of Edgemont is planned as commercial along with the residential section. Approval was granted for the commercial re-zoning of a lot in a residential area after no opposition was heard. The lot is located on the southeast corner of Monroe and E. 10th Sts.

Councilmen set a public hearing for the May 15 meeting of the governing body on another request for re-zoning a lot in a residential area.

In this case a business already stands on the property. The grocery store, which is owned by Claude Batts, was on the lot prior to passage of original zoning laws.

Batts is requesting the zoning change to allow him to make improvements in the structure.

Also set for public hearing at the May 15 meeting was a plan to close a street which passes through West Greenville School property.

The Planning-Zoning Commission recommended that one block of Watauga Ave. between Chestnut and Myrtle Sts. be closed as a public thoroughfare.

If the recommendation receives the council's final approval after the public hearing, the street will become a part of school property. Presently the street is chained off during the school day.

The resignation of Thomas W. Rivers as a member of the Planning-Zoning Commission was accepted by the council "with regrets."

Councilman C. W. Harvey Jr. said Rivers had "given a great deal of unselfish service."

Harvey moved that a letter of appreciation be sent to Rivers and the motion was approved.

Capital Crime Charged Youth Near Farmville

FARMVILLE — A 16-year-old Negro youth has been charged with breaking and entering a home at night while occupants were asleep, a capital crime, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson announced this morning.

The youth was identified as Barrett Mayo of Rt. 2, Farmville. The sheriff said he is accused of entering the home of Raymond Nelson, also of Rt. 2, Farmville.

Sheriff Tyson said someone entered the Nelson home around 12:30 last night by pulling a screen from a bedroom window.

Nelson heard the noise and arose to investigate. The intruder jumped through the window when Nelson entered the room, according to the sheriff.

Nothing was reported missing from the dwelling and no one was injured. However, the sheriff said several persons were sleeping in the entered room.

The family called law enforcement officers to the rural home located on U. S. 258 about two miles north of Farmville.

Mayo, who was identified by occupants of the house, was arrested by Deputies Duke Andrews and Ralph Tyson around 3:30 this morning. He was taken into custody around four miles from the Nelson house.

The deputies were assisted by the Farmville Police Department. Sheriff Tyson said Mayo's home is near the Nelson dwelling.

The youth is being held in Pitt County Jail. A hearing was scheduled for today before Magistrate Luther D. Moore.

Humber Addresses Red Cross Work Clinic

"Everyone participating in the Red Cross movement identifies itself with something bigger," according to Dr. Robert Lee Humber.

Dr. Humber made the statement in speaking to members of the Camp Lejeune-Cherry Point Clinic for Red Cross Work at Camps and Hospitals yesterday afternoon at the organization's semi-annual meeting here.

"Your organization is dedicated to humanity," the speaker stated. "The history of this group is one of nameless and countless services to needy the world over."

"When I think of the Red Cross," Humber noted, "two things come to my mind, personalization and localization."

He explained that the Red Cross personalizes its relationship to those aided and makes the individual feel he or she is being thought of in times of need. The speaker emphasized localization, commenting that local workers are and have been the backbone of the Red Cross movement through the years.

Humber's speech highlighted a luncheon, following the Council's business session yesterday morning.

During the morning session, two Greenville women were re-elected as officials of the Council for a one-year term. Mrs. James T.

Little, who has served as chairman of the organization, was selected for a one-year term as was Mrs. Wesley Harvey who has also served a two-year term as Secretary. Both were elected in 1956 to their present positions.

Mrs. Hector McLean of New Bern was elected Vice-Chairman. Primarily the Council's function is to furnish means of entertainment for servicemen at the two Naval hospitals, located at Cherry Point and Camp Lejeune. The organization, consisting of 14 chapters in as many counties, provides books, magazines, cookies, coffee, etc. during Christmas and other holidays.

Outlined History

During the course of his speech Humber outlined the history of Red Cross.

He traced the actual birth of the organization to Florence Nightingale who treated wounded soldiers in 1854 during the Crimean War. According to Humber she accepted the task after finding hundreds of men dying on the battlefield who could have been saved with just a little attention. With her assistance, he noted, the death rate dropped to only 25 out of 1,000 wounded.

It was explained that a Sanitary Commission was set up in New York during the Civil War without government support as a result of Florence Nightingale's efforts. In 1864 at the Geneva Convention, a treaty was drawn up including the organization of the Red Cross which was not accepted by the United States at the time. Through the courageous efforts of Clara Barton this country finally accepted it when President John Garfield induced Congress to pass a bill ratifying the treaty including the Red Cross, Humber said.

"Since that time the organization has become of age and has identified itself with human suffering the world over," he said. "Every worker, paid or volunteer, can justly be proud of belonging to the Red Cross. Each has shown through the years that human suffering is not an incurable disease."

Church Women Plan May Fellowship Day

At the Executive Board of the Greenville Council of Church Women's meeting yesterday morning, plans were made for May Fellowship Day, which is one of three annual observances held under the auspices of the United Church Women of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America.

The other two are World Day of Prayer observed in February and World Community Day observed in the fall. These special days are spiritual undertakings through which ten million women rededicate themselves to building life, friendship, and peace.

Mrs. James Keel, chairman of the Christian Social Relations Committee, announced that "A Place to Live" will be the theme for the day when the Church Women of Greenville gather to observe May Fellowship Day on May 2 at 12:30 p.m. at a covered dish luncheon meeting at the Eighth Street Christian Church.

The name of the speaker for the occasion will be announced at a later date.

The board voted to sponsor again an interdenominational mission study class and UNICEF's "Trick or Treat" at Halloween. In this connection it was decided to adopt a rotating system for handling these projects among all participating churches in the local council.

The board meeting, which was held in the parlor of the First Presbyterian Church, attended by representatives from nine churches, was opened with a devotional by Mrs. Ed Rawl and closed with the saying of the benediction. Mrs. Helen Sermons presided.

'War Cry Of The South' Reviewed At Meeting

Miss Kathryn Johnson, winner of the George Pettigrew State UDC scholarship, reviewed "War Cry of the South," an historical novel of the construction and battles of the rebel ram, "Albatross," at the George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy meeting yesterday afternoon.

She pointed out that the author of the novel, W. Frank Landring, is a teacher of journalism and English at Junius H. Rose High School.

"The writing of such a novel as 'War Cry of the South' took much time, effort, and research and Landring deserves much commendation for his work," commented Miss Johnson.

"His story is true, his facts actual, and he writes about our own state and its history."

In conclusion Miss Johnson said, "It is almost a relief to read a book about the South and find no magnolia trees, idealistic romances, or large plantation homes. The story is about ordinary people fighting for what they think is right."

Mrs. P. E. Wells, program chairman, introduced Miss Johnson.

Mrs. E. W. Harvey, president, presided over a brief business session when Flag Day was planned for May 10. It was announced that a Confederate Memorial Day observance will be held May 9 at J. H. Rose High School with J. H. Rose, superintendent of city schools, presiding over the program.

The chapter met at the home of Mrs. J. B. Spilman who was assisted in serving refreshments by Miss Johnson. Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Sallie Irons and Mrs. M. L. Wright.

Students To Participate At Nat'l Meet

Dr. Audrey V. Dempsey, faculty member of the department of business at East Carolina College, and Oliver Williams of Rocky Mount, senior business student, will participate in events of a council meeting of the business education fraternity Pi Omega Pi in Muncie, Indiana, this weekend. Both are officers in the national organization.

Dr. Dempsey is president of the fraternity, which has more than a hundred chapters in this country. She will preside over the meeting, which will be held on the campus of Ball State Teachers College.

Williams is national student representative for the business fraternity. At the council meeting, he will discuss the national yearbook, which he edited in 1957, and the organization's National Chapter Award, of which he is currently serving as chairman.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Williams of Rocky Mount. At present he is engaged in student teaching at Farmville High School and will be graduated with a B. S. degree in business and social studies in May.

Dr. Dempsey and Williams are members of Beta Kappa Chapter of Pi Omega Pi at East Carolina College, which has been acclaimed the outstanding chapter in the country three times during the last six years.

Press, Radio, TV To Be Honored

Sunday from 5:30-7 p.m. the local Moose Lodge will feature a regular Sunday Buffet with a menu planned around favorite foods of members of the staffs of local press-radio and TV groups.

With a lot of cooperation from the wives of the various members, the Food Service Chairman of the Moose Lodge was able to find out some of the various foods that most appeal to staff members of our communication sources in Greenville.

The remark, "They like to eat ALL food," was almost universal, but the following menu highlights some of the favorites: country style steak with gravy appeals to the Dave Richards, both Jr. and Sr., as well as Joel Lawhon and Alvin Taylor. Spareribs with sauerkraut is a hit with Don Schlienz, and ravioli or any Italian food for Hartwell Campbell. Black-eyed peas and mashed potatoes appeal to Eck Wall, as they do to most of the men.

Potato salad, a favorite of Alvin Taylor, and lettuce salad with Russian dressing for Hartwell Campbell will be featured on the salad portion of the meal. Everyone seems to favor hot biscuits, and Ann Singleton likes French bread. The desserts will include pound cake for Joel Lawhon and strawberry shortcake at Ann Singleton's request. All of the usual trimmings will go along with the meal.

Entertainment, under Ell Bloom, the Entertainment Committee chairman, will consist of recorded dinner music from 5-6 p.m. and movies for the children from 6-6:30. At 6:30 p.m. the "Hardyable Players," a group of sons and daughters of Moose members, will present, for the first time on any stage, an original three act, satirical comedy entitled "One Moment, Please!" The settings for this dramatic venture will show scenes in a newspaper office, TV studio, and a disk-jockey program over a radio station.

The script, an original, is slightly slanted to reflect some humorous comments on local presentations. Members of the cast include: Bobby Reynolds, Bill Moore, Robert Moore, Ronnie Cox, Gara Cox, Jimmy Maloney, Irene Jones and "J-C" Proctor. Mrs. Nina Rowland and Mrs. Janice Cox will assist with the presentation.

Subdebs Give Charm Rules

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

What are the beauty secrets of young, pretty girls, the subdebs who always seem to be full of pep, surrounded by members of the opposite sex and popular with other girls? Here are some of the reasons for loveliness, or so the girls believe.

1. Get to bed early, in time to get eight hours sleep, unless you have an important appointment. Never stay up late unless you have a good reason, surely not to watch TV or see someone with whom you are just "killing time."
2. Remove every speck of make-up from the face before going to bed. Air your room before you go to bed. Wear comfortable night clothes for a restful sleep.
3. Take a vital interest in life.

COMPLEXION TIP—A light coat of baby oil applied with cotton ball is good for skin.

and just don't "pass through."

4. Avoid reading in artificial light as much as possible to ward off eye circles and eye strain.
5. Watch the food intake. Avoid freakish diets. Learn to enjoy basic foods that are necessary to health. An occasional pizza pie won't kill you, one girl advises, but a steady diet of imbalanced foods may pad your frame with excess weight.
6. Keep skin clean. If skin is dry, a light coating of baby oil at night will supply needed lubrication. Apply it with a cotton ball before going to bed. Do not slather makeup over blemishes, as it will clog the pores.
7. Get as much outdoor exercise as possible in every season. Be sure to protect the skin against overexposure to sun in summer, and to cold and winds in winter. A light coat of oil over the skin before going outdoors should serve the purpose, providing the product is meant for that purpose.
8. Be yourself as far as looks go. It is true there are charm lessons to be learned from older girls, models and Hollywood stars one sees in the news. But do not apply glamor tricks to yourself unless they are suited to your type. A coiffure that is too grown up for you will make you look ridiculous rather than achieving the charm goal you seek.
9. Try to see the pleasant side of a situation, rather than going out of your way to examine every facet of a gloomy aspect that dims your view.
10. Mind your own business. This is one of the most valuable tips of all in developing an attractive personality. People who worry about the personal affairs of other people are just busybodies, and they look it.

BUTTER COOKIES

Ingredients: 2 1/4 cups sifted flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, nutmeg, 1/2 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons milk, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-8 teaspoon almond flavoring, extra sugar.

Method: Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and a pinch of nutmeg. Cream butter and 1 cup sugar; beat in egg thoroughly; beat in milk, vanilla and almond flavoring. Stir in sifted dry ingredients gradually; chill. Roll out on prepared pastry cloth to 1/8-inch thickness; cut out in desired shapes; sprinkle with extra sugar. Bake on buttered cookie sheets, about 1 inch apart, in moderate (375 degrees) oven until edges are lightly browned—about 6 minutes. Makes about 8 dozen thick cookies if 2-inch cutter is used.

Jay-C-Ette Of Year Nominees Told

Nominations for the Greenville Jay-C-Ette of the year were voted on at the club's monthly meeting Wednesday night at the Woman's Club.

The results of the secret ballot will not be disclosed, however, until installation ceremonies for new officers at the May meeting. Those nominated for the Jay-C-Ette of the Year were: Mrs. Bill Taylor, Mrs. Brooks Beddingfield, Mrs. Phil Moore, and Mrs. Roy Hardee.

An award is presented each year to the Jay-C-Ette who has made an outstanding contribution to the club's activities.

The club also voted on and approved the slate of officers for the coming year which was presented by the Nominating Committee at the last meeting.

Mrs. Frank Diener, chairman of the recent bake sale, reported that a profit of $42.23 was realized from the sale of homemade cakes at the Colonial Store.

Mrs. Brooks Beddingfield and Mrs. Bill Taylor, co-chairmen of the Lily Tag Sale, held in connection with the Pitt County Crippled Children's Society, expressed appreciation for the cooperation and efforts of those participating in the house-to-house and downtown sale. She stated that a report on the proceeds derived from the sale would be published as soon as all of the money had been turned in.

In connection with the promotion of the Lily Tag Sale, Mrs. David J. Whichard Jr. and Mrs. Bob Smith appeared on a special television program at Station WNCN.

Mrs. W. M. Scales Jr. and Mrs. Gordon Goodman volunteered to work at the Health Clinic on May 23.

Mrs. R. A. Barefoot of Newton Grove was welcomed as the guest of Mrs. Gordon Goodman for the meeting.

Mrs. M. W. Aldridge, president, presided.

Homemakers Need Understanding -- Martha

By ANNE SINGLETON
Reflector Woman's Editor

Understanding is the key quality that Martha Jane Pierce, State Homemaker of Tomorrow, thinks a homemaker should possess.

Miss Pierce, who discussed this homemaking quality in a recent examination which led to her being named State Homemaker, said, "I believe in the importance of this quality because through understanding a homemaker can create a harmonious atmosphere for her children and husband."

Accompanied by Mrs. Rebecca Smith, home economics teacher at Junius H. Rose High School, this 18-year-old state winner will leave in the morning from the Raleigh-Durham airport for a six-day whirlwind tour climaxed by a formal dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, April 17.

Personal observations and interviews during this trip will also have a bearing on the final selection of the All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow who will be named at the formal dinner and presented a $5,000 General Mills Scholarship.

Arrives in Washington
Miss Pierce will arrive in Washington, D. C. wearing a beige tweed suit trimmed with a fur collar and beige accessories, and be met by a company representative who will escort her to the Statler Hotel.

She plans to spend Saturday afternoon and evening getting acquainted with other winners. "I am really looking forward to meeting the girls from the many different states," she said quickly.

After attending church services Sunday, the girls will tour Washington in the afternoon and climax the day with a night tour.

Monday a chartered bus will carry them to Mount Vernon, Richmond, and Williamsburg, Virginia. The day's schedule calls for them to arrive in Williamsburg at 2:45 p.m. and leave for the Jamestown Festival at 3 p.m.

"We won't have any time to change Monday so I imagine I will be wearing my navy blue and white blouse ensemble with black accessories all day," reflected Miss Pierce.

Will She Get Fitting?
That afternoon the group will have costume fittings in preparation for their Homemakers' of Yesterday outfits which they will wear while in Williamsburg. Miss Pierce is a little worried about her fitting though, as she is scheduled to have a group interview during the time the fitting is planned. However, she is quite sure the conflict will be ironed out.

Tuesday's itinerary is a little slower. Their afternoon is free for individual tours and sight-seeing. That evening Miss Pierce will wear her blue patent dress with black patent accessories when she attends a dinner at the King's Den and the Candlelight String Concert at the Governor's Palace.

Wednesday at 7:30 a.m. Miss Pierce will board a chartered bus for Philadelphia wearing a black wool suit teamed with black accessories. Luncheon will be served the state winners at the Old Club Tea House, Alexandria, Virginia.

Tour Baltimore, Philadelphia
Before arriving at the Sylvania Hotel, Philadelphia, a tour of Baltimore, Md., is planned. A special tour of historic Philadelphia is also scheduled for the afternoon.

Bright and early Thursday (7:30 a.m.) the girls will again board the chartered bus--this time their destination will be

New York City!

For the big, four-filled day in New York Miss Pierce has selected a beige sweater and skirt. She will complete her outfit with beige accessories to compliment her soft brown hair.

Tours of New York will include the upper and lower sections of the city, a ride on the Staten Island Ferry, and sight-seeing in Harlem and Chinatown.

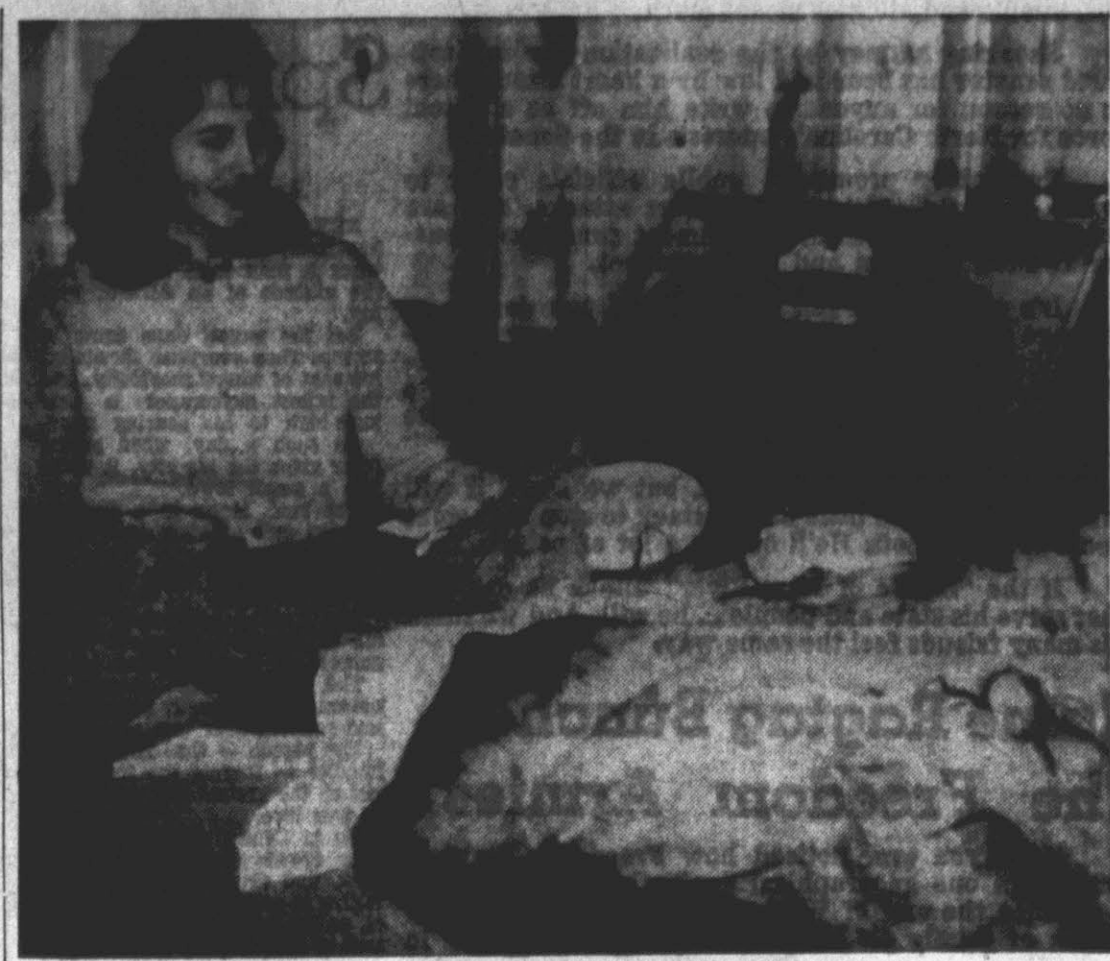

Dinner On Starlight Roof
Following a luncheon at the Terrace Room of the Downtown Athletic Club, the girls will arrive at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel where they will begin dressing and preparing for the formal dinner to be held on the Starlight Roof of the Hotel.

For the final event of the six days, Miss Pierce will wear a lime green strapless ballerina net gown and glass slippers.

An airplane will bring Miss Pierce and Mrs. Smith back to the Raleigh-Durham airport on April 18 at 5:40 p.m.

Ranking top ten in her class at Junius H. Rose High School, Miss Pierce is a member of the National Honor Society and an active worker at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. She is now serving as vice-president of the Methodist Youth Fellowship and Recreation Leader for the sub-district MYP group.

A future homemaker, she enjoys sewing (having made several wool skirts and cotton dresses) and can often be found whipping up salads and desserts in the kitchen of her home on Harding Street.

STATE HOMEMAKER . . . Martha Jane Pierce, finds it quite difficult to decide on a six-day wardrobe and then find room for it in one suitcase. (Reflector Photo)

Sense Of Humor Is Their Secret

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

The talents of a comic come in handy in keeping a marriage running smoothly, says blonde and glamorous Mary Healy, costar in all facets of life, professional and domestic, with her husband Peter Lind Hayes.

The Healy-Hayes combination is rolling them in the aisles in the new Broadway comedy hit "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With?" The light-hearted husband-wife team also have their own radio show and pinch-hit regularly on radio and TV for Arthur Godfrey.

In between times they play night club engagements.

"We spend 24 hours out of every 24 together," says Mary, "and the only way you can make a schedule like that work is to keep your sense of humor working."

Mary and Peter have worked out a nearly ideal plan of life. They live in New Rochelle, N.Y., where their two children, Mike, 6, and Cathy, 7, have plenty of room for picnics, parties and general hijinks, and where they are near the anchorage of their cruiser Queen Mary II.

"It's only about 30 minutes from Broadway," says Mary, "so we can go home every night after the theater, and have most of the day at home except on matinee days, or when we have to take over the Godfrey show. The radio show does break in right now, but I usually can be at home by the time the children are home from school."

About the only night club dates they play nowadays are in Las Vegas, and we go there in the summer, when we can take the children along. When they were little we used to be constantly on the road, and they traveled with us--as much as eight months a year. But now it's wonderful to have a home base, where they can go to school and have their friends, and where we can all lead a nice, normal life."

Book Club Hostess Presents Program

GRIFTON--Mrs. W. I. Bisette, who was hostess to the Grifton Book Club Tuesday afternoon at her home, also gave the program on Lyndon Baines Johnson, senator from Texas and majority leader in the U. S. Senate.

Pink magnolias and camellias were placed throughout. The hostess served refreshments consisting of hot tea, sandwiches and cookies following the short business session presided over by Mrs. G. L. Tucker.

The kitchen ventilating fan makes life more pleasant for the modern homemaker.

White Shrine Installation Held

Mrs. Bertha Branch and James Joyner of Greenville were installed as Worthy High Priestess and Watchman of the Shepherds of Greenville White Shrine No. 7 O.W.S.J. Friday night at the Masonic Temple.

The Temple was decorated with yellow and white spring flowers throughout. Seven branched candelabras holding lighted tapers entwined with ivy were placed at all key stations in the chapter room.

Mrs. Margaret Elks, retiring W. H. P., gave the address of welcome. "My Task" was sung by Jimmie Savage as the officers retired.

Mrs. Hilda Laughinghouse, P. W. H. P., inviting worthy herald, presented the other installing officers who were: Mrs. Jessie Biggs, P.W.H.P., of Gate City Shrine, Greensboro, as installing officer; Mrs. Mildred Kennedy, P.W.H.P., installing herald; Mrs. Eva Corbett, P.W.H.P., installing chaplain; Mrs. Blanche Jackson, P.W.H.P., installing secretary; Mrs. Hortense Edwards, installing organist; Mrs. Elba Rowe, P.W.H.P., installing guardian; Mrs. Louise Wells, P.W.H.P., installing flag bearer; Mrs. Kathleen Whitehurst, P.W.H.P., and Mrs. Leila Belle Hoell, P.W.H.P., as escorts to the flag.

The officers to be installed marched in wearing pastel formal gowns and corsages. They were seated in a cross formation.

The United States flag was presented and "America" sung by the group.

As Mrs. Branch was escorted to her station by her husband, Miles Branch, the song "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked" was sung by Savage. James Joyner was escorted to his station by his wife as "Follow the Gleam" was rendered by Savage.

The other officers installed were: Mrs. Frances Forrest, noble prophetess; Elwood Edwards, associate watchman of shepherds; Mrs. Betty Nobles, worthy scribe; Luther Whitehurst, worthy treasurer; Mrs. Marie Clark, worthy chaplain; Mrs. Edna Whithard, worthy guide; Mrs. Ethel Allen, Kingston, 1st wise man; S. A. Paromone Jr., 2nd wise man; Herman Nobles, 3rd wise man; Kenneth Whitehard, king; Eula Mae Cannon, queen; Mrs. Lillie McLawhorn, 1st hand maid; Mrs. Kathleen Woolard, 2nd hand maid; Mrs. Bessie Nobles, 3rd hand maid; Mrs. Hortense Edwards, worthy organist; Mrs. Dora Cayton of Kingston, worthy guardian; and Lyman Edwards, worthy guard.

The honorary officers were also installed.

Mrs. Branch asked for full cooperation from each one and promised to be true and faithful, adding that, "With unity, tolerance and charity we could look forward to a successful year."

Joyner thanked the Shrine for confidence placed in him and promised his best as watchman of shepherds, the highest honor conferred upon a man in the Shrine.

Mrs. Lucy Frye of Gate City Shrine, Greensboro, and Faye Cole, district deputy of New Bern, and other guests from Havelock and New Bern were recognized.

The past worthy high priestess Jewel was presented to Mrs. Margaret Elks by Mrs. Bertha Branch, while her little daughter, Margaret, pinned it on. Bob Russ received his past watchman's jewel, presented by James Joyner.

Mrs. Elks was remembered with a gift from her officers presented by Mrs. Frances Forrest. Russ also was remembered and his gift was presented by Elwood Edwards.

Miss Martha Ann Branch presented each installing officer with a gift from Mrs. Branch and Mr. Joyner.

Manicurist Has The Last Laugh

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- A manicurist has had the last laugh on two practical jokers who subjected her to a mock arrest.

Miss Irene Bailey, 33, was awarded $5,000 damages on testimony that Billy Grady, retired movie casting director, and Jack Monte, manager of the Bel-Air Country Club where she worked, conspired to have some fun when she forgot to return a ring she had polished for Grady.

Miss Bailey said she suffered shock and anguish when a policeman led her from the club barbershop to a patrol car in a phony arrest Feb. 14, 1956.

Ways To Utilize Basic Dress Told To Red Oak HD Clubbers

The topic for the month of April, "What Shall I Wear?" was given by Mrs. Lois Freeman to members of Red Oak H. D. Club when they met at the community building Wednesday.

Mrs. Freeman stressed the fact that a good basic dress may be utilized for different occasions by changing accessories. Mrs. F. L. Allen acted as a model for this demonstration. Mrs. Ruth Crawford showed a tailored street dress with simple lines and Mrs. Lucy Allen modeled a blouse and skirt combination suitable for morning wear.

Improvements in the building were noted--the dutch door and stair-rails--and the maintenance committee was given a vote of thanks.

Announcements were made that the district meeting would be held in Walsenburg and that the theme of the spring meeting would be a flower show.

Club members voted to set aside April 16 as "Clean Up Day" for community building. For National Home Demonstration Week in May, club members will sit in a group for services at Red Oak Church. Flowers appropriate for the occasion will be put in the sanctuary by club women.

Mrs. B. L. Tyson, chairman of the Progress Program, reported that all committees were functioning and asked all club members to cooperate. It was reported that an oil distributor in Greenville had been contacted concerning a rain shelter for Negro school children on the Stantonburg road. There will be a report on this in May.

Grifton PTA Elects Officers

GRIFTON--The slate of officers for the 1958-59 term were presented and elected at the April meeting of the Grifton PTA Tuesday night.

Officers will be: L. O. Vanneman, president; Jerry Insoce, first vice-president; Archie Rogers, second vice-president; Mrs. Bill Mann, secretary; and Mrs. Tom Gower, treasurer.

Dr. John Christens of the Du Pont plant spoke on the importance of public speaking to the individual. He was introduced by the school principal.

Awards for attendance went to Miss Patrick's and Mrs. Tucker's second and fourth grades and to Mrs. Musselwhite's seventh grade.

Let No One Write Off Kerr Scott

Senator W. Kerr Scott's heart attack is one of those lamentable occurrences that so frequently happen in private and public lives.

While "serious", as his doctor terms any heart attack, early reports indicate it is not so severe as to be incapacitating.

We hope not.

Still, the country has often witnessed the tragic loss to families, communities, states, nations ... and

Something As Sure As Death And Taxes

Disclosure that Greenville and Wilson are working hand-in-hand to push for area air service before a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing only serves to prove you can't keep a good idea down.

This particular aspiration would seem to have as many lives as a cat, and someday it will be realized.

Two previous efforts fell through; but it remains a folly for any single Eastern Carolina community to presume it alone can provide so wide an area with the quality of air service it needs.

An area airport is still the only practical answer, and eventually it will come true.

It's something as sure as death and taxes; only the prospect is nowhere near as gloomy.

A Challenge For C & D Agency

By LYNN NISBET

C&D. — The State Board of Conservation and Development at its quarterly meeting in Goldsboro next week faces up to problems as perplexing and serious as any it has had to deal with in the 30 odd years of its history.

As has been pointed out often before, the C&D Department is in many respects the most important agency of State government. It has a sort of "catch-all" responsibility to complement and supplement every phase of governmental activity.

The State Board of Agriculture, the State Board of Education and the Board of Higher Education, the Highway Commission, the Wildlife Resources Commission and other development-promotional agencies have peculiar obligations to special purposes. Revenue collectors and utilities controllers also have special duties in the performance of which they are not too much concerned—and should not be—with impact upon other governmental activities. They have special jobs to do—and the record would indicate they are doing them very well.

C&D also has some special and peculiar responsibilities, but upon the whole its job is to utilize to best overall advantage to the State of North Carolina all the activities of all the other agencies, and at the same time to cooperate with private and quasi-public organizations like the Travel Council, fisheries and Wildlife clubs, chambers of commerce and what have you, which are interested in raising per capita income and living standards in the state.

The 1925 act which created the C&D department declared its objectives to be conservation and development of natural resources of the state; promoting more profitable use of lands, forests and waters; promoting commerce and industry; coordination and classification of data tending to promote industrial and commercial advantages of the State.

CHALLENGE — This comprehensive charter quite naturally occasioned some resentment on part of other departments and agencies which felt that C&D was encroaching upon their specific areas. Zealots for wildlife development secured separation of their special activity from C&D direct control. Water resources also obtained separate control. There has been talk of divorcing forestry activities from the big department, and of separate departmental status for commerce and industry promotion. So far administrative and legislative judgment has been against further "splinter" organizational structure. The tendency has been to the contrary, for more centralized top administrative control. That attitude enhances the responsibility of the C&D board and the challenge which it faces now.

North Carolina has a common problem with the whole country in agriculture. In some respects, it is more acute here because of the large number of small one-family farms. The educational program in the state is in trouble because of low per capita income of the people, accompanied by inordinately large number of school children in relation to total population.

To combat these conditions, Governor Hodges has made industrial development and higher per capita income, tied to industrial payrolls, the major objective of his administration. The big challenge facing the C&D board at its upcoming spring meeting is that last year there was a loss of nearly $150 million in agricultural income below the previous year, and that construction of industrial plants representing more than $100 million capital investment which had been announced during the past 18 months had been "temporarily" postponed.

AGGRAVATED — The challenge and the problem confronting C&D is aggravated by the fact that these new industries had been announced as coming to the state because of multi-million dollar concession in taxes for corporations. The tax concessions are in effect, a fact accomplished. If new industries do not come in to make up some of the loss in State revenue, a lot of questions will be asked by run of mine taxpayers who have to foot the bills for maintaining State governmental functions.

That is why the Conservation and Development Board is on a hot spot, and why the Goldsboro meeting is tremendously important. To greater degree than at any time in recent years the people are looking to that board and to that meeting of it for some action that will restore confidence.

It is a big order, but the board is composed of big men accustomed to meeting and solving big problems. Without disparagement to any other board or commission, and despite some criticism of Governors Umstead and Hodges for appointing Blue Ribbon millionaire boards, the fact is that the C&D board is composed of men accustomed to dealing with big problems in a big way, both in private business and in public affairs.

even the world ... of citizens whose special experiences, talents and abilities meant much.

Shocking as may be the realization our tart-tongued senator has been laid low by a heart attack there is no reason for anyone to write him off as a potent force for North Carolina's interests in the Senate.

Two other prominent public officials come to mind, similarly stricken with heart attacks, and are fulfilling major roles in government functions: Senator Lyndon Johnson and the President.

It's early for a fair appraisal of the degree of damage incurred by Senator Scott's coronary thrombosis, but his doctor has indicated a hopeful prognosis. There remains a series of detailed examinations to determine the full impact, and an evaluation of possible limits to the Senator's activities.

Another paper said it first, but we agree it will take more than one little heart attack to stop that stout heart of Kerr Scott. He'll outlive a lot of us yet.

If the "Squire of Haw River" thinks he can further serve his state and people ... he will. And we think his many friends feel the same way.

Same Ragtag Bunch In The Freedom Armies

Have you ever noticed how Freedom's Fighters emerge in one geographical spot after another?

Since the end of World War II the same ragtag bunch of grimly plodding idealists have shown up in such diverse places as Guatemala, Korea, Hungary, Indochina ... and now Cuba.

They speak different languages, have different customs and backgrounds, but in the end they all look alike: rumped "uniforms"; tired eyes in drawn faces; frequently unshaven ... shoulders bowed in patient weariness.

Always they face overwhelming odds. Outnumbered, outgunned; frequently hungry, miserable and fearful for their loved ones; something keeps them pitting their strength against the injustices of tyranny.

Sometimes they win and sometimes they lose. But always when certain justices of humankind are violated, that same army rises up from out of nowhere to fight.

Sometimes His Words Differ

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has spoken very firmly on buying things and strengthening the Defense Department although what he says one day may not sound exactly like what he said some previous day.

He has talked on both subjects at his news conferences over a period of months, starting last October.

Oct. 30—At this time, before the recession had deepened, he was asked for advice to housewives and consumers on how to cope with rising prices. He said: "I just believe in a period of rising prices like in any other thing, people should attempt to purchase less than when prices are going down."

Between then and March the recession got deeper and prices went higher. Eisenhower said: "I believe, of course, that the upturn in our economy will be the result of millions of citizens making their purchases, having greater confidence."

March 26—He said: "I believe that the American public now should be buying on the basis of the worth of the product that is offered them." He suggested business do a better packaging and advertising job to encourage buying.

On April 7 Secretary of the Treasury Anderson, speaking at the opening of a savings bond drive, urged people to buy bonds. He said those doing so are "simply temporarily transferring their purchasing power to the government."

April 9 — Asked what people should do to make the recession recede, Eisenhower said: "Buy." He was asked: "Buy what?" He said: "Anything."

Then, reminded that Anderson suggested people put their money in bonds, Eisenhower replied: "Well, I don't say you should buy carelessly. I said ... let's be selective. ... Let's take the things we need." He took a crack at manufacturers, suggesting they are trying to sell things people don't want.

He has spoken twice at length on his plans for reorganizing the Defense Department. The first time was in January while the plans were still under study.

Jan. 15—He said: "Now my personal convictions, no matter how strong, cannot be the final answer. There must be a consensus reached with Congress ... I would be the last to ask for a detailed organization in which I believe because, I think, organization has got to be effective after there has passed from the scene a man who happens to have particularly strong convictions in the matter."

Asked if he would or wouldn't fight for whatever plan he finally came up with, Eisenhower didn't say yes or no but did say, "My views will be expressed to the very best I can."

Last week he sent his plan to Congress. It ran into some stiff opposition from Democrats and Republicans, particularly because of the power it would give Secretary of Defense McElroy.

April 9—Told some "very powerful men" of both parties in Congress were opposed to his plan, Eisenhower was asked how he intended to get it through Congress.

He said: "I don't care how strong or numerous they are. Here is something that is necessary. I would ... get onto the air as often as the television companies would let me. I would keep it up until I would have the United States understanding that it is their pocket-book, first of all, more than that, it is their safety."

"I don't care just who is against this thing. It just happens I have got a little bit more experience in military organization and the directing of unified forces than anyone else in the active list."

Payoff Is In Spring

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — There are many days in Manhattan when a man feels his soul has the altitude of an African pygmy.

But the payoff days come in spring. Then everyone shrugs off his coat of winter morbidity, and the tallest skyscraper is only knee-high to his soaring mind.

On such a day, when spring fever grips the big city, it turns into a small town.

The rush slows to a walk. Folks quit shoving each other in the subway.

File clerks sail paper airplanes out the windows.

The worried bus driver calms his temper and crieth "Welcome!" to the passenger.

The angry cable ceaseth to upbraid the foolhardy pedestrian, and runneth over him not.

The pigeon — that flying panhandler — forgets the free peanut on the ground and wings after free love.

Up in Central Park the polar bear crawls sleepily up on his rock, and dreams of rising and falling in polar seas. Bums drowse on the benches under the statues of heroes who, thanks to the old pigeon bombings, appear like bums also. The statues look as if they would like to sit down and take it easy, too.

The wonder of living creeps into the heart of the office peasant. He yawneth at his desk, he dawdleth long at the water cooler, he wisheth it were champagne.

The new stenographer who cannot type has fewer critics. Who cares? In her bright chemise she is lovely as a rose in a flour sack of many colors.

Could the queen of Sheba type? The middle-aged bookkeeper stareth at her, forgetteth the small noisy hungry mouths at home, and maketh errors in his accounts.

Distance lends enchantment, and everyone wishes the boss would become more exchanged by going home early. Duty no longer calls; it barely whispers.

Everyone wants to go out in the open air to find an apple tree in bloom to lie under and remember when he was young, and his love was too.

Just mass spring fever, turning people back into people again by the magic of April. It will pass. And that's the pity of it.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LOOKING AHEAD FOR THE CHILD — You probably think often of how you shall advise your children about careers and what careers you shall endeavor to prepare them for.

There are all kinds of honest ways of making a living and contributing to the welfare of the world. The most basic is farming — providing food. Another is by making needful articles, and still another is by selling them. It was early discovered that man being a venturesome creature, one of the most profitable forms of enterprise is lending him money at interest, so that he can fulfill his ambitions.

Probably the most satisfactory form of human employment is that of selling services. These may be services of a most humble kind. The humblest of such services consists of carrying and fetching for others. This involves no equipment but patience and a strong set of muscles, but neither does it offer hope of advancement or any profit beyond mere subsistence.

But when one gets into the higher forms of service, both the end and the remuneration are different. The physician sells services; so does the lawyer, and the engineer. It takes years of preparation before one is able to render such service, but when one sets up for business, the equipment needed is for the most part brains and persistence.

Think about this as you dream of your future. Selling services constitutes a pleasant, valuable, and remunerative-type career.

At the International Automobile Show in New York, 51 of the 57 makes on display are small cars. Of these 50 are European, products of more than 30 manufacturers.

Interest is high; the show is jammed. This was expected; last year Americans bought 206,000 imported dinkies and buying has been at an even higher rate this year.

These facts pose two questions: Why are small cars rising in popularity here?

Why are there so many manufacturing companies in Europe, compared with only five in the United States?

There are many answers to the first question: economy of operation, ease in parking, fits in existing garages, and the desire to be different. Some cars have special advantages. Some are good for racing; some are good for weaving in and out of traffic; those with air-cooling are superior in very hot or very

Dignity Can Be Upset

Anecdotes are constantly being created in courts, including those in Pitt County.

Solemn and judicial procedures do little to keep some of them from being really funny, and even up-setting the dignity of courtroom procedure. Greenville's Municipal Recorder's Court had an experience Monday which resulted in one story, one funny situation and one genuinely upsetting aftermath.

An old Negro man was called for trial and when he answered, it was noted that he had been called at a prior session but failed to answer. Judge Charles Whedbee summoned the man before him and asked for an explanation of the man's absence the week before.

"Boss," the old man said, "Us comed to the court. Us wuz hyar last week. But by the time us had got hyar, cawd had yearned for the day."

His Honor, who enjoys a laugh as much as the next fellow, took a few minutes to regain his composure and then got on with the court business. He turned the old man loose on the charge of failing to appear the week before and handed down a small fine on the minor charge that had been brought against the defendant.

Turning to the completely serious, the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association and the Pitt County Health Department recently completed a series of programs on education about tuberculosis facts. The programs were

Opinions In Brief

"Khrushchev has now offended and estranged from the central political process, one by one, the intelligentsia, the industrial managers and a portion of the officers corps of the armed services. He has now achieved the pinnacle of power which he apparently wanted, but I suspect he is rather isolated up there, and that the winds around him are becoming increasingly chilly." — George F. Kennan.

"Criticism can be a good thing, if it is constructive, and the wave of questioning perhaps will result in a betterment of American education." — Lexington (Ky.) Herald.

presented in Pitt County schools and at health education workshops held for adults.

Included in the proceedings was a ten-statement true-false test. Some of the ideas the students and adults had were found to be interesting.

It might be interesting for everyone to take the test himself. All you have to do is read the statements and determine whether they are true or false.

1. Fish is a brain food.
2. A snake is charmed by music.
3. A drowning man rises three times before drowning.
4. A cat sees better at night than in day light.
5. Tuberculosis is no longer a problem in Pitt County.

6. The new medicines will kill the TB germ.

7. People above 40 are the only ones who can have TB.

8. Climate affects the cure of tuberculosis.

9. A chest x-ray is painful.

10. If you have tuberculosis you will know it by the symptoms.

I took the test, but I'll not say how many of the statements I missed. As a matter of fact, I'd much rather forget the score I made and concentrate on the knowledge I have.

Incidentally, all of the statements are false.

How'd you do?

Other Editors Saying --- It's The Other Fellow

(Wall Street Journal)

The Research Institute of America polled 1,000 business executives about their views on the recession and the result provides some very varied opinions.

A clear majority — some 53 per cent — of those polled said their own business would be better in the second half of this year than it was in the second half of last year. Add to these the executives who think things will be about the same and the answer is that 71 per cent think their own business is a long way from going to pot.

But when it comes to other people's businesses, the executives had a different view. For the other fellow, things look pretty gloomy. For example, only 9 per cent think the other fellow's business will be "definitely better" ... Well, all these people, as the late Mr. Mencken used to write in his more cynical mood, may be right. But it's pretty difficult to see how they could be.

We have no more way of predicting when things will get better than the next man. But we do have an idea that if all these executives who think things are looking up for themselves learned more about the other fellow, they might not be so gloomy about things all over.

THE WHODUNIT GETS THE NOD (St. Petersburg Independent)

In a rundown of the reading habits of the presidents to mark National Library Week, the Library of Congress, largest in the nation, strikes a noble blow in favor of the whodunit.

Detective fiction was the preferred dish of President Woodrow Wilson, college professor of high-dome tendencies. Herbert Hoover, regarded as extra serious-minded, followed right along. Also joining in was sometimes dour Calvin Coolidge, but Taft seems to have skipped in favor of an exclusive diet of newspapers, and Harding "didn't seem to read much of anything."

With F. D. Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower, however, we got back on the track again. Of prominent figures in the presidency over a period of 40 prior years, it is revealed, only Teddy Roosevelt, an avid reader, had no use for mystery fiction. He devoured books, and all available magazines.

With this record before us we may well decide to cease lowering the whodunit. It is a firmly established part of our literature, stemming from Poe and other pioneers, and, truth to tell, produces a good many works more literate, faster moving and better constructed than the run of "serious" books and novels. Besides, as the presidents seem to have found out, they keep the mind off the shape we are in.

Small Car Popularity, And Why

more a month. In general, the European auto worker gets about as much in a month as an American worker gets a week.

THE AMERICAN SCENE — With high wages in the United States — and they seem about to be pushed even higher in the auto industry — automation, or at least a high degree of mechanization, is imperative. If as much hand labor went into the production of a Ford as goes into the making of a comparable European car, Fords would cost more than Cadillacs do now.

So American industry depends more on kilowatt hours than on man hours, more on automatic wrenches and less on hand wrenches, more on feed-backs than on personal craftsmanship.

But pushbuttons — and the vast mechanical production facilities they control — cost money. With a few million dollars, a brief case full of know-how and governmental blessings, a group of enterprisers could start production of a new car in Europe that might successfully compete with those 51 makes.

Answers to the second question are a little less obvious. One reason for the multiplicity of factories is that there are many countries in Europe and most governments want a factory at home for reasons of national prestige, defense and for foreign trade. Many European plants are directly or indirectly subsidized by their governments.

But a more important reason is the European wage scales, low in comparison to American pay.

Low wages are a double advantage. First, they reduce requirements for capital investment. Where labor is cheap, hand labor can be used more and machine labor less. There is much less need for automation. Second, the cost of materials and parts is less, as well as the cost of labor per car.

Labor rates vary in Europe. Behind the Iron Curtain industrial wages may be as low as $80 or less a month. In the free countries they range up to $200 or

But how much would enterprisers need to start production with the Ford or Chevrolet? Or for that matter, with the Packard?

There's no quick answer. Any guess between $100,000,000 and a billion is as good as another.

But even in this richest country in the world there are not many jackpots that big lying around. Therefore we may never have 30 car manufacturing companies in this age of high wages and automation. In fact, we may never again have a sixth.

ONE HAIRCUT RARE, WITH BAKED POTATO — A New York restaurant has announced that through arrangement with Tom Fucarino's United Nations Barbershop, restaurant customers may have a haircut any hour of the day or night.

Now the whole world is waiting for an announcement from Mr. Fucarino that, through an arrangement with Danny's Hideaway, his patrons may have a steak at any hour of the day or night.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buscher

Joseph being in Egypt, his father, Jacob, took all his people into that country, 70 souls in all. Joseph died and all his generation, but the children of Israel prospered and grew mighty in the land.

When a new king reigned in Egypt who had not known Joseph, he became worried about the numbers of Hebrews, and told his people that in case of a war, the Jews might join the enemy.

This Pharaoh set hard taskmasters over the Hebrews to afflict them with many burdens. They were made to build treasure cities for the Pharaoh. In spite of their afflictions, however, the Israelites continued to multiply.

ISRAEL'S AFFLICTION IN EGYPT BEGINS

Scripture—Exodus 1.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. WITH THIS lesson we begin a new series which takes us back to the Old Testament, to the first chapter of Exodus. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests that the teachers "should attempt to make a bridge from the lessons we have just finished concerning the origin, organization and growth of the early church... to the story of the chosen people of God, the nation of Israel which came down into Egypt as the family of Jacob, numbering 70 souls—and now has grown to a huge multitude."

pass, that, when there falleth out any war, they join also unto our enemies, and fight against us.—Exodus 1:9-10. So began a terrible affliction for the people of Israel, for "taskmasters," really gang-oversers, were put over them. They were forced to build the treasure cities of Pithom and Raames, in which reserves of foodstuffs and possibly treasures of the royal family were stored.

Centuries pass, times change, but the hearts of cruel men seem the same in our time as in the past. It would seem that if the Israelites were treated with kindness, they would have been loyal citizens, ready to defend Egypt from enemies instead of becoming rebellious and resentful and plotting how they might free themselves from bondage. The same rule would also apply today when famine, and of how Joseph persuaded his whole family to go to live in Egypt.

And Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation. And the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them.—Exodus 1:6-7. The Israelites knew peace and plenty in these years after they took up residence in the Nile valley, but all this was to change when "there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph."

This king grew afraid when he saw the numbers and might of the Jewish people, and he said to his people, "Behold, the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we: Come on, let us deal wisely with them; lest they multiply, and it come to us, and we shall be as slaves."—Exodus 1:8-10.

Submarines See Many Changes

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — Submarines, like history and women's fashions, repeat themselves. Fifty-eight years ago today, the U.S. Navy received its first submarine. It resembled a shark and had only one propeller. ... month the Navy will launch its newest atomic sub, the Skipjack. It also will look like a shark and have one propeller. But there's a whale of a lot of difference. ... J. P. Holland's submarine of 58 years ago, the Holland, burned gasoline and could stay under water for less than an hour, it measured 54 feet. ... The Skipjack will cruise under atomic power and will be able to circle the globe without surfacing. It will measure 250 feet. ... But, in the design sense, the Skipjack and the Holland are not far apart. ... In the years separating the Holland and the Skipjack, American submarines took on lines much like the torpedoes they fire. ... Gasoline and diesel powered submarines could afford underwater cruising only as a part-time luxury. So they had to be designed with long, slim lines that catered to surface requirements. Atomic power changed that. ... When the Skipjack is launched May 26, it will demonstrate the "new" shark trend in submarine design that began with the Holland.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG Today's literature has had an illuminating boost from two recent books, both about writers. "Writers At Work," from Viking, is a symposium on how writers get their writing done, taken from a series of interviews that ran in "The Paris Review." It's edited with an introduction by Malcolm Cowley, and contains the secrets of their trade described by such great authors of our time as William Faulkner, E. M. Forster, Joyce Cary, James Thurber, Thornton Wilder, and even — at the end — Francois Sagan. ... "The Fugitives," out of the UNC Press at Chapel Hill, is an account by John Bradbury of the short-lived but enormously influential group of southern writers and poets who were foregathered at Vanderbilt University and put out a magazine called The Fugitive from 1922 to 1926. The group, which includes Robert Penn Warren, Cleanth Brooks, Allen Tate, John Crowe Ransom and Donald Davidson, long since has broken up and dispersed to greener and richer pastures — mostly in the North. ... But add the influence and work of its members have increased with the years — particularly, Ransom, Tate and Warren have taken dominant places in American poetry and letters, and Brooks and Davidson have shared in the teaching of almost every American college student, somehow or other, who studied English — which means every American college student, period. ... We recommend both of these books, to anyone who is interested in being aware of what is happening today in literature and writing. ... Critics And Reviewers Granville Hicks started this week a series of columns in the Saturday Review, called "Literary Horizons," and we want to quote a little about what he says on the subject of book reviewers and critics — since this, after all, is a Book Column and we include reviews (see below). ... The critic, says Gibbs, speaks in poetry, and tries to judge a book on the basis on how it will stand forever, if possible — a large order. The reviewers, on the other hand, writes for today only — for the people who might read the book right now. ... "He talks to readers about the book in such a way that they can decide whether or not it is a book for them. And perhaps ... he may be able to help some of them to read the book more perceptively than they would otherwise do. ... Reviewers and readers, please take note. ... Up And Coming Already up and ready: More on education — "Schools Without Scholars," by John Keats, not the Grecian Urn J. K. but the one who wrote "The Crack in the Picture Window" awhile back. He does the same kind of job on modern houses in "The Crack ... " And he says schools can be made better, if those who are — or ought to be — interested in them care enough and will try hard enough. ... "TV and Our School Crisis," by Charles Seipmann, provides a realistic account of just what TV can do to improve the educational process — and what it can't do. ... Coming up: "A Summer Place," by Sloan Wilson, author of "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit" — you don't need us to tell you it'll be another best-seller. ... "The Official Atlas of the Civil War" will be on public sale April 15, at $40. Any takers. ... Local Scene Friday night is Artists' Ball night — at Wright Auditorium from 8:30 on, dance, dine and dress up if you want to have some fun. ... "Carousal" starts this Tuesday at McGinnis for a three-night stand. ... "Raintree County" comes to the local cinema Friday. ... And Spring hasn't come yet. ... Today's Review Mrs. avid Whichard comments on a recent choice of the Literary Guild, by an outstanding author who has adopted North Carolina as her home — even though she's best at writing about Brooklyn. ... "MAGGIE — NOW," by Betty Smith, Harper & Bros., New York, 1958. In writing about Brooklyn of the early twentieth century, Betty Smith brings reader and characters into a sustained emotional relationship. The author's ability to create a nostalgic picture of the Williamsburg district was realized in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn." The sensitivity, realism and almost poetic handling of her first novel is found in "Maggie—Now." From Ireland's County Kilkenny, Patrick Dennis Moore crosses the ocean to a world never his own; his regrets become his way of life. He marries his employer's daughter. Even Mary's love and understanding fail to penetrate the cynical Pat. The birth of Maggie—Now has no effect. Mary and Maggie—Now share a beautiful but lonely companionship that ends abruptly when Mary dies at childbirth. The novel becomes Maggie—Now's story — how she took her newborn brother into her arms and heart, accepted her father's way, endured consequences of decisions made. When the novel becomes Maggie—Now, it lives. Miss Smith creates a warm and vibrant experience for the reader. Whenever the story leaves Brooklyn, as in the beginning, the telling of events is mechanical and not too realistic. Kay Whichard

California Legislature In Big Water Rights Feud

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A sectional fight over water rights has plunged California's Legislature into an election-year deadlock of historic proportions. Old jealousies have spilled over in the struggle between the state's once-dominant North and the South over a water development program. The North has most of the water and the South has most of the population and would pay most of the bill. The dispute has turned into an unyielding test of power between the 80-man Assembly, predominantly Southern, and the 40-man Senate, 31-9 Northern and used to getting its way. The North says: Help us finance Northern dams and there'll be water enough for everybody. The South says: Give us water rights first, then we'll give you the money. The Legislature adjourned its regular session March 30 without adopting a state budget for the first time in history. Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, charging "this grave failure" largely to election-year politics, called a special session the next day. The Senate promptly wrote in $83 million dollars for water development. The Assembly voted for only 14 million. The spending has been tied up in conference committee ever since. Southern assemblymen insist that the Legislature submit a constitutional amendment to the voters in November. If passed by voters, the amendment would guarantee the South a firm and irrevocable supply of the state-developed water. The Senate has steadfastly refused to consider any constitutional amendment. Its Northerners contend they are fearful of giving away water their mountain areas may need themselves in the future. U.S. Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.), who is running for governor, said a constitutional amendment would be necessary before the problem can be solved. LANDS ON HORSEMAN SAN JUSTO, Argentina (AP) — A Piper Cub developed engine trouble and made an emergency landing on a horseman. The rider, Humberto Cabrera, and his mount were killed. Pilot Jorge Breer and his passenger were only scratched and the plane was not damaged.

Khrushchev Propaganda Recipe Simple: Be First

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Foreign News Analyst Nikita Khrushchev's propaganda recipe is simple: Get there first with the most. Kremlin propaganda often is poor and in some cases plain bad. It has won many skirmishes, but has yet to wrap up a major battle. The Red drive never lets up, never lets the enemy catch his breath, never gives him a chance to take the offensive. The United States spends its energies reacting to Soviet initiative. In psychological warfare, the Soviets long ago adopted the slogan: Always attack. The Communists devote a huge share of their resources to propaganda. A massive organization under trained experts is at it night and day. Nothing about Soviet propaganda is new — only the events upon which it capitalizes are new. The technique of the whopper, used effectively by Nazi Germany, long has been a Kremlin standby. The techniques of alternate threat and blandishment, letters and resounding pronouncements, have been in use for decades. These techniques pile up Soviet gains by default, through lack of any coordinated Western effort to take advantage of glaring Soviet weaknesses. For all its glitter, Communist propaganda succeeds often because many in the non-Communist world are long on hope and short on memory. Soviet propaganda blows hot or cold, depending upon internal conditions or opportunities. It improvises within an over-all fixed pattern. Its tone may change, but the basic outlines are permanent. Throughout the cold war, Soviet propaganda has kept the same goal. It seeks to break up Western alliances and bases, remove physical barriers to Red expansion, alienate the West from sources of raw materials, destroy Western influence in uncommitted areas, and eliminate popular suspicion of communism abroad. Soviet scientific advances gave

Early Reply By Soviet Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Premier Khrushchev's return to Moscow was expected today to speed up a Soviet reply to a Western proposal that summit conference preparatory talks be started this month. Khrushchev ended an eight-day tour of Hungary which he started soon after the United States, Britain and France, in a March 31 note, suggested diplomatic discussions in Moscow. The Soviet reply, U.S. officials said, should indicate whether Khrushchev seriously wants a summit conference this year or whether he is more interested for the moment in trying to make peace propaganda. Authorities here are uneasily aware that the Soviet leader has two more potential propaganda bombshells in reserve if he wants to follow up the recent Soviet announcement of a decision to call off nuclear weapons tests. Already there have been hints from Khrushchev himself that the Soviet Union at some point may announce a decision to halt the manufacture of nuclear weapons. The other potential action would be to announce some time after U.S. nuclear experiments start in the Pacific this spring that the Soviet Union is canceling its own test suspension — and put the blame on the United States. The specific proposal to begin diplomatic talks is part of a Western effort to pin the Communists down to hard facts where possible.

Jurors Decide Bosco No Biter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was an other half-breed, not Bosco, that bit little Gary Hinkle, a jury has decided. Bosco, a 10-year-old mongrel, was held blameless in a $50,000 damage suit brought by Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hinkle, parents of 4-year-old Gary. Bosco's owners, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson of a nearby Palmdale, maintained that the charge against their dog was a case of mistaken identity. The plaintiff's lawyer maintained that the plaintiff's description would fit nine different types of dogs. Gary was attacked two years ago in the garage of his home in Palmdale. The Hinkles now live in Spokane, Wash.

Forecasters Eye Satellite-Use

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Artificial satellites should eventually improve long-range weather forecasting, Dr. J. Wallace Joyce said. Joyce, head of the Office for the International Geophysical Year in Washington, D.C., said a series of satellites would allow forecasters to keep cloud formations under constant surveillance. "Such a program would permit us to observe the formation of storm areas early enough to improve our warning service," he told the opening day session of the 10th Southwestern Conference of the Southwestern Institute of Radio Engineers.

Greensboro Claims Pools Showed A Loss Of $7,381

GREENSBORO (AP) — The City of Greensboro says it lost $7,381.61 during the past three years of operating Nocho Park Pool for Negroes, while showing a $15,807.48 profit on Lindley Park Pool for whites during the same period. A revenue and expenditures report on the two pools, covering the years 1955 through 1957, was filed yesterday in Middle District Court, as ordered by Federal Judge Edwin M. Stanley. Ten Greensboro Negroes are suing to stop the proposed sale of the Lindley Park pool. Judge Stanley yesterday gave attorneys for both sides until April 23 to file legal briefs in the case. Reply briefs may be filed as late as April 28. The Negroes contend the city should not be allowed to sell the pool and that it should be integrated. The city says fear of racial unrest and expected financial losses figured in the decision to sell. The city has entered a motion for dismissal of the suit and will have 20 days to answer the complaint if its motion is denied. City Manager James R. Townsend said the financial report does not show some costs incurred by the city, such as depreciation, return on investment, administrative costs and tax losses. The report shows the Nocho Pool had revenues totaling $5,254.09 and expenditures of $12,637.70. The Lindley Park pool had $48,220.04 in revenues and $33,412.56 in expenditures.

To Keep A Car, One Must Study

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Unless you study and get good grades, you may not be able to keep a car at the University of Colorado. A recommendation to that effect, made by the Campus Traffic Committee of both teachers and students, is on President Quigg Newton's desk. He is expected to approve it. A committee spokesman said a minimum grade average of C was decided upon, both as an incentive to study and a way to ease parking congestion on the campus.

"Why the hurry?" asked Municipal Judge Bernard Lawler. "I was rushing home to care for my 97-year-old mother," explained Mrs. Hovey. Guilty but sentence suspended, replied the judge.

East Carolina, WCC Open North State Season Today

Game Will Be First League Tilt For Both

Unless the impending cold and wet weather interferes, East Carolina College and Western Carolina are slated to clash this afternoon at 3:00 in the first North State Conference game of the year for both clubs.

As of this morning, grounds were dry enough and temperature was not cold enough to warrant postponement of the contest. However, the weather outlook wasn't too bright.

Should rain or cold or both call a halt to this afternoon's action, it is expected that the teams will engage in a doubleheader here tomorrow afternoon. A two-day series was planned anyway, with one game today at 3:00 and another tomorrow at 2:00 at the ECC field.

ECC's Had It East Carolina has had more than its share of bad weather since the baseball sport began for 1958. Jim Mallory's early drills were hampered by persistent rain and dampness and below normal temperatures. In fact, the Bucs reported they saw only 10 days of outdoor drill and only two days of decent batting practice before their first ball game.

Besides that, they've had three ball games called off, mostly due to the weather.

And so, despite their 2-2 record, East Carolina is still something of an ill-drilled team at present. The only real warm-up work the Pirates have been able to engage in thus far has been actual ball games. Considering that—and considering the caliber of opposition they've faced—they've made a terrific showing. They've whipped the ACC's South Carolina and the Southern Conference's Citadel, while losing a pair to Delaware and Parris Island.

In Conference The two-game series between ECC and Western Carolina is important to both teams. At present, defending champion Elon has a good grip on the league lead with a 2-0 record, having started its loop season early. The champs are idle in North State play this week and a pair of wins by either the Pirates or the Catamounts would put them right up there with the Christians.

Coach, Jim Gudger's Cats lost several key ball players from last year's squad, but are not rated an easy mark for the Bucs by any means. As Mallory stated yesterday, "Western Carolina always has a good hitting team every year. I've never known them to be lacking in plate power—and that could make a lot of difference right now."

With WCC's plate power in mind, Mallory has assigned veteran hurler Leonard Lilley to start against the Cats. Lilley won against South Carolina. Expected to start for the Bucs in the field will be Jimmy Martin at first base, Al Vaughn at second, Jerry Stewart at shortstop, Bucky Rzep at third; outfielders will be Tommy Nance in leftfield, Tommy Land in center and either Johnny Jones or Jerry Phillips in rightfield. Doug Watts is the probable catcher.

Buc Netters To Play Geneva Here Today

East Carolina's undefeated tennis team, fresh from a 6-3 win over William and Mary Wednesday, take on powerful Geneva (Penn) College this afternoon at 2:00.

The match will take place on the Pirate tennis courts. Expected to pace the locals will be Maurice Everette, the No. 1 Pirate netter for the past three seasons and current defending singles champ of the North State Conference. Against William and Mary, Everette notched his 52nd singles victory to tie the state four-year record. He is expected to break that mark this afternoon.

With Everette will be teammates Bill Hollowell, John West, John

Greensboro Open Slated Open Once Again Today

By KEN ALTYA GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A field of 130 golfers was ready to try it again today in the $15,000 Greater Greensboro Open tournament, whose scheduled opening day was washed out yesterday.

The tournament is the official kickoff of the Professional Golf Assn. summer tour. But temperatures yesterday were in the mid-40s and rain persisted two hours after the tee-off.

A 36-hole windup has been scheduled for Sunday to make up for the lost day. After 18 holes today and 18 tomorrow the field will be trimmed to about 75 for the final, double round.

The tournament is the official kickoff of the Professional Golf Assn. summer tour. But temperatures yesterday were in the mid-40s and rain persisted two hours after the tee-off.

Sam Snead seeks his seventh victory, the first coming in the 1938 inaugural. Lined up against him are such worthies as Ken Venturi, Billy Casper, Jay Herbert, Art Wall, Doug Ford, Mike Souchak and Stan Leonard, the defending champion. Fourteen of the current 25 money winning leaders are in the field.

The Starmount Forest Country Club well watered by earlier rain, figured to be even more of a test as a result of the latest downpour. The slow, heavy course likely would give the longer hitters an edge.

The task of playing twice on the final day, a rarity in PGA tournaments, made the chase for top money of $2,000 extra difficult.

However, Jim Turnesa, former PGA champion, pointed out: "These fellows don't sit around when they are not playing, anyway. They're either out on the practice tee or putting after their round."

The 45-year-old Elmsworth, N. Y., pro observed, "This is a tough golf course and it will be even harder after the rain. Those first four holes are very rugged. Most times you're thankful if you're even par when you reach the fifth. And some of those 'letup' holes can be dangerous—you can take a five or six on them easily."

"It's a real tough course, tougher than most of the winter circuit courses the tournaments have been played on this year."

The par 71 course, measuring 6,631 yards, will be the scene of the tournament for five years in succession. Heretofore, it had been alternated between Starmount Forest and the Sedgfield Club.

Yesterday's conference match with Atlantic Christian College at Wilson was postponed because of rain.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND, two Atlantic Coast Conference baseball teams who have been able to scrape up only one win between them, had games scheduled today against non-conference foes.

Virginia, 0-3 for the season, was home to Canisius, Maryland, which dubbed George Washington 15-3 in seven innings for its first win in six starts, was at Johns Hopkins.

Another winless team, South Carolina, took the count again yesterday at the hands of North Carolina, 5-3. North Carolina's State's game at Clemson was postponed because of wet grounds, and Wake Forest at Duke, rained out, was reset for April 14.

North Carolina ran its season record to 7-5 by yesterday's victory, and left South Carolina with an 0-4 mark. Ben Harding, who walked eight Gamecocks, got relief help from Johnny Johnston, who struck out Buddy Nidiffer in the eighth inning with the bases loaded to retire the side.

The Tar Heels bunched four runs into the first three innings. Then left-hander Leon Norton took over as South Carolina pitcher in the sixth and allowed only two hits the rest of the game. Carson Oldham had three singles for five bats for North Carolina. Ken Rosefield had two for four for South Carolina.

Larry is a different fighter now, according to Sam Boardman, his father, manager and trainer. "He's a smarter fighter than he used to be," Sam said. "He doesn't take the reckless chances. He's a finished boxer now and he's punching harder than ever."

Boardman earned the video shot mainly on his crushing fifth-round knock-out of Kid Centella at Miami Beach last month.

NBC will telecast at 10 p.m. EST.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Luther Lassiter of Elizabeth City, N.C., who lost his national pocket billiards championship last week to Jim Moore, dropped a no-hitter match to Moore here last night.

Lassiter was defeated 150-47 by the Albuquerque, N.M., man in the National Invitation pocket billiards tournament.

Willie Mosconi, world champion, remained undefeated in the tournament by taking his third match last night with a 10-inning victory over Irving Crane, 150-52.

Trader Frank Manipulates Cleveland Into 15-14 Win

Lane Can Change Plow Horses Into Thoroughbreds

By WILL GRIMSLEY The Associated Press Frank Lane is the kind of baseball trader who will swap two young colts for a team of tired old plow pullers and, when he gets them home, suddenly find he has a pair of prancing thoroughbreds.

But good, bad or indifferent with his multiplying deals, it can never be said that Trader Frank is content with the status quo. He is always trying. He is the game's No. 1 manipulator.

The man who introduced the three-platoon system first with the Chicago White Sox and then the St. Louis Cardinals—that is, one team going, one coming and one playing—is now up to similar tricks with the Cleveland Indians. And baseball watches interestedly.

The Indians won a 15-14 ten-inning marathon from the San Francisco Giants yesterday in Houston, Tex., and the deft hand of Cleveland's new general manager, Lane was recognizable in the proceedings.

Mickey Vernon hit a three-run homer in the eighth to put Cleveland ahead 12-11. Vernon, 40 next week, was bought from the Boston Red Sox last winter.

After the Giants had gone ahead 14-12 in the tenth, J. W. Porter lashed out a pinch-hit double to score two runs and pave the way for the climatic victory. Porter was another of the pawns in a Lane trade. The catcher came to the Indians in a four-player deal which sent Jim Hegan to the Tigers.

Rain washed out five exhibition games in the South and Southwest but four were played.

In addition to the Indians-Giants nightmare, the Chicago Cubs beat the Los Angeles Dodgers at Mesa, Ariz., 7-3 on a seventh-inning home run by Ernie Banks; the Cardinals edged the Chicago White Sox at Denver 2-7 in the ninth by Bill Dufour, and the Pittsburgh Pirates slugged Mexico City again, 10-2, in a night game below the border.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Eddie Machen and Zora Folley fought to a 12-round draw, so what happens? Machen, the No. 1 heavyweight contender, went to a doctor. Folley, ranked No. 2, planned to consult an attorney.

Dr. Sam Sherman said yesterday that Machen, 25, suffered pulled muscles in several areas of the left shoulder. Sherman advised a long layoff. Similar shoulder trouble had forced a postponement of the fight from Bill Swift, the meat packing March 19 to Wednesday night.

her who manages Folley, said he asked Atty. William Burres to study California law relating to boxing and then "file as strong a protest as we can."

Swift said he was so certain Folley was far ahead on points he told him to take it easy in the final round. Two of the three officials gave that one to Machen, previously undefeated, and that brought about the draw.

"I know now it was a mistake of the left shoulder. Sherman added to tell Zora not to go out swinging. "We were so convinced about the decision and we still are, but apparently a strong finish was necessary to convince everybody."

Referee Frankie Carter ruled for Machen 117-116. Judge Jack Downey had it a 115-115 draw and Judge Fred Apostoll liked Folley 117-115. California uses the 10-point must system, the winner of a round getting 10 points, the loser 9 or less.

It was unlikely that a Swift protest would gain anything. Three state athletic commissioners who saw the fight commended the officials.

Elect Officers Of Country Club

Dave Mosler was re-elected President of the Greenville Golf and Country Club for his fourth consecutive term at the club's 36th annual Stockholder's meeting this week. Howard T. Waldrop was elected Vice-President succeeding Gene Ward. Governors elected for three-year terms were: Jack Marston, Dr. Dan Wright and Simon Moye Jr. The three succeed Graham Flanagan, W.L. Allen and Walter Harrington. Club officials announced plans have been completed for hiring a full time greenskeeper. It was also announced that plans are being made for the general expansion of club activities, such as more social functions, golf tournaments, etc. At the present time the local club has 331 members. Twenty-six of this number were added during the past fiscal year.

Watched Police Use Bull Whips

GREENSBORO (AP)—Wearing a full beard these days in Cuba is a shade more dangerous than sporting a Union uniform at a meeting of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. That's what Grover M. Manheim found this week on a brief visit to Havana. A member of the Brothers of the Brush here, he wore a cultivated, thick, dark beard that prompted a cab driver at the Havana airport to suggest a shave. "You could pass for (rebel leader) Fidel Castro's double," counseled the cabbie. Manheim laughed off the warning. Besides, he'd left his razor home. That was Tuesday. The next morning bullets began to fly in Havana and Manheim decided to do the same. "I got out of there Wednesday afternoon on the last plane they let go," he declared. Manheim, who operates Manheim Motor Co. here, said he saw no recognizable rebels, but that Cuban President Batista's police "were riding around like madmen in these big automobiles, swinging bull whips at anybody in sight." He said he saw two policemen beat up Neal Wilkinson, 37, a New York Daily News correspondent. "I thought they'd kill him with those whips, but then somebody pulled him into a hotel," Manheim related. ### Woman Drinks Poison Bootleg

DOBSON, N.C. (AP)—A 30-year-old Wac from Ft. McClellan, Ala., was in critical condition at a Winston-Salem Hospital today from drinking illicit liquor spiked with methyl alcohol, police said. One man has died and two others were hospitalized from drinking the poisoned whisky. Sgt. Hazel Louise Dodson, a Moore County, N. C., native, was arrested in civilian clothes for drunkenness in Mount Airy early yesterday, police said. They said she passed out at the police station and the county health officer, Dr. E. C. B. Franklin, had taken to Northern Surry Hospital. After the woman's stomach was pumped out, Dr. Franklin said she had been drinking methyl (wood) alcohol. She was transferred to Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem. Six men have been arrested and freed on $500 bond each in connection with purveying the bad liquor. Surry County Sheriff Neal Thompson said a murder charge will be placed against the person or persons found responsible for poisoning the whisky, but he said this has not been determined. Clinton White, 45, of Elkin, died Friday after drinking the bad whisky. Wesley Gillespie, 46, of Dobson, is in Hugh Chatham Memorial Hospital at Elkin. George Fox Nichols, 43, of Rt. 4, Mount Airy, was released last night from Baptist Hospital. Police said they were unable to question Sgt. Dodson as to where she bought the liquor. Charged with possession of and transporting non-taxpaid whisky are Bill Miller of Mount Airy, Ralph Stanley and Gilbert Gillespie of Dobson. Charged with possession for sale are Andy White and Monroe Snow of Dobson and Clifford Bowers of Wilkes County. Officers said Miller and Stanley bought the whisky from Bowers and brought it to Mount Airy.

Reports X-Rays Help Raise Leukemia Rate

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—X-rays of malignancy. The findings were presented to science writers on the American Cancer Society's tour of research centers. They were made and reported by Dorothy Ford, a senior medical student. Twice as much leukemia, which is cancer of the blood-forming organs, was found in children of X-rayed mothers as in mothers who received no medical radiation to the lower abdomen. About one in every five expectant mothers received radiation during late pregnancy as a matter of routine examination. More than 25 per cent of the leukemia uncovered during the survey was found in the children of these irradiated mothers. Nearly a third of the other kinds of malignancy occurring among the surveyed children came from mothers who had been subjected to diagnostic radiation. This represented the findings in searching the records of 300 children of un-radiated mothers against those of 80 leukemic children and 70 other young ones who had other kinds used on pregnant mothers in this country generally. Miss Ford's study followed one made by a British researcher, Alice Stewart of Oxford University, and the findings in the two surveys agreed. But Miss Ford found that in Louisiana at least, pregnant women are X-rayed 2 1/2 times as often as in England. In Britain only one in every 14 mothers were subjected to diagnostic X-rays. Asked why they used radiation to examine pregnant mothers, Louisiana doctors said it was a routine matter. Usually an expectant mother has a series of four or five films taken. This added up to a total of 12 to 20 roentgens, or about what the average person received by the time he is 40.

Lana Turner Stars Today In Inquest; Police Satisfied

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Lana Turner stars today at the inquest into the death of her slain underworld boy friend. Handsome Johnny Stompanato, onetime bodyguard for ex-gambler Mickey Cohen, was stabbed to death last Friday in a bedroom of the actress' pink-carpeted Beverly Hills mansion. Police say they are satisfied with the story that Miss Turner's daughter Cheryl, 14, held the kitchen knife that pierced Stompanato's stomach. Cheryl said he was threatening her mother. The coroner's inquest seeks to determine how Stompanato died and whether anyone was criminally responsible. A verdict by a coroner's jury is not binding legally, however, and Cheryl's fate remains in the hands of juvenile authorities, who have been holding her since Stompanato's death. Cheryl faces a juvenile court hearing April 24. At that time she could be: (1) released to the custody of her mother or made a ward of the court and (2) released to her mother; (3) released to Steve Crane, her father and second of Miss Turner's four husbands; (4) placed in a foster home; or, (5) placed in a state home at Santa Rosa, Calif. Cheryl was not scheduled to testify at the inquest.

Loyalty Campaign Is Begun

A seven-weeks Loyalty Campaign, dedicated to enlargement of the Sunday School program of the local churches throughout the North Carolina Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church, has been announced by the Rev. C.L. Turpin of Goldsboro, director of the Department of Christian Education. The campaign has the endorsement and support of the Department's official board and the North Carolina Conference whose superintendent, the Rev. W. Eddie Morris, also of Goldsboro, urged the co-operation of local pastors and Sunday School officers in attaining the goals set for the campaign. The campaign continues from Sunday, April 13, through Pentecost Sunday, May 25. The various Pentecostal Holiness Churches in and around Greenville are co-operating in this enlargement effort. Among others, these include the St. Paul church of Greenville whose pastor is the Rev. O.T. Howard and whose Sunday School superintendent is Mr. Johnny F. Edwards; and the First church of Greenville whose pastor is the Rev. C.C. Cribb and whose Sunday School superintendent is Mr. Louis Jones. Plans for participation in the campaign have been completed.

In the Tournament, winners from the four Associations in Region II will compete in Junior Memory Work, Intermediate Bible Drill, Young People's Better speaking, and Adult Bible Reading. Winners at the Regional Tournaments will go to the North Carolina Baptist Assembly at Fort Caswell in July to compete in the State Tournaments.

Devotional programs in the afternoon and evening sessions will be presented by Baptist Students from East Carolina College under the direction of Miss Ruth Lassiter, Student Director.

The entire program will be under the direction of Mr. Marvin E. Vivrette, Rocky Mount, Training Union Director of Region II.

Critics Can Wail On, But Giveaway Shows To Stay

NEW YORK (AP)—The critics are standing too deep at the wailing wall, heads covered, deploring television's current mania for giveaway programs.

At the present time there are 21 giveaway quiz programs each week on the three networks. It seems that there are more because some appear five and six times a week. There actually will be three or four new ones before the fever has run its course.

Historically, a soft economy encourages a giveaway. In the American Revolution, when the economy finally collapsed, public lotteries reached a zenith. More recently, in the 1930s, radio discovered the public fascination in the $64 Question and movie houses gave away kitchenware to paying customers.

Today no one argues that the economy is soft; the argument is over how soft it is and what to call it.

Paradoxically a giveaway television program, beguiling a money-conscious public with huge sums which few people even actually win, is one of the least expensive of programs to produce. It appeals to a sponsor as a hard advertising platform in a soft economy.

That is why there are so many give-away programs on television at the present time. Justified criticism of the juvenile nature of these programs will not drive them from television.

To venture a prophecy: sponsors themselves eventually will lose interest in this type of program. The shows are so numerous and it is so difficult to remember the difference between one and another that a sponsor cannot find in one the long-range entity he seeks for his advertising dollar.

Advertisers eventually will learn that nearly everyone knows who sponsors a worthwhile regular program. Scarcely anyone ever recalls the sponsor of a cheap program.

Seek To Prove Point Of Drug Conspiracy

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A South Carolina motel operator, one of 12 persons on trial here on narcotics charges, was expected to give more testimony today as presentation of state evidence continued.

The motel man, Dewey Goode Jr. of Cowpens, was on the stand when court recessed yesterday. The government produced evidence yesterday to try to link the alleged drug traffic of some of the defendants into a common conspiracy.

John C. Wilkie, a narcotics agent, testified he examined the records of Dr. Oliver Wayne Williamson of Wagoner, S.C., after a federal raid that brought 12 arrests. He said about 4,500 half-grain morphine tablets and 4,812 quarter-grain morphine tablets were missing from Dr. Williamson's supply, as well as other drugs.

Character witnesses said later Dr. Williamson is highly esteemed in Wagoner.

Another witness, Berman Walters, admitted he was addicted to dope "off and on for 13 years" but denied conspiring with any of the other defendants. He said, however, he "might have had dealings" with some of them.

Dist. Atty. James M. Bailey produced what he said was a list of 20 telephone calls from the residence of Harry Lee Gray, accused of supervising distribution of narcotics, and Walters' place of business in Concord.

Walters admitted buying narcotics from Gray and John Alfred Johnson, charged by federal men as another large distributor. Bessie Law Foulk of Columbia, S.C., another defendant, testified she accompanied undercover agent John L. Kelly Jr. and James Watson, a drug addict now under prison sentence, to Wagoner to buy narcotics. She said Kelly got a large amount of drugs then but added that she did not know Dr. Williamson. Kelly has testified the purchase was made at the doctor's office.

She is serving a 7½-year prison term at Lexington, Ky.

By JIMMY ELLIS Reflector Staff Writer

The idea that chronological age, by itself, should be the determining factor in starting the formal education of children is a proposition that has been under fire for many years.

Opposition to the idea comes from educators and laymen, alike. Both groups have spoken loud and long about the worth of other factors, particularly "readiness," in determining when a child should start school.

Their arguments are backed by notable measures of proof, examples of teaching children who can not be admitted to public school because of their age. Included in these examples is one in Greenville, a cooperative first grade that is now handling its second group of "too-young-for-public-school" children.

Children in the present class, as those who were in the first class two years ago, are all doing well. That they are is no accident, however, because each of them was pre-selected, on the basis of an extensive testing program, and each has had some advantages that children in a regular first grade classroom don't get.

The testing program, conducted by personnel at East Carolina College under direction of Dr. Woodrow Flanary, was held last summer for the 12 students who are now in the school and will be held this summer for students who will enter next September.

Each of the prospective students is given a Stanford-Binet intelligence test, visual and auditory tests, tests of reading adaptability, and dominance tests. In addition, each of the children is the subject of a number of interviews and each has had some advantages that children in a regular first grade classroom don't get.

The testing program is aimed at one thing: Finding whether a child is ready for school despite his inability to meet state school law age requirements. There are no ages to grind, so far as in individual children are concerned, and if a child isn't ready, his parents are told just that.

The testing program, and subsequent interviews, are kept objective, or as objective as possible. Doting parents who want to "push" their children beyond their limits are advised to wait until the child can enter public school with the advantage of another year of growing up.

Although the intelligence test, in itself, plays a vital role in the overall testing program, IQ's are not stressed as much as some other phases of the testing. That policy keeps the school from becoming a meeting place for "a bunch of little geniuses" who pursue courses of study radically different from public school programs.

As a matter of fact, the school's basic instructional program is the same as that of public school first grades. There are some major exceptions in classroom procedure, however.

Primarily, the school's classes are small (the first class had 19 students in the 1955-1956 school year and the present class has 12 members). That permits teachers to give a considerable amount of "individual attention," a factor which educators say is vital in the educational progress of any children.

Individual attention, as such, becomes even more meaningful when it is coupled with "enrichment" activities which carry the basic instructional program beyond mere requirements.

There is a measure of individual attention and enrichment in every classroom, public or private, but Cooperative School personnel believe they have carried them farther than a larger public school classroom can. They feel that way because they believe that they have a superior group of students but because they know they can do more with a smaller group.

Even at that, Greenville's Cooperative School's enrichment program is not a planned or set program. Such activities are, in the words of teacher Mrs. Rachel Rogers, "incidental" propositions that grow out of student interest and tie into regular instruction.

"There is no set pattern for our enrichment activities," Mrs. Rogers says. "Most of them this year have stemmed from things the children have noticed at home and brought into the classroom for further discussion by the group."

She cited use of a globe to explain how satellites circle the earth, after Russia launched its first Sputnik. That one incident, according to Mrs. Rogers, led into further use of the globe to show the location of Russia to the United States, location of points in the United States, and finally, a general discussion of how the earth fits into the solar system.

There was also a session on moonlight is created by using the globe, a flashlight and a reflecting object.

Such discussions seem far removed from normal first grade activities, and there might be some question about how well first graders will receive such information. There is not as much of a problem in that respect as some people might imagine, however.

"Enrichment, as such, is based on the student's interest," Mrs. Rogers says. "It's successful because the children are quick to grasp things and retain them."

"Any teacher will try to take into consideration children's background, win, Ed Harris, Scott Heath, Mrs. Scott Heath, Charles Jackson, Charles Winstead Jackson, Mrs. Elbert Jackson, John Jackson, Jimmy Manning, Leslie Manning, Nana Manning, Charles Roberts, H. L. Roberts, and Richard Squire.

and Dr. Woodrow Flanary, educational chairman. Other directors are Mrs. R. C. Forney, secretary-treasurer, Dr. Frank Fuller, Dr. Malene Irons, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Mrs. M. M. Lusk, Mrs. R. M. Garrett, Jr., J. H. Rose, Dr. C.R. Prewitt, Miss France Wahl, and W. H. Watson.

The board establishes contacts with parents of potential students and conducts an annual meeting during which the school's activities and programs are outlined. The meeting this year will be held next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Parish House of St. Paul's Episcopal Church with Mrs. M. M. Lusk, the new president, presiding.

Although the school did not operate last year because of inability to obtain a qualified teacher, the association is optimistic about next year's plans. They believe the idea is finding new friends everywhere, especially because of contacts made by parents of present students.

One Greenville resident, who has a daughter in this year's class, is enthusiastic about the work being done.

"I really feel," she says, "the instruction is as good, if not better than what my child would get in public school because my daughter gets what amounts to private instruction due to class size."

"I have found that school has been made interesting for my child, although she is one of the youngest ones in the group, and she has absolutely no dread of going each day."

The students, most of whom have birthdays between October 15 and January 1, are equally happy with the experience. According to their teacher, they present no discipline problems and enjoy hard work to the extent they will ask for it.

One child, who is typical of the group, enjoys it so much she was impatient for Easter holidays to end so she could return to class. And she is not particularly looking forward to summer vacation, either.

Although the Cooperative School is not connected with the public school system, it operates on the same schedule, calendar and curriculum. It meets in a room in the Junior High School building and classes are held from 9 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. each day.

The school is a non-profit association, but there is some expense for students who are enrolled. Fees include $15 for the testing program and monthly tuition rates of $15. Mrs. Rogers is paid by the association which operates the school but she has to meet certification standards set for other teachers. In her case, she has met them by being a graduate of East Carolina College and, in addition, by having three years of teaching experience, two years at Langley Air Force Base and one year at White Lake in Bladen County.

Activities of the school are directed by a Board of Directors, headed this year by Dr. Frank H. Longino, administrative chairman.

Red Oak Christian Announcements

At the 11 o'clock morning worship service the pastor, Rev. Howard James, will preach on the theme "Clean Hands and a Pure Heart." Jarvis Tripp Jr. and Thurston Wynne will render a duet, "Cleanse Me." Flowers will be provided by Mrs. Clyde Bright Sr. Following a consecration service during which all members and friends of Red Oak Christian Church will renew their vows to Christ and the church, a baptismal service will be held for the new members who are to be baptized.

All members are urged to be present for this opportunity to renew their spiritual vows and to share in the baptismal service of the new members. Twenty-seven new members were received during the pre-Easter revival led by the pastor. The 18 candidates for baptism Sunday at 12 noon are: Dickie Allen, Carl Crawford, Hubert Garris, Loyd Godwin, Mrs. Loyd God-

CHAPTER 16

When Price Regan was in town Sunday morning, he made it a practice to call at the Madden house at 10:45 to take Laura to church. Usually her father went with them. As Price ran the bell this morning, he fervently hoped Barry Madden was going anywhere but to church. His hopes were immediately dashed, for Madden, dressed in his Sunday best, opened the door.

"Come in, Price," Madden said. "I think Laura is almost ready."

They waited in the hall, silence a barrier between them, Madden's face was grave. Price glanced at him and turned his gaze away, wondering, as he had a good many times, how far the banker would go to in backing Cole Weston. Apparently they had gone down the line together so far, but last night Weston had made his intentions clear. The ruthless brutality which characterized Weston the rancher did not seem to be in Madden the banker. If they could be separated.

His thoughts were broken into by Laura, who came down the stairs, wearing a sailor hat and a prim blue dress which gave her an odd, subdued appearance. It was for Sunday morning only. Price thought, an appearance which she would shed when she returned home as easily as she would take off the dress.

"Good morning, darling," Laura said, and paused halfway down the stairs for him to admire her. The spot where she stopped was carefully chosen. The sunlight, pouring through the stained glass of an east window, touched her with the colors of the rainbow. Price smiled, thinking this bit of demure Sunday-morning manner she assumed.

"You're beautiful," he said. "As beautiful as an angel with the glory of the Lord upon her."

"A very pretty compliment," she said, and came on down the stairs. "I thank you for it."

Madden snorted. "She sure fooled you. She's no angel. If you'd heard her talk to me at breakfast, you'd know she wasn't."

"You deserved it," she said. "Anyhow, Price wouldn't want to marry an angel, would he?"

Price looked at her. She looked like one. Madden said, "with you keeping her up all night dancing."

Price kissed her, being careful not to disturb her hat that was perfectly placed atop her curls. As she went out with Price, she said, a little spitefully, "It's better to look like an angel on Sunday than act like the devil."

Her father said nothing to that. He closed the door behind her and Price, and they moved slowly toward the church through the hot morning. Laura walking between Price and her father. Something had happened, Price thought, for he felt the barbed edge of her hostility toward each other. Later he would learn what it was, but he couldn't ask now.

The church service dragged. Now and then Price glanced at Laura, who sat with her hands folded decorously on her lap, a set smile on her face; then he looked past her at Barry Madden, whose face was more grim than Price had ever seen it. He knew it was wishful thinking, but he couldn't keep from hoping that Laura would prove to be the lever by which Madden could be pried free from Weston and his friends.

Price stood up with relief when the final hymn was sung, then the preacher lifted his hand and gave the benediction. He had barely said, "Amen," when the sound of running horses and the rattle of a wagon came to Price, then a woman's voice, "Regan! Regan!"

Price ran down the aisle and out through the door, forgetting the dignity of the place and time. Jean Potter jumped down from the wagon seat, hurring past the lathered horses. She cried, "Regan, they hanged Walt Cronin this morning!"

Price stood motionless, shocked by what he had heard, yet at the same time he realized this was exactly what he had expected. He even had warned Cronin that he'd better leave the country, but Cronin had not been capable of taking a warning.

The congregation ran outside behind Price, the preacher with them. All of them were shocked into immobility, just as Price had been. He walked to the girl, asking, "Do you know who did it?"

Before she could answer, Barry Madden rushed up, saying, "You don't know for sure, do you, Miss Potter? You weren't there when it happened, were you?"

Price glanced at Madden, realizing he shouldn't be surprised at this interference, either. It must have been decided last night. Barry Madden looked as gully as hell, Price thought. He knew exactly what was going to happen.

Price shoved him back with a thrusting elbow. "Do you know who did it?"

The girl was almost hysterical. Tears were in her eyes, she was trembling, and her face was so pale she looked as if she were about to faint. Finally she said in a barely audible voice, "No, I wasn't there. I don't know for sure who did it."

Laura tugged at Price's elbow. "I'll take her home. She ought to lie down."

"All right, take care of her. I'll be along in a minute," Price swung to face Madden. "You let her alone, Barry. Understand?"

Madden nodded as Laura walked away with Jean. Madden said, "I've never been sure whether you had a thoughtful brain or not, but looks like I'm going to find out."

Price walked away. He had to or he'd have lost his temper. He was trembling, and he was asking himself, "What can I do? Or any of us?"

"I'll see the body's brought to town," said Price. "You can give Cronin a Christian burial."

He stepped into the wagon and drove away. Mrs. De Long came to the door and said, "You can't hold funeral services for a man like that, can you, Mr. Dolan? Not here in the church anyhow."

Price left the team at the livery stable. "Barney, soon as you get these horses rubbed down, harness Wall Cronin was lynched this morning. I want you to go help me cut the body down and fetch it into town."

Barney De Long, the liveryman, backed away. "No, Mr. Regan, I ain't having no part of that kind of business. I can't get away to-day."

Price grabbed a fistful of De Long's shirt. "You'll go! I'll deputize you if it'll make you feel any better, and I'll twist your skin my neck if I have to! I won't be gone more'n half an hour. When I get back, you'd better have that team ready to go."

He wheeled and sprinted down the runway and out into the street, feeling the urgency of time. It was too late to save Cronin, but Rose might still be alive. If there was any evidence left at the scene of the hanging, he'd have to get there ahead of everyone else or it would be tramped out. But maybe no one else would be there. The sellers up the Yellow Cat wouldn't be milling around like a bunch of sheep. Walt Cronin had been the only leader they had.

Price took a minute in his hotel room to change clothes, then he buckled his gun belt around him and, picking up his Winchester, left the hotel and hurried to the Madden house. He found Jean lying on the couch, still pale but reasonably composed.

"She'll be all right," Laura said. "She was just excited. I guess anybody would be who had to bring news like that."

"It was seeing him," Jean said. "I took just one look, and that was all, but I'll dream about him the rest of my life."

A few words are spoken, and there's all-out war. Continue "The Lone Deputy" here tomorrow.

New Chairman Of School Unit

FARMVILLE — The Farmville District School Committee named Howard Moyer as its new chairman and accepted two new members at the board's annual organization meeting here Wednesday night.

Moyer succeeds W.A. Allen as chairman of the board. T.S. Ryon was named vice-chairman and Mrs. Carroll D. Oglesby was elected secretary.

Mrs. Oglesby was one of two new board members accepted by the board after appointment Monday by the Pitt County Board of Education. She replaces Mrs. Ted Albritton and came into office with D. Emerson Smith who was named to fill the unexpired portion of Allen's term. Allen resigned with a year of his three-year appointment remaining. J.Y. Monk is the fifth member of the board.

Principal Sam D. Bundy was re-elected to the top administrative post in the Farmville Public Schools and will begin his twelfth term next fall. Bundy was also appointed secretary to the board.

Chess Whiz Is Branded A 'Red'

TOWSON, Md. — Two of the nine clubs in the Maryland Chess Federation were in a furor today over a federation player who was accused of being a Communist.

The player in question is Irving Kandel, 44-year-old member of the Maryland Chess Club, who was described by probers for a House Un-American Activities subcommittee as one of the ringleaders of the "Communist conspiracy" in Maryland.

Kandel, a chess whiz, has finished first in the last three state chess tournaments. Spokesmen for two state clubs said their groups would drop out of the federation rather than play in matches with Kandel.

NEW YORK (U)—Steels were lower and aircrafts made gains in a mixed stock market early this afternoon. Trading was dull. Key stocks fluctuated from fractions to around a point. Most changes were narrow.

Rails continued their technical recovery which bolstered yesterday's market. Rubbers and farm implements declined. Chemicals were mixed.

The market was mixed at the start and maintained that tone. Industrials as a whole were a bit lower.

American Motors seemed likely to match its role yesterday as the most active stock. It rose 1/4 to 3/8 on a large opening block of 15,000 shares and continued selling at about the same price.

A scattering of government contracts helped the aircraft group. Republic Aviation rose about a point. A rumor that Republic is on the brink of receiving a big government contract popped up.

Boeing and Douglas gained fractions. International Business Machines was ahead about 5 points, not sensational for this high-priced stock.

The rise apparently was in response to a big increase in earnings. U.S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet dropped fractions. Small gains were made by Southern Pacific, New York Central, Illinois Central and Southern Railway.

Chrysler was firm. General Motors eased. American Telephone dropped a fraction while Standard Oil (New Jersey) was about unchanged. Kennecott, Raytheon, General Electric and International Telephone rose slightly.

The Associated Press average of 50 stocks at noon was off 10 cents to $160.40 with the industrials down 20 cents, the rails up 10 cents and the utilities unchanged.

Pitt Pair Win Top Typing Event Honors

Gloria Jean Simmons of Bethel High School and Phyllis Dudley of Griffon High School won top individual awards in the Northeastern District Typing Contest held yesterday on the campus of East Carolina College.

Miss Simmons won first place in the beginning typists division and Miss Dudley took top honors in the advanced typists division. In addition to the individual awards, beginning typists from Pitt County won a team award for having the highest average score within their classification.

Civilians Observe 38th Birthday

Jimmy Simpkins of New Bern, Lieutenant Governor of the North Carolina District of Civilian International, gave a brief history of Civitan, now celebrating its 38th birthday. This month is also the local Civitan Club's second birthday. Simpkins predicted that during this year the Greenville club would show more progress and achievement than any club in the North Carolina District.

JIMMY SIMPKINS

and served for dessert. Douglas introduced Simpkins and the many guests who were present. They included: Conner Merritt, Frank Steinbeck, Norman Little, James Hudson, Elmer Moore, Cleveland Bradner, Ed Willford, and Harold Bowers. Troy Riddle was introduced as a new member.

John Hardy, president, presided over the meeting and asked Joe Dudley, chairman of the Nominating Committee, to read the nominations for officers for the coming year. They include: for president, Ashley Hudson and Jack Morgan; for vice president, George Douglas and Wilbur Hardee; for secretary, Andy Carrigan; for treasurer, Leon Singleton and Randolph Fleming.

Competing in the contest, sponsored by the EOC Department of Business and college chapters of Pi Omega Pi, business education fraternity, and the Future Business Leaders of America, were 78 advanced students and 37 beginning students from high schools in 16 Northeastern North Carolina counties. Awards were announced last night at a dinner on the campus.

Feggy Jean Dixon of Chicod High School won third place honors in the advanced division, placing behind second-award winner Lillie Ann Midgett of Belhaven. In the beginners division, Deanna Hollowell of Edenton took second place and Sylvia Wallace of Bath was third-place winner.

Beaufort County typists won team honors in the advanced division, ranking ahead of Pamlico County students and Lenoir County students. Behind Pitt County in the beginners division team rankings were Lenoir County, second, and Martin County, third.

The contest here yesterday followed a series of competitive events in county schools which were conducted during March. Students participating in the district contests were top scorers in their schools.

Beginning typists whose high scores won the top team award for Pitt County are Gloria Jean Simmons, Bethel; Barbara Ann Haddock, Chicod; Kay Rader Allen, Farmville; Joseph Alton Braxton, Farmville; Linda Chauncey, Griffon; Wilma Patrick, Griffon; Janice Hudson, Grimesland; Gail Bullock, Stokes-Pactolus; Shirley Whitehurst, Stokes-Pactolus; Shirley Churchill, Winterville; and J. H. Loftin, Winterville.

Alton Finch of the Business Department faculty acted as chairman of both county and district contests. At last night's dinner, awards were presented to winners by Betty Mae Freeman of Zebulon, president of Pi Omega Pi; Sylvia Jones of Kinston, president of the Future Business Leaders of America; and Dr. E. R. Browning, director of the Department of Business Education, Carol Mallard of Trenton, Mary Lou Parker and Jean Aswell of Four Oaks, business students at the college, presided at the dinner.

Other awards presented last night included certificates given to the highest scorer in each county participating in the district contests; medals given to the highest scorers in preliminary typing contests; and pennants given to the schools scoring highest in their counties in the preliminary rounds.

Top place among Pitt County schools was won by Griffon High School, which had highest average scorers for beginners and advanced students.

Complete Series Of TB Programs

Personnel of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association and the Pitt County Health Department have completed a series of programs on tuberculosis facts for school students and adults.

The programs, conducted in Pitt County schools and at health education workshops, included a 13-minute film, "Are You Positive?" in an effort to clarify misunderstanding about tuberculosis. A total of 6,943 persons attended the programs.

Participating in the programs were Mrs. Milton V. Clarke of the Tuberculosis Association and E. L. Kilpatrick and Bob Charlton of the Health Department. Arrangements for the programs were completed by the Tuberculosis Association's Health Education Committee which includes Miss Lelia Higgs, chairman, Miss Tabitha DeVisconti, Mrs. Harry Stillman, and Mrs. Tom Gower.

EXTENDED WEATHER FORECAST FOR N. C.

Temperatures will average three to five degrees through Wednesday. Average high and low temperatures of 72-48 for the coastal plains. Rainfall, averaging about three-fourths of an inch, is expected Sunday night through Monday night.

Scouters Look For Over 3,000 At Local Camporee

AREA CHIEFS DISCUSS PLANS FOR MAY SCOUT CAMPOREE...

More than 3,000 Boy Scouts and Scouters are expected to attend the East Carolina Council Camporee to be held here on May 2, 3, and 4.

This announcement was made by Camporee Chief Wiley L. Wall at last night's camporee committee meeting staged on the campus of East Carolina College. Wall stated the May Camporee will be the largest held in North Carolina this year.

Last night's meeting was held primarily to familiarize the various Camporee officials with the plans for the annual event. Among the topics of discussion was the camp site. It was announced that Camporee is to be held on a 50-acre plot, located several hundred yards from the city limits on S. C. Highway 43 South.

Increased Farm Incomes Talked

GRIMESLAND—Discussions on increasing farm incomes were held Wednesday by members of the Grimesland Senior 4-H Club.

Cecil Register and Mrs. Lois Freeman directed the discussions for the 20 club members who attended. They also directed a short discussion on control of rats on farms.

H. W. Mills, president, presided.

Carpenter Hurt In Fall Today

A carpenter was injured when he fell several feet while working at Blount-Harvey Co. this morning.

He was identified as Jasper House, 56, of Selma.

House was reported to have fallen across a brace as he worked on the remodeling job.

Rescue squad members who moved the injured man to Pitt Memorial Hospital, said he received side and chest injuries. X-rays were being taken to determine the extent of his injuries.

HEATER FLARED
A box alarm brought firemen to the home of Harold Black of 811 Atlantic Ave. shortly before 7:30 last night.

Firemen reported an oil heater flared up.

Swollen Streams Continue To Rise

RALEIGH (U)—Rains averaging 1 to 1 1/2 inches fell on river basins of Central and Eastern North Carolina yesterday and last night. As a result, the Weather Bureau reported today the streams, already swollen, were rising, and some minor flooding was expected.

The Cape Fear was expected to crest about 21 feet, one foot above bankful tonight at Moncure, and a crest of about 37 feet, two feet over bankful, was expected tomorrow night. A rise to 28 feet, eight above bankful, was forecast for Elizabethtown Monday.

The Neuse was expected to rise two feet above bankful at Neuse Sunday and a crest three feet above bankful was forecast for Monday at Smithfield. The Weather Bureau said that downstream the Neuse, already near bankful from previous rains, would remain high for the next week or 10 days.

The Tar was expected to remain near the bankful level along its entire length for several days. River levels on the Lower Roanoke are controlled by the Kerr Dam and it probably will be maintained just under bankful for several days as water from the dam is released.

Probe Break-In During Night

According to detectives the incident occurred sometime Wednesday night. Between two and three dollars in change is missing. Recreation Director Gordon Goodman reports.

The money was taken from a change box in a small concession office.

Canada's first steam railway operated in 1836 between La Prairie and St. Johns, Quebec.
