

Eastern Carolina Coasting, Says Humber

AT FARMVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BANQUET . . . Dr. Humber addresses group.

Farmville Group Warned Must Utilize Resources

FARMVILLE—Farmville business leaders were warned last night "the time has come" to end Eastern North Carolina's "complacency" toward full utilization of the area's resources. The warning was sounded by Robert Lee Humber of Greenville at the annual dinner of the Farmville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association. Humber spoke to an estimated 100 members of the groups and their guests. In a discussion of "North Carolina's Heritage," Humber said, "Man's capacity for achievement is commensurate with his faith, and Eastern North Carolina has been coasting. We have become complacent. We are running our children away to other places to live, something we must correct now. We must provide futures here for our children." Humber suggested that with full utilization of the county's soil, water, farmers and access to markets, the county could "shoot for an additional county income of a hundred million dollars." Such would come, however, only through cooperative efforts of everyone, he added. "Pitt County has grown to be the greatest tobacco land in the world, but we have allowed ourselves to limit our interests by producing only a cash crop," he said. "North Carolina has already lost its flue-cured tobacco title to Rhodesia and the problem that is growing is not a farmer's problem alone. It is a community problem.

Employment Up, Fewer Jobless; But Critics Still Demand Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spring increase in outdoor work has brought a surge in employment and a slight drop in joblessness—but no letup in demands for government anti-recession action. Releasing its figures 10 days earlier than usual, the Commerce Department said unemployment dropped 78,000 during April—the first decline since last October but far short of the normal 300,000 to 350,000 decline from March to April. The report was issued as the House prepared to debate a bill for extension of jobless benefits. Along with the April jobs total of 5,120,000, the department reported an increase of 596,000 in employment to a new total of 62,907,000 persons working. Secretary of Commerce Weeks said nearly all the gain in employment resulted from the usual spring pickup in agriculture and other outdoor activities. Paradoxically, although unemployment declined, the report said the percentage of jobless persons increased from 7 per cent in March to 7 1/2 per cent in April on a seasonally adjusted basis, which takes into account a number of statistical factors. AFL-CIO President George Meany, referring especially to the less than normal drop in unemployment, said the report proves the recession continues to worsen. Meany, calling anew for prompt anti-recession legislation, said: "Immediate action to improve and extend unemployment compensation and to cut taxes on low and middle income individuals is essential if America is to be put back to work." In a similar vein, the Democratic Advisory Council urged a tax cut of more than three billion dollars in lower income brackets, plus new billions in public spending and a further drop in interest rates. The 24-member council accused the Eisenhower administration of being the American people is now at stake." Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) likewise said the administration has not put sufficient government weight behind efforts to fight the recession. "The latest figures on unemployment confirm that the economic situation has not improved and may very well become more serious," Humphrey said. Sen. Mansfield of Montana, assistant Democratic leader, said in a separate interview that while the April jobs decline was somewhat encouraging, "I don't think it means we are out of the woods." "I think it's time the administration and Congress got together to see what can be done in the way of a tax cut," Mansfield said.

'I Will Be A Candidate' City Schools Is Approved By Board

A budget for 1958-59 operations of Greenville City Schools was approved last night by the Greenville City Board of Education. The budget will be presented to the Pitt County Board of Education Monday. It will be forwarded to the Board of County Commissioners by the county board. According to Superintendent J. H. Rose, secretary for the city board, requests were the same as for the current school year except for an increase of $15,000 for maintenance, repair, and insurance fund. The increase is necessary, he said, because of the increased number of buildings in the city system. Included in the budget for the coming year was a request for school libraries and more science equipment for Rose and Eppes high schools. In a report to the board, Superintendent Rose said an average of 281 white and Negro students are missing classes each day because of communicable diseases. He said since the beginning of the present year, an average of 167 white students have missed class each day and an average of 114 Negro students have been absent each day. Rose said influenza, colds and pneumonia were responsible for most of the absences, with measles, mumps and chicken pox also taking a high toll. The superintendent was directed to request the City Council and the City Manager to stabilize Elm Street in front of Rose High School so that cars can be parked without being in the mud. Rose was also ordered to investigate possibilities of paving the remainder of Berkeley Road on the West side of Elmhurst School and, also, possibilities of having a new road cut from Berkeley Road to the New Bern highway. Board members said the road work would help relieve present and future traffic conditions on Elm Street and 14th Street, both of which are adjacent to the high school and Elmhurst School properties.

Bulky Report On Greenville Growth Is Given To League

Seventy-eight pages of information concerning the growth of Greenville during the past eight years and the city's future needs were turned over to Institute of Government and League of Municipalities representatives yesterday. City Manager Leonard Bloxam passed the bulky report to John T. Morrissey, general counsel for the N. C. League of Municipalities and Jake Wicker, an assistant director of the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill. Greenville was selected as one of 22 North Carolina towns to supply information for the governor's Study Commission. The information contained in the study pertains to municipal operations for the last eight years. The Study Commission had asked the League of Municipalities and the Institute of Government to gather the required information on North Carolina municipalities. Included in the report is such information as population growth (from 16,724 in 1950 to an estimated 19,670 in 1958). There is also general information on revenues and expenditures, questions on levels of service, development costs, development policies and finally opinions of local government officials on needs of the city and how they should be financed. The information obtained from Greenville will be studied along with information received from the other 21 towns and cities participating in the survey. The various municipalities participating are of various sizes and have a variety of municipal government set-ups. FT. CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP)—The 101st Airborne Division finally moved in here this morning with an air drop of 771 paratroopers after weather conditions washed out five previous efforts. The group was much smaller than the 5,000 men scheduled for the drop over the past weekend. High winds, rain and cloudy weather forced four postponements and finally a cancellation after Monday's failure. The 771 men, members of the 501st Battle Group, breezed in on 27 transport planes from Severt Air Force Base, Tenn. Only one man was jarred up in the jump, made into a ground wind of approximately 10 miles-an-hour. Five paratroopers were killed and 155 injured last Wednesday when nearly 1,400 men poured out into gusty winds which carried them from the drop zones into trees, rocks and rough terrain.

Cleaner H-Bomb Is Govm't Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today the policy of his administration is to have cleaner nuclear bombs. Eisenhower told his news conference that 40 per cent of the efforts in forthcoming Pacific tests will be devoted toward eliminating as much as possible of the fallout from smaller nuclear weapons. The President made his observation about American policy in response to a request for comment on a recent statement by Sen. Anderson (D-NM) that the United States is making some of its bombs dirtier while it talks publicly of producing clean weapons. Eisenhower said that so far as he knows no military officer ever suggested making bombs dirtier. The information contained in the study pertains to municipal operations for the last eight years. The Study Commission had asked the League of Municipalities and the Institute of Government to gather the required information on North Carolina municipalities. Included in the report is such information as population growth (from 16,724 in 1950 to an estimated 19,670 in 1958). There is also general information on revenues and expenditures, questions on levels of service, development costs, development policies and finally opinions of local government officials on needs of the city and how they should be financed. Senate Virtually Assures Pay Raise For Servicemen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Unanimous Senate action practically guaranteed an early pay increase for the nation's fighting men today—possibly by June. The Senate, with little debate, passed a broad military pay incentive bill 87-0 yesterday and returned it to the House for returnable compromise talks. Rep. Kilday (D-Tex.), generally credited with drafting the bill previously passed by the House, indicated the Senate measure was not acceptable. He said he probably would seek a Senate-House conference committee to work out compromise. All indications, however, pointed to an early agreement. At the rate the bill is now moving, this could mean pay increases becoming effective possibly in June. Both House and Senate version carry out President Eisenhower's key recommendations for making military careers more attractive financially to skilled officers and enlisted personnel. Sen. Stennis (D-Miss.), floor manager for the complex measure in the upper house, said the Senate version would add some 576 million dollars the first year to the present armed services payroll of just above 10 billions. The House bill, because of generally higher proposed increases, would cost an estimated 683 million the first year. The Pentagon had suggested increases of only 512 millions. Almost every person in a military uniform with two years or more service would get a base pay increase of at least 6 per cent. Generals, admirals and other top officers, both noncommissioned and commissioned, would get even more—boosts ranging up to as high as 60 percent. Larger boosts also are provided for top enlisted personnel.

Await Reaction To Position Of Hammaraskjold

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Diplomats speculated today on the effect—if any—U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammaraskjold's Security Council intervention on behalf of the U.S. arctic inspection plan will have on the veto-wielding Soviets. Hammaraskjold, who normally goes in for private diplomacy, surprised everyone last night with an unprecedented endorsement before the council of the U.S. proposal opposed by the Soviets. Speaking briefly at the close of debate, the secretary general told the 11-nation Council he welcomed the U.S. initiative in proposing that the northern area be put under international inspection against surprise attack. He expressed hope the proposal might break the current disarmament stalemate. Soviet Delegate Arkady Sobolev listened tight-lipped. The U.S.S.R. was expected to give some indication of her reaction when the Council resumes debate Friday. Sobolev had denounced the U.S. resolution as an effort to divert public opinion from Soviet charges that peace is endangered by flights of U.S. nuclear bombers across the arctic toward Soviet soil. He introduced a counter resolution to pass the U.S. proposal on to a summit conference. In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko derided the U.S. proposal as a "matter of sheer publicity" and a move to get intelligence data on Soviet arctic territory. It raised the question whether he had incurred undying Soviet enmity, as his predecessor, Trygve Lie, did in June 1950 by accusing the Communists of aggression in Korea. The Reds as a result never missed a chance to block Lie and he finally resigned in November 1952.

Religion In Art Is Discussed By Jane Hall

"Religion in Art," with emphasis on painting, was the topic discussed by Miss Jane Hall of Raleigh at Tuesday's meeting of the Sans Souci Book Club.

Mrs. W. L. Hall, club hostess, introduced the guest speaker at the session held at the Woman's Club, which was decorated with colorful spring flowers for the event.

Miss Hall, a native of Greenville and a staff member of The News and Observer, returned recently from Europe where she spent a year as a Reid Foundation Fellow studying the history of art.

In her talk she pointed out that the use of art in churches was one of the major causes of the break between the Eastern and Western church—the Eastern leaders did not believe in the use of art in churches, while the Western branch, led by the Pope at Rome, thought that art in the church played an important role in binding the faithful ever closer to the faith and to the church that promulgated that faith.

Miss Hall spoke of the arrival of Byzantine art in Ravenna and the ancient mosaics there and told of its influence upon later Italian art. She discussed its characteristics and then touched upon the changes wrought in art generally with the rise of the Renaissance. In the course of her discussion, she described various famous religious paintings which she saw while she was in Europe.

Mrs. W. M. Scales, Sans Souci president, presided at the brief business session which followed the program.

Unusual Dishes Demonstrated

Like Spanish chicken? Or maybe you would go for barbecued meat rolls or perhaps a vegetable medley.

The 500 or more ladies attending the Greenville Cooking School at the National Guard Armory yesterday and today learned to prepare these unusual dishes. There were other delicacies demonstrated to warm the hearts of discriminating husbands.

Miss Hilda Apple, Home Economist employed by Virginia Electric and Power Company, and Miss Hazel Whichard, East Carolina College student, showed the ladies how to make Apple Crisp Delight, Lamb Patties, Oven Broccoli, Bing Cherry Ring and Fiesta Cheese Sauce.

This afternoon's session conducted by Mrs. Sylvia Matthews, also a VEPCO Home Economist, was the final one for the white "cookers." Tomorrow from 2 until 4 p.m., a session for Negroes will also be held at the local armory.

The Cooking School, the first cooperative enterprise of its kind to be conducted here in a number of years, is being sponsored by the Greenville Utilities Commission in cooperation with Smith Electric Company, Appliance Mart, Inc., Bilbro Wholesale Company, Carolina Dairies, Inc., Harris Super Market, Morton's Bakery, Reliable Plumbing Company, Belk-Tyler's, Royal Crown Bottling Company, V. A. Merritt & Sons, Greenville TV and Appliance Center, Cold Storage, Inc., Friendly Furniture Company, J. B. Kitzrell and Company, People's Bakery, Pitt Hardware Company, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company and the Coca-Cola Bottling Company.

At yesterday morning's session, Mrs. Bill Sermons of 403 Student Street won the electric range. Mrs. J. E. Nobles of 216 West Second Street won the dishwasher.

Other prize winners were: Mrs. George Tyndall, 207 Summit Street, oven meal; Mrs. T. W. Gaylor of 201 South Eastern Street, skillet meal; Mrs. William Horne Jr. of 104 North Park Drive, broiler meal; Mrs. Beverly Joyner of 1804 East Third Street, refrigerator salad.

Nobles of 216 West Second Street and Ruth Brock of 1507 Broad Street won 10-pound bags of flour. Food baskets were won by Mrs. L. B. Austin of 213 Pine Street, Mrs. L. W.

Edwards of 1011 Andrews Street, Maude E. Tucker of 802 Forbes Street and Mrs. Irene Harris, address unknown.

A ham was won by Mrs. L. A. Shaw of 1702 Beaumont Road. Mrs. D. J. Whichard III of 1725 Forest Hills and Mrs. J. L. Winstead of 302 Greene Street each won a half-case of canned peaches.

At this afternoon's two-hour session an electric range and an automatic clothes washer were the two major appliances given away. A number of miscellaneous prizes were also donated. Winners will be announced in tomorrow's edition of the Daily Reflector.

An electric refrigerator and a 40-gallon electric water heater are to be given away at tomorrow's session in addition to numerous other prizes.

The cooking school's two sessions have thus far been termed as "extremely successful" by its sponsors. City Manager Leonard P. Bloxam states there is a possibility of making the school an annual event.

Plans Discussed For Annual Picnic

An annual church picnic was a topic discussed at the April meeting of the Lydia Woolen Class of Jarvis Memorial Church Monday night which was held in the church parlor.

Other topics of discussion were the requests for red and white roses to be used for Mother's Day; the class responsible for June devotions, and the class voted to give a religious painting for the church parlor.

The business session was presided over by Mrs. J. L. Simmons, president. Mrs. W. G. Garner gave the devotional after which the minutes of the last meeting were read.

A musical program presented by Elbert Bennett and Mrs. Florence Scott entertained those attending after the business session.

Punch with cookies were served by Mrs. J. D. Aman, Mrs. T. E. Sutton, Mrs. J. L. Evans, Mrs. W. O. Garner, and Mrs. R. W. Stark during the social period.

Mrs. Wells Has Lector Clubbers

The April 15 meeting of the Lector Book Club met with Mrs. V. E. Wells Jr. at her home in Brookgreen.

Spring flowers were used in living room, dining room and den. Upon arrival members and guest, Mrs. V. E. Wells Sr., were served a sweet course with coffee.

Mrs. Wells, program chairman for the afternoon, introduced Louis Gaylord Jr., who gave a talk on "Wills."

Gaylord told the definition of a will and the different types of wills. He pointed out the many advantages of having a will and the complications that could exist when there is no will left.

Failures Underscore Work Ahead

A staggering amount of work and research remains to be done before missiles become reliable instruments for getting a job done on short notice in either peace or war.

Though the United States has three satellites now in orbit around the earth; and though this nation has made giant strides in its space programs in the past six months, we have not yet perfected our vehicles.

The scientist are the first to admit this fact. The public, anxious to be optimistic, perhaps has overlooked it.

Two Objectives Now In Sight

By LYNN NISBET

JOURNALISM — Two long time major objectives of the school of Journalism of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill are about to be attained. For at least ten years the school has aimed for full accreditation by the American Council for Journalism Education, and for reasonably adequate physical facilities for the classes. The first listed objective was to some extent dependent upon the second. Accreditation hinged on many items, including facilities.

The curriculum and faculty for several years has met requirements. Physical facilities had not, until the last General Assembly provided funds for adapting Howell Hall, the old pharmacy building for use of the journalism school.

Assurance that adequate classroom laboratory and library needs are assured, plus the excellent faculty built under the direction of Dean Neil Luxon, has brought the Carolina school of journalism to the favorable attention of the accreditation authorities.

In bringing the school up to required standards the North Carolina newspapers through the Journalism Foundation have had a large part. The Foundation has provided a number of scholarships and has to some extent supplemented State appropriations and student fees to obtain instructional personnel and high quality equipment.

Accreditation will not enhance or improve its service to students and newspapers which will employ them, but it will give to graduates majoring in journalism more prestige and will assure the University of North Carolina School of Journalism national-wide recognition.

INTEREST — The chain reaction set off by the death of Senator Kerr Scott has done more to arouse interest in Democratic precinct, county and state conventions than anything since the candidacy of Al Smith for President 30 years ago. Actually the death of Scott and the appointment by Governor Hodges of Everett Jordan to take his place did not have as many components of political explosives as did the death of Senator J.M. Broughton and the appointment by Governor Scott of Frank Graham to take his place eight years ago.

Timing of the events made the difference. Senator Broughton died March 6, 1949, three months after he had taken the office and just two months after Kerr Scott became Governor. Six weeks earlier Joe Blythe, State senator and treasurer of the Democratic national committee, had died suddenly on January 25.

Kerr Scott had just upset the so-called conservative regime in North Carolina for the first time in nearly half a century by defeating Charles M. Johnson for Governor. Melville Broughton had accomplished something of the same kind of thing in defeating William Umstead—who had been appointed by Governor Cherry — for the Senate. Broughton and Scott were in the driver's seat of the Democratic party organization. Joe Blythe was the generally accepted leader of the opposition to Broughton-Scott policies, so far as party control was concerned. Blythe's death removed the dominant spirit in that combine. Since then neither faction has had accepted leadership.

Governor Scott appointed Broughton in the Senate. An idealistic college professor and university president, Graham was naive as a baby in the realm of practical politics.

TIMING — All these events happened in the early spring of 1949. One primary was almost a year behind, the next more than a year ahead. A Federal Congress and a State General Assembly were in session with programs sponsored by President Harry Truman and Governor Kerr Scott, both of whom had won election against long odds offered by the professional politicians and gamblers.

With respect to State affairs there was a year before another election would come up (conceding that the Democratic primary nomination is equivalent to election) and at national level there was a three year period for preparation. In both instances, the State in 1950 and the Nation in 1952, the professionals again took over.

The main difference between now and the 1949-50 era is that a primary campaign and a general election are immediately in the offing. There is no cooling-off or preparation period as there was when Morrison was appointed to the Senate in late 1930, or William Umstead in late 1946, or Frank Graham in early 1949, or Alton Lennon in mid-1953. The current situation is more comparable to that of 1954 when Sam Ervin was appointed to succeed Senator Clyde Hoyle in mid-summer, after the primary but in time to get his nomination confirmed by the executive committee.

The Senate vacancy occurring this year about half way between close of filing time and date of the primary and before the state convention, put everybody on the spot—the Governor who had to make an interim appointment, the man who accepted that appointment and members of the executive committee who must name a candidate for the November election.

Jesus said to his contemporaries, "I have faith in God." If we can be sure that the foundation is secure and the heart of God is loving, then — and only then — can we have peace.

One after another of launching tests have failed. Between failures of missiles to perform as hoped, there have been a few that have measured up to expectations, and perhaps even surpassed the hopes of the men who built them.

The fact remains, however, that when a missile is launched, not even the scientists can say for sure whether it will be a success or failure. The long range high altitude missiles have not yet been perfected to the point they are reliable. The crash program in space vehicle development will still require many months and perhaps years before a missile can be relied upon to do its job with the same assurance we now rely upon airplanes or other vehicles and weapons.

Successes this nation has experienced with its space vehicles assures us of the capabilities of perfecting the necessary vehicles and instruments to do the job. The failures point up the fact that considerable time will be needed to perfect that which we have already developed.

Growth Of Greenville And ECC Inseparable

The growth of East Carolina College and that of Greenville are inseparable.

Fifty years ago when a group of local citizens held informal ground-breaking ceremonies for the institution of higher learning, they had little idea the following half century would see the college grow into one of the largest in North Carolina.

They had little idea the Teachers Training School would play a dominating role in shaping the course of the community.

The scene from a half century ago will be re-enacted here this week-end when the pageant "East Carolina's Spade" will be presented at the college. Written by Emma L. Hooper of the college department of English, the pageant will trace the growth and progress of East Carolina through its first 50 years.

Most local citizens are vaguely familiar with the growth of East Carolina College, and its transition from the East Carolina Teachers Training School in 1908 to its present form. There are far too few who know and appreciate the whole story of East Carolina College's growth from its modest beginning to the present.

"East Carolina's Spade" will afford local citizens a pleasant and valuable lesson in local history as it pertains to the college. Those who witness the pageant will have a greater appreciation of the college as it is today; and a greater appreciation of the vision of local leaders a half century ago who assured the location of East Carolina in Greenville.

For Them, A Small Taste Of The Future

The more young people learn about their local government operations, the greater respect and appreciation they will have for democracy in action.

Greenville and Pitt County will have a youthful set of officials Thursday when members of the Senior Class of J. H. Rose High School take over key offices of the city and county governments.

In just one day these young citizens will not learn a great deal about the intricate operations of local government. Yet, they will benefit by their experience. And so will the community.

Though these school seniors are looked upon today as children, it will be only a few years—ten or a dozen—before they or their classmates will begin to assume positions of leadership in the adult life of Pitt County. Upon the shoulders of today's high school seniors the responsibility of local government will come to rest all too soon.

Hew well prepared they are to assume these responsibilities will depend largely upon the community. The elders of a community almost always look upon the younger generation with misgivings. Yet, without exception the younger generation matures, accepts its responsibility, brings into life of the community new ideas, new energy, and leads or pushes the community to greater heights of achievement.

When these youngsters take office for one day Thursday they will get a small taste of what lies before them. And so will the adult citizens of Greenville and Pitt County.

A Quick Review Of Senate Bill

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — This is an ABC on the bill passed by the Senate Monday night to protect 84 million people now covered by pension and welfare plans.

The method of protection: to compel those running the plans to file with the secretary of labor detailed reports on their administration and finances.

This bill cannot become law, of course, unless the House also passes it before Congress adjourns this summer. There is no certainty the House will act.

Three years of investigations by Senate committees into the operations of pension and welfare plans preceded the action by the full Senate.

One of the bill's sponsors—Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass)—said the investigations disclosed "flagrant abuses, including embezzlement, outlandish and improper insurance commissions and service fees, and collusion between management, union and insurance representatives."

Kennedy added it is an exceptional case in which employees — for whom the plans are set up — are given any accounting of the financial operations or the reserves.

And he said: "Unless the employee is given information as to the operation and status of his plan he has no means of knowing whether the benefits he is relying on will be forthcoming."

The various plans now in existence involve about 35 billion dollars. They are run by employers alone, by employers and unions, or by unions or employee associations. Ninety per cent are administered by employers.

In some cases the employers pay all the costs; in some employers and employees both contribute. The bill covers all types of private — as distinguished from government or state — welfare or pensions plans although those covering fewer than 100 persons are exempted at the start.

It makes no difference how they're sponsored, financed, underwritten or administered if they provide one or more of the following benefits for employees or their dependents:

Medical, surgical or hospital care, or benefits in the event of sickness, disability, death, unemployment or retirement.

This is what the bill — if it becomes law — calls for: Those charged with responsibility for management of a welfare or pension plan must file an annual report on it with the Labor Department and must provide this information:

Detailed accounting for the money put into a plan, the salaries and fees charged to the plan, to whom paid, in what amount, and for what purpose.

And this report filed with the government must be based on an audit by an independent, licensed accountant. The various documents required to be filed with the government under this bill will be open to public inspection.

Those taking part in a plan — or other interested parties — can get a summary of the information filed with the secretary of labor by asking him for it.

In administering this act the secretary would be assisted by a 13-man advisory council made up of representatives of labor, management, the public, and other interested parties.

There are criminal penalties for willful false statements, the destruction of records, embezzlement, kickbacks and other self-dealing.

More Faulty Feet

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — You may think there's something wrong with your neighbor's head but the chances are much greater there's something wrong with his feet.

"Nine out of 10 American adults have foot trouble, but most don't do anything about it," said Dr. Joseph Lelyveld of Rockland, Mass.

"And American children have more foot defects now than a generation ago. Their feet aren't in as good condition as the feet of European children."

"Today 85 per cent of our girls and 65 per cent of our boys have foot defects by the time they leave high school."

To Lelyveld, a podiatrist renowned as the founder of the National Foot Health Council and inventor of the phrase athlete's foot, this is eminently disturbing.

"All but about 15 per cent of adult foot defects are unnecessary," he observed. "They could have been prevented in childhood."

Lelyveld, who helped design shoes for the Dionne quintuplets and has advised European royalty on pedal problems, has a mind full of odd historical footnotes.

"Napoleon had bad feet," he said. "They had such terrible feet some psychiatrists think they may have been a factor behind some of his atrocities."

"Abraham Lincoln had trouble with his feet — they were flat and distorted. He had his own foot doctor and custom-made shoes. Woodrow Wilson wore custom-made shoes, too."

Contrary to popular opinion, policemen and postmen don't suffer from foot troubles.

"They know how important their feet are to them, so they take better care of them," said Lelyveld. "Occupationally speaking, barbers and housewives have the worst feet."

"Housewives have a bad habit of running about the house barefoot, or doing their chores in runover old dress shoes. It isn't wearing party shoes to a party that ruin's a wife's feet; it's wearing discarded or out of style party shoes while doing her housework. They don't give her feet proper support."

"For housework she should wear a stout laced oxford with a heel not above 1 1/2 inches high. School children should wear fewer sneakers and moccasin type footwear. The Indians did wear moccasins — but they didn't walk on concrete."

"Loafers are all right for a man — if he's really sitting down loafing. But they aren't suitable if he's doing heavy work around the house."

Lelyveld believes most of man's foot trouble stems from improper care of the feet, lack of exercise, and man's erect posture. "He has never really got used to standing upright," he said. "The older we get the smaller our blood vessels get and the poorer our circulation."

"Wear feet can give you everything from headaches to twitching eyeballs — and the symptoms of arthritis, when you really do not have it. The tired businessman would feel better if he walked three to five miles a day."

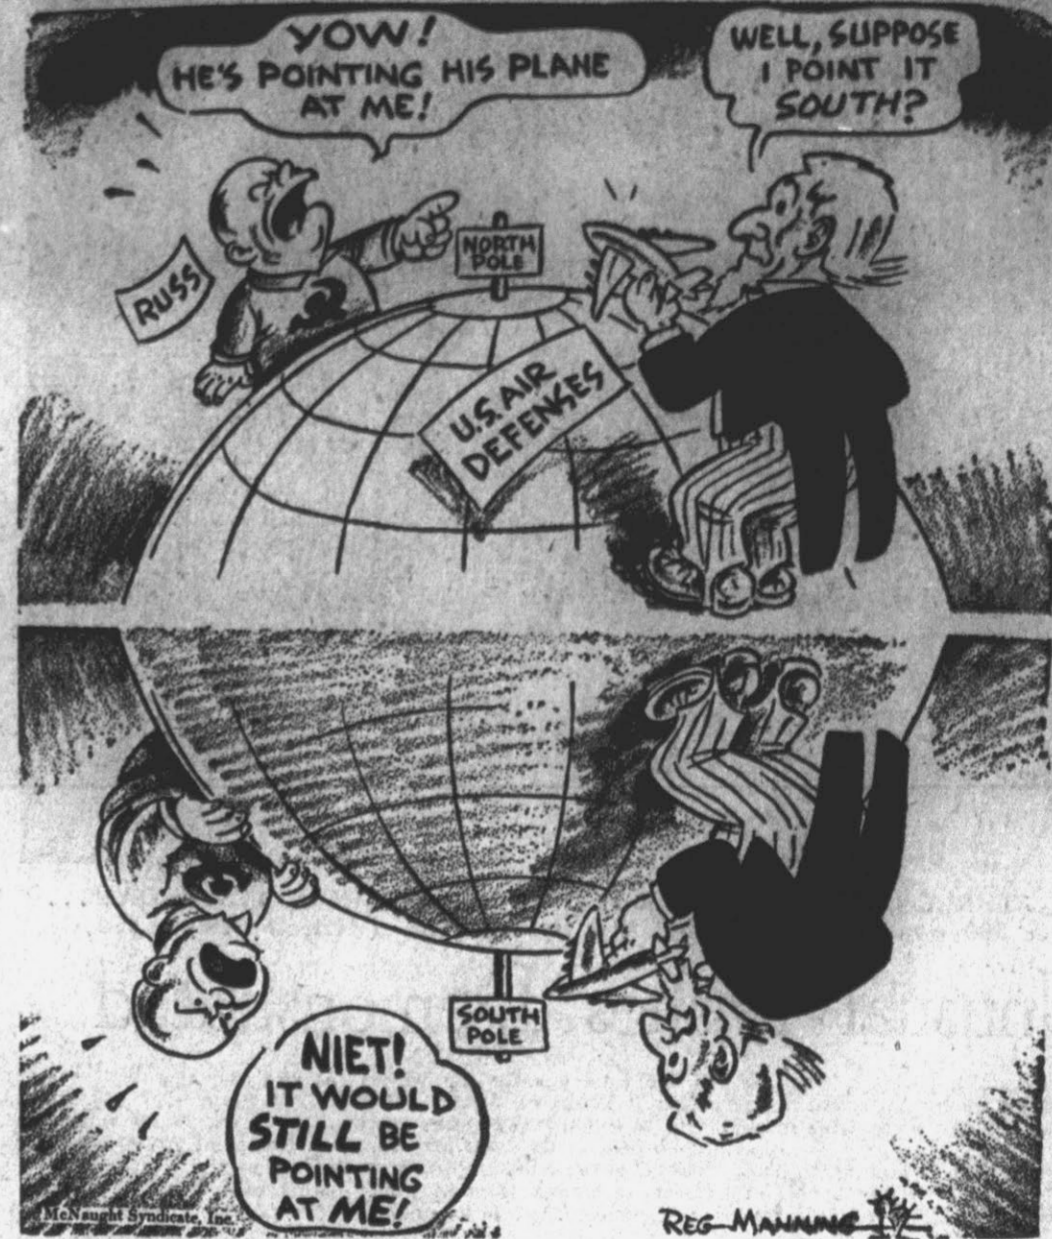

"But he should wear sturdy leather shoes, and he should wear socks at least half an inch longer than his longest toe — no stretch socks, which cramp his feet. I wear mercerized socks with white soles myself because they absorb perspiration better."

What if your feet get tired, doc?

"No matter what your boss thinks," Lelyveld said firmly, "the best way to rest your feet is to put them on a desk for 4 to 10 minutes."

Something I've been saying for years.

By EVERETTE PARKER

New Jazz Era Shaping Up

Running through some of the mail the other day I came across something that might interest the minority who dislike, with a passion I might add, Elvis Presley and some of these other hip-and-stomach singers.

The article went like this: "Nineteen-fifty-eight may well mark the turning point in the rock 'n' roll sky. Why?"

"Jazz!" "Americans are swinging into a second Jazz Era which could make the Roaring Twenties look like the period of the gavotte. The record industry estimates that the number of jazz discs to be out in 1958 is higher than in any five-year period prior to 1945. Jazz concerts are being played to SRO audiences, and not in dance halls, as formerly, but in New York's Carnegie Hall, Manhattan's Town Hall, Boston's Symphony Hall, the Hollywood Bowl, and dozens of other such hallowed auditoriums. Jazz festivals have sprung up across the country, attracting hundreds of thousands of such diverse jazz centers as Newport, R. I., Daventry, Ia., and Lake Tahoe, Nev."

"Even the fashions are jazz conscious with their low waisted, high hemlines and flat bustlines... all harking back to the first Jazz Era."

(All I have to say if it will do away with those sack dresses I'm all for it.)

Speaking about that bulging waistline of mine I got another shock this past weekend, one that will stay with me for many months to come.

I put on a pair of my old summer cords — worn at the beach and in less than 15 minutes a strategic button was lost in the sand, leaving me with none at all. To add another fly to the ointment, my bermuda shorts radiated that bikini look. Another dark cloud on the horizon!

Came in from lunch today to find the following note on my typewriter:

"Now is the time, for a certain cotton-pickin' column-writer to either pick some cotton or write a column"

Had the opportunity of meeting newly appointed Senator Ben Everett Jordan over in Robertsonville last Wednesday afternoon.

After talking to him for 15 minutes I found we have at least one thing in common. We have the same middle name!

There is one man in town that I've never seen on Evans Street without a cigarette in his mouth. The other day I did see him without one hanging but walking along beside him was his wife with on, you know where.

I was lucky enough to witness a phenomenon last week. I used snake.

Several Scouts at the Campore here managed to capture a black snake and had tied the serpent by rope to a stake.

Other Editors Saying --- The New Israel

(The Wilson Times)

Israel is celebrating its independence, 10 years as a free country. This nation is making an imprint on the world because of its determination to become a prosperous nation of free men.

You read of the political situation, of the continual opposition from the Arabs (especially such nations as Egypt) of the fact that the Arab nations would like to refuse to admit that Israel exists as a nation. Then the new squeeze on the little country from the recently formed Arab republics.

But the people of Israel go on working and planning. They have known bondage for thousands of years and now that they are testing the fruits of freedom they are celebrating in a most substantial and impressive way.

To give you an idea of the character of the people and what they are accomplishing we quote from a column in the Morganton News Herald written by the publisher of the newspaper, Miss Beatrice Cobb, who spent Easter in Jerusalem and several days touring Israel.

"Israel is, as I wrote in effect last week, what might be termed the miracle place of the whole world at the present time. The multiple program of development, and progress going ahead at full steam has as its driving force the almost fanatical enthusiasm and cooperation of the rank and file from what I could see and find out, as well as the leaders. There's apparently one hundred per cent belief and a crusading attitude, at least among the Jewish population and Jewish visitors, in the justice and righteousness of the Jewish cause—the repossession and complete domination of their homeland.

"I was filled with admiration at what has been accomplished and of the signs that the half has never been told of what promises to be accomplished in Israel — IFF. At the same time recalling the fierce bitterness in the seemingly conquered Arab side of the fence, there was mixed with my admiration, a feeling of awe, a definite opinion that many powder kegs are still buried and ready to explode in the so-called Holy Land. Such intense passions as exist on both sides are not easily allayed."

Under the heading of "General Observations in Israel," Miss Cobb has this to say: "Thousands upon thousands of pink tile roofs, on large houses, small houses — up and down the country. Against blue skies they form a part of artistic landscapes. (The tile business must be the leading industry in Israel.)

"Simple plank-up huts where new Jewish immigrants live for six months probationary period, in Israel before better homes are provided, after which probably they move to own homes, bought on installment plan.

"The hundreds of rose bushes planted, evidently in preparation of the tenth anniversary celebration this year along with other flowers and shrubs used in profusion to decorate every city and new village in the new country."

"Large pipes for water and gas, being laid or strung along routes where they are to be laid.

"Every Israeli is a gracious, smiling propagandist for the New State of Israel."

Opinions In Brief

The public must demand more seriousness and more learning, on the part of men in public life, if better and more intelligent debate and leadership are wanted. If the public thinks that world problems can be solved, foreign policy can be developed, peace can be gained and American security can be strengthened by platitudes, then the public will get platitudes, cany of them. But platitudes will neither illuminate nor solve world problems."—The Record, Cuero, Texas.

Quote...

"Right now it would appear that the 1960 senatorial race will be a wide open one, for perhaps a half dozen candidates, Hodges among them and running only with the pack—not ahead of it."—Hertford County Herald.

Shoplifters And Check-Passers

By ELMER ROESSNER

Because of the recession, retailers are more concerned than ever about check-passers and shoplifters. Many have increased protective measures.

It's not because the unemployed write phony checks and swipe food. In fact, there is very little larceny because of desperation. Merchants are being more vigilant today simply because they can't afford losses.

Considerable attention was paid to bad checks at the recent meeting of the Credit Management Division of the National Retail Merchants Association at Philadelphia. Jack Logan, of Portland Ore., told his conferees that the increase in check frauds was twice the increase in use of checks.

Last year, he said, 65 per cent of the check passers were amateurs, the rest professionals. Men outnumber women seven to one, and 3 per cent are juveniles, he said.

SUPERMARKETS PRIME VICTIMS

Supermarkets constitute the largest losers, he said. According to 1956 figures, they cashed 30 per cent of the bad paper. Department stores were next, with 21 per cent, taverns and gas stations tied for third with 13 per cent each.

Next came independent grocers, with 9 per cent, and liquor stores with 5 per cent. The remaining 9 per cent of the worthless paper was cashed largely by drugstores, hotels, restaurants, hardware stores and banks. Yes, banks.

Fewest checks are cashed in April, May and June, he said, while more than a third of the total are cashed in October, November and December.

Total losses were estimated at $55,000,000 in 1956 and they may have been greater last year.

SHOPLIFTING LOSSES

Pilferage is the number one problem of food stores. Food Topics reported after a nationwide survey. Losses range from 0.5 to 1 per cent of net sales, almost equal to net profit, if found. In other words, if food stores could eliminate shoplifting, they could double their profits.

A Canadian chain was forced to raise prices to offset losses through thefts; a Southern chain is considering dropping hosiery because thefts are so heavy.

The survey indicated that the average pilferer is not a thief and can afford to pay for what he steals. He pilfers just to get something for nothing, the trade magazine reported.

More operators agree that economic classes are not a criterion, it said, and quoted one operator: "I have seen some in mink coats steal as well as poorly clad people."

Various devices are used to detect or to frighten off thieves. Mirrors hung at various angles help employees detect pilfering, or scare pilferers. Some stores use closed circuit television systems, some assigned to single stores and others on roving assignments. They keep watch on employees as well as customers. But small merchants often find the costs of private eyes too expensive and suffer their losses.

BIGGEST CORN COUNTRY GETS MORE FROM RHODESIA

Most Americans think of their country as the biggest corn-producing nation in the world. But we are importing corn from Northern Rhodesia. While total corn supplies are large, we are short of white corn. One shipment of 375,000 bushels has already arrived at a Gulf port. It will be made into grit.

Sees Poverty In Churches Abroad

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Alfred Carleton told the Congregational Christian Conference of Missouri last night that the Christian church in Asia and Africa has "been operating at a level of poverty not worthy of us."

Dr. Carleton recently returned from a tour of Asia and Africa. The Congregational Christian churches plan to raise 7 1/2 million dollars in the next two years for higher education overseas and in this country.

New Vice President For Space Work Suggested

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—A one-time missile czar under Hitler suggested today that President Eisenhower take on another vice president to direct space work.

Dr. Walter R. Dornberger, now a Bell Aircraft Corp. assistant, proposed this idea before the House Space Committee. His plan soared beyond Eisenhower's more modest proposal to set up a civilian space agency.

"I am told that the President might use more vice presidents to help him run the country," Dornberger said, "and a vice president of space could be a good office to start expanding the second level of our national administration."

Space work between here and the moon should be handled by the military because of its prime military importance within the next 20 years, he added. He said civilian scientists could have responsibility for "prestige" projects farther out.

In separate prepared testimony, Frederick C. Durant III of the past president of the American Rocket Society, called for including efforts of foreign scientists in the U.S. space program. He said this would speed space progress and promote American leadership internationally.

Dornberger, a former German General, said it is harder to avoid duplication and money difficulties in this country than in Nazi Germany where, as he pictured it, he could hire and fire both military and civilian personnel and write his own ticket for funds.

In the United States, a small space agency at the presidential level should have full decision authority, he said.

Gain Honors At Scout Camporee

Greenville Scouts excelled in the East Carolina Council's Camporee last weekend, according to W. H. Davenport, chairman of the Council's Negro Division.

Troop 191 received four Blue Ribbons and a Troop pennant. The local troop was the only one in the Pitt District with four patrols winning the highest awards issued at the event.

Three Green Ribbons and a White Ribbon were won by Troop 282. In addition, the Greenville troop also received a Troop Pennant.

Other Greenville Troops winning awards were Troop 131, one Blue Ribbon and a Troop Ribbon; Troop 412, two Red Ribbons; and Troop 388, two Green Ribbons.

Between 1,000 and 1,100 Scouts and Scouters attended the three-day event. The Camporee was described as "the most successful in the Council's history."

Antibiotics Harmful To About 17 Million People

By JOHN A. BARBOUR
AP Science Reporter

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—About 17 million Americans may suffer side effects—sometimes dangerous—from life-saving penicillin and other antibiotics, a drug expert said today.

Perhaps 10 per cent of the nation's population could become sensitive to these drugs, Dr. Henry Welch of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration told a scientific meeting of the American College of Physicians.

In a few cases, he said, use of antibiotics has brought death to some oversensitive persons.

But generally this sensitive group suffers rashes, blood troubles like anemia, shock, swollen lips or eyes or respiratory tract difficulties.

Doctors, he said, should be aware of a patient's past response to antibiotics wherever possible. Patients who have had some reaction to the drugs should carry cards which specify such troubles. Antibiotics should not be used indiscriminately to treat minor infections, he said.

His report said 2 1/2 million pounds were produced in the United States in 1956 and 17 different antibiotics are clinically available.

Penicillin accounts for 960,000 pounds of the total antibiotic production or about 38 per cent.

More people have shown they were sensitive to penicillin than other antibiotics.

Dr. Welch cited a three-year nationwide report involving thousands of antibiotic shots or doses. Some persons—a few more than 1,000—showed severe reactions. Penicillin accounted for 901 of these cases and 83 deaths.

Ovation For State Symphony's Concert

By GEORGE E. PERRY

Wright Auditorium was packed last night—not with people, unfortunately, but with an ovation, which the North Carolina Symphony decidedly deserved.

Since their last performance here on April 9, 1954, this group has made considerable musical advancement, due, first of all, to the addition of some first-rate symphony players, and secondly to the greater degree of musical coherence the orchestra has obtained. Dr. Benjamin Swalin, its noteworthy conductor, now has a group capable of competent performance of the more strenuous examples of symphonic literature.

The "Firebird," which fits into this category, was the symphonic highlight of the evening. From its first burst of tone to its last, it was an exciting listening experience.

The soaring chords and the overwhelming exuberance of the music of the first movement, the luscious yet plaintive tone of the second, and the beautifully graduated crescendos of the last movement all contributed to making this performance a truly thrilling one.

Ranking a close second to the "Firebird" was Sibelius' "Swan of Tuonela," a distinct contrast from the former, yet handled with equal taste and musical insight. The shimmering strings were the perfect background for the sensuous tone of the English horn solo, and the resolution to the G major tonality just before the closing section was unusual by being one of the largest, yet quietest, productions of tone I have ever heard. Then in the concluding measures in A minor, the strings did a masterful job of providing the musical undercurrent for the disappearance of the Swan.

The Chausson Symphony in B flat, while being of major proportions in the composition-wise, did not walk off with the musical prizes of the evening. There was some beautiful unison string work in it, some deft handling of dynamics, and some subtle interpretive effects. But the work itself is not one of the greater symphonies, and while the orchestra gave it an authoritative reading (despite a couple uncertain passages), it failed to come across with the impressiveness of the rest of the concert.

The "Donna Diana" overture, which opened the concert, was the

$9,000 Settles Damage Action

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A traffic damage suit against actress Dana Wynter and two other motorists has been settled out of court for $9,000.

Mrs. Dorothy Siple, 38, yesterday agreed to the settlement under which she is to receive $7,000 from Miss Wynter, $1,500 from Guy Crocetti, father of singer Dean Martin, and $500 from Miss Carola Eoberg.

Mrs. Siple said she suffered a brain concussion in the four-car collision in 1955. She had asked $50,000 damages.

Pappy O'Daniel May Try Again

DALLAS (AP)—W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel, colorful campaigner who stages rallies with fire trucks and hillbilly bands, said last night he wants to try for the governorship again.

O'Daniel was elected to the governorship in the late '30s and later served as a U.S. senator. He said he would campaign on three issues, government financing, unemployment and segregation.

Wants An Elk Or Bison Sent Him

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The McDowell County man spoke right up in his letter to the State Conservation Department: "Please send me an elk. If you don't have any more elks to give away, send me a bison. I will stand the crating and shipping cost."

PILL USERS VANCOUVER (AP)—A warning against misuse of tranquilizer pills was sounded by Dr. J. B. W. Joseph Stell III of Greenville, senior student of art at East Carolina College, has just received notification that he has been selected as recipient of a scholarship for graduate work granted by New York University.

The scholarship is a renewable $750 award for the 1958-1959 school year. Announcement that Mr. Stell had been chosen as recipient was made by Dr. Florence N. Beaman, Dean of Students at New York University.

Stell, a graduate of Greenville High School, is majoring in art at East Carolina College. This spring the Department of Art sponsored an exhibition of his paintings in the college art gallery.

Currently two of his works are being shown at the Joyner Library on the campus in an exhibition by Pitt County artists. He was chosen this spring by faculty members of the department of art to receive the merit award given annually to the outstanding senior in the department.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stell, Jr., 2721 S. Dickinson Avenue, Greenville.

Science Teacher Receives Award

Dr. R. M. Helms, faculty member of the department of science at East Carolina College, has just been notified that he is a recipient of the New York University Founders Day Award, an honor conferred by the university each year upon students with distinguished records in scholarship.

For "having achieved a place in the highest bracket of scholastic preference," Dr. Helms was given a scroll indicating that he had been chosen to receive the Founders Day Award. The honor is conferred upon candidates for degrees and recipients of degrees who have given "consistent evidence of outstanding scholarship."

Dr. Helms recently completed work on the doctor's degree at New York University.

Presbyterians OK Liberal Stand On Racial Problems

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The ruling body of the Southern Presbyterian Church, although endorsing the church's liberal approach to racial problems, has laid a gentle restraining hand on a controversial agency in that field.

Before adjourning the church's 98th General Assembly here yesterday, commissioners (delegates) urged the beleaguered Council of Christian Relations to sample all opinions within the church to avoid dissent in dealing with controversial questions in the future.

The mild rebuke came in the form of an amendment to a majority committee report on several racial matters, adopted by voice vote after a minority report had been defeated 288-124.

Dr. John A. MacLean of Melbourne, Fla., introduced the amendment as a move toward smoothing a church split which shows signs of widening.

The racial topics touched of the longest, strongest debate of the six-day Assembly.

The center of the controversy was a move by five presbyteries in Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina to abolish the Council of Christian Relations for its activities in political, economic and social — principally racial — fields.

The Assembly also ruled that "it is not proper" to use church buildings for public classrooms in event a state closes its public schools rather than integrate classes.

Another overture from the Presbytery of Potomac, which has churches in Washington and Baltimore, suggested "a provision for moral and material support by the General Assembly of ministers involved in difficulties in the matter of racial reconciliation."

A similar program by the Northern or Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., has drawn considerable criticism by Southern Presbyterians for contributing funds to parties involved in racial disputes in the South.

CHICAGO (AP)—The nation's traffic death toll for the first quarter of this year was 7,730, a decrease of 6 per cent compared to 8,250 in the first three months in 1957.

The National Safety Council said the 2,630 traffic deaths in March was nine per cent lower than in March last year and the lowest for March since 1955.

Twenty-nine states reported a decrease in deaths in the first three months this year compared to the first quarter of 1957. 17 had increases and one reported no change.

Traffic Toll For U.S. Is Down

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is reported about ready to launch a cautious campaign for friendlier relations with Egypt's President Nasser. It would start with unfreezing 30 million dollars in blocked funds.

These gradual State Department moves follow the settlement announced yesterday of Nasser's bitter dispute with France and Britain over seizure of the Suez Canal.

Secretary of State Dulles is reported to have approved the moves with the understanding that Nasser will have to match them with friendlier steps of his own in order to promote a step-by-step thawing of Egyptian-American relations.

As a beginning the State Department wants Nasser to tone down the anti-American bias of Egyptian press and radio and to ease restrictions of American diplomats in Cairo.

For his part, the United States would turn over Egyptian assets seized 20 months ago after Nasser grabbed the Suez waterway.

This key move would be followed up by such steps as authorizing a CARE relief program in Egypt, including Egyptian students in a Fulbright scholarship exchange program and granting of export licenses for goods Egyptians want to buy in this country.

Anticipating the Suez settlement, the State Department quietly allowed the Egyptians to begin buying commercial aircraft and spare parts 10 days ago.

No substantial government loans or grants are projected thus far. Such assistance presumably is in months away, depending on the sincerity of Nasser's professed intention to keep his United Arab

Took A Dare, Is Severely Burned

TAUNTON, Mass. (AP)—A 15-year-old boy who climbed a high tension tower on a dare is in critical condition today in a Boston hospital with severe leg burns and shock.

Edward Masterson contacted a 13,000 volt wire as he clambered up the 40-foot steel structure near his home. Doctors said it will be necessary to amputate his legs.

The lad was rescued after his plight was seen by an off-duty policeman who notified the utility company to shut off the power.

As he was brought down still conscious, the boy moaned "Why did I do it?"

ECC Battles High Point Today, Duke Tonight, Here

Bucs Meet H. P. At ECC, Duke At Local Stadium

Large Crowd Is Expected To Attend Tonight

Lovers of baseball for miles around this area will have a chance tonight to see East Carolina College play host to the defending Atlantic Coast Conference champions, the Duke Blue Devils, at Guy Smith Stadium.

An over-flow crowd is expected to flock to the stadium to witness the first meeting of these two clubs in the second night tilt of the season in Greenville. Tickets will be available at the gate.

Three weeks ago, the Pirates played host to another ACC club, the University of North Carolina, and came away with a 12-3 defeat.

Since that time, Carolina has pushed aside Clemson and Duke to take over possession of the ACC's top position. Earlier in the year, the ECC club tackled the University of South Carolina at Charleston and dumped the Gamecocks, 5-4.

Thus, tonight's tilt will break ECC's 1-1 record against Atlantic Coast Conference teams for this season. Coach Ace Parker's Blue Devils possess a 6-2 ACC record going into tonight's non-conference tilt. They were to tackle Wake Forest yesterday at Winston-Salem but rain postponed the game.

East Carolina will carry a 5-1 North State Conference record into tonight's contest and probably will not do so until another matter is cleared up this afternoon: Less than three hours before the Duke ball game gets underway, East Carolina will probably still be in the thick of another game. High Point meets the Pirates here at College Field this afternoon at 2:00 and the game will undoubtedly keep the Buccaneers busy most of the afternoon.

Mallory is expected to use either Leonard Lilley or Ben Baker against High Point, and save George Williams for Duke. It is possible, however, that he will make other arrangements. Bruce Kelley, who was the last ECC to pitch to see action (topping High Point, there, at 13-2 on Saturday) may get the nod again.

Weather reports this morning indicate that today's cloudy weather will pass and that the temperatures will rise, making it a perfect afternoon and evening for baseball.

Expected to play today for the Pirates will be Jimmy Martin at first base; Al Vaughn at second; Jerry Stewart at shortstop; Buckey Kemp and Glenn Bass at third; Tommy Nance in leftfield; Bill Almon and Tommy Land in centerfield; Jerry Phillips and Johnny Jones in rightfield; all three Buc catchers may see duty also: Burl Berry, Marion Talton, and Doug Watts.

Silky Sullivan And Tim Tam Quoted As Derby Race Favorites

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The steadily improving Tim Tam and the sensational stretch runner Silky Sullivan were quoted as co-favorites at 5-2 today as the second richest Kentucky Derby in history loomed with 19 finely tuned 3-year-olds listed as probable starters.

As of now, the largest field since Count Turf turned back rivals in 1951 is in prospect. Based on a field of 19, the 84th running of America's most glamorous turf classic will gross $167,500, a figure exceeded only by the $167,550 of 1956, when Needles took home the major share of the purse.

The track condition will have a large say on how many parade to the post for the 4:30 p.m. start at Churchill Downs.

After days of rain, the weatherman today forecast somewhat cooler temperatures and a drying wind. With no more rain the track for the 1¼ mile race could be fast by Saturday.

A crowd of 100,000 is expected. Three horses commanded major attention today as the vanguard of the festive-minded crowd moved into this Ohio River city.

They are Tim Tam, a rovaly bred son of Tom Fool from the fabulous Calumet Farm of Mrs. Gene Markey; Silky Sullivan, the flaming California chestnut who has caught the fancy of the public as few horses have since Man O'War; and Jewel's Reward, champion money winning 2-year-old of 1957 who heads the three-horse entry from Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham's Maine Chance Farm. Silky Sullivan is owned by Tom Ross and Phil Klippstein, newcomers to America's premier horse race.

Tim Tam, winner of only $275 last year but victorious in the $100,000 Flamingo and Florida Derby this year, won the trial stakes yesterday under 23-year-old Ismael Valenzuela.

The Texas-born Mexican was called on to ride the Calumet ace after Bill Hartack broke a leg last Saturday.

Ebony Pearl, considered third best of Maine Chance's three-horse entry, was second by a neck and C. V. Whitney's Flamingo was third, another 1¼ lengths back as Tim Tam negotiated the muddy trip in 1:39 3/5.

Rain Washes Out Two-Thirds Of ACC Contests

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain washed out two-thirds of the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball slate yesterday. In the only game played, the University of North Carolina blanked North Carolina State 7-0.

Georgia Tech's game at Clemson yesterday afternoon was postponed with no new date announced and Duke's match at Wake Forest was also postponed with no new date set.

Today's schedule puts lowly Maryland, 1-6 in conference play and 3-9 overall, at fifth-place Virginia (3-4, 3-6), while third-running Duke (6-2, 7) goes to non-conference Eastern Carolina. The Citadel comes to University of South Carolina (3-11, 6-13) for another non-conference game.

The conference - leading (6-1, 14-5) Tar Heels' smashing victory over North Carolina State was their eighth straight win over the Wolfpack and practically pushed State out of the ACC picture.

State, running fourth in conference rankings with an uninspired 5-5 and 9-5 overall, has powerful sluggers but not much pitching strength.

State's Dick Hunter is high batter in the ACC with a .408 average in 49 times at bat, while State's Casten ranks fourth with a .370 average.

By contrast, the Tar Heel batters are no great shakes but their pitchers are tops. Righthander Wayne Young from Mooresville gave up only seven scattered hits in winning his fourth game against two losses.

The 20-year-old sophomore struck out five and walked four. He was in trouble in the first and again in the sixth, but pitched himself free with no damage.

Tar Heel batters, leading 3-9, whammed starter Owen Wright off the mound in the seventh with a two-run spree. Wright is now 2-5 for the year.

Shantz Pitches Yankees To 5-1 Win Over Tigers

Purkey Is Only One Purkin' Now

By ED WILKS The Associated Press Cincinnati hoped to perk up its pitching when it got Bob Purkey from Pittsburgh last winter, but at the moment Purkey's the only one perkin' on the Redleg staff.

The Redleg corps has accomplished only two complete games and one shutout in 10 decisions so far and Purkey has authored them all while gaining three of Cincinnati's five victories.

The 28-year-old right-hander, who won more than three in one major league season for the first time last year when he was 11-14 for the last-place Pirates, stayed unbeaten last night as Gus Bell's three-run eighth-inning homer beat St. Louis 5-2.

Purkey gave up 10 hits, but walked none and struck out three while reducing his earned run average to 1.04 for 26 innings.

Pittsburgh's Bob Friend also gained a 3-0 record last night, throwing a four-hitter that beat Los Angeles 7-1 as the Pirates won their fourth in a row.

The champion Milwaukee Braves took a full share of the National League lead for the first time this season as Warren Spahn also 3-0, rode a nine-hitter for an 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

San Francisco slipped to second, half a game behind, with a 7-4 defeat by Philadelphia.

Bell's first 1958 home run broke up a tie game against winless Wilme (Vinegar Bend) Mizell.

Johnny Temple swapped solo homers with Cardinal rookie Gene Green. Stan Musial was 3-for-4 for the Cards and now leads the league at .533.

Gino Cimoli's third homer was the only Dodger run off Friend, who holds both Pirate complete games this season. Carl Erskine lost his first.

Spahn helped himself with three hits, two of 'em doubles, and drove in three runs for the Braves while Ed Mathews made his No. 6 homer good for two runs.

Menna's Homer Wins 3-2 Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Leftfielder Frank Menna is a mighty popular fellow in Wilson. His tremendous home run last night in the bottom of the eighth inning broke a 2-2 tie and gave Wilson a 3-2 win over Winston-Salem in the only Carolina League game.

Rain forced postponement of the other three league games. Winston-Salem loaded the bases with one out in the ninth off winner Ernest Breedlove, but Wilson manager Bob Hooper came on in relief and halted the rally.

The win pulled the Tobs within a half game of league-leading Danville.

Three doubleheaders are on tap tonight: Burlington at Durham, Danville at High Point-Thomasville and Greensboro at Raleigh. Winston-Salem plays at Wilson in a single game.

TUESDAY'S STARS

PITCHING Bob Friend, Pirates — Gave up only four hits, struck out five and walked but two for third victory in 7-1 decision over Dodgers.

HITTING Bill Skowron, Yankees — Drove in first three runs with a pair of homers for a 3-for-3 day in 5-1 victory over Tigers.

Phillies Still Trouble For SF

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies still spell big trouble for the Giants.

The Phils frequently made life miserable for the Giants in their old home at the Polo Grounds.

Yesterday, in the first Giant-Phil game since the team moved to San Francisco, the visitors bounced the Giants out of first place in the National League 7-4.

As disappointing as the score was the attendance, 6,801, lowest since the Giants opened here. In nine previous contests the average was 18,522.

Philadelphia left-hander Curt Simmons found the winds off the Pacific "both a blessing and a handicap" as he notched his first victory of the season against three setbacks.

"The wind meant I had to have better control to put the ball where I wanted it, but pitching into it gave the ball more stuff," he explained.

Wind also helped San Francisco's Hank Sauer, who hit his seventh homer. That tied him with Lee Walls of the Chicago Cubs for the homer lead. Walls hit two against Milwaukee.

The long clout by the 39-year-old veteran came too late, although it ended Simmons' sojourn in the hill in the eighth inning. Right-handed reliever Dick Farrell shut out the Giants the rest of the way.

Minor Sports Are Going Well At EC

Minor sports at East Carolina College continue to roll along in high gear and are getting tuned up this week for the North State finals in various sports just a few days off.

Coach Bill McDonald can almost call his first season as a tennis tutor a big success. This football assistant has been blessed with a veteran squad and heads into the home stretch boasting a 10-2 mark with the North State net crown in good sight. The Buc netters are 6-0 in conference matches.

Maurice Everette, the defending North State singles champion, has paced his club this season and has topped the state mark for most wins in four years of college competition. The Robersonville native has 58 wins in college play.

Track continued on the upgrade during the past week as the Pirate cindermen defeated North Carolina State College at Raleigh by a team score of 69-61. For Coach Miller's club, it was their high-light of this year.

John West, John Savage, and Bill Hollowell have been standout veteran performers, also. The latter two are still undefeated this season. Newcomer Lawrence Brown and lettermen like Mike Katsias have aided the Buc's cause.

The Pirate netters hit the road this week for a meet in Guilford today and then two matches at Western Carolina this weekend. The Buc wind up their season against Cherry Point Saturday, May 10.

Cover Design Of ECC Catalog Is By Freshman

Ed Lancaster of Vanceboro, freshman at East Carolina College, designed the cover for the recently issued 1958-1959 edition of the "East Carolina College Bulletin," official catalog of work offered at the school.

The cover design grew out of a project in an art class in advertising design taught by Dr. Wellington B. Gray of the faculty. From work submitted by students, Lancaster's design was selected as most appropriate and attractive for the bulletin.

The new cover bears the title of the book, a seal of the college, the date of the edition, and the address "Greenville, N. C." in attractive arrangement. The design is printed in purple and gold, the college colors.

Lancaster is a graduate of the Farm Life High School in Vanceboro. Before coming to college, he studied art at home in his spare time and did sign painting in Vanceboro and New Bern. At East Carolina, he is taking work in art with the idea of becoming a commercial artist after his graduation.

Charge American And Chinese Adventurers Flying For Rebels

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Prime Minister Djanda today charged that American and Chinese Nationalist "adventurers" are flying rebel planes bombing points in east Indonesia.

Directly implicating American nationals in Indonesia's civil war for the first time, Djanda called on the United States for a "clear effort" to prevent its citizens from aiding the rebellion.

The Premier warned that, if indignation over the alleged foreign involvement is permitted to grow, "it will have a disastrous effect" on relations between the United States and Indonesia.

When the rebels launched their revolt in February, they had no war planes. They now are believed in Jakarta to possess four B26 bombers and two Mustang fighters. Rebel planes based in the North Celebes capital of Menado have in the past two weeks ranged 800 miles from base, hitting targets in Makassar, Balikpapan, Morotai, Ambon and Halmahera.

On Monday the 12,278-ton British tanker San Flaviano was set afire and badly damaged in Balikpapan Harbor. The rebels also claimed the capture of the World War II airfield on Morotai after an aircraft-supported amphibious invasion.

The sudden burst of rebel air activity in east Indonesia is posing President Sukarno's government with the necessity of stepping up its campaign at that side of the archipelago while still trying to mop up the rebels in Central Sumatra 1,800 miles to the west.

Djanda demanded that the United States prevent its nationals from selling arms, planes, ships or any other vital material to the rebels and from helping them in any other way. He also warned that aid to the rebels from Formosa might result in retaliation against pro-Nationalist Chinese living in Indonesia.

Another Rescuer Of Kathy Fiscus Dies In Tragedy

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Just nine years ago one of the world's most heart-breaking rescue attempts failed to save the life of Kathy Fiscus, 3.

When the child's body at last was being hoisted from the 94-foot well into which she had fallen, rescue worker Bill Yancey spoke the final words of the grueling, 49-hour underground fight: "Easy, men; keep it coming up gently."

Moments later Yancey emerged from the hole, the body of little Kathy in his arms.

Yancey died yesterday, much in the same manner — underground, and barely a mile from the Fiscus tragedy. Three others associated with Kathy's accident had died violently.

Yancey, 47-year-old contractor, went into an eight-foot sewer ditch with the same disregard for danger that he displayed when he tolled two days below ground trying to save Kathy. A man had been sent for timbers to shore the ditch, but Yancey didn't wait.

"He said he'd be all right and jumped down," related coworker Ted Slade. "I started to move some equipment... and when I looked around the earth had caved in and Bill was buried."

Others dug desperately to uncover Yancey's head. Firemen administered oxygen. But Yancey was dead, his chest crushed.

Farming Conditions In State Said Improving

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Department of Agriculture reported today that farming conditions improved during the week ended April 26, but farmers were still two to three weeks behind schedule.

The department, in a weekly crop report, blamed light to excessive rainfall in all parts of the state as hampering land preparation and planting of spring crops.

The report said only minor progress has been made in the planting of cotton and corn, and tobacco plants still are too small for transplanting. Only a start has been made toward planting peanuts and soybeans.

Because most of the plants in beds are too small for removal, the department said, transplanting of tobacco is far behind schedule.

The department noted an improvement in small grains brought about by favorable temperatures and ample rainfall. It said pastures also have been improving.

and grazing is much more plentiful than it has been at any time this spring.

Prospects for a good crop of peaches were announced as considerable better. The report said the peaches have survived the blooming stage and have set a good crop.

Tobacco was worse in earlier areas of production where total supplies of plants were reported about 20 per cent short of needs.

Only about 15 per cent of the state's cotton crop has been planted. Corn planting has begun throughout the state with total progress slow.

Greatest progress in both corn and cotton has been made in the northeastern part of the state where about half of each of the crops have been planted.

A few peanuts have been planted in the Central Piedmont where the department listed the production as minor.

The violet is New Jersey's state flower.

Chose To Stay In Burning Plane With A Friend

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—A young Air Force copilot, his B47 jet bomber afire and the top canopy blown off, braved zero weather and wind that seared his eyeballs to land the plane here Monday night rather than abandon a fellow officer.

First Lt. James E. Obenauf, 24, Graylake, Ill., made a perfect landing while flying from the blind copilot's seat, something the Strategic Air Command said had been considered impossible because he is behind a solid bulkhead and cannot see forward.

The B47 was in a training flight from Amarillo to Denver. At 30,000 feet, near Dalhart, Tex., one of its six jet engines caught fire.

First Lt. John P. Cobb, 25, Elko, Nev., navigator, bailed out through the escape hatch.

Maj. James M. Graves, 38, Fort Worth, the pilot, blasted off the top canopy. His ejection seat did not work and he bailed out through the nose escape hatch.

Obenauf's ejection seat also failed to work. On his way to the nose he discovered Maj. James E. Maxwell, 32, Portsmouth, Va., navigation instructor, unconscious and his oxygen mask off.

Unable to get Maxwell through the hatch, Obenauf returned to his copilot's position. The controls there were the only ones working.

There he was flying blind with the wind whipping through the cabin at 400 miles an hour. Ground control stations gave him his position and permission to fly 300 miles to Dyess Air Force Base here, his home base. He made a perfect landing.

He and Maxwell were hospitalized for shock, frost bite and burning eyes. Their condition was reported good.

Graves and Cobb landed on ranches near Dalhart. They suffered bruises, but only Cobb was hospitalized.

Priest Dies On Steps Of Altar

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The pastor of the Catholic church where many film stars worship died on the altar while celebrating Mass.

"Most Sacred Heart of Jesus, have mercy on us," intoned the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. Conannon, 63, at the conclusion of the service yesterday. Then he collapsed on the carpeted stairs of the altar at Good Shepherd Church.

Another priest, the Rev. Felix Doherty, administered the last rites of the church as the Ireland-born monsignor lay on the altar.

Farm population of Sweden has decreased by about 500,000 since the middle of the 1930's.

Ford Company No Longer Immediate Strike Target

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. apparently no longer the immediate target, today prepared to resume negotiations on a new labor contract with the United Auto Workers.

Before General Motors Corp. served a showdown notice on the union yesterday, speculation had centered on Ford as the union's likely target in the auto industry in 1958 negotiations. Ford was the target in 1955.

GM took the initiative in giving the union 30-day notice that the current three-year contract will end at midnight May 29. GM virtually invited the union to make the world's biggest manufacturing firm its target rather than Ford or Chrysler, whose contracts expire three days later.

GM took an unprecedented step. In previous negotiations it has waited for the union to serve termination notice.

UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock, in charge of the union's GM Department, told newsmen the union "will not be maneuvered into a strike, particularly at a time hand-picked by the company."

Neither the company nor the union would speculate on what happens at midnight May 29. In the absence of a contract, the union could call a strike or the company could close its plants in a legal lockout. Neither is likely to happen. Operations could continue by mutual agreement on a day-to-day basis.

General Motors appeared to be taking over leadership in the industry in holding the wage line at levels the companies consider noninflationary. It was the first offer renewal for two years of present contracts which contain built-in wage increases of at least 6 cents per hour annually based on productivity. The contracts also provide quarterly cost-of-living adjustments. GM also was the first to reject the union's proposal Monday that present contracts be extended for three months. The extension would have sharpened the union's bargaining power by putting off a showdown until the industry goes into production on 1959 models.

Chrysler joined GM and Ford in making the rejection unambiguous. Like GM and Ford, Chryler proposed a two-year extension but demanded a provision for arbitration to be included in the Chrysler contract for settlement of disputes over production rates. Chrysler President L. L. Colbert told the union that a three-month delay "would prolong the present economic uncertainties all along the line and hinder recovery." He also said it would "secure time for the union to build up its bargaining strength."

Even Better?

GREENSBORO (AP) — The president of the drug firm that first produced penicillin says he has a new wonder drug that's even better than penicillin.

John E. McKeen, president of Pflizer & Co., said yesterday the new drug named TAO will be ready for distribution soon. McKeen said TAO gives speedier results than penicillin, is more easily absorbed by the blood and doesn't cause reactions in persons allergic to penicillin.

McKeen brought the discoverer of penicillin, Sir Walter Fleming, to this country from England during World War II. Pflizer, a Brooklyn, N.Y., pharmaceutical house, was the first firm to produce penicillin in the United States and is still the largest producer of the drug. McKeen, here visiting the Morton-Withers Chemical Co. plant which is a division of Pflizer, said TAO may replace penicillin in treatment of acute cystitis (infection of the bladder), chronic intestinal "bugs," tropical ulcers and many other ailments.

SLOW BUT SURE RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — John Lybarger didn't feel he was being unfair when he charged a customer $2 on a suit that only cost $29 to start with.

After all, the customer waited 28 years to pay the bill. First St., non-support, six months, suspended on payment of $15 a week for support beginning May 3, 1958.

148 Candidates Are Unopposed

RALEIGH (AP) — A total of 148 candidates for the Legislature have nominations in the May 31 primary elections without opposition.

These include 28 Democrats and 20 Republicans running for the state Senate and 48 Democrats and 32 Republicans seeking House seats.

The nomination is tantamount to election for most of the Democrats. There were 16 Republicans in the 1957 Legislature—three in the Senate and 13 in the House.

Some of the Democratic notables are faced with opposition in the May primary. Two of these are Reps. Carl Venters of Onslow and Addison Hewlett of New Hanover, who are seeking the House speakership. Hewlett is opposed by John V. Thompson of Wilmington, while Venters' opponent is Robert E. Look of Jacksonville.

Three former senators are engaged in a battle for the two Senate seats in the First Senatorial District. They are J. William Copeland of Hertford, A. Pilston Godwin Jr. of Gates and J. Emmett Winslow of Perquimans.

MORMONS ABROAD SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The first Mormon Temple to be opened in Britain will be dedicated by officials of the Latter-day Saints Church next September. The 1½ million dollar temple is located near London.

Predicts Some Degree Of Recovery In 1958

WASHINGTON (AP) — A banker-economist said today the recession should hit bottom soon with some degree of recovery this year.

The decline is moderating, said Alan H. Temple, executive vice president of the First National City Bank of New York, but statements that it has already touched bottom "must still be based on fact rather than on demonstrated fact."

Temple's estimates, prepared for the annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, were less optimistic than some from administration spokesmen.

Secretary of Commerce Weeks 10 days ago said he believed the bottom already has been reached and the recovery will come by late summer. President Eisenhower last week said the recession has been "flattening out for some time." Temple said he could agree that "the foundation for bottoming out is developing, and it cannot be long delayed." He went on: "Safeguards against a downward spiral of the intensity of the great depression are numerous and strong."

"Therefore our greatest concern in this business decline is not its depth, which should not be gravely below present levels, but the time required to resume general growth and to reattain the prosperity of which this country is capable."

Another speaker, Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa.), a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, said that huge federal spending programs, as an anti-recession cure, would be folly, but he declared in favor of tax reduction.

CHAPTER 32

Laura Madden went down the long hall to her father's study and closed the door and leaned against it.

She had the weird feeling that the dark tone suited the room, for darkness belonged to the devil, and she was convinced that her father had sold himself to the devil as surely as Cole Weston was the devil.

"I'm sorry about what I'm going to have to say, Laura," Madden said, striding back and forth and chewing nervously on a cold cigar. "I've been afraid it would come to this, but I didn't want to hurt you. If I had my way, I would give you anything in the world I could, but sometimes circumstances force us to take steps we don't want to take."

He paused and, removing the cigar from his mouth, looked at it, and then replaced it, moving in a jerky fashion as if Cole Weston were tugging at the strings that controlled him.

"I talked to Price about this yesterday and he defied me, so I have no choice. He left town early this morning. I presume he's hunting for that Jarvis boy. If he finds him and brings him to town, then we've got more trouble than we could dream of."

He tongued his cigar to the other side of his mouth. "Pete Nance is in town waiting for Price. I understand this is personal, due to some difficulty they had at the Rocking C, and was postponed because Cole didn't want any fighting out there. Curly Blue is in town, and if Price shows up with the Jarvis boy Blue's supposed to notify Cole, who will come in with some of his men. Apparently they boy shot and killed Red Sanders. It's all tied in with this rustling that's been going on for months and which Price refused to stop." have reason to think that the Jarvis Laura watched him, a sick foreboding taking hold of her. She knew what was coming. She wouldn't have to choose freely between her father and Price Regan. Her father was forcing a single choice on her.

"Now this is the part I hate to say," Madden went on. "We had a meeting of the town council today and took the town marshal's job away from Price and gave it to Max Harker. As soon as possible, I'm going to contact Ralph Carver and have him recall Price, if he's still alive, which is doubtful if he fights Pete Nance. I told Price he wasn't going to marry you, so don't see him. And you'll have to get rid of the Potter girl."

Laura stared at her father with utmost loathing. He seemed a stranger to her, a man she had never really known.

"What have you done that Weston knows about?" she asked. "He must have some hold on you."

"Nothing," he said. "Don't talk to me that way. I'm doing what I have to do."

"No, you're not," she said sharply. "He killed Jean's mother, and father in cold blood. And Walt Cronin. Maybe Bruce Jarvis. Maybe even Price by now. What's happened to you that you can stand here and take his side and defend him in everything he's done?"

"I'm not going to argue with you," he said in cold fury. "Just do what I tell you."

"I'm eighteen and I won't do anything you tell me except leave this house," she said in a detached voice. "If you think I'll give Price up for a minute, you're wrong."

She whirled and opened the door and ran out, slamming it behind her. She went on into the kitchen, calling, "Jean, help me pack. We're leaving."

"Laura, I said not to—"

"Not on your account," Laura said. "Price's."

She went upstairs to her room, Jean following reluctantly. Laura laid two suitcases on the bed and began throwing clothes into them, careless in her hurry. Suddenly she said, "I'll go live with you, Jean. Maybe Bruce will come back. If he doesn't, we'll run the farm ourselves. At least, we'll have a roof over our heads."

Laura fumbled in a bureau drawer for her handbag. She didn't have much money. A little better than thirty dollars. Then she remembered the jewel box and crammed everything that was in it into her purse. Nodding at Jean, she left the room and went down the stairs.

Madden was waiting in the hall. He was red in the face and embarrassed, but he made himself say, "You've got one choice. Don't go out to the Yellow Cat."

Laura knew what he meant. "One murder leads to another, doesn't it? I guess you'd know better than anyone else except Weston."

She left the house without waiting for any more argument from him. Once outside in the harsh afternoon sunlight, Jean said, "We can't go out there, Laura. We'd be killed just the way Ma was. Let's wait till Mr. Regan gets back."

"I guess we'd better," Laura said. "We'll get a room in the hotel."

A sense of caution prompted Laura to take the alley and go into the hotel from the back. She had Jean climb the stairs that led up that alley door, then she went down the hall to the lobby and signed the register, ignoring the clerk's questioning look. She took the key and hurried up the stairs, motioning for Jean, who was waiting in the hall, to follow her. Her room overlooked the street. As soon as she locked the door, she ran to the window.

Jean came to her and put her arm around her waist. "Laura," she said, "I'm sorry."

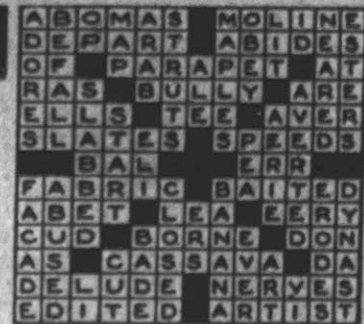

"I'm sorry too," Laura said bitterly. "If Price is killed today, I'm worse off than you are. I'll never go back home."

They stood there for a time, both girls utterly miserable, their eyes on the street. Curly Blue left Max Harker's store and cruised along the sun-warped plank walk with his bow-legged gait.

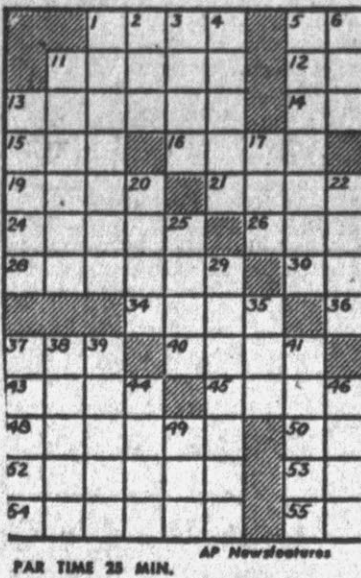

Presently Pete Nance appeared in the door of Mahoney's Bar, holding back the bat wings as he looked out upon the street. He seemed amused and a little superior to everyone and everything in this little town where his work had called him. He stepped back and let the swing doors flap shut.

"I wish we had a gun," Laura said. Then she knew she just couldn't stay here and let Price ride in to be killed. "I'm going out. No matter what happens, stay here. Keep the door locked."

She unlocked the door, waited until she heard the key turn, then hurried down the stairs and out of the lobby. Curly Blue was standing in front of the drugstore smoking, his appreciative eyes on her. She hurried across the dusty street and went into Harker's store. She saw he was wearing a star and carrying a gun under his waistband.

"I want to talk to you, Max," she said. "You've got to help Price. Pete Nance is in town."

"I know," Harker said. "So is Curly Blue, and he's to bring Weston and his crew into town when Price shows up. He can't fight them all, Max. You've got to help."

The cynical smile that was so typical of Harker appeared on his lips. "A man has an inalienable right to choose death if he so chooses. Price has. I warned him, but he wouldn't listen."

"You won't help him?"

He shrugged. "You haven't givme any reason why I should."

She whirled out of the store, not locking back at Harker. Now it occurred to her that Price might stop at her house, and she wanted him to know where she was.

She crossed the vacant weed-covered lot between the hotel and the drugstore. A moment later she could see her house. Two horses were in front. One was Price's roan. She cried out involuntarily and ran toward the house.

"Might as well get it over with, Price thought, looking at Curly Blue who stood in the shade of the awning." Continue the story here tomorrow.

NEW YORK (W) — Oil and steel shares paced a higher stock market today after two straight declines.

In the early afternoon gains of leading issues ranged from fractions to more than a point. Losses were mostly fractional.

Trading was fairly active, ahead of the turnover the past two days.

Some brokers said the earnings of General Motors and U.S. Steel, both issued late yesterday, were better than many in Wall Street expected.

Gulf Oil, Royal Dutch and Standard Oil (New Jersey) rose a point or so. Analysis said the international oils were bolstered by the agreement under which Egypt will pay for seizing the Suez Canal in 1956.

Lorillard, which has dropped out of the most active lists lately, was ahead more than a point in heavy dealings. Youngstown Sheet & Tube also was up over a point.

President Against Any Basic Changes In Plan

WASHINGTON (W) — President Eisenhower said today that any basic compromise on his defense reorganization plan would mean a retreat to a dangerous degree of military ineffectiveness.

Eisenhower told his news conference he is not rigid about the wording of any defense reorganization bill.

But he said it would be all wrong to change the basic principles of the plan he sent to Congress.

While the President was stating his views the proposal continued under fire in a hearing before the House Armed Services Committee. Influential members of that group oppose its concentration of authority in the office of the secretary of defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Just before the news conference opened Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, conceded in the hearing that the plan could reduce the civilian secretaries of the individual armed services to the status of flunkies.

But Taylor said that wouldn't happen unless authority carried in the bill was misused.

Taylor told the House Armed Services Committee the Army still is acting as "executive agent" for several of these commands. Eisenhower wants the command structure to bypass the individual service in such cases, so that authority would be exerted direct from the secretary of defense and Joint Chiefs of Staff to the troops in the field.

Eisenhower told Congress in a message April 3, "I have directed the secretary of defense to discontinue the use of military departments as executive agents for unified commands."

Taylor offered no explanation why he had not received the orders, but said they would make little difference in day-to-day operations by the Joint Staff. He said it was quite possible the change

Reassured Over Vanguard Data

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (W) — Navy scientists forged ahead with plans for a bigger and better Vanguard rocket program today after learning that the latest launching was washed out by wire trouble.

Officials announced in Washington that the 72-foot rocket failed about 300 miles up when a malfunction developed in the electronic system of the second stage.

As a result, the rocket's third stage did not ignite after what appeared to be a successful launching Monday night. Instead of pushing the fourth U.S. satellite into orbit, Vanguard plummeted about 1,500 miles out to sea.

From telemetry data obtained during the flight, the Naval Research Laboratory learned that the rocket and its 20-inch spherical satellite fizzled because the "brain" in the second stage vehicle never beeped a signal to spark the final stage solid fuel propellant.

Officials speculated that an open wire somewhere within the complex structure of the second stage was the culprit.

The news assured project heads that the basic Vanguard workings behaved according to plan and that the Navy can go ahead with its stepped-up test program.

Points To Industrial Advantages In State

CHICAGO (W) — Gov. Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina listed his state's industrial advantages today for industry considering new plants or relocation.

In an address at a luncheon and reception sponsored by North Carolina railroads, Hodges said that he called North Carolina's story of expansion, progress, growth and economic opportunity.

Already, Hodges said, North Carolina has developed into one of the leading manufacturing and business regions of the nation and much of that development is due to its combined 4,515 miles of railroad track.

"Our state has been a national leader in the construction and maintenance of one of the best systems of public roads in America," he said. "Our Highway and Public Works Commission has jurisdiction over 70,000 miles of highways, roads and municipal extensions, which I believe exceeds that of any other state."

In addition to its rail and highway system, North Carolina has deep water ports at Wilmington and Morehead City, Hodges said, offering "outstanding opportunities for firms requiring deep water locations."

Manufacturers and shippers located along North Carolina's coastal region can aim directly at the 128 million people in the Latin American market and enjoy some schedule advantages in serving parts of Europe and the Middle East, he said.

Underscoring his argument that the state does offer industrial opportunity, Hodges said purchasing
