Two Nat'l Merit Scholarships Go To Pitt Students

MARY ANN BRYANT PAUL H. COX National Merit Scholarship Winners

Two Pitt County students, Mary Ann Bryant of Greenville's Junius H. Rose High School and Paul Hart Cox of Farmville High School, have been named winners of National Merit Scholarships.

The four-year scholarships are among more than 1,000 sponsored by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation and 75 business and industrial corporations, foundations and other groups. They will become effective in September.

Miss Bryant, who had previously won a $2,600 four-year scholarship from Duke University, will attend Duke. Hart will attend Texas Christian University. Amounts of their awards were not announced, although all National Merit Scholarship grants vary from a minimum of $100 to a maximum of $2,000 for each of the four years a recipient is in college. The average grant is about $650 per year.

Miss Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert H. Bryant of 1908 East Sixth Street, plans to take a liberal arts course at Duke. During her high school career she has served as co-editor of the high school newspaper, vice-president of the Future Teachers of America chapter, president and vice-president of the National Forensic

Aiken Proposes Study Of 4-Day Week Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) said today Congress should study the feasibility of a four-day work week, at least in some industries, as a possible cure and preventive of recessions.

He said it should be considered along with the ideas of a guaranteed annual wage and profit sharing for workers in industries which have periodic layoffs. He mentioned the automobile industry as one.

Aiken emphasized in an interview that he is not suggesting a quick switch to any of these ideas, but added: "Eventually we've got to consider it, and I think we should consider it now."

Both the current business slump and prospects that many industries in the future indicate, he said, that there is a need for something more than hurry-up steps to get people back on payrolls after recessions have thrown them out of jobs.

Aiken said automation in some sections of industry has led or is leading to a situation in which a peacetime economy just can't keep the available work force employed on a 40-hour week the year around.

The Agriculture Department reported that farm prices increased 1.4 per cent from mid-March to mid-April to a level 9.84 per cent above that of a year ago. The new level was the highest since January 1953, when the Eisenhower administration took office.

A report from the Commerce Department, meanwhile, showed that sales and new orders at the manufacturers' level rose last month but not as much as is normal for this time of year. That meant that on a seasonally adjusted basis they declined a little.

But optimists noted that the rate of decline had decreased for the third straight month, and one Commerce Department technician said the figures on the surface would seem to indicate a leveling-out trend. He said, however, that April figures could give a differ-

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Marine Corps commandant said today that if Congress enacts President Eisenhower's defense reorganization plan as written, some future secretary of defense may give the Marine Corps "the bum's rush."

At the same time the House Armed Services Committee received written assurance from Secretary of Defense McElroy that his department has no intention of making "a sweeping realignment of the services or their administration." He said any merger of services would be expressly forbidden by the proposed law.

"The Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps retain their respective individualities," McElroy wrote.

Gen. Randolph M. Pate, Marine Corps commandant, appeared before the committee to deliver the most outspoken opposition yet voiced by any service witness to features of the administration proposal.

Pate emphasized he does not believe "those now in high office" have any intention of reducing the Marine Corps to impotence if the bill is enacted.

But, he said, "present good intentions are no insurance against future damage to our usefulness; only in the law can we find such insurance."

Pate added that he finds it difficult to see how sections of the present law which spell out the roles and missions of each service "can be regarded as unduly restrictive, other than by some future secretary of defense who intended sooner or later to alter the Marines' status and functions."

Pate thus tied his major criticism of the administration proposal to the section which has aroused perhaps the most hostility among members of the committee—Eisenhower's recommendation that these sections spelling out the job of each military service be repealed.

The President gave new evidence last night of his intention to fight for the principles of his plan, which he summed up in the phrase "safety with solvency."

Speaking at a dinner of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Eisenhower said "we must have a single theory of defending our country and that the strengthening of the military establishment must be done in the most economical way. He said, "I want to see America's defense machinery so strong as a single American mind and determination can make it."

The House Armed Services Committee is working on its own bill.

Kremlin Sheathes May Day 'Sword'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin practically sheathed its sword today at the big May Day parade it traditionally uses to show off its military might.

Only a modest display of military hardware rumbled across Red Square in front of Premier Nikita Khrushchev; his honored guest, President Nasser of the United Arab Republic; and the chief leaders of the Soviet government massed atop the Lenin-Statue in mausoleum.

The small sampling consisted of personnel carriers, paratroopers, self-propelled full-track anti-aircraft guns, conventional rocket launchers on trucks and tracked carriers, and field pieces.

There were none of the bigger guns or rockets of atomic capability unveiled in Red Square last November at the Bolshevik Revolution anniversary display. Instead, the emphasis was on the sports display and civilian marching, in which an estimated million Moscow residents took part.

The minister of defense, Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, struck a "peace through strength" theme in the speech of the day. He told his forces that the Communists' "solidarity is not directed against any country but is in the interest of all peoples."

Coupled with this was the current Soviet line that: 1. The United States is threatening world peace with its nuclear bomber patrols across the arctic; 2. The United States and Britain are continuing the armaments race, conducting atomic and hydrogen bomb tests, building rocket bases in Western Europe and strengthening the armed forces of West Germany — all at the risk of precipitating world war; 3. The West is doing everything in its power to prevent an East-West summit conference, which Malinovsky said offers the only possible chance of easing world tensions.

The Soviet Union, the marshal declared, "never has and never will start a war. But our love of peace is not a sign of weakness. The Soviet army, air force and navy are strong enough to repel any attempt by the imperialists to disrupt the peaceful labors of our people and the unity and solidarity of the Socialist (Communist) camp."

Vaccination Of Cattle Urged

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Guilford County Farm Agent Willard Kimrey today urged vaccination of cattle in order to ward off a spread of blackleg, a disease usually fatal.

He said the disease is on the increase in this area. Symptoms are a high fever and swellings under the animal's skin, especially on the hind quarter or shoulder. Most animals die 12 to 16 hours after symptoms appear. Kimrey said farmers may inoculate their own herds.

FIRST IN 41 YEARS

MONTEREY, Tenn. (AP) — This town of 2,043 marked its first traffic fatality in 41 years when Mrs. Willie Thomson, 53, was struck by a truck as she crossed U.S. 70-N.

Jerked Pupil By His Ankles

MT. HOLLY, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. J. L. Davenport had just called her second grade class to order in Mt. Holly school when eight-year-old Donnie Richards, clutching his throat, walked to her desk gasping.

The teacher led the 65-pound pupil, his face blanched, into a corridor, jerked him up by his ankles and shook him viciously. The lad coughed and out of his mouth dropped a big candy ball that had been lodged in his throat.

A teacher who had watched spellbound from across the hall commented, "Donnie was almost gone. If he hadn't got his breath soon I know he'd have been gone."

Soldier Killed Near Snow Hill

SNOW HILL, N.C. (AP) — Sgt. I. C. Harvey L. Williams, 29, of Ft. Bragg was killed last night when his car struck an embankment six miles east of here.

Williams, a member of the 50th Signal Battalion, is survived by his wife and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Williams, all of Rt. 1, Snow Hill.

Hatched By Bulb

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A baby kildree bird has hatched after a month under an electric light bulb. Its lustrous chirps changed to coos when a hand was placed over it.

A small display case at a Louisville tire store was the wild bird's incubator. The 25-watt light bulb kept the case at 90 degrees during incubation.

Desi Sells Show For $12 Million

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ex-bongo drummer Desi Arnaz has sold his new television series to Westinghouse for 12 million dollars — history's biggest deal in TV.

The 48-program series, mixing comedy, drama and musicals, will replace Studio One Monday evenings on CBS, Arnaz announced.

Seven of the programs will be hourlong versions of the I Love Lucy show starring Arnaz and his wife Lucille Ball. They will appear in some of the other programs, and he will emcee all of them.

Foundation Cash For 22 Schools

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-two North Carolina schools were two million dollars from the U.S. Steel Foundation, Inc.

The foundation announced grants Wednesday to privately supported liberal arts colleges, science and engineering institutes, public and private universities and medical schools and to several educational associations and groups. Amounts were not given.

The list: Atlantic Christian College, Barber Scotia College at Concord, Belmont Abbey College, Bennett College at Greensboro, Catawba College, Davidson College, Duke University, Elon College, Flora Macdonald College, Greensboro College, High Point College, John C. Smith University at Charlotte, Lenoir Rhyne College, Livingstone College at Salisbury, Meredith College, University of North Carolina School of Medicine, Queens College, St. Augustine's College at Raleigh, Salem Academy and College, Shaw University at Raleigh, and Wake Forest College.

These aid-to-education grants included operating grants, capital grants, teaching aid in medicine, student aid (fellowships), project aid grants, quality improvement grants, and association support.

Wreck Is Fatal For 2 Soldiers

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Two Ft. Bragg soldiers were killed near here early today when their automobile went out of control and crashed into a tree.

They were identified as Sgt. James J. Cunningham, 21, the driver of the car, and Mack E. Collins, 29. Both were members of the 50th Airborne Infantry.

Police Guarding Teacher After Stabbed By Boy

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A 24-hour police guard has been stationed at the home of a schoolteacher who was stabbed by a 12-year-old boy in an Elizabeth school.

Police ordered a detective placed inside the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Epstein after the teacher's wife reported receiving three telephoned threats from youthful callers yesterday. A uniformed policeman was also stationed outside the door of the Epstein home.

The 24-year-old physical education teacher was stabbed in the arm with a penknife by a 12-year-old boy during a class at Benjamin Franklin School Tuesday. The teacher was not seriously injured.

Juvenile Court Judge Richard R. O'Connor yesterday ordered a mental examination for the Negro student who stabbed Epstein.

Epstein's wife, Florence, 21, reported receiving the telephoned threats shortly after the judge made his rulings.

She said all of the callers sounded young. Two of them, she said, threatened to blind the couple's 1-year-old daughter, Terry Robin, and to murder Mrs. Epstein unless the accused boy was released.

The third caller threatened the lives of the entire family, she said.

The stabbing of the teacher occurred at the same time — but was apparently not connected with — a gang fight broken up by police nearby.

Police said there have been racial difficulties among white and Negro high school students over the past week and that this might have touched off the dispute.

Young City Councilmen Vote Trip, But No Funds

If student city councilmen want to take a trip to England they will have to pay their own expenses.

They were so informed by student City Manager Godfrey Oakley this morning.

The high school seniors took over top jobs in the city and county governments today as their adult counterparts looked on.

The youthful City Council approved a motion to take trips to England if the city would pay the bills.

That was when City Manager Oakley informed the young officials that funds for such a trip were not available and if the councilmen wished to travel to England they would have to pay for it out of their own pockets.

Student officials met after the regular City Council had convened and dispensed with one item of business.

Adult councilmen approved a motion to restrict parking on Seventh St. on the west side of Charles between Seventh and Eight Sts. and on the south side of Seventh between Charles and James Sts.

Today's activities were in observance of Youth Day and they were sponsored by the Elks Lodge.

Following the morning session student councilmen were assigned another meeting, later in the morning.

W. M. Watson, who was chairman of the activities for the Elks Lodge, termed the day successful.

"It went off very nicely," Watson declared.

He expressed appreciation to city and county officials "for giving their time to show the young people the inner workings of their government."

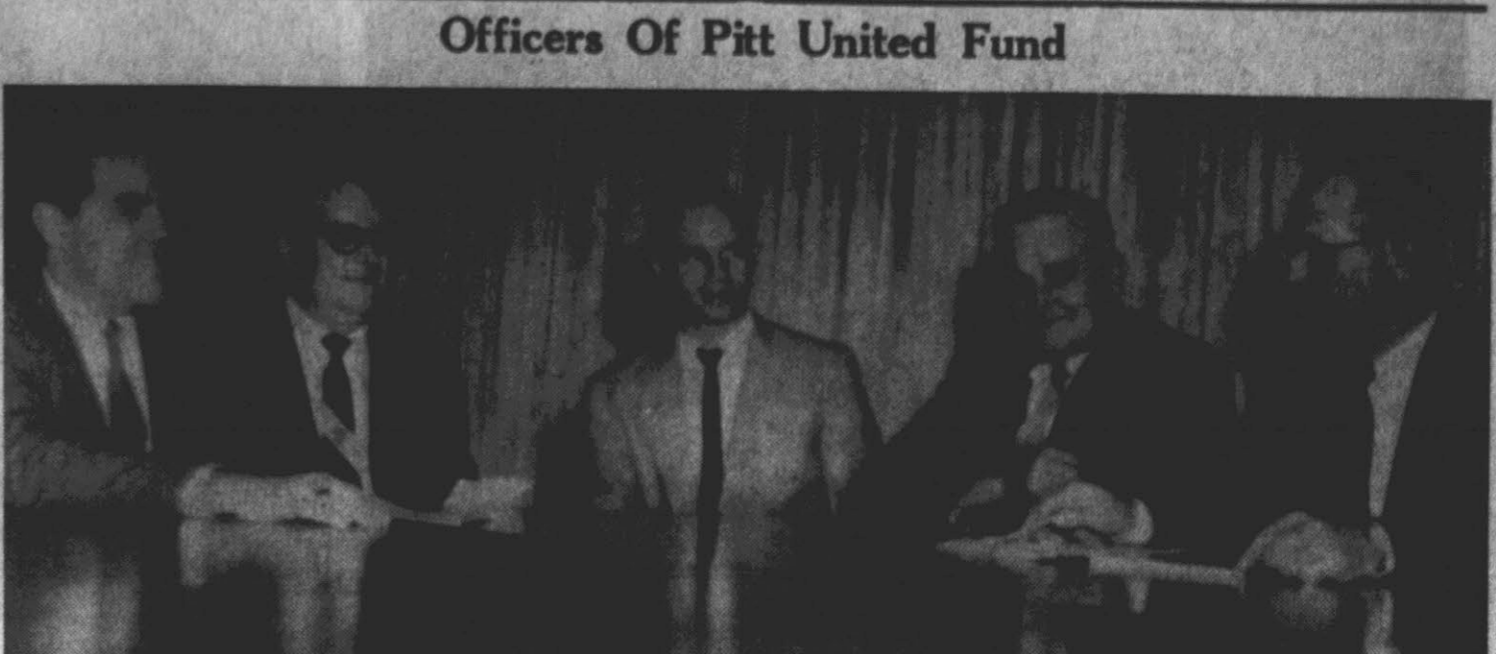

Serving as city officials today were: Bob Bilbro, mayor; Godfrey Oakley, Jr., city manager; Ed Buchanan, city clerk; Dick Evans, chief of police; Robert Howell, fire chief; Kelly Barnhill, director of public works; Ralph Johnson, Don Wilkerson, Walker Allen, Joann Parks, city councilmen.

In the county government Helen Overton was clerk of court, Mary Ann Bryant, register of deeds; Bobby Edwards, county auditor and Lawrence Perkins, sheriff.

RETRIBUTION

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Infuriated by repeated thefts from his farm gasoline tank, Ralph Hale dumped in 20 pounds of sugar. In a few days, he found that a vehicle had required a major reconditioning job because sugar had gummed up the motor.

Said Hale, "That fellow's got what you might call a sweet running motor!"

NEW OFFICERS FOR PITT COUNTY UNITED FUND . . . Watson, Staton, Dr. Carson, Dr. Mewborn and Rawl

Ed Rawl Chosen First President Of County's United Fund Organization

E. E. Rawl of Greenville, longtime advocate of United Fund organizations, has been named first president of the Pitt County United Fund.

Rawl and other officers were elected last night by the new organization's 30-member Board of Directors. The board also authorized the officers to proceed with incorporation of the Pitt County group and "to take necessary steps to cause Pitt County United Fund, Inc., to be a functional unit according to the will of the people of Pitt County."

Officers who were named to serve with Rawl are Dr. John Mewborn of Farmville, first vice-president; Dr. J. O. Carson of Grifton, second vice-president; James S. Ficklen, Jr., of Greenville, secretary; Harold Staton of Bethel, treasurer; and W. H. Watson of Greenville, general counsel.

Rawl announced to the directors, following the elections, that a fund of $6,000 for advance operational and organizational expenses is being made available to the United Fund. The money is being donated, he said, by individuals and will be available through the Greenville Community Chest as soon as incorporation procedures are completed.

In other action last night, the new president was authorized to appoint three persons to serve with the elected officers on the United Fund's Executive Committee. Rawl will also be an ex-officio member of the Admissions and Budget Committee, which will include the two vice-presidents and the secretary, chairman of organization.

Temporary office space for the Pitt County Fund was offered last night by State Bank and Trust Company. The offer was accepted by the board and Rawl said the office would be set up as soon as possible.

Argues Against Civilian Curbs On Space Study

WASHINGTON (AP)—The head of the Pentagon's special space bureau said it could be disastrous to allow a civilian agency to limit military uses of outer space.

Roy W. Johnson, director of the Defense Department's Advanced Research Projects Agency, called on Congress to write into President Eisenhower's bill for a civilian space agency a clearcut provision giving freedom for military space projects.

"For example," Johnson told the House Space Committee, "if the Defense Department decides it to be militarily desirable to program for putting man into space, it should not have to justify this activity to this civilian agency."

Johnson's prepared statement etched sharply the question of whether military or civilian authorities should have the upper hand in future disputes over handling of space projects.

Eisenhower's bill envisages the civilian agency as controlling all government space research except for that "primarily associated" with military use. Administration witnesses have said disputes would be resolved by the President if necessary but that most would be settled by lower-level action.

Pending creation of a civilian agency, Eisenhower has authorized ARPA to go ahead for one year with experiments like shots at the moon. Eisenhower also ordered review of such projects to see whether they should be taken over by the proposed civilian unit.

In advance of the day's hearing, Deputy Secretary Donald A. Quarles said the Defense Department does not regard as a weapon a seeing-eye satellite that could spot objects on the earth's surface.

Sidewalk Art Show Set May 8

PREPARATIONS BEGIN . . . for the annual Sidewalk Art Show which will take place May 8 on the Sheppard Memorial Library grounds. Among those helping are, left to right, Mrs. R. V. Keel, Mrs. J. H. Behr, and Mrs. M. M. Luskin. (Photos by Peggy Smith)

The Sidewalk Art Show Committee is making preparations for their art show which will take place May 8 on the grounds of Sheppard Memorial Library.

Many letters have been sent to out-of-town artists to participate. Several artists have indicated they will bring their work and will also sketch on the grounds.

One artist from Winston, Mrs. G. F. Lanzl, will do portrait painting in oil on 12 inch by 16 inch canvas.

Another favorite exhibit present last year will be repeated this year, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Persick at their Potter's Wheel. They will make pottery on the grounds and have for sale some of the pottery they made during the past year.

There is a great amount of talent in the art department of East Carolina College, both in the faculty and the students. Their work will be exhibited at the art show. People are urged to search carefully for an original that may suit that bare spot on the wall. Several artists indicated they would make payment arrangements to suit the buyer.

For those who may not have read the rules of entry, these are the requirements: All work must be original, paintings can be done in any media. They must, however, be ready for hanging.

Work should be brought to the library by 9 o'clock Thursday morning or May 7 from 2 to 5 o'clock.

In case of rain the show will be moved to the National Guard Armory.

In the store, select frozen foods only from cabinets that maintain zero degrees temperature.

More Than Facilities Are Needed

Eastern North Carolina's need for nurses becomes increasingly obvious with each passing month. With the need for nurses becoming more critical, the need for a school to supply a steady stream of nurses for this area becomes more apparent.

In recent years hospitals of Eastern North Carolina have found it extremely difficult to get trained nurses to fill positions on their staffs. Many hospitals have been unable to obtain trained personnel in the numbers required.

And while this situation exists, the area is increasing its hospital facilities to meet the needs of its people for medical care. In a few weeks Beaufort County will open its new county hospital in Washington. Plans are being made for expanding the facilities at Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville. In other counties of the area plans for increasing medical facilities are in various stages of planning.

During the past 12 years 6,000 new hospital beds have been created in North Carolina . . . many in the Eastern part of the state. During the same period the number of nursing schools in North Carolina has decreased from 70 to 40.

If the problem of training a sufficient number of nurses continues to be ignored, where will the state's medical care program be a few years from now?

How will the hospitals—especially those of Eastern North Carolina—be able to give patients the type of care they need without a sufficient number of nurses?

A state supported school of nursing at East Carolina College is the obvious answer to this problem for Eastern North Carolina.

It was proposed to the 1957 General Assembly, but the request for a mere $170,000 during the current biennium to establish the school was denied. Efforts for the school are continuing in the hope that the 1959 General Assembly will recognize the critical need for nurses in this area and provide for the school.

Unless the state does assume its responsibility to establish a school of nursing in this area, medical care in Eastern North Carolina faces a gloomy future.

New hospitals, more hospital beds, and gleaming new medical facilities are important to any area and its people. But they mean little unless there sufficient doctors and nurses to man these facilities and care for the patients.

Are the people of Eastern North Carolina destined to have second rate medical care because the state refuses to establish a much needed school of nursing in this area?

A Fair Opportunity For Every Company

Remember the kid on the neighborhood sandlot who used to threaten to take his ball and bat and go home unless the other kids let him pitch?

Sometimes he pitched. More times the game continued with some other kid doing the pitching.

A statement by an official of Griggs Equipment Company reminds us of the kid who was sore because he couldn't pitch.

The company, in the process of setting up a plant in Selma to produce school furniture, has threatened to pull up stakes and go elsewhere because it did not get a state contract for school furniture.

Said Griggs' vice president, "If we are denied the opportunity of ever approaching the schools in North Carolina, we will be forced to move the plant from the state."

We'd hate to see the plant of Griggs Equipment Company or any other company move from North Carolina to some other state. We'd hate worse to see the state alter its sound purchase and contract policies just to please a concern that didn't get a state contract that was awarded on a competitive basis.

Certainly the state cannot guarantee to purchase items from every company that locates a plant in the state. It can and does, however, offer every company the opportunity to enter bids on items which the state purchases. The policy is administered fairly and affords each company an opportunity to compete for the state's business.

What does the Griggs company want? If the Griggs company keeps its plant in North Carolina it will be treated fairly by the state just as are all the other companies which may be an competitor with Griggs.

If the company does not want to remain in North Carolina on those terms, it has the privilege of taking its ball and bat and going elsewhere.

The kid on the neighborhood sandlot used to take the latter course on rare occasions . . . only to find the instant his decision was made that it was a tragic mistake.

Something Less Than Enthused

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The recession is beginning to look like a little green man in a space suit, with the Eisenhower adroit leaders in Congress winking and nodding and the Democratic leaders in Congress winking and nodding.

Both are going less than all-out to fight the recession, although each side has blamed the other for not doing more.

At the moment President Eisenhower is sitting tight, hoping things will get better before they get worse so he won't have to ask for a tax cut.

The loss of revenue from a tax reduction would throw the government deeper in the red than it's heading anyway.

And Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Senate's Democratic leader, while calling for greater effort by the administration, isn't rushing into a tax cut either.

For that matter, he couldn't tinker with taxes must under the Constitution start in the House. And the leader of the House Democrats, Speaker Rayburn of Texas, isn't talking cuts right now any more than Eisenhower is.

Both sides are in the same dilemma: economists don't agree on which way the recession is heading. This reduces the grand field of economics to a kind of glorified guessing game.

Meanwhile, the administration give national hopes for better days—a kind of arithmetical blood transfusion.

Secretary of Commerce Weeks rushed out Tuesday with figures—which ordinarily wouldn't be available for another 10 days—to show unemployment in April had dropped numerically below the March figures. His figures showed unemployment dropped 7,000 below March. That still leaves 5,100,000 people out of jobs. And the figures raise a question.

This is the beginning of warm weather when unemployment traditionally drops a bit because more jobs open up.

So the question is: Has unemployment for this time of year dropped enough to show things are on the upturn?

The answer is no. For while unemployment dropped numerically the rate of unemployment—for this time of year—has increased from 7 to 7 1/2 per cent.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said Weeks' figures show the recession "continues to worsen."

Earlier in the week Meany saw things getting worse anyway and he doesn't think either Republicans or Democrats are doing enough against the recession just as it stands now.

He has called for improved and extended unemployment pay and tax cuts now. Not all economists agree this is the time for a cut. And the administration is still sticking to the no-cut-yet school of thought.

What plagues both parties are these problems: A tax cut now—if somehow the recession was in its invisible ways beginning to slack off—might cause inflation by throwing more money around.

But holding off on a cut—until the recession is indisputably getting worse—might make it too late to do any good because by then the economy might be in a tailspin.

One more month ought to give an answer to which way the little green man is headed.

Strength For Today

PARADOX

Christianity attempts to instill both a high regard for man and a low. We are reminded that man is made in the image of God. The New Testament assures us that God so loves man that He was willing to take the ultimate step of sacrifice in order to bring about man's salvation.

At the same time, the Bible teaches us that man is fallen from the image in which God made him, that his nature is marred by sin, that his will is in rebellion against the will of his Creator.

The Bible is full of paradoxes, but no paradox is greater than this—man is so noble that he bears the image of God and so ignoble that he bears every mark of disregard and moral treason. God's reward for man is as high as the heavens; his condemnation of man goes to the very depths of perdition.

Much has been made of the paradoxes of Christian truth. It can be said with confidence that everything that is really true creates baffling paradoxes. The exalted nature of man and his corresponding degradation constitute such a paradox.

The Christian gospel is the only means by which this paradox can be resolved. We cannot evade the paradox—we must face it. Man, divinely noble; man, degradedly evil. The Christian gospel alone brings the extremes together. The answer is a Man. In none other is there salvation.

A Real First In Culture

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Europeans who like to say America has no culture get a quick debate from Beverly Merrill.

"Actually, Europe is dead culturally," she insists. "It is a great schoolhouse, but more is now happening culturally here. We are the new center of Western culture."

Miss Merrill, dark-eyed and attractive, can approach the subject with some perspective.

At 30 she is sole owner and manager of a phonograph recording firm which for the first time in history is recording in its entirety some of the great forgotten music of the Middle Ages. Her projected 10-album series of medieval melodies has aroused the praise of musicologists throughout the world.

This is a real cultural first for America. No really scholarly job of recording music of this period had been attempted before Miss Merrill founded her firm.

"It's a kind of musical archaeology," explained Miss Merrill. "Most people's knowledge of music goes back only to Bach. We wanted to document the music before Bach."

"Today it is definitely long, longhair music. But it isn't creaky merely because it is old. The tunes are still fresh and lovely."

"It is mainly religious music, and some was composed to be performed in certain cathedrals or chapels. But much of it was also the popular music of the day, and was sung by strolling troubadours and minstrels who wandered from town to town or castle to castle."

One of her prizes is the first known English love song, "Bird on the Brier," composed on the back of a papal bull, perhaps by a long-dead divinity student.

One of the stanzas reads: "I'm so happy, bright bird on brier. When I see that gracious lady, 'She is white of limb, lovely, true. 'She is fair, the flower of all.'"

Wrinkling her own pert nose, Miss Merrill remarked, smilingly: "It is easy to see that love songs haven't changed much."

The music isn't simple. An ordinary commercial record of modern music is made in six hours. Miss Merrill's artists rehearse up to two or three months, then spend three evenings to make a recording.

"The farther back most music goes the more difficult it is to perform," she said. "It really tests the talent of the most gifted singers and instrumentalists."

"But what this music has in it is an extraordinary sense of peace. People hear it and feel it."

This may explain why, although most of the people who buy the records are members of the professional or intellectual classes, the appeal is slowly spreading.

"Even the dyed-in-the-wool jazz fans are getting interested," said Miss Merrill, "because this music marks the beginning of improvisation in a jazz sense."

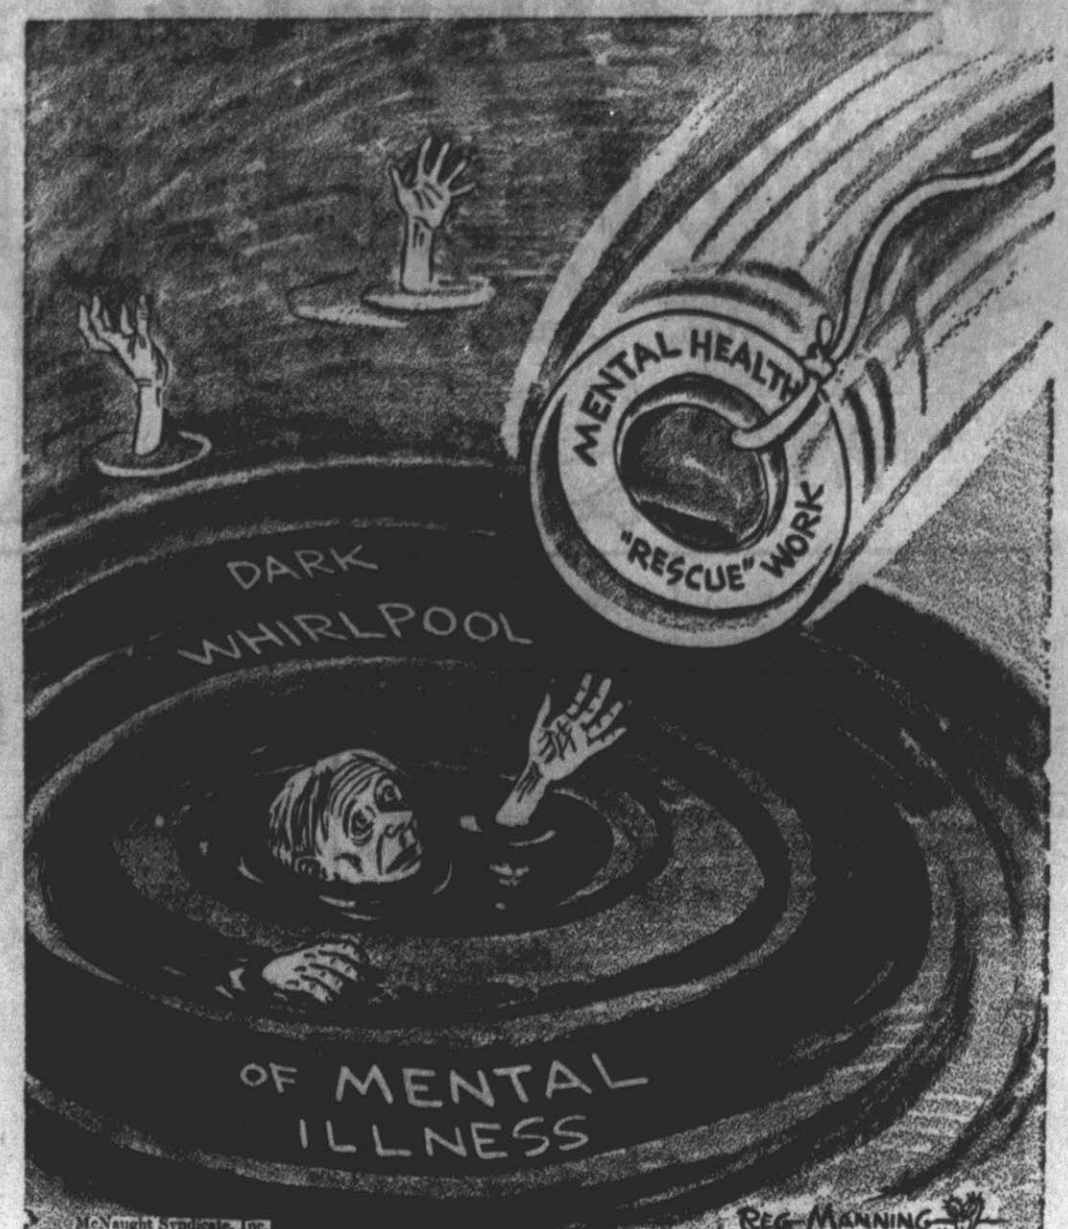

Miss Merrill, daughter of a U.S. foreign service officer, was educated here, in the Far East and in Europe. She began playing the piano herself at the age of 3. She has driven an ambulance for the Red Cross, worked in the American Friends Committee in France helping refugees.

Before undertaking her pioneer project, she studied the physics of sound, went to a trades school and learned to build a radio set. In her spare time she is studying Russian.

Where a large firm makes 500 recordings, Miss Merrill makes one.

"I'm not doing this to get rich," she said, "but because I love it. But I do feel that as the world comes again to appreciate this rich past music, it has forgotten, it can be made to pay its own way."

We Used To Let Them 'Drown'

Contestant Found Fun

Occasionally among the stream of contestants which show up on the television quiz shows a face familiar to Greenville people is seen.

That's just what happened Monday on "Beat the Clock", a CBS afternoon show which is seen over WNCT.

Those who were tuned in saw Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Diener of Greenville appear at the end of the Monday show. They were asked a few questions by MC Bud Collier but time ran out and they were unable to begin the stunts that day.

However the Dieners were asked to return the next day and they did so.

It was a fruitful afternoon for the local baker and his wife. Together they won two portable air conditioners, a sewing machine, a lawn mower and garden supplies.

However, the couple had to take part in some unusual stunts to win their prizes. First they were led to a pole with a peg at its top. Hanging down the pole on lines were several pots and the Dieners had to toss the pots up and catch them on pegs.

Next Diener was required to duck walk across the stage while his wife held a pie plate on his back with one foot and hopped along behind him. Then the couple reversed roles.

Then there was the magnetic board on which the first and last names of aviation figures were placed in mixed order. Diener re-arranged them in the correct order to win another prize.

The Dieners finally lost out on a complicated stunt in which they were required to place milk bottles on a turn table and avoid their being knocked off by overhanging dowel.

"It was very enjoyable," Diener says of the experience. Everyone on the show was very nice. Behind the scenes I was drinking ice water as fast as they could get it in me. Even Bud Collier gave me his ice water, and I drank his on top of mine."

Was he nervous once his appearance was underway?

"No," says Diener. "It's an amazing thing, I talked to people who went on before us and it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that there was little stage fright. "It was like sitting in your living room playing parlor games. There was just as nice a bunch of people on that show as I've ever met in my life."

"After the original shock the first day I was all right. The second day I was not nervous at all."

"It's amazing how you settle down once you get up there." Was losing out a disappointment?

"No," Diener replies. "It's like anything else when you're winning you expect to lose. We feel we were very fortunate in winning as much as we did."

The Dieners obtained tickets to the show before hand and they were chosen as contestants "more or less at random" from the audience.

Tommy, his wife and his brother Frank, were attending a meeting of the Associated Retail Bakers of America in New York.

Other Editors Saying --- Form Ranks Again

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

The tumult and the shouting over the appointment of conservative Everett Jordan to succeed liberal Kerr Scott raise an interesting question. Will the Branch Head boys form ranks again? Will this diverse and diffuse collection of Tar Heels come to new cohesion in their resentment over what they consider was a personal affront?

Kerr Scott was the magnetic and colorful character who gave the Branch Headers a oneness that swept them into the driver's seat with Scott as pointer. It has been repeatedly pointed out that Scott was the only man who has appeared so far who could deliver this vote, a vote usually submerged or silent or disinterested. When the Squire of Haw River waved the flag, they came running. But when someone else waved the flag in the same interest, some of the Branch Headers looked the other way. Just enough of them to allow the other side to win.

And as of this day, there is no real successor, no leader of recognized and undisputed stature, to take over from the dead hand of Scott. This fact must not be overlooked in the appointment of Jordan. Hodges had no sure "second man" to Scott to put in his place and thus to con-time the policies the majority had approved in approving the Branch Head chief.

Terry Sanford is a coming young man. He taught Scott many things. He is credited with having prevented him from going too far in demagoguery and clowning. "I can't buy that entirely," Scott was highly intelligent. He knew the hair that divides hillbilly clowning from the statesman's role. If he had lived, he would have placed his stamp firmly on the national Democratic scene.

But Sanford has no sufficiently long and varied record of public service to be able to demand Scott's logs.

Nevertheless, irritation at Jordan among the Branch Headers may pull them together as hardly anything else would have.

Don't be surprised if you hear of a call going out for the Branch Headers to meet in Raleigh to adopt a plan for their future guidance and action. If such a call does go out, they will come running from Chocolate to Behebehem, from Dam to Beersheba. They will come with glory in their eyes and fervor in their voices. They will stage such a meeting as the state hasn't seen since Red Shirt and Fusionist time. We should see great interest in politics result for a long time.

Opinions In Brief

"Half the Foreign Service officer corps has no speaking knowledge of any foreign language. Recruits are even worse off, 70 per cent of new officers lacking any foreign language. Only one ambassador to a Communist nation speaks the language of the country to which he is assigned . . . Only two of our representatives to the nine Arabic speaking nations . . . Even in the North Atlantic Treaty Nations, our closest allies, two-thirds do not speak the language of the countries . . . In Asia it is even worse."—The Hour, Norwalk, Conn.

"No State legislature has petitioned Congress for Federal aid to the schools. But several State legislatures have petitioned against it."—Rep. Ralph Gwinn, N. Y.

"From the looks of women's fashions, it seems that a sad sack isn't necessarily a man in the armed forces."—Dalton (Ga.) Citizen.

Random Thoughts With Barbs

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are 11 words scribbled at random in a reporter's notebook, followed by what he now thinks they may have been thinking about when he made the notes:

Seat belts. Every once in a while the safety-first people start talking up seat belts, saying they ought to be mandatory on private autos. If they are good for private autos, why then shouldn't they be mandatory in taxicabs? Or in buses?

Seat belts for standees in business would be curious. One end should fasten to a hook in the roof, the other end to the floor. When a bus stopped suddenly, the passengers would vibrate like an A string. That would be better than landing on me, which usually happens.

De-refrigs. Why do housewives insist on refrigerators so designed that half the food swings out into the warm room everytime the door opens? Surely manufacturers wouldn't make them that silly way unless women insisted on it. And do you have trouble with eggs jumping out of their little door cups when the refrig door is slammed?

For that matter, why do women insist on refrigerators door that go klunk when closed? To keep checks on husband and tykes?

Delinquency. There is almost a continuous hullabaloo over the rise in juvenile delinquency. It has doubled in the last 30 years.

This is to predict that it will double again in the next 30.

There are twice as many teen-agers now as there were 30 years ago; there will be twice as many again in 1988.

Educational palaces. Many people confuse school buildings with education. Of course, it's easier to teach swimming if the school has a $500,000 pool, or dancing if the school has a mirrored ballroom.

But most education depends on the teachers, not on the enclosure. A good teacher can teach in a lean-to or on a lawn. I learned some of the most important lessons of my life out behind the barn.

PINCH AT WORST TIME Per-car ads. Most automobile advertising budgets are on a per-car basis, with so much, usually from $15 to $35, being added to the kitty for each auto sold. So now, just when each company needs more advertising, its budget is shrunken because of fewer sales. True, many are rushing up reserve funds in efforts to get the show back on the road.

Auto makers aren't the only ones a little crossed-eyed in this matter. Many other corporations base advertising budgets on percentages of sales, which leaves them smaller promotional resources at points when larger promotions are in order.

Bargain. A food chain president recently said food is such a bargain consumers have up-graded their prewar diet by spending 26 per cent of their income on food. Food may be a bargain, but the cost of food in the Consumer Price Index has risen more than 125 per cent from 1941 to 1948.

Corporate image. I'm bored with endless articles in magazines and elsewhere about the "corporate image." Some day I must write a column coming all out for corporate images. Then everybody will drop the subject and we'll never hear of it again.

WORLD SUGAR SUPPLY HIT BY STRIKE, REVOLT The world is having trouble with its sugar.

A strike of Hawaiian sugar workers is now in its third month and even with a settlement now a large part of the crop is lost.

The Cuban sugar crop is hit by rebel activities; much cane and some mills have been destroyed. However, production probably will meet American requirements, including an offset for Hawaiian losses.

While prices have made small advances, neither run-away prices nor serious shortages are expected.

Rainbow Leathers Kick Off Shoe Season

WHITE TIE—New for spring is this tailored pump in emerald green matte finish leather with new pointed toe, stiletto heel and buckled bow of highly polished white calf, for dressy day wear.

T-STRAP—Many women will welcome the return of the strap pump with curved medium Louis heel. This one is pale beige polished calf with slender T-strap, pointed toe, designed by Margaret Jerrold.

D'ORSAY PUMP—This is an old favorite, back on the fashion scene in bright red patent leather with black-and-red calf bow, needle heel, designed by Herbert Levine.

OPEN-BACK SANDAL—For late day wear, the sling-back sandal returns, in gay combination of royal blue, emerald green and white buffed leather with closed pointed toe, designed by DeLiso.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
Feet and legs take the spotlight this spring, as knee-length dresses focus attention on smart footwear. And shoe designers are all set to keep the situation well in hand with a blaze of brilliant leathers for heel-and-toe drama. Colors that will be seen in new shoes of the season include: emerald green, lipstick red, royal blue, turquoise, sun gold and dove blue, in addition to the always important but less sensational range of beiges and browns, navy and black. Many of the new shoes are highlighted with touches of white leather, appearing much earlier in the season than usual. The smartest shoes have simple lines and few ornaments this season, with pointed toes and needle heels still important. Two new style trends are the return of the D'orsay pump and the emergence of slender instep straps and T-straps in shoes for round-the-clock wear. Smooth polished calfskins are most important for street and dressy wear, with many silky-napped reversed calf shoes in high colors shown for casual and sports wear.

Church Plans Dinner Sunday

The membership of the Eighth Street Christian Church will have their annual Fellowship Dinner after the close of the service Sunday morning, May 4.

Every family of the church is requested to bring a covered dish and a committee of women will receive and arrange the items on the dinner table.

Mrs. J. R. Carrington, service chairman of Christian Women's Fellowship, will be in charge of receiving and arranging the items on the table.

Roger Averette and Bryce Cummings will be in charge of the drink stands.

The new members who have come into the church in recent months will be the guests of honor and they may bring a covered dish if they so desire.

The families of the Hooker Memorial Christian Church are invited to share in this fellowship.

The dinner will be served on the lawn of the church and if the weather does not permit the fellowship will be in the basement of the church.

World War I Vets Meet
The World War I veterans will meet at the courthouse Sunday at 2 o'clock. Members and visitors are cordially invited.

With Farm Women

By VIRGINIA M. NANCE
A stranger walking into the WARREN County agricultural building recently might have wondered if he had stepped into a cabinet-maker's shop by mistake. Home Agent Emily Ballinger reports that home demonstration club women were learning more about refinishing furniture by attending the two-day workshop conducted by agents and state Extension specialists.

IREDELL County assistant home agent Mrs. Martha C. Archer reports that Susan Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Kelly, Mt. Mourne, N. C., is the junior winner in the Dairy Foods demonstration contest for the county. Susan won by preparing a full meal of skillet-burger, cheese salad, ice cream and milk.

Mrs. Haywood Wilson, a MARTIN County home demonstration club member, requested help from Helen L. Hoskins, home agent, on remodeling her kitchen. Since her husband is in the building supply business, she wants to remodel her kitchen as a showplace for local people who may be interested in remodeling.

DUPLIN County boasts its first training school for 4-H adult leaders, according to Lois G. Britt, assistant home agent. Men and women representing six 4-H Clubs gathered recently to study ways of conducting community 4-H Clubs, recreation, and suggestions for demonstrations for the clubs. More plans are being made for future training sessions. Many a BURKE County home was redecorated recently—if only in the minds of home demonstration club members. Home Agent Evelyn Watson says that with dozens of samples of drapery fabrics, floor coverings, wall treatments and accessories to choose from, club members worked in pairs to plan colors and fabrics for a room. Several women remarked, "It's so much easier to learn when you actually do some things."

Three Recitals To Be Presented

AYDEN—Virginia Belle Cooper will present her piano pupils in three recitals Sunday afternoon at 3:30. The pupils in the second, third, fourth and fifth grades will be presented. On May 7 at 8 o'clock the pupils in the Elementary School will give their recital. The high school pupils will give their program of music on May 9. All programs will be given in the Ayden High School Auditorium.

Mrs. Hari Esterlains GRIFFON—Mrs. Edward Hart was hostess on Thursday night of last week at bridge at her home on Main Street.

Two tables were placed for the games in the living room where purple iris and white spires combined to make an unusual arrangement.

A sandwich plate with cookies and iced beverage was served at the refreshment hour. Mrs. Milton Hart and Mrs. Ben G. Tucker were given prizes for the highest scores.

Breakfast Dodging Is Common Offense

Homemakers should be more aware of "spring fever" that comes and stays.

Too many of them slip into a certain carelessness in their food habits—breakfast dodging is one of the more common offenses—and heedlessly dismiss the resulting symptoms as spring fever. They are similar, but not the same. If the family has been by-passing breakfast pretty regularly and now has a downright dull feeling, the season is probably not the reason.

These are danger signals warning of a shortage of essential nutrients present in foods usually served for breakfast—protein, B-vitamins, minerals, vitamin C, vitamin A. The morning begun without a good measure of these required food elements is badly begun.

Take-breakfast-every-morning is a pleasant prescription, a light, bright start toward a better day and better health.

CHAPTER 33

Price Regan walked through the Madden house, worried and puzzled by Laura's and Jean's absence.

He paused in the dining room, staring perplexedly at the table which hadn't been completely cleared of dirty dishes.

He whirled toward her as she ran into the room, and for a moment they had no time or thought for anyone but each other.

She didn't hear him. She just stood there looking at him as if her eyes could not get enough of the sight of him, then she whispered, "I've been afraid, Price."

"Everything's fine," he said. "I've got the boy."

He motioned toward Bruce who stood at the table shoving bread and ham into his mouth as fast as he could.

"Bruce, this is Laura Madden. Jean's been staying with her."

Glancing around, Bruce bobbed his head as Laura said, "I'm pleased to meet you, Bruce."

"A sleeve across his mouth and reached for another piece of ham. He hasn't had anything to eat for two days," Price said.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Laura said. "I'll find you something, Bruce. There isn't much on the table."

She took the pitcher and ran through the kitchen into the pantry, filled it with milk from a crock, and returned to the dining room with it and a wide slab of dried apple pie.

"It's been rough," Price said. "He was ducking around all day yesterday trying to keep out of everybody's way and this morning he ran into the Mohawk boys. I got there in time to save his hide, but it was a close shave."

Laura stood beside Price, her arm on his as she stared at the boy. Then she remembered why she was here and she gripped Price's arm. "We can't stay. I got moved out to the hotel."

"He asked, 'You quarreled over me?'"

"Partly," Laura said. "And over Jean. He told me to get her out of the house. But it's more than that, Price. It's something bigger. I've heard about people selling their souls, is that just preacher talk or could a man really do that?"

"I don't know," Price said thoughtfully, remembering how Harry Madden had been his usual poise, demeaning self on Saturday morning in the bank, but yesterday, here in the hall of his own house, he had been a harried, uncertain man, giving orders he must have known would not be obeyed.

"They've fired you from the marshal's job," Laura said, "and Harker has the star. Pete Nance is in town. So is Curly Blue, and he's supposed to ride out to the Rocking C as soon as you get here. I guess Weston wants to know if you found Bruce."

Price grinned. "Well, let's tell him."

"But you can't fight Pete Nance," Laura cried. "Can't you see that? You know why Weston brought him here?"

"Well, I can't disappoint him."

"Let's go to the hotel," Laura said. "Jean's there alone. I'm worried about her. She'll want to know about Bruce, too."

Price nodded and took Bruce by the arm. "We're going to see Jean," he said. "I'd better get you out of here before you founder yourself. You're worse'n a cow in an alfalfa patch."

Bruce rubbed a sleeve across his mouth, looking a little sick. He went along without resisting, Price wondering about the horses and deciding to leave them where they were for the moment.

Bruce glanced at Price, his mouth tightening. His old fears were plaguing him again, his eyes as wary as those of a hunted animal, but still he didn't hang back or fight Price's grip on his arm.

The three of them went into the hotel through the back door and up the stairs, no one seeing them, as far as Price knew.

Laura tapped on the door, calling, "It's Laura, Jean." The girl opened the door at once. Price shoved Bruce into the room ahead of him. For a moment Jean stared at the boy as if she couldn't believe he was actually here, then she cried out, and took him into her arms and hugged him.

"Bruce, Bruce," she whispered. "What happened? Where have you been?"

"It's quite a story," Price said, stepping into the room behind Laura and shutting the door.

He crossed to the window and looked down into the street. No one was in sight except Curly Blue, who lounged indolently in the shade of a wooden awning. Presently Pete Nance appeared in the doorway of Mahoney's Bar and looked up and down the street in the disdainful way he had, and stepped back.

When Price turned, he saw that Jean had an arm around Bruce, tears running down her face but making no sound with her crying. She wiped her eyes and said in a low tone, "We're all that's left, Bruce."

"If anyone could make the boy talk, it would be Jean. Price said, "He saw Cole Weston shoot Red Sanders yesterday, but he's too big a coward to stand up in court and swear to what he saw. It's up to him whether Weston hangs."

"He's not a coward," Jean said angrily. "You aren't, are you, Bruce?"

The sullen expression that Price had seen so often on the boy's face was there now. He said, "I ain't a coward, but I ain't no durn fool, neither. Maybe I was a coward when they dragged Walt out of the store, but I can't do no good now by blabbing what I seen."

I heard some shots, and when I looked Lizzie and Sam were dead. "Tell the rest of it," Price said.

The boy threw him an angry glance, then said sullenly, "Weston shot Sanders. I seen it, but that don't mean I'm going to the county seat and wait around till they try Weston and then get up in court and tell what I seen."

"What do you think you'll be doing between now and then?" Price demanded.

"I dunno," Bruce said. "I'm going somewhere."

"Maybe you'd better go ask Weston for a job so you'll be handy," Price said. "You know he'll kill you if he's not in jail."

"Not if he don't catch me he won't," Bruce said stubbornly.

"What will Susie say?" Jean demanded. "Bruce, you just aren't thinking straight. We've got to go home. It's the only place we can go. We'll make out, you and me. Susie, too, if you want to fetch her there."

Bruce didn't say anything. He sat on the bed, hunched forward, his big-knuckled hands clenched on his lap. Jean looked at Price and shook her head. "He'll see what he's got to do, Mr. Regan. You'll have to give him time."

Price gave them his back and looked out of the window again. Barry Madden had just left the bank and was going into the jail. Curly Blue was still under the wooden awning. Might as well get it over with, Price thought.

"Curly Blue ain't gonna forget the licking you gave him," Price warned. "The odds are too long, and you can't win..." the story continues tomorrow.

Price said, "You know he'll kill you if he's not in jail."

Wrong Man To Provide Advice

ENID, Okla. (AP) — Rodger Cornelius, Enid ambulance driver, is flabbergasted by all the telephone calls from mothers, seeking his advice. The mothers have called to ask him about everything from formula mixtures to medical problems concerning their children. The rash of telephone calls was started by a picture appearing in the local newspaper, showing Cornelius comforting a 3-year-old girl who received minor injuries when she was struck by a car. Cornelius "paced the floor" in the hospital while awaiting a physician, and the child went to sleep on his shoulder. But he hasn't been able to offer much comfort to the mothers. "I'm a bachelor," he explains. "And what I know about babies you could put in a thimble."

DAMNING EVIDENCE

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Tucson police were inclined to believe James J. Jackson, 43, had been involved with the law before Jackson was arrested on a drunk charge. Items found when officers searched him included a policeman's night stick and a call box.

Officers Named By Ayden JCs

AYDEN—Dr. Lawrence Alexander is the new President of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce. Alexander, who succeeds Marvin Baldree, was elected at this week's Jaycee meeting. Co-establisher of the Ayden Clinic, Dr. Alexander began practicing medicine here in July of 1954. At the present time the Lexington, N.C. native is also Commander of American Legion Post 289 and is active in other civic and religious work. Other officers elected Monday night were: First Vice-President, Tom Wheelers; Second Vice-President, Boyd Elliot; Secretary, Gordon Brunson; Treasurer, Floyd Rowe; and Directors, Nathan Thomas; and Directors, Jimmy Jenkins, Bill McLawhorn, John Clark Nobles and Dr. John Jacoway. Dr. Jacoway, a dentist, recently moved here. The officers will be installed at the next meeting of the local club May 12. State President Jack Sharpe of Kannapolis will install the officers and speak at the annual Installation Banquet to be held this year in the Ayden High School Cafeteria.

Russians Use A Western Accent

FRANKFURT, Germany (U)—What kind of English do they teach in Soviet schools? American English with a broad Western accent. That's the report of Miss Sunbeam Northrop of Columbus, Tex., Army-employed teachers who visited an elementary school in Leningrad during a nine-day tour of the Soviet Union. "Only American English is being spoken in these classes," she said. "There is no British accent at all. Students are being taught a broad Western accent. The drilling is American throughout. They also have American spelling."

New Ownership For Winterville Business Firm

WINTERVILLE — The machinery, equipment and supplies of the A.G. Cox Manufacturing Company here has been purchased by the Winterville Machine Works, Inc. Effective today, the town's oldest business concern will no longer be in operation under its old name but under the name of the purchasing concern. According to reports from corporation officials, the shop, located on N.C. 11 just off Main Street, will continue to maintain two sections, one for farm repairs and the other a machinery shop. The Cox Manufacturing Company was established in the early 1890's by the late A.G. Cox. Since that time it has been operated continuously by the Cox family. B.B. Barwick will serve as Shop Superintendent and R.E. Carroll as Secretary and Treasurer.

Political Thumb Catches Ride

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A middle-aged hitchhiker displayed this sign to passing motorists: "Pick me up or I'll vote for him again." He didn't identify the object of his threat but it was observed that he got a ride quickly.

Many Car Makes Fell By Wayside

EAST LANSING, Mich. (U)—Baby Moose... Steel Swallow... the Little... Janney... Don't feel stupid if the names don't ring a bell, because they've long since disappeared from the lexicon of the auto-buying public. All were names of cars manufactured for a brief period in the early days of Michigan's auto industry. Charles W. Boas, assistant professor of geography at Michigan State University, dug them up in a study of the geographical locations of the auto industry. Fifty Michigan cities, he said, were at one time or another manufacturing sites of 315 different car makes. Detroit produced 168 of them.

Sights Are Set On Public Speaking Championship

By HELEN ROSS
Hickory Daily Record Staff Writer
WIKORY, N.C. (AP) — A red-headed school ma'am came 20 years ago from the Deep South as far north as she wanted to go—to Catawba County in the foothills of the North Carolina mountains. Her fame as a public speaking instructor and dramatics coach, however, has spread into neighboring Southern states to the extent that mention of the word "Newton-Conover" (her school) sends a feeling of dread through the minds of some and of genuine respect into the heart of every teacher who participates in the same extra-curricular endeavors as does Mary Catherine Shivers, head of the English Department at the Newton-Conover High School in Catawba County.

In the last three years, Mary Catherine Shivers has seen three of her public speaking students claim the North Carolina championship in the annual American Legion Oratorical contest. Some years prior to 1955, another of her students was a state winner, and it has been a rare year for a long time that pupils she has coached have not won county and district championships. In fact, her pupils, competing in conference forensics, win so regularly that for her to have a loser causes more comment than do her victories.

But it is the American Legion contest on which she has placed considerable emphasis recently—mainly because it means so much to the pupil who is declared winner, particularly on the state level. A state winner is given a $500 scholarship to the college of his choice. In the national contest the award is a $5,000 scholarship.

A national winner is what the Newton-Conover teacher is working for. Four times she has produced state winners, only to see them lose in regional or sectional contests before the national finals.

This year Robert Peery, son of a Newton Lutheran minister, walked all over other state contestants to take the state prize and represent North Carolina in regional competition, where he was eliminated. He is but a sophomore. Other winners from Newton-Conover, who have gone on to various colleges (one to West Point) to make outstanding records, have been seniors and had no further opportunity to compete when they were eliminated in regional or sectional contests.

Young Peery, who has a voice of unusual resonance, however, may well be the national winner next year or the next. If he isn't, it won't be because he has not been coached and coached—and coached again—or because he hasn't tried and tried again.

Although she comes from about as far South as you can get—Mississippi—Miss Shivers allows neither a pronounced Southern drawl nor lazy attitudes to slip into her classroom. This is not to say she denies the Southern heritage that is hers and her pupils, for she is an ardent lover of the country of her birth as ever there will be. But spoken English is where she places the most emphasis year after year in her classroom. She wants "g's" pronounced when they should be and has no time for syllable slurring. She has one requisite of all her pupils from which she will not deviate: They must learn to speak well and with ease.

Her titan hair betrays her temper. She mixes humor—albeit caustic at times—with classroom instruction. She believes, and has proved it successfully, that humor implements the best teaching methods possible.

Students with spirit, she likes. Impudence she will not tolerate. She is a firm believer in the young people of today. She believed in them yesterday and she will believe in them tomorrow. She has watched "the young people of today" go through two decades of classrooms and knows "they're going to be all right."

The state oratorical winners are not the only ones who remember her with gratitude. Most of her students send thanks her way when they tangle with college studies.

And there are a number of Newton-Conover pupils who are in colleges now in this and other states because she has worked behind the scenes to obtain scholarships for them.

Two boys now are at West Point because of her determination that they should be there. One is a Latvian native, Nikolais Muisnieks who came to America as a displaced person. The other is one of her state oratorical winners, Larry Pitts.

The money Larry won as state winner was deposited to his credit for use at West Point, since his tuition is free. There are many other Newton-Conover alumni going to colleges in several states because Miss Shivers was interested enough in them to go to a great deal of trouble to see that their way was made financially possible. Most of them would not have been able to finance their own college education, nor could their parents.

Miss Shivers was born in Magee, Miss. Her father, a cotton buyer on the Mississippi coast, died when she was quite young and her school teacher mother returned to the classroom to keep the family together, retiring recently after 35 years of teaching. A brother, W. O. Shivers, is a superintendent of schools in Sledge, Miss.

She is a graduate of Mississippi Woman's College and did graduate work at Mississippi State and the University of Mississippi. She abandoned her efforts towards a master's degree because she says frankly "at that time there wasn't enough difference in the salary to make it worthwhile."

She taught first in Calhoun, Ga., and from there came to Newton-Conover High School. She is a

Negotiators Are Under Pressure

DETROIT (AP)—Negotiators for General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers Union go back to the bargaining table today under pressure to work out a wage settlement before midnight May 29.

That is the deadline for expiration of the present three-year contract.

GM called Tuesday for a showdown this month by serving notice on the union of termination of contract. This amounted to a challenge to the union to make GM a strike target rather than Ford or Chrysler, whose contracts run out June 1.

In Washington yesterday, UAW President Walter P. Reuther was asked what he plans to do next in view of the auto industry's rejection of his bid for a three-month extension of contracts.

"We're going to get there anyway," Reuther replied. "They can't make us strike. They're trying to take advantage of us at the bargaining table, but we're not going to be lured into any trap."

Reuther predicted, "We're going to get a wage boost."

The UAW has rejected offers from GM, Ford and Chrysler to renew present contracts, which contain built-in annual increases of at least 6 cents per hour plus cost of living allowances.

Reuther, whose main demand is profit sharing, has put no estimate on his demands for basic wage increases and more fringe benefits. GM and Ford say they come to more than 70 cents an hour, not counting profit sharing. The union denies this.

The average wage in the auto industry is about $2.40 an hour, exclusive of fringe benefits.

Raccoon Caught Stealing Goodies

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — In the Muscogee Iron Works cookies and crackers are kept in jars beside soft drink machines and dispensed on an honor system.

Recently, the honor system seemed to be breaking down as cookies disappeared and no nickels were dropped in the jar in payment.

Then someone spotted a raccoon walking the high steel rafters of the plant and suspicion shifted to him. But how to catch him? Finally, it was remembered that coons dip their food in water before eating and the animal was trapped in the washroom where he was dunking his cookies.

Another Soldier To Be In Shrine

HONOLULU, (AP) — The United States army soon will select an unknown soldier from among the dead of the Korean War for reburial in the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery.

The selection will be made May 15 in a brief ceremony at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific here.

Gen. I. D. White, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Army, Pacific, will designate an out-standing soldier to make the selection from among the remains of four unknown servicemen, representing the four branches of the armed forces.

Horseless Skull Still Honored

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — "Old Bill," a Confederate officer's horse which died 74 years ago, is still honored at Wilmington College here — or at least the skull is.

Brought here after the Civil War, "Old Bill" was a party of many memorial ceremonies. After death, the horse's skeleton was displayed for years at the college. When it became too much of a dust-collector, only the skull was retained. Generations of students have autographed it.

Less Risk Than Columbus' Crew

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A human could rocket into space today less apprehensive from a medical standpoint than Columbus was on his voyage to the new world.

The major problem is in re-entry and recovery of the space capsule.

That was the word from a panel of space medicine specialists who said, "Man is ready to go if we can give him a safe trip."

They described aspects of space flight, such as the effects of weightlessness, to the 39th annual meeting of the American College of Physicians.

"Nothing will kill a human spaceman if the launching goes according to plan," said Col. John P. Stapp, an aeromedical researcher stationed at Wright-Patterson Field in Dayton, Ohio. He added: "The effects of weightlessness may make him inadequate but they certainly won't kill him."

Col. Paul A. Campbell, of the Air Force Office of Scientific Research in Washington, D.C., likened space advances of the past few years to knowledge gleaned before the sailing of Columbus.

Columbus and his crew, said Campbell, "launched themselves into a vast void with an accepted risk probably greater than the calculated risk which will be accepted by the first man launched into space."

Finds Body of His Third Child

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. — James Goble, a storekeeper whose three children drowned in the nation's worst school bus accident, personally recovered the body of his third child yesterday.

Goble pulled the body of 12-year-old James Edward from the Big Sandy River near the fatal scene.

He has taken part in the search every day except to bury his children. Twenty-six youngsters and their driver died in the Feb. 28 crash.

One body is still missing.

Chemical Industry Pushing Research

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — New products are the life blood of the chemical industry, and so it is maintaining its spending on research at around 500 million dollars this year.

The 23 billion dollar a year industry has been taking its lumps from the recession along with the rest. Of 30 companies (excluding drugs) reporting so far, all but two show declines in first-quarter profits from the early 1957 figures. The combined statements are off 30 per cent.

But the industry boasts there have been no layoffs so far in research and fewer in production than the average for all industry.

The drug makers have been able to show gains in sales and profits this year over last.

Confidence in finding new wonders, and exploiting present ones is a reason that the chemical industry will spend about 2 1/2 billion dollars on new production facilities in 1958 and 1959.

A Joint Commerce Department and Securities and Exchange Commission survey foreshadows a 13 per cent drop this year in plant and equipment outlays in all industries. But in contrast to non-ferrous metals expansion plans, which are off 40 per cent from last year, chemical industry projects are down only 6 per cent.

A number of individual chemical firms plan no reduction at all. Chemical expansion spending last year was 18 per cent higher than in 1956.

Chemical construction will be heaviest in the south central and south Atlantic states, but is well spread across the nation.

The trade publication Chemical Week says 84 per cent of the firms it polled plan to increase research spending this year and next and 72 per cent will increase the size of their research staff.

Among projects in which they expect new strides are semiconductor metals including silicon; special metals such as niobium and tantalum; high energy fuels; new synthetic fibers and films; new plastics, pharmaceuticals, petrochemicals and synthetic rubber, including the synthetic natural rubber.

Much of the chemical industry's confidence is based on its growth record in the last 20 years. Since 1938 production of chemicals has increased 400 per cent and dollar output 600 per cent. New products have climbed into the thousands.

Plastic production is up 3,000 per cent in 20 years. Ethical drug sales, now at 1 1/4 billion dollars a year, are up 1,000 per cent.

The more than 1,000 companies in the fiercely competitive pharmaceutical field expect to spend about 125 million dollars this year on research — almost as much as their total sales 20 years ago. Last year they introduced 400 new products. The 1957 increase in drug production was 15 per cent over 1956, and profits were up 18 per cent.

There has been some slowing down in the first months of this year. All but three of the first 18 to report show gains in profits over the first quarter of 1957, but the combined increase is only 1 per cent.

Rivers Overflow In North Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Rivers and streams, hopped up on eight straight days of rain, surged across broad sections of north and east Texas today, chasing thousands from their homes.

Police evacuated some 2,500 persons from south Dallas during the night as the Trinity River overflowed.

Schools were closed in several east Texas areas and some operators abandoned their oil wells.

The mayor at Atlanta, Tex., M. P. Ellis, declared his east Texas town a disaster area. He said he did it as a precautionary measure.

"You must get out. You must get out. Your lives are in danger," the police loud-speakers squallied through the threatened Dallas area.

Willis Gray, a service station attendant, and his wife grimly stacked furniture.

"We're going tonight," he said, "but we're coming back. We're coming back and maybe someday Dallas will lick this thing."

The area also was flooded last year.

A small tornado whipped across Henderson, in east Texas, during a thunderstorm last night. No one was injured but there was widespread minor damage.

Severe hailstorms, high winds and cloudburst rains swept from central Texas eastward.

Pittsburgh in east Texas had about 20 inches of rain since Friday night.

Oil companies abandoned dozens of oil installations in the path of the flooding around Glade-water, deep in the east Texas oil fields.

Tax Cut Needed, Says Stevenson

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's economy has reached the point where a tax cut is necessary, says Adlai Stevenson.

Stevenson, asked by a reporter yesterday if he favored an immediate tax cut to pep up the economy, replied: "I have been against it because of the deficit, but we have reached the point now where we're going to have to have it. That's what the economists say."

Earlier, the twice-defeated Democratic presidential nominee told a group of European and Asian editors touring this country that the economic situation in the "Unit" States makes prompt measure necessary.

"A tax reduction would have been more effective if taken sooner than it would if taken now," he added.

Stevenson said the recession could become serious if extended, but he said there are many signs it will level off soon.

He renewed his 1956 campaign stand for a halt to nuclear weapon testing.

"They (nuclear weapon tests) must be eliminated," he said. "We should institute as soon as we can a system of mutual inspection of each other's territory."

Britishers Hail Hit Musical 'My Fair Lady'

LONDON (AP) — Newspaper critics gave old George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion" a hearty welcome home from America today in its new guise as the hit musical "My Fair Lady."

The musical began its excitedly awaited London run last night with the leads again played by Rex Harrison, Julie Andrews and Stanley Holloway. Britons all from the original New York cast.

Although the critics were all favorably disposed toward it, several said the big advance buildup had led them to expect even better things.

The first night audience had no reservations, however. A cheering capacity crowd of 2,300 gave the cast 10 curtain calls.

In a rare move, Britain's commercial television network stayed on the air after midnight to give the first British broadcast of songs from the show, banned by the copyright owners until that hour although recordings from America have been top black market items for months.

JIM THORPE, Pa. (AP) — Out of 2,507 names, both Harrison B. Anthony and his wife, Hazel, were chosen for jury duty. Not only that, but opposing attorneys accepted them both on the same panel of 12 to try a civil damage suit. The trial judge, Frank L. Pinola, incidentally was a high school classmate of Anthony.

ECC Clouts High Point, 5-0, Loses To Duke, 8-3

By BILLY ARNOLD
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina rapped High Point 5-0 yesterday afternoon and started off well against Duke University last night but ran out of steam in the fifth inning and ultimately dropped an 8-3 decision to the visiting Blue Devils.

Yesterday was a hectic day for the Bucs, their most grueling since the '58 baseball season began, but Coach Jim Mallory's Pirates made a successful showing against the odds.

In winning the afternoon tilt 5-0, ECC picked up its sixth North State Conference win of the year against only one defeat. That 6-1 mark keeps them in the thick of the loop race, just a peg behind league-leading Elon (8-1). Last night's ball game—though it wasn't a win—was a good one for both teams.

Duke's 8-3 triumph was closer than the score would indicate. Both teams hit well and played fine defensive ball as well. The Blue Devils slammed out 10 hits, while ECC poked eight. It was Duke's power-hitting led by Butch Allie that made the difference—along with the pitching of John Cappello.

Good crowds attended both contests, despite cold weather. At Guy Smith Stadium, well over half the grandstand was full for the Duke engagement.

Win No. 6

Yesterday afternoon, the pitching of Bruce Shelley and George Williams and the hitting of Jerry Stewart, Jimmy Martin, Marion Talton, and Jerry Phillips paced the Bucs to their 5-0 win over the Panthers at College Field.

Shelley, the winningest pitcher in the Buc fold at present, started off for Coach Mallory and hurled six innings—during which time the Bucs rolled up all five of their runs. George Williams came in the seventh and kept things under control. The Panthers collected eight hits, none of them at crucial points.

First ECC scoring came in the first inning when Jerry Stewart walked, Bill Altman walked, and rightfielder Jerry Phillips singled to drive in Stewart.

In the third frame, Jimmy Martin singled, Marion Talton followed with another single, Phillips was hit by a pitched ball. Tommy Nance grounded out and Martin came in on the play. Third baseman Bucky Reep then doubled to score Talton and Phillips.

Final Buc runs came in the sixth on a single by Stewart and a tremendous triple by Martin.

Martin, husky Pirate first baseman, led the Buc hitters with a 2-4 performance. His hits were a single and triple. Paul Jones paced High Point with 2-4 also.

The Duke Tilt

Under the lights at Guy Smith Stadium, less than three hours after the afternoon game, ECC took to the field against the Atlantic Coast Conference champions, Duke University.

Coach Mallory sent Lefty Ben Baker to the mound to oppose the Blue Devils, and Big Marion Talton settled behind the plate to catch his second ball game of the day.

Ace Parker, Duke coach, gave his starting nod to John Cappello, a right-hander.

The Blue Devils jumped off to an early lead in the second inning when Shortstop Lon Bonczek singled, Paul Donlevy walked, and Butch Allie singled to score both.

East Carolina came back in the third to snare one run. A single by Jerry Stewart got him on base and he went to second on an error.

A fly-out by Bill Altman sent Stewart to third. Jimmy Martin sacrificed a fly to score Stewart. It was 2-1.

Duke tapped Baker in the fifth for four more big runs that broke ECC. Dick Smallwood singled and Pete Maynard followed with another. Smallwood scored on a sacrifice fly by Bonczek. Paul Donlevy walked and Allie clouted a 410 foot home run over the leftfield wall to score those on base. It was then 6-1.

Altman Triples

In the seventh, East Carolina scored again on a single by Stewart and a bounding triple by centerfielder Bill Altman. Altman later scored on a sacrifice fly by Talton.

Duke wrapped it up in the ninth. Pitcher Lilly walked three straight batters and Dixon Owens drove in two of them with a sharp single.

It was 8-3 in the finish.

Thus, against Atlantic Coast Conference teams this season, Coach Mallory's club is 1-2. The Bucs have defeated the University of South Carolina, and have been beaten by Duke and UNC.

Another Night Game

Another night ball game at Guy Smith Stadium has been arranged for Friday night, when the Pirates meet Catawba. The game will be an important one in the North State Conference standings. ECC is currently ranked second, Catawba is third.

The two clubs have not yet met this season. Monday night, the Bucs were to have played Catawba at Catawba but rain spoiled the fray. Friday night's game was originally scheduled for this Saturday, but the date was changed to Friday so as not to conflict with the school's 50th anniversary pageant being presented on Saturday night.

Game time tomorrow night will be at 8:00. Coach Mallory has not yet named his starting hurler.

Rose High Teams In Action Here

Rose High School's baseball team, currently leading the Northeastern Conference with a 5-1 record, will put that record on the line here today and tomorrow.

This afternoon, the Panthers play host to Washington at Brookgreen Field. Tomorrow, Elizabeth City will be at the same field for another loop game.

Coach Boley Farley's team has beaten both clubs once this season.

Expected to pitch today for the Greenville club will be Joe Moye. Tomorrow, Merrill Bynum will get the nod. Game time today is set for 3:30.

BULLETIN

In yesterday's Northeastern Conference Track meet, held at Guy Smith Stadium, New Bern emerged the victor. The teams finished in this order:

Greenville
Elizabeth City
Roanoke Rapids

Yesterday at Roanoke Rapids, Coach Bud Phillips' Jayvee baseballers notched their first victory of the season, topping the Baby Yellow Jackets, 6-5.

Malcolm Griffin hurled six-hit ball for the Baby Panthers, to get credit for the victory.

Roanoke Rapids racked up five runs in the first inning on two hits, four Greenville errors, and a walk. After that, Griffin settled down and held the Jackets scoreless.

Greenville scored two runs in the first inning, two in the fourth, and two in the fifth.

Leading Phant hitters were Reggie Johnson who had a single and a double; Don Speight who had two for four; and Griffin who had two for three.

Tigers Rout Yanks; Tighe And Martin Insult Them

By JOE REICHLER.

NEW YORK (AP)—Ex-Yankee Billy Martin socked the New York club right in the middle of its pride today when he labeled the Yankee Stadium infield one of the worst in the league.

Detroit Manager Jack Tighe rubbed salt on the wound, charging that the thick-sodded infield was partial, responsible for the Yankees' large number of double plays this year.

The twin accusation came on the heels of the Tigers' 10-1 rout of Whitey Ford, the Yankees' ace pitcher, which reduced New York's first-place margin over the Kansas City Athletics to half a game. Detroit pounded Ford for 12 of their 14 hits as Frank Lary hurled a seven-hitter.

"This infield is terrible," Martin said. "I've never seen it as bad. The grass is higher than I've ever seen it before. It's like a mattress. You've got to hit a ball like a bullet to get it through."

"I don't think they did it on purpose. It might be because of the rainy weather. They probably have had to keep the grass covered and have not been able to cut it."

Tighe said: "I don't think it's only because of the weather. I'm not accusing the Yankees of doctoring the infield but it's very thick-sodded and that's certainly a great help to their infield."

"You can't get a grounder through that infield."

Asked if the opposition didn't have the same advantage as the Yankee infielders, Tighe reported: "The Yankees don't have to worry about the infield. They've got all those home run hitters."

The figures don't give much support to Tighe's theory. In seven games at Yankee Stadium, the Yankees have executed 10 double plays compared with nine on foreign fields. In yesterday's game, for instance, the Yankees did not complete a twin killing while the Tigers made two.

A Yankee groundskeeper admitted the infield grass was unusually high but he said the grass was new and it cannot be cut until it begins to take root.

Wilson's Tobs Hold First In Carolina Loop

By The Associated Press

Wilson's hustling Tobacconists held undisputed possession of first place in the young Carolina League race today following a 4-2 win over Winston-Salem last night at Wilson.

The Tobs have a 5-2 record. Four teams are tied for second with 4-3 marks — Durham, Danville, Greensboro and High Point-Thomasville.

Wilson had some help from Winston-Salem's starting pitcher, Jerry Hill. His first 15 pitches were balls. He walked the first four batters, forcing in one run. Roland Passaro then came on in relief and was greeted with a two-run single by Cal Ripken. Wilson scored its other run in the fourth.

Durham defeated the Alamance Indians in a doubleheader at Durham, 7-1 and 5-0. Phil Kilewer hurled a five-hitter to win the seven-inning opener. Alan Dwyer, making his first mound appearance of the season, spaced six hits to win the nightcap.

Meanwhile, Raleigh and Greensboro split a twin bill at Raleigh. The Capitals took the opener 4-1 and Greensboro won the second game 4-2. In each game, the winning team got only half as many hits as the loser. In the opener, the Caps managed only four hits to Greensboro's eight. In the night cap, Greensboro got four hits to Raleigh's eight.

In the other league action, the Hi-Toms swept two games from Danville 4-0 and 7-3 to knock the Giants out of first place. Lefty Chris Short hurled a two-hitter in the seven-inning opener, while veteran Jack Taylor notched his second win by pitching a six-hitter in the nightcap.

Tonight's games find Wilson at Danville, Durham at Winston-Salem, Raleigh at Burlington, and Hi-Toms at Greensboro.

Kline Finds A Way To Stop Dodger Homers

By ED WILKS

The Associated Press

Ronnie Kline, Pittsburgh's young right-hander, has found the answer to that nearby steel screen in left field at the Los Angeles Coliseum. It's control pitching that makes 'em hit to spacious right and center field.

Kline gained his first victory and first complete game with that formula last night, cautiously spinning a three-hitter that beat the Dodgers 3-1 as the Pirates won their fifth in a row — the longest streak of the season in the National League.

Only one ball went to left field against Kline, Gil Hodges' RBI single in the fourth. He allowed only four other balls to be hit to the left side of the infield in a great control performance against a lineup that offered six right-handed hitters.

San Francisco banged back into first place with a four-home run, 10-1 victory over Philadelphia after the Chicago Cubs, also hitting the four homers, had knocked off Milwaukee 8-2. Frank Robinson's second home run of the game gave Cincinnati a 5-4, 10-inning decision over St. Louis.

In the American League, the Detroit Tigers clobbered the New York Yankees 10-1. Kansas City rapped Boston 11-4. Washington slipped past Cleveland 3-2 and Baltimore beat the Chicago White Sox 3-2.

Don Drysdale, the right-hander expected to be the Dodger ace, lost his fourth when the Bucs scored two in the eighth.

ACC To Study Question Of Virginia Tech Today

By KEN ALYTA

GREENSBORO (AP)—Five years ago the Atlantic Coast Conference was formed when seven members of the then 17-school Southern Conference broke away to set up the new organization.

At the time of the split the seven said they wanted to form a playing conference, one in which its members would meet each other in all sports, major and minor. They felt the sprawling Southern with its membership scattered over six states and the District of Columbia, was too far flung to be effective.

Within five months the seven ACC charter members were joined by Virginia, which had been going it independently since resigning from the Southern in 1936.

Now the ACC meets here today and tomorrow confronted by a proposal that it bring in another Southern Conference school, Virginia Tech, raising its membership to nine.

Three schools, Virginia, Maryland and Wake Forest, have recommended admission of the Blacksburg, Va., school.

The fate of Tech may hinge on a matter of old business hanging from last fall's meeting. It was proposed that the rules be changed to require a favorable vote of only five members to bring about a rules change, instead of six as is now the case.

If the rule is changed and the three sponsoring schools can line up two others, Tech will have the votes needed, but the feeling in some quarters here was that there were too many "ifs" involved and the conference would continue with eight members. At

Way Cleared For Decision On Firemen's Pension Fund Act

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Supreme Court has cleared the way for an ultimate decision on the constitutionality of the North Carolina Firemen's Pension Fund Act.

However, it may be several months at least until the fall term — before a final decision is made. First, the question of constitutionality must be decided in Wake Superior Court.

The high court sent the case back to the Wake court yesterday. In doing so, it reversed a decision by Judge William Y. Bickett, who dismissed a complaint brought by five insurance companies. The companies had brought suit against State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Gold, the board of trustees of the firemen's pension fund and others.

Judge Bickett had refused to pass on the merits of the case because of procedural objections. The high court said, "We con-

Need Permit For Tree House, Too

ATHERTON, Calif. (AP) — It's illegal to build a tree house here without a building permit.

That's silly, says Mrs. Kenneth S. Templeton, whose sons Kenneth, 9 and John, 8, built one in their front yard without benefit of permit. Then they learned of the law when a neighbor protested to City Clerk W. H. Boren.

Mrs. Templeton said she just might take the case to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Today, Atty. Gen. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown got into the picture, but not in his official capacity. His "Brown - for-governor" headquarters issued a statement saying the Democratic candidate had requested a lawyer friend to see if he couldn't save the boys' house.

More In Common Than The Name

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — Lou Kohn of nearby Ventnor and Lou Kohn of Atlantic City have much more in common than pronunciation of their names.

Both are insurance men, both have wives named Ida, sisters named Rose and brothers-in-law named Paul.

Both had accounts in the same bank until Kohn changed his. Too many mixups, they agreed, even among friends.

Oriental Ballad Master Interprets Bible Story

GOSPEL, ORIENTAL STYLE—The Shinnai ballad company of composer Bunya Okamoto presents the premiere performance of the Gospel according to St. John, Okamoto, seated at left, adapted the story of the adulteress to the ancient Japanese art form.

BY FRED SAITO

TOKYO (AP) — Samisen twanged. Singers in formal silk kimono squatted stiffly on the tiny stage. And the performance of the Gospel according to St. John, in traditional Japanese ballad style, opened to a tiny but select audience.

Reception was mixed. But the Shinnai version of the Holy Scriptures will be repeated many times through Japan.

It was composed by Bunya Okamoto, the nation's master of this ancient and highly sophisticated art. Because of this, the 100 select-pupils of Okamoto and their students, numbering many hundreds, will add it to their repertoires.

Okamoto's Shinnai ballad is taken from the eighth chapter of the Gospel of St. John and centers on the theme, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her."

The composer acknowledges it was at least partially inspired by the anti-prostitution drive.

"The government is doing practically nothing to afford relief to these poor women (who must find other means of livelihood when brothers close April 1)," Okamoto declared. "I think a musician is entitled to express a protest."

The Shinnai performance opens with a recitation of the Gospel by one of two female singers to the accompaniment of two samisen, a three-string instrument which sounds something like a lute.

"He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her," (a woman accused of adultery), the alto singer chants.

The soprano follows with a declamation asking the audience to define adultery. The declamation gradually changes into a scherzando, as if mocking at all males.

Presently she introduces a modern street walker, a widow with a son.

One of the two male singers joins in, taking the role of a passerby who mocks the street walker.

The street walker responds with a pathetic and passionate aria,

Steps Saved By Wireless Phone

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The portable wireless phones installed at the court house for communication between the circuit court room and the offices of Circuit Clerk Frank Baur and State's Atty. John J. Hoban are designed to save steps.

"I figure my secretary, June Smallwood, alone will save 1,365,000 steps during every criminal court session," said Hoban.

Salesmanship By Long Distance

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) — The Mackle Co. has set a new company record for long distance lot selling.

It sold two lots in its new development here to Norman Strong of the Pan-Asia Newspaper Alliance (6 Duddell St.) Hong Kong, China. Strong, who bought the property by mail, hasn't seen the lots.

Unidentified Radiation Is Reported By Satellites

By FRANK CAREY AP Science Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evidence of an unidentified form of radiation which may require special shielding precautions for space travel has been picked up by the Army's Explorer satellites.

So intense is the radiation—believed to come from the sun—that it caused cosmic ray counters aboard the two satellites to die out at times.

This was reported today to a special meeting of the National Academy of Sciences and the American Physical Society, called to hear first reports of preliminary scientific information from the satellites.

In addition to the report on the unidentified radiation, the various scientific accounts featured these announcements:

1. Temperatures within Explorer I have ranged from 33 to 104 degrees Fahrenheit — within the range of human survival—even though temperatures outside may vary from about 120 degrees below zero to about 800 degrees above. The reporting scientists said even less internal variation could be achieved.
2. Only seven hits by micro-meteorites—tiny, speeding particles of space dust which might present another hazard to space travel—were recorded by Explorer I during a period of a month—and apparently none of them penetrated the satellite's shell.
3. The atmosphere 230 miles above the earth is 14 times more dense than was believed in the presatellite era, according to calculations of a Smithsonian scientist.

Dr. James Van Allen of the University of Iowa reported on the unidentified radiation on the basis of studies by himself and three other University of Iowa physicists.

He said Geiger counters were placed in both Explorers to measure the intensity of cosmic rays. As the satellites soared beyond 1,000 miles, the counts of particle pulses were far greater than had been expected—and the pulses were distinguishable from those of cosmic rays.

He expressed the belief the radiation comes directly or indirectly from the sun, and theorized that it is either: (1) protons—that is, the nuclear hearts of hydrogen atoms—streaming from the sun; or (2) X-rays produced in the structure of the satellite itself by the bombardment of electrons from the sun.

If X-rays are involved, he said, the rates recorded were such that it would not be safe for a human being to remain there for more than five hours, unless he could be adequately shielded against the radiation.

Find Bodies Of Three Airmen

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Bodies of three Air Force men were found high on Pike's Peak late yesterday in the wreckage of a light bomber which vanished during a spring snowstorm.

Rescue crews from Camp Hale, Colo., and Ft. Carson, Colo., stood by to bring the bodies down the rugged mountainside today.

Aerial searchers located the crash scene 24 hours after the plane left Pueblo, Colo., for Denver Tuesday.

Lowry Air Force Base in Denver, where the bomber was based, listed 1st Lt. Jerry L. Laird, 25, Lowry, copilot, and 8 Sgt. Walter H. Tuck, 24, also of Lowry, crew chief.

'Glorification' Of Crime Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said today there is a dangerous trend to glorification of crime in television programs and motion pictures.

He described such presentations as an "affront to our national conscience" and linked them with outbreaks of juvenile violence.

But at the same time Hoover credited many leaders in the movie and TV industries with helping law enforcement by genuine portrayals of criminals.

In a signed editorial in the May issue of the FBI Bulletin, Hoover said: "As a law enforcement officer and as an American citizen, I feel outboard to speak out against a dangerous trend which is manifesting itself in the field of film and television entertainment.

"In the face of the nation's terrifying juvenile crime wave, we are threatened with a flood of movies and television presentations which flaunt indecency and applaud lawlessness. Not since the days when thousands filed past the bier of the infamous John Dillinger and made his home a virtual shrine have we witnessed such a brazen affront to our national conscience.

"As an illustration, two brothers, aged 10 and 12, who a few weeks ago terrorized a town in Oklahoma in a shooting spree that left one man dead and two others wounded, told the police they got the idea from watching television and movie crime stories."

Mormon Temple Outside London

LONDON (AP) — Mormons are building a 1½-million-dollar temple just outside London.

They have established 94 churches in Britain. The first temple is a steel and concrete structure started two years ago at Lingfield, some 30 miles south of London.

It will be paid for on completion. The dedication is set for Sept. 1.

"Our faith is carried on under the old biblical law on tithing," the church's British president, Clifford G. M. Kerr, explained. "Every member of the church voluntarily gives 10 per cent of his income to it."

LUCKY LADY

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Mrs. H. H. Hamlin lost her wallet. Miss Helen Donald found it. Lucky Mrs. Hamlin. The wallet, which Miss Donald promptly returned, was lying in plain sight on the sidewalk — with $786 in cash inside.

It Sounds Simple, But A Rocket Pad Is Vast In Size... And Very Complex

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Rocket launching pads come in all shapes and sizes, but the mammoth of the class belong to the only intercontinental ballistic missile the United States has under test — the Atlas.

Dotted across this stepping stone to space are four Atlas launching facilities, their size and complexity belaying the usual designation as "rocket pads."

The only part of the apparatus remotely resembling a pad is the steel platform on which the missile rests. But this stand is so small in relation to its surroundings it doesn't even show in the accompanying sketch. To the distant observer, the missile appears to sit on a huge elevated concrete apron.

While an operational missile presumably could fly from a simple steel and concrete "pad," the testing programs conducted by the Air Force here require far more equipment.

Towering Gantry
Most eye-catching of this apparatus is the ponderous gantry crane used to permit access by workmen to every level of the rocket and — during engine tests — lock it to the stand with enfolding steel arms.

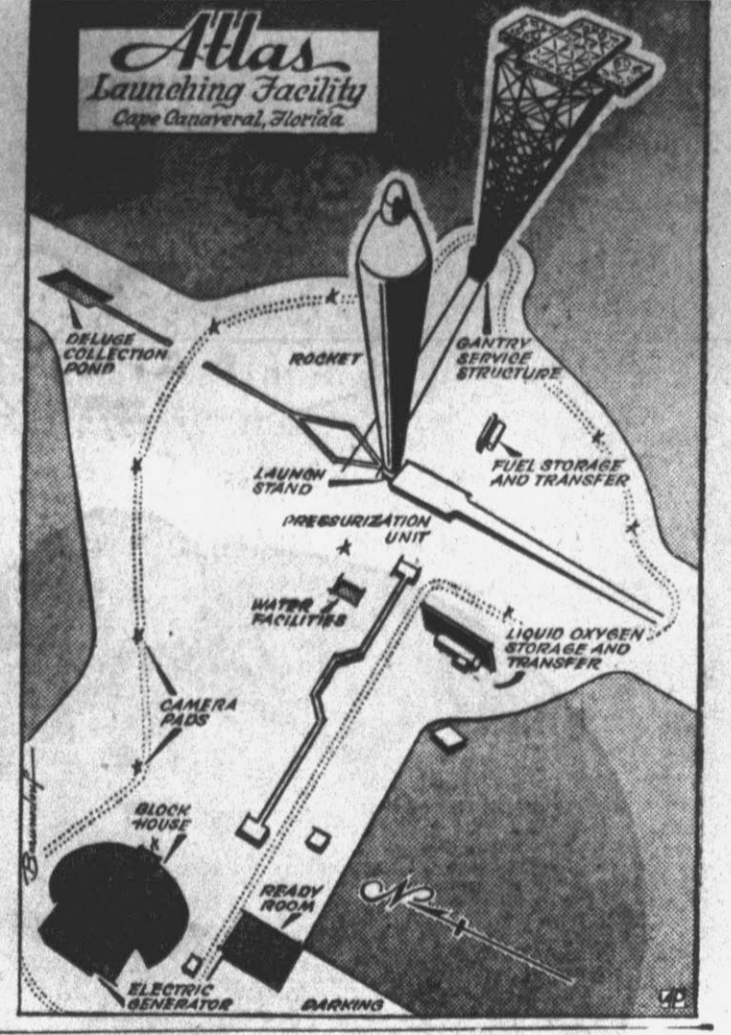

The gantry crane towers 145 feet in the air and rides a track that allows it to be wheeled perhaps 80 feet away during launchings.

In both tests and actual firings, water are one of the first signs the searing flames from the tail of the rocket pour into an exhaust deflector which takes the flames through a large hole in the steel platform, bends them in a concrete channel shaped like a corncob, and pours them out across the sand.

Cooled by Water
Heavy sprays of water are used to cool the deflector and lengthen its life. Clouds of steam caused when the hot exhaust hits this water are one of the first signs the searing flames from the tail of the rocket pour into an exhaust deflector which takes the flames through a large hole in the steel platform, bends them in a concrete channel shaped like a corncob, and pours them out across the sand.

The specialists who prepared the rocket and the scientists who monitor its every move in flight sit out a firing in a blockhouse, protected by more than 10 feet of concrete and steel. "Blockhouses" are no longer shaped like blocks, however. The shelters at the four Atlas launching sites here look like the abandoned shells of some giant breed of turtle.

Rebel Challenges Premier's Claim

SINGAPORE (AP)—An Indonesian rebel leader today challenged Premier Djuanda to back up his charges that Americans are flying for the rebels by naming them.

Col. Joop Warouw asserted that the Jakarta government's charges were made to give President Sukarno an excuse to accept aid from Communist countries. He called on Jakarta to deny that it is not getting Red aid already.

Warouw issued his statement from the North Celebes city of Manado. Formerly Jakarta's military attache in Pelmping, he is the first of several deputy premiers that they are losing their foothold on the island of Sumatra, 1,800 miles to the west.

"Djuanda stated we have Americans in our midst," Warouw said. "Let him name these Americans as we have named those Czechs who have flown as hired killers for Jakarta."

The Sumatran rebel radio in Bukittinggi recently broadcast names and passport numbers of seven Czechs it claimed were flying bombing missions over Sumatra.

Commenting on Djuanda's charges, President Eisenhower said that "soldiers of fortune" usually are attracted to any rebellion but the United States would assure the Jakarta government that its policy is one of strict neutrality.

Djuanda also charged that Nationalist Chinese pilots were flying for the rebels. Warouw said the rebel air force has enlisted some Indonesian-born Chinese. He said the rebels had seven Indonesian pilots and named five Menadonese, all with Indonesian names.

Replying to Djuanda's statement that the central government has ruled out any possibility of asking for foreign personnel to aid it, Warouw charged that 53 Indonesian air force men now are in Czechoslovakia learning "how to kill their brother Indonesians."

The 5,300-ton Italian freighter Aquila, under charter to a California firm for the copra trade, was reported damaged in an air raid yesterday on Ambolna Harbor, in the south Moluccas. The ship's owners in Genoa said all 31 aboard were saved, but the Italian consulate in Singapore reported a Greek ship was en route to Jakarta with 21 survivors and made no mention of any dead or missing.

Notes And Comments On The Hollywood Scene

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene.

The movie industry is taking on a healthier look, thanks to the beefing up of production manpower.

Most heartening news for film workers was the signing of Sol Siegel as production boss at MGM.

One of the reasons for the dereliction of the Culver City lot has been the lack of strong, central authority. It has been proved again and again that a big studio operation can be managed only by one powerful executive, not by a committee.

Siegel is a no-nonsense film veteran whose one abiding purpose has been to make good movies. And he has a string of solid commercial successes behind him — "Kiss and Tell," "Blue Skies," "Letter to Three Wives," "I Was a Male War Bride," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "Three Coins in the Fountain," "There's No Business Like Show Business," "High Society," etc.

Also heartening is the appointment of Sam Briskin to head operations at Columbia, replacing the late Harry Cohn. Briskin is another top-flight executive and producer ("Strategic Air Command," "The Joker Is Wild") who can keep things humming if given full rein.

Twentieth Century - Fox is getting to be a h-- of a place. Among the studio's future releases: "From Hell to Texas," "The Hell-Bent Kid," "The Hell-Raisers."

Vivian Vance is delighted over acquiring the rights to "Guestward Ho" by the author of "Auntie Mame." It's a comedy about a dude ranch in the Southwest, and Viv hails from Albuquerque. She plans to do it as a TV series of her own, produced by her long-time boss Desi Arnaz.

Civil Courts Of N.C. Entered 1958 With Big Backlog Of Untried Cases

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina's civil courts entered 1958 with a huge backlog of untried cases, many of which had been on dockets for months — even years.

This information is contained in a report today by the North Carolina Bar Assn.'s Committee on Improving and Expediting the Administration of Justice. "For most of these cases," it pointed out, "apparently, the existing system offers little hope for prompt determination."

The report was written by Royal G. Shannonhouse of Chapel Hill, assistant director of the Institute of Government, after more than a year's study by the institute's research staff of civil litigation in the state. It deals with congestion and delay in the Superior Court and some of the causes contributing to these conditions.

Members of the institute's staff and a group of field workers analyzed both pending and terminated cases in 44 sample counties. They studied 20,058 cases, but because essential reference dates could not be determined in 836 of them, the research field was reduced in 19,222 cases of which 12,276 were pending and 6,946 were terminated. Sixty-two per cent had been pending more than a year and 20 per cent more than five years, and half of these had been initiated more than 19 months prior to July 1, 1957.

In the 44 counties, which were selected for the study on a basis of geography, population, and economy in order that they might be representative of the whole state, it was found that 1,993 of the pending cases had been on file either less than one month or more than eight years. In half of the remaining cases, time elapsed from the issuance of summons to July 1, 1957, was more than 17 months.

If five years is assumed to be the maximum active life of the majority of civil actions, more than 2,000 of the cases studied were dead cases, cluttering up the docket and files and decreasing the efficiency of clerks' offices and calendaring committees. And, Shannonhouse said, if the proposition is accepted that "delay in final disposition of the average civil case beyond six months after the action is commenced should be considered excessive," there had been excessive delay in the

Nat'l Merit Scholarships Won By 25 N. C. Students

CHICAGO (AP) — Twenty-five North Carolina youths were among more than 1,000 winners announced today in the nation's largest private scholarship program.

The 1958 four-year college scholarships represent a total investment of more than five million dollars by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. and 75 business and industrial corporations, foundations and other groups.

More than 256,000 students, about 17 per cent of the country's entire high school senior enrollment, entered this year's competition as nominees of 13,750 high schools.

The grants vary from a minimum of $100 to $2,000 for each of the four years. The average stipend is about $650 a year.

John M. Stalaker, NMSC president, said about 60 per cent of the 1958 scholarship winners plan to take physical science or engineering courses.

Tar Heel winners, their high schools, the colleges they intend to enter and major fields of study:

Thomas R. Haber, L. H. Edwards High, Asheville, University of Pennsylvania, chemical engineering.

This Big Money-Winner Unlikely To Be Changed

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — Our nomination for big money TV quiz show winner least likely to be spoiled by sudden success this season is a comely brunette named Elfrida von Nardroff.

Next Monday Miss von Nardroff returns to Twenty-One (NBC-TV) with total winnings to date of $146,000.

"How you turn out after suddenly winning a lot of money depends pretty much on what your original image of yourself was," she says.

"Some people value themselves a little less than they should. To achieve some attention and success probably is good for them. On the other hand, there's the type of person who always thought he was more important than he actually is. That's the type who becomes swell-headed by success — and the type, unfortunately, that people notice."

There have not been any big changes in Miss von Nardroff's life since the money began to jangle — and there won't be, if she can help it.

She is 32, has not married — and has no intentions. She has, it's true, received many marriage proposals from total strangers since appearing on Twenty One.

"They're rather pathetic letters from men who don't strike me as gold-diggers. Most of them are in their late 40s and lonely. I believe they just think 'That's a nice girl' and propose marriage."

She shares an apartment in Brooklyn with a lady anthropologist — and has no more intention of moving than she does of marrying. She plans, however, to rent a house on Long Island for the summer.

The one change she anticipates is to quit her job as personnel director of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants sooner than she originally planned. In the fall, as scheduled, she'll devote full time to working for her doctorate in experimental psychology at Columbia. Her goal still is teaching and research.

Inaugurate New President Today

By BRIAN BELL
BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's first democratic government in more than a decade takes over today with the inauguration of President Arturo Frondizi.

The tall, bespectacled lawyer assumes command after 10 years of dictatorial rule by Juan Peron and 2½ years of control by a revolutionary military government.

Stepping down are two heroes of the 1955 revolution, Provisional President (Maj. Gen.) Pedro Aramburu and Vice President (Adm.) Isaac Rojas. They are fulfilling a promise to turn over power to constitutionally elected officials.

Frondizi, leader of the left-of-center Intransigent Radical party, was swept into government house by an electoral landslide Feb. 23. Along with him came a Senate entirely from his party and a healthy majority in the House of Deputies.

The 49-year-old President faces a host of problems, including a runaway cost of living, a dollar deficit, nationalist demands that foreign firms keep away from Argentina and other resources in need of development, and the demands of Peronists — who helped elect him — for a return to political respectability.

Frondizi has promised an amnesty on all political and labor charges. He said he would let Congress decide whether Peron and his top command should be absolved of the common crimes with which they are charged.

The new chief executive also promised that one of his first moves would be a general wage increase for thousands of workers.

Einstein Theory On Gravitation Faces Challenge

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Stanford University scientist today challenged the Einstein theory of gravitation in a report submitted to the National Academy of Sciences.

Dr. L. I. Schiff suggested that gravitational force may come from the constant swappings of minute, weightless particles called neutrinos. Such interchange, he said, may precipitate the attraction that draws bodies together. The gravitational theory advanced by the late Albert Einstein does not involve any interchange of matter between different objects. It attributes gravitational effects largely to geometrical properties of space — and thus contends that smaller moving bodies are pulled toward larger ones.

Schiff said his theory is supported by some experimental evidence but that it is much too early to tell whether it will hold up. "It is for these reasons that theory I regarded as preliminary, incomplete and quite possibly incorrect," he said.

NEW YORK (W) - Oils and steels led an advance in the stock market early this afternoon.
Gains among key issues ranged from fractions to around 2 points. Trading was active and around yesterday's pace.
Motors, metals, and chemicals worked upward. Rails were ahead slightly but lost much of the slip from yesterday's rally.
Some divisions appeared to have momentum left from yesterday's advance, which rolled into new high ground for the year.

Gulf oil rose more than 2 points. Up between 1 and 2 were Amstar, Lukens, Goodrich, Kennecott, and Union Carbide.
Motors picked up about midday after showing little the first two hours. General Motors and Chrysler rose 1/2 point or more.
Also higher were U.S. Steel, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Douglas International Nickel, Allied Chemical, Texas Co., Royal Dutch, U.S. Rubber, Caterpillar, RCA, Anacosta, Baltimore & Ohio, and Johns Manville.
American Natural Gas dropped about 2.

The Associated Press average of 40 stocks at noon was up 30 cents at $108.20. Industrials gained $1.15, rails 20 cents and utilities 10 cents.

Enthusiased Teen-agers Hear Top Men In Space Research

By WILBUR MARTIN
OKLAHOMA CITY (W) - With the uninhibited enthusiasm of a Saturday night pop-hop, 6,000 teen-agers today heard the brains of Air Force space projects tick off man's steps toward space.
"We're just like a salesman getting on the road to sell his product to the people," said Lt. Gen. Clarence S. Irvine, Air Force deputy chief of staff, as he looked at the milling thousands of youngsters pushing into Municipal Auditorium.
Vision and a strong belief that nothing is impossible was urged by the star-studded roster of speakers who plugged for better educational facilities. Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, backgrounded the accomplishments made so far in development of space weapons and satellites.
Schriever said that he is confident the frontiers of space will be conquered just as the mountain men of the Old West conquered this country's untamed frontiers. In a speech prepared for delivery at a noon luncheon, Irvine said he believes in today's youth and is not a member of the "gloom and doom fraternity where youths are concerned, adding:

"Juvenile delinquency is nothing more than a chain reaction stemming from the indifference and ineffectiveness of our adult population."
Irvine said that as progress is made with both piloted and unmanned space vehicles, companion steps would be taken to develop compatible weapons. He even foresaw the obsolescence of nuclear devices now in existence.
In their place, he said ion, photon, infrared, and controlled elliptical mirror devices will become the defense weapons of the future.
Backing the conference was the Frontiers of Science, a private group of Oklahomans interested in boosting science.

Invited to the affair were the top students of 400 state high schools.
For their benefit, the Air Force set up a giant Thor missile, then laid out a series of elaborate exhibits in the municipal auditorium on various phases of space development.
"You know," said Maj. Jesse F. Townsend Jr., officer in charge of the displays, "Russia puts on a show of force on May Day. We do this."

Speaker
Dr. Herman P. Mark (above), internationally known chemist, will speak on impressions of his recent trip to Russia tonight at 8 p.m. at the Teachers' Memorial School Auditorium in Kinston. The public is invited to attend the lecture, which begins at 8:00 p.m., by members of the Eastern North Carolina Section of the American Chemical Society. The Section's regular monthly meeting will be held at Fairfield Recreation Building at 6:30 p.m. The occasion is also the group's annual Ladies' Night.

Oldest Revenue Agent Is Retired

GREENSBORO (W) - The oldest Internal Revenue agent in the state has retired.
Baxter C. Monroe of Rocky Mount, who has worked for the tax department for 40 years, reached the compulsory retirement age of 70 last month. He left after business closed yesterday. His fellow workers will honor him at a dinner Friday night.

Man Found Dead In Home This Morning

FARMVILLE - A Negro man was found dead in his one-room home this morning.
Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson, who investigated, identified the man as Elmer Ward, 50, who lived on George St. in Farmville.
Ward had been in poor health for some time, according to the sheriff.

A portrait of Miss Fullilove, to be placed in the front hall of the school, will be presented, with acceptance by Superintendent J. H. Rose of the Greenville City Schools. Dr. E. E. Aycock, chairman of the Greenville City Board of Education, will also speak at the meeting.
Mrs. Amos Evans, president of the West Greenville PTA, will preside at the meeting.

Extend Deadline On Beer Permits

RALEIGH (W) - State ABC Board Chairman William S. Hunt announced today that the expiration date of all retail beer permits had been extended from midnight April 30 to midnight May 17.
The permits, which allow the retailers to sell malt beverages, must be renewed annually. Hunt explained that a delay in processing the new permits was caused by an unavoidable delay in the printing and numbering of the 1952-53 permits.
His office reported that between 2,500 and 3,000 of the new permits are being mailed out to the retailers today. There are about 7,000 licensed malt beverage dealers in the state.

Returned Fine, Tore Up Tickets

CLEVELAND (AP) - Red-faced traffic officials returned a $10 fine and mumbled apologies to an irate Cleveland motorist, Edward Baker, 38.
Reason for this unusual behavior - the two tickets for which the fine was imposed had been written after Baker's auto was stolen.

Stokes - A Dairy Judging Contest For FFA Chapter Members Was Held At The Charles Forbes Farm Near Stokes Yesterday Afternoon.

Some 24 counties will be represented at this contest.
Members of the winning Bethel team included: Gene Keel, Jerry Williams and Jackie James.
Advisors of the county chapters graded cattle on such qualities as general appearance, milk production, body capacity and mammary system.
Then four representatives from chapters in the county judged the same animals.
Bethel chapter members graded the cattle closest to the advisors' gradings and thus were declared first place winners.
Stokes chapter placed second.
These two chapters will represent Pitt County in a district dairy judging contest to be held May 3 at the Clarence Chappell farm 11 miles northeast of Hertford.
Chappell is the present Star Farmer of America, which is the highest honor which can be bestowed on a Future Farmer.

Driver Cited In Auto Accident

A citation was issued yesterday morning charging Edward Earl Joyner of Greenville Rt. 1 with failure to keep a proper lookout as a result of an accident here.
Joyner's car, investigating officers said, was involved in the collision with another automobile being operated by Mrs. Dorothy K. Sutton of 2105 South Village Drive. Neither driver was hurt.
The accident occurred on Dickinson Avenue around 9:15 a.m.
Damage to Joyner's vehicle was estimated to be $350. Police reported $300 damage to the local woman's car.

Suicide Ruled In Farmer's Death

FARMVILLE - A 43-year-old farmer died this morning after being shot through the head with a .22 caliber rifle. The bullet was apparently self-inflicted.
Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson identified the man as B. M. Baldree, Farmville Rt. 1. He lived between Lang's Crossroads and Marlboro.
The sheriff said members of the family indicated that Baldree had been in ill health and despondent of late.
This morning he left the house around 5:30, relatives told the sheriff. Later his mother went out to call him to breakfast and she found the body.
Sheriff Tyson said the death was a clear case of suicide.
Baldree was married and had two children.
Assisting the sheriff in his investigation were members of the Farmville Police Department.

Bert M. Baldree Funeral Set Friday For Robert S. Ross

Robert S. Ross, 72, died in Taylor Hospital in Washington Wednesday at 5 p.m. He had been ill two years and critically ill two days.
Funeral services will be held at the Wilkerson Chapel Friday at 3:30 p.m. by Elder A. B. Ayers, Primitive Baptist minister of Beargrass. Burial will be in the Ross family cemetery at Stokes.
Mr. Ross was born and spent most of his life at Stokes. He was a farmer until 1933 when he was retired due to ill health. The past two years he had made his home in a nursing home in Washington. He was a member of the Charitable Brotherhood of Rock Island, Ill. and was a charter member at Stokes.
Surviving are a sister, Mrs. B. Frank Fleming of Stokes; a niece, Mrs. R. G. Zehfuss of Baltimore, Md.; and three nephews, Harold R. Fleming of Miami, Fla.; Gerald R. Fleming of Raleigh, and Maurice F. (Pete) Fleming of Greenville.
