Baptist Women Hold Federation Meeting

In developing the topic "How Large Is Your World?" Miss Theresa Anderson, missionary speaker at last night's meeting of the South Roanoke Federation of Baptist Business Women, related several experiences she had had while a missionary in the Philippines.

In challenging the group to greater Christian service, she said, "Enlarge your vision, open your heart, lengthen your arm until you can include the whole world."

Miss Anderson was introduced by Mrs. A. L. Parker of Greensboro, first vice president of the State WMU.

A highlight of this annual meeting, which attracted 125 Baptist women representing churches in Ayden, Bethel, Tarboro, Wilson, Farmville, Fountain, Grifton, and Greenville, was the election of officers.

Mrs. Garner Re-elected
Mrs. Fred Owens of Immanuel Baptist Church, nominating committee chairman, announced that Mrs. Clem Garner of Memorial Baptist Church had been re-elected to serve as chairman of the South Roanoke Association.

Other incoming officers are Mrs. E. B. Wilkerson of the First Baptist Church of Wilson, first vice chairman; Mrs. Ruel W. Tyson of Memorial Baptist Church, secretary; and Mrs. W. H. Hollowell of the Ayden Baptist Church, pianist.

Mrs. Garner presided over the business session which was held following a dinner served at the Woman's Club. Mrs. Larry Averette, president of the WMS of Memorial Baptist Church, gave the invocation. Special music was rendered by Mrs. Claude Kidd, soloist, of Memorial Baptist Church, and Mrs. W. H. Hollowell of Ayden, accompanist.

Reports were given by Mrs. M. T. Speir of Winterville, extension committee; Miss Grace Smith of Memorial Baptist Church, community missions; Mrs. G. B. Jones of Immanuel Baptist Church, mission study; Mrs. Ruth Thomas of the Bethel Baptist Church, literature; Miss Nina Mae Baltzger of the Five Points Church of Wilson, prayer; Miss Sarah Jones of Immanuel Church, stewardship; for Mrs. Albert Bell; and Mrs. Harold Allred of the Farmville church, publicity.

Miss Velma Bryant of the Five Points Church of Wilson, constitution committee chairman, gave a report on the revised by-laws which was accepted by the Federation. Serving on her committee were Mrs. Chester Walsh and Mrs. Tyson of Memorial Baptist Church.

Mrs. Gilmer Cross of Goldsboro, superintendent of Rocky Mount Region of WMU, gave the prayer of dedication which was followed by the program presided over by Miss Kathy Taylor of Williamston, second vice chairman. Mrs. Henry Johnson of Farmville, superintendent of South Roanoke Association, said the devotional.

The program was concluded by a benediction given by Miss Lenna Rudd, chairman of the Eastern Federation of Baptist Business Women.

Mrs. E. G. Cole of Winterville and Mrs. W. C. Rames of Tarboro served as timekeeper and parliamentarian at the meeting. Guests and visitors who were recognized by Mrs. Garner included Miss Ercelle Brooks, missionary to Nigeria and former member of Memorial Baptist Church; Mrs. N. C. Brooks, mother of Miss Brooks, and secretary-treasurer of South Roanoke Baptist Builder's Club; Miss Inabelle Coleman, mis-tionary to Formosa; Mrs. C. U. Rogers, South Roanoke Association stewardship chairman; and Mrs. Percy B. Upchurch, Association prayer chairman.

WMU presidents were also recognized by the presiding officer. The women of Memorial Baptist Church acted as hostesses last night.

World's Fair Girl Guides Shun Chemise

AP Newsfeatures
American girls who will serve as guides at the Brussels World's Fair have shunned chemise lines for simple tailoring.

Their uniform is an informal daytime suit in grey wool and dacron, loosely fitted. The skirt is permanently pleated. A white nylon blouse is worn under the jacket, which has three-quarter length sleeves. The outfit is topped by a gold sateen beret. The shoes are specially designed Capozios.

Although the guides are not raving about it, they think it is practical. They have two complete outfits for the six months they will be on duty in the American pavilion. The material is drip-dry. The costume is designed to blend with interior decorations of the pavilion.

Male guides will wear dark, striped sport coats and grey slacks.

A new pressurized household polish may be sprayed on a surface with one hand, wiped with the cloth in the other, for speedier polishing techniques. The polish may be used on all surfaces—formica, porcelain, brass, stainless steel, chrome, plastic wall tile, marble and leather.

Second America Enacted For World's Fair

By DOROTHY ROE AP Women's Editor
BRUSSELS (AP)—Americans who come to the Brussels World's Fair this summer will feel right at home.

It's obvious from the time you get foot in the airport that the Belgians have gone all out to become as American as the Iowa State Fair. As you walk down the steps from your plane you are greeted by a bevy of pretty Belgian girls in smart uniforms—bright blue jackets, black skirts and black velvet berets—all of whom speak English and most of whom understand rock 'n' roll and Elvis Presley (although, believe me, I don't ask 'em).

These girls help you through customs and advise you on where to stay—you can even go to a modern motel, if you like, and rent a car to drive to the fair on brand-new express highways as modern as the latest American turnpikes. At the fair itself you'll find a glorified version of the age-old country fair—only here the nations of the world are competing for blue ribbons. Where, back home, farmer Jones would enter his prize pumpkin, here Russia enters her Sputnik and Uncle Sam shows his favorite main street.

But there are merry-go-rounds and ferris wheels, and even baby-sitters for the convenience of touring American families. When you order a chicken sandwich at one of Brussels' luxury hotels, they bring it with a bottle of catsup on the side—Belgians have been told that Americans are not happy without catsup. The coffee comes American style too—with cream instead of hot milk. At the United States pavilion, there's a continuous daily fashion show of strictly American clothes—from blue jeans to date dresses modeled by mannequins from Paris and Brussels who have undergone a concentrated coaching to become Americanized. It seems the United States budget wouldn't stretch to cover the fees for American models, so we have trained Europeans to look, walk and talk American. The quickest way to accomplish this, as one male previewer remarked, is to date American men.

Men Like Lively Bathroom Decor

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer
When redecorating your bathroom, include your husband in the act, advises Rose Wagner who with her husband Sherie makes a career of coordinating closet, boudoir and bath interiors. "Some women ignore the man of the house when decorating a bathroom, but his ideas usually can be as definite about that as anything else. Why not let him have a voice in the matter?" she asks. The tipoff she's found is when a man shops for his own decor at their 57th street show-room in New York, he is more fastidious usually than a woman, following up the most minute detail of his decorating plan.

"One man wanted wood paneling in his bathroom, so we got it for him—waterproofed laminated plywood. Another man wanted a bathroom done in Mexican hues, the scheme devised from a ring he wears. Green and brown grained marble formed the nucleus of the color scheme."

"Contrary to popular opinion, men do not object to pink bathrooms, she says. They may act like they tolerate the feminine shade, but secretly they like it. Too many women, she says, stick to clinical white bathrooms, underestimating their husbands' love of color.

"We were decorating a bathroom for one couple. The wife selected a very conservative pattern for the walls, and was overwhelmed when her husband rebelled, preferring a more flamboyant pattern in gay reds."

You never can tell, she says, but a safe bet—if you don't know your man's taste is black, gold and white. It's a color combination that appeals to any man usually. Mrs. Wagner says she is happy to say that peach, Nile green and powder blue, popular bathroom colors when she started in business 15 years ago, "are now virtually extinct."

Monograms are on the wane too, she says, and it is no longer considered chic to use "HIS" or

Look At The Record - - And Cheer

The casual observer can glean only satisfaction out of reports emerging from the now-concluded meeting of North Carolina's Conservation and Development Board.

Optimism was inspired less by talk about what was going to be done, than by what had been accomplished . . . and the resulting economic benefits attained by the state.

This is not to belittle in any way the forward-looking surveys and considered measures to be taken in the months to come. They are important, and likewise encouraging.

But if any Tar Heel needed assurance his state was working, had been working, would be working to develop its economic structure, the past two days should have provided it.

Look at the record for the first nine months of the new fiscal year as reported by C&D:

Announced investments for new and expanded industries during those nine months total $160,857,000 as compared with $102,355,000 for the same period in the last fiscal year.

This involved 259 new and expanded industries as compared to 223 in the previous corresponding period. It means new jobs for 12,107 people and extra payrolls of $41,023,000 annually.

The fact that this has been going on at a time when the nation as a whole is undergoing an economic recession, is something to make North Carolinians sit up and take notice.

There's another cheerful facet to C&D reports. One of Governor Hodges' pet schemes has been the development of more food-processing industries in the state. Well, in the first three months of this year money put into new food and kindred products showed the biggest gain by industrial classification, with investments totaling something over $11,390,000. Textiles ranked second, with $2,886,000 and metal working plants third with $2,230,000 for new facilities.

Nor can we overlook the fact that the Coastal Plains area led the mountains and piedmont in new plant investments during the first three months of 1958.

The figures:

Coastal Plains	— $7,590,000
Mountains	— 6,160,000
Piedmont	— 5,906,000

There's no denying but that the Coastal Plains have a long way to go before attaining the industrial-agricultural balance we seek. And the Coastal Plains counties will have to still widen its current lead over other segments of North Carolina in industrial investments to even approach their advantage.

Recession worries?
North Carolina is on the move.

Some Miss The Best Things Here At Home

It takes just a few mild, sunny days in the early spring to start speculations about vacation time.

Smalltalk invariably gets around to touching on past summer outings and adventures as well as speculation as to this summer.

An odd fact of life we keep encountering is that so many North Carolinians know much too little about their own state . . . just can't see the trees for the forest.

They've been to Florida, California, Canada, Alaska and Europe; to Cuba, Mexico and New York; but they've been missing some of the best things here at home. Maybe they intended someday to see what North Carolina had to offer the vacationist, but just haven't gotten around to it.

Every year thousands of people come from other states to see what we have in North Carolina while we who live here frequently pass up the wonders so near at hand.

One can better evaluate his own community after having seen some of the others. It is then possible to conclude how much ahead or behind we are by comparison with neighbors either far or near.

Why not, just this once, take time out and see North Carolina this year? It would be a rewarding experience.

Healthy Respect For Red Gains

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gabriel Hauge, the President's special assistant on economic problems, is such an expert on qualifying practically everything he says that he makes a diplomat's speech on foreign affairs look like simple ABC.

He made a speech himself Monday night. It was heavily qualified. And it was full of the usual and obvious criticism of Soviet communism and its handling of economic dilemmas.

But through it all shone a healthy respect for the progress the Soviets have made and an awareness that more can be expected and that Soviet communism itself may be undergoing changes.

Ironically, this is pretty much the picture the Soviets themselves are trying to present to the world. Premier Khrushchev is working hard at it. And Hauge showed respect for the realism and down-to-earthness of Khrushchev.

Since Hauge is close to the President — and his speech was put out beforehand by the White House — it can be taken for granted Eisenhower is aware of the new flexibility and drive of the Soviets.

Not long ago it was customary to look upon the Soviets as backward oafs. Not any more. They provided — with their development of their own atomic and hydrogen bombs and the launching of the Sputniks — grim testimony to their scientific and industrial progress and the strides they've made towards catching up with this country.

The new respect for Soviet ability — as reflected in Hauge's talk — is illustrated by the Eisenhower administration's extreme caution, which sometimes seems defensive in dealing with the Soviets.

This is a typical example of Hauge's jibes at the Soviets: ". . . We can say that 40 years of communism have given the average Russian citizen one more shirt in return for his sacrifices."

But elsewhere in his speech Hauge acknowledged the Soviet economy — sixty in the world under the czars — has moved up to second behind the United States and is still growing.

"The Soviet economy," Hauge said, "has been growing since 1950 at a rate roughly twice that of the United States. . . . It is a significant fact of today's world. It is a fact Americans should understand."

He mentioned various Soviet deficiencies — particularly in agriculture — but also noted the Soviet leadership under Khrushchev has promised the people better living and a fuller life.

Then he mentioned the "implications" in these promises although heavily qualifying anything that might look like a prophecy.

The Soviet leadership, having eased up on the old Stalinist restraints and suppressions, will have a tough time trying to restore them, if they ever think that's necessary; there will be more and more emphasis on consumer goods; there is a tendency toward a more "liberal" outlook on the part of Soviet intellectuals, managers and technicians; and even Communist doctrine is being forced into changes.

And Hauge, avoiding prophecy, raised a question: "Is it possible that economic growth and scientific development within the Soviet Union will consume the roots of Russian communism?"

Advice To Joe College

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—For the first time in the postwar world, Joe College may not find people standing in line to offer him jobs when he says farewell to the campus this June.

What does a young graduate need to get ahead in a business recession?

"First of all, he needs to find himself," said Arthur Rubloff of Chicago, board chairman of one of the nation's largest real estate development firms.

"Failure to find themselves is what defeats most young men. You have to go out and find yourself. Nobody will find you for you."

"A man should like his work. He's a sucker to stay for long at it otherwise. But if he doesn't know what he wants to do, then he certainly will end up having to do something he doesn't want."

Rubloff at 55 has supervised building projects totaling more than half a billion dollars. He went to work in a laundry at the age of 9, quit school at 12.

He sold newspapers, shined shoes, set pins in a bowling alley, worked as a galley boy and deckhand on Great Lakes freighters. He then went into the real estate field at 17—and earned $7,000 in commissions his first year.

Unlike many self-made men, however, Rubloff is a firm advocate of education.

"It has never been more fundamental to business, or more important to success," he says, "because the world is becoming more specialized."

He also believes college graduates are wrong to feel that the present recession is any great or permanent barrier to advancement.

"Some young people seem to feel that the days of great opportunities are past," he said. "Nothing could be farther from the truth. The opportunities today are greater than they ever have been in the history of mankind."

"Even with this so-called recession, there are more $70,000 to $100,000 jobs open than there ever were. The corporations are weeding out the second-best men, and looking for top talent—and they'll pay any price for it."

Naturally, corporations aren't offering jobs like this to a man just out of college. How does he climb to that rank?

"It isn't merely a matter of either genius or hard work alone," said Rubloff. "It's easy to tell somebody to work hard."

"I think a young man does need 90 per cent energy to go with the 10 per cent judgment he has now. And I feel that if he uses his energy sensibly, it will help him mature in judgment."

"But just working hard isn't the main thing. The basic things are to have a real desire to succeed, a pride in accomplishment, and to think in terms of how you can help the other fellow."

"But there is a hell of a lot more to success than working hard. Laborers work hard."

"My guess is that only one out of 100 people really wants to achieve. The rest just seem lost. They wait for something to happen to them. But nothing is going to happen to them."

Here are Rubloff's other practical tips: "Organize yourself. Be well-liked. You do this by being fair."

Take an active part in community programs. This will give you a rounded conception of human relations you can get in no other way. And understanding human relations is vital today. The well-liked man, who understands people, gets along better than the smarter man who isn't liked."

"If you have persistence and like people, don't worry at your lack of genius. If every one of the 63 million workers in America was a genius, this country would be in a hell of a mess."

Finally, always give as much more than you get, and never lose faith in human nature. Because one man has done you wrong, don't turn your ear from the next fellow."

Reach Me That Shovel

George Lautares spent two days over the Easter weekend picking up sapphires and rubies strewn on the ground . . . No, that sounds too simple.

George Lautares and a friend spent two days digging and sifting sapphires and rubies out of the soil . . . well, almost.

It was like this:

There's a place near Franklin in Macon County where for a mere $3 fee one can hunt for precious stones to your heart's content. Good chance of finding them, too.

Lautares was telling me the other day of how he found about thirty-five small stones; rubies, sapphires, and one small rhodolite (a purple-looking garnet.) He says some of the rubies were of what he called "gem quality," which sounds good.

A companion, Pete Richardson, struck it rich. He turned up a ruby weighing around eight carats and worth in the neighborhood of $700.

(Things like that make me want to reach for a shovel, too.)

How do you hunt for precious stones in the land of near-Franklin-in-Macon-County?

Nothing to it, except hard work, according to my informant.

First you dig a hole maybe two or three feet deep. At that point you're in, or close to, a strata of gravel. Then you dig some more; put the soil in buckets and carry them to a sort of screening arrangement where you dump the dirt and wash it down with water. The screen retains a host of tiny pebbles among which you might find something worth keeping.

You might not, too.

The seeker does this over and over again; by day's end he's

Opinions In Brief

"The most successful means for the achievement and retention of prosperity is competition. Only by competition can an economy expand to serve all people, especially in their capacity as consumers, and dissolve all advantages which do not result directly from higher performance. Free competition thus leads to progress and profits for the whole social order."—Ludwig Erhard, German Economic Minister.

Recession? Prices Are Going Up

By ELMER ROESSNER

The present mood — that's boom spelled backwards — grows curiously and curiously.

One curious prodigy is the rise in prices. It is driving some of the professional economists to ulcers. All the books say prices go down in a recession. But prices keep going up and up.

Some of the professionals say that prices will soon be turning down, proving accepted theories. Others say that while nominal prices are going up, actual prices are dropping because buyers are getting quiet discounts, or they are buying stripped down models and utility grades. Still others aren't saying anything.

Not quite so curious is the fact that both employment and unemployment rose in March. That has happened occasionally in the past, when the number of people looking for jobs increased faster than the number of jobs.

New credit in February, the latest month for which figures are available, was $2,754,000,000, compared with $2,976,000,000 in February, 1957, and $3,108,000,000 in January, this year.

Meanwhile, total personal income in February was at an annual rate of $341.8 billion, compared with $338.5 billion in February, 1957, and $343.6 billion in January, this year.

In simpler form, these figures mean that while income in February was 1 per cent higher than a year ago, installment purchases and consumer installment loans were down 7.5 per cent.

And while income declined half of one per cent from January to February, credit commitments dropped 11 per cent.

Credit repayments in February were $133,000,000 larger than a year earlier, but $287,000,000 less than in January.

There are many factors influencing the strange pattern of installment credit.

Unemployment is certainly an important one. When a man is out of work, if he is honest he won't commit himself to make payments for six to 36 months ahead. Further, vendors will be more than a little cautious about granting him credit, although some will grant it readily if the man owns a home or car or has a good record of paying bills.

Consumer uncertainty is another factor. The good record of repayment of installments in February, and the surprising rate of payment of overdue debts, suggests that many families are getting their credit in shape just in case they are hit directly by the recession.

LESS CREDIT SELLING
A third factor is probably that some merchants are nervous. Many feel that unemployment may increase and they do not want to be holding a sheaf of paper signed by people out of work.

That's understandable, but that attitude alone should not block an orderly expansion of credit. Sound policy in times like these calls for promoting credit more, but being more selective in granting it.

A recent study indicated that half of the families in the United States who were financially able to make installment payments were not credit buyers. Vigorous credit selling to this group, and to the better credit risks among the other half, would do much to restore retail sales to levels commensurate with personal income.

Committee Calls For End Of Electing N. C. Judges

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Selection of judges by appointment instead of by political election and establishment of a new method of making up jury lists for trial courts were among 15 recommendations made public today by a North Carolina Bar Assn. committee which has been studying the state's courts for more than a year.

These recommendations are contained in the second of a series of special preliminary reports that the committee is sending to 2,600 lawyers in the state. The committee asked the lawyers for their thinking on these tentative recommendations before it prepares its final report for presentation at the North Carolina Bar Assn.'s June convention. A third group of recommendations now being considered will deal with court practice and procedure.

The committee was appointed by the Bar Assn. in 1956 at the request of Gov. Hodges and given the title of "Committee on Improving and Expediting the Administration of Justice."

The committee, headed by J. Spencer Bell of Charlotte, announced its first group of recommendations on April 6. It proposed establishment of a single state system of courts consisting of three divisions: an appellate division, the Supreme Court; a trial court division of general jurisdiction, Superior Courts; and a local court division, district and magistrate courts.

Administrative authority of this unified system would be vested in the State Supreme Court with the chief justice as its executive head.

The recommendations made public today deal with selection and tenure of judges—from Supreme Court to magistrates—and with preparation of jury lists and selection of trial juries.

On judges the committee recommended the following:

1. That the chief justice and associate justices of the Supreme Court and the regular judges of the Superior Court be appointed by the governor from a list of three nominees for each vacancy; and that nominations for the appointments be made by the Judicial Council.
- (The Judicial Council is made up of representatives of the Supreme Court, the Superior Courts, the attorney general's office, the Legislature, appointees of the governor and four practicing attorneys appointed by the State Bar Assn.'s Bar Council.)
2. That at the next general election occurring more than one year following the appointment of a Supreme Court Justice, the voters of the state be given an opportunity to confirm or reject the appointment; and that at the next general election occurring more than a year following the appointment of a Superior Court judge, the voters of the judicial district for which the judge was appointed be given an opportunity to confirm or reject the appointment.
3. That special judges of the Superior Court be appointed by the Governor from among three nominees submitted by the Judicial Council; that at the first general election occurring more than one year following the appointment, the voters of the state be given the opportunity to confirm or reject the appointment; that at the expiration of his term a special judge be eligible for reappointment by the Governor without renomination by the Judicial Council; and that after each eight-year period of service, the name of a special judge who has been reappointed be again submitted to the voters of the state for confirmation or rejection.
4. That at the expiration of his eight-year regular term the name of each Supreme Court Justice and regular Superior Court judge who desires to remain in office be submitted to the voters of the appropriate area at a general election to determine whether or not the judge shall be retained in office for another regular term.

5. That district court judges be appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court for a term of four years, from nominations by the senior resident Superior Court judge.
6. That trial magistrates be appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court for a term of two years, from nominations by the senior resident Superior Court judge.
7. That district judges and trial magistrates be subject to removal for incompetence, misconduct of disability by the chief justice of the Supreme Court upon recommendation of the Judicial Council, after a hearing by the council upon charges filed with it.

The committee proposed a series of steps to remove preparation of raw jury lists from politics, and recommended elimination of any element of secrecy from the jury selection process.

Specifically it recommended:

1. That for each county a jury commission consisting of three members, no more than two of whom may be members of the same political party, be appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court from nominees submitted by the senior resident Superior Court judge; that jury commissioners be appointed for staggered terms of three years and be eligible to succeed themselves; that jury commissioners be removable at any time by the Chief Justice upon recommendation of the senior resident Superior Court judge; that no person holding public or political office be eligible for appointment as a jury commissioner; and that jury commissioners be paid for their services on a salary, per diem or per hour basis; as may be most appropriate in the individual counties.

2. That jury commission be directed to make up the "raw" jury list from all reliable sources available to them.
3. That the jury commission take appropriate steps to eliminate from the jury list the names of deceased and ineligible persons, and persons who wish to avail themselves of a valid exemption.
4. That the names of jurors to be summoned for service in any court be drawn in the presence of a judge in open court.
5. That the use of tales jurors to supplement the regular jury panel be eliminated. (Tales jurors are persons obtained, usually in the vicinity of the courthouse, to make up in jury deficiencies.)
6. That the statutory qualifications of jurors include requirements that they be citizens of the United States, under 70 years of age; and that it be specified that a plea of nolo contendere (no contest) to indictment charging the commission of a crime involving moral turpitude is grounds for disqualification of a juror.
7. That statutory exemptions from jury duty be limited to those persons whose relation to the courts or law enforcement makes it improper that they sit on a jury and those persons whose occupations are so essential to the public safety or welfare as to make it imperative that they be free to pursue their ordinary duties; and that it be left to the sound discretion of the jury commission or the judge to excuse any person when the community interest, or undue personal hardship, justifies such action.
8. That the defendant in all criminal cases other than those involving capital punishment or life imprisonment be permitted, with the consent of his counsel and the trial judge, to waive in writing his right to trial by jury.

Nothing Wins Like A Previous Winner

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — Television, in announcing its annual Emmy awards last night, demonstrated that to the members of the industry, nothing wins like a previous winner.

There were 22 awards for 1957 on the special 90-minute program of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences telecast by NBC-TV. All but three of the winning programs had received Emmy awards previously, several of them many times.

The backbone of network programming in the past year was composed of Westerns, quiz shows, musicals and suspense dramas.

It was therefore interesting to observe that only one Western, Gunsmoke (CBS), won an Emmy. The only musical variety show cited was a previous winner, the Dinah Shore Show (NBC), which reaped three awards. No quiz show personality was voted a winner. The only suspense drama cited was Alfred Hitchcock Presents (CBS), which won an award two years ago.

Besides Gunsmoke the other first-time winners were a situation comedy, the Bob Cummings Show (NBC) and Playhouse of Stars (CBS), a half-hour drama series. Playhouse 90 (CBS) won four awards in various categories, the largest number of any program.

For 1956, it won six awards. Omnibus (NBC), recipient of several previous awards, won three last night. The Phil Silvers Show (CBS) won two — and raised its total to nine.

In short, the industry apparently decided that generally the best entertainment of 1957 was to be found on programs which were strong in the previous years.

As entertainment, the program was dull and technically inept. The first 20 minutes were wasted in largely intramural sports that were passed off as humorous. The exception of the show was Milton Berle, who deserved some kind of an award for creating laughter while ducking the invisible hook that tried to drag him offstage.

It is difficult to find much of television historical significance in the 1957 Emmy Awards. It was even more difficult to find entertainment in the program.

ROSE QUEEN CROWNED—Honey blonde Celia Chestnut, 18-year-old high school senior at Thomasville, Ga., is crowned queen of the Thomasville Rose Festival by retiring queen Nancy McLean. Nancy now makes her home in Atlanta and is a student at Huntingdon College in Montgomery, Ala. Celia was selected over a field of 13 other beauties in a county-wide contest. She will reign over the Thomasville Rose Festival April 25. At the forthcoming "Miss Georgia" contest in Columbus, she will be a contestant. (AP Wirephoto)

ECC At Wilson Today; Rose High Defeats RR By 5-2

Bucs Leading League; Play UNC Saturday

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor
East Carolina's baseballers were scheduled to invade Wilson this afternoon for a 2:00 North State Conference contest with Atlantic Christian, providing rain does not interfere.

Early word this morning was that rain fell in Wilson last night and that grounds were wet this morning. At publication of this article, no word of postponement has been received and the game is still on.

Coach Jim Mallory is expected to use either George Williams, Leonard Lilley or Bruce Shelley against the Bulldogs today, as starting pitcher, Lilley and Shelley both have wins to their credit.

Senior righthander Tom Norville was slated to pitch against the Pirates today. The rest of Mallory's lineup will probably find the regular infield of Martin, Vaughn, Stewart, and Reep intact.

UNC Saturday
Following today's game—whether it is played or not—East Carolina will line up its sights for a night contest with the University of North Carolina, Saturday, at Guy Smith Stadium.

Carolina's coach Walter Rabb and Mallory are old school chums and both are regarded as the shrewdest diamond manipulators in the sport in this state, both are top-notch strategists.

ECC Student is Ranking TT Player; Participated In National Tourney

Greenville's Norman Kilpatrick, a student at East Carolina College, participated in the 28th annual U.S. Open National Table Tennis Championships at Asbury Park, N.J. this past weekend.

Kilpatrick, a slender import from Florida and a sophomore at ECC, reached the third round of the National before being defeated by Canadian National Champ Max Marinko, 21-19, 21-18, 23-21, 21-9, 21-7, before meeting Marinko, Kilpatrick and Henry Deutsch of Flushing, N.Y. fell in the second round of the doubles event to former world doubles champions Sol Schiff and Jimmy McClure in a torrid match, 21-19, 19-21, 26-24, 22-24, 18-21. Schiff and McClure later lost to the ultimate winners, Reisman and Richard Miles of New York.

America's top player and the defending champion as the tourney began, Bernard Bukiet of New York was upset in the quarter finals of the singles by 20-year-old Eddie Pecord of Washington, D.C., who had lost earlier in the season to Kilpatrick. Kilpatrick had beaten Pecord in the Connecticut State Open.

Kilpatrick came to East Carolina last year after reaching a junior status at Boston University. Before attending the University, he did most of his table tennis playing in Tallahassee, Florida, where he became known as one of the South's leading performers.

A tall, slender and agile young man of 20, Kilpatrick has copped a total of 53 different trophies and medals since he began playing table tennis.

Besides his latest participation in the Nationals, Kilpatrick has also worked in local tournaments. The most notable of which was his recent triumph in the ECC championships. On March 31, he defeated Charlie Russell for a quarterly title and then whipped Barney Strutton on April 4 for the year's title. Strutton and Russell together held nine titles before Kilpatrick showed up.

Braves Lose Opener To Pittsburgh

By CHUCK CAPALDO
The Associated Press
MILWAUKEE (AP)—Maybe it was opening day jitters, but the Milwaukee Braves looked nothing like world champions yesterday in losing to the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 14 innings.

Even old hands like Warren Spahn and Andy Pafko were guilty of lapses not shown in the box score. Spahn's off-target throw to second on an attempted double play helped the Pirates to their first run in the opening inning, and Pafko's sleepy effort on Bob Skinner's fly ball that fell between the outfielder and shortstop Johnny Logan led to another Pirate run in the eighth.

"We gave them those two runs," said Manager Fred Haney after the Braves' first opening day loss at County Stadium since the team left Boston in 1953.

Haney pointed out that the Braves hashed up two potential double plays in the first inning alone. Skinner's high fly ball in the eighth was good for a double. He scored on an infield out and a single by Roberto Clemente.

Haney defended his run-and-hit strategy that backfired in the 14th inning as "the only thing to do."

With one out, Logan singled to left off rookie Curt Raydon, making his first appearance in a major league game.

With a count of 3 and 1 on Del Crandall, Logan took off for second base and Crandall swung and missed. Hank Foiles' throw to second baseman Gene Baker retired Logan. Crandall then walked but Mel Roach struck out to end the game.

Controversy Over Kubek & Marines

By JACK CLARY
NEW YORK (AP)—Is Tony Kubek, star Yankee shortstop, going into the Army? Kubek says no. Major Gerald Mulrine of the United States Army says Kubek said yes.

George Weiss, general manager of the Yankees and Casey Stengel, field manager of the American League champions, don't know, Mrs. Anthony Kubek Sr., Tony's mother, is bewildered.

It all started yesterday with an announcement in Milwaukee that Kubek, 1957 American League rookie of the year, would join the Army May 24 for six months of training under the streamlined reserve plan.

The Yankees are vitally concerned since Kubek was to be their regular shortstop, though he missed yesterday's opening game in Boston because of a pulled muscle.

Kubek went on record last night that the report is "absolutely untrue."

"It's simply a rumor that began in Milwaukee. I can't understand what that major (Major Mulrine) is talking about," he said.

Kubek admitted he was thinking about going into the Army.

"But that's all. I am just thinking about it. After all it is my decision to sign up. I definitely would not go during the baseball season. That wouldn't make sense."

Mulrine, commander of Milwaukee's Southside Army Reserve Base, said that there was no chance of a hoax and that he met Kubek and "talked baseball with him."

"Kubek is not obligated," Mulrine said. "He can throw in the towel on the whole thing right now. He could change his mind and join the Royal Marines in England if he wanted to."

Mulrine said he made the announcement because "I thought it would be good publicity for the Army."

Kubek took his physical last Wednesday, Mulrine said, and went through all processing except the swearing in.

Kubek had made a quick trip to Milwaukee last week, which his mother indicated was for "business purposes." She disclaimed any knowledge of a possible immediate service commitment.

After the World Series last October the Yankees urged Kubek to join the six month program during the off-season and get his service out of the way. He said he preferred to wait and take his chances.

Both breezed into the finals yesterday, and the word used advisedly. The wind, particularly in the afternoon round, reached near-gale force, making it difficult for the players to maintain their stance on the greens and making long shots fly off at weird angles.

Despite the elements, Rudolph shot par golf in swamping Din Bispinghoff of Miami, 8 and 7. Key, after a one-under-par 71 for the morning round, had six fives on the out nine in the afternoon and made the turn a 41, but as his opponent, Peter Dye of Indianapolis, carded a big 43 it made no difference and the match ended on the 28th hole.

"This will be one match where the medalist jinx won't stand up," Rudolph laughed. He and Key were co-medalists, along with Eddie Hopkins of Abilene, Tex., of the week-long test, each carding 296 for his 72 holes of qualifying play.

Two-Day Pro-Am Tourney Slated

PT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—A two-day pro-am tournament with a $1,500 purse opens here today. Some 30 pros and 30 amateurs from the Carolinas and Virginia will be shooting for $250 in top prize money while the leading amateur in the medal-play event will receive merchandise.

In a preliminary yesterday among teams of professionals and women partners, best-ball scores of 59 were recorded by pro Fred Fairley Clark with Odessa Paslay, Kay Young and Betty Erickson and by pro Chaglie Farlow of Greensboro with Barbara King, Marian Szymkowiak and Margaret Lockhart.

High Point's Chuck Alexander and Farlow tied for low individual scores among the pros, each having a 71.

In running up 39 victories, Rivers has defeated such opponents as Charlie Sawyer, Jesse Turner, Milo Savage and Charley Joseph. The Alabama-born slugger has won 23 of his fights by knockouts.

The gangling Boyd, 24, is unranked by the NBA and is trying to battle back into contention after being rated among the top contenders several years ago.

Rivers Seeking Third Straight

CHICAGO (AP)—Neal Rivers of Las Vegas, Nev., will try for his third straight knockout victory of the year tonight in a middleweight bout with Chicago's Bobby Boyd.

Each of the young scrappers has an impressive knockout record and the match in Chicago Stadium may not go the 10 round distance. It will be televised by ABC starting at 10 p.m., ETS.

Scoring is under the five point must system.

Rivers, 23, is beloning a sharp, effortful puncher and is ranked No. 8 among the 160-pound contenders by the National Boxing Assn. He polished off Chebo Hernandez in the second round in Buffalo, N.Y., two months ago and last month kayoed Chebo's brother Ramon Hernandez, in three in Albuquerque, N.M.

Bynum Hurls A 4-Hitter To Clinch 3rd Win

ROANOKE RAPIDS—Coach Boley Farley's Rose High School baseball team copped its third consecutive win of the season here yesterday, tripping the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets, 6-2.

Merrill Bynum hurled a four-hitter to whip the Jackets and contributed three baseknocks himself to his victory. He fanned nine batters.

The Phantoms tallied their runs in the fourth and fifth innings and Bynum held the Jackets to a blank until the final inning.

In the fourth frame, the Greenville team picked up four runs. Walker Allen led off with a single and Billy Cox advanced him with a sacrifice. Dick Evans got on an error and Mack Roebuck followed with a walk. Bynum cracked a hit to score Allen. Joe Mays then singled to score a second run. John Harrison smashed a homer to score the other two runs.

In the next inning, Bobby Edwards walked and stole second. Allen fanned and Cox was thrown out at first, using up two outs. Edwards went to third on the play, and scored on a beshit by Evans.

Roanoke Rapids picked up their two runs in the last inning when Bynum walked three men and allowed a long blooper to score two of them.

Greenville slugged eight baseruns in capturing the victory. Bynum accounted for three. Walker Allen had two, Mays, Harrison and Evans had one each.

Roanoke Rapids pitchers were Collins and Edwards (who relieved in the fourth inning).

Next game for the Phantoms will be at Greenville, Friday afternoon. The G-Men will host Elizabeth City at 3:45 in another conference ball game.

Phantom golfers chalked up an impressive Northeastern Conference win in Greenville last week-end, whipping Elizabeth City 18-0. All four Greenville golfers won their matches. They are Buddy Murray, Lucian Bryan, Skip Wright and Dallas Clark.

Relatively Small Radioactivity Rise Over U. S. Due To Atomic Blasts

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—Fallout is making you radioactive.

But just how much? How much radiation do you actually get?

Only 1 to 2 per cent more than you've always been getting from natural sources — such as from cosmic rays, radium in the earth, and radioactive atoms in your body, says the Atomic Energy Commission.

The AEC says the average American gets:

From natural, unavoidable radiation: 100 millirads a year.

From all bomb tests so far: 1 to 2 millirads a year.

A millirad is a unit of measurement of the radiation absorbed by body tissues. It's roughly equivalent to a thousandth of a roentgen.

There are wide swings from this average.

In Denver, people get 147 millirads a year from natural radiation. Higher in altitude, Denver gets more cosmic rays. Also it sits on ground containing more radioactive minerals. Memphis, on the other hand, gets only 83 millirads a year from natural radiation.

Thus a resident of Denver gets almost twice as much natural radiation a year as does one in Memphis. Well, then, do people who live in Denver run almost twice the risk of having deformed babies as those who live in Memphis?

Is this higher natural radiation having that kind of bad effect on future generations, on heredity?

No one can say — no one has made such studies. Scientists would have to study many generations of people—who stayed put in Denver and Memphis—to get exact answers about any risk from this natural radiation.

The point is that bomb fallout is adding only a tiny amount. There is not any AVERAGE fallout, either. It can and does vary.

Northern states have been getting more fallout atoms than Southern states, says the AEC. A main reason is they have had more rain and snow, which carries the atoms down to earth.

Towns near the Nevada test site can, of course, acquire more fallout atoms than distant towns.

The closer you are, the more fallout you can expect, if only from dirt sucked up and made radioactive by the bomb explosion.

This heavier dust falls sooner than the lighter atoms, which are shot up higher and are carried farther.

The AEC has just reported a comparative study on amounts of fallout and radiation from it.

This measured the fallout accumulating on the ground up until last June 30. From this was calculated the exposure—in X rays—that people living there would get in the next 70 years, based on the current fallout rate.

In Memphis, this total exposure would amount to 75 millirads in 70 years. In Grand Junction, Colo., to 160 millirads, in Salt Lake City, 180 in 70 years.

Some fallout dies out, becomes harmless, very quickly. The rest keeps building up, slowly increasing.

Sometimes the accumulation of fallout takes a big jump.

Last year, the total accumulated strontium-90 in New York City jumped 50 per cent. That is, one year brought half again as much as had fallen since 1945. Other areas of the United States had similar increases, all from bomb tests, Soviet or American.

Still and all, says the AEC, fallout has added only a tiny percentage to the normal, background radiation.

Most estimates have to be based on AEC studies, since it is the only agency which has made widespread, detailed measurements.

A National Academy of Sciences report, now nearly two years old, put it this way:

In 30 years time, natural radioactivity gives a person 4.3 roentgens exposure. In that same time, fallout would add one tenth to one half of a roentgen.

There seems little room to argue that fallout is adding only slightly to the unavoidable radiation we have to live with.

The real disagreements come on the question of what this addition is doing to us biologically.

Fall Of French Gov't Upsets American Hopes

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The fall of France's Gaillard government left State Department officials discouraged today about the chances of settling the French-Tunisian crisis and strengthening anti-Communist elements in North Africa.

These officials also were concerned about the impact of Premier Felix Gaillard's loss of power on two other international issues: summit conference negotiations with the Soviet Union and the general problem of French position and prestige within the North Atlantic Alliance.

There was some concern that the government which succeeds Gaillard's may be largely in the hands of right-wing, highly nationalistic men with whom it would be even more difficult than in the past to work on some ultimate solutions of the French North Africa problem.

Gaillard resigned after the French Assembly, by a 321-255 vote, rejected his call for acceptance of a U.S.-British plan for settling France's dispute with Tunisia.

Earlier, Secretary of State Dulles took issue with French criticism that the United States was trying to dominate French policy and to get France out of North Africa.

"The idea that we are operating there in some devious way to take over North Africa in the interest of American corporations is just about as far from the truth as any statement could be," Dulles said.

Dulles and other top officials would like to see France find some way to end the long and costly fighting in Algeria. Privately, many of these officials say that this would undoubtedly mean working toward some form of Algerian self-government.

But French policy, strongly supported by the rightists in this respect, has dealt with Algeria as a part of metropolitan France for which any idea of independence is wholly unacceptable.

The fear in the State Department is that if the fighting drags on and frictions develop with other North African countries, as they have already with Tunisia, pro-Western leaders like Tunisia's President Habib Bourguiba will find it increasingly difficult to maintain their political balance.

Communist agitators, according to this view, will find new opportunity to whip up anti-Western passions and the situation will become even more difficult for the Western powers to deal with.

There is a Club Hippique du Laso in Paris whose main aim is to promote the traditions of "Le cowboy américain" in France. Members dress in ten-gallon hats and carry six-shooters.

Military Business In State Is Big Economic Addition

By LYNN NISBET

GOLDSBORO — A visit, even a very brief one, to any of the major military bases in North Carolina will give a good idea of the bigness of the war game and the economic value of such installations to the area and the state.

Seymour Johnson Air Base, visited by the C&D board this week, is still a relatively small unit. Approved plans and appropriations for expansion will make it one of the largest. Construction is in progress on a new 12,000 feet runway (two and a half miles) the longest in the world. Barracks, hospitals and other facilities are being built by crews working around the clock when weather permits.

The total estimated cost of construction and equipment is not important for this little story. It will run into hundreds of millions. One jet interceptor fighter had a price tag of a million and a quarter dollars. These items are expected at such a base. There are others not so well known.

Col. William Redington, base commander, who conducted the C&D tour, pointed out a number of new homes for married uniformed personnel. They were part of 1500 homes to be built at an estimated cost of $21 million non-tax money. Funds were borrowed from the New York school teachers retirement system. Occupants of the homes will pay it back by "rental" deductions from salaries, ranging from $75 to $150 per month.

The building is being done by civilian contractors. Much of the material was purchased from local dealers. For the approximate 500 hours completed, mostly of the duplex two-family type, there has been bought something like half a million dollars worth of furniture, refrigerators, stoves, etc., nearly all of it from North Carolina dealers.

The construction work on the base itself, on the homes, the equipment and furnishings, represents civilian payrolls comparable to a big industry. When the construction has been completed and the base moves into full scale military operation the payroll will still be big, because air force men are the best paid in the service. The air force eats well, too, as was demonstrated at the dinner in the officers' club Sunday night. There will be continuing demand for food-stuffs and supplies.

Col. Redington has a keen sense of humor and a flair for elegance in language. He pointed out one building which he said used to be the guard house. The mother of a soldier resented the fact that her boy was in the guard house. So the building now is known as the "confinement center."

Joseph Schildkraut Attains New Heights

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—From "Orphans of the Storm" to "The Diary of Anne Frank"—that's the story of the amazing film career of Joseph Schildkraut.

Once counted out by Hollywood, the Vienna-born actor is at the height of his career in the role of Otto Frank, which he created on the stage. Al of which proves that talent will pay off in the long run.

The run started back in 1921, when Schildkraut made his first movie, the D. W. Griffith tear-jerker, costarring with Lillian Gish. Off and on ever since, he has been associated with the movies in various guises—as a smooth leading man, diabolical heavy, kindly character man, etc.

His last absence was the longest. He quit films 10 years ago after three years at Republic.

"That was when I was making 'Hopalong Manichewitz' pictures," he recalled ruefully. "It was a dark period of my life, and I'd just as soon forget it."

He named some of the pictures he would rather remember — "The Life of Emile Zola," for which he won a supporting actor Oscar as Capt. Dreyfus. "The Tell-Tale Heart," a memorable two-reeler for MGM. "Show Boat," the first one, costarring Laura LaPlante. "Marie Antoinette," "King of Kings," etc. . . .

But the greatest of all is his present role, as the kindly father of adolescent Anne Frank. After playing the role over a thousand times on the stage, he finally met Otto Frank when the latter was in this country.

He is looking forward to a reunion with Frank when the film company goes to Amsterdam for locations.

"We have a rendezvous at the Amster Hotel, a most significant place," said Schildkraut. "It was there that Mr. Frank met with Garson Kanin, who directed the play, and Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett, who wrote it."

"Garson took one look at Mr. Frank and said: 'Why, it's Pepi (his nickname) Schildkraut with a bald head and a mustache.'"

To complete the resemblance, Schildkraut donned his own luxuriant growth of hair. For three years, he has shaved his pate with an electric razor twice daily. The mustache is from the makeup box; the actor is unable to grow one that qualifies.

Woman Captures Young Prowler

DENVER (AP)—"It wasn't so much," Mrs. Lorraine Reposa, 29, told police. "I outweigh him at least 20 pounds."

She had caught a 19-year-old youth prowling in the rear deck of her automobile outside the tavern where she works. When officers called by a patron arrived, Mrs. Reposa had him in a firm grip.

The captive gave his name as Frank Martinez. He was held for investigation.

FEWER FLAT FEET

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Local police aren't the flattest they used to be. Only 29.2 per cent of 504 officers now have flat feet according to the department's medical examiner Dr. S. J. Brownstein. Six years ago 51.8 per cent were flat-footed.

EX-PASTOR GUNS CHURCH SERVICE—The Rev. Moody Dunning is under arrest in New York after he fired two shotgun blasts and broke up services at a Harlem church he once served as pastor. He was charged with felonious assault and illegal possession of weapons. Policemen said Dunning told them "it's my church." He appeared in the church vestibule with guns and shouted to the congregation, "Don't move." With that, he opened fire. Nobody was hurt. (AP Wirephoto)

'Carousel' Proves To Be Fine Show

By GEORGE E. PERRY

"Carousel" is every inch a success, a beautiful and sympathetic production, and one which I am very proud to review. ANYONE who misses seeing it during its 3-day run at McGinnis Auditorium will deprive himself of an unforgettable experience.

Around here one doesn't get a chance to see Broadway musicals, except through campus productions, and by all standards, prior offerings of this kind have stood up well beside their New York counterparts. But "Carousel" not only surpasses in some ways the Broadway run, but even excelled the local production of "Oklahoma", something that was indeed hard to do.

As has been consistently true in the past, the orchestra exceeds the calibre of many professional pit orchestras. Though the number within the group is larger than in New York theatres, not once were the vocal or spoken lines covered up. The balance kept between the pit and stage was consistently a sensitive one.

Dr. Cuthbert, director, and musical director, handled the balance with assurance, showed a deep understanding of this wonderful score and kept the whole show running with an unbelievable degree of smoothness.

Many of the New York productions would be considerably aided and abetted by the presence of the soloists who did such fine jobs last evening. Steve Farish's resonant voice was always well-handled, even in the lower range; Barbara Harris and George Knight did wonderful jobs with their humorous roles; Ralph Shumaker was a good villain, and Peggy Griffin was Nettie Fowler to a T. Dottie Jo James, as always, turned in a most inspired performance; only this time she was not the comic interest, but the tender, sympathetic, warmly human wife of the Barker. She did her part with great conviction and sensitivity, and her lines over the body of her dead husband was one of the most moving bits of theatre I have ever witnessed.

The live-wire group which made up the chorus contributed substantially to the total success. The voices blended well, and the whole was a well-chosen group of students who got deep into the feeling of the production. Their singing in the clam-bake scene was most exciting; but their outstanding number was the effective singing of "You'll Never Walk Alone", which left many with very wet eyes.

The sets were beautifully executed, well handled, and the smoothness of the transition from the beach to "up there" and back again was completely professional. The costumes were colorful, and correct in period right down to the fourth button on the men's suits. The dramatic side of the production was nobly done, and the essence of each characterization was well captured, each being played fully, but never over-played.

Alice Horne turned in a really fine piece of work as Mrs. Mullin. This angle of the show was due to the work of Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, whose work as a dramatic director has always been outstanding. The dancing, artistically created by Chuck Shearon, was beautifully done, especially the sailors' dance, and the ballet on the beach, which was striking for its originality. The line-up of the Snow Children was the word "cute" personified.

Space doesn't permit mention of everyone who contributed to last evening's success. But there were a few outstanding moments which are well worth itemization: the use of the tremolo in the strings of the orchestra, and their adept handling

Four Boys Convicted In Slaying Of A Cripple

NEW YORK (AP) — Four members of a youth gang were convicted last night in the slaying of Michael Farmer, 15-year-old polio-crippled son of a city fireman.

All escaped the electric chair. The three other defendants were acquitted.

An all-male jury returned its verdict 24 hours after receiving the case.

Charles (Big Man) Horton, an 18-year-old Negro, and Louis Alvarez, 17-year-old Puerto Rican, were convicted of murder in the second degree. They face a mandatory term of 20 years to life in prison when they come up for sentencing May 21.

They were the only defendants subject to judgment for first-degree murder, for which the death sentence is mandatory.

Alvarez's father Louis, 47, died in court when he heard the verdict.

Found guilty of second-degree manslaughter, punishable by up to 15 years in prison, were Leroy (Magician) Birch, a Negro who was the oldest defendant at 19, and Leonce (Jello) de Leon, 17, a native of the Dominican Republic.

Acquitted were the three remaining members of the Egyptian Dragons on trial: John McCarthy, an epileptic and the "baby" of the group at 15; Richard Hills, 17, who had claimed he was drafted into the gang; and George Melendez, 16-year-old native of Puerto Rico. Hills and McCarthy are white.

Thus ended what was said to be the longest first-degree murder trial in the history of New York City. It began Jan. 10. Estimated cost: $250,000.

The Egyptian Dragons, a racially integrated gang, were engaged in a feud with the Jesters, who were mostly white. Farmer and Roger McShane, now 17, ran into an Egyptian Dragons war party at an upper Manhattan park last July 30. The two boys, both white, were headed for a swim in the park.

Apparently the war party took them for Jesters. Prosecution testimony at the trial indicated that neither of the boys belonged to a gang.

McShane was able to escape his attackers, fleeing with minor injuries. Farmer, unable to run, was slugged to the ground with fists, feet, belts and a dog chain.

Then, it was testified, Horton slashed at Farmer with a machete and Alvarez, president of the Egyptian Dragons, plunged a hunting knife into the Farmer youth's back.

Police Interest Remains Intense

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Even in death, Lana Turner's boy friend interests the police.

Police today continued to delve into the shadowy life of Johnny Stompanato, stabbed to death April 4 by the actress' 14-year-old daughter Cheryl.

The dark, handsome onetime gambler's bodyguard left behind four cartons of personal effects stored in a Beverly Hills warehouse.

The cartons contained signed photographs of Miss Turner, pictures of other beautiful women and copies of loans which police say bear out their evaluation of Stompanato as a gigolo.

One of the loans, for $8,100, was made to Stompanato by Mrs. Doris Cornell, who said Stompanato never paid it back. She denied any romantic interest in the former bodyguard to ex-gambler Mickey Cohen.

Mrs. Cornell, who works in a pet store, said she loaned Stompanato the money so he could buy a gift shop.

Misunderstood, Adjourns Court

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — A reporter held up six fingers to signal Judge Charles Brusatori in Marin County Superior Court.

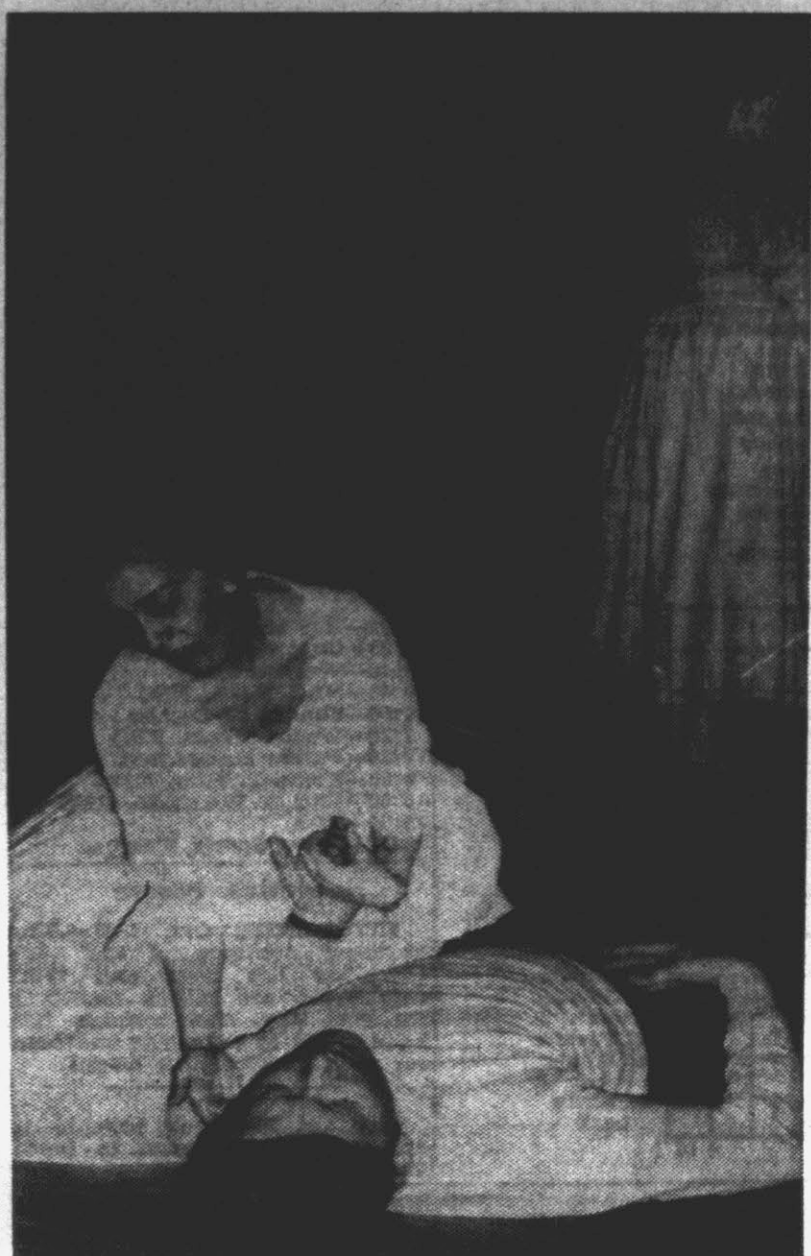

He meant the Giants were leading the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-0 in the National League's inaugural baseball game in San Francisco.

But Judge Brusatori, although a baseball fan, misunderstood. He was expecting the birth of a sixth grandchild.

So, beaming, the jurist mistakenly announced a birth — and adjourned court for the day.

Runaway Played With Elephant

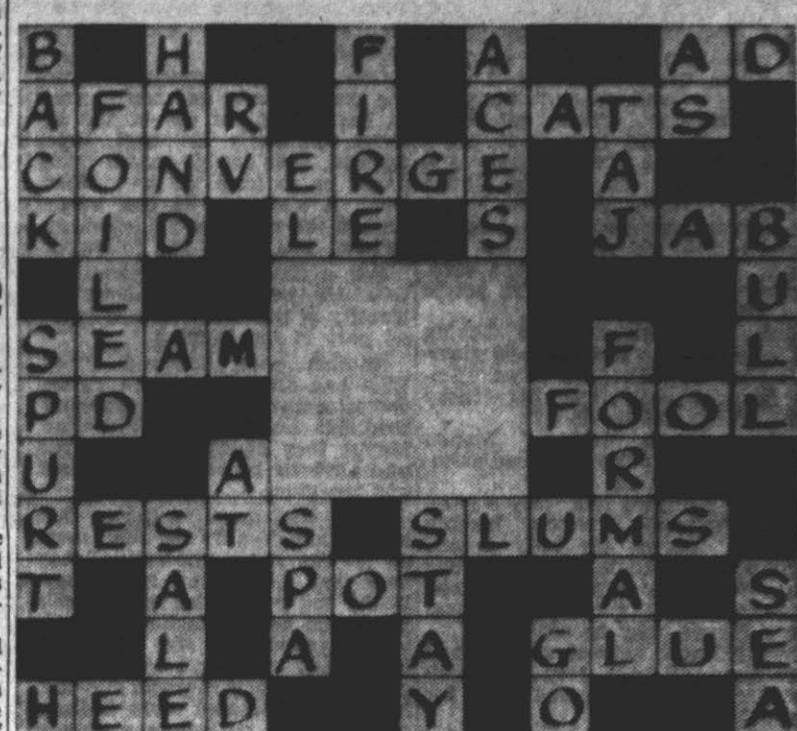

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — When police asked 11-year-old Bobbie Scott how he spent his three days as a runaway he replied: "Playing with an elephant."

Officers checked Bobbie's hiding place in rugged Arroyo Seco and found an elephant.

The 7-foot high baby elephant is owned by a riding stable and rented for movies, parades and other special events.

CHAPTER 20
Tom Mohawk stared in surprise as Cole Weston. "Red was gonna shoot me!" he said, the reality of the situation hitting him hard.
Weston nodded. "I saw it coming, so I was ready." Then he added briskly, "Tom, get Red's horse and load him on it. We'll dump him at Evans' place and folks'll think the nesters killed him. I'll take a look in the house. Joe, you see about the barn. I reckon the kid and the girl are gone, but we'd better make sure. If the kid ain't here, we've got to find him."
Tom Mohawk was still shaking his head as he mounted and started after Red Sanders' horse. "Tried to kill me, damn his ornery hide. Why did he do it?"
"He was a woman," Weston said contemptuously. "He had skimmed milk in his veins."
A few minutes later they started down the road, Weston leading Sanders' horse, the body draped across the saddle. Tom Mohawk said, "You're wrong, Cole. Took guts to pull a gun on me. I just can't figure why he done it."
Joe Mohawk grinned at Tom and Tom grinned back. Now Red Sanders' Bridlebit range was theirs for the taking.
Barney De Long had never seen the results of a lynching until he drove around the store building and saw Cronin's body dangling from the cottonwood limb. He pulled up, staring in horror.
"It's not pretty," Price Regan said. "Stay there. I want to look around before we cut the body down."
De Long kept staring at Cronin's body as if hypnotized by it. He asked, "Who'd do a thing like that?"
Price had stepped out of the saddle. Now he looked at De Long, wondering if the man was serious. He said, "You can guess as good as I can."
He turned his back to De Long, walking carefully over the wet ground. The river had overflowed here not long before, leaving a coating of mud on the grass, so the sign was easy to read. Four horses, all right, just as Jean Potter had said. Two men had left boot prints under the tree. Another man had ridden up close, probably the one who had quirted the horse out from under Cronin. Price was able to follow the boot tracks of the two men back to their horses.

One thing was puzzling. From the tracks one of the men seemed to have remained out of the activity completely. He must, Price decided, have sat his saddle thirty yards or so from the tree; then, when it was over he had swung toward the road and ridden downstream. The others had followed.
For a time he stood pondering this. He was curious about the identity of the man who had taken no part in the hanging.
Another point bothered Price. Why had all four of them ridden downstream? Only Red Sanders' Bridlebit lay in that direction. Maybe they hadn't wanted to run into anybody between Saddle Rock and the store.
Price had found nothing that helped him identify the four men, so it was more imperative than ever that he find the Jarvis boy. If the kid had ridden off, Price's job would be like hunting the proverbial needle in the haystack. More than that, there was a good chance the lynchers would run into him. But it seemed more natural for the boy to hide somewhere along the Yellow Cat and come back in a day or two as Sam Potter had told him to do. At least Price thought it was that way.
The kid would be safer if he hid out near the settlers than if he struck out across the open range where he was likely to be seen by a cowboy and brought in to one of the three ranches. The question, then, was whether Weston and the others knew the boy was a witness to the hanging. If they didn't know, they'd guess, Price decided, once they realized the kid was on the run.
"You gonna stand there all day, Regan?" De Long demanded.
"Reckon I've stood here long enough, Barney," Price answered, and motioned for the liveryman to drive the wagon under the limb that held the body.
When the wagon stopped, Price stepped up into the bed and took his sign as easy to read. Four horses, all right, just as Jean Potter had said. Two men had left boot prints under the tree. Another man had ridden up close, and then he'd ride up the Yellow Cat, hoping he would find the boy. He heard something from the riverbank. Limbs breaking, maybe. He yanked his gun from holster, calling, "De Long!" It could be the kid, although this was the last place where he expected to find him.

He ran toward the river, gaze running up and down the screen of willows. De Long appeared in the back door of the store, holding back as if reluctant to give any help. Price yelled above the sound of the river, "Somebody's hiding along here. Come on!" Slowly De Long moved toward him. Exasperated, Price shouted, "Damn it, get a move on! You head downstream."
A moment later De Long called, "I found her! It's Rose!"
"Terror was in her again and she screamed. 'They're going to kill me!'" — the story continues tomorrow with an evil obsession bared.
The cabin was empty, as Price had been reasonably certain it would be. The interior looked just about as he had expected.
De Long stood in the doorway, his mouth curled in distaste. "She sure was dirty," he said. "Looks like she pulled out in a hurry. What do you suppose they done with her?"
"Hard to tell," Price said. He turned and walked out, De Long stepping from the doorway. They crossed the road to the store. Price convinced they wouldn't find the woman alive. He wouldn't have been surprised if they'd strung her up alongside Cronin, but maybe even Weston couldn't stomach lynching a woman.
"They sure got rid of her," Dr Long said. "Maybe they knocked her in the head and threw her into the river. Them Mohawks..."
He stopped, plainly regretting he'd said that much. Price nodded at him. "Might just as well say it right out, Barney. You know who did this as well as I do, and you know Barry Madden is as thick with them as five pens in a pod. Where are you and everybody else in town going to stand when this comes out into the open?"
"I don't know nothing 'bout it," De Long mumbled. "I just wish I'd stayed in town and let you sing when you told me to come out here."
Price let it drop, knowing he'd given De Long something to think about. He went into the store. De Long lingering in the doorway. Here he found evidence of a struggle and a rifle on the floor at the base of the counter. Wait Cronin had been a tough nut, but not tough enough to buck the four men who had come after him.
Price wondered what had prompted Cronin to come here and open up a store and back the settlers when he knew what he was up against. But whatever his motives were, he'd made a bad mistake, foolishly overestimating his capacity to resist. So he'd bet his blue chips and he'd lost, not even able to take Cole Weston with him.
Stepping through the back door, Price noticed the corner made by the lean-to room where Bruce Jarvis had left Potter's team and wagon. Well, there was nothing more he could do. He'd send De Long back to town with the body

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market backed away from the gains in food turnover early this afternoon. Leading issues lost fractions to around a point. The mild reaction came after these days of emphatic advance. Most major sections were lower. Some resistance to the general trend was offered by selected aircraft, drugs, utilities and building materials. Trading was active at the opening as a string of good-sized blocks changed hands. The ticker tape was a minute behind transactions for a period of two minutes. First hour volume was a half million shares. Trading fell off and was fairly quiet by noon. Steels, motors, chemicals, rails and copper and oils were among the leading groups. Union Carbide and Du Pont were each down a point or so in the wake of lower earnings re-

Area Evacuated As Dam Totters

BENNETTSVILLE, S.C. (AP) — The churned up waters on the Paul A. Wallace Lake continued today to batter the crumbling portion of a diversion dam expected to collapse momentarily. Maj. Clifford Wingate, a National Guard officer from the adjutant general's office in Columbia, said more than 100 families have been evacuated from a low area immediately below the dam. There is no danger to life. The diversion dam, wide enough for one lane dirt road, is an earthen dike that cleaves the 400-acre lake into two parts, one of about 300 acres and one of about 100 acres, empty since a spillway broke March 15 flooding the area. Underwash caused a 20-foot section of the dam at the high end of the lake to crumble. The weak section was about 100 feet long. Maj. Wingate said water is draining through the ditch and an overflow pipe, but heavy rains during the night kept the dam at its same level, about six feet at its high end and eight to 10 feet at the low end. "When we see any difference in the water depth," Wingate said, "the lake is considered the largest fertilized and fully-managed fishing lake in the nation. Operated by the South Carolina Wild-

Six Simulating Trip Into Space

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Six Navy men on a simulated trip to the moon worked, slept and bumped each other's elbows in their crowded "spaceship" today at the Philadelphia Navy base. The six began the make-believe trip yesterday in a test of man's reaction to the cramped quarters which would be encountered on an actual flight to the first target in outer space. They will live on precooked rations, breathe oxygen concentrates and undergo simulated altitude conditions for six days more. The volunteers were Chief Parachutist Rigger Forrest V. Miller, Swedeland, Pa.; Hospitalman First Class Meredith H. Radcliff, Norristown, Pa.; Thomas W. Hinch, Pittsburgh; Gene Metcalf, Danville, Ill.; Ronald G. Campbell, Warren, Ohio; and Charles H. Raysek, Detroit, all second class hospitalmen. They are confined in a specially sealed range sealpan with only two bunks, a washbasin and toilet and three work stations. They sleep eight hours at a time, and work eight hours in at tasks similar to those which would be performed on an actual flight.

Parents Urged Use Salk Vaccine

RALEIGH (AP) — A new appeal for parents to protect their children against poliomyelitis through vaccination was voiced today by the State Board of Health. North Carolina stands on the threshold of a new polio season, and the time to guard against the disease is now, warned Dr. Fred T. Foard, state epidemiologist. Records of the State Board of Health show that approximately 28 per cent of the more than 1,670,000 Tar Heel children under 20 years of age have received no polio vaccine, Dr. Foard said. Only 47 per cent have received the complete series of three injections to provide the greatest possible protection against poliomyelitis, he added. Adequate supplies of Salk Vaccine are available through county health departments for free vaccination of persons under 20, Dr. Foard reported. In addition, vaccine is available to doctors for vaccination of private patients in all age groups, he said.
