MISS AGNES E. FULLILOVE AND SCHOOL . . . Sharing A Lifetime Of Experiences, And A Name

West Greenville School Is Renamed For Its Principal

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Staff Writer

West Greenville School, by that name, ceased to exist last night. It was renamed "The Agnes Fullilove School" in honor of the lady who has been its principal for 25 years. She is only the fifth Greenville teacher to be so honored in the past 55 years.

Ceremonies honoring the veteran teacher, held in the school auditorium, also included presentation of a portrait of Miss Fullilove, to be placed in the front hall of the school. Superintendent J. H. Rose accepted the portrait for the city schools and also announced an October 10, 1957, decision of the Greenville City Board of Education to rename the school.

The program climaxed efforts extending over the past year by the school PTA and other patrons, and the City Board of Education, to pay tribute to the Georgia native who first became a member of the West Greenville faculty 31 years ago. The tribute came in remarks by Rose, PTA President Mrs. Amos Evans, PTA member Mrs. Robert Cramer, faculty member Miss Jane Hadley, student body President Don Evans and Chairman Dr. E. B. Aycock of the Board of Education.

Miss Fullilove also made a brief comment to the group of students, fellow teachers, parents, alumni, school patrons and family members who crowded the school auditorium.

In accepting the portrait from Mrs. Cramer, likened Miss Fullilove's leadership and service to that of a team captain.

"Agnes Fullilove would be the first among us to say 'I didn't do it,' but we all know better," Rose said. "She has contributed more than her share of leadership to this school and this community, and the community spirit around this school can be felt.

"It is a tribute to the 'captain of the team' that this school has taught citizenship and how to make the best of what we have. The work of this woman is a picture of love and devotion to her children."

Soviet Denounces Eisenhower Arctic Inspection Plan In UN

By MAX HARRELSON
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — The Soviet Union today denounced the Eisenhower Arctic inspection plan as a gimmick to get military intelligence in Soviet territory.

A Soviet diplomat said a veto was evident.

Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev told the U. N. Security Council that the Soviet position remained unchanged despite the appeal of U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld.

He took a slap at the secretary general for getting into the fight and made it clear that Hammarskjöld's relations with the Soviet Union had been harmed.

In effect Sobolev tossed back at President Eisenhower: the latter's charge that the Soviet announcement on the suspension of nuclear tests was a gimmick.

Eisenhower told a news conference April 2 that he viewed the Soviet statement as "just a side issue. I think it is a gimmick, and I don't think it is to be taken seriously."

Sobolev did not say specifically how he would vote on the pending U. S. proposal for immediate technical talks on Arctic inspection, but he rejected the plan with such vigor an abstention appeared probable.

He insisted that the whole idea must be referred to a summit conference without preliminary discussion.

Sobolev addressed the 11-nation council after Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge had accepted a Swedish compromise proposal in an effort to avert a Soviet veto. The move, however, apparently failed.

The Soviet delegate declared he could not accept the Swedish amendment which inserted into the original U. S. resolution a reference to eventual discussion of the inspection plan at a summit meeting.

Russia had insisted on the whole issue going to a summit conference without preliminary discussions. He again pressed for this idea.

Some usually well-informed delegates considered it unlikely the Soviets, at today's council meeting, would yield to the support for the U. S. plan voiced by Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld and 9 of the other 10 Council members. These delegates anticipated another Soviet veto if the U. S. resolution came to a vote.

But some U. N. diplomats expected Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev to maneuver to avoid issuing the veto, which is unpopular with other members. These hopes anticipating some sort of Soviet countermove, but gave no indication exactly what they expected.

The U. S. proposal asks the Council to call for immediate discussions by the nations with arctic territory on technical arrangements for aerial inspections against surprise attack. The U. S. resolution was prompted by a Soviet complaint that flights toward the Soviet Union's arctic frontier by U. S. bombers armed with nuclear weapons threatened to touch off another world war.

House Approves Emergency Bill On Jobless Relief

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration's emergency jobless relief bill, safely through the House, today faced expected efforts to broaden it in the Senate.

Its House passage yesterday was a defeat for Democratic leaders, who saw their own program swamped under charges of "dole" and "socialism" and finally shunted aside by a 223-165 vote. The House went on to pass the administration bill 370-17.

Typical Camporee weather will greet Scouts arriving in Greenville today for the 24th annual East Carolina Council Camporee this weekend.

The not-too-understanding weatherman has predicted cloudy and somewhat warmer weather with scattered showers and thunderstorms this afternoon. If his predictions hold true, scattered showers will fall throughout the weekend.

Over 3,000 Scouts and Scouters are expected to camp on the 50-acre Camporee site, located approximately a quarter of a mile from the Greenville city limits. This Camporee is reputed to be the largest annual extended encampment in the United States.

According to reports from officials of the Pitt Scouting District, serving as hosts for the three-day event, plans have already been completed and Scouts and Scouters are arriving and setting up. No actual count as to the number to attend has been received but Carl Knott, Pitt Scout Executive, has announced that 2,700 Scouts have registered for the Camporee with many more expected from the 21-county area.

The event culminates 12 months of planning and preparation by District and Council officials. Greenville was last host to the Camporee in 1948. The Council's first annual Camporee was held here in the 1930's.

Knott stated that he expects an "excellent" turnout. Several other Scouting officials have commented on the Camporee stating they expect this year's event to be one of the best and largest ever staged in the Council.

Approximately 25,000 will visit the site over the weekend.

The Camporee's schedule is as follows, after registration: Friday—5:30 p. m. until 7 p. m., supper hour and cleanup; 7 p. m. until 8 p. m., free time; 8 p. m. until 9:15 p. m., Troop camp fire; 9:30 p. m. until 10 p. m., Morse Code signal by light (scored event); 10 p. m., Toot; 10:15 p. m., Taps. Saturday—7 a. m., Reveille, followed by breakfast meal and cleanup by 8 a. m.; 9 a. m. until 11 a. m., Scoutcraft events will be run off; 11 a. m. until 2 p. m., area and Troop judging, dinner meal and cleanup; 2 p. m. until 4 p. m., three Scoutcraft events will be run off; 4:15 p. m. until 5 p. m., Scoutcraft display and exhibits; 5:30 p. m., Retreat assembly. 6 p. m., Supper and cleanup; 8 p. m., Area camp fires; 9:30 p. m., return to quarters; 9:45 p. m., Toot; and 10 p. m., Taps. Sunday—6:30 a. m., Reveille, breakfast and cleanup; 8:30 p. m., a religious convocation; 9:30 a. m., Awards ceremonies. Following the awards ceremonies the Camporee will officially end.

Special Events A number of special events has been lined up for the visiting Scouts, according to reports from Camporee officials.

Old Soldier Sees No Shooting War

PARIS — Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, NATO's deputy military commander, said today that a shooting world war is "now unlikely," and it's time for the politicians to relax tension.

"The ball is now in the political court," Britain's eminent soldier told a news conference, "and it is up to the politicians to strive to relax tension so that we won't have to spend these sums for our defense arsenal."

Montgomery warned, however, that the Soviets might gain a bloodless victory unless the Atlantic alliance faced its problems on a global basis. He pointed particularly to Western Europe's dependence on oil, food, and other raw materials from abroad.

The British viscount, who is retiring from the NATO command in September, called the press in to discuss a command exercise which ended at NATO headquarters here yesterday. But he ranged over the whole field of the North Atlantic alliance's past, present and future.

Montgomery warned that Soviet pressure on the West is increasing. "Let nobody think," he said, "that having been deterred from starting a hot war by the growing nuclear strength of the West, the Russians will on that account call off the cold war."

The old soldier repeated the standard NATO contention that, if the Russians attack, the West would suffer, "but the aggressor himself would be destroyed." He warned that the Russians have other plans "more subtle and less dangerous to themselves but terribly dangerous for us."

Commissioners To Meet Monday

Pitt County Commissioners will meet Monday morning at 10 o'clock in their regular monthly session. The board will also sit, during the afternoon, as the county's Board of Equalization and Review to hear complaints about tax assessments. Scheduled to be heard are residents of Farmville, Winterville, Grimesland, Fountain, Swift Creek and Griffon townships.

New Statistics Indicate Start Of More Buying

WASHINGTON — New government statistics indicate people may be starting to buy more. This could be a hopeful economic sign.

The Federal Reserve Board and the Commerce Department reported a March pickup in business at department stores and wholesale establishments. But other reports issued yesterday showed the key auto industry still running in low gear.

At the same time the Treasury was rushing income tax refunds to millions of Americans in hopes it would help bring about economic recovery.

The Eisenhower administration's plan for added unemployment compensation moved ahead in Congress. The House passed it 370-17 yesterday after rejecting a broader proposal by Democrats.

In reporting on March sales, the Federal Reserve said this activity "recovered substantially from the low level of February," but still were below March a year ago. And in the four week period ended April 26 sales also were below the corresponding span in 1957.

The Commerce Department said wholesale sales in March rose seasonally 8 per cent from February but still were 9 per cent below March 1957.

One possibly significant factor was that durable goods sales in the wholesale field rose 10 per cent from February. Nondurables showed a 7 per cent gain in the month.

Another Federal Reserve report said installment debt declined by $80 million dollars in March, taking account of seasonal factors, attributed almost wholly to a drop in new credit for auto buying.

In Detroit, the nation's auto manufacturers reported that 316,503 passenger cars were produced in April against 548,662 a year ago. Over-all, the auto makers said they built nearly 800,000 fewer cars in the first four months this year than in the like period last year.

The Treasury said that by April 24 it had mailed $2,452,000,000 in income tax refunds—35 per cent more than a year ago. Nearly all refund checks are to be out by mid-May—about two weeks earlier than usual.

Meanwhile, Sen. Clark (D-Pa.) and Secretary of Commerce Weeks quarreled over figures on joblessness in April.

Clark said Weeks, in reporting a drop of 78,000 in unemployment last month, was not candid and that President Eisenhower "compounded the lack of candor, perhaps inadvertently" in commenting on those figures. Clark contended that an adjustment of the data for seasonal factors would show that unemployment increased by 372,000 over March.

Weeks said Clark was "playing politics with the plight of the jobless." He said Clark overlooked "the fact . . . that 600,000 more people were at work in April—a total of 82,900,000—and 78,000 fewer were unemployed."

The Agriculture Department said there has been a 21 per cent increase this year in the number of needy persons receiving free foodstuffs from government-owned surplus stocks. A total of 4,370,000 persons were getting such help compared with 3,441,000 a year ago.

Old Hawaiian Style Adopted By Teens

Wendell W. Smiley, librarian at East Carolina College, will accept the manuscript from Mrs. Wechter in a scene dealing with East Carolina college writers. The work will be placed in the collections of the Joyner Memorial Library on the campus.

A fashion that's been going strong for 100 years in Hawaii is going to the wardrobes of today's teen-agers. It's the muumuu, a comfortable loosely built gown, free of zippers, buttons and snaps. Just pull it over your head and swimsuit, wear it lounging around the house, wear it at your next record party.

For summer you'll be right in style if you make your muumuu of some of the delightful floral prints in sun-kissed or rose arbor hues. Make it of any light-weight fabric, suitable to the conditions in which it will live. Make it of silk for summer evening parties, giving the chemise a run for its success. Make it of cotton for the beach or lounging.

How to make it? It's the one easy sewing project you could embark on. Use the sewing center pattern. If you like, or if you are an old hand with the needle, try your hand at without a pattern.

Start by measuring from shoulder to bottom of hem, adding eight inches for a double hem. Multiply this measurement by three (one length for the front of the garment and two lengths for the back.) Add 3-4 yards for sleeves. One-half yard of contrasting fabric will be needed for yoke and cuffs.

Full girls might like the classic puff sleeve, with an elastic strip inside the cuff-top to permit sleeve to be worn three-quarters or above elbow length, admitting a maximum of air circulation. Short girls may prefer to omit the sleeve entirely.

Out down the center of the front fabric length on the straight of the goods. Front side seams are tapered outward from armholes to hem. The two lengths for the back are likewise tapered. The major segments of the muumuu body resemble four pie-shaped pieces, with an off-size bite taken out at the yoke line, and with one edge of each on the straight of the material.

The gathering of the body of the muumuu at the yoke line is easily done by setting the sewing machine for a long stitch which is easily gathered up. Arrange front fullness to fall freely over bust. Back gathers are distributed across center back.

Let your imagination run riot if you like when it comes to decorative stitching on the yoke. Try a bold domino pattern or satin stitch a graceful vine and leaves. Cut a fabric motif and applique to the yoke. If you do the decorative stitching at the yoke, line your muumuu yoke with peltion.

It's an easy project whether you are neophyte with pattern or girl wonder at the machine. And don't be surprised if your friends greet you with "Aloha," in recognition of your real Hawaiian look.

Mrs. Wechter and her husband, Robert W. Wechter, Greensboro teachers, are graduates of East Carolina. Both hold the bachelor's and the master's degrees from the college.

Mrs. Wechter's "Taffy of Torpedo Junction" is a story with a setting on the North Carolina Coast during World War II. Published in 1957, it received an award from the North Carolina Chapter of the American Association of University Women as the best work of juvenile fiction for that year. Mrs. Wechter has twice received awards from Freedoms Foundation for her success in teaching the American way of life to school children.

'Moon Is Blue' Is The Best

By MIKE KATSIAS
 "The Moon Is Blue" is without a doubt the best comedy produced on the East Carolina campus in quite some time. F. Hugh Herbert's sexy comedy loses little of its original interpretation at the skillful hands of co-directors Del Driver and Tommy Hull.

The play is being produced by the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity at the college and its proceeds will go toward a scholarship fund for a needy freshman student next year. Tonight will be the final performance of its three day run.

By all standards the three-act offering is a complete success!

Ball Of Fire
 Handles Teens
 By DOROTHY ROE
 Associated Press Women's Editor
 BRUSSELS (AP)—Anyone who wants advice on how to handle teen-agers is invited to observe the methods of Mrs. Nadeyn Florito, in charge of the 200 American girls and boys who are acting as guides at the United States pavilion of the Brussels World's Fair.

I watched this human ball of fire, during the hectic hour before the official opening of the American pavilion, as thousands of eager visitors stood in the cold outside the great circular glass building, and hundreds of staff workers dashed about in frenzied fashion inside.

"Get your dust cloths, girls!" ordered Mrs. Florito. "We have to get everything shined up, you know. But be careful and don't get your clothes dirty."

"Mary, my dear, I want you to be at the information desk. Why didn't you tell me you speak five languages? Bob, you speak Dutch, don't you? You angel. You'll be at the information desk with Mary. Do you have your maps and our lists of the exhibits? Fine."

"Now remember, as soon as you finish dusting, each of you must be at his post, before the doors open. Don't forget your white gloves. Don't forget smile."

There's no doubt that the girls and boys think Mrs. Florito is wonderful. She's a cross between a top sergeant and Zsa Zsa Gabor, a combination that seems irresistible to the young.

The youngsters are quartered in comfortable, modern apartments near the fair grounds, two girls or two boys to an apartment. They're a cross-section of young America, and the prize exhibit at the United States pavilion.

the program you're told the entire action of the play takes place in New York City within 24 hours in springtime—the fine pace by the cast makes this perfectly believable.

It all begins when Donald Gresham (Del Driver) meets a cute blonde, Patty O'Neill (Doris Robbins), on the observation tower of the Empire State Building and proceeds to make the customary pass. A hilarious and saucy conversation results in acceptance on the part of Patty to visit Don's bachelor apartment.

Not long after arriving at the apartment, David Slater (Tommy Hull) makes his entrance while Don has gone to the neighborhood store for some "ham and eggs." Hull's dry wit and changing expressions garner many of the show's best laughs.

The play wouldn't be complete without an intruder, so Patty's father (Larry Craven) obliges with a surprise and not too happy entrance for Don Gresham.

Reviewing the performance—Del Driver turns in another outstanding performance to match his colonel role in "Teahouse." On stage, the veteran Playhouse actor clearly establishes his role in the eyes of the audience. Driver shows great promise with his willingness to handle so well the variety of roles he has been called upon to do.

Doris Robbins is a newcomer to campus productions, but performs like a seasoned trouper as the virtuous Patty. The delicate portrayal of the nice girl who speaks so easily about sex keeps the audience continuously in laughter.

Sad to say, for Tommy Hull this will probably be his last dramatic appearance before departing via graduation. This reviewer has taken immense pleasure in following this actor's career while at East Carolina. He is the picture of confidence in his role and the audience seldom leaves his effortless grasp from his first entrance. Hull lends polish and the final touch to make "The Moon Is Blue" roar success.

Larry Craven pulls off one of the best entrances of the play as he bursts in on the apartment scene between Driver and Robbins and proceeds to lower the boom on poor Driver.

The sets and scenery are handled superbly by Mary Margaret Kelly and her staff. All the others from costumes, lighting, make-up blend well to firmly convince this viewer that without a doubt "The Moon Is Blue" is the best comedy performance on the East Carolina campus handled by strictly Playhouse performers during the past year.

In closing, this reviewer urges you not to miss the final performance this evening at 8 o'clock in McGinnis Auditorium.

Seniors Giving Art Exhibition

An exhibition of work by Sydna Cash of Winston-Salem and Ann Carol Hughes of Pollockville, art students at East Carolina College, is now being shown in the Austin building on the campus and will be open to the public through May 9. Both artists are seniors scheduled for graduation in May.

Miss Cash is the first art student at the college to do her senior art exhibition in ceramics. Emphasis is placed on wheel-thrown pottery. Several coil-built pieces are also included.

Miss Hughes is represented in the exhibition by a series of drawings done in India ink wash technique. Six of the drawings are scenes in and near Pollockville, her home town. Six other pictures are portrait sketches.

Miss Cash attended Maryville College in Tennessee before entering East Carolina in 1955. She has acted as secretary and vice president of the student art club at the college here and has participated in the work of the East Carolina Playhouse, campus dramatic club. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Tom D. Cash, 403 Bethesda Rd., Winston-Salem.

Miss Hughes received honorable mention for her oil painting "Main Street, Pollockville" in the 1956 State Student Art Show at State College, Raleigh. At East Carolina she is one of the seniors chosen this year to represent the school in the national yearbook "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." She has served as president of the art club, art editor of the college annual, and chief marshal.

STRAWBERRY ROYALE
Ingredients: 1 envelope unflavored gelatin, 1 cup cold water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/2 cup instant nonfat dry milk powder, 1/2 cup very hot water, 1-3 cup frozen orange juice concentrate (undiluted), 1 package (10 ounces) sliced frozen strawberries (thawed), whole fresh strawberries for garnish (if desired).

Method: Sprinkle gelatin over 1/2 cup of the cold water and allow to stand to soften. Put remaining 1/2 cup cold water, the lemon juice and instant nonfat dry milk powder into a deep bowl. Beat with rotary beater (hand or electric) until stiff, about 8 minutes; refrigerate. Continue at once as follows so whipped milk will not have to stand long. Add hot water to softened gelatin; stir until dissolved. Stir in orange juice concentrate. Place over ice cubes and a little cold water and stir constantly until mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Stir in thawed strawberries, including juice. Fold in whipped milk. Turn into 1 1/2-quart serving dish or 8 individual serving dishes. Chill until firm, about 4 hours. At serving time garnish top with fresh strawberries (if used). Makes 8 servings.

Sew Up An Heirloom For Your First Baby

CHRISTENING DRESS—More precious when made at home, this dress, slip, bonnet and booties were designed by Thomas Wilson.

AP Newsfeatures
NO MATTER how practical the rest of your baby's wardrobe may be, he deserves the laiciest, daintiest christening dress you can produce. Sometimes a family heirloom is available for this occasion, but if not, you can sew your own heirloom, starting a new tradition.

Thanks to modern fabrics, the most delicate baby dress now can be dunked, drip-dried and put away for the next christening. Here are some tips from experts at your local sewing center as to how to use new fabrics and techniques.

Select a standard pattern for a christening dress, which probably will include directions for slip, bonnet and booties. Use sheer white nylon for the dress, and select dainty but inexpensive nylon lace for the trimming. You can buy lace heading complete with color-fast nylon ribbon at most variety stores.

When stitching on nylon sheer, be sure to use nylon thread, a size 11 needle, lighter-than-normal tension and pressure on your machine and tiny stitches, 15 or 20 to the inch. Test stitch on a scrap of fabric, and if it has a tendency to pucker, back it with a strip of tissue paper which can be torn off later.

Use French seams for the construction, or finish plain seams with zigzag stitching. The lace insertion also is easily applied with

Architect-Designer Sees Newness Unwelcome In Homes

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
AMERICAN PEOPLE are just as much of a paradox in their home furnishings as they are in other ways. The entire development of present trends indicates that, says architect-designer George Nelson. "There are two separate trends in furnishings that contradict each other," he says. "We have a trend to conservative use of space in storage units. But at the same time chairs have become more prominent, taking up more space than ever—bucket chairs, lounge chairs and coconut chairs, for instance, strong in shape and design."

SCULPTURED GROUP—The swagged desk has tapered steel tubing for legs and a white plastic top. The chair is laminated wood. Designed by George Nelson.

This contradictory trend, says Nelson, is evident throughout the home. In the kitchen, he points out, there is a move to plug-ins or portables, and on the other hand to built-ins.

The idea of the storage system, he says, is to give a built-in look to an area that isn't built-in. "Give the American housewife something that looks like what it is not" and she'll buy it, he says.

"People do not really want anything different," says Nelson. "They just want something that looks different, but isn't." After 12 years of designing homes and their furnishings, Nelson has come to the conclusion that people are creatures of habit, and do not welcome improvement.

A handsome collection of bird feeders Nelson designed a few years ago didn't go at all. "And you know why," he asks, "because people don't want originals, they prefer copies. The feeders are being copied now and they'll probably sell."

Nelson's new group of furniture incorporates steel, wainut and plastic in simple structure. He uses wide, graceful curves of steel tubing for legs of table, desk and chairs. His furniture is delicately scaled for small homes and apartments.

His home desk provides filing area, a place for typewriter, with a drop leaf writing surface. His storage headboard has a lift-lid storage compartment, a padded panel and swing-out reading lamp.

Today's Farm Women Must Be Versatile
Family living has for as long as home demonstration work has been in existence been one of the major areas of emphasis, because the home demonstration club women feel that it's their place as wife and mother to keep the family happy. In order to do this she must be a versatile homemaker.

Mrs. Worth Rich, Pender County home demonstration club member, is one of this year's winners in the Home Demonstration Leadership Awards Program. She feels that the home demonstration program offers farm women the opportunity to develop her versatility.

She writes: "Living in this whirlwind age today's farm woman cannot be concerned only of what Johnny will wear today, or what she'll have for dinner. She must be as versatile in business as her husband; she must be a homemaker, community leader, yet still find time to look her attractive self for her family."

"She must be a professional in many fields, such as farm manager, budgeter, mechanic, electrician, nurse, dietitian, family counselor, seamstress, decorator, landscaper, beautician, entertainer, and be an expert in all the big and little things in the home. She must also prove her architectural abilities by planning or remodeling her home."

"The farm woman lives in the country as a result of the business decision of the family. Technical advancements have brought the world to her family room, and the farm woman's world closer to the city life. There are many tangible and intangible values of rural community living to be learned from the farm woman; for a rich family life, where pleasures and responsibilities are shared, is one of life's greatest blessings."

"The rural homemaker accepts the fact that all families have problems and her family life depends on how she manages the situation. The significance of the rural family life programs is portrayed through the knowledge that more families are seeking the countryside for relaxation."

"It is my sincere feeling," Mrs. Rich concludes, "that the Home Demonstration Family Life programs have been instrumental in the home, in churches, and community organizations in instilling a better understanding of how family living should be. And Home Demonstration clubs stand on the threshold to help 'Today's Home Build Tomorrow's World'—which is the theme of this year's National Home Demonstration Week, May 4-10."

Speaker Tells Of Year-Long Trip
BETHEL—Mrs. J. H. Moore from the State Department in Raleigh was guest speaker at the Sally Tucker Book Club meeting Friday afternoon when clubbers were entertained by Mrs. Wadie Ward.

Mrs. Moore, who traveled for one year in the interest of Health and Physical Education, took the group with her to Burma, Greece and Turkey and then back home by use of slides and description. She discussed ways of living and customs of dress of other people.

She also displayed costumes and articles she brought to America from Burma. She stated that in Burma the boys and men dressed alike, and the girls and women dressed alike. Mrs. Moore pointed out that the majority of the doctors are women.

On her return home she made pictures of the flower gardens in Williamsburg and Raleigh and pictures of the Capitol. She presented these slides.

Mrs. Moore was introduced to the group by Mrs. Edna E. Baker of Farmville who is the Supervisor of Pitt County schools.

At the conclusion of the program the hostess served chicken salad on lettuce, cucumber sandwiches, open face sandwiches, pickles, cherry pie a la mode and cold drinks to the 20 members present.

GAVE HER A RASH
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Producer Jonie Taps, 49, went into temper tantrums almost daily, his wife, actress Ellie Kent, testified in winning a divorce. Miss Kent, 28, said she suffered nervous rashes after her husband's outbursts.

National Home Demonstration Week is May 4-10, 1958.

Space Tales For Bedtime

Today's generation of toddlers may remember their bedtime stories as space tales instead of barnyard fables.

One of the newer storybooks for small fry, "The Littlest Satellite" by Ines Hogan (E.P. Dutton) is a story of space science keyed to the small child level.

Quizzy is a gnome who lives underground. He is always asking questions of his elders, who are privileged to visit, above the ground. When Quizzy finally gets out into the daylight and sees the moon, the questions come thick and fast. The overwhelmed little gnome had never been able to visualize it in its true beauty. From there on little Quizzy learns more and more about space, and pretty soon all the gnomes work night and day to build their own satellite.

The real thrill for the gnomes comes when their big shiny rocket launches the little satellite into orbit.

We're Proud, And Also Concerned

The school systems of Greenville and Pitt County can point with pride to the fact that two of their students were among the 25 high school seniors of North Carolina to receive National Merit Scholarships this year.

Honors which have come to Mary Ann Bryant of Greenville and Paul Hart Cox of Farmville are tributes not only to these two outstanding students, but to their teachers and schools.

While Pitt County has every reason to be proud of the accomplishments of these two students, the distribution of the 25 merit scholarships which came to North Carolina should be a cause of concern to the school systems of the eastern part of the state.

Of the 25 National Merit Scholarships which were awarded to North Carolina seniors this year, only five went to students in schools from Raleigh eastward. The other 20 scholarships were awarded to seniors of high schools west of Raleigh.

Is that indicative of the calibre public school program being carried out in this section of the state? Is it indicative of the discrepancies in the programs of instructions being offered by public schools in the various sections of the state?

Since the scholarships were awarded on the basis of students' achievement in nation-wide competition,

Welfare Work Short Of Funds

WELFARE—The welfare departments in the 100 counties in North Carolina are falling short of an "adequate" job in meeting general assistance needs to the tune of about three quarters of a million dollars a month. This estimate is based on a survey recently completed by the State Board of Public Welfare.

Disturbed by reports of a number of isolated instances of real suffering, the State office sent questionnaires to each of the 100 county welfare superintendents. Key questions asked were: "Is your county providing sufficient funds . . . to make sure that no one in the county suffers for lack of food, clothing, shelter and other necessities? How many cases do you estimate there are in your county who need financial help beyond what they are now receiving? What is the average amount of money which each case would need over a month's time to cover minimum subsistence requirements?"

To the first question 78 counties answered with an emphatic "No." In answer to the other questions 75 counties gave estimates of need, aggregating 10,085 families in need of help they are not getting in a total amount of $667,111 a month. (That is based on the month of March). Projecting the estimates for the 75 counties to the 100 counties in the state, assumption seems justified that there are some 12,000 families in need of a total of $800,000 a month, computed on basis of $66.15 per family of five. In nearly every instance the superintendents suggested their estimates were low.

The situation has been aggravated by an extremely hard winter, at a time when the revolution in the agricultural economy and the general business recession put a lot of people out of work. The need is not confined to any area, but shows up in bad spots all over.

AGGRAVATED—Eastern farm communities and Piedmont industrial centers are suffering most, with less need indicated in the mountains. The main reason for the existing condition is insufficient money, but Federal and State regulations preclude meeting some of the need from welfare appropriations if the money were available. The welfare funds are entirely distinct from unemployment insurance, and in most instances welfare money cannot be used for families of employable men—however zealous they may be in wanting and seeking work.

Indirectly the unemployment situation does put a burden on welfare. This is particularly true in cases where working men have helped to support aged relatives, although not legally dependents. When paychecks stopped the men could no longer help their needy kin. In fact, they were unable to provide needed food and shelter for their immediate families or to keep the children decently clothed for school.

ALLEVIATED—Advent of spring will reduce needs for heating and the requirements for clothing and shoes—especially for kids—will be less. There is some prospect that food requirements will be less, by reason of garden plots and availability of fruits and vegetables. The March estimates of need may be high for the May-August season. Even so, the present rate of about 50 cents per day per person for all purposes—food, clothing, shelter (including lights and water), medicine, etc., is pitifully inadequate.

Of course, there are some spongers, some people on relief rolls who are not of good character. There are able-bodied men who do not want to work, and who dissipate money allotted their families for old age and dependent children assistance. These instances are cited and paraded as argument against increasing welfare appropriations for any purpose.

CHILDREN—A hungry child can be just as hungry, whether born in or out of wedlock, and whether the daddy is a gentleman or a bum. An old person needs food and care, without regard to the moral standards of a son or daughter. There isn't enough money in welfare funds to afford minimum needs for these people. The welfare folks have found from experience that in the overall distribution of funds available more good is accomplished under the present plan of holding families together, even with the waste and actual stealing in some instances, than to put the children and old folks in foster homes or institutions. The welfare program is a three-way cooperative activity of Federal State and county governments. While there are Federal and State standards which must be met, primary responsibility for "policing" administration rests upon the county authorities.

UPPED—This is budget-making time for the counties. Between now and June 30 every board of county commissioners must prepare a budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. There may be a chance for more Federal money in the budget for 1958-59. There is no prospect of more State money, unless the 1958 Legislature makes an emergency appropriation, because North Carolina operates on a biennial budget, which was adopted by the 1957 Legislature for the next fiscal year. Information filtering in from the counties is that welfare budgets will be upped in amount because of the growing population and higher living costs, money available for individual cases of need will be as inadequate as now.

In fact, there is some danger that more people and higher costs may put such demand upon available funds that the already meager individual allocations may have to be further reduced in terms of supplying the need.

It must be concluded that the number of scholarships granted to North Carolina seniors reflects the standing of the state's school system in some degree. It follows that the distribution of the scholarships throughout North Carolina would reflect the calibre of public school programs being carried on in those sections.

Educational leaders and local citizens from Raleigh eastward might well review their public school program in quest of some clue which would indicate why only 20 per cent of the North Carolina scholarships were granted to seniors in their section of the state.

If a reason or reasons can be pinpointed, they may well prove a proper starting point in a new program to improve the public school program of this part of the state.

An Honor For City To Host The Boy Scouts

During today more than 3,000 visitors have come to Greenville for a week-end which will be one of the most exciting in their young lives.

They are Boy Scouts of the East Carolina Council who today began their annual three-day camporee here.

Highlight of the year for most Boy Scouts, the three-day camp here affords the boys an opportunity to put into practice the training they have received as Scouts.

It is an honor for Greenville to be host this year to Boy Scout from the Eastern part of the state. The small tent city of boys which sprung up today just south of the city limits on highway 43 is the result of a great deal of work by members of the Pitt Boy Scout District. Even before the camporee opened today, Scout officials from other counties of this section hailed the facilities as among the best ever provided for such a Boy Scout event.

The Reflector joins in welcoming the more than 3,000 Scouts and Scouters who have come to Greenville for this event. We also commend the members of the Pitt District whose efforts over many months have made possible this East Carolina Council Boy Scout camporee.

Supreme Court Curb Is Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress will blaze if the bill approved Wednesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee gets out on the floor for debate. But the chances are that it won't reach the floor.

The measure would curb the Supreme Court and undo the effects of some of its decisions on Communist cases. Southern Democrats, led by Sen. Eastland (Miss.), and conservative Republicans, led by Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.), teamed up to okay it.

This bill has four parts. Here's a rundown, with background.

1. In 1957 the Supreme Court freed John T. Watkins, who had been found guilty of contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions in the investigation—a question put to him by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. He appealed his conviction to the court.

The court ruled a congressional committee's investigating power is not unlimited; that it can't ask just any kind of question; and a witness can't be held in contempt of Congress for not answering a question that is not pertinent to the investigation.

The bill says: A man convicted of contempt of Congress—for refusing to answer a question he considers not pertinent or for not answering the question if the question asking the question says it is pertinent.

This would give any congressional committee the enormous power of a hunting license. In short: any committee could ask any kind of question, pertinent or not, so long as it said the question was pertinent.

In 1957 the court also ruled a stage does not have the right to bar a man from law practice simply because at some previous time he had been a Communist party member. The court rules on this issue:

One involved man just graduating from the University of New Mexico law school, the other just graduating from the law school of the University of Southern California. Both had been blocked from practicing law by the examining bar committees of their states.

One of the men admitted having been a Communist years before; the other balked at the question as to whether he had been a Communist. A string of witnesses testified to the good character of both men. But the bar committees decided both were questionable characters.

They appealed to the Supreme Court under the 14th Amendment.

Strength For Today

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
USE DAILY
A strike ended some months ago, and the headlines in practically every newspaper declared that the settlement had come as the result of earnest and protracted prayer on the part of believing people. The negotiators engaged, week after week, in a tug of war. There was no settlement in view, and the prospects of violence were becoming appallingly evident.

Then someone decided that this affair, which affected the life of a whole community, was a fit subject for community prayer. The churches got together, and earnest people in large numbers met regularly and carried to God the problems which were setting employer against employee, neighbor against neighbor. We needn't go any further. You know the results—not only a strike settled but conditions in the community bettered. The people of the community now became real neighbors of one another. The spirit of the Lord now had a chance to operate in the lives and amid the problems of men.

Why is it that we so jealously try to keep religion within the four walls of the sanctuary? Religion is something God intends us to use in our everyday life. It is not one of life's decorations but one of life's necessities; not an elective course in the school of life, but a required course.

Sudden Day Of Death

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—There usually are only two days in a modern office.

One is pay day, when life is wonderful. The other is any day on which you aren't paid, and life seems ordinarily hopeless or hopelessly ordinary, depending on your mood.

Pay day is usually easy to get through. The work goes briskly, because one knows that at twilight he will have a full pocket, as he sallies forth to pursue his private dream. Tomorrow freedom—tomorrow the mortgage payment.

But on every day that isn't pay day, one feels the burden of effort. He knows no release from the war of living. His dreams seem impossible. The routine of life appears endless, and anyone who whistles out loud is frowned on as a traitor to mankind.

"Will I have to go on like this forever?" a man asks himself silently, and the fellow workers around him loom more as fellow prisoners in a common cell. But there is a third kind of day in an office—the day someone dies. As one grows older, it seems to come more often.

You come to work one morning, and instead of the usual greeting—"What's new?"—there is, for a change, something really new:

"Did you hear so-and-so died last night?"

Who was so-and-so? It makes no difference what his rank was in life, whether he was an executive or a secretive human zero. In death he suddenly stands out larger. For one day he is the most important man in the office.

You may have worked 30 feet from him for 20 years and never even noticed the color of his eyes. All of sudden, through the pooling of office memories, you learn a lot about him.

Everyone has a memory: "Only last week I heard him say in the washroom he never felt better in his life."

"He's got three kids, but two of them are raised."

"He only had four more payments to go on his house."

"Remember during the last economy drive, when they would not buy a new pencil sharpener, he got so mad he went out and bought one himself?"

"He always worried about ulcers, and then just to think—it was his heart all the time."

"Know what his hobby was?"

"H-m-m. He was only a private in the last war."

As his associates exchange their memories, you get an insight into what is worrying them—the diseases they fear, the dreams unachieved, the problems at home, the panic thought that life, dull as it often seems, should be taken from them without their permission.

The office, no longer a forlorn cell, is a warm shelter. The daily rut all at once becomes a prized thing no one wants taken from him, certainly not by death. All wish again the solace of the common place.

They take up a collection for flowers for the one who has gone, and someone is appointed to write a letter of sympathy from "his friends at the office."

Everyone looks at his desk—somehow it now stands out from the others—and wonders who tomorrow . . . or the next day . . . or the day after . . . will be sitting at that desk doing his job.

"Why don't they ever hang crepe on a guy's desk when he dies?" someone asks. But they never do.

He is gone, but the work hasn't. The human herd, lowing, turns its horns toward the future and plods on.

There has just been another death in the office.

By DON SCHLIENZ Somebody Else's Story

There they were . . . a jumbled little stack of old Army orders, warrants, records, carbon copies of one thing and another; an immunization record and discharge papers.

The dates on some went back to 1941.

Forgotten memories were stirred by the names, places and dates . . . all so important at one time, and now shadows.

Places, like Fort Barrancas, Jackson Barracks, New Orleans Port of Embarkation, San Francisco Port of Embarkation.

And ships . . . the transports Algonquin, David C. Shanks, the Kota Baroe; and their sister-ships who were frequently tied up at the same dock, or at least nearby.

Generals and Colonels I never knew signed some of the orders; but there were also the names of men and boys with whom I was associated in a tightly-knit team for months that merged into years. Good friends, many of them; others whose paths while in service only briefly crossed mine. Today I could tell you what became of only three or four of them.

Some of the names briefly recalled faces and incidents that were milestones of the war years. Good times; bad times; the long long times of just waiting.

Each sheet of paper, from a badly worn draft classification card to the discharge ultimately granted at Fort Bragg, had its own story to tell. Each was scanned in hopes of filling in more details of a clouded memory.

In some ways it was almost like re-reading a story about someone else.

I looked in vain for one, just one of several "Shellback" certificates (issued those who cross the equator); but no luck. Never did have much luck with keeping that item.

On my fourth equator-crossing I took time out to watch the customary hazing on the forward deck. The "committee" demanded a certificate and I couldn't produce . . . result: an enthusiastic application of soot, fish oil and salt water. The victim retreated to shower and put on fresh clothes . . . emerged into the passageway and was promptly snared again by the after-deck "committee" for a repeat performance. I never trusted a committee again.

In the telling, something about that day seems fresh and alive again; but in an hour it too will have rejoined the shadow life.

The hard part to accept about all this is that events of only sixteen, seventeen and eighteen years ago no longer seem real. The people, the things, the happenings . . . they were all very real, then.

Today? They're all more like something I read about . . . a long time ago.

Other Editors Saying---
Justice Or Profit

(Washington Daily News)
Are we supposed to operate our courts in North Carolina with the idea of meting out justice or making a profit?

The court system in North Carolina is now under study with the idea in mind of improving justice. Reports from several sections of North Carolina seem to place stress upon the profit being made by this court or that court.

We are told that the average Superior court loss for North Carolina is about $10,500 per year, while Recorders' courts generally show a profit. It is fine that a profit is realized, but making such a profit is not the primary function of any court. Dispensing justice fairly and properly is the main business of any court.

When some official points to the fact that a certain court makes a lot of money, he seldom points with pride to the quality of justice meted out there. He might well do so, but instead he seems to choose the profit angle with which to measure the quality of the court.

The defendant who goes into court charged with some crime does not for one moment think in terms of how much the court loses or makes. He is concerned with only one factor—that of getting justice at the hands of the law.

We are not implying that a court which makes money is not concerned with justice. That is far from true, and we are sure of that. But to place the emphasis on how much money is made rather than how much justice is meted out is to give the average layman the wrong impression of our court system.

We wish our court system could be self-sustaining at all levels. That is not possible under our present setup, and it will not be possible under any setup, we feel.

It is very natural to assume that a day in Superior court cost much more than a day in a Recorder's court. Juries, witnesses, court reporters, and many other personnel present in Superior court naturally make for higher costs of operating the Superior courts.

When we come to the point of judging the value of any court, be it a court of a Justice of Peace or a session of the North Carolina Supreme court, the main consideration in mind should be that of justice and not of profit.

It would be a sad day in our state if the people look upon a court's value purely in terms of how much profit is made or how much loss is incurred. A court can make a profit and dispense justice fairly. By the same token, a court can lose money and dispense justice fairly.

It is our feeling that the one and only yardstick by which to judge any court in our state or anywhere else is that of justice. When we try to measure it with any other yardstick we are doing ourselves and each other a grave injustice.

A court profit is all well and fine, but it is not the primary function of the court. Justice pure and simple is the guiding factor.

Now Living In Service Economy

By ELMER ROESSNER
Don't look now, but you aren't living in a manufacturing economy at all. You are living in a service economy.

It has long been a popular idea that the United States was originally an agricultural nation that transformed itself into a manufacturing nation.

True, the country started out as an agricultural colony; in colonial times an estimated 85 per cent of the population was engaged in producing farm crops.

Later manufacturing developed mightily. If any nation, was ever an industrial nation, it was the United States. It can still out-produce the factories of any other country.

But it has more of a service economy than a manufacturing economy now. And failure to recognize this fact may slow up efforts to crack the recession.

FIGURES TELL THE STORY
Service, of course, includes more than the operation of cleaning shops, dance studios and catering establishments. It includes housing, travel, movie admissions, hospital care and most government functions. The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago recently estimated that $ out of every $5 of personal spending goes for services. Service outlays, it estimated, moved from 31 per cent of the consumer dollar in 1947 to about 38 per cent last year.

Employment figures confirm the facts of the situation. In March, there were 5,072,000 workers in agricultural enterprises, and 50,170,000 employed in non-agricultural establishments.

There were also several million others, such as the self-employed who do not fall into either category.

LESS THAN THIRD IN MANUFACTURING
Of the 50,170,000 in nonagricultural establishments, 15,407,000 were engaged in manufacturing and 769,000 more in mining.

The remainder includes: 2,405,000 in contract construction, which involves some manufacturing and some servicing; 3,934,000 in transportation and public utilities, almost entirely service; 11,229,000 in retail and wholesale trade, almost entirely service; 2,346,000 in finance, real estate and insurance, entirely service; 6,435,000 in hotels and lodging places, laundries, cleaning and dyeing plants and miscellaneous establishments providing personal services; and 7,546,000 in government, concerned with serving the public.

CONSUMER LIKE ACCOMMODATIONS
The Chicago Federal Reserve observes that rent and interest payment on consumer debt have made marked increase in spending for services. In addition, most major service groups have shown gains around 100 per cent or more since 1947. "Over-all spending has more than doubled in the past decade," it notes. "This compared with a 70 per cent increase in outlays for consumer durable goods and a 50 per cent gain in purchases of soft goods."

"Since 1947, service prices have risen 38 per cent, about doubling the durable and nondurable goods price advance . . . Hospital fees and transit fares are up more than 100 per cent, while residential gas and electricity rates have risen only 16 per cent . . . The nation's yearly bill for radio and TV repairs rose from $140,000,000 a decade ago to perhaps $850,000,000 last year."

Even shoppers who do not read the Chicago Federal Reserve's monthly bulletin may be aware of the amount that services have added to the cost of food.

Potatoes in bulk are cheap. But when a shopper pays for having them washed, peeled, cut or mashed, cooked, frozen, transported and kept cold until purchase, the price rises. The amount paid for a 13-ounce package of frozen fried or mashed potatoes may—at an off-hand guess—be 20 per cent for spuds and 80 per cent for services.

DEMOCRATS MAY CALL IT FRATKIDE
Although the present Administration is often regarded as biased toward business, a check by Commerce Clearing House shows that more violations of Federal laws controlling competition in business were prosecuted by Federal agencies in 1957 at any other time of recent record.

God Reveals His Law

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 19:20; Deuteronomy 5.

The children of Israel came to the wilderness of Sinai. Moses went up in the mountain, and the Lord told him that if the people would keep His covenants, "Ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto Me above all people."

JEHOVAH TELLS MOSES WHAT HE SHALL SAY TO THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL.

Scripture—Exodus 19:20; Deuteronomy 5.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. OBEDIENCE to law is the subject of this lesson. As small children we must obey the laws of the home, of safety, of the school and of the community in which we live. All of whatever age, must obey physical and biological laws to keep our bodies healthy.

A Mild Spring, If You Look At Business Map

By SAM DAWSON. NEW YORK (AP)—It's a mild spring if you look at the business weather map. The sap is rising. Bu it's no gusher. Item: 78,000 fewer persons are out of work than a month ago and 600,000 more have jobs. That's mostly because spring has opened up some outdoor employment and a number of those who were sticking close to the home fires while back have gone out and taken the jobs. The catch is that in most springs unemployment falls quite a bit more than that.

Argentina's New President Sees Hectic Inauguration

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Arturo Frondizi, Argentina's new president, recuperated today at the suburban presidential retreat from his hectic inauguration and a pre-inaugural influenza attack.

The tall, bespectacled lawyer took office yesterday as the first democratically elected President since Juan Peron seized power in 1943. After a day during which crowds from the right, left and center demonstrated, Frondizi retired to the suburban retreat and told newsmen he would not be back at the downtown Pink Palace until Monday.

He planned to interrupt his rest spell, however, to entertain U.S. Vice President Richard Nixon at lunch and to review the fleet tomorrow.

Frondizi in his inaugural address to Congress made clear his awareness of Argentina's grave political and economic problems. He got a graphic demonstration of the deep political lines dividing the nation as he took office.

Peron's supporters flooded the streets, chanting their exiled leader's name. Spurred on by Frondizi's inaugural promise of freedom for all political parties, they waved Peronist banners and released balloons carrying Peron's picture in front of Government House.

The Communists, who also supported Frondizi, lost no time making themselves heard. Although small in number and officially outlawed, the Reds staged a May Day meeting protesting Nixon's presence at the head of the U.S. delegation to the inauguration.

Thousands of others cheered the outgoing provisional president, Brig. Gen. Pedro Aramburu, who had played a leading role in the 1956 revolution which overthrew Peron and who had held the elections despite considerable opposition from his military supporters.

Police arrested some of the Peronist demonstrators and used tear gas and the flat of their sabers on others. The Peronists also were stoned last night when they marched on the city's North Side, which is openly anti-Peronist and scuffled at one point with Communist marchers.

In his inauguration message to Congress, Frondizi promised to submit an ample and generous amnesty bill, which the Peronists hope will allow them to resume legal political activities.

It was not known whether the measure would permit the return of Peron and his lieutenants-in-exile.

Any amnesty must be approved by Congress, in which the new President's Intransigent Radical party holds all Senate seats and a sizable lower-house majority.

Nixon, meanwhile, had a busy schedule including visits to the Buenos Aires Chamber of Commerce and nearby industrial plants.

Seawell Favors Electing Judges

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Malcolm B. Seawell, a former superior court judge, said here last night the right to elect judges "is a safeguard which the people have and which they should keep."

Seawell pointed out he did not want to leave the impression no changes are needed in state courts and in the administration of justice.

"There are many needed changes," he declared, "but the people of this state should not give up (and probably will not) their right to elect their judges."

He made the statement in a speech before the University of North Carolina Law School. His talk was part of the observance of Law Day.

A North Carolina Bar Assn. committee studying ways to improve and expedite the administration of justice in state courts recently recommended that superior courts judges and Supreme Court justices be appointed by the governor from candidates picked by the State Judicial Council. The council is composed of lawyers and judges.

Seawell said lawyers themselves could do much to improve the administration of justice.

"For example," he explained, "it is high time that the practicing attorney realize that a simple pleading is far better than page after endless page of useless and confusing words."

North Carolina citizens must realize, the recently appointed attorney general said, that the state's greatest product is its children of all races and creeds.

Then they will know, he added, "that the greatest, most hopeful, undertaking we now have as a people is, under law, to keep open our public schools."

Candidates Are For Tree Houses

ATHERTON, Calif. (AP) — Both of California's gubernatorial candidates agree on at least one thing: little boys have a right to play in tree houses.

Republican Sen. William F. Knowland, who wants to be governor, issued a statement to that effect yesterday.

His opponent, Democratic Atty. Gen. Edmund Brown, had taken the same stand earlier.

Opposing the two candidates is the City Council of this swank San Francisco suburb. Councilmen ruled that two youngsters needed a building permit for their tree house.

The lads involved in this rapidly heating situation are Kenneth Templeton, 9 and his brother John, 8. They erected a tree house in the front yard of their home. Councilmen apparently decided it marred the elegance of the town.

J. Francis Shirley, San Francisco attorney called in by Brown, said he was prepared to argue as far as the U. S. Supreme Court in favor of the children of Mrs. penneth S. Templeton.

Shirley said he would argue that the tree house is actually a fort, and therefore, is subject to military law which takes precedence over municipal ordinances.

Shirley also mentioned natural law: "The natural law," he said with a fairly straight face, "gives a boy under 12 the unalienable right to climb a tree and build therein a hut for fort."

Public Interest Rallying Again To The Radio Sets

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — There are stacks of facts and figures piling up these days which show that public interest is rallying to radio again.

But let's pull one small item from the pile: the stars of show business are turning to radio, as if it were a brand new invention.

Almost three years ago when NBC radio launched its 40-hour weekend Monitor concept of programming, its creative minds decided that it would be a good idea to interview stars.

For a long time, however, performers did not want to be interviewed by the program because they did not realize that it was functioning journalistically and bringing their names and personalities to a wide audience.

But now they have awakened to the fact that there is a large radio audience, says Albert L. Capstaff, executive producer of Monitor. These days they welcome radio interviews.

Monitor also has signed many big names of show business for short sketches—people who probably wouldn't have been interested a few years ago. Although the pay is not as big as in television, the hours it takes to tape record a program are far shorter.

Fibber McGee and Molly were the first to sign up with Monitor along with the comedy team of Bob and Ray. Such performers as Bob Hope, George Gobel and Jerry Lewis have followed. Now Marlene Dietrich has agreed to give advice to the lovelorn and reminisce about past days in show business.

Advertising sponsors know there's a large audience listening to radio. In the case of Monitor, for example, Capstaff says that the program has to turn away sponsor dollars.

Safer To Move Safe In Daytime

SAN DIMAS, Calif. (AP) — "Put up your hands and no funny stuff," the cop commanded the two men hauling the safe down a dark alley.

"This is my safe," Albert Bays, a local jeweler, explained to Sheriff's Deputy Eric Rolko. "I'm giving it to my druggist friend down the street." Bays was able to establish ownership to the officer's satisfaction.

"Next time you move a safe, do it in daylight — it's healthier," said Rolko, putting his gun away.

Experts Stumped By A Sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — A 212-word sentence in the Internal Revenue Code has stumped experts trying to boil it down for readability.

The passage, concerning tax estimates, roused the wrath last month of Sen. Arthur Watkins (R-Utah). He offered a book on simplified English to anyone who could reduce its complexity.

A CBS television program (The Last Word) took up the issue and announced it would add an encyclopedia to the prize offer. About 600 answers were examined by a panel of New York University professors.

Bill Weinstein, the program's producer, said the best answer contained five errors.

He said the professional panel suggested that a few periods could be put in, adding: "But there just wasn't any way of simplifying the phraseology."

E. Carolina, Catawba At Guy Smith Stadium Tonight

Bucs Put 6-1 Mark On Line Tonight

Coach Jim Mallory's East Carolina Pirates will wind up one of their most hectic weeks of the season here tonight, tangling with the Catawba Indians at Guy Smith Stadium at 8:00.

On Monday, the Bucs were to have played Catawba, there, but rain forced the game to be postponed. The original schedule placed the next ball game between the two teams here in Greenville on Saturday night—but officials came to realize this week that a Saturday night game would conflict with ECC's big 50th Anniversary Pageant. Therefore, the game has been switched to tonight.

As if all this switching and confusion weren't enough, Coach Mallory had to put his boys to a real test here Wednesday, playing High Point in the afternoon and Duke University at night. The Bucs stomped High Point 5-0 but succumbed to Duke's superior strength 8-3 in the twilight tilt.

Whether the Indians and ECC will attempt to play a double-header tonight to make up for Monday's rained-out fray, is not known. As of this morning, no word has been mentioned about such a possibility, and it is therefore assumed that a make-up game will be played at the tail end of the season. Then, again, the coaches may decide upon something tonight when Catawba arrives in Greenville.

East Carolina, winner of six conference games and loser of only one thus far, will go into tonight's ball game as the No. Two club in the North State loop. Catawba—which had a 3-1 record at last count—is currently running in third place. Elon, 8-1, is leading the fold.

The Pirates will be favored by a very slight margin tonight, due to the comparative records and the fact that the Bucs will be playing on a home field before a home crowd. But that doesn't necessarily count Catawba out. Coach Mallory stated at the first of the season that he regarded Catawba as one of the most powerful clubs in the loop this year and that any team would have to go hard to defeat them—at home or away.

A Catawba victory tonight would set the Indians up in a pretty position to challenge Elon and would all but dump ECC out of the race. The fact that all three of the top teams have lost only one game each would indicate that the one which wins the title will probably not lose another tilt. Therefore, every game counts from here on out.

Coach Mallory has used every one of his top pitchers during the past five days. He has, in fact, used them all several times each in the past five days. This makes any speculation as to who he intends to pitch tonight, quite impossible. Bruce Shelley, Mullins, South Carolina boy, has won twice during that stretch of time, defeating High Point on both occasions. Helping out in that Wednesday afternoon win was George Williams. Against Duke, Mallory pitched Ben Baker and Leonard Lilley, who round out ECC's top four hurlers.

It could be that Mallory intends to use some of his other hurlers against Catawba tonight. If so, he might start Mitchell Moon, Earl Boykin, or Tom Salter. However, on the basis of past decisions, it is not likely. It is expected that one of the four named earlier will start. Williams is the probable choice.

Marion Talton will handle catching chores. At first base will be Jimmy Martin; Al Vaughn will be at second; Jerry Stewart will be at shortstop; Bucky Reep will handle third; outfielders will be Tommy Nance, Bill Altman, and Jerry Phillips.

Rose High Defeats Washington 6-2 To Collect Sixth Win

Elizabeth City To Battle Here This Afternoon

Greenville's Rose High schoolers poked out a 6-2 baseball win over Washington here yesterday at Brookgreen Field.

The Phantoms added their sixth Northeastern Conference victory to their pile, against only one loss. Joe Moyer hurled for Bo Farley's Greenies, giving up only three hits. Two of those three hits came after he walked Pam-Pack batsmen, and both times resulted in Washington scoring in the second and fourth innings.

Washington used pitchers Peck and Boyd. Greenville picked up its six runs in the first, second, and fifth innings. The first run was unearned but the G-Men bolstered the rest of their scores with a total of seven hits. In the first frame, Greenville picked up a run when Peck walked a batsman and allowed him to go all the way around on a series of wild pitches.

In the second, Dick Evans walked and Mack Roebuck walked. Merrill Bynum drove a hit into leftfield and the ball rolled through the leftfielder, allowing both runners to score. Bynum went to third. He scored later on a fielder's choice.

Coach Farley's club added two more runs in the fifth. Billy Cox singled and went to second base on another error by the leftfielder. Evans singled to score Cox, and went to second on the throw, and came in on a long double by Roebuck.

The hitting for Greenville was done by Bobby Edwards who collected two for two; Merrill Bynum who had two for three; and Cox, Evans, and Roebuck who had one each.

Elizabeth City will tackle the G-Men today at Brookgreen Field at 3:30. Coach Farley will pitch Bynum.

Silky Sullivan Heightens Derby Fever At Louisville

By ORLO ROBERTSON LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Derby fever, keenly sharpened by one of the most colorful horses in American racing history, gripped Louisville today.

Although 16 of the nation's best 3-year-olds were entered for tomorrow's race, not more than 14 or 15 were expected to start.

The race will be televised and broadcast by CBS from 4:15 to 4:45 p.m., EST.

On the basis of 16 starters the 1 1/4-mile race before an expected crowd of some 100,000 will gross $153,000. A net of $118,900 goes to the winner. Scratchies will reduce the purses by $1,250 for each withdrawal.

Until a few weeks ago this Derby figured to be a mediocre race. Then along came Silky Sullivan, who tugged at the hearts and imagination of racing fans.

ported Irish, stallion Sullivan never lets his followers down as far as thrills go.

He doesn't always win. In fact, he lost his last two starts at a mile and at 7 furlongs.

But at the end he was rolling over most of his opposition after shifting into high about a quarter-mile from the finish line.

Silky probably won't be the favorite tomorrow.

That honor is expected to go to Tim Tam, a son of the great Tom Fool, from Calumet Farm.

The early line quoted Tim Tam, victorious in 8 of his 10 starts this year after racing only once as a 2-year-old, at 2-1.

PHANTOMITES — Defeat Chicod By 17-4 Score

Phantomites Defeat Chicod By 17-4 Score

CHICOD—Coach Milton Reech's Junior High School Phantomites walloped Chicod 17-4 here yesterday to claim their first victory of the 1958 season.

It marked the first game of the year for the Greenville club. The Chicod team is made up of players from the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades.

Alan McArthur pitched the first three innings of play for Greenville and was relieved by Lou Ward. It was McArthur's win. He struck out five and Ward fanned two.

Pitchers for Chicod were Cates and Dixon. It was Cates' loss. A combination of seven Phantomite hits, eight Chicod errors, and 11 bases on balls issued by Chicod pitchers helped to accumulate most of Greenville's runs.

Hitting for the Phantoms were Joyner with a double and a single; James with a triple; McArthur with a triple; Jenkins, Andresen and Owens with a single each.

This afternoon at Falkland, the Phantomites play their second game of the year. The opposition will be the Falkland Junior High club. Game time is 4:00.

Even Casey Can Be Wrong—He Had Ray Narleski Tagged As 'Sore Arm'

By ED WILKS

Casey Stengel looked at Ray Narleski's 1957 record and crossed him off as a "sore arm pitcher." Which proves even Casey can be wrong.

The onetime relief ace the Cleveland Indians tried to peddle to Detroit, Boston and Casey's New York Yankees in a winter search for a second baseman, gained his second consecutive complete game victory last night for the Injuns, beating the Washington Senators 9-1 with a five-hitter.

The 29-year-old right-hander, converted into a starter when injuries crippled Cleveland's pitching staff last season, gave the Senators nothing but singles. Three of those were by Li'l Abbie Pearson, as Narleski blanked the Nats over the last eight innings.

The loss kept the Senators from moving into second place ahead of the Kansas City Athletics, who were beaten 7-6 at Boston and now trail the Yanks by one game.

The Chicago White Sox called on southpaw Billy Pierce in relief for a 4-3 decision at Baltimore in the only other game scheduled.

In the National League, Pittsburgh won its sixth straight with an 8-3 romp at Los Angeles. The Chicago Cubs took first with a 3-2 victory over Milwaukee as Philadelphia dumped San Francisco to third 7-0.

Narleski gained his third victory in four decisions (he was 11-5 in '57) after giving the Nats their run on a bases-loaded balk in the first. Mickey Vernon and Chico Carrasquel homered for Cleveland.

Pierce, winless in two starts, saved Jim Wilson's second victory as the last-place White Sox bagged but their second success in the last nine games. Pierce gave two hits, one an RBI double by Gene Woodling when he relieved in the eighth.

The Sox managed just six hits off loser Connie Johnson and two relievers.

Boston left 11 on base in the first seven innings, then came from behind against losing reliever Tom Gorman with two runs in the ninth. Gene Stephens' double, a pinch-hit single by Marty Keough and Jim Piersall's double won it for reliever Ike Delock.

ACC Not Expected To Approve Tech

By KEN ALYTA GREENSBORO (AP) — The drive on behalf of Atlantic Coast Conference membership for Virginia Tech appeared to have lost momentum as the ACC headed into its spring meeting here today.

One member school official ventured the observation that the issue might not even come to a vote, since it appeared to lack enough support to carry.

There was no opposition to Tech itself, it appeared, but rather to expanding the eight-member conference.

It was born here five years ago when seven schools broke away from the Southern Conference. Several months later independent Virginia, a former Southern member, was brought in. But the bars today appeared down, for the time being at least, against increasing membership.

Virginia, Maryland and Wake Forest had proposed the name of Tech for membership.

Committees met throughout the day and night yesterday and again this morning, laying groundwork for what they would be a fast-moving session.

In past years the first official conference session was called to order at 10 a.m. The start was delayed three hours, leaving the morning open for further meetings of faculty athletic chairmen and athletic directors.

Several key items figured to take the spotlight. Among them were a solution to the football bowl problem; the television schedule for regional football next fall; next fall; and basketball and consideration of a proposal to limit football scholarships.

With no Orange Bowl ties left, the ACC has to set up a new bowl formula. A proposal from last fall's meeting has been under study. It would allow any member to accept an NCAA authorized bowl game invitation immediately after its season ended.

The bloc appeared to revolve around the split of the bowl money. The proposed plan would have the participating school keep one-half of its share of the bowl receipts. Of the remaining half, a quarter would go to the conference and the remainder would be divided equally among the other members. Another item hanging from last fall involves voting procedure. At present a 6-2 vote of the membership of eight is required to amend the bylaws. It has been proposed by the constitution and bylaws committee that the conference consider changing the requirement to 5-3.

Duke has proposed for the fifth time that scholarship awards or grants-in-aid be denied students who rank in the bottom quarter of their class academically or fall below certain college board requirements.

Louisville, Ky. (AP) — Archie Moore, the light heavyweight champion who believes in fighting whenever and wherever a buck can be made, and Willie Besmanoff, almost as active but in a much briefer period, square off tonight in a 10-round Derby eve fight at Freedom Hall.

Moore, who admits to 41 and probably is nearer 45, is approaching the 200-mark class in fights. He has knocked out 126 opponents. A knockout tonight will permit him to break a kayo record that he holds jointly with the late Young Stribling.

Besmanoff, 25, a stocky, fast-punching German now living in New York, has made 54 appearances in the ring, winning 37 and drawing seven. He has scored 14 knockouts.

The ex-German baker dropped out of the top 10 in the rankings when he lost five straight after running off 13 successive victories. But he moved back into the No. 8 spot when he upset Pat McMurry at Seattle Feb. 4 in his last appearance.

NBC will broadcast and telecast at 9 p.m., EST.

Dulles Says U.S. May Cut Arctic Plane Flights, If--

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles leaves today for a NATO conference at Copenhagen to press his campaign for Soviet acceptance of international military inspection over the polar frontiers.
In a news conference on the eve of his departure Dulles stepped up U.S. pressure on the Moscow government by offering this deal: If the Soviet Union will agree to the inspection system proposed by the United States, the U. S. government will consider curbing the northward nuclear bomber flights which the Soviets have angrily protested.
In an evident bid for worldwide public opinion support, he argued that if an arctic inspection zone could be established "it might mark a real turning point in this whole cold war situation."
He said also that the Soviet attitude toward the plan would "influence our own thinking as to the value of the summit conference" now under preliminary discussion.

The plan, designed to lessen each nation's fear of attack, would let the Soviets know what was going on in such areas as northern Canada and Alaska and disclose the Soviet military strategy and operations in northern Siberia.
The North Atlantic foreign ministers conference, opening Monday in Copenhagen, will review a whole range of international problems. It is expected to back the polar inspection plan in a public statement.
In a statement with which he opened his news conference, Dulles denied that the U.S. proposal was a propaganda maneuver, as the U.S.S.R. had charged.
"If the Soviets do not have bomber and missile bases in the north of their country available for a sudden surprise attack upon the United States, then our own problem of security is greatly altered," he said. "Perhaps we would then feel it safe greatly to minimize the flights of which the Soviet Union complains."

Dulles also covered these other major points in responding to news conference questions:
1. President Eisenhower has not yet made a final decision on whether to separate suspension of nuclear testing from other disarmament proposals with which the United States has always connected it. Dulles' use of the word "yet" was in line with information privately available from officials that the President probably will separate the test issue in an effort to get an agreement with the Soviet Union on suspending tests under international inspection.
2. The United States hopes to "get along in a correct, friendly way with the United Arab Republic" under President Gamal Abdel Nasser. But the U.S. hope is based on the assumption that the Arab republic, recently formed by the merger of Egypt and Syria, will do nothing to upset the peace and security of the Middle East.

Southern Mayors Will Talk Bombing Outrages

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—An impromptu Southern mayors conference here tomorrow to discuss racial dynamitings is growing in size.

Named To Post In Raleigh Bank

William A. Bowen (above), a native of Greenville, has been elected assistant vice president of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in Raleigh.
His election came at the quarterly directors meeting of the bank early this week.
He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bowen of 401 Rotary Avenue, Greenville.
Bowen joined Wachovia in 1951 and for the past several years has served as a lending officer in the banking department at Raleigh.
A graduate of Greenville High School, he is also a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of North Carolina, a member of the Raleigh Junior Chamber of Commerce, the American Institute of Banking and the Terepsichorean Club of Raleigh.
Homer is the Cumæan name for "blind."

In addition to the four cities where there were bomb incidents—Nashville, Tenn.; Birmingham, Ala.; Miami; and Jacksonville—at least nine others will be represented, Mayor Haydon Burns of Jacksonville said.
He would not identify the other cities. He said it might finger them for other bombings. It is up to the officials of those cities to say they are coming if they care to, Burns said.
Mayors and police chiefs of the larger cities in the South have been invited, Burns said, and such officials of other cities will be welcome.
Purpose of the conference, Burns said, is a free exchange of information, including clues, names of suspects and precautions against possible future racial violence.
He also said he may ask the visitors if they would like to pool reward money which has been offered to information leading to the apprehension of the persons responsible for the dynamite blasts.
Rewards of $3,700 have been offered here and $8,810 at Birmingham. A Negro school and a Jewish synagogue were damaged by explosions here early Monday. A faulty fuse prevented the explosion of 54 sticks of dynamite beside a Jewish temple at Birmingham.
There were blasts last month in Nashville and Miami.
Capt. Roy Smith of Gastonia, N.C., Police Department will attend the conference. Smith still is investigating the attempted bombing of a Gastonia Jewish temple Feb. 10.
Charlotte officials said they had not been invited to the conference. Charlotte had two attempted bombings, one at a Negro school and another at a Jewish temple.
Five Ku Klux Klan members were sentenced in the attempted school bombing.
Homer is the Cumæan name for "blind."

Despite The Law, Maxton Juveniles Continue Crimes

MAXTON, N.C. (AP)—Operating within the grasp of the law and in spite of N. C. gang of young Negro delinquents has set this Robeson County town on edge with a series of break-ins during recent weeks.
The youngsters, ranging in age from 9 to 13 years, have resisted efforts at reform and counsel by police and juvenile authorities.
They can be arrested, and often are. But state law prohibits confining a child under 14 in the county or city jail for more than 24 hours.
They could be sent to the nearby Morrison Training School for Negro juvenile delinquents. But, says Juvenile Judge B. Frank McMillin, there is no room at the school, which now is handling about 300 boys in quarters originally planned for 160.
"We have reached the end of our rope," Police Chief Robert W. Fisher said yesterday. "We simply have no place to put them. And other gangs are starting because we haven't been able to do anything with the first group."
The chief said a 9-year-old boy apparently is the leader of the gang, which is accused of six or eight break-ins at residences, stores, concession stands and filling stations. Residents of the area most frequently victimized have armed themselves with shotguns to defend their property. Fisher added, and several have fired blasts to frighten the boys away.
The break-ins have netted the youths less than $100 in cash and merchandise, declared the chief. Fisher said that for awhile he worked on the theory that the neglected boys were hungry. Police arranged for them to get two meals daily from the county welfare department. But frequently the boys don't show up to eat, Fisher said, and do not attend school, where meals could be provided for them.

The chief said that for a day or so he kept several of the gang members with him, purchased

Still Finds A Niche In Atomic Age; Turns Out Hydrogen Supply

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—There's a still in operation here that has nothing to fear from the Reverend.
It's output is pure, but a far cry from pure mountain dew. This still is operated by the government's own National Bureau of Standards and its yield is heavy hydrogen.
Heavy hydrogen and oxygen produce the "heavy water" required by atomic reactors which use uranium as fuel. Someday stills such as this one may have the same importance in the production of atomic power as coal mines and oil refineries have in the age of fossil fuels.
For every atom of heavy hydrogen found in nature, there are about 7,000 atoms of ordinary hydrogen. The two forms of hydrogen so far can't be easily separated.
Existing methods are slow and costly, but scientists at the Bureau of Standards Laboratory here are confident they can lick the problem by fractional distillation. It's the same method used to separate alcohol from water or gasoline from kerosene. The stuff is boiled in a still and the lighter stuff passes off first, leaving the heavier liquid behind.
With hydrogen, the big task is to get it super-chilled into liquid form. This is done by using liquid nitrogen which gets temperatures down to hundreds of degrees below zero where the hydrogen can be liquefied mechanically.
The next problem is to get the liquid hydrogen to boil gently and smoothly so that the ordinary hydrogen will bubble away first, leaving the heavy hydrogen behind.

Ordinary hydrogen boils at 422.9 degrees below zero while heavy hydrogen boils at 417.1 degrees below zero.
Daniel H. Weitzel, laboratory leader on the project, says he has been going on for three years, "each still a little larger and more complicated in design than the one before." The equipment is now advancing from laboratory to pilot plant proportions.
The project has cost about $45,000 a year for the past three years.
Technical studies for the Boulder project are being made by Thomas M. Flynn, a chemical engineer doing graduate work at the University of Colorado for his doctor of philosophy degree. He is a science graduate of Rice University in Houston, Tex.
George Wallace and James Draper of the National Bureau of Standards are constructing the intricate apparatus.

Sukarno Govm't Takes Calmer View Of Issue

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno's government today took much of the sting out of its charges that Americans are flying for the Indonesian rebels. The retreat was in response to assurances from President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles.
Foreign Minister Subandrio told newsmen his government appreciated Dulles' receptiveness toward the question of "the elimination of intervention by American adventurers."
Subandrio said he was prepared to give U. S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones a confidential report on the participation of American nationals in the revolt against the Jakarta regime and that he is convinced "with good will from both sides the problem can be solved through diplomatic channels."

Premier Djuanda on Wednesday charged in a sharp statement that American and Chinese Nationalist pilots were flying the rebel planes which have been bombing Jakarta positions in east Indonesia in the past few days. The rebels said their tiny air force was manned entirely by Indonesians and Chinese born in Indonesia, and challenged Jakarta to name any Americans flying for them.
President Eisenhower conceded that "soldiers of fortune" usually are attracted to any rebellion but said U. S. policy toward the Indonesian civil war is one of strict neutrality. Dulles subsequently said the U. S. government would give serious consideration to any proposal Indonesia might make to curb any Americans fighting with the rebels.
Subandrio spoke to newsmen after conferring with Djuanda. Despite his soothing words, he added that "this participation in the rebellion in Indonesia by foreign planes with foreign pilots is regarded by the Indonesian government as a very serious matter."

Men from the following churches will attend: Eighth Street Christian, Hooker Memorial Christian, and the Christian Churches at Farmville, Walstonburg, and Arthur. Circle No. 3 of Red Oak Church will serve the supper.
Boy Scout Troop 398 will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. with Scoutmaster Chester Don Worthington Jr. and his assistant scoutmasters, Ami Eason and Dick Bailey.
Family Night at 6:30 o'clock on Friday will begin with an ALL-CHURCH COVERED DISH SUPPER. The program will be concluded with a film, "The Split-Level Family," for youth and adults and "Bushy, The Squirrel," a stewardship film for children. A nursery will be provided following the family meal.

See Relief For Teacher Scarcity

RALEIGH (AP)—The state should begin to see some relief in its teacher shortage by 1961 as a result of the scholarship fund for teachers.
This was reported yesterday to the State Board of Education by Dr. Charles F. Carroll, state superintendent of public instruction.
The board approved 335 new scholarships for prospective teachers and granted the continuation of 300 scholarships awarded last year.
The 1957 Legislature appropriated $105,000 for the teacher scholarship fund during the first year of the biennium. In addition $15,000 was made available for the first summer session. For the second year of the biennium, $210,000 was appropriated, plus $15,000 for the summer session.
The board was told that about 15 applications for scholarships are being received daily. A total of 1,402 applications have been received this year.
The scholarship fund specifies that a maximum of $350 be awarded to each young man or woman who desires to go into the teaching profession, who needs financial aid and who meets scholarship requirements. The student must agree to teach for as many years as he receives the aid.
The board allocated a total of $374,534 in state funds for six school building projects in the state. The biggest amount, $100,000, went to Yadkinville for the renovation of a school building.

Starry-Eyed Students Get Word Of Caution

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Youngsters with stars in their eyes and space flights in their mind heard a word of warning last night. E. R. Quesada, special assistant to President Eisenhower, spoke against "stunts that are spectacular and only spectacular" in the race for outer space. Quesada was principal speaker at the closing banquet of a day-long space age conference for Oklahoma teen-agers. He said, "If we explore space intelligently, many treasures will be unlocked. They are there if we will tap them, find them and put them to use, and I hope, to constructive use." Quesada also disagreed with a current impression that the Soviet Union is ahead of the U.S. in education. "Our relative position is constantly changing and we will not keep our position by copying them," he said. "We must not ignore long-range objectives either in the educational system or in research programs." During the day some 5,000 science students from 400 Oklahoma schools listened attentively to the Air Force's top space scientists. They also examined the Air Force's Thor missile and studied cutaway models and exhibits of space age problems and prophesies. During the conference, speaker after speaker urged the teen-agers to think of the future in science in the same manner as the men who pushed back the frontiers of the early West. Lt. Gen. Clarence Irvine, Air Force deputy chief of staff, said the enthusiasm of the students did not surprise him. He said: "No-body ever really bothered in years past to tell 'em science was important and what their place in it will be."

One Of Nehru's Friends Will Take Over His Post

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Congress party has cleared the way for one of Prime Minister Nehru's old political comrades to take over while the Prime Minister is on vacation. Home Minister Govind Ballabh Pant, 70, was unanimously elected as the party's deputy leader in Parliament yesterday. As in Britain, the leader of the majority party heads the government. Nehru announced Tuesday that he wants to leave the government for while to prepare for the "great tasks ahead." The statement points up his deep concern about India's political future and the dangers of a world war. Although he was vague, he gave a few hints about what he has in mind. The international situation "bothers on the brink of a precipice with hydrogen bombs ever ready to discharge," he said. He is known to be willing to take part in a summit conference if asked and is clearly concerned about how India might help make a conference successful. "I do not imagine we could do much," he said, "but even a little sometimes helps and in any event we should be clear in our thinking." Nehru also mentioned "the problems of India bearing down upon us which require constant attention and fresh thinking." The most perplexing and most important of India's problems is the question of its parliamentary future after Nehru, and that probably is his central domestic concern. The big question is whether anyone except Nehru can hold the party together. Some Indians believe it should be divided into right and left-wing parties, but Nehru has never favored this. Nehru probably would spend a large part of his free time revitalizing the Congress party in its present form.

HAPPENS EVERY SPRING BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Warden L. E. Clapp says the population of the Idaho state penitentiary shows a marked decline every spring and summer. The reason, he explains, is that paroles are only given to prisoners when they have an outside job waiting for them and more jobs are available in the spring and summer months.

Books & Stuff

By DR. ED MIRSBERG This week's—May 3—edition of the Saturday Review contains one of the best articles about that much-maligned subject, Education, that we have seen in a long time—which is saying a lot, since practically everybody who is anybody is writing about Education these days. "Victims of Success" is by Henry Steele Commager, a history professor who has written many other articles about current American problems. The gist of the article is that our high schools actually have done a much better job of educating our young than many people say they have, and that now the time has come for the high schools to back-track a little and limit what they are doing to academic matters. Extra-curricular activities, Mr. Commager says, monopolize far too much of the high-school student's time, particularly now when education is a process that should be speeded up rather than slowed down. Concentration on the real job of the school—an academic education—is what will do the country, our schools and our children the most good. And we'll say "second the motion" to that one. In May In addition to May Day—pretty drab around here, we might add—we have this month to look forward to Mother's Day, the Kentucky Derby, and Memorial Day—the latter is, despite objections from some quarters, a legal holiday in N. C. Also, in May of 1810, Lord Byron swam across the Hellespont, and in May of 1927 Charles Lindbergh flew across the Atlantic. . . . And two important birthdays: Harry Truman Local Scene This Saturday and Sunday are the Big Days at East Carolina. . . . "East Carolina's Spade: To Serve," the 50th anniversary pageant written by Professor Emma Hooper of the English Department, will be presented at Wright Auditorium for two performances only—Saturday evening at 8:00 and Sunday afternoon at 3:30. Better come early if you want a seat. The movie version of Ernest Hemingway's famous novel, "Farewell to Arms," will be on display at the local cinema this weekend.

Today's Review Dr. George Cook of the E.C.C. English Department, who has just received a Fulbright Fellowship to teach American literature in Germany, gives us his comments on a recent novel about an attractive French girl—"cherchez la femme," we always say. . . . Sandstrom, Flora, THE VIRTUOUS WOMEN OF ONT. CLERY. New York: The John Day Company, 1958, 253 pp. $3.75. Madame Quimpernay, the beautiful midwife of the Norman village Pont Clery, has achieved an elevation in becoming the wife of the local count and the mistress of Chateau d'Hautcourt, an elevation that leaves the village women, normally jealous of rival good looks, gasping in envy, and their men a trifle saddened, for they had had foolish little dreams of having their male prowess challenged in some pleasant rencontre. Now they can dream only of past—and innocent—brushes with Madame Quimpernay.

Religious Future Speaking of the Holy Land, we want to let you know about a book coming out early this month about the Dead Sea Scrolls, perhaps the most important religious discovery of the century. . . . It's called "The Dead Sea Scrolls and the Living Church," and was written by Rev. Carl G. Howie, pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian Church of San Francisco. He contributes some new thinking on the Scrolls and straightens out some of the sensational ideas about them that he disagrees with.

Future Pastor To Visit Local Mission Sunday

Terry W. Agner, a senior theological student who will graduate from the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania end of this month, will be visiting here and performing the regular Sunday morning Service for the local United Lutheran Mission this coming Sunday morning. The services will be held at the Clark's Greenville Funeral Home on Dickinson Avenue, at 9 a.m. Mr. Agner has accepted the call of the Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church of America to come to Greenville after his graduation and serve the United Lutheran Mission here as their permanent pastor and mission organizer.

He is a native of High Point, N.C. and a graduate of Lenoir Rhyne College, Hickory, N.C. from which College he received his A.B. degree in 1954. In May he will receive the B.D. degree from the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa. As part of his theological education, Mr. Agner served one year of internship at St. John's Lutheran Church of Highland, Pittsburg, Pa. Also during the summer of 1955 Mr. Agner worked in Glacier National Squires started talking fast, and finally convinced the officer he should call his boss to verify his position. Starry got the okay, and Squires warily went back to opening the meter. CHAPTER 34

There was only so much waiting a man could stand, and Price began to feel that Pete Nance could endure the waiting better than he could. The gunman was the biggest obstacle that stood between Price and Cole Weston. Later there would be Weston and some of his Rocking C hands, Curly Blue in particular, but he wouldn't worry about that now.

If you get him, you've still got to buck Weston, and he's got a pretty salty bunch. Curly Blue, for one. He ain't gonna forget the licking you gave him. The odds are too long, Price. You can't win. "I've got to try," Price said. "Looks to me like I'll be trying alone."

He went out, closing the door. Price said, "Get up, Barry. Sit here at the desk. Looks like it's past time for us to have a talk." Madden got up, rubbing the bruise on his jaw, and sat down the desk. That one blow had made a changed man out of him. The arrogance, the smooth, confident manner, the desire to dominate; the characteristics that Price had disliked in him so much now seemed to be gone. Instead, there was a kind of wonder as if he couldn't believe this had happened to him.

Ask No Bars To Charitable Aid

Seek Big Hop By Fabulous Frogs

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP)—Calaveras County's fabulous frogs have been offered to missile men at Cape Canaveral as possible occupants of future American moons. The offer, of course, is aimed at beaming a spotlight on the annual International Frog Jump in this Sierra foothill town May 15-18. But it was made seriously.

Biologists have reported frogs, because their reactions are somewhat similar to that of humans, would prove valuable as passengers.

LEGENDARY LIFE DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—When Father Leo Walsh died here recently at 69, in the 40th year of his Roman Catholic priesthood, he was almost legendary. He was widely known as the man who sent 49 young men to the priesthood.

In estate settlement, too, Training and background count!

THE CAPTAIN of today's modern airliner has years of proven performance—under all conditions. Experience sits at the controls! No matter what emergency might arise, the passengers are confident their safety rests in skilled, trained hands.

Before each flight, the Captain and his First Officer run through a check-list to see that everything is in order. As "captain" of your estate, don't you agree that now is a good time for you to check the requirements of a qualified executor?

For example—Will your executor be on hand when the time comes? Is he familiar with the Internal Revenue Code? Is he well versed in real estate, taxes and investments? Can he follow the dozens of steps necessary to clear an estate? And, above all, is he experienced?

When you name our bank as executor under your Will, you have at your estate's command a team of qualified personnel. You can count on their training and background!

Please accept this as an invitation to stop in soon with your attorney, to discuss your estate plans.
