West, Bloxam To Address May Fellowship Luncheon Friday

Mayor Eugene West and Leonard Bloxam will be the speakers when the Greenville Council of United Church Women gather to observe May Fellowship Day on Friday at 12:30 p.m. at a covered dish luncheon meeting at the Eighth Street Christian Church.

Mayor West and Bloxam, who is the city manager, will speak on the subject "Housing." Also appearing on the program and leading in the devotional will be Mrs. James Keel, Mrs. Van Fleming, and Mrs. W. T. Kyser.

May Fellowship is observed each year on the first Friday in May by the United Church Women throughout the nation.

It is a day when ten million women rededicate themselves to building life, friendship, and peace. It promotes Christian fellowship in local communities, stimulates and educates on social and religious matters, and through the offering provides an opportunity to contribute to the local and state organizations.

Mrs. Helen Sermons is president of the Greenville Council of Church Women. Other officers are Mrs. Keith Holmes, vice-president, Mrs. H. G. Bryant, secretary, and Mrs. James Phelps, treasurer.

In charge of arrangements for May Fellowship plans are Mrs. James Keel, chairman of the

Selected As Top Woodmen

Dorothy Jean Williams, age 12, 1016 West Fourth Street, Greenville, has been selected as the outstanding member of Modern Woodmen Junior Club No. 12868, Greenville, according to word received from the fraternal society's home office at Rock Island, Ill.

Mrs. Larry Stox, director of the club, said Miss Williams would receive a gold medal from the national society as an award.

Selection of outstanding juniors is based upon the youngster's attendance at the regular monthly meetings of the club, individual contributions to club activities and a statement by the child concerning the value of club membership.

Similar contests are being held in Modern Woodmen's junior clubs throughout the United States, and from the candidates from these clubs the outstanding junior of the society will be chosen. Announcement of the winner will be made at the quadrennial convention of Modern Woodmen of America, which will be held June 10-13 in Chicago.

Opening Session Of Cooking School Sees Large Turnout

COOKING SCHOOL BEGINS—During the two-hour demonstration today, Miss Hilda Apple showed the many uses in modern appliances such as this refrigerator with the new flip-out trays. (Reflector Photo by Peggy Smith)

Today's opening session of the Greenville Cooking School has been termed as "extremely successful."

An estimated crowd of 250 women attended the session today, held in the National Guard Armory. According to early reports every town and community in Pitt County was represented.

The three-day school is being sponsored by the Greenville Utilities Commission in cooperation with local appliance dealers and merchants. It is the first co-operative enterprise of its kind in this immediate area in a number of years.

City Manager Leonard P. Bloxam welcomed the crowd in behalf of Greenville, the Utilities Commission and other sponsoring organizations.

Later Bloxam stated that the attendance this morning "was extremely gratifying." "We feel with this much interest we can make this cooking school an annual affair," he added.

Today's two-hour session, from 10 a.m. until 12 noon, was conducted by Miss Hilda Apple, Virginia Electric and Power Company Home Economist from Williams- ton. She was assisted by Miss Hazel Whichard, Home Economics student from East Carolina College.

The session is one of three to be conducted here this week. Tomorrow the school will be staged from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. in the local National Guard Armory. Mrs. Sylvia Matthews, another VEPCO Home Economist, will conduct tomorrow's session assisted by Miss Apple and another member of the

Joint Hostesses At Art Luncheon

Mesdames H. S. Ragsdale, L. C. Skinner and Frank Wilson were joint hostesses to the Sans Souci Book Club Saturday at the Arts Festival luncheon in the dining hall of East Carolina College.

After the meal those present heard a talk on the restoration of Tryon Palace by Miss Gertrude Carraway of New Bern, who told of the rebuilding and furnishing of the Palace, how every piece of furniture is in authentic Colonial, and much of it coming from England whence the original furnishings came.

ECC Home Economics Department.

On Thursday a session of the school will be held from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. for Negroes at the Armory.

In addition to the school, 10 displays were arranged by sponsoring merchants. Prizes given away today included a Westinghouse electric range, a General Electric refrigerator, a ham, six 10-pound bags of Roller Champion flour and a number of food packages.

According to school officials six major electrical appliances, two each day, are to be given away during the three sessions. Other small appliances as well as food baskets and a number of door prizes are to be given away during drawings tomorrow and Thursday. Today's prize winners will be announced in the Daily Reflector tomorrow.

Social Notes

Mrs. Anne Singleton, Reflector Woman's Editor, is confined to her home due to bronchitis.

History Of Russia Told At Pitt County Historical Society Meet

Colonel Beverly Brockdorf, commander of the reserve forces, gave a talk on "Inside Russia" for the Pitt County Historical Society quarterly dinner meeting at the Woman's Club April 17.

The speaker described the terrain of Russia, the extreme heat and cold, its vast mass of swampy land and major mountain ranges, and its resources. Brockdorf said, "Russia is not short of anything except tin."

Following his talk, questions were asked the speaker regarding Russia's satellite program, the U. S. relations with Russia, and how best to cope with her tactics.

Judge Dink James introduced the speaker who was also guest of honor along with his wife. On arrival Miss Lelia Higes served tomato juice from a large silver bowl placed on a table centered with an arrangement of white Hera Jougula in an emerald green crystal bowl which was flanked by dark green tapers in low emerald candle holders in the Sallie Southall Cotten room.

Dr. Robert Lee Humber, charter member of the society and a past president of the State Historical and Literary Society, said the invocation.

Miss Jesse Rountree Moye, president, presided and welcomed members and special guests.

These new members are: M. K. Blount, Mr. and Mrs. Plato G. Evans, Mrs. E. W. Harvey, Miss Lela Brown Stancill, Miss Gussie

Kuykendall, and J. C. Lanier all of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Fountain of Fountain.

A special welcome was extended to J. L. Jackson of Raleigh, a member who has not missed a meeting; D. L. Corbitt of Raleigh, a member, and Mrs. Corbitt, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fountain of Greenville.

Miss Moye announced that an invitation from Dr. J. D. Messick has been extended to the County Society to attend the Spring Regional meeting of the N. C. Literary and Historical Association to be held at ECC on May 3-4.

She noted that features of the program include a panel discussion by authors of Eastern N. C. on the history of Eastern N. C. and the history of Pitt County, a tea, art exhibit, a dinner and on Sunday the Rev. W. M. Howard, Jr., pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, will give a history of the churches of Eastern N. C.

Miss Moye reported on recommendations she had received from authorities in the museums in England, New York, and Raleigh concerning the acquisitions of the portraits of Sir William Pitt and Nathaniel Greene.

Special tribute was paid to the late J. E. Winslow, a member, by the president.

Mrs. Kinchen Cobb, Miss Emily Moye, Hadley and Mrs. Fuller were extended thanks by Miss Moye for assisting her in arranging a profusion of Spring flowers throughout the Woman's Club for the dinner.

Mr. Mrs. Brown Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. Albion R. Brown were entertained at a going away supper Saturday night by Mrs. Stanley Braxton at her home, honoring Brown, who left yesterday for Raleigh to be inducted into the U. S. armed forces.

At the appointed time, the guests were invited into the dining room and served a meal from a table covered with a pink lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of spring flowers.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Stanley Braxton, Mrs. Ed Braxton and Miss Nellie Braxton.

A few days ago Mrs. Peter Brown, Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. Wiley Clark and Mrs. Floyd Harris gave a miscellaneous shower honoring Mr. and Mrs. Brown in the Belvoir luncheon. Spring flowers and greenery were placed throughout the room.

Mrs. Brown wore a blue and white dinner dress and was presented a corsage of pink carnations by the hostesses.

Games and contests were held, led by Mrs. James Brown, who awarded the winners with gifts.

Greeting the 41 guests were Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Clark. They were invited to an appointed table covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a bouquet of pink gladioli and white bridal wreaths flanked by burning white tapers.

Mrs. Brown, mother of the bridegroom, served the bridal cakes and lime ice was served by Miss Dora Ann Brown, sister of the bridegroom. Mints, nuts and cheese crackers were also served.

Expressions of thanks were said by the honorees to the hostesses and guests for the shower and gifts.

Mrs. Floyd Harris stood near the door as goodbyes were said to her and the other hostesses.

Junior-Senior Social Event Held

BETHEL—On Friday night the Junior-Senior Banquet and the Junior-Senior Prom were held in the Bethel School Cafeteria and the school gymnasium.

The cafeteria was festive for the banquet by the use of gala decorations and favors suggestive of the Mardi Gras theme.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. W. P. Thigpen and by Mrs. R. N. Simmons and were served fruit juice and cheese straws from an appointed table by Mrs. J. R. Cullifer and Mrs. W. H. Rogerson.

Other Junior Class Mothers who assisted in receiving and serving were: Mrs. Dennis Hardy, Mrs. Franklin Whitehurst, Mrs. Walter Gray, Mrs. Brantley Chesson, Mrs. T. N. Cooper, Mrs. Walter Latham, and Mrs. Alton Carson.

Dressed in short black skirts, masks, and high top hats were Grace James, Joe Anne Whitehurst, Brenda Williams, Wanda Ciseo, Joan Garrenon, Lulia Whichard, Lucille Cherry, Linda Jones, and Jeanette Pollard, who served as waitresses at the banquet.

Approximately 100 Juniors and Seniors and their guests were seated at the decorated Mardi Gras tables.

At the conclusion of the after-dinner speech by Blair, all the guests were invited to attend the prom which began at nine o'clock and for which Bob Jones and his orchestra from Washington, N. C. played.

The feature event of the dance was the surprise crowning of a "Mardi Gras King and Queen" chosen from the Senior Class. Robert Lee (Sambo) Rawls and Barbara (Bobbie) Garrenon were voted this honor by the Junior Class. Donna Dennis and Phillip Michaels served as Crown Bearers. W. C. Latham, principal, crowned the King and Queen.

The school gymnasium represented a carnival ballroom with the use of combinations of the Mardi Gras colors of royal purple, red, and gold. The King's and Queen's thrones were placed on a raised platform and spotlighted with soft lights.

At 10:30 an intermission party was held in the school cafeteria for all the attendants at the prom.

Following the prom, a Weiner and hamburger roast was held by the Junior and Senior Mothers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Taylor, Jr. for the Juniors and Seniors and their escorts.

How Many More Lives Will It Take?

Two years ago two huge airliners crashed over Grand Canyon taking 128 persons to their death, there went up across the nation a cry for a system of flight controls capable of coping with today's air traffic.

In the two years since that tragedy there have been many other tragic air accidents. Each has been studied, and from each lessons have been learned.

But in those two years there has been no distinct renovation of the method of air traffic control throughout the country.

Last week a mid-air collision between an airliner and a military jet prompted an airline pilot to comment: "Man, we're using Wright brothers rules and regulations and airways for supersonic planes."

In a nutshell that is the story. How long will antiquated air traffic control systems continue in use in this supersonic age? How many lives will be claimed in tragic air collisions before a new, modern, adequate method of air traffic control is developed and put into use?

The number of aircraft in use over the United States increases almost daily. In a matter of months jet commercial aircraft will take their place in the sky on regular scheduled flights. The problem will be further complicated.

After many tragic years of operating automobiles on horse-and-buggy highways, the nation finally rea-

Precinct Meets Are First Step

By LYNN NISBET

CONVENTIONS — The first step in Democratic party activity is the precinct meetings to be held in each voting precinct Saturday of this week. Second step is the county conventions scheduled for Saturday, May 10. Next in order will be the State convention in Raleigh on Thursday, May 15. The dates for precinct and county meetings are certain, the exact place and hour must be ascertained from local chairmen.

Chief function of the precinct meeting will be to select a five-member committee, which will name one of its members chairman. The chairman, so named becomes a member of the county executive committee. Party rules require that either the chairman or first vice chairman of every executive committee, from precinct to state, shall be a woman. More about committees a little later.

Next most important matter is for the precinct to elect delegates to the county convention, up to three delegates and three alternates for each 25 voters cast for the Democratic candidates for Governor in the latest gubernatorial election. The county convention may elect one delegate and one alternate to the State convention for each 150 votes (or major fraction thereof) cast for Governor last time. It is noted that precinct and county delegates must be named and certified to the next higher level, and that there is no provision in party rules for designating Democrats as delegates.

The county convention must be called to order by the chairman of the county executive committee, or in his absence by the vice chairman or secretary, and in absence of any of these officers by any member, who may preside until a chairman is chosen. (The chairman of the convention should not be confused with the chairman of the executive committee.)

COMMITTEES — The Democratic party functions almost wholly through committees at all levels above the precinct meeting. The county executive committee, composed of precinct chairmen, is required to meet on the same day of the county convention to elect a county chairman, one or more vice chairmen and a secretary. These officers do not have to be members of the committee, but once chosen they have ex-officio voting power on all matters except organization of the committee, and they do not count in determining a quorum. The rule book says a majority of the precinct chairmen shall constitute a quorum; and if the chairman is absent the vice-chairman qualifies, and in absence of both a registered Democrat in the precinct by proxy of the chairman. (Note that only the chairman can give a proxy, and if the vice chairman is present the proxy cannot be used.)

Many of the rules have been rather casually observed in the past. There is growing belief that this year there will be enough interest in party procedure all along the line to demand pretty close adherence to the Plan of Organization. Challenge of delegates not properly selected and certified is apt to be more likely this time than in many years. Because of the increasing recognition of the importance of committees a great deal more attention will be given to who is named to membership on these bodies.

Right now major interest centers in the State Executive Committee because that body to be named at the State Convention must nominate candidates for Attorney General and United States Senator to be voted upon in November. The committee may confirm the appointment of Malcolm B. Seawell and B. Everett Jordan for these nominations — or select somebody else. The committee also must select a State chairman, vice chairman and other officials of the party.

DELEGATES — Chief point to remember at this time is that the only persons who can vote upon delegates to the State convention, who in turn will choose the executive committee, are the delegates named by the precincts to the county convention. The rule book says these delegates must be certified by name, in the number provided by the Plan of Organization. The process begins in the precinct meeting Saturday. So far as individual voting rights are concerned it ends there; because from that point upward voting is by accredited delegates only.

Sandwiched between the county and state conventions are the congressional district meetings on the morning of the state convention. These meetings have no real authority, but they nominate all the state convention officials and executive committee members — and there have been few if any instances when the nominations were not approved by the parent body. The only people who have any right to participate in these congressional meetings are the accredited delegates to the state convention, who had been chosen in their respective counties by representatives elected in the precincts.

PLAN — North Carolina is one of the few states with any sort of formal or printed Plan of Organization for the Democratic Party, and spokesmen for the national party concede that it is by far the most complete. If the rules which have been adopted are strictly followed every Democratic voter's rights will be fully protected. If the rules are not followed it will be because citizens have not been alert to protect their interests against schemes for personal advantage.

lized that super-highways must be constructed to take care of increased motor traffic and higher powered cars. In the past decade significant progress has been made toward designing highways to meet the needs of today's automotive traffic.

In the air—where the problem is much more acute—airplanes which surpass the speed of sound are still operating under rules and regulations adopted when the air age was in its infancy.

How many more lives must be sacrificed before a modern system of air traffic control will be put into effect?

Attitude Of Violence Is The Greater Threat

Senseless destruction of property and more senseless endangering of lives have no place in the supposed civilized society in which the people of the United States live.

Two dynamite blasts shattered the early morning silence of the city of Jacksonville, Fla. yesterday. One damaged a synagogue and the other a Negro school.

They were the work of misguided individuals who have taken it upon themselves to terrorize a segment of the population of one of the South's most progressive cities. Such acts are inexorable.

Attempts at terrorism can only cause a degeneration of relationships between citizens of a community. Destructive as the two dynamite blasts were, the feeling which motivated the individuals who set off the blasts is much more destructive, a much greater threat to the people of Jacksonville in the long run.

It is a serious threat to all the citizens of any community when individuals attempt to take the law into their own hands . . . or when they disregard the laws and human decency in an attempt to force their will upon a people.

Acts such as the bombings in Jacksonville can only make the nation's racial problem more difficult to solve.

Congress Faces Busiest Weeks

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This busy Congress, bewildered first by the Sputniks and then by the recession, has its busiest days ahead.

When the legislators quit for 1957 last summer there had been no Sputniks and they were not very conscious of the dropping American economy.

They could look forward — so it seemed — to be a fairly routine session in 1958 and then the campaigns for the November elections.

But then the Soviets sent up their Sputniks. Congress came back in January excited about the missile race, hardly noticing the deepening recession.

By this time this country got up its three little satellites the broadening gloom of the recession hit Congress square in the face.

Between January and now, Congress has worked pretty hard passing legislation which could be called anti-recession measures.

But the Congress members, like the Eisenhower administration, have shown some bewilderment in coping with this recession problem:

How to get the economy back on the track without derailing it by doing too much or too little too soon or too late?

Now Congress is in its closing months of 1958 with its biggest and most heated issues ahead.

Here are some of the major tasks awaiting completion by Congress:

1. The election campaign. Even when its work is done it must go home and face the voters. All 435 House seats and 34 of the 96 Senate seats are at stake next November.

2. Unemployment pay. It's struggling with a bill to give extra benefits to jobless people who have already exhausted theirs or who never got any at all.

3. The recession. Even unemployment pay may not be enough. If the recession gets worse, far more action may be needed.

4. Reciprocal trade and foreign aid. President Eisenhower wants both renewed. He seems certain to get both. The question is: In what form?

5. Streamlining the Defense Department. Eisenhower insists on action. It's an angry issue, with some lawmakers mighty stubborn against him.

6. Pension and welfare funds. The Senate almost surely will approve this week a measure to protect such funds for employes. But this can't become law until the House also acts.

7. More regulations on unions. Before it leaves, Congress may have to tackle major labor legislation, which may also put clamps on employers too.

8. Outer space. Congress is wrestling in this new field with the idea of setting up an outer space agency. The question here is: Civilian or military control of it?

9. Appropriations. This is the problem Congress faces every year: Voting enough money to keep the government running.

Last year was stormy, with Congress embroiled over civil rights. This has been a fairly quiet year, but an uneasy one, and intense.

Opinions In Brief

"The unification of the armed forces has been in the making for more than a decade. In the post-Sputnik era continued squabbles and rivalries are too damaging to American security to be allowed. The President, as former allied commander and chief of staff, has a unique opportunity, as a mobilizer of public opinion and expert in his own right, to put across real unification." — Greensboro Daily News.

"It isn't buildings that make slums. It's the people. Move those people from a slum to a new housing project and they'll create a new slum." — Wall Street Journal.

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

START SCATTERING Squabbling! Many of the miseries of human life stem from the disposition of certain people to keep eternally squabbling with one another. They pass on little insinuating bits of gossip one to another. They down-grade their neighbors either secretly or openly. They give evil interpretation to events wherever they can. In season and out of season, they keep stirring a mass of suspicion, hateful incidents, slanders, and insinuations.

Fortunately, the people who do this constitute a very decided minority, yet there probably is a little of the squabbling in all of us. We stir things up where we might have calmed them down. We increase controversy where we have allayed it. We strike where we might have stroked. We shrug our shoulders when something derogatory is said of a friend when one little word of justice and praise might have set him in a new light among his fellows.

It doesn't cost any more to sprinkle happiness about it does to sprinkle hatred. Happiness springs from tiny seeds. We have lots of them in our pockets, our minds, our hearts.

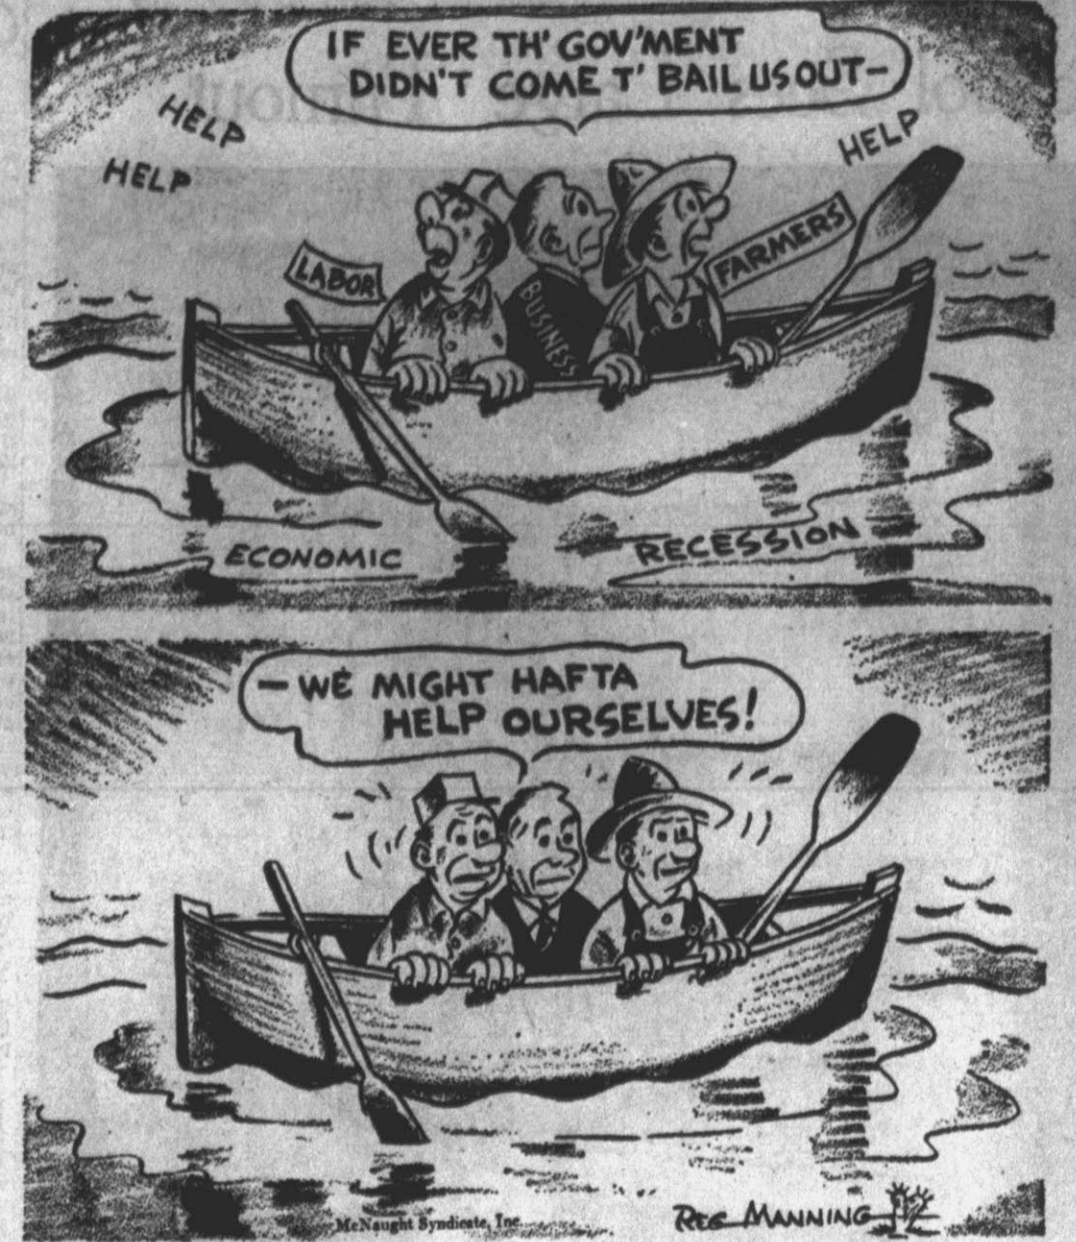

Why are we so little and so mean — and this so often? Well, that is one for God to answer. And may He answer it with mercy!

Recession Commentary

Some weeks ago when Governor Luther H. Hodges was in Greenville, he departed from the prepared text of his speech to make a comment on the recession.

The Governor allowed that if "all the folks in Washington would quit talking about the recession so much, business would be fine". They may not be the exact words, but they represent the essence of the Governor's comment.

Now, a friend, and I don't know who he is, has passed along a little piece on how business is affected by talk and what's in the newspapers. The story goes like this:

A man lived by the side of the road . . . and sold hot dogs. He was hard of hearing, so he had no radio.

He had trouble with his eyes, so he had no newspaper or TV. But he sold good hot dogs.

He put up a sign on the highway, telling how good they were. He stood by the side of the road and cried, "Buy a hot dog, mister." And people bought.

He increased his meat and bun orders, and he bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade. He got his son home from college to help him, but then something happened.

His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio? There's a big depression on. The international situation is terrible, and the domestic situation is even worse."

Whereupon, the father thought, "Well, my son has been to college. He listens to the radio and reads the papers, so he ought to know."

So, the father cut down his bun order, took down his advertising signs, and no longer bothered to stand on the highway to sell hot dogs. His sales fell almost overnight.

"You were right, son," the father said to the boy. "We are certainly in the middle of a great depression."

And that story, of course, brings up the old story about the difference between a recession and a depression.

A recession is when you lose your job. A depression is when I lose mine.

To carry this business one step farther, some of the magazines have commented on the new drink being served to Northern industrialists. It's called the "Republican Cocktail" and is defined as "business on the rocks".

But, then, things aren't that bad.

Other Editors Saying -- Hardy Souls They Were

(Henderson Dispatch) One of the big attractions for residents and visitors alike in Washington just now is the little sailing craft known as Mayflower II. This is the tiny ship that sailed the Atlantic last year from England to Plymouth, Mass., commemorating the arrival of the Pilgrims in 1620.

It is a replica of the original small vessel in which a handful of colonists defied the hazards of the uncharted and stormy seas to establish a home for themselves and the beginnings of a nation in the New World.

This wisp of a craft is barely fifty feet long with a scant twelve to fifteen feet beam. In it came to these shores in 1620 all of 130 passengers besides the crew of a few men. There were men, women and children aboard, huddled upon the decks and in the hold of the flimsy bark, constructed of sturdy timbers and powered only by sails. They didn't cross the Atlantic in ten or twelve hours, as high-powered planes do now, but were four or five weeks or more reaching the bleak New England coast to take up their residence.

Hardy souls they were indeed. They were motivated and inspired by the thought of the freedom which awaited them in a land of their own choice. Hardship, privation, illness, and for many even death, in the western wilderness did not chill their enthusiasm nor dim their hope. They willingly accepted the hazards for the rewards they were sure would be theirs.

Mayflower II crossed in about three weeks, if memory makes no slip. It was equipped with radio communications. It followed some of the most familiar shipping lanes and frequently exchanged salutes with passing vessels, among them one of Uncle Sam's largest aircraft carriers. Always there was the chance of assistance within a matter of at least hours if serious trouble developed.

Upon such coldness and such faith, however, America was conceived. In this spirit was its beginning. The founding fathers followed and those who followed followed in their train for decades following this free government. And today there are those who, by devious means and processes, either wilfully or in ignorance, would tear down what has been committed to our keeping as an example of the best government of man ever designed on the face of the earth.

We snugly take it for granted in the conviction it will continue, and assume that the pillars of democracy will forever stand sturdy against the blows aimed at them. But let it never be forgotten that they definitely will not. Eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty, as it has always been, and always will be, so long as the spirits of men are so determined.

The original Mayflower had none of these advantages, but aboard were a little hand bent upon adventure and conquest. And when they arrived they met with hostile Indians, perils of food shortages, cold and penetrating winter weather, and other hardships too numerous to mention and actually scarcely known to us in this era of luxury and abundance. They laid the foundations for what is less than two centuries from the date when government came into being has grown into the mightiest colossus of wealth and power of all time.

Mayflower II is tied up at a dock on the Potomac down stream from Washington proper. On Sunday a line almost a half a city block awaited the slow moving ribbon of humanity to step aboard and inspect the tiny vessel. One impression gained was that it would be risky even to sail out into the shallow waters of the river, to say nothing of defying the depths of the Atlantic, its storms, its loneliness and other dangers for weeks on end.

Upon such coldness and such faith, however, America was conceived. In this spirit was its beginning. The founding fathers followed and those who followed followed in their train for decades following this free government. And today there are those who, by devious means and processes, either wilfully or in ignorance, would tear down what has been committed to our keeping as an example of the best government of man ever designed on the face of the earth.

We snugly take it for granted in the conviction it will continue, and assume that the pillars of democracy will forever stand sturdy against the blows aimed at them. But let it never be forgotten that they definitely will not. Eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty, as it has always been, and always will be, so long as the spirits of men are so determined.

Russia Steps Up Its Trade War

By ELMER ROESSNER

Russia is stepping up its two-pronged trade war against the West, says A.W. Zelomek, economist and president of the International Statistical Bureau.

One prong is directed against major commodity producing nations and is intended to weaken their economies and create depressions in which communism might thrive. Mr. Zelomek does not blame the Russians for the present slump, however; that was produced by faults in our own planning, he believes.

The other prong is designed to make smaller nations dependent on Russia, which would also facilitate the spread of communism.

HOW SOVIETS WORK Russia has already broken the price of aluminum in the West and is working on copper, wool and cotton, according to Mr. Zelomek.

Russia usually works through third parties, such as captive corporations that may even appear to be Western business organizations.

In aluminum, it accumulated large stocks in Europe. Then, at the first signs of weakness in the market, it offered these stocks at cut prices, breaking the market and forcing the world price down 2 cents a pound. The purpose, Mr. Zelomek believes, was to injure Western economies, rather than to dispose of aluminum. Under other conditions, it would have held back its metal until the market improved.

A frequent tactic of the Russians, Mr. Zelomek said, is to withdraw from a market as a buyer when a commodity weakens. That is what was done in wool.

Russia has been a heavy buyer of wool in world markets. But when the price weakened recently, instead of taking advantage of the dip and increasing purchases, Russia nearly stopped buying entirely. This weakened the price even further, injuring the Australian and New Zealand economies.

IN CHILE, FAR EAST Russia's other phase of economic warfare was shown when the price of copper broke. It used this in an effort to divide the Western nations and, perhaps, to gain a foothold in South America. Chile formerly sold 45 per cent of its large copper output to the United States; now it is selling only 20 per cent.

At the moment, Russia is encouraging Chile to enter a deal in which the Soviets would buy copper. The U.S. has warned Chile that if it sells strategic materials behind the Iron Curtain, it will have to cut off U.S. aid. Chile probably won't sell. But the Communists will see to it that the U.S. is blamed for all of Chile's economic woes.

At the same time, Russia is seeking to take advantage of American restrictions against imports of Japanese goods. Russia is offering to make purchases, and to supply the Japanese with needed materials at low prices.

Russia is also playing the world cotton market, but its ventures here have been less successful and have created enmity of the Egyptians.

SEEKING MORE TRADE

It is also waging a propaganda for more East-West trade. If the barriers were lowered, Russia could purchase more needed strategic materials. It would also be in a position to influence Western markets, even to the extent of turning prosperity on and off at will.

Russia has enormous advantages over free nations in world trade, since it is not concerned with costs or labor rates, and since it can act in a single manner, whereas Western traders cannot.

Mr. Zelomek does not believe that Russia could cause a major depression. "Before that could happen, we would realize what was going on and take steps to meet it," he said. In fact, he does not believe there will be a depression; he has published a new edition of his book, "No Major Depression in Our Lifetime." The present recession will not become a major depression, he says. In fact, he adds, we have already neared bottom and the pickup is ahead.

'Feels' Fingers On Missing Arm

ROME (AP)—"I know they're not there," Samuel Cardinal Stritch told a visitor last night, "but I feel sensations in the tips of the fingers of my right hand."

The 70-year-old Roman Catholic Archbishop of Chicago's right arm was amputated above the elbow yesterday after a blood clot de-veloped. His doctors said he was recovering quickly and should be out of bed in two or three days.

Among those who visited him were the Italian surgeons who per-formed the amputation, two Chi-cago doctors who flew to Rome for consultation and Msgr. Roman R. "Jelski, auxiliary bishop of the Milwaukee diocese, and Msgr. Patrick Hayes, rector of Chicago's Holy Name Cathedral, who also flew here.

Cardinal Stritch was stricken while en route to Rome to be-come proupprefect of the church's Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith. The congregation controls the church's missionary activities around the world, and the post is the highest in the Vati-can hierarchy ever awarded an American.

Msgr. Hayes said he was "sur-prised to see His Eminence in such excellent spirits and good physical condition. He is a model of courage and spiritual strength."

A young member of the cardi-nal's staff reported he was "sit-ting up and looking chipper. He said he did not remember going under anesthesia for the opera-tion."

CONSCIENCE MONEY
BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A nagging conscience got the best of some-one. A $30 money order arrived at Community Chest headquarters with a note explaining it was for a pledge made in 1928. The note was signed "Pro Bono Publico"—For the Public Good.

Twenty-Five Finish Annual Class Trip

By ANNE HARRIS
Belvoir-Falkland High School Seniors have returned from their class trip, filled with memories of their experiences.

Twenty-five of them, accom-panied by eleven chaperones, left the school by bus on Thursday, April 17. Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington, was first stop on the group's tour. While there they toured the gardens and lawns, and ate in the restaurant before continuing the trip to the nation's capital.

At Arlington National Cemetery, the group visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and watched the changing of the guard at the tomb. After leaving Arlington, they rode by the Jefferson Memorial, Lincoln Memorial, and Reflecting Pool. They then checked in the Franklin Park Hotel and were al-lotted the night as free time.

On Friday, second day of the tour, the group visited the Depart-ment of Printing and Engraving, where they saw paper money being printed and counted.

The Federal Bureau of Investi-gation was next stop on the tour. A guide took the group through the department, pointing out a collec-tion of guns taken from notorious criminals captured by department personnel. They also visited many of the FBI laboratories, where scientific analyses are made of clues.

The group then rode by the Blair House and the White House and arrived at Capitol Hill, where their group picture was taken. After-wards they boarded their bus and resumed the trip to New York City via the Baltimore Parkway and the New Jersey Turnpike. After arriving at New York's Hotel Ply-mouth, they were free to see a television show or to explore the Times Square area.

On Saturday morning, the group toured the United Nations Build-ing, where a guide explained vari-ous points along the way. Of spe-cial interest to most of the group were the council chambers, each of which was decorated and fur-nished by a different country.

Saturday afternoon was set aside as free time for the group. This time was spent in various ways, among which were shopping, see-ing the ball game played in Yankee Stadium, riding the subway to Coney Island, or simply exploring the big city.

On Saturday night, the group took a guided tour of Rockefeller Center. They visited the roof gar-dens and the underground restau-rants and shopping center, but per-haps the most outstanding point of the whole visit was riding on the elevators which travel two floors per second.

Sunday was perhaps the busiest day of the entire trip. By means of a sightseeing bus, they visited St. John's Cathedral, "Millionaire Road," Central Park, the slums, the Statue of Liberty, the Empire State Building, and Chinatown. The final guided tour was of the National Broadcasting Company studios, where the group learned how radio and television shows are produced.

Final stop was Radio City Music Hall where the group attended a movie and stage show, including the precision dancing of the fa-mous Music Hall "Rockettes."

Monday morning was the day of departure for the group, and there were varying emotions when the bus pulled out on the return trip.

Chaperones for the tour were Principal E. N. Warren, Senior Advisor Lou Nelson, Miss Beatrice Moore, Mrs. Joyce Bundy, Mrs. Margaret Norville, Mrs. Frances Dupree, Mrs. Pauline Tucker, Mrs. Ida Whitaker, Mrs. Claudia Lewis, Harold Harris, Paul Dupree Jr., and Mack Dupree. Bus driver for the trip was Tom Dark.

ECC Preps For High Point, Duke Here Wednesday

Catawba Tilt Called; To Be Played Friday Night

By BILLY ARNOLD
Yesterday's East Carolina-Catawba North State baseball game was called off due to rain and all the Pirates can concentrate on playing High Point Wednesday afternoon and Duke University Wednesday night.

In the first of their conference road trips, the Bucs finished 1-1, whipping High Point 13-2 and dropping a 5-4 decision to Elon. That one loss was enough to shove them into second place in the league.

Elon, with an 8-1, has moved back into the first position which it captured last season. ECC is second at 5-1. Catawba ranks third with a 3-1 mark.

Coach Jim Mallory's crew will be favored to win another one from High Point here Wednesday afternoon at College Field. Their 13-2 crushing of the Panthers at College Point behind the six-hit pitching of Bruce Shelley is enough basis to give the Bucs another favored position in that game.

On Friday, the Pirates will meet Catawba here in another night contest. Though there has been no official word, it is possible that a double-header will be played to make up for the contest rained out at Catawba yesterday.

Duke First
But before the Bucs can worry themselves about that Friday night tilt, they have to come to grips with Duke University tomorrow night.

Coach Mallory's club will attempt a trick that would be enough to throw the hitters into any club. Tomorrow afternoon at College Field, they will battle High Point, grab a quick supper, and move out to Guy Smith Stadium to tangle with the Atlantic Coast Conference champions at 8:00.

Mallory has not yet announced his pitching choices for the two games, but it is thought that he will use Ben Baker against the Panthers and the start George Williams against the Blue Devils. Of course, Mallory will be able to pick from Leonard Lilley, Bruce Shelley, Mitchell Moon, Tom Salter and Earl Boykin, too.

Lineup Changes
The Buc lineup may be altered somewhat by the time they reach Guy Smith Stadium. Mallory changes his outfield around frequently depending upon whether the opposing club uses a righthander or a lefthander on the mound. Also, it is possible that he will make some changes so that some of his boys don't have to play both ball games.

It is probable that the coach will make use of all three of his catchers, Marion Talton, Doug Watts and Burl Morris. He may also use Glenn Bass at third base along with co-captain Bucky Reep. Bass substituted for Reep in two games recently when the regular third baseman was out with a hand injury. In the outfield, Mallory may try to use Tommy Nance, Johnny Jones, Tommy Land, Bill Altman, Jerry Phillips.

It is most likely that the first base, second base and shortstop positions will remain the same throughout both contests. Jerry Stewart, co-captain and senior, will probably go both tilts at short; Jimmy Martin is expected to hold down first, and Al Vaughn will stick at second.

Blue Devils Strong
Ace Parker's Duke Blue Devils have copped the Atlantic Coast Conference title for the past three years running and are in the thick of the race this season. Currently, North Carolina is on a seven-game winning streak and pacing the league (UNC whipped ECC here three weeks ago, 13-3) and Clemson is second. Duke is third.

However, today, Carolina takes on North Carolina State and Duke meets Wake Forest. Should Duke trim the Deacons and State upset red-hot Carolina, the Devils could move into second place. The Blue Devils have a 6-2 record against ACC teams and is regarded one of the most well-balanced teams in the loop. Against ACC teams, ECC has won one (over South Carolina) and lost one (to UNC).

And so, whether Duke bumps Wake Forest tonight or loses to the Demon Deacons, they will come to Guy Smith Stadium in a fighting mood tomorrow night.

Homecoming
Tomorrow night's tilt will be something of a homecoming for both Parker and the Duke team. It was Duke (playing Wake Forest, incidentally) which played in the dedication ceremonies of Guy Smith Stadium when it opened here nearly 30 years ago. Parker, who was an All-American at Duke, played two years of amateur baseball in Greenville in 1935-36 and has many friends here.

Nation's Sports Writers Denounce 'Homerun' Wall

Tighe Says Tigers Owe NY One For Little Bob Shantz

By ED WILKS
'It's a little early to get excited about a series with the Yankees,' Manager Jack Tighe of the Detroit Tigers said today.

The Tiger skipper, shrugging off slow starts by a pair of his 20-game winners, Frank Lary (6-2) and Jim Bunning (1-2), as 'just one of those things,' had his lineup loaded with nine righthanders against Shantz in the opener of a two-game series against the New York Yankees today at Yankee Stadium.

The Tigers haven't beaten Shantz in 10 decisions since 1950. It hasn't been Yankee power that has carried Shantz against the Tigers either. He ran up the first eight victories in the jinx while working for the Philadelphia-Kansas City Athletics — which explains why Bobby was the big man in that 13-player Yankee-A's trade of February 1957.

While the Tigers and Yankees met in New York, the rest of the West started its first swing through the East with Cleveland sending Herb Score (2-1) against Washington's Camilo Pascual (0-1). In night games, the Chicago White Sox and Billy Pierce (0-2) faced Baltimore's Billy O'Dell (1-2) and Kansas City played at Los Angeles against the Dodgers in a night game. Milwaukee plays at Chicago and St. Louis goes under the lights at Cincinnati.

Right-hander Bob Friend (2-0) was the starting choice for the Pirates, who have ridden a three-game streak into fourth place. The Dodger pitching pick was Carl Erskine (1-0).

The Braves, leaving outfielder Wes Covington behind to condition his injured knee, had lefty Warren Spahn (2-0) on the mound for their first visit to Chicago this season. The Cubs figured to use either Taylor Phillips, or rookie right-hander Gene Fodge. Phillips had an 0-0 record, Fodge a 1-0 mark. Spahn is 28-14 lifetime vs. the Cubs.

The Cardinals gave the ball to southpaw Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell (0-1) against the Redlegs. Bob Purkey (2-0). Mizell is 14-9 lifetime against the Reds while Purkey, the ex-Pirate, is 3-6 against St. Louis.

No games were scheduled in either league yesterday.

Ray Monzant Pitching Against Phils Today

By ED WILKS
Ray Monzant, the young righthander who gave San Francisco the National League lead by beating the Chicago Cubs for the first time in his brief career, was the Giants' choice to keep them there today against the Philadelphia Phillies—a club he's a perfect 3-0 against.

The 25-year-old Venezuelan, gaining his first major league choutout with a four-hit, 2-0 job that spilled the Cubs from first last Friday, now is 2-1 for the season, his fifth in the big time.

Southpaw Curt Simmons (0-2), who has a 21-17 career mark against the Giants, was the Phils' choice as the second shift of Eastern invaders paid their first visits to the NL's new territory.

The Pittsburgh Pirates are at Los Angeles against the Dodgers in a night game. Milwaukee plays at Chicago and St. Louis goes under the lights at Cincinnati.

Derby Picture May Be Cleared Up By Today

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Kentucky Derby picture, muddled by an injury to a top-flight jockey, the weather and the prospect of the largest field in recent years, may be clarified today.

It may come with the renewal of the Derby Trial Stakes at Churchill Downs.

A convincing victory in the mile race by Calumet Farm's Tim Tam, Nadir from the Claiborne Farm or any of the eight other entries would go a long way in receding the field for Saturday's 94th running of the $125,000-added turf classic.

At least 25 of the original field of 140 nominees are now considered probable starters in the 1 1/4 mile Derby.

Some of the owners undoubtedly will think otherwise after today's trial.

Tim Tam is the odds-on favorite to take the Trial and establish himself as the solid choice for the Derby itself. Nadir, co-champion of the 1957 juveniles with Jewel Reward, also will be watched closely. He is a member of the Derby's Big Four that includes Tim Tam, Jewel's Reward and Silky Sullivan.

A. B. (Bull) Hancock, master of Claiborne's silks, is keeping his fingers crossed. A poor race today and Nadir probably will not be in Saturday's post parade.

'We rushed him back to the races too soon in the Flamingo after an attack of intestinal flu,' said Hancock. 'As the result his training was retarded. He's about three weeks from being in top form. I just hope he doesn't suffer a setback in today's race.'

The question of a jockey to replace the injured Bill Hartack aboard Tim Tam was settled when trainer Jimmy Jones picked Ismael Valenzuela, New York's leading rider this spring. A good ride today and Jones likely will call on the 24-year-old Texan of Mexican descent again Saturday.

Ask That Any Homer Records At Los Angeles Be Made Invalid

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—A majority of the nation's sports writers recommended today that any new home run record which may be set because of the Los Angeles Coliseum's short left field fence be declared invalid.

An Associated Press poll of nearly 200 sports writers, editors and columnists showed exactly 90 per cent in favor of not recognizing National Leaguers who may top Babe Ruth's major league record of 60 home runs in one season. That would, of course, include Hack Wilson's National League mark of 56.

Of the 193 replies, 116 voted to recognize any new home run marks proposed a footnote, explaining that the record was set with the aid of the Coliseum's 250-foot left field fence. Seven affirmative voters qualified their answer with the provision that the record should be recognized only if a majority of the four-league voters hit in parks other than in the Coliseum. Still others said only Dodger players should be legislated against because they play 77 games in the lopsided park.

The writers also advocated uniform dimensions in parks for home run requirements as well as the extension of the Coliseum's present 42-foot screen to 100 feet. Opinion varied on the size of the screen, ranging from 60 to 1,000 feet. The vote for uniform dimensions was a whopping 78 per cent while 67 per cent agreed on a height increase.

With some exceptions, there was an overwhelming distaste for the uprooted Dodgers' temporary setup. Remarks accompanying some of the ballots included phrases such as, 'It's a disgrace,' 'a ridiculous situation,' 'a huge farce,' 'unfit for baseball,' 'not even good enough for Little League.'

Some of the owners undoubtedly will think otherwise after today's trial.

Tim Tam is the odds-on favorite to take the Trial and establish himself as the solid choice for the Derby itself. Nadir, co-champion of the 1957 juveniles with Jewel Reward, also will be watched closely. He is a member of the Derby's Big Four that includes Tim Tam, Jewel's Reward and Silky Sullivan.

Kuenn Says Yankees Will Be 'Also-Rans'

By ED CORRIGAN
NEW YORK (AP)—While most of the other clubs in the American League tremble at the very thought of the mighty New York Yankees, the Detroit Tigers in general—and Harvey Kuenn in particular—think the Bronx Bombers are going to wind up also-rans this year.

The Bengals arrived for a two-game set in Yankee Stadium today and if they were awed at the Yanks' 8-3 record at the expense of the Eastern teams, they didn't show it.

Kuenn, who has made a remarkable transformation from shortstop to center fielder and currently is leading the league with 22 hits and a .415 batting average, did not knock the Yanks.

'They're probably as strong this year as last,' he observed thoughtfully. 'But we are stronger in several ways and I really feel we will catch them this time.'

He listed an imposing string of improvements accomplished by the Tigers, namely:

1. Billy Martin.
2. Jim Hegan.
3. The bullpen.
4. The bench.
5. The spirit.

'Martin has played terrific ball for us,' he enthused. 'He has gotten big hits and made all the plays in the field. Whoever started that talk that he didn't have the arm for a shortstop must be crazy.'

He pointed out that the aging Hegan has been a great help to the young pitchers, that relievers like Joe Presko have aided the staff and that with hitters like Gus Zernial on the bench, the club must be improved.

Kuenn, himself, has been a revelation in center field. Whatever doubts there were that he couldn't make the switch have vanished. 'It did come easily,' he admitted. 'Right now I feel more at home in center field than I ever did at shortstop. In fact, I don't ever want to go back to the infield. 'Only one thing still bothers me in the outfield. I'm still a little shaky on line drives. Sometimes I don't know whether to go out or in for them.'

CHICAGO (AP)—A move to make major league expansion and franchise shifts one simple and easy operation was made yesterday at a meeting of baseball's Committee on Territorial Rights.

With an obvious eye on New York and the West Coast, the committee drafted an amendment which would need only the approval of the commissioner of baseball and that of the league desiring to make a switch.

Auto Makers Say 'No' To Reuther

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. have given Walter P. Reuther an emphatic no to his proposal to put off until September a showdown in bargaining on new labor contracts.

Chrysler Corp. is expected to make it unanimous. The United Auto Workers Union yesterday asked the big three car makers for a three-month extension of present contracts, which run out at the end of May.

Reuther said his motive was to allow time for a gigantic clearance sale to help the car makers market 850,000 unsold new cars. He suggested the manufacturers cut prices. The union, he said, would give up a 5-cent an hour productivity increase June 1 but would insist upon retaining cost of living increases and layoff pay benefits during the summer months.

General Motors and Ford accused Reuther of stalling in an attempt to improve his bargaining position by withholding threat of a strike until the companies start production of 1959 models. Both made a counterproposal.

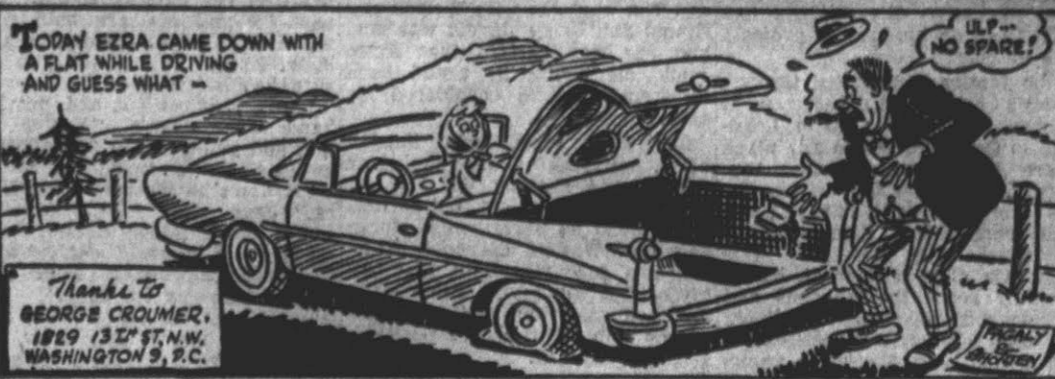

They offered to extend the present contracts for two years, giving workers built-in annual wage increases of at least 6 cents an hour and also cost of living increases.

The lifting of a news blackout on bargaining talks that started a month ago disclosed the auto industry and the union were far apart, with no immediate prospect of reaching any kind of an agreement.

General Motors said the union demands would amount to an increase of more than 73 cents an hour. Ford estimated the demands at more than 71 cents an hour. The companies said these demands for wage increases and fringe benefits did not include the union's profit sharing demand.

The union called these estimates fantastic but gave none of its own. Harlow H. Curtice, General Motors president, and Henry Ford II, president of Ford Motor Co., indicated the companies are ignoring the profit sharing demand. Ford termed Reuther's proposal "representative of an attitude that is ruthlessly opportunistic."

British Generally Want To Stop H-Bomb Tests

LONDON (AP)—There evidently is wide sentiment in Britain for stopping H-bomb tests.

The Labor party favors halting tests and claims an overwhelming majority of the people back their plea.

The Conservative government has been unwilling to discontinue testing. Its ministers say the dangers to future generations are non-existent at this point.

If you look for spontaneous comment on the issue in pubs, barber shops, cafes, you'll hear people talking of other things.

But if you ask, you may get an answer like this, from a World War II veteran who works as a hotel porter: "I don't think we ought to keep on with the tests. They definitely increase radiation—and that's bad no matter how small it is. But we ought to keep the bomb—just in case."

A woman who stands behind the cash register in a restaurant just off Fleet Street says: "We've got it. I can destroy a city, what more do we want? Yes, I think we ought to keep the bomb—but why do we have to have tests bigger and better bombs?"

Newspapers range over a variety of opinions. Says the London Times, which usually supports the government: "With other countries planning to enter the atomic race, the sooner some check is applied the better. Washington and London could at least say that if their next tests are successful they will call a halt either indefinitely or for some specified period.

At the opposition pole the Labor supporting Daily Mirror printed a Page 2 "call to Macmillan for action."

"Suspend Britain's H-tests," the Mirror demanded. "Ground the H-bombers flying over this country. Delay building missile sites in Britain until summit talks have taken place."

"The government must agree to an H-bomb armistice whatever America decides." But the Manchester Guardian says: "Tests should be suspended only after a detailed system of monitoring has been established between Britain, the United States and Russia."

Little Fuss For Alaska Primary

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—A primary election campaign that produced little fuss or stir ended in Alaska today as voters chose candidates for a general election Oct. 14.

The only national post on the territory's ballot, on which cross voting between parties is permitted, is for nomination for Alaska's delegate to Congress. Democratic incumbent E. L. (Bob) Bartlett is opposed for his party's nomination.

Republican candidates for Bartlett's job are Paul F. Robison, Anchorage, and Walter H. Peirce, College.

Bride, 85, Emphatically States She, Young Groom Found Love

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—"We love each other, and I'm sure we'll be happy."

With that emphatic remark, 85-year-old Mrs. James Bough dismissed rumors concerning her marriage yesterday to a 28-year-old handyman-newsboy who preferred her out of "all the pretty young girls he had ever seen."

She and her burly groom planned to rest for a few days before accepting a Bloomington auto dealer's offer to drive them to a honeymoon with her niece in Johnston City, Ill. Later, if they can arrange transportation, they hope to accept an invitation to be guests at a Miami Beach, Fla., hotel.

Mrs. Bough, whose first husband, a railroad worker, died four years ago, nearly touched off a riot when she casually flung her bridal bouquet over her shoulder into the crowd. Somebody finally returned it to her. But said she wouldn't need it again. "This is my last wedding," she said.

British Teen-Age Crime Is Soaring

Britain's teen-agers is threatening to get out of hand.

Lord Mancroft, a government spokesman, told Parliament the position may become almost unmanageable within a few years unless "the flood of angry young men" into the prisons and reformatories is halted.

He spoke in a debate on prisons crowded with a record number of inmates. Mancroft disclosed these figures on juvenile crime:

Since July 1956 the population in borstals—detention institutions for delinquents up to the age of 21—has jumped from 2,600 to nearly 4,000. Convictions in the 17-21 age group increased 19 per cent in 1956 over 1955.

The first six months of last year showed a further 25 per cent increase over 1956. Lord Mancroft did not break down the type of crimes but referred to indictable offenses: murder, manslaughter, assault, burglary, robbery, theft and the like.

These youths are Britain's war babies—those who were born or began to grow up during the war years. "If this dreadful level of crime is carried forward into the full effects of the (postwar) bulge in the birth rate, the situation in a few years will be appalling," Mancroft said.

RATTLE ROUNDUP OKENE, Okla. (AP)—The 9th annual Okene Rattlesnake Roundup was termed a success by the Chief Rattler of the International Assn. of Rattlesnake Hunters, Harold Smith, after a total of 3,924 rattlers weighing 4,476 pounds were sold at auction. The longest was 6 feet 1 1/4 inches.

The Battle of Trenton, Washington's first major victory in the Revolutionary War, lasted only 45 minutes.

Watched As Boy Drowned In Hole

DALLAS (AP)—George Ralph Pounds, 17, and Jimmy White, 22, told police they saw 11-year-old Perry Louis Stephenson jumping up and down in a muddy creek yesterday and paused to watch.

They told officers the boy shot up out of the 7-foot-deep water several times before he went under and disappeared.

Pounds and White leaped to the rescue then, pulled the boy out and began artificial respiration. Firemen worked with a resuscitator but failed to revive the youngster.

Heard Signal Of Falling Vanguard

PT. MONMOUTH, N.J. (AP)—A radio signal from the ill-fated Vanguard II Satellite was picked up by the Signal Research and Development Laboratory here last night.

Using radio direction finder equipment the laboratory first heard the signal on 100 megacycles 3 minutes and 45 seconds after the rocket was fired. They held onto it for more than eight minutes, until 11:04.54 p.m.

The laboratory said the steady hum of the transmitter ceased abruptly at that time.

© 1957, Wayne D. Overholser. From the novel published by The Macmillan Co. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER II

Laura Madden had never been closer to her father. As long as she could remember, he had been a self-centered, withdrawn man who had seldom given her more than superficial attention while her mother was alive. His thinking had been fixed on his various projects and enterprises.

The family had drifted through Laura's childhood years from Denver to Central City to Leadville to Cripple Creek to any place where money was being made. Barry Madden, in spite of his ups and downs, always left a place with more money than when he arrived.

Laura's only permanent home, the only house the Maddens had ever owned, was in Saddle Rock. She didn't know why her father had settled here. She had a vague idea it had something to do with Cole Weston, and she knew her mother, who had welcomed this chance to have a home even in an isolated town like Saddle Rock, bitterly opposed the arrangement with Weston.

Over the years Laura's mother had learned to handle Barry Madden. She catered to his every whim, but when it came to things which Mrs. Madden had considered important, such as the social occasions she dearly loved, she went her own sweet way and her husband had to make the most of it.

Now that Laura thought about it, it occurred to her that Cole Weston and his wife had not been in the Madden house since her mother had died. She remembered that her mother, a charming woman who loved to talk, had trouble being civil to Weston, and Laura remembered, too, how Mrs. Weston would sit apart from the other women in the parlor when the men had gone back to the study.

Laura had never understood it, but she noticed that when her parents had gone to Roeking C, they hadn't spoken to each other for two days afterward. It proved, Laura supposed, that Cole Weston had some sort of strange hold upon his father, but she'd never thought much about it until now when she had had to worry because of Price Regan.

Laura did not attempt to explain her love for Price. She was satisfied to accept and be happy with it, and consider herself lucky to have Price love her. She knew he was not well liked in town and among the cattlemen; she knew he was considered tough and unyielding and implacable. Yet she had never found him that way, for he had a mild, gentle side that few people in this end of Tremaine County realized he possessed.

She looked down at her cup, fighting back the tears that were constantly threatening since she'd heard of her parents' death. "But now Pa and Ma are both gone and I don't have anything or anybody. Except Bruce, and I'm not sure he's alive."

Laura reached out and put her hands over Jean's. "You've got me, and you're going to stay here as long as you need it."

"It won't be for very long, Laura," Jean said. "You know it won't. Your father doesn't want me here. I guess I can't blame him, toadying around after Cole Weston the way he does."

Laura was indignant for a moment, and angry. She drew her hands back and rose, saying, "Let's get the dishes done." She carried a load of dishes into the kitchen, and it came to her that Jean was perfectly right. Her father ran Saddle Rock, everyone but Price, and yet he did toady around after Cole Weston.

When Jean set the dishes down that she had carried in from the dining room, Laura put an arm around her. "I don't know what's going to happen, Jean, but I have a terrible feeling it's going to be bad so bad I don't know what I'll do."

"I don't understand," Jean said. "You don't have anything to worry about."

"Would you worry if your father was on one side and the man you were going to marry was on the other?"

"Of course I would," Jean said. "I didn't think of it that way, but I wouldn't have much trouble choosing. Mr. Regan is pretty wonderful, isn't he?"

"Wonderful and stubborn," Laura said, "and maybe born to die before we're married."

"If that happens," Jean said, "it would make anything that has happened to me seem very small and unimportant."

Laura picked up another handful of dishes and carried them into the kitchen. Jean was older and a great deal wiser, Laura thought. Maybe it was because she had so very little in life and therefore appreciated and cherished the tiny bit she did have.

Barry Madden came home late for dinner, but Laura and Jean had waited, keeping the food in the warming oven. He seemed even more distraught than he had been at breakfast, barely picking at his food. When he finally rose, he said, "Laura, come back to the study for a minute."

He left without a word of explanation. It would be about Jean, Laura knew, and when she glanced at Jean she sensed that the other girl knew, too. "I won't be long," Laura said. "You take the dishes into the kitchen."

"Don't fight with him, Laura," Jean said. "Not on my account."

"I think I'll have to fight with him," Laura said, "but it may not be on your account."

A man has an inalienable right to choose death if he so chooses. And Price has," Laura is told, as tension soars to a climax in the story tomorrow.

UNLIKELY LOOT

DALLAS (AP)—Policeman R. R. Scribner figured a thief with more fear of wetland downpours than restitution took his ransom from a patrol car. The black rubber coat carries the words "police" in big letters across the back—and the white letters glow in the dark.

Designed Rocket To Reach Moon

DENVER (AP)—The Air Force disclosed today it has designed a small and relatively cheap rocket capable of reaching the moon.

Dr. Morton Alperin, director of advanced studies for the Air Force Office of Scientific Research at Pasadena, Calif., said the new space vehicle was designed as a result of OSR Project Farside balloon-launched rocket firings in the Pacific last year.

Alperin told reporters the Air Force seeks authority to build the new rocket to supplement space research conducted with larger, more elaborate and more costly lunar probes.

Alperin is co-chairman of a three-day astronautics symposium, jointly conducted by OSR and the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences, attended by 800 military and civilian space scientists.

The Air Force already has authority to harness its Thor 1,500-mile-range ballistic missile, to the upper stages of the Navy Vanguard satellite rocket in efforts to hit the moon or to send a satellite payload around the moon.

Hold Suspect In Ambush-Slaying

AMBRIDGE, Pa. (AP)—Authorities report that state police ballistics tests show the bullets that killed two men in an auto ambush were fired from a rifle found in the home of Arthur G. Schuck, 41, a Baden electrician.

Schuck was taken into custody shortly after the shooting early Sunday at nearby Economy. A woman in the auto with the two victims was wounded.

Dist. Atty. Richard Steward said a decision will be made soon on the possibility of filing charges against Schuck.

Schuck told police he has no knowledge of being near the scene of the shooting. Police quoted him as saying he was too drunk to remember.

Killed in the ambush were William E. Engel, 41, owner of the Ambridge Tool and Machine Co., and Vincent Quigley, 34, a bartender. Angelina Pugliano, 33, of Fair Oaks, was wounded.

The shooting occurred as Engel backed his auto into a driveway a few doors from Quigley's home. Steward said he believes the shootings were a case of mistaken identity.

Bombing Called Interstate Job

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—The planting of a huge dynamite bomb outside a Birmingham synagogue shortly after a Florida synagogue and Negro school were bombed was called part of an interstate operation.

Police Commissioner Eugene Connor called for an FBI investigation of the bomb threat to the Temple Beth-El. He also said he would ask the Legislature to authorize the death penalty for persons convicted of bombing houses, schools and churches.

Connor said he believed the Birmingham bomb was timed to go off at the same time that explosions damaged a synagogue and Negro school in Jacksonville, Fla.

Died Sunday

Mrs. Winnifred Payton Godette, 97, who taught public schools in Edgecombe, Beaufort, Nash and Pitt counties for over half a century, died last Sunday morning at her home, 400 Tyson Street, Greenville.

The body was taken from Phillips Bros. Funeral Chapel to the home, 400 Tyson Street, at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Funeral services will be held at St. Andrew's Mission Episcopal Church in Bonner's Lane Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Burial will be in Brown-Hill Cemetery. She was the daughter of the late Warren H. and Susan White Payton of Tarboro. She was married early in life to John Thomas Godette, who preceded her in death many years ago. Four children were born to this union, two sons who died some years ago, and two daughters, Mrs. Susan G. Peacock and Mrs. Geneva Portesque, with whom Mrs. Godette lived. Surviving in addition to the daughters are three daughters-in-law, three grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, and other relatives.

Teacher Education Still First, Says Dr. Messick

"Some say we are not stressing teacher education," Dr. John D. Messick, president of East Carolina College, told Greenville Rotarians last night.

"But the figures speak for themselves," the college president asserted. He cited the figures which showed 523 graduates with teachers degrees will be produced by East Carolina College this year. The figure compared with 136 graduates of ECC with B.S. degrees in 1945-46.

Discussing the progress of the college, Dr. Messick pointed out that ECC this year has more than 3,900 on-campus students in addition to 1,436 students in extension classes throughout Eastern North Carolina.

Dr. Messick presented each Rotarian a mimeographed brochure showing the progress of various phases of the college's program since the 1945-46 school year.

The total budget for East Carolina College for the current school year amounts to $2,975,946 compared with slightly more than half million dollars for the school year of 1945-46. In addition to the operations budget, the college is now in the process of spending $2,331,250 for permanent improvements authorized by the 1957 General Assembly.

Dr. Messick pointed out that the per capita state appropriations for students at ECC is $342 annually compared with per capita appropriations of as much as $600 for other state institutions.

"Touching on the matter of scholarships, the college president asserted schools are finding it necessary to compete for scholastic talent among students. "Scholarships are becoming more and more a problem and more in demand," he said. "Wealthy colleges and universities are buying the top students through huge scholarship programs." He pointed out that during the current school year ECC has some 450,000 through which to provide scholarships in addition to $32,550 in scholarship loans by the state of North Carolina.

Dr. Messick was introduced by Jack Edwards, program chairman for the Rotary Club.

Revised List Of Prize-Winners

Following is a corrected list of the winners in the recent Pitt County 4-H Federation contest, held under auspices of the Pitt County farm agents and Home Demonstration agents, respectively:

Amy Mills Jr., 4-H member of the Haddocks club, received second place; Violene Hooks, Grifton Junior club, third place, and Barbara Harris, first place. These girls competed in a special dairy food demonstration for a television appearance as well as for county honors, Mrs. Capehart stated.

Bessie Moore, Winterville Senior 4-H Club, won second place in the senior demonstration. The Danish system of judging was used.

High scorers senior rating:

Blue ribbons — Barbara Harris, Farmville senior club; Bessie Moore, Winterville senior club. Red ribbon — Clara Jean Lovick. White ribbons — Nadine Hardy, Grimesland, and Ollie Moore, Bethel.

Junior 4-H rating:

Blue ribbons: Lillie Robbins, Winterville; Amy Mills, Haddocks; Violene Hooks, Grifton; Kay Francis Wilson, Grimesland.

Red ribbons — Peggy Perkins, Stokes; Alma Keys, Ayden; Carolina Hardy, Farmville.

White ribbons — Martha Teel, Sally Branch; Geraldine Atkinson, Fountain; Emma Lee Vines, Nichols; Ella Christine Grimes, Simpson.

Barbara Harris of the Farmville Senior 4-H Club, high scoring participant in the 1958 dairy food demonstration, will compete in pre-district elimination contests at Snow Hill May 23.

Singing With Symphony

Helen Boatwright

Helen Boatwright, soprano, who will sing here tonight as soloist with the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, is shown above as she appeared at a concert in Williamsburg, Va., presented before the Queen Mother of England.

The concert, sponsored by the Entertainment Committee at East Carolina College as one of the attractions on its 1957-1958 Entertainment Series, will take place at 8 p.m. in the Wright auditorium.

Playing under the direction of Dr. Benjamin Swain, the orchestra will present a series of numbers chosen with the idea of pleasing an audience of varied tastes in music. Included will be Resnick's Overture to Donna Di-

Herbert C. Coward Funeral Wednesday

Herbert C. Coward, 65, farmer died at 9:30 Monday night of a heart attack while being taken to a Washington hospital from his home near Vanceboro. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. at Chapman's Methodist Church Cemetery.

Mr. Coward was born and reared in the Greenville community but had lived in the Vanceboro community since about 1912. He was a member of Chapman's Methodist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mamie Coward; three sons, Romie L. Coward, Ebert T. Coward of Vanceboro, and Lyman C. Coward of the home; two daughters, Mrs. Earl C. Jones of Vanceboro and Mrs. A. Cleve Slaughter of New Bern. Victor of Scotland Neck and Charlie, Levy, Benny, and Walter Coward of Greenville, and a sister, Mrs. Martha C. Porter of Chocowinity.

Giving Program For Fountain School

FOUNTAIN — A womanless wedding will be presented at Fountain School tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Proceeds from the program will go into the school's Teacher Fund, which is used to hire an extra teacher for the school each year. Admission charges will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students.

Mrs. Ethel Bell is director of the program, which will include 21 Fountain men in the cast. She is being assisted by Mrs. W. W. Jefferson and Mrs. Bobby Peele.

The program will be open to parents, students and members of the general public.

N.C. Peach Crop Outlook Is Good

RALEIGH (U) — Prospects for an above average peach crop in North Carolina were listed today by the State Department of Agriculture as ranging from good to excellent.

The department's Crop Reporting Service said Tar Heel peach growers have indicated the crop on April 1 was 89 per cent of normal or 23 per cent above the 1947-58 average.

The condition of the crop throughout the south on April 1 was the best for that date since 1945 and the second highest in 24 years, the department said.

"Judging from reports," the department continued, "present prospects are good to excellent for above average production, barring a freeze or other casualty."

Predictions for the Tar Heel peach crop, on the other hand, indicated that it would be 11 per cent below the 10-year 1947-56 average. The forecast was based on reports from growers on the condition of the crop as of April 1.

The department blamed severe freezes during January and February as the cause of heavy damage to the crop.

Frantic Try To Avoid Collision

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (U)—The pilot of a jet fighter which collided April 21 with a big airliner made a frantic effort to bank clear and almost made it.

A few yards more and the jet would have skimmed past the United Air Lines DC7, Civil Aeronautics Board investigators said. The wreckage of the jet planes showed that the jet eluded into the wingtip of the liner.

It sheared off about eight feet of the DC7's right wing—enough to send it spinning into the desert out of control. Part of the jet's wing was found inside the transport's wing.

Phil Goldstein, who heads the CAEB probe, said the collision was almost head on. He said the jet pilot apparently spotted the DC7 a split second before the collision and was veering away at a 30-degree angle when the planes' right wings touched.

Both pilots of the F106F fighter died, as did 47 passengers and crew aboard the liner.

Truck Wrecks In Rain; No Injuries Are Reported

No injuries have been reported in a single-vehicle accident early last night on the Prison Camp Road.

According to Pfc. W. E. Williams of the State Highway Patrol the wrecked pickup truck was being operated by Lester Taylor Negro of Greenville Rt. 5. Williams stated this morning that he has not talked to Taylor whom he said was not at the scene of the accident when he arrived.

The investigating officer said the accident occurred during a heavy thunderstorm and that the vehicle ran off the highway, skidded down a roadside ditch, struck an embankment and overturned. Damage was estimated at $800.

Williams stated his investigation of the mishap has not been completed.

At Industrial Arts Meeting

Dr. Kenneth L. Bing, director, and Robert W. Leith, faculty member of the industrial arts department at East Carolina College, will appear on the program to be offered this week in Boston, Mass., at a meeting of the American Industrial Arts Association and the American Council on Industrial Arts Teacher Education.

Donald R. Everhart of Winston-Salem and Earl Hohaman of Four Oaks, students of industrial arts at East Carolina, will attend the meeting and will take part in discussions among student representatives of schools throughout the country.

Fined In Netting Of Game Fish

In Magistrate Luther D. Moore's court Saturday, Willie Davis, Negro, of Grimesland, was found guilty of netting game fish and having same in his possession, and fined $10 and $9.50 court costs.

Fish and Game Protector J. Teel, who prosecuted the case, confiscated three perch, three bass and one jack, and the court ordered them turned over to a charity family.
