Experts Still Study The Ancient Scrolls

By TOM HENSHAW AP Writer

More than a decade has passed since a Bedouin shepherd stumbled over the first cave hiding place of the Dead Sea Scrolls, the find of the century in Biblical archaeology.

Scholarship and technology have had time to examine many of the 2,000-year-old leather and copper documents and attempt a tentative answer to the absorbing question: Do the scrolls shed any new light on Christianity?

Yes, says Frank Moore Cross Jr., archaeologist and Old Testament scholar and author of the latest book on the scrolls, "The Ancient Library of Qumran," published last week by Doubleday.

But it's a qualified yes. Cross is the first to admit his book is incomplete.

The scrolls, most scholars agree were not the work of early Christians but of a Jewish sect called Essenes which inhabited the Qumran community shortly before and shortly after the birth of Christ.

The Essenes were an apocalyptic sect—believers in the imminent triumph of righteousness on the ashes of the current evil world—and therein, says Cross, lies the importance of the scrolls.

The primitive Christian church was apocalyptic too.

"We would do well, therefore," writes Cross, "if we are to understand (the) motives in her structure and thought, to discover the faith and forms of the apocalyptic communities, which preceded Christianity."

As a result of the scrolls, the line and times if a community similar to the early Christian church "can now be investigated seriously for the first time."

Cross notes a common theological language and concept of dualism (light vs. darkness, truth vs. error) running through the scrolls and the New Testament, particularly the Gospel of John.

There has been a good deal of speculation and debate over the forms of government in the early church. Was it by bishop or elders or was it by other means?

Christian Science Society
The spiritual relationship of God and man will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Doctrine of Atonement."

Scriptural selections to be read include the following from John (17:1, 20, 21): "These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee. . . . Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through thy word; that they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."

Readings from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include the following (336:25-26): "God, the divine Principle of man, and man in God's likeness are inseparable, harmonious, and eternal."

The Essene community employed three — an assembly, a council of 12 and an episcopal overseer. The early Christians, thinks Cross, did likewise.

"It would appear," he says, "that the early church appropriated and modified offices and institutions belonging to older apocalyptic communities in developing its own organizational structure."

The major difference, of course, between the Christians and Essenes was Jesus Christ.

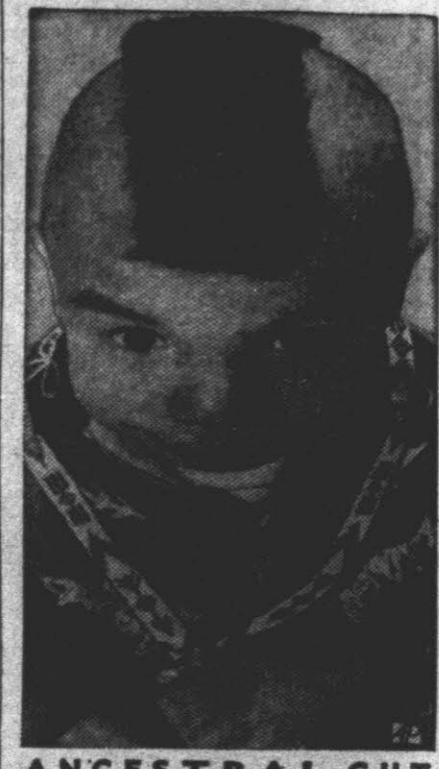

The Christians had their Messiah the Essenes were still waiting for theirs—which may explain why Christianity survived the centuries while the Essenes perished.

The Essenes were both a community and a sect during the Jewish revolt against Rome about 68 A.D. when Christianity was turning out to the world.

Friend For Old Eraser-Clappers

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—F.B. Piennons is a specialist in a full-time job that used to be allotted to bad boys in grammar schools. He's a blackboard eraser cleaner.

It's not exactly a light job for the 61-year-old employe of the University of Florida. Each school-day night from 5:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. He collects dirty erasers from 10 big classroom buildings and replaces them with clean ones. He cleans about 1,400 a night in his supply room where he has a special brush-and-air gadget that draws the calk dust out.

ANCESTRAL CUT—Whitney Elm, three, sports a cool coiffure for the warm weather coming in Milwaukee. Haircut was given to him by his father, Lemuel, who is part Oneida Indian.

To Marry In June

MISS JANETTE CLARE REGAN . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Troy Regan of Oxford who announce her engagement to Rupert Ross Bonner Jr. of Beaufort, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Bonner of Aurora. Miss Regan is a senior at East Carolina College. The wedding is planned for June 1 in Oxford.

Shower Fetes Bride-Elect

Miss Josephine Roberson, bride-elect, was honored at a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Peter Brown, Mrs. Wiley Clark, Mrs. Charlie Harris and Mrs. Eugene Windham last night at the Belvoir-Falkland school luncheon.

Pink and white floral arrangements were placed throughout. Wearing a lime green summer dinner dress, Miss Roberson was complimented with a yellow corsage.

The hostesses also remembered the honoree with gifts of silver in her chosen pattern. Greeting the 42 guests were Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Windham, and Miss Roberson. They were invited to an appointed table covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a bouquet of Spring flowers flanked by burning white tapers.

Six Tables At Duplicate Game

Six tables of bridge players competed at the weekly game of the Faculty Duplicate Club last evening. North-South winners were Mrs. M. H. Bynum and Miss Margaret Rouse, first; Miss Margaret Johnston and Dr. George Cook, second.

Pickwick Club Tours Europe With Speaker

"Touring Europe" was the subject chosen by Mrs. W. J. Mays of Farmville when she spoke to the Pickwick Book Club Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Charles Stokes was club hostess at her home in Maury. Peach blossoms and Dutch iris formed the floral arrangement on the mantel in the living room while an epergne holding camellias centered the dining room table. Bouquets of daffodils were placed in the den. With color slides and commentary, Mrs. Mays gave the group an arm-chair tour of France, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Norway, Scotland, and England, traveling to Europe by plane, and returning by ship. Souvenirs the speaker had collected from the various countries visited were on display in the dining room. During the social hour which followed, the hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. L. A. Mays, in serving a congealed salad course with cheese-rye puffs, brownies, and coffee to the members and guests. Mrs. Robert Wheeler of Rockford, Ill. and Mrs. W. J. Mays. Mrs. W. S. Corbett Jr. presided over a short business session consisting mainly of announcements and committee assignments.

They Dress Alike

TAILORED TWOSOME-The girl's Chanel outfit and the boy's blazer are made of rayon linen in different colors.

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor All over the country thrifty mothers are turning to their sewing machines about now to stitch up new spring outfits for their small fry. They also know that boys and girls have firm ideas about fashion these days and that they're fussy about fabrics, colors and styling. This spring off-beat colors are the choice so you'll be seeing the well-dressed younger set stepping out in outfits of moss green, sandy brown, coral and turquoise this spring, instead of the traditional navy blue and pastels. Local sewing center experts suggest using matching fabric in different colors for a brother-sister outfit. There's a sturdy linen-weave American viscose rayon available that is perfect for children's clothes, since it is guaranteed for washability and color fastness. You need only two yards of fabric to make a blazer for an 8-year-old boy. A jumper and blazer for an 8-year-old girl takes about four yards, plus a little over three yards of contrasting fabric to make jacket lining, jumper lining and long-sleeved blouse. The boy's blazer, piped in white, is made with a standard pattern which has inch-rulers printed on it, to make alterations easy. A little girl's version of the Chanel suit also is available in a standard pattern, designed by Helen Lee for the pattern company. The jumper has snugly fitted top and full pleated skirt, worn with a tailored jacket, both in moss green rayon linen. Off-white piping on the jacket matches the ivory-toned blouse and lining. Another smart color combination this season is tangerine or coral for the jumper, with beige blouse and lining. You'll save time and trouble if you pin-fit the pattern before cutting the fabric and test-stitch a piece of fabric before beginning to sew. Press all seams as they are stitched, and the garments will have a professional look. Growth allowance may be achieved through extra-deep hems on the sleeves and skirt, allowing room to move over buttons and making the jumper with a tuck in the straps at the shoulder line which may be let out next year.

King Maybe Seeking Queen At Royal Ball

By EDDY GILMORE BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Bachelor King Baudouin will dance with pretty princesses from all over Europe tonight at Belgium's first Royal Ball in 24 years. Sources in the Royal Palace denied the 27-year-old monarch's party is actually a marriage mart. The 1936 Brussels World's Fair probably has more to do with it. So far Baudouin hasn't been looking for a queen. Many of the girls have names that go back to the days when Baudouin's ancestors were stomping around in chain mail — but most of the princesses don't have the thrones to go with the titles as he does. Holland and Sweden are the only two reigning royal houses sending their lovely emissaries to the dance floor. Swedish princesses Brigitta and Desiree and Dutch princesses Beatrix and Irene will be there. So will princesses Isabelle and Irene. Their father, the Comte de Paris, would be delighted to leave them a throne if he had one but the French gave up that custom in 1789. And Princess Maria Gabriella de Savoie, whose family's throne disappeared almost 100 years ago, wouldn't miss the party for the world even though she's got an injured foot. "I'll dance just the same," she said. "My long gown will hide my foot." Baudouin is a serious young man who in seven years on the throne has shown no public interest in les girls, royal or otherwise. Even if he decided to pop the question tonight he wouldn't have much privacy. The guest list for this little soiree runs to 6,000, with scores of disappointed subjects besieging the palace for invites. They'll dance in a great gilded room as full of swinging crystal chandeliers as a coconut tree is full of monkeys. So much electric power will be consumed to keep the chandeliers glowing that one of the King's flunkies had to give eight days' warning to the electric company so it could take steps to prevent the Royal Ball from becoming a royal blowout.

Joint Recital To Be Sunday

Jo Ann Sparks of Ahsokie and Peggy Bullock of Lumberton will be presented in recital at East Carolina College Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in the Austin building. Seniors in the department of music at the college, they are among a small number of students chosen during the school year to give "honors" recitals. Miss Sparks, a soprano, is a pupil of Dr. Carl Hjortsvang of the faculty; and Miss Bullock, pianist, is studying with Dr. Robert Carter of the music department. Their program will include selections by outstanding composers of vocal and instrumental music. The public is invited to be present at the recital.

Mrs. Freeman Club Speaker

Mrs. Emily Tyre was hostess for the Falkland H. D. Club Monday afternoon at which time Mrs. Alton Moore of the Fountain club assisted as model for Mrs. Lois Freeman in her demonstration of "Dressing for the Occasion." The meeting was opened by the group singing "Carry Me Back To Old Virginia." A new member, Mrs. Dorothy Beaman, was welcomed into the club. Mrs. Lillian Moore was also welcomed back after having been to the hospital in Richmond for some time. During the business session, it was reported the club netted $42.61 at the recent basketball game the ladies played to raise money for the Cripple Fund. The club voted to send a contribution of $21 to the State Club House at State College. The club planned to place flowers in the church on the first Sunday in May in honor of state-wide H.D. Week and also to sit in a body at services. Mrs. Freeman asked members to bake a cake and fix sandwiches to sell at the concession stand at the Fat Stock Sale at Fairgrounds for the County Council. Mrs. Lewis Lawrence gave a book report on a story stressing the danger of sacrificing too much tradition for sale of progress in this modern day. Mrs. Olive Morrill, president, reported on Red Cross work and help being given to the Heart Fund by the club. Following the meeting, Mrs. Lewis Lawrence led the group in some contest games for recreation.

N. C. Historical Society Holds Meeting At ECC

More than fifty members and guests attended at East Carolina College yesterday a meeting of the North Carolina Historical Society. Afternoon and night programs, held in the Joyner Memorial Library, developed topics related to the history and the literature of the state. Dr. Mattie Russell of University and Herbert Paschal of East Carolina College were principal speakers at the afternoon session. Dr. Russell's topic was "William Howland Thomas, White Chief of the North Carolina Cherokees." Mr. Paschal gave a discussion of "North Carolina's First Capital." Interest at the night meeting was directed to North Carolina literature and history. Richard Walker of the State College discussed "North Carolina History in Fiction." Dr. J. S. Purcell of Davidson College called attention to "Newspaper Verse in the 18th Century Concerning North Carolina." A dinner in the East Dining Room at the college brought members and guests together for a social meeting. President John D. Messick of East Carolina, as spokesman for the college, extended greetings and good wishes to those present. Four new members were elected to the society yesterday. They are: Professors Joseph Steelman of East Carolina and Elisha Douglas and Robert M. Miller of the University of North Carolina; and Mrs. Wilma Stokely, Asheville writer and historian. Dr. Hugh Lefler of the University of North Carolina, noted historian and president of the society, acted as presiding officer. Dr. Paul Murray and Dr. Lawrence Brevster of the East Carolina social studies department were in charge of local arrangements.

Top Food Values Are Vegetables

RALEIGH—The food picture for the week offers top values in some fresh vegetables, according to reports from John Hagen, Agricultural Extension Service consumer marketing specialist. These vegetables include carrots, turnips, radishes, greens and cabbage. Lower price tags are also appearing on green beans, squash, and local greens. Vegetables that don't hold such attractive price tags are available, too. Potatoes and dry onions are holding high price levels while lettuce, celery, cucumbers, green peppers and egg plant are on the counters at higher prices. Hagen says that there's a light harvest of early tomatoes, but the bulk will be after May 1. Plentiful supplies of eggs are appearing on the market at slightly lower prices than last week, with large eggs showing the greatest price reductions. Adequate supplies of heavy hens are appearing on the market at little price change from last week, however. Bananas and pineapples are the most attractively priced fruit buys this week. Hagen observes; though he says that dried fruits are available economically priced. A few strawberries are appearing, but the quality is variable and the price high. Most meat prices continue at the high levels of last week with the exception of pork loins and picnic which showed slight price increases. Some good protein meat buys may be found at the fish counter whether in fresh, frozen or canned form.

Mrs. Brown Has WCTU Program

BETHEL—Mrs. Carey Brown, who had charge of the Woman's Temperance Union program Monday, had as her topic "The Christian and the Alcoholic Problem." Mrs. R. L. Whitley gave highlights of Mrs. Smarts Washington's letter. A talk on "Prayer Changes Things" was given by Mrs. Elsie Nicholson. Mrs. H. L. Tetterton was hostess at her home. Mrs. R. L. Whitley, president, presided over the meeting which was attended by 12 members and one visitor. Seventeen dollars plus enough to take care of the trip to Y. T. C. encampment at Camp Parker was raised to defray the expenses of two young people who are to be in camp July 14-20. Spiced cake and coffee were served by the hostess.

Diaper Tongs

A new aid for busy mothers are plastic tongs that come in handy to relieve diaper drudgery. The tongs hold, dip, squeeze, and wring out diapers and training pants without a touch of your hand to the soiled cloth. The tongs are molded of one piece of plastic.

Meetings . . .

- American Legion Auxiliary The American Legion Auxiliary will meet at the home of Mrs. J. L. Rollins in Winterville at 205 Blount Street on Thursday at 8 p.m. Subject for April is "Child Welfare." General Meeting, W.S.C.S. The General Meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will be held Monday, April 21, at 3:30 p.m. in the Chapel. Mrs. Donald Edwan, District Promotion Secretary, will present the program on Youth Work. Immediately following the General Meeting a Tea, honoring new members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild, will be given in the Parlor. Preceding the General Meeting and at 3 o'clock the Prayer Group, led by Miss Nancy Wike, will meet in the Chapel. AAUV To Meet Dr. Lala Steelman will be the guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the AAUV Monday at 8 p.m. at the Faculty-Alumni House, college campus. Dr. Steelman will discuss current events, particularly in the international field. Candidate GREENSBORO—Miss Katherine Lynn Collins of Greenville is a candidate for senior house president at Woman's College.

30 Years Ago Today

The Greenville Kiwanis Club entertained members of the basketball and debating teams of Greenville high school last night. The program was in charge of that inimitable funmaker Ralph Deal, member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College. Miss Edna Smith furnished instrumental accompaniment for the singing of Kiwanis songs. C. W. Porter, athletic director of the high school, introduced members of the boys' basketball club and Miss Rachel Scarborough presented members of the girls team. Miss Clem Bridges presented members of the debating teams. W. E. Hooker extended a welcome to the visitors. Edward Ferguson responded for the boys and Miss Bondie Dickinson for the girls. Miss Addie Orton Moore spoke for the debating teams.

Spur For That School Of Nursing

Scholarships for a school that is yet to be established!

It is a unique situation. It is a situation which shows positively the need that members of the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society believe exists for a school of nursing in Eastern North Carolina.

Members of the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society have set two annual scholarships of $500 each for the proposed school of nursing at East Carolina College. By providing $1,000 a year for the training of nurses at the proposed school, the physicians of Pitt County have shown their interest and support for the proposed school.

They have shown they are willing to provide funds whereby young women can obtain nursing training if a state-supported school of nursing is established at East Carolina.

Short Tenure Of N. C. Senators

By LYNN NISBET

SENATORS — Before the current session of the 85th Congress adjourns there will have been nine men, possibly ten, within twelve years to fill the seat vacated by the death of Sen. Kerr Scott.

Sen. J. W. Bailey, who had been elected for a third six-year term in 1942, died in December of 1946. Gov. Gregg Cherry appointed William B. Umstead in his place. Umstead was defeated in the 1948 primary by J. M. Broughton. Sen. Broughton died early in 1949, about three months after entering the senate, and Gov. Kerr Scott appointed Frank Graham, who was defeated in the 1950 primary by Willis Smith. Sen. Smith died in 1953 and Gov. William Umstead appointed Alton Lennon, who was defeated in the 1954 primary by Sen. Kerr Scott.

The death of Sen. Scott imposes upon Gov. Luther Hodges the obligation to appoint a successor — who will be the ninth man in less than 12 years to occupy that seat.

Furthermore, Gov. Hodges will be the fourth chief executive in a row to appoint a Senator. Cherry named Umstead, Scott named Graham, Umstead named Lennon, (William Umstead was the only man in this century to be Governor of North Carolina after serving in the United States Senate. Cameron Morrison, Clyde Hoey and Melville Broughton went to the Senate after a term as Governor.)

UNIQUE — While North Carolinians have become accustomed to short tenure of Senators and to Governors appointing them, this is the first time in history that an executive appointment must be made in an election year and subjected to necessary confirmation — or rejection — by the State Democratic committee. That is why there is a possibility of ten, instead of nine, Senators in less than 12 years.

PROCEDURE — The election laws are clear on the major points. The Governor must appoint a Senator who can serve only until the next general election. The process of election and certification will be completed during the last week in November. Any time after his election is certified the newly elected Senator may claim the seat.

The statutes and the rules of the Democratic party also are clear on the point that the State executive committee must select a candidate whose name will appear on the general election ballot for the unexpired term running until January, 1961.

CONFUSING — Because of the timing of the current vacancy, and some unusual political conditions prevailing in state Democratic circles, there is confusion as to appropriate methods of procedure. The law does not fix a time for the Governor to make an appointment. It could be any time after the Senate was officially notified of the vacancy.

It is recalled that Gov. Max Gardner announced appointment of Cameron Morrison immediately after the funeral of Senator Overman in 1930; and that Gov. William Umstead delayed replacement of Sen. Willis Smith by Sen. Alton Lennon for some two weeks.

The Umstead delay engendered ill feeling among numerous aspirants for the post. Governor Hodges is expected to make an appointment early — it may have been made by time this gets in print. Early in his administration he limited his appointments, resulting in built up resentments. Lately he has been very prompt in filling vacancies.

Unlike his predecessors he faces necessity of having his name accepted by the Democratic committee. Rejection would be a terrific, perhaps, a fatal, blow to his prestige.

QUESTIONS — It has been suggested that he might ask for a special meeting of the committee to nominate a candidate whom he would agree to appoint. That raises the question of whether the present committee, which expires on date of the biennial state convention, could make the nomination, or if it will have to be made by the new committee selected on May 15. Experience has been that the committee membership does not change much, but the new committee possibly could have entirely different members — with different ideas.

UNLIKELY — It is extremely unlikely, in fact almost unthinkable in North Carolina, that Governor Hodges will assign, let alone name, a Senator. He would qualify as Governor, and then appoint Hodges to the Senate. That has been done in other states, but almost unanimous opinion it would be political suicide for all parties if attempted here. The people who have suggested that do not know Luther Hodges' dedication to the program he has set for his administration as Governor. Those who know him well think he would not let any ambition to become Senator or Vice President interfere with that program. (Your reporter concurs in that appraisal.)

On the other hand, it is unlikely that the Governor would appoint a Senator who might stand in his way of running for that post when his term as Governor ends; or that he would exact an agreement from an appointee not to run in 1960.

Solution of these several problems, and a service to the State, would be the appointment of a man of mature years with a record of distinguished contribution to public service, who could enter the United States Senate without loss of prestige and who would do honor to the State in the halls of the Senate.

CHOICES — Without regard to place of residence, which has less significance every year, and without consideration of factional connections in the Democratic party, which is important in the following names are suggested as the kind of man who would fit the bill:

Lindsay Warren of Washington, L. R. Varner of Lumberton, W. T. Joyner of Raleigh, Percy Reade of Durham, Warren Williams of Sanford, L. P. McLendon of Greensboro, Kemp P. Doughton of Sparta, Hidden Ramsey of Asheville, John W. Umstead of Chapel Hill, James H. Clark of Elizabeth City, and a hundred or more others.

If the physicians of Pitt County did not feel there is an urgent need for such a school in this part of the state, they would not have provided the scholarships for a non-existent school.

By their action the doctors of Pitt County have set an example which we trust will be followed by other county Medical Societies in Eastern North Carolina.

We can think of no finer way for Eastern North Carolina to indicate its local support for a school of nursing in this area than by the establishment of scholarships for the school.

If Eastern North Carolina is to have the necessary number of trained nurses to staff its existing medical facilities, it must have a school in this area to train these nurses. Certainly the difficulty existing facilities have had in getting nurses is indicative of the fact the shortage of nurses in Eastern Carolina will become more critical unless the school is established.

Medical facilities are being expanded to take care of the needs of the people. New hospitals and clinics are being built and existing facilities are being enlarged.

But the supply of trained nurses for Eastern Carolina is not increasing. It will not increase until adequate facilities exist in this area for training nurses. Such facilities will be brought into being only through the establishment of a state supported school.

Pitt County's doctors have enhanced the possibility of such a school being established through making available the $1,000 annually for scholarships.

If the people of other counties in Eastern North Carolina indicate their support of a school of nursing in such concrete terms as the doctors of Pitt County have, we fail to see how the 1959 General Assembly can deny a request for the establishment of the proposed school of nursing.

The Pitt Medical and Dental Society is to be commended for its forthright action in support of a much needed school of nursing for this area.

A United Fund Needs Some United Support

Effectiveness of a United Fund for Pitt County will depend largely upon the united support such an organization has from citizens of Pitt at its inception.

For that reason it is important that as many citizens as possible attend the organization meeting of the county United Fund Tuesday evening.

At Tuesday evening's meeting directors of the new organization will be elected. Those who attend the meeting . . . and all Pitt citizens are invited . . . will name the directors whose job it will be to get the organization into operation.

Pitt has long needed a United organization to act in behalf of the many worthwhile agencies which look to public solicitations for their funds. In the United Fund lies the answer to Pitt's problem of too many organizations holding to many campaigns.

The Reflector has urged for several years the organization of a United Fund for Pitt County. The spade work has been done and the time of organization is at hand. We sincerely hope the people of Pitt County will show their interest in a United Fund by their attendance at Tuesday evening's meeting.

Reorganization Spells F-i-g-h-t For Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's an old story. Touch the armed forces and it's like pinching a tiger. Even when a president does it. The latest fight over streamlining the Defense Department should leave the public confused for weeks.

The battle will be mainly over details which military experts maintain are important and which will leave the public pretty much in the position of wondering who's right.

This fight goes back as far as 1945, through the administrations of presidents Truman and Eisenhower. Every time they pressed for more economy and efficiency in the armed forces they ran into opposition. Eisenhower's getting it again.

The latest flareup is over his streamlining proposals of April 3. Knowing what lay ahead, he pointed to fight. He's already started with a speech yesterday, probably the best written he's ever delivered. Who wrote it is not known.

Even before he could make this talk in defense of his ideas they were lambasted by the most powerful man in the House side of the capital on problems involving the armed forces: Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.).

Vinson, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, made an hour-long speech of his own in the House Wednesday.

He charged that Eisenhower wanted to merge the armed forces into one vast organization; that the result would be a Russian-type general staff; and that the whole Eisenhower concept was "dangerous to the security" of the country.

Eisenhower, whose whole case is based on the need for better security, replied with words like "nonsense." The President, who knew he was in for a struggle, has postponed one of the most embattled points in his plan until next year.

He had called for more "flexibility" for Secretary of Defense McElroy in handling money voted for the armed forces. Because Eisenhower was extremely foggy on just what "flexibility" meant, various interpretations were put on his words.

Some members of Congress thought he meant all money voted for the armed forces should be placed in a trust fund to be disbursed as he pleased. Eisenhower had to deny this later. But he's postponing the fight on this part of his plan until 1959.

Before the war the Army and Navy were separate, each department by itself, headed by a civilian secretary who was a member of the President's Cabinet.

The Army Force was part of the Army although later made separate from Army and Navy.

Came the war and its lessons. For efficiency in some operations, Army and Navy were put under a single commander in an individual theater. This was the first attempt at what has become known as unification.

The point then, and now, was this: the separate services remained separate and kept their individual identity. In 1945 Truman began a study of the problem of putting the armed forces under some kind of single tent.

That year he asked Congress to put the Army and Navy under a single secretary. The Navy, and its friends in Congress, put up a fight.

In June 1946, Truman proposed that the Army, Navy and Air Force, while retaining individual identity and operating as separate services, should be put under a single Department of Defense, with a Joint Chiefs of Staff, a carryover from wartime, doing the top planning.

There was such an uproar in Congress that action was postponed until 1947. That year Congress agreed to a single Defense Department under a single defense secretary. The Army, Navy and Air Force had their own secretaries, but subordinate to the defense secretary who became a Cabinet member.

Further streamlining was done later in Truman's term. And in 1953 Eisenhower proposed, and got, more of the same. Now once more he's proposed further changes, some of them a reversal of what he asked five years ago.

Army, Navy and Air Force all have individual backers in Congress. Eisenhower has warned the leaders of all three services against too much public arguing against his proposal. But there are other ways of fighting besides out in the open.

TV Is Aiding Opera

By GERALD MILLER

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Up went the stage lights. Somewhere an orchestra swung into the overture of "Don Pasquale." The small, 220-seat theater in the University of Buffalo's sleek new music building was filled with the music Donizetti wrote more than a century ago—but there wasn't a musician in sight.

The only things separating audience and singers were three unobtrusive cabinet TV sets pushed up against the rim of the stage.

Music for the rollicking tale of old and young passion came from a 19-piece orchestra tucked away in the upper reaches of the theater's overhanging balcony.

The conductor's waving baton was visible to the singers thanks to a closed-circuit TV hookup that put his image on each of the three sets just above the footlights.

"It's the first time that industrial TV techniques have been applied to the arts this way," says Jim Bravar, one of the two faculty members who produced the student version of the 19th-Century opera.

"Our theater is really too small for stage, orchestra and audience, so we moved the musicians out of sight and flashed the conductor to the stage. It works like a charm."

Applied to opera, Bravar and music director Herbert Beattie feel, the technique can open up the field for schools and community theaters where limited space makes standard operatic productions impossible.

"The real beauty of the technique," says Beattie, "is that it creates a more intimate theater. These days," he explains, "the trend is away from huge theaters. Audiences want to be close to the stage to see and hear what's going on. With these TV sets there's no orchestra and waving conductor taking up the view and the music doesn't crash into everyone's ears, drowning out the singers."

The two innovators feel the system works best for operas like "Don Pasquale," so-called chamber operas, written with comparatively few roles and not requiring massive orchestras and expensive settings.

For grand opera extra extravaganzas the rigors of "L'opéra" perhaps the TV technique would not work well, Bravar admits.

"But you never know," he is quick to add.

In any case he and Beattie are confident that if their method catches on in America any community that can scratch together the musical talent can have its own live opera—with TV attachments.

Correcting Some Errors

Somebody within the Moose organization has been spying on the Daily Reflector's Newroom.

How do I know? The Moose invited members of the Reflector staff along with radio and television folks, to be their guests at last Sunday night's buffet supper.

As a part of the program the youngsters presented a skit lampooning the local newspaper, radio and television folks.

It was a very good show. However, there were several inaccuracies in the production which I would like to correct at this time.

The program opened with a scene showing the Reflector newroom.

On stage were actors portraying the parts of News Editor Don Schlienz and City Editor Alvin Taylor (yours truly).

Schlienz was lazily pecking away at a typewriter. (Totally incorrect. Schlienz abhors a typewriter.) Taylor had his feet on the desk as he quietly snoozed. (I promptly caught that inaccuracy. I snore loudly when I snooze.)

Woman's Editor Anne Singleton entered from the wings and took her seat. She was noisily chewing gum. (It's easy to see how that mistake could be made. Actually Anne chews tobacco.)

Managing Editor Dave Whelan enters cracking a whip in mid air. (Wrong again. Dave never cracks his whip in mid air. We've all got welts on our backs to prove it.)

Boys entering carrying bucket of type: "Hey, Dave, here's that bucket of type containing all the 2000 letters you've mixed up. What cha want me to do with it."

Dave: "Take it down to the composing room and tell them to run one line of it at the end of every story on the front page. That'll keep them smart, Alec readers. From knowing it the story is completed or not."

(Printer's note: This also incorrect. We don't mix up those lines. It's just the way those crazy folks in the newsroom write the stories!)

The play proceeded along until the press time.

Dave then said: "All right everybody, lets go, time to put the paper to bed. Everybody down to the press room, come on, come on move."

Everybody jumped up but Alvin. The others rushed back on stage to grab him and haul him off.

(Another misconception. I have given strict orders not to be disturbed at press time.)

Oh yes there is one other thing. During the course of the program the "boy" is ordered by Dave to "get one of the delivery boys to do Alvin's column for the Editorial page today."

The carrier boys have requested by petition that I correct this false impression. All the boys were polled by Circulation Manager J.E. Keziah and none were found who would take responsibility for my column.

Okay, let them peddle their papers. I'll write my own dog-gone column.

Other Editors Saying -- Rationalizing Red Ink

(Wall Street Journal)

One of the more ingenious arguments being resurrected in the recession is that Government deficits need not be inflationary.

This view, to be sure, is not accepted by most economists. Nor is it officially held by the Administration. But it is worth noting because it offers one more weapon for those who want further big increases in Federal spending plus tax cuts written in red ink.

In brief, the contention is that inflation is not necessarily or wholly the result of the Government's pumping up the money supply. Other things can also cause inflation, in this view — things such as continual wage and price increases, and private borrowing. In a time of recession, the new money created by deficit financing might merely make up for the decrease in private borrowing.

The basic idea here — that the Government is only one of several agents of inflation — is at best highly dubious.

Let us assume that wage-price spirals and excessive private borrowing can intensify an inflation. But how do these developments get going? They can get going only if at some point the Government has permitted an excessive supply of money to come into being. The Government is necessarily the prime generator of inflation. The non-Government manifestations of inflation are effects, sometimes delayed effects, of Government policy.

The Government can generate inflation through a cheap money policy or through deficit financing or both. Deficit financing by definition excessive public borrowing; in a managed money system like ours, it expands the money supply just as surely as overworking the printing presses does.

The deficit in a recession year may, as the deficit defenders argue, merely make up for a decrease in private borrowing, and therefore not be inflationary

In that particular year. But this answers nothing. The decrease in private borrowing represents a temporary adjustment which the economy needs to make or else it wouldn't happen. To compensate for the decrease with a deficit is to interfere with that adjustment. And the new money created by the deficit will not vanish; it will lay the base for future inflation.

Some of the deficit advocates admit that difficulty. However, they suggest, it is not much of a problem. If the inflationary impact starts to show up in later years, all that is necessary is for the Federal Reserve to tighten its monetary restraints and for the Treasury to stop running deficits. In practice, though, as an article on this page yesterday noted, it is most unlikely that the Government would go as far in the inflation-curbing direction as it previously went in the inflation-creating direction.

We need not look far to find evidence of that fact. Most of the past twenty-five years have been marked by both deficit financing and cheap money. At times there have been both budget surpluses and comparative credit restraint, but these periods have been too few to remove the huge inflationary load built up over the years. And so we have had the very considerable depreciation of the dollar, with all its unpleasant repercussions.

Now the Government is heading into deficits again; it could be a protracted period of heavy deficits. At the same time some politicians are demanding a policy of cheaper money than we already have. It is hardly realistic, in the face of experience, to suppose that such a policy in the past will not cause inflation in the future.

And the nation will not clarify its economic thinking much by accepting uncritically these elaborate rationalizations for red ink.

Strength For Today

NNED OF A RETURN

Anyone familiar with the history of the Christian church knows that there was a vitality and power among Christian believers in the early centuries of the church's life which has probably never been equalled since, and certainly not surpassed.

Why was this? One reason is that only the choice souls chose the pain and sacrifice connected with the embracing of a creed hated in the beginning.

Another reason is that the Christians of those days were a minority, and they huddled together like sheep in a storm. Still another reason is that they were persecuted. If those who hate the Christian faith were suddenly to put those of us who profess to be Christians under a rigor of persecution they would either break our spirits or make better Christians of us.

Another reason for this early church vitality was that primitive Christians made religion their chief business in life. The rich and poor, the educated and the uneducated mixed together in an inspiring brotherhood. They helped one another in days of need. They cheered on another in hours of faltering faith.

Greatest of all, however, was the sense of these early Christians that they were the presence of Christ in their midst.

We need a return in the Christian church to an apostolic vision, commitment, insight, inspiration, and power. We can have this if we will.

Hotel And Motel Rates Inch Up

By ELMER ROESSNER

Hotel and motel rates, up 25 per cent in the past three years, are still rising. Travelers, complacent for a while, are now kicking. So says the American Automobile Association.

Of complaints about accommodations from members last year, 36 per cent were protests against higher rates, the AAA found. Seventeen per cent were about personnel, 13 per cent about housekeeping and cleanliness, and 10 per cent concerned handling of reservations.

The AAA pointed out that while hotel and motel tariffs were rising 25 per cent from 1954 to 1957, the costs of living went up only 4.7 per cent, rents rose only 5.2 per cent, food 2.5 per cent and the gross average earnings of production workers in manufacturing, 14.7 per cent.

TYPICAL INCREASES

The AAA cites these as typical of rate progress from 1954 to 1957:

City hotels: $11 to $19 rates increased to $15 to $22, $7.50 to $12 rates up to $10 to $17.

Small town hotels: $4.50 to $7.50 rates to $6.50 and $10.

Motels: $10 to $12 rates to $13 and $15; $8 to $10 rates to $12 to $14; $6 to $8.50 rates to $8.50 to $10, and $5.50 to $7 rates to $8 to $9.50.

The fact that rates are still higher this year was disclosed by listings of the new AAA accommodations directories.

Increasing costs are a frequent reason for increases. The AAA cited the case of an operator who built a motel in 1949 at a cost of $5,000 a room, including land; last year a new motel cost $10,000 a room, excluding land. In six years local taxes rose from $4,000 to $25,000.

Another operator reported his labor, laundry supplies and other operating costs rose 20 per cent in the last year.

Another factor, the AAA said, is the trend in recent years to add swimming pools, television and other luxuries. It added, "Letters were received from an increasing number of travelers last year stating that they would much prefer to have clean, comfortable rooms at lower prices than such frills at higher prices."

EFFECTS STILL UNCERTAIN

The AAA urged hotel and motel operators "give the most careful scrutiny to their rate structures in light of the mounting complaints being received."

It is too early to tell how much higher rates for accommodations in the current slump will effect vacation travel this year.

Winter travel in Florida was considerably reduced, but it is difficult to tell how much of the reduction was caused by higher prices, by lower incomes or by the unusually inclement weather.

Overseas travel this season is expected to increase sharply. The State Department's passport office reports an increase of 18 per cent in passport applications. However, it is doubtful if the surge in hotel and motel rates is causing people to switch vacations from America to Europe. Prices have been going up there, too.

BUY A HOME AND GET $1,000 CHECKING ACCOUNTS

An ingenious plan to assure sales to merchants in the Forest Park, Ill., shopping center, has been disclosed.

Each buyer of a home in the Lincolnwood section of the development will get a book of checks and a $1,000 checking account. The deposit will be made by the American Community Builders, which has been developing the community for ten years.

The checks are good only in stores in the shopping center, and only for the exact amount of purchases. Since there are $1,100 homes planned in the new area, the plan will insure $1,100,000 in sales for merchants.

INFLATION COSTING $186 MILLION A DAY

The purchasing power of the dollar declined 0.8 per cent during the first two months of the year, according to Piek's World Currency Report. The debase-ment of the dollar, applied to the total public and private debt of fourteen hundred billion dollars, wiped out $7,780,000 an hour or $186,720,000 a day during January and February, it calculates.

If inflation continues, the total loss for the year will be $68 billion, it adds.

Rose High School Takes Fourth Consecutive Win Over Jacksonville, 8-3

Joe Moyer Hurls Four-Hitter; Phantoms Get Nine

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

Coach Boley Farley's Rose High School baseball team notched its fourth consecutive victory here yesterday afternoon, whipping the Jacksonville Cards, 8-3.

The win was a Northeastern Conference triumph for the G-Men, their fourth of the year, and cemented them into the top slot in the loop.

Joe Moyer hurled the entire game for the locals, striking out four batters and giving up only four hits. It was his second win of the year. Greenville had its best day of the year at the plate, blasting three Jacksonville pitchers for a total of nine hits, including two triples and a double. The Card pitchers were Morgan, N. Crawford (in the third) and F. Crawford (in the sixth).

Surprise

The Phantoms are so far the surprise of the Northeastern Conference. Their rapid rise to first place in the league and their outstanding 4-0 season's record isn't a bad feat for a club which had only two days of practice before the season started. Even more incredible is the fact that at one time during the season so far, the Phantoms have had only two pitchers. Joe Moyer and Merrill Bynum have done the hurling for them almost exclusively thus far.

Not to mention the Green hitting. Last year, Coach Farley had one of the most hitless clubs in the circle. This season, he has picked up only three or four newcomers and the rest of the team is made up of the same boys who wore Green uniforms in 1957 and couldn't hit the side of a barn. What has happened?

Something has, evidently. Yesterday, the Farleys blasted out nine hits. Bobby Edwards collected two, Walker Allen got two (including a triple), Merrill Bynum got two, Dick Evans smashed two (including a triple) and Mack Roebuck got two (a double and a single).

Scoring

Farley's club wasted no time in jumping into the ball game yesterday, picking up two runs in the first inning. Ronnie Bass got a hit to open play and Bobby Edwards walked. Bass was thrown out on an attempted steal. Allen unleashed his triple net, scoring Edwards. Then, Dick Evans rapped out a home run. Bynum bashed for another hit but failed to score. It was 2-0.

Jacksonville came back for one run in the first frame; they picked up another in the fifth and one in the seventh.

In the second, Greenville got three more runs: With two outs, Edwards got a baserun to start the ball rolling. He stole second and Allen got on an error when he scored. Bynum bashed for score. Edwards, Evans walked and Roebuck double to score Allen and Bynum.

That made it 5-1.

In the fourth frame, the Phantoms picked up two runs on basehits by Edwards and Allen and a triple by Evans.

The final run of the game was chalked up in the seventh inning by the locals. Edwards walked and Allen got on an error when the pitcher threw wild into centerfield. Edwards went to third on the play. Bynum walked and Edwards scored on a fly ball by Mack Roebuck.

Next games on the Phantoms' schedule are with Kingston (there) on Tuesday and New Bern (there) on April 25.

East Carolina And UNC Clash Here Tonight Under The Lights

Large Turnout Expected To Witness Game

A large turnout is expected to gather at Guy Smith Stadium tonight to witness the East Carolina-University of North Carolina baseball tilt.

The teams will begin play at 8:00 beneath the lights. Athletic Director N. M. Jorgensen of ECC stated this morning that ticket sales have been reportedly good during the week and that "sales are expected to pick up today, due to the near-perfect weather we're having." Those in charge are making arrangements for a big crowd.

Coach Walter Rabb's Atlantic Coast Conference Tarheels will come to Guy Smith Stadium with a 9-5 overall record and a 2-2 ACC mark. East Carolina is 3-0 in its North State Conference play and 5-2 overall.

Golfers Begin Qualifying Rounds For Tournament

Leading Candidate Again

Qualifying rounds start today for the Club Championship Golf Tournament of the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Those interested can qualify any day through next Sunday, April 27.

Those wishing to qualify must notify Harold Thomas, club pro, or a member of the Tournament Committee before they tee off for qualifying rounds.

Defending champion of the tournament is young Don Conley Jr., a Greenville native enrolled at N. C. State College. Conley rapped Erzell Webb last year in the finals to capture the crown.

The tournament will be match play in flights. One match will be played per week, beginning the week of May 3. Pairings will be made at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, April 27. All qualifying rounds must be posted on the bulletin board of the Country Club prior to that date.

Last year, in one of the most successful tournaments yet staged here, 80 golfers participated in the event. Due to the rapid growth of the club and of interest in the tournament, more than 100 are expected to take part. Among them will be eight former champions, including Conley. They are Erzell Webb, Reynolds May, W. L. Allen, Dr. M. B. Massey, Molt Massey Jr., Boley Farley, and Simon Moyer Jr.

The tournament committee this year is composed of Lucian Bryan and Simon Moyer Jr.

DEFENDING CHAMPION — Donald Conley, Jr., who defeated Erzell Webb last year to win the Greenville Golf and Country Club Tournament, will be one of eight former champions participating in the event this season. A group of over 100 golfers is expected to enter. Qualifying rounds begin today and will last through next Sunday. (Reflector Sports Photo).

Duke Playing At N.C. State This Afternoon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Duke Blue Devils, defending baseball champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference, were scheduled to play today at North Carolina State, with both teams seeking to improve their runnerup standing to league-leading Clemson.

The Tigers, unbeaten in seven conference games and 11-2 overall, saw their pitching go sour yesterday against Wake Forest, which built up a 6-1 lead in the early innings.

But shortstop Bud Spiers put Clemson back in the game with a long home run with the bases loaded off starter Jim Harrell. Then in the next inning, after reliever Bobby Lawrence had given up a single and hit a Tiger batsman, Spiers hit for the circuit again to give Clemson the lead for good. Final score was 12-8.

Al Baker of Wake Forest also hit two homers, driving in four runs. Relief pitcher Ed Lakey was the winner, Lawrence the loser.

Duke has a 4-1 conference record, N.C. State 3-2.

Wake Forest, 0-3 in the ACC and 5-5 overall, today was at South Carolina, 1-7 in the conference and 2-9 against all competition. Non-conference games found North Carolina, with a 10-5 record, at East Carolina; Virginia, 2-5, host to Virginia Military; and Maryland, 2-7, at Georgetown.

Still No Decision About Dodger Screen

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

The decision is still out on the Los Angeles Coliseum's screen test.

Some college kids cleared the 42-foot high, 140-foot long barrier in left field with ease a couple of weeks ago, and the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants put 32 shots over it in batting practice yesterday.

But of the three homers hit in actual combat, only one got lost behind the screen. And, ironically, the screen checked what would have been a home run in either the Polo Grounds or Ebbets Field and saved a 6-5 decision for the Dodgers in their home debut.

Rookie Jim Davenport's third hit (he's 10-for-19) went for a double off the screen in a ninth-inning Giants' rally that fell short of a tie when Davenport missed third while racing for home on rookie Willie Kirland's triple.

While you could argue either way about the screen at the Coliseum, where a crowd of 78,672 set a major league record for a regular season single game, there were no questions about two shots that won for Cincinnati and Milwaukee.

Rookie Vada Pinson's first home run was a grand-slammer that gave the Redlegs a 4-1 victory at Pittsburgh. And Johnny Logan belted a bases-loaded job off Jack Sanford, the National League's top '57 rookie, for a 4-2 Milwaukee decision over Philadelphia last night. The unbeaten Chicago Cubs rapped winless St. Louis again 11-6.

In the American League, New York took first by handing Baltimore its first defeat 3-1. Cleveland defeated Detroit 7-5 and the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 11-7 in the only other games scheduled.

Hank Sauer's second homer of the day for the Giants was a high pop over the screen, which starts at the foul pole, 250 feet from the plate. His first was a 340-footer put 32 shots over it in batting practice yesterday.

But of the three homers hit in actual combat, only one got lost behind the screen. And, ironically, the screen checked what would have been a home run in either the Polo Grounds or Ebbets Field and saved a 6-5 decision for the Dodgers in their home debut.

No Changes Are Indicated In IBC—Gibson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

JIM NORRIS (AP) — Now that Jim Norris has resigned as president of the far-flung but troubled International Boxing Club, what changes are in store for the organization?

None, at least for the present, it was indicated today.

Truman Gibson, the new president, said he would maintain the status quo for the present.

"We will have to wait until the Supreme Court makes its ruling," Gibson, a 46-year-old attorney, said. "Until then, no changes will be made in our operations."

Gibson was referring to the fact that the government last July found the IBC of both New York and Chicago, the Madison Square Garden Corporation and Norris guilty of monopolizing championship fights.

It directed the IBC of New York and Chicago to be dissolved. But the Supreme Court has agreed to hear the IBC's appeal from the verdict.

Another question that also appears to be answered:

Now that Norris is out, will heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson be willing to fight for the IBC? Patterson's manager, Gus D'Amato, has resolutely refused to have anything to do with Norris.

D'Amato, however, still seems to be at war.

Said he:

"The only move that will bring about an improvement in the boxing situation is for the IBC to give up one of its two weekly boxings and restore competition."

Whether Gibson, who was elected executive vice-president only last fall, can change D'Amato's mind remains to be seen. D'Amato is a stubborn fellow as the IBC has found out.

While the move came as a surprise, Norris resignation probably was in the works for some time. After he suffered a heart attack last summer the 52-year-old multi-millionaire was urged by close friends to drop some of his activities.

Loes Had Rather Be A Yankee Journeyman

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Loes is the ace pitcher of the Baltimore Orioles, but take it from him, he'd rather be a journeyman on the New York Yankees' staff.

"But," he said almost sadly today, "a pitcher doesn't have a chance in the world of being traded to the Yankees if he has a good year."

"Maybe I ought to have a bad one. Look at Bobby Shantz. He had a bad year with Kansas City and winds up with the Yanks."

Loes, the victim of yesterday's 3-1 loss to the Yanks, was serious. He's a fellow with definite opinions on all matters, and will tell them to anyone who cares to listen.

Last year, he wound up the season's business with a 12-7 mark for the fifth-place Orioles and on that basis became the No. 1 man on the staff.

That sounds strange — to become the top man after winning only 12 games.

"Listen," he said. "This business of rating the pitchers on their won-lost records is strictly the bunk. Let's take a specific case. Whitey Ford wins more games with the Yanks than I do with the Orioles. Does that make him a better pitcher than I am? Certainly not. It's just that he pitches for the Yanks and I don't."

Even with his 12-7 mark last year, Loes managed to pitch only eight complete games and 155 innings. Don't go away, though, he has an explanation.

"A guy doesn't get the opportunity to pitch many complete games nowadays," he complained. "There's no such thing as pacing yourself any more. They want you to bear down on every pitch."

When I was with Brooklyn several years back, Pee Wee Reese used to come over to me and say: 'Give 'em all you've got. All we want you to do is go five or six innings and we'll get a relief pitcher in there.'

Shaw AFB Wins Tri-State Golf Tournament

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Paced by medalist Harley Long, Shaw AFB of Sumter overcame a six-stroke deficit yesterday to win the fifth annual Tri-State Golf Tournament with a 36-hole team total of 612.

Camp Lejeune, N.C., beat out Ft. Bragg, N.C., for runners after both finished with 617. Ft. Jackson was fourth with 621 and the Parris Island, Marines fifth with 628.

To break the second-place tie, tournament officials counted all scores on the Lejeune and Bragg teams. Five players are on each squad but normally only the best four scores are recorded.

Carolinians Club Seeks To Add To Lead Over Foes

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP)—Carolinians amateurs sought to add to their 5-1 lead over a Virginia squad today in the fourth annual home and home Captain's Putt golf series.

Twenty players, four of them seniors, made up each squad.

Bill Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., here to open defense of his North and South title Monday, heads the Virginia team. Harry Welch of Salisbury captains the Carolinians team that includes such stalwarts as Billy Joe Patton of Morganton and P. J. Boatwright of Pinehurst, Carolina's Open champion.

Ten four ball matches this afternoon and 20 singles tomorrow are scheduled.

The teams will meet again Aug. 2-3 at Hot Springs, Va.

Kiwanians Hear Coach Mallory

Plans for a summer semi-professional college Baseball League in Eastern Carolina were discussed last night by Jim Mallory, head baseball coach at East Carolina College, during the weekly meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis Club.

Mallory pointed out that New Bern, Kinston and Rocky Mount are already members of the league and work is now under way to make Greenville the fourth member.

Plans call for a 60-game schedule for each team with 30 games being played at home and the other 30 away from home. The season is scheduled to begin on June 9 and end on August 22.

Team players will be selected from a player pool composed of baseball players from state universities and junior colleges. The local Kiwanis Club voted to endorse this summer time baseball league and local team.

Reynolds May was in charge of last night's program and introduced the speaker.

Dr. H. Glenn Haney inducted new member Melbourne Dail Lewis into the club. Arthur Miller was the winner of the attendance prize. Guests of the club included Richard Taft and Tommy Nash. President J. D. McGlohon presided.

Bound Over To Superior Court

Seven Greenville Negroes, charged with highway robbery, have been bound over to next week's mixed-term of Pitt County Superior Court.

The action followed a preliminary hearing in City Court before Judge Charles H. Wheedbee yesterday. After hearing testimony presented in the case, Judge Wheedbee found probable cause and ordered the local youth held in lieu of a $1,000 bond.

The defendants have been charged with assaulting and robbing Samuel Hardy 22-year-old Negro from Georgia Tuesday night.

Arresting officers have identified the seven as: Ellis Howard, 20, of 106 South Cotanche Street; Horace Lee Duffy, 18, 1027A Mack Street; Harvey Ray Crandell, 17, of 510 South Pitt Street; Willie James Taft, 16, of 305 Boyd Avenue; Thurman Lee Corey, 18, of 1111B Pitt Street; Willie Nathaniel Phillips, 20, of Greenville Rt. 2; and Thomas W. Blount, Jr., 17, of 420 Bonners Lane.

Phillips and Blount were arrested by city police Thursday night, concluding their investigation of the robbery. Howard was arrested shortly after the incident occurred and the remaining four were picked up Wednesday night.

The Rev. Herbert L. Jones, of Darby, Pa., will bring the message Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock at York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church. He will also conduct the meeting next week. The Rev. Hudson, presiding elder, will bring the message at 3:00 o'clock. The public is invited.

As more and more women consider flowers as a part of the home decor, the interest in the fundamental rules of flower arrangements heightens.

To learn these basic flower arranging rules, 15 members of The Greenville Garden Club have been meeting this week at the Woman's Club with arms full of flowers, sharp clippers, containers, and determination.

Mrs. Sam Mitchell, national accredited flower show student judge, who conducted the workshop explained, "This is the first time the Greenville Garden Club has sponsored such classes to teach correct methods of formal and informal arranging."

"We have emphasized in this course design — which is the most compelling element of an arrangement."

First Condition Flowers

An authority on flower arranging, Mrs. Mitchell stressed to the women that before an arrangement can be created the flowers and foliage must be conditioned so that they will have longer life and flexibility.

"Flowers and foliage must be cut on a slant in the afternoon and placed in lukewarm water overnight. Flowers should always be picked when they are reaching their height of development," she pointed out.

The importance of the arrangement blending with its surrounding was also pointed out by Mrs. Mitchell. "Make the arrangement a part of the room where it is placed," she said. When flowers will be placed by colorful wallpaper, she suggested using sharp line arrangements or all-one-color arrangements.

Colors Fascinating, But Be Careful

"Color is one of the fascinating subjects in flower arrangements, but one must be careful when using them," stressed Mrs. Mitchell. She explained that the warm colors — red, orange, yellow — should be used in arrangements which will be placed in dark corners.

"When you want to tone down a corner use blue, green, or violet colors which are recessive colors," she added.

In church arrangements only the warm colors or white should be used. She stressed, "Never use recessive colors in church arrangements."

Containers Need Not Be Expensive

After visualizing the arrangement in relationship to its setting, colors, design, and mood it is to create, Mrs. Mitchell suggested to the group to assemble good frogs, wire, floral clay, cellophane tape, sharp clippers, and containers.

"It is not necessary to have expensive containers. What is important is the relationship the container has to the color, size, texture, and form of the arrangement," commented the instructor.

"Arranging is the art of organizing the elements used, allowing to the principles of design, to attain beauty, simplicity, harmony, and expression," she explained.

One of the most common errors in flower arranging is adding too much weight at the top of the arrangement. Mrs. Mitchell noted, "Instead, the weight should always be at the base."

Formal, Informal Arrangements

Differences in formal and informal arrangements were also discussed at the workshop.

"A formal arrangement is usually symmetrical balance and has equal weight — actual or visual — on either side. This is attained by having both sides as nearly alike as possible.

"In an informal arrangement, asymmetrical balance is evident. This is when there is the same amount of visual weight on either side through the two sides are dissimilar," pointed out Mrs. Mitchell.

For the many women, who could not attend flower show schools in other towns, but did attend the one held here, interest in the art of arranging was heightened.

Yesterday afternoon at the Garden Club's meeting, the workshop participants displayed their arrangements at an exhibit which was judged.

This group has expressed a desire to continue holding these classes in the future. Tentative plans may include classes concerned with church arrangements, corsage making, processing of driftwood, and further study of the fundamental flower arranging rules.

Few Changes In Being Rich For British Miner

HORDEN, England (AP) — Being rich has made few changes in the life of Riley here in this bleak coal mining town in northeast England.

Henry says the only difference he found in the family on his arrival here from America is that they've suddenly become extremely popular. Begging letters from all over the world pile into the Riley cottage.

Afterwards they will return to England, move from their little mining cottage and go into a new house in the country.

NOTICE NORTH CAROLINA PITT COUNTY

Take notice that pursuant to resolution duly adopted by the Board of County Commissioners of Pitt County under the authority of the provisions of Chapter 858 of the Session Laws of North Carolina of the regular session of 1957, a special election will be held in Pitt County on the primary election date, May 31, 1958, to determine whether or not an industrial development tax will be levied at a rate not to exceed three cents (3c) on each one hundred dollar ($100.00) valuation of property in Pitt County, to be used for the purpose of attracting new and diversified industry in Pitt County and for the encouragement of new business and industrial ventures and to establish an Industrial Development Commission for Pitt County.

Author Of Anniversary Pageant Long Took Part In College Affairs

Emma L. Hooper, author of the pageant to be given in celebration of East Carolina College's 50th Anniversary, has "grown up" with the school for the past thirty-four years. This long participation in college affairs, added to an interest in writing, explains why she accepted the challenge of preparing the story of the growth of the college for production as a Golden Anniversary Pageant this spring.

The pageant, beginning with the scene of the first ground-breaking ceremony, records through drama, music, and the dance significant events in the history of East Carolina from 1908 to 1958.

Miss Hooper joined the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College in 1924 and has taught in the department of English since that time. She has served under each of East Carolina's five presidents.

At East Carolina during the 1920's she twice wrote pageants for class-day ceremonies. In 1934, when the college was preparing to celebrate its first quarter-century, she collaborated with the late Miss Mamie E. Jenkins, member of the original faculty of the college, in preparing a historical pageant for the anniversary.

Afterwards they will return to England, move from their little mining cottage and go into a new house in the country.

MISS EMMA L. HOOPER

Miss Hooper is a native of Mississippi, and when not on duty at East Carolina College, lives in Memphis. She is a graduate of Mississippi State College for Women in Columbus and holds the master's degree from the University of Virginia.

School Menu

This the 10th day of April, 1958. ELOISE ELLINGTON, Executrix of Maude R. Jimison, deceased, Greenville, North Carolina Underwood & Everett, Atty. Greenville, N. C. Apr. 12-19-26 May 3-10-17

To The Rescue, With A BB Gun

LONDON, Ky. (AP) — When the Indian threw the heroic cowboy to the ground, 11-year-old Leroy Young reached for his BB gun and fired.

The whole show disappeared from the television set amid a tinkle of broken glass. Leroy got a spanking; his father an unexpected repair bill.

CHAPTER 23
Susie Farnum was crying steadily, and several minutes passed before she quieted down enough for Price Regan to talk to her.

Price nodded curiously and strode across the yard where the rest of the group stood huddled in a tight little group.

Price's thoughts returned to what he had seen from the rim above the Yellow Cat, a dozen or more riders, moving in a zig-zag, apparently aimless, fashion. Now it was late afternoon, and Weston and the Mohawk boys had had time to return to their headquarters ranches after the hanging.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW! By FAGALY and SHORTEN

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED HIRSHBERG
This week we got some intriguing news from the John Day Company, publishers of Pearl Buck's books. All during the past several years while writing as Pearl Buck, she's also been putting out books under another name—John Sedges.

Speaking of Pearl Buck—and for our money she's still at her best writing about China—two books have just come out about China and the Far East that ought to help in our understanding of the enigmatic Asiatic. . . . "The Soul of China," by Amaury de Riencourt, provides an intimate picture of Chinese history, culture, and philosophy.

Daughter of another missionary family—Miss Buck isn't the only one—Is Sara Jenkins, who has just come out with "The Young People of the Bible," an account of what life was like for people in their childhood and early youth during Biblical times.

Conscience Has Been Hurting

WILDWOOD CREST, N.J. (AP)
A twinge of conscience has straightened accounts for some unknown person at three food markets and a variety store.

Owners of the four stores received a total of $10 in identical envelopes with an unsigned note inside which read:

"This is for what I took when I was a kid."
